Post Office Rushes Postal Cut Plans

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Post Office Department Friday rushed preparations to put drastic postal cuts into effect at midnight. But it said a last minute change in plans was still possible.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield said the cuts—including an end to almost all weekend service—would go into effect and stay in effect until Congress votes extra postal funds.

He told the Senate Appropriations Committee Thursday afternoon "nothing can stop" the cuts "except money from Congress."

He insisted later the emergency appropriation must be signed by President Eisenhower—not merely approved by a congressional committee—before the cuts could be cancelled.

ing this morning to consider Summerfield's emergency request for $7 million dollars. But the House was in recess until Monday when it planned to act on a general supplementary appropriations bill.

Cuts Appear Inevitable

That appeared to make the postal cuts certain to go into effect at least for a few days.

But L. Robe Walter, Summerfield's special assistant for public relations, said early today that "something still might be worked out."

Walter said it was "conceivable" that a strong request from the Appropriations Committee coupled with approval of emergency funds would enable Summerfield to rescind orders for the cuts.

"There is no desire on the part of the Post Office Department to cause undue hardship or disrupt the mail service," Walter said.

But he said the committee would have to enable Summerfield to cancel the cut order within "the legal requirements."

Summerfield told the Senate committee that he would be violating the federal anti-deficiency law if he continued full operations without necessary funds.

Summerfield said he was ready to cancel all or part of the cuts depending on how much of the 47 million dollars Congress appropriated.

Hospital Board Recommends Type Of X-Ray Machine

At a special meeting held last night by the hospital board to discuss the purchase of X-ray equipment for the Highland General Hospital Annex, the group voted to recommend the acceptance of a bid entered by the General Electric Company.

The question had been postponed by the Gray County Commissioners Court until next Friday, at which time they will meet to hear the recommendation and take positive action one way or the other. The reason for the postponement had been to give the hospital board a chance to investigate and to see which piece of equipment offered would best serve the purpose and be most useful in the overall operation within the new annex.

The two bids entered had been one by the General Electric Company for a total of $23,966.10, and another by the Gilbert X-Ray Company, whose bid was $21,009.80.

Hospital board members pointed out that although the difference in price amounted to $2,956.30, the former bid was accepted because it was felt by those present to be best suited for the needs of the new annex.

This, however, was only a recommendation and will be passed on when the County Commissioners meet Friday morning.

If it comes from a Hardware Store, we have it. Lewis Hyde. (Adv.)

Committee Cuts Budgets, Hits Excessive Spending

Teamsters Union Starts Publicity

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Teamsters Union Friday officially opened its much-publicized $200,000 public relations program to promote the union and fight anti-labor legislation.

The publicity funds were approved after Teamster President Dave Beck and other union officials were called before the Senate Rackets Committee to answer questions on union finances and alleged links with the underworld.

Beck originally had announced a $1,000,000 program to "tell the Teamsters side of the story" on Senate Labor Rackets Committee charges that he had siphoned off more than $300,000 in union funds for personal use.

But the union's executive board on April 1 cut the price down to $200,000 and limited the purpose to promoting the union and fighting anti-labor legislation.

Beck scheduled a conference with his top aides next week in Galveston, Tex., to lay plans for countering charges made against him by the Rackets Committee and the AFL-CIO executive council. The council suspended the Teamsters chief after he invoked the Fifth Amendment 117 times before the Rackets Committee.

The program got underway as Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) of the Rackets Committee announced that it is "highly probable" that Beck will be called back for more questioning.

McClellan said Thursday committee investigators still are at work in Seattle "pursuing other leads, not confined to Beck alone." He said these covered other unions as well as a continuing investigation into the personal finances of western Teamster boss Frank Brewster.

He said no date had been set to recall Beck. He indicated it would not be for at least several months.

Death Claims Skelly Founder

TULSA, Okla. (UP)—W. G. Skelly, who made millions in oil and poured it into philanthropies and politics, died Thursday in the city he adopted and helped build into an oil metropolis.

Skelly, 78, succumbed to a kidney ailment. He had surprised many last winter by fighting off a respiratory condition which kept him in a hospital in critical condition for several weeks. He had returned home about two months ago, but took a turn for the worse Wednesday.

Showing the same strength that saw him rise from a Pennsylvania newsboy to one of the giants of America's petroleum industry, Skelly was active in affairs of Skelly Oil Co. until his death. He was president until last January, when he stepped down to become chairman of the board of directors.

Few Remaining Pioneers

Skelly's dealings in financial circles marked him as one of the outstanding financiers of the United States, and he was one of the few remaining oil pioneers. He also became one of Oklahoma's leading citizens and philanthropists. He was "Mr. Tulsa" in the city that calls itself the Oil Capitol of the World, and for many years he was "Mr. Republican" to the GOP in Oklahoma.

He built the Skelly Oil Co., which he founded into one of the great producing retail corporations of the nation and had an independent fortune in the tens of millions.

Funeral Set Saturday

The Skelly company today is producing around 75,000 barrels of crude daily, and its El Dorado, Kan., refinery is handling 45,000 barrels daily. The company operates some 900 service stations throughout the Southwest. The firm's oil reserves are estimated at 50 million barrels.

Funeral services are scheduled at 3 p.m. Saturday at Boston Avenue Methodist church, Tulsa.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Gertrude T. Skelly, two daughters, Mrs. Harold Stuart of Tulsa and Mrs. Carolyn Burford of St. Louis, and two brothers, Harry Skelly of Tulsa and John Scott of Monongahela, Penn.

Grand Jury Calls Bribe Witnesses

AUSTIN (UP)—As many as 20 witnesses may appear before a Travis county grand jury as it takes up investigation of legislative bribery where a House committee left off.

Rep. Wade Spilman was the first witness before the panel. District Attorney Les Procter said as many as 20 persons may be called before the grand jury.

Spilman, of McAllen, is chairman of a special House committee investigating the lobbying activities of the Texas Naturopathic Physicians Association.

It was speculated the McAllen legislator briefed the grand jury on the scope of the committee's investigation. Spilman carried with him a copy of the Daily House Journal containing the committee's interim report.

Procter said the schedule for the grand jury is indefinite. He said it would probably resume its inquiry next Tuesday.

A Travis county grand jury previously indicted former Rep. James E. Cox of Conroe on a charge he agreed to accept a $2,000 bribe in return for killing a bill outlawing the practice of naturopathy in Texas.

As a result, Cox resigned from the House and filed bribery charges against Dr. Howard Harman of San Antonio, the naturopath who brought the original complaint.

Economy Ax Swings Hardest At US Information Agency

By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The House Appropriations Committee swung its economy ax Friday at the Senate and Justice departments and the U. S. Information Agency, chopping their budgets for the new fiscal year by more than 15 per cent.

At the same time, the committee assailed what it termed increased government secrecy, swollen payrolls, home-front propaganda, and "such niceties" as swimming pools and cabin boats sought for State Department employees abroad.

The information agency's budget was hardest hit by the committee and was the target of some of its sharpest criticism.

The committee made a round-house cut of almost 38 million dollars in the USIA's budget, approving only 106 million dollars. The reduction of some 26 per cent provided the agency with almost seven million dollars less than it got last year.

Takes Crack At Agency

The USIA was told to quit trying to "propagandize the American public" and to restrict itself to a "good sensible job overseas." This apparently was a crack at the agency for secretly spending $100,000 to subsidize a Hollywood anti-Communist movie for home consumption. The film proved to be a flop.

The committee, in its eighth crack at President Eisenhower's money bill for the three agencies budget for fiscal 1958, approved a money bill for the three agencies and related functions carrying only $583,799,793 of the $665,649,802 asked.

The cut of more than 100 million dollars brought total reductions claimed by the House and its appropriations committee so far to $1,141,175,749, applied against budget requests totalling $14,968,542,403.

Figure Significant

Assuming all cuts genuine as claimed—a fairly broad assumption—this averages out to a reduction of about 7.6 per cent. That percentage applied against the President's overall request for $71,800,000,000 would mean a reduction of more than 5 billion dollars.

The figure is significant in light of House Democrats' avowed intentions to push for a tax reduction if the budget can be cut by only three-billion dollars.

