REVIVAL — The Lefors Church of Christ will hold a 10-day revival beginning Friday. W. R. Smith, a vice president of a Bible Christian College, will be the preacher in the services, according to Bob Beatty, minister. There will be two services daily starting at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m.

DROUTH

These agencies have dealt with drought problems since great arid areas began forming in the southern Great Plains in early 1950. The drought first appeared in southwest Texas and southeastern New Mexico. It spread north and east through what the normal times was known as a "sea of grass."

At the height of the drought the area was literally "the great American desert." Crops did not grow, pastures withered. Livestock had to be taken off many ranges.

During the past winter severe storms bringing oceans of rain and snow swept the arid Southwest. The rainstorms are continuing over a large section. Rivers, which for years were dry, now are over their banks. Reservoirs are filled or filling. What was dust for years is now mud.

On April 12 the weather bureau in a special report said "recent upper air circulation patterns are changing sufficiently to give farmers hope that the severe drought may not return in the coming growing season."

Self-Survey To Be Taken By Council

The first annual meeting of the Pampa Council of Social Agencies was held in the Palm Room of the City Hall last night at 7:30. James Massa, president, presided. Invocation was given by Fred Thompson, Mayor Lynn Boyd was introduced as a special guest and Massa gave a brief history of the organization and its efforts to date.

He introduced Howard Masden, district representative of the State Department of Welfare. Masden spoke on the advantages and problems incurred in the making of a community self-survey. He discussed the purposes and uses of a self-survey.

"The survey would be based on problems of child and family welfare, youth recreation, public health and education," he said. "The purpose would be to determine the actual needs in this particular locality, and would suggest means of meeting those needs and problems, as it might be able."

"Doing a self-survey, eliminates the expense of having a commercial survey made and has the advantage of greater interest because of local citizens working on their own survey," he stated.

"The survey itself must answer the following questions: 1) Is the survey actually needed? 2) Why is it needed? 3) Will the survey lead to some kind of community action?"

"Workers on the community self-survey must be completely unbiased and ready to accept whatever facts come from it. People on the committee must be of high caliber and owe no loyalty to any particular agency."

Massa requested a motion from the floor; either an acceptance or rejection of the board's recommendation that this survey be made? The motion was accepted. Forty-three members attended last night's meeting, which adjourned at 9:10.

Highway Group Meets Thursday

This is the annual meeting of the Texas Branch of the U. S. Highway 60 Association, and will be attended by Jimmy Alfred of Hereford, president of the Texas Branch, and Bill Linderman, secretary.

Plans will be made at this meeting for the Texas delegation to attend the national meeting of the Highway 60 Association to be held shortly in Globe, Ariz.

DeMolay Chapter Runs City, County

Members of the Top o' Texas Chapter of the Order of DeMolay were learning the operations of various offices within the city and county governments as the youths took over the running of the offices for the day.

The activities were a part of the annual DeMolay Day in Pampa when members of the club handle the running of the various offices of the two local governments.

Robert Grider was mayor with Ted Mastin, Bill Gaut, Jimmy Gardner and Kirk Smith the City Commissioners. These youths met with the commission this morning during the transacting of city business and explanations of the various actions were given the boys as the meeting progressed.

Other city officials were: Billy Tidwell, city manager; Corky Cambern, chief of police; Gene Shirley, assistant chief of police; Jerry Carlson, fire chief; Gabe Crossman, assistant fire chief; and Albert King, city tax assessor and collector. Each of these youths accompanied by various officials in the performance of their duties and learned about the function of each department.

On the county scene, Robert Collette was county judge with Craig Meyers, Winton Rowntree and Andy Epps as county commissioners.

Gary Dalton was sheriff and George Richmond was chief deputy sheriff.

All of the boys handling offices in the county government also worked with the officials and learned the operation of the various county offices.

Twice Decorated General Smedley Butler twice was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor: in 1914, following the capture of Vera Cruz, and in 1917, following the capture of Fort Riviere, Haiti.

Case Being Heard In JP Court

The case of Gene Vineyard, who was charged last month with having struck a boy younger than himself, was being heard late this morning in Justice of the Peace Court.

Vineyard had appeared before the court once before with two other boys who were charged with the same offense, but had entered a plea of not guilty.

The hearing was prolonged as both sides presented testimony and witnesses were still waiting to be heard from late this morning.

