Texas Gets A New Cold Front

A cold front brought a new round of rain, drizzle and fog to upper Texas today and signaled the end of a warm spell that pushed temperatures as high as 90 degrees in South Texas.

Fog Blankets Much Of U. S.

By UNITED PRESS
Fog blanketed much of the nation from Kansas to New England early today, and light rain fell from the moisture laden air across the flood-soaked Southeast. However, weathermen said the rain was not enough to pose new threats to the flood-stricken sections of nine Southern states. Flood waters continued to recede despite rainfall Sunday ranging from a quarter to one inch. The floods have killed 15 persons, left thousands homeless and caused damages expected to exceed 1 billion dollars. A flow of warm, moist air was blamed for the general fog that extended south of a line from Kansas through the lower Great Lakes and into New England. Some drizzle and light rain also was reported in the Ohio Valley area and into Pennsylvania. Weathermen said the extensive fog will clear gradually during the day in most sections. A mass of colder air in the Plains is expected to push into the Great Lakes region and southward into Texas. Collision of the cold and warm air will produce rain in Texas, rain or drizzle in the Ohio Valley and light snow in the Northeast.

Blast Shakes Coal Mine; 35 Dead; Many Missing

Fifth Victim Of Accident Dies Sunday

The fifth victim of the Friday night train-auto crash near Amarillo, which resulted in the death of three other Pampa residents and a former resident of Wheeler, died at noon yesterday in the St. Anthony Hospital in Amarillo. The fifth person to die as a result of the accident was Mrs. Virginia Eunice Day, 35, who lived south of Pampa. Her husband, Everett Day, died shortly after they were taken to the hospital. The other persons, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Seitz of Pampa and Cecil William Richardson of Denver City, a former resident of Wheeler, were killed in the collision of the car, in which the five were riding, with a Rock Island freight at a crossing on Farm to market road 2912 of Amarillo. Joint funeral services for Mr. and Mrs. Day were to be held at 4:30 p.m. today in the First Baptist Church with Dr. E. Douglas Carver, pastor, officiating. Burial was to be in Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Duengel-Carmichael Funeral Home. Mrs. Day is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Burgess of Canyon; and one brother, Richard Burgess of Pampa. Mr. Day is survived by his mother, Mrs. Villa May Day of San Bernardino, Calif.; and one sister, Mary Eggleston of Littlefield. Services for Mr. and Mrs. Seitz were held at 1:30 p.m. today in the First Baptist church with Dr. E. Douglas Carver officiating. Burial was in Fairview Cemetery. Funeral services for Mr. Richardson were held yesterday at 3 p.m. in the Wheeler Baptist Church.

DEATH STOPPED THE CLOCK—Travel clock, its face smashed and the minute hand twisted to point to 6:15, lies near the wreckage of a DC-6 operated by Northeast Airlines which crashed on Riker's Island in the East River moments after its takeoff from New York's LaGuardia Field. The time of the crash, which took at least 20 lives and injured some 70 others, has been officially fixed as being 6:01 p. m.

Gas Is Believed To Have Touched Off Explosion

BISHOP, Va. (UP)—An explosion deep in one of the nation's largest soft coal mines today killed between 35 and 40 miners. Searchers found the bodies of the miners some six hours after the blast at Pocahontas Fuel Company's Bishop mine on the Virginia-West Virginia border. The company issued a statement saying there are "less than 40 men involved" in the disaster and that "of this number there are no survivors." The company said the cause of the explosion was not known but earlier an official indicated that gas was believed to have touched off the blast. Searchers reached the first of three 12-man crews trapped 2,000 feet deep in the mine about 8 a. m., some four hours after a blast—believed caused by gas ripped through the Bishop coal mine. Officials at first reported four known dead but mine dispatcher Robert Meade said there were others "presumed dead." Three Foremen Missing The three crews were digging coal from the face of the No. 3 seam of the Pocahontas mine field in the heart of the soft coal belt on the Virginia-West Virginia border. Meade said exploding gas apparently caused the disaster. Bad air and smoke hampered searchers as they tried to reach the men. Meade said the three crews were led by Section Foreman Raymond Owensby, Sylvie Myers, and Ralph Altier. All three, with their crews, were missing. Meade said all three were married and have children. The Bishop mine is the second largest of the Pocahontas Fuel Company's widespread soft coal operation in Virginia and West Virginia. The mine has two mouths, one of them here and the other three miles away at Horsepen, W. Va. The mine office here is in Virginia but the entrance, about 100 yards away is across the state line in West Virginia. The mine, with shafts running five miles deep, employs 800 men and produces about 10,000 tons of coal per day through one of the most modern mechanized coal operations in the country.

Light Agenda Scheduled For Commission

The agenda for the meeting of the City Commission tomorrow morning in city hall is expected to be light. The only items listed this morning for discussion by the commissioners were: the lease of the Zoning Grounds; the continuation of the zoning hearing on East Fraser addition No. 2, Fraser Annex; and one lot in the Sawyer addition; and the refund on water contracts made with developers of various subdivisions. The approval of the lease of the portion of Recreation Park used by the Top O' Texas Rodeo and Horse Show Association is expected at the meeting tomorrow. The only item needed is the agreement between the city attorney and the rodeo group's attorney on the amount of insurance to be carried. Final action is expected on the zoning hearing on the above mentioned sections of Pampa as semi-commercial. This hearing has been continued for the past several weeks and Fred Brook, city manager, reported that it should be closed tomorrow and action taken by the commissioners. There is also a possibility that the commission will discuss the resolution sent the city by the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority inviting the city to attend the meeting of the board of directors in Lub. on Feb. 11. The city will probably send representatives to the meeting to ascertain what proposition the eight cities in the authority will present to Pampa, Amarillo and Plainview in an effort to have these cities rejoin the authority.

Civil Rights Battle Opens Capitol Hill News

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congress opened its battle over civil rights today. The House Judiciary subcommittee started civil rights legislation on its long journey through Congress by calling Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. as a witness. The committee planned four days of intensive hearings on 43 civil rights bills before it. Some 30 witnesses are scheduled to testify for and against the measures. Brownell was scheduled to appear on behalf of President Eisenhower's four-point civil rights program. It called for a bipartisan commission to investigate civil rights violations; a separate civil rights division in the Justice Department; greater protection of voting rights, and increased government authority to use the courts to prevent civil rights violations. Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY), sponsor of the President's bill, said the measure was "moderate, realistic and progressive."