In forwarding the bill to the House the committee approved a report prepared by Rep. John J. Rooney (D-N.Y.) sharply critical of some practices in the State Department as well as in the USIA. The report also assailed some features of a cultural exchange program conducted under a special fund of the President.

Congressman Introduces Tax Cut Bill

WASHINGTON (UP)—A high-ranking Republican congressman Friday advocated a five-billion dollar tax cut. He said it would "force the spenders in government" to economize.

Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa.) introduced a tax bill Thursday to lower both individual and corporation taxes, effective Jan. 1. The bill was forwarded at a time when belief is growing that Democrats will begin early this summer a drive to cut taxes.

Simpson is third-ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee which initiates all tax legislation. The committee is composed of 15 Democrats and 10 Republicans.

Thus, even if Simpson persuades his Republican colleagues to back his bill, there would be no action on any tax relief legislation until Democrats decide to push for it.

Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.), who will call the signals for the Democrats, said Thursday they won't be able to tell before June whether the administration's budget has been cut enough to justify reducing taxes. But he feels chances are good for a tax cut to take effect Jan. 1.

Simpson's bill would increase to $650 from the present $600 the amount of tax-exempt income allowed a taxpayer for himself and for each dependent. For most married couples this would mean a tax saving of $20 and an additional $10 for each child.

In addition the bill would make an across-the-board reduction of 5 per cent in the income tax rates on individuals and corporations.

It also would slash by half the maximum tax on capital gains—lowering it from 25 per cent to 12.5 per cent.

Compromise End To Crisis Unlikely

By WALTER LOGAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
King Hussein moved Friday for a compromise end to Jordan's political crisis, but events there and the defending dispute over the Gulf of Aqaba increased world anxiety for peace in the Middle East.

Hussein asked Abdul Halim Nimr to try to form a cabinet. Nimr was defense and interior minister in the cabinet of ousted Premier Suleiman Nabulsi, but is considered more conservative than the left-wing Nabulsi.

The King's first choice for premier, Hussein el-Khalidi, failed, and it became increasingly evident that Nabulsi still commanded a big following among those who consider him the chief symbol of Jordan's newly forged ties with Egypt.

The news even reports that Hussein might be forced to restore Nabulsi to the premiership—an event that would bring dismay to Israel, which fears a three-front attack from Syria, Jordan and Egypt if Hussein loses the power struggle.

A Quiet Day

Friday was the Moslem sabbath and Jordan was reported quiet; some provocative leaflets were distributed on the streets, but there was almost no outward show of the tension gripping the entire country.

A stern Saudi Arabian warning against Israel's use of the Gulf of Aqaba, published in Cairo, aroused new concern for a Mideast flare-up.

American officials in Washington said early action was needed to settle the growing dispute over the international status of the gulf. They said failure to face up to the issue may result in a new Middle East explosion.

Israel counts heavily on the route through the gulf; Saudi Arabia said it would fire on any Israeli ships using the route.

In the midst of the tense situation the United States and King Saud of Saudi Arabia issued a joint statement Thursday night reaffirming their pledge to oppose Communist activity and "other forms of imperialism" threatening peace in the Middle East.

The Arab states have protested that an American tanker landed oil at Ellat and also called attention of Iran to the fact the oil came from Iran.

Jordan Causes Concern

Dispatches from Jerusalem and from Arab capitals emphasized that all were gravely concerned by events in Jordan.

Damascus radio said Syria was watching events with "great concern" and warned Arabs that foreign elements were trying to stir up Mideast instability.

Moscow radio made a similar charge—but it blamed events in Jordan directly on the United States, and said it was with the aim of "forcing" the Eisenhower doctrine on Jordan.

An Israeli military spokesman reported three new border incidents involving Syria, Jordan and the Gaza Strip.

House Rejects Gas Bill

AUSTIN (UP)—The House Thursday rejected on a technical question the first test of a multi-million dollar natural gas bill endorsed by Gov. Price Daniel.

The action bolstered speculation that a special session may be necessary for passage of a teacher pay boost and any accompanying revenue-raising bills.

While the House was tied up on the gas bill, the Senate was busy confirming appointments and approving a bill seeking to remove a barrier keeping an appointee from taking office as a member of the State Insurance Commission.

The House action on the natural gas bill came on a motion by Rep. Tom Joseph of Waco, its sponsor; to correct a defect in the bill. Joseph sought to add the 11-word enacting clause without which no bill can become law.

The Waco representative asked to suspend the rules which require 100 votes in the House but the vote was 66 for to 68 against.

In other actions in the House, the lower chamber gave overwhelming approval, 108 to 26, to a "universal" fishing license bill which boosts license fees 10 cents and requires licenses for both fresh and salt water fishermen.

The fishing bill was sponsored by Rep. O. H. Schram of Taylor and had the backing of the Texas Game and Fish Commission and the Sportsmen's Clubs of Texas. It now goes to the Senate.

The natural tax bill would levy at the rate of three-fourths of one cent per 1,000 cubic feet of dedicated gas reserves dedicated under long-term contracts for future use by specific purchasers.

When Daniel outlined the bill he estimated it would raise 331 million in state revenue over the coming two years.

Although the bill is not necessarily dead, the proposal could be revived out of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee only if the House reconsidered its action and gave Joseph necessary support to correct the technical error, allowed the measure to be tacked on in the form of an amendment to another tax bill, or if Daniel submitted the idea as a separate bill.

The Senate confirmed the controversial appointment by former Gov. Allan Shivers of R. M. Dixon as chairman of the State Board of Water Engineers. Dixon had come under attack from Rio Grande water groups. He was named to a term expiring Aug. 19, 1961.

Teenage Road-E-O To Be Held Sunday

Plans have been completed for the Teenage Road-e-o which is to be held in front of the Plains Creamery starting at 1 p.m. Sunday.

The winner of the Pampa Road-e-o will go on to the regional eliminations, and the winner of the regional contest will then go to the state finals. When the eliminations have been broken down there will be a final contest with 49 entrants to determine the winner on the national level.

Awards of scholarship and money will be made to those contestants winding up on the top.

This year's Teen-age Road-e-o is being captained by Wallace Bruce, who was recently selected as Jaycee of the Month by the members of the local Junior Chamber.

Suit Filed In District Court

A suit was filed in 31st District Court today by Imogene Fannell against Ralph Harold Hardin for a total of $10,000.

The case arose out of an accident occurring August 25, 1956, when a car driven by Susan Gilbreath and in which Miss Fannell was a passenger was hit in the rear by a car operated by Ralph Hardin.

The petition further alleges that as a result of this accident Miss Fannell received injuries as well as lost earning power in the amount of $10,000.

Boundary-Water Bill Is Vetoed

WASHINGTON (UP)—The House Appropriations Committee Friday voted $2,338,000 for operation of the U.S.-Mexican International Boundary and Water Commission.

It said $1,533,000 of the recommended sum would go for operation and maintenance of the American dam and canal, El Paso-Rio Grande rectification and canalization projects, completed portions of the lower Rio Grande flood control and bank protection projects, Falcon Dam and power plant, and stream gauging stations on the international rivers and tributaries.

Accidents Caused By Icy Streets

Traffic in Pampa this morning was slowed down as cars slid in every direction and the number of accidents reported to the police department added up swiftly to a total of nine in a matter of two hours.

The fine light snow which fell across already wet roads and sidewalks of the city coated them with a dangerous glaze which clung to the buildings and trees as well.

Weather forecasters predicted a freeze Friday night over nearly half of the state. Losses to fruit trees and truck crops may be heavy.

The cold rode into the state with a cold front that at last report was headed south of Austin toward the Gulf of Mexico and moving fast.

As it passed through Stamford, 45 miles north of Abilene, Thursday night hail the size of golfballs covered the ground, breaking stained glass windows in three churches and most of the neon sign in town.

The windshields of automobiles in Stamford were cracked. About 100 windows in the Stamford High School were broken and green benches beaten from trees.

Drizzle Turns To Snow

Friday, it was drizzling in Stamford with a bitter wind out of the northwest. The temperature was a little above freezing. Thursday night's hail lasted about 15 minutes and came in the midst of a thunderstorm.

In the Panhandle, freezing fog and drizzle was reported north of the Canadian River Thursday night. Before daybreak, it turned into a fine, powdery snow and moved southward across Amarillo.

