President Requests $76 Million For Drought Aid

Ike To Ask Congress Today To Approve Emergency Bill

By GAYLORD P. GODWIN
United Press Staff Correspondent
WICHITA, Kan., —UP— President Eisenhower announced plans to earmark $76 million for immediate aid to drought-stricken farmers and ranchers Tuesday night in completing a 4,500-mile tour that took him into six water-short states.

The President told the farmers and ranchers he will ask Congress today in the annual budget message to authorize these emergency programs.

In addition to immediate assistance, the President listed a series of long-range plans designed to help overcome the worst drought disaster in this country in modern history.

The President's tour, which began Sunday night, visited six states in the southern Great Plains where he talked to numerous farmers and ranchers on their individual problems brought on by the seven-year drought.

Need Local Help
Mr. Eisenhower emphasized he thinks state and local governments should help farmers and ranchers more with their problems.

"I am convinced that state and local governments should assume greater responsibility in helping solve the recurring problems of agriculture, including drought.

"I think this would aid materially in a more effective administration of these programs and in better adapting them to local conditions and to natural requirements," he said.

He told a special drought conference of representatives from 15 western, midwestern and southern states that he will ask Congress to:

1. Let him spend $25 million from the disaster loan revolving fund for emergency feed assistance to ranchers and farmers.

2. Extend, until June 30, 1958, $25 million of the unobligated funds appropriated for agricultural conservation, so Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson can pay farmers to carry out wind erosion prevention and other emergency conservation measures.

3. appropriate an additional $26 million primarily for refinancing farm indebtedness by direct loans.

Blakley Kills GOP Hopes

WASHINGTON (UP)— Newly-appointed Sen. William Blakley (D-Tex) has killed Republican hopes that he might vote with them to give the GOP control of the Senate.

Retiring Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas, an ardent supporter of President Eisenhower, appointed Blakley Tuesday to succeed Democrat Price Daniel until a successor is elected sometime within the next four months. Daniel, who vacated his Senate seat Monday at midnight, succeeded Shivers less than two hours after Blakley's appointment.

The naming of an Eisenhower Democrat to succeed Daniel opened up a chance for the GOP to win control of the Senate now divided 47-Republicans to 48 Democrats.

Blakley voted with the GOP, Vice President Richard M. Nixon could have cast his breaking vote to give the GOP control.

Before leaving for Washington, Blakley answered all questions about how he would vote by saying he would "vote when it comes time to vote."

But Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas said the new senator would vote as a Democrat.

Blakley ended all speculation Tuesday night a few minutes after landing at National Airport in a snowstorm.

Asked if he would vote with the Democrats on organization, he said: "Sure, I'm a Democrat."

Daniel Pledges Continued Battle For States' Rights

By LLOYD LARRABEE
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN (UP)— Price Daniel, stepping from the office of United States senator to become governor of Texas within a two-hour period, Tuesday pledged a continued fight for states' rights and a program of "simple honesty and moral integrity." The 46-year-old former Texas attorney general took the oath of office as Texas' 38th governor in solemn ceremonies in chamber of the House of Representatives. He succeeded Gov. Allan Shivers, whose seven and one-half years' in office gave him the longest tenure in the state's history.

During the two hour lapse between the time Daniel resigned from the Senate and took the oath of office, Shivers named Dallas attorney William A. Blakley, 58, to serve in Daniel's place until a successor is elected at a special election to be held later.

Daniel outlined a "dynamic and constructive" legislative program which he said he will elaborate on later this week, probably Thursday in a joint session before the House and Senate.

Gov. Ben Ramsey, 53, began a fourth term as he preceded Daniel in receiving the oath of office, administered by Chief Justice J. E. Hickman of the Texas Supreme Court.

The inauguration ceremony was moved into the House chamber after a 37-degree temperature and bitter north winds forced cancellation of the scheduled outdoor oath-taking at the front of the state Capitol.

Daniel, flanked by his wife and their four children, was applauded when he took packed galleries and a chamber floor jammed with legislators, their wives and high state dignitaries.

"I shall continue to fight with all the vigor at my command against further encroachments by the federal government upon the rights of our state and our people . . . today I dedicate the rest of my life to this cause."

Lauder applause greeted the new governor when he said Texas should make its school system the finest in the land "with Texas money" and added:

"A state as wealthy as ours has (See DANIEL, Page 3)

Stroke Fatal To Arturo Toscanini

NEW YORK (UP)— Maestro Arturo Toscanini, world renowned symphony and opera conductor, died early today at the age of 89. He suffered a stroke while asleep.

The beloved Italian-born musical genius died at his Riverside home in the Bronx. His health had declined steadily since his retirement from the podium in 1954 and he was reported nearly blind.

Toscanini suffered a stroke on New Year's Day, but had recovered enough to get about his house. A spokesman said he was found dead in bed at 3:40 a.m.

Friends said he had been so ill that he was not told of the death of his protegee, young Italian conductor Guido Cantelli, in an air crash in Europe shortly before Thanksgiving.

Toscanini conducted his last opera, "Falstaff," at La Scala of Milan in 1954, ending a 68-year career that began when he conducted "Aida" at the age of 19 in Rio de Janeiro. He last wielded his baton in New York at a broadcast concert of the NBC symphony orchestra April 4, 1954.

