Johnson Leads Move To Delay 'Rights' Bill

Federal Agencies Bankrupt?

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — The Defense Department will be out of money by Thursday. Other federal agencies will be penniless. The agency that helps small business firms will be out of business.

That is, unless the Senate temporarily sidetracks its civil rights debate, now in its fourth week. Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson plans to seek agreement soon — possibly Wednesday — to put the civil rights bill aside for a day or two to handle other pressing business. There could be a stiff battle over sidetracking the tough issue that appears finally headed for a showdown after years of waiting in the wings.

The House Appropriations Committee meantime scheduled a meeting today to approve another stopgap measure to provide funds for agencies whose regular appropriations still have not been passed. A similar measure was adopted at the end of June.

It permitted the agencies to spend through July, first month of the new fiscal year, at the rate they were allowed to spend last year.

Since the Senate began debating the civil rights bill July 8 none of the unfinished money bills has moved in that chamber. Senate leaders "want to lay the rights measure aside briefly to handle relatively non-controversial measures in the accumulated backlog."

These include compromise versions of Defense and Agriculture Department appropriations as approved by House — Senate conference committees, and a bill extending the life of the small business administration.

Even if the two compromise bills were approved by the Senate, stopgap spending authority still would be needed for the foreign aid program, the Atomic Energy Commission and other agencies still awaiting regular appropriations.

News Of Gnu Etc. Behind The Scenes

REAL TEAMWORK
SOMERS, Iowa (UP) — Baseball manager Ed McNeil decided his second baseman needed a change. So he married her. McNeil pilots the Cedar Valley High School girls' softball team.

LOOK MA, NO HANDS
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP) — Distance swimmer Jose Cortinas swam a mile and a quarter down the Mississippi River in 27 minutes Monday while training for his planned 300-mile river swim. Observers weren't particularly impressed by the time until they discovered how he did it. Cortinas swims with hands and feet tied.

ZOO GNU NEW
CHICAGO (UP) — No gnu is bad news. So said the Brookfield Zoo Monday, as it announced with parental pride that a new gnu is in the zoo.

Knowland, Ike Set To 'Stay All Winter'

By DAYTON MOORE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland said a conference with President Eisenhower today GOP forces are ready to stay in session all winter if necessary to pass an effective civil rights bill.

The Defense Department will be out of money by Thursday. So will some other federal agencies. Johnson plans to ask the Senate Wednesday or Thursday to drop debate temporarily on civil rights. GOP Senate Leader William F. Knowland said he would agree. But a single vote could block the move.

Johnson's announcement came as GOP forces believed they were near a victory. They were reported to think they have enough votes to kill the jury trial amendment to the civil rights bill.

Infant Saved After Falling Down Pipe

ANDERSON, S.C. (UP) — Well drillers using the method which saved Benny Hooper rescued a 17-month-old Yvonne Beasley Monday night four hours and 10 minutes after she had fallen 33 feet down a 10-inch pipe.

Like 7-year-old Benny, blue-eyed, brown-haired Yvonne was rushed to a hospital. Doctors said she suffered from bruises and exposure.

Fire Chief Bailey Maddox, who directed the rescue, said an "elbow" angle leading the iron pipe into the side of a covered terra cotta well stopped the child's plunge, otherwise "she would have kept going and drowned."

The fire department rescue and salvage truck arrived first and quickly lowered an oxygen hose that doctors credited with keeping Yvonne alive in another striking parallel to Benny's famous rescue last May at Manorville, N.Y.

Shortly afterward two physicians arrived and administered the oxygen from a cylinder on the truck during the drilling.

After a bulldozer had scooped futilely at the earth beside the pipe, Maddox said, Eugene Bobo Jr., Bill Hughes and volunteer helpers used Bobo's machinery to drill a 36-inch-wide hole beside the pipe to a 40-foot depth.

Then Vaughn (Red) Roberts, the most insistent of numerous volunteers, was lowered into the new well. He broke through the terra cotta wall just below Yvonne and pulled her down into his arms.

Mrs. Lenora Beasley, 28, said they had recently moved to their home about eight miles from Anderson and were unaware that an old wash tub turned upside down in their backyard covered the exposed, treacherous pipe.

Rescue Near Midnight
Most of the throng which gathered at the spot during the drilling under floodlights got no glimpse of Yvonne when she was lifted from the rescue shaft at 11:40 p.m. e.d.t., Mrs. Beasley said.

"What was Yvonne wearing," she was asked.

"Nothing."

"I hate to say this," Mrs. Beasley laughed, "but I was going to change her. I left her with Richard David. He'll be 3 in September, and had gone to the house with her panties in my pocket."

"He came in crying — his face was white; he was shaking — and told me she fell into a hole. I thought they had dug a little hole and she had skinned her leg or something."

"I happened to pass by the opening — the pipe came about four inches above the ground — and heard her cry. But if it hadn't been for him I never would have known she was in there."

Girls Wreck 'Stolen' Automobile

A report of a stolen car was received by the police department at 1:40 p.m. yesterday and policemen discovered the car when they answered a call to a wreck at 1:50 p.m. yesterday.

The car, a 1953 Chevrolet owned by E. F. Collins, 225 Dwight, was reported to have been taken from the swimming pool. A son had driven the car to the pool and reported that it was taken without his permission.

At 1:50 p.m. the police department received a call on a wreck on Harvester, 106 feet west of Powell. When the officers arrived they discovered that the car reported stolen from the swimming pool had been turned over.

Several girls were riding in the car and two of them were injured. The two injured girls were taken to Highland General Hospital for treatment. They were Patsy Moss and Pat Sims.

Officers were continuing the investigation today to determine if the car was stolen and were questioning the girls in the car at the time of the wreck.

At City Commission Brook Resigns As City Manager

By FRED M. PARKER
Pampa News Staff Writer
City Manager Fred Brook notified the City Commission this morning that he was resigning from his position with the city.

He requested that the resignation become effective by Sept. 1. In making the resignation he stated, "I feel that (the resignation) is for the best interest of the city and myself."

He also reported that he did not plan on leaving Pampa and that he hoped to secure a position with a local firm and continue to make Pampa his home.

The commission accepted the resignation but did not take any further action.

It is not known who will replace Brook as city manager after Sept. 1.

Zoning Change
The changing in the zoning of lot 5, block 4, of the Sone - McCoy addition was discussed by the commissioners this morning in a meeting held in the conference room of the Chamber of Commerce. The change in meeting places was made so that the CRMWA election could be held in the City Commission Room.

The discussion resulted from the decision of the Zoning Board that the lot in question would not be changed from residential to commercial. The decision of the board was made on July 25 after residents of the area protested the changing of the zoning of the lot.

The change in zoning must be made to allow for the widening of Alcock as part of the Hobart Street underpass project. In order to widen the street a service station must be torn down and a new one built farther back from the present street. In order to change the station an apartment house must be moved from the lot it occupies next to the station to the lot to the south of the apartment house. The lot that the apartment house must be moved to is the one under fire from the property owners.

The commission reported that it is a necessity to move the apartment house and ordered that a public hearing for the changing of the zoning of the lot be held at 10 a.m. on August 21. Under the laws of Texas the City Commission can overrule the decisions of the Zoning Board after holding a public hearing.

The commissioners set August 20 at 10 a.m. for the opening of

Boys Body Found In Thicket

WHITMAN, Mass. (UP) — A three-year-old boy, missing from his home for five hours, was found Monday night in a thicket, his skull fractured. A bloody 10-pound rock apparently used by his attacker was found nearby.

He was found only six miles from where two young brothers were knifed to death and burned by a sexual psychopath on Friday.

Little Richard Doherty Jr., who vanished from his yard Monday afternoon was discovered face down in a briar patch. He had a four inch gash on the back of his head and police said his body was covered with bruises.

The child was taken to Brockton Hospital where doctors said his condition was poor.