There were showers over the Red River Valley and light rain over north central Texas. The rain was expected to get heavier and the temperature lower over the state as the front progressed to the Gulf.

The contrast between the cold front and the spring-like weather it replaced was marked. For in-

Aqaba-Tiran Dispute Needs Early Action

United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP) — Early action is needed to settle the growing dispute over the international status of the Gulf of Aqaba and the adjacent straits of Tiran, American officials said Friday.

Failure to face up to the issue may result in a new Middle East explosion, Saudi Arabia already has threatened to open fire on any Israeli ship heading through the straits to the gulf port of Elat, Israel is counting heavily on this commercial route as an alternative to the Suez Canal.

Officials said the Saudi Arabian warning and the recent passage of an American ship through the Straits of Tiran into the Gulf of Aqaba make the dispute "hot again."

In the midst of this tense situation, the United States and King Saud of Saudi Arabia issued a joint statement reaffirming their pledge to oppose "Communist activity and other forms of imperialism and any other dangers that threaten peace and stability" in the Middle East.

The statement made public here was issued by Saud and James P. Richards, President Eisenhower's special representative to the Eisenhower Doctrine in the Mideast, following a conference in Riyadh.

South could see no scientific way to bid his hand. His partner could have a minimum no-trump with the right cards and seven spades be a lay down. His partner could have a maximum no-trump with the wrong cards and five spades be unmakeable.

South also knew that if he tried to bid scientifically he would probably wind up by telling his opponents what to open. He therefore decided to gamble and simply leaped to six spades.

If South had been using the JTB he would have responded with two hearts. This would be the spade transfer and in spite of only holding two spades North would have bid two of that suit.

Then South would have jumped to six spades. East would have been on lead since North would be playing the hand with the doubleton spade.

Undoubtedly East would have opened one of his aces. If he selected the diamond ace he would make that trick. If he selected the club ace declarer would trump in dummy and eventually discard dummy's diamonds on the fourth heart and on the club king.

If East opened a heart or a trump, declarer would draw trumps, discard one diamond on the long heart and still make six.

Japanese Ferry Boat Overturns; 31 Dead

TOKYO (UP)—A ferryboat carrying three times its normal capacity of passengers capsized in Japan's Inland Sea Friday.

At least 31 persons were killed and 50 others were missing.

The Japanese coast guard said there were 141 survivors.

The 39-ton Kitagawa Maru No. 5, a 33-year-old wooden vessel, ran aground on a reef shortly after noon enroute from Ikujima Island to Nomiichi on Japan's main island of Honshu. It capsized and sank in a few minutes.

Unofficial reports said a 16-year-old apprentice, who was steering the ferry, apparently misjudged his distance and struck a reef. He was listed as one of the dead. Investigators said he had not yet earned his license.

Russia Seems Worried Over Henry Fonda Britain's Armaments Policy Has Ventured Into Producing

(Foreign News Commentary) By CHARLES M. MCCANN United Press Staff Correspondent

Soviet Russia seems to be more worried than any Western country over Great Britain's revolutionary new armaments policy. Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's announcement that Britain's defense system would be put on a nuclear age basis, with a consequent drastic cut in the armed forces, came as a shock to military experts of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries. Fear was expressed that the foundation of NATO's primary objective might be weakened fatally.

This objective is to provide a defensive screen of armies and air forces sufficient to slow up a mass Russian attack on Western Europe.

Only Course Open The fear has subsided somewhat. There seems to be a growing feeling that Macmillan took the only course open to him, considering the necessity for sharp reduction in government spending. But Soviet Russian fear seems to be intensifying. The chief reason seems to be the realization of the threat that nuclear weapons bases in NATO countries would present to Russia if World War III broke out. Russia's fear is being shown in an incessant stream of warnings broadcast to NATO countries that they would face destruction if they permitted their territory to be used for nuclear weapons bases.

Specific warnings have been broadcast to Norway, Denmark, the Netherlands, West Germany and Turkey. A broadcast in Greek warned that Cyprus might be involved in a general catastrophe. Broadcasts in Spanish, though they have not mentioned Spain, have warned of this danger. Spain, though not a member of NATO, is the site of important American bases.

Neutral Sweden Included Even Sweden, which is not a NATO member and preserves neutrality, has been accused of departing from its neutral course and permitting its "reactionary circles" to spy against Russia. They began casting in February last year, went into production in June, built one set, rented one small sound stage, rehearsed two weeks, and spent only 21 days shooting film. "That was our schedule and we came in on schedule."

Rehearsed Like Play The rehearsal for two weeks was done "as you would a play, and at the end of the second week we could have opened in a Broadway theater," Fonda said. "The second week was all run-through rehearsals. Ordinarily, in pictures you never do that; you rehearse each scene just before you shoot it, which has to be out of continuity because mechanically you are forced to do it that way. Our rehearsals gave the actors a chance for intimate concentration with the director on characterization. The man who wrote the script about the angry jury at work, Reginald Rose, is a co-producer with Fonda. The picture opens this week, and Rose is pretty busy. He's doing jury duty — in State Supreme Court.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

CONTINGENCIES In this unpredictable life of ours, it is the law's business to take a long look into the future and say what would "happen if." For in your contracts, leases, wills, insurance policies, escrows, and the like, you had better say what would "happen if" some of your best laid plans go awry. Such events the law calls "contingencies."

Who gets the "earnest money" you put down, if you cannot go through with buying that house? What if you want to pay up that loan and save interest? What happens if a partnership goes sour, or a partner gets sick or dies? What happens if the people you name in your will should die before you do, or if you all perish in a common catastrophe like a car smashup?

The law is wise but it cannot do your thinking for you. It settles such questions — but not always to your liking. If you don't make a will, the law says who shall get your property. If you leave certain things out of a contract, the law assumes that you meant to put some certain things in. But how much better it would be in the first place to put them in the way you want them, by asking "what if?"

Take your will now: Your first desire, of course, is to take care of your wife and children — those nearest to you. But it won't hurt anything to put "contingent beneficiaries" in your will in case something happens to thwart your first intentions.

Review your will every year or so to see if it meets the new things that have come up, or arrange with your lawyer to write in "contingent beneficiaries" those who will receive your property if your first beneficiaries should die before you do.

You may long ago have had your son provided for in your will, but what about those lovely grandchildren he had when he was presented to you since you wrote the will? What would happen to them if things go wrong and your son should die before you?

Or take your widowed sister and her children now. Suppose you and your immediate family should be wiped out: Would you want your property to go equally to her and to your well-heeled bachelor brother? Or would you prefer to leave your brother some token of your affection, and then really take care of your sister?

You may be impatient with the law's long memory. Such things the court records are full of plans which failed. And so the law has ways in which you can provide for "what happens — if." One way is the device of contingent beneficiaries in your will and insurance policies.

(This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Hotel Site

The recent selection of the Brown property on North Hobart for the location of the Pampa Community Hotel has been an important step in the fulfillment of Pampa's desire for modern and complete hotel facilities.

Like any decision in which a great many individuals have an interest there is bound to be a certain amount of disagreement on any course of action which is decided upon by those who have the final responsibility on their shoulders and the location of the hotel was no exception.

The board of directors of the hotel corporation, almost to a man, originally favored locating the hotel near the downtown business district in an adequate amount of space, desirably located and within a budgeted price, could be obtained. A sincere and laborious effort was made toward this end and after looking into all sites available, the majority of the board felt there was nothing available which fit the necessary prerequisites of space, desirability and price.

The Brown property, on the other hand, offered several advantages which made it unusually attractive. First the price of $125,000 was most definitely below the market value of this quarter-section and was available only to the hotel corporation through the generosity of M. K. Brown. The price itself gives every assurance that after selling off the balance of the property not needed for the hotel, the profit should easily mean the hotel site itself would be gratis. Furthermore, the opportunity for a profit in excess of the site appears very, very favorable.

Secondly, the consensus of the directors was that the Brown property would make feasible a two-story structure because of the land area which could be utilized. The difference in the construction cost of this type of hotel as contrasted with a tower type, which would have had to be built downtown, could mean a saving of approximately $200,000.

