Missile Probe Ready

By RAYMOND M. LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate leaders today appeared ready to push ahead with a full-scale investigation into what the entire U.S. space-missile effort needs to win the race for superiority over Russia.

Once launched, the broad congressional inquiry presumably would also attempt to pin down BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (UP)—Plans to launch the first U.S. satellite from Cape Canaveral, Fla., dimmed today in the face of an impending strike by a clerical union.

conclusively whether and just how far Russia—with two Sputniks in the air—is ahead in rocket development.

The decision facing Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson and Sen. Styles Bridges (N.H.), ranking GOP member of the committee, was how far a preliminary investigation already started by the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee should be broadened.

Johnson, Not Convinced—Johnson, chairman of the Preparedness group, emerged from a seven-hour defense department briefing Monday unconvinced that the U.S. missile program is kept-mitted called more defense offing-up with Russia's.

The House Manpower Subcommittee today to testify why the three services are permitted to conduct separate missile programs. Subcommittee Chairman James C. Davis (D-Ga.) said it was "pretty obvious" the Defense Department hadn't managed missile research and development personnel properly.

The administration has not ventured any new public assessments despite fears raised by Democratic congressmen that the two Soviet satellite launchings seem to bear out Russian claims of possessing an intercontinental ballistic missile.

Cabinet Meets Today—President Eisenhower, who has been in contact with top advisers since Sputnik I went up Oct. 4, held the first of two cabinet meetings today to map next year's legislative campaign. White House aides said the missile question would not be considered but it was still expected to overshadow consideration of military spending.

Defense officials were keeping an eye on a threatened strike that could shut down the vital Cape Canaveral, Fla., missile firing range. Monday the strike, divvied among the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks authorized the calling of a strike by 600 workers, some of whom are employed at the range.

Commission Takes No Action On Traffic Recommendations

By FRED M. PARKER
Pampa News Staff Writer
No action was taken this morning by the City Commission on the recommendations of the Traffic Commission.

The report on findings by the traffic group at a recent meeting was made by Monte Cotter, chairman of the traffic group.

Cotter reported that the recommendation of the Traffic Commission in regards to right turns on red lights is in favor of keeping the present ordinance which prohibits such turns. Other recommendations, including the elimination of parking on one side of Cuyler, between Browning and Sunset Dr., were reported.

After hearing the report the commissioners felt that they should meet with the traffic group at a later date before taking action on the recommendation.

A request by Bill Frasier for a city inspection of water and sewer lines to be constructed in the Frasier Annex No. 3, north of 28th between Duncan and the Perryton highway; and in East Frasier Addition No. 3, to include two additional streets east of Dogwood, was approved by the commission.

Russians Say:

New Super Fuel Used In Sputnik

By HENRY SHAPIRO
United Press Staff Correspondent
MOSCOW (UP)—Soviet scientist T. Khachaturov said today a super fuel already developed in the Soviet Union could send a rocket to the moon in 10 hours, speeding at nearly 25,000 miles per hour.

Khachaturov said the new fuel which developed into a heavy rain this morning resulted in Pampa receiving a total of .51 of an inch of moisture during the 24 hour period preceding 11:30 this morning.

The fine drizzle developed into large rain drops during the morning. Snow started falling in Pampa shortly before noon today but was melting upon hitting the ground, already covered with water from rain earlier this morning.

ing and downtown streets turned into creeks before noon.

The latest recorded rainfall brings the total amount recorded by The News' rain gauge since the cold front moved in Saturday to 1.09 inches.

The continuing drizzle and rain are making some dirt roads nearly impassable and reports received this morning indicate that some county roads are passable only if vehicles use chains.

It is feared that the continuing cold and moisture will result in a heavy loss of grain and cotton crops in the area, Ralph Thomas, county agent, stated.

Elsewhere in the state the moisture has resulted in more serious problems.

Creeks were out of their banks in the upper Trinity River watershed today from rains that measured up to 5.41 inches.

Bonham reported 5.41 inches of rain since noon Sunday and the fall continued. The North Central Texas city reported 4.90 inches in the last 24 hours.

organ of the Soviet Transport Ministry.

Unprecedented Triumph—“We are witnessing an unprecedented triumph of the most advanced science, testifying to the beginning of a new era—an era of penetration into cosmic space,” he said.

Khachaturov, who is a corresponding member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, said in order to give the rocket propelling Sputnik II its “enormous speed of eight kilometers per second, new types of fuel were necessary.”

Interplanetary travel becomes obvious,” he said, “since with a speed of 11 kilometers per second (24,992 miles per hour) a rocket has already overcome the gravitational pull of the earth and can go into interplanetary space.

“A trip to the moon would require approximately 10 hours... the dreams of humanity will be materialized. We are passing the threshold of a new type of Soviet transport—interplanetary.”

Confirms Opinion—Khachaturov's comments on the new types of fuel confirmed the opinion here that such was required to launch the half ton of instruments of the second satellite.

Moscow radio referred Monday to “new sources of power” for its rockets but did not specify Monday what they were. It was not yet known whether it was a high caloric fuel or a form of atomic energy.

Directors Of CoC Set Meet Nov. 11—The November directors' meeting of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development will be held in the Palm Room of the City Hall on Nov. 11 at 12 p.m.

At this meeting, the chairman of the 14 work committees will be presented to the Board of Directors by the Executive Board for approval.

The work committees are set up as follows: (1) Agriculture and Livestock; (2) Aviation; (3) Fire Prevention, Sanitation and Safety; (4) Highways and Transportation; (5) Industrial Development; (6) Legislation and National Affairs; (7) Merchants Activities; (8) New Business Ventures; (9) Public Improvement; (10) Public Relations; (11) Publicity and General Information; (12) Sports and Recreation; (13) Oil and Gas; (14) Tourists Development.

The approval also included a stipulation that the city would reimburse Frasier for the cost of fireplugs and man-holes when the additions were brought into the city limits.

The second reading of Ordinance 482, providing for the annexation of two blocks of the Jarvis-8 one addition to the city, was approved this morning.

Estimates—An engineer's estimate in the amount of $38,906.67 was approved for payment to Ray Boswell for work completed on the current paving program. This is only for the actual work completed prior to today and stipulated that the actual topping would be completed next spring.

The city's share of the total cost of the paving is $9,441.13 with the remaining $29,465.54 being the cost to property owners on the streets being paved.

Optimists Kick Off Youth Week Program

The Pampa Optimist Club began activities in coordination with National Youth Appreciation Week last night at its regular weekly meeting with all members attending.

Boys entering the contest must not be over 15 years of age, but any boy interested, regardless of whether his family is affiliated with the Optimist Club, may enter. Entries compete in cities, districts and areas, with the finals being held at the annual national convention.

In addition to the program, the members discussed the present projects of the Boy's Club building, the boxing club and the Christmas tree sales.

Jordan stated that many teenagers were the victims of false conclusions as regarded juvenile delinquency, but that in actuality, less than 5 per cent of the teenagers of American have ever come before any court of law. He emphasized that the strength of any nation lies in the young people who are steadily replacing the generations ahead and will be the able leaders in the years to come.

Also for the program, recordings were played for the club by nationally known personalities endorsing Youth Appreciation Week.

A recording of the Optimist's national oratory contest winning speech was played in preparation for beginning the 1957 contest which will get underway in June.

Possibility Looms Of A 2nd Session

AUSTIN (UP)—The possibility of another 30-day special session of the legislature following the present one loomed today unless Gov. Price Daniel's legislations are passed promptly.

Daniel, in a 15-minute speech over a state-wide television and radio network, said Monday night a “large majority in the House and Senate wants to pass a reasonable but strict lobby bill, and I shall see that they have the opportunity.”

The present session ends a week from today. The Governor has power to call another 30-day session.

Interposed with pleas to voters to approve the three constitutional amendments at the polls today, Daniel noted “delaying tactics” in the session, and laid the blame on a “few lobbyists who still think that they can again defeat this legislation.”