Officers Say Man's Death May Have Followed Brawl

FORT WORTH (UP)—Officers today followed a theory that Fort Worth hoodlum Sid Foley may have been killed as the result of a bathroom brawl. When Foley's body was found in a garbage pit Saturday, officers figured he was slain in a planned gangland killing. Foley was a one-time associate of the late Cecil Green and Tincy Eggleston, two hoodlums who died in gangland slayings. But Sheriff's Investigator E. N. Bue said Sunday that officers have learned of Foley's connection with a "big fight" last Friday night. He wouldn't elaborate. An autopsy showed Foley was shot in the head by a .38 caliber pistol after first having been beaten by a blunt instrument which fractured his skull. A 13-year-old boy found the body in the garbage pit near Lake Worth, just 12 feet outside the Fort Worth city limits.

Three Cases Tried In Court Here

Three cases were tried in County Court this morning resulting in two $100 fines plus three days in jail and one $25 fine plus costs. George Griffin Reeves of 128 W. Tuke was fined $100 plus costs plus three days in jail after pleading guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was arrested by city police in the 100 block of E. Albert early Sunday morning at 1:50 o'clock, after being involved in a collision with another vehicle. Also fined $100 plus costs and given three days in jail was Harold Jones McGavock of 817 Elm who pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was arrested by city police in the 400 block of W. Thut, Saturday at 10:30 p.m. Herbert Adkims of 421 Harlem, was fined $25 plus costs after pleading guilty to a charge of aggravated assault on J. C. Avery of 418 Maple.

Pampans Reminded of New Water Bills

Pampa residents were reminded this morning of the new type of statements being sent out by the city water department. The reminder was made by Fred Brook, city manager, and Wynn Veale, water department office manager, who reported that several citizens have sent the small stub of the bill in with their mail payments. They reminded persons making payments to the water department

Record-High Expenditure Recommended By Daniel

By O. B. LLOYD JR., United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN (UP)—Gov. Price Daniel today recommended a record-high expenditure of $358 million for the next two fiscal years and proposed a $35 million tax on natural gas to help foot the bill if increased oil production does not provide the needed revenue. He also called for a 10 per cent increase in the motor vehicle registration fee to provide an additional $8 million annually to finance an expanded right-of-way purchase program by the State Highway Department, and endorsing legislation doubling the present $25 per semester resident tuition fee at state-supported colleges and universities. The total of $358 million earmarked by the governor for spending from general revenue fell 32 million short of anticipated revenue. He specifically called upon the major oil refiners to "apply industrial statesmanship" necessary to "permit a fair production of oil" in Texas and yield increased revenues that would forestall need for an additional tax. "Extensions and improvements of present services necessary to the 'growth of our state and the rapid increase in population' underlining the need for most of the increased spending. The total of $358 million earmarked by the governor for spending from general revenue

30 Building Permits Are Issued Here

A total of 30 permits for the construction and remodeling of buildings in Pampa were issued by the city engineer's office for the month of January. The total value of these permits was $241,800. Of this total, 18 permits were for construction of new residences at a total evaluation of $225,400. Five permits were issued for the remodeling of residences at an estimated cost of $5,400. One permit for a new business building was issued with the cost listed at $3,000 and one permit was issued for the remodeling of a business with the cost also listed at $3,000. Five of the permits were for the moving into Pampa of buildings from other areas at a total evaluation of $3,300. Of the other two permits, one was for the construction of a garage at a cost of $900 and a permit listed as miscellaneous at a cost of $1,400.

Paint on New Face

For months behind the forbidden doors of floors six and seven of a sandstone building on Manhattan's lower west side, party leaders have been painting on the new face which will make no attempt to disguise their crisis. Is it just a mask to avoid further prosecution and to confuse the public? Or is it a sincere break from Kremlin domination? Is it a change of pace or heart? That is one of the few secrets the Communists still harbor from the vigilant eyes and long shadows of the FBI. The answers to those questions are a matter of interpretation.

Party in Sad Shape

The FBI, the Department of Justice, American labor leaders and many specialists on Communist affairs say that the image of "independence" is merely a carefully-arranged shift in tactics—a sham, Moscow still calls the signals. On one point there is no argument. The party is in sad shape. Eleven of the top 12 party leaders were convicted in 1949 and jailed in 1951 under the Smith act for conspiring to teach and advocate the overthrow of the U.S. government. Chairman Foster escaped trial due to illness. Five of the 11 are now free.

$1 Million Fire Hits Pittsburgh Building

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A $1 million five-alarm fire that raged more than 16 hours in the city's Golden Triangle was finally extinguished early today. Nine firemen were injured and more than 30 others overcome by smoke. The blaze destroyed a six-story building in the heart of Pittsburgh's business district. Fire Chief Stephen Adley himself overcame the most stubborn fire he encountered in 27 years. He estimated fire damage at $1,000,000, but smoke and water loss in neighboring structures was expected to top $1 million. Water filled the basement of every building in the block, and all nearby stores reported heavy smoke damage. Firemen manned aerial ladders to pour additional tons of water on

U.S. Reds Want To Convince You They Are Not Russian Puppets

By ROBERT E. JACKSON
NEW YORK, Feb. 5 (UP)—The Communist party is trying to convince you that it is not a puppet of the Soviet Union or a menace to America. It will unveil this weekend in New York a new "red-white-and-blue" look at the first national convention in six years. The American people will be asked to believe that the party no longer takes orders from Moscow, that today it is an independent movement of "national" Communists, still opposed to capitalism, but dedicated to debate and democracy. "We are American Communists," —patriots," said the 23,000-word draft resolution, a self-whipping confession of past errors and guileless statement of future tactics, prepared for approval by the Feb. 9-12 convention. "Nobody tells me what to think," a Communist official told a United Press reporter in a cubbyhole conversation which he said was wire-tapped. "Nobody gives us orders," said the party newspaper, the Daily Worker. "There are various roads to socialism—not just the Soviet way," said the party. Communists have denounced the brutalities of the late Soviet premier and hero, Josef Stalin. They have assailed the bloody repression and shooting of workers by Soviet troops in Hungary. They have argued with each other. When aging Party Chairman William Z. Foster defended the "grim necessity" of Soviet intervention to prevent "fascism" in Hungary, Daily Worker labor reporter Herbert Singer wrote: "If there is a 'grim necessity' it is that American Communists understand that they cannot take a serious step toward establishing a new basis for socialism... if they condone or justify the Soviet actions in Hungary."

