Authorities Don't Suspect Sabotage In 4 Jet Crashes

Planes Fall In 100 Mile Area

By United Press International
Military authorities discounted today the possibility of sabotage in the crashes of four Air Force jet planes within 24 hours in Texas and New Mexico. They included two of perhaps the most secret planes the Air Forces flies. The highly secret planes were Lockheed U-2s. Air police blocked off an area within a five-mile radius around a U-2 crash near Tucumcari, N. M., all night. A 14-man team from Laughlin AFB at Del Rio, Tex. flew in today in a helicopter and began searching the guarded area for "highly classified documents." None would say what the documents are.

But it was learned that the U-2 itself is secret. Air Force authorities from Cannon AFB at Clovis, N. M. who sent in the wreckage guard, denied even that they knew there was such a plane. All four planes crashed within an area of 100 miles. Both U-2s were from Laughlin AFB. The other two planes were F-100-D Super-Sabre jets from Cannon AFB. The one man, the pilot, in each plane was killed. The F-100-Ds crashed within sight of each other Wednesday near Clovis, N. M. One U-2 exploded in air near Wayside, Tex. The U-2 which crashed near Tucumcari also exploded in air. Tom and George Fish, brothers, said they heard a "loud explosion" Wednesday and, looking up, saw "burning pieces of the airplane" drifting toward earth. "Something Funny"

A New Mexico state policeman, who did not want to be identified, said he thought there was "something funny" about the crashes and suggested sabotage.

Capt. Lloyd Strot, public information officer at Laughlin AFB, said the crashes, so close together, were a coincidence but he thought sabotage highly unlikely.

The 14-man team from Laughlin AFB, sent to the Tucumcari crash, was headed by Col. Howard Shidal. After retrieving the classified documents, it will investigate the crash. Strot said the U-2s were on high altitude weather missions that sometimes go up to 55,000 feet. He said they are also used in the armed forces "special weapons projects."

The U-2s, it was learned, were measuring radioactivity in clouds at 55,000 feet. Strot would not say how many U-2 jets are based at Laughlin, but it was understood that the only other Air Force base with U-2 jets is in Puerto Rico.

Pilot Awarded DFC
Air Force officers told civilian officials not to touch any of the U-2 wreckage unless a life was at stake.

The pilot of the U-2 that crashed near Tucumcari was Alfred V. Chapin Jr. of Del Rio. He was on duty in England in 1955 and was (See SABOTAGE, Page 2)

Two Pampa Girls Get Scholarships

Mary K. Cole and Martha J. Collins of Pampa have been named recipients of $2,000 scholarships from the Educational Fund for Children of Phillips Petroleum Company Employees, the Company has announced.

The Pampa girls are among 13 high school graduates of the Texas Panhandle, receiving scholarships to accredited colleges and universities of their choice.

Miss Cole is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Cole. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Collins are Miss Collins' parents.

The winners came from 123 candidates who had qualified to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test of the College Entrance Examination Board May 17. Each scholarship provides $500 a year for four years to college attendance, subject to the student's ability to keep his record high.

Alton L. Thygeson, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Thygeson of Pampa, is one of the alternates for a scholarship award.

A. Conrad Jackson, recently of Stinnett, received one of the $2,000 scholarships.

The scholarship fund was established in 1939 to aid the children of Phillips Petroleum Company employees in obtaining higher education.

High school students from 31 towns in 12 states took the 1958 Aptitude Test. Qualifying students who did not receive scholarships may apply for college aid through a separate educational loan fund.

Phillips winners are H. Edward Aycock, Lee D. Kness, James E. Raley and James A. Taber. Borge are Amada T. Vidaurri, Ronald G. Barnett, Gary N. Birdsong, Kenneth M. Cunningham, Jack V. McClain, David D. Sallee and Carl B. Wienbroer.

Area alternates are Linda Sue Crittenden and R. Lee White, Borge; Judith C. Woodward, Amarillo; Johnnie B. McEntire, Fritch, and Thygeson.

Fat Man Dies On Hospital Parking Lot

BREMEN, Ind. (UPI)—A carnival fat man who weighed more than 3,000 pounds died today in a heavily reinforced house trailer on the parking lot of a hospital.

Robert Hughes, 32, Emden, Mo., was pronounced dead about 6:30 a.m. despite the fact doctors tried to save his life by administering oxygen.

Death was attributed by Mary Harris, administrator of Bremen Community Hospital, to uremia.

Hughes was critically ill the past few days with a heart condition complicated by an attack of three-day measles.

Relatives from Missouri were at the bedside when Hughes breathed his last.

Hughes, who once was reported to have weighed 1,065 pounds, was listed by Gooding Brothers Amusement Co. as weighing 1,041 pounds at the time he became ill last week while the carnival was playing a stand at North Vevgon, Ind.

Hospital authorities said there was no doubt Hughes weighed as much as his sponsors said he did.

A Bremen mortician was called and said he would embalm the body in the makeshift home, a converted semi-trailer truck, and relatives would take the remains back to Missouri for burial.

When doctors ordered Hughes to the hospital last weekend, they found he could not be moved inside the institution because there were no facilities for one of his size and weight.

Hughes apparently suffered a glandular disturbance while a small child. At the age of 6, he weighed 210, and by the time he was 14 he weighed 640 pounds. At the time of death, Hughes (See FAT MAN, Page 2)

BIG MAN DIES

Carnival "fat man" Robert Hughes, died of a heart attack this morning in Bremen, Ind. He tipped the scales at 1,041 pounds, and was too big to fit through hospital doors after suffering a stroke. He was being treated outside the hospital with three staff physicians in attendance.

US Airman Almost Lynched By Mob

By WELLINGTON LONG
United Press International

WIESBADEN, Germany (UPI)—One of nine U.S. airmen shot down over Soviet Armenia by Russian jet fighters disclosed today that Armenian peasants almost lynched him but spared his life when they discovered he was an American.

Maj. Dennis A. Shupe told a packed news conference the peasants had a noose around his neck and the other end of the rope tied to a telephone pole when he finally made them understand he was an American.

It was not clear whether the Armenians thought they were about to hang a Soviet flier or perhaps more likely a Turk, their traditional blood enemy from across the border.

The nine airmen were flying suits that bore no national markings.

Shupe said he saved his life by shouting out the names of American cities until the peasants understood.

Shupe spoke to newsmen after Col. Dale D. Brannon, the ranking officer, among the nine men aboard the C-118 plane that was shot down June 27, read a prepared statement for the group.

Five "Roughed Up"

Shupe and Brannon were two of the five that parachuted when two Soviet MIGs set it aflame by shooting at it. Brannon said all five were "roughed up" and had their hands tied behind their backs.

Four others rode the burning plane down to a crude landing field with the MIGs still firing at it. They escaped minutes before the plane exploded.

Shupe had the closest call.

"I was walking toward the other men (who had parachuted) when a group of peasants surrounded me," he said.

He said they tied his hands behind his back and took him to a nearby pole.

"I was positive they had every intention of hanging me from the pole when I at last managed to make out I was an American," he said. "One of the peasants shouted out, 'New York Chicago.' I then named all the U.S. cities I could think of to keep them off."

Then Treatment Improved
Brannon said all five who bailed out were hit with fists by Soviet peasants off and on for three hours.

He said he himself was thrown into a truck and a mob of peasants piled on top of him, kicking and battering him while he lay defenseless.

He said they were abused until they got into the hands of Soviet military police.

After that, Brannon said, the treatment of the airmen improved. (See AIRMAN, Page 2)

Goods May Go To Red China

By DAYTON MOORE
United Press International

OTAWA (UPI)—An agreement between President Eisenhower and Prime Minister John Diefenbaker opened the way today for possible limited sale to Red China of goods produced in American-owned plants in Canada.

The agreement, announced late Wednesday provided for full consultation between Canada and the United States on an individual case basis when an American subsidiary in Canada receives from Red China a firm order for goods.

The schedule for the final day of Eisenhower's three-day visit here called for a final conference with Diefenbaker in the morning and a round of golf in the afternoon.

He will fly back to Washington Friday with a two-hour stopover at Massena, N. Y., to inspect a recently opened section of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

WATCH YOUR ATTITUDE

Harris Will Subpena The Records Of Textile Tycoon

By TOM NELSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) said today his House influence investigating subcommittee will subpoena business records of millionaire Bernard Goldfine because of the textile tycoon's "ridiculous attitude" in refusing to answer some questions.

Harris made the announcement after Goldfine stood firm on his refusal to answer questions on why his firms dealt in uncashed treasurer's and certified checks totaling $776,879 as of May 7.

In particular, he refused to explain two checks, issued to the Yate Woolen Waste Co. in the spring of 1957 and not yet cashed.

Asked if he would turn over the books, once the subpoena was issued, Goldfine cautiously replied "On advice of counsel, I can't answer." He said his attorneys wanted to see the subpoena first.

"No Particular Reason"
Harris, in effect, backtracked on a ruling he made Wednesday that such questions were not pertinent to the subcommittee's inquiry into relations between Goldfine and Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams, a close friend.

The subcommittee wants to know whether Goldfine's New England firms got preferred treatment from government agencies as a result of inquiries which Adams has conceded he made.

Adams has admitted he accepted gifts and hospitality from Goldfine, but has denied doing anything improper on Goldfine's behalf.

Harris said he would subpoena the records of Goldfine's firms if they do not voluntarily produce them.

HUSBANDS IS C-C SPEAKER

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has done some of its more active work in the field of industrial development, Fred Husbands reported today.

Husbands, who is WTCC executive vice president, conducted a "Report to Members" meeting in the Palm Room this morning.

Husbands touched on the Chamber's agricultural program, including an emphasis on agricultural chemicals, and on legislation that would permit Mexican labor to continue in West Texas.

"A very serious problem may prevail in further industrial development," said Husbands, going on to explain that industries cannot bear the weight of heavy local taxes on top of county and state taxes. He cited a survey by a California manufacturer in which Oklahoma and Arkansas had the lowest level of local taxes. Said Husbands, "It would pay industry to go to those states."

However, the Chamber has set up the West Texas Bureau of Business Research with members who know the economic score. When called upon, this council will send teams of 2, 4, 5, 6, or 8 men out into the towns where industry is needed, Husbands said. The team of experts will analyze the industrial problems and work out the best approach to an industrial prospect.

The Bureau publishes a monthly magazine of current economic data that is available to all Chamber members.

Husbands also discussed the Chamber's work for topographic mapping which would locate the best run off points and aid in water conservation.

Canadian sources said Diefenbaker and his cabinet members were "very pleased" and optimistic that the agreement would produce tangible results.

Canadian Finance Minister Donald Fleming said it was Canada's intention that Canadian law alone would prevail over U. S.-owned businesses in Canada where sale of non-strategic goods to Red China is permitted.

But White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty refused to go beyond the official joint statement itself.

The President and the prime minister also agreed on closer cooperation in efforts to get Russia's agreement on military inspection zones, particularly the Arctic, to safeguard against surprise attack.

A second joint statement said they were encouraged by a recent note from Russian Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev on holding of East-West talks on safeguards against surprise attack. But they said some of the Red leader's conditions were unacceptable.

Hagerty said Eisenhower will reply to Khrushchev soon.

White Deer Woman Hurt In Accident

Claudine Vanbibber of White Deer was reported to be in good condition in Highland General Hospital this morning, recovering from injuries she received in a car accident 1 1/2 miles west and one mile north of Kingsmill about 2:15 a.m. this morning.

Investigating officer, W. A. Richardson of the Pampa division of the Texas Highway Patrol, said that Mrs. Vanbibber was traveling north on a county road when she lost control of her car. It slid into a bar ditch and turned over once.

A friend of Mrs. Vanbibber's, Peggy Everson, said in a telephone conversation from the hospital this morning that X-rays had been taken and the full extent of Mrs. Vanbibber's injuries were not known.

A pair of crutches were found in the woman's car and it was later found out that she was still recovering from a broken ankle injury, which she received last week.

AIRMAN

"We were interrogated by personnel who spoke good English and who appeared friendly," he said. "The overall treatment of the local authorities was considerate."

Brannon said that although Soviet officials questioned them about "our military duties," they were not mistreated physically and were given medical care. One of the nine suffered second degree burns when the plane caught fire.

The four who rode the plane to the ground were picked up by Soviet soldiers and taken to a local headquarters building, he said.

Lowered Landing Gear

Brannon, who did not command the plane but was only a flying guest, said the crew did not realize the plane was over unfriendly territory when the two jet fighters appeared overhead.

He said the crew first thought the fighters were Turkish or Iranian but when one of the jets fired a short burst at the lumbering transport it was suddenly realized they were Soviet MIGs.

"At the same time the aircraft commander lowered the landing gear in an attempt to indicate clearly that we were on a non-provocative flight," Brannon said.

"Then the fighters fired upon the aircraft with apparent intent to shoot it down."

"We were hit on the wing tank just behind the left No. 2 engine. Fire immediately broke out in the left wing."

In Heavy Thunderstorm

Brannon said the plane commander, Maj. Luther W. Lyles, Savoy, Tex., ordered the crew to abandon the plane but only five were able to get out of the burning craft.

Brannon "emphatically and categorically" denied there was any intentional violation of Soviet territory.

He said he plane was on a routine supply trip from Wiesbaden to Libya, Cyprus, Iran and Pakistan when it encountered heavy thunderstorms between Adana, Turkey, and Tehran, Iran.