In Brockton District Court Monday Raymond F. Ohlson, 20, was held without bail for the slaying of John Logan, 12 and his brother, Edward, 11, both of Stoughton.

Their stabbed and burned bodies were found in a Brockton park Friday and Ohlson has admitted the murders, according to police. The pallid faced, sideburned youth entered a mandatory plea of innocent and the case was continued to Aug. 8.

Oil Cutback Is Not Enough Says Daniels

AUSTIN (UP) — A proposed voluntary reduction of 10 per cent in petroleum imports is not enough, according to Gov. Price Daniels.

Daniel said Monday the proposal by President Eisenhower's study committee is "a step in the right direction, but the step is not firm enough and does not go as far as is necessary."

"The time has come for mandatory restrictions by the President without further delay," Daniel said.

Olin Culberson, chairman of the oil-regulating Texas Railroad Commission, said "No voluntary plan has ever worked and there is every logical reason why the voluntary plan will break down. Selfish interest will dictate this result."

Daniel said the proposed 10 per cent reduction "is not enough to give the relief necessary. Texas production has been cut to 13 days per month. Why shouldn't foreign imports bear a more realistic reduction than 10 per cent?"

Essary Suit Goes Into Second Day

The $50,000 damage suit brought by Ruel S. Essary and others against E. M. Keller Trucking Co. in the death of Carroll F. Essary, 19, goes into its second day today in 31st District Court.

The suit is one of three civil matters scheduled for trial by Judge Lewis M. Goodrich.

The Essary youth was crushed to death September 24, 1956, while working on a gin pole truck 20 miles west of Pampa. He was employed by the F. W. A. Drilling Co. which was removing a rig at the time of the accident. The E. M. Keller Trucking Co. had the contract to haul equipment and assist in dismantling the rig.

According to testimony, Essary was on a truck when the gin pole fell and crushed him. The court convened for further hearing at 11 this morning.

War Bride Held On Bigamy Charge

EL PASO (UP) — A war bride with five children and two husbands was held in lieu of $2,500 bond today on a bigamy charge as her first spouse accused her of plotting his murder.

Mrs. Eileen Stuart, 29, admitted she had wed Air Force Sgt. 1-C Allen Louis Wille last July 20 without divorcing Maj. Charles C. Stuart Jr., whom she wed in 1949.

Stuart charged his English-born wife had urged Wille to shoot him

Confession Signed In Sheppard Case

DELAND, Fla. (UP) — Two attorneys obtained a signed murder confession from a Florida convict today which they will use to try to free Dr. Samuel Sheppard from a life prison sentence for the slaying of his wife in 1954.

The attorneys, William Corrigan and Fred Garmon, left Deland for Cleveland, Ohio, hoping the confession by Donald J. Wedler will give them a legal way to reopen the celebrated case.

The two attorneys would not disclose their next move at this time. Corrigan said he plans to call a conference of all attorneys connected with Dr. Sam's defense to plan the legal strategy they hope will free the Cleveland oathslayer.

Wedler described in a 3 1/2 page statement prepared by the attorney how he clubbed Marilyn Sheppard to death on July 4, 1954. The statement was prepared from information the attorneys obtained in an interview with Wedler Monday.

The convict signed with the signature, Donald J. Wedler, after he had read the confession and also after it was read to him before witnesses from the state attorney's office and the sheriff's office.

Corrigan said he would drive back to Cleveland but said Garmon would leave from nearby Daytona Beach by airplane this afternoon and should be back in Cleveland late tonight.

Gov. C. William O'Neill of Ohio said Monday in Columbus that the controversial Wedler confession, already discounted as a "hoax" by three Ohio officials, was a "closed book" as far as he was concerned.

Mystery writer E. L. Stanley Gardner was meeting in Los Angeles today with officials of the Court of Last Resort, which has helped create interest in Wedler's story.

Gardner said he and other members of the private organization, wanted to decide whether to continue work on the case. The court has already obtained from Wedler a lie detector test which, it was announced, indicated he was telling the truth.

Armas Rifes Set For Today

GUATEMALA CITY (UP) — A state funeral today put a final period to the meteoric career of President Carlos Castillo Armas, who rose from obscurity to fame to death in three short years.

A pontifical mass for the assassinated President's soul was celebrated in the Cathedral here this morning. His body was buried in the general cemetery.

Maj. John Eisenhower, son of America's president, represented his father at Castillo's funeral. He expressed his parents' sympathy to the slain President's widow, Odilia.

Castillo was shot down by a Communist who had infiltrated his presidential guard on Friday, barely 37 months after he had led an army of refugees to victory against the regime of pro-Rief President Jacobo Arbenz.

The killer, Romeo Vasquez Sanchez, committed suicide minutes after he had assassinated the President.

Local Girl Injured In Accident

Miss Barbara Epps, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Epps, 1909 Duncan, was reported in good condition this morning by hospital attendants, after receiving a slight concussion in last night's Kid Pony Show practice.

Miss Epps, who is a member of the Top o' Texas Girls' Riding Club, was practicing riding the barrels on the east side of the Top o' Texas rodeo grounds when the accident occurred.

The horse that she was riding turned unexpectedly before he reached the barrel he was to go around and therefore turned out from under the girl. Miss Epps, not being ready for the turn, landed on the side of her head. She was rushed to Highland General Hospital and did not regain consciousness until approximately four hours later.

Dr. Charles H. Ashby, who attended the girl, said she should be up and in fine shape for the rodeo, Aug. 5-10.

Slayer's Clemency Decision Due Today

By RAYMOND R. COFFEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UP) — Nathan Leopold, the rich and brilliant college boy who 33 years ago helped murder Bobby Franks in the "crime of the century," gets the answer today on his appeal for executive clemency from Gov. William C. Stratton.

The governor will announce sometime after noon his decision on the thrill slayer Leopold's plea for "the mercy I did not show" in the form of freedom before Christmas.

Just before the announcement is handed to reporters in the governor's office here, Stateville Prison Warden Joseph E. Ragen will learn its contents by telephone and will relay the decision to Leopold, now 52, who suffers from diabetes and a heart ailment.

Stratton can grant Leopold's appeal for a reduction of his 85 year sentence to 64 years—which would free him, with time off for good behavior, on Dec. 30.

Leopold Slain in Prison
Or he can deny the appeal, or grant a lesser sentence reduction than that asked by Leopold.

The governor is not bound by the secret recommendation presented to him on the case by the state pardon and parole board last week.

Judge John Caverly, who sentenced Leopold and Richard Loeb, his partner in the notorious slaying of the Franks boy in Chicago in 1924, said then it was his intention that they should die in prison.

Loeb died that, the victim of another prisoner's razor in a prison fight in 1936.

But Leopold has been fighting for his freedom since 1949 when former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson commuted his 99-year sentence to 85 years.

Leopold was 19 and Loeb 18 on May 21, 1924 when they lured their 14-year-old victim into an automobile, killed him and threw his body into a culvert.

The two murderers were captured when a pair of eyeglasses found near the body was traced to Leopold.

The two youths were spared from the electric chair, largely through the persuasiveness of their defense lawyer, the famed Clarence Darrow.

The two young killers had plotted their "perfect" crime for several weeks before carrying it out for a "thrill."

"My motive," Leopold said in his clemency petition was to "demonstrate my willingness to undertake what (Loeb) had the nerve to undertake." He did so, he said, because he "admired (Loeb) extravagantly."

Also in his petition Leopold said "I earnestly beg you, gentlemen, to show me the mercy I did not show." He said he has had "12,000 days to carry my guilt in my soul—12,000 nights to be bitterly remorseful."

Fire Truck To Be Demonstrated

The final demonstration of the new aerial ladder truck of the fire department was to have been made at 1:30 this afternoon at the north end of Somerville.

The demonstration was to have been conducted by Henry Ginn, engineer of the Seagrave Company who delivered the truck from the factory. He has been in Pampa since the truck was delivered and has been instructing the firemen in the operation of the ladder truck.

