Has Mrs. O. discussed this relative's belittling treatment with Mr. O.? If so, did he support her right to say, "Please don't interfere in my discipline of the children? If you don't like something I do, wait to tell me about it until we are alone."

I think he didn't - or she'd have made this demand for respect for her maternal authority. And having proved her power to resist her mother-in-law's domination, she'd have lost much of her fear of being overwhelmed by it.

So perhaps Mrs. O.'s problem sn't her mother-in-law's domination at all — but her husband's fear of challenging it. Perhaps she maintains resentful silence under t because she dares not risk offending her husband.

If this is the truth, it's better to know it than to go on imagining that her mother-in-law is the problem.

"My mother-in-law has performed many helpful acts of kindness to us," Mrs. O. goes on. "What's wrong with me that I cannot feel calm and grateful around her? I literally begin to squirm the moment she enters the house."

We are trying to out do all other nations in human power. We are building a great defense against the enemy, but that isn't enough.

Every way we look we see signs of God's great handy work. Money, which so many are striving for, has on most of it "In God We trust." We say we are a Christian nation, yet only about one fourth of us ever go to the house of God. Some of our children here in Pampa have never been in

We believe that one truth is always consistent with another truth. We endeavor to be consistent, with truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

"Were it left to me," said Thomas Jefferson, "to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers or newspapers without government I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter."

The point of his remark is, of course, that the government you would have-and the one that many people have had, do have and will have-without public report of its activities would be one that you would not like since it is the nature of political engineers who operate governmental machinery to work what malevolence they can outside the bright shining light of publicity.

It is basic practical philosophy that human beings seldom turn their worst side to an audience nor practice their vices in a showcase.

That is, of course, what a newspaper is-a showcase -and the present seems an opportune time to point out the virtues of that family companion, the daily journal. In pointing out the virtues of newspapers, we do not pretend they are without vices but we can plead with Lincoln that a newspaper, like men "without vices has damn few virtues." The major vice of all newspaperdom is the necessary evil of the speed with which it is compiled and published; and another, of course, is that it is the work of human hands and human minds, all as fallible as those of other trades and professions.

But skipping the vices, we return to the point that we made earlier, and repeat that the American newspaper is a showcase in which is displayed at one time or another every facet of the mores and morals of the people of the United States and the world.

No other nation has such a showcase-kaleidoscopic as may be—in which is portrayed all the good and evil, all the sweetness and bitterness, all the exotic and the mundane of the world as it marshals itself for its parade into history.

We in the United States have become so accustomed to this school of manners and morals, of methods and means that we rarely stop to think how different our lives would be without it. The diligent and observant reader has available to him not only a universal education in the ways of the world but a source of data on the past and a file of indications to the future. And he has A newspaper not only permits its readers to keep abreast of the political affairs of his society and of neighboring societies but it deals in data of economics, sociology and the generalities of living. In this complex world it is well nigh impossible to understand and

Recently thousands of New York workers 'collected unemployment pay while on a paid vacation from their closed factories. The factories shut down to let the workers take their vacations. But the New York State Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board ruled that if a factory shuts down for vacation periods, the workers are officially without salary or work and therefore unemployed. They said further that when a union contract or agreement specifies that workers be given vacation pay and this kind of compensation is not just given as a matter of custom the money involved is not salary, but bonus for past services.

Joseph R. Shaw, president of Associated Industries, was quoted in the New York Times as saying: "Anyone who takes this handout is violating the fundamental concept of unemployment insurance. At whose expense is this windfall paid? At the employers' expense, for they alone finance this program. More importantly, it is at the expense of the steady, conscientious worker for whose protection the unemployment insurance fund was created." Over 14,000 claims, ranging up to $36 a week, were filed in upstate New York by workers whose plant had shut down for a vacation period for which workers had been paid.

However, 2,000 of these claims were disallowed because the union agreed to the closing

Since these New York workers had to forego out-of-town fishing and be on the spot, ready for work to make themselves eligible for insurance, 30 per cent of them dropped these claims without collecting.

Almost certainly this is a bunion, which is a variety of bursitis. There is no doubt that bunions are both common and painful.

evaluate one facet of life without awareness of another. All of these are part of the daily newspaper's bill of fare.

All things are grist to its mill and because of this the reader must fealize that he is receiving the raw material from which he must draw his own conclusions.

The newspaper may digest and analyze but primarily its function is to present as much of the news of the world and the local community as its facilities permit-the good news, the bad news and the indifferent. Because of the volume of information abroad in the world, it may have to be selective but can never be, in serving its function, a censor of what's right and not right to publish.

Your newspaper brings you factual reports from behind the Iron Curtain and from many troubled areas of the world before the people in those areas know about it. It lays down in your living room the facts of the day's happenings in Austin, in Washington and in Little Rock.