The crew lost visual contact with the ground and the radar and radio navigational equipment "became unreliable due to the electrical disturbance" from the storms," he said.

Brannon said the pilot tried to veer around the storm to the north. Without reliable navigational aids he wandered too far.

Rebels Strike At Electric Power Station

By LARRY COLLINS

United Press International BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Rebels were reported today to have sabotaged the huge electric power station outside of Tripoli where Lebanese Army mortars again pounded incessantly at insurgents huddled up in the main market place.

There was no confirmation of the reported attack on the power plant at Akkar, north of Tripoli. The newspaper Al Nahar said the plant was sabotaged by "unknown persons" who destroyed "nearly all the machinery."

Sporadic gunfire was heard in Beirut during the night but no major incidents were reported.

UPI correspondent Robert Egby reported from Tripoli that heavy mortar and rifle fire went on through the night in many sections of the port-city. He said the firing was heaviest across the "no man's land" between the old city held by the rebels and the new city under government control.

Egby, who is living with UN observers at the Hakim Hotel on the fringe of the fighting zone in Tripoli, said there were fierce exchanges along Tripoli Boulevard and at Bab Tabani, the main market place, claiming rebels were holed up there after infiltrating Wednesday night.

A smoky haze covered the old city and several minor fires could be seen.

A rebel leader told UPI by telephone from Tripoli that three persons were killed in his section, including a woman nurse and a 12-year-old boy.

The pilot of the other U-2 was Christopher U. Walker, 30, of Kensington, England. His body was found in the ejection seat, 300 yards from the plane wreckage.

Walker was graduated from the Royal Air Force College at Cranwell, England.

The pilots of the Super-Sabres were Lt. Richard Condry, 27, of Norfolk, Va., and Lt. Norton P. Shoestaff of Solvay, N. Y.

Landed Plane Safely

Chapin was a captain in the U.S. Air Force and Walker a squadron leader in the Royal Air Force. He was one of four British exchange flying students at Laughlin.

Chapin got the DFC for bringing in a plane that had "a power failure and lost pressurization at high altitude Aug. 29, 1957."

The citation with the award said he "continued to fly the aircraft and landed it successfully in a small airfield."

The Lockheedes were described by Strot as "high altitude reconnaissance planes for weather reconnaissance." He refused to say how many of the U-2 jets were based at Laughlin, but it was learned that the only other Air Force base with U-2 jets is in Puerto Rico.

Cannon AFB officials said the Lockheedes were checking clouds for radioactive content at altitudes above 55,000 feet.

One of the planes, which Strot said had highly secret instruments aboard, crashed 24 miles south of Tucumcari, N. M., late yesterday.

Strot early today identified its pilot as 28-year-old Alfred V. Chapin Jr., of Del Rio.

Had Received Award

He said Chapin, who had overseas duty in England in 1955, was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross on May 23.

The other U-2 exploded in air, then plummeted to the ground near Wayside, Tex.

The body of its pilot, 30-year-old Christopher U. Walker, of Kensington, London, was locked in the ejection seat, 300 yards from where the plane's fuselage was found.

Strot said Walker was a graduate of the Royal Air Force College at Cranwell, England.

QUAKE

families in the Hauala, Sunset Beach, Kahuku and Waiawa coastal areas were ordered to leave their homes as a precautionary measure.

The quake was strong enough to create a heavy tide at Sitka, Alaska, but apparently its strength dissipated as it moved south and west over the Pacific.

The alert also had extended to Guam, Midway, Kwajalein, Wake and Johnston islands.

The survey said the quake originated about 4,800 miles from Hawaii, near Yakutsk which is located near Sitka and the Kanani Mountain range, a short distance from Alaska's border with Canada.

The survey said Sitka reported heavy tidal action, rising and falling about six inches. However, the quake was also recorded by action.

The quake was also recorded by the University of California seismograph in Berkeley. Seismologist Don Tocher said the quake had a Richter magnitude of 8. The strongest quake ever recorded had a magnitude of 8.6.

HARRIS

answer, Harris admonished him. "I think it's getting pretty far on the way toward ridiculous attitude and lack of cooperation," the chairman said. "It seems to me an unreasonable attitude to take."

As the subcommittee got set for another try at prying loose details of the checks, there were these other developments:

Goldfine accused Rep. Peter F. Mack Jr. (D-Ill.) of blackmail and "a dirty smear" in bringing up a 49-year-old indictment charging Goldfine with hiding assets in a bankruptcy case. Goldfine withdrew a guilty plea and the charge later was dropped completely.

Attorney General William P. Rogers refused to tell a news conference whether former FBI and general Trade Commission Chairman Edward Howrey broke the law when he gave Adams a "synopsis" of an FTC case against Goldfine, or whether Goldfine's income tax returns were under investigation. To do so, he said, would be to "indict people at a press conference."

Orders Remarks Stricken

The angry blackmail charge came from Goldfine when Mack asked if Goldfine once was indicted for concealing assets in a bankruptcy proceeding. Goldfine, apparently caught by surprise, said "I don't know what you are talking about."

Two documents were passed to his lawyer, Roger Robb, who said they appeared to be copies of indictments "almost 50 years old" showing charges which were dropped against Goldfine, then 18 years old.

Robb protested the questions as unfair, and subcommittee members rallied to his support. Harris ordered the whole line of questioning stricken from the record.

Goldfine shouted that Mack was trying to "blackmail" him and Harris directed that that remark be stricken, too. But the apple-cheeked magnate repeated his charge after he hearing.

"It's nothing but a dirty smear," he said.

Attorney Takes Amendments

By DICK WEST

United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI)—Abraham Teitelbaum, former attorney for "Scarface Al" Capone, refused under four constitutional amendments today to answer questions put to him by the Senate Rackets Committee.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) overruled all of Teitelbaum's objections except his Fifth Amendment plea of possible self-incrimination. He also refused the bald, portly attorney permission to make a statement before he was sworn as a witness in the investigation of underworld labor and business links.

Teitelbaum has been pictured as a key figure in the committee's current investigation of gangster infiltration of both labor and management groups in the Chicago restaurant business.

As a former $125,000-a-year labor counsel for the Chicago Restaurant Assn., he has been frequently mentioned by other witnesses as a middleman in what "shakedown racket."

"When his name was called by counsel Robert F. Kennedy, Teitelbaum shouldered up to the witness table and in a loud voice requested permission to read a statement."

McClellan told him the committee was not interested in unsworn statements, whereupon Teitelbaum informed him that "I've had previous experience with committees."

Teitelbaum said that he testified voluntarily in 1951 before a House committee investigating tax avoidance. As a result, he claimed, he became the "innocent victim" of a series of legal actions.

The committee earlier heard testimony that the restaurant association followed anti-union practices which would have been illegal in interstate commerce.

Ralph J. Gutgsell, former counsel for the association, said the group set up a special fund to fight union organizing efforts even when a majority of the restaurateurs have signed-union cards.

Gutgsell said this practice would be a violation of the Taft-Hartley law if followed by business in interstate commerce.

He said the association abruptly fired him in November, 1954, when Local 394 of the Restaurant Union picketed a restaurant belonging to the group.

FAT MAN

had a 122-inch waist circumference and 40-inchiceps.

Relatives said he could stand only 10 or 12 minutes at a time, and was able to walk only short distances. He ate about twice as much as a normal man and drank liquids in large quantities.

"Milk shakes were his weakness," Wesley Dennis, Hughes' business manager, said.

"He would drink them as long as anyone brought them to him."

Bomb Blasts Stand But Not 'Self In TV

Television in Review
By FRED DANZIG
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—The Investigator was concerned with the search for a mad bomber Tuesday night.
"Man, what a bomb it was. The culprit in this NBC-TV play had all New York terrified."
He hated newspapermen and newspapers and he was working off his animosity by planting crude bombs in newsstands, burying them between sports final and Wall Street closing editions.
In the opening scene, one of his bombs was shown blasting a newsstand to bits. Unfortunately, because of faulty staging, the bomb itself remained intact. While we can always forgive such mishaps in a live show, we find it harder to forgive unimaginative, unprofessional and unfair mystery writing.

Playwright Charles Quaid, confronted with the chore of filling the hour with suspense and mystery, tried to achieve that noble aim by throwing some phony decoys in the viewer's path.
He crippled our power of deduction — underdeveloped though it may be — with his false leads. His decoys included a sinister-looking locksmith, a sinister-acting bookseller, a lady pizza-maker's husband and a tough old vagrant — all of whom, it turned out, had nothing to do with the plot. The real bomber surrendered just before the final commercial, walking in suit of nowhere to close out the so-called action.
One bit in the play kept it from being a total loss. We learned that Frankfort is the capital of Kentucky; Hartford the capital of Connecticut. Some lucky viewer who gets on a quiz show may be thankful for that information.

Channel Chips: Kitty Carlisle's new hairdo on CBS-TV's "To Tell The Truth" was the most flattering one she's come up with so far... Every time I look at the "Bid 'N' Buy" set on CBS-TV, I expect to see Somerset Maugham come walking into the panel-walled room. Tuesday night's show offered a slightly changed format, but it still is a contrived, unexciting imitation of "The Price is Right".... It was either the New York humidity or the fierce competition that had those "Pantomime Quiz" troupers on ABC-TV screeching at each other. Anyhow, it made for another lively half-hour show.

Tonight's Highlights: "Cop Killer" is the "Kraft Mystery Theater" play on NBC-TV, and here's hoping it is better than Tuesday night's "The Investigator."

The Channel Swim: Johnny Carson's daily ABC-TV quiz, "Do You Trust Your Wife?" becomes "Who (sic) Do You Trust?" starting Monday July 14. Carson says the show will now include non-

NO COMPLAINTS—Raymond Burr, TV's "Perry Mason," takes the case for the defense of the star role in a telefilm series. Gripping over a series' problems should be done constructively and in private only, says Burr.

In addition to these one-hour presentations, the "Omnibus" team, headed by Robert Saudek, will present special 90-minute programs in prime evening time every month or so. Saudek promises: "no quizzes!"

"The Mike Wallace Interview" will close its current "Survival and Freedom" series on NBC-TV Sunday, July 20 with Dr. Robert Hutchins as the guest. Either "Playhouse 90" or the "DuPont Show of the Month" will do it.

Face Cuts Bring Boot

NEW YORK (UPI)—A 30-day suspension for face cuts will prevent middleweight Willie Dockery from being rewarded with another TV fight at St. Nicholas Arena, Aug. 4, for Monday night's upset victory.
Lanky Willie of Brooklyn, a 3-1 underdog, came from behind in the late going of the excellent 10-rounder to win a split decision over slugger George Benton of Philadelphia, unbeaten in his previous 11 starts.
Dockery, weighing 164-1/2 pounds to Benton's 181-1/4, suffered cuts on both cheeks. He bled from the nose and mouth, and his left eye

They Tried To Tell Us We're Too Young!

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Romance has died on the vine for a 22-year-old bean sheller and his 65-year-old wife.
It was a year ago that Tom Henderson declared his "love at first sight" for Mrs. Florence Norris, a widow.
For her part, Mrs. Norris was "sure tired of living alone." They were married.
But relatives reported Tuesday the union did not work out. Mrs. Henderson is living with a son and Henderson has gone back to live with his mother.

Youngster Found

MALONE, N.Y. (UPI)—Five-year-old Brenda Jean Doud, missing in the Adirondack woods since Sunday, was found late Tuesday only a half-mile from where she disappeared.
She was reported in fair condition at a hospital here suffering from exposure and insect bites.
State troopers said she was found sitting under a tree a short distance from a hunting camp in the thick woods.

Radion Trouble

NEW YORK (UPI)—Magnetic disturbances presumably caused by eruptions on the sun disrupted radio communications throughout the world Tuesday and early today.

The heaviest interference was across the Atlantic from New York to Europe and the Middle East.

SLEEPING PILLS FATAL

ABILENE, Tex. (UPI)—Mary Moore Daniel, 42, of Houston, was found dead in her motel room here Tuesday. Police, who found sleeping pills and poison in her room, said an autopsy would be performed.

PAN FRIED PERCH WITH DILLY COLE SLAW—Fresh perch fried in butter to a golden brown, French fried potatoes, cole slaw with a flavorful dill dressing and good hot coffee add up to a wonderful supper indoors or out. The perch fillets are dipped first in evaporated milk, then in dry bread crumbs which produces an even coating that makes frying easy.

Golden Perch Fillets And Dill Cole Slaw Appealing Summer Fare For Family

FRIED PERCH AND CRISP COLE SLAW ARE GOOD SUMMER FARE

A fish fry is mighty appealing in the summertime especially when the fish that's frying is fresh lake perch. Dipped first in evaporated milk, then in dry bread crumbs and fried gently in bubbling butter lake perch has a beautiful golden brown crust and a delicate flavor that are most enticing.

A perfect salad choice with the fish is crisp cole slaw made with a distinctive flavored dill dressing. The dressing is made with creamy rich evaporated milk combined with vinegar, oil and seasonings. It clings well to the finely cut cabbage so there's a maximum of its good flavor throughout.

You might like French fried potato chips to round out the meal as well as hot coffee or a cold beverage to suit the temperature of the day.

