Ike Apologizes To Minister Of Ghana

UP48 MINISTER R435am 10-10
WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower personally apologized to Finance Minister K. A. Gbedemah of Ghana today for the refusal of a Dover, Del., restaurant to serve him Monday because he is a Negro.

The incident prompted Eisenhower to have Gbedemah come to the White House for breakfast with him this morning. Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who visited Gbedemah's home during his tour of Ghana last March, also was present at the breakfast.

Gbedemah later told reporters that Eisenhower expressed an apology for the restaurant incident.

"He (Eisenhower) was a little worried that it happened," Gbedemah said. "But I think that his inviting me to breakfast made up for all that I went through the other day."

Gbedemah had announced he would file an official protest with the State Department over the incident. But his spokesman told the United Press the finance minister now "feels better" and will not make the complaint.

"Compared to the invitation to have breakfast with President Eisenhower, and the honored treatment he has received elsewhere in this country, he doesn't feel too bad any more about the restaurant affair," his private secretary William Sutherland, said.

The State Department expressed regret over the racial snub to "a good friend and distinguished visitor." It said officials had discussed the affair with Howard Johnson, head of the restaurant chain involved. A spokesman for Nixon said the vice president also planned a note of apology.

Heavy Clouds Cover Most Of Texas

By UNITED PRESS
Heavy, winter-like clouds covered most of Texas today and more rain was forecast for sections of South Texas where downpours of over four inches caused flash flooding Wednesday.

Forecasters indicated today that most of the heavy rainfall was over, but said some light rain would continue falling along the coast and in South Texas.

Some light drizzle was falling in the Texas Panhandle today, where temperatures dropped to around 50 degrees. The rain and cool temperatures were the product of a cold front which passed through the state Tuesday and Wednesday.

Rainfall for the 24-hour period ended at 6:30 a.m. today was as much as 2.40 inches at Colville but most of it fell Wednesday during a downpour that caused some flash flooding there.

More than four inches of rain fell Wednesday at Pearsall in the Nueces River watershed west of Corpus Christi and southwest of San Antonio. Several low-water crossings were closed briefly from flash floods in the Hill Country of Southwest Texas.

Other rainfall reports for the 24-hour period included 1.32 inches at Kingsville, 4.8 at Fort Arthur, 3.0 at Corpus Christi, 2.4 at San Angelo, and lesser amounts at Houston, Victoria, Lubbock, Amarillo to 89 at Galveston. Slightly cooler temperatures were forecast tonight for South Texas with readings elsewhere expected to remain mild.

Two Accidents Reported Here

Two accidents were reported to the police department since 10:39 a.m. yesterday.

At that time, a 1957 Chevrolet two-door driven by David W. Osborne, 309 N. Ward, and a 1951 Ford four-door driven by Jerry Ann Ploucek, 829 E. Gordon, collided on N. Chyler, 150 feet south of Browning.

The Chevrolet encountered damages in the amount of approximately $70 and the Ford approximately $30.

At 5:38 p.m. yesterday, a 1955 Studebaker sedan driven by C. E. Trice, 1923 S. Clark, and a 1951 Ford driven by Mary English, 705 S. Reid, collided on S. Barnes, 15 feet south of E. Frederic.

The Studebaker encountered damages estimated at approximately $100 and the Ford, $30.

Crew Saved From Tanker

HONOLULU (UP)—The Navy announced today that all 45 crewmen successfully abandoned the Miguel San Miguel when the tanker began listing dangerously and threatened to capsize on Maro Reef, 750 miles northwest of Honolulu.

The civilian crew was transferred to the LST 664, which had been standing by the Navy-chartered 22,000-ton vessel during part of its 22-hour ordeal on the reef.

The tanker ran aground at top speed of 15 knots Tuesday night. The cargo tanks were full, the engine room was flooded and the ship listed dangerously to port.

The Navy said the LST would remain on the scene until rescue ships could reach Maro to attempt salvage. Then the survivors will be brought to Pearl Harbor.

In its original distress message, the tanker radioed it had run aground on Laysan Reef. However, search planes found nothing at Laysan.

About 12 hours later, the ship was located on Maro Island, about 45 miles northwest of Laysan. Capt. Perry K. Countryman, of Long Beach, Calif., said the tanker had been running without a navigational fix for 56 hours due to overcast skies.

Flights To Moon Possible In Next 10 Years

HAHN AIR BASE, Germany (UP)—The fastest man alive said today that flights to the moon would be possible within the next 10 years—and put in his bid to be on the first one.

Lt. Col. Frank K. Everest, now commander of the U.S. 461st Fighter Day Squadron here, said the starting date for space over the 238,857-mile route to the moon "is governed strictly by how hard anybody wants to go to work on it."

Everest conceded that the Soviets "beat us to the punch" with their space satellite. But he said he believes the U.S. satellite will be better and will provide more scientific data once it is launched.

The colonel knows better than any other man alive what it is like to blast through high altitudes at tremendous speeds. He flew the Bell X2 rocket plane 1,900 miles per hour in September 1956. Capt. Milburn G. Abt broke the record by 200 miles in the same plane several months later, but was killed when the plane crashed.

"It has been my lifelong dream to be the first man to go to the moon," Everest said. "If a man can contribute something to humanity during his lifetime by his pioneering, then he has lived a full life. By going to the moon you would aid humanity by expanding our environment and our knowledge of the world we live in."

WHERE ARE THEY ALL GOING?—Those autos dusting along on the inter-city highways—ever wonder where they're all going? The Census Bureau tried to satisfy this curiosity with a survey. They found 48 million trips taken in the first 15 weeks of 1957. Destinations appear in the chart above. To be counted as a "trip," a journey involved an overnight stop away from home or 100 miles traveled in one day.

Ohio Penitentiary Convicts 'Guinea Pigs' For Science

By NORMAN G. CORNBISH
United Press Staff Correspondent
COLUMBUS, Ohio (UP)—Convicts at Ohio Penitentiary are helping America strengthen its defense against gerin warfare.

Army officials say vaccine tests now being conducted at the prison are of "vital importance."

Inmate "guinea pigs" have volunteered to expose themselves to "rabbi" or "deer-fly fever," medically known as Tularemia. The disease is caused by tiny bacteria and occurs among rabbits, squirrels and other rodents. It is transmitted by the bites of flies, ticks and lice.

While it is a disease found mostly among hunters, Maj. Gen. William M. Creasy, chief of the Army Chemical Corps, says that during wartime, "Tularemia is one of the many diseases which could be used against us by the enemy."

In man, the disease is marked by headaches, chills, fever, vomiting, loss of weight and enlargement of the lymph glands. If untreated, it can be fatal.

U.S. public health service reports show the disease is most prevalent in Arkansas, Tennessee, Illinois, Texas, Kansas and Kentucky.

Tests Half Completed
The tests at Ohio Penitentiary are only half completed. When they began more than a year ago, 31 inmates were injected with the disease and watched around the clock for their reaction.

Being evaluated was the Foshay Tularemia vaccine, described by the Army as one of the best possible defenses against Rabbit Fever germ warfare.

A new series of tests will begin late this fall or early winter, when volunteers step into a mobile laboratory, don special masks and breathe in Tularemia germs.

By timing exposures, scientists hope to find out exactly how few of the germs it takes to infect a human.

"We hope that when we finish all phases of this work, we can turn over to the medical world information which will assist doctors everywhere in controlling a disease which has taken many lives," Gen. Creasy said.

He said the convicts "May contribute not only to society as a whole by providing us with new knowledge, but to this country's ability to resist its enemies."

Treatment of the latest group of prisoner volunteers will begin as soon as any symptoms appear, said Dr. Samuel Saalaw, director of the tests from the Ohio State University College of Medicine.

Assistants will be with the inmates night and day. Doctors will check their condition two or three times every 24 hours. Volunteers for the tests will have to be in tip-top physical condition, which means only half of those who step forward can be used.

Their rewards? Besides special living conditions, the volunteers will be allowed to watch Saturday football games over television in a special hospital ward.

Western Dress Is Prominent In Tokyo

By ARNOLD DIBBLE
United Press Staff Correspondent
TOKYO (UP)—The last traces of the old Japan have all but disappeared — at least so far as this, the largest city in the world, is concerned.

To this correspondent, who has just returned to Japan after a five-year absence, the most striking, if not the most profound, example of the changed status is the almost complete conversion of the Tokyo Japanese to western dress.

The pattern, of course, has been developing since the end of World War II. But even five years ago, the colorful kimonos were everywhere to be seen.

Today, you almost start when you see one. They are that rare.

Business Booms
Make no mistake about it. Tokyo 1957 is one busy place. All over the city steel girders are a-rearing. Business construction, at least, bids fair to set a record. It reminds you of east midtown New York, where a man's favorite saloon overnight becomes a metal-shedded skyscraper.

As a fellow newcomer said the other day: "This sure is a swell place, but when are they going to finish it?"

On the surface, Japan looks prosperous and happy. The streets of Tokyo have been swept clear of the chugging, choking, fuming old charcoal burning taxicabs. In their places are shining new small cars, more likely than not to be one of three makes manufactured in Japan, or perhaps a European model now being assembled here. American-made cars are scarce. They're too big for the murderous Tokyo traffic. And they're too expensive for most Japanese.

Television Popular
Television towers dominate the city. There'll be a million sets in Japan soon, and business is so good even the test patterns are sponsored.

The quality of Japan's television both in the dramatic and technical sense, is excellent. The other day this writer went through the headquarters of NHK, the government-owned network. New York studios of the major networks would be hard pressed to match this layout.

The newspaper business is just as up to date. Mainichi, a United Press client for nearly 40 years, uses planes, helicopters and radio

US Suffers Record Fire Losses

BOSTON (UP)— For the second successive year, the United States has suffered a record-breaking total fire loss, it was announced today.

Last year's total loss was $1,231,576,000, an increase of $90,808,000 over 1955, the National Fire Protection Association said.

A $2 million dollar increase in large-loss building fires and a 40 million dollar rise in aircraft losses contributed to the poor record.

During 1956 there were 1,940,150 fires in the United States, 37,800 fewer than in 1955.

Building fires totaled $24,400 and caused $1,016,000,000 damage last year. An additional 1,115,750 fires not involving buildings accounted for $215,576,000 loss.

Here are the leading causes of last year's fires:

- Careless smoking and matches — 127,000 fires.
- Defective or overheated heating and cooking equipment — 108,800.
- Electrical — 106,200.
- Rubbish — 87,000.
- Fammable liquids — 47,500.
- Lightning — 45,200.
- Defective or overheated chimneys and flues — 35,000.
- Children and matches — 34,500.

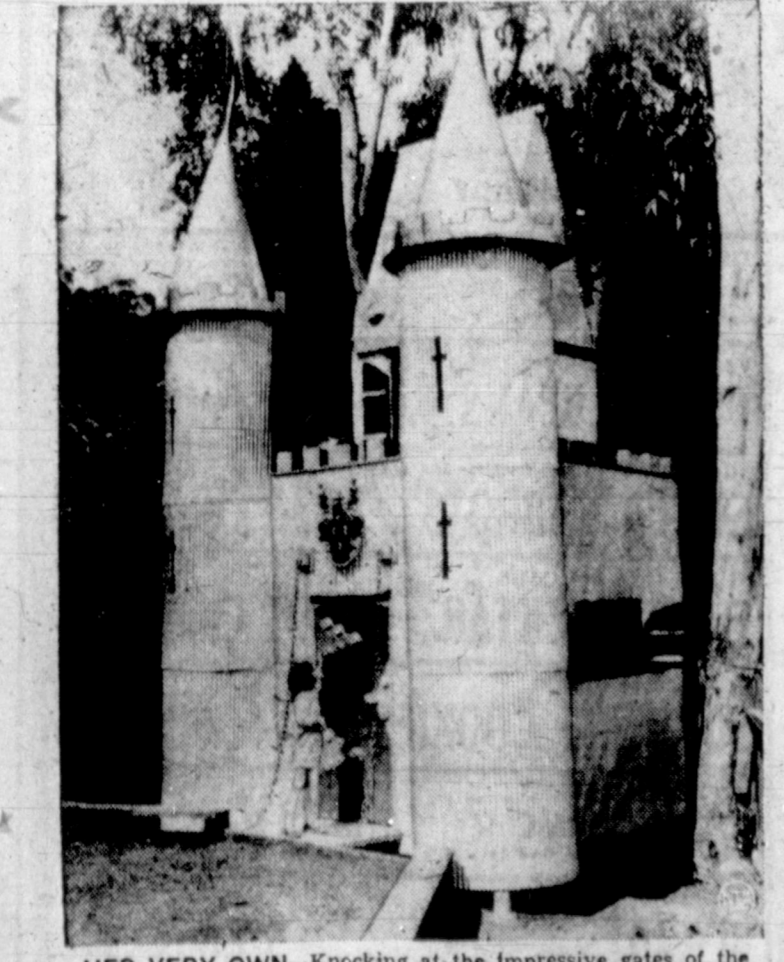

Bond Set On Assault Charge

A plea of not guilty to a charge of aggravated assault was entered in County Court Tuesday afternoon by Russell Stranfeld, 321 S. Barnes.

The alleged assault took place on Oct. 6, according to the charge filed against Stranfeld.

Following the entering of the not guilty plea, the court set a bond of $1000 for Stranfeld.

Make Preparations For Small Army Of Ghosts Who'll Be Invading Homes

TRICKS FOR TREATS

If I have my ghost look straight — and I think I have — the common everyday ghost manages beautifully without eating. Nevertheless, I expect to be feeding a small army of ghosts some evening soon. These ghosts are a type peculiar to late October, and they not only eat, but demand to be fed. Strangely enough, they seem to like about the same things children between the ages of four to twelve do, and on that shrewd observation my ghost-feeding formula is based.

1. INDIVIDUAL PACKAGES OF Presweetened Cereals are an excellent treat. The Sneek-Pack contains six individual packages, 2 each of crisp, candy-coated puffed wheat, sugar-coated corn flakes and sugar-coated puffed corn. (Brand names: Kellogg's Sugar Flakes, Kellogg's Sugar Frosted Flakes, and Kellogg's Sugar Corn Pops.)

2. CHOCOLATE CATS

2 squares (3 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
1-3 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
2 eggs

Remove from heat. Insert a skewer in stem end of apple and dip in syrup; let excess syrup drain off. Roll in corn soya shreds. Set on waxed paper or greased baking sheet to harden.

4. BLACK-WHITE SQUARES

2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
2 eggs whites, slightly beaten
3 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla flavoring
2 1/2 cups shredded coconut
1/2 cup melted butter or margarine

5. CANDY APPLES

1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup light corn syrup
2-3 cup water
1 teaspoon salt
12 medium sized apples
2 cups corn soya shreds
Cook sugars, corn syrup, water and salt together, stirring until sugars are dissolved. Continue cooking without stirring to 250 degrees F. (hard ball in cold water).