The two others tried with Vineyard last month pleaded guilty and were given fines of $25 each.

The three were accused of having been in a car, with two other boys, in which they chased a car containing three young boys after the younger ones had allegedly called them a name in one of the local drive-ins. The younger boys denied having passed any sort of remark.

The boys then took up the chase and forced the younger boys to stop and when they got out of the car a scuffle ensued in which two of the boys admitted hitting two of the younger ones, while the third, Vineyard, denied that he had struck anyone.

Traffic Problems? Rome Is Champion

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent

ROME (UP) — To traffic commissioners, chiefs of police, and mayors everywhere: relax, boys. You think you've got traffic problems? Come on over here and be happy.

This town has the world's champion floating traffic snarl. It's a free-for-all, in its own way. Everybody joins in — bicycles, motor scooters, little autos, big autos, middle-sized autos, baby carriages, buses, and pedestrians — matter of fact, mostly pedestrians.

Traffic moves in a sort of middle-through policy, accompanied by plenty of arguments. The method of driving can only be described as furious. Two cars will careen toward each other at an intersection and slide to a halt with front fenders half an inch apart. Then the drivers emerge and wave their arms at each other while traffic waits.

Small Cars
Most of the cars are of the small, European type. If they had huge and ever-growing monsters here like those in the United States, the streets might get jammed beyond all hope of clearance.

As for the pedestrians, the approved method of crossing the street is to saunter out in the middle of the block, hands in pockets, gazing at the skies or talking animatedly with a companion. In some blocks, during peak pedestrian hours, there seem to be more walkers in the street than on the sidewalks.

This is a great hazard, too, because one of the main sports of the autoists is making pedestrians jump.

As expounded by a citizen who has watched the situation for some years, the three guiding rules for driving in Rome are:

Three Rules
1. In a very vague way, the car

Naval Training Center To Honor Texas

Texas, the biggest of the forty-eight, will be honored by the United States Navy during the world's largest naval training center. "Salute to Texas" will take place at the Great Lakes Navy Homecoming during the week of July 1 through July 7, 1957.

The thousands of Texans who have trained at Great Lakes have been extended an open invitation to visit their service Alma Mater. The "seabag alumni" of the Lone Star State are part of the almost two million men and women who have received training here in the past forty-six years.

Saturday, July 6, will be the high point of ceremonies honoring Texas' contribution to the Navy — and the nation. A special all-Texas recruit company will graduate Saturday morning in an impressive review on the center.

The recruits will arrive at Great Lakes about May 7. They will begin nine weeks of training which will transform them into Navy men-o-warsmen. Their training will

The Panama Daily News

One of Texas' Five Most Consistent Newspapers

We believe that one truth is always consistent with another truth. We endeavor to be consistent with truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence. Should we at any time, be inconsistent with these truths, we would appreciate anyone pointing out to us how we are inconsistent with these moral guides.

Great And Well Liked

What is greatness? Both the question and any possible answer have been long neglected. Today, thanks largely to our magnificent means of communication, there is a general belief that popularity relates in some way to merit. If a person can win publicity for himself, it is assumed by many of his contemporaries that he must have within himself at least the seeds of immortality. The result of this belief is the constant approbation of persons whose qualities are quite ordinary if not totally in eclipse, as though they were deserving of imperishable remembrance. This is sadly true.

Undoubtedly our 20th century preoccupation with psychology, our government schools and our government itself, are all contributing factors to this bad judgment. There is so much emphasis upon doing and saying things that will make you "popular" that there is little room left for emphasis on doing and saying things that have within themselves true worth. The present crop of psychiatrists have it that a person must be badly adjusted unless he patterns himself after the accepted criteria of the moment. The man or woman who is preoccupied with truth is apt to be judged by these modern necromancers as a misfit, incapable of making any kind of contribution to humanity as a whole.

More Control Asked In Flood Ins.

The next step in control of the lives of individuals will be flood zoning. The federal government is setting up an insurance program for the people of the United States whose homes may be damaged by floods. It will go into effect in the next few months, with private companies providing the insurance at rates set by the new bureau which has been set up in the Federal Flood Indemnity Administration.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES
Penalty Of Surrender II.

