300 Storm Dead To Be Identified

By JAMES M. FLINCHUM United Press Staff Correspondent
LAKE CHARLES, La. (UP)—Officials today worked on a list of persons missing in hurricane Audrey to compare with the nearly 300 bodies already found.

Search parties were expected to find more mute testimony to the viciousness of the hurricane and its tidal wave which swept through southwestern Louisiana nearly a week ago.

In addition to bodies, searchers were finding thousands of dollars in cash strewn over the countryside when the great wave smashed homes and businesses. Many residents of the area refused to place their money in banks.

At last report, Sheriff Henry Reid of Calcasieu Parish (Lake Charles) said 293 bodies have been found.

Gov. Earl Long said Tuesday there was a total of 500 dead and missing. Asked for an estimate of property damage in the devastated Cameron area, he said "You'll have to get those figures from the Lord."

Reid said he expects to have a list of the missing complete today. He will check it against the identified dead and the more than 100 unidentified bodies buried in common graves for a clearer idea of the eventual total.

In a jumbled mass of wreckage on Cameron's main street officials fear more bodies will be found. A huge barge, 60 feet wide and 300 feet long, rests across the street. Five crushed automobiles are visible under its stern. No attempt has been made yet to see what else may be crumpled beneath the barge blown ashore from the gulf.

Test Homes
Refugees were to be relocated in clustered tent homes throughout Cameron and other ravaged communities as soon as possible.

Dr. Guillermo Vasquez, director of the Calcasieu-Cameron Parish unit of the state Health Department, said untreated water in the area is contaminated and entire families, particularly those with children, can't be moved back into the area immediately.

will depend on how rapidly debris can be cleared and water treated, he said.

However, Vasquez said there was no immediate threat of typhoid fever and no disease emergency existed.

A man found a thick wad of bills and coins amounting to more than $1,000 yesterday and turned it over to authorities. State police said the money belonged to a family of which only four children survive.

The money was turned over to the sheriff's office along with a total of $2,300 recovered from two bodies alone and other sums.

One Bank
Cameron had only one bank and many surrounding communities had none. Many persons kept their money in their homes.

O. B. Carter, the gray-haired sheriff of Cameron Parish, spoke to a group of townspeople at his birthplace of Creole Tuesday.

"This is our country and as far as I am concerned I am going to stay here if I have to live in a one-room house," he said.

He said he had not bothered (See STORM, Page 3)

Senate 'Rights' Fight Seen

Ike Opposes Civil Rights Referendum

By DAYTON MOORE United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today opposed a national referendum on his proposed civil rights program.

Eisenhower told a news conference that he does not know of any provision under the Constitution for such a referendum. He also said he presumes the question submitted to the people would have to be the exact language of the bill.

Eisenhower said he did not think that would make a very good subject for a referendum. The idea of putting the administration's civil rights bill to a national referendum was advanced Tuesday by Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), leader of the southern bloc opposing the bill.

Proposes Invitation
Eisenhower noted that the Constitution places responsibility for enacting legislation into law on federal officials—obviously meaning Congress and the executive branch of the federal government.

In other news conference highlights, Eisenhower:

Proposed inviting all foreign countries, including Russia, to send representatives to the next U. S. nuclear test to find out with their own instruments the size of nuclear weapons this country is testing and how "clean" they are. He said that we are trying to make small and "clean" (free of radioactive fallout) nuclear weapons.

Said he would make public later today a statement about this government making available, both at home and abroad, considerably more U-235 for peaceful purposes.

SWAN OR JACKKNIFE—Kay Fancher, sporting a false beard, shows rare form as he does a one-and-a-half into the Jaycees' horse trough. Kay shaved his beard to go to a convention in Milwaukee, but his fellow Jaycees felt this was not a valid excuse. The dunking occurred after the Jaycees' meeting at noon yesterday. Those assisting Fancher in his effort are, (left to right) Gene Hollar, R. F. McDonald, Melvin Jayroe, and Leroy Ogden.

Lake Project Survey Sought

In a special meeting this morning, the City Commission agreed to pay half of the cost of a special survey in regards to repair work needed on the dam at Lake McClellan.

The agreement stipulated that Gray County would agree to pay the other half of the cost of the survey by engineers. Judge Bruce Parker, who attended the meeting today with Nat Lunford, county commissioner, reported that the County Commissioners Court would be called into session Friday and will discuss the survey.

He reported that he felt sure that the county would agree to share in the cost of the survey.

The survey became necessary when the engineer secured by the county and city reported that there was some doubt that the present dam could be repaired.

The survey, which is expected to take about three weeks, will be made to determine if the present dam can be repaired and if so the approximate cost of the repair work.

repair the dam and spillway and by doing so see if it will be worthwhile for the local governments to operate the lake.

The Forest Service has reported that if the local governments do not accept the lake site on McClellan Creek, that the government must destroy the dam.

The special meeting today was called to discuss the cost of placing air conditioning units in the city offices at City Hall but other business delayed the discussion and late this morning no action had been taken by the commission. Tentative costs on the installation of the air conditioners had been received from five firms.

Other business discussed this morning involved complaints from residents in the vicinity of 1004 Murphy. The complaints came after a house had been moved onto the property, from out of town, and it was learned that no plumbing facilities were in the house and that the owner was not contemplating the installation of such facilities.

The commission requested that the health department check into the matter to see what action should be taken.

Jaycees Hear Report, Then 'Spill' Speaker

A report from the national convention of Jaycees by Kay Fancher was followed by his dunking in the horse tank yesterday at the weekly Jaycee meeting.

Fancher, who attended the national convention in Milwaukee, Wis., recently, shaved his beard for the occasion.

The local members, however, felt this was insufficient reason for shaving, so immediately after the luncheon in the Palm Room of the City Hall, Fancher was taken to the dunking pond in front of the LaNora Theater and drowned.

Members of the club met at 7 o'clock last night in the Chamber of Commerce office to get their blood typed. This was done in order that a permanent record would be available if an emergency should arise. The public health committee, under the direction of Jim Brown, was in charge of the project.

A board of directors meeting followed the blood typing.

Filibuster Expected By Southern Demos

By RAYMOND LAHR United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate cleared its decks today for one of the biggest civil rights fights of the century. Republicans and liberal Democrats are hopeful this time they will beat a southern filibuster and pass a racial rights bill.

With the big defense money bill passed, the Senate planned to recess tonight for the Fourth of July holiday. Its next business day will be Monday. That is the day the big battle is likely to begin.

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland will move then—or possibly on Tuesday—to bring up the House-passed civil rights bill. Southern Democrats will begin to "discuss" his motion. The filibuster will be on.

Republicans are getting set for the grueling talkfest that may last several weeks and keep the Senate in session 24 hours a day for days, even weeks, on end.

Knowland went over his party's plans at a private conference of Republican senators Tuesday. He was reported to have indicated determination to press the fight to a conclusion this year, and to have found no dissent.

Other Republicans reported he also outlined plans for dealing with the filibuster. It was said GOP senators will be divided into four groups when the Senate reaches the expected point of round-the-clock sessions.

One group would be allowed to go home to catch up on sleep. The others would be napping in cloakrooms or in offices, to be on hand for roll calls needed to keep the Senate in session. They will need the help of northern and western Democrats backing civil-rights to muster the necessary quorums.

The GOP also will assign teams to watch the Senate floor during speeches to guard against surprise moves.

Burglars Hit Shops Here; But Miss $17

Two more barber shops were broken into in Pampa last night and the burglars missed $17 that was in a drawer in one of the businesses, the police department reported today.

Both of the burglaries were discovered this morning when the operators of the barber shops arrived to open for the day.

Burglars once again entered the Hi-Way Barber Shop at 1011 Alcock. Entry was made by breaking the back window and climbing through the window, officers reported. Nothing was missing from the barber shop.

The Floyd Hunter Barber Shop at 103 N. Hobart was also entered last night. The burglar or burglars entered the business by breaking the glass in the front door and reaching through the broken window to unlock the door.

The officers reported that apparently the burglars were in a hurry and overlooked $17 that was in a money sack in a drawer in the building.

This is the first time that a burglary has been committed at the Hunter Barber Shop, but several burglaries have been reported at the Hi-Way Barber Shop with the last one occurring during the noon hour Monday.

ROME, (UP)—Police looked for Rome's first atomic-age thief today.

Advertising, Plans For Rodeo Talked

Advertising and final plans were the main topics of discussion last night in a meeting of the Top o' Texas Rodeo Association directors.

The show is scheduled for Aug. 5-10.

All committee chairmen reported that final plans were nearing completion and only a few last-minute details remained.

The vehicles from Ft. Jordan, near Clayton, will include Jesse James' getaway buggy, President Lincoln's coach, RFD No. 1 and a surrey "with the fringe on top."

Six sponsors have already signed up to decorate and operate the vehicles.

Any club or other organization wanting to sponsor a vehicle can do so by contacting Gray.

The kid pony-show practice was scheduled also. It will be July 25 and 27 and on Aug. 1 and 3. Joe Looper, chairman, announced.

One Collision Reported Here

The only collision reported within the city limits yesterday occurred at 9:52 p.m. on Barnes; 140 feet south of Albert.

A 1956 Ford pickup, driven by Benjamin A. McLarry, Pampa, was in collision with a 1954 Mercury, driven by Orvel B. Schiffman, 324 N. Banks.

Graham Suggests 'Golden Rule Of The Highways' For Holiday

NEW YORK (UP)—Evangelist Billy Graham Tuesday night recommended a "Golden Rule of the highways" to persons who plan to travel by car over the long July 4th weekend.

"Drive into others as you would have them drive unto you," Graham urged a capacity audience of 18,500 in Madison Square Garden to "be careful as death" on the highways over the holiday.