Another advantage of the Brown property was the potential abundance of free parking, a very major factor in this day of motorized travel.

Last, but perhaps not least, is the excellent possibility that the hotel can be built with little or no debt because of factors outlined above. This, in itself, gives rise to great promise from the standpoint of those who have invested money in this venture.

There is still a long way to be traveled before the new hotel can be open for business and it is important to the project and the community as a whole that we all give our enthusiastic support toward the culmination of this great endeavor. There are those who for personal reasons would rather have seen the hotel located elsewhere but it is now time for their disappointment to give way to a unified community spirit which will push this dream of a decade to reality.

Falling Out Of Love

Disenchantment comes hard, but Publisher John S. Knight is undergoing the ordeal. Mr. Knight, who publishes newspapers in Chicago, Miami, Charlotte, N. C., Detroit, and Akron, Ohio, told the Charlotte Executive's Club recently that he is troubled by the American people's "almost naive faith" in the President.

Mr. Knight is hitting pretty close to a terrible truth. The American people have come to the point of sanctifying their Presidents, much as Europeans do their kings. The tenor of many comments received by the editor of this newspaper may be summed up "Give 'em all hell up there in Washington, but let's have some respect for our President!"

The President of the United States deserves the same respect that any human being should enjoy, simply because he is a member of the race of man. The election of a man to public office does not, in the Christian or American belief, sanctify him or deify him. The Europeans believed in the divine right of kings—that the king, the emperor, the leader, could do no wrong. They bow down to the head of their government. It is significant that we do not bow or back out of the room when we see our monarch. It is not by accident or whim that Americans are forbidden to accept titles of peerage.

Dwight David Eisenhower is a man, and that is as close as he'll ever get to being God. He sits no closer to the Throne than any other honest man. We have been warned to "place not thy trust in princes." And the Commandments remind us that there is only one God, and his name is not Eisenhower, or Roosevelt, or Smith.

How did we come to this European sort of thinking? We're on the brink of an American monarchy. Mr. Knight, incidentally, went on to say that he is alarmed by the administration's "change of direction since the November election." Mr. Knight, an early supporter of the Eisenhower group, said the Eisenhower budget was a "shocker. . . to all who believe, as I do, in holding down the expenses of the government."

And so the disenchantment grows. The compulsion to worship someone as the Big Brother of the nation is strong in the breast of the people. The Grim is in conflict with the Grim . . . the grim fact that, once re-elected, the "conservative" turned out to be a ravening liberal whose coattails are both magical and treacherous.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

Special Report: Social Gospel - 1957

In the last issue I was quoting an article in "Faith and Freedom" showing why Spiritual Mobilization objected to the Social Gospel.

After stating their principal objections, then they report on the National Council of Churches and later, the leading denominations.

Today I want to quote from the article on the National Council of the Churches of Christ in America. From here on John M. Payne is speaking:

"In the days when the Federal Council of Churches was founded, the radicals were Socialists. Today, being a Socialist isn't radical any longer because 'most everybody's doing it. The FCC played a real part in this change - and this change has influenced the Federal Council (now grown into: The National Council of the Churches of Christ in America)."

"The Federal Council at its first meeting in December, 1908, looked for its day, radical indeed. Eyebrows-raised when it said that labor had a right to organize. Then, 11 years later, still out in front of public opinion, it added that labor had a right to resist a cut in wages.

"Meanwhile, the Social Activist brethren abroad were even more outspoken. An international Christian conference in Stockholm in 1925 declared in the name of the Gospel 'that industry should not be based solely on the desire for individual profit' but for service, and that co-operation should replace competition. A world-wide convulsion in Oxford, England, in 1937 echoed this and strongly implied that economic power, heretofore wielded irresponsibly (in their view), should come under the control of trade unions and the state.

"The FCC apparently never went that far publicly and officially. But its leaders and member denominations said plenty to demonstrate that they went along with these points of view. Certainly before 1950 the FCC never paid its respects to the profit system or to private enterprise; never held up a restraining hand when the New Deal moved in to control the American economy; never complained of the growth of state enterprises like the TVA. It never mentioned the manipulation of currency or the growing tax burden. It was definitely on the side of more state control.

"Before 1950, then, the Federal Council churchmen were leading opinion, for they had veered left long before national politics did. They helped carry the country (at least a majority of voters) with them through the political revolution of the 30's. They continued to be openly friendly to socialist ideas into the middle 40's. At the close of the war, they were all out for full employment and a guaranteed annual wage, policed by government.

"Despite the clamor for full employment and ensured wages, a big chunk of the American public recognized that if government begins to 'guarantee' these, private industry will be on a conscript basis and we shall have caved in to socialism all the way. In fact, it was in these early postwar years that church social actionists first seemed to falter. Somehow, they began to lose their leadership.

"Oddly enough, one big reason for this was something that happened, not in the Federal Council at all, but in the far off Netherlands. The World Council of Churches, meeting in Amsterdam in 1948 (with many delegates there from the American church councils) declared that Christians didn't want to be in the camp of either communism or capitalism!

"When American delegates, on returning home, undertook to defend that statement, they found a good many million Christians here didn't accept it, or want anything to do with it. In fact, Amsterdam acted like an alarm clock on a host of slumbering laymen. Faithfully through the years they had been going to church, reading their way through Sunday service, helping in every member canvass, quietly raising money to keep their church and the Federal Council going.

"Now, all of a sudden, it looked as if the organizations for which they had been raising the millions didn't even believe in the capitalist system. They could hardly believe what they heard. If the World Council of Churches talked that way, and American delegates from the Federal Council went along with it, how about their own denominations? They began to look about them, and in almost every case they found, right in their church's national headquarters, a Social Action group which carried, or at least paid respect to, the Socialist banner."

Indictments Nullified After Gov. Of Washington Refused

By WESTBROOKE PEGLER

WASHINGTON — In the last few minutes of Dave Beck's examination Senator Barry Goldwater, of Arizona, asked whether he knew John C. Stevenson, attorney for a council of Teamsters' Local unions in Los Angeles. Beck said he did.

Goldwater then asked whether Stevenson had ever borrowed $25,000 from the Teamsters' Union to buy a house. Beck took the Fifth Amendment. Stevenson, however, has admitted under oath that he borrowed $25,000. He did not readily remember the number of the Local, but on thinking recalled that it was 174.

Stevenson formerly was known as John C. Stockman. He arrived in Seattle in the '20's from Buffalo, N.Y., where a number of indictments stood against him, in the name of Stockman, in bucket-shop transactions.

Stevenson's name turned up last fall on an application for a license filed with the California racing board of Frank Brewster, the vice-president of the International Union of the Teamsters and chairman of the Western Conference of Teamsters, embracing eleven states. Stevenson was Brewster's "character" sponsor.

Stevenson himself, though his declared income, like Brewster's, is modest, also has dabbled in racing stock. Stevenson declared on oath in November, 1946 that Beck "has nothing to say about whether or not they don't" for his professional services as a lawyer. But Lester Hunt, formerly editor of the big union's monthly magazine, insists that in the spring of 1942 Beck told him that he had hired Stevenson for the job of counsel for the Los Angeles Locals. Mr. Hunt is now a reporter for the Indianapolis Star. He said he saw Stevenson at the 1947 convention of the International in San Francisco and that Beck told him the union "had bought him a house in Los Angeles."

Stevenson himself admitted in sworn testimony, in a divorce proceeding in Los Angeles in 1946, that he borrowed $25,000 "from the union themselves." He insisted, however, that the union took a mortgage on the spread, which consisted of a house and 12 acres, including a breeding farm for thoroughbreds which he established later in cooperation with Brewster. The purchase price was $28,000.

Stevenson got ten cents a member per month for some unions and five cents from others as his pay. He also had a retainer from the Building Service Workers' Union, the old George S. Callahan racket of the Capone phase of unionism which came into power after repeal. However, the details of this phase of his practice were only sketchily developed in the deposition so it is not clear whether Scalise was still in power. Some portions of the building service racket were cleaned up after Scalise went to prison, but others have resisted sanitation. A pistol murder in broad day in the Bronx in which Tommy Lewis, boss of a harness-track local, was killed bugged a minor landslide which is now continuing in the current Senate inquiries. This murder came years after Tom Dewey had sent Scalise to Sing Sing.