I want to continue to quote from Leonard E. Read's article on "Penalty of Surrender" in "The Freeman" magazine. The previous article ended discussing "Principles Dely Compromise." Then Read proceeds to define what moral principles are in this manner: "The question immediately arises as to what constitutes principle. Here again is a term with varying meanings to different persons. I must, therefore, define what I mean.

"The Ten Commandments are admonitions derived from the religious experience of an ancient people. In terms of their origin, the Commandments are cast in the form of imperatives of the will of God; in terms of their application, they are imperatives admitting of no dilution. They were expressions of principles at least to the ones who received them, and have been adopted as such by countless millions. Their acceptance springs from the studied deductions of the wiser among us, confirmed through centuries of observation and experience.

"The correctness of a principle has little to do with the intensity of conviction with which a man holds it. Someone else may hold a contrary principle with like intensity. No man can get nearer to the truth than his own highest apprehension of it. Ultimate insights may differ, and such differences will always be part of the human scene. But there is another type of difference which is more pertinent to the point of this essay; the difference between those who accept unyieldingly a moral principle as their standard, and those who accept a principle watered down by 'practical' considerations. Lord Morley warned of this danger when he deplored the tendency to forget the principle itself in our preoccupation with the practical difficulties of applying it.

"To those of opposite judgments, who believe that they should gratify their personal charitable instincts not with their own goods, but with goods extorted from others by the police force, who fail to see how the practice of political plunder as right and honorable — to them, 'Thou shalt not steal' must appear wrong in principle. Sound Judgment Required "Whether a principle is right or wrong cannot in any ultimate or absolute sense be determined by any single one of us human beings. Principles on the level of human perception are what are judged to be the rules of life or nature; what are judged to be universal, eternal verities, what are judged to be fundamental points of reference. But, human judgment is fallible. Therefore, whether a stated principle is held to be right or wrong will depend on the quality of the individual's judgment. Aristotle claimed that there were a million ways to be wrong; only one way to be right. How easy for fallible beings to decide on a wrong way!

The Doctor Says

Several people have written me recently asking again for a discussion of varicose veins and what may be done for them. This is an important subject, since each year there must be many people who develop trouble of this sort for the first time. It should be said first that varicose veins are most frequent and most troublesome in the legs. The reason is the pressure on the veins of the legs is particularly heavy, since these limbs are carried below the level of the heart, except at night. Consequently gravity makes the pressure of the blood in them more of a problem than it does to veins in other parts of the body.

The Nation's Press

BROTHER UNDER THE SKIN (The Wall Street Journal) Everybody with a big brother knows exactly what President Eisenhower meant when he said in his press conference that Brother Ed had been criticizing him since he was five years old. Brother Ed, a Tacoma, Washington, lawyer, is 22 months older than the President and just the other day in the nation's capital he criticized Brother Ike's big budget. Ed said he couldn't understand how Ike came to support such a vast spending program—especially after he remembered what Ike had said about such spending when he was running for office in 1952. For instance, on October 28, at Pittsburgh, Ike had this to say about some of the things the nation needed: "To get these things done requires no vast extension of the Federal bureaucracy in Washington, no Government paternalism stifling individual initiative."

to abandon the truth as one sees it: "The wages of sin is death." "Whether the wages of sin be mere physical death, as when men shoot each other over ideological differences, or profound spiritual death, as in the extinction of integrity, character, and self respect one needs to make but casual inquiry to verify the rightness of this Biblical pronouncement. Abundant testimony is being provided in our time. Nor is the end in sight." (To be continued)

Ike's Support Of Egyptian Control Violates Old Policy

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower Administration's support of Egypt's right to actual and physical control and operation of the Suez Canal violates the principles which the United States has followed since and before construction of the Panama Canal. On the other hand, its proposal to open the Gulf of Aqaba to ships of all nations accords with this nation's historic policy on vital world waterways.

