Parade Held For Unknown Dead

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Their countrymen paraded today for the unknown dead of World War II and Korea.

(A gawky girl in floppy blue shorts... a faded woman who whispered, "Which is the one from Korea?... A weathered man whose green sport shirt dangled outside... a one-armed veteran who insisted he was not crying...)

Hour after hour in the vast rotunda of the U. S. Capitol they streamed silently past the black flag-draped catafalques bearing the caskets of two nameless fighting men appointed to act in death as trustees of a nation's gratitude to the 327,000 dead of two wars.

Snark Sent On 5,000 Mile Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI)—The Air Force sent a swept-wing Snark, the nation's only operational long-range guided missile, on a 5,000 mile flight over the ocean Wednesday night.

Two solid fuel boosters hurled the Snark into the sky with a splash of orange flame and a loud roar. A few seconds after it was airborne, the sleek missile dropped off the boosters and its jet engine took over.

The Snark, a subsonic but extremely versatile missile, vanished in the dark flying low over the Atlantic. A jet chase plane accompanied it.

The Snark, which has been launched scores of times in its development program at the test center, was reported aimed at a target area near Ascension Island, about 5,500 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral.

A Guymon, Okla., man, B. R. Barnes, entered a plea of guilty this morning to charges of swindling with a worthless check and was fined $5 and costs and made restitution for the check. He gave the check in Pampa on Nov. 19, 1957, for $10.

Olen Junior Gifford of Pampa was fined $100 and costs and given three days in jail this morning after he pleaded guilty to charges of driving while intoxicated. Gifford was arrested about 8:30 p.m. yesterday in the 600 block of S. Cuyler after being observed by local officers.

Coty Calls For De Gaulle

Algeria Safety Council Warns Of Rise Up

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI)—Algeria's "super" Public Safety Committee warned today it would "rise up vigorously" against any attempt to block the formation of a De Gaulle government.

The super committee issued its challenge after a 30-minute meeting in the government house as the French Parliament was getting ready to meet in Paris to make the fateful decision.

The committee meeting was presided over by Supreme Commander for Algeria Gen. Raoul Salan. Thousands of Moslems in the square outside clamored for Gen. Charles de Gaulle's return to power.

The committee statement said it was "inadmissible for the supporters of the system to attempt to retard the formation of a public safety government by General de Gaulle."

It warned the army would "remain vigilant against the mobilization of subversive anti-national forces."

The statement did not spell out what action the insurgent generals and French Algerians would take if the Paris regime refused to accept De Gaulle.

But it was a clear threat that the rebels would not stand idly by.

Lebanese Army Given 18 US Light Tanks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—The Lebanese army, trying to put down a three-week-old rebellion, was beefed up by 18 new American-made light tanks today.

At the same time, moderate opposition leaders made conciliatory moves to end the violence that has kept the government of pro-Western President Camille Chamoun on the verge of a crisis.

The tanks, M41 Walker Bulldog, arrived Wednesday aboard a U.S. military transport.

They were part of a normal U.S. military aid program but were sent ahead of schedule because of the outbreak of violence in Lebanon.

Lebanese police and gendarmes sealed off the Beirut dock area where the tanks were being delivered from U.S. Army Ordnance stocks in Bremerhaven, Germany.

On the political scene, Moderate Deputy Raymond Edde began efforts to persuade other opposition leaders to accept Premier Sami Solh's promise that President Chamoun would not run for a second term. The constitution now bars consecutive terms for one man.

His strategy apparently was to get the Lebanese so interested in politics they would stop fighting.

Gay Paree Now Is A City Afraid

PARIS (UPI)—This lovely city awoke today transformed by an emotion it had almost forgotten. Suddenly it was afraid.

On Wednesday there were jokes about the political situation—"The Tumbrels (carts that hauled aristocrats to the guillotine during the French Revolution) this year will have taxicab meters because nothing is free in France any more—not even a ride to the guillotine."

Today they seemed as flat as yesterday's champagne.

Suddenly it was no longer fashionable to pretend that General Charles de Gaulle would simply be the 28th premier since the war. Those who had imbibed this recipe for apathy were suffering from a repentant hangover.

For as dawn broke on a fateful day there was no longer the slightest doubt that rightly or wrongly thousands and perhaps millions of French fear De Gaulle and his associates with an intensity that could, if not allayed, mean civil war.

2 Miners' Bodies Are Recovered

WHARTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Rescue workers early today recovered the last two bodies of four miners killed 12 hours earlier in a West Virginia mine slatfall.

The two, who were killed in the cave-in at the Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates at nearby Barrett, W. Va., were identified as Ben Bain, 35, Bim, W. Va., and Cecil Brown, 47, Barrett.

Earlier, the bodies of James Stone, 39, Unedea, W. Va., and Harry Hartman, 26, Bim, had been recovered.

Holly Drénen, 39, Barrett, a timberman, was trapped for five hours under the huge section of state before rescue teams, using hydraulic jacks, freed him. He was taken to a hospital where he was later reported in satisfactory condition. Another worker, J. P. Jarrell, 42, Barrett, a repairman, escaped injuries in the cave-in by diving beneath a loading machine.

State Mines Chief Crawford L. Wilson was expected to set up a board of inquiry to investigate the tragedy, which occurred about 1:15 p.m. e.s.t. yesterday.

Governor Stays Execution Of Theo. Thompson

AUSTIN (UPI)—Theodore Thompson, who was to have been executed early this morning, was granted a 15-day stay of execution by Gov. Price Daniel Wednesday.

Thompson, a Dallas Negro, was convicted for raping a Dallas maid, also Negro.

The action, taken on recommendation of the State Board of Pardons and Piroles, moves Thompson's scheduled electrocution at Huntsville State Penitentiary to June 13.

Time For Action On Alaska-Solon

By United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI) Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) said today "Now is clearly the time for action" on the bill to make Alaska the 49th state.

Jackson is chairman of the Senate Territories Subcommittee and one of the Senate's stoutest backers of Alaskan statehood. He said in a statement he was confident the House-approved bill would reach the Senate floor and be passed and sent to the President before Congress adjourns.

The House passed the measure by a surprisingly large 208-166 margin Wednesday.

It has considerable bi-partisan support in the Senate but has run into one serious obstacle, Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.), who says he's for Alaskan statehood but also for Hawaiian admission, announced he will continue to insist that a Hawaiian bill be brought up soon after Alaska is voted on. If the Democratic leadership does not promise this, Knowland says, attempts will be made to attach the Hawaii proposal as an amendment to the Alaska bill.

House military experts said today their Armed Services Committee just isn't going to reauthorize its Defense Reorganization bill despite President Eisenhower's biting attack on it.

The President said in a statement Wednesday the bill as drafted by the committee would foster rather than halt disunity and

Home For Aged, Convalescent To Be Constructed In Pampa

The Top O' Texas Foundation, Inc., formed here on May 17, 1956, has announced plans to construct a convalescent home for the aged in Pampa.

The home, which it is hoped will provide for a minimum of 50 aged and convalescent, will be the direct result of a decision made the evening of April 30, 1956, by a retired pastor, E. G. Barrett, and his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrett, reading the column once carried by The News entitled "Tip Top Texan," learned of the need for such a home here as expressed by Mrs. Nina Sponemore, county welfare coordinator, the subject of the column.

That evening, Rev. Barrett and his wife decided to call a group together to discuss and make plans to start a foundation for the home.

A meeting was held May 17, 1956, in the office of attorney Arthur Teed. Those in attendance included Teed, Dr. M. C. Overton, Mrs. Sponemore and Rev. Barrett. That night the groundwork for the home was laid.

Rev. Barrett proposed to start the foundation by giving a twenty-acre building site. He has also contributed $20,000 toward the home's construction.

This week, which coincidentally is "Senior Citizens Week in Pampa," the foundation has announced its plans.

The building, its size, operational procedures, and other pertinent details are still to be worked out and will depend to a large degree on contributions to the foundation.

Contributions to the foundation will be entirely voluntary, the board of directors points out. There will be no public subscription of funds, the foundation depending entirely on donations the size of which will vary.

The site held by the foundation, a non-profit organization, is at the east edge of town on the south side of the Miami Highway.

Work on the building will start "as soon as we get enough money together," said the directors. The exact figure to be raised has not been arrived at yet. The directors did point out, however, that the estimated minimum would be $150,000, enough to provide a 50-bed home.

Members of the board have reported that they have experienced "quite an amount of interest in the project and have been contacted by several who are willing to contribute."

The original board of directors of the foundation included Rev. Barrett and his wife, now deceased; Teed, James McCune, Dr. Overton, Rev. Carroll Ray and Mrs. Sponemore.

The only change other than that caused by Mrs. Barrett's death in February of this year, has been the appointment of Mrs. Jack Foster to succeed Rev. Ray, now a resident of Perryton.

In the organization, Teed is chairman; Dr. Overton is vice-chairman; McCune, treasurer; and Mrs. Sponemore, secretary.

The non-sectarian foundation, which was issued a charter on Sept. 4, 1956, has as its purpose the establishment and construction of a home for the aged and convalescent.

The foundation intends to make arrangements to assure the care of any needy as far as possible. There are an estimated 1,200 senior citizens in Pampa, according to (See HOME Page 3)

Says France Is On Verge Of Civil War

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press International

PARIS (UPI)—President Rene Coty announced today he is calling in Gen. Charles de Gaulle to discuss setting up a government of public safety, thus virtually scrapping the Fourth Republic.

Coty said France is on the verge of civil war.

The 76-year-old Coty indicated he would resign if the bitterly divided and temperamental Assembly failed to go along with him.

Coty said he also was asking De Gaulle to see what can be done toward a thorough reform of the constitution which in the last 13 years has enabled the Assembly to overthrow 25 French governments.

Coty told Parliament that "in the hour of peril for our country and our republic, I have turned to the most illustrious of Frenchmen, to him who, in the darkest hours of our history, was our leader for the reconquest of liberty."

Even as the deputies faced one of the most fateful moments in the history of the republic De Gaulle was heading the call.

He sped away from his home at Colombey - les - deux - Eglises, 150 miles southeast, shortly before 4 p.m. (10 a.m. c.d.t.). He was expected in Paris about 7 p.m.