COOKIES RATE FIRST ON SNACK HIT LIST

School may or may not transform a group of neat, well-dressed youngsters, but the first few weeks certainly keep Mother on the run. New clothes need to be purchased; old ones pressed and repaired; shoes must be shined and lunches have to be packed. All these chores leave very little time for extras such as baking pies, cakes or cookies. And yet cookies can hardly be ignored for they rate first with the crowd as an after school snack.

BASIC COOKIE MIX

4 cups sifted enriched flour
1 tablespoon salt
1 pound Crisco (about 2 1/2 cups)
Mix flour and salt in a large mixing bowl or on a large square of waxed paper. Put Crisco into flour with 2 knives or a pastry blender until pieces are about the size of peas. Store in a covered container. No refrigeration needed.

"AIRY" SUGAR COOKIES (4-5 dozen)

Stir together:
2 cups Crisco Mix
1/2 cup sifted enriched flour
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
Blend well. Roll out on well floured board to 1/4" thickness. Cut in various shapes. Place on cookie sheet. Decorate with colored sugar. Bake at 375 degrees F. 10-12 minutes. Cool on baking sheet 2-3 minutes before removing.

CHOCOLATE NUT BARS

1 1/2 cups Crisco mix
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup light brown sugar
Add and blend thoroughly:
1 well-beaten egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
Stir in:
1/2 cup chopped nuts
8 oz. semi-sweet chocolate chips
Stir together in flour and spread in greased 8x8 pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes or until browned. When cool, cut into bars or squares. (Optional to dust with confectioners' sugar.)

Women who use sprays and pomades may need more frequent shampoos than before.

Prepared Cereal Combined With Apples Modernize Grandma's Special Recipes

TASTY APPLE TREATS

Our grandmothers used few foods out-of-season or shipped from faraway places or snatched from a freezer. They considered the foods they had carefully, and made the most of them. They had no fresh strawberries in October — no hot-house tomatoes — but they did have apples, and quantities of them. The apples were stored through the winter in a multitude in large barrels, and served through the winter in a multitude of ways. . . pies, puddings, preserves, cakes, breads. There was little to be done with an apple that Grandma didn't do. . . with one notable exception. Ready-to-eat cereal cookery was unknown fifty years ago, and these crisp cereals combine beautifully with apples. Here's a few modern recipes to prove it.

BRAN APPLE DATE MUFFINS

1 cup whole bran cereal
1/2 cup milk
1 egg
1/4 cup soft shortening
1/2 cup sifted flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 cup finely chopped raw apple
1/2 cup finely cut dates

EASY STEWS

One of easiest of all stews to prepare is made with hamburger. It's said that hamburger stew is easy to prepare because it was developed by cowboys, who while roaming the Western ranges, didn't travel with a great deal of cooking equipment. For their stew, they simply combined all of the ingredients in a big pot and let them simmer away over a campfire.

HAMBURGER STEW

1 1/2 pounds ground beef
3 medium potatoes, pared and diced
2 small onions, chopped
2 cups milk
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Combine ingredients and bake in a covered 3 quart casserole at 325 degrees F. about 1 1/2 hours. Remove cover last half hour of cooking. 4 servings.

APPLE CRISP

1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
5 cups sliced pared fresh apples
2 cups whole wheat flakes
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
Mix together 1/2 cup of the sugar, melted butter, salt and cinnamon. Sprinkle in bottom of greased 2-quart casserole or baking pan. Arrange apples over sugar mixture. Crush whole wheat flakes slightly. Blend butter with remaining 1/2 cup of sugar and flour; mix with whole wheat flakes. Sprinkle over apples. Cover. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes; remove cover and bake about 30 minutes longer or until apples are tender. Serve warm with cream or ice cream, if desired.

APPLESAUCE COOKIES

1 1/2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
1/2 cup soft butter or margarine
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1 cup applesauce
1 cup seedless raisins or currants
1 cup whole wheat shreds
Sift together flour, soda, salt and spices. Blend butter and sugar; add egg and beat well. Stir in sifted dry ingredients together with applesauce, mixing well. Fold in raisins and whole wheat shreds. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto ungreased baking sheets. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 12 minutes or until lightly browned.

Cereal Flake Dinner Ring Adds Variety to Meat Loaf

Cereal Flake Meat Ring with creamed vegetables adds a new twist to the ever popular meat loaf. This dinner ring is tops in good eating. It is made with well-seasoned beef, pork, and whole wheat flakes. The slightly crushed whole wheat flakes are added to make it juicy, give it flavor, and add extra nutritive value. Meat loaves are just one of the many ingredients used of breakfast cereals, both hot and ready to eat. Cooky, pie crust, dessert, bread, muffin, and confection recipes have improved flavor, texture, and nutritive value with the addition of breakfast cereals.

Cereal Flake Meat Ring

1 egg, beaten
4 cups whole wheat flakes, slightly crushed after measuring
1 1/2 pounds ground beef
1/2 pound ground pork
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup horseradish
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
2 1/4 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 1/2 cups milk
4 cups creamed vegetables
Mix all ingredients except creamed vegetables together thoroughly. Pack meat mixture into a well greased 9-inch ring mold. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 50 minutes. Loosen around edges and turn onto serving plate. Fill center with creamed vegetables. Yield: 8 servings.

Note: 4 cups of corn flakes may be substituted for the whole wheat flakes.

Never buy a dress by just taking a look at yourself for and aft in a full-length mirror. Sit down in it and walk in it. This is the only way to make sure that it's really wearable.

Now that you have the latest in Calypso fashions, how to care for them? To iron ruffled items, work on the body of the skirt on the right side first. Then turn inside out and iron the ruffles, starting from the top.

2 tablespoons drippings
1/2 cup water
1 small onion, chopped fine
1 cup chopped celery
1/2 teaspoon thyme

Bridge Buddies Will Love This

This recipe is for the girls at your next Bridge Party. They'll like the tart-sweet, teasing flavor of the rich shortbread cookie crust.
FROZEN CRAN-MALLOW PUDDING
1 quart vanilla ice cream
1/2 cup broken walnuts
1/2 cup chopped cranberries
1 cup miniature marshmallows
1/2 teaspoon rum flavoring
16 LORNA DOONE SHORTBREAD.
Arrange 4 LORNA DOONE rum flavoring. Quickly pack ice cube tray, and 4 along each side. Soften ice cream. Add walnuts, cranberries, marshmallows, and rum flavoring. Quickly pack ice cream mixture over cookies to fill tray. Top with LORNA DOONE SHORTBREAD and freeze until firm.
To unmold, loosen edge of mold with spatula. Invert on tray or serving plate and cover with warm towel for a few seconds. Garnish with cranberries. Store in freezer until ready to serve. Serves 4.

Filberts Are Here, Time For Cookies

When the weather turns crisp and cold it's time for crunchy cookies. . . in lunch boxes, for and after-school snacks, for Halloween hand-outs, picnics before the fireplace, and as accompaniment to that dish of dessert fruit. And, of course, any cookie worth space on a cookie sheet should contain crunchy, flavorful Oregon filberts, for this popular nut can make the difference between a ho-hum affair and a read treat.

FILBERT CRACKLES

1/2 cup finely chopped Oregon filberts
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1 square unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 1/2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon
Cream shortening, add sugar and cream thoroughly. Add egg and beat well. Stir in melted, cooled chocolate. Add dry ingredients which have been sifted together; mix to form soft dough. Chill. Roll dough into balls about the size of a walnut; roll in mixture of chopped filberts, sugar and cinnamon. Place 2 inches apart on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake in 375 degree oven for 15 minutes. Makes 2 1/2 dozen cookies.

FILBERT COCONUTS

1/2 cup chopped, toasted Oregon filberts
1/4 cup shortening
1/4 cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
1/2 cup coconut
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 1/2 cups sugar-coated cereal
Cream shortening and sugar together thoroughly, add beaten egg. Add filberts, coconut, vanilla, salt, and cereal. Mix thoroughly. Drop on well oiled baking sheet. Bake in 350 degree oven for 18 minutes. Remove cookies from baking sheet while still warm. Makes 1 1/2 dozen servings.

Militarism Still High In Germany, Japan

Foreign News Commentary By CHARLES M. MCCANN, United Press Staff Correspondent

The first clash between civil and military authority over the West German armed forces has resulted in a distinct defeat for the army.

A brigadier general who refused to approve the promotion of a staff officer in the defense ministry has been summarily dismissed.

To make it worse from the army viewpoint, the man who dismissed him, Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss, is a butcher's son.

On the surface the incident was a minor one. But it points up the fact that Germany, like Japan, is a historically militaristic country in which army men always have sought to run their show by themselves.

Rearmament Risk

It points up also the fact that in rearming West Germany and Japan the Western Allies are taking a calculated risk. At the present stage of world history, the threat of Communist aggression is much worse than the threat of the possible revival of German and Japanese militarism.

The incident of the general's dismissal was something new in German military history. In the old days the Prussian generals of the German armed forces regarded themselves as above civil authority, and they really were.

Hitler succeeded in making himself the supreme authority during the days of Nazism. But the army never accepted him in fact and members of the general staff took the leading part in the attempt to assassinate him in July 20, 1944.

Strauss is Boss

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his colleagues made every effort in their program of rearmament, to insure firm civil control of the armed forces. There is no commander-in-chief, nor are there individual commanders-in-chief for the army, navy and air force. Strauss is the boss.

In a statement on the incident Strauss said that all employees of the armed forces including soldiers are subordinate to political authority. He said also that no inference should be drawn from the incident on the relationship between "the military and civilian parts of the armed forces."

Nevertheless, that relationship is likely to arise again. It would be miraculous if, within a few years, the centuries-long militaristic tradition of Germany and Japan could be wiped out.

Only president of the United States ever to deliver his inauguration address extemporaneously was Grover Cleveland.

Acrid Thoughts For Use In Indian Summer Weather Plains Wheat Activity High Last Week

By DO CUIGG, United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) — Acrid thoughts, designed for use in smoky Indian summer weather: There's a creative man in our office who is worried over the perversities of human nature. More than a year ago, he deliberately set out to invent a joke. He decided to base it on a pun. He dreamed up a pun, fitted it to a situation by a megalomaniac brain worker, and produced a thing that goes like this:

"Did you hear about the cow that swallowed a bottle of blue ink and then mimicked a song title? (pause) Mood Indigo."

Well, he began telling it around the office. Each person he told it to would grit his teeth and stink off unsmiling. The author decided he was a failure. However, during the twelve month, the story of the thirsty cow seems to have circled around the town and come home to roost.

People in the same office that spurned it are hearing it now on the outside and coming in an telling it to the author with howls of laughter. Our man is bitter.

Once, some years ago, there was a porter who worked in a building whose front door afforded a commanding view of Park Avenue. When tourists would stop to stare up at the grandeur, he would say: "Go ahead and gaze. This is the gaziest street in the world."

It must be reported that the place is rapidly becoming not-so-gazey, unless the gaze is one of astonishment. Park Avenue is beginning to look like the inside of a bathroom. Brittleness is replacing the fine masonry that once gave the street its rich air of gentility. The dignified buildings, one by one, are coming down and the new face of the avenue is bright metal strips, glazed and gleaming finishings—and glass, glass, glass. The august look is being replaced by the scrubbed look, glinty and aseptic.

Query: Wonder what the headline writers and news writers have against the noun "raise," meaning a fattening of the paycheck? They use such phrases as "wage increase," "salary hike," "pay boost," and even "pay raise." For decades one of the definitions of raise in the Webster's New International (unabridged) Dictionary has been: "Specifically, an increase in pay." The Webster's New World and the American College dictionaries agree. So does the public: A raise is a raise.

Now is the time for all World War II veterans to shed a quiet tear for the passing of a friend. The last Congress passed a bill for financial help to short-haul and feeder airlines to acquire newer and more economical equipment — thus eventually allowing the last of the DC3 transport planes to be retired from service. The DC3 has not been manufactured since 1945.

This is the two-engine airplane known to the Army as the C47, to the Navy as the R4D, and to countless affectionate pilots as "Old Betsy." This was merely one of the best machines ever made by man. It often took off with double and prescribed maximum load and if, at the end of the runway, it wasn't flying the pilot merely lifted the wheels and Betsy flapped her wings and went upstairs. So long, honey, you were the greatest.

Austin (UP) — Wheat activity in the high plains and low rolling plains of Texas was busy last week after long-awaited moisture, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Cotton and sorghum harvest was active over a wide area and the peanut harvest got underway in the cross timbers. Over the eastern portion of the state, small grains and winter cover crops were being seeded, and much volunteer oats "was up to thick stands," the USDA said.

The prospective cotton crop of 4,100,000 bales was only about one-fifth ginned by the first of October and pickers were back in fields in the east, although wet fields prevented work along the upper coast.

Conditions were good for field work in vegetable areas of the coastal bend, where some onion, cabbage and other winter vegetables were started.

Fall and early winter crops in irrigated areas from the lower valley to Eagle Pass gained ground but moisture was still inadequate for planting onions around Raymondville.

Harvest of some leafy vegetables opened in the Winter Garden area and pepper-picking was underway. Fall tomatoes held up. Fall grass and volunteer oats made remarkable growth over the eastern half of the state.

CONFERENCE

PARIS (UP) — A conference of national leaders in the move toward European unification has given its support to a British plan tariff zone, Conference Chairman to create a West European free tariff zone, Conference Chairman Fernand Dehouese of Belgium said today.

The three-day conference, attended by 20 European leaders, also agreed to work to combine various organizations working for European union. These would include the Council of Europe and the Organization for European Cooperation. DeHouese said a second conference will be held next month to make "real decisions" on coordinating European union groups.

NOODLE QUEEN

CHICAGO (UP) — The National Macaroni Institute wants a beauty queen who can use her noodle. They'll crown a reasonably attractive coed with an "A" average "Noodle Queen" Oct. 29 during National Macaroni Week.

AUTOMATION ELEVATION—The long arm of automation is reaching out all over the world these days and Geneva, Switzerland, is no exception. A painter in the Swiss city, above, gives a drain pipe a new coat from the safety of a little box-like structure at the end of a hydraulic arm, controlled from the truck in the street below. Sure beats painting from a ladder.

DOUBLE PURPOSE—Two young baseball fans in St. Louis, Mo., are putting their seats to a new use in back of the visiting team dugout, top photo. As they cheered their favorite team to victory in Busch Stadium, a hatted crony joined them, below. They seem to have tipped him off that seats can be stood upon as well as sat in—perhaps better.