London And The Days Of Flamboyant Youth

LONDON — London, not Paris, is the city that best helps me recapture a bit of my youth. It was the first foreign capital to feel the tread of my half-oledd shoes, and it was there that I was a wide-eyed tourist, it was this Georgia boy back in the middle thirties. I came over with the Walker Cup golf team for its matches at St. Andrew's, and stayed the summer to report Wimbledon, the Derby, the Ashes, the Amateur and Open championships, and to do features on the side about the House of Lords, the romance of Wally and Edward, and almost everything else that struck my fancy — and nearly everything did. I had so much energy then that the memory of it peeps me up. I am sure I didn't sleep more than four hours a night, and there couldn't have been many days when I didn't cover fifty miles by foot or bus. I tried everything English I had ever heard of, I stood in front of Buckingham Palace for hours waiting for the King and Queen. I played cricket on a village green with a "Daily Herald" team. I ate rare roast beef at Simpson's on the Strand. I punted on the Thames, and rode a horse in Rotten Row. I played golf at St. Andrew's, bowled on the green at Prestwick, tramped the Scottish moors, rode the bus through the Lake country, attended trials at Old Blaby, sniffed snuff at the Press Club (I'm still sneezing), ordered pigeon pie at the Cheesie Cheese, and interviewed anyone whose door was open and would talk. I lived in an apartment near Carlyle's house in Chelsea, so I reread "Sartor Resartus." I ate fish and chips, drank my daily pint of bitters, wore a tweed cap, developed an accent that was a mixture of Georgia and Georgian, played shove ha'penny at the Nag's Head, saw a young Noel Coward in a bad play, gagged on haggis, crossed the English Channel in a flying boat that barely stayed in the air, and crossed the Irish Sea on a mail packet that barely stayed on the water. I hung out with the Fleet Street reporters at the Fulstaf, ogled the Crown Jewels, walked alongside the Prince of Wales for three holes while watching Lawson Little win the British Amateur, rode the Flying Scot from Edinburgh to London, took pictures from the First of Fourth bridge with my little box camera, bought a heavy brown tweed suit that made me look like a cinnamon bear, and ignorantly ordered Scotch woodcock for my main course at dinner. I didn't stop that summer. Big Ben had nothing on me for around-the-clock activity. Now, today — well, it's a bit different. I may be in what is known as the prime of life, but nobody has given my feet and legs that information. I have come to appreciate the reading room of the National Library, and the delights of the Tate Gallery. The buses run faster, too. I used to catch them on the fly, but I have discovered that they really do come to a stop. Besides, if I chased them my reading glasses might fly out of my pocket, and then where would I be? I am not wearing a cap this trip, either. And I'm laying off the snuff and haggis yet to make a date for an afternoon of punting on the Thames. I like to believe that my tastes, not my muscles, have changed. It could be, but I doubt if they have changed that much. Still, two kings and two wars have come and gone since then. I'd like to see Lawson, Johnny Dawson, Johnny Fischer, Johnny Goodman, Francis Oulmet, Jack Westland and all the other members of the Walker Cup team who came over with me. I wonder how they look today? Or, to borrow a line from Govey Ford, I wonder if they have changed so much that they wouldn't recognize me?

A Look Ahead At Future Headlines

News Outlook
By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

New Look
Washington insiders report that a "new look" United States military program will get under way soon. It will mean more emphasis on missiles and similar weapons. Possibilities: A cut in Army strength by one or two divisions and a 300,000-man cut in the armed forces over the next three or four years.

Bad News
Paris expects the French taxpayer to get some bad news tonight when Premier Guy Mollet makes a nationwide broadcast on the financial situation. The government is trying to find ways of slashing expenditures by about 718 million dollars in order to reduce a threatened 2 billion dollar deficit in the 1957 budget. Mollet may announce increased taxes on higher incomes, higher corporation taxes, and higher sales taxes on such "luxury" items as television and radio sets.

Fading
Prospects for congressional action on a civil rights bill are fading fast. Southern opponents are fighting a grim delaying action. Now they have come up with a new, tough argument—they charge that the administration bill would take away the right to jury trial in many civil rights cases.

Blow-Up
Don't be surprised if there is an anti-British blow-up soon on Malta, the tiny Mediterranean island which was a vital bastion in World War II. It won't be aimed against British rule, Malta wants to be incorporated into the United Kingdom, like Northern Ireland. It would be represented in Parliament. The British government is agreeable to that. But Maltese Prime Minister Dom Mintoff demands that all Maltese get the same socialized medicine, unemployment and other social benefits that Britons do. That would cost a lot of money.

New Entrant
Tom Flynn, head of the Eastern Conference of Teamsters, is being named as a new possibility to succeed embattled Dave Beck as president of the nation's largest union. Washington hears that union secretary-treasurer John English and James R. Hoffa, who was regarded as Beck's crown prince until his indictment for bribery, feel Flynn would be acceptable in the No. 1 post.