De Gaulle warned that the Frency army is on the point of "overwhelming its commanders" in Algeria and trying to seize power. He expressed fear that France is headed for "anarchy and civil war" unless he takes over at once.

The former Free French leader issued the warning in a letter to former President Vincent Auriol, who had pleaded with him to recall the army in Algeria to its duty.

Background of Revolt

Coty made his stunning announcement in an unprecedented message to emergency meetings of both houses of the French Parliament.

It came against a background of open revolt in Algeria and Corsica and an assembly so hopelessly divided against itself that De Gaulle seemed the only solution short of a military dictatorship or a Communist-controlled "popular front."

Coty said that if his solution proved the wrong one he could only hand over his powers under the constitution to the National Assembly president.

Committees of public safety first were formed immediately after the revolution of 1789 which led to the guillotining of King Louis XVI. The first was followed by a second which came to exercise virtual dictatorial powers under Robespierre. It fell of its own excesses.

Coty said he is calling in De Gaulle "to examine... what in the framework of republican legality is immediately necessary for a government of national safety."

No Precedent

His move — unprecedented in peacetime — followed a thinly veiled warning from Algeria's restive generals that further delay in general elections would lead to a state of emergency.

Ike Expected To Pass On Non-Work Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower was expected today to sign quickly into law a bill permitting states to extend by 50 per cent the duration of unemployment pay for workers who have exhausted their benefits.

The Senate passed the bill Wednesday by an 80-6 vote after defeating seven attempts by liberal Republicans and Democrats to broaden it. The House passed the identical bill May 7 so it now goes to the White House.

As approved the bill would permit states wishing to do so to borrow from the federal government to extend the duration of their present jobless payments another 50 per cent to unemployed workers who used up their benefits any time after June 30, 1957.

The extension expected to cost 640 million dollars if all states take advantage of it, would last until April 1.

The extension would mean only a few extra weeks in some states and up to 15 weeks of added payments in a few.

States which take advantage of back the federal advances within the program would have to pay four years or else the federal tax on employers would be increased to cover the cost of the extension.

Senate approval came after opponents branded it a "useless" and "ineffective" measure because of its voluntary features.

bringing De Gaulle to power might set off open intervention by the military.

The De Gaulle government, Coty said, would see what could be done "in a short or long time, to carry out a profound reform of our institutions."

Coty's message was read to the National Assembly by Andre Le Troquer, its president and the man who would succeed Coty if he carries out his threat to resign.

When he finished reading the message, there was a tremendous roar—dissent from the left and applause from the right.

Communists and Socialists, who hate De Gaulle, stood up and shouted "Fascism shall not pass."

Communists and socialists sang the Marseillaise.

Crowd Jams Area
A crowd of several hundred milled about the entrances to the Assembly which was jammed to capacity.

Police and security guards had been strengthened all around the building, on the Concorde Bridge facing it and in surrounding streets.

The message was read at the same time to the Senate by its chairman, Gaston Monnerville.

The Assembly adjourned immediately after hearing the message so its members could discuss its terms.

Highlighting the urgency of the message was a warning from the

AF Develops New Take Off Jet System

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—The Air Force today reported development of a successful system for blasting jet fighters aloft without a runway.

The system, called Zero length launch (ZEL), was tried out here by North American test pilot Al Blackburn, whose F-100D Super Sabre was rocketed aloft from a mobile launcher by the jet's engine and an astrodyne rocket.

The jet was winched into position on the launcher and the solid propellant rocket, packing a 130,000-pound thrust, was attached to the fuselage.

Blackburn started the jet's engine, cut in his afterburner, and fired the rocket which thrust the jet skyward at 10 times the force of its own engines.

In less than four seconds, according to the Air Force, the jet was streaking at 275 miles an hour.

"I didn't even hear the rocket go off," Blackburn said. "It was smoother than a steam catapult shot from a carrier deck."

Gen. O.P. Weyland, tactical air commander of Edwards, said ZEL would permit the Air Force to station jet fighters near the front lines and launch them without airfields.

US, Britain Won't Grant Any Arms

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States and Britain will turn down Tunisia's urgent new request for arms during present French-Tunisian tensions, diplomatic officials said today.

They said shipment of weapons now most likely would fan the flame of unrest in North Africa and serve no useful purpose.

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba disclosed he had sent a new appeal to both the United States and Britain for arms. He said the weapons were needed because French forces in Tunisia were not under control of the crisis-ridden Paris government and might get out of hand.

Some 22,000 French forces are stationed in Tunisia under terms of the treaty granting Tunisia independence from France. Tunisia has been demanding their withdrawal.

Britain confirmed that Tunisia asked for weapons recently. The State Department parried all questions on the request with a "no comment."

Informed sources confirmed, however, that the new Bourguiba request has been received. They refused to spell out exactly what he wanted.

TAKE A GOOD LOOK at this picture. Then make-up your mind that it won't happen to you over the forthcoming three-day Memorial Day weekend, or any other time. Three men died needlessly in this accident when the car, of one of them (foreground), traveling between 70 and 80 m.p.h., plowed into the other auto which was stopped at a red light in St. Paul, Minn. Unfortunately scenes like this will be commonplace during the holiday weekend. On the last three-day Memorial Day weekend—in 1955—the traffic death toll was 366. With more cars on the road than ever before, this year's toll will hardly be smaller. So, DRIVE WITH CARE, EVERYWHERE.

Unemployment Decreases In Pampa

The Pampa Office of the Texas Employment Commission made 42 more placements in the month ending May 25 than the month previous, reports William Ragsdale, manager. According to the report, claim for unemployment compensation are off by 549 over the preceding month. This month's figure was 1,148.

The 146 placements of May include 70 positions in contract construction and 28 in wholesale and retail business. The two biggest gains were in these two areas with an increase of 40 in contract construction and a gain of 23 in wholesale and retail.

Ragsdale expects a boom in the economy when truckers and other individuals come to Pampa for the wheat harvest. Then he expects another boom in the middle of July when the farmers begin to collect.

Autos In Supply After Contract Deadline Expires

DETROIT (UPI)—Ward's automotive reports has announced there will be a 50-day supply of unsold new cars on hand as auto industry labor contracts expire this weekend.

The report by the industry's leading statistical agency means there will be only about four to eight weeks work at auto plants this summer before shutdowns for model changeover.

Ward's reported new car buying in mid-May went up 8 per cent over May 1-10, however. Ward's said May auto buying should hit 380,000, highest since January, but well below sales for May, 1957.

Stevenson In Try To Appease Harry?

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Harry Truman should have added one more item to his stock of reading matter on that Mediterranean cruise. He should have with him, a speech delivered last week in Chicago by Adlai E. Stevenson.

In it, Stevenson seemed to be trying to make amends for the slights and indignities which Truman thinks he suffered at Stevenson's hand . . . it was the year Truman hand-picked Stevenson to be the Democratic presidential nominee, and what happened?

What happened is set down in plain words in the second volume of Truman's memoirs. There are paragraphs of real praise for Stevenson in that book, and for some of his campaign performance.

The praise goes flat, however, under pressure of other Truman paragraphs of which these two are a sample.

But, Stevenson's attitude toward the president (Truman) whom he hoped to succeed was a mystery to me for some time, and I believe Stevenson made several mistakes. Whether this was due to the urgings of his advisers or bad information or perhaps to the contagion other good citizens were suffering as a result of reading the anti-Democratic press, I do not know.

The first mistake he made was to fire the chairman of the Democratic National Committee (Frank E. McKinney of Indiana whom Truman had put in that job) and to move his campaign headquarters to Springfield, Ill., giving the impression that he was seeking to disassociate himself from the administration in Washington and, perhaps, from me. How Stevenson hoped he could persuade the American voters to maintain the Democratic Party in power while seeming to disown powerful elements of it, I do not know.

There was more, adding up to evidence that Truman felt that Stevenson was brushing off the Truman administration as unfit and unclear. Truman also faulted Stevenson for failing to cooperate with the big city Democratic machines—for a slip of the tongue in which Stevenson had referred to "that mess in Washington!"

Plumped for Harriman
Averell Harriman in 1952 was the only 100 per cent I-love-Truman candidate among the Democrats. But Truman would have none of him in 1952. Four years later Truman shell-shocked the 1956 Democratic National Convention with a Harriman-for-president effort designed basically as a stop-Stevenson movement. He might have gotten away with it, too, but for the political maneuvering of AFL-CIO's Walter P. Reuther who practically single-handed broke the 1956 convention deadlock in Stevenson's favor.

Perhaps Stevenson was thinking of all that in Chicago last week when he went out of his way in a speech to pay the highest kind of tribute to Truman's presidency. Perhaps, even, Stevenson is thinking about 1960 and a third presidential nomination. Stranger things have happened.

And if Stevenson has such a thing in mind it would be good for him now and hereafter to speak well of Harry S. Truman.

Governor Asks School Children's Help In Safety

AUSTIN (UPI)—Gov. Price Daniel has solicited the help of every school child in Texas in a campaign to reduce traffic deaths this summer.

As part of "public schools highway safety week," the governor asked in a special message addressed to the students of 3,700 Texas schools that they "discuss safety practices, and then carry the message into their homes. . ."

He pointed out that 2,539 persons were killed and 122,000 were injured in Texas traffic accidents last year. Texas ranks second only to California in the number of traffic fatalities.

The goal for 1958 is to cut last year's death toll by 254.

The governor pointed out excessive speed was the No. 1 killer in highway accidents last year. The second greatest killer, he said, was driving while intoxicated.

"Every boy and girl should resolve never to ride in a car with any driver who has been drinking intoxicating beverages," Daniel said.

"Texas is a great state, and we should keep it that way," he added.

All were named by an early resident who laid out the village.

On The Business Scene

By United Press International
The two top officials of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) said the outlook has improved both for the economy and their industry. M. J. Rathbone, president, predicted a 1 to 2 per cent increase in demand for oil this year in the U.S. and a rise of 6 to 7 per cent abroad. Chairman Eugene Holman said various corrective forces such as easier money and reduced inventories are at work helping to turn the tide in the economy.