Toscanini returned to the United States for the last time in March, 1955, and had not left the country since. He spent much of his time since giving critical advice on recordings and re-recordings of his symphonic and operatic albums. He devoted several hours a day to work almost to the day of his death.

Toscanini was the last survivor of the "golden age" conductors, a man who had known as an equal most of the towering musical figures of the 19th and 20th Centuries. His memory was phenomenal and he kept the scores of more than 100 operas and many scores of symphonies in his head.

Toscanini, whose wife died in 1951, was particularly devoted to his family and had enjoyed a reunion with them at his home here over the Christmas holidays. He is survived by a son, Walter, and two daughters, Mrs. Vladimir Horowitz, wife of the violinist, and Countess Wally Castelbarco.

Thompson spoke at a meeting of the Gulf Coast section of the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers.

Thompson made his suggestion after pointing to the stocks of oil and products in this country.

"England says she wants crude oil and criticizes us for not sending her promptly all the crude she temporarily wants," he said. "I should think that England would understand that we must keep our stocks in balance against the day when she no longer needs our oil."

"The letdown would be paralyzing," he said.

Thompson said this nation's reserve daily oil producing capacity is variously estimated to be from 700,000 additional barrels a day up to 1.5 million.

"Personally, I feel that to be safe we should not count on having much more than 700,000 barrels a day in reserve daily producing capacity for a sustained period of two or more years," he said.

Thompson said last year the U.S. consumed oil at a rate five times greater than the wildcat discovery rate and, he said, "this must be corrected, if possible."

E.O. Thompson Raps English Fuel Problem

HOUSTON (UP)— Texas Railroad Commissioner Gen. Ernest O. Thompson Tuesday night suggested that England buy gasoline instead of criticizing American oil.

"The current dispute over England's oil drought, resulting from the Middle East situation, would come to a quick end if England would buy gasoline," Thompson said.

Thompson spoke at a meeting of the Gulf Coast section of the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers.

Snow Warnings Are Threats To North

By UNITED PRESS
Heavy snow warnings posed a new threat to the frozen Northeast today in the midst of a record-shattering cold wave.

And weathermen forecast no respite. ★ ★ ★

Area Receives Covering Of Light Snow

Residents of Pampa and the surrounding area awoke this morning to see an unusual sight. The ground had a light covering of snow.

The snow continued falling throughout the morning. Only a trace of moisture was measured however.

By the time most Pampans' left for work there was enough snow on the streets to make the pavement slick and motorists were having trouble starting at intersections where the packed snow had turned to ice.

By noon today the snow had ceased falling and the sun was shining in Pampa. Residents hoped that the clouds would return and bring more moisture to the parched area.

The low temperature recorded in Pampa last night was 6 degrees and the weather bureau predicted that the high today would not go above 16 degrees.

To farmers in the area the moisture was a welcome sight. Many of them have crops planted which have not had enough moisture to sprout the seed and any moisture is welcome.

One farmer expressed the hope that enough snow would fall at this time to be of benefit to the farmers of Gray County.

The weather bureau said it expected the snow flurries to continue throughout the Panhandle in what is termed as the bitterest cold spell of the winter.

It was mostly cloudy over the state and little warming is expected during the day. The forecasters said the cold air would hang on at least through tomorrow.

Relief from the death dealing cold wave as a fresh mass of Arctic air swept across the north central states.

A United Press survey showed at least 32 weather-caused fatalities since the cold wave gripped most of the nation east of the Rockies Monday.

There were seven deaths in Indiana, six in New York, four in Illinois, three each in Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, two in Michigan, two in New England, and one each in Iowa and Mississippi.

The Northeast, which had the continent's coldest weather Tuesday with a record 55 degrees below zero at Boonville, N.Y., was due for heavy snows today.

Weathermen warned the snow will pile up to a depth of 6 to 12 inches in most of New England with the exception of northern Maine and Connecticut.

Snow flurries were predicted to extend as far west as the eastern Ohio Valley and the northern Great Lakes region.

At Oswego, N.Y., a gas main break during the area's worst cold wave in history Tuesday shut off service to some 15,000 homes. About 30,000 persons were left without heat in temperatures as low as 24 degrees below zero.

Fires blamed on overheated stoves in the widespread cold air belt continued to take a heavy toll of lives.

At Saline, Mich., a mother and her three children were believed dead in a residential blaze, and a father and two children were killed in a fire at Jeffersonville, Ind.

A fire broke out in a dormitory housing 140 women at the Dixon, Ill., state school, but luckily the women were in a dining hall and no injuries were reported. Fifteen patients fled to safety in 14-degree weather when a fire destroyed a nursing home at Clay City, Ind.

A raging fire at Syracuse, N.Y., destroyed that city's First Methodist Church and two other buildings in the downtown district.

At Memphis, industrial gas service was sharply reduced to conserve fuel for public use as temperatures hovered in the 20s most of Tuesday.

Biggest Peacetime Budget Proposed By Eisenhower

By DAYTON MOORE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)— President Eisenhower proposed to congress today the biggest U.S. spending budget in peacetime history—$71.8 billion.

He ruled out a general tax cut and asked for higher postal rates. His new budget for fiscal 1958 was in the black for the third straight year. The surplus of revenues over spending was estimated at $1.8 billion for the new year starting next July 1.