Ginn reported today that he believed that the firemen could operate the truck satisfactorily and that he is leaving Pampa following today's demonstration.

'Ain't Gonna Be No War'

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles by the United Press military affairs writer, who has spent the past month in Europe, the Mediterranean and North Africa sifting up the free world's Western defenses.

By CHARLES CORDDRY
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS (UP)— "There ain't gonna be no war." That was the way British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan put it two years ago, when he was foreign secretary.

It still looks like a good prediction to many experts.

Touring Western defense areas in Europe and the Mediterranean and talking with officials, military men and plain people, you find the odds are on continued Communist trouble-making by all methods short of armed hostilities.

There are too many uncertainties, of course, for military leaders to put themselves on record with any flat forecast that war will be averted. There always is a chance, with giant forces facing each other, that an accidental spark could touch off a conflagration.

There is the possibility of East German uprisings with West Germans trying to help and North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces becoming involved. There is what Allied headquarters here calls a new "threat" in the appearance of Russian ships and submarines in the Mediterranean.

There still are gaps in NATO deterrent power, holes in the ground force shield on the Central European front.

But in 6,000 miles of travel in nine countries, from London to Istanbul and from America's big base in Libya to the barbed wire at the Czech border, this reporter found no official or military leader who thought Russia would deliberately start a war now.

The overriding reason is simple. An attack on NATO—on the 4,000-mile line from Norway to Turkey and on North America—could mean the death of the Soviet Union at the hands of air retaliatory forces with nuclear power beyond measure.

The Russians know that. There is no profit, just suicide, for them in a global war and no assurance that a little war would stay little. Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme Allied commander in Europe, says the West's retaliatory power is "absolute" and can be kept that way regardless of the size of Russian military formations. He says the free world now has so many air bases that it is a practical "impossibility" for Russia to destroy them all simultaneously.

"Regardless of what destruction they can do us," he told the U.S. Congress last month, "they also are going to be destroyed" if they start a war.

Can Destroy Anything

Norstad tells questioners at his headquarters here that the advent of long-range ballistic missiles will not change present deterrent concepts. The West will be in the "same relative position" as now—able to hit "where and when we choose" and "destroy anything of real military significance" in Russia.

The attitude in NATO military ranks is one of confidence and restrained optimism—with heavy emphasis on the need to keep on strengthening the defense machines until there can be a fool-proof disarmament agreement.

"If we continue to follow the course we are now following," Norstad says, "war in the next few years is most unlikely. I believe that time is playing on our side and that there is a very good chance, and the chance will continue to get better, that we will maintain peace and avoid war."

NATO strategy—"the course we are now following"—is intended first and foremost to prevent war. That is the purpose of every military man involved, from the armored cavalryman riding border patrol at the Iron Curtain to the B52 hydrogen bomber commander on a U.S. air base. All are visible signs to the Reds to keep their heads down.

NATO resolved in 1954 to base its defense on nuclear weapons and cut its previously unattainable "conventional" force goals from 90 divisions for the central front to 30 and from 9,000 aircraft to about 6,000. Strategy for deterring war is built around a double defense in Europe—ground and air. It calls for:

USSAC Is Key Unit

1. A "sword" of retaliatory air forces able to strike all elements of Russian power on short notice,

Key unit is the U.S. Strategic Air Command which can hit the Soviets from any point on the compass. Other units are Britain's rapier-like bomber command and the ever-growing atomic power within Norstad's command itself.

The U.S. Air Force in Europe, for example, probably has well over 400 aircraft able to carry atomic weapons and the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean now can strike a modest number of atomic targets.

2. A "shield" of conventional ground, air and sea elements pressed close to the Iron Curtain—representing as many NATO nations as possible and serving as constantly visible evidence of free-world determination to resist aggression. These forces, too, are to have limited atomic capability in the form of tactical missiles, artillery shells and small bombs. U.S. units already are so equipped.

The need for the ground force elements of the shield has become the subject of a big controversy in Europe and England, in view of the immense deterrent power of the retaliatory air forces.

Norstad, first air general to head Atlantic pact forces, has found his toughest problem is explaining the need for the Army forces and he has become one of their most ardent supporters since he succeeded U.S. Army Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther last November.

American Women Are Best-Dressed In World, Says Italy's Designer

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor
NEW YORK (NEA) — The average girl in Europe must make her own clothes or have them made by an inexpensive dressmaker. She cannot go into a store and buy whatever she needs.

But, according to Simonetta, one of Italy's best-known designers, this is beginning to change. In New York for a whirlwind visit, the striking young woman talked of the clothes changes taking place in Europe.

"European women have become bored with the idea of many fittings for clothes," she explained. "We've had nothing like your ready-to-wear in Europe. That's why American women are the best-dressed in the world. But we've had a taste of it in the last year and, within two years, I think ready-to-wear will be big in Europe."

European women, she said, like the idea of being able to walk into a store to buy whatever they like on the spot without having to make up specially. They still can't do it except for sweaters, gloves, lingerie and, in Italy, beachwear. But they've taken to the idea.

"For instance," Simonetta said, "there's the case of the long evening gown. No one wears long evening gowns any more. Even in Europe, women want short evening gowns. They can't pack the long evening gowns; they're too expensive; they can't wear them more than three or four times and they get dirty too easily because of the sweeping hemlines. There's a whole new way of life demanding clothes of a different kind from those we wore 20 or even 10 years ago."

Simonetta herself is slender, chic, a vivid brunette. Born a duchess, she was imprisoned during the Mussolini regime. But after World War II, she emerged as the youngest couturier in Italy in the rocket rise of Italian fashions. Parisian designs cost more, she explains, because Paris houses are top-heavy with expense. They have many more salesgirls, generally larger staffs and many more models. Therefore, they quite often charge twice the Italian price.

Simonetta: "American women are the best-dressed in the world. We have nothing like your ready-to-wear in Italy or in Europe."

Simonetta brought with her to this country her first ready-to-wear boutique collection. She designs in Italy for the American trade.

American women, she finds, have figures that taper to a narrow hipline and tend generally to be more slender than Europeans. Europeans are shorter, hippler and have smaller waistlines.

COOL EATING is offered at Publick House, Sturbridge, Mass., with this tasty fresh fruit salad accompanied by iced tea.

COOK'S NOOK

For Hot Dish On Hot Day
Try These Banana Fritters

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor
On a sizzling hot day we lunched coolly at the Publick House in tree-shaded Sturbridge, Mass., one of New England's finest eating places.

John Wetteland, the gifted chef, believes a cold meal should have one hot dish. He served us first a cup of strong, clear, hot chicken soup with rice, then a fresh fruit salad in a large wooden bowl. The salad was a production: tender lettuce lining the bowl and piled high with orange and grapefruit sections, pineapple cubes, watermelon and cantaloupe balls, strawberries, black cherries, apple slices and blueberries — all fresh, of course. This he topped with a mound of cottage cheese bright with a spring of mint. In a separate bowl — cream mayonnaise.

With it, Wetteland served a hot banana fritter with lemon sauce, and the perfect iced tea.

BANANA FRITTERS
Batter: Two eggs, 2 cups flour, 2 cups milk, ¼ cup sugar, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons cooking oil, ½ teaspoon salt, bananas.
Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg whites stiff, then beat sugar into whites. Beat egg yolks until thick, add milk and oil. Stir in flour mixture and fold in egg whites. Keep the batter thin. Cut bananas in three or four pieces, sprinkle with lemon juice and a little sugar, then dip in batter. Lower carefully into deep, hot fat (370 degrees F.) and fry until delicately brown, about 3 to 5 minutes. Drain on paper towel. Serve at once. (Cut recipe in half for small family.)