Angling
Soviet Russia is angling for an invitation to one of its top leaders to visit Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. The Russians say it would be nice if a top-ranking man went to Bonn to sign the Russo-German trade agreement which is to be negotiated sometime in May. The real reason, they are worried over the prospect that the West German army will get tactical atomic weapons and they fear that the Western Allies may back Adenauer in a new drive for German unification.

Emergency Orders
Police in Tokyo and other big Japanese cities are being put under emergency orders to guard against riots in May Day demonstrations Wednesday. The big slogan of the demonstrators will be "no more nuclear tests," with special reference to the tests Britain is to hold in the Pacific soon. Tokyo demonstrators plan to march past the British Embassy.

Take a look at the West hand only. You are surely going to double South's opening bid of five clubs and are going to really welcome his redouble.

Now you open the king of diamonds and South trumps and lays down the jack of clubs. Make up your mind as to your pay now and then look at the rest of the hands.

West chose to go up with the queen. East was forced to overtake with his singleton ace whereupon South romped home with his redoubled contract.

Needless to say, this hand caused considerably discussion when it was played recently in Wausau, Wis., and while most people agreed that West's play was correct, but unfortunate, I feel that West made

AERIAL HOBBY HORSE—This rocket motor-powered helicopter, billed as the first of its kind, is put through its paces at Glendale, Calif., by pilot Dick Whitehead. NEW YORK — Vice Adm. Charles R. Brown, commander of the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean, on why his naval force was ordered to the troubled Middle Eastern area:

"My job is to be prepared for war — any kind of war, but the primary mission is to help preserve the peace. The 6th Fleet is a visible symbol of power, reassuring friends, dissuading enemies."

South held and ducked the trick. Another point of interest is that if South held something like A J 10 9 x x x x of clubs and did choose to lead low he would probably have played the nine spot, not the jack. Similarly his choice of the jack from his actual holding was designed to get West to rise if he held his exact combination of cards.

WASHINGTON—Robert F. Kennedy, counsel to the Senate Rackets Committee, on the committee's probe of Teamsters' President Dave Beck's alleged misappropriation of $320,000 of union funds: "I think without question we could prove that Mr. Beck stole the $320,000."

Wild Tips Hamper Police
SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—A series of bizarre tips hampered police today in their search for a hit-and-run driver who struck and dragged an elderly machinist to his death the night of April 14. The volume of wild tips became so great that Police Chief Frank Ahern ordered investigating officers to screen all information on the case, before releasing it to the public.

TORNADO WARNING in time can spell the difference between heavy loss of life and light casualties when the twisters sweep into populated areas. Under the experimental Weather Bureau program for tornado tracking by radar and telephoned visual reports, adequate warning could be broadcast so that local civil defense, police and firemen could evacuate residents or advise them to seek cover in basements. This drawing shows how such a warning station at Lincoln, Neb., might alert the inhabitants of Dorchester, Neb., in the expected path of a twister. The twin funnels are an unusual phenomenon—most tornadoes occur singly. (Courtesy A. Leydenfrost)

Will 'Modern Republicanism' Affect Future Of Veep Nixon?

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—One of the questions now being batted around in Republican circles is: How will the scrap over "modern Republicanism" affect the future of Vice President Richard M. Nixon?
Some of his fellow Republicans in Congress depict him as a man treading a path of caution. They view him as an administration agent pressing for action on programs which cause no significant rift in the party. They also see him as one who is not eager to join the debate over "modern Republicanism."
During more than four years as vice president Nixon has seldom strayed in his public statements from policy lines set by President Eisenhower. But he has made no major policy speech since last December.

It is a safe bet Nixon will do nothing to separate himself from the policies of the administration. But some of his friends doubt he is enthusiastic about use of labels like "modern" and "up to date," which stir resentment among Republican conservatives.
They believe the Nixon approach would be to spell out his program on a specific issue and fight for it without suggesting there are two kinds of Republic-branch was taking too soft a line toward international Communism. More recently he has thrown more punches at the administration's domestic policy.