Capital appropriations continued to drop in the first quarter of 1958, according to a National Industrial Conference Board survey. The drop from a year ago of 43 per cent was the seventh consecutive decline and the biggest yet. Only one of 15 industry groups surveyed—food and beverages—appropriated more money during the quarter.

OUT OF THE FRYING PAN—Getting acquainted with the cold, cold world are these little ducklings, two of eight mallards who were hatched in a frying pan. After the duckling's mother was scared away from the nest by a dog, the eggs were taken in by Mrs. Ralph Sir, of Parma, Ohio, and her neighbor, Mrs. Harry Watson. They took turns minding the "nest," a cotton batting-filled electric skillet set on "low." The ducklings were hatched within 12 hours.

Jimmy Stewart May Retire To Store For 'Honest Living'

By DOC QUIGG
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Jimmy Stewart, the celebrated one-man goodwill mission from Indiana, Pa., to wherever movies are shown, has just had another look at the century-old J. M. Stewart & Co. in his home town and is pleased to report that the business is running right along.
 The small-town hardware business, that is.
 J. M., Jimmy's grand father, founded the store 101 years ago. Alex, his father, is keeping it going against the day when James stops acting and goes back to earning an honest living.
 The boy and the father had a birthday celebration back-to-back in Indiana, Pa., last week. On Monday, Alex was 86. On Tuesday, James was 80.
 Jimmy describes the business as "really the old-fashioned hardware store, with different kinds of stuff, little stuff that you can't get anywhere else — dad has stayed with it — if you need to go through a two-inch board and you need a screw just exactly that long squinting at a finger-measuring, he's got it. And he really does a business."
 The store has always been a family proposition.
 "I worked there from about as early as I can remember," Jimmy says. "From about 9 years old. Dad is sort of a greeter, clerk and host. I sent him my Academy Award that I got in 1940. He has it on the knife counter, which always was an important counter, and he's kept it up although he's always cryin' about

In Most Cases Competition Keen For Congress Jobs

By FRANK ELEAZER
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON (UP) — The lighter side of Congress: The main trouble with being a congressman, apparently, is that the job is too good. Somebody is always running for your seat. This is primary election time and the members as usual are torn between the laudable desire to stay here and tend to business and the urgent need to get home and defend themselves.
 In most cases, as the matter generally is put in the Capitol cloak rooms, they manage to rise above principle and act on politics. In other words, they go home and fight.
 Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.) recalls the member who in these circumstances looked duty in the face for quite a while and eventually started it down. When he got home he saw he was running for his life and should have got into the fight a lot sooner.
 "My friends," the harassed lawmaker explained from the stump, "I pondered long the question, should I stay in Washington and protect the taxpayers or come home to look after my little petty political interests?"
 "In these meditations I drifted into Statuary Hall where the great marble effigies of the heroes of the past are preserved. I stopped in front of the statue of Thomas Jefferson to put the question to him.
 "I could almost see his marble lips move and his voice came crystal clear, 'Stay here!'"
 The voters weren't much impressed. They turned our boy out, and elected his opponent, who had campaigned on this line:
 "You better elect me instead of a fellow who goes around mumbling to statues!"
 For awhile the Democrats called it a depression; the Republicans used such terms as anti-boom. They still can't agree but the argument isn't as hot as it was, and, mostly, they all agree now it's a recession.
 Whatever you call it, Rep. Glenn Cunningham (R-Neb.) tells about the New Jersey motel operator who was complaining, and a friend asked him how bad business really was.
 "Why, I used to turn away 50 people a night," the innkeeper moaned. "Now I only turn away 20 to 30."

Writer Gets His First Glimpse Of 'Thing' In Trip To Base

By ROBERT MUSEL
 LONDON (UPI)—While visiting an American aviation unit the other day I saw my first you-know-what.
 I rounded the corner of a hangar and there it was, large and menacing even under its somewhat shapeless tarpaulin.
 For the first time in my life I was frightened by an inanimate object.
 "Is that...?" I asked the enlisted man guarding it.
 He nodded.
 "Yes. It's the big one."
 Some other men came along and said: "This is it"—with the word "it" in capital letters. They rack towards a plane.
 The Big Fellow
 And it occurred to me then that I had never heard anyone at this place refer to "it" by its true designation. It was almost like the men days against Guller or devil by his right name.
 So, curiously, to an officer I said:
 "What are they wheeling over there?"
 He looked.
 "It's the big fellow."
 "What big fellow?" I persisted.
 "You know. The Sunday punch."
 A mechanic was working over a transport plane nearby.
 "Do you haul anything besides occasional passengers," I asked, knowing the answer.
 "Sometimes we deliver the big things," he said.
 "Big things?"
 "Like that." He jutted a thumb towards the disappearing object with its guard and servants.
 "Do you ever call them anything else?"
 "No," he said. "I don't."
 For The Thing
 Later, when the pilot of a bomber showed me over the cockpit I asked about some gadgets it had never seen in a plane before. It was pretty obvious from the type of aircraft what their function would be.
 But I asked:
 "What are these?"
 "They're for the thing," he said.
 "What thing?"
 The pilot pondered a long moment.
 "They're for a special weapon," he said. He seemed vaguely uneasy.

His disquiet was not all due to the intense security which still surrounds them. There is something almost mystical in the awesome fascination which the few feet of metal casing exerts.
 Perhaps its right name conjures up the picture already un-leashed in the imagination time and again. A group of us watched the bomber take off at twilight to practice night landings and someone quoted:
 "I thought I saw in the gathering gloom
 "A plane with the death of the world 'It' in its womb..."
 Editor's note: Musel had just seen his first hydrogen bomb.

BOO!—Though he's not an "earth" creature, this is no character from outer space. It's just a baby sawfish in the Seaquarium in Miami, Fla. That isn't a face, either. Those staring, heavy-lidded "eyes" are really gills. The eyes are on the other side.

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas

Legal Terminology
Some Times Necessary

Many persons feel that the "whereases," "aforesaid," and other legal verbiage used by lawyers are intended only to confound and confuse the layman.

Nothing could be further from the truth. In drafting legal documents, the lawyer attempts to draft them in such a way as to exclude all ambiguities. In the last analysis, a legal document means what some court at some future time shall declare that it means. As a consequence, it is the lawyer's duty to his client to attempt to draft the instrument in such a way that it can mean only one thing.

Most any paragraph of non-legal language contains numerous ambiguities. When a lawyer refers to the "deed aforesaid" he is attempting to make it clear beyond question that the deed he is referring to is the deed mentioned in a prior portion of the instrument. Likewise, when he prefaces a legal document with a long list of "whereases," he is simply reciting pertinent facts for the benefit of the court to show the facts of the situation that lead to the execution of the instrument.

The difficulty with drafting a document in layman's language is that to the trained analyst such language is susceptible of several likely to lead to litigation. It is the draftsman's purpose to avoid litigation which is usually expensive for the client.

Another reason why lawyers use legal language is historical in nature. Thus most deeds declare that the grantor "by these presents does grant, sell, and convey" the land in question to the grantee. Each of the words recited has a technical meaning. The words together have frequently been construed by the courts and consequently the lawyer knows in using them that their meaning is settled, and that they will operate to properly transfer the title. He would be inviting litigation for his client, if instead of using those words, he devised new language to express the same purpose. He could only say, "While I think the language that I have used will accomplish the purpose, I cannot be sure of it."

As a consequence, the lawyer, in the interest of his client, naturally uses the time-tested language instead of experimenting with new language.

(This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

WASHINGTON — Rep. Walter Rogers (D-Tex.), who offered the sudden death amendment to kill the Alaska Statehood Bill:

"I haven't heard one good argument in favor of statehood yet. If we bring Alaska into the union we would be going beyond the point of no return. There would be no end to how many territories we would be adding to the Union."

LONDON — Rock 'n' Roll singer Jerry Lee Lewis, leaving Britain because his tour was cancelled when his marriage to a 13-year-old was revealed:

"The audiences were fine — there were just some mad ones there who wanted to make a fuss."

Polio now is almost a world-wide disease; in the tropics, it prevails all the year round.

MAN IN "TRAPEZE" — The "trapeze" look comes to men's clothing, as model Richard Orme shows off this distinctive lounge suit in London. The outstanding feature of the suit is that the vest and trousers are joined at the waist. The jacket, which has a center back vent, is slightly flared, as are the cuffs and trouser bottoms.

Unusual Chinese Foods Easy To Serve With Time-Saving Concentrated Cubes

The average wife and mother today is up early in the morning getting her husband off to work and the children off to school. Then she settles down to her other chores and duties like cleaning the house, doing the wash, going shopping, mending, and planning and cooking the meals.

With such full-time schedules, it's no wonder that women are taking advantage of all the labor-saving devices that will make their day's work a little easier. Since so much of the day is spent in the kitchen, let's see how the famous restaurateurs save time and energy without sacrificing the quality of their food.

One way is to use food aids which are simple to prepare and flavorful. Many Chinese restaurateurs use Stereobouillon Cubes. They can be purchased in three flavors — beef, chicken and vegetable — at the China Food Fair on Chatham Square in New York City. The cubes are highly concentrated in flavor and a little goes a long way. The different flavors are identified by the color of the packaging: red, blue and green.

Here are just a few of the many ways in which Stereobouillon is used in a few favorite dishes. All of these exotic recipes can be made with easily obtainable ingredients.

ROAST CHICKEN (KOOK CHUN GUY)

- 1 chicken, 4 to 6 lbs., cleaned and dried
 - 1 teaspoon seasoning powder
 - 1 teaspoon heavy soy sauce
 - 1 teaspoon dried tangerine peel, chopped
 - 1 teaspoon sweet vegetable sauce or brown bean sauce
 - 2 cups soup stock
 - 1/2 Stereobouillon Bouillon Cube
 - 1/2 cup water
- Dissolve the bouillon in 1/2 cup hot water. Mix powder, sauces, peel, soup stock and bouillon. Tie chicken's neck with a string, then put the mixture into the chicken, and truss.

Brush the skin with light soy sauce.

Roast in oven at 450 degrees for 10 minutes, then at 300 degrees.