Under the 1940 Smith act, 145 Communists have been tried in 18 processes, and 103 have gone to jail. The testimony of 27 undercover agents of the FBI who penetrated the party sealed the fate of many. The Smith act convictions, the exposure of 733 Communist-front publications and organizations, the deportation of subversives, the campaign against security risks—the party itself lists these as the acts which crippled it. But American Communists, with an able assist from the Soviet Union, undermined themselves by slavishly following the Kremlin line.

MIAMI BEACH (UP)—The AFL-CIO Executive Council will consider today whether to suspend three member unions accused of corruption and mishandling of millions of dollars in welfare funds. This next-to-last session of the council's annual mid-winter meeting here was expected to be highlighted by the disclosure of a report on the three unions by the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee. The unions named were the 25,000-member Distillery, Rectifying and Wine Workers Union, the 72,000-member Laundry Workers International Union and the 73,000-member Allied Industrial Workers of America.

Hearing On Unions

In the reports of vicious activities in connection with unions coming out of hearings of the Senate Government Operations subcommittee there is little that is new to those who have not been blinded by a belief in unionism.

The refusal of union bosses to testify before the committee on the grounds either that the individuals might incriminate themselves or because they felt that the Senate of the United States had no right to investigate union activities was to be expected.

If they did testify and told the truth they would have convicted themselves before their own union supporters even though there were no actual crimes committed.

But the money filched from union members through dues and assessments is not the worst part of the whole miserable mess. What is worse is what these "labor leaders" have done to the self respect and the dignity of the union members.

Nor could it have turned out otherwise, for the basic concept of unionism is grounded in fear and the initiation of force and the jungle law of might makes right — not a very sound or substantial basis for any organization.

When a union boss refuses to tell the Senate subcommittee anything more than his age he is (1) showing that he has a fear of the truth or (2) showing his contempt for the people of the United States and setting himself up as entitled to special privilege.

These witnesses before the subcommittee refused, under oath, to admit they were even members of a union, although they were listed as the union's officers. They refused to give their occupations or businesses. They refused to say whether they had received checks endorsed by them and drawn on the union and marked for organizational expenses.

Sen. Joseph McCarthy told the witnesses: "You never did any organizational work. That money was just stolen. Some went to you. Some went to other officers of the organization."

The witness on the stand refused to confirm or deny this. One witness refused to say whether union financial statements filed with the government were true. Witnesses refused to say whether they knew a fellow by the name of Johnny Dio, now under indictment in the conspiracy which led to the blinding of newspaper columnist Victor Riesel — in general a supporter of labor but bitter opponent of racketeering and violence in unionism. They refused to say whether they conferred with Dio on setting up new unions.

These days we are hearing a great deal about the struggle going on in Hungary and how the people are fleeing when possible. They want to leave Hungary because they are afraid and think that they will be "safe" in America. How will they feel when they learn of the information in the following news dispatch from the Associated Press out of Washington — the nation's capital?

"An attractive brunette testified today she was afraid 'something might happen' if she told all she knew about a New York labor union under Senate investigation.

"The faltering testimony came from Mrs. Geraldine Taylor of Bayonne, N. J., a former office worker for Local 227 of the Allied Industrial Workers of America.

"Are you frightened?" she was asked by Sen. John McClelland (D-Ark.), chairman of the subcommittee which is looking into alleged labor racketeering.

"Yes," Mrs. Taylor replied.

"Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) inquired whether she feared that because of 'your knowledge of the operation' something might happen if you were completely frank?"

"Yes," Mrs. Taylor murmured, her head deeply bowed."

This was not a mock trial in Russia wherein the wrong answer would result in a tour of Siberia but in a hearing before a subcommittee of the United States Senate which had done everything possible to make the witness feel secure and at ease.

It would seem that union advocates and supporters who find such a condition repugnant to them would take a closer look at the basic concepts of unionism to see what has made it possible for such conditions to be brought about. If the conditions which brought such fear to Mrs. Taylor are not the result of "good unionism" then what is good unionism — or is there any such thing? If it is true that unionism today is based on the jungle law of might makes right, on the use of fear and coercion, on the initiation of force, then those who feel that this is bad should either remedy the situation or refuse to support it.

The union supporter who says that a little bit of force and pressure is all right will have a difficult time showing how he is any different than the acid throwers who blinded Victor Riesel — other than degree.

We refuse to believe that we are, as a nation, a group of people so lacking in human decency that, deep down, we approve of such conduct as is exemplified in the acid throwing. If we are, then we are a lost nation. If we are not, then it is time we recognized the evil that exists and eradicated it. And this must be done by each of us, as individuals — we cannot hide behind group action.

Explaining Real Meaning Of Declaration Of Independence

In the last issue I was quoting from a great book, "Political and Economic Structures" by Bela Hubbard.

The article closed explaining part of the Declaration of Independence that pointed out that all men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights. They are not endowed by the government or by the majority or a king but they are endowed by their Creator.

Many American people in the last half century have been taught, and largely believe, that these unalienable rights come from the government rather than from the Creator.

The author goes ahead to explain other parts of the Declaration in this manner:

"3 ... that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness. These are the important, or essential, unalienable rights it is the purpose of any government to insure to its citizens. The Constitution as subsequently adopted, together with the amendments, was drawn up to accomplish this purpose. It is to be noted that the government is to guarantee the rights of life and liberty. This means, of course, that life shall not be taken nor liberty curtailed by government without just or due cause. Every citizen is entitled to these unless he forfeits one or the other by some evil act of his own. It should be noted, also, that the doctrine does not insure happiness, but only the right to seek happiness. Every citizen is entitled to equal political rights in this pursuit, to obtain such degree of happiness in life as he may achieve through his own efforts. By introducing the words 'pursuit of,' the doctrine specifically excludes the thesis, promulgated in recent years by the New Deal, that the government owes every citizen a living."

