Swedes Mourn At Death Of Popular King Gustaf

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Europe's oldest monarch, Gustaf VI Adolf, "King of the Swedes, the Goths and the Vandals," died Saturday night. He was 90 years old.

The popular Swedish king, whose condition had progressively deteriorated since stomach surgery a month ago, died in his sleep at the Helsingborg hospital on the eve of the country's parliamentary elections.

Crown Prince Carl Gustaf, 27, who automatically succeeds to the throne, was at the deathbed.

The new monarch, who has the title King Carl XVI Gustaf, was greeted by 500 Swedes with shouts of "long live the king" as he left the hospital with other members of the royal family.

Former Prime Minister Tage Erlander, who served Gustaf for 19 years, told the nation on radio. "For every one of us he stood out as a personality in front of whom one was filled with respect. For him democracy was the only form of government worthy of the human race."

The king, a scholarly, mild-mannered man who enjoyed a unique popularity with his eight million subjects, had been seriously ill with a bleeding ulcer for the last four weeks.

His struggle with death in the city hospital in Helsingborg in southern Sweden had been followed by the whole nation in daily medical bulletins.

The king survived a number of crises, including an emergency stomach operation and two bouts of pneumonia. A third attack of pneumonia apparently ended his life.

The title that Crown Prince Carl Gustaf will assume—"King of the Swedes, the Goths and the Vandals"—traces Sweden's history back to the barbarian tribes that ravaged the north-

Youth Hurt In Accident

Denver Burnett Dyer, 17, 2117 N. Sumner, was taken to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo yesterday after being involved in a motorcycle-car accident in the 1900 block of Hobart shortly before 7:30 p.m.

Following emergency treatment for a fractured femur and a sprained wrist at Highland General Hospital, Dyer was taken to the Amarillo facility.

Dyer, driver of the motorcycle, was in collision with a car driven by Ruth G. Campbell, 2110 N. Banks. Ms. Campbell was cited by Pampa police for failure to yield right of way at a stop sign.

At the time of the accident, Dyer was driving north on Hobart when Ms. Campbell allegedly pulled in front of him going west, police said.

ON FEED DEDUCTIONS

Price Criticizes Action Of IRS

U.S. Rep. Bob Price of Pampa has charged the Internal Revenue Service with seriously threatening the cattle industry by the proposed disallowance of prepaid feed as a business deduction.

For example, Price said if feed is bought and paid for in one year but not consumed until the following year, it cannot be deducted until it is consumed.

Price made his comments after attending a meeting with members of Congress and cattle industry representatives on Capitol Hill last Thursday.

The Panhandle congressman further stated that, "if this action by the IRS is allowed to remain, it will have a widespread effect on the cattle industry as a whole. It, in fact, could cause further price increases to consumers as well as reduce the supply of beef available for consumption."

The action came in the form of a "memorandum of technical advice from the Washington Office of the IRS to its district director in Dallas and ern reaches of the Roman empire from 100-500 A.D.

The Crown Prince became the new king the moment King Gustaf VI Adolf's heart stopped beating.

The Swedish Broadcasting Corp. interrupted its radio and TV programs to broadcast the announcement of the king's death, followed by mourning music.

Air Base Group Has 1st Reunion

Over 200 people attended the first reunion of former military and civilian personnel stationed at Pampa Army Air Base during World War II yesterday at Celanese Corp.'s Pamcel Hall.

The reunion came about as the result of three people: Mrs. Mattie Gatlin Scott, Mrs. Annie B. Hunnicutt Flynn and Mrs. Palestine Gething Drum reminiscing about Pampa Army Air Field experiences and deciding it would be a good idea to get personnel from the base together.

The Pampa Army Air Field Reunion Association was brought into being Sept. 10, 1972, after 36 former military and civilian personnel from the base met in Pampa.