You may disagree violently with its editorial policy but the reader can find in its pages the news of neighbors at home and abroad, of the world of politics, of the world of business, of the world of sports and entertainment, of the world of religion. Without ever reading one other publication, the diligent newspaper reader can become an expert on the world in which he lives.

In brief it is an integral part of your life. When a newspaper ceases to exist in a city or town, a curtain is dropped around our own little personal world, and the natural interest and concern with the doings and welfare of others is completely thwarted.

The daily newspaper is a built-in feature of modern living; it has changed the ways of men in nations like the United States where one-fourth of all the world's newspapers are printed.

It is the medium through which people of a community know what is for sale in their region and how they can increase their standards of living. It is the means by which they learn what is going on and what they can do with their time.

Like most modern conveniences it is a service which lifts a responsibility from their shoulders-the responsibility of searching out knowledge for themselves. It is an unequalled media of satisfying the hunger and need for news and information.

But a newspaper is a tool for the use of men and should be used as such. The properly run newspaper is engaged in producting raw material for the mind to work on. This is its function and its responsibility. The reader who doesn't make full use of this most remarkable of the assets of the American soliety is wasting a wondrous tool.

that about 200 fancy-named organizations, "Communist controlled in every instance," have been or still are working to overthrow our government. The U.S. Communists are as dangerous as ever - perhaps more so - and we'll forget that fact at our peril.

PRIVATE OFFICE, PUBLIC INJURY

(Wall Street Journal) Jimmy Hoffa's career is not exactly spotless and he takes office as president of the Teamsters under the shadow of Federal indictment for felonious behavior. So it's hardly surprising if a lot of people think "something ought to done" to keep such people out of union offices.

That thought has been much in the mind of Senator McClellan and his fellows on the Senate investigating committee. It's certainly the attitude of George Meany, president of the A.F.L.-C.I.O., who believes strongly that labor should clean its own house. We share this disappointment at the behavior of the delegates at Miami Beach. But it strikes us that the "something" that ought to be done shouldn't be aimed at Jimmy Hoffa so much as at the circumstances that makes his election to a private office a matter of public concern One of those circumstances if the suspicion that the election was not exactly free and open, that It does not really represent the wishes of the majority of the Teamsters.

If this had been an election among a group of stockholders in business, this question would be a matter for the courts. Minority stockholders can, and do, chalenge the validity of the votes and the courts will hear their case. A like action brought in the Teamsters election was dismissed by the Supreme Court. Unions have a privileged status in this as in o many other matters. Here then is one area in which Government ought to "do something." The law ought at least see to it that a union election con-South forms with majority rule so that whatever its outcome, it honestly represents the views of the members rather than the power of a tion's aggressive and radical activities, this prospect may be tempting even to historic Democrats, if the school integration is sue is not settled satisfactorily and rationally.

FAVOR IKE'S ACTION-Southern politicians have not failed to note that almost every important member of the Butler group -Truman, Stevenson, Mrs. Roosevelt, Harriman, Williams, Acheson - have supported the Eisenhower action in the Little Rock, dispute.

In fact, their jibes at the Presidential original patience, tolerance and delay may have helped to force his hand in the contest for the colored vote in the North. In addition, most of them favored the original Brownell Civil Rights Bill, which specifically permitted the employment of military force in every integration impasse, and barred jury trials for defendants,

BUTLER'S POLICY MAKERS-But it is not only in the racial controversy that Butler has named policy makers offensive to the John Kenneth Galbraith, a Harvard professor, heads the Advisory Subcommittee on Economic Policy, Galbraith advocates progressive inflation, or about 3 per cent a year, whereas even the present level frightens Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, the Democrats' expert in this field on Capitol Hill.

Galbraith also believes in low tariffs and generous foreign aid. Both schemes constitute a threat to toes, thus preventing pressure on the bunion

Complete removal of pressure for a long time is helpful. A hole cut in the shoe may be necessary Going barefoot is a possibility for those who live in country areas and are not too seriously exposed to the dangers of lockjaw or tetanus. This is suggested by the fact that primitive people who walk without shoes do not get bunions. Such measures may be enough in the early and acute stage of bunions. If the toe straightens out and the inflammation disappears, nothing more need be done except exercising care in the choice Surgery may 'e necessary if a bunion does not yield to other methods. The bunion is frequently associated with the accumulation of fluid in the joint lying at the base of the big toe. This fluid can m be removed by a needle in some cases. A cut can be made which will allow the fluid to drain off and the swelling to decrease.

Finally, the operation which is necessary in bad cases is called a its conventions, like the political not necessarily dull. bursectomy. This involves the removal of some of the excessive bone and soft tissue which go to make up the bunion. The operation is usually followed by placing the correct position until the wound made by the operation has healed.