PEPPER STEAK ORIENTAL

2 tablespoons cooking oil

1 peeled section garlic, minced

1 lb. round or flank steak cut in thin slivers

1 teaspoon bottled gravy additive

1/2 Stereobouillon Bouillon Cube

1/2 cup water

1/2 teaspoon ginger

1/4 cup minced onion

2 green peppers cut in thin strips

1/2 cup sliced celery

2 ounces sliced, broiled mushrooms, white or black

1 tablespoon cornstarch

Put oil in heavy frying pan; add garlic. Place over moderate heat until fairly hot.

Blend gravy additive and ginger, and sprinkle over meat. Add to frying pan and cook, uncovered, stirring frequently, until the meat is brown, about 10 minutes.

Add onion, peppers, celery and mushrooms. Cover and simmer 10 minutes.

Dissolve bouillon cube in 1/2 cup water; blend together and stir, with cornstarch. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens. Serve with hot, flaky rice.

CHINESE BROWN GRAVY

4 cups water

1 Stereobouillon Bouillon Cube or 1 Stereobouillon Bouillon

1 Stereobouillon Vegetable Bouillon Cube

1 teaspoon seasoning powder

1 teaspoon heavy soy sauce

1 tablespoon cornstarch

Dissolve Stereobouillon Beef and Vegetable Bouillon in water; bring to boiling point in deep saucepan. Mix powder, sauce and cornstarch in 1/4 cup water and add to boiling mixture.

Cook until clear; keep hot until ready to serve, with rice or other foods.

Exotic Hawaiian 'Luau' Inspire Stateside Weddings

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

The spirit of the Hawaiian Islands is more and more casting its spell over summer weddings on the mainland. The strains of the traditional native wedding song "Ke Kall Nei Au" are today often interspersed with the familiar "Oh Promise Me." For sheer beauty, magic, food and fun, this island wedding is one of the loveliest, particularly when held on the lawn or patio.

We went to Austin B. Cox, a recognized authority, for details. He is general manager of New York's internationally known Hawaiian Room, regarded as the eastern outpost of Hawaii.

"A luau is the native excuse for any kind of celebration," he explained. "It means feasting and fun, tables laden with exotic foods, lovely flowers and leaves, moonlight if possible, music and usually some hula dancing. So you can see why a wedding calls for the most bewitching of luaus."

Although in the Hawaiian Room the tables are decorated with fresh tropical flowers from the islands, tropical ti leaves and Anthuriums, your at-home buffet can be festooned with vividly colored flowers and large green leaves from the garden.

But Mr. Cox warns against too many flowers and leaves on the table. The Polynesian foods to be served are colorful in themselves, too. So don't crowd them out of the picture.

For the luau for 25 persons, have five platters of Hawaiian appetizers called pu-puus. They will include barbecued spare ribs, Hawaiian-style, with pineapple chunks and kumquats; large islander shrimp marinated and baked in freshly grated coconut; and rumaki, chicken livers and water-chestnuts, marinated, wrapped in bacon and broiled.

The main course will be 25 chicken mummies — boneless breasts of chicken with chopped beef stuffing baked in half a pineapple.

On the table there should be bowls of fruit including mangoes, fresh-cut king pineapple, grapes, bananas, oranges and lemons plus two large bowls of Polynesian punch.

The tropical wedding dessert will be individual servings of Cocomo — vanilla ice cream in hollowed-out coconut shells, covered with chocolate sauce topped with whipped cream and sliced macadamia nuts.

For recipes for these Hawaiian dishes, see tomorrow's column.

POLYNESIAN FOAM PUNCH (Serves 25)

Three quarts pineapple juice, 1 quart orange juice, 1 pint lemon juice, 1/2 pint grenadine, 4-5 quart French cognac if desired.

Mix pineapple juice, orange juice, lemon juice and grenadine. Blend with finely crushed ice, whipped to foam. If you want a more spirited punch add the cognac and blend the same way.

Perky Picnic Puppies

Here's a treat for the children and you, too — an easy indoor picnic (we call 'em "quicknics") to relieve the monotony of a rainy summer day spent in the house.

Let the youngsters and their friends dress as they would for a picnic on the beach, and serve them a blanket lunch on the floor of some room in your house not usually associated with eating.

A fast trip to your supermarket provides enough gaily designed plastic-coated paper plates and brand new plastic-coated paper bowls to set the outdoor eating scene for your "quicknic." All you need to complete the mood is an easy-to-prepare and serve meal of hot dogs and rolls, salad, fruit, cookies and a favorite soft drink (poured from a thermos jug if you have one).

Since all your dishes are paper, the children can take care of their own cleanup by putting used plates, bowls and cups in large paper bags, set next to their "picnic" blanket.

A game of jacks, crayon and paper, or boat sailing in the bathtub are good pastimes to make the afternoon go faster.

INSTANT FLAN

The most popular of all Spanish desserts is Flan, a custard made with sherry, egg yolks and sugar. But a quick, easy version of Flan can be made with instant vanilla pudding, using 1/2 cup Spanish sherry, an oloroso or cream type, for part of the liquid, replacing the same amount of milk. Serve this in your best sherbet glasses accompanied by glasses of oloroso sherry for a superb spur-of-the-moment dessert.

TRY A "QUICKNIC"

Here's a new partner to that picnic stand-by—the hot dog. These are called picnic puppies, and they're made with one of the most famous of all picnic foods—canned deviled ham.

Today's tremendous assortment of bread put out by the commercial bakers of America makes this combination of crusty fresh rolls filled with spicy deviled ham and garnished with cheese, a first-rate portable sandwich plan. They can be made ahead of time, or they can be made on the spot. They can be toasted over an open fire, or they can be served cold. This means that whatever the weather, whatever the location, and whatever the choice of hungry outdoorsmen and women, rolls filled with deviled ham will mean it's a picnic.

Picnic Puppies

2 family size (4 1/2-oz.) cans deviled ham

1 dozen commercially baked rolls

1 lb. process American cheese

mustard

Split rolls down center about 3/4 way. Spread with mustard, fill with deviled ham. Cut cheese into wedges and stick wedge into center cut. For hot sandwich, heat over fire in wire basket, or skewer through width of sandwich. Heat until cheese melts and rolls are toasted through. Garnish with olives, lettuce, pickles or potato chips. Makes 12 sandwiches.

Old Favorite Honey Cookies Will Find Permanent Berth In Recipe File Box

Comes spring, comes time for spring house cleaning. How about extending that chore to your recipe file this year?

Some breezy evening sit down with your recipe file box and discard all the old recipes that no longer earn their keep in your life. Recipes you don't use belong in the waste paper basket, not in your file box.

Now that you have condensed the recipes down to the bare minimum let us suggest this Honey cookie recipe to add to your collection. But don't add it without an initial trial; although the recipe has been tested and retested by expert test kitchens don't test your word for it until you've tried it out yourself. See if it suits your individual tastes. Then and only then does it belong in your recipe file box.

This recipe, however, is one of those versatile favorites that almost everybody likes. And the cook likes it too because it is so simple to make and requires such little time for start to finish. It is almost a certainty it will find a permanent berth with your old favorites.

Based around the use of Honey, the cookie is sweet and delicate. Once you have added this recipe to your file box it is a sure bet you won't discard it at any future spring house cleaning time.

OLD FAVORITE HONEY COOKIES

1 cup shortening

1/2 cup brown sugar

1/2 cup Honey

3 eggs

3 cups all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon soda

1/2 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon cinnamon

1 teaspoon cloves

2 cups seedless raisins or 1 cup dates and 1 cup raisins

1/2 cup walnuts (broken)

Cream shortening. Add sugar and Honey and cream well. Add eggs one at a time beating well. Sift dry ingredients together, add alternately with fruit and nuts. Drop with a teaspoon on greased baking sheets. Bake at 350 degrees F. about 12 to 15 minutes or until done. Makes 4 to 5 dozen depending upon size.

Here's A Cool Picnic

Zesty sandwiches and bottled carbonated soft drinks spell picnic! Just be sure there's enough of everything for everybody. To have the beverages deliciously cold, chill the bottles in the refrigerator, then pack them in an insulated container. It's a wonderful thirst-quencher and the refreshing flavor goes well with picnic food.

For small parties, there's no need to make sandwich spreads in advance. Take along a loaf or two of bread, some sliced, Bologna, bread-cooked eggs, canned fish and cheese. Spread the bread with mayonnaise, add crisp lettuce, mustard, relish, and your sandwiches which are ready in a jiffy.

Should your picnic party be six or more, it's practical to make up sandwich fillings. Both the following recipes make enough for six large sandwiches.

Corned Beef and Onion

1 1/4 cups canned corned beef

1/2 cup mayonnaise

1 teaspoon prepared mustard

2 teaspoons minced onion

Mash corned beef with a fork. Blend together mayonnaise, mustard and onion; work into beef to make a paste. Spread on rye bread.

Sunrise Spread

1 package cream cheese

1/2 cup mayonnaise

1/4 cup shredded pineapple

1/4 cup shredded raw carrots

Blend cream cheese with mayonnaise. Add shredded pineapple and carrots. Spread on raisin bread.

Kitchen Moves To Shaded Lawn Where 'Outdoor Chef' Takes Over On Duties

The time is rolling 'round again when your "kitchen" is gradually being moved to the backyard by Dad and the kids. Kitchen, dining room, living room suddenly become outdoor grill, lawn and a shady tree. The man of the house turned "Outdoor Chef" no doubt has his own secret recipe file. Just to help glorify his handiwork beyond his expectations, he should try this spicy sauce for weiners, tangy sauce for spare ribs. Here is real eating fun for the whole family, the next-door neighbors, Junior's hungry little buddies and your most particular of gourmet guests.

General Directions: To make any of these barbecue sauces, combine all ingredients and blend well. Store in covered jar in the refrigerator. Shake well before using.

FOR SPARE RIBS:

8-ounce can tomato sauce

1/4 cup wine vinegar

1/2 teaspoon celery salt

1/2 teaspoon onion salt

1 teaspoon Kitchen Bouquet

3 tablespoons honey

FOR SPARE RIBS:

Makes 1/2 cup

1/2 teaspoon dry mustard

1/2 teaspoon pepper

Fudge Sauce Treat For Father's Day

"Black and White" treat will make Father's Day special with an exclusive father-and-son treat. This gooey, honest-to-goodness hot fudge sundae and cream-filled chocolate cookies put the accent on their favorite flavor combination.