Here's another Publick House hot-day offering, Crab Louie with Remoulade sauce and sliced tomatoes. (Alaska king crab meat with hard-cooked egg yolks put through ricer, garnished with hard-cooked egg white slices.) Sauce served on side. With this, hot homemade rolls or hot Yankee-style cornbread.

TOMORROW'S DINNER: Hot chicken soup with rice in a cup, Westminster crackers, crab Louie with Remoulade sauce, sliced tomatoes and watercress, hot cornbread, butter or margarine, blueberry pie with cheddar cheese, coffee, tea, milk.

B&PW Club Plans For Rodeo Float

Fried chicken with all the trimmings was served to 45 members of the Business and Professional Women's Club, when they met Tuesday evening for a picnic in the City Service Club house, west of the city. Hostesses were Mrs. Faye Eaton, Bonnie Hutchinson, Gladys Howard, Lois Teel.

Mrs. Mattie Crowson, president, asked that members close out their sale of rodeo decorations and turn in their money as soon as possible.

The following chairmen were appointed, Mrs. Bea York, Welfare Index with Mrs. Noel Thompson as co-chairman; Mrs. Libby Showell, Council of Clubs chairmen; Mrs. Lois Steel, public relations co-chairman.

Mrs. Virginia McDonald announced that the district conference would be held in Plainville on October 5-6 and asked that as many members as possible plan to go.

B&PW members voted to enter a float in the rodeo parade. Civil Defense was discussed as a project for the year. Decision shelved until a later date.

It was announced that the club would sell fruit cakes again this year.

A board luncheon meeting will be held in the City Club Room on August 8 at noon. The next general meeting of the club will be on August 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Lou Ellen Overstreet, 911 E. Browning, at which time a watermelon party will be given.

Mrs. Howard dismissed the group with the reading of the club collect.

Mrs. Wanda Williams Guest Of Honor With Pink And Blue Shower Recently

(Special To The News)
LEFORS — Mrs. Wanda Williams was guest of honor at a pink and blue shower on July 25 in the civic center.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Claude Stanton, John Archer, J. J. Davis, R. C. McPherson, Tony Bivens, Babe Hall, Carl Barber, O. O. Bishop, Joe Archer, Glen Tennant, and Loyd McKnight.

Those in the receiving line were Mrs. Bishop and Tennant with Mrs. Hall and Davis registering the guests.

The honoree was presented a corsage of multi-colored baby socks made into rose buds and arranged with multi-colored ribbon and streamers. Mrs. Melvin Wright, mother of the honoree, was also presented a corsage of rosebud-shaped baby socks.

Entertainment throughout the evening was furnished by Miss Grace Barber at the piano.

The serving table was laid in a white lace cloth over blue centerpieces with pastel flowers in a blue crystal bowl. The cake decorated with a stork holding an infant with the inscription, "Welcome Stranger," was placed at one end of the table with the crystal punch bowl filled with tinted blue punch at the opposite end. Table appointments were silver and crystal.

Plate favors were miniature storks made of safety pins and toothpick bills, standing in white cups encircled with a gum-dropping ring in which were placed candy mints. The cleverly-fashioned storks were adorned with pink and blue ribbon.

The cake was served to the guests by Mrs. Hall with Mrs. Archer presiding at the punch bowl.

Guests were Miss Grace Lee Barber and Mrs. Pau Appleton, F. A. Turner, Catherine Johnson, Ray Dickerson, Betty Roberts, Robert Vaught, J. T. Rogers, James Collins, C. W. Teeters, Earl Cloud, J. D. Redus, Dean Higgins, E. D. Ross, Gordon Rutledge, R. L. Watson, C. D. Riggin.

In Interview Floyd Tells Of His Victory Over Jackson

By FLOYD PATTERSON
World Heavyweight Champion
As Told To United Press

NEW YORK (UP)—He didn't hurt me. He didn't mark me. But that Hurricane Jackson is as game as they come.

I wanted to win this fight for all of the people who believe in me, including myself. And I thought I was winning it all the way.

You ask me, did Tommy win any rounds and I'll ask you fellows who saw the fight—did you think he won any rounds? I thought I had him all the time, but he sure wouldn't go down.

I thought he was hurt and it wouldn't have surprised me if they had stopped the fight before they did.

One Good Punch
He had one good fighting punch. It was an uppercut, whenever he landed. I think he was stronger, too, than when I fought him the last time. Because I know I was a lot stronger myself in this fight and he would have folded up if he hadn't been stronger himself.

Yes, he kept talking to me in the ring. He kept saying, "Come on and fight, you bum, you" and I just kept right on, giving him everything I had. And he kept right on taking it.

He seemed to want to keep on fighting at the finish when the referee called it off. But I think he would have gotten hurt if we had kept on going.

It could have been a very short fight, too. I thought I had him knocked out in the first round. But the bell saved him.

Funny thing to me about the fight was that as it went on it seemed Jackson was easier to hit and I knew I kept hitting him more often. But he just wouldn't go down.

He kept throwing punches, too. But as the rounds went on I thought his punches became weaker and weaker.

And I kept concentrating on his head, trying to land a blow that would stagger him. One thing that impressed me about him, he was not as easy to hit in the body as he appears to be. So that was why I kept going for his head.

ALL IN THE GAME—Herb Score, left, shakes hands with Gil McDougald. A line drive off the Yankee shortstop's bat nearly cost the Indians' great pitcher the sight of one eye.

Patterson Blames "Ring Rust" For Belated KO Over Hurricane

By JACK CUDDY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Floyd Patterson, youngest of heavyweight champions, blamed "ring rust" for his belated technical knockout over Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson in his first defense of the crown.

"I should have put him away early for the full count instead of letting him last for a TKO in the 10th," said the 22-year-old champ, who stretched his winning string to 19 straight before 18,101 at the Polo Grounds.

"But I hadn't fought in eight months—since winning the title against Archie Moore—and I was rusty."

He promised, "I'm going to defend the title three or four times a year to keep rust away, starting with Pete Rademacher next month."

Seattle Guarantee Bigger
The poker-faced youngster who floored Jackson three times and battered him into a helpless, bloody wreck, said he would be delighted to defend next against Olympic champion Rademacher. He'll get a guarantee of $250,000 for the defense.

He received only a $175,000 guarantee for his lopsided blasting of Jackson, who wasn't credited with a single round by referee Ruby Goldstein, the two judges, or the United Press.

Despite his claims of rust, Patterson—weighing 184 pounds to Jackson's 192½—was much more impressive Monday night than he was 13 months ago, when he had to be content with a split 12-round decision over the "iron man" from St. Albans, N.Y. But Patterson had suffered a fractured right hand in the fifth round of that first Jackson fight. Today he was unmarked and uninjured.

Promoter Lost Money
Little Emil Lence, the first independent promoter to stage a heavyweight title fight in 20 years, hoped to use Patterson in two or three more defenses in New York—perhaps one or two in a big armory during the cold months.

Dress manufacturer Lence said, "I have established a beachhead with this fight, although the gate was disappointing because of the threat of bad weather yesterday and the long betting odds."

The gross gate was only $187,716 and the net gate $161,367. There were only 13,300 cash customers in the Giants' ball park.

Although Lence received $175,000 from TV-radio—the same amount he had guaranteed Patterson—he doubtless lost money on his first venture into big-time promotion. Before the fight, he had stated he needed a gross gate of at least $200,000 to break even.

Jackson, fighting for 20 per cent of all net receipts (including TV-radio) will get about $67,270 for his beating.

Challenger Badly Hurt
Jackson was bleeding from both brows, from the mouth and nose when referee Goldstein mercifully ended the battering at 1:52 of the 10th. Tommy's left eye was swollen nearly shut and his right cheek was badly puffed.

In the first round, a right to the chin had put Tommy down almost at the exact second of the bell. Again in the second round, a right to the jaw spun him to the canvas for a count of six. But before the bell sounded for the third, Jackson was dancing a jig in his corner.