“I have news for them,” he declared. “I intend to fight for this reform as long as it is necessary for a majority of both houses to pass upon the issue. It will not be killed or weakened because of time running out.”

Lobby control bills were before both House and Senate today. The House Monday tossed amendments in rapid-fire order at the bill and Sen. Henry Gonzalez of San Antonio may inaugurate another filibuster against the bill today such as he launched Monday against the possibility of Daniel submitting segregation legislation.

Daniel has expressed hope the session can consider legislation automatically closing any school occupied by federal troops. “I regret,” he said, “that this Senator who is in favor of occupation has injected this issue.”

He accused Gonzalez of endangering the entire administration program, but said “He will not succeed.”

“At the proper time, when it will not endanger other legislation, the majority will have an opportunity to pass on this (the troop bill) issue,” the Governor said.

Daniel then indirectly accused the people of apathy in his special session and urged them to write their lawmakers demanding enactment of the lobby control and law enforcement study committee.

Voting Light In Three Elections—Voting in today's triple election was light this morning due to the rain and cold weather.

No report was available from the various polling places late this morning on the actual number of ballots cast.

Gray County voters were to cast ballots today on two county-wide bond issues in regards to, repair work at Lake McClellan and for providing two paved roads to the lake.

The third election being held was a state election on three amendments to the state constitution.

DALLAS (UP)—An anemic vote of 200,000 or less is expected today as rain falls between the polls and voters in a special election on three constitutional amendments.

Blast Would Light Up Eclipsed Moon

LONDON (UP)—Soviet boasts that Russia had developed a fuel capable of driving a rocket 25,000 miles an hour increased western belief today the Russians may try to hit the moon Thursday with a missile carrying a hydrogen warhead.

There already had been widespread speculation among British and American scientists that Russia may already have launched such a rocket in belief it would light up the darkened face of the moon during Thursday's eclipse—and in celebration of the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

Russia's mastery of rocket missiles and the 40th anniversary already had plunged the world into 48 hours of suspense. Today new claims from Moscow of super fuels and even greater advances in electronics increased the anxious waiting.

16-Hour Trip—Soviet scientist T. Khachaturov, a corresponding member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, wrote today in “Gudot,” organ of the Soviet Transport Ministry, that Russia had developed a fuel capable of sending a missile to the moon in 16 hours.

The moon is about 241,000 miles from the earth.

The latest suggestion that a rocket may already have been launched came today from Kenneth W. Gatland, vice chairman of the British Interplanetary Society. He also said he suspected it might carry a nuclear device. Similar reports came from American scientists.

There also have been rumors that Russia might try to splash the moon with a red dye. But Dr. James Stokley, director of the Fels Planetarium in Philadelphia, said in East Lansing, Mich., the moon already will be red on Thursday—refraction of the light rays will make it appear red.

Part of Sputnik Program—He said the Russians might take advantage of the eclipse to make it appear to Asian peoples—who will see the eclipse clearly—that the moon's change in color is part of the Sputnik program.

The Soviet developments were so startling that hurried meetings were called in Washington and in London to assess the full import.

Paul-Henri Spaak, secretary general of NATO, arrived in London today to discuss with British leaders the revamping of North Atlantic defenses in the face of Russian advances. The meeting is a prelude to the December meeting of the NATO chiefs.

There was no official word from Moscow, but a steady flow of hints that something big was a brewing for Thursday morning. Nikita S. Khrushchev gave such a hint Monday night in talks with Communist Chinese leader Mao Tse-Tung.

Outer-Space Jewelry Is Inspired By Red 'Sputnik'

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UP)—We've had out-of-this-world clothes, hats and hairdos inspired by the International Geophysical Year. Now comes outer-space jewelry, which capitalizes on the world-wide sensation created by Sputnik.

Various designers and hair stylists latched onto the space theme for promotion long before the Russians launched a baby moon. But no sooner had Sputnik streaked across the horizon than manufacturers began "tracking" with novelty jewelry.

They have produced miniature earth satellites, globes, comets, star bursts and crescents in pins, bracelets, even key rings.

Globe on Pivot
One large manufacturer, Coro, featured a Sputnik charm bracelet with the charm a globe on a pivot. The bracelet is in either simulated gold or silver and a spokesman for the firm said sales were excellent.

"But," he added, "it may be a fad which will die out after the holiday shopping season."

"These are the kind of things we usually wind up eating," said one retail jewelry buyer.

But other manufacturers thought the space motif would last longer. "Actually, this is just a revival which we are crediting to 'Sputnik,'" said Mrs. Janet Brown, a leading stylist and owner of a fabulous collection of antique jewelry.

Good Design Source
"Craftsmen through the centuries have found the heavens a good source for design," she said. Mrs. Brown said the celestial theme dominated in jewelry designs in the Napoleonic period in France and had its greatest success in this country in the Victorian era.

Victorian pieces in her shop include necklaces with crescents and stars in turquoise and pearls, star-burst pins of diamonds and turquoise, and antique globes in coral.

Mrs. Brown's jewelry goes for some fancy prices, because all are of real gems. But the girl who wants to follow the satellite fad without breaking her budget can buy the Sputnik charm bracelets for less than $2.00.

The Story Of UP Comes Out Today

NEW YORK (UP)—"Deadline Every Minute," the story of the United Press and its world coverage of history-making events and personalities, will be published today.

The book, written by Joe Alex Morris, is an account of the first 50 years of a world-wide news agency. It tells of feats of reporting that recorded history day by day for the reading and listening public.

The author traces the growth of the U.P. from its founding by E. W. Scripps in 1907, when it served 369 newspapers, through the momentous first half of the 20th Century to yesterday's international crises. The U.P. now serves 4,833 clients around the globe.

The exciting business of collecting the news — daring wartime coups, drudging labor to turn up political intrigue, clever code messages to thwart foreign censorship, the brass expense accounts that go with foreign correspondence ("one mule, shot out from under me") — fills the pages with anecdote and journalistic achievement.

Such well-known newsmen's names as Roy W. Howard, Karl A. Bickel, Hugh Baillie, Frank H. Bartholomew, Raymond Clapper, Paul Mallon, William Philip Simms, Webb Miller, Westbrook Pegler, H. Allen Smith, Lyle C. Wilson, Walter Cronkite, H. D. (Doc) Quigg, Merriman Smith, and scores of others figure in the action.

Such headline-producing stuff as Clapper's finding of the "smoke-filled room" in which the nomination of Warren G. Harding was decided upon the Snyder-Gray and Hauptmann murder trials, the Huey Long assassination, the Edward VIII abdication, the decisive political and battle-

Ike Would Spike Rumor Against US

NEWS OUTLOOK
By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Around the world look ahead at the news that will make the headlines.

ASSURANCE
President Eisenhower has a big objective in his plan to attend the North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting in Paris next month. He wants to spike the increasing suspicion of some allied countries that the United States, in this nuclear age, might not go to their defense if Russia attacked them. Allied spokesmen have frequently asked Eisenhower, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and other leaders such questions as: "Would you really risk atomic retaliation on cities like New York, Detroit and Chicago just to help us out?" Washington says Eisenhower's answer will be given in Paris — a solemn and unmistakable "yes."

THE RUG PULLERS
Allied intelligence agencies are trying to find out just which members of the Soviet high command helped Nikita S. Khrushchev to pull the rug out from under Defense Minister Georgi K. Zhukov. Zhukov was supposed to have personal control of the armed forces. The intelligence men figure that Khrushchev must have secretly solicited, and obtained, the support of some of Zhukov's highest colleagues before he engineered the delicate and dangerous ouster operation.

TROUBLE AHEAD
It's still under the surface. But the biggest labor crisis since World War II is shaping up in Great Britain. The labor unions are furious over the government's stiff hold-the-line policy on prices and wages. They began talking about direct action when it was announced in the House of Commons last week that even wage awards approved by arbitration tribunals would be rejected if the government thought them inflationary. The big three railroad unions threaten a strike like that of 1955 when Queen Elizabeth II proclaimed a nationwide state of emergency in face of threatened economic disaster.

