Work Is Actively Underway To Supply Activity Center For Youth

By FRED M. PARKER
Pampa News Staff Writer

The question of supplying an activity center for the youth of Pampa has been in the mind of Pampa residents for at least the past 20 years.

Discussion of such a center finally resulted in the Jaycees starting work on such a project in 1939. Local men who were Jaycees at that time indicated that by the time wartime controls went into effect in the early 1940's the project was ready to start.

The Jaycees had obtained a site near the Hobart Street Park and materials were available. Plans called for constructing the building of native rocks and committees had been formed to gather the rocks. Other materials were available, according to the reports, and many were being donated by local firms.

With the beginning of the wartime economy some metals were "frozen" by the government and the Jaycees were unable to obtain the necessary steel for the building.

The war also depleted the members of the organization, as Joe Tooley, former Jaycee, put it. During the war years, the remaining Jaycees started up a local rodeo and planned for all profits to go into a building fund for the activity center.

One thing led to another and the project was re-activated in the early 1950's. The Jaycees worked on the project but finally decided that it needed additional support from the community and requested that a Youth Council be formed.

A poll was taken of the residents of Pampa and through the recommendations obtained from this poll the Youth Council was formed. All of the members have given of their time and gradually a plan has been formed to build the Pampa Youth and Community Center.

A ten acre site for the Center was obtained in the fall of 1956. T. B. Solomon offered the Center the site, located west of Hobart between Kentucky and Harvester. He stated that he would donate two acres of the land and would sell the remaining eight acres.

Mrs. Inez Carter gave the Center $8,000 with which to purchase the eight acres and since that time has added $20,000 to a fund to construct a building.

Also during 1956, a survey was taken among the students of the High School and Junior High School. The results of this survey were tabulated by Cliff Whitney and the staff at Celanese.

With these tabulations, the directors had a basis for determining the type of facilities needed. To date, no definite decision has been made on the type of building or the exact facilities to be supplied in the Center.

The teenagers of Pampa have indicated their interest in the project. Students of Pampa High School have staged two talent shows, known as "Youth for the Youth Center," and all of the proceeds have been given to the fund for the Center.

Last year the directors hired a firm to conduct a survey of various conditions in Pampa in an effort to determine the advisability of building the Center and the method of financing. With the results of this survey it was the decision of the directors that a campaign to raise the necessary funds, through voluntary subscriptions, be made this year.

Plans are now being formed for this campaign and the Center has opened an office at 112 S. Cuyler.

Much work has been accomplished toward the goal of providing a gathering place for the youth and adults of Pampa. Dr. Joe Donaldson, president of the Center, said, "Plenty of work must still be done."

Ike Learns 'Easier Said Than Done'

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (UP)—Easier said than done is the trite phrase for what President Eisenhower has been learning the hard way.

Consider how it was back there in 1952 when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had just shucked his uniform and was campaigning for the presidency.

Came Oct. 22, 1952 and candidate Eisenhower was in Troy, N.Y., seeking the votes of shirt and collar makers, Harry S. Truman was president of the United States and candidate Eisenhower charged on that day that the Truman administration deliberately had caused monetary inflation as a political ploy in order to create an illusion of prosperity.

"This always is done," Eisenhower said, "by administrations that care more for the next election than for the next generation."

Accused Truman

He tartly added that domestic policies "make for a false prosperity when they are predicated on arms production—with no end in sight." He accused Truman of combatting inflation merely with weak stop-gap price controls while ignoring "the real effective controls—those over money and credit—which would have paralyzed their scheme to use cheap money for their own ends."

Candidate Eisenhower proposed to combat inflation by "knocking down the administration idol of cheap money, getting unified action from our economic agencies and slicing the fat out of our federal budget."

And, how is it now more than five years after with President Eisenhower's latest budget? It is like this: Whereas the Truman budget (for fiscal 1953), which Eisenhower was attacking that October day in Troy, proposed to spend a whopping $73.9 billion the new Eisenhower budget proposes also to spend $73.9 billion.