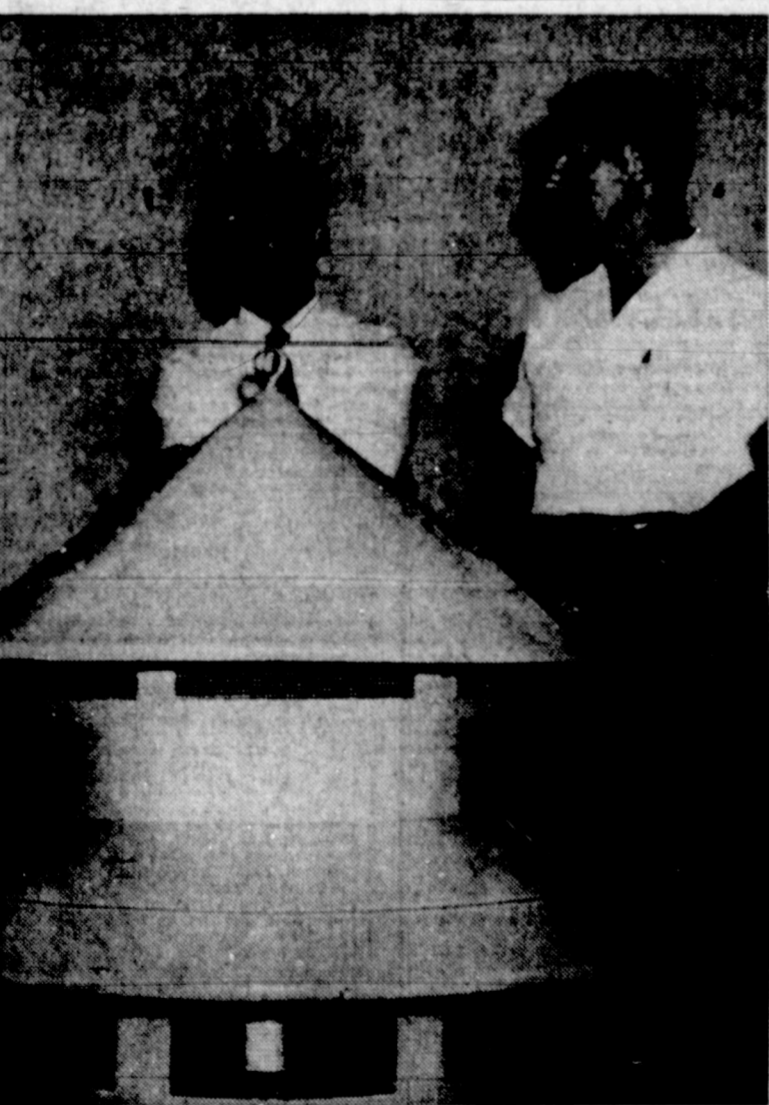

"A man gets upset or angry with his wife or children and stalks out and gets in his car," Graham said. "Oftentimes, without knowing it, he drives like a madman to take out his anger on the car and the road."

"The tragedy is that a man in this state often crashes into another car or knocks down some pedestrian."

It was officially confirmed Tuesday night that Graham's New York Crusade had not only outlasted all previous attractions in the 30-year history of Madison Square Garden, but also outdrawn them.

John Goldner, acting manager of the Garden, said his records showed that the Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey Circus had drawn 785,818 persons in 1947, while Graham has drawn 824,300.

The circus lasted 40 days, while the New York Crusade has already (See GRAHAM, Page 3)

STORM SIREN HERE AT LAST

TB Group Adds New Members

Nine new members were added to the roll of the TB Association during a recent meeting of the directors held in the Cactus Room of the Pampa Hotel. They were Mrs. George Quibbe, Dr. Donald Baker, Mr. Charles Hickman Sr., Mrs. Kirk Duncan, Mrs. C. E. Hoover, and Dr. N. J. Ellis, all of Pampa; Mrs. H. W. Callan of LeFors, and Mrs. Rufe Whaley of McLean.

Sam Bergert gave the invocation, and a report was heard from Dr. W. L. Veale. Dr. Veale stated that the Medical Association agreed to have the X-ray unit available for Pampa in the fall as the group requested.

Appointments of the Association's chairmen were announced. They were Dr. Julian Key, health and education; Dr. Foster Elder, medical advisor; Sam Bergert, chairman, and Miss Floie Hamilton and Mrs. W. L. Veale, co-chairman of case finding; Mrs. Finis Jordan, Seal Sale committee; George Cree Jr., publisher.

Brotherhood Holds Monthly Dinner Meeting

The First Baptist Church Brotherhood held its monthly dinner meeting last night in the Church basement, with 77 attending.

Program for the evening was brought by Lewis Kenley, chalk artist from the First Baptist Church in Lubbock. He drew two pieces for the group, using special varied lighting with his work.

Meeting On Zoning Is Set July 22

A public hearing on the changing of the zoning of the north 47 feet of lot 5, block 4 of the Sone-McCoy addition from residential to commercial will be held at 3 p.m. on July 22.

The decision to have the public hearing was made at a meeting of the city zoning commission yesterday afternoon.

The change in the zoning of the lot became necessary when the highway department asked for additional right-of-way to widen Alcock in connection with the Hobart Street underpass project.

We are NOT suggesting that housewives do a ballet along with the housework. We are suggesting that housework, in itself, will not keep a woman trim and beautiful, contrary to the accepted notion. It can, in fact, do damage. This girl has borrowed the ballet approach to show the correct use of muscles. She keeps her back straight (left) as she scours. This position does things for the waist, leg and thigh muscles. If you think that dusting, in itself, does you're wrong. It won't help a bit unless you're willing to use the classic ballet position (center), stretching one leg at an angle. Even the mop can be of help (right). This girl does a version of the ballet arabesque which lifts the entire diaphragm and stomach muscles.

20-30 Club Plans Work On Park

(Special to The News)
LEFORS—The 20-30 Club met Thursday in the civic center with the president, Mrs. Burley Bigham, presiding over the meeting. The minutes were read by Mrs. Joe Archer, secretary, and approved. A report was given by Mrs. Duane Howard on the progress that has been made thus far on the beautification of the city park. A meeting is planned for July 9 at 8 p.m., for work in the park. In the meantime, plans were made to have the remainder of the park plowed. The door prize was drawn by Mrs. Archer.

Refreshments of cookies, ice cream, and punch were served by Mrs. Freddie Cullen, hostess. One guest was present, Miss Linda Porsch, and the following members: Mmes. Paskal, Crutcher, Burley Bigham, Jack Taylor, Joe Archer, Duane Howard, Ray Dickerson, and Freddie Cullen.

Housework Won't Prove You Talented But Ballet Principles Are A Help

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor
It's amazing how many housewives labor under the mistaken idea that housework automatically keeps them in shape. Actually, it doesn't seem quite fair that all the bending, squatting and lifting that go into a day's house cleaning can't be depended upon to keep our figures trim. Yet, as one ballet master warned: "What the average woman does to herself in an eight-hour day of cleaning ought to deform her!"

If you are one of the majority of housewives who make no attempt to exercise systematically, the Tide Washing Clinic has worked out a program to show you how typical household tasks can be converted into body-building exercises. They have created a "housewife's ballet."

It is important always to keep the spine straight, but relaxed. Pretend that the parts of your body are blocks. Keep one part directly above the next, but don't stiffen. The two ballet positions most applicable to housework are the arabesque for reaching jobs, and the squat for bending, and squatting. If you are lifting a bundle of wet wash, make the job do some muscle toning for you. Don't arch your back and jerk up the bundle. Squat down beside it, one foot slightly in advance of the other, knees turned out. This way you will make the leg and thigh muscles do the work. Then rise up, as the dancer doing an arabesque, lifting the diaphragm and stomach and neck muscles. You will not only have made lifting the wash a beneficial exercise, but will be developing grace movement at the same time. When you do bending chores such as cleaning baseboards, use the pile. Don't kneel down, bend over. Instead, get down on your haunches, with your back straight, supporting your weight on your thighs. Practice going up and down this way. When you get used to it, try thrusting one leg behind you, one forward, and from this squatting position reach and stretch your torso as you wash or dust. Undoubtedly, you'll have trouble at first. It may seem to you that you are making your housework unnecessarily difficult. But it will come more easily as you get accustomed to it. Since there's little exhilaration in cleaning house, it makes sense to see that it pays off in graceful posture and a good figure.

WSCS Sub-District Meeting Held In Lefors Methodist Church

LEFORS—"Relating Religion to Daily Living," was the theme of the Women's Society of Christian Service Sub-District No. 2 meeting in the Lefors Methodist Church on June 18. Registration began at 10 a.m. The morning session opened with the hymn, "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Us," followed by a meditation by Mrs. Wesley Daniel. Talks on the "Christian Home" were given by Mrs. B. R. Gray of Harrah Methodist Church, Pampa, and Mrs. Charles Martin of St. Paul Methodist Church, also, of Pampa. Mrs. W. H. Craig of Miami spoke on "The Christian Family," Mrs. H. H. Bratcher of Lefors gave "The Value of a Day Apart." A trio, consisting of Mmes. Jerry Jacobs, Tony Bivins, and Larry Rider, offered a special song, "Others," at the noon luncheon. Invocation was given by Rev. Wesley Daniel. The afternoon session opened at 1 p.m. with a hymn, "He Lifted Me," followed by a talk on the "Christian Home" by Mrs. G. F. Bronson and "Widening the Home Horizon" by Mrs. Eben Warner Jr. both of the First Methodist Church in Pampa. The closing meditation was presented by Mrs. G. O. Hall of Harrah. "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," was sung by the group as a closing song. Approximately 45 women and children were present from Pampa, Miami, and Lefors.