SPLIT TICKET
Philippines political experts are laying odds of three to two that President Carlos Garcia's vice presidential running mate, Jose B. Laurel Jr., will be defeated in the Nov. 12 national election. Under Philippines election laws, the president and vice president are elected independently, as they were in the early days of the United States. Garcia, heading the Nationalist ticket, is believed to be in the bag. But the Liberal Party's Diosdado M. Macapagal is the strong favorite in the vice presidential race.

SPORTS OUTLOOK
The National Football League, long noted for frequent coaching changes, faces the likelihood of one of its biggest shakeups before the 1958 season. Six of the 12 present head coaches are on the hot seat. They are Lisle Blackbourn of the Green Bay Packers, Hugh Devore of the Philadelphia Eagles, Sid Gillman of the Los Angeles Rams, Paddy Driscoll of the Chicago Bears, George Wilson of the Detroit Lions and Weeb Ewbank of the Baltimore Colts.

Growth Rate In West States Leads Others

WASHINGTON (UP)—The western states topped the rest of the nation in the rate of their population growth by more than two to one between 1950 and July, 1956, the census bureau reports.

The population reference bureau, in a separate study, said the steady pace of U. S. population growth was a good sign in the cold war battle for technical supremacy.

It said an over-rapid rise in population would put this country at a disadvantage with Russia in this respect. The birth rate of the two countries is about equal, it said, and neither faces the prospect of runaway population that is plaguing many economically underdeveloped nations.

Nevada Has Big Gain
The census bureau report Sunday night said the U. S. population jumped from 150,597,361 in April, 1950, to 168,174,000 on July 1, 1956. It estimated present population at 172,400,000.

The 11 Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast states registered a combined growth rate of 23 per cent compared with the national average of 11 per cent.

Nevada, the smallest populated state in the union, had the largest percentage increase of 60.1. Its residents totalled 256,000.

Next was Arizona with 44.9 per cent; Florida, 40.2 per cent; Delaware, 31.4 per cent and California, 27.2 per cent.

California showed the largest numerical growth, its population jumping by 2,885,000 to 13,471,000, to consolidate its standing as the second largest state in the union.

Arkansas Loses
It still trails New York, whose population rose by 996,000 to a total of 15,826,000, a gain of 6.7 per cent from its 1950 total.

Besides California, other states to show gains of more than a million in the six-year period were Texas, 1,233,000; Michigan, 1,208,000; Ohio, 1,125,000 and Florida, 1,114,000.

The northeastern states showed the lowest relative gain with a population boost of only 5.4 per cent. The south gained 9.6 per cent and the Mid-West, 11.2 per cent.

Four states registered population declines in the six-year period. They were Arkansas, down 149,000; West Virginia, down 42,000; Mississippi, down 24,000 and Vermont, down 7,000.

Judie Dickson, a student at the University of Illinois, wasn't content around to national competition as yet but her game shows great promise.

West opened his fourth best diamond against Judie's four-spade contract. East won with the ace.

East returned the suit so that the defense had three tricks before Judie could do anything but follow suit.

West shifted to a trump and Judie played four rounds. She noted that West had started with nine spades and diamonds so that the queen of clubs would probably be in the East hand, but Judie also noted that she had a sure method, and a probable method of locating it.

East had made four discards, two hearts and two clubs. Judie proceeded to take her king of hearts, lead a heart to dummy's ace and trump the last heart.

East and West each followed to these three heart leads and now Judie had a perfect count of the hand. West had started with four spades, three hearts, five diamonds and one club.

Judie led a club to dummy's king and returned the jack for a sure-fire finesse.

The play was simple but the technique perfect.

They said the steady rain-bar' ruined their crop. Farm work throughout wide sections of Texas was bogged down because of muddy fields.

Rain reports of 3 and 4 inches were general throughout North Central Texas.

The leading edge of cool air that trickled southward to the Texas Gulf Coast early Monday remained nearly stationary along the coast this morning as a result of moisture continuing to flow inland across the upland slopes. This meant rains would continue in a wide area over Texas and Oklahoma, the weather bureau said.

Girard Trial Ends Today

MAEBASHI, Japan (UP)—The controversial manslaughter trial of Army SSG William S. Girard ended today with the defense demanding a verdict of innocent.

Chief Judge Yuzo Kawachi said the verdict would be announced Nov. 19. The trial was heard by a three-man court since there is no jury system in Japan.

Girard was charged in the fatal shooting of Mrs. Nake Sakai on a rifle range.

Conviction on the charge could carry a sentence of from two to 15 years. The prosecution has demanded a five-year term at hard labor.

Before recessing the court called Girard before the bar and asked if he had anything to say.

"Yes, sir," the soldier replied. "I'm very sorry about this accident. My father died and I know how it must feel for her family. I will pray that some day they will find happiness."

Defense attorney Ituro Hayaaki attacked the credibility of the prosecution witnesses, particularly that of SSG Victory Nickel, in an hours long 24,000-word summation before the court.

Nickel, of Inkster, Mich., was with Girard at the time of the shooting and was one of the prosecution's key witnesses.

Girard was accused of inflicting "bodily injury leading to death" in the shooting of Mrs. Sakai, 46-year-old Japanese metal scavenger, on the U.S. Camp Weir firing range last Jan. 30.

Hayaaki made these major points in his summation:

ORGANIZATION

dent must have outstanding qualities of leadership, citizenship, scholarship, and character. To attain membership in Quill and Scroll, national honor society for high school journalists, the student must have served on either the school paper or annual for one year. To be initiated into these plans, national dramatic honor society, a total of ten dramatic points is required, plus an 80 average.

These points are obtained by acting in or serving on the crew of the class plays.

Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y are made up of students whose purpose is to promote Christianity in the home, school and community. The Y clubs help support the Negro nursery and collect White Christmas food cans each year. Tri-Hi-Y sponsors Mrs. Reba Wilson, Mrs. W. A. Morgan, Miss Bernice Franklin and Miss Georgia Morgan. Hi-Y sponsors are Bill Haynes, Bill Cooper, Bill Anders and Wendell Watson.

Junior Red Cross, the largest youth organization in the world, is also represented at Pampa High. The goal of this organization is to promote better understanding among the youth of all nations. Each year JRC sponsors a "chest" filled with notebooks, paper, pencils, towels, etc., which is sent to a foreign country. The club also has an annual fund drive. Sponsor is Howard Graham.

As high school students are the citizens of tomorrow, they are trying to prepare themselves to this civic duty. "Future" is a big word to most students, and they are preparing for it with the responsibility of club membership and leadership.

In the Guture Homemakers of America, girls learn to establish democracy in home and community life and to develop international good will. Miss Edith Kral is sponsor.

To help supply the nation's food needs for tomorrow the Future Farmers of America helps to cultivate a boy's interest in agriculture. The chapter, sponsored by Paul Payne, also tries to develop a boy's leadership potentialities.

Future Nurses of America shows girls interested in nursing what the profession involves and helps them develop the talent of meeting people. Future nurses visit the hospitals and work Saturday shifts there to gain experience. Mrs. Elaine "edbetter" is sponsor.

Any boy or girl who wishes to become a teacher may join the Future Teachers of America, sponsored by Miss Mary Dean Dozier. This club shows the student the responsibilities of a teacher and what the profession involves.

PHS also sponsors several clubs in connection with the classes. The language department is represented by Spanish, Latin and French clubs. Slide Rule Club is held in connection with the math department.

Besides the varied clubs, high school students spend many after-school hours working on school activities which include the newspaper, annual, band and choir.

Members of the Little Harvester staff stay after school two days a week for staff meetings in order to get the weekly paper published and distributed. Besides these meetings, stories many times must be "dug out" after school and at night.

Staff members of the annual, the Harvester, burn midnight oil many times so the yearbooks will out in the middle of May. Miss Elizabeth Hurley sponsors both publications.