President Working On Bills

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon, on a working weekend at his mountain retreat, met for about an hour Saturday with top White House aides Alexander M. Haig and J. Fred Buzhardt.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said the President also worked on a package of housing bills he expects to make public next week in a message to Congress.

Warren declined to say whether Nixon discussed the Watergate case with Buzhardt, who as special presidential counsel is one of the team of presidential lawyers fighting efforts by Senate investigators and special prosecutor Archibald Cox to gain access to tapes of Nixon's conversations with aides relating to the scandal.

Warren had said earlier that Nixon's legal advisers were studying a proposal by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia that some out-of-court arrangement be worked out for Cox to hear the tapes.

building in Helsingborg hundreds of Swedes had gathered on the lawn waiting for news.

Some in the hushed crowd wept openly when they heard the news.

King Carl XVI Gustaf, as the new king will be named, will assume his duties at a special cabinet meeting, expected to be held shortly, government officials said.

Air Base Reunion

Presiding at the meeting yesterday was Max Presnell of Pampa, president of the reunion association. The invocation was given by Maurice Garner of Panhandle, former PAAF base chaplain.

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson of Pampa gave the welcoming address.

Col. William A. Poe, Albuquerque, N.M., scheduled to address the meeting, was unable to attend because of prior commitments. Col. Poe was the commanding officer of the Quartermaster Corp at Pampa Army Air Field from 1942 to 1945.

Frederick W. Brook of Pampa, former flying instructor at the base, presented a history of the air field, which was brought into being as a pilot training field during the war and was closed at the conclusion of the U.S. involvement.

Over 100 people from out of town attended the meeting, some coming from Arkansas, Minnesota and Virginia.

Mrs. Nina Spoonemore, current secretary-treasurer of the association, was presented her "wings" in recognition of the work she had done in preparation for the reunion.

A memorial and benediction for deceased PAAF personnel was recited by Maurice Garner.

Morris B. Kille of Pampa, music and education director at the First United Methodist Church, led the association in the singing of the Army Air Corps official song.

New officers for the club were elected following the meeting: President for the coming year will be Quenton Nolte of Pampa.

Others elected were Nina Spoonemore, first vice president; Blake Laramore, second vice president, and Lee Crow, secretary-treasurer.

This year's officers are Presnell, president; Nolte, first vice president; Mrs. Flynn, second vice president, and Mrs. Spoonemore, secretary-treasurer.

Presnell predicted between four and five hundred former base personnel would attend next year's reunion.

CONCERNING AGNEW

Richardson Okays Jury To Investigate Evidence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prosecutors have been told to start presenting information about Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to a federal grand jury investigating political corruption in Maryland, a source close to the inquiry said Saturday.

The source said Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson had not decided yet whether federal prosecutors should ask the grand jury in Baltimore to indict Agnew in connection with an alleged financial kickback scheme involving contractors and politicians in his home state.

But Richardson was said to have concluded that information which might link the vice president should be taken before the grand jury for investigative purposes and that his decision was passed along to authorities working on the case.

The attorney general also was understood to be seeking assurance that individuals who have alleged Agnew's involvement, during private interviews with federal officials, would stand by their stories under oath.

The source said Richardson still was considering the question of whether the Constitution would preclude indictment of a vice president until he had been removed from office through impeachment by Congress.

At the Justice Department, official spokesmen said they had no comment, but acknowledged that they no longer were denying that Richardson had made any decisions regarding the vice president because the earlier posture no longer applied.

Agnew has insisted that he is innocent of all allegations and vowed to prove it.

Spokesmen for the vice president and his lawyers could not be reached for comment on Richardson's reported decision.

Government Trims Milk For Children

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The amount of milk sold to school children under special federal subsidy programs will be cut back by about 18 per cent this year, it was learned Saturday.

Agriculture Department officials provided the information after a reporter inquired about a department news release on school milk which proved factual but incomplete.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yentger was quoted in the release as estimating that more than 5.5 billion half pints of milk would be served in the nation's schools this year, and predicting "an increase of some 11 per cent in the amount of milk that will be served to children who take part in the national school lunch program and the special breakfast program."