But to help check inflation, Mr. Eisenhower said, the surplus must be used further to reduce the federal debt which now stands at $275.7 billion.

The prospective budget surplus in the fiscal year 1958 will reinforce the restraining effect of present credit and monetary policies," he said in a new warning of inflation dangers.

Asks Postal Rate Hike
Mr. Eisenhower asked an increase of $854 million in postal rates. His budget message did not give any details, but they were sure to include one or two cents more for a first class letter.

quest last year. His chances were considered better for getting it this year.

Of the total spending, about six-tenths — $45.3 billion — would be for national security, including military and economic aid to U.S. allies. U.S. armed forces would get $18 billion. These programs, he said, will "provide a wise and reasonable degree of protection for the nation."

In addition to the big defense budget, Mr. Eisenhower called for the highest spending ever on atomic energy and farm programs. Atomic energy funds were hiked by $400 million to $2.3 billion for military and peaceful purposes. Agriculture spending was increased by $200 million to $5 billion.

Other Increases
Sizeable increases also were asked for veterans benefits, improved air safety and development of natural resources.

Mr. Eisenhower telescoped his five-year $9.8 billion school construction program into a four-year plan. It died in Congress last year because of the segregation issue.

He estimated spending next year on school construction at $185 million.

tion if Congress now agrees to start the program.

All these things, and more, pushed the total spending estimate up $2.8 billion over the current fiscal year, fiscal 1957.

About seven-tenths of the increase went to the military. It resulted largely from the high cost of "new and more powerful weapons," such as guided missiles with atomic warheads. The missiles budget rose from $1.5 to $2 billion.

Mr. Eisenhower said U.S. military forces also must be equipped with conventional weapons during the period of switching to the new ones.

Military Funds Divided
The military funds were divided: $17.3 billion for the Air Force, $10.3 billion for the Navy and $9.1 billion for the Army — all to maintain them as a "bulwark for world peace and security."

The President made clear that the development of atomic and hydrogen weapons will be pushed until an ironclad disarmament agreement is reached with Russia.

"Our nuclear weapons and our ability to employ them," he said, "constitute the most effective deterrent to an attack on the free nations."

"We shall continue to expand our nuclear arsenal until an agreement has been reached for reduction and regulation of armaments under safe-guarded inspection guarantees."

The whole 1958 budget stacked up against 1957's like this:

(in billions)	1957	1958
Receipts	71.8	70.6
Expenditures	71.8	68.9
Surplus	$1.8	$1.7

Memo to young wives: Don't ever let yourself believe that your marriage is more important to you than it is to your husband. If you ever begin to believe that, you'll start ruining the marriage for both.

You'll start watching for signs that your husband has started taking you for granted. You'll worry about what he is doing when he is away from you and start asking snooty questions. You'll begin to nag to get more attention.

You'll be afraid to stand up for your rights if your husband grows selfish or inconsiderate, thinking you must placate him at all costs. You'll be afraid to let him out of your sight, and so you'll become a tag-along or a sit-at-home-and-worry wife, instead of being glad to let him have a little life of his own. You'll worry over trifles and in your mind build them into mountains.

One way and another you'll convey your notion to your husband that you are the one to whom the marriage is important. Being a man, he may find the idea easy to accept. After all, he is pretty special and any woman ought to be glad to get him. Furthermore, any woman who has him ought to consider herself lucky. Why blame a guy for getting that kind of lop-sided idea of marriage, if you put the idea in his head in the first place?

No, it's never smart for a woman to get to thinking that marriage is more important to her than it is to her husband.

If she assumes it is equally important to them both, she will have a good chance of finding out it's true.

After the holiday whirl, you'll need a couple of evenings in which to catch up on beauty. Remove that glossy nail polish and leave it off for several days. Shampoo, towel and brush your hair so that it shines. Give your tired feet a nightly soaking in warm, soapy water and don't neglect face cream and hand lotion even though you may have done so during the holidays.

Attending the party were the families of Meses and Mmes. C. D. Worley, Jack Hutchinson, N. C. Hudson, Rhiney Grange, Melvin Beighle, Granville Boyd, Luke Guerin, Clarence Hoskins.

Those attending were Meses D. V. Burton, Howard E. Johnson, Roy Johnson, Harold Wright, Elmer Fisher, George Newberry, George Walstad, Knox Kinard, C. P. Buckler, W. R. Ewing, S. A. Blundell, Tom Perkins, Glenn Radcliff, Grundy Morrison, J. F. Curtis, and Bob McCoy.

If you've made a habit of buying your salad dressing, break up the routine by making it instead. Basic ingredients are oil and vinegar and these you may add to according to any good recipe. You might like to add Roquefort cheese to these, for instance. But make just enough for one salad each time.

Secretary stops coughing at work

At the slightest threat of a cough, this secretary uses Creomulsion Cough Syrup for two reasons: First, it relieves coughs following colds or flu with spectacular effectiveness and speed. Second, it contains no thought-dulling narcotics or antihistamines. Creomulsion stops the tickle, comforts raw membranes, clears breathing passages, relaxes tension. Shoe On Other Foot

Poor old John L. Lewis.

The croag-browed heavy of the mine workers has certainly had a colorful career. His rumbling voice and belligerent dictates have sent more than one quaking mine owner into a near nervous collapse. His battles with both the A.F.L. and C.I.O. are already legend. As a figure which allegedly represented the laboring man, his renown is assured.