HOT FUDGE SAUCE

5 T. water

4 T. butter or margarine

1 pkg. Dromedary Fudge and Frosting Mix.

1 c. miniature marshmallows.

1/2 c. chopped nuts

In top of double boiler heat water and butter or margarine together until butter melts. Add Dromedary Fudge and Frosting Mix and cook over boiling water 5 minutes. Stir in marshmallows and nuts. Beat to blend. Serve hot. (May be stored in refrigerator and heated when needed.)

Makes about 1 1/2 cups, to serve over vanilla ice cream with black and white Oreo Creme sandwiches.

PORK CHOPS ANDALUZ

Instead of serving fattening gravy with pork chops, try a Spanish-style sauce made with Spanish sherry. When the chops are browned on both sides, drain off all the fat, then add 1-3 cup of an amontillado or an oloroso sherry to the pan plus, if you like, a generous amount of minced parsley. Simmer about 5 minutes, then serve the chops covered with this delectable thin sauce. Add broccoli or French green beans and a salad for a calorie-light but satisfying dinner.

Alfred Hitchcock Gets In A Plug For His Latest Movie

By DOC QUIGG
NEW YORK (UPI)—I've had cocktails, through the years, with such enchanting personalities as Polly Adler, Winston Churchill, Ataturk's favorite dancing girl, Princess Grace of Monaco, Frank Costello, and other names too fancy to drop, but let me tell you this—there's no cocktail host like Alfred Hitchcock.

When Hitchcock throws a cocktail party, whimsy breaks out in great dollops and spreads all over the place. His latest drinkery for the press was in an unfinished room near the top of an unfinished skyscraper and was reached by taking an unfinished elevator. The elevator had no lights. It was draped inside with funeral black cloth. But enough light came through the black lining, as you were borne skyward, to disclose a skeleton standing in the corner. It was not a naked skeleton. It wore a black brassiere with red trimmings, and a sprouting red-feather headdress.

Insurance Provided
As you entered the party room, a place of bare, unfinished concrete and plaster, a couple of zombie ladies with scraggly-hanging black hairdos handed you a Hitchcock insurance policy. It provided indemnity for loss of life, limb, sight, or time by accidental means.

The bartenders were dressed as surgeons, with white masks. An oxygen tank, labeled "just in case," stood by. The room was dressed with two coffins and a scattering of skeletons in various poses.

Two nurses were coming and going, but their going appearance was a vast change from their approaching one. Their uniforms were standard in front, but in the back they opened wide in an upside down V. The top of the opening was at about mid-spine.

Didn't Look Like Nurse
One of the nurses wore special panties, tiered with lace ruffles and tiny black bows. "Made 'em myself," she said. The other apparently had not got the word beforehand about the new-style uniform she would be wearing. She wore nothing special. I asked her what was the name of the new style.

"Peek-a-boo," she replied. The affair was called a "vertigo party." Guests got worker's plastic helmets with "vertigo room" printed on them. A platform outside a window was marked "Get your vertigo here," and sure enough, it did afford a rather dizzying view of third avenue.

Maybe you think the whole thing was just too cute, but everybody had a nice time, and Hitchcock got in some nice plugs for his latest hair-raising movie ("Vertigo," as if you didn't know).

Italian Actor, Rossano Brazzi, To Star In A Western Movie

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Writer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Rossano Brazzi, only Italian screen lover to flutter feminine hearts since Rudolph Valentino, plans to star in a western.

Don't laugh. Brazzi starred in 35 Italian horse operas before Hollywood ever heard of him.

"That's true," the handsome pansano said. "In Italy we call cowboys 'butleri.' I spent more time with the horses than leading ladies. We have many cowboys in Italy. We raise much beef there.

"Our cowboys lead the same life as American cattlemen. Of course we have no cattle rustling. Italians just rustle chickens." The graying star of 20th Century-Fox's "South Pacific" added. "I am bored with playing the great lover. In Italy I am considered an actor, not a matinee idol.

"My countrymen are funny. When I play villains in American movies they don't like it. They feel it hurts Italian prestige. They think I should play a South American or a Frenchman if I am going to be a 'heavy.'

"Now that I have played both good men and villains, I want to do comedy—a western satire." Brazzi's success in American movies wasn't an overnight occurrence.

The letters Q, W, X and Y are not included in the Esperanto language.

Prospecting while wondering what ever happened to Candy Barr?

So you'd like to deflate that mid-section inner-tube? Keep tuned in to this column. Sunday we'll tell you how to quit being like the guy who, tired of carrying his weight, went to pushing it.

No Charles Atlas fees either, thanks just the same. Don't look for Gary Heiskell on the Harvester gridiron next fall. The husky 185-pound halfback who Coach Babe Curfman rated, "a real prospect," dropped from school a few days ago, apparently fed up with battling the books.

Heiskell, who was ticketed for plenty of leather-lugging and extra-point attempts next fall didn't, however, sparkle in this spring's 20-16 loss by the Varsity to the Exes. He had only a 1.7 rushing average on 11 carries and missed his target on two pass attempts.

At last report Gary was trying to get work in Odessa and thinking of maybe becoming a swabbie in the U. S. Navy.

Noose Hangs High!

And you think you've got troubles?

Norman Phillips, who'll head the coaching staff at new Robert E. Lee Junior High next fall, was looking for a rope and the highest rafters Wednesday when he came up with three football games scheduled in Harvester Park at 3:30 p.m. next November 13.

Slated for action at that time are his Rebels against Dalhart, Pampa Junior High against White Deer and the Pampa High Shockers against Monterey's B-Team.

They'll have to be some changes made. But if there aren't, Man, what a whamo show, six teams going at once.

Eagles 1-Down

Qualifying for the 10th annual Phillips Country Club Invitational Golf Tournament opens Friday with two rounds of men's and women's and Saturday, and semifinalists going 18-holes for the medal crown Sunday.

The 32 lowest qualifiers will slam it out in the title bracket. Defending champ is Borger High hotshot, Vance Moxom. Entry fee is a saw-buck.

A Pro-Am Match was slated for today with entrance fees of $3 for amateurs and $5 for pros.

Paschal of Fort Worth, bi-district victor of District 3 4-A champ, Amarillo, last weekend, moved within one game of the state meet yesterday by swinging the white-wash brush at defending state champ, Abilene, 7-0.

Abilene, however, lost in Fort Worth. Last week they dropped their bi-district best-of-3 opener in El Paso, then stormed back at home to mark up top-sided wins and take the series.

The Eagles face Paschal in Abilene Friday for the series wrap-up.

CLOSE QUARTERS—Kenny Lane ducks a weary left thrown by Davey Dupas and prepares to throw one of his own in the 6th round of their featured fight in Dallas Monday night. Moments later, Lane knocked Dupas to the canvas for the 10 count in 40 seconds of the 6th round. (NEA Telephoto)

'500 Track Is Prepped

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Last-minute gearing up began today for both men and machines who'll risk death and destruction Friday in the 42nd 500-mile auto race. All equipment was barred from the track to permit scrubbing the 2½ mile surface clean of grease and oil, but mechanics made final inspections of all parts of the 33 qualified race cars. Meanwhile, drivers who passed the 10-mile qualifying test with the highest average speed in history, 143.445 miles per hour, had the time for rest and relaxation prior to the usual driver's meeting scheduled for this afternoon. All drivers must attend to be briefed on the rules of the road for the 500-mile run, which probably will be completed in somewhat less than four hours.

There was no real favorite to win the top prize of more than $100,000 from the probable gross of $300,000. Only one former champion was in the field, Johnnie Parsons, who won in 1950 when the race was flagged at 345 miles due to rain.

Two drivers will handle cars which won Jimmy Bryan, national driving champion for three of the last four years in the vehicle which carried Sam Hanks home first last year, and rookie Jud Larson in the car in which Pat Flaherty won in 1956.

Bryan was the choice of some veteran drivers as the potential winner, but he starts from the third of the 11 rows in the field and six pilots ahead of him qualified with faster times.

All three of the first row drivers—Dick Rathmann, Ed Elisian and Jimmy Reece—qualified at more than 145 miles per hour, the only cars to exceed that figure. All anticipated taking over first place on the first lap.

Chances were that they'd run a three-man race for the first few laps with such a hot pace none of the cars behind would have an opportunity to get in front until pit stops set back the leaders.

The track was open Wednesday for three hours for the last runs before the race begins at 11 a.m. c.d.t. Friday. All of the qualified cars were in action with the exception of two torn down to replace defective parts. They were the cars qualified by veteran Paul Russo and rookie Dempsey Wilson.

Though there could be as many as six alternate starters, a rules change this year make it unlikely that any car other than the fastest 33 will begin the race. In the past, should one of the qualifiers fail to start on race day, an alternate could come out of the pits and run.

Giants' Old Man Has Lotta Life Left In Him

Life Does Too Begin At 40! Grissom Is Proving

By FRED DOWN

United Press International

Those San Francisco rookies rate all the praise they're getting but don't forget old man Marv Grissom's part in the Giants' spectacular rise.

The experts were saying three years ago that 40-year-old Grissom might be over the hill but he's sporting a 1.80 earned run average and a 4-1 record today that stamps him as the National League's top relief ace. Marv's four victories equal his entire 1957 total.

The 6-3, 205-pound right-hander, who looks like a sheriff on one of those adult Westerns, came through again Wednesday night when the Giants restored their lead to two games with a 7-6 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies. The win enabled the Giants to pick up a full game on the Milwaukee Braves, who lost a 12-inning, 7-4 decision to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Kirkland Connects

Willie Kirkland, who was seven years old when Grissom started out in Class D ball back in 1941, delivered the game-winning blow—a two-run ninth-inning homer off Philadelphia relief star Dick Farrell. Farrell carried a 5-4 lead into the ninth but the Giants tied the score on Hank Sauer's single, Orlando Cepeda's double and Daryl Spencer's sacrifice fly before Kirkland connected with his game-winning shot.

It was the 10th win in 15 games on this road trip for the Giants, who always did make it a point to travel first class.