Stevenson testified in the deposition that his income from the dime or nickel per capita was "pretty close" to $1,750 a month. He estimated the income tax at $400 a month.

Stevenson was explicit on an episode in which he alleged that the wife who was suing him bought a De Soto car in October, 1946, primarily at the expense of a Seattle Local of the Teamsters.

"When Mrs. Stevenson went up there and got the car she had one of the organizations pay for the car and put it in her own name," he said. "She not only put it over on the union. She put it over on me." He did not know the number of that Local and nobody vouched for the money. He testified that later he paid for the car.

When he was asked whether he had ever borrowed from Brewster he answered, "Yes; lots of times. We have constantly loaned money and I have bought horses for him and he has done likewise for me."

There is an illustrated sign outside Stevenson's present home bearing a horse's head and the legend "Stevenson's ha-ha-ha-hacienda."

Extradition was demanded by the State of New York in the old bucket-shop indictments, but the governor of Washington refused. The indictments eventually were nullified.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M.: Democratic Lt. Gov. Joseph Montoya on his election to the U.S. House of Representatives:

"I shall go to Washington a Democrat and I shall remain a Democrat. However, in matters vital to the welfare of our state and nation, I shall cast my vote according to what I sincerely consider to be the best interests of the public I represent."

High school students touring the Capitol in Washington, D. C., the other day, according to the Associated Press, "turned expert witnesses. . . on why parents and children don't always get along and why some boys and girls become delinquent. . ."

"A hearing on a bill for Federal grants to help States develop programs against juvenile delinquency had been droning along routinely before the (House Education) subcommittee.

"Then Chairman Carl Elliott, Democrat of Alabama, spotted the young people who had fled quietly into spectators' seats. He asked if any of them would help the subcommittee with the adolescents' point of view."

A number of them spoke; but I think Ellen Chase of Alstead, N.H., gave the most valuable testimony when she reportedly said: "Children aren't happier when they are let run wild. They want some guidance they can rely on. Social pressures often cause the troubles—you're dubbed a sissy if you don't learn to smoke and drink."

"There, I think, in three short sentences, is the gist of the whole problem. And no amount of 'Federal grants to help States develop programs' is going to solve it. If, however, American parents, generally speaking, took Miss Chase's words to heart and acted accordingly, the problem would largely be solved. As things are, with so many parents delinquent on all the points that Ellen made, it is a tribute to American youth that there are still so many of them who are good and wholesome."

Upsetting Factor Injected Into Tax-Cut Controversy

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — A sensational upsetting factor has been injected into the controversy over cutting the budget and taxes. The required number of states—32—has now ratified a resolution calling upon Congress to order a convention for fixing a ceiling on the amount of money that Uncle Sam may collect in taxes from individuals. Under Article V of the Constitution, this convention may propose amendments that shall become effective when ratified by three-fourths of the states. This method and machinery of amending the Constitution has never been used.

The sponsors of this movement, who include influential lawyers, economists, industrialists and lobbying organizations, propose that the Government shall not be permitted to take more than 25 to 35 per cent of an individual's income in peacetime. It would become inoperative in war or a national emergency.

The favorable response by 32 states, in addition to other evidence of a taxpayers' revolt, encourages the economy-minded promoters to believe that they can force Congress to fix a maximum on the Federal Revenue, driven from personal income taxes. But they face many obstacles, largely because this field for revision has never been explored.

President Eisenhower and Treasury Secretary Humphrey oppose the idea on the ground that it would cut the Government's receipts by about $15 billion annually.

Organized labor is bitterly antagonistic. It brands the scheme as a "rich man's amendment." Their spokesmen insist that the only beneficiaries would be people earning $25,000 a year and up, for lower bracketeers do not have to fork over 25 to 35 per cent of income. They fear that the lost revenue would have to come from small wage earners.

A small group in Congress, led by Representative Paul A. Fino of New York City, propose to make up for the drop in revenue with a legalized, national lottery. They estimate that it would net at least $10 billion, as against the annual $30 billion take of gamblers in the numbers racket. But the so-called "bluenosers" shudder at this suggestion.

The unusual amendment formula may mean that the Supreme Court, not Congress, will decide how much Uncle Sam may extract from the taxpayers' pocket. For if Congress does not act in motion the machinery provided in Article V, now that the required number of states have acted favorably, the promoters will take their case to the courts.

Like the amendment on Presidential disability, the Constitution is somewhat vague on this question Article V says: "The Congress, . . . on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments which . . . shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of the several states or by conventions in three-fourths thereof."

"Save for the popular resentment and indignation over alleged governmental extravagance, the enormous public debt and terrific taxes, Congress would normally react adversely to the proposed amendment and the 32-state mandate. The men on Capitol Hill are inordinately sensitive and jealous concerning their authority over taxes and appropriations and expenditures.

But the sponsors of a mandatory maximum, in view of their success so far, intend to force a showdown at this session. They want to strike while the iron is hot."

A Private Tutor Is Needed To Learn To Eat Spaghetti

By HENRY McLEMORE

ROME — There is only one way for a foreigner to learn to eat spaghetti, and that is by private tutor. There is no use in trying to teach yourself—No matter how apt you are, you'll always eat with an accent, so to speak. I know, because I tried self-instruction courses for years, but continued to be a failure whenever I sat down to a plate of pasta.

No amount of observing the way natives eat helped. Neither did reading. I went through all the books on the subject, including Dr. Luigi Pignatelli's definitive work, "Spaghetti, Long May It Wave," but I remained as inept as a novice.

On this visit to Rome I was determined to master the art. But they don't advertise. The Embassy proved no help. Neither did private inquiry among American expatriates.

I told my problem to Vincenzo, a waiter at one of my favorite restaurants, the Abruzzi, which is just teach the subject, or if there are, how? There are no schools that a few blocks from the American Express offices, Vincenzo speaks very good English, and we have been friends for years.

"I will teach you," he said. "I have noticed you suffering with the dish you love so well." Arrangements were soon made. I would eat two meals a day at the Abruzzi, and Vincenzo would serve me and instruct me whenever he had a second to spare from the other tables. I chose lunch and dinner for my classes, although I like Spaghetti so well that I wouldn't have minded taking a breakfast class as well.

Vincenzo began his instructions with a lecture—delivered between taking minestrone to Table 6 and a pizza to Table 7. "There are two schools of spaghetti eating," he said. "One of them is no good. I refer to the school which calls for twirling the pasta in a spoon held in the left hand. This method is a sham. It is nearly always employed by foreigners, who hold it to be more in keeping with good manners, as it allows the head to be held erect."

He served a portion of broiled chicken, and continued, "School number two is the real school. It says, 'the devil with appearance!' It is as functional as a steam shovel. It has only one aim—to get the spaghetti into the mouth with as little effort as possible, and as quickly as possible."

I practiced this technique. It is really very simple. The diner puts his face as close to the spaghetti as possible. "If you can see the eyes of a spaghetti eater, he is eating it incorrectly," Vincenzo said. "Only the tops of the heads of the really accomplished eaters can be seen."

The spaghetti is half shoveled, half inhaled into the mouth. There is a trick to inhaling and shoveling in rhythm, and the two actions must be in perfect harmony to achieve ideal results.

At first, I got quite a bit of sauce on my nose. I was working too close in my eagerness. Then, playing it safe, I moved my face too far away, and I couldn't breathe in strongly enough to pick up more than stray ends of spaghetti.

But practice brought me to a point where Vincenzo marked my check with an A, and once he broke into applause when I went through an order of spaghetti Bolognaise in four minutes flat—and without spilling a drop of sauce.

Vincenzo says he will give me my diploma within a week.

In this age of intercontinental rockets, man-made satellites, and projected interplanetary space ships, some of us tend to get pretty cocky. Maybe dangerously cocky. It may tone us down a little to consider words George Washington said in 1796 — "Religion is necessary to reason. The one cannot exist without the other. A reasoning being would lose his reason in trying to account for the great phenomena of nature had he not a Supreme Being to refer to."

Business big shots are always sounding off about "The Romance of Business." But Labor can be as romantic as management. This was proven when the members of the Teamster's Union got together to buy a car for the girl friend of a Union officer. It was made even more romantic by the fact that they weren't even told they were doing it. Love is supposed to be blind, you know.