PAN FRIED PERCH FILLETS
1-3 cup evaporated milk
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
1 lb. fresh lake perch fillets
2 tablespoons butter

Place evaporated milk and dry bread crumbs in separate pie pans. Dip the leamed fillets first in evaporated milk, then in bread crumbs to coat. Melt butter in a heavy fry pan. Brown fillets on one side over low to medium heat. Turn to brown other side, adding additional butter if necessary. Continue cooking until fish flakes easily with fork, about 15 to 20 minutes on each side for double or butterfly fillets, 5 to 10 minutes on each side for single fillets. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

DILLY COLE SLAW
4 to 5 cups finely cut cabbage
Dill Dressing in a medium size bowl. Cover tightly and chill. When ready to serve, add sufficient Dill Dressing to moisten cabbage and toss lightly. Makes 6 servings.

DILL DRESSING
1/2 cup evaporated milk
1/2 cup salad oil
1 teaspoon dill weed
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 cup cider vinegar

Put all ingredients into a pint jar with a tight-fitting cover. Cover and shake vigorously until smooth and well blended. Chill thoroughly before using. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

AN OLD FASHIONED PICNIC

In these days of the "Explorer" and other miracles of science it seems positively indecent to mention "old fashioned" anything. But even with all our preoccupation with outer space, we still like to eat. The days when a picnic was a trip to the local park on the Fourth of July, with a lavish amount of food in tow, are worth recalling.

The mainstay of that picnic was glorious fried chicken with wonderful bread and butter sandwiches or lots of crusty rolls, potato salad, tomatoes sliced while still warm from the garden, plenty of iced tea and a superabundance of watermelon and other fruit for dessert. Everyone ate until they were saturated with food and then lazed in the shade to get the strength to play soft ball or pitch horseshoes.

Fried chicken and baker's bread and butter sandwiches are still the basis of a good menu, according to a recent survey among fathers and their children in which these two food items were high on the list of most popular foods.

Times Have Changed
Some things have changed, however. That old fashioned picnic meant a monumental amount of both food and equipment to tote. Today we can have the same food with little or no lugging of heavy equipment because the age of convenience has brought us paper cups, containers, plates and napkins to make picnicking even more of a pleasure. There is little or no "carry home" from our modern picnic because of disposable paper service.

Here are some tips for making the picnic more fun with a recipe for the best potato salad you ever ate.

Fried Chicken
Put the pieces of fried chicken on a paper plate and cover with another plate. Tape the edges together with cellophane tape. Continue until all the chicken is packed in this manner and then stack the double plates and tie securely with heavy string.

Winning Ways With Summer Vegetables Introduces Variety Of Tempting Dishes

Ever-pleasing to the homemaker's eye is the sight of rows, stacks and brimming baskets of fresh summer vegetables in the produce section of the grocery store. Their bright greens and warm reds and yellows tell her she can begin to introduce all sorts of variety and good eating to her warm weather meals.

Aside from cooking vegetables in the conventional manner, or serving them when possible in their crisp, natural form, one can also turn vegetables into unusually tempting casseroles and other accompaniments. Let dishes of this type star in your July suppers. Team them with uncomplicated foods — cold cuts or griddled smoky sausages, brown 'n serve breads and big green salads.

You'll enjoy trying these three dishes featuring, in turn, summer squash, tomatoes and broccoli. While broccoli is not the most plentiful of summer green vegetables, the casserole in which it worth your while.

SUMMER SQUASH WITH SAUSAGE STUFFING
1 large summer squash, cut into 6 1-inch slices
1 pound bulk sausage
1 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped onions
2 cups corn flakes
3/4 teaspoon pepper

Scoop out centers of squash slices to make rings, put rings in salted water. Brumble sausage into frying pan and cook over moderate heat until browned; drain off fat. Add celery and onions; cook until softened. Crush corn flakes into medium fine crumbs. Add to sausage mixture together with pepper; mix thoroughly. Drain squash rings; place in greased shallow pan. Fill centers generously with stuffing; cover. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 45 minutes or until tender. Yield: 8 servings, 1 slice each.

BAKED TOMATOES WITH CHEESE
4 large tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup grated American cheese
1 cup ready-to-eat high protein cereal
1/4 teaspoon paprika

2 teaspoons butter or margarine, melted
Wash tomatoes, remove stems and cut in half crosswise. Place cut side up in baking pan. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and cheese. Combine ready-to-eat high protein cereal, paprika and butter; sprinkle over cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 35 minutes. Yield: 8 servings.

BAKED CHEESE BROCCOLI
1/2 cup cooked, chopped broccoli, drained
1 1/2 cups cottage cheese
6 eggs
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup flour
2 tablespoons grated onions
1 1/2 cups milk
1 cup grated sharp processed cheese

1 cup corn flakes
1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted
Spread cooked broccoli in bottom of greased 2-quart casserole. Beat cottage cheese with a rotary beater until quite smooth. Add eggs and continue beating until well-blended. Melt butter in heavy saucepan; stir in flour and onions. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened, stirring occasionally. Add 1/4 cup of the grated cheese and stir until cheese is melted. Fold in the cottage cheese-egg mixture. Pour mixture over broccoli. Crush corn flakes slightly; mix with melted butter. Sprinkle corn flakes crumbs and remaining cheese on top of casserole. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees F.) about 1 1/4 hours or until a knife inserted in center

STRAWBERRY CAKE WEDGES

A moist, fine-textured short-cake for those first strawberries of the season. It's made in a jiffy, too.

1/4 cup butter or margarine
2/3 cup Beet Sugar
1 egg
1/4 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup milk

Thoroughly cream butter or margarine and Beet Sugar together. Stir in egg; then flavoring until well mixed. Fold in sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk just until smooth.

Spread evenly in well-greased and floured 9-inch round cake pan. Bake in 350° F. oven 30 minutes or until top springs back when touched lightly. Cool in pan.

For each serving, cut a wedge of cake; split it in half crosswise. Place sweetened strawberries (2 cups whole berries to 1/2 cup Beet Sugar) between and on top. Finish with a puff of sweetened whipped cream and a whole, washed, unhulled strawberry.

Lemonade Perfect Summer "Cooler"

"Call the gang, Lemonade's ready!"
The lemonade call is a familiar and welcome invitation at all hot-weather gatherings — on the patio, in the park or in the home. A frosty glass of ice-cold lemonade, refreshing and tangy, is a master's thirst quencher.

There'll be plenty of opportunity to quench that thirst with lemonade this summer. The Agricultural Marketing Service estimates this year's California crop at 15.6 million boxes — smaller than last year but well above the 13 million average. Processed lemon holdings also are reported heavy.

Abundant supply is the key to today's favorable price. Serve it often. A pitcherful of lemonade in the refrigerator — all ready to pour — is the answer when Johnny comes in from the ball game. It also can make you the perfect hostess for unexpected guests.

Florida lemon trees — a small evergreen of the orange family — produced the first lemons in North America. In 1895, a heavy freeze killed the Florida groves and they were never replanted. Now, nearly all come from California. The lemon is a native of tropical Asia.

comes out clean. Serve at once. Yield: 6 servings.

Deluxe Treatment For Bread Pudding

Bread dries out so much more quickly in summer than in winter that a really good bread pudding recipe, such as this chocolate one, is excellent to have on hand. Not only does it put slightly stale bread or rolls to a very tasty use, but it is effortless to prepare. There is no chocolate to melt, for the home economists at Meadow Gold who developed the recipe used a chocolate dairy drink. Because a large part of the blending of ingredients is done in the baking dish, there also are few bowls to wash.

DELUXE CHOCOLATE BREAD PUDDING
Scald two cups of chocolate dairy drink. Combine it with one cup of dry bread cubes in a greased baking dish. Let stand while two eggs are slightly beaten. Add to the eggs 1/4 cup sugar, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon each of vanilla and almond extract. Add eggs to one cup of shredded or flaked cooked 350 degree oven 60 to 65 minutes, or until custard is set.

Wisconsin Demo Probing Planes

WAUSAU, Wis. (UPI)—A top Wisconsin Democrat said today he wants to know who ordered the three military planes that picked up vacationing Dr. Milton Eisenhower, the President's brother. Former Wisconsin Democratic Party Chairman Philo Nash said he hoped the next time Eisenhower visited Wisconsin he'd "use the same means of transportation as thousands of other tourists."

Two of the three planes, single-engine Army craft, flew from Ft. Sheridan, Ill., to pick up Eisenhower and his daughter, Ruth, at Land O'Lakes, Wis., Tuesday. One plane took the Eisenhowers to Wausau. The other took their baggage.

At Wausau, they were met by an Air Force C-131 Convair for the trip to Washington.

Asked Secrecy
Lloyd Arnold, chief of the Civil Aeronautics Administration's Wausau office, said the Convair pilot told him the flight was "not for public information."

Arnold said it was not normal for pilots to so advise the CAA, but he said it was normal for the CAA to remain silent about military flights.

The flight eventually was revealed by a newspaper photographer who happened to be at the airport when the Eisenhowers left. In Washington, an aide to Eisenhower said the President's brother was flown back on government aircraft because his delayed trip to Central America had been rescheduled at "a slightly earlier date" than originally planned.

"We won't accept that explanation. We doubt if it will stand up," Nash said.

Don't Like Idea
On June 24, officials in Washington had said Eisenhower would leave for Central America on July 12. The latest announcement listed the same date.

"We don't like the idea of the President's relatives using military vehicles for personal travel," Nash said. "We would like to know who ordered our military planes for the personal use of the President's brother."

In Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Republican Party Chairman Claude Jasper viewed the situation differently.

"These comments made by Democrats don't concern me," he said. "They're probably jumping to conclusions. They're always looking for issues and if that's the best they can do, let them have their way."

Walter Rogers Reports

Difficult To Tell Gossip From Facts

The Adams-Goldfine case continues to occupy the spotlight in Washington. Rumors are going in every direction, and it is sometimes difficult to tell gossip from facts. However, Mr. Goldfine appeared before the Subcommittee and made a statement that could prove most interesting. He could turn out to be the spider that wove the web in which several flies, including Adams, might be caught.

I believe it was Shakespeare who said:

"What a tangled web we weave
When we practice to deceive."

The first story that came out of this escapade was that Mr. Goldfine had given Mr. Adams a vicuna coat, a Persian rug and numerous stays in luxurious hotels as gifts. Mr. Adams was then quoted as saying that part of the coat was gifts, but that the Persian rug was only a loan. Mr. Goldfine apparently owns a number of corporations. The next chapter of the story was that these gifts or loans, as the case may be, had been charged to the corporations and not to the personal account of Mr. Goldfine. This led to the question of whether or not the expense occurred for the coat, the rug, and the hotel bills had been charged off as a business expense when the income tax return was filed. The Subcommittee decided to call Mr. Goldfine for the purpose of answering that and other questions. It must be remembered that, if these gifts were given to Mr. Adams by Mr. Goldfine, the value of them was not properly deductible as a business expense or a personal expense. If the rug was loaned to Mr. Adams by Mr. Goldfine or any of his corporations, the value of the rug was not properly deductible as a business expense.

Mr. Goldfine came before the Subcommittee faced with this dilemma. Should he plead the 5th Amendment on the grounds that he might incriminate himself, or should he reveal the full facts concerning the situation. The answer to this question undoubtedly kept a number of lawyers up nights trying to figure out an answer. If Mr. Goldfine pleaded the 5th Amendment it wouldn't have helped him much, because the information was a matter of record and could be obtained. So the decision, undoubtedly, was to tell the truth, which should have been done sometime ago.

The result of Mr. Goldfine's own statement is this. If Mr. Goldfine considered the vicuna, coat the Persian rug, and the hotel bills as legitimate, corporate expenses as they were charged, then Mr. Adams was wrong in his statement that they were personal gifts from Mr. Goldfine. If they were personal gifts from Mr. Goldfine, as contended by Mr. Adams, then Mr. Goldfine is in a position of having to answer some most embarrassing questions as to why he charged them off as corporate expenses, which if done deliberately, could constitute a criminal act that could be punishable by a term in the penitentiary.

Another story which seems to be gaining momentum in the nation's capital is to the effect that those interested in the Adams-Goldfine side of the recent revelations have employed an outstanding public relations firm to do a snow job on the American public—a publicity campaign that will blind the American public to any possible wrong-doing in this affair and display the alleged culprits as innocent persons. This sort of thing could prove more dangerous to the American way of life than even the acts of misconduct in public office already proven. This has been proven no less than three times in our generation. I refer to Hitler, Stalin and Mussolini.

Give the American people the truth and the facts, and they will make an honest, fair and correct decision. Only by this method can a free nation persevere.

All of you are aware the Senate last week passed and sent to the President the Alaskan Statehood bill which had earlier passed the House. As many of you know, I

House. As many of you know, I have always been opposed to the admission of Alaska as a sovereign State of the United States. The reasons for my opposition were many, and I believe, sound reasons. The Congress has acted otherwise, however, and it now appears that Alaska will become the 49th State of the Union. I hope, sincerely and earnestly, that the fears harbored by some of us concerning the admission of Alaska will never ripen. The people of this country have spoken through a majority of their elected Representatives, and our great system of the democratic processes has properly functioned. I shall do my best to help insure the success of this undertaking.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Teed and their sons, Dan and Jere Teed, all of Pampa were in Washington last week where they visited en route to West Point, New York. Dan Teed enrolled in the U.S. Military Academy on July first.