The third knockdown was scored in the ninth round, when a right dropped him for a count of four.

Phillips Wins Softball League In Protest Game With Celanese

Phillips emerged Industrial League softball champions Saturday night as they edged Celanese 10-9 in a game that ended in protest and a little doubt as to who the real winner may be.

According to Wilkerson, commissioner of the softball league, the protest arose when a Celanese runner ran into the Phillips third baseman who was fielding a ground ball hit close to third. According to Amateur Softball Association Rulebook the runner should be out on the play. The officials of the game did not see the play however and Phillips protested.

Celanese then granted that the runner should be out and agreed with Phillips to avoid protest. After the game when Celanese ended the fray 1 run behind, they filed a protest that the decision was unfair since they had agreed to it rather than have an official make the call. Delbert Daniels and Bob Patterson were umpires for the game.

Although a meeting is in order to settle the ruckus, it is unlikely that any other decision could be made than to let the win stand as is. "The Celanese protest is completely without grounds," Wilkerson added.

If the decision stands Celanese will be in a three-way tie for second place with Lefors and Sinclair.

Hobbs Mangles Ballinger

By UNITED PRESS
Hobbs mangled Southwestern League leading Ballinger Monday night and moved back to within three and a half games of the Westerners.

The Sports mangled Ballinger 20-5, while Carlsbad took a 10-8 victory over Midland and edged to within five and a half games out in third place.

Ballinger is at Midland tonight and Hobbs at Carlsbad.

Irv Sharp poled two homers for Hobbs, one a grand slam blow in the fifth inning. The other was a three-run blast. Ron Kiser picked up a homer for Ballinger.

The Sports shelled two Ballinger pitchers for 18 hits, 15 of them singles while Ballinger contributed four errors.

Carlsbad sent home three runs in the eighth inning to whip Midland. Indian hurler Tom McAvoy walked the bases full, John Yanchura singled home two runs and Ray Patterson singled to bring home the other.

Patterson belted his 25th homer for the Potashers.

Dallas Drops Houston, 3-1

By UNITED PRESS
Texas League leading Dallas widened the gap between it and second-place Houston to 10 games Monday night.

The Eagles cut off a Houston rally to win 3-1. Tulsa stopped San Antonio 6-0 to take over third place, Austin walloped Oklahoma City 13-6 and Fort Worth stopped Shreveport 7-3.

The sites remain the same tonight with Dallas at Houston, Fort Worth at Shreveport, Tulsa at San Antonio and Oklahoma City at Austin.

Top O' Texas Softball Tourney Begins Tonight

The 1957 Top O' Texas Softball Tournament opens tonight with 8 games in the championship division, to begin Thursday night are Frank Phillips Mens Club (Borger) vs Hawbaker at Lions Park, and Philblack vs Pampa League Team at Hobart Park SW.

Second division games scheduled for tonight are The Texas Co. vs Motor Inn at Lions Park, Rice Plant vs Sinclair at Hobart Park SE, Celanese vs 3320th St Sqn. at Bowers Park, Amarillo Pkg. Co. vs Lefors at Hobart NW and Frank Phillips Mens Club (Pampa) vs Furr Food at Hobart SW, and Magnolia vs Frontier at Bowers Park, (9 p.m. game).

All games not marked otherwise will begin at 7 p.m.

Jim Krebs Conducts Youth Clinic

By DON METCALFE
United Press Sports Writer

DALLAS (UP)—Big Jim Krebs, Southern Methodist's six-foot, eight-inch basketball star, recently completed a two-week clinic for Dallas teenagers, and he has some good advice for youngsters who take up the game—learn to pass.

"It's amazing how many kids are deficient in passing," said Krebs, who in the last three years rewrote his school's basketball statistics. "Most kids just practice shooting, and ignore passing."

Krebs said a good pass is often the deciding factor in a scoring play. "Why, I realize that over half my points came as the result of a good set-up pass," he added.

Move To 3 Games Behind League Leading Yankees

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer

Billy Pierce, the gritty little southpaw who is chiefly responsible for keeping the Chicago White Sox' pennant hopes alive, is the majors' first 15-game winner of the season today and may wind up the American League's first 25-game winner since 1949.

Pierce, who is certain he won't bog down in the latter stages of the campaign as he did last year, hurled his fourth shutout and advanced the White Sox to within three games of the idle New York Yankees Monday night with a 5-0 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles.

Pierce didn't walk any and struck out six batters as he faced only 30 batters over the nine-inning distance. The White Sox broke the scoreless duel with Hal Brown in the sixth inning with three runs—two on a single, by Luis Aparicio—and added single runs in the seventh and ninth.

Braves Stay On Top
The victory was the hustling White Sox' seventh in 10 games since July 19. During the same period, the Yankees have managed to win only four of 10 games and now have fallen back to within striking range of a team that was being counted out of the race two weeks ago.

Tom Brewer notched his 13th victory of the season as the Boston Red Sox beat the Cleveland Indians, 6-2, in the only other American League game. The Milwaukee Braves retained their half-game lead in the madcap National League scramble via a 10-inning, 9-8 verdict over the New York Giants, the St. Louis Cardinals downed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-0, and the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the Chicago Cubs, 6-0, in other games.

Ted Williams collected a single and a double in three tries to raise his league-leading average to .379 and help the Red Sox win their ninth game in their last 12 starts. Brewer struck out nine behind a 12-hit attack that also included a homer by Ted Lepcio and a two-run single by Jackie Jensen. Mike Garcia suffered his seventh loss.

Winning Run Forced In
Relief pitcher Al Worthington walked Felix Mantilla with the bases filled in the 10th inning to present the Braves with the run that enabled them to hold first place. The Braves had rallied for four runs in the last of the ninth to tie the score at 8-8 and filled the bases in the 10th on two walks sandwiched around a single by Del Crandall. Wes Covington and Del Crandall homered for Milwaukee while Willie Mays, Daryl Spencer and Ray Jablonski hit homers for New York.

Vinegar Bend Mizell, the Cardinals' No. 1 disappointment most of the season, yielded only two hits—both in the fourth inning—in winning his fourth decision. Wally Moon, who stretched his hitting streak to 15 games, singled home their second against rookie Charlie Douglas, who yielded only five hits but walked seven in five innings.

Robin Roberts scored his second straight victory and eighth of the year compared to 13 defeats with a four-hitter that marked the Phillies' 13th win in 18 games with the Cubs. Harry Anderson drove in two runs with three singles and Joe Lonnett homered to spark the Phillies' attack.

Hurricane Hospitalized After Bout

NEW YORK (UP)—Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, defeated Monday night in a world heavyweight title bout, was taken to a hospital early today suffering from what doctors described as "a urinary condition."

Attendants at Meadowbrook Hospital in suburban East Meadow, Long Island, where Jackson was taken at 2:40 a.m. c.s.t., reported the defeated challenger was "in fair condition."

They declined to elaborate immediately upon his ailment or to say whether it resulted from the pounding which Jackson took from heavyweight champ Floyd Patterson at the Polo Grounds. Patterson was awarded a TKO in the 10th round.

Dr. George C. Erickson, a hospital assistant, said Jackson would undergo various tests during the day, including X-rays, "to locate the exact spot where the difficulty is."

General Tests Made
Many boxers have suffered similar conditions from severe kidney punches received in the ring.

Although Jackson did not complain of head injuries when he was admitted to the hospital, Erickson said tests of his general condition were being made.

Jackson also had a fever when he was admitted, but it subsided later.

Patterson said after the fight that he believed he would have put the flailing Hurricane away earlier if he hadn't been so "rusty." It was his first fight in eight months and his first defense of the heavy-

From Reform School Rap To World Heavyweight Champ

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—After 22 years, it took boyish Floyd Patterson just three minutes to come of boxing age.

He went out under the cloud-shrouded stars at the Polo Grounds against a snarling, dark-visaged man known as the "Hurricane." And before the first round ended, the kid from nowhere knew that his first defense of the heavyweight championship of the world was a distinct success.