School Kids Rub Elbows With Diplomats In World's Most Unusual "Laboratory"

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Just a few steps down the street from the U.S. Capitol you'll find one of the most unusual laboratories in the world. And it's directed by a woman.

Hidden away on the fourth floor of the massive Health, Education and Welfare Department building, this laboratory hardly comes up to the usual specifications, however.

First off, a wide assortment of people poke around in it. School kids rub elbows with diplomats. A teacher from Hackensack, N.J., might find herself next to a Hindu from India, or a Russian.

To complicate matters more, there are no text books or such — just text books.

This is where Uncle Sam collects the latest school books used by children and teen-agers all over the United States. Officially, it's called the Educational Materials Laboratory.

"We think that the books that are available to our youngsters are the best in the world," explains Della Goetz, director of the laboratory. "Our collection gives educators and foreign visitors a chance to see and study the wealth of materials offered in schools across the nation."

The laboratory has been in operation for nearly four years and in that time teachers, students and officials from 49 countries have dropped by to have a look. Many have stayed and studied for weeks.

The long list of visitors includes education officials from Liberia, Egypt, Nigeria and Korea and numerous cultural officers from embassies here. The Soviet Union's observer at the White House Conference on Education made a special point of seeing the laboratory.

Many of the foreigners who frequent the laboratory are in the United States under the Teacher Exchange Program. During the fall just before the opening of school they come in by the dozens.

One afternoon after 109 teachers had spent several hours poring over the books, a worker in the laboratory gasped. "If this keeps up I'll never have to dust the book."

Although the laboratory is open to any parent or child, Miss Goetz emphasizes that the books may not be taken out on loan.

The 5,000 publications are provided by textbook publishers who are members of the American Textbook Publishers Institute. Whenever a new edition comes out, it is promptly delivered to the laboratory by a publisher's representative.

In addition to shelves full of textbooks, the laboratory provides many other services, according to Miss Goetz. Requests often come in from U.S. representatives overseas, for example.

They ask for everything from maps printed in Arabic to instructions for making a charcoal-burning kiln. The laboratory also supplies teaching aids such as manuals, standardized texts, pictures and handicraft exhibits.

The laboratory staff also prepares a publication for U.S. schools called "Teaching Aids for Developing International Understanding." It helps teachers find reading material on other lands or cultures for social studies and recreational purposes.

Miss Goetz is proud of the high standards of school books offered to American school kids today, and as a writer of children's books, she should be a good judge.

At present she's completing a fourth grade geography book and her fifteenth publication will soon be off the press.

The Weekly Message
Of Inspiration

By REV. CHARLES RHYNE
Pastor: Evangelistic Tabernacle

Text: Isaiah 53:4—Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted.

CHRIST, OUR REDEEMER

One of the most marvelous truths in the word of God is the truth concerning the great Substitutionary Work of Christ for the human race. Man, in his state before the work of the cross, was in a position of Spiritual Bankruptcy, in a place of complete defeat, both spiritually and physically. The Word of God states that Man was without God; having no hope in this present world. THEN JESUS CAME and "in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the Blood of Christ." OH the splendor of so great a salvation. Our text declares that He, speaking of Christ Jesus, hath borne our griefs and He hath carried our sorrows. A life without Christ as Saviour is one that is acquainted with grief and filled with sorrow. But as we look back to the work of the Cross, we find Jesus taking Man's place; bearing Man's transgressions; becoming Man's sin; suffering Man's disobedience. Through this great work of Redeeming man, God through Christ, has given to the human race an opportunity to receive, through faith in Jesus Christ, an abundant life of Joy, of Righteousness, of Peace, and of Spiritual and Physical Completeness. As we rightly look of this gracious act of God, we see the complete defeat of all of man's enemies. The force of evil which has been the destroying factor of our present age, Jesus met and gloriously defeated. He broke evil's paralyzing spell over man and gave to him victory over all the forces that would eventually destroy him. Now through this great work of Redemption, which God wrought through the death and the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, we can proclaim to the human race that Salvation from Sin and Death has become a reality and that through faith in Christ our Redeemer we can enjoy a life filled with Heaven's joy and peace.

Kansas City's Ex-Yankees Team Up To Beat Bums

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer
Call 'em what you like — the Kansas City Athletics or the New York Yankees' American League farm club — but Lou Boudreau's team gave the fans something to talk about in their 1957 home debut.

The first major league team to reach home, the ex-Yankee spring training squad, which was led by manager Alvin Cross, arrived in Pampa on Monday.

led Athletics rallied with four runs in the ninth inning Thursday to shade the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-4. Billy Hunter and Irv Noren contributed singles to the rally by way of emphasizing that old Yankees never forget how to beat the Dodgers.

First-baseman Vic Power of the Athletics was hit on the head by a throw by Don Zimmer in the ninth but was not believed seriously injured. He's being kept in Research Hospital for a few days, however.

The Chicago Cubs won their spring series with the Baltimore Orioles, 10 games to eight, with a 7-6 triumph over them. Dea Fondy led the Cubs' 12-hit attack with a pair of two-run homers.

Rookie Jack Sanford yielded only two hits in seven innings as the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the Boston Red Sox, 7-1, for their third win in four games with the American League rivals. Ted Williams produced the Red Sox' run when he clouted his fourth homer of the spring off Sanford in the seventh.

Mickey Mantle hit his third homer in as many games but the world champion New York Yankees suffered a 6-5 loss to Ed Lopat's Richmond Spiders of the International League. Neal Watlington singled home the winning run off Tom Sturdivant.

Cards Blank Chisox
Lindy McDaniel pitched seven innings and Willard Schmidt two, allowing a total of five hits, as the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the Chicago White Sox, 5-0, Hom-

Oilers Acquire Eight Players

Player help from the Cincinnati Redlegs Milwaukee Braves and two Texas League clubs added fuel to the Pampa Oilers' chances of coming up with a championship team when the Southwestern League season gets underway April 23.

The National League Redlegs have sent four pitchers to the Oilers and they are due to arrive early next week. Dick King, former Texas baseball magnate, and now working in the Cincinnati chain, made the announcement to Oiler Manager Allen Cross yesterday.

A total of eight players have been optioned or sold to the Oilers which brings the roster to 21. Although only nine players are present at Oiler spring drills at Pampa, the remainder is scheduled to report by work-out time Monday.

The Oilers went through a short work out in the brisk weather yesterday morning but Cross planned only a meeting to talk with his players this morning. Cold weather has hampered the drills for two days following the sunshine practice the players went through on opening day Wednesday.

Breaks Played Major Role For Players

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP) — Where would they be today if it wasn't for sports?

You get a lot of surprising answers when you ask that question of the guys who are household and headline names. They're all glad, too, that the breaks came the way they did. The possibilities range all the way from plumber to president. "I," says Chuck Dressen, manager of the Washington Senators, "might have been yardmaster by now in the freight yards at Decatur, Ill. I started as a switchman and was a foreman when I started playing ball."

Once A Crooner
Move over, Sinatra and Como. Because Claude Harmon, the former Masters champion of golf, had his eye set on being a crooner. Claude actually toured with a band as a singer in his late teens and "had a hard time making up my mind whether to be a pro golfer."

Bad Weather May Cancel Game Here

Cold weather was expected to cancel the Pampa Harvesters' District 3-AAAA baseball game with the Monterey Plainsmen here today at Oiler Park.

Coach Deck Woldt notified Monterey school officials this morning that the game probably could not be played unless a drastic change in the weather prevails.

The Plainsmen were scheduled to play here today at 3:30 p.m. and then play at Amarillo against the Sandies tomorrow at 2 p.m. They will drive to Amarillo and then check on weather conditions here.

Randolph, Jessen In Dallas Golf Lead

DALLAS, Tex. (UP) — Bonnie Randolph and Ruthie Jessen who seldom dig very deep into the prize pot nursed a one-stroke lead into the second round of the Dallas Women's Open Golf Tournament Friday.

They both cracked the coveted "70" barrier Thursday and staked themselves to two-under-par 69 over the 6,218-yard Glen Lakes Country Club course and finished the opening round a strike ahead of veteran Louise Suggs and young Wiffie Smith.