But poor old John L. He is now caught in the toils of his own device.

Following a vicious pattern which was instituted some years ago by the International Typographical Union, the mine workers have been getting into the business end of their own profession. Not content with being a labor boss, Lewis has plunged into corporation management in competition with some firms and with financial backing by others. He is presently the big wheel in the American Coal Shipping Company, Inc., a firm he organized with which he hopes to carry coal to our socialized neighbors across the Atlantic.

But now, Lewis is hoist with his own petard. It seems a half dozen of the Liberty ships he obtained for his shipping company are tied up by a group of picketing workers from various A.F.L. - C.I.O. unions. This isn't a part of the general dock strike with which the eastern coast has been plagued. It is a separate act of union insurrection aimed exclusively at Lewis' head.

The shipping firm bought about 16 vessels from private owners, and arranged to rent 30 more from the government's reserve fleet. The first half dozen ships from the government's Brunswick River reserve were picketed as soon as Lewis got his hands on them.

Lewis went to court and got an injunction preventing the picketing. He moved the ships from Wilmington, N. C., to Charleston, S. C., Savannah, Ga., and Baltimore so they could be refitted. But the pickets appeared again.

At Charleston the lines are holding and nothing is being done. In Savannah, Lewis went to court and got another injunction against the picket line. In Baltimore a plea for an injunction will be heard soon.

The whole tie-up is occurring on that old Chestnut dredged up by Lewis himself in his earlier years on the rough end of the goon squad, in which one labor boss claims to have the right to picket a firm because the firm just might recognize a rival union.

We wonder what Mr. Lewis thinks about in view of what is happening. Do you suppose he has been forced to resort to the arguments used by the hated capitalists he hounded for so many years? Is it a possibility that the use of "scab" labor might be entering his mind?

After all, he has borrowed heavily . . . he's got about $50 million invested and not by any means all of it his. Interest has to be paid on that money and also the principal sum must be returned. He can't get any part of that nor meet his other obligations either, unless his ships move.

The shoe at last is on the other foot. Normally we would feel a sense of anger and frustration at this additional instance of labor coercion and violence. But in this particular instance the phrase "poetic justice" keeps recurring in our mind.

There is no one in America with the possible exception of Harry Bridges and Walter Rutherf who has done so much to destroy free enterprise as has Lewis. Now he is dependent upon the very agency of freedom he loved to hound and vilify.

Where will it all end? And what will Lewis do, now that he owns some coal mines as well as some ships, when members of his own union turn out to picket him?

We await with considerable anticipation a statement by Lewis which will reveal the injustice, the violence, the evil attendant upon all types of labor compulsion. Then, indeed, will the era of socialism have gone full turn. And the truth, which Lewis and his cohorts sought to hide for many many years, will be revealed at last.

PRICE FIXING BY EDCYT
(Industrial News Review)

Secretary of Agriculture Benson, in his new book, "Farmers At The Crossroads" (The Devin-Adair Company, New York) has something wise to say about the marketing and pricing of farm products.

When farmers plan their production and marketing programs on the basis of their individual price forecasts, some make wise decisions and some do not. However, he then points out, "Aggregate errors in production judgments tend to be self-correcting, as economic ratios change, and dictate such corrections." Hoge and co. provide him with a fine illustration of that principle: "If the price of hogs is high relative to corn, for example, farmers produce more hogs. As hog production and marketing increase, the ratio between hog and corn prices narrows, inducing farmers to shift to other kinds of livestock."

But what happens if government fixes the hog and corn prices? Mr. Benson answers in these words: "The farmer in government affects relative prices of the two commodities, rather than to forecast economic changes in consumer demand and cost relationships. Government actions are frequent v more difficult to predict than market behavior. . . Administrative rulings are not as flexible as the market place. The price administrator moves slowly, and discovers belatedly that the support level is wrong. It takes still longer to admit the error and correct it."

The problems and dislocations that accompany price fixing by edict must always be worse than those they are supposed to solve.

DEADLY DUTCH DISCOURSE
(N. Y. Daily News)

The best thing said in the United Nations General Assembly is weeks, we think, was a pair of sentences uttered by Holland delegate Dr. J. M. A. H. Luns on the Soviet crimes in Hungary:

"My delegation finds it difficult to look forward with any confidence to holding serious discussions on the subject of human rights with the participation of representatives of a country which at this moment shows such appalling disregard for human rights and human values."

"One cannot invoke the (UN) Charter against the Anglo-French action in the Middle East at the same moment when one is supporting a people's struggle for freedom."

Could there be a deadly unmasking of Kremlin hypocrisy?

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. MOILES
Text Book "Nationalization"

Readers of this column know that I am very much interested in what the youth of the land is being taught, not only in this country but all over the world. What they are taught, of course, has a lot to do with whether we have peace and goodwill and prosperity, or whether we have almost continuous war.

When the government has anything to do with "education," it invariably tries to sell the students the belief in bigger and bigger government, that the government is all important and the individual is a servant of the government.

This thought was confirmed by an article I read in a magazine published in Bombay, India. It is called "The Indian Libertarian." It has articles on liberty and the rights of individuals from writers all over the world.