"4. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. Here are two additional political doctrines which were new to the world, and revolutionary in principle."

"First is the doctrine that governments are formed solely for the purpose of preserving the God-given rights of the individual. The long-established doctrine at that time held that man was created for the purpose of sustaining government. The primary goal was the powerful, or the perfect state; and man was the instrument designed for its attainment. Therefore, the doctrine proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence was a reversal of current political thinking."

"The second doctrine declared in the sentence quoted is that government derives its powers from the consent of the governed. Here is a distinctly republican principle which was new to the world. Under the democracy, as also under all previous types of a republic, the government derived its powers either directly from the governed, or indirectly from the governed through their elected or appointed representatives. But here in the Declaration of Independence, we have, foreshadowed by the word 'consent,' an entirely unique republican principle. The essential difference that is implied in the governing-power functions within the well-defined limits of a constitution, the provisions of which have been consented to by the citizens. The expression 'deriving their just powers' clearly implies a government operating within the constitutional fence."

"These Founding Fathers were men of broad mind, extraordinary knowledge of human nature and of government and, above all, students of history. They were well aware of the many instances where hopeful young democracies and republics in the past had been launched as popular governments, only to degenerate into some autocratic form by an imperceptible whittling away of the peoples' control; or by internal intrigues ending in revolution, followed by tyranny. They recognized the fact, amply illustrated by historical records, that the interests of the government and of the governed are not the same. Government is ever seeking greater power; the governed always seeking less control."

With the experience he's had with vodka, you'd think Khrushchev wouldn't have to worry much about what he'd say at a New Year's party. But the Kremlin crowd had hardly got their paper hats on before he was UP-GRADING Stalin.

Kent Cooper, former General Manager of the Associated Press, made a speech the other day and he said: "Motives in government propaganda news may be obscure. But they can be and always ought to be suspected. Reasonable suspicion is the only insurance against being imposed upon by his government that the reader can impose on himself."

On January 4, the Los Angeles Times said a million Arab refugees were starving in the Middle East. And there's talk of sending a million American soldiers over there, if necessary, to make them like it. JACK MOFFETT

Seizure By Proxy Resulting In Strange Associations

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

CHICAGO — The financial coup known as the proxy raid has resulted in strange associations in the realm of industrial management. This a hustler who formerly worked for The Daily Worker and held up in the office of war information during the war, turned up associated with a major general formerly of General Eisenhower's staff at SHAPE, outside Paris, in the tangled "interests" of Leopold D. Silberstein, a refugee from Hitler's Germany who came here via Holland, England and China. He is said to have acquired a Portuguese passport in Shanghai. The hustler is David Karr, now a "public relations" expert with offices in New York and Washington. For years, he was a "tag-man" for a Washington columnist and stationed in the State Department there. According to Adolf Berle's testimony in the Alger Hiss inquiry, secret information called "magic" leaked into the columnist's possession and was published.

The major general is Charles T. Lanham, also known as "Buck", whose last command was the First Infantry Division, called "The big red one." This is widely regarded as the best command in the Army.

The announcement in 1952 of Ike's decision to come back and run for president was delayed more than an hour one day as journalists, photographers and radio-TV talent milled about in the beaverboard corridors of GHQ because "Buck's" zipper jammed and he was wearing a short battle-jacket for swank. A detail of engineers saved the situation and Ike resumed his progress toward his destiny.

General Lanham was hit in the early days of Normandy and he recalls that he lay in a hole with the late Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., all one night exchanging snatches of Swinburne, Keats and Shelley from memory. He is stuck together with pegs and tape.

Karr began as a Fuller Brush salesman. He was a member of The Daily Worker editorial force although he has denied that he was either a Communist or a regular staff worker.

It would seem that Karr and Silberstein are no longer friendly allies although they once were. Karr is now helping Alfons Landa, of Washington, and a committee of stockholders in the jumbled, complex interests of Silberstein's Penn-Texas Corporation, a catch-all holding company. This Landa group is trying to find out where Silberstein gets his money, who the mysterious principals were who bought 100,000 shares of Fairbanks-Morse through a Swiss bank, and who got a profit of about one million on this deal.

FOR REFLECTION
with JAMES C. MOBERTSON, President, Spiritual Mobilization
"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."
This maxim of persistence must have been drilled deeply into John W. Bricker as a youth. For, as a U. S. Senator, he has tried again and again and again to protect our constitutional liberty by offering for adoption an Amendment to the Constitution that has come to be known, in its various forms, as the Bricker Amendment. And so far, he has failed — by the barest of margins.
So, undaunted, he has offered to the newly convened Senate another version of his Amendment aimed at making international agreements ineffective as legislation within the U. S. without action by Congress.
The newest version is too long to quote here. But you can obtain a copy of it by writing to Sen. Bricker.
And, is ever a man who has tried and tried again deserves to succeed, I think it is Sen. Bricker. Without it, there is real danger that we may wake up some morning and find our freedom compromised by a treaty or executive agreement which only a few Senators — and no Representatives — acted upon.

Rhodes Scholarships Have Passed Fond Expectations

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — When Cecil Rhodes left a vast fortune to finance the education of American youngsters in British universities, he never dreamed that it would pay off in a savage and personal attack on a U. S. Secretary of State named John Foster Dulles. Such a return exceeded even the Imperial Statesman and mining engineer's fondest expectations.

But Senator J. W. Fulbright, of Arkansas, in his abortive demand for a Congressional investigation of the Administration's Middle East policies and hostility toward Downing Street under Anthony Eden's guidance, appears to have repaid the investment on his four years at Oxford University, England.

In the opinion of this Rhodes scholar and educator, the Eisenhower-Dulles major failing was their refusal to sanction and support the Anglo-French-Israeli invasion of Egypt, which precipitated today's grave crisis in the Middle East, and seemingly threatened a war between Russia and the European nations.

Five times in his denunciation, which reddened with anger the faces of Dulles, Admiral Arthur W. Radford and John B. Hollister, ICA Director, Fulbright cited the deterioration of relations with our European Allies as the Administration's greatest offense.