It was the first time for either of them to best 70 in tournament play. Miss Suggs, who boasts the lowest scoring average on the current tour, and the treckled Miss Smith, making her initial tour as a pro, were the only others to subdue Glen Lakes' par 35-35-71.

Bears Meet TCU

FORT WORTH (UP) — Baylor tackles defending Southwest Conference champion Texas Christian Friday in the first of a two-game series without the services of star shortstop Fred Marberry. Marberry, son of the Washington Senators' pitcher of the same name, broke a small bone in his foot in practice.

Boys who are 13 and 14 years of age are eligible to participate in the Pony League while the Teen-Age League is open to boys of 15 and 16 years of age. The sponsoring Optimist Club requests that all boys interested in playing to be at the school gym tonight. Parents are also urged to be present.

A total of 215 boys signed up for the Little League teams at Sam Houston last night. The Western League had 108 entries and the Eastern League had 107. Boys who did not register are asked to leave their names at Pampa Hardware, the Sportsman Store or with Gerald Sims at the First National Bank.

The National Basketball Association playoffs are going down to the seventh and deciding game as the result of rookie Cliff Hagan's tip-in a second before the buzzer sounded Thursday night. The jump tap gave the Hawks a 96-94 victory to even the series at three victories each.

TRAFFIC JAM—Jackie Robinson's retirement didn't leave Brooklyn exactly impoverished for infielders. To prove it, the Brooks here show four who could do the job at third base. Front to back, Don Zimmer, Dick Gray, a rookie, Jim Gilliam and Randy Jackson.

Ike Gets Pass And Inside Info On Nats

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower now has his 1957 baseball season pass and, with it, some discouraging inside information about his favorite team, the Washington Senators.

Calvin Griffith, president of the Senators ball club, officially presented the President Thursday with season passes for himself and Mrs. Eisenhower, at the same time he "signed up" the Chief Executive to throw out the first ball at Monday's opening game against Baltimore.

Then the President asked Griffith about the Senators' prospects for '57. Griffith told the President that the Senators are improved "about 25 per cent" from the team that finished seventh in the American League last year, but admitted that a rise to fifth place was about the best they can hope for this year.

Tag Match Scheduled Here Monday

Roy (Professor) Shires and Frenchie Quimet, the two bad boys of last week's top match, are scheduled to meet Rip Rogers and newcomer Rocky Columbo in the main event tag team bout Monday night at the Sportsman Club.

The match is scheduled for one hour with the best of three falls. Shires teamed up with Tommy O'Toole in the tag team last week to lose to Rogers and Dory Funk. Quimet, Shires' valet and manager, got in on the fracas and was bounced.

Rogers usually teams up with Funk in the tag team bouts but Monday night he's joining popular Columbo to go against Shires and Quimet.

The semifinals, a 45-minute contest for the best of three falls, has Tommy Phelps going against another newcomer, Juan Garcia. Shires meets Columbo in the 20-minute, one-fall opener.

Matches start at 8:15 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for ringside seats, $1.25 for reserved bleacher seats, 90 cents for general admission and 50 cents for children. Tickets are on sale at Modern Pharmacy.

Odds-makers Pick Yankees And Braves

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UP)—Minneapolis odds-makers agreed with their New York brethren today that the New York Yankees and the Milwaukee Braves probably will meet in the World Series this fall.

The Minneapolis "house," which supplies "official" odds for the nation, rated the Yankees a lopsided choice in the American League at 2-5 — almost identical with the 1-3 quotation on Broadway. The Braves were listed as 5-6 favorites, compared to 7-5 in New York.

After the Yankees, the Detroit Tigers are rated 3-1, Cleveland and Chicago each 4-1, Boston 9-1, and Baltimore — Kansas City, and Washington each 100-1.

The defending champion Brooklyn Dodgers are second choice in the NL at even money, followed by Cincinnati at 3-1, St. Louis at 10-1, Philadelphia at 80-1, and Pittsburgh, Chicago, and New York each 100-1.

Open Qualifying Set For 25 Cities

NEW YORK (UP)—The U. S. Golf Association announces Friday that qualifying tournament will be held at 25 sites to produce a total field of 162 starters for the U.S. Open golf championship.

The title competition will be held at the Inverness Club, Toledo, Ohio, June 13-15. All of the sectional qualifiers will be held on Monday, June 3, except the sectional at Honolulu, which will be held on Monday, May 27, in order to allow the winner extra traveling time.

In addition to Honolulu, the sectional sites will be: Birmingham, Ala.; Los Angeles, San Francisco; Denver; Washington, D.C.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Chicago; Marietta, Mass.; Detroit; Minneapolis; Kansas City; St. Louis; Springfield, N.J.; Buffalo, N.Y.; Long Island, N.Y.; Westchester County, N.Y.; Hendersonville, N.C.; Cincinnati; Cleveland; Portland, Ore.; Philadelphia; Pittsburgh; Memphis, and Dallas.

Bowling Tourney To Open Tonight

Opening play in the Pampa Women's Bowling Association City Tournament opens tonight at the Pampa Bowl for a three-day stand.

Harvester Golfers Open Regional Defense Today

The Pampa Harvester golf team opened defense of its regional golf championship at the Lubbock Country Club course today.

The Harvesters won the regional championship at Lubbock last year and went on to win third in state competition. This season the team won the District 3-AAAA championship to earn the right to compete once more.

The Pampa quartet will be seeking its fourth straight tournament title. The Harvesters started the string by winning the West Texas Relays golf title, followed that by taking the district crown and last week they captured the Amarillo Relays links championship.

Class AAAA teams in Region One will compete with Class AAA district winners and runner-ups this year. The other division will be made up of teams from Classes AA and A.

Among the schools entered in the Class AAAA — AAA division are Pampa, Borger (District 3-AAAA runner-up), Odessa, Abilene, Hereford, Levelland, Sweetwater, Lamesa and El Paso.

The first 18 holes of medal play was scheduled for today with another 18 set for tomorrow. The winners of each division will enter the state tournament in Austin in two weeks.

Members of the Harvester team is Burt Watkins, Melvin Chisum, Bill McLeod and Les Howard. Another Pampa golfer, Don Foxe, will compete in the singles play only.

Jet Transports To Be Safest Aerial Transportation Known

(Air Safety — Fourth of a series)
By ROBERT J. SERLING
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—America's first scheduled jet transport flights will take place late in 1958. And with the birth of the jet age will come the safest form of aerial transportation known to man.

Their high-speed, high-altitude requirements have resulted in the design of the stream-lined jet transport which is built to fly at high altitudes. The wings of the jet transport could support the weight of automobiles piled as high as the Washington monument.

Jet engines are more reliable, less prone to failure, than piston engines. (Capital Airlines' Viscounts, which use a jet engine fitted to a conventional propeller, have had only one in-flight engine failure since they were first placed in operation nearly two years ago.)

Jets fly higher than conventional planes, avoiding bad weather with ease, and their swept-back wings are less affected by turbulence.

seriously damage public acceptance of this new kind of flying," one aircraft company official said. "We aren't cutting any corners in putting out the safest transport ever created."

Building Jet Tanker
Boeing's 707 prototype, for example, took blueprint form in 1952, underwent its first test flight in May, 1954, and already has had more than 1,100 hours of flight operation.

Boeing also is building a jet tanker for the Air Force which, except for certain modifications, is identical to the passenger-carrying 707. Boeing estimates that by certification time, its jet transport will have had more than 65,000 hours of flight testing.

But the jet transport age also will bring safety problems.

The old "see and be seen" rules for so-called visual flight conditions won't work with jets. A jet transport pilot who sees an oncoming plane one mile away won't have time to take evasive action. At 600 miles an hour, the other plane will be upon him in four seconds.

Easier To Fly
Jets in many ways are easier to fly and handle than a piston-engine plane. (The Boeing 707 jet transport contains only 130 cockpit instruments; the Boeing strato-cruiser—a conventional four-engine plane, has nearly 500 cockpit instruments.)

In a takeoff or landing crash, a jet is less likely to catch fire because its kerosene fuel is less inflammable than high-octane gasoline.