Doris Smith Circle Has Mission Meet

The Doris Smith Circle met in the home of Mrs. Roger Hedrick, 917 S. Banks, opening with the repetition of the WMU Watchword. The prayer calendar was read by Mrs. J. J. Alexander with a special prayer for missionaries given by Mrs. E. Foran. The business session and discussion of activities of the circle for the coming week was led by Mrs. Foran. Mr. C. C. Tackett gave the devotional. A special prayer to the devotional was given by Mrs. J. N. Tackett. The fourth chapter of the book, "Home Missions USA," was taught by Mrs. Hedrick. Refreshments were served to seven members and one visitor, Mrs. Narquette Woodward.

ICE-CREAM-AND-CAKE CONES
Quarter - fill flat - bottom ice-cream cones with cake batter (a generous tablespoon of either your own recipe or a mix is enough), place cones on a cookie sheet and bake as you'd bake cupcakes. When cool, top with ice cream and decorate with chocolate sprinkles or tiny lollipops. Children love this all - in - one party sweet. One package of cake mix is enough to fix about 36 cups.
Cotton knit shirts that won't stretch, sag or shrink are a handy addition to a summer wardrobe.

Pampa Family To Be Reunited In Germany; Father Is In Army

By GUY T. STARK

A Pampa husband and wife and two daughters are probably busy talking over the past seven months they've been apart in Neckarsulm, Germany, this afternoon.

Mrs. Eugene Williams and daughters, Vicki, 6½, and Phyllis, 9, 323 N. Davis, etc. arrived at the airport at 7:30 p.m. yesterday to meet their father and husband, Eugene H. Williams. He has been home in Germany since Nov. 9, 1956. It is the first trip abroad for Mrs. Williams and her daughters.

GOING ABROAD—Mrs. Eugene Williams and her two daughters, Vicki (left) and Phyllis (right) are all dressed up and ready to travel to meet their husband and father, M/Sgt. Williams in Frankfurt, Germany. The trio boarded a TWA plane approximately two hours after this picture was taken in front of their home at 528 N. Davis. Their destination was New York City and from there, Frankfurt, Germany. (News Photo)

In view of her trip, Mrs. Williams said she looked on it as "a grand adventure."

"Of course I wouldn't want to live indefinitely over there," Mrs. Williams said. "But I don't mind leaving Texas for 2½ years."

Sgt. Williams has served in the Armed Forces 15 years and is stationed in Germany for another 2½. Mrs. Williams and the children's expenses were paid for them to join Sgt. Williams.

During the Korean war Sgt. Williams was captured and spent 33 months in a North Korean prison camp. At the time of his release in 1953 his rank was raised from sergeant to master sergeant as he walked through Freedom Village. The News ran a story on Williams at that time. Since then he has been with his wife and family in the States until he was sent to the Army Base in Neckarsulm, Germany, located approximately 50 miles from Heidelberg.

Mrs. Williams said that they already had made plans to visit friends in Italy and from there to make a tour of Rome, Switzerland, and various other places. "We also hope to visit friends in France too," she said.

"I want to go all over," Mrs. Williams stated, "while I have the chance. Eugene only has five more years until he can retire, but I think he plans to stay in at least two years longer. However, we don't know where we'll be after this."

Sgt. Williams was born in Lovelady, Tex., and Mrs. Williams, in Paducah. However, Williams was raised in Pampa. Both of the children were also born in Pampa. Phyllis, the oldest girl, finished her third year in Horace Mann Elementary School and will begin her fourth year in Germany. Vicki will be in the first grade. The children will attend the Army Base School.

A delegation of relatives and friends saw the trio off. Relatives were Mrs. W. G. Mayo, 641 N. Davis, a sister, and a sister and mother, Wilma Anderson and Mrs. J. D. Miller, whom Mrs. Williams has been living with. Mrs. Williams' father was unable to be there.

from Amarillo to New York City, arriving at LaGuardia Air Terminal at 4:34 a.m. From there they were to report at Fort Hamilton at 10 a.m. where they would board the plane bound for Frankfurt, Germany. There, Sgt. Williams was to meet them.

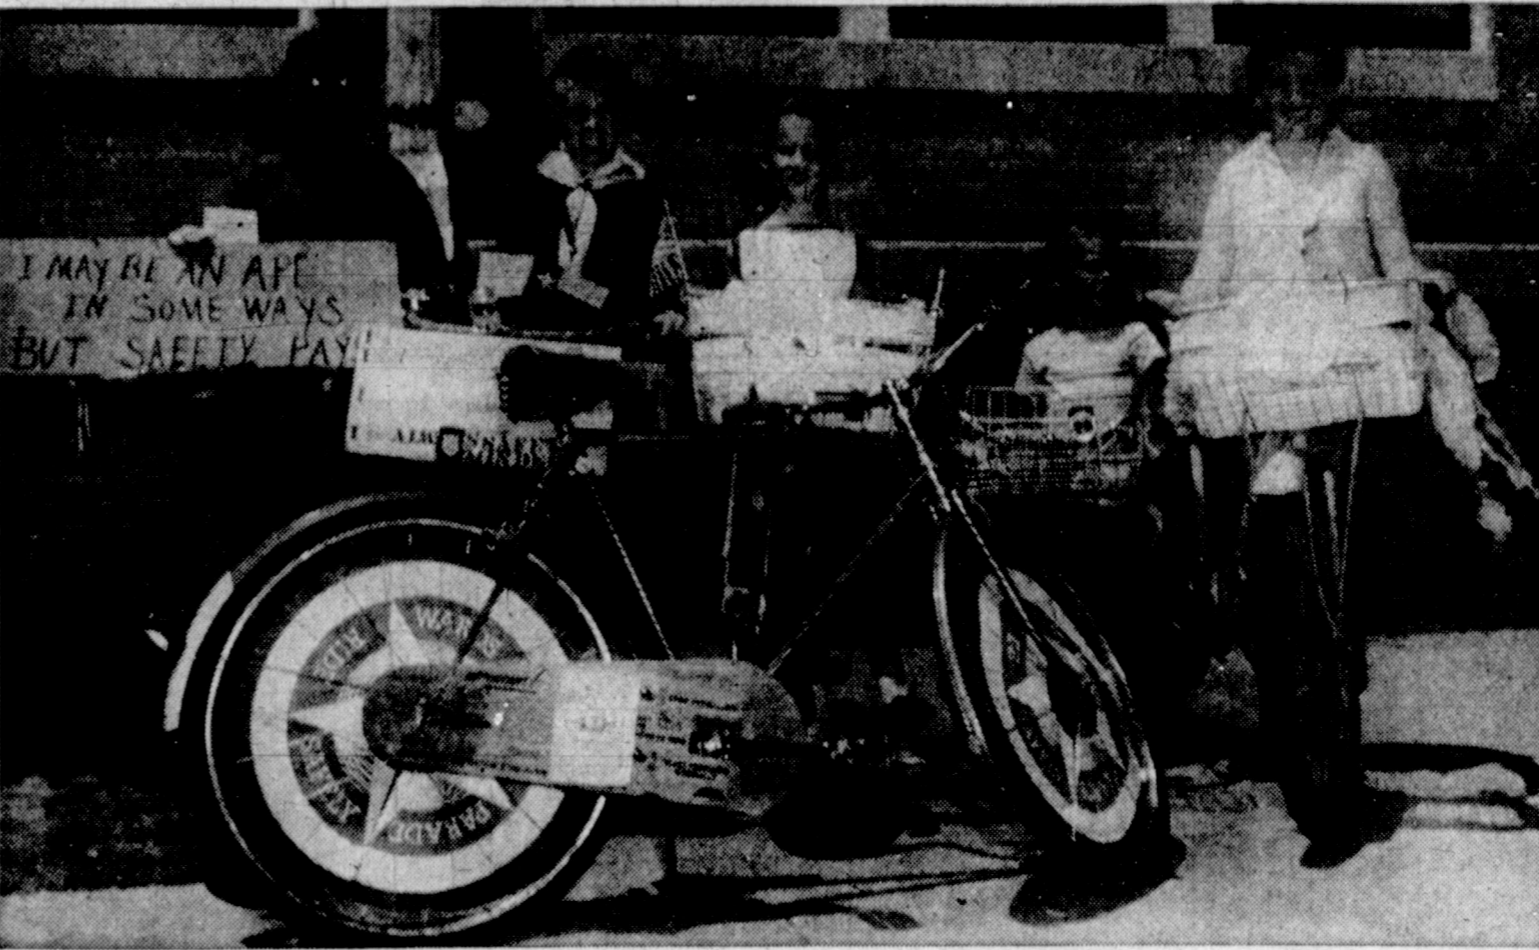

"Our house and everything will be ready for us when we arrive," Mrs. Williams stated. "We were allowed 230 lbs. of luggage, but we're only taking a little over 100 lbs. That's our clothes, dishes, linens and small appliances. We're not taking any furniture."

The group was to travel on TWA. It will be a happy reunion for this Pampa Army wife and her husband and children. There will probably be a bit of getting acquainted too, for Vicki, the youngest daughter, was born while her father was in Korea and didn't see him until she was almost three. Now Daddy is gone again, but this time she's going to him.

The meeting was to appoint supervisors in charge of assessing immediate emergency needs and obtaining food, clothing and machinery from federal and state agencies.

"This was one of the most prosperous parishes in the state of Louisiana and we are going to bring it back to that," he said.

Mass Traffic Is Expected Over Holiday

By UNITED PRESS

A mass exodus of Americans began today with an estimated 45 million cars hitting the highways for a long Fourth of July holiday weekend of fun for some and, inevitably, pain and tragedy for others.