By implication, he defended the Anglo-French-Israeli conspiracy to use force, as well as their refusal to answer Ike's requests for information, and their defiance of his warning that the controversy was a matter for solution within the United Nations.

"I have seen no responsible explanation," said Fulbright, "of why Great Britain and France, the two greatest beneficiaries of our foreign aid program, should want to deceive us. Surely, the members of the committee should know what motivated this unprecedented action by responsible and friendly nations before we are asked to express confidence in the conduct of foreign affairs. Dulles had to bite his tongue to keep from answering this amazing question. Seeking to repair the diplomatic damage done by the Anglo-French-Israeli insult to Ike, he did not want to reply that the three nations selected Washington, deliberately and premeditatedly, because they anticipated Administration opposition.

Despite their criticism of Dulles and doubt concerning the economic features of the Eisenhower Middle East Doctrine, even Senator Green of Rhode Island, Foreign Relations Committee Chairman, and Senator Russell of Georgia, Armed Services Committee Chairman, refused to support Fulbright's demand for a full-scale inquiry, or for issuance of a White Paper on the Administration's Middle East program in the past.

Cecil Rhodes, who helped to bring on the Boer War to protect his diamond mines and other vast investments in South Africa, was a much more unscrupulous imperialist than Rudyard Kipling or Winston Churchill, and was severely criticized in England for his expansionist ideas. Here are a few of them, as described by the Encyclopedia Britannica:

"He saw one of the healthiest countries of the world barely occupied (South Africa). He knew the agricultural possibilities of Natal and its mineral wealth. The effect of the combined influence on his mind was profound. He had found an ambition to which he proposed to devote his life. It was nothing less than the government of the world by the British race. Ironical though it may seem now, he sought to achieve expansion of the British empire in his will. He left most of his fortune to fund scholarships at Oxford for students from every important British colony, and from every state and territory in the United States of America. Obviously, the good will he created now stands battered Britain in good stead."

Walla Walla, Okeechobee And Schwabisch-Gmund

By HENRY McLEMORE

SCHWABISCH-GMUND — You'd never, never guess what the name of this town means. At least, I don't think you would, because I have been here a day and haven't found out.

Everyone I have asked tells me that Schwabisch means Schwabach and Gmund means Gmund. In America we don't play that way when we name our towns. We give them good, sensible ones that are easy to figure out, like Walla Walla, Okeechobee, Enumacaw, Tuscaloosa, and Oshkosh.

Schwabisch-Gmund, like lots of other German towns, sounds as if the founders had called in Lewis Carroll or Edward Lear to lend them a hand. It must be tough on Germany's Tin Pan Alley boys when they start writing songs about girls from certain towns.

How would you like to write a song that began, "I Gotta Girl From Schwabisch-Gmund"? About all I can think of for a next line is, "And I wish she wouldn't stay so pickled and pruned."

Worse still, what if she lived in Wolfenhausen or Garmisch-Partenkirchen? Or, worst of all, Worms? The very best I can do for a second line for the girl who lives in Worms is, "Who eats pretzels in bed and squirms and squirms." That has a certain lilt to it, yes, but I can't imagine even Bing selling a million platters of it.

I drove to Schwabisch-Gmund from Goeppingen, where I am visiting the Eighth Infantry Division, to look up Lt. Colonel Alpo K. Martinen, onetime chief of staff of a Finnish corps in the Russo-Finnish war of 1939-45. Now an American citizen, Martinen is chief of Civil Affairs and Military Government for the Eighth, and I have been told he is an authority on fighting the Russians.

must be unofficial sledding center of the world. It is surrounded by, and built on, the most perfect hills for sledding I ever saw, and they are covered with kids and their parents. I didn't bring a sled along with me, but I must have looked so eager for a ride that the kids soon said the German equivalent of "Come on," and I have just finished three hours of slipping down hills. If I had my own sled I'd be out there yet.

The snow is perfect — just the right depth, and soft enough to make turning over fun. Sledding is a sensible winter sport. Wear any old thing, and a mistake doesn't cost you a broken leg. You don't have to have any instructor teach you the fine points, either.