Budgeted For Surplus

Truman, however, had an all-out inflationary budget for fiscal 1953 compared to Eisenhower's for fiscal 1959. Democrat Truman budgeted for a deficit of nearly 10 billion dollars. Republican Eisenhower has budgeted for a surplus of $466,000,000. There is more doubt than confidence, however, that the '59 budget will show a surplus at the end of the fiscal year.

More likely, the Treasury will be in the red in the new fiscal year. And, somehow, the little burp of further inflation which a Treasury deficit must represent does not greatly disturb Eisenhower, if it disturbs him at all. He told his news conference this week that he preferred a deficit to a tax increase.

A needle in the economy, he said, would be vastly better than a check rein. Back there in Troy the balancing of a budget and the checking of inflation seemed to be a reasonable and realizable objective.

On the record, Truman was a better economizer than Eisenhower. Truman had government spending down to about $4 billion dollars in 1948. The 1950 Korean war caught Truman in so bad a defense posture that he had to fire his cost-cutting defense secretary and almost double the cost of government.

Eisenhower still was spending high, wide and handsome when Sputnik I erupted and forebade economies demanded by angry voters.

Dale Robertson Is Not Too Impressed With Italian Stars

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—TV cowboy Dale Robertson is mighty happy to return to his horse "Jubilee" after a disenchanted attempt to play joverboy opposite sexy Gina Lollobrigida in an Italian movie.

Cowboys and glamour girls, it turns out, don't mix—socially or otherwise.

Henceforth Robertson will stay in his own corral and leave the foreign lovelies to the likes of Cary Grant.

"It's not that I prefer Jubilee to Gina," the Westerner says. "I just wouldn't want to be married to either one of 'em."

Denies Feud

Robertson, who talks as if he had a mouth full of hot cornpone, also denied rumors about a feud with "Lollobrigida." He had no opportunity to pass the time of day with her, much less engage in a beef.

"I couldn't have fought with her," he pointed out. "I never saw Gina except when we were workin'. And on the set she was real polite. There's a big difference between being polite and being friendly. She wasn't friendly a-tall.

"Trouble was her husband, Milko Skofic, produced the picture ('Ann of Brooklyn'). It was his first movie, and his number one project is pushing Lollobrigida."

Coughs A Little

Asked if Gina's hubby was a doctor, Dale, who is part Chickasaw Indian, suffered a fit of coughing.

"He studied medicine, but as far as I know he never practiced it," Dale said. "Hell, anyone who goes to college in Italy has some kinda title. What gets me mad is when Italian stars come over here we make a lotta fuss over 'em and roll out the red carpet. Over there they don't care what happens to American actors."

"No one even called to see if I had a hotel room—and I was there three months."

"Speakin' of glamour girls," said Dale, who stars in "Wells Fargo" for NBC-TV. "I worked with the greatest, Betty Grable. She makes them European girls look like plumbers."

Dairy To Up Dallas Milk Price

DALLAS (UP)—The Schepps Dairy, one of the largest in Dallas, announced Saturday that it will raise milk prices to 49 cents for a half gallon Monday.

Other dairies expected to raise prices along with Schepps. During a recent price war, which two small dairies charged was started to break them, milk prices went as low as 29 cents for a half gallon.

"The cost of raw milk has been going higher and higher since mid-1957 and it actually warranted a price raise last July," Harmon Schepps, a co-owner of the Schepps dairy, said.

Schepps now sells milk at 43 cents, before the price war, it sold at 47 cents.

The game brought Pampa's scoring total to 1,325 points, averaging 73 points per game. They stand in the district at 3-1, having downed the Sandies, 76-61, and Palo Duro, 75-63, before losing to Borger last Tuesday, 69-63. For the season they have recorded 18 victories against two losses. The game marked the second conference loss for Monterey, having dropped their opener to Borger, and put them at 9-7 for the season.

Next on tap for Coach Clifton McNeely's cagers will be the Westemers here Jan. 24.

Mrs. Bruce Pratt Speaks To TC Club Regarding Urgency Of Polio Campaign

Twentieth Century Club met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. L. L. Hicks, 1005 Mary Ellen, with seventeen members present.