Despite the best efforts of law enforcement agencies and safety-conscious motorists, at least 400 and possibly more than 500 holiday travelers are marked for death on the highways.

Other holiday celebrants will reach their destinations safely only to join the long fatality list in drownings at crowded beaches and resorts. Still more will be killed in airplane and miscellaneous accidents.

"Love, yes. That's one of the fruits of the tree of God. God sends his spiritual sap through you and you feel it all over—love, love, love, love, love, love!"

Graham, in a black summer suit, strode nervously around the platform. He pulled spasmodically at a tiny microphone attached to his grey tie. Occasionally, for emphasis, he jabbed a long forefinger outward, as though he wanted to punch a hole in the air.

Monday marked the beginning of the team's stay here. It expects to finish in about four weeks.

Clarence Brackeen, field superintendent for the Hudspeth company, is in charge. His office is room number 202 in the Rose Building. Phone number is MO5-3571.

The sales manager is Ross McNeil, Gilking Apartments, whose phone number is MO5-3597. All orders should be given to him.

Directory Team Working Pampa

A team from the Hudspeth Directory Service is now in Pampa canvassing the city gathering information for the 1958 city directory.

The directory, which lists everyone in the city over 18, plus their title and address, is published every 18 months. The directory will be out probably in January.

Besides the listings, it also contains a numerical telephone directory, commercial listings, and other useful information.

run 48 days and has until July 20 to go.

Graham said in his sermon that one of the things that makes it hard to lead a true Christian life is "so many theological bloodhounds sniffing around looking for ways to denounce others as being out of line."

"There are too many people who call themselves Christians, yet when they see a new Christian fall, they pounce on him like a vulture," Graham said.

"Oh, how I've prayed that some of you new Christians who have found God in this crusade will have the courage, the strength, and the faith to withstand the fault-finding of some older Christians who are ready to pounce on you. You need our love and our help."

She is survived by her husband, Orville, Kitchen of Harrah; a daughter, Betty Joice, also of Harrah; her mother, Mrs. Mary Williams, of Coyle, Okla.; and five brothers, Cecil of Stillwater, Okla.; Ted of Sacramento, Calif.; Quentin of Pampa; and Paul and Cliff of Coyle.

She was seriously injured.

Two men riding in the other car were seriously injured.

Sister Of Pampan Is Killed

Mrs. Orville Kitchen, the sister of a Pampa man, Quentin Williams, 2011 Christie, was killed instantly shortly after 6 p.m. yesterday in a two car collision between Stillwater and Harrah, Okla. Funeral arrangements are pending in Harrah.

Mrs. Kitchen was returning to her home in Harrah after visiting her seriously-ill mother in the Stillwater Hospital when the accident occurred. She was alone in the family's late model Buick. Two men riding in the other car

July Fourth Activities Announced

The schedule of Fourth of July activities for Pampa Country Club members and out-of-town guests has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. Ted A. Harriman.

Beginning the day's agenda will be a morning dance, sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Guy LeMond. It will begin at 10 a.m. and last until approximately 2 p.m. The Melo Ahrs Orchestra will furnish the music. Swimming and golfing will also be available for recreation.

A water ballet and diving exhibition, directed by life guards Tommy Strawn and Miss Sarah O'Loughlin, will be presented at 5:30 p.m.

Barbecue will be served to approximately 400 members and guests beginning at 6:30 p.m. Dudley Steele is the chairman.

Climaxing the day's activities will be the giant fireworks display at 8:30 p.m. O. V. Worley has charge of the arrangements.

Housing Group To Meet Friday

A special committee set up by the Chamber of Commerce to assist in finding adequate housing for the incoming Frank Mfg. employees is scheduled to meet at 9:30 Friday morning in the chamber office.

Reno Stinson is heading the group.

The Cabot Company, owners of Franks, announced last month that it was going to shift its Tulsa, Okla. plant to Pampa. An estimated 80 to 100 families will initially come to this city.

The company announced several days ago that quarters for 60 families had been secured.

Friday's meet will be held to secure the remainder.

3 Fire Alarms Here Yesterday

The Pampa Fire Department received three fire alarms yesterday after 12 o'clock.

A grass fire 150 ft. by 10 ft. fire at 1235 Farley was reported at 2:07 p.m. Firemen answering the call said no damage was done for the fire occurred on an empty lot.

At 5:08 p.m. an alarm was received when a 1956 Ford caught fire at 400 W. Francis. The car belonging to Cabot Carbon Co. received damage to the wiring, radiator and carburetor. According to firemen, the fire was caused by a short in the wiring.

A wheat fire occurring ½ mile South of Pampa on Clarendon Hwy. 70, was reported at 9:35 p.m. The wheat, which had already been harvested, belonged to H. E. McCaskey. Not much damage occurred according to fire department officials.

licity; and Mrs. G. F. Branson, constitution and by-laws.

The group discussed allocating a grant requested by the Texas TB Research Fund. Dr. Key and Dr. Elder were appointed to investigate the matter.

Eight persons were reported to have been x-rayed since the last meeting. One new patient was reported to be doing satisfactorily by Dr. Elder.

The group also voted to pay Mrs. Jordan's expenses to attend the Seal Sale meeting held in Lubbock.

Accident Report Issued By Police

A total of 44 collisions occurred within the city limits during the month of June and, according to the opinions of the officers investigating the accident, the violation heading the list was "failing to grant right-of-way" which caused 13 of the accidents.

The violation that was listed which caused the second largest amount of collisions was "improper starting from a parked position" which resulted in nine of the accidents and "following too closely" resulted in eight of the accidents.

These figures are part of a report released by the police department today which gives a complete breakdown of all collisions within the city during the past month.

The most accidents occurred on Saturday during the month with Wednesday listed in second place. More accidents were reported between the hours of 9 and 10 p.m. during the month than for any other hour. The hours from 4 to 6 p.m. also were hours in which accidents showed an increase.

Of the accidents during the month, a total of 27 accidents resulted in the prosecution of one or more persons for violations of the traffic laws that resulted in the collisions.

Cardinals Down Braves, 4-2; Redlegs Take NL Lead

Rookie McDaniel Throws 4th Win With No Losses

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer

Rookie Von McDaniel, a $50,000 investment by the St. Louis Cardinals, already has paid off with a more spectacular big league performance than even Bob Feller.

When Feller broke in as an awkward 17-year-old with Cleveland back in 1935, he had a 5-8 record in his first season and a 3.34 earned run average.

The 18-year-old McDaniel, paid a $50,000 bonus upon his high school graduation five weeks ago, already has a 4-0 record with the cards and a 1.50 earned run average that is helping them horn in on the National League lead again.

McDaniel retired the first 18 Milwaukee batters in order Tuesday night in posting a 4-2 victory that moved St. Louis within a game of first place. Accustomed to pitching only seven innings in high school, the Cardinal rookie yielded four hits and two runs in the seventh and was replaced by veteran Hoyt Wilhelm in the eighth when he gave up another hit.

Redlegs Take NL Lead

Cincinnati took over first place from the Braves by defeating the Cubs, 8-6, in 10 innings, and the Dodgers blanked the Giants, 6-0, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia were not scheduled.

The Yankees maintained their two-game lead in the American League race with an 11-inning 6-4 victory over the Orioles; the White Sox beat the Tigers, 4-2, and Boston moved into third place with a 2-1 decision over Washington. Cleveland and Kansas City were idle.

Doubles by George Crowe and Don Hoak coupled with three walks gave the Redlegs their two runs in the 10th that beat Chicago. Cincinnati hoped on starter Pon Kaiser for five runs in the second inning with the help of a grand slam homer by Wally Post but homers by Lee Walls and Ernie Banks enabled Chicago to tie the score. Rau Sanchez was the winner.

Forty-year-old Sal Maglie, pitching his first complete game since the season opener, limited the Giants to four hits as the Dodgers put together three-run rallies in the third and sixth innings. Errors by shortstop Andre Rodgers and catcher Wes Westrum set up Brooklyn's first rally while Elmer Valo's triple and Carl Furillo's

Former Majors Pitcher Dies

HAVANA, Cuba, (UP)—Adolfo Luque, former major league pitcher, died here today at the age of 66. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

Luque spent 21 years in the National League, breaking in with the Boston Braves in 1914 and ending his active career with the New York Giants in 1935.

He appeared in two World Series, with the Cincinnati Reds in 1919 and with the Giants in 1933. He was the winning pitcher in the fifth and final game of the 1933 Series.

Luque went to the Reds in 1918 and during the next 10 years was rated among the league's outstanding pitchers. His best year was in 1923 when he posted a record of 27 games won against eight lost.

He spent two years with the Brooklyn Dodgers, 1930 and 1931, and joined the giants in 1932. After ending his active career in 1935, Luque stayed on as coach for the Giants until 1938.

Luque chalked up an overall record of 194 games won to 179 lost during his career.

Dodger Manager Puts Five Braves On All-Star Team

CINCINNATI (UP)—Walt Alston, hooting for his second straight All-Star victory, placed more faith today in the Milwaukee Braves than he did in his own Brooklyn Dodgers.

Alston picked five Milwaukee players for his National League All-Star team which meets the American League at St. Louis, July 9, while selecting only three players from his Brooklyn roster.

The Milwaukee players Alston chose were pitchers Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette and infielders Eddie Mathews, Johnny Logan and Al (Red) Schoendienst. Outfielder

Hank Aaron was on the starting team, so that gave the Braves six players on the squad.

From his own club, Alston named pitcher Clem Labine, first baseman Gil Hodges and outfielder Gino Cimoli.

With five Cincinnati players in the starting lineup already on the strength of votes they polled from the fans, Alston named one more member of the Redlegs to his team, outfielder Gus Bell.