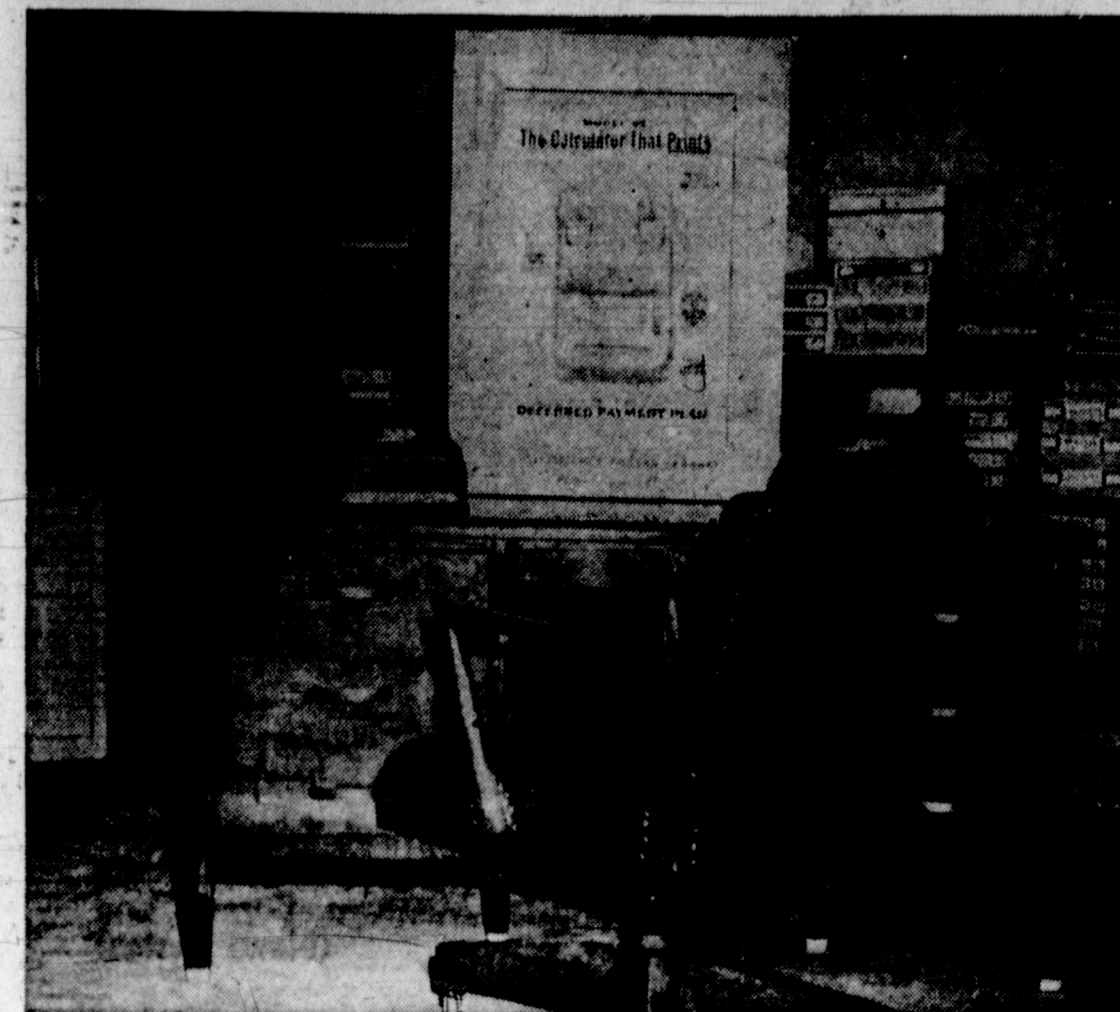

I hadn't been on a sled since I was a boy, but the technique came right back to me. After a few sleds as a passenger sprawled out on top of the sled, or on the end with my legs wrapped around the driver, I was ready to solo. I must have gone half a mile down a perfect slope, and near the end of the run, when it seemed I must be going 100 miles an hour, I maneuvered through a narrow gate to a stop in a meadow.

It was only when I was climbing back up the hill that I didn't feel like a boy.

BID FOR A SMILE
A very stout woman walked into a drugstore and asked for a candy bar. The clerk said, "No candy bars; but I have some nice fresh peanuts. Could I sell you some?" Stout Woman — Oh, no, my goodness, no, peanuts are fattening. Not to lose a sale so easily, the clerk argued to the contrary, and finally the woman indignantly screamed back, "If you don't believe peanuts are fattening, get the zoo and look at what they did to the elephant."

Bob Feller Leaves Pension To Players

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Bob Feller, who retired after a meteoric 21-year career, today left his fellow players "something to remember him by"—a pension plan equal to anything ever written in America. Commissioner Ford Frick revealed the details of the new five-year plan, made possible by $16 million in revenue from All-Star Game and World Series radio and television rights, and then paid tribute to the former Cleveland Indians fireballer's all-important role in bringing it about.

"I don't want to take anything away from men like Robin Roberts and Marty Marion who worked on it," said Frick. "But everything considered—it was Feller who played the tremendous role."

Other Liberal Benefits
The plan, approved Friday by the 16 major league clubowners, provides for increases in benefits of $17.50 per month for each of the first 10 years of major league service and an increase of $10 a month for each succeeding 10 years. Liberal insurance, disability and hospitalization benefits are also included in the plan, which goes into effect April 1.

Under the terms of the program, five-year major league veterans who retire at 50 years of age will receive $88 a month for the rest of their lives. Ten-year veterans will receive $175 a month and 20-year veterans $275 a month.

Players who do not want their benefits at the age of 50 may leave the money in the fund and receive increased benefits in later years. For example, a 20-year veteran who delayed receipt of his benefits until 65, would receive $550 a month.

The players' contribution to the program will be $2 a day throughout the season. In the past, the players contributed from 27 cents to $2.50 per day depending upon their salaries.

The new plan includes all players who were covered by the original one initiated on April 1, 1947. It means that a player like Rollie Hemsley, who caught 19 years in the majors including two games in 1947, will receive $275 beginning next June 24, when he celebrates his 50th birthday, instead of a mere $100 a month.

Saudi Arabia Will Receive Arms From US

By DONALD GONZALES
WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (UP)—The United States has agreed in principle to provide Saudi Arabia with arms to defend the strategic U.S. air base at Dhahran, Administration officials disclosed Saturday.

Details of this and other agreements are to be finalized next week when President Eisenhower and Saudi Arabian King Saud conclude their Middle Eastern talks. Highly important negotiations were carried on at the State Department Saturday while Saudi Arabia's U.S. ambassador, Adnan bin Sulayman, visited the State Department at Annapolis, Md. And an encouraging note on the negotiations was sounded at the State Department Saturday afternoon by Shaikh Yusuf Yasin, royal counselor and deputy foreign minister of Saudi Arabia.

"Very Optimistic"
Yasin was asked, at the conclusion of an 80-minute conference with Assistant Secretary of State William Rountree, whether he was "optimistic" about reading an arms agreement with the United States.

"We are very optimistic concerning all the matters we have discussed," Yasin replied. He was accompanied by the department by Shaikh Abdullah Al-Khazayal, Saudi Arabian ambassador to the United States.

American officials also voiced optimism. One said "things really are going very well."

He said Saudi's expressions of friendship and solidarity with the United States are of great importance throughout the turbulent Middle East where the United States is seeking to head off Communism. The developments greatly encouraged the U.S. hope of building up Saudi's prestige to counter the influence of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser as a leader of the Arab Mideast bloc.

The United States also is vitally interested in getting a new lease on the strategically important air base at Dhahran while King Saud is here. A five-year lease on the base expired last June. Since then the king has permitted this country to use the base.

Before coming to Washington, Saudi had been seeking an annual rental of about $50 million. Informants said Mr. Eisenhower has convinced him the base is of mutual importance to both countries and that rent should not be paid.

Punxsutawney Groundhog Shows Up
PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (UP)—The famed Punxsutawney groundhog, nature's "believe it or not" weather prophet, forecast six weeks of wintry weather today.

Reports from the scene atop snow-covered Gobblers Knob said the furry seer waddled from his winter burrow at exactly 6:47 a. m. and saw his shadow which scared him right back into his hole.