The release did not mention a projected decrease of 1.721 billion half pints in the milk to be provided under the supplemental special program in which children get milk at cut rates.

Figures provided by the department showed that during the last school year, 2.533 billion half pints of milk were sold to children at reduced prices under the special program, whereas plans this year call for subsidizing only 812 million half pints.

The release showed accurately—that there would be an increase of about 11 per cent in the amount of milk provided under the breakfast and lunch program—from 4.226 billion half pints to 4.695 billion.

But counting in the sharp cut in the special milk program, provided in schools where no regular lunch service is available, the overall total for the 1973-74 school year would be about 18 per cent below the total for the last school year.

On a volume basis, the reduction overall—including the special milk program—would be from 6.759 billion half pints last year to 5.507 this year.

Agnew has insisted that he is innocent of all allegations and vowed to prove it.

Spokesmen for the vice president and his lawyers could not be reached for comment on Richardson's reported decision.

Say Agreement Needs Revision

VIENNA (UPI) — The world's major oil exporting nations agreed Saturday to demand more money for their oil. Abderrahman Khene, secretary general of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), said.

"All the ministers were in agreement that the Tehran Agreement should be revised," Khene told newsmen after a day of secret talks between oil ministers of OPEC's 11 members, who sell most of their production to the West.

The Tehran Agreement fixes the price structure oil companies pay OPEC member nations for their oil.

The ministers will meet again Sunday to name a negotiating team for talks with the oil companies, Khene said.

The OPEC has so far had no contact with the oil company representatives, Khene said, but its members hoped negotiations on revising the Tehran Agreement could begin in several weeks.

The Tehran Agreement, signed in February, 1971, runs through 1975 with no provision for revision.

"But circumstances have changed," said an OPEC official said.

OPEC members include Abu Dhabi, Algeria, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Kuwait, Libya, Nigeria, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and Venezuela. They supply the industrialized states of the West with 85 per cent of their oil.

The 11 members get an automatic 2.5 per cent price increase each year from oil companies to compensate them for inflation.

But the group's officials said actual inflation had far outstripped this figure—in some cases by as much as 11 per cent.

The inflation clause is part of the 1971 Tehran Agreement that established the price structure oil companies pay OPEC's members for their oil. It runs through 1975 with no provision for revision.

Arab News reports Saturday said the Libyan government has warned six foreign oil companies it partly nationalized Sept. 1 that they face total nationalization, if they reject Libya's terms for 51 per cent of their interests.

Cairo's Akhbar El-Yom newspaper said Libya has set Oct. 1 as the deadline for the companies to accept its terms for compensation.

"Otherwise, their days in Libya will be numbered," the newspaper said.

Poseidon Testing Cleared

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The multi-warhead Poseidon missile was cleared for further testing from a submerged submarine Saturday after the Navy decided the flaws that cropped up were not as serious as first believed.

The decision opened the way for the 6:15 p.m. launching Saturday from the Francis Scott Key, submerged off-Cape Kennedy.

It was the first test of the Poseidon for the Key, which recently was converted from the single warhead Polaris missiles.

Purpose of the test was to familiarize the crew with procedures for launching the Poseidon.

Testing of the missile, which is operational on several submarines now on patrol, was halted last spring because of varying problems.

The Navy said of the 52 operational Poseidons fired previously from submarines, 19 failed in one way or another.

Sources said many of the failures occurred in the separation of the warhead package from the missile or in the warhead itself, which is designed to send 10 hydrogen bombs to separate targets.

Navy Secretary John Warner and Poseidon project officials said earlier this week, however, the problems were not serious.

Gas Station Operators Shut Down In Protest

By United Press International
Filling station operators across the country, many of them already on strike, geared Saturday to descend on Washington to demand a change in Phase IV guidelines on gasoline.