A Cappella Choir members practice during and after school to prepare themselves for their appearances at civic clubs, contests, and clinics. Their director is William A. Hunt.

The Harvester Band, directed by W. E. Tregoe, practices long hours each week so that they may give a polished performance to the fans at every ball game. The patience and practice of the band was rewarded this year when it received Russia is capable of sending a rocket to the moon and bringing it back. But there was no confirmation here of reports Russia would send one to the moon on Thursday's 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

A. N. Nesmeyanov, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, spoke meanwhile of the "extraordinary power" of the Sputnik rocket.

Half Ton of Scientific Equipment

"The second satellite is carrying more than half a ton of scientific equipment," Nesmeyanov said in a statement to a Moscow radio correspondent. "This figure in itself testifies to the extraordinary power of the rocket device which carried it."

Khachaturov, in his article, added:

"It was necessary to create an electronic brain which would correct any deviations in the movements of the Sputnik before it entered its orbit, and also compact and effective working scientific apparatus."

"All of this materialized due to the high level and precise work of many scientific research institutes, construction bureaus and first class factories."

Rat Control Drive On In Gray County

"Now is the time for people to get rid of those rats before winter sets in," says County Agent Ralph Thomas.

The fall rat control campaign is on and will continue through the month of November, according to Thomas.

During this campaign anticoagulant rat bait prepared by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service will be available at the Price Barber Shop in McLean or from the secretary of the county agent in Pampa. This bait can only be made available during rat control campaign.

Thomas says that this bait is about the safest bait there is to use, but care should be taken the same as with a poison.

"I have yet to hear of a place where rats were not eradicated, if the bait was used according to directions," Thomas concluded.

We've just heard the exciting news that Helene Huff has been notified by the publishers of "Adventure" magazine that they have accepted an article of hers, which she has titled, "No Time For Tears." The definite date that it will appear on newstands around town has not been announced. But when we find out, we will let you know.

In a brief telephone interview with Miss Huff, we ask her about the article and she told us that it is of historical nature about the 1900 Galveston flood and hurricane. When you come across the article, "No Time For Tears" remember it will have the by-line of "H. Andy Huff," who is in reality our own, Miss Helene. Some time I plan to ask Helene how she chose the name of "H. Andy," there is nearly always a story behind a name.

We have heard, too, that students of Jeanne Willingham, Beaux Arts Dance Studio, will be presented on Nick Reyes Television Show on Thursday afternoon at 4:30 on Channel 10.

Dancers, who will appear on the show, are Misses Linda Moore and Kay Kotara from White Deer; Martha Price, Susie Fillman, Anita Guidry, Jane Wells, Pamela Jeanne Parker and Karen Hoover.

DEWings Around Town. . . Mary Ann Cohea entertained a group of friends on Friday evening with an intimate birthday party for close friends of Nita Carter. After gifts were opened and delightful refreshments of coffee and delicious cake, baked by Frieda Ross, friends enjoyed an hour of casual conversation. We won't be stinker enough to divulge Nita's age, but let us say the occasion was in honor of her "fourth plateau birthday." We start counting "plateaus" at babyhood.

We know of two adults who had as much fun on Halloween as any young ghost, goblin, or witch. Joe and Marilyn Page, who would walk away with honors in any Good Neighbor Contest, greeted trick or treaters at their door with Marilyn dressed as a witch with her face encased in a silk stocking, which completely distorted her features. It was amusing to watch the expression on the faces of the young callers, who were surprised by this "turn about's fair play" routine. They would hold their sacks out arms-length, not wishing to get too close, and then run like anything when it had been filled. One little masquerader, obviously wanting to make a good impression said to Marilyn "But you are so pretty." We're filing this idea away for our own fun use next Halloween.

DEW drops. . . remember today is the day that we, as American citizens, unimpressed by sputniks and nutniks, can express our inalienable right at the polls and vote according to our own convictions at the Texas Special Election on the three amendments: 1) State Employees Retirement System; 2) State Welfare Program; 3) Water Development. Study the legislation, then cast a vote!

Aggies Replace Sooners In No. 1 Spot

Oklahoma Routed From 1st By Margin Of Ten Points

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Texas A&M's perfect-record powerhouse, which often leaves its opponents wondering just how it keeps winning, replaced Oklahoma today as the No. 1 team in the United Press college football ratings.

When the Texas Aggies beat Texas Christian, 7-0, two weeks ago, one of the losing players remarked, "we should have whipped them three touchdowns." The following week when Baylor succumbed, 14-0, the victims chorused "they're not that good." And the Arkansas Razorbacks were hardly impressed with A&M's prowess after being edged 7-6 by coach Paul (Bear) Bryant's men last Saturday.

No Soft Touch
But small though their victory margins may be at times, the Aggies have managed to find the winning formula in a pressure-packed schedule that does not include a soft touch.

And on that basis, the consensus of the 35 leading coaches who make up the United Press rating board picked Texas A&M tops this week by a margin of 10 points over Oklahoma. Thirteen of the coaches made the Aggies their No. 1 choice; 11 voted for Oklahoma.

Auburn moved up to third place and Michigan State took over fourth in the ever-lightening race for the national championship.

Two Tied for 19th
The top 10 group became a "top eleven" this week when Oregon and Tennessee tied for the No. 10 ranking. Both teams were newcomers to the select group this week, along with Navy and Michigan.

Auburn, whose coach Shug Jordan received a new contract Monday largely on the strength of this season's 6-0 record, attracted seven first-place votes. After Auburn came three Big Ten Conference teams in order—Michigan State, Iowa and Ohio State. Michigan State and Iowa each had one first-place vote; Ohio State received two.

Army, Navy, Michigan and the deadlocked Oregon and Tennessee teams rounded out the leading group.

Ratings
NEW YORK (UP)—The United Press college football ratings (with first-place votes and worst record in parentheses):

Team	Points
1. Texas A&M (13) (7-0)	296
2. Oklahoma (11) (6-0)	288
3. Auburn (7) (6-0)	210
4. Mich. State (1) (5-1)	210
5. Iowa (1) (5-0-1)	194
6. Ohio State (2) (5-1)	191
7. Army (5-1)	101
8. Navy (6-1)	88
9. Michigan (4-1-1)	76
10 (tie). Oregon (6-1)	54
10 (tie). Tennessee (5-1)	54

Second 10 group—12, North Carolina State, 34; 13 (tie), Arkansas and Notre Dame, 19 each; 15, Mississippi, 17; 16, Duke, 10; 17 (tie), Georgia Tech., Texas Christian, Penn State and Temple (Ariz.) State, 4 each.

Others—Missouri and Dartmouth, 3 each; Yale, 2; Stanford, Mississippi State, Princeton, Syracuse, Oregon State and Southern Methodist, 1 each.

Stamford To Meet Seymour In Friday Tilt

By UNITED PRESS
Six games, topped by the clash between defending state champion Stamford and undefeated-united Seymour, should add as many teams to the list of 14 which already have taken undisputed leads in the Class AA schoolboy football race.

Stamford, which won 35 games in a row before bowing to Class AAA's high-rated Sweetwater in the fourth game of the season, has won five straight since that setback, while Seymour has won the seven games it played and had two cancelled by the flu.

The winner will automatically move into the District 4 playoff slot.

Pushing this contest for the spotlight are such decisive games as Lockney at Floydada in District 2, Mount Vernon at Bonham in 12, Atlanta at Hooks in 14, Taylor at Belton in 20 and San Antonio San Houston at Devine in 25. The winner in each case will have things its own way in the district.

The 14 teams already holding undisputed leaderships include Dimmitt in District 1, Perryton in 3, McCamey in 5, Coleman in 7, Hamilton in 8, Electra in 9, Lewisville in 10, Terrell in 12, New London in 13, Maslin in 17, Jasper in 18, Liberty in 24, Boling in 26 and Giddings in 27.

Showdowns won't come until next week in the other districts where Brady and Burnet lead in 19, La Grange and Giddings in 21, Gonzales and Schulenburg in 22, Deer Park and Angleton in 23, Falfurrias and Hebbronville in 25 and Mercedes and Edouch-Kissa in 32.