"That was it," the melancholy-appearing champion said later as he was completely unmarked, he relaxed in his crowded dressing room without drawing a deep breath.

"That Tommy Jackson, I used to like him. A nice fellow. But he made a lot of strong statements coming up to this fight and it sort of hurt my feelings. People wasn't too sure I deserved to be the champion. But I guess I showed 'em. Right?"

Toyed With Challenger
He did indeed. The young man who barely beat a reform school rap and came from the other side of the railroad tracks to win the biggest prize in the ring has to offer, surely did "show 'em." He toyed with the scowling, dark-browed Jackson as if the superbly-conditioned "animal" was a babe in arms.

And when Patterson strolled back to his corner at the end of the first round, he had a smile of certain satisfaction on his usually gloomy face.

"He told me at the weigh-in he wasn't friends no more. He said he was gonna take care of me. Then in the fight, he kept saying, 'Come on and fight, you bum, you.'"

Patterson did.

The young champion—youngest in the history of the heavyweight division—had been called the champion nobody knew.

Precision Of Cobra
But stung by those inferences and by Jackson's sneering remarks, he punched with the precision of an angry cobra and, while those blows may have lacked the authority to put the stubborn Jackson away, there was one incontrovertible fact. Floyd Patterson won every round in an easy walk.

The sulking Jackson asserted with a deep-lipped pout that referee Ruby Goldstein stopped the fight too quickly.

This was a man wishing past a graveyard.

"It is different," Goldstein said, "when a man is being beaten and still is punching. But Jackson wasn't throwing a single punch. He was beaten, beaten badly, and could have been injured seriously. I had to stop it."

He did.

Because Floyd Patterson proved after 30 minutes of action he was—if not the greatest heavyweight in the world today—the greatest without a question in the Polo Grounds Monday night.

But he proved it to everyone's satisfaction in the first three minutes of action.

Unions Boost Wages?

While strikes, threats of strikes and other evidences of unrest on the economic front as controlled by labor unions are daily evident, it would seem that the careful study of what makes wages rise ought to be of paramount interest.

To discuss such a topic means that there must be some definitions. We cannot discuss what benefits "the worker" unless we know what is meant by "the worker."

For the purpose of this piece, the worker is anyone who is a producer of goods and services or who assists others in the production of goods and services.

Note that such definition carefully leaves out the word "union." Union workers, that is, people in production of goods and services who belong to organized labor unions, are not the only "workers." And if we are to benefit "the workers" we must benefit all of the workers, not just a minority part of the workers who belong to labor unions.

With such definition, let's ask this question and see what the answer might be: "Do you believe that unions have caused wages to rise?" If this were true, then the real wages of workers should have stood still during all of the period between the Civil War and 1900. In these 50-odd years, union membership was so negligible as to be almost non-existent and the wages of workers should have risen hardly at all during this time. But the record shows that the wages of workers DID rise and in terms of actual purchasing power the wages doubled.

As we look at the cold statistics we see that in the next half century that wages continued to increase without any regard to union activity—that the charts and graphs of wage increases went on their merry way whether unions were adding members to their rolls or not. One economist, having studied the charts, declared: "The evidence would be that rising wages cause union membership to rise, not vice versa."

If this is true, then it is obvious that the union passes who have been selling people on the idea that they should join a union because unions make wages rise are being getting a free ride. They have been taking credit for something that has been certain and as regular as the rising of the sun.

To be sure it is possible to raise the money wages of a small group of workers for a certain length of time through artificial boosts brought about by force and coercion. But in the long run, ALL of the workers have to pay the cost of the boost; if it is done on an artificial basis. Bank robbers who successfully get away with their loot have their "wages" increased. But such increase must come as the result of a loss of others workers.

And, unfortunately, if the investor type of worker has his wages reduced he cannot save and make possible the creation of more tools for others to use and thus increase the production of both categories of workers. Nor can we turn to government for the vital service of the investor for the creation of more tools. For government can't create tools out of nothing. If government is to create tools it must first take the tools of the investor through taxation and then tax everyone to make up the difference that ought to have been going to the investor.

Nor does the argument that unions have brought about "fringe benefits" really hold water in trying to show that unions can increase wages. While such fringe benefits may work out well for the individual worker, the wage increase through such benefits can't go uniformly to all the workers. The man who doesn't get sick or who quits his job before retirement age is gipped out of some money he would have received if the "fringe benefit" had actually been a general wage increase. What may be a "fringe benefit" to one man may well be a "fringe loss" to another.

For those who would like to explore this point further, we would like to suggest that they inform themselves on the subject called "Why Wages Rise" by F. A. Harper. It may be obtained by sending $1.50 to the Foundation For Economic Education, Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y. We would particularly recommend the book to union organizers for, if they cannot frame suitable replies to the arguments given in the book they ought to re-examine their activities and turn to truly productive efforts so that all of us will have our "wages" increased.

The Doctor Says

caused by a virus. Now we know that there are three main kinds of virus involved — A, B and C.

However, there are also strains within these main types so that it has proved extremely difficult to develop an effective vaccine which would prevent attack by all flu-causing viruses.

It seems that the present Asian flu is caused by Type A virus. At least three strains have been isolated from victims of the disease.

Of course, it is possible that the virus will die out by itself, since this happens without apparent reason from time to time. It is more probable that it will gather strength and cause more severe illness and a higher proportion of deaths unless some effective vaccination can be developed.

If this flu should suddenly strike us, it will doubtless hit the young and healthy as well as others. Usually it is associated with high fever. Immediate rest in bed until the symptoms have gone is the best procedure.

In previous pandemics, those who followed this policy were more likely to recover completely than those who tried to keep going or got out of bed too soon.

Public health officials and virus scientists are working furiously to try to develop some defense against the influenza epidemic now sweeping parts of Asia. It is a complicated task.

Whether this current outbreak of influenza will develop into another worldwide epidemic such as occurred in 1917-18 is still uncertain. So far — as is characteristic of the severe influenza epidemics of the past — this has started out as a relatively mild disease. While it has attacked vast numbers of people comparatively few have died from it.

However, when similar epidemics of the past have spread they have also become more dangerous. In 1917-18, for example, flu and its complications killed more people in the United States than we lost by combat in World War I.

We have had a good deal of flu since that great disaster, but not yet on the same scale. Indeed it is uncertain why these great worldwide epidemics appear and what makes them different from the influenza existing in between.

Nevertheless, more is known about flu than was known 40 years ago. At that time it was not even known that it was

Who To Believe

The "National Review" had an interesting article under the heading of "Facts a la UNESCO" written by Florence Fowler Lyons. She relates how she had received from the United States State Department a pamphlet entitled "About Unesco," prepared by the Center for Mass Communication, a Division of Columbia University Press, for the United States National Commission for UNESCO. Then she quotes from this pamphlet:

"In Ceylon there is a rice paddy. At one time it produced thirty bushels to the acre. Then, as its fertility faded, it produced twenty bushels. Finally it produced less than ten bushels. In terms of hunger this was like the theft of two thirds of the land!"

She relates that the government of Ceylon asked the United Nations to assist in bringing up this yield; that a team of worker-teachers was sent into the area by UNESCO and the health and food organizations of the United Nations; that after two years, pamphlet stated, the "rice paddy was not producing 30 bushels, but 100 bushels of rice to the acre."

Then she reports that the World Rice Crop Survey Report gives the following figures on rice production in Ceylon: They ran from 26 1/2 bushels per acre up to 29. The latest figure available was 27 1/2 bushels per acre for 1954.

Then she wrote to the Embassy of Ceylon at Washington, D. C., stating that "There seems to be great conflict in the figures unofficial sources quote, varying from statements that the 1954 production was now 100 bushels to the acre to other sources which state that the 1946 - 50 average for rice was around 28 bushels per acre, 1933 figure 29, and with a small drop shown for 1954 to 27 1/2 bushels per acre."