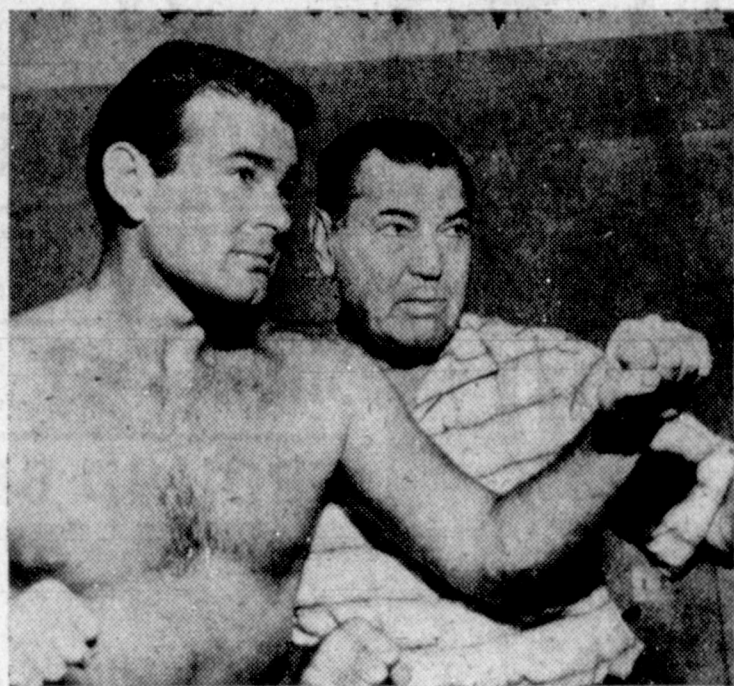

HOW TO STOP SPEEDERS—A policeman in West Berlin is demonstrating a new way that should stop speeding motorists. The officer is performing a handstand on a moving Volkswagen in the Olympic Stadium. It's almost guaranteed to at least "arrest" the attention of drivers who are going too fast.

BODY BUILDING—Belgian singer Monique Van Vooren shows the benefit of exercise as she keeps in shape at a health club in New York. The lovely chanteuse is doing a nightclub stunt in Manhattan and she's finding that this sort of thing helps make her work a lot easier for her.

OVER THE WAVES—Hanging onto the rope with grim determination is Patrice Munsel, star of the Metropolitan Opera. Patrice was vacationing in Bermuda with her husband and two children before returning to New York and her own TV show. She's certainly acting like a real "skim diva" as she sails along.

HE'S JAKE WITH JACK—Stuart Whitman, who's very much the type of the young Jack Dempsey, is shown in Hollywood as he works out with the Manassa Mauler, right. Whitman is a former fighter who may play the title role in "The Jack Dempsey Story," when it's made into a movie.

THAT'S A LOAD!—At the Tunbridge, Vt., Fair, Roger Putnam of Springfield is driving his team of oxen to victory. Hauling a bolt with 5,300 pounds on it, the sturdy animals took first prize in the free-for-all pulling event.

HERE'S A NEW ONE—American yo-yo champion of the world Billy Panama, left, acted as referee during the first German-American yo-yo contest in history. It took place at a U. S. elementary school in Frankfurt. The four German contestants at left were defeated by only two points by the American team at right.

WELL, IT'S LIKE THIS—Bobbi Wisenbaker, Queen of Miami Beach's Summer Fishing Tournament, is learning how to unhook a catch from four-year-old Johnny Selig. The lad demonstrated his skill at the ninth annual children's fishing rodeo.

RUMBLE ON THE SOX—Yankee right fielder Hank Bauer, on ground, trips up Boston catcher Pete Daley, who tumbles into the arms of Red Sox third baseman Frank Malzone during a game at the Stadium. Bauer was out in a rundown between third and home. Shortstop Billy Klaus backs up Malzone, and umpire John Fiherty makes the call.

CLUBWOMAN—The rough game of lacrosse is no longer a game for men only. Pretty Mary Fetter, of Philadelphia, is shown in Southampton, England, with a stack of sticks. She's a member of the American Women's Lacrosse Team which toured England. Lacrosse originated among North American Indians.

HOW!—As he dabbed on the last bit of paint, John Forsyth, 18, of Olney, Ill., was in full Indian regalia as the newly-designated "Chief Illiniwek" at the University of Illinois in Champaign. A sophomore, Forsyth was selected because of his years of interest in Indian lore. He'll appear with the school football band at all its performances.

Milk vs. Alcohol

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK (UP)—Because Italians are among the heaviest consumers of alcohol (in wine) in the world, it will surprise no one to learn that the average Italian thinks milk is only for babies.

But because Italians also have one of the lowest rates of alcoholism in the world, their ways of handling beverages could be useful information for countries where alcoholism is a problem—such as the United States.

Dr. Giorgio Lilli of Yale University and Dr. Pierpaolo Luzzatto-Pegiz of the Doxa Institute, Milan, Italy, are engaged in a scientific gathering of that information. Their newest finding—from questioning 1,433 representative Italians—concerns Italians and milk.

Milk Use Declines
"More than 85 per cent of the sample had been breast fed in infancy, and could discuss this experience with few or no adult inhibitions," they reported. "The subjects continued to use milk but in steadily decreasing amounts from early childhood to adolescence wine, with meals, is for adults."

"The attitudes and actions of an alcoholic are strikingly different," they said. "To a certain extent, and early adulthood. At the same time, there was a presumably a parallel decrease in the emotional attachments to milk which expressed the psychological rather than the physiological needs of the individual."

Among "the major factors" which have prevented "alcoholic excesses and alcohol addiction" in Italy, the scientists thought "the appreciation of milk especially pertinent" because "milk is the first food to which the newborn child is exposed, a food which supplies not only physical nourishment but the protection and the security of a mother's love."

"It provides the child with mixed or blended or confused pleasures of body and mind. Most of the healthy, fundamental emotions which lead to adequate growth and social adjustment of the individual are linked with the experiences involving the use of milk by the infant, and to the resultant relationships between mother and child," they said.

Whereas the average Italian thinks milk is for babies and alcohol represents to the alcoholic what milk represents to the infant, alcohol gives to the adult alcoholic a combination of physiological and psychological satisfactions which, in many ways, seem comparable to the gratifications supplied by milk to the infant.

In the final stages of alcoholism, they added, "The alcoholic seems to be restlessly searching for alcohol in the same way the newborn infant searches for milk. This confusion is obviously uncommon among Italians, for the incidence of alcoholism among these people—notwithstanding their large use of wine—is very low."

They pointed out that the alcoholism rate is high in countries where adult milk consumption is high. Nevertheless, "any notion that it is this use of milk which primarily determines the rate of alcoholism would be absurd and totally without foundation. It would be equally absurd, however, to hope that alcoholism might be alleviated or prevented by such simple devices as increased consumption of milk by adults. Only identification of the underlying causes of alcoholism and their alleviation can be effective in this problem of mental health."

GERM CHARGES
CAIRO (UP)—An Oman prince charged Sunday that British had dropped germ bombs on Omani villages and killed thousands of inhabitants.

Prince Saleh El Harthy cabled United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld and the Red Cross human rights committee to intervene. He asked the United Nations to send a committee to investigate the situation.

MOSCOW—Moscow radio, disclosing the Soviet explosion of a "new design" hydrogen warhead: "In the interests of the safety of the population and participants in the test, the explosion took place at a great height. The test was successful."

MILWAUKEE—Brave pitcher Lew Burdette, on his second victory over the New York Yankees: "Monday's win over the Yankees wasn't as much of a novelty as that first one but I don't get the idea I was bored."

FRISCO SIGNS DAHMS
SAN FRANCISCO (UP) The San Francisco 49ers have signed Tom Dahms, former Chicago Cardinal tackle, to replace the injured Bob St. Clair in the offensive line.

PIGGY BANK—Well, it's just as good and maybe a better collector of small coins than any piggy bank. Tourists in Florence, Italy, have started a fad of tossing coins in the fountain of Il Porcellino, which has a bronze pig as its central theme. Police, foreground, periodically fish the coins from the fountain. Local regulations state that any coins thrown in any city fountain become municipal property. Judging from the number of coins visible, the fishing must be pretty good.

Queen Elizabeth Is Easy To Feed

WASHINGTON (UP)—Queen Elizabeth II is easy to feed compared to her illustrious ancestor, Elizabeth I.

The British Embassy said today it is informing people who will entertain the Queen during her American visit next week that she likes "simple food and is not fussy."

James McManaway, consultant at the Folger Shakespeare Library, said back in the 16th Century if you were invited to even a small formal dinner you could expect to feast upon several soups, fish, half a dozen game birds and two or three roasts.

"Then came the sweets," he said. McManaway said the Elizabethans went in for eating anything but simple foods.

"They liked dishes like a bird roasted in a bird roasted in a bird roasted in a bird," he said.

"I don't know if they ever prepared 40 black birds baked into a pie but if they did they must have loved it."

Paul Taubman Writes Music But Doesn't Want It Heard

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Paul Taubman, a TV musician who toils in the happy bonds of obscurity, is one of the most frequently played composers in this nation. But nobody ever hears his music.

At least Taubman hopes nobody does.

Taubman has written such musical snappers as "The Kiss-off," "Time to Consider" and "Entrance of the Contestants. Along with dozens of others of his musical masterworks, they are smuggled into your ear tubes via NBC-TV several hundred times each week.

Taubman is musical director of "Twenty One, the five-a-week 'Bride and Groom and the six-a-week 'Tic Tac Dough.' It's his job to turn out the themes and musical cues used on each show.

"I guess the greatest compliment I ever received came from a friend who said he didn't even know there was any music on 'Twenty One," said Taubman. "Why? Well, because music on TV shouldn't be noticed. If it is—it just distracts the viewer. In any way, my job is a real paradox—I don't want anything I compose or play ever to be heard consciously by anyone.

Was Soaps Organizer
Taubman, a product of Winnipeg, Canada, and the Juilliard School of Music, is a musical campaigner of long service. He was organizer on such soaps as "Lorenzo Jones" and "When A Girl Marries" and musical director of such TV shows as the "Bob and Ray" shows, "On Your Account" and the late "High-Low."

"Most people don't even realize they're hearing about 20 different musical pieces on 'Twenty One' or 30 to 35 music cues on the daytime 'Tic Tac Dough.' Each piece underscores the action without being obtrusive, said Taubman.

"For the part on 'Tic Tac Dough,' where the machine changes categories, we play music that suggests a machine going round and round. When the contestants are thinking, we play my 'Time to Consider.' Some of these pieces only last a few seconds, but may take a week to write.

Has Triumphant Sound
"On 'Twenty One,' when somebody wins we play 'Money Music'—it has a triumphant sound. We have music for ties and music for the loser when he walks off stage—it's called 'The Kiss-off' and puts a little pep into what other-

GERMAN AWARD
FRANKFURT, Germany (UP)—The German book trade awarded its annual peace prize Sunday to American dramatist Thornton Wilder for his works based on "spiritual power in our confused age." Seven previous winners of the prize included Dr. Albert Schweitzer and German-Swiss novelist Hermann Hesse.

SUBCOMMITTEE MEETING
MOSCOW (UP)—Eleven U.S. representatives and staff members of a subcommittee of the House Committee on Government Operations arrived here Sunday for a five day visit.

The group is headed by Rep. Chet Holtfield (D-Calif.).

A second group representing the Joint Atomic Energy Committee and headed by Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) will arrive later this week.

The group is a pretty unhappy occasion.

Taubman's "Twenty One" orchestra is made up of 14 players, many of them refugees from the NBC symphony which played under Arturo Toscanini. "We have no strings except for a harp—if used for flourishes and to denote the passage of time," explained Taubman.

"The brass is used for announcements such as the entrance of contestants. Woodwinds are for perfection. And of course, there's percussion—that's used for suspense—tympani can give a throb to a quiz show that a whole symphony couldn't contribute."

Among "the major factors" which have prevented "alcoholic excesses and alcohol addiction" in Italy, the scientists thought "the appreciation of milk especially pertinent" because "milk is the first food to which the newborn child is exposed, a food which supplies not only physical nourishment but the protection and the security of a mother's love."

It's Mainly True What Reds Say About Sputnik

By JOSEPH N. MYLER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—It's mainly true what the Russians say about Iskustvennyi Spuntnik Zemli (ISZ).

That was the verdict of U. S. scientists after the Soviet earth satellite, Spuntnik for short, had winged around the earth 70 times.

There were some differences between the figures originally supplied by the Russians and those painstakingly calculated by American observers later on.

But the differences, it was said, were such as could be expected between a snap estimate and a subsequent careful measurement.

Five days after its launching somewhere in Russia, ISZ—roughly translatable as "artificial fellow traveler around the earth"—is still going strong.

Its radio voice has faded, but Spuntnik itself shows no signs of slowing down and plunging to meteoric destruction in the earth's atmosphere.

Spuntnik is, moreover, shaping up as an extremely valuable tool for scientists of the world even if it never utters another "beep."

Already, American scientists think they have enough information about its orbit to assure precise photographic observation of the Soviet moon in the days and weeks to come.

This, they say, will enable them to calculate such things as pressures hundreds of miles up and the shape and size of the earth over which spuntnik is flying.

UNION, N.C.—State Rep. John Calhoun Hart, confirming that the Union County state legislative delegation has authorized the purchase of machine guns and ammunition for the sheriff's department to forcibly oppose school integration:

"We will have a lot of integrated cemeteries in South Carolina, a long time before we have integrated schools."

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Navy scientist N. Whitney Matthews, on the prospective launching of an American satellite:

"We have tested several kinds of satellites extensively. Several of these, when subjected to tests of vibration, vacuum and other severe shocks far greater than anticipated in the actual launching, withstood the tests successfully."

"We're attempting to bring graceful dancing back to strip-teasing," she explained. "The day of the girl who walks on a stage just to peel off her clothes is over."

"We'll still strip, of course—but with class."

According to Jean every state and city has different laws governing how much a girl can take off.

Not Just Undressing
"Some places are pretty strict—making us wear panties and bras. Other cities let strippers peel down to a G-string and nothing else. The San Francisco-Oakland area is pretty liberal. So are Baltimore and Chicago."

Comes Now A Movieland School For Stripteasers

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Comes now a movieland striptease school for advanced study in the fine arts of the bump, grind and tassel-twirling.

Faculty member Jean Smyle professionally known as "Venus The Body," claims the new educational organization is "being launched to supply a more refined type of striptease for the country's burlesque theaters."

"Burlesque can't even be classified as entertainment any more," says Jean, a sultry redhead.