Taft and Sinton, which both were unbeaten in District 28, both lost last week to throw that race into a wild scramble.

Hartack Can't Ride Dedicate

CAMDEN, N.J. (UP)—The "dream race" of the year is turning into a nightmare for the owners of Dedicate and Round Table.

Mrs. Jan Burke of New York, owner of Dedicate, learned Monday night that Willie Hartack will be unable to ride her horse in the $75,000 added Trenton Handicap at Garden State Park Saturday.

Hartack, the nation's leading jockey the last two years, is committed to ride Calumet Farm's A-Glitter in the Selma Stakes at Laurel this weekend.

"That's a real blow for us," Mrs. Burke told the United Press in New York when informed that Hartack was not free to pilot Dedicate. She declined to state whether Dedicate would be withdrawn from the race, but a stable spokesman conceded such a move "was very possible."

Meanwhile, Willie Shoemaker decided to string along with Gallant Man in the Trenton, leaving Round Table without a rider. Willie Molter, who trains Round Table, was counting heavily on Shoemaker and now may switch to either Dave Erb or Willie Hartack—if they are available this weekend.

Even if Dedicate is withdrawn, the Trenton shapes up as a terrific horse race and one that should at least decide the three-year-old championship. Round Table, Gallant Man and Bold Ruler are all considered strong challengers for the crown.

Four-Year Prediction Of Footballer Comes True

By DON SMITH
United Press Sports Writer
COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UP)—Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant's Texas Aggies are right on schedule. The Cadets are now the nation's top team, right where one of the team's more outspoken players predicted they would be—four years ago.

When Bryant first came to A&M from Kentucky early in 1954, he set out recruiting the top football players in the Southwest. He got them from Texas, from Louisiana, and some top high school stars trailed him to Aggieland from his old haunts near Kentucky.

Jones Ramsey, A&M publicist, dubbed the collection of prep stars that Bryant gathered the "team of tomorrow." The name excited Aggie fans and alumni, and apparently the green young frosh, too. For at the first meeting of the Aggie freshman squad in 1954, one of the lads chalked on the blackboard this cryptic—and prophetic—slogan:

"Conference championship in 1954; national championship in 1957."

This year is 1957, and the Aggies are currently ranked as the nation's No. 1 team.

Brash Crew
The rise of that brash young crew at A&M since 1954 has been phenomenal. As freshmen, they won the unofficial Southwest Conference freshman title with a 4-1 record. The Aggie varsity that season turned in what Bryant called the most stout-hearted playing he had ever seen. They won one game while dropping nine.

But next year, along came publicist Ramsey's "team of tomorrow."

The young sophomore Aggies dropped their first game to UCLA, 21-0. Then they came on strong to win four in a row, including a 19-16 win over eventual conference champion TCU before finally being tied by Arkansas, 7-7. That tie knocked them out of the championship that year, for they lost one more game, their annual Thanksgiving Day set-to with the University of Texas.

The "team of tomorrow" finished in second place, one-half game behind TCU, and they had been picked to finish seventh.

First Prophecy
Last year, 1956, the first prophecy of that unknown freshman came true. The Aggies won the conference championship, going undefeated in 10 games. The only blot on their record was a 14-14 tie with a fired-up University of Houston team. Penalized for recruiting violations, the Cadets were not allowed to take the host role in the Cotton Bowl, a spot normally reserved for the champion.

Instead, they had to sit back and watch second place TCU beat Syracuse in that New Year's classic, 28-7, and third-place Baylor whip Tennessee 13-6 in the Sugar Bowl as the conference's post-season representatives.

Switches Ahead In NFL Head Coaches

By HARRY WISMER
Written For The United Press
NEW YORK (UP)—Look for major upheavals in the coaching ranks in pro football after the close of this season, than we've had in quite a few years.

There'll be denials from every corner but there'll be a switch in the field boss at Los Angeles, where Sid Gillman now holds sway. At Green Bay, Lisle Blackburn, a native of high school and college coaching in the Badger State, is due to be let go. Hugh Devore is serving his last season with the Philadelphia Eagles.

There's anything but satisfaction in the ranks of the Chicago Bears and the Detroit Lions. Rumblings are continuous in Chicago about the fate of Paddy Driscoll. Detroit, named a co-favorite in the Western Conference has taken a pounding, and their 3-3 record is anything but impressive. And Webb Ewbank of the Colts is also in trouble.

Title Inspires Forty-Niners
Right now the San Francisco 49'ers, behind the sensational play of Y. A. Tittle, are leading the league in points and have the best scoring punch in the NFL. In the east, the leading Browns are easily the defensive leaders. They've only had 65 points scored against them in six games, 31 less than the Giants who are in second place defensively.

It's going to be mighty hard to stop either the 49'ers or the Browns.

They're selecting the competing teams for the big bowl games in the press. Right now Oklahoma, the Texas Aggies and Oregon are the choices to represent their conferences in the Orange, Cotton and Rose bowls.

OSU Big Ten Chance
The Big Ten's representative in the Rose can be either Ohio State or Michigan State. Ohio State, unbeaten in conference play, has the best chance but still has to get by Purdue, Iowa and Michigan. Conference wise the Spartans face only Minnesota, and Duffy Daugherty's boys have only been beaten once. A tie and Georgia Tech are the bowl choices in the South with Mississippi also being in the picture. Auburn, the logical choice can't play. They're on probation.

Navy and Army, whoever wins their traditional affair, will also be bowlward bound.

Only three of the top 10 teams are still in the unbeaten charmed circle. Texas Aggies, Oklahoma and Auburn. Iowa was tied by Michigan and the Irish were sunk by Navy. Oklahoma is a cinch to stay alive, and Auburn, the best defensive college team, should also get by. The Aggies meet Texas in their final game on Nov. 28. Could lose that one.

Sandies Continue To Lead Conference AAAA Teams

By UNITED PRESS
The names of the state's top 10 Class AAAA schoolboy football teams apparently are pretty well set in the minds of the 16 members of the United Press coaches rating board.

The only changes in this week's rankings saw Baytown drop completely out of the picture after a third defeat and Texarkana break out of a tie for 10th with San Antonio Jefferson to take over the No. 9 spot vacated by Baytown.

Otherwise, the ratings were the same, almost to the same point totals with Amarillo High, Corpus Christi Ray, Abilene, Austin High, Dallas Tech., Highland Park, Wichita Falls and Temple holding down the first eight places in that order.

Since none of these teams are due to meet each other short of the state playoffs, they might well wind up in this fashion, barring an upset somewhere along the final three weeks of campaigning.

All of them, with the exception of Temple, are the outstanding favorites in their respective districts. Temple is in the same district with Austin and recently extended the No. 4 team to the limit before bowing by a touchdown.

Just as last week, Amarillo polled nine first-place votes, state champion Abilene four and Ray three. Neither Amarillo nor Ray received any vote for lower than third place while Abilene received one for as low as fourth.

Port Worth Paschal headed up the second group with 19 points in a swap of places with Odessa, which polled 13 points.

All of the top 10 are in action this week with Abilene's search for its 45th straight victory against Odessa topping the menu. Amarillo goes against Lubbock, Ray plays Marshall, Austin meets Waco High, Dallas Tech faces Dallas South Oak Cliff, Highland Park meets Dallas Samuell, Wichita Falls plays Denison, Temple meets Austin Travis, Texarkana tackles Longview and Jefferson takes on Victoria.

You hear this same approach to the subject in baseball-happy Japan. And certainly, here in the spaghetti and vino capital of the world, you'd have to give an edge to such fine local handles as DiMaggio and Berra.

Rain Plagues SW Practices

By UNITED PRESS
While some Southwest Conference clubs were being forced in A&M got in its second outdoor side by rain Monday, Texas workout in five weeks.

The Aggies drilled in sweat clothes and heard a Southern Methodist scouting report.