Don Blasingame tied the St. Louis-Milwaukee game with a ninth-inning triple and the Cardinals finally won out in the 12th when a walk, two singles, a hit batsman, a sacrifice fly and Joe Adcock's error produced three runs. The game was marred by five errors and 19 walks.

MARV GRISSOM
... never too late

Today's Titan

—SANDY KOUFAX—

By United Press International

Until recently Sandy Koufax' chief claim to fame was that he was believed to be the only man in baseball history who fractured an ankle by tripping over a foul line.

That was in May, 1955 when Sandy was just a frightened kid from Brooklyn who had signed an estimated $25,000 bonus contract with the Dodgers.

But Sandy is maturing—he's a ripe old 22 now—and Los Angeles fans are going to see him win many a game. He came through for the Dodgers Wednesday night when he beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-1, and in his previous start he pitched a two-hit victory over the Milwaukee Braves.

Sandy's chief stock in trade is a really overpowering fast ball. Proof is the fact he struck out more batters than he pitched innings last season, 122 to 104. His won-lost record was 5-4 and his earned run average 3.89.

Casey Wants Star Hurler Rested Up

By United Press International

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—There's a new method of picking the starting lineup for this year's big league All-Star game on July 8, but indications today were that there won't be any changes in the rules about the pitchers.

Casey Stengel, New York Yankee manager who annually picks the American League team as an old "Yankee custom," wants a rule to prohibit managers from using all-star pitchers on the Sunday before the Tuesday big game.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick was quizzed Wednesday about Casey's proposal while he was announcing arrangements for this year's carnival of the stars at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium.

"That is strictly at the discretion of the two leagues," said Frick.

And league heads Warren Giles of the National and Will Harridge of the American followed by declining to endorse the Stengel idea. Harridge refused to comment at all. But Giles said:

"I personally would be against suggesting anything to a manager. That might hurt his chance of winning a championship game."

The big change, this year, of course, is that the starting lineup for both leagues will be made up of "ballplayers" ballplayers." This is the first time that the lineup will be picked by balloting of the major-league players, managers, and coaches.

Frick took the vote away from the fans because of "ballot box stuffing" in Cincinnati. The Red Leg fans voted so early and often that last year they picked an entire starting lineup of Cincinnati players for the National League, excepting Stan Musial.

Frick announced yesterday that the players' voting will start on June 22. Players are allowed to vote only for players in their league and not for players on their team. The ballot results will be announced June 29.

Western Opens

DETROIT (UPI)—Par is sure to take a whipping in the 72-hole 55th Western Open golf tournament beginning today at the Red Run golf club with a more brilliant field than even the U. S. Open will command at Tulsa.

Don January slashed six strokes off the par 72 layout in the final warmup rounds Wednesday with Gary Brewer of Lexington, Ky., turning in a 67 on the first course.

Scanlon Hurt

CHICAGO (UPI)—Irish Bobby Scanlon, a San Francisco lightweight with an unbeaten record of 29 ring victories, said today he might have made a better showing Wednesday night if he had not been hampered by an injured right hand.

The 22-year-old Scanlon, billed as one of the International Boxing Clubs' "new faces" of 1958, scored an easy 10-round unanimous decision over Bobby Rogers, another unranked "rookie" who has done most of his fighting around Chicago.

Floyd To Defend

NEW YORK (UPI)—Floyd Patterson will defend his heavyweight crown for the third time in July, somewhere outside New York State, it was learned today.

Manager Gus D'Amato is expected to announce the challenger and the site at any hour now.

Young Patterson will change training camps in Monday and begin serious preparations for the defense. He has been conditioning off and on, for four months at the Long Pond Inn, Greenwood Lake, N. Y.

Rogers Stays Put

BRYAN, Tex. (UPI)—Texas A&M basketball coach Bob Rogers has declined an offer to discuss the vacant basketball position at Southern Illinois University of Carbondale.

The Bryan Eagle reported Wednesday Don Boydston, former Oklahoma A&M schoolmate of Rogers and now Southern Illinois athletic director, invited Rogers to discuss the job. Rogers said "I am happy at Texas A&M and I don't want to leave."

Rathman Brothers Chances For '500 Win Are Solid

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—Judging from their finishing position last year, their starting position this year, there's a good chance that Dick or brother Jim Rathmann will win Friday's 500-mile Memorial Day auto race.

Jim finished second to record-breaker Sam Hanks in the 1957 race-around-the-oval and Dick is sitting in the pole position for the take-off this May 30th.

Six times in the history of the race, the man who finished second one year drove on to victory the following year. And six times the pole car has dominated the run for the money not counting Mauri Rose's victory in 1941 when he held the pole in one car but won the race as a relief driver in 1942.

The business of refusing to inhale exhaust fumes of the winning car two years in a row started back in 1916 when Dario Resta won after finishing second in 1915 to Ralph DePalma.

Fred Frame was second to Louis Schneider in 1931 but had "Victory Lane" all to himself in 1932.

Floyd Roberts sat on the pole and in victory lane in 1938, beating Wilbur Shaw to the checkered flag by little more than two minutes. Shaw had won the previous year and he drove to his second victory in 1939 and his third in 1940.

Rose won his second race in 1947 and his third in 1948. Bill Holland was second in both races but reversed the decision in 1949 with his only victory here.

Johnnie Parsons was a rookie at the Speedway in 1949 and finished second. He won the rain-abbreviated chase in 1950 with Holland closing in fast as a downpour stopped the race at the 345-mile mark.

Riding second to Hanks' record speed of 135.601 m.p.h. was Jim Rathmann, whose second-place time would have won any previous "500" by more than eight minutes.

Jim starts from the 20th position this year—12 positions better than his starting spot in 1957. But he has a tough field to pass, not least of which is his brother, Dick, who took the pole spot with a record 10-mile qualifying speed of 145.774 m.p.h.

And brother Dick, also has precedence riding his favorite of some previous pole car winners. Tommy Murphy did it first in 1922 and Tommy Milton liked the 1923 so well that he repeated the trick in 1923.

Arnold's All-Time Leader

Billy Arnold took the pole in 1930 but got beat into the first corner in the first two laps by Louis Meyer. He got the lead in the third lap and ran away from the field for the rest of the race to set a lap-leading record of 198 laps that still stands.

Roberts and Rose were both pole and race winners in 1938 and 1941 and then Bill Vukovich almost outdid Arnold. Vuky sat on the pole, charged into the lead, and held it all for except the 50th through 54th lap when he lost the lead in a pit stop. He rode to the first of his two victories that year by leading 195 laps.

Flaherty did it again in 1956 and now it's Dick Rathmann's turn. Or is it Jim's?

NED'S NAME RATES ON 1958 COME BACK LIST

By BILL CLARK

United Press International

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Ned Garver should be a frequently mentioned name when baseball men start passing out comeback of the year honors next fall.

The onetime St. Louis Browns "staff" is pitching at 32 as he hasn't since 1951. Resultingly, the Kansas City Athletics are off to the finest start in club history and slugger Bob Cerv and Ned are accorded most of the credit.

Ned, the guy most people believe couldn't throw a fast ball through a window pane, believes control is the answer. That and a reprieve from prolonged arm and knee miseries.

Control All-Important

For a "head" pitcher like Garver, control is the all-important factor. Thus far in 59 innings, Ned has signed only 21 free passes, and more important, has pitched with seldom-erring arm to his opponent's batting weakness.

In seven starts, the Ney, Ohio, native has completed six games, winning six and losing only one. His ERA is a stout 2.74 and he's fared three shutouts, one a season-opening duel with Cleveland's Herb Score. In his last start, Garver halted Baltimore 4-0 on two hits.

Ned, who has added only one pitch—a knuckler—since arriving

New Car for Hanks

Sam Hanks finished second to pole and race winner Pat Flaherty in 1956. Last year, Hanks had a new and radically-designed car that he held in the groove for a record-winning speed during the 200 laps to victory.

No Speedballer

The Athletic bellweather admits he's not—and never was—a fast ball pitcher, but according to pitching coach Spud Chandler Garver's speed is "often surprising, particularly in 1958."

Last year the 1951 Browns 20-game winner was battered for 13 losses in 19 starts. Through it all, Garver was handled patiently and allowed several extra days between starts.

"Because they (club officials) knew I'd play it straight with them," Garver says, "I was allowed to call my own pitching turns." If he felt he couldn't be effective, someone else was used.

The patience and rest were the apparent payoffs. "If I'd come up with more arm trouble this year," Garver said, "I'd probably be through."

Currently beset only by New York's Bob Turley in American League pitching, Ned still refused to concede he's all the way "back." He'll offer no predictions on possible victory totals.

Ossie Bluege was the third baseman on all three of Washington's pennant winning teams—in 1924, 1925 and 1933. For 18 seasons, Bluege rated as one of the greatest "glove men" in baseball for his excellent work afield but he was no slouch as a clutch hitter, either. Over his active span as a player, he compiled an average of .272. As manager of the Senators from 1943-47, he was the last to steer the club in first division finishes with seconds in 1943 and 1945 and fourth in 1946. He was farm system director for the Senators from 1948-56.

Critic Comes Up With Ideas On Fall TV Shows

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—I've been looking over the tentative fall schedules of the three networks and I find they contain the usual fare — Westerns, situation comedies, quizzes.

Frankly, the situation disturbs me. But I don't think the season has to fall into the same old rut — a few new program ideas would fix things up fine. In the interests of better programming, therefore, I have compiled the following possible formats for TV shows next semester:

"The Places Show" — I see this as a one-man assisted by one Atlas type show. The idea is for him to call out places—Minneapolis; Detroit; Tiffin, Ohio; Chavez Ravine; Kanda Kanda, Belgian Congo—and then let the studio audience applaud. That's all.

"The Awards Show"—an entry that would take care of all the trophies, plaques, medals, statues, certificates, ribbons, decorations, garlands, crowns, citations, honors, titles, cups, saucers and gold records ordinarily bestowed upon performers each week on their own programs.

"The Coming Attractions Theatre"—This one would be a drama show made up of all those scenes played at the end of "Playhouse 90," "Climax" and "Studio One" that capsulizes what's coming up the following week. They're usually the best part of the upcoming script anyhow.