The article was undoubtedly written by a party from India because he confuses a Republic form of government with a democratic government. In fact, there has never been a truly Republic form of government in any country. It is a lot less so now in the U. S. A. than it was after the Civil War up until the 18th Amendment was passed in 1913.

This Indian is fearful as to what the youth of the land is being taught in India. Here is the way he puts it:

"We have been so long subjected to servitude that we hardly feel it when encroachments are made on our liberties. Any person from a democratic country will be appalled by some of the things happening in this country. But all the time we are so insured to subordination that we see no objection of our liberties. The British quit on August 15, 1947. The country became free. But the citizenry did not get any more freedom than it enjoyed before. The new Government assumed more powers than the British Government itself."

"U.P. Bombay, M.P. and Delhi States have already launched on a policy of 'Nationalizing' text books. And now Andhra and Rajasthan also announce their decision to 'Nationalize' text books. At present, academic authorities invite criticism and make a selection of suitable books as school and college texts. Now this is to go. Government will engage men to write textbooks. Henceforth the men who will write text books will be government servants. They will write to order."

"In support of its decisions the Andhra Government has alleged incompetence of text book writers and publishers, the poor quality books produced, the universal adoption of underground and venal means to influence text book selection agencies and so on. Much of this criticism is no doubt correct. But it is equally correct that most of these vices are due to government interference in the work of text book committees. What is to be done is there that Government will produce better books and publish them better? The quality of Government's other works will hardly reassure sceptics in this matter."

"Text books are the most influential literature in our country. Most of our literates have scarcely read anything beyond the text books, with the result that these text books constitute the mental texture of an industrial literate class. Can we afford to consign this great instrument to the hands of politician who will exploit it for party purposes?"

"They think that Ashoka was the greatest of our kings, that Gandhi was the 'Father of our nation' (implying that we as a nation did not exist before Gandhi) that Nehru is Nehru Chacha, uncle of the Nation. It is nothing but a new religious sect composed with Father, Son and the Holy Ghost. Gandhi's writings are the Old Testament and Nehru's speeches are the new Holy Writ. They have their own view of the History and geography of India, of its culture and relation. In the name of 'Nationalization' the government want to catch hold of the powerful instrument of text books and to condition the national mind. It is significant that communist countries are the only ones where text books are 'Nationalized.' It was there that Stalin was boosted as 'our great father', 'the greatest scientist', 'Uncle Joe' and what not. Today we know the reaction to bamboozing of this kind. All men can't be fooled for all time."

"Text books are a great instrument for moulding the national mind. They must, therefore, be written by free men—official literary servants are hardly free agents—and they must be selected freely in open competition. No attempt should be made to condition the national mind or to propagandize in favour of our party in power. The stakes involved are the minds of children and the only ultimate safeguard of integrity is the wisest freedom of choice for the school, the teacher and the parent."

"Text book selection committees must be composed of men of known integrity and not the hucksters and hirelings of ministers and ministerials. Books must be selected for their truth and ennobling contents. They must not be changed every year or every other year. We might even have an All India Text Books Commission prescribing some books for the same age groups and same courses of study for the whole country. Text books read in childhood influence the whole life. A committee of Vice Chancellors—sided by University heads of department—could be trusted with the task of selecting the best books. Even primary school books cannot be left to the choice of small men who can be influenced by ministerial chits. Because it is these very printers which lay the first intellectual foundations of the nation. As the Hindu of Madras (June 26) has rightly urged: The Scheme of nationalization of text books is totally reactionary and should be abandoned."

Toss Out The Old Room
And Bring In The New

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

CHICAGO — Spain is my name; glad to make your acquaintance, going to the convention? Looks like the biggest affair of the kind in the history of the furniture game. Well, with all due modesty I think we can safely lay claim to the fair lion's share of the credit for keeping this industry's product marketable. It is hard to break down old ingrained habits among the public, but we had an executive session conference at our place two years ago and old Pryor said that it is ideas that make this world move and I want ideas as much as I want products. He said I want a new concept, smash down habituation, it is absolutely smothering a giant with potentialities beyond our vision, so that is how we happened to come up with the slogan, throw out the old—bring in the new.

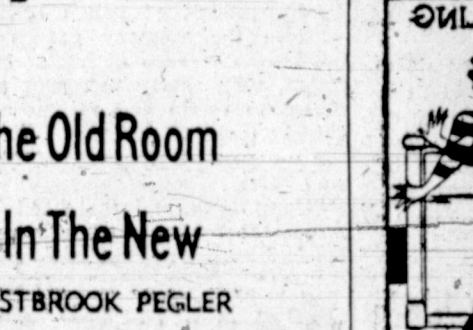

Pryor saw me sitting there, I am not the eager-beaver type, but we had just made up our mind, my wife and I did, we said heck, after all we don't like that darn old couch or that chair, just because they came in the original set when we furnished our first modest little apartment, and the rug always clashed with just about every darn thing you could bring in, it even clashed with itself. So she said well I am almost afraid to say it, but why don't we just have it all out, the whole outfit, and start fresh? And next year the same with our bedroom then Mary's, that is our little girl named for my wife, then George's, named for me, and by the time we get through maybe we will move to another neighborhood. Confronted, it is getting kind of tacky when we sit out near Keller's, Knolls, when industry moves into a residential zone they are bound to introduce certain undesirable factors.