A backfield shakeup was in order at Texas, where Rene Ramirez was boosted to the starting right half spot and Walt Fondren returned to quarterback. Mike Dowdle moved up to the first string fullback spot as the Longhorns worked out for Baylor.

Southern Methodist was forced inside by rain. Ends Brady Wyatt and Willard Dewvrell were out with injuries suffered against Texas.

Rice met for only a short time to view movies of its loss to Clemson and hear a scouting report on Arkansas. Coach Jess Neely said his charges are in top shape.

Baylor also was driven indoors by rain, and heard the usual scouting report on Texas and watched movies of the Texas Christian game.

Texas Christian, also rained in, didn't bother with the scouting report, since it has an open date Saturday The Frogs just watched movies.

Wrestling Results

Iron Mike DeBlase captured the main event over Leo Garibaldi last night in the Sportsman Club wrestling. Both top event wrestlers had one fall to his credit when DeBlase took the third and final for the win.

In the semi-final, Hon Schnable and Tokyo Joe both lost after they became entangled in the ropes and were counted out. The first event went to the Great Bolt over Abe Colman in the one-fall battle.

The wrestling held each Monday evening at 8:30, is sponsored by the Pampa Shriners. Sportsman Club is located one mile south of town on the Lafors highway.

Admission is $1.50 for ringside; $1.25 for reserved seats; 90 cents for general admission adult and 50 cents for general admission children.

Hopkins, Langford Are Top Harvesters

Jim Hopkins, who has previously been unable to play this season due to injuries, was graded as the top defensive player in Friday night's game with Monterey, while Robert Langford ranked as the outstanding man on offense.

After each game, the film of the game is graded by coaches and considered on the strength of plays participated in and the number of mistakes made.

Hopkins, a senior guard at 205 pounds and co-captain of the team, remained in the game for 72 plays and rated an 88 per cent by coaches.

Langford, in the fullback slot on offense, ran 54 plays with a top grade of 84 per cent.

Following on the defensive side were Harold Stokes, 83 per cent with 72 plays; Don Bigham, 82 per cent with 72 plays; Bob Arthur, 80 per cent with 35 plays and Frank Snow, 76 per cent with 72 plays. Bigham, Arthur, and Snow are all seniors and Stokes is a sophomore.

Other top-ranking offensive men were Jim Scott, 78 per cent with 53 plays; Gary Peterson, 74 per cent with 84 plays; Gary Matlock, 74 per cent with 54 plays, and Bill

Fraser, 69 per cent with 51 plays. End Jim Scott is only sophomore of the offensive group while Matlock is a junior and Fraser and Peterson are seniors.

Tradey Of Dependency

My meaning will be most clearly seen if we turn to the highest form of injustice in which the criminal is the happiest of men, and the sufferer or those who refuse to do injustice are the most miserable—that is to say tyranny, which fraud and force takes away the property of others, not little by little but wholesale; comprehending in one, things sacred as well as profane, private and public; for which act of wrong, if he were detected perpetrating any one of them singly, he would be punished and incur great disgrace—they who do such wrong in particular cases (outside the protection of those who govern) are called robbers of temples, and men-stealers and burglars and swindlers and thieves. But when a man besides taking away the money of the citizens has made slaves of them, then, instead of names of reproach, he is termed happy and blessed—by the citizens—having achieved the consummation of injustice.

The above quotation appears in Plato's Republic. It is taken from a speech by Thrasymachus, an articulate Sophist. The wording is difficult, but the meaning is clear. A man who practices his crimes singly and outside the protection of the government; runs a great risk and will be called ugly names. Whereas, a man who practices his crimes collectively and against the public generally, under the protection of the government, or even as the government, will be declared the happiest and most blessed of men, even though in the process he enslaves the citizens.

Unfortunately, we live in a time wherein this truth has largely been forgotten. And nowhere is this lapse of memory more apparent and more important than in our own country, the United States.

We are suffering from a disease which could be called dependency. Our reliance upon one another, an essential in the market place, has caused us to mistake both the nature and purpose of interdependence. Reliance on others is based on trust. And in the market place it causes us to depend upon persons who provide us with certain goods and services which are exchanged for our own energies through a medium called money.

This interdependency within the market place is fine and worthy. Here, we truly see men need one another. No man lives for himself alone. Each of us, to be happy and successful, must render some service to the general good. And in that rendering, we receive in turn, those things on which we place a value high enough so that we exchange what we have willingly with the things others have.

But an interdependence in the market is one thing—a dependence on government is quite another. For if we turn to government as suppliant we are turning to a use of force whereby others can be compelled, and in the end, we too, will be compelled.

An Ax To Grind

In many instances, "having an ax to grind" is a useful thing. It is another way of saying that "I have an interest in this proposition or proposal and want you to join with me in this interest which I think ought to interest you."

That's why we were taken recently with an advertisement which had as its caption "Who Suffers From Inflation?"

The ad then went on to say: "Everyone, especially those living on a fixed income... the retired man on a pension... the widow trying to make ends meet."

Who suffers? The young people who may be denied the education they deserve, because the savings for their education were not enough, due to the lower purchasing power of the dollar.

Who suffers? Isn't the real question to ask yourself, "Who doesn't suffer?"

Fighting inflation is everybody's job, but the key person in the fight is you—as a buyer, a saver, and a taxpayer.

Here's what you can do— As a buyer, you can buy wisely. Buy what you really need, but make sure you get your money's worth.

As a saver, you can add to your family's security by saving some extra dollars every payday. These savings will provide capital our nation needs to keep our economy growing.

As a taxpayer, you can take an interest in your government buying wisely, too. Remember, overspending by government helps push prices up.

You, in short, are in the driver's seat. How carefully you buy... how diligently you save... how plainly you make your opinions known... can help determine how quickly we lick inflation.

As you might have guessed from the tenor of the ad, the message was sent out by the Institute of Life Insurance—and who has more interest in inflation than life insurance companies. Every day it is becoming more difficult to sell life insurance simply because more and more people are recognizing that the money they are paying in is being deflated and when the payoff time comes, the dollar will be there—but the dollars won't buy anything. The same malady has hit the sale of government bonds. By the time the bonds have matured, inflation has taken away the purchasing power of the payoff to the point that the buyer would have been better off to have declined to purchase the bonds and invested in something that had a chance to rise with an inflationary market.

If more people can come to realize this, then there is a chance that they will do something about the inflationary action of government spending and deficit financing—and we can start the long fight back against the inflation without completely repudiating our money.

Warning From Britain

Since America seems to be adopting socialism in the same way Britain has adopted socialism, I want to reproduce an article that originally appeared in the National Review and summarized in Christian Economics.

It was written by Anthony Le-June. He seems to know what is taking place both in England and United States. From here on he is speaking:

"The multiplicity of laws," said Isocrates, "is a sign of bad government." No one seems to believe this any longer. Both Labor and Conservative Governments pride themselves on the amount of legislation they can put through Parliament. As all legislation means compelling somebody to do something, it requires no great political acumen to see what this means in terms of individual freedom.

The Labor Party has recently produced a whole series of policy statements, suggesting new legislation on every conceivable subject. Both the government and the Opposition are now preparing elaborate "new look" policies for such large problems as pensions and industrial relations. While we're waiting for this fresh tide of legislation, it wouldn't be a bad idea to take a closer look at Britain's condition today.

The first and in many ways the most serious thing to realize is that we are still consuming the seed corn. While other countries, not only familiar rivals such as Germany and Japan but new competitors in Asia and Africa, are fast developing their resources, building up capital, growing and investing, we seem to have forgotten what a capitalist economy is about. Britons are emigrating because a strict ceiling has been clamped on their prospects here. Worse still, we are living on the incomes of our children and our grandchildren: they are in debt the moment they are born.

National Insurance, for instance, was supposed to embody a contributory pension scheme. In fact pensions are paid out of taxes levied on the working population. As the value of money declines and the ratio of pensioners to earners increases, those taxes will have to go up.