Then she asked: "Which of these figures is the most accurate?" Then she says she received the answer from the Department of Census and Statistics, Colombo, Ceylon, dated October 30, 1956 as follows:

"Reference your letter of 17th September, 1956, addressed to the Ceylon Embassy in Washington. ... 2. With the assistance of Mr. R. S. Koshal of the F. A. O., a scheme was drawn up to obtain figures of the paddy yields. Broadly speaking the scheme is for each paddy field in the revenue units to be listed. Samples from these are selected and the actual crop from the plot is ascertained and the figures checked against the declared yields. In addition the exact extent of a sample of the fields is measured and a correction factor based on the ratios of these to the extent at first declared is applied. I append the figures for the last crop for which these are available. ... Season Yield per acre ... Maha 1955-56 30.92 Bushels."

Then she wrote the Department of Census and Statistics, Colombo, Ceylon, Dec. 5, 1956. Here she repeated the part quoted earlier in this article from the State Department, claiming that the yield of rice had increased from 30 bushels to 100 bushels per acre. She wrote: "Please, Mr. — can you give me the exact location in Ceylon of this rice paddy which is producing more than one hundred bushels to the acre, and how large is that paddy?"

"The exact title of this pamphlet is: 'About Unesco' and it is distributed by the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO. ... Here is the answer she received: 'I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter dated 5.12.56 addressed to the Director of Census and Statistics who has referred same to me for disposal and reply direct. ... ### Commies Won't Loosen Grip On Their Satellites

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The new rulers in the Kremlin will not loosen their grip on their satellite nations or permit them to enter into closer economic and political relations with the West, especially the United States. Despite Washington's earlier hopes and Secretary Dulles' bright anticipations, no Russian expert anticipates such a development in the foreseeable future.

Although he hopes for a better understanding with Marshal Tito, Khrushchev jeered at such Titoesque variations as Workers' Councils and greater economic freedom for farmers. He twitted Poland for accepting American aid, subtly warning the Gomulka regime not to become an "imperialist's beggar." It was also a hint to Moscow satellites to turn toward Moscow rather than Washington in the future.

The supposed Eisenhower-Zhukov friendship, which like himself has tried to minimize because of its lack of reality, will have no effect on what Moscow regards as an internal problem. The Soviet needs the natural resources and finished products of these more industrialized nations and their more skilled workers. Without their contributions to the Soviet economy, Khrushchev cannot make good his boast to surpass this country's production of meat, milk and butter.

If he permits them to modify their collective farm systems so as to provide richer incentives to the peasants, it will mean an admission of totalitarian ideologies. It will be because the shift will insure greater production of food for Russia.

EUROPEAN SATELLITES PROTECTIVE BUFFERS — Since the Central European satellite lands have been the historic pathway for cruel invasions of Russia proper, Napoleon's, the Kaiser's, Hitler's — they must be maintained and fortified as a protective buffer. As Defense Minister, Marshal assignment his principal concern. He will strengthen rather than weaken the Warsaw Pact structure, which is the offset to our NATO position in Western Europe.

Despite the glow over the Ike-Georgi, wartime comradeship, and the belief that Zhukov may bridge the gulf of misunderstanding between Moscow and Washington, there is nothing to justify this idea. Diplomats do not forget that he approved and arranged for the murderous assault on Hungary. Every prominent Russian military figure is now beholden to Zhukov, as is Khrushchev himself.

Eisenhower himself testifies to the fact that Zhukov is a dyed-in-the-wool Communist believer, fully committed to the Party's domestic and foreign program. If he should happily counsel moderation and restraint in the duel with the West, it will derive only from the appreciation of American military and industrial might which he gained during the war and as Ike's opposite in command of the Russian Zone in Berlin.

In his recent visit to Czechoslovakia in the scale of living will become mathematically impossible and will only lead to disastrous inflation. Since the retired worker's pension will rise in proportion to inflation, the additional cost incurred in the effort to give him this protection will only accelerate the inflation and bring quickly the disaster which will put an end to freedom and bring authoritarian government upon Britain.

The desire of men to win elections and gain power seems stronger than their desire to maintain freedom, self-government and economic well-being.

Editor: The statement, "Seniority in labor unions, limiting apprentices, jurisdictional disputes on who can do this or that kind of work, requiring more men to do a job than is necessary are all things that are bound to result in labor disputes. And it is a dispute between employer and employee," by R. C. Hollies of the Santa Ana Register, is true in more ways than one. He explains that an employer collects what he pays in wages, from workers who buy his products. Of course if he must raise wages he simply collects more. If necessary to cover his increased cost, by raising prices.

Before strikes were legal, employers always had to pay high enough wages to keep employees. They must still do this, but now strikes cause certain employers to pay MORE than enough to keep willing employees, meaning ones who are free to quit without fear of a law or other force if they do. Therefore, a strike is actually a dispute between certain workers. The employer is an innocent victim. While he pays wages necessary to keep willing employees, certain of them are allowed to stop work against the employer's consent, and still hold claim to their jobs, as a method to harm the employer if he refuses to pay MORE than enough to keep his employees. Because others are enough satisfied to keep working, with the higher, Western civilizations are not compatible with tyranny. Secretary Dulles may have to revise his view that an unshackled Communist world will join hand with us in a democratic ring-around-the-rosy. For one thing, who will do the unshackling?

Man Can't Live On Smorgasbord Alone

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

No other word in our language is misused, overworked and generally maltreated as badly as the name of that reputable penal institution called Hell. This facility is set forth in the propaganda of Heaven, a rival enterprise, as a permanent abode of the wicked. This prospectus is vague and in my opinion hearsay and one is tempted to reflect, in a low voice, that if individuals who have made themselves obnoxious on earth are sure to be encountered in Heaven, then the alternative deserves equal time on the air.

Some rogues, for the long haul, would be more congenial than an old-style Alabama dry in a white lawn tie who had a right to believe that he would be whisked straight to Heaven for doing the Lord's work under the 18th amendment.

I entertained such impieties at the Scopes - Evolution Case trial in Dayton, Tenn., as I gazed upon William Jennings Bryan, the indomitable fundamentalist and glutton, soon to pay for his intemperance with his life. However, Clarence Darrow, the mocking atheist, booted an easy chance because this old jury-fixer was a fraud as rank as his adversary and his impudent approval of booze was strictly soapbox. He drank sparingly and got the utmost mileage in print from the least possible octane of blue ridge mule.

A dozen locals and visiting journalists in Dayton could each put away more before breakfast than the strikers picket and otherwise threaten them if they do, or if they try.

If ALL employees on a job are dissatisfied with wages and conditions, and would quit, as was done before strikes were legal, the employer would have to pay more or shut down, unless he could find new ones who would be satisfied. If only one or more are dissatisfied, they are still as free to quit, and it is absolutely none of their business what any of the others do concerning agreements with their employer.

In the end, to prove that a strike is actually a dispute between employees, not between employee and employer, the main issue is always have to belong to the union, those who belong and claim they believe in unionism demand that the others be fired, but non-members do not demand or even suggest that union members be fired.

Actually, an employer is a weapon which certain workers use against other workers because the latter will not join them.

Darrow absorbed in a week and very good hygiene, too, for the water was polluted and one percent of all present came down of typhoid. Henry Mencken, by the way, was strictly a fan, not a participant in such sports, though he led many a rousing cheer for martyrs with only one liver to give to the cause. I never saw him go beyond yeasted beer in a dozen drinkings.

I remember with longing a beloved scamp who ran a shakedown paper but reversed the hateful process of the conventional blackmail-er by writing that this or that lady was pretty and sweet as a peach in June. He thereby picked up little accommodations amounting to a million over the years. When little Consuelo Vanderbilt succumbed to his ovations at a Saratoga meet in August, she bought an entire bond issue of $25,000 on his weekly publication, the only one, by the way, that ever carried a play-by-play account of a Faro game.