"Ninety per cent of the girls stripping today are real dogs. They're short, saggy and fat. Most of them have big stomachs. Because of them burlesque is a dying art, and we hope to bring it back."

Non-Bushing Beauties
The school for strippers offers a 15-week course for $150 with total enrollment limited to 25 bluish-proof girls.

"Boston is the worst—or best—of all. I've seen girls take everything off at the old Howard Theater."

"But that's vulgar. Most strippers are wives and mothers. They're anxious to see stripteasing become respectable. So are their husbands. After all, a girl has to think of her reputation."

Jean went on to say that she objects to bumps and grinds, but that most audiences are outraged if they're not forthcoming.

"We're teaching other talents, too," Jean said. "About a third of our audiences nowadays are women and they expect more 'art.' And more money is being paid strippers all the time, so girls have to be versatile."

"In Las Vegas the clubs start strippers at $300 a week. For that kind of money a girl has to do more than undress. Heck, every woman can do that."

COMMUNIST RECOVERS
BERLIN (UP)—East German Communist Party Secretary Walter Ulbricht reported today that East German President Wilhelm Pieck, 81, is recovering from a circulatory ailment that has been afflicting him since April.

Pieck rarely has appeared in public since he suffered a stroke in 1953. Ulbricht said he visited the white-haired veteran Communist yesterday and found him improved.

'Little Boy Blue' Is Smiling Again

By JOHN M. LANGONE
United Press Staff Correspondent
MIDDLEBORO, Mass. (UP)—"Little Boy Blue" has learned to smile again.

Dr. Kurt Jellinek, assistant superintendent at the Lakeville State Sanatorium, credits the nation's press and radio "and the big heart of America" with accomplishing what at first looked like an impossible feat.

Jellinek was among those who helped young Francis X—better known as "Little Boy Blue"—celebrate his ninth birthday Tuesday.

"Up till last week end," Jellinek said, "that boy was listless and quiet and wouldn't crack a smile. But today, just look at him."

Other stars who performed on the $300,000 spectacular were Pinky Lee, Tennessee Ernie Ford, Eddie Cantor, Eddie Fisher, Hugh (Wyatt Earp) O'Brian, Jim (Gunsmoke) Arness, Walt Disney's Mousketeers, the Skylarks and an 18-piece orchestra.

It all began when the youngster, named "Little Boy Blue" by nurses at the sanatorium, asked for "four or six funny cards" for his birthday. The nation sent him two tons of mail in response.

No Special Danger To Imported Toys
WASHINGTON (UP)—There is no special danger to children from paint on Japanese-made or other foreign toys, according to U. S. Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney.

Burney issued a statement Tuesday night saying tests by the U. S. Public Health Service and state and city laboratories reveal "no significant difference between domestic and foreign toys in the matter of lead content of paint."

The statement was made in reply to reports that paint used on Japanese toys sold in retail stores in the United States could give children lead poisoning. Burney said Public Health Service study was made with the aid of a group of consultants "who are experts in lead poisoning."

Seeds of the carob tree once were used as a measure of weight.

Queen Elizabeth Not Fashion-Conscious

By TOM A. CULLEN
NEA Staff Correspondent
LONDON (NEA) — American women are looking forward with eager curiosity to the visit in October of Queen Elizabeth II and her Prince Charming husband, Prince Philip.

The Queen, in particular, will be subjected to friendly, but critical, stares. Her clothes, the way she walks, her manner — nothing will escape the feminine eye.

Elizabeth had a sneak preview of the kind of welcome that awaits her when she entertained 3,000 American lawyers and their wives on the lawn of Buckingham Palace this summer. The lawyers were members of the American Bar Association visiting London.

Ordinarily these garden parties are noted for their humbug. The guests go through an elaborate ritual of pretending that the Queen isn't there. They move around, exchange polite chit-chat, all but ignore the Queen. It's considered bad form to stand around and stare.

Court etiquette didn't bother the Americans, however. They had come to see the Queen, and they stood their ground like buffaloes at bay waiting for Her Majesty to appear.

When the Queen finally did appear, they all but mobbed her. Without waiting to be presented, they stepped up and introduced themselves, told the Queen how pretty she was. "We've a daughter at home, Ma'am, who looks just like you. People are always saying she could be your twin."

Elizabeth, of course, loved it. "The most successful garden party yet," pronounced the London Daily Express, in commenting upon "the curious, the admiration, the instantaneous affection" with which the Americans greeted the Queen.

The woman who inspires such instant affection is much finer (5 feet, 3 inches) than Americans have been led to believe by her press photos. Also, she will never figure in any fashion designer's list of the Ten Best Dressed Women.

"The Queen frankly isn't much interested in fashion," her dressmaker, Norman Hartnell, explains. "She doesn't want to set the styles — she wants to be comfortable."

In contrast, her great ancestor, Elizabeth I, was fashion-mad. Good

Queen Elizabeth II, shown in London, is restricted to pastel shades when at home. The reason? She must stand out in a crowd at all times.

Queen Bees left over 3,000 dresses in her wardrobe when she died at the age of 70, and right up to the end she dyed her hair red and wore outrageous decolees.

If Elizabeth II owns 50 dresses, she is doing well, one reason being that fashions change much more rapidly in 1957 than they did in the 1500's. But even if Elizabeth II were fashion-conscious, she would be bound, because of her exalted position, by certain ironclad rules.

Her clothes must never be too extreme. Elizabeth can be one jump ahead of the mode, but she can never wear what the French call "high fashion." It might not look dignified.

At home she is practically restricted to pastel shades. The reason? The Queen must be easily distinguishable in a crowd. Abroad, she must think in terms of background, national colors, uniforms, the decorations to be worn with evening dress. This explains why so many of her evening gowns are either white or gold.

In designing for the Queen, her dressmakers, Norman Hartnell and Hardy Amies, strive always to make her look taller, more regal. As indicated, comfort is an important factor.

Because her face must be visible from all angles, the Queen's hats must be off-the-face, besides being securely anchored.

American women may well envy Elizabeth her perfect milk-and-roses complexion, which requires few make-up aids.

Elizabeth has employed the same brand of English beauty products since she was 16. She favors pink-red and blue-red tones of lipstick. English rose — the shade of an Alexandria rose — was her first choice of lipstick. Balmoral — a red shade with a hint of heather — was created specially for her.

The Queen believes in soap and water. During the day she uses a light liquid foundation with matching powder. Her eyelashes are lightly brushed with brown mascara. The Queen's beauty care, which she will use while in America, is a simple affair, unlike those used by great women of a generation ago.

Dorcas Class To Have Candy Sale

The Dorcas Circle of the Zion Lutheran Church met in the home of Mrs. W. H. Winborn with nine members present.

Rev. A. Bruns gave the topic on "Grace," and reported on Lutheran Evangelism Week. It was announced that adult instruction classes will start on Oct. 20. Business consisted of electing officers for the following year. Two new members Mmes. Betty King and Marlene Bye were welcomed to the circle. After discussion, it was voted by the group to sell candy in order to raise money to furnish the reception room.

Refreshments of sweet rolls, coffee were served.

Dyed-to-match continues to be the big fashion story in sweaters and skirts this fall. But it's all on one tone this year rather than all one color. Cherry pink and Cherry red go together, for instance.

Spruce Up Slipcovers

There's a smart trend among homemakers to keep slipcovers on the year around. So along with the usual pre-holiday sprucing, include the laundering of the slipcovers, following these techniques:

Wash the slipcovers using washer manufacturer's directions, then lightly starch them for a smarter, fresher look. To starch in the washer, add a 12-ounce box of instant cold water starch after the last rinse has flowed in and agitation has begun. If machine has only one rinse or an overflow rinse, complete cycle, reset for "warm wash" or "cold wash" and add starch as above. Agitate a few minutes then skip to final spin.

Because of the possibility of mildew, authorities no longer approve of putting damp slipcovers on furniture. Dry covers either in automatic dryer or on a line. Sprinkle lightly and evenly, fold and wrap in plastic. Let stand at least two hours before ironing.

Fit ironed slipcovers over furniture immediately, fasten snaps or zippers and smooth surfaces. If necessary, touch up with iron. Now step back and admire your handiwork. Note that the starching has given your furniture covers a brand new sparkling crisp look.

Membership Drive Begun By NN Club

(Special to The News)
SKELLYTOWN — Members of the Northern Natural Sewing Club met recently in the home of Mrs. R. P. Grange in Pampa. A short business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Jack Hutchinson, club president.

Games of "Cops and Robbers" and "Number Bingo" were played.

Mrs. Melvin Beigle won the door prize.

A membership drive for the club was started. Anyone wishing to join the club, whose husband works for the Northern Natural Gas Company, is invited to contact one of the members for meeting dates.

Refreshments of cake, cookies and coffee were served to Mmes. N. C. Hudson, Melvin Beigle, Ala Mae Kibler, Kenny Croft, Charles Werley, Paul Haney, Jack Hutchinson, and Mary Kracke.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. J. C. Willis on Oct. 9.

RUTH MILLETT

Some qualities in a wife are almost sure to help her husband get ahead. The woman who cultivates these aptitudes and skills is a partner to her husband in the best possible way.

She likes people and isn't afraid to take the first steps toward turning acquaintances into family friends.

She either likes the job of home-making or learns to like it. thing important soon loses her husband to the family rarely does her husband much good. She may build herself up as a smart woman, but she doesn't build her husband up as a smart man.

She is as businesslike and efficient as possible about running her home. The wife who always has an excuse for forgetting something important soon loses her husband's confidence in her ability to carry her part of the load.

She is a gracious and willing hostess. A man can be at his best in his own home if his wife makes it possible.

She has a good disposition. A woman who is calm and takes setbacks and minor emergencies without going to pieces has a calming effect on her husband.

She is companionable. And for a woman that often means learning to enjoy what her husband enjoys.

Skelly Schaffer Elects Officers

(Special to The News)
SKELLYTOWN — Members of the Skelly Schaffer Club met in the home of Mrs. Russell Davidson for its monthly meeting recently.

An election of officers for the ensuing six months was held, and names were drawn for secret posts.

New officers are: Mmes. Ben Wesner, president; L. D. Cowart, vice-president; V. C. Moore, secretary; and Warren Brodgin, treasurer; R. C. Heaton, chairman of flower committee; Leroy Allan, chairman of social committee.

Mrs. R. E. McAllister was elected reporter.

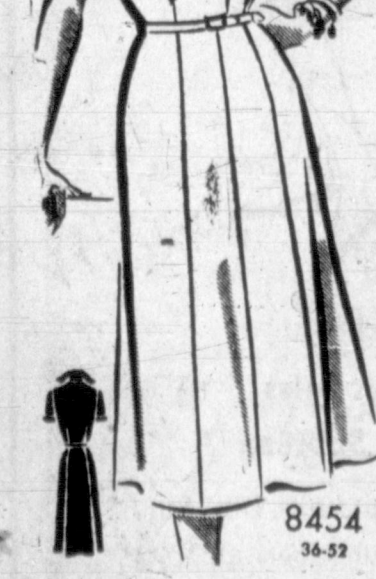

The hostess, Mrs. Louis North served a salad plate, coffee and punch to Mmes. Henry Gentry, Louie Karlin, L. Barrett, Bill Truitt, Ben Wesner, L. C. Cowart, V. C. Moore, Warren Brodgin, R. C. Heaton, Leroy Allan and R. E. McAllister. Mrs. Walter Casey was a guest.

POPCORN PIE is not only fun but good eating for the young in heart of any age who enjoy something temptingly different.

Magic Popcorn Pie Is Fun, Good Eating For Everyone

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor
Looking for food stunts to delight teen-agers? Try popcorn. The young in heart of any age will get loads of fun out of these two ideas and also enjoy eating them. Let them make them themselves.

Magic Popcorn Pie
Three-quarters cup granulated sugar, 1/2 cup molasses (light), 1/4 cup water, 1/4 cup butter or margarine, 3/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pure vanilla extract, 1 cup popcorn freshly popped, 1/2 cup chopped glazed fruits, glazed fruit to garnish, if desired.

Pop canned popcorn as label directs. In a 2-quart saucepan blend sugar, molasses, water, butter and salt. Bring to boil, stirring constantly; reduce heat and continue cooking until mixture reaches 270 degrees F. on candy thermometer, or until a little mixture in a cold water becomes slightly brittle. Stir in vanilla extract.

Pour the hot syrup over warm popcorn in large bowl, mixing and tossing until all the popcorn is well coated. Press 1/2 of the still hot mixture into a well-buttered 9-inch pie plate; sprinkle with chopped glazed fruit, cover with remaining popcorn mixture. Pressing the mixture down, firmly first, smooth and level top. Cut pie into 8-12 wedges while warm. Garnish with glazed fruit if desired.

WMS Luncheon
In Key Home

(Special to The News)
PERRYTON — Mrs. Stanley D. Key entertained the executive board of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church with a one o'clock luncheon in her home, 609 S. Baylor recently.

Luncheon was served buffet style with the table covered with a white, linen cloth centered with an arrangement of fall flowers. Individual tables were white cloth-covered and centered with a rosebud in a crystal bud vase.

Following luncheon, Mrs. Key, president, presided over the business meeting, during which reports were given by each chairman and plans were made for the work of the society for the coming year.

Members present were Rev. Carroll B. Ray, Mmes. Marvin Montgomery, Aubrey Kelson, Carl Carter, Jerry Slaughter, A. J. Kelly, Ray Phagan, John Taylor, Delbert Timmons, Ivan Day, Ha-Chester Williams, Carrol B. Ray, Neil Holland, Bill, Billy, Floyd Coffin, Howard Fitzhugh, T. R. Shirley, O. C. Richard, Lester Fortwood and W. C. Holderman.

Like all new fashions, those new hats take a bit of getting used to. However, once you start experimenting with the crushable cap in velvet or satin, you're certain to want one.

Worthwhile Holds Achievement Day

The Worthwhile Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. Marion Roberts for a luncheon on Achievement Day.

Luncheon was planned with the foods that had been prepared by Miss Helen Duplax or food leaders, during their demonstrations: Roast beef with potatoes and carrots; colored pear-halves and cottage cheese salad, vegetables were served with hot rolls made with the club's recipe, coffee, apple and coconut pies.

Canned fruits, vegetables, jellies and preserves were displayed in the den. Members wore or brought for display dresses, which they had made. Lamp shades and ceramics were also exhibited.

A short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Roy Tinsley, during which it was announced that Educational Day would be held Oct. 29 in the City Club Room at 2 p.m. All Gray County clubs are urged to attend and bring a guest.

Members present for Achievement Day were Mmes. N. B. Cude, O. A. Wagner, N. L. Welton, Dewey Johnson, Marion Roberts, Roy Tinsley. Guests were Mmes. E. T. Clark, Wyley Feese and Miss Duplax.