"The Vaughn Monroe Show"—one half-hour of Monroe dropping radios.

"The Plug Show"—in which stars would parade on stage to puff their latest movies, books, plays and to make jokes about commercial products that aren't their sponsors'. I see Bob Hope as emcee.

"The Sound Track Show"—made up of the greatest canned laughs from filmed situation comedies.

"The Egghead Show"—Italian and Japanese movies.

"The Super-Egghead Show"—Italian and Japanese movies with French titles.

"The Postcard Show"—a once-a-month entry in which all the home participation quizzes like "The Price is Right," "Dotto" and "Treasure Hunt" select a viewer to whom they can send all their used postcards.

"The Horror Show"—made up entirely of stomach acid commercials.

"The Break-Up Show"—Helen Traubel roaring at Eddie Fisher who has muffed his lines after watching Steve Allen giggle when Sid Caesar coughed as a result of Frank Sinatra mumbling under his breath in Italian because Patti Page forgot the words to an introduction. I should explain that it was all caused by Perry Como who misread his cue cards.

"The Stars Strike Back Show"—In which TV critics poke their heads through a 21-inch hole while performers throw typewriters at them. I see this as a spectacular.

Short Shots: It - was - bound-to-happen dept: Tuesday night a contestant on NBC-TV's "Treasure Hunt," a citizen of New York, won an all - expenses-paid trip to New York. . . Debbie Reynolds, who guested on the NBC-TV "Eddie Fisher Show" Tuesday night, blotted out her husband, Oscar Levant was on hand, too, and I must say it's satisfying to watch a disruptive force at work in a show ordinarily made up of milk - and - water. . . Margaret Truman turned in a charming guest stint with Johnny Carson on the NBC-TV "Jack Paar Show" Tuesday night - poised, assured and non-giggly.

Tito Is Victorious In Latest 'Feud'

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. McCANN
UPI Foreign News Analyst

It looks as if President Tito of Yugoslavia has won a big victory in his latest feud with the Soviet Russian Communist Party.

It looks also as if the reason is that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has won a victory over the "Stalinists" in the ruling Russian Communist Party Presidium and Central Committee. Only a few days ago, there were indications that Tito might be drummed out of the world Communist movement because he persisted in his refusal to conform to the party line—that is, to put himself again under Kremlin domination.

Tito Receives Greetings
But now Khrushchev has sent Tito a surprisingly friendly message of congratulation on his 66th birthday.

"Accept my cordial congratulations and wishes for happiness and the flourishing of the brotherly Yugoslav people," Khrushchev said.

"I express the hope that existing misunderstandings between the Communist League of Yugoslavia and the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and other fraternal parties, which are not secret, will be overcome."

It was Khrushchev who patched up party relations between Russia and Yugoslavia after Josef Stalin's death.

Khrushchev made a humble pilgrimage to Belgrade and told Tito that Stalin was to blame for ostracizing him because he revolted against Kremlin domination. But the "Stalinists" in the Russian party leadership—the ones who feared Khrushchev's attempt to liberalize conditions in the Soviet Union and its satellites—never really accepted that action.

Blamed Lack of Discipline

To them, Tito's revolt was unforgivable. They wanted no independents in the Communist movement. From their viewpoint, they were right. The revolts in Poland and Hungary, and the general loosening of discipline in all Communist countries which followed Khrushchev's liberalization campaign showed how dangerous a relaxation of Red dictatorship can be.

The latest Tito - Kremlin feud broke out in April when the Yugoslav Communists proclaimed a party platform emphasizing Tito's determination to keep his independence.

Savage attacks were made on Tito by the leaders of Communist countries. There was talk that Russia might end all economic aid to Yugoslavia and that Tito might be formally read out of the world Communist movement. Tito remained defiant and met attack with attack.

ROUND TRIPPER?—With the recovery of the nose cone of a Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile the United States has gone a long way in solving the re-entry problem. While construction details are secret, this picture, released by General Electric, shows a fully checked out and operational nose cone (arrow) being repacked in its carrier case at Cape Canaveral, Fla. The blunt front, or "shield," of the nose cone remains seated in the lower part of the case until the nose cone is ultimately mated with the missile. The nose is blunted to produce the high-drag-to-weight design. This should reduce speeds from 15,000 to perhaps 500 miles an hour and reduce 99 per cent of the heat from friction with the atmosphere. A sharp nose cone burns up on re-entry like a meteor or like the spent Russian Sputniks I and II.

Buckley Prods

We note with interest that the U. S. Department of Justice is starting an investigation of "possible outside influences" in the indictment last week of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr., the New York Democratic congressman who is accused of federal income tax evasion.

With all the earmarks of the McCarthy investigation of a couple of years ago, the department is preparing to investigate the man who prodded the department into calling the federal grand jury back into action in the Powell investigation.

The Associated Press quotes U. S. Atty. Paul W. Williams as launching a probe against William F. Buckley Jr., editor of the right-wing weekly National Review and a former assistant U. S. Attorney in Williams' office, Thomas Bolan.

It was Buckley's magazine which virtually alone forced the U. S. attorney to re-convene the grand jury. Buckley disclosed that the grand jury had investigated the affair of Powell for three months and that the investigation was suspended by the federal officials in March, 1957, even though Treasury and Justice officials said they believed there was sufficient evidence to indict the congressman.

Buckley's article in the Dec. 14, 1957, issue of National Review said the decision by the administration "to draw back its forces is most probably an act of political gratitude" although he said other explanations were possible, including intimidation.

He pointed out, however, that it was more likely that the Eisenhower administration "felt beholden to Adam Powell for his dramatic and totally unexpected announcement of Oct. 11, 1956, calling on all Negroes to vote for the Republican presidential candidate, Adam Powell was deep in trouble at the moment he made that switch. He knew the Justice Department had begun to look closely into his affairs. Three of his secretaries had been indicted for tax evasion. One had already been convicted, and at her trial a witness stated he had been told by the defendant that she, the defendant, had been kicking her salary back to Powell. Another secretary was on trial at that moment. Powell was due (or rather, overdue) in court to give evidence. He had not appeared; what was more, he could not be found."

Subsequently, it was recounted, Powell visited the White House, then came out to Eisenhower.

However, the Justice Department continued its grand jury probe into Powell's activities until it was called off a year ago last March. Buckley reported Bolan who had been handling the case, was told the suspension of the investigation was ordered from the U. S. attorney's office in Washington, and that "It's just too hot to handle."

Since Buckley's first story of the dropping of the investigation, his magazine almost weekly has reminded its readers of the fact and has given them the number of weeks left for the jury to consider the case and the length of time since the previous hearing was held.

The hearings were resumed after National Review sent copies of its December article on the case to every member of the grand jury. Now Powell has been indicted on three counts charging income tax evasion in 1951-52.

It will be interesting to see if the U. S. Department of Justice is more diligent in investigating Buckley's admitted attempt to prod the jury into action than it did in pushing the probe into the politician's case.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

Union Man Defends
Compulsory Unionism

I am continuing to quote a letter from a believer in the closed shop and attempting to explain his errors.

Get All He Produces
We asked the reader if the worker is not to get all he produces who should get it.
The reader's answer: "Of course, Mr. Editor, an employee should not receive all the profits he produces. There must be a balance for the maintenance of the business and also a profit for the owner."

Justice requires that each and every person gets all he produces — no more, no less. And the employer is not getting anything from the employee if he is hiring him on a free market basis. When he makes a profit he is simply being paid for his work and the risk he takes and for the use of his tools. His work is selling the product of his employees to his customers and hiring the right man and buying the equipment and materials and paying the bills, etc. He should get only a free market profit for his work just as the worker should get only a free market wage.

If the employer attempted to get a monopoly price the customer would take care of him. If not the Sherman Anti-Trust Law would put him in jail, while the Sherman Anti-Trust Law permits the worker to form a monopoly union and get a non-competitive, non-free-enterprise wage. That is, he gets more than he actually produces as measured by competition. But this man-made law does not make it just.

Jobs should be interchangeable. If the worker thinks the employer is making too much profit, he can get out by renting the land, buying the equipment and hiring the labor and reducing the profits to what competition says is fair. Or if he thinks one worker is getting more than he is for the same skill and effort, he should be free to take the better job for less wages and thus keep any wage or profit from exploiting the public.

No Person Knows Fair Wage
The reader writes: "You ask about a fair wage. Well, Mr. Editor, every employer knows what a fair wage is for his employees. Yet some make every effort to prevent paying it. All employers have formulas for figuring it out. No doubt you also have one. You say fair wages should be established by competition. Unions as a rule allow competition to a certain point, but if you get a right-to-work law, unions will be helpless, and so will employees, and then there will be no limit to competition for workers to make a decent living for their families and themselves. Wages and working conditions will go down as they have in the states which now have right-to-work laws."

I know of no individual, whether employer or employee or group, who knows what a fair wage is. A fair wage is one that is just as high as it can be so as not to cause unemployment. It should be constantly changing up or down according to demand. And there can be no way of arriving at a fair wage if at "a certain point" competition is limited. The minute you limit competition you have an arbitrarily artificial wage that is bound to result in unemployment.

It takes two or more people to establish a fair wage. There must be a party who thinks the wage is fair and who is willing and able to buy the services of the worker, and the wage must not be set under threats of a strike or a boycott.

If the employer tried to establish a low wage by threats of a conspiracy that all of them would quit employing workers at the same time, they would be violating moral, as well as civil law — the Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

So, Mr. Defender of the Closed Shop does not tell how to arrive at a fair wage.
The man who believes in the free-enterprise competitive system can think of no way of arriving at a fair wage other than letting all people, not just members of a union, help establish a fair wage. This is exactly what the labor unions refuse to do.
They want to establish the caste system which gives certain men rights that other men do not have. This violates the principles set forth in the Declaration of Independence that all men, not just some men, are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights. This labor unions completely deny, just as does every communist organization completely deny the inalienable rights of those that the communists would govern.