Whichever party is in power, nothing really halts the insatiable process of taxation. It's not only income tax and surtax and death duties: there's the tax on gasoline, the tax on movie seats, the tax on beer and matches, the tax on most of the goods sold in most of the shops, even the stamp when we write a check or a receipt.

Britain is terrifyingly dependent on the rest of the world's confidence in "the pound. This provides a further excuse for government control of industrial and financial policy. But how can any nation call itself free when the citizens are not allowed to "save the country" taking their money with them? For seventeen years now, no Englishman has been allowed to visit the United States except on business or by the charity of his American friends.

Persistent inflation reduces our economic independence further and therefore draws the bonds tighter. The nationalized industries always take the lead in the inflationary race. The recent past has seen further rises in electricity prices and coal miners' wages; and the Court of Enquiry said a raise for engineers had been demanded inevitably by the wage increase so readily granted to the railwaymen. The curious thing is that people still don't really understand what's happening. The trade unions remember the slump and grab all the money they can earn while it's there to be seized. But workers on the continent, in Germany particularly, remember only too well what inflation means. They know, as the British unions do not, that acute inflation is a much worse evil than low wages or even a slump. The result is that German industry forges ahead while British industry stands still or slips back.

This all sounds very gloomy, but it's leading up to a question that increasingly I have wanted to ask: Is this process beginning in America? What About America? I've read too much in American newspapers recently which reminds me of what was being written about inflation in Britain ten years ago. I've heard too much about a huge budget and the consequent increase in federal power. I've seen too many militant statements from American trade union leaders about the closed shop and their intention of securing higher wages irrespective of productivity in their particular industries. I've been told too much about the soaring national debt which now amounts to $1,680 for every American citizen.

Am I wrong about this? For the sake not only of America but of all the free world I hope passionately that I am.

I am a Tariff Thief, and, as such, I have a License to Steal. It bears the broad seal of the United States, and is what is known as the "Dingley Tariff." I stole under it yesterday; I am stealing under it tomorrow... So far as I am concerned, the Government has forced me into my present position... and I both do and shall take full advantage of it...

But, on the other hand, I am also a Radical Tariff Reformer. I should like to see every protective schedule swept out of existence; my own included... let me add, without any doubt in my own mind as to the accuracy and, I may say, the moderation of the statement, that in the heyday of its strength and arrogance, the old Slave Power of the South was never so strongly entrenched in its position so defiant in its attitude, so corrupting in its influence, so difficult to be overthrown, so utterly insatiable in its demands and so unscrupulous in its methods of satisfying those demands, as are today the combined tariff-protected interests of this country.

The French housewife has discovered the can opener, and the whole cathedral of French culinary pride is shaking on its very foundations. Reports from Paris indicate that the use of prepared and packaged foods has skyrocketed, and that some of the more excitable French traditionalists are calling for government intervention.

That does it! Can't you just see Big Brother in the kitchen, dictatorial whip in hand, ordering just another soupçon of this, a tiny touch of that?

Mac Wants Monument To Oyster Openers

By HENRY McLEMORE

In my day I have seen monuments to soldiers, patriots, musicians, poets, inventors, and leaders of the suffragette movement, but never have I seen a monument to an oyster opener.

There should be one, and if I ever get any money ahead I am going to see to it that the oyster opener is immortalized in bronze or some other enduring substance.

The oyster opener is a hero. Daily he tackles a task which places his life in peril in order that less manly men may have their half dozen on the half shell, their half-and-half steaks, and their Oysters Rockefeller.

It was not until yesterday that I fully appreciated the men who open oysters, because it was not until yesterday that I was confronted with a bushel of the bilvalves that I had to open myself if I were to eat them.

They came air express, all dry-iced, and a prettier batch of oysters you never saw.

Mouth watering, I said, "Let me at 'em!"

Two hours later, mouth still watering, not an oyster had been opened, I had, though. In many places, my hands were cut, my wrists were lacerated, my elbow had endured more punishment than Sgt. York ever had, and if there had been a comfortable half-shell handy I would have curled up on it and let the rest of the world go by.

Say, did any of you ever try to open an oyster? It is something like cracking the Chase Manhattan Bank's main vault at high noon, using nothing but a can opener.

I started off with a big, heavy file. When that broke, I switched to a chisel. When that gave away under the stout resistance of the oysters, I lost my temper and started throwing them against the side of the house.

I don't know what the neighbors and passerby thought, because it is hard to figure out what people think when they see a grown man rearing back and throwing oysters against a house with all the earnestness of a pitcher throwing baseballs to home plate.

The oysters never complained. Not one bit of mercy did they ask. But the house did.

After about half an hour of banging on the receiving end of the oysters, the house started whining. Then it started sagging, and I saw that I had to make up my mind. Would I have oysters to eat or a house to live in?

The yard was cluttered with oysters by now, all grinning, or so it seemed to me.

The Doctor Says

By Edwin J. Jordan, M. D.

Mrs. L. writes that she is a light sleeper. Her greatest trouble is in not being able to go back to sleep after being awakened. She requests a discussion of sleeplessness, or insomnia.

Certainly there are a great many people who do not sleep soundly all through the night and to whom this is a real problem. The difficulty seems more common among those who live in cities and those engaged in intellectual or desk work than among those who live an outdoor life with plenty of exercise. Furthermore, it is probable that many of those who complain of insomnia sleep better than they think they do.

Worry is doubtless one of the principal causes of insomnia. A proper frame of mind for falling asleep can sometimes be obtained by engaging in some hand work just before bedtime. Reading quietly often produces a desirable state of prebedtime relaxation.

Violent exercise before bedtime or eating heavily usually interfere with sleep. A short stroll or a drink of warm milk or some other fluid is often equally helpful. In other words, each person who suffers from insomnia should experiment with what prebedtime occupation is best suited to his or her own needs.

A frequent question is on the use of sleeping pills. The sleeping pill habit is easy to fall into. Once a person starts taking sleeping pills regularly they are likely to be taken more often and in larger doses. This can lead to a very undesirable habit.

IN FACT, THERE are many cases of chronic and even acute poisoning from the use of sleeping pills. It is far better not to rely on them regularly, but to conquer any sleeping difficulty by safer methods.

If a person sleeps an average of eight hours in each 24 and lives to the age of 70, over 23 years of his lifetime will be spent in sleep. If one must spend so much time sleeping, tossing and turning in bed while trying to get to sleep seems an awful waste.

Under such circumstances, not only does one fail to be refreshed by sleep, but also the time is lost from active play or work. Furthermore, too little sleep leads to fatigue and lack of energy so that full zest for the waking hours is also lost.

HOW MUCH SLEEP does a person need? There is considerable variation in growths. Some people need as many as nine hours sleep a night and others get by with six or less. This, then, is a matter which each person has to find out for himself or herself.

Whereupon I borrowed an axe from a nearby workman and went back to my foe.

Bang! Crash! Whack! Some more whacks.

An hour later the oysters chose an emissary and sent him to me under a flag of truce.

They wished to capitulate, but under honorable terms.

That was what I was waiting for. For a second, the oyster emissary turned his head and I let him have it. Cleaved him wide open. And, while his battered mates looked on, I treated his wounds with horse radish, ketchup, a touch of Tabasco, and a dash of lemon.

Then I ate him.

I got one oyster out of the bushel.

Authorities Doubtful Of American Claims

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Many military authorities here and abroad are frankly and fearfully skeptical about recent American boasts that Russia would be "destroyed" quickly in a war, no matter whether it started in the Middle East, Central Europe or the Far East. In the critics' opinion, there would be no isolated outbreak, but a concerted Communist attack in all three sectors.

General Lauris Norstad made an encouraging statement after a conference with President Eisenhower. It was considered of such psychological importance that news photographers were permitted to take pictures at intervals between the talks of the President and the youthful commander of NATO ground forces in Western Europe.

As an airman, Norstad emphasized the Allies' ability to bomb Russian targets from so many circumferential points. He maintains that, despite Russia's possible lead in missiles, the destructive power of air bombardment would neutralize this advantage almost immediately. This appears to be definite Administration theory and strategy.