The next meeting for the group will be with Mrs. W. G. Kinzer, 503 N. Russell, on Oct. 18 at 2:30 p.m.

Newcomer Honored With Coffee Social

(Special to The News)
PERRYTON — Mmes. Bill Allen and Harold Hudson entertained with a coffee recently for Mrs. John Klugre, who is a newcomer to Perryton.

The hostesses received alternately and introduced guest to the honoree.

The serving table was centered with a floral arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. Allen presided at the coffee service.

Guests were Mmes. Sidney Jones, G. K. Rupperecht, Jack M. Allen, Tom Knighton, Troy Sullivan, Harold Littau, Gale Rogers, Joah Hopkins, Gordon Shackelford, Clyde Ragdale, Fred Adcock, Cecil Tevis, Carlos Smith, Kenneth Fuller, and Dean Slaughter.

Many persons worry themselves out of a good night's sleep. Experts say to slow down the daily routine as bedtime nears. Soothing music, soothing conversation or just plain quiet help set the slumber stage. Arguments, blood-chilling mysteries and loud music do little to entice sleep.

Pampa Duplicate Club Plays Mitchell Hands

The Pampa Duplicate Bridge Club met Monday evening in the Episcopal Parish Hall with six tables playing the Mitchell Movement.

Winners in the north-south position were Mrs. G. F. Richmond and P. V. Rowe, first; Mmes. H. M. Luna and Haskel Maguire, second.

The public is cordially invited to meet with the club each Monday evening in the Episcopal Parish Hall at 7:30.

Makes Friends Manners

The husband and wife in the habit of bickering when they are with others should realize that they are being downright rude. Nobody wants to listen to a husband-wife argument. It's both boring and embarrassing to those who have to.

Some Crazy Names Grace Towns In United States

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Since publishing a couple of weeks ago, some of the fine and flip town names of this nation, and how they got that way, we have been pined with why didn't you protest. Why didn't you include the great names of What Cheer, Ia., and Bird-In-Hand, Pa.? And how about Ninety-Six, S. C.:

"I know a man," volunteers H. Ferguson, of New York, "from Social Circle, Ga."

"May I," writes Harry Marsh, of Van Buren, Ark., "add a couple of names that are self-descriptive—Needmore, Ark., south of Fort Smith, and Westwego, a suburb of New Orleans, just west of the city, of course."

It is nice to hear from Van Buren, Ark., because that was the home of the late comedian Bob Burns, who himself coined a great name for his musical instrument—"bazooka"—that later graced an Army weapon.

"Eating in Alabama," "I had an aunt," says J. Wollaston, of Greenwich, Conn., "in Flea Hop, Ala. For breakfast on a cotton and sweet potato farm there, we sat down around a long table, and they pulled out a big drawer that had everything in it—smoked fish, sugar, salt and pepper, and some salt pork—and everybody ate breakfast from the drawer, apparently an old Flea Hop custom."

"Incidentally, Flea Hop is near Eclectic, Ala.—about five miles—and maybe it got its name because travelers asking how far it was to Eclectic were told, 'It's just a flea-hop down the road.'"

Could be. Maybe it would be more interesting to learn how Eclectic got its name.

Al Krebs calls attention to three Mississippi towns: Alligator, Hot Coffee, and Thirsty (just up the highway from Hot Coffee).

If you take a look into the postal directory, right away in the "A's" you are deep in the wonder of place names: Access, Ky.; Accord, Mass.; Ace, Tex.; Achilles, Va.; Affinity, W. Va.

There are eight Alphas (Ill., Iowa, Ky., Mich., Minn., N.J., Ohio, Va.) but only three Omegas (Ga., N.Mex., Okla.). There are eight Paradises (Calif., Kans., Ky., Mich., Mont., Pa., Tex., Utah). But only one Hells Half Acre (Wyo.). There's one Heavener (Okla.) and four places purporting to be the property of Satan: Devils Elbow, Mo.; Devils Lake, N. Dak.; Devils Slide, Utah; Devils, Tower, Wyo.

Tablet Towns
There are five Milltowns—and presumably waiting for someone to come in and make an energy pill are Pep, N.Mex., and Pep, Tex.

Some towns seem to want to tell you how they're feeling: Fine, N.Y.; Peculiar, Mo.; Smile, Ky.; Sleepy Eye, Minn.; Soso, Miss.; Gay (Ga., Mich., W.Va.) and Moody (Maine, Mo., N.Y., Tex.)

Some are bullet-like: Grit, Tex.; Shock, W. Va.; Dare, Va.; Quick, W. Va.; Faith, N. C. and S. Dak.; True, W. Va.; Triumph, Idaho.

And of course there's the town named Truth or Consequences, N. Mex.

Tiptop, Ky., and Tiptop, Va., seem oddly opposed to Lower Peach Tree, Ala.—and Neon, Ky., to Darkharbor, Maine. But let's stop this. Something may be waiting for you in Fate, Tex.

THREE OF A KIND—Something to be proud of are these triplet heifer calves, Faith, Hope and Charity, shown with their owner, Raymond Palmer, of Flemington, Mo. The calves, now seven months old, are an animal rarity. Authorities point out that triplet heifers occur once in 632,000 cattle births and that for all three to survive is even rarer. The calves are second generation and artificially bred.

How Many TV Musicals Will Be Fallout Victims?

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—The TV machine is stuffed with musical shows this season—11 new ones and seven holdovers. One of the big puzzlers in the trade is how many will wind up victims of fallout.

"A lot of them aren't going to make it," said Polly Bergen with melancholy detachment. "A lot of people are going to be off. Personally, I wasn't too sure myself whether I wanted to do this show. And I haven't decided yet whether I was right in doing a series."

Miss Bergen, a 27-year-old export of Knoxville (where she was issued as Nelle-Paulina Burgin) is jockeying one of the new musicals, a playhouse 90.

"My biggest problem this year was deciding whether I should take on my own show this season or be a sought-after guest. One of the biggest problems in the business is getting guests for shows."

Got The 'Berries'
"But, well, I felt I had reached a point in my career where if I ever was to have a show, now was the time. After that Morgan thing, I felt I was at a climatic point in my career. We felt we had to cash in now."

Burdette Tackled Feat Of 3 Wins In Single Series

Odds Favored Yanks In Final

United Press Sports Editor. NEW YORK (UP)—It's the man who pitched the perfect game against the man with the "big city" Yankees and the "rural America" Braves wind up the 1957 World Series.

Don (Perfect Game) Larsen vs Lew Burdette; Casey Stengel trying for a record - tying seventh world championship and Fred Haney trying for his first; the Yankees trying to save a measure of New York's baseball honor and the Braves trying to make the Milwaukee dream come true, that is the drama that'll be unfolding before some 68,000 fans at Yankee Stadium.

At game time, the Yankees were to be favored at 7-5, whether it be Larsen vs Burdette or Whitey Ford for the Yankees.

All square at three games each after the Yankees won Wednesday's 3-2 squeaker, both teams come down to the "big one" with key men suffering from physical ailments. The Yankees are unlikely to get anything but spot duty from sluggers Mickey Mantle and Bill Skowron and the Braves probably won't have the services of sparkplug Red Schoendienst and might be without those of pitcher Warren Spahn, a 21-game winner.

Another Redeeming Feat? In Larsen, the Yankees are going with an erratic, hard-throwing right hander who reached the pinnacle of World Series fame last Oct. 8 when he pitched his perfect game against the Brooklyn Dodgers. It was the only such performance in World Series history and the first perfect game in the majors since 1922. But, despite that epic performance, Larsen proved to be a disappointment in the American League this season and wound up with a 10-4 record. In a very real sense, he's out to redeem another lack-lustre year with another tremendous single-game performance.

Burdette, the 30-year-old one-time Yankee farmhand who went to the Braves in the 1951 lead for Johnny Sain, never has come close to a perfect game—but he's got his own "perfect pitch." It's undoubtedly nothing more than an exceptionally good sinker but his rivals insist it could be a splitter—and Burdette's made it his "pitch" to keep 'em guessing. In an equally real sense, he's out to "redeem" himself in the eyes of the baseball world by proving he's 100 per cent pitcher and not a single bit "cheater."

Bullpens Will Be Full
Both managers will have everything they've got waiting in the bullpen. Stengel will have Ford, his ace and the Yankees' opening-game victor as his No. 1 reliever, and all the others will be on call, too, because it's a long rest coming up until next April 16. Haney's No. 1 reliever will be Spahn, unless the 36-year-old southpaw turns up sick again, and the others will be warming up at the slightest crisis too.

HAND-TO-MOUTH EXISTENCE—Lew Burdette denies throwing the forbidden spitball, but has the annoying (to the batter) habit of going to his mouth. The Milwaukee right-hander starts with the left hand, switches to the pitching side and remains in his act even while reaching for the resin bag.

Stengel, who's really only a little city boy who made it in the big city, can tie the all-time record of seven world titles held by Joe McCarthy by winning today. He has won eight pennants in nine years in an unparalleled success story beginning in 1949.

For Haney, the experience would be completely new. It was only in mid-season that Milwaukee fans were burning him in effigy. The Yankees demonstrated Wednesday their fabled ability to win the "big one" when they stayed alive in a game they had to win. Bob Turley, the 220-pound fireballer of the staff, yielded homers to Frank Torre and Hank Aaron but got two runs on a homer by Yogi Berra and the win for Hank Bauer's shot off the left field foul pole in the seventh inning.

BAUER EYES MARK
NEW YORK (UP)—Hank Bauer of the Yankees can set a World Series mark of hitting in 14 consecutive games with a base knock today. The 35-year-old right fielder tied the record with his game-winning homer Wednesday.

Larsen Faced Biggest Game Of His Life Today

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Don Larsen faced the biggest game of his life today the same way he went into the perfect game, with "no sweat, no worry and no windup."

"What the hell," shrugged the big, likeable right hander, "in another couple of hours I'll either be a hero or a bum, but there is no sense worrying about it. I'm not looking for another perfect game. I'm no hog. All I care about is winning, and if the score is 10-9, I'll be perfectly happy, too."

Gets Nod Over Ford
Southpaw Whitey Ford, who already has pitched two games in this series, previously asked manager Casey Stengel to start him in today's game and probably would have had he not been called on to warm up during the late stages of Wednesday's game.

"It wouldn't make the slightest difference to me if Whitey went out and beat them," Larsen said, obviously sincere. "We're all playing for the same club." Big Don will be carrying a responsibility of more than $100,000 when he faces the Braves in today's Series' windup, but he'll enter the contest with the easy, relaxed attitude of a guy sitting in on a 5 and 10-cent poker game.

When Larsen was notified he was to start the finale, he accepted the news with his customary calm. He dressed slowly in the Yankees' clubhouse and then walked to the nearby hotel he stays at. Once inside his room, he began packing his trunk in anticipation of leaving New York after the Series is over.

Hank Bauer, who rooms with Larsen, came into the room after awhile and Don kidded him about his game-winning homer. "Have your fun," Hank grinned back, "only make sure you don't disgrace this room tomorrow."

"Disgrace the room," Larsen replied. "Why, you know I'm gonna hit a home run in the ninth inning to beat 'em, 1-0."

Lopes, Brown Set Title Bout

HOUSTON (UP) — A world lightweight championship fight between titleholder Joe Brown and Joey Lopes is nearly set for the Cow Palace in San Francisco next month, according to Lou Viscusi, Brown's manager.

Viscusi said the date will be announced in a "couple days." Lopes recently fought Brown to a draw in a non-title bout. The San Francisco fight would not be televised, Viscusi said.

EASTON, Pa. (UP)—A flu outbreak has caused Lafayette and Moravian to cancel football games scheduled for Saturday. Lafayette was to have played Delaware and Moravian was slated to meet Juniata at Bethlehem.

Canadian vs Shamrock
The Canadian Wildcats host the Irishmen Friday night after having won their first victory of the season last week over Gruver, 28-7. Canadian has faced a rugged schedule this deep in the season, having been defeated by Wheeler, Perryton and White Deer. The Irish also have one victory to their credit against three losses. Shamrock won over Hollis, Okla., and lost to McLean, Lefors and Clarendon.

White Deer vs Friona
The White Deer Bucks remain in the ranks of the undefeated and go for their sixth straight victory as they host Friona Friday. The Bucks string of victims include Gruver, Clarendon, Lefors, Canadian and McLean.

Lefors vs Stinetz
In the only Saturday game slated for the area, the top rated Stinetz Rattlers will host the Lefors Pirates in a game set for 8 p.m. Stinetz is undefeated this far in the season. The Pirates carry a 2-2 record into the game, having downed Shamrock, 20-7, and Wellington, 12-6, while losing to White Deer, 20-7, and Panhandle, 21-13.

Shocker Game Cancelled

The Lubbock Westerners "B" team cancelled their game with the Pampa Shockers, scheduled for tonight, Coach Weiden Trio announced yesterday. Trio stated that the Lubbock coach said his team was too hampered with illness to permit the game. No date was announced for the game to be played.

Also cancelled yesterday was the game between the Pampa Reapers and Dumas, which was rescheduled for Oct. 31 in Dumas at 3:45 p.m.

Har-rumph! Um-kumf Hak-kaff! Notice how drafty the rooms are these chilly October mornings? Briak, eh? Egad, Yaa! Hm! Oh, yes, about football. Veritably the life of a forecaster is fraught with hazardous imponderables, gentle readers! Take any given Saturday—a gust of wind suddenly whips across the goal posts and there goes your extra point and victory.

Or a halfback hears his sweet heart's voice, runs over nine deadly tacklers while 70,000 cheer. Again, a fullback's grandmother may be ailing and he forgets where the pigskin is.

Nevertheless, here are the unerring facts about tomorrow's games.

The Golden Spread travelling bowling league will get underway Sunday Oct. 13 as all teams competing will travel to Clovis, N.M. for the initial matches.

Represented in the league are Clovis, Hereford, Amarillo, Pampa, Plainview and Borger. The teams will all meet on the second Sunday of each month at a designated city for three series, nine games each meeting.

The Pampa team, sponsored by Groninger & King Inc., is composed of Ray Stephenson, N. W. Hegwer, H. M. Watson, Joe Wells, Stanley Brake, Bob Gault and

"Scrap Iron" Bauer Recorded The Biggest Hit Of Baseball Career

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Hank Bauer rolled into the record books today on "the biggest hit of my life" and was looking for an even bigger one as the all-even Yankees and Braves squared off in the final game of the World Series.

The ex-Marine who is known to his mates as "Scrap Iron" pulled the Yankees off the floor in the seventh inning Wednesday with a home run which was fair by a matter of inches. It struck on the left field foul pole and gave Bob Turley a 3-2 lead with which he won the ball game.