It was a pleasure to see Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Tibbetts of Quitaque. They are in Washington visiting their daughter and dropped in the office while here at the Capitol.

There Are 3 Stages Of An Alcoholic

AUSTIN (UPI)—Dr. Paul H. Stevenson, of the National Institute of Mental Health at Bethesda, Md., has sketched a "profile of the alcoholic."
 Speaking at a University of Texas institute on alcoholism studies Tuesday, Stevenson described these three stages of the disease:
 —"I want a drink."
 —"I've got to have a drink."
 He said in the first stage a moderate drinker who uses alcohol as a "social lubricant" may discover a change in his drinking habits and may begin to sneak a drink, gulp his drinks, or both.
 A "first-stage" drinker, Stevenson said, may become preoccupied with drinking but begin to avoid references to drinking and stop laughing at jokes about drinking. He also may experience "blackouts."
 The doctor said the second stage is marked by the "alibi habit." He said symptoms include extravagance such as cross-country telephone calls, long taxi rides and other evidences of irresponsibility.
 Stevenson said the third stage brings physical, mental and ethical deterioration, "the shakes."

'Arsenic And Old Lace' Is The Next One

(Special To The News)
WHEELER — The Summer Playhouse, a theatrical venture of the Wheeler Kiwanis Club, opened its fourth season Thursday with "Our Miss Brooks," a three act comedy directed by Carroll Killingsworth. Georgia Pond gave a commendable performance as Miss Brooks and was well supported by the large cast.
 Annette Hutchison played the part of a librarian; Jerry Killingsworth, a coach; Paul Harding, the high school principal; Fran Borden, a music teacher, and Dorothy Hall, a mother.
 Carol Gandy, Ella Richerson, Gayla Dale, Paula Killingsworth, Charlie Ann Faver, Pat Blakely, Ann Riley, Sharon Farris, Bill Green, Albert Thomas and Kenneth Farris portrayed various high school students.
 Killingsworth organized the Summer Playhouse in 1955 in connection with his work as Boys' and Girls' Committee of the Wheeler Kiwanis Club. Since then the Community Players have presented nine full length and three one-act plays, including "Nine Girls," "All My Sons," "Tommy," "House Without Windows" and "Dino."
 The next performance, scheduled for July 31 and Aug. 1 in the Wheeler Gymnasium, will be "Arsenic and Old Lace," co-starring Tillie Green and Dorothy Hall as Abby and Martha Brewster. Other members of the cast are Garth Nash, Joe Richard Hyatt, Carolyn

Unsinkable War Ship To Meet Its Waterloo From Blowtorch

By DOC QUIGG
 United Press International
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Any day now, a rust-tinged gray ghost of a ship that many regard as the fightingest thing ever to float will be tugged from her berth for a date with oblivion.
 The fabled "Big E" that roamed the Pacific like the wrath of an aroused nation against the enemy in World War II will glide across still waters to face her last enemy—the scrapper's torch.
 The 20,000 tons of courage, luck, and easy-going greatness that the Japanese tried desperately to destroy through four years of agonizing warfare has been sold to a wrecker for $561,333. The sale contract specifies "for scrap only." This will be, surely, one of the noblest and saddest piles of scrap in history.

 Her name is Enterprise, Admiral Bill Halsey, who was ramming her hell-bent toward Hawaii even as the Japanese planes came out of the dawn to waken Pearl Harbor, called her "The Galloping Ghost of the Oahu Coast." To fighting men, she was the Big E.
 As the wrecker's acetylene flame bites into the plates of her hangar deck, maybe someone will remember what once was written there. The occasion was the Santa Cruz Island fight, when the Enterprise flew Adm. Thomas C. Kincaid's flag early in the war. She took hits fore and aft and saw her sister aircraft carrier Hornet fatally hit.
 With the Hornet lost that night the entire U.S. carrier air power in the Pacific was just as Kincaid said, "one battered old carrier—the Enterprise." Somebody chalked foot-high letters on the deck: "The Enterprise against Japan." Crippled, patched, defiant, she steamed 20 days later into the Battle of Guadalcanal.

 She wore Adm. Raymond A. Spruance's flag in one of the decisive battles of history, the Battle of Midway. She made the first attack on Japanese territory, in the Marshalls and Gilberts, and carried right on through the war in nearly every major battle.
Favorite of Many
 The Solomons, Truk, Palau, the Boninas, Saipan, Tinian, Guam, Formosa, Nansei Shoto, the Philippines, Leyte Gulf—the names are a roll call of memory. Of Kyushu, a kamikaze plummeted into her, and his bomb sent her huge elevator 400 feet into the air. But the Big E. rode it out.
 The pilots who had flown and fought from the Enterprise had her for their favorite. "The Big E (that was her number) has got the spirit," they would say. The naval command's traditional "well done" message for valiant battle was a routine accolade of the Big E. At the end of the war Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal wrote of her:

Goldfine Cloth

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. James F. Folsom displayed a bolt of cloth produced by one of Bernard Goldfine's mills during a news conference Wednesday.
 Folsom said the bolt of cloth was given to him and other state chief executives during a 1956 governor's conference. He said they were presented by the governor of New Hampshire and bore a tag—"With the compliments of Bernard Goldfine."
 The ship was the heart of the fleet when the war was going badly for us...her squadrons shot down nearly a thousand of the enemy's planes and sank 74 of his ships. The men who fought her love this ship."
 But now it must be goodbye, Big E. Goodbye, and well done.

FCC Gives Order

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Communications Commission has ordered the Western Union Telegraph Company to produce by Dec. 31 a plan for divesting itself of its international operations.
 The plan would become effective within six months of the commission's approval.
 When Congress passed a law in 1943 permitting the merger of Western Union and the Postal Telegraph Co., it required a separation of Western Union's overseas business. But the company has said it has been unable to find a purchaser.

GOLDEN TRAIL—Western wealth, old and new, shares a highway near Cortez, Colo., where a herd of cattle is overtaken by an oil truck. The truck is carrying crude oil from what may be the richest oil strike in U.S. history at the Four Corners area of the Rockies. The area gets its name from a small monument marking the only place in the nation where a person can stand in four states at once—Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and Utah. Experts say the once barren wasteland may yield up to a billion barrels of oil.

Methodist Sanctuary Wedding Scene For Miss Kiser, Hugh Kent Bowden

Solemnized on June 13 at eight o'clock in the sanctuary of the Blackwell, Okla., First Methodist Church was the wedding of Miss Constance D. Kiser, daughter of Mrs. Talmadge G. Kiser, 1133 S. First, Blackwell and the late Mr. Kiser, and Hugh Kent Bowden, Ponca City, Okla., son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Bowden of Wichita, Kan. Miss Kiser is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Kiser, 728 Buckler, Pampa.

Rev. John Porter read the vows of the double-ring ceremony before a lattice-work background entwined with majestic daisies and greenery. Lighted tapers stood in full candelabra flanking twin pedestal baskets holding majestic daisies in fountain arrangement with tapers. Daisies and lemon leaf tied with large bows of white satin, marked the pews.

Mrs. Victor Johnston, Artesia, N.M., bride's aunt, presented a program of nuptial selections. Mr. Johnston, bride's uncle, sang "Because I Love Thee," "Ich Liebe Dich," and "Benediction."

Given in marriage by her brother, Kenneth Kiser, the bride wore a candlelight white silk faille gown designed on princess lines. The neckline, squared in front, was trimmed with lace and embroidered with pearls and sequins. Long white gloves complemented the short shirred sleeves. The crystal-pleated skirt extended into a chapel-length train. Her four-tiered veil of illusion was caught up to a pearl crown and she carried a bouquet of Madonna lilies and white tulips. Her white-gold, cross-necklace was a gift of the bridegroom.

Attendants for the bride were Miss Lavon Lloyd, Stillwater, Okla., maid of honor; Miss Eleanor Winkler, Birmingham, Ala., and Miss Wanna Faye Preston, Oklahoma City, Okla., bridesmaids; Miss Sherleen Strong, candlelighter.

Mrs. Hub Hext Has Ace High Bridge Club

CANADIAN — The Ace High bridge club was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Hub Hext in their home recently.

Those present were Messrs. and Mrs. John D. Glenn, Francis McQuiddy, Tom Riley, Ted Rogers and Mrs. Rush Snyder. Mrs. Riley tallied high for the women and Mr. Rogers high for men.

Mrs. Hugh Kent Bowden

Serving the bridegroom were Jim Bowden, Ponca City, bride's brother, best man; Don Timko, Earl Sutton, Glen Davis, Dick Simpson and Talmadge Kiser, bride's brother, seated the wedding guests.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the Blackwell Country Club.

Mrs. Bowden was graduated from Oklahoma State University and is a member of the faculty of Garfield elementary school in Ponca City. Mr. Bowden is employed by Continental Oil Co. in the process division.

Following a wedding trip to Colorado, Mr. and Mrs. Bowden are making their home at 712 McFadden Drive in Ponca City.

Milady No Longer Considered A Hussy If Blonde One Day, A Redhead The Next

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

In these days of air travel, most of us have occasion to make at least one plane trip a year. To look as attractive on leaving the plane as you do on boarding takes a bit of doing.

To begin with, keep your hair style simple so that hours of sitting with your head resting against a chair back will not flatten it hopelessly. Make-up should be light and should be applied over a liquid foundation to make it more lasting.

If you're making a night trip, remove your make-up before you go to sleep and put on fresh make-up in the morning. Cream is a girl's best friend here since the rest rooms may have a line-up waiting. Carry plenty of cleansing tissues and the biggest handbag you can tote so that you have all the necessary cosmetics at hand, not in your suitcase.

Wear a wool knit dress if you want to emerge unwrinkled. But if you wear a suit or silk dress, change to slacks once you've boarded the plane. You'll look and feel better. Carry soft, crushable, slippers with you so that you can shed your shoes once you're in your seat.

You needn't have gray hair these days in order to switch hair coloring. Lots of girls take to a new hair color every few months, just as they change lipstick shades, and are not reticent about it.

Notions about hair coloring have changed rapidly in the last 10 years, just as many ideas in beauty have. A girl is no longer considered a hussy if she's a blonde one month, a brunette the next and a redhead the third.

But, though hair is amazingly resilient and hair coloring methods are exceptionally good these days, don't neglect your hair work with a brush. Be sure that you have oil treatments if you need them.

In short, don't neglect the health of your hair while you're protecting its beauty. The least attention-getting way to

If your job is in a store, or entails dealing with the public, no matter how small that job is you will be lucky to hold it and your chances of moving up are pretty thin, if—

You argue with other employes in front of customers.

You meet the public, chewing gum or with a cigarette dangling out of your mouth.

You wouldn't dream of breaking off a "He said and I said" conversation with another employe to wait on a customer.

You don't like your boss or the way the place you work is run and you're anxious to tell anyone who will listen, especially those who do business with your employe.

You like to talk about your personal troubles, and if you can bend a customer's ear with your own private tale of woe, you will.

You believe in doing only what you are paid to do and have no intention of doing anything extra.

You don't believe in smiling at those you have to serve in the course of your day's work.

You barely let a customer get out of earshot before making fun of him, and occasionally your humor is even overheard by the customer.

You find it easier and simpler to say, "We don't have it," or, "I don't know anything about it," than to look for what is wanted or try to get the information that is asked of you.

You live for the coffee breaks and the lunch hour and quitting time and nothing you do in-between interest you. It's just so much drudgery that has to be done.

You are so sure that you are worth more than you are being paid that you don't bother to do

DEAR ABBY...
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Ever heard of a new breed that just sprung up? They're called Husband Sitters. Now don't get me wrong, Abby. It's my own husband I'm sitting with and it used to be a pleasure, but since television, every night he comes from work, gets into something comfortable, plops himself down in the easy chair and starts watching TV. He won't take me out to dinner or a movie or even for a ride any more. He gets out during the working day and sees people but I'm stuck in the house doing housework and at the end of the day I'd like to see something besides these four walls. But how do I get him out of the chair and away from the TV set?

MARY DOE
Dear Mary: Your problem is older than television. It's as old as people. Give your husband something more interesting to listen to and something better to look at and he'll re-channel his interest.

DEAR ABBY: I would appreciate it very much if you could help me with my problem. I am 45 years old and never married. I in-

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are friendly with another young couple. They act so lovely - dovey but we happen to know that he steps out on her all the time. They have three of the nicest children you'd ever want to meet. The whole town is talking. Why is the poor wife always the last to know? As a good friend, don't you think I ought to tell her?

TRUE FRIEND
Dear True: As a true friend, you ought to forget it. Don't kid yourself. The "poor wife" isn't always the last to know. Sometimes she's the first to know - but the last to admit it.

Mrs. Kenneth Richardson

Neely-Richardson Say Nuptial Vows

(Special to The News)
SHAMROCK — Miss Dixie Neely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rip Neely, and Kenneth Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Richardson of Wheeler were married in an informal ceremony on June 27 at three o'clock in the parsonage of the First Methodist Church.

Rev. J. M. Sharp performed the double-ring ceremony before a fireplace banked with tall, white baskets of Majestic daisies. The couple stood on a white rug.

Miss Shirley Pepper was maid of honor, in a white street-length dress encircled at the waistline with a blue cummerbund complemented with white accessories. She carried a colonial bouquet of blue and white carnations showered with blue meline puffs and white satin ribbon.

Bon Sanders, Shamrock, was best man.