The meeting opened with Mrs. Jack P. Foster, president, introducing Mrs. Bruce Pratt, who spoke to the members concerning the March of Dimes Polio Fund.

Mrs. Pratt said that she felt from her personal experience, it was her part to "light the way for others and urge those who had been fortunate enough to escape this tragic illness to give generously to this much-needed fund."

Mrs. Pratt continued, "The emphasis this year is especially on re-habilitation. Though Salk vaccine has greatly lessened the incidence of the disease, funds are needed to help the 16 rehabilitation centers to provide newer and more efficient equipment; to secure more doctors, nurses, and attendant care; also, for medical research in treatment of resultant injections, which arise from the original attack."

She said that even those, who may be fortunate to have a substantial amount of health insur-

Mrs. C. F. Branson, a buzz session followed this discussion.

The conclusions drawn were that democracy is broader than a system of government it blames a way of life; if human personality, not government, business, or social organization is the supreme value, then it follows that all men are potentially of equal worth.

"We can expect general progress in well-being only if the doors of privilege and opportunity are set wide open before all men, irrespective of race, class, or color," it was agreed by the group.

"Even though the explosive events are what make the front page news, the most social and economic story of the last ten years in America goes largely unreported."

"Better job opportunities, better health statistics, better educational facilities is the quiet revolution that is helping minority groups, especially the Negro, to move steadily forward to first class citizenship, and many are showing that they are ready and able to take their place in the future of America," the discussion group concluded.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the program.

Wedding Vows Are Solemnized For Miss Judith Wheeler, Glen Lemons

(Special to The News) CANADIAN — Wedding vows of Miss Judith Ann Wheeler and Glen R. Lemons were solemnized on January 10 at seven o'clock in the evening by Rev. Joe Vernon of the First Baptist Church.

The double-ring ceremony was performed before a background of white gladioli flanked by white tapers in candelabra. Miss Wheeler is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Wheeler. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Lemons.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE Out on the sunporch seven-year-old Kate was rearranging her doll's house. At her little sister's urgent request, she let Buff "hold" its toy piano until she was ready to place it. But when this time came, Buff ran away with it. Rushing to Mommy, she cried, "Kate gave me this! Now she wants it back. Tell her it's mine, Mommy."

Kate's protests were rejected. "You're always giving Buff things and wanting them back," her mother said. "You need a good lesson. This time she keeps what you gave her."

Kate felt a passionate wish to remove Mommy from her life. Withdrawing to the porch, she considered all methods for removal of enemies. She thought of attempting Mommy's physical destruction. She thought of running away. She thought of enlisting Daddy's aid that evening.

But she had to discard them all as impractical. Attempting Mommy's physical destruction could only result in punishment, or an orphanhood as terrifying as that of poor little foreign children in magazine pictures.

Running away could only end in somebody's asking her where she was going. As to Daddy, he'd resist any effort to remove Mommy because he was married to her. Out on the sunporch Kate resolved her rage at unjust authority in the immemorial manner of the helpless.

She began to justify Mommy. She thought, "Maybe I DID give my piano to Buff. I guess I must have done what Mommy says I did, and she is right and I am wrong."

Let us note carefully the appearance of that little, powerful word "right" in Kate's mind. It appeared there, not as the result of a genuine struggle to separate "right" from "wrong," but as a result of her absolute need to be reconciled to Mommy.

This is the child's eternal problem. His acceptance of our views of "right" and "wrong" is compelled, not by his own moral expertise, but by his need for survival.

Once we see this, we stop demanding that he share ours. We encourage expression of his views, not because child psychiatrists tell us to, but because we see it's immoral to exploit his dependence. We content ourselves with demanding desirable action without claiming "rightness" for what we want.

Pancake Dinner Is Planned By Guild

The ancient custom of observing Shrove Tuesday is in preparation of Lent. It is the Tuesday before Ash Wednesday, which is the beginning of Lent. Since ancient history, Shrove Tuesday has been given to merry-making and feasting on pancakes and fritters.

In the French language, Shrove Tuesday is Mardi Gras. The familiar Mardi Gras celebration held in French populated areas such as southern Louisiana, is celebrated during the entire Shrovetide, which begins on the Saturday before and lasts until the morning of Ash Wednesday.