Mind you I am not an old, my people are just plain old-fashioned homespun American stock, but factory class people have their own conduct-patterns. I am not criticizing them, you understand, they pay their taxes and do their bit in the wars, but we always had an ability to move farther out and I hope I can someday have a little 30-footer with a little galley and a couple of bunkies.

Well, Pryor said, Spain, there seems to be something on your mind, don't sit back there like a bump on a log, what's on your mind? Laid well, chief, we usually call him chief, except the old hands, they call him T. K. I said, will "chief," the worst habituation that is stifling the sales-potential of this game today is sentiment, but you can't attack sentiment head-on, it would be like attacking mothhood. But we have got an idea, standby potential which can keep wheels turning, chimneys smoking and money flowing almost forever if we can only convince people to break with the sentiment habituation, throw out one room each year and replace with abeo-

men who can be influenced by ministerial chits. Because it is these very printers which lay the first intellectual foundations of the nation. As the Hindu of Madras (June 26) has rightly urged: The Scheme of nationalization of text books is totally reactionary and should be abandoned."

BID FOR A SMILE

An hour a day of meditation is good for people, according to a philosopher: The best time to get it is after the kids go to bed.

So great well the horizon has been pushed back so far you take the new methods of executive scheduling, for instance. Why 25 years ago who ever thought we would come to a time when a concern like the Fryor Products line would streamline the functional efficiency pattern with a chairman of the joint board of chairmen? That is the summit job in our outfit, it pays him $100,000 a year extra but in deferred compensation for his grandchildren otherwise the income tax would grab it all. Tax-wise and incentive-wise it is positively atomic.

Well, that looks like Gary down there. By George, that is a great operation, but look at Bethlehem, there is another wonderful operation. And this airline is one of the greatest functional operations in a whole world of activated projects and it is hard to realize they were once only patterns on the drawing board waiting for initiative to batter down habituation.

Well, it has been a pleasure to make our acquaintance and, get your vision-patterns. So long, keep the merchandisability factor rolling. See you at the Hilton.

Party Leaders Have Defied Ike's And Outsider's Wishes

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Republican and Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill have defied and repudiated the liberal wings of both major parties in organizing key committees for the current session. They disregard the known wishes of both the Eisenhower and the Stevenson - Truman factions.

The Republicans gave Ike no assistance in his plan to "liberalize" the GOP. They lodged anti-Administration men in key spots and heaped his most enthusiastic supporters, as well as Senators for whom he had made special efforts last November.

They placed Senator William E. Jenner of Indiana on the important Finance Committee, and named Senator Chapman Revercomb of West Virginia to the committee which "Joe" McCarthy used to smear the Administration - Government Operations. Both men have been listed as non - co - operative by White House spokesmen, Ike himself mentioning Jenner as belonging to this group. Jenner is a McCarthyite and an isolationist.

Three Eisenhower liberals, including two who had served under him, were sent to the foot of the class. They are Senators John Sherman Cooper and Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, and Senator Jacob K. Javits of New York.

Cooper was given a seat on the Labor and Public Welfare Committee, where few measures of significance will be considered at this session. Morton was assigned to the group handling housekeeping and aldermanic chores for the District of Columbia, a job which Senators try to duck, and to Public Works.

Javits was shipped to two of the least influential units - District of Columbia and Rules. None of these three Eisenhower liberals can help to advance the White House program or reorganize the Party from these innocuous positions.

In short, Congress has thrown down a challenge to the reformers and to the revisionists in both major Parties, even though it means defiance of two occupants of the White House - Ike and Harry - and the Democrats' nominal leader, Adlai E. Stevenson.

Raft Voyage To Be Better Than Kon Tiki

By HENRY McLEMORE

BERLIN — Necessity is the mother of desperation, as well as invention.

If you don't think so, listen to this:

Within the next few months, when the ideas are right, Mary and I will start for the United States on a raft.

The trip promises to make the voyage of the Kon-Tiki a pleasure ride by comparison, and is almost certain to go down as the greatest adventure ever undertaken by a reasonably sane man and wife.

Neither of us want to make the trip on the raft, especially at this time of the year when even the Queen Elizabeth is being held up by storms, but we have to. We have no other choice.

It is by raft, and raft alone, that we can possibly afford to get home all the stuff that Mary has bought, little by little, in seven months in Europe and the Middle East.

To move it by airplane, with our meager 66 pounds baggage allowance each, would require the chartering of an entire plane. To crate and ship it by boat would make all the bargains she has found no bargains at all.

Mary is mad as me about the raft — she sulks whenever she thinks about sewing on the sails and making sandwiches for the trip — but it's really all her fault. I told her long ago that we never could afford to get all the stuff home, and not to take anything — ever if the antique dealers gave it to her!

Back in September, in Rosenheim, Germany, I distinctly remember telling her not to buy a walnut Victorian sofa even if it was only five dollars, and had one leg missing. "We just won't be in Rosenheim often enough for you to get your money's worth out of it."

And we don't have any friends in Rosenheim who we can ask to sit on it, and use it up, while we're away. That's what I told her — but she bought it anyway!

Then there was that tamed saddle in Cairo. It would be grand for watching TV, but not when the saddle is in Egypt and out TV set is in America. But she bought it!