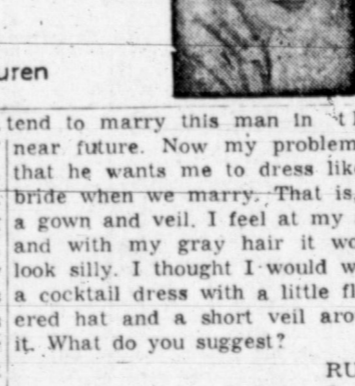

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length dress of white embroidered cotton, fashioned with low, rounded neckline and sleeveless. Her shoulder-length veil of illusion was attached to a headband of white daisies. She carried a colonial bouquet of white daisies atop a white Bible arranged with white meline and white satin ribbon tied in Lover's Knots.

Members of the immediate families were guests.

A reception followed in the home of the bride's parents, 811 N. Wall.

DEAR ABBY: We have a son who looks like me but takes after my wife's side of the family. He's 23 and acts like ten. He was driving when his license was suspended and he had a few drinks. It was just his luck that he sideswiped a squad car going 70 miles an hour (him, not the squad car). He called from jail and I let him sit there all night. My wife cried and carried on like he was waiting to be electrocuted, but I said the lesson wouldn't hurt him. Now she blames me because the kid has a "record." I say it was good for him. Who's right?

DAD
Dear Dad: You're right. Parents who pull their kids' chestnuts out of the fire for them do the kids no favor. At 23, your son is an adult and should either obey the law or take his medicine.

DEAR ABBY: I would appreciate it very much if you could help me with my problem. I am 45 years old and never married. I in-

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
At 5:30 a.m. a Hudson River pier can be a dismal place.

The one where I waited that dawn seemed especially bleak to me. For the year was 1940. From where I stood I could see our American water slapping against the dock piles, but beyond it France had died — and from the skies over Europe's broken cities, Hitler's Luftwaffe was gathering for the assault on England.

So, though the month was July, I remember the wind from the river as damp and chilly. Shivering in my thin dress, I watched the ship from Bordeaux swerve for approach to her dock. They'd painted her gray, but the unobtrusive color hadn't served its purpose. The dive bombers had been at her, the marks of their strafing visible on her pitted sides.

You could also see the marks in the faces of her passengers as they shuffled down the gangplank, carrying no luggage, their eyes lost in memories of defeat and flight that they moved toward me and safely like people in a dream.

The writer I had come to meet said to me tonelessly, "No, I didn't bring my portable. There wasn't time to get it."

I never felt so helpless in my life.

Then the haggard lines of his face changed. I turned — and there behind me on the pier where nothing had been before was a Salvation Army mobile canteen, its bonneted women and uniformed chief quietly dispensing steaming coffee and doughnuts to the refugees crowding around them.

That was the moment when I became an American.

I think that we have all had experiences that gave us the same sudden insight into America's unadvertised goodness. At this time when she's so beset by other countries' hate, let's share these experiences with children.

Like foreign countries, they find it easy to see America as Zsa Zsa Gabor's fur coats, Little Rock riots, the gadgets on our show-off cars. But those of us who know her well know that she isn't at all what the flashbulbs and ads report her to be. It is now our obligation to show children our own truer picture.

MM Class Has Monthly Social

Mary Martha Sunday School class of the Lefors First Baptist Church met Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Jo Lynn Robinson for its monthly business and social meeting.

Mrs. Frank Cooksey, social chairman, led the group in a quiz of Bible characters.

Secret pal gifts were exchanged. Homemade ice cream and cake were served during the social hour.

Attending were Mrs. Charles Earhart, teacher and class members, Mes. Launa Hill, Eva Lou Funderburg, Lena Cain, Maudie Taylor, Yvonne Morrow, and Geraldine Connell.

There were no photographers, no promoters on the pier that morning to cheapen that welcome to Hitler's refugees. So my memory of it is my personal possession — and I'm sharing it with all the children I know.

GRILLING EXPERIENCE—The E-196X, a sleek mock-up unveiled in the Ford Motor Company's Styling Office in Dearborn, Mich., illustrates a possible evolution of the 1958 Edsel's conversation piece—its vertical grille. George W. Walker, right, vice president and director of styling, thinks the E-196X could well influence future auto design trends. At left is I. B. Kaufman, Edsel executive stylist.

Now There's Two Gabors In Hollywood

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Yipes! Cinema City has become a two-Gabor town.
Eva, sister of Gen. Trujillo's bosom buddy, has purchased a "small house" just outside the gates of Bel-Air where she plans to settle permanently. New York's loss is Hollywood's frustration.
"I sometimes wonder if this place is big enough for two Gabors," Eva bubbled during lunch. "At other times I am amazed that the world is big enough for both of us. But we are good friends, and the stories about feuds are not true."
Zsa Zsa lives atop a mountain peak in Bel-Air overlooking lowly Westwood where her blond sister has moved.

"Our houses are only a few minutes apart," Eva said. "We will be together a great deal—talking about everything and everybody. Because I am youngest I have to talk louder and longer to get a word in edgewise."
The Hungarian beauty says she is moving west to avoid living out of suitcases in hotel apartments. She will, however, maintain her five-story apartment building in Manhattan.
"I don't like stocks and bonds for investments. They are only paper," she chattered. "I prefer something I can see. Being a Hungarian I like land—lots of land. In addition to my New York place and my new house I have bought some property in Tampa, Fla."

"If you had just used a little intelligence about your opening lead," growled East, "this rubber would still be going on."
"I opened your suit, didn't I?" said Joe.
Joe had opened the four of diamonds. South had won the trick with the ace, trumped a diamond in dummy and played ace and one club. Now the defense had no way to stop South from ruffing out his last two diamonds with dummy's trumps and the three heart contract had wheeled in.

Johnson Has Texas Water Inventoried

By GAYLOR P. GODWIN
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) Wednesday released a comprehensive report on the development, control and conservation of Texas water resources.
The 175-page report was prepared at Johnson's request jointly by the Texas Board of Water Engineers, the Southwestern Division of the Corps of Army Engineers, in conjunction with other agencies.
Johnson said the comprehensive inventory of Texas' water developments and potentialities "is an important first step toward the preparation of a state program to control floods in Texas and to meet the water supply needs of the future."
"It establishes a pattern," Johnson said, "for determining what the controlling elements of a long-range Texas water program should be."
"It sets forth a blueprint of action for reaching a realistic and effective solution of the Texas water problem."
"It contains a comprehensive inventory of the water resources of Texas."
Johnson said "federal agencies can make major contributions to evolution of a plan to control and develop fully Texas water resources. But he pointed out that Texas will have the last word in its own water resource development."
"The report itself does not advance an overall statewide water plan, nor was it designed to do so," Johnson said. "But it points the way toward attaining the objective of bringing such a plan into being. And—of particular importance—it expresses unified opinions on Texas water problems."

The report said Texas' No. 1 problem of conservation, control and development of the state's water resources "has become more serious each year because of the state's phenomenal growth in population, industry, and agriculture."
"Future growth and progress, it said, will be limited only by its available supplies of water."

Record Big Quake

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—The University of California reported today its seismograph recorded a "strong" earthquake 1.750 miles northwest of Berkeley.
Seismologist Don Tocher said the quake, recorded at 11:20:55 p.m., p.d.t., Friday (2:20 a.m., e.d.t.), might possibly have taken place in the Gulf of Alaska.
Jan. 1 was not in general use as the first day of the year until 1752.

Missiles May Be Based In France

By CHARLES CORDDRY
United Press International
PARIS (UPI)—A quick new start on negotiations for ballistic missile bases in France is considered urgent at Gen. Lauris Norstad's supreme allied headquarters.
Military men regard the basing of 1,500-mile range rockets of the American Thor or Jupiter type here as crucial to Western defense, but the matter of an agreement has got nowhere for two months during France's governmental crises.
Authorities said they hoped negotiations would be resumed with Premier Charles de Gaulle's new government at the earliest moment. French officials can spare time from Algerian and other immediately critical problems.
While actual missiles may not be available at the moment, they are expected to be in a matter of months and prolonged negotiations could seriously delay the installation of launchers and weapons. Financial arrangements must be worked out. Men must be trained.
At the North Atlantic Treaty heads-of-government meeting here last December, which President Eisenhower attended, America's offer of missiles for NATO defense was accepted and Norstad was told to submit plans "at an early date" for their deployment.
That decision at least temporarily averted the appearance of direct negotiations between Washington and European capitals where the missile issue is hot politically. It seemingly put the matter on a NATO-wide defense basis, with selection of missile sites a purely military matter.
But no one now doubts that any final French-American arrangement will be worked out at the highest political levels of the two governments, with the way paved by Norstad's headquarters.
In deference to countries like Norway and Denmark, which want no part of atomic-armed long-range missiles, Norstad has said their great range makes it necessary "that they be located in all NATO countries."

His first choice was France, which lies at the heart of the alliance and from whose base areas missiles could dominate targets in an arc from the Crimea to Moscow and Leningrad. Preliminary talks were held with apparently receptive French officials, but came to an end when France plunged into internal crisis.
A successful outcome now would make France the first country on the continent armed with American intermediate range ballistic missiles and the second anywhere. Britain will be the first, having an agreement for four squadrons (60 launchers) of Thor to be British-manned in East Anglia by the end of this year.
At Norstad's headquarters, it is said that acceptance of missiles now would be one way for France to play the enhanced role it seeks in NATO.

Rick Pezdirtz

purely paydirt

You could have midnight-snacked on a couple quarts of dill pickles, a gallon of vanilla ice-cream and lapped thin layers of cold grease off yesterday's pork chops...

The opposition was nicknamed the Rattlers, but it was definitely Pampa that appeared "snakebit."

No less than a half dozen Rebels were "roughed up" in the abbreviated four-inning tilt.

1) Buddy Rawls suffered a double fracture of the right collar-bone when he was trapped in a run-down between second and third.

2) Rawls was pinch-hitting for Terry Haralson who was clipped on the head with a fast-ball just above the left ear.

3) Larry Stroud, playing first base in the second inning, was spiked high on the heel, and the game had to be held up while the slender young slugger was given first aid for a nasty gash.

4) Clovis Shipp was nicked on the left leg by a curve ball in the second frame.

5) Bill Ridgway took a fast ball on his left shoulder in the fourth.

6) Bobby Stephens, following Ridgway to the plate in the fourth, was hit on his seat muscles with a fast ball.

And that wasn't all, either.

Pity Poor Babe!

The game, and we use the term with the looseness of ashes, was held up about ten minutes in the top of the fourth frame while two spectators squared off behind the Stinnett dugout...

An old-timer in the brawl had reportedly kicked another citizen, sitting in front of him, and this brought on the fistfight...

Needless to say Deck Woldt wasn't a particularly happy gent Thursday morning. He had Rawls, a relief pitcher, resting in Highland General Hospital here, where he was taken after fracturing his collar-bone.

And on his way to the hospital to check on Rawls' condition, he stopped by to pick up Haralson, who's ear was puffed up like a toy balloon.

But if you think Woldt has troubles, then flap the long end of the crying towel out in Coach Babe Curfman's neighborhood.

Rawls was to be Curfman's top field general on the Harvester football team this fall, and it isn't likely he'll be in shape for the season opener at Wichita Falls on September 12.

It was his passing and pitching arm that received the joint touch. Woldt said Thursday morning, "You never can tell about fractures. Some kids heal a lot faster than others, chances are he'll be in good shape within a couple months and chances are again, he won't. We'll just have to wait and see."

Rawls' shoulder was kept in ice-packs most of the night and it was set by a local physician this morning about 9:30. Despite his misfortune, Buddy appeared in good spirits, and you can bet here's one kid that'll be right back out there on the playing field, whether it be baseball or football, just as soon as the medics allow.

Rawls Fractures Collar Bone, Stroud Spiked, 4 Hit; But Rebels Win, 17-1

By RICK PEZDIRTZ Daily News Sports Editor

STINNETT — When it rains it pours, they say. Southpaw Kippy Williams spun four hitless innings, posted nine strikeouts and collected his first hit of the season here Wednesday night, a long three-run homer, as Pampa's American Legion Rebels led Stinnett's Rattlers through a 17-1 slaughterhouse.

Centerfielder Bobby Stephens cracked a two-run round-tripper for the Rebels in the third, before Williams connected for his circuit-swing in the fourth. First-sacker Larry Stroud, who had gone hitless in six straight trips to the plate, broke his batting slump with a three-run homer to right field, his third this year.

However, a rash of injuries dampened the victory for the visiting Rebels. In fact, a double fracture of the right collar-bone to pinch-runner Buddy Rawls, brought the long-and-dragged out affair to an end in the top of the fifth frame.

Rawls, running for Terry Haralson, who had been hit on the head with a pitched-ball, just above the left ear, was caught in a run down between second and third and tagged out, after rounding the key-stone too far on a single by Harry Price, the game's top hitter with three for four.

The tag was put right in the middle of Rawls, back from his blind side as he headed into third, he stumbled and fell, landing full on his right shoulder. He was taken to a Borger hospital by automobile and then to Highland General Hospital in Pampa.

Besides Rawls' injury and Haralson being hit on the head while batting without a protective plastic head piece, Stroud received a nasty gash high on his right heel, when he was spiked at first.