Bell was one of the Cincinnati players "dropped" from the NL team last week by Commissioner Ford Frick because he felt a last-minute avalanche of Cincinnati votes that produced seven Redleg starters was not a "typical" All-Star team.

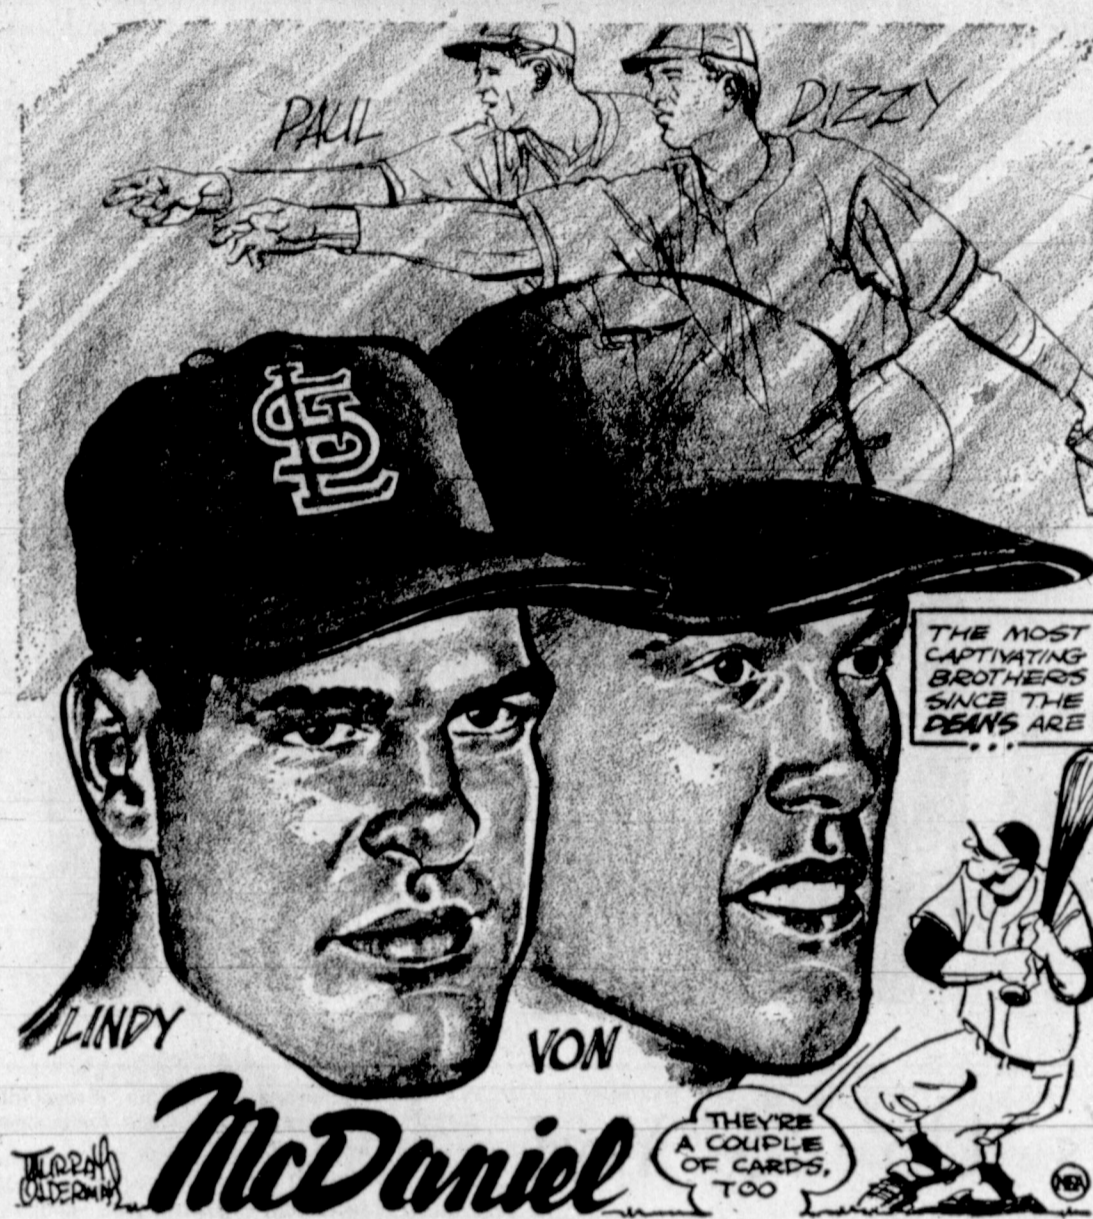

The five Cincy starters will be second baseman Johnny Temple, third baseman Don Hoak, shortstop Roy McMillan, outfielder Frank Robinson and catcher Ed Bailey.

The remainder of the starting team will have Stan Musial of the Cardinals playing first base in his 14th All-Star Game; Willie Mays of the Giants in center field, and Aaron in right field.

To help Bailey with the catching chores, Alston chose Hal Smith of the Cardinals and Hank Foiles of the Pirates.

Alston also selected infielder Ernie Banks of the Cubs and outfielder Wally Moon of the Cardinals.

Rebels Clip Childress, 14-8 To Take Third District Win

David Marler and Terry Haralson blasted home runs to boost the Pampa Rebels to a 14-8 win over Childress last night in a district game.

Haralson tagged his homer in the first inning when the Rebels pushed over five runs, and in the third inning Marler pelted the second four bagger to bring in three more runs. Other scoring for Pampa came in the fourth inning with two runs and in the ninth with four runs.

Childress also had their share of home runs, as Omar Carlile hit one in the third to bring in two runs and Mickey Carter tagged one in the fourth for two more runs.

Ray Stephenson pitched the length to take credit for the victory with 10 strike outs, 3 walks and 10 hits. Bill Shahan is charged with Childress' loss with 6 strike outs, 6 walks and 11 hits.

The Rebels left a total of 9 men on base, compared with 7 for Childress.

Sherman Adams Says

ern Republicanism, spoke up recently in Trenton, New Jersey. The man closest to our President in administrative details and upon whose shoulders sit many of the duties and privileges contained in the presidential office itself, doesn't like corporatism. The burden of his speech was that "corporate criticism" of Ike could cost the Republicans the elections in 1958 and 1960.

Mr. Adams sees no reason for corporatism. According to him everyone should band together behind the President and give him unflinching support in anything and everything he wants to do. Mr. Adams is particularly chary of cutting the budget. Every last dime has an irreplaceable purpose. And as for defense, this is what he says: "Confidentially, gladly, I put my trust for our defense in Dwight D. Eisenhower."

Of course there was a time when we put our trust in God and were loath to trust our elected representatives too far. That time is past in Mr. Adams' book. Collect the taxes and trust like, is his motto.

But Mr. Adams is helpful. He wants us to know just exactly what it is that Mr. Eisenhower stands for so that we can, with clear conscience, give that unflinching support.

"We shall continue our far-reaching and sound advances in matters of basic human needs—expansion of social security—broadened coverage in unemployment insurance—improved housing—and better health protection for all our people."

This is promise number one in the Republican lexicon, he says. He should be ashamed. This is simply a 1957 version of the Roosevelt socialism which has done so much to undermine the foundations of the country. Basic human needs do not fall to the lot of government to provide. Neither does the fraud known as social security. Unemployment insurance, as those most intimately connected with the program know, is simply robbing Peter to pay Paul. Housing is no project for any government. And health is a private affair having no relation to government or bureaucracy. Without exception, these aims are socialist.

Now comes promise number two. Employment problems of workers will be solved by the government. These problems include union induced welfare and benefit plans, eight-hour low work days, minimum wages fixed by the government, protection for unions. These ideas are also contained in the Russian constitution. There is nothing American in promise number two.

Here is promise number three: "The Republican Party will renew its efforts to enact a program of federal assistance in building (schools) based on sound principles of need and designed to encourage increased state and local efforts to build more classrooms. There is nothing American in promise number two."

This is right out of Marx. (See Communist Manifesto, point 10).

And this is all. These things, says Adams, ought to convince all good Republicans that they should get squarely behind Ike and stop carping at him.

We beg to differ. Take a look at the party platforms of the Democrats from the years 1936 to date.

Without exception, these items were contained in the Democratic platforms. Take another look. Dig up the speeches of Norman Thomas, the socialist candidate for president in the United States on innumerable occasions. Without exception these are the policies advocated by Mr. Thomas. They are socialist policies, communist policies or both. It was because of these very policies that Republicans rallied to throw out the rascals in the government; clean up the mess in Washington, and bring sound Americanism back to the country.

Is it possible for a Republican to be a socialist? Mr. Adams seems to think it is not only possible but highly desirable. For our part we can see no reason for supporting any political party which advocates such measures which are in direct opposition to constitutional government, the American heritage and the ideal of personal liberty and self-responsibility.

What is the truth about these policies and the budget which supports them? Mr. Adams gives us the answer. Says he: "Spending for these programs can be stopped if you want them and other such programs stopped, but crippling them will build a poor platform to elect a Congress and a Republican president."

Precisely. Of course this socialist hokey can be stopped. But the real reason for not stopping it is for the purpose of maintaining the present party in power. That is the only reason.

For our money . . . and it is our money . . . we'd rather see the Republicans swept out of office than to continue this kind of betrayal of the American people.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M. D.

An interesting fact book on hardening of the arteries and its complications has been sent me by the National Health Education Committee.

Probably most readers of this column understand that hardening of the arteries and arteriosclerosis mean the same thing. Perhaps, however, it is not so clear that this thickening and narrowing of the arteries is responsible for a variety of symptoms. These include "heart attacks," "strokes" and damage to the brain, kidneys and other parts of the body which are supplied by narrowed blood vessels.