Future wars, they insist, must still be won by ground forces after destruction of the enemy's aerial forces, industrial capacity and military morale. They will be needed to take Russia seriously in order to prevent the foe, as Hitler did, from early conquest of Western territory, and utilization of its industrial and economic resources.

MILITARY EXPERTS — In analyzing Russian and Western military strength on possible scenes of conflict, Army experts discern weak weaknesses in our position from many essential standpoints. Here is a necessarily brief summary of the disparities which they note:

Europe: In Russia and satellite areas, the Communists have at least 5,000,000 men, with 500,000 in East Germany alone for deployment to danger spots. They are well trained, severely disciplined and equipped with modern planes, tanks, armored and motorized divisions.

Although it is not believed that they now have tactical nuclear weapons, Russia has a store of them in nearby reserve sectors. It may be, too, that long and intermediate range missiles, capable of hitting our West European bases, are available.

In view of Russian and satellite troops' behavior in the Warsaw and Budapest uprisings, some doubt has been expressed about the loyalty of these outer forces. But in demoting Zhukov for opposing political supervision of the Army, Khrushchev has applied himself to the "purging" of strategic tactical divisions and individual units.

NATO FORMERS — Against such an invasion army, Norstad says NATO has less than 21 divisions, or about 600,000 fighting men. France has withdrawn West units for the war in Algeria. West Germany is foot-dragging in creation of a 12-division force. Both England and the United States are reducing their strength as economy measures, arguing that greater fire power permits a manpower reduction. Contributions from other NATO countries are negligible.

In the Middle East, the Turks are excellent fighters. But their 22 divisions are poorly equipped to oppose a Russian mobilization of 1,200,000 men poised on her northern border. Our other Baghdad Pact Allies are mere desert guerrillas. Despite our Middle East bases, which Arab rulers might not permit us to use, and the presence of the Sixth Fleet, the logistics (supply) difficulties in a conflict on this ground would be almost insuperable.

REDS STRENGTH — In Southeast Asia, Ngo Dinh Diem, South Vietnam president, concedes that the Communist forces in the North outnumber his establishment by three to one — 500,000 to 150,000. Mao Tse-tung has trained and armed the Reds so that they are a compact and formidable unit. In event of an East-West showdown, he has said that he would attack there and in Korea.

In that war-torn peninsula, we are again outnumbered by three to one. For reasons of economy, we plan to cut the South Korean force of 21 divisions by four, and to withdraw some American units over the protest of President Syngman Rhee. Not until two months ago did we agree to ship our most modern weapons to Rhee to match the illegal buildup of the Communists in the North. None of the promised planes and tanks have arrived yet.

'What's It For?' Is TV Show; Many Wonder Just That

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—"What's It For?" is a new NBC-TV panel show that provoked many critics into asking the same question.

But one of its panelists, Abe Burrows, believes the show has a good chance of surviving. It all boils down to the show's personalities and how they mesh, says Burrows, and the gimmick of a show has little to do with its success.

"I'm not saying the gimmick of a show doesn't mean anything at all," said Burrows. An eye-blinker and forehead-wrinkler, he blinked and wrinkled. "What I am saying though is that on TV it's the personalities who make or break a show—particularly of this kind. What counts in the end is the way the viewer responds to the performers and not necessarily, the idea of the show.

"Now, we took a bit of a panning on this show first time out. A roasting? No, I wouldn't say a roasting. I've been roasted myself often enough to be able to tell a roasting. But anyway, I think we're beginning to come across, we're working together better."

"What's it for?" it might be pointed out, is a half-hour Saturday night entry that showcases goody inventions. A panel composed of Burrows, Betsy Palmer, Hans Conried and a swing guest tries to guess the nature of the mechanical beast. Emcee Hal March cracks the whip.

"I think this is one of the big differences between TV and the theatre," continued Burrows as he blinked three frantic blinks. "You can get by in TV without strong material if you have that strong personality working for you. You select a guy who lights up that screen and you stay with him.

"But in the theatre, it's the show that counts. Sure, there are a few personalities who can carry a show on their backs—like Ethel Merman—but basically, it's the material that makes or breaks you on Broadway.

"Of course," said Burrows with a blink and a wrinkle and a blink, blink, blink, "the big trouble with TV is that very often there doesn't seem to be any material at all. The comedy is not very inventive and the ideas not very fresh. But you can't blame anybody—there just isn't enough time."

Burrows, co-author of "Guys and Dolls" and director of "Can-Can" and "Happy Hunting" on Broadway, currently is engaged in a TV project that would bring Ring Lardner's "You Know Me, Al," to TV as a series.

"With a TV series, you just keep working. However, I guess you can say with this Lardner thing, my reasons are artistic," he concluded with a wrinkle, wrinkle. "It's really a labor of love." Blink, blink.

Reds' Anniversary Is Marked With Power And Internal Strife

By K. C. THALER
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP)—Russia's Communist regime marks the 40th anniversary of the October revolution Nov. 7 with its newly gained and awe-inspiring world power, but clearly in the throes of a fresh internal struggle for supreme leadership.

Looking back over this eventful 40 years, the regime can boast of having taken Russia a long way since a handful of old Bolsheviks stormed the Czarist Winter Palace on that gray fall day in 1917.

The 40 years of Communist rule have witnessed one of the most spectacular drives in modern history. They have seen some world shaking events and some of the most surprising achievements—some of them launched on a sea of blood and human agony.

Spectacular Party History
Russia, which 40 years ago lay prostrate and dismembered after years of bloodletting in World War I, today stands as one of the world's two military colossi, rivaling the United States for military might and aspiring at overtaking her economically.

Her expansionism dwarfs Western empire building of modern history, with her tentacles stretched deep into Europe and stretched deep into Europe and Asia.

Communist regimes, many of them still looking to Moscow for guidance, now control more than one-third of the world's total population.

Blood, starvation, wholesale extermination, degradation of human rights have been among the stepping stones to success.

Animal-Lovers World Over Blast Russians For 'Muttnik'

By ALBIN KREBS
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Animal lovers the world over arose today and charged the Russians were "fiends" for sending a dog into space.

Indignant reaction to the Russians' putting a female husky into Sputnik II, already nicknamed Muttnik, to find out whether rocket travel would be safe for man rebounded from New York to Naples, from San Francisco to Singapore.

The general manager of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said in New York that the ASPCA would urge the State Department to lodge an official protest with the Russian embassy.

To March on Embassy
In London, officers of the Canine Defense League scheduled a march on the Soviet embassy for today. The league and other animal protective groups will observe a minute of silence "with special thoughts for her (the dog's) early return to earth."

The horrified reaction of Britain's dog-lovers was said to have almost overshadowed public reaction to Russia's scientific achievement of hurling a living creature into space.

One of the first to react in the United States was Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin Enzinger, member of the pre-World War I dance team of Vernon and Irene Castle, but most recently an avid avian-ivisionist and ardent champion of dumb animals.

Mrs. Enzinger said it was all right for men to be sent into space because "they can decide for themselves" whether they want to make such a trip.

Calls It Wrong
"After all, they (dogs) have no chance to speak up as to whether they want to be used in these experiments," Mrs. Enzinger said in Little Rock, Ark. "It's morally, spiritually and ethically wrong."

"The Russians say the dog is still alive. Isn't that horrible? He's probably whimpering, lonely and petrified with fear of the dark."

A society for the prevention of cruelty to animals in Singapore was so upset it sent a direct protest to Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev at the Kremlin.

Although dog-lovers agreed the Russians were "brutal" and "inhuman" for sending the dog whirling around the world 1,056 miles high, they also agreed the Russians would pay little attention to their protests.

ON CRITICAL LIST—Former Sen. Herman Welker (R-Ia.) is on the "critical" list at the Bethesda (Md.) Clinical Center of the National Health Institute. Welker, 50, was admitted to the center Oct. 16 and underwent surgery the following day. The nature of his illness has not been disclosed.