Three other Pampa batsmen, Clovis Shipp, Wendell Ridgway and Stephens, were clipped by erratic throwing Stinnett hurlers, but received nothing more than sore spots.

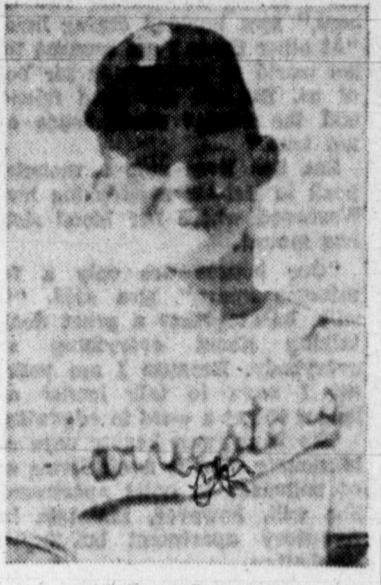

Williams never came close to giving up a hit, although he walked three and hit one batter himself. The hit batsman, Jackie Bryant, swiped second and third in the third frame, and scored the host's lone tally on a throwing error by Shipp, the Rebel catcher.

The win was Pampa's third in four outings while Stinnett now owns a 3-6 record.

Coach Deck Woldt sends his charges against D&D Pharmacy of Amarillo in Harvester Park Sunday at 2:30 p.m. There is also a possibility he may land a Friday night game at Sayre, Okla.

Two walks, a single by Price and a leftfield line hugging double by Gary Hill gave Pampa a 2-0 lead in the first frame. Another pair of free passes, an error, hit batter, and a triple to deep right by Ridgway plus a single by Stephens netted five tallies in the second and chased starter Ronnie Ashby from the hill.

The Rebels treated reliever Bennie Waugh, with even less respect, as Stephens homered off him in the third with a long drive to straight-away centerfield with Ridgway on base, and two walks as many hit batters set the stage for a double by Haralson in the fourth and the homers by Williams and Stroud, both sailing over the outfielder's head in deep right.

... no hits, homer

Fourth and the homers by Williams and Stroud, both sailing over the outfielder's head in deep right.

All told the Rebels slapped out 11 hits, six going for extra bases. The heavy show of artillery kicked the Pampa team batting average up from .321 to an incredible .343.

'We Wuz Robbed' Sez Cross

E. M. Keller, backed by the two hit pitching of Mike Bridges, crushed first place Utility Oil 7-1 in Western Little League play yesterday. Bridges allowed the Oilers only two hits while fanning 12.

Loosing pitcher Terry Holt was touched four six runs and two hits in three innings and reliever Walter Ross gave up one run and one hit over the last two innings.

The game was played under protest from the third inning on when Utility Manager Ronnie Cross claimed that plate umpire John Phary changed his decision on a call at home plate, that went against his Club.

Keller had the bases loaded and one out in the bottom of the third when a Keller batter hit one down the first base line. Utility first baseman Charles Price speared the ball, stepped on first and then threw home.

Umpire Pharr first called the runner out at home for an ending lining double play. However, after Keller manager, Newt Secretat, had a short argument with Pharr, the umpire then ruled the batter safe.

Another incident came up in the third when umpire Pharr changed base umpires.

A Pony League player was calling the bases at the start of the tilt, but another ump was drafted from the stands to call the game in the third inning.

In the Little League rule book, rule 9.12 states: Umpires shall not be changed during a game unless such change is necessary because of injury or illness.

Conroe Rolls Out Carpet For Scribes

CONROE, Tex. (UPI)— Nearly 2,000 residents of Conroe rolled out the red carpet Wednesday night for more than 30 sports writers and promotional personnel who arrived from New York to watch heavyweight challenger Roy Harris train today.

The large sports group, which flew non-stop to Houston and then came by bus to Conroe, was entertained at the modernistic Conroe Hotel by a hillbilly band, members of the Harris family, and a bevy of bathing beauties in the hotel's swanky swimming pool.

The sports writers and promotion men, who made the longest flight in ring history to watch a fighter train, will try to ascertain today what chance Harris has of winning the world championship from Floyd Patterson at Los Angeles, Aug. 18.

The entire town of Conroe, with a population of approximately 6,000, will celebrate "Roy Harris Day" today in honor of the challenger from Cut-And-Shoot, Tex., a small community about six miles from here.

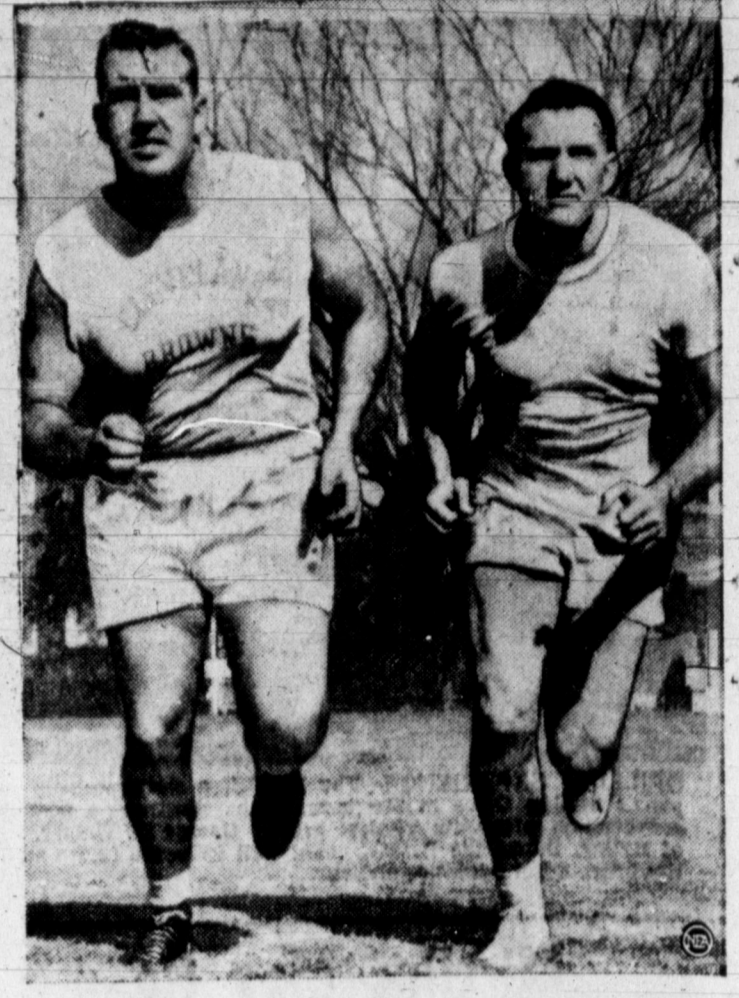

Texas Gov. Price Daniel has proclaimed today "Roy Harris Day" throughout the Lone Star State.

Essig Is Still Going Strong

CHICAGO (UPI)— Only three of the 14 top qualifiers, headed by medalist and defending champion Don Essig, survived for third-round play in the 33rd National Public Links golf tournament today.

Essig, the only player to break par in qualifying with a two-under 144 for the 36 holes, was three under par for 31 holes Wednesday on a course owned by Walter Durdle, Peoria, Ill., 4 and 3, and William E. Krause, Palo Alto, Calif., 4 and 2.

Durdle was one of five players who were runner-up to Essig in qualifying with 147's, and only one of the quintet still remained today — Gene Hansen of Minneapolis, who eliminated Andy Holmes, Toledo, Ohio, 5 and 4, and George J. Borbely Jr., Peekskill, N. Y., 2 up.

FOOTBALL ALREADY—These are not heavyweight fighters doing roadwork. They are Tiny Don Goss, left, and Ray Smith, both Cleveland Brown linemen, preparing in Dallas for training when the professional grid clubs open pre-season training camps late this month.

Big Bilko Is Banging Back

By TIM MORIARTY United Press International

Although he admits he is not a pull hitter, it didn't take Steve Bilko long to find the range at the Los Angeles Coliseum "shooting gallery."

Inserted into the Dodgers' starting lineup Wednesday night by Manager Walter Alston, the hulking, moon-faced first baseman from Nanticoke, Pa., unloaded a three-run homer over the left field screen in the opening inning to help sink the Milwaukee Braves, 10-3.

It was the first time Bilko had graced the Dodgers' starting lineup up at Los Angeles, where he was a local hero the last three years while playing in the Pacific Coast League. He hit 86 home runs for the Los Angeles Angels last year, so was overjoyed when the Cincinnati Reds traded him to the Dodgers last month.

Braves' Lead Out: "I'm more of a straight-away hitter than a pull hitter," he explained when he joined the Dodgers. Then envisioning that friendly left field screen he added, "But I believe I could adapt my swing to pull the ball."

Bilko must have spent his mid-season "vacation" taking target practice, for in his first time at bat against the Braves' Carlton Willey he lofted a shot over the screen while 32,337 fans went wild. Big Steve then drove in another run in the fourth inning on a sacrifice fly.

Norm Larker, who moved to left field to make room for Bilko in the lineup, and John Roseboro added three hits each as the Dodgers rolled up a 10-2 lead in the first four innings. Rookie Stan Williams limited the Braves to four hits in posting his fourth triumph against three losses.

It was the Dodgers' eighth victory in 10 meetings with the Braves, who now lead second-place San Francisco by only a half-game.

Indians Trample Yankees: In Wednesday's only American League game, the Cleveland Indians broke a 1-1 tie with seven runs in the eighth inning and went on to hammer the New York Yankees, 12-4, under the lights at Yankee Stadium.

It was a happy homecoming for new Cleveland manager Joe Gordon. The ex-Yankee second baseman smiled proudly as the Indians routed Whitey Ford during their wild eighth-inning barrage that included a pair of ground-rule doubles and a home run by Mickey Vernon. The Tribe then added four more runs off reliever Virgil Trucks in the ninth.

Cal McLash, who allowed only five hits before being removed for a pinch hitter in the eighth, received credit for his first victory over the Yankees in three years. It was the Yankees' sixth straight loss at home.

Pony Stars Will Work

Pampa's Pony League All-Stars will hold their first workout of the year at 5:30 p.m. this evening at Pony League Park.

Managers Gabby Chase, Bill Ridgway and Tom Glover, will be on hand to start doling out instructions to the 13-14 year-old youngsters who will represent Pampa in an eight-team Pony League tournament at Borger the latter part of this month.

Chase said Wednesday evening, while looking over his hand picked 15-man roster, "We'll be working out daily except Sunday, in order to get ready for the district tournament." He pointed out it wasn't known yet if the local Pony Stars will be allowed by the rules to schedule some practice games prior to the district meet.

BOB ROLLS 300 GAME

A perfect 300 game was rolled by Harvester Bowl manager Bob Hoeckendorf here Wednesday night.

The delighted Hoeckendorf, who's been bowling since he was knee high to a ten-pin, was bowling with Sonny Lasater when he hit his perfect game, the dream of every man who's ever fingered a bowling ball.

After his fourth straight strike, Hoeckendorf picked up a gallery from bowlers peering in lanes next to him.

It was a first perfect game of Hoeckendorf's career and the first at the brand new Harvester Bowl.

DELAYS MAY BE FATAL

Free From Casey's Syntax, Sports Bill Set For Trouble

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate sports bill, freed from the whirlwind of Casey Stengel's syntax, today encountered more serious problems which could jeopardize its legislative future.

Members of the Senate anti-monopoly subcommittee voiced doubts about the House-passed anti-trust exemption. Their comments raised the prospect of substantial changes in the bill and resulting delays.

Delays could be fatal to the measure despite the 45 senators who have joined in sponsoring it. Most members of the House and Senate hope to wind up the congressional session in about a month.

Stengel's discursive ramblings were the big story Wednesday as the subcommittee launched hearings on the bill. The New York Yankee manager won some kind of congressional Oscar for his double-talking performance.

But the reaction of subcommittee members to his remarks, and those of other baseball greats who testified, was not one to bring joy to sponsors of the bill.

Chairman Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said several features of the House bill "worry me considerably." He specified the bill's complete waiver of anti-trust laws and of federal regulation of broadcasting and telecasting of sports events.

Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) said he would not support the bill.

TUT IS STILL AM FAVORITE

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)— Top-seeded Bernard (Tut) Bartzten, Houston, Tex., today appeared ready to justify further his role of favorite in the Western Amateur tennis tournament.

Bartzten had no trouble Wednesday in beating another Houston entrant, Ed Greer, 6-0, 6-1, in a nearly flawless advance of seeded players at the Woodstock Country Club.

The only exception was the defeat of Maxwell Brown of Los Angeles, Calif., seeded No. 4, by Estaban Reyes, of Mexico City, Reyes won after three stubborn sets, 6-2, 4-6, 5-2.

Second-seeded Alex Olmedo, NCAA title holder from Peru, shared in the advance with a 6-1, 6-4, victory over Edward Sledge, Dallas, Tex., and Mike Green, seeded third, emerged with a hard fought win over Adres Bonnadieu, of Mexico City, 6-2, 8-6.

Dave Harum, Coral Gables, Fla. seeded fourth, beat Gordon Davis of Los Angeles, 6-0, 5-7, 6-2, and fifth-seeded Don Dell, Bethesda, Md., rounded out the top-bracket wins by defeating Ronnie Fisher, of the third Houston competitor, 6-4, 6-1.

In today's round, Bartzten will face Roger Workman, of Los Angeles and Olmedo will take on Crawford Henry, Atlanta, Ga. Other pairings were Harum and Dell and Reyes and Green.