St. Margaret's Guild of St. Matthews Episcopal Church is making preparations for its third annual Mardi Gras "Aunt Jemima" Pancake Supper and Dance, which will be held on Feb. 18 from five until 7:30 in the St. Matthews Parish Hall with the public cordially invited.

The president, Mrs. George Roraback, has appointed the following committees: Tickets, Mrs. Bill Ragsdale and William E. West, chairman; Publicity, Mrs. C. R. Howard and Jack Reeves, chairman; Dance, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Scott; Procurement, Mrs. William Peltier and James O. Harris.

The flap-jack flipping will be done by the husbands of the Guild members under the supervision of Mrs. Fred Richmond. The serving and clean-up detail will be done by the Young Peoples' Service League under the direction of Mrs. Clem Followell.

Mrs. Robert Malone is in charge of the decorations, which will be in the Mardi Gras theme.

The year, for the first time, the Guild plans to have background organ music during the serving hours.

Lamar CWF Has Business Meeting

Lamar CWF met recently for regular study and business meeting in the church.

Mrs. Jack R. Hood presided at the business meeting during which fund-raising projects, which would aid the group in providing a donation to the building fund, were discussed. The need for a more active visitation program was planned.

A committee in charge of preparation of Communion was appointed as follows: Mmes. R. W. McElroy, Jim Ballard, and Howard Brown.

Mrs. Ballard, study leader, taught the lesson entitled, "The Lord's Supper." Hostesses were Mmes. Ponda Seirman and Casey Brown.

Guests, attending in addition to those already mentioned, were Mmes. Ray Bowers, Art Kahler, N. L. Nicholl, Jack Prather, Alvis Smith, B. F. Smith, and John Spinks.

The next meeting will be a missionary study on Jan. 27 in the church.

Many women are immaculate in their dress but overlook a cigarette breath. Just as in the case of Archer tallying high for the women. Low prizes were awarded Willis Price and Mrs. Ray Boyd. Traveler's prizes were won by Dean Higgins, Bill Davis, and Mrs. C. C. Mullins.

A buffet supper was served. Forty-eight guests attended.

PANCAKE PLANNERS—Making the initial plans for the annual St. Matthew's Episcopal Church Pancake Supper and Dance to be held on Shrove Tuesday, Feb. 18 in the Parish Hall are, left to right, Mrs. George Roraback, Guild president, Mrs. William Ragsdale, ticket chairman, and Mrs. Jack Reeve, publicity. ## RUTH MILLETT

"They don't bother to say 'thank you' any more, do they?" a man said to his companion. He had just held a heavy door for a woman shopper who swept through it without even bothering to glance at the gentleman who had come to her assistance.

That's a pretty sad indictment of the manners of American women, isn't it?

But it may explain, in part, why so many men today don't bother to give a woman a seat on a bus or subway, or remove their hats in elevators, or step back to let women precede them in a crowd.

If women aren't feminine enough to appreciate being treated like ladies and say a smiling "thank you" for small courtesies, why should men bother to extend those small, helpful gallantries?

Unless we want to give up special attention for good, maybe we women had better start making a real effort to show men that we appreciate their treating us like women, even though we may be just as able as they are to shove our way through crowds, struggle with heavy doors, stand up in buses, etc.

Instead of jumping to help ourselves we ought to slow down enough to give men a chance to do little things for us.

When a man is helping a woman the fact that his strength is serving her makes him feel more masculine. And when a woman is grateful in her appreciation for a man's help she naturally feels her most feminine.

We live at a fast pace today. But surely it isn't so fast a pace that both men and women can't slow down enough to enjoy emphasizing each other's femininity and masculinity.

So let's encourage the men to act like gentlemen—by acting like ladies ourselves.

Tall Teen-Ager, Who Slumps To Hide Height Is Fooling Only Herself

By ALICI AHART NEA Beauty Editor The tall teen-ager who slumps in order to conceal her height is fooling only herself. Eventually, she'll wind up looking like a turtle and both her health and her good looks will suffer.