Magazine Article Denies Federal School Aid Needed

ABILENE—Advocates of federal aid to education say that the 2.6 per cent of America's school children who are attending classes on a half-day schedule creates a national emergency that can be solved only by federal subsidies to the states, an article in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce's current monthly magazine says.
"School building records of our citizens in the last ten years demonstrate they are capable of meeting this 2.6 per cent 'crisis' as well as caring for enrollment-induced requirements—without federal tax dollar subsidies to the states," the article in the April issue of West Texas Today states.
"Fervid appeals for federal tax dollars ignore what American citizens have accomplished on their own in providing new school buildings in the last 10 years," the article says.
Using figures from the U.S. Office of Education, the article points out that since 1947 some 470,000 classrooms have been built to meet a need of only 290,000 classrooms.
"This doesn't mean that 179,000 classrooms were not needed and should be considered surplus. It should be recognized that this overage was used to absorb accumulated shortages left over from the depression and war years, and to replace obsolete buildings."
The article also questions the method used by the U.S. Office of Education in arriving at its estimate that 2.6 per cent of America's students are attending classes on a half-day schedule.
"The Office of Education, building up support for its estimate that there is a nationwide shortage of 159,000 schoolrooms, sent questionnaires to the state. The article quotes Rep. R. W. Gwinn, member of the House Education subcommittee as saying:
"If it (the federal agency) did not like the answer that came back from the person who filled the questionnaire in . . . it would return it to the State for revision. The U.S. Office of Education complained to one State about its failure to answer the questionnaire to the satisfaction of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. It threatened the State official by saying: 'The U.S. Office of Education does not want to make an official complaint regarding the inadequacy of data supplied by your state . . .'"

State Education Board To Consider Proposed Changes

The State Board of Education will give consideration at its May 4 meeting in Austin to several proposed changes in accreditation standards for Texas high schools.
A 29-member Advisory Committee which has been studying the graduation requirements for Texas schools has recommended the changes. The chairman of the committee, Cecil A. Morgan of Fort Worth, is also a member of the State Board of Education. Morgan said that if the recommendations are approved in the present form, all accredited high schools will be required to make the following courses available every year or in alternating years, beginning in September, 1958:
Four units in English, three of which are required for graduation; one unit in World History, one unit in American History, and one-half unit in Government, all required for graduation;
Four units in mathematics, including Algebra, Geometry, and General Mathematics, with two units of mathematics required for graduation;
Four units in laboratory science, including General Science, Biology, Chemistry, and Physics, with two units of science required for graduation.
The Advisory Committee proposed that the State Commission on School Accreditation be asked to determine the manner in which two units of vocational education courses might be substituted for one year of General Science. The Committee indicated that the "scientific concepts" contained in Vocational Agriculture, Vocational Homemaking, and certain Industrial Vocational Education courses would justify this substitution.
The Committee specified that the one-half unit in Government shall include an intensive study of the Constitutions of Texas and the United States.
The Advisory Committee recommended that the new requirements be introduced voluntarily by local school districts in September, 1957, and made mandatory for all schools beginning in the 1958-59 school year.
Among other recommendations presented to the State Board of Education for consideration were these:
All high school graduates should receive the same type of diploma, with each student's transcript serving as a record of accomplishments available to employers and college officials.
A maximum of one regular class period of the school day may be devoted to competitive athletics.
Of the basic 16 units for graduation, not more than two units (other than repeated courses) may be earned in summer school and by correspondence.
A comprehensive study of the high school curriculum should be made.
The curriculum study, if approved by the State Board of Education, would describe the approved courses offered in Texas high schools, determine which courses should be added, dropped, or combined, and explore specific areas of the curriculum, such as health and physical education, in which practices differ widely among Texas schools.