Prigmore Ties For Juco Lead

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)— Two college students moved into a tie for the lead in the Texas Junior Golf Tournament Wednesday at the championship flight.

Lamar Tech sophomore Alvin Odum and Don Prigmore, a Baylor student from Pampa, fired identical scores of 70—one below par—to take one stroke advantages over their nearest contenders, Robert Dorsett of Austin and Odell Bianco of San Antonio.

Par for the Breckenridge Park course is 71.

Four golfers fired 72's to tie for third place. They were Johnny Arreagan of San Antonio; Mike Hornsby of Austin; Jimmy Fetters of Port Arthur, and Lowe Irvine of San Antonio. Arreagan won a play off to gain medalist honors.

Defending champion Christie Flanagan of Port Arthur was six strokes off the pace with a 76.

Sixty-nine golfers are competing in the championship flight while 150 are taking part in the tournament.

The field championship flight will be narrowed down to 32 with the completion of second round play Thursday. Tournament finals are scheduled for Saturday.

YOUR FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is not license. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, The Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to promoting and preserving YOUR freedom as well as our own. For only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

How Both Gain

Cicero once held that one of man's great delusions was this: that individual advancement is made by crushing others. This is a major delusion and one that need exercising.

It is true that in a sport event or a political contest, somebody wins and somebody loses. It is also true in these cases that there can usually be but one winner. More people lose than ever cross the finish line ahead of the pack.

But when we come to economics and a study of the free market, because free enterprise is based on competition the illusion persists that in any kind of an exchange, somebody is bound to win and somebody is bound to lose. This is wholly false, as we will endeavor to show.

According to some of the best economists who are skilled in explaining the workings of money and the flow of goods, economics is the science of human action in the market place. And if we have a free economy, which means, simply, an economy in which all coercion is absent, we will readily discover that provided only that fraud and misrepresentation are lacking, each exchange of goods or services means a gain for all persons engaged in the exchange.

We will take a hypothetical example.

Here is Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith has a house which he would like to sell. He prices it as $15,000. He sets that price because at the moment he feels that he would rather have $15,000 in money than the house. Now the price he paid for the house has no definite bearing on his decision although in point of fact, it will undoubtedly be taken into consideration.

Perhaps he purchased the house for $12,000 and hopes to make a profit. On the other hand, he may have purchased the house for $18,000 and is already convinced that market demand for house of the kind he owns, has fallen to the point where he would be lucky to get $15,000. Whatever his reasoning, the fact is that when he prices the house at $15,000 and offers it for sale, he would rather have that much money for the house. If he felt otherwise, he would either not offer it for sale, or he would put a price on it commensurate with what he wants, and reasonably expects to get. But as we say, Mr. Smith has decided to sell and he is asking $15,000.

Here is Mr. Jones. Mr. Jones has some money. But what Mr. Jones wants and does not have, is a house. At the moment, Mr. Jones wants a house more than he wants his money. We do not have to know all of Mr. Jones' reasons. He may need the house for himself and family. He may wish to speculate on the market and is hoping to buy cheaply and sell at a profit. Or he may be planning on putting some money into an income-producing enterprise and hopes to collect rent by leasing out the house. The fact still remains that he wants a house more than he wants at least some of his money.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Jones get together. Be it noted that each has something that the other wants. And be it remembered that each wants what the other has MORE than he wants what he has. This is the solid basis for every free exchange in an open market. So long as there is no coercion and so long as fraud or misrepresentation are lacking, the two men are ready to deal.

How do they deal? It doesn't matter in the least. Perhaps Mr. Jones will meet Mr. Smith's terms. Perhaps Mr. Jones will convince Mr. Smith that $15,000 is too much and will get him to part with his house for a lesser sum of money.

Let us suppose that the latter case is the correct one and that finally Mr. Jones buys the house for $13,500. Has Mr. Smith been injured? Not at all. Mr. Smith does not have to accept the sum of $13,500. So long as there is no coercion, Mr. Smith can refuse the offer. But if Mr. Smith accepts the offer, it is because at that moment he has convinced himself that he would rather have the $13,500 than the house. And also, that he would rather have $13,500 now than wait for a possible $15,000. And Mr. Jones has agreed with himself that he would rather have the house than the $13,500.

Thus we see that neither party to the deal has been injured. On the contrary, both have gained. Each got what he wanted more than what he had. It is true that both could have erred in judgment. Subsequent events may prove that either Mr. Smith should not have parted with the house or that Mr. Jones should not have parted with his money.

But subsequent events have no bearing on the facts of the case. The exchange was made as a voluntary action, on the part of both men. Neither would have made the exchange except he was convinced in his own mind that the exchange would benefit him. And after the exchange each was free to act out his own reasons for wanting to make the exchange.

This is at least a part of what Cicero was getting at when he explained that individual advancement does not come by crushing others. Individual advancement occurs only when freedom is present and when each of us is free to do as we please, being fully responsible for our own choices and actions.

BETTER JOBS

By C. HOLLIS

"Fund For The Republic" Pamphlet On Unions Ford Foundation set up what is known as "The Fund for the Republic" with grants of millions of dollars. The "Fund for the Republic" is headed by Robert M. Hutchins and presumes he selected other members of the committee or has a great influence in their selection.

One of the committee is Clark Kerr, now President of the University of California. Mr. Kerr succeeds Robert Sprout. This committee for the Fund for the Republic issues pamphlets called "A Contribution to the Discussion of the Labor Problem." I have just read a couple of these pamphlets. One by Clark Kerr on "Unions and Union Leaders of Their Own Choosing," and the other by A. A. Berle Jr. on "Economic Power and The Free Society, A Preliminary Discussion of The Corporation."

The one by Kerr shocked me the most. I do not know whether it should be shocked, because Kerr seems never to have had any business experience. He was always working for the government or some tax-free organization. He has no conception, it seems to me, of the labor problem. I especially get this conclusion from reading such paragraphs as this in his pamphlet:

"Thus the unions have generally brought a better legislative and judicial process into industrial life and a better balance among the power groups in society. They have done this without the consequences that were so feared in times just past. It was believed that industrial conflict would tear society apart; the fact is that industrial peace is now the commonplace, and, except for the few unions still under Communist domination, American unions must certainly contribute to the social stability and security of our whole system. It was feared that unions would hamper productive efficiency and stifle progress; undoubtedly many union rules do retard production but there is no evidence that the over-all effect has been anything but relatively minor, and some new methods have been better received because of union consultation than they otherwise would have been in the light of the inherent conservatism of the workplace. It was feared that unions might distort inter-industry wage structures; and that their actions would assure wild inflation; in fact, it is one of the wonders of the economic world that unions have had so little effect on wage structures; and their impact on price levels, while open to dispute, has certainly been no more than moderate. The fears of costly social conflict, of strangled production, of rampant inflation because of unions have proved largely without substance."

What Better Legislation How in this world can a man make statements like Kerr has made in this paragraph? Take the unions have generally brought a better legislative and judicial process into industrial life and a better balance among the power groups of society?

The unions were responsible for the Clayton Amendment to the Sherman Anti-Trust Law that permits labor to combine, and have a monopoly on set prices and exploit the consumer and not be guilty of violating the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. In short, it sets two classes of society in the United States. It makes it legal for unions to do things that would be a crime and put employers in jail if they did what labor unions do. And yet Kerr said they brought about better legislation.

Unions were responsible for the Norris-LaGuardia Act that made it a crime for employers to hire a man who will make a binding contract rather than a man who would make no binding contract. And yet Kerr calls that better legislation.

Unions were responsible for the Wagner Law and the Taft-Hartley Law. And these laws make it so that if the majority in a plant vote to have a union represent them, the minority has no right to make an individual contract. In other words, it is pure collectivism where the individual is nothing, has no inalienable rights, and the group is supreme — is master. And yet Kerr proclaims in this pamphlet, paid for by "The Fund for the Republic," financed by Ford Foundation, that unions have generally brought about better legislation.

I wonder what he uses as a standard to determine what better legislation is. Is it his own personal opinion? It certainly cannot be the Declaration of Independence or the Declaration of Independence that all men not just the majority, have certain inalienable rights are confused when we have "educators" at the head of non-ree enterprise colleges, being financed by tax-free organizations to spread their personal opinions.

Adams-Goldfine Probe Obscuring

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

WASHINGTON — The clamorous Sherman Adams-Goldfine investigation is completely obscuring another House probe that is some respects is even more sensational. Under scrutiny in this so-far-overlooked investigations are the extraordinary operations of a small group of individuals and firms who have made millions buying from one government agency and selling at considerably higher prices to another.

In some instances profits were as high as 50 percent. The two agencies involved in these exceedingly lucrative backstage operations are: The Commodity Credit Corporation, which purchases billions of dollars of surplus farm products under the Agriculture Act; and the International Cooperation Administration, which administers the foreign aid program, for which President Eisenhower is seeking another $3.9 billion.

Other jolting disclosures being uncovered by this probe are: As much as $1 billion in government-owned farm surpluses are involved in these exceptional deals.

Some of these commodities have been shipped to Russia. Certain officials of the two agencies have connections with companies involved in these transactions.

The Justice Department has done nothing about these apparent conflict-of-interest cases, despite complaints about them. Conducting this dynamite-loaded investigation, which sooner or later will explode in the headlines, is a House Government Operations Subcommittee, headed by Representative L. H. Fountain (D., N.C.). Quiet-spoken and deliberate Fountain is among the toughest and most relentless probes in Congress. His record strikingly proves that.

It was the North Carolinian's exposes that led to the recent grand jury indictment of a number of drug manufacturers on charges of price fixing on Salk vaccine. Similarly, Fountain's airings resulted in the government recovering more than $1,000,000 in excessive payments to cheese makers by the Agriculture Department.

NOTE: The International Cooperation Administration, an agency of the State Department, is headed by James H. Smith. ICA policies are determined by Secretary of State Dulles. The Commodity Credit Corporation, an agency of the Agriculture Department, is run by a board, whose chairman is Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson.

PAY DIRT — Representative Fountain already has definitely established that government-purchased farm surpluses have been "trans-shipped" to Russia. That was admitted by Leslie Grant, an ICA attorney, at a hearing that was wholly blacked out by a sensational session of the House influence investigating committee. Not a word of this very significant testimony got into print.

Grant and Roger Stewart, acting associate director of the Office of Food and Agriculture, were manifestly wary in their replies. But in response to a direct question, they admitted that taxpayer-bought crop surpluses have found their way to the Soviet. Following is this revealing discussion:

Fountain: "Do you have any method or system to determine if commodities sold under this 'triangular transactions' program are being exported to Russia?" Grant: "Yes."

Fountain: "Isn't it true that at least in one instance cottonseed oil financed under this program was illegally trans-shipped to Russia?" Grant: "I think there was such a case." In laying a groundwork for a thorough airing of "triangular transactions," Fountain brought out the following:

"As I understand it," said the North Carolinian, "You have a situation here where taxpayers, who have already sustained losses running into many millions on these surplus commodities, are being made to fork over additional millions in order to make big profits for private brokers in disposing of these commodities."

"The private firms that buy from the CCC have some expenses in connection with the delivery of these commodities," pointed out Stewart.

"Yes, but those expenses can't be very much," retorted Fountain. "In fact, in many cases, you people pay the transportation of these commodities, isn't that so?"

"Yes," admitted Stewart. Fountain got nowhere in trying to uncover who is responsible for this backstage situation.

"Does the law require you to patronize concerns and exporters to provide services that are not needed?" he asked.

"You are getting into an area of opinion," declared Grant. "I am unable to answer that."

"But you do have authority under the law to make purchases directly from the CCC, isn't that right?" continues Fountain. "That was done prior to 1954, wasn't it?"

"Yes," replied Grant. "But it is not being done now," said Fountain.

"The present policy is not to make such purchases directly, but to bring in private business," explained Grant.

J. R. Naughton, Committee counsel, sought to ascertain the "average mark-up on agricultural commodities from the time they leave the CCC and are financed by ICA." Stewart declined to discuss this moot question.

"We couldn't comment intelligently on that," he said.

"Why not?" demanded Fountain. "We don't have the information," continued Stewart.

"Then get it and submit it to this Committee at our next meeting," ordered Fountain. "I am informed that profits in these extraordinary transactions run as high as 50 percent. We want to know all about that, and see that you have the facts with you the next time you appear before us."

That ended this hearing. It remains to be seen what happens at the next one — including whether it will again be obscured like the first one.

We do not fight the Communist dictatorship by maintaining other dictators in monopolies that permit their handing out sports cars. I just got a letter from a reader who says he's a hundred and five years old. He gave me his three rules for longevity: "When I work I work hard but I work slow. When I rest, I rest easy. And when I sit down to think, I fall asleep."

While we're talking about economy there's a quiet proposal being considered in Washington to pay former presidents a pension of $25,000 a year, free postage and a $100,000 a year fund for office staff and expenses. Congressman August Johansen of Michigan has declared himself against this "subsidizing of the nonexistent office of former President of the United States."

Planned Traffic Jams Can Be Fun, Says Mac

By HENRY McLEMORE

Traffic jams can be fun. Planned traffic jams, that is. We went out over the 4th of July week-end. A planned traffic jam differs from an ordinary one in that the motorist makes getting caught in one his destination, instead of a beach, a mountain or a lake. You can easily see the difference this makes. If you are aiming for a lake resort, say, and have to spend hours in bumper-to-bumper

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M. D.