In this age of orange juice and sunshine and vitamins, she has plenty of tall company among both boys and girls.

She needn't be apologetic about her height. She can and should stand straight. She can wear one-inch heels, if she likes, and clothes that detract rather than add to her height.

Have you been using the same lipstick shade for years? Then it's probably time for a change. Your skin tones do not remain the same over the years. The lipstick that made you look so dashing a few years back may make your skin look sallow now.

Anyhow, it's fun to experiment and always fun to improve. You may find that you can wear three or four shades well and that the various colors in your wardrobe become far more flattering to you because you've changed your lipstick shade.

Your wardrobe should contain at least one suit and a dress in clear, vivid colors. And for evening, color by all means! It can be glowing or deep or brilliant but it should be a complete change from daytime both for you and for others.

If you get into the habit of thinking of red as a natural color, for instance, you'll find that you can wear it in much the same way that you'd wear black. And it doesn't matter if it's a red suit, daytime dress or evening dress. The only thing to be sure about is that it's the right shade of red for your hair and skin.

Railroad Shares Lead Stocks Up

By ELMER C. WALZER, United Press Financial Editor
NEW YORK (UP) — Railroad shares started in a higher stock market in the past week. They registered their widest gain since the week ending Nov. 25, 1955, and reached a new high since Nov. 11.

Railroads were in the news all week as Senate hearings brought out their ills and set off indications something would be done to help them. In addition, Wall Street believed the group had been over-sold. Next in importance to the rail news was a cut in margins from 70 per cent to 60 per cent made by the Federal Reserve on Wednesday after the close. Next day the market ran up a volume of nearly 4,000,000 shares with tickers late as much as eight minutes but prices slipped back after a sharp first hour rise.

Rails gained in every session of the week and their average closed at 107.10, up 6.94 points on the week. In the week ending Nov. 25, 1955, rails closed at 167.83 up 7.78 points for the week, helped by anticipation of several rail stock splits.

Whole List Up
Utilities closed the week at 71.38 up 1.44 and a new high since July 15, 1957.

The average for 65 stocks finished the week at 151.41 up 3.63 points and industrials were at 444.12 up 5.44.

On the basis of the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, the whole list rose by 73 cents a share which means the valuation of all listed issues was enhanced by $3,400,000,000.

Wall Street construed the margin cut as a favorable development but many market experts believed it would mean little to the market until business turned for the better. Most of the trading in the market is for cash just now.

The exchange reported that net debit balances of customers in December declined to a new low since Dec. 1954, and were down 306 million dollars for all of 1957. The debit balances represent the amount borrowed by customers to buy stock on margin.

It was noted that the industrial department met stiff resistance when the average got up to 450, considered a major hurdle at this time. Market men said, however, it easily could be surmounted if the railroad issues continued to lead the market higher.

Trading was active, thanks to the big day on Thursday. For the week the total reached 12,097,605 shares, a daily average of 2,419,321 shares, higher than last week's 2,230,680 average but well below the 3,266,795 share average for the week ending Jan. 3, a four day week.

Solid Rail Advances
So far this year trading has run neck and neck with a year ago—27,495,881 shares against 27,856,346 shares in the 1957 period. At the close this week, utilities show a gain of 218 points over a year ago, while industrials are down 33.34 points and rails are down 44.03 points.

Individual gains in the rails ranged to 4 points in Western Pacific. Advances of more than 3 appeared in Atlantic Coast Line, Great Northern, Kansas City Southern, Northern Pacific, Katy preferred, Western Maryland and Chicago Great Western. Motors ruled firm. Du Pont gained 4% in the chemicals. Steels rose 1 to more than 5 points. Douglas aircraft, the soft spot, fell 5 on directors' decision to half the usual extra. Thompson Products lost 4. Central Violets Sugar gained 5. Airlines were strong. Several oils moved up. Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line rose 3/4 to help lift the utilities. Coppers firmed on moves to impose tariffs on imports.

Of the 1,398 issues traded, 1,047 rose, 214 declined, and 137 held steady. It was the smallest decline total since May 21, 1950. There were 52 new highs and 20 new lows for more than a year.