Diseases resulting from hardening of the arteries have always been important, but are more so today. If we do not die in youth from diphtheria or typhoid, for example, more of us live longer to the age when arteriosclerosis and other disorders of the later years of life will inevitably afflict us. Thus today, taken as a group, there are more deaths from heart and blood vessel disease than from any other single cause.

Aside from the threat to life of hardening of the arteries, many people become disabled each year from the effects of this process. Some develop angina pectoris; others have heart attacks. Some have strokes and there are other complications as well.

Furthermore, there is a terrific economic loss from blood vessel disease. If a breadwinner is no longer able to work because of some manifestation of arteriosclerosis, he and his family suffer. Also there is lack of production and the considerable cost on those who are still healthy of supporting the victim.

The need to learn more about prevention of arteriosclerosis and the effects which it causes is urgent. Some figures on this are illuminating.

Only $2,351,000 is spent each year in research on arteriosclerosis, high blood pressure and brain disease resulting from blood vessel disorders. This contrasts with 121 million dollars spent annually on agricultural research. At the same time we spend almost 100 million dollars a year for face creams, over 27 million dollars for men's package toiletry

Are Labor Unions Desirable?

IV.

Here is the last installment of Ludwig von Mises' article in the "National Review" pointing out how labor unions cause unemployment and result in credit expansion as an attempt to counteract arbitrary wages arrived at by strikes or threats of same.

The last installment pointed out how those who believed labor unions do not cause unemployment invariably contended that those people who did so believe were reactionaries.

Mr. von Mises continues: "The climate of opinion of the United States is fully dominated by these ideas. The unions are always in a position to succeed in what are euphemistically called wage negotiations because the laws are loaded in their favor and because the Government is always prepared to use its power to their advantage. (In this regard it does not make much difference whether the Administration is Republican or Democratic.) From time to time the unions ask for raises. The employers are forced to yield. As soon as business begins to slacken and workers are discharged, public opinion vehemently asks for more 'easy money.' After a short period of hesitation the Administration gives in and puts pressure upon the Federal Reserve Board.

"A Few Dissenters" Fortunately the inflationary policy is still seriously resisted by a group whose members are not numerous but conspicuous by their competence and familiarity with the problems involved. Among these dissenters there are several eminent writers, a few industrial businessmen and what is worthy of notice, also some members of the Federal Reserve Board. This handful of men do not have the power to put an end to this nefarious monetary and credit policy. Yet their weighty reasoning has in the last years, especially under the Eisenhower regime, succeeded in keeping the inflationary ventures within narrow limits. It is the merit of their warning voices that the world's richest country has up to now not embarked upon the pernicious policy of runaway inflation.

"The full significance of this success can only be appreciated if one takes into account the vehemence of the pro-inflationist propaganda of university teachers and of 'progressive' politicians and journalists. Some of the utterances of these people are really amazing. Thus several years ago the then Chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York declared: 'Final freedom from the domestic money market exists for every sovereign national state where there exists an institution which functions in the manner of a modern central bank, and whose currency is not convertible into gold or into some other commodity.' The lecture that contained this statement had the characteristic title: 'Taxes For Revenue Are Obsolete.' In the same vein, a professor of economics pointed out, in a voluminous work, that the government 'can raise all the money it needs by printing it; the purpose of taxation is 'never to raise money' but 'to leave less in the hands of the taxpayer.'"

"The weakness of the small group advocating sound monetary policy, and fighting all inflationary measures is their disinclination to attack the full employment doctrine openly and directly. It is, of course, practically impossible to bring up this issue before the public. There are certainly men with the courage to risk their careers or even their personal safety. But there are neither newspapers nor publishers who would dare to spread doctrines that criticize and reject the institution of unionism in principle."

Mr. von Mises takes in a little too much territory. Every Free-Press Newspaper realizes that labor unions are not sound in principle and thus are harmful. It is true that most newspapers and columnists and politicians do not see the great harm that labor unions do to mankind as a whole.

Mr. von Mises continues: "Even those writers who occasionally expose blackmail and embezzlement on the part of individual union officers emphasize again and again that they consider the institution of unionism as such, and the policies of the unions, as beneficial to the welfare of the wage earners and of the whole nation, and that they merely intend to free the unions from dishonest leaders. As long as such ideas about the effects of unionism prevail, even modest attempts at repealing the privileges granted to the unions by the New Deal are doomed to fail. And there cannot be any question of protecting enterprises and those willing to work against violence on the part of the unions."

"At the most recent meeting of the International Monetary Fund there was much talk about the danger of inflation. Well, in order to fight this danger, it is no longer enough to work for a better understanding of monetary problems. It is no less important to enlighten public opinion about the absurdity of the full-employment doctrine that today guides the conduct of all governments and all political parties."

sets and vast sums for alcohol and tobacco.

Thus, if we would save untold misery, as well as improve the economic picture, we should speed up research on arteriosclerosis, and related disorders. This takes money as well as the devotion of skilled investigators.

Are We Losing Our Urge For Freedom?

It is a melancholy thought that we seem to be losing our urge to freedom. It no longer is placed near the top in our scale of values. This may be because we are not yet conscious of the fact that we are losing it.

Many of our ancestors said goodbye to family and friends, never to see them again, when they left for America. Many indentured themselves into five or seven years of servitude in order to obtain passage to the new world. All of them endured great danger and hardship as they left everything they had known and loved to face the wide seas and the savage wilderness beyond.

Wrestling with the deep snow, bitter cold, lack of food and housing, less than half of those who landed at Plymouth Rock in 1620 survived the first winter. The Mayflower had ridden at anchor in Falmouth Harbor and was still there the following Spring offering a way of escape. They had not yet severed the last ties with the homeland. In the Spring of 1621 the little band of wretched survivors might have returned to England. Not one soul chose to do it!

Small Things The courage, faith and caliber of these men and women is set forth in Elder William Brewster's statement: "It is not with us as with men whom small things can discourage or small disappointments cause to wish themselves home again."

Small things, indeed! Over half, dead from exposure, under-nourishment and disease! Surrounded by hostile savages, alone in the vast wilderness, these steadfast believers in God preferred freedom to the proffered escape. Not one faltered or failed in the test. They saw the Mayflower sell out of the harbor on its way back to England and chose to remain free men even though alone with God on the rocky, inhospitable shores of a vast, unknown continent.

Compare that if you will with the little trials of our day which cause us eagerly to barter our liberty for the false promises politicians are making of help to come from government.

Unhappily, many voices in the church have joined in the clamor that government carry a burden which God meant for individuals to bear. We ignore history's plain warning that collectivism will destroy our wealth and at best afford only the security and low living standards of slavery.

Bartered Freedom If our ancestors of three hundred and more years ago had been limited by our present-day fear and desire for security America would still belong to the Indians. And the tragedy of it all is that the security many hope to find in return for our bartered freedom will prove to be far more unsatisfactory and less secure than the security we might achieve if we would mobilize again the courage and energy of our fathers.

If we had lost our freedom as the Hungarians have lost theirs we too might be willing to fight tanks with our bare hands. If we had suffered persecution at the hands of church and state as our immigrant ancestors suffered it, we too might see our ranks cut in half as we face unspeakable hardships, and nevertheless muster the courage to refuse to avail ourselves of the last means of escape, while with faith in God and our own determination we set forth to overcome all obstacles and to continue living as free men.

THE NATION'S PRESS

WHITE HOUSE PRESSURE

The New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times

Against the overwhelming sentiment of the people and against the judgment of a majority of the U. S. senators, the Senate passed Friday the Foreign Aid appropriation, virtually as the President had asked it.

A scare drive by the President by TV and radio, in which the President threatened the people with war, should the aid bill be curtailed—plus a robot type of following testimony before Senate committees by Dulles—set the pattern for coercing the Congress and thwarting the sentiment of the people, who must foot the bill.

An incident of concern to followers of Robert A. Taft was the fact that J. Jack Martin, former executive assistant of the late Senator Taft and for some time now a member of the White House staff kept the pavements hot in Washington between the White House and the Senate. His assignment was to pressure the senators to relent in their determination to cut the fruitless orgy of White House foreign aid spending.

The joint drive worked. The American people will continue to pay and pay taxes, but not willingly or with their consent. They were scared by the White House and Dulles' war threats, but they are not convinced and they will show their disappointment and skepticism in their voting in November '58.

Never, since the days of the fabled Atlas, has one man or country tried to carry the whole world on its shoulders, as U. S. leaders are forcing the American people to do.

The worst thing about the whole hoax is that it does not work. The recent riots in the United States in Formosa, in Japan and elsewhere show no indication we are winning friends by trying to buy them with American dollars.

In England, where we have given and loaned billions, we have few friends. An authority in England recently said most of this aid money had been used to socialize British industry and government. What little goodwill we may have gained was lost when we refused to support England and France in the Suez but joined with Russia in opposing them.

England now goes it alone, so far as the U. S. is concerned, in trade with China and otherwise.

Other countries of West Europe are to follow. NATO is creaking and threatens to crack. Stassen, the most assinine of the White House staff, has goaded again in his disarmament chore.

We are the most liberal — and the clumsiest — nation in the world in diplomacy.

Search For The Perfect Game For Middle-Agers

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK, N. Y. — The search for the perfect game for the out-of-shape middle-aged man has been of great interest to me ever since I became one. On my travels, here and abroad, I have been constantly on the lookout for a sport which would suit those of us who are past-tennis, but not quite yet ready for Chinese checkers.