They also planned to be on hand Monday for an expected appeals court decision on a suit filed by a group of East Coast dealers on the constitutionality of the price controls.

Hundreds of station owners were so angry about the guidelines which hold retail prices at January levels but allow wholesale prices to be raised that they shut down their stations for the weekend. More than 200 stations were closed in Memphis, Tenn., alone although some 300 remained open.

Other owners, such as those in Georgia, Illinois, Indiana and Massachusetts, threatened to close down later if all does not go well for them Monday.

Gasoline dealer associations said they would send representatives to Washington to talk to the Cost of Living Council.

Council director John T. Dunlop said Friday the ceilings would be revised as soon as the council had a chance to study new price and cost data. The dealers and industry groups were asked to submit the data by Sept. 25, suggesting that the ceilings could be raised by Oct. 1.

A group of about 75 Tennessee gas dealers praised the council's announcement, but they continued to visit dealers still open Saturday to ask them to close and support the protest.

Central Arkansas independent gasoline dealers suggest a station shutdown on Sept. 22, the date of the season's first University of Arkansas football game at Little Rock.

"The dealers are upset," Jerry Quattlebaum, a spokesman for the Arkansas dealers, said. "If the Cost of Living Council indicates they are going to take some positive action, then this will have a tremendous effect."

House Members Mad At Briscoe

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—House administration committee members, accusing Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby and two Republican representatives of sabotage, cancelled plans Saturday to purchase an $850,000 voting machine in time for the 1974 Constitutional Convention.

Israeli Troops Massing Along Syrian Border

By United Press International The Israeli chief of staff said Saturday that Israel will strike at Arab guerrillas "all over the world" and will not limit its actions to reprisals. A Cairo report said Israeli troops and tanks are massing along the Syrian frontier.

Reps. Larry Vick, R-Houston, and Ray Hutchison, R-Dallas, of "sabotaging" the purchase plans.

No Further Plans Allen, who chairs the committee, said because Briscoe refused to sign the purchase order the committee was forced to cancel a contract with Control Data Corp. for installation of the machine by Jan. 7, the starting date of the Constitutional Convention. He said the committee has no further plans to purchase a new machine.

"The convention will now be left to its own devices in attempting to record and tabulate votes," Allen and Bynum said. "We would imagine that proposals for what the convention should do in this regard should appropriately be made by the lieutenant governor and members of the house like Reps. Vick and Hutchison, who have made every possible effort to sabotage the efforts of the Committee on House Administration to perform its legitimate and necessary function of serving the house and the people of Texas."

Collusion Charged Vick issued a statement last week charging collusion between the committee and Control Data Corp. He said the proper bidding system through the State Board of Control was not employed before the committee decided to award the contract to Control Data Corp.

Chrysler, UAW In Collision

DETROIT (UPI)—Labor negotiators returned to the bargaining table at Chrysler Corp. Saturday, eleven hours after the United Auto Workers struck the nation's third largest automaker for the first time in 23 years.

Top bargainers for the union and company made no statements to newsmen, continuing the total news blackout that began Thursday night. It was lifted for one hour Friday for the announcement that the strike was beginning in the United States and Canada.

"We just literally ran out of time," UAW President Leonard Woodcock told newsmen packed into a crowded pressroom at Chrysler's world headquarters in nearby Highland Park.

Negotiations that began July 18 failed to resolve a variety of issues, Woodcock said, including union demands for voluntary overtime, health and safety measures, special provisions for skilled trade and salaried workers and a wage increase.

A new label button appeared on union members during the first day of the strike. The green button said "We Can Work It Out."

Chrysler has 127,500 workers in the United States and Canada represented by the UAW. Some 10,000 white-collar workers were told by the union to stay on the job and another 14,200 hourly workers were allowed to continue working at various plants that supply other automakers in farm implement manufacture.

It was the first time since 1950 that Chrysler has been shut in a national strike. That walkout lasted 104 days.