I cautioned against the four old chairs in Cologne. Cheap, yes. Cheaper than firewood at home, but Cologne is a long way from home, even as the crow flies.

This went on and on, with me losing every battle. I won only once, as I remember. She was all set to buy a 1800 grand piano that must have weighed a ton — she had read somewhere how some woman had made a dressing-table out of an old piano by removing the keys and a lot of stuff.

"It could cost ten cents, and not ten dollars, and still not be a bargain," I said. This was in Salzburg. I finally convinced her that we might just as well buy an old elephant — that it would cost a fortune to move it from one room to another, much less across the ocean.

Add in the things mentioned supra: there's big enough to battle in. A hat rack with enough pegs to hold the hats of all the men who work in the Empire State building, a tea cart whose wheels lack several spokes, a bronze tray roughly the size and weight of a manhole cover, and ten thousand little knicks and five thousand little knacks, and you will understand why a raft is our only solution.

I am reading up on currents, distress signals, steering by redder, how to fish while frozen, and a hundred other nautical subjects.

I'm sort of glad Mary bought that sofa in Rosenheim, though. It will be the only thing on the raft we'll have to sit on.

Southern Methodist's defending champions, still jittery from their closest shave of the league schedule, reigned supreme atop the Southwest Conference basketball standings today with only one once lowly-regarded Baylor Bears anywhere close.

The Methodists had to have a 31-point performance from masterful Jim Krebs to nip the overproud Rice Owls 59-57 Tuesday night, while Baylor took a ragged 67-56 decision from the Texas Aggies to emerge as the only SMU rival with only one loss on its record.

SMU ran its season record to 14-1 and conference mark to 4-0 with the hard-earned Rice victory before 7,900 Dallas fans while the Owls dropped to 3-2 in league play, a step behind Baylor's 3-1 record in second place.

Actually, it was two of Krebs' nine free throws that broke a 37-37 tie with 40 seconds to play to give SMU the edge over the taller Owls. SMU had one of its coldest games of the season in shooting from the floor with a .315 average to .333 for Rice, but the winners made up for it at the foul line with 25 of 32 free shots made possible by 19 Rice fouls.

Krebs and Bobby Mills, who scored 12 points, tried 37 of the Mustangs 54 shots from the floor and Krebs managed his high total despite a tandem defense against him.

Tom Robitaille led the Owls with 19 points and Gerry Thomas got 15, while Rice ace Temple Tucker was held to three field goals and eight points.

Baylor was hot at the start and at the finish in its game against the Aggies with Jerry Mallett setting the winning pace with 23 points and 19 rebounds as the Aggies dropped their fourth straight loop this.

Nell Swisher led the Aggies with 15 points.

Bob Cousy Leads East In NBA Win

BOSTON (UP)—Bob Cousy provided the East All-Stars with the playmaking and spark for a 109-97 victory over the West in the National Basketball Association's annual All-Star Game, but his teammate, Bill Sharman, supplied the high point of the game with the longest field goal in Boston Garden history.

Cousy, the Boston Celtics' backcourt wizard, scored only 10 points, but his ball-handling and feeding set up hook-shooting Neil Johnston of the Philadelphia Warriors and others in a third period spree that gave the East its fifth victory in the seven games that have been played.

Cousy's performance won him the Most Valuable Player award for the second time in the past four All-Star games. However, Sharman's 70-foot field goal in the first period was the high spot for the crowd of 11,178.

In attempting a long, one-handed downcourt pass to Cousy, Sharman accidentally threw the ball through the hoop in as clean a basket as he will ever score.

The East team converted 15 out of 30 field goal attempts in the third quarter. Johnston hit on six out of nine tries during the spree, three of them coming on passes from Cousy.

Bill Jennings Taking Over At Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP)—Bill Jennings, 38, today was the 23rd head football coach of the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

Jennings was picked by the board of regents to succeed Pete Elliott, who was named head football coach at the University of California.

Jennings' appointment was announced by Bill Orwig, Nebraska athletic director, who said the former Oklahoma star was picked for a three-year term at an annual salary of $12,000.

Jennings said he was "happy to have this opportunity to coach at Nebraska."

"Job Can Be Done"

"Our somewhat brief experience with the school administration and the people of Nebraska has convinced me that the job can be done."

Jennings came to Nebraska last January as the first staff appointment made by Elliott after his selection as head football coach. He was on the original staff put together in 1947 at Oklahoma by Coach Bud Wilkinson.

After serving seven years at Oklahoma, Jennings resigned to join a Fort Worth, Tex., oil company but later decided to move back into football with Elliott.

"Nebraska is most fortunate it has on its staff such an able person in Bill Jennings who has the ability and knowledge to assume the head coaching position," said Orwig.

"Man of High Purpose"

"I recognize in Jennings a man of high purpose and great integrity. I am sure he will give us the type of team Nebraska wants."

An $8,000 salary was offered Jennings when he came to Nebraska, but he received a $500 boost last December. At that same time, the board of regents also increased Elliott's pay from $12,000 to $14,500.

Jennings also was an outstanding wingback and end during his college career for Tim Stidham's Sooners, playing in 1938, 1939 and 1940.

Pete Elliott Named Coach At California

BERKELEY, Calif. (UP)—Young Pete Elliott had two things today to brighten the future of any ambitious football coach: A three-year contract as head man at the University of California and 23 returning lettermen to mould into a winning team.