Believers in the legendary forecasting powers of the Punxsutawney groundhog know that if he sees his shadow on Feb. 2 winter is far from over. If there is no shadow, spring is around the corner.

Top-hatted members of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club, shivering from their early morning trek up snow-covered Canoe Ridge, reported their woodchuck's momentary appearance.

"The poor little guy seemed frightened to death," Sid Carlton, editor of Punxsutawney's leading newspaper, said. "It was only a little shadow... why, I could hardly see it on the snow. But he saw it right away."

Hoping for a break in this winter's series of cold waves, the Punxsutawney faithful were plainly disappointed.

Each Feb. 2—Groundhog Day—is the date for an annual celebration in this small western Pennsylvania town, nestled in the foothills of the Allegheny Mountains 60 miles northeast of Pittsburgh.

A community "Man of the Year" is selected and two Punxsutawney high school seniors are crowned king and queen of the festivities.

MODEL "MEN"—To attract male customers to a men's fashion show, a West Berlin store hit on the idea of having pretty girls model men's spring and summer clothing. The idea worked—as far as attendance was concerned, but whether the potential customers ever noticed the new fashions is a moot question.

Waters about the new (just out Feb. 1) Comprehensive Dwelling Insurance Policy. Ask about Personal Liability. Be sure your family and home — as well as yourself — are protected.

Insurance protection — plus the advantage of 22 years of insurance counseling — are yours when you call on H. W. Waters, 117 E. Kingsmill, MO 4-4051.

In those years Waters Insurance Agency has earned the slogan: "Our Aim Is To Serve You" by skilled counseling in general and life insurance. Waters offers all forms of insurance.

Insurance offered includes: the new (beginning only Feb. 1) Comprehensive Dwelling Insurance Policy; the store keeper's liability, professional liability, garage owner's liability, owners and tenant's liability, home owners insurance, trip accident insurance, hospitalization, sickness and accident, life insurance, educational policies.

H. W. Waters places life insurance with one of the 25 largest life insurance companies in the United States, the Occidental Life Insurance Company of California.

The new, comprehensive dwelling insurance policy provides the home owner with complete property and personal liability protection in a single package. It is so flexible that it can be tailored to fit the exact needs and requirements of any particular case.

BECAUSE THE COVERAGES OF EACH POLICY HOLDER ARE COMBINED IN A SINGLE POLICY, THE PREMIUM IS SUBSTANTIALLY LOWER THAN IF EACH COVERAGE WERE WRITTEN SEPARATELY.

Coverages in the comprehensive policy include fire damage on the house, furniture and personal property; windstorm, hail, explosion, riot, civil commotion, aircraft and vehicle damage, smoke damage on the house, furniture and personal property; theft, liability, glass breakage; water escape, vandalism, malicious mischief, falling trees, ice, snow, and freezing.

Mr. Waters said "This policy gives you all the coverage on your home and personal effects that previously required at least four separate policies, and does it at a substantial saving in premium costs."

"You do not have to wait until your present insurance expires to take advantage of these savings and have the additional insurance features in this policy. You get credit for the unearned premiums you have paid on your present insurance when writing the Comprehensive Dwelling Policy."

Another comprehensive policy is yours at a savings from H. W. Waters' comprehensive PERSONAL LIABILITY to protect you from liability in falls, dog bites, hunting accidents (say it's a cow instead of a deer), a cook burns himself, the insured rents a boat and runs into another boat; insured is playing golf and accidentally hits his cad child playing with matches set in a neighbor's fence on fire — all covered by comprehensive personal liability.

Waters Insurance Agency can provide for you these and all other forms of insurance. Call H. W. Waters today — arrange for him to call on you and your wife or husband in the evening.

Also call on H. W. Waters to help you arrange home loans. His skill, counseling can save you long — and unnecessary — delays.

Call H. W. Waters Insurance Agency today — use Waters' 22 years experience to your advantage — stop in at 117 E. Kingsmill, MO 4-4051.

Congressional Investigation Begins On Reserve Program

By TOM NELSON
WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (UP)—Congress, up in arms over Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson's "draft-dodging" blast at the National Guard, opens hearings Monday on the whole military reserve program.

The investigation could lead to an airing of the old issue of universal military training. It will begin without Wilson who Saturday was basking in the Florida sunshine with his wife. But he has offered to testify before a House Armed Services subcommittee, when he returns two weeks hence.

He and Mrs. Wilson flew to Augusta, Ga., Saturday with President Eisenhower who had called the secretary's attack on the Guard "unwise." The Wilsons continued on to Miami aboard the presidential plane, Columbine III.

There was no announcement whether Wilson's criticism of the Guard as being "a sort of scandal" and a "draft-dodging business" during the Korean War figured in the on-flight conversation.

But Mrs. Wilson said indignantly in newspaper interviews Thursday that Mr. Eisenhower had been "unfair" in his criticism of her husband and should give him a pat on the back instead. Intimates said the plain-spoken cabinet officer was delighted with his wife's defense.

Mr. Eisenhower was cordial and displayed an apparently all-forgiving grin when the Wilsons boarded his plane. They also were smiling.

Wilson softened his charges against the Guard Friday night. He explained he was criticizing the system which allowed non-mobilized Guardsmen to remain draft exempt. He said he did not fire his remarks at the Guardsmen individually.

The congressional hearings, which Wilson set off, will spotlight an old and basic quarrel between the professional military men of the regular Army and the citizens soldiers of the National Guard. Although the Guard makes up a sizeable segment of the nation's defense force it is largely under state control with the Defense Department limited to setting training standards.

The alpine zone along the crest of New Hampshire's Presidential range is the largest as well as the most accessible sub-arctic "island" east of the Mississippi. The above-tree line, roughly eight miles long and two miles wide, has characteristic alpine vegetation.

"What went wrong with this hand?" asks a Westchester reader. "East doubled one heart in the hope that West would bid his best suit. Everybody agrees that this was a take-out double."

Everybody also agrees that West was justified in passing the double for penalties. The result was, however, quite ghastly.

"South took the first spade and led the ten of clubs. East had to win with the jack of clubs, but took the king of spades and led a spade to the jack, whereupon West couldn't return a trump. East took the king of spades and led a spade to the jack, whereupon West returned a trump.