Girls Get Best Shake In Ballet

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—The royal ballet shuffled onto TV Monday night when NBC took its whack at "Cinderella."
And as is usual with these things, the male dancers got the short end of the shuffle.
"It's an unfortunate thing," noted Michael Somes today, "but in ballet, the male dancer is pretty generally overlooked. Almost all of the good roles go to the women even though, I think, male dancing is more exciting to watch."
Somes, a dark-haired spryweight who cepered as the prince in Monday's outing, has gamboled with his present company since 1934. The British unit was known as Sadler Wells until last January when it was granted a royal charter and re-christened.
"You know, the very nature of being a good partner in ballet for the man is to be as inconspicuous as possible. The man shouldn't really be noticed while the girl is at work and the less aware you are of him, the better," said Somes.
"Of course, this usually works in a bad way for us because often, everybody just forgets about us entirely."
"Another thing to remember is that if anything goes wrong, it's the man who is to blame. Well, that's what we're supposed to feel, anyway. If the girl makes a mess of it, goes mad or something and has a fall, the man is supposed to anticipate it. Otherwise, he's a bungler."
This weedy state of affairs in the dance, said Somes, has been with us for some time.
Some prejudice
"The reason the girls have all the good parts is simply because more women have gone in for dancing than men," he said.
"There has always been a certain amount of prejudice against male dancers although I must say, that prejudice is beginning to break down."
"One of the helpful things is that older male dancers are beginning to teach now. Only a man really can teach a boy to dance. And the fact that a man is teaching does away with the thinking that dancing is effeminate."
Effeminate, it is not, said Somes. "Ballet calls for the most rigorous kind of training," he said. "And it's not like training for boxing or baseball where you merely prepare yourself for a single event or a season."

SHAPELY KICKER

NEW YORK (UP)—Actress Marilyn Monroe, official mascot of the Israel Hapoel soccer team, will kick the first ball in an international game May 12 between the Israeli team and a select all-star American team, it was announced Sunday.
Judge Samuel Leibowitz said he cabled the team asking what American they'd most like to meet and got this reply:
"As athletes we'd like to meet the Brooklyn Dodgers; as men, Marilyn Monroe." So they're meeting Miss Monroe—in the Dodgers' Ebbets Field.

Reds Seek Better Western Relations?

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

Belief is growing in world capitals that Soviet Russia is seeking better relations with the Western Allies.

It has appeared in recent weeks that Russian leaders themselves were not quite sure where they were heading.

They and their propaganda agencies have alternated threats to many Western countries with bids for "peaceful co-existence."

The "conflicting pronouncements were reminiscent of the horseman who galloped off in all directions.

But there are increasing indications that the threats stemmed from anxiety and that a desire for lessened diplomatic tension is the real aim of the Soviet government.

Some Concessions

If this proves correct, the first evidence may come in the form of some important concessions to allied views in the current United Nations disarmament conference in London.

Concessions in the disarmament negotiations certainly would improve the diplomatic atmosphere.

It is being suggested that the Russian leaders are really aiming at a Big Four "Summit Conference" in which President Eisenhower would meet Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin, Communist party leader Nikita S. Khrushchev, British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan and French Premier Guy Mollet.

The last "Summit Conference," held in Geneva, Switzerland, in July, 1955, gave brief promise of East-West cooperation. But when the foreign ministers of the four powers met in Geneva the following November the promise was not materialized. The foreign ministers were unable to agree on a single important issue.

Since then allied leaders have shied away from the idea of another meeting of heads of government. They believe it would provide merely a sounding board for Russian propaganda.

Allied leaders have said that if the Russians want another conference, they must give some proof in advance that they are ready to do business.

Belief that the Russians may be ready to do business was strengthened by an 8,000-word letter which Bulganin sent to MacMillan on April 20.

Bulganin's letter contained a detailed statement of Russia's views on world issues—the Middle East, disarmament, rival military alliances, collective security, East-West trade.

Its tone was most friendly. At the end, Bulganin spoke of the "great importance" Soviet leaders attach to "the maintenance of per-

Tic Douloureux, Trifacial Neuralgia, Responds To Neck Adjustments

Sharp, stabbing, darting pains that shoot into the side of the face, cheek, lips, eyeballs, ear, side of head, teeth, nose, or all or any combination of these areas, inadequately describes the symptoms that have been named trifacial neuralgia or the Tic.

When these pains hit they cause the unfortunate sufferer to jump and are capable of preventing sleep or adequate rest and they nearly always turn the patient into a jumpy bundle.

Dr. Gordon Miller D.C., of nerves with a jaded sense of humor and a short temper.

About the only moderately effective orthodox treatment is surgery. The cutting out of a section of nerve so the pain can't get back to the brain and be registered as such. Even after surgery the pains frequently return in a few months and the face muscles may drop in a type of facial paralysis that looks horrible.

There is, however, a harmless but very effective method of removing the original cause of this nerve irritation which seldom fails.