Time marched on and the pantio of '32 sent her exploring the Casinos at night. She ran him to earth at Nat Evans's Brook Club and said, "You remember, you told me those bonds were like money in the bank," and he, with a light in his laughing eyes that a writer might have called a twinkle, replied, "Little lady, those bonds are as good as the day you bought them. Put them away and forget about them."

On information and belief, I say he would not enjoy the society of "good people" or vice versa.

But I have followed this longing too far from my point, which is that "Hell" has become a word of all work and no meaning in many uses which we put it to.

"To Hell and gone" had merit long ago and "Hot as Hell" needs no apology. But "A Hell of a note," "Cold as Hell," "Who, what, why and where "the Hell" and "Hell's bells," all of which trip from the fingers as fast as they can write, are as paltry and vealy as the boss banality of prohibition, "Like nobody's business."

It used to be said that Parisian hackmen had a strange but moving patter of repartee and exclamations, none of which, I have to say, I ever heard outside a roomful of American soldiers and correspondents. There were "Kind of a camel," "Kind of a pig," "Name of a plant" and "Name of a name of a name." Perhaps the French they meant no more than "It beats Hell" and "Going like Hell" mean to us.

Time was when "Hell" was an improper expression, but that was long before women took to cigarettes and booze and grew too sloppy mentally to insist on wit and imagery. I am not accusing them of all this damage to expression. But let them climb back on their pedestal and the bucks might at least make the effort to coin comparisons this side of Hell.

SALZBURG — Man (and wife) cannot live on smorgasbord alone. They need a little schnitzel, goulash, and nockerl as well.

So here are Mary and I, back in Salzburg again after a year almost to the day. It hasn't changed a bit, which means it still is one of the most picturesque cities in Europe, without being quaint. Delivered me from towns which are quaint, and know it, and work at staying that way. It's Mozart Festival time again, and if it weren't for the calendar and a few new wrinkles, we'd hardly know we'd been away. The streets are like an open-air Tower of Babel. Music lovers from every spot on the globe are here, and tickets are being scalped all over town.

There's a lot of complaining about the prices, too. Prices run high, even by American standards, with seats for the opera going at $12.50 plus a broker's fee of twenty per cent.

That's more than many of the visitors spend for a week's board and lodging. Hundreds of them are here with rucksacks on their backs, or camping equipment lashed to their home while in Salzburg is on the river bank, under the open sky. And that their meals are made up of sausage, cheese, good, stout bread, and wine and beer.

Mary and I would be living on the river bank too, if Mary were any good at putting up a tent. But she's a mighty poor hand at it, and I'm no hand at all. When I put up a tent, the falling of a single leaf from a tree is more than enough to collapse it. Also, my tents always leak, even brand new ones. And there are few more undesirable shelters than a fallen-down, leaking sheet of canvas. We are staying at the Salzburger Cobenzl, which perches on a mountain top half a mile above the city, and is owned and operated by an old San Franciscan, Art McChrystal, a retired Brig. Gen., and his Viennese wife.

We had lunch with the McChrystals today on the veranda of the Salzburger Cobenzl, and as good as the food was, the view was better. Down below was the city and the fields, and all around rose the peaks of the Bavarian and Austrian Alps, sometimes wreathed in clouds, sometimes bathed in sunshine.

During dessert we were joined by Greek-born Nicola Zacharias of the La Scala Opera Company, who is here to sing in "Fidelio." After we had finished our Salzburger Nockerl (which was as light as the clouds over the Alps) I horrified Mary by suggesting to basso Zacharias that he keep his voice in trim by singing a song.

He was graciousness itself. Something about my face must have betrayed to the basso that I was not a serious devotee of classical music, for he walked to the edge of the veranda, and with the vast sweep of the Alps for a stage, broke into "Come Back To Sorrento."

It was one of those moments that will be remembered for a lifetime. A golden voice, a matchless setting. Twenty years from now, if I live that long, I'll be able to close my eyes and recapture that moment. I'll have the memory long after I have lost the brute that I got on the skin from Mary when I suggested to Mr. Zacharias that he sing us a song.

Hungarian 'Terror Reign' Continues

By CHARLES M. MCCANN United Press Staff Correspondent Communist Hungary is in the grip of an intensifying reign of terror. Men in all walks of life are being arrested in night raids as suspected 'counter-revolutionaries.' Communist leaders are saying in speeches that they expect a campaign of sabotage to break out soon. This campaign, they say, will be aimed to start before the United Nations General Assembly meets in September to consider a report by a special commission on the atrocities committed during the revolt last fall. Internal Turmoil But reports reaching Vienna and other capitals indicate that the entire internal situation is in turmoil. There appears to be serious dissension between the secret police and the army. Factional disputes are still in progress in the Communist party itself. Bela Biszku, minister of interior, rather than Premier Janos Kadar, seems to be directing the campaign of terror. Biszku is in charge of the secret police and the Red militia. He disclosed in a speech at the Communist party congress in June that a campaign to 'unmask counter-revolutionary elements in the army is under way.' 'There is some suspicion that Biszku is trying to gain control of the army and put himself in a position where he, not Kadar, would be Hungary's real leader. More Arrests The arrests of 'counter-revolutionary' suspects and the purge in the army are being carried out while Red courts are still sentencing men, women and teen-agers to prison or to death for complicity in last fall's revolt. Biszku said in a speech last Wednesday that 'counter-revolutionaries' planned a campaign of sabotage to show the UN that 'there is still disorder in Hungary and that the population does not support the Communist government.' Next day, Minister of State Gyorgy Marosan said that the government had arrested several hundred 'counter-revolutionaries' who planned a revolt.

Salvatore Hits In Movies Too

By ALINE MOSBY United Press Hollywood Reporter HOLLYWOOD, July 29 (UP)—'HOLLYWOOD, July 29 (UP)—The heavy round-faced man said in his thick Italian accent, his mustache happily twitching. Salvatore Baccaloni is one of the four great basso buffos grand opera has ever known, but now he has another career unprecedented in Hollywood. Baccaloni is one of the few male opera stars to hit the movie jackpot. Lawrence Tibbett, Lauritz Melchior and Jan Kiepura enjoyed some film success, but they did not create the excitement of Baccaloni in his first movie, 'Full of Life.' Now he's co-starring with Danny Kaye in 'Merry Andrew' at MGM, and studios are besieging him with offers. Some opera lovers may frown upon the famed comic bass turning cinema clown, but to Baccaloni it's a 38-year-old dream come true. Studied Acting 'When I started to study in Italy I didn't study singing, I studied just for acting,' declared the new comedian. 'But the teacher says how you are acting with this voice, much better you sing.' The frustrated actor became one of the world's great singers. Then one day an ardent fan, Columbia producer Fred Kohlmar, called inquiring if he would consider portraying a comic Italian in 'Full of Life.' Baccaloni arrived for his screen test in the middle of a New York blizzard, but dressed for the occasion in huge sixteenth century boots he dragged out of his trunk of opera costumes. His success in the Judy Holliday picture made other opera singers happy, too, he insists. 'No, they are not jealous, because I prove opera singers can act,' he boomed. 'And the metropolitan does not care. I make a great advantage for my opera house by gaining fans from movies. I have made more fans from one movie than in 38 years in opera.' For movies the singer uses only his last name, claiming he is the only Baccaloni in the world. Next he hopes to tackle dramatic roles 'because in grand opera I play dramatic roles. Laugh and cry, it's all the same.' Is different business, this pictures,' he said. 'If you wrong, you do scene over again. I opera, if you wrong and your voice crack, the audience turns thumbs down and you're fired!' 'I am not used to this mustache,' he said, laughing and shaking. 'I grow it for the first picture but if I cut off the mustache now the fans wouldn't recognize me!'