"Dummy won with the seven of hearts and led another club. East had to win and couldn't stop South from ruffing his last club in the dummy. As a result, South won four trumps in his own hand, one ruff in dummy, and two aces, fulfilling his doubled contract.

"East-West were annoyed because they could have made game at no-trump. How could they have reached this contract?"

East reopened with the wrong sort of call. It was correct to reopen the bidding, and it was correct to direct West to bid his best suit, but it was wrong to give West the chance to pass a double for penalties. East should have reopened by bidding two hearts. This cue-bid in opponents' suit is a gigantic take-out double, but it doesn't risk a penalty pass.

West would have bid two no-trump, and East would then bid three no-trump, closing the auction in the most desirable spot.

Last federal troops were withdrawn from the South in 1877.

YEP! HE'S SHE! — Elvis Presley has few fans more ardent than 18-year-old Muriel Keebe, of Cincinnati, Ohio. The "Elvis" at left is Muriel, who does a remarkable imitation of the hip-flipping singer, complete with guitar. But she doesn't play it. She merely strums it in pantomime while playing her "hero's" recordings. And that's Muriel, at right, being herself.

Hungarians Hang Two

BUDAPEST, Feb. 3 (UP)—The Communists hanged a beautiful 20-year-old girl and an army officer today for "organizing and leading" an anti-Communist riot near the Romanian border last December.

Twelve other persons tried with them received sentences ranging from five to 15 years at the hands of one of the kangaroo courts operating throughout Hungary to deal with offenses against martial law.

The government identified the girl as Ersebet Masyi and the officer as Mihaly Parkas. They were executed at Bekescaba, 120 miles southeast of Budapest.

They were "accused and found guilty of organizing and leading a coup" which took the form of rioting in Gyula Var, a town near Bekescaba on Dec. 17. The announcement was the first indication that there had been such riots.

At last report, the courts were considering an appeal from rebel hero Maj. Gen. Pal Maleter who was seized during the Soviet onslaught in Budapest Nov. 4. He was sentenced to death shortly after the government announced the execution of two civilian rebel leaders.

TINY, MIGHTY — Tiny object at right, above, little bigger than the cough drop with which it is compared, is a shielded, atomic power unit which produces a usable amount of electric current. With an active life of as long as five years, eventual use for it is seen in radios, wrist watches, and, in larger versions, as a power source for scientific instruments. A joint development of Elgin National Watch Company and Walter Kidde Nuclear Laboratories, it's said to be "as safe to carry as a house key."

WE'VE Changed OUR NAME...

... to PAN AMERICAN PETROLEUM CORPORATION

On February 1, Stanolind Oil and Gas Company changed its name to PAN AMERICAN PETROLEUM CORPORATION

It's just a name change. It's the same company, with the same people, same office locations, same phone numbers. Only the name was changed.

It's difficult to give up a name that has served so well for over 26 years. But there were two reasons why we changed: It eliminates any possibility of association or confusion between our company and others with similar names, and our new name, PAN AMERICAN PETROLEUM CORPORATION, is much more indicative of our expanding operations in the Western Hemisphere. Now that we are searching for oil in Cuba, Jamaica and Venezuela, in addition to our exploration and production activities in Canada and the United States, PAN AMERICAN PETROLEUM CORPORATION is a particularly appropriate name.

So, when you think of our company, think of our new name —

PAN AMERICAN PETROLEUM CORPORATION

Ex-Member Of Gang Is Found Dead

FORT WORTH, Feb. 3 (UP)—Sid Foley, the last living member of the old Fort Worth Green-Eggleston gang, was found dead in a ditch northwest of the city Saturday, his head beaten and his brains splattered with a shotgun. The body lay in a muddy ditch off Peacock Road near Lake Worth. It was found by a passing motorist about 10 a.m. and the blood was not dry.

His head appeared as if it had been beaten with a club or gun butt before the shotgun blast.

Foley, about 50, had a used car business in Fort Worth and also dealt in diamonds.

Police had unconfirmed reports that Foley had launched a call-girl business and that he may have hired the wrong person's girlfriend.

Quizzed About Oklahoma Crime
Foley was arrested last December for questioning about a gambling house robbery in Oklahoma. He was released.

Last October Foley was charged with the theft of a $1450 diamond ring from R. F. (Bob) Whitehead, a former business associate of Frank Cates. Cates, a gambler, was murdered last Oct. 8.

Whitehead told police he had taken the ring to Foley to sell. He said Foley never came through with the money or the ring. But the charges later were dropped when Whitehead said they had reached a settlement.

Old Safe Cracking Gang
Foley was reportedly a member of the old safe cracking gang with Cecil Green and Tincy Eggleston. Green and Eggleston also specialized in holding up gambling houses and bootleggers, murder for hire, and narcotics.

But Foley had a run-in with Green and Eggleston at Christmas in 1953 over a girlfriend. Several shots were exchanged in a running gun battle in the north part of town. District Attorney Howard Fender ordered the three to leave town.

TEST VEHICLE FOR GUIDED MISSILE—A recoverable, unmanned craft developed as a forerunner of other test craft in the SM-64 Navaho missile program is shown, above, braking to a stop with aid of landing wheels and its drag parachute. Operated by remote control, the X-10, as it is called, is powered by two turbojet engines. A development of North American Aviation, Inc., the device is said to have logged hundreds of miles at supersonic speeds during tests of its design and guidance systems.

Old Bill Shows Items For Sale 117 Years Ago

Mrs. A. D. Fish, 1000 W. Buckler, recently received a newspaper clipping from a relative in Oklahoma which reprinted an oldtime sale bill published in 1840.

Mrs. Bert Koscheski, of near Adair, Okla., sent the clipping, in which the sale bill appeared.

The sale bill included the following:

Having sold my farm am leaving for Oregon territory by team, will offer on March 1, 1840, all ox teams, except two teams, Ben and Buck and Tom and Jerry. Two milk cows, gray mare and coll. one pair of oxen yoke, one iron plow with wood mold board, 500 10-ft. fence rails, 60 gallon soap kettles, 86 sugar troughs made of white ash lumber, 10 gallons ma-