It marked the 13th consecutive World Series game in which the one-time machine-gunner had hit safely, tying a record held by Frank Schulte of the Cubs and Harry Hooper of the Red Sox.

Disposes Sidearm Jinx
And when he teed off on Ernie Johnson, it also put a big dent in the long-held theory that Hank can't hit side-arm pitching. Because it was one of those free-wheeling side-arm deliveries which Bauer pulled down the left field line.

"The biggest hit of my life," he chuckled gleefully. "But I thought for a while it was going to be foul. Even when I saw it hit the screen I wasn't sure it was a home run but figured maybe it was just a double. I was surprised when the umpire waved me on around."

"But I'll sure take it," he added as an after-thought.

Bauer, who looks a lot like golfer Tommy Bolt, thus teamed with another of the Yankees' old pros—Yogi Berra—to pull it out of the fire for Turley. Because it was Yogi's two-run blast in the third inning that put the Yankees into a two-run lead which Turley dissipated with home run balls to Frank Torre and Hank Aaron.

A Try Guy
But the laurels, along with kudos for Turley, had to go to Hank and the hit that wrapped it up. And the Yankees were particularly happy that it happened to a guy who gives everything he has every moment he's on the ball field.

Hank is the guy who runs everything out and charges from start to finish. He doesn't know how to ease up and it was this determination, almost as much as his ability, which finally took him out of the minors.

It was a long pull for the 195-pound six-footer from East St. Louis, Ill., who now lives in Overland Park, a Kansas City suburb. Because after one year at Oshkosh, Hank spent the next four years in the Marines. Coming back, he picked up at Quincy and then spent two hopeful years at Kansas City before finally making the grade with the Yanks.

An Old Pro
Since then he has been one of the solid men of the team, one of the nucleus of old pros around whom the Yankees juggle their constant stream of fresh talent.

This is his eighth World Series, which makes him something of an expert at this post-season business, and he tied the steady-hitting record by hitting safely in all seven games against the Dodgers last year and in all six so far this time around.

SW Teams Work On Defense In Readiness For Saturday

By UNITED PRESS
Defense was the main item of activity Wednesday for everybody in the Southwest Conference except Southern Methodist and the Mustangs, who have allowed only an average of three points a game, concentrated on offense.

Texas spent its second day looking at Oklahoma plays, which the Longhorns will probably see too much of Saturday afternoon in the Cotton Bowl, Louis Del Homme, co-captain and center, was the fourth starter to become ill this week.

The Aggies worked on offensive as well as defensive assignments for Saturday's tilt with Houston, but Coach Bear Bryant's first two teams weren't in good enough condition to have contact work.

The Baylor - Arkansas conference opener shapes up to be a battle of "condition" Saturday. Coach Jack Mitchell of the Razorbacks says his team is in as good condition as it ever has been for a Wake Forest game during his three-year tenure.

Coach Sam Boyd has scrimmaged his Bears hard the last two days and is happy with their condition. Defense was emphasized and Dick Pyburn, a guard who missed the Miami game, participated. Center Larry Cowart had Joey Allen, a halfback, did not. Rice's defensive practice was hampered by a slow rain. Two Owls, second-string fullback David Kelly and right guard Don Gillis, are still on the maybe list for the Duke game. Coach Jess Neely said "We have our work cut out for us" against Duke, ranked seventh in the nation.

SMU Under Lights
In Dallas, the Mustangs, who have held their opponents to only one touchdown in two games, worked on offense for the Missouri tilt in the Cotton Bowl Friday night. SMU has only scored two touchdowns, both in the 13-6 victory over California, in the two contests. The Mustangs held Georgia Tech to a scoreless tie.

The Mustangs will work under the lights tonight to become acquainted with arc-light conditions. Texas Christian will review assignments today and slow down for Saturday's fray with Alabama.

Impressions

By HANK BAUER
As Told to the United Press
NEW YORK (UP)—I was going to stop at second base until I saw the umpire give me the sign for a round-trip ticket.

When I hit that ball off Ernie Johnson, I didn't think it was going to carry all the way. I wasn't even sure it was going to be fair. My first impression when I saw the ball bounce back on the field was that it was a double, but then I got the high-sign and I kept going.

They had been pitching my outside all day but the ball hit was an inside breaking pitch. I'm not sure whether it was a curve on a slider—but I could see the wrinkle in it.

Tying that record of hitting safely in 13 straight World Series games is a nice thing, but I wasn't even conscious of it as I crossed the plate. The only thing I was concerned about was winning today's game so that we could get another crack at Milwaukee tomorrow.

That fellow Jackson gives you a lot of motion with his breaking pitches. I understand he throws a palm ball, too, even though I didn't see one.

I've gotten a few hits since I started playing ball for a living but this one was the biggest one of my life. A guy could hardly ask for much more.

Flu Cancels AAAA Games

By UNITED PRESS
Influenza epidemics caused Tuesday night games as schoolboy football continued to suffer from the rapidly spreading ailment.

Highland Park was forced to cancel its game with Fort Worth Paschal, which last week had to cancel the same reason. Alica cancelled its game with Austin High. Austin and Fort Worth Paschal immediately decided to play each other Saturday night.

Earlier, Shelbyville cancelled a game at Hawkins. Several teams which lost games last week including Hawkins and Marlin, were looking for opponents this weekend.

The Austin High-Paschal game will bring together the No. 4 and No. 11 squads in AAAA. Austin High is unbeaten and unscathed upon thus far in the season.

Two District Games On Tap For Area Tomorrow

For the second straight week, Wheeler and Groom meet district contenders while the remaining area teams have outside competition scheduled.

The Mustangs will host Silverton for their second district game after defeating Quitaque last week 35-0. Wheeler carries a record of four wins against one loss, having downed Canadian, 13-6; McLean, 20-0; Erick, Okla., 33-13; and Quitaque. The Mustangs' only loss came at the hands of the Stinetz Rattlers, 12-0. Stinetz is defending Class A state champion. Groom will travel to Darroutz for its second district encounter, having downed Claude last week, 25-13. The Tiger's only other win came over Gruver, 27-19, while losing to White Deer, 26-7; and tying Sunray, 6-6.

Panhandle vs Clarendo
The Panhandle Panthers will host the Bronco Friday night in an attempt to gain their second victory of the season, having defeated Lefors last week, 21-13. The Panthers had previously lost to Clarendon, 22-7; Memphis, 27-0; and tied McLean, 13-13. The Bronchos have two wins against three losses for the season.

Perryton vs Dalhart
Rebounding from a 19-12 loss at the hands of the Phillips Blackhawks, the Rangers will travel to Dalhart with a 2-2 record. Other than Phillips, Perryton dropped to Canyon, 29-7, while defeating Canadian, 6-0, and Clarendon, 22-7.

McLean vs Wellington
The McLean Tigers invade Wellington Friday to clash with the Class AA Skyrockets. The Tigers won their opener over Shamrock, 7-4, and have since been luckless in falling to Wheeler, 20-9; Stinetz, 45-9, while tying Panhandle, 13-13. Wellington has defeated Hollis, Memphis, and Clarendon, and has lost to Lefors and Floydada.

Canadian vs Shamrock
The Canadian Wildcats host the Irishmen Friday night after having won their first victory of the season last week over Gruver, 28-7. Canadian has faced a rugged schedule this deep in the season, having been defeated by Wheeler, Perryton and White Deer. The Irish also have one victory to their credit against three losses. Shamrock won over Hollis, Okla., and lost to McLean, Lefors and Clarendon.

White Deer vs Friona
The White Deer Bucks remain in the ranks of the undefeated and go for their sixth straight victory as they host Friona Friday. The Bucks string of victims include Gruver, Clarendon, Lefors, Canadian and McLean.

Lefors vs Stinetz
In the only Saturday game slated for the area, the top rated Stinetz Rattlers will host the Lefors Pirates in a game set for 8 p.m. Stinetz is undefeated this far in the season. The Pirates carry a 2-2 record into the game, having downed Shamrock, 20-7, and Wellington, 12-6, while losing to White Deer, 20-7, and Panhandle, 21-13.

High School Coaches Team Grid Ratings

By ED FITE
United Press Sports Writer
DALLAS (UP)—Graham's stampeding Steers swept into a tie for the No. 1 spot with Nederland today in the United Press Texas High School Football Coaches Board Class AAA ratings although they got only four first-place ballots to the Bulldogs' 10.

The Steers made the jump from third to a tie with Nederland at 143 points each on the strength of a 92-0 rout of Comanche which built their season scoring average to 77.7 points per game in three victories.

Graham, which defeated Jacksboro 56-0 and Fort Worth Tech 35-0 in earlier contests, polled eight for second, three for third and one for fourth, while Nederland got three second, one place ballots and two for third. One coach did not rate the Bulldogs.

The 16 coaches making up the UP Board didn't figure a 41-20 pasting by Abilene to be too much of a disgrace and dropped Breckenridge only three notches from second to fifth behind the co-leaders, Fort Neches and Kilgore. Actually, Fort Neches and Breckenridge swapped places—with idle Kilgore holding its own. Port Neches defeated Freeport 20-7 and Nederland beat Baton Rouge 13-0 on a 14-0 spot week.

Snyder, Brenham, Sweetwater
San Antonio Edison and Andrews rounded out the top 10. All were in that group last week, but in different positions. Snyder moved up one to sixth, Brenham up three, Sweetwater up two and Andrews down one from a week ago, while Palestine slipped from eighth to 11th while being idled by flu.

Edison dropped three places due to a 28-23 tie with Conroe, but had 15 flu-ridden players.

A clash between Snyder and game matching top 10 teams, but Breckenridge marks the only game matching top 10 teams, but Palestine gets a chance to surge back into the top 10 when it meets Kilgore. Nederland plays Lake Neches meets Beaumont South Fort Worth North Side, Port Neches meets Beaumont South Park, Sweetwater plays Monahan and Edison is idle.

Harvesters Meet Palo Duro Tomorrow

Pampa Squad Hampered By Illness In First AAAA Tilt

By CHARLES CULLIN
Pampa News Sports Editor

The Pampa Harvesters wrapped practice today in preparation for the clash tomorrow night with the powerful Palo Duro Dons in Amarillo. The game will mark the opening contest in District 3-A AAAA for both teams.

The Dons have a perfect string of wins for the season, having defeated Fort Worth Poly, 19-0; Midland, 13-2, and Bowie of El Paso, 33-7.

Palo Duro uses the split-T formation with the offensive line averaging 179 pounds per man. The offensive backs average 168 per man, making an average weight of 175. Defensively, the average is 170 pounds in the line and 162 pounds in the backfield.

The Harvesters have a season record of one win against three losses, having lost to Austin of El Paso, 27-7; Midland, 20-7, and Wichita Falls, 39-7, while defeating Arlington Heights of Fort Worth, 7-6.

Texas "Eyes" May Focus On Wrong Goal

By JOHN COLTON
United Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON (UP)—The eyes of Texas may be on Texas and Oklahoma when they meet Saturday in Dallas but a spectacular man under duo at Rice Institute may prove the spectators focused on the wrong goal.

Rice, sparked by triple-threaters King Hill and Frank Ryan and with a clean 2-0 record, meets nationally-ranked Duke in Houston Saturday night and the game is as natural as a 7-come-11. Actually, that's the ratings—Duke is seventh in the United Press ratings while Rice is 11th.

Average weight in the Harvester line is 175, with a 150-pound average in the backfield.

Compared with total opposition, Pampa has gained 48 first downs compared with 53 for other teams, and has gained 615 yards rushing compared with 908 for the opposition. The Harvesters lead in the passing department with 227 yards gained compared with 155 for other teams, making a total offense of 842 yards compared with 1008 for opposing teams.

Bo Winger In Exhibition Golf Match Here Tomorrow

An exhibition golf match, featuring Bo Winger and top area pro will be held tomorrow at the Pampa Country Club, beginning at 1:15.

Hart Warren, country club pro, announced that Rodman Supply and General Supply were sponsoring the return of Winger to the Pampa links.

The foursome will be composed of Winger and Warren, who will oppose Joe Houck and J. T. Hammett of Borger.

The average family automobile is driven 7,900 miles a year.

Canadian To Host Shamrock In Area "Game Of The Week"

The Canadian Wildcats will host the Shamrock Irishmen Friday night for the contest selected as the area game of the week.

The Wildcats won their first victory of the season last Friday as they downed Gruver, 25-7. Previously the Canadian team had lost to Wheeler, 13-6; Perryton, 4-0, and White Deer, 20-14.

Sparking the Wildcat offense is John Grist, Larry Schaefer and Ken Abraham. Grist has led the running attack while quarterback Abraham has proved effective in engineering an able aerial game. In district 2-A, Canadian ranks as a top contender for the crown held by the Clarendon Broncos.

Winters Still In Lead Offensively

NEW YORK (UP)—Bob Winters of Utah State retained the total offense and forward passing leadership and Wray Carlton of Duke the scoring lead, but there were new leaders in the other five departments of statistics compiled today for college football by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau.

Winters leads in total offense with 515 yards gained in 95 plays, 87 of them pass attempts. He completed 38 passes for 492 yards. Carlton scored eight points as Duke beat Maryland, and has scored 40 points in three games.

BURDETTE SEEKS NO. 3
NEW YORK (UP)—Lew Burdette, picked to start the final game of the World Series for Milwaukee today, will be seeking his third win of the 1957 classic. The last pitcher to accomplish this feat was left-hander Harry Brecheen of the St. Louis Cardinals 11 years ago.

RED-WINGS OPEN SEASON
DETROIT (UP)—The Detroit Red Wings, National Hockey League regular season titlists in eight of the last nine years, open their 1957-58 campaign tonight against the New York Rangers.

The new leader in punting is Dave Sherr of Southern Methodist with an average of 50.3 yards on nine punts in two games, and the new leader in punt returns is Oregon State's Sterling Hammack with 127 yards in nine returns. Billy Cannon leads in kickoff returns with 224 yards on six kick-offs.

"I'll never forget the telephone call that changed me from a Miss to a Mrs."

Does any single telephone call stand out in your memory? Mrs. Richard Meyer remembers one vividly. She calls it the turning point of her life . . .

An interview with Mrs. Richard Meyer by telephone news reporter Don Davis

MRS. RICHARD (RUTH) MEYER had no idea the course of her life was about to be changed when the telephone rang that August night two years ago.

A college student named Dick Meyer, whom Ruth had met the night before, was on the phone asking for a date. "Luckily," Ruth says, smiling, "I had nothing else to do but wash my hair, so I said 'yes.'"