The next question was: "Why should any man get more for rendering a service to another man than the third party is willing and capable of doing the same job for?"
The reader says he has already answered that question in his above answer. But he has not answered that question as to why one man should get more than another for doing the same work.
And that is the question I have never been able to find any believer in striking labor unions who would attempt to answer. If they attempted to answer it they would have to make one group of men have rights superior to rights of another group. They would have to adopt the caste system. They would have to deny the axiom that each and every man must live by the sweat of his own brow, not by the sweat of other people's brows. They would have to deny equal rights as citizens and as

Robert Allen Reports:

Russian Envoy Courts Leaders Of Congress

WASHINGTON — Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov is extending his unique efforts to "win friends and influence people" to a most unusual arena.

The Russian envoy is directly and actively wooing leaders of Congress.
Accompanied by members of his embassy staff, Menshikov is visiting the lawmakers in their Capitol offices, and earnestly proselyting them on two of the Kremlin's pet aims:
A "Big Two" summit meeting between President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev.
Increased trade between the U. S. and Russia.

The congressional leaders are also being cordially urged by Menshikov to be his guests at the ornate Soviet embassy — the one-time Pullman mansion.
"Come at any time," he invites warmly. "Breakfast, lunch, dinner; whenever it's convenient for you, it will be very convenient for me. I should like very much to make such meetings regular events. We could talk over many things."

In the past week, this remarkable personal "lobbying" by the Soviet Ambassador included the following:
Senator Theodore Green (D., R.I.), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee; Senator Alexander Wiley, Wis., and Senator H. Alexander Smith, ranking Republican members of that powerful Committee; Senator Mike Mansfield, Mont., Democratic Whip; Senator Allen Ellender (D., La.), head of the Agriculture Committee, who has made several extensive visits to Russia; Senator John Kennedy (D., Mass.), member of the Labor Rackets Investigating Committee; Senator Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) militant critic of domestic and foreign policies of the Administration.

Also visited by Menshikov are members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Commerce Committee, and several other committees.
TWO SURPRISES — With one top House leader, the Soviet Ambassador has had no luck in getting in to see him.
Representative John McCormack (D., Mass.) has rebuffed attempts to call on him. He has long bitterly assailed Russia's brutal suppressive policies in the satellite countries, and is making it evident he has no desire to talk to the Kremlin envoy.
"So when McCormack's secretary was told of Menshikov's desire to visit, the reply was, 'The Majority Leader is in outer space.'"

"Outer space? I do not understand," exclaimed Menshikov. "What is that?"
"The Majority Leader is chairman of the special House Committee on Space," explained the secretary. "He is attending a meeting of this Committee, and cannot be disturbed."
There have been no further inquiries from Menshikov.

On his last Senate sortie, the Soviet Ambassador was accompanied by First Deputy Foreign Minister Vassili Kuznetsov, who was visiting Washington. As they walked past the entrance of the Intercontinental was caught by a huge map propped against the wall in the marble corridor.
Made by the Army Engineers, the map showed all the water power projects in Russia, with the principal ones circled in red.

human beings. They would, in short, establish a caste or a slave system where there were men who were privileged to do certain work at artificially high wages and other workers who would have to do certain work at artificially low wages.

Soon To Be Cliche Time In The Rockies

It soon will be cliché time in the Rockies.

Also in the Alleghenies, the Blue Ridges, the Cascades, the Appalachians, and the Big Smokies.

The faded flowers of oft-repeated phrases and maxims also will burst into full bloom in the Panhandle, the Central Plains, the Delta and the Piedmont.

For graduation day nears, and all over the country graduation speakers are practicing before mirrors, rehearsing before their wives, and urging ghost writers to hurry and sand along the final draft.

Come graduation day, these men, chosen from all walks of life (I use that phrase to prove I know what a cliché is all about) will stand on platforms, gaze seriously into the eager faces of the sheepskin holders, and cut loose.

It is a good bet that 99 and 99-100ths of these orators will cut loose with the same words that have been used by their predecessors since Noah talked to the senior class on the Ark. The total talks could be boiled down to their essential oils without two milligrams of original thought being left.

I don't say this is bad. I only say it is boring. Perhaps all that will be said needs to be said for the millionth time, but I am thankful I won't be sitting under an elm, wearing a black kimono and a hard hat, listening to it.

The graduates are going to be told that the world is in bad shape perhaps the worst it ever was in. It is at the crossroads, too, and it is up to the young men and women of the world to determine which fork it will travel.

Not only will the young people have to choose the right fork, but they must take time out while making this decision to catch the torch thrown to them by the older generation. Older people are the greatest torch throwers in the world. When it burns low, and begins to scorch their hands, they give it a heave and leave it for someone else to juggle.

Some day the younger generation is going to side-step the torch and force their elders to pick it up themselves, saying, "Keep it, Pops, until what it lights up looks a little better."

The graduates are sure to be told that this is an unprecedented age of opportunity, and that nothing is beyond their grasp. The fact that the speaker was told the same thing years ago, and didn't reach quite as far as he might have, is never mentioned.

Before he is turned loose from the campus the graduate will be told that thrift is commendable, honesty pays off, ducks like water, life is a great adventure, he is not to be afraid to take a chance, that the race is not always to the swift, and that youth is the springtime of life.

By that time he'll be so hot and itchy under his robe that he won't hear a word — not even the hand-picked anecdote, which packs a chuckle and a message, that the speaker is sure to drop in at what he considers just the proper moment.

In conclusion, the speaker will say again that the graduates are the hope of the world, and that the lights will go out all over if he fails to keep his hand on the switch.

All good stuff, and very true. But wouldn't it save time and expense to hand out mimeographed sheets?

These could, with careful handling, be used year after year, and in no time at all there'd be enough money saved to establish a whole raft of football scholarships.

We are in a tight spot and, in this spot, Ike seems to be giving us the best leadership that is available and to be doing this with a patriotic disregard to his own comfort and health. This is heroic, but a persistent aculebut emitting from Washington tells of a condition that might undo all of this very real heroism. There are alarming reports that the White House Palace guard is keeping vital information above Vice President Nixon. And Nixon is the man on whom all our lives may depend (and at a moment's notice) if any thing happens to the President. He is the legally constituted heir to Eisenhower's terrific responsibilities. Needless to say, none of these rumors originate with Mr. Nixon. He's always been scrupulously loyal to the President and by a stern self-discipline has kept himself from criticizing the executive. An active concern for the nation's unity would keep his lips sealed. But if any of these reports are true, public opinion should notify the President of them.

The American Way

THE "RECESSION"
By Willis E. Stone

The promotion and management of the current "recession" by Washington politicians makes no sense at all! This is not necessarily a new condition, but it is one which has reached alarming proportions.

Let's analyze it a moment. We have been told we must pay high taxes because our own money in our own hands to buy the things we individually want would be "inflationary."

Large portions of our tax dollars are then used to put bureaucrats into direct competition with tax paying enterprises. The bureaucrats, however, have the unique advantage of operating interest free, rent free, cost free and tax free, charging their losses and hidden costs back to the taxpayers.

We are told that other portions of our tax dollars must be given to socialistic and communistic nations throughout the world to keep these socialistic and communistic nations from going socialistic and communistic.

Our tax dollars syphoned into foreign countries are used to develop industrial production by subjugated labor. To help these "poorer" nations we have given free access to our domestic markets.

Indeed we have done more than that. We are restricting the planting of cotton while providing funds for other countries to go into cotton production. We have priced our cotton out of the world market by political "subsidies" and "support programs." We are doing the same thing in a score of other basic products.

We are compelling sugar farmers to curtail their crops and stop exporting. We have even outlawed the production of sugar in America in excess of 54 percent of our domestic consumption to insure a half billion dollar a year American market for foreign sugar production, managed by a sugar cartel.

About 40 per cent of the retail price of American made automobiles goes to taxes, but foreign made cars are heavily supported by indirect subsidies of American tax dollars, and enjoy free access to the American market through almost non-existent import duties.

These are a few of the political reasons for unemployment. These conditions being so patently true it would seem that Washington politicians would be the first to recognize the fact that, by reversing "recession" we would have it whipped before it even started!

Bureaucrats, however, make the "recession" an instrument of justifying further plundering of the public purse. They propose to "spend" us into prosperity.
How much simpler it would be if government would stop competing with the private enterprises of its own taxpaying citizens under the pretense of "faking" care of them. This would restore our traditional principle of equity and justice. Producers would be able to enjoy the product of their toil and spend their own money for the things they wish, making more jobs for more people.

Getting government out of competition with its own citizens would so tremendously cut the cost of government that we could abolish the individual income tax menace, increase the take-home pay and raise the purchasing power of the American people by about 20 per cent. This would produce the greatest economic prosperity in all of history and restore our dynamic American free enterprise system.

Shall we restore our economic health in this manner or shall we permit bureaucracy to take over our property, destroy our economy, inflate our money and establish a total control over everything and everybody?
Germany tried to solve a "recession" by inflating the currency and produced a Hitler. Italy tried to cure a "recession" by developing the "corporate state" and produced a Mussolini.

Here in the United States we can return to the tried and true "American Way" by outlawing the alien practice of government competition with private enterprise and repealing the Marxist income tax by getting action on a "Proposed 23rd Amendment" pending in Congress as J. H. Res. 355. It provides that:
Sec. 1. The Government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial, financial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution.
Sec. 4. Congress shall not levy taxes on personal incomes, inheritances and — or gifts.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Use the Want Ads to Retire

AT EASE—Wearing slacks and shoes styled for comfort, actress Katherine Hepburn is the picture of informal ease as she rides in a car at London Airport. She had just arrived from New York.

PRICE OF VIGILANCE—Composed of the United States, Canada and 13 nations of free Europe, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is the most powerful peacetime alliance in history. The U.S. budget for fiscal 1959 calls for a NATO appropriation of 737 million dollars. In upper half of Newcast, average cost of maintaining one American soldier abroad is compared with two representative members. Difference is due to higher pay, housing, transportation, etc. In terms of total expenditures, however, lower chart shows that in a seven-year period, the other NATO nations combined have contributed more than six times as much as the United States.

AUTO OUTPUT—Lines on graph above show passenger automobile output for 1958's first quarter and for the year 1957. The downturn which started in November, 1957, continued through December and into January 1958 and from then on, at an accelerated pace. In the first quarter of this year, 780,000 fewer cars were produced than in the comparable period last year. Data from Ward's Automotive Reports.