None of the national games is precisely suitable. Spain's bullfighting would amount to human sacrifice for a man over forty. France's bicycling would kill off the double chinners like flies. Switzerland's mountain climbing would be nothing more than suicide with edelweiss, and even that country's second sport, yodeling, is a bit on the strenuous side.

American football or baseball is out of the question, even if we played it as it is now played in the Ivy League. India's tiger hunting is out if only because middle-aged men look extremely ridiculous in pith helmets.

Japan's judo is strictly for retarded adults, and while China's kite flying has tremendous appeal, it can only be played on windy days.

I had just about decided that there wasn't such a thing as an ideal sport for the 40-50 age group when — bingo! — I found it.

Bingo. That's the game for the likes of us — the game without a flaw. Of course, I had heard about it, and often played it years and years ago when it went under the name of lotto, I believe. But it was not until I joined the Army in Germany (to write about it, not to drill with it) that I rediscovered bingo.

The officers and the N.C.O.'s play it at their clubs once a week and it draws big crowds. There are all sorts of prizes, including that popular commodity, money, and winners often go home with cash in their pockets and cameras all three ways of a Nassau, gives a player no more heart thumps than to need only one number to win a covered B 7 bingo game. I once needed only B 7 to walk away with a carving set, a handsome camera, a set of hand-painted dishes, and a boxer pup. I liked to have died as the announcer called B after B, but kept skipping the number seven.

It's a game of skill, too. Playing four, five, and six boards at once is no job for the inept and the sluggish. The boards are much more efficient than when the game was lotto. We played with grains of corn, and a man had to be a combination magician and acrobat to keep the corn from sliding off. And once a grain slid off, you were finished.

There's just the proper amount of exercise in a fast, sharp, keenly contested game of bingo. The eyes are rolling steadily, focusing now on the "1" row, now on the "O" row. The hands are never idle, and that means the arms are busy; also, being as the hands are fastened to the ends of the arms.

Bingo is a great developer of good sportsmanship. The natural reaction is to hate the you-know-what of the person who yells "Bingo!" especially when he yells it in that happy, triumphant voice a bingo winner always uses. Gradually one learns to conceal this out-and-out hatred and smother it in smiles toward the victor, using such nice if empty phrases as, "Glad it was you, old man," and "Good work. Now win the next one." Of course, if he did win the next one, there is no telling what you might do!

Try a game tonight. You'll sleep better and feel better.

Farley Says Democrats Will Win 1960 Election

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, June 25 —

J. A. Farley, who is generally regarded as one of the most astute politicians, has told friends on Capitol Hill that he expects to attend the inauguration of a Democratic President "by the time I am 72 years old." He will reach that milestone on Memorial Day, 1960, which means that he anticipates a Democratic victory in the Presidential election of that year.

Together with President Eisenhower's difficulties with his Party and the Republican representation in Congress, Big Jim's forecast has raised Democratic hopes to new heights. For the former Postmaster General and National Chairman is noted for the accuracy of his predictions. He pinpointed the 1956 outcome when he conceded only two states — Maine and Vermont — to Alf Landon.

Moreover, Jim has far greater opportunities to sound public sentiment now than he had as a professional politician. He still keeps in touch with the thousands of local politicians and ex-Postmasters he came to know when at Washington. He travels widely in making at least two or three speeches a month in all sections of the country.

As a corporation executive, he has a more intimate contact with the opinions of businessmen and industrialists than he enjoyed when he was the promoter of "that awful man in the White House" — Franklin D. Roosevelt.

FARLEY DISAGREES WITH DEMOCRATIC PESSIMISTS Farley does not agree with Party pessimists who think that the Democrats lack candidates of popular appeal or Presidential ability. Although fearing no possible candidate, he has identified numerous prospects in his private talks with old associates within the organization and on Capitol Hill.

Among the Congressional possibilities, he always mentions Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, and Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri. He also lists House-Majority Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, but few expect that the Bostonian will enter the lists against the better known Senator Kennedy.

THE MAN AT TRENTON Among Democratic Governors, Farley thinks highly of Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey. He believes that, if he wins by a huge majority in next fall's re-election campaign against the Republicans' all-out attempt to score a psychological victory in that important eastern state, the man at Trenton will make a strong showing at the 1960 convention. It may be significant that the former National Chairman does not seem to give any consideration to Governor G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, who is said to be Walter P. Reuther's protégé. Jim never did approve F.D.R.'s excessively pro-labor policies, generally agreeing with former Vice President John Nance Garner that they were too partial to the unions.

Like so many other observers, he may have been influenced by the McClellan Committee's revelations of certain labor bosses' skulduggery and czaristic control of the lives and affairs of union members.

Another state executive listed by Farley is Averell Harriman of New York, but the politician does not consider him to be available. They look upon him as too old, and too radical in his viewpoints. He is linked with the Truman-Stevenson-Butler faction that represents the leftist philosophy of New Deal Fair Deal days. Jim was never regarded as a radical at Washington and even less so now.

DOES NOT MENTION STEVENSON, KEFAUVER Farley reflects Democratic politicians' sentiment in omitting the names of the men who headed the 1956 ticket — Adlai E. Stevenson and Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee. In addition to the fact that they have "had it," they do not meet the requirements of the relatively conservative record which the Rayburn-Johnson leadership is fashioning as a platform for the 1960 candidates.

The most significant factor about the Farley forecast, as well as the working Democratic politicians' thinking, is that the 1960 ticket and platform will represent a sharp break with the liberal excesses of the Roosevelt-Truman era. They will praise their social and economic reforms, but they will not frighten anti-Eisenhower business and conservatives.

'Any Other Marriage Pushed Out' Lauren Bacall Contends

By ALINE MOBBY
United Press Hollywood Writer
HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Lauren Bacall has three things on her mind these days: Her career, her children and her house, but any other marriage is pushed out of sight at this time.

The slender, frank-talking actress sat cross-legged on the sofa in her den to tell how she is trying to adjust to being a widow with two children at 32.

The gossip columns, for one thing, have not been able to pin her with any "date." Since the death in January of Humphrey Bogart, she has dined only at the homes of "friends" or with old friends Spencer Tracy or Frank Sinatra.

"I'll probably never get married again because I can't go through this date business," she said. "I'm not good at making small talk. I like to talk directly to people."

"Besides, I've been in hibernation. I crave privacy more than anything now. I don't want to be one of those girls who see at parties all over town and people think they have nothing else to do."

She keeps busy answering fan letters, which recently have stopped mentioning Bogie's death. She has turned down numerous offers, such as to appear on cancer telethons and the Mike Wallace TV show. Currently she is determined "to concentrate on my career."

"Everything will be all right with me when I get back to work," she said. "I want to do a picture and then start another right away. I have a couple of things brewing at Fox Studio, and I'm ready."

"I have ambition and now I have a chance for the first time to concentrate on a career. I've had Broadway offers but I want to stick to movies and I had two good ones last year and I'm in a good position in films."

The actress also decided to continue living here because she doesn't want to move her children, 8 and 5, out of their schools. Unlike many stars, Lauren Bacall appears to be a devoted mother.

"Look, I wanted those children and I have them," she said. "I have a sense of responsibility and conscience. Being alone now, I have twice the responsibility. They must have security and peace of mind."

"Next fall I plan to sell this house because it will be healthier for all of us. I'll take another house with the idea of staying there for a couple of years but not for the rest of my life."

The sun-tanned actress puffed her lips and said: "I don't know how many marriages from the divorce courts, a West Coast domestic counselor believes, Reinhold R. Bletz, of Los Angeles, told the 5th annual conference of New Jersey Seventh Day Adventists that many of the irritations which lead couples to call a marriage finished "could be shut out by a sense of humor."

"Many homes have been shattered to pieces by the hard rocks of selfishness, spite and hate," Bletz said. "In order to be happy a partnership must have two parties who are cheerful most of the time."

There are many things in life which are not to be laughed at, he said, but there are many others which could be a funny incident instead of an irritation if we would look at them properly.

"Aunt Bertha gave us that? Boy, what a sense of humor she's got!"

Fiscal '58 Is Now Underway

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Monday began the new fiscal year, the moment when the Eisenhower administration begins to spend all of that fresh, new money.
Fiscal is a word meaning something pertaining to the public revenue or to the public treasury. The U.S. Treasury figures its receipts and expenditures on the basis of a 12-month period beginning annually on July 1 and ending June 30 of the next calendar year.
The fiscal year beginning Monday therefore, is fiscal 1958 because it will end on June 30 in 1958. Between midnight Sunday and midnight next June 30, Eisenhower wants to spend $71,807,000,000 at an average rate of about $6 billion dollars a month.
That is the biggest peacetime spending ever proposed in the United States. It aroused a grass roots prairie fire of protest. Congress has been whacking away at some of the proposed appropriations. When the spending is all added up a year from now, however, it is more likely than not that the figure will be about what the President proposed, if not more.
Key On Inflation
Most of all of what Congress may cut out of the spending budget in this session will be proposed again next year in the form of supplemental appropriations. The supplemental might even exceed next year the sum of this year's reductions.
That could come about by reason of inflation which is a term for the cheapening of the dollar in relation to what it must buy. The government each month figures the cost of living in terms of certain necessities. For nine consecutive months, now, the dollar has been able in each period to buy a little less of the necessities of life than it could in the last previous period.
Eisenhower saw that trend coming last January when he sent his big spending 1958 fiscal year budget to Congress. It went to Congress accompanied by warnings that the American way of life was threatened principally by inflation.
If the President meant what he said, it is fair to believe that he considers the threat of inflationary destruction of the dollar's purchasing power to be a clearer and more present danger to the United States than, for instance, international Communism.
Warned Against Hikes
Eisenhower has spelled out the methods by which he believes the welfare of the United States might be protected from creeping inflation before it becomes runaway inflation. Thereafter there would be no known method of protecting the United States from the wreckage of its economy and a probable drift into state socialism or even, a police state dictatorship as brutal as Russia's.
Economic wreckage makes a solid foundation for dictatorship and there's no assurance that it can't happen here. So the President spelled out the protective devices. He might as well have saved himself the time and trouble because no one is paying much attention. He warned industry against price rises. He warned against wage hikes except in hardship cases or increases compensated by greater productivity. Eisenhower and some others consider farm subsidies to be basically inflationary, too.