Manufacturers now are engaged in the greatest flight testing program ever involved in the introduction of new aircraft.

TRAIL-BLAZER—The public will soon be able to see a model of the very first home radio set ever put on the market—way back in the radio dawn of 1905. In a ceremony at Dearborn, Mich., Hugo Gernsback, 72-year-old New York inventor, presented models of his transmitter and receiver to the Henry Ford Museum. Gernsback's right hand rests on the transmitter model. The entire outfit cost $7.50 when it first went on sale.

Gandhi-Like Resistance On Segregation In Dixie

By AL KIETTNER
United Press Staff Correspondent
ATLANTA (UP)—Southern Negroes have adopted a Gandhi-like passive resistance policy as one of the most effective weapons in their drive to end racial segregation in Dixie.

Their lawyers have received most of the credit for winning civil rights triumphs in court. But the great mass of southern Negroes, still a bit fearful of courts, have banded in an atmosphere more familiar to them—their churches.

Most of the organized Negro groups in the South today center around the clergy and the churches. Soon after the Supreme Court integration ruling three years ago next month, ministers began exhorting their Negro congregations with the first words of what was to become the policy for contest-

Pat Carroll Says, 'I'm Not A Comic'

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Pat Carroll, whose clowning on the Sid Caesar show won her an Emmy award, would like to set the record straight—she's not a comic.

"I think of myself as a performer. And what I do best are character sketches," said Pat Thursday. "I'm not even sure that I think of myself as a 'comedienne.' A comedienne, I think, is a lady who creates most of her own material. I'm not creative that way."

"I don't think of myself as Pat Carroll that hysterically funny woman. Unlike, say, Martha Raye, I can't get up and hold an audience by myself. I'm not humble about it, it's just that I can't get up and clown. They have to put words in my mouth and once they give me the words and the character, why, I can go out and do it."

I existed when he called me up and asked me if I wanted to be on his show. That was last January, February or March. I didn't even see him again until rehearsals in the fall."

Pat missed the first two Caesar shows because of the late arrival of her baby, Sean. "Sid was really wonderful about it," said Pat. "His own wife, Florence, had been three weeks late with her baby that summer, so he told me not to worry."

"But I did worry about it. I began feeling ticky and more miserable and heavy. When the baby arrived, I weighed 215 pounds and the baby was nine pounds, seven ounces. My gosh, he looked like a pig when he was born." She puffed out like a happy blowfish. "Since then, I've knocked off 45 pounds," she continued, a trifle wistfully. "But I still have 35 pounds to go."

The future of the Caesar show on NBC is uncertain and Sid only has until the end of May to pick up Pat's option. "If Sid does stay on, I'd love to stay with him," said Pat. "This is probably the happiest season I've ever had. And I think this is the one outlet for the type of sketch I do."

"One of the wonderful things is working with Howie Morris in those song and dance numbers. We're given complete autonomy. And I like working with somebody — they can throw things at you, you know, when you're out there alone."

A 'Hokey' Story?
CLIFTON, N.J. (UP)—Magistrate John Celestano freed Michael Kopis of Passaic of a drunk driving charge upon hearing Kopis' account of an accident here Jan. 4. Kopis said that after his car struck a bus, he entered a tavern to telephone police, found the phone busy, took several drinks to steady his nerves, and then was examined by a physician who found evidence of alcohol.

Worth His Weight
RIB LAKE, Wis. (UP)—Auctioneers decided that state Sen. Clifford W. Krueger was worth more than a penny a pound when he put himself on the auction block to raise funds for landscaping the village grounds. Krueger, who weighs 432 pounds, sold for $4.55.

Cabot Contributes To The Chemical Industry

Texas has become a tremendous organism in the chemical growth of the nation. No less true than this statement is the fact that the chemical research department of the Cabot Carbon Company in Pampa is a very important part in this organism. This laboratory is one of the only two research departments of the Cabot company with the other being in Cambridge, Mass.

In terms of people, the combined laboratories, (Cambridge and Pampa), employ 70 engineers and chemists with an office and technical staff of over 100.

As related to other chemical research houses in the United States today, the Cabot laboratories might be referred to as a medium-sized operation. This, however, does not detract from its importance to the chemical and scientific age we now live in.

This was clearly exemplified during the second world war during which time the armed forces were bottlenecked by a lack of natural rubber. When new synthetic rubber began to appear, it turned out that the properties of Carbon black best suited for natural rubber were not suited for the synthetic.

It became necessary to develop qualities of carbon black which would suit the situation. The problem was worked out in a matter of three years.

This was the big transition from the antiquated "channel" process of producing carbon black to the "furnace" carbon black industry which we know today.

A good portion of the time the Cabot research department works with the basic truths of nature. An interesting fact is that the department might actually be said to be researching itself out of business, since its primary purpose is to scientifically and chemically perfect a product in order that it may become more lasting and durable, thereby lessening the demand for that product.

A minor facet of the research done in this laboratory is a customer type of research. That is, the customer might buy a product and not use it correctly. The chemical and research department will then go to work in an effort to help the person or persons use the product in such a manner as to get the proper use from it as well as finding additional uses for it.

A major part of the laboratories effort is in engineering and process development.

Most people think of Cabot as merely a carbon black producing company. While this was originally the company's main product, (and this goes back to 1887), it is no longer the only product produced by the Cabot Company. The company also produces a large number of chemicals and petroleum products for the rubber, plastics, ink, paint, ceramics, paper and battery industries.

The home office of the company is in Boston, Mass., with the main research and development center in Cambridge, Mass. Pampa is the headquarters for the Southwestern Division, and the Pampa research and development department is the headquarters for the world-wide research of Cabot carbon black. The company has substantial savings are made possible by the use of large quantities of low-cost carbon black. Experiments with CAB-XL - polyethylene compositions for wire and cable coverings show great promise. The outstanding improvement in physical properties found in polyethylene pipe are duplicated in wire coverings. The unusually smooth extrusion obtained are particularly valuable in this field.

Raymond P. Rossman, Cabot's Director of Research and Development, comments that the CAB-XL discovery resulted from Cabot's long-time research interest in carbon black and high-polymer chemistry. Godfrey L. Cabot, Inc., is celebrating its 75th year as a leading world producer and distributor of carbon black. It has subsidiary companies operating plants in Southwestern United States, Canada, England and France.

A lecture on the use of the audiometer and the analysis of the results of hearing tests was given by George Holland, followed by a lecture on speech defect and correction by John Welton.

Attending were: Mrs. Dickey Robinson of Spearman, Mrs. Erna Borth of Follett, Mrs. Helen Culter of Shamrock, Mrs. Vera Rogers of Wheeler County, Mrs. Helen Berry of Dumas, Mrs. Dorothy McMurtry of White Deer, Mrs. Kay Veale of Pampa, Mrs. Lucille Kohls of Gray County and Mrs. Betty Christian of Stinnett.

School administrators were invited to participate in the discussion of school health problems. Those attending were: Bob Peterson of Lefors, Bert Nuckols of Gray County, Huelyn Laycock of White Deer - Skellytown, Jerry Jacobs of Lefors, James Gamblin of Dumas, Harry Garrison of Hopkins, Freeman Melton of McLean and Daniel Russ of Stinnett.

A workshop is planned for all the school nurses in the area, to be held in the third week in October in Shamrock. Mrs. Helen Culter will be the hostess.

Major development of the Cabot discovery has concentrated on improving the utility of polyethylene. In the past, the use of carbon black in plastics has been restricted to small amounts for coloring and to protect against degradation from sun and weather. The use of high loadings of carbon black has not been practical because it resulted in excessive embrittlement. Now, CAB-XL - polyethylene compositions containing 50 per cent and more carbon black remain flexible, even at extremely low temperatures.

The Cabot laboratories have demonstrated the usefulness of their discovery in a variety of molded and extruded products. Polyethylene pipe, continuously fabricated using a CAB-XL composition containing 100 parts of carbon black, exhibited a new and unusual combination of properties. These include dramatic resistance to stress cracking, a marked improvement in high-temperature behavior, virtual elimination of plastic flow, and improved resistance to deterioration by solvents and oils. Laboratory tests indicate that burst strength has been doubled both at room temperature and elevated temperatures. In addition,