The great volume of inquiries makes it necessary for me to discuss the Rh factor of the blood rather frequently. It is a complicated subject.

Stated as simply as possible, the Rh factor is a substance of obscure nature which about 87 of 100 of us have. Persons with such blood are called Rh positives. The other 13 per cent are said to have Rh negative blood.

When a person with Rh negative blood becomes sensitive to Rh positive blood, a severe reaction with chills and fever can develop from a blood transfusion with Rh positive blood.

Also, if an "Rh negative" mother (but only one who is sensitive to Rh positive blood) carries an Rh positive child, the child may develop the disease known as erythroblastosis fetalis. Such an infant becomes jaundiced and seriously ill.

Men or women who are Rh positive have little to worry about. However, if an Rh negative man were given several Rh positive blood transfusions he might have undesirable reactions.

More important is the woman with Rh negative blood who can become sensitive to Rh positive blood in one of two ways: by blood transfusion of Rh positive blood, or by carrying a child with Rh positive blood.

The first can be avoided by not giving Rh positive blood transfusions to an Rh negative person.

If both parents have Rh negative blood, the child will always be Rh negative and there will be no trouble. If the father has Rh positive and the mother Rh negative blood; the child may be Rh positive and therefore react badly with the mother.

Often, the first child (and often later ones as well) of an Rh negative mother married to an Rh positive man will almost always be healthy, unless the mother has received Rh positive blood transfusions previously. Such blood transfusions should be avoided.

Only about one woman in from 25 to 50 with Rh negative blood, who has an Rh positive husband, becomes sensitive to the Rh factor and gives birth to a baby with erythroblastosis. Even when this occurs, proper measures in anticipation and transfusions of blood will save the lives of a large proportion of such infants.

An excellent summary of present knowledge in this field appeared recently in the New England Journal of Medicine. Several gaps in knowledge were pointed out, but the article concluded:

"It is quite certain that improvements will be not too long in coming in some, if not all, of the areas mentioned. Meanwhile, the careful application of knowledge and methods that are available can avoid much of the disappointment and heartache that has been caused by erythroblastosis fetalis in the past."

creeping along, you are bound to get mad.

On the other hand, if you start out looking for the worst traffic jam possible, you are not only happy, but sort of proud of yourself when you get snarled in one. The slower you move the more gratified you are. You have no goal other than the one you have reached, and so you chug along behind a big truck, or sit in front of a road repair sign for hours, as happy as can be.

We couldn't have been luckier than we were on our first planned traffic jam week-end. We hadn't gone ten miles from home before we ran into a peach of a one. We didn't advance ten miles in two hours.

All around us were motorists who, foolishly we believe, were shooting for a fishing spot, a bathing beach, or a picnic site. They were fuming, honking, cursing, complaining, squirming, getting red in the face and generally having an awful time.

With nowhere to go, no destination to reach, no appointment to keep, no friends to meet, we relaxed and enjoyed every minute of our inch by inch progress.

We packed a lunch designed for eating in the car. There was nothing sticky or drippy or messy. All about us, motorists with regular picnic lunches, were smeared with potato salad, spotted with pickle juice and fighting with jugs of tea and coffee.

Thanks to knowing where we were going to spend the day, we took games suitable for playing while stuck in traffic. We had crossword puzzles, a small, folding cribbage board, and several of those puzzles consisting of joined rings.

Our companions had nothing to play with as they inched along but fishing poles, outdoor motors, tennis racquets, golf sticks; and the like, none of which is suitable for use, even in the largest sedan.

In the early afternoon we turned around and joined the traffic jam going the other way. Again we were lucky. It was almost as big as the one we had enjoyed all morning, and we didn't reach home until almost dark.

When we pulled into the driveway, we couldn't help but congratulate ourselves on our day of planned traffic jamming. Just at the time most weekenders were reaching their destinations, tired, hot, and fuming, and with the unpacking still to do, we were home. We hadn't even pulled down the windows. The place was cool, airy and delightfully familiar.

Yet, we had had a day away from home.

We repeated the performance of Friday on both Saturday and Sunday, choosing a different route each time — and out luck held out. The jams of Saturday and Sunday were every bit as good as the ones of the Fourth. Indeed, the one on Sunday might well have been the best of the three!

Artists, Here's Your Chance

(Special to The News)
DALLAS — Emily Genauer, art critic for the New York Herald Tribune and famous author and lecturer on contemporary art, will judge entries in the 20th Annual Texas Painting and Sculpture Competition to be exhibited at the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts during the 1958 State Fair of Texas. More than $3,000 in prizes will be awarded and about 80 works of painting and sculpture will be selected for display from hundreds of entries expected in the annual competition of Texas artists. Awards will be made at a special preview on October 3, at the Museum.

The 1958 exhibition will be shown at more Texas museums than ever before in the Annual's history. Following the Dallas showing it will be circulated to the Witte Museum in San Antonio, Laguna Gloria Galleries in Austin, the Beaumont Museum of Fine Arts, the San Angelo Art Club and the Museum of Fine Arts of Houston. Purchases already committed for the competition include the State Fair of Texas Purchase Prize of $4,000, Chance Vought Aircraft, Inc. Purchase Prize of $500, and the Museum of Fine Arts of Houston Purchase of $300. Cash Awards include the Fort Worth Art Association Award of $100, Foley's of Houston Award of $100, Museum of Fine Arts of Houston Award of $100 each given by Humble Oil and Refining Company, and the Schlumberger Well Surveying Corporation Award of $100. Other prizes and awards will be announced soon.

The competition's prospectus may be obtained by writing the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts. The annual event is open to all resident artists of Texas who have lived at least six months in the state prior to the competition. Works must be original and not previously shown at any of the participating museums. Copies of other works and works done under supervision are not eligible.

Deadline for entries to the Dallas Museum is Sunday, September 14.

Community Pool Is Coming Along

(Special to The News)
WHEELER — Committees have raised approximately $7,000 in their drive for a community swimming pool. Drive Chairman Dr. H. E. Nicholson said in his latest report.

Dr. Nicholson said that the pool will be under construction as soon as the City has issued the warrants and secured bids from contractors.

Major Thomas Daughtry disclosed that the Hassie & Green engineering firm of Lubbock has completed the specifications for the pool.

Daughtry estimated that actual construction will not begin until sometime in October or November. Dr. Nicholson issued on a preliminary report that he has not made contributions to the swimming pool fund when he made his report. "Surely everyone wants to be a part of such a worthwhile project," said Dr. Nicholson.

Bus Strike Goes Into Sixth Week

AMARILLO (UPI) — The strike of 42 bus operators against New Mexico Transportation Co., has moved into its sixth week with no hope seen for an immediate settlement.

The strike, which began May 23, has disrupted the company's operations in West Texas and eastern New Mexico.

The operators seek wage increases and related benefits. No picket lines have been formed here.

Spokesmen for the operators said negotiations with the company collapsed more than three weeks ago and added that no new talks are scheduled.

The company's six daily bus runs out of Amarillo have been disrupted since the strike began. Although the company headquarters is in Roswell, N. M., negotiations were held in Amarillo, home of the striking drivers.

Carnival Man Is Challenge To Hospital

BREMEN, Ind. (UPI)—A 1,085-pound Robert E. Hughes, 32, who two years ago needed a private cargo plane to get from Chicago to New York, Wednesday had a measles but couldn't fit inside the hospital.

Doctors treated Hughes in his trailer, parked behind the hospital. They said he was seriously ill, but making satisfactory progress.

Hughes, of Emden, Mo., became ill last week while working with a carnival at North Vernon, Ind.

Rapidly the measles complicated a heart condition and he needed oxygen. He was rushed to the nearby Bremen Hospital.

Doctors took one look, stepped back and said Hughes had better stay inside the trailer.

They said they never could get him through the hospital's doors. And, even if they did, neither the elevators, the hospital carts, nor the beds would hold him.

So the trailer was parked behind the hospital and three doctors took up a constant vigil.

It was in 1956 that Hughes, then down to a skin-and-bones 1,041 pounds, left his farm at Fishhook, Ill., boarded a chartered cargo plane and headed for New York—along with a publicity agent—to crack television.

He soon returned to midwestern carnivals, exhibiting his 122-inch waist and 40-inch biceps.

Slumped across a cast-iron reinforced bed aboard the plane, Hughes looked back on his life and said, "A lot of others are worse off than me."

He said, though, that he'd much rather be "normal" than make his living as a fat man.

"But there is nothing I can do about this," he said then. "I know that. There's no use feeling sorry for myself."

Hoppy Loses

PARIS (UPI)—Bad men entered the luxury hotel suite of horse opera star William (Hopalong Cassidy) Boyd and stole $12,000 in jewels, the actor disclosed today.

He said the varmints must have entered the suite at the Hotel Plaza Athene early Monday evening when he and Mrs. Boyd were out for dinner.

Boyd said that being robbed in one of Paris' swankiest hotels is "like being robbed in a cathedral."

All But Elvis Pay

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Both the father of Pvt. Elvis Presley and a Fort Worth friend have written Peace Justice Whit Boyd offering to pay a $20,600 speeding fine for the rock 'n roll idol.

Presley has been charged with driving 75 miles per hour in a 55 mile per hour zone. His father, Vernon Presley, wrote the judge he would pay the fine when advised of the amount.

Ken Moore, a Fort Worth friend of Presley, also wrote Judge Boyd offering to pay the fine.

1,750 Miles Of New Roads Beckon US Auto Vacationers

BOON TO TOURISTS

Happy vacationers heading northward, possibly trying to beat the sizzling summer heat, might be aided somewhat on their journey, if it's Northern Michigan they're heading for, thanks to this wonderful new Mackinac Straits Bridge. It's only one of many travel improvements in the US for this summer's travelers.

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Eighty million Americans will take auto vacations this summer and attempt to beat the recession with maximum use of the nation's free tourist attractions and sightseeing wonders.

And the vacation hotel and motel owners, the operators of resorts and other vacation-for-pay enterprises are braced for price-haggling such as they haven't encountered from tourists in many years.

Nevertheless, auto vacationers will spend about 12 billion dollars this summer. This is about as much as they spent the year before a survey by the American Automobile Association reveals.

Many persons are deciding to take inexpensive driving vacations instead of their usual stay at expensive resorts. Many people who customarily take long, cross-country trips this year will take shorter trips in the interest of economy. And the camping boom which has been developing the past several years is expected to reach a new high this summer.

Two of the big reasons for general optimism by the AA experts and other travel authorities are the record savings which Americans have in the bank, and the new roads which have opened to tourists during the past 12 months.

Official state and federal statistics on the completions of new highways sometimes lags more than a year in being reported to the public because of red tape. But a privately published survey, The Parade Magazine Turnpike Guidebook reports:

"Since last year, more than 500 miles of turnpike and 1,250 miles of expressways have opened. This

CHUCKLES

Chuckles In The News By United Press International

AWOL LONG TIME

EDINBURG, Scotland (UPI)—Army Private Hughie A. Smith was sentenced to nine months in prison Wednesday for being absent without leave for eight of the 10 years he has been in the service.

BAD AWAKENING

PEMBROKE, Ont. (UPI)—Carnival worker Rudy Bray awoke Wednesday in the washroom of the Canadian Pacific Railway station to find the $28 he had in his new brown suit missing.

Also missing was the suit.

TRAINING PAYS OFF

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—University of Tennessee football player Ed Morgan got in some off-season practice at a local store where he's working as a clerk this summer.

When a bandit tried to rob the store at gunpoint, Morgan downed him with a flying tackle and disarmed him.

WHAT'S THE SECRET?

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Twice-defeated United States presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson turned to thrice-elected Socialist Premier Tage Erlander at a state banquet and asked:

"What is your secret for getting elected so many times?"

There was no record of Erlander's reply.

WEATHERMAN "UNFAIR"

NEW YORK (UPI)—Peeved at the weatherman's gloomy week-end forecasts thus far this summer, George Wolpert, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, complained Wednesday to weatherman Ernest J. Christie:

"It is unfair to guess. The weathermen ought to know they are licked and give up."

NO MORE GUESSWORK

PORTSMOUTH, England (UPI)—Able seaman Patrick Brown admitted Wednesday he was high on two counts when arrested.

A judge dismissed charges against Brown after the seaman said he had been drinking but had no idea how he got atop the roof of a house.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—The city took the guesswork out of its meter reading Wednesday.

It accepted the resignation of Wayne L. Helphenstine, who was charged with guessing at meter readings instead of making a personal check.

Summer Fun Program Gets Fund

(Special to The News)

LEFORS — In their monthly meeting Monday the Lefors City Council allotted $200 to the Summer Recreation Program.

The Council unanimously accepted the proposed Carpenter Addition into the City limits after Fred Blackwell presented a petition, urging acceptance of the new addition. Gene Barber of Pampa appeared with Blackwell to explain the situation.

The practice of dragging felled trees behind vehicles and the consequent damage to paving brought another decision from the Council. Lefors residents are requested to cut their trees into short lengths for hauling on City pavement.

Present for the meeting were Mayor Frank Wall, Secretary Mrs. H. H. Barron and Councilmen Robert Call, W. C. Breining, F. C. Jones, J. R. Sparkman and Leonard Cain.