There is no evidence, however, that labor and the business and agricultural industries are persuaded, nor that the Eisenhower administration is ready to oppose the inflationary trend with some big-time government economy.
For example:
Effective today U.S. Steel increased prices $6 a ton which it said was necessary to offset wage increases, also effective today.

Norman Thomas Says Socialism Is Coming

WASHINGTON (UP)—Veteran Socialist Norman Thomas thinks President Eisenhower's grandchildren may live under some form of socialism in the United States.
But he doesn't mean the kind of socialism Soviet Communist Party Boss Nikita Khrushchev predicted for future Americans when he appeared recently over a U.S. television network. Thomas said he "doubts Khrushchev knows what socialism really is."
The American Socialist Party long has been a bitter foe of Communism.
The 72-year-old Thomas, who ran unsuccessfully six times for president, was asked about the Khrushchev prediction at a press conference he called here Monday.
"When the Eisenhower grandchildren are old enough to run for president there may be a modern socialist society," he said, white-haired Socialist said.
But he added such a society "won't necessarily be utopia. . . there'll be no millennium."
Thomas said "everything is socialism, including the public schools." But he said he is not looking for "galloping socialism."
"I'd be content if it could stand up and walk right now," he commented.
Thomas said Russia now has "a modified capitalism, modified for the worse."

PENNY WISE—Mr. and Mrs. John C. Haugh could buy a lot of thoughts—if one still goes for a penny these days. The Miami, Fla., couple saved 100,000 cents, then banked the $1,000 with Joseph M. Lipton, left, president of the Dade Federal Savings and Loan Assn. The Haughs started saving pennies when they owned a restaurant. Rather than count and wrap them up each night, they threw them into gallon jugs. It took 13 years to acquire the 100,000 coppers.

Unrest Is Growing In Soviet Satellites

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Reports from Eastern Europe indicate that unrest is growing in nearly all of the Soviet satellite countries.
Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Albania are among the countries affected.
In Hungary, popular opposition to the puppet regime of Premier Janos Kadar is being kept under control by ruthless terrorism. But there is serious dissension inside the Communist Party and a purge is under way to rid the army of disaffected elements.
In East Germany, Red leaders are drafting students for forced labor or for army service to keep them under control.
It is notable that all of the countries mentioned are being ruled by "Stalinist" leaders who accept Russian domination.
Official Visit Postponed
A dispatch from Prague reports Bulgarian and Communist Party bulgarian and Communist Party leader Nikita S. Khrushchev has postponed a scheduled state visit to Czechoslovakia.
There is good reason to believe that the trip was postponed because of outbreaks of disorder.
The Czechoslovak prosecutor-general was quoted as saying in a speech made last month that Communist leaders were the targets of "ever-increasing" violent disturbances of public order.
The prosecutor-general complained that prosecutors, judges and attorneys for defendants were showing alarming tendencies toward "liberalism" and encouraging offenders by failing to be tough enough with them.
A dispatch to the London weekly newspaper Observer reported on Sunday that Czechoslovak Communist leaders "face a challenge similar to that which started the upheavals last year in Poland and Hungary."
It is known that the economic situation in Czechoslovakia is bad. The Prague Radio said recently that the coal shortage in Czechoslovakia, the most highly industrialized satellite, had become "catastrophic."
Deportations Reported
Dispatches from Vienna and Belgrade report that thousands of Bulgarians regarded as "unreliable" are being deported to remote provincial areas. In addition, the authorities are recruiting Bulgarian men and women of from 18 to 30 years for labor service in Russia because they are potential trouble-makers.
Even in tiny Albania, on the Adriatic coast, there is both popular unrest and dissension inside the Communist Party.

Maj. Gen. Panajot Pijaku, a veteran Communist, fled to Yugoslavia in May and sought asylum because he feared arrest as one of a group of men who oppose the "Stalinist" leadership.
In none of the satellites is there any indication that a real revolt is likely. For one thing both the people at large and dissident Communist troops would intervene to crush any outbreak as they did in Hungary.
But it is evident that Communist leaders throughout Eastern Europe are anxious. Unrest is

Balloonists Probe Thunderstorms To Find Out 'What's Going On?'

By VAUGHN A. VANDERGRIFF
(Special to The News)
SOCORRO, N.M. — Perhaps the efforts now being made by a couple of balloon experts near Socorro, N.M., will provide the antidote for tornadoes, hurricanes, blizzards, and other weather phenomena.
At least the courage they display by dangling from a paper-thin balloon inside an active thunderstorm erases the old saying "everyone talks about the weather, but no one does anything about it."
Charles B. Moore and Lt. Cmdr. Malcolm Ross are not new in the balloon business. In fact, Moore was America's first plastic balloon pilot, and Ross was holder of the world's highest — than — air altitude record of 76,000 feet until it was broken a few weeks ago in southern Minnesota.
However, to be anchored on a tiny platform in the middle of a cumulus cloud is an experience still in its infancy.
Moore, a research scientist with Arthur D. Little, Inc., Cambridge, Mass., and Ross, of the Navy's Office Research, are conducting the current ascensions as part of the world's Project Stratolab to study atmospheric phenomena.
As a base of operations, the daring duo are using facilities at the New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology, an agency already recognized for its study of thunderstorm electricity.
"The work going on here," said Moore, "is one reason why we chose this area in which to make our current studies. For that reason," Moore added through lips parched from the latest 28,000 foot skydip, "plus the fact that New Mexico has such nice thunderstorms!"
Exactly what do Moore and Ross, along with other weather explorers, hope to accomplish? Says Moore:
"We are not in competition with anyone, nor do we think our theories are the most promising. We hope to be able to supply information which, in turn, will aid all concerned."

The first-hand study of what goes on inside a cumulus cloud, for instance, might uncover proof of Dr. Bernard Vonnegut's theory. (Dr. Vonnegut also is associated with A. D. Little.)
"He believes that rainfall plays a minor role in the formation of lightning. The old idea is that raindrops in the up and down drafts of a cloud set up an electrical charge opposite that at the ground."
"When this charge grows large enough, it is attracted to earth and lightning results. It may very well be the other way around, with lightning causing rain."
"Last year in New Mexico, electricity was found in clouds before there was any evidence of rain."
What type balloon are the two high-altitude aerialists using?
It is a helium-filled balloon made of polyethylene material. It is of the same substance in which housewives find vegetables packaged at local supermarkets. Its thickness is only two-thousandths of an inch, or thinner than this sheet of newspaper. Yet, the material is strong enough to withstand several thousand pounds of stress.
Moore and Ross plan to do most of their testing and recording at between 10,000 to 30,000 feet above the ground. The two carry oxygen tanks and special equipment to measure the cloud's electrical field.
"If the electrical field gets too dangerous," Moore explained, "we'll toss ballast and go out through the top of the cloud."
These tests in no way are of the cloud-modification type. No attempt is being made to produce rain, control movement, or any such unnatural action. It is simply an attempt to gather more data on natural activity.
"Until we know what's going on up there," the researchers say, "how can we intelligently attempt controls?"

This latter feeling is in line with views recently telegraphed to President Eisenhower by Dr. E. J. Workman, president of the New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology, following the President's tour of the Southwest drought area.
Dr. Workman said, "One does not prescribe therapy until the disease is known. By the same token, the notion is absurd that we can have an applied meteorology before we have a basic scientific understanding of meteorological phenomena."
Moore and Ross believe wholeheartedly in the old adage of "whatever goes up must come down." And, they hope when they come down from the final test that a few more pieces will be fitted into the world's weather puzzle.
LONDON (UP)—Lord Patrick Beresford, who has been Princess Margaret's favorite escort of the current social season, was reported today to have invited her to Ireland to attend a wedding. The reports already were causing a stir.
The handsome Irish peer, 23, who is nearly four years the princess' junior, was a guest of the royal family at Windsor Castle during Royal Ascot Week and accompanied Margaret to the races. Since then he has taken her to theaters and private parties.

Shamrock Farmers Report Excellent Wheat Harvest
(Special to The News)
Shamrock wheat is being harvested in a big way in and around Shamrock, according to both elevator operators, Al Ryan at the Farmers Co-Op and E. C. Hoffmann.
E. C. Beasley of one-half mile west of Luttie brought in the first load of wheat which tested 58 and had a moisture content of 12½ per cent. This was harvested on a 20 acre tract and averaged 25 bushels to the acre.
Other farmers to bring in early wheat were Mill Williams, Oscar Laycock, E. C. Hoffmann and L. E. Clay who finished his crop Thursday.
Nathan Lumms west of Shamrock has one of the best fields of oats in this part of the country. Due to the high winds last week, Lumms baled his oats and they averaged 80 bales per acre. Howard Sherwood, farmer east of Shamrock put his oat crop into bundle shocks.

Dr. J. W. Gooch, who has extensive farming interests said he harvested 4,000 bales of alfalfa from 50 acres south of Shamrock, and lost 500 bales due to the rain coming while it was on the ground and Dr. Gooch says he has another 800 bales on the ground at this time.
Robert Terry in the Lela community sent in a call to the local radio station this week for some cotton choppers.
"Crops are up and looking mighty fine," Ryan said.