That night marked the beginning of the romance climaxed by Ruth and Dick's wedding a few months ago.

After that first date, the two young people saw a lot of each other. When Dick couldn't make it over to Ruth's—he'd call "just to talk."

As a matter of fact, the telephone in Ruth's house was so busy her dad arranged for a second main line. "Daddy wanted to use the phone now and then, too!" Ruth says laughing.

LONG DISTANCE ROMANCE

After graduating from college, Dick entered the Army. That's when their romance came into full bloom, according to Ruth. "When Dick couldn't make it home on week ends, he'd telephone. Those calls made our separation a lot easier."

Then came the most exciting night of all. Dick, who had been visiting relatives in a distant city, decided to drive back to see Ruth even though it was snowing very hard. Ruth knew he was coming and was "a little nervous" knowing the hazardous driving conditions. Finally her telephone rang. It was Dick. He had arrived safely in town, and he'd be right over.

Later that evening he proposed.

There's a little bit of every romance in this happy story. And it serves as a reminder of the important part the telephone plays in our daily lives.

Perhaps you've had a telephone call, or calls, you'll never forget. If so, and you'd care to tell me about it, just drop a line to me, Don Davis, here at the telephone company. We'd be happy to hear about it.

Ball And Chain

It seems strange that a people as thoroughly mechanical as Americans, seem to labor under a serious disadvantage when they try to understand economics. In large measure, economics is simply the mechanics of exchanges as they occur voluntarily in the market place.

The young man who can understand each pulsing beat of a gasoline engine, or the whirring throb of a dynamo or other electric gadget, is apparently at a dead loss when it comes to fathoming the ebb and flow of goods and money between people. Yet in many respects there are great similarities and ever identical motions which occur, both in any engine or mechanical contrivance and in the market place.

Any school boy with an ounce of mechanical know-how can tell you that the problem of setting up any kind of a motor or other mechanism is to contrive a device which will not unduly waste energy. A specific purpose is always in mind. The best device for accomplishing that specific purpose, is the device which will do the work with the least possible interferences with the job to be performed.

But this is also true in the market place. For example, a corporation owns a factory which makes widgets. This factory, let us suppose, is as modern and streamlined as present engineering techniques can make it. It is employing brains, skills and brawn; tools, money and machines, out of which combination pour an endless stream of widgets. Does this make the factory successful? It doesn't begin to.

The widgets, when manufactured, must be sold and distributed. The factory management is concerned not only with the creation of the widget, but with its movement to the ultimate consumer. And it must make this movement as efficient as is humanly possible, for any inefficiency in sales and service reflects in the overall price which must be charged for the widget.

And also, let us remember that the factory management is dedicated to making and distributing the widget at the lowest possible cost. Not because the management is philanthropic in character, but because it must compete. And therefore, its ultimate price must be competitive, which means that all of the motions of the mechanism both within the factory and without must be skillful, economically feasible and with as little friction as possible.

The same is true in the manufacture of an automobile. After developing a fine engine, the manufacturer does not sit on his hands. He must put the engine in a chassis and free both from any unnecessary frictions and losses in energy. He would not think of making an automobile and then insisting that a large chain be fastened to the rear axle, the ultimate end of which would be anchored to a 1000-pound weight. He would know that such chain and anchor would hamper the operation of the vehicle.

Yet while striving to make the best of all possible automobiles, or the best of all possible widgets, this is precisely what we do, economically, although we would scorn such a practice mechanically.

The chain we attach to the vehicle and to the widget and to every factory and every enterprise, is the chain of governmental dependence, and the anchor is the government itself. This added burden in our economy is what is slowing it down.

We should understand that like the chain and anchor, the government does nothing productive whatsoever. It simply compels all of us to drag it behind all of our economic efforts. The money we put into this anchor and chain is for the most part wasted. Mechanically, such a device is silly. Economically speaking, it is just as silly.

We burden ourselves stupidly and repetitively by our dependence upon this drag. It does nothing for us whatsoever beyond a modicum of protection which might be provided by other means less costly and more effective. Its only merit is that allegedly it slows us all down equally, thereby inflicting no more harm on one than on another.

But even this alleged virtue fails when government advances to the point that it is dispensing favors to some. For if it dispensed favors to all equally, then they would not be favors.

We are in great need in this country for real economic understanding. If we ever achieve it, we will know unerringly that government simply provides a source of economic friction which reduces our capacity to do anything constructively. If we can ever free ourselves from this self-induced load there is no telling how far we may yet go.

WHY DOES THE SCHOOL BOARD ACT THAT WAY?

(Brownsville, Tex., Herald)

They're all "good ole boys," as the saying goes, but when they get on the school board you would n't know they were the same fellers. Now, why is that? Well, it's not hard to figure. Probably most of them run for school board because they've been told they have what is known, for a lack of a better term, as "a community responsibility." It would be uncharitable to suggest that here & there you'll find a fellow who likes to get his name in the paper and figures it is good advertising for his business or profession. Let it pass. Granting that it would be uncharitable to shoot the piano player because he's doing the best he can, what makes the "perfeesser" hit so many clinkers? Why do the "good ole boys" act that way when they get on the school board? Simply because they are faced with dilemmas that would have turned Solomon into a raving maniac. They are chiefs without Indians. They have no real authority to do anything even remotely connected with the sophisticated philosophical operation of the school system. The little school districts are on the date! Austin supports them, and Austin tells them what to teach, and how much and out of which books. There is a show of "local control" by the maintenance of the archaic "local school board" system, but as the board members soon find out, they have about as much authority over the school system as a buck sergeant does over the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

And this gnawing feeling of impotence gets on their nerves. Granting that they are honest men ("good ole boys"), they know there is more wrong than right with the huge, tax-eating public school octopus which is controlled on a national level by the most accomplished bunch of burglars

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. Hollies
Freedom To Shop Around
No. 3

I am continuing to quote from an address by Hart Buck before the Queensway Lions Club, Toronto, Canada. Under the subhead of "Common Interests," he writes: "We are used to thinking of various groups of people as necessarily opposed in their economic interests; in particular, that the interest of employees is in natural conflict with that of investors and businessmen: It's not.

"The economic system is a means whereby people get together to produce things for themselves. The investor is the man who lends us the tools we work with. The businessman leads us through the productive process. Under the free market, all of us alike have the same interest in bigger and bigger production. There is no conflict of interests unless the market is not free.

"We are disposed to think of employees as unfortunate underdogs, whom only enlightened laws now save from such ill-treatment and overwork and underpayment as they used to suffer at the hands of businessmen a century ago. They didn't.

"The reason why people worked long hours for a low standard of living in the early factories and coal mines was that there were not enough tools to enable them to turn out enough of a product to earn them a better living in shorter hours. The reason why children of nine can stay in school, instead of working in cotton mills and coal mines as they did in nineteenth-century England, is that we have enough equipment to produce all the coal and cloth we need without putting children to work; and therefore are well enough off to keep them from starving, without falling back on what they can earn. In fact, neither public enlightenment, nor legislation, but only tools and equipment, have improved the living standards of all of us. Workers in this equipment-rich country are not underdogs. They are Canadians.

Source of Earnings "We have got the idea that there are natural limits to what a man is entitled to earn, either from his services or from the use of equipment that he owns; beyond which limits, his income can only arise at the expense of the toiling masses. There aren't."

"It is only in a market where everybody is not perfectly free to shop around that anybody can gain anything at the expense of anyone else. Under a free market, if one man earns more than another, it can only be because he performs more service to the toiling masses. (By the way, they seldom let the incomes of movie queens, television stars, and hockey heroes bother them, even if these personages produce no more than most businessmen do, and get paid more than most businessmen for doing it.)

"We are accustomed to think of an economy more or less government-controlled as preferable to the free market, and to disagree mainly over the extent of control desirable, on the ground that only government action can prevent some people from earning too much and others too little, and on the further ground that only government action can save us from business readjustments, recession, and depression. It can't.

"Only the free market can prevent people from earning too much or too little, and only the free market can save us from the business cycle. We get readjustments and worse things because we have enjoyed the intoxicating overprosperity of a boom. We can only have a boom because businessmen have been fooled into over-expansion by cheap credit. We can only have cheap credit because governments have given us the everlasting temptation to make money easier to get than goods are to make. The readjustment comes when businessmen find that there isn't enough equipment in existence to carry out all their carefully-laid plans. Because of the lack of equipment, they find they cannot afford this because they owe too much. The expansion of cheap credit has been nothing but an expansion of debt. The business cycle results from too much debt, and from nothing else."

Warren Again Makes Self Controversial Figure

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON. — Chief Justice Earl Warren has once again made himself an extremely controversial figure in national politics by his refusal to require a delay in election of new officers of the disgraced Teamsters' Union. It was hailed as a great triumph by the Hoffa-Beck forces in their effort to retain control of this powerful organization.

Only a few days before the Warren ruling, which he delivered alone on an appeal from lower courts, Senator McClellan had declared that at least 50 per cent of the Tamser delegates to the Miami convention had been selected illegally.

EVIDENCE WANTING — There is, of course, no suggestion that Warren was motivated by political considerations. He made clear that there was no specific evidence before him to support the McClellan indictment, or the petition of anti-Hoffa union representatives.

However, Chief Justice Warren's attitude on the racial and labor questions will be cited by Republican strategists and propagandists as reasons why these powerful elements should reconsider their 20-year devotion to the Roosevelt, Truman Party in the 1958-1960 elections.

It will not be the first time, with the Deal Scott and early anti-New Deal decisions in mind, that the Supreme Court's actions, and especially those of the Chief Justice, have been a factor and an issue in American politics.

WORK LEGISLATION — The high tribunal's eventual ruling on another matter of vast concern to labor may muddle or clarify the political situation before the 1960 Presidential election. It involves the so-called "right to work" legislation, which bars a closed shop, and which has been enacted by 18 states.

COURT RULING AWAITED — Now, it appears that the Warren tribunal will have to take a stand on the "right to work" litigation before the 1960 election. Numerous cases involving county and state laws on the subject, including several from California, are progressing to a Supreme Court test. The showdown should be staged before 1960, possibly before the California gubernatorial contest next year. In view of the present composition and philosophy of the Supreme Court, politico-legal experts generally agree that it would rule such legislation to be unconstitutional. And, as is customary when the

BETTY KNOWLES HUNT

TOO FAST FOR ME!

Many long, nostalgic years ago, when I was a child, the automobile was my passport to a wide and wonderful world of new experiences and pleasures. Years before my parents acquired a car, I was privileged on special occasions to ride along with a doctor-uncle when he made house-calls. I remember sitting on the high front seat of his old black Dodge, skimming down city streets and country roads at what must have been all of twenty miles an hour, feeling proud as a queen. When it rained, we snapped on little side curtains and felt as cozy as kittens in a warm kitchen. My doctor-uncle has a goatee, a mysterious black bag, and a memory chuck full of stories about people and places which I lapped up like a hungry blotter. It was wonderful!

Another uncle, who lived farther away, had a huge, glamorous Lincoln, in which he and his wife, plus my parents, used to take occasional pleasure trips to the White Mountains, or Vermont, or Cape Cod, or the Berkshires, or over the Mohawk Trail into New York State. On at least a dozen occasions, I managed to worm my way into their plans, and they took me along for the ride, the only child among four adults. My sister never went because she got car sick, and my big brother never went because he preferred playing baseball and some kids would have been bored stiff riding along for hours, just looking at woods and farms and new villages, and listening to a steady hum of grown-up conversation. But it was heaven to me! Even today I can close my eyes and remember vivid incidents of those trips, like the taste of thick yellow cream on figs on a crisp October morning at breakfast in a little inn in Dorset, Vermont. And the feel of a hard, cold key in my suit pocket the first time I was given a Hotel room of my own to sleep in, to shower and dress in, to lock and unlock the door to. It even had a telephone just for me, and I shall never forget the shiver that ran through me when it rang just as I was crawling into bed. A man's low voice asked soberly if I was Miss Knowles, and I replied in my most grown-up voice. "This is Miss Knowles, speaking." It was my father calling me from the room next door to say Good Night, and knowing only too well the lovely lift he was giving his 10-year-old daughter. Bless his heart!

Then there were those exciting first years of driving a car myself, the thrill of speed and power at my fingertips. I drove everywhere and anywhere, at the drop of a suggestion, and I never got tired or tense or bored. I remember taking off impulsively one morning with some friends from Massachusetts for a week-end in Montreal. It was wonderful! So was New York, and so was Washington!

And then I got married and had three babies and my driving days suddenly ended. My husband drove our one car to work, and I stayed home or walked to the stores. Whenever we went anywhere together, my husband automatically drove, and it went on that way for a long, long time.

But a few years ago, my husband suddenly found himself with a company car, and I suddenly found myself with a car in the garage. It was kind of fun getting behind a wheel again, although my driving was limited to shopping, marketing and chauffeuring the children within the confines of our village area. I did notice that the traffic was outrageously heavy everywhere, and that drivers seemed bent upon making every corner and cross-street a danger zone, and that parking was an enervating problem. And eventually, after many months, I realized that driving wasn't really any fun any more. A car was a convenience for getting places, but the actual driving of it was becoming a headache of frustration and tension.

And then, this summer I was forced to drive a fairly long distance on two Super Highways, one in Massachusetts and one in Wisconsin, and that was when I became acutely aware that the world had speeded up and passed me by — probably for good! The minimum required speed on these so-called dream highways, was 60 miles per hour, with most drivers traveling at 70 and 80 and up. Conversation with passengers became impossible, and as for viewing the scenery with cars whizzing by to left and right, that became unthinkable. Danger and death seemed to be lurking over the brow of every hill and around every bend. I found myself praying silently that we might all get there safely, and when we did, stepped out of the car totally exhausted, and with the relief a sailor must feel when he spies land after hours of being lost in the fog. What price progress; or could it be that I am merely growing old?

leagues and members of allied professions.

The principal objective of the medical profession is to render service to humanity. Physicians should merit the confidence of patients entrusted to their care, rendering to each a full measure of service and devotion.

Physicians should strive continually to improve medical knowledge and skill, and should make available to their patients and colleagues the benefits of their professional attainments.

A physician should practice a method of healing founded on a scientific basis. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION should safeguard the public and itself against physicians deficient in moral character or professional competence. Physicians should observe all laws, uphold the dignity and honor of the profession and accept its self-imposed disciplines. They should expose, without hesitation, illegal or unethical conduct of fellow members of the profession.

A physician may choose whom he will serve. In an emergency, however, he should render service to the best of his ability. Having undertaken the care of a patient, he may not neglect him; and unless he has been discharged he may not discontinue his services until he has given adequate notice. He should not solicit patients.