Elliott, head Nebraska coach for one season, was named Cal's head coach Tuesday night, replacing Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf.

Athletic Director Greg Englehard said Elliott was the unanimous choice of the executive committee.

Englehard said the 30-year-old protege of Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson would have a free rein in selecting his assistants.

Hastings declined to mention salary terms other than to say the "financial figure agreed upon was mutually satisfactory to both parties."

It has been learned unofficially that Elliott signed for at least $18,000 a year — $2,500 more than he got at Nebraska.

Simultaneously with Cal's announcement, Nebraska reported Bill Jennings, backfield coach, was being promoted to the head coaching spot.

Elliott inherits a team with plenty of potential. Of the 23 returning lettermen there are three good quarterbacks and a solid line.

Golden Boy Aragon Is Indicted

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Welterweight boxer Art (Golden Boy) Aragon, indicted by the Los Angeles County grand jury on charges of conspiring to "fix" a fight, said today his trial would give him a chance to be "publicly exonerated."

Aragon, charged with conspiring to "fix" a bout in San Antonio, Tex., last Dec. 18, surrendered himself an hour after his indictment Tuesday and was released on $1,000 bail. He has termed the charges as "ridiculous."

The indictment was returned here because the alleged conspiracy in which Aragon's opponent, Dick Goldstein, charged he was to get $500 to "take a dive" originated in Los Angeles.

Aragon backed out of the fight because of illness, but Goldstein notified Texas authorities prior to the fight of the alleged "fix" and declared he did not intend to go through with it. Both Aragon and Goldstein were suspended by the Texas commission, with Aragon's suspension being for an indefinite period.

Harvesters Drill For Lubbock Game

The Pampa Harvesters are taking advantage of their open date early this week to prepare for their fourth District 3-AAAA basketball game of the season Friday night against the Lubbock Westerners.

The game will be the second contest on the road in district play for the Harvesters who edged Amarillo's Sandies, 68-64, to open conference warring.

Pampa will take a 3-1 district record into the Lubbock meeting while the Westerners own a 1-3 mark. The Harvesters are second in the district in the standings while Borger holds the lead.

The Bulldogs beat Plainview 53-37 to hold an unbeaten lead. Borger is now 4-0. Palo Duro topped the Amarillo Sandies, 68-64, to knock Amarillo from second place and Monterey's beat cross-town Lubbock High, 78-69, for its first conference win.

The Harvesters will be after their 17th victory of the season in meeting the South Plains school for the first time this year. Pampa has only one loss on its record and that was to Borger in a crucial district game. Pampa and Lubbock meet here in their second game on Feb. 13.

Coach Clifton McNeely's Harvesters already hold one victory over

Jerry Pope, 6-1 Pampa forward, continues as one of the top scorers in the district. He has accumulated 72 points in four district games. This season Pope has made 269 points in 17 games for a 15.8 average. Sam Condo is the second highest scorer for Pampa with 230 points followed by Dickie Mauldin with 226. Bill Brown with 206 and Tommy Gindorf with 165.

Pampa has averaged 76.9 points per game while allowing only 54.8 per game.

Saddler Dethroned

MILWAUKEE (UP)—Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler was dethroned today in a bloodless coup headed by Fred Saddy, chairman of the National Boxing Association's Rating Committee.

The NBA officials had warned the wiry Bostonian Jan. 9, to sign for a title bout by midnight Jan. 15 or be dropped from the NBA's rating as featherweight champion of the world.

"We heard no word from Saddler, his manager or a doctor who could confirm Saddler was physically unfit to fight," Saddy said. "So, we are dropping him from our ratings as champion."

North Carolina Wins 15th; Await Votes For No. 1 Rank

By UNITED PRESS

They have the record (15-0), they have revenge over their arch-rival, and now North Carolina's torrid Tar Heels need only the votes to become the nation's No. 1 college basketball team.

North Carolina, the only unbeaten major college team in the nation now that Kansas has been whipped, bid to supplant Kansas at the top of the ratings heap Tuesday night with a rough-and-tumble, 83-57 victory over once mighty North Carolina State on State's own court in Raleigh, N.C.

It was only the fourth win in 13 games for Tar Heel Coach Frank McGuire in a red-hot rivalry with State Coach Everett Case, but it could have been North Carolina's biggest move toward an unbeaten season.

N.C. State, perennial champion of the Atlantic Coast Conference but hampered by the loss of scoring ace John Richter with an ankle injury, tried everything to upset the Tar Heels and nothing worked. The Wolfpack played a possession game early, but the Tar Heels took a 28-23 halftime lead. After a late rally that cut the margin to three points and then faltered, State tried an all-court press — but that backfired as the Tar Heels built a 10-point lead into their final 26 point margin in the last three minutes.

Lennie Rosenbluth led North Carolina with 29 points and Pete Brennan added 22, while Ken Clark topped N.C. State with 16. North Carolina had only one more basket than N.C. State, but the Tar Heels rolled it up at the free throw line with 43 conversions in 50 attempts to State's 19-for-34.

In one eight-minute stretch in the second half, the Tar Heels didn't get a basket — but had 15 free throws, 12 of them by Brennan.

North Carolina, now ranked No. 2 nationally, and Kansas, which