A PHYSICIAN should not dispose of his services under terms or conditions which tend to interfere with or impair the free and complete exercise of his medical judgment and skill or tend to cause a deterioration of the quality of medical care.

His fee should be commensurate with the services rendered and the patient's ability to pay. A physician should seek consultation upon request; in doubtful or difficult cases; or whenever it appears that the quality of medical service may be enhanced thereby.

A PHYSICIAN may not reveal the confidences entrusted to him in the course of medical attendance, or the deficiencies he may observe in the character of patients, unless he is required to do so by law or unless it becomes necessary in order to protect the welfare of the individual or of the community.

These principles are intended to aid physicians in maintaining a high level of ethical conduct. They are not laws but standards by which a physician may determine propriety of his conduct in his relationship with patients, colleagues and members of allied professions.

Physicians adhere to high set of standards. Therefore, I shall base this column on the revised Principles of Medical Ethics recently adopted by the House of Delegates of the American Medical Assn.

These principles are intended to aid physicians in maintaining a high level of ethical conduct. They are not laws but standards by which a physician may determine propriety of his conduct in his relationship with patients, colleagues and members of allied professions.

Of Horses And Statues In Florence, Italy

By HENRY McEMORE

FLORENCE — This is the greatest town in the world for statues.

There are even statues at the race track, as I found out yesterday when I spent an unhappy afternoon betting on them.

My selections weren't really made of marble, but they acted as if they were. Three of them didn't run fast or far enough to have gotten off a pedestal and one of them didn't run at all.

His name was Venezia Ducale, and I'll never forget him. A three-year-old colt, by Tragheto out of Veto, he was as pretty as Nansha, and at 8 to 1 looked like a steal over the other colts in the race, most of whom were so fat they looked as if they had been feeding on spaghetti, not oats.

These Italians don't know a thing about horses. I told Mary as the field paraded to the post, "Either that, or something funny is going on. Look at Venezia Ducale! Why, he should be 1 to 4 against the likes of those horses. Hell, win in a walk, or my name is Sebastian Toddy."

Well, you can call me Sebastian Toddy from now on. Venezia Ducale not only didn't win the race — he didn't even run! With the sound of the starting bell, my colt reared up on his hind legs, arched his neck proudly, arranged his forelegs in a pawing position, and gave a fine whinny.

There he stayed, unmindful of the departure of the rest of the field around a bend and of his jockey's urgings to come down to earth and get moving.

It was not until the other horses were half-way around the track that Venezia Ducale came down on all fours.

"Too late now!" I called to him. But he wasn't going anywhere. After a second — to catch his breath, I suppose — Venezia Ducale went up in the air again and struck another grand posse. He was still there when the race ended. It was a steal at 8 to 1, all right. He should have been 10,000 to 1 — a stage money acceptable.

Not being able to speak Italian, I was unable to inquire about Venezia's behavior. But I have my own theories. One is that he has seen so many statues in Florence that he has come to believe that he is one.

Another, and more likely one, is

SCALES OF JUSTICE

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—Robert Lee Park, 432 - pound estranged husband of a striptease artist, was held today on charges of passing three phony checks because "it's just too much exertion to work."

Police said Park, 32, of San Antonio, Tex., is wanted in eight other cities on bad check charges. Officers said they had to weigh the suspect on cotton scales because police scales didn't go high enough.

WASHINGTON — Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) on Russia beating the United States in the race to develop an earth satellite. "It's high time the administration stopped putting economy before security."

TEN TEEN TWINS IN TENTH—Teachers and students in the 10th grade of the Lakewood (O.) High School have been seeing double not once but five times since the fall term opened. To make it easier for all concerned, the five sets of twins dress differently and cultivate individual habits. They are, from left: Marian and Margaret Fleischer, 16; Sandra and Sharon Stand, 15; Maggie and Mollie Steffens, 14; Barbara and Bonnie Penbridge, 15, and Michael and Mary Gads, 13, who (obviously) have the least trouble looking different.

DOG'S BEST FRIEND—Flash, a blind greyhound, is led across a Southampton, England, street by his own "seeing eye" dog, a fox terrier named Peggy. The small dog's ability to serve as a guide for the greyhound has saved the latter from being destroyed by local authorities. Peggy, in turn, was saved from destruction seven years ago by Mr. G. Corbin of Southampton. It is truly a new life for both dogs.

Women Today Wear The Pants At Home

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Today's woman wears the pants at home, even if hubby bosses the household.
This fall, the top fashions for hearthside are fancy trousers and skirts, or the two in combination—and many of them so elaborate you'd think the wearer was headed for a ball.
"It's about time glamor at home caught on," said young Tom Brigrance, an old hand at creating leisure wear NOT meant for bending over a hot cook stove.
"I've always opposed that jeans-at-home business," said Brigrance. "Jeans aren't feminine... they're too workmanlike."
Brigrance advocates an at-home wardrobe, and if you're not constructed for those skinny trousers—there are plenty of skirts—some street length, some sweeping the floor. One of the most striking costumes in his collection is black taffeta combined with yellow satin.
Others Doing Same
The taffeta is used for a coat, and on the lines of a man's suit, but with eyelid cutout around the hem to help display the yellow trousers.
Brigrance is just one of numerous designers lending opulence to the hearthside. Leo Ritter, a furrier, made mink jackets to top lounging pajamas.
Robert Rosenfeld used fake fur, a leopard printed velvet, for one piece, tapered trousers topped with a flowing skirt in either green or flame red satin. Another Rosenfeld number is a combination of light trousers and voluminous over-skirt—the former in red satin, the latter in black chiffon.
Designer Tina Leser used gold lame for a figure-hugging, one-piece pajama topped with a flowing "harem coat" of mauve or orange.
Fashions Not New
Sydney Wragge, who won the 1957 American Fashion Critics Award, featured brocade, silk linen, printed silk and tweed in combination with silk, the tweed, in black and white, forms a pulling skirt with fringe hem, topped with slacks in brilliant pink.
"At-home wear is hardly new," said Brigrance. "But you'd think some stores had just rediscovered it."
Designers list several reasons for the at-home fashions boom.

Patrice Munsel Says, 'Opera Singers Are Not Squares'

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Patrice Munsel, the first Metropolitan Opera star ever to pilot her own network TV series, wants to get one thing straight at the start—she's not a square.
"It's terrible, the picture some people have of opera," said Munsel with a frowning frown. "They get this image of a big fat soprano puffing away, clutching a big white handkerchief. She is singing something that not only sounds awful, it sounds comic."
Miss Munsel, a soprano who is neither fat nor puffing, clutched a billowy white table napkin and dug vigorously into her chopped sirloin. "You think of us as a bunch of squares. Well, I'm not a square and neither are many of the other singers I know."
"That's one of the reasons I'm so anxious to do this TV show—I want to show people that opera singers don't weigh 280 pounds that they're human and know how to have fun."
Assisted by Husband
Miss Munsel will launch her new half-hour ABC-TV entry on Oct. 18. Assisted by her husband, Bob Schuler, who is producing the show, she has worked up a catch-all musical format.
"Oh, I'll slip in an operatic aria every now and then," said Munsel, "just so the viewers can get to learn for themselves that opera isn't so bad. But I'll also do novelties, good pop and standards."
"We'll probably have a basic idea for each show. The sponsor has given us a floating commercial that we can stick in anywhere.—If we want to do a story, for instance, we can do it in one piece without breaking in."
"The sponsor (Buick) told me they'd let me do anything I want to do and that's one of the big reasons I decided to get into TV. And of course, the money—I won't say that had nothing to do with it."
In For Grueling Go
Miss Munsel, also ticketed in for 12 performances at the Met this season, is aware she may be in for a gruelling go. "It's going to be taxing," she said. "Fortunately, I have a husband who is a good organizer and the Met has cooperated so I won't have any real emergencies on Friday, the day of my show. But I will have some Saturday performances and that may be a little rough."
"But I want to diversify my talents and this is my chance. I've done light opera ('Naughty Marietta'), 'Rose Marie', a picture ('Meib' and worked Las Vegas with an act. I've always liked TV and it seems to me if I'm well organized enough, I won't have

Matter of Fact

Roquefort, sometimes called the "king of cheese," was made as far back as 1070 A.D. at the monastery of Conques, France. By international copyright, the name cannot be used for similar types of cheese made elsewhere. The American product, "blue cheese," closely resembles Roquefort, which is sheep's milk cheese streaked with blue mold, while blue cheese is made from cows' milk. Blue cheese is cured in rooms where moisture and temperature are carefully controlled so that they are similar to conditions found in caves where Roquefort cheese is kept.

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Gisele Mackenzie has found a solution for video stars who tire of the public limelight. "Go to Europe," she advises, "people over there don't know TV stars from Adam."
Just back from 2 1/2 weeks in Rome, Venice, London and Paris, the willowy songbird found all the privacy she wanted.
"Too much, in fact," she laughed. "I got lonesome over there."
"In most countries television still is a novelty. American programs are rare except in England. The only people who stop and stare are American tourists—the same characters who stare at you over here."

After four years on "Your Hit Parade," Gisele has moved to her own half-hour variety show.
Her backers: Jack Benny, Benny Givens, Advice.
"Mr. Benny advised me a year ago it was time to strike out on my own," she said. "He said either you move ahead or slide back in television. And if you're standing still you're losing ground."
"So now Mr. Benny's company, J-M Productions, is producing my show on NBC. He will do all the script editing himself."
"Mr. Benny will be a guest star on the program a little later on in the season, too. His participation has given me a lot of confidence in myself and the show."
Benny has played a large role in Gisele's career. He spotted her first singing with Bob Crosby in a Las Vegas hotel. When he learned that "Hit Parade" was seeking a girl vocalist the comedian set up one of the most expensive auditions in show business history.
Gisele Gets Job
Gisele appeared on his TV show. And Jack saw to it that the "Hit Parade" sponsors were watching. Gisele got the job.
"I'm thrilled, excited and scared about doing my own show," the dark-haired Gisele said. "The scripts call for me to sing, dance and take part in comedy routines. I'll play the violin and piano, too."
"I hope we can work in another violin duet with Mr. Benny," she concluded. "Our first one on his show three years ago is what launched the idea of my having a show of my own some day. And now it's come true."

Slight Gene Paul Norris Would Kill Most Anyone For A Price;

Editor's Note: Gene Paul Norris was described by lawmen as the most dangerous man in the Southwest before he died in a hail of bullets last April. This is the first of two dispatches outlining his career of robbery and murder.

FORT WORTH (UP)—Slight, boyish-looking Gene Paul Norris would kill anyone for a price.
When his gun wasn't hired, he had no trouble finding uses for it. Norris pulled some of the most daring robberies the Southwest has seen since prohibition days.

He was, without doubt, the worst killer Texas has known since the turn of the century. His record is far worse than that of Clyde Barrow.
"It is widely rumored in the underworld that Norris killed 40 persons," Texas Ranger Capt. Jay Banks says. "That's a pretty well-founded rumor, too."
Other estimates come lower, such as that of Fort Worth Police Chief Cato Hightower, who credits Norris with nine murders. All of those directly concerned Fort Worth, however. Norris was the triggerman in the Dallas-Fort Worth gang, and several of the gangland killings are attributed to his gun.

Norris, black-haired and smiling beneath the baleful eyes of a rattlesnake, didn't come cheap. The underworld rumors his fee at $5,000 for one killing.

No Stray Witnesses
Not all were contracted. Norris killed to protect himself, also. "If he used a man to help him on a job, that man's days were probably numbered," Banks says. Norris didn't like loose witnesses hanging around.

Gene Paul followed his older brother into the bloody life. Pete was soon detailed and is now serving a grand total of 700 years in prison.

It has been said the thing Gene Paul wanted most was to free Pete, once the FBI's Public Enemy No. 1. He tried once, springing his brother from a prison farm, and drew eight years in Huntsville penitentiary for his trouble.

After serving two years of that sentence and gaining parole, Norris drifted to Fort Worth, where he teamed with Alcatraz graduate Floyd Hill.

In October, 1953, Hill and a machine gun-wielding pal held up a trio of Cuban gun-runners at the Western Hills motel in Fort Worth. The take was $248,000. Hill's partner was undoubtedly Norris, but he beat the rap.

Produced Evidence
Although the gun-runners identified him as the man who was to have helped them obtain munitions for a revolt in Cuba and instead robbed them, the jury acquitted Norris when he produced witnesses saying he was in Duncan, Okla., at the time.

Hill wasn't so lucky. The FBI arrested him while he was digging up his share of the loot and he was convicted. Norris went back to prison, however, as a parole violator and was released in 1955.

Knowland Talks Trust-Busting Methods On Organized Labor

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Out there in California unsmiling Sen. William F. Knowland is talking about maybe using trust-buster methods to prevent monopoly in organized labor.

That's news because Knowland may be heading for the White House.
There have been complaints that big organized labor can be a monopoly just like big business. Knowland is campaigning toward next year's GOP nomination for governor of California. He is opposed by Republican Gov. Goodwin J. Knight who was elected in 1954 with labor's endorsement.

Knowland is regarded as the spokesman of the Taft wing of Taft point of view in the Republican Party, the Taft being the late Sen. Robert A., of Ohio.

Knowland's approach to the problem posed by the great power, prestige, influence and wealth gamblers. Gene Paul caught wind of this doublecross and on Aug. 2, 1956, a bomb ripped Cates' house, nearly killing him.
Soon after Cates recovered, Norris called him and said he had some hot diamonds to dispose of. On the night of Oct. 8, 1956, Cates went to a meeting with Norris at a lonely spot near Watuanga in Tarrant county. He hired Norris to eliminate six competing gamblers.

Cates didn't stop there. He hired the late Jack Nesbitt to kill Norris after Norris eliminated the of organized labor is in the Taft tradition. It was Taft in the 80th Congress who spurned chairmanship of the choice Senate Finance Committee, preferring to preside over the Senate Labor Committee. Out of that decision came the Taft-Hartley Act.

Taft proved that it need not be political suicide to buck organized labor. The labor leaders ranged up on him with men and money when the senator sought re-election in 1950. The drive of the labor effort for four counties. He won every industrial county in the state.

Knowland probably knows all about that. He has proposed now that California enact a right-to-work bill which would outlaw compulsory union membership. The recent California convention of the AFL resolved to raise a political fund big enough to beat the bill. The senator followed up with "a bill of rights for labor." He said he might expand that to include application of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act to unions on the same basis as it applies to corporations.

The bill of labor rights would provide for election and recall of union officers; for strike calls by secret ballot; administration of union welfare funds would be made subject to state insurance laws; strict accountability for union dues and initiation funds; protection of members against unfair and retaliatory action by union officers; prevention of self-perpetuation of union officers in their jobs.