Chrysler has been struck three times by the UAW since the organizing drives of the late 1930s.

In 1937, the UAW staged a 45-day strike to win recognition for the union. In 1948, a 17-day strike won union workers 13 cents an hour more in pay and improved vacation pay. The 104-day strike in 1950—the second longest in UAW history—won workers better pension benefits.

This year, the major issue was voluntary overtime, a factor that put the nation's second largest union and the automotive industry on a collision course. The union says workers should have the right to refuse overtime assignments and the companies say they won't be able to meet production schedules if they don't control the work schedules.

Landmark Hit By Explosions CHICAGO (UPI)—A series of explosions ripped through a chemical storage room in historic Jones Hall on the University of Chicago campus Saturday. Officials said radioactive materials stored in the area were secure.

The blasts, which shattered virtually all the windows in the basement of Jones Hall and triggered clouds of dense smoke, occurred in a room known as "The Cave" where chemicals used in research and teaching are stored. Four security guards sustained minor injuries.

A spokesman for the university said firemen and scientists at the scene were "quite satisfied that the canister containing radioactive materials was not entered and fears of radiation contamination were allayed."

Deputy Fire Marshal William Foley entered the area of the explosions about five hours after the blasts and said he could not determine what had caused them. University scientists were not immediately allowed in the building to make an inventory to attempt to isolate what caused the blasts.

The four security guards who were on duty at the chemistry complex of three buildings were treated for cuts and bruises at Billings Hospital. Authorities said no one was in Jones Hall at the time.

It was on the fourth floor of George Herman Jones hall in 1942 that scientists first isolated and weighed the man-made element plutonium, which is vital in nuclear engineering and the development of atomic weapons. The fourth floor has been made a national landmark.

Jones Hall is just across the street from Stagg Field where the first self-sustaining nuclear reaction was achieved by scientists working on the Manhattan Project during World War II. They ushered in the nuclear age.

Foley estimated damage to the building at $25,000.

BANK ECONOMISTS SAY

Farm Products Could Aid Oil Imports

DALLAS (UPI)—Dallas Federal Reserve Bank economists believe the United States could raise agricultural production as much as 50 per cent by 1985 and pay with farm exports for reduced but still extensive oil imports from the Middle East. But the economists doubt it will happen.

An article prepared by the economists said Saturday that the National Petroleum Council estimates that fuel imports projected for 1985 could be cut by two thirds, with appropriate policies to stimulate domestic fuel production and encourage development of other energy sources.

A two-thirds cutback would mean $11 billion in petroleum imports against $34 billion anticipated without major policy changes. A $34 billion petroleum import program would mean a U.S. trade deficit of about $27 billion, which the economy might not support.

Double Farm Exports With a liberal trade policy supported by appropriate domestic agricultural production policies, net farm exports could be nearly doubled, pushed possibly to $13 billion, the article in the bank's September Business Review said.

Under these most favorable circumstances, the United States likely could balance its increased farm shipments against the lower level of fuel imports. Whether this combination of conditions can be achieved, however, depends on policy considerations that are beyond ordinary economic determination.

"Given the world's persistent need for more food and this country's absolute advantage in farm production, it seems apparent that more liberal trade policies are to be expected. But also given the seemingly unyielding growth in domestic demand for energy and the continued environmental constraints on domestic production of energy, it seems unlikely that fuel imports can be held to anywhere near their minimum level."

Rising Energy Demands Half a dozen Federal Reserve

Bank economists worked on the article but the main two were senior economist Carl G. Anderson Jr. and economist Stephen L. Gardner.

"There has been little success so far with efforts to curb fuel consumption in this country," the article said. "And the outlook through 1985 is for energy demands to continue rising—and probably faster than in the 1960s."

The economists concluded that the export outlook for wheat, cotton and rice is not as bright as for other crops because their production is so widespread worldwide.

Soybean, Feed Grains Hot

Even though these are hot export items now, they believe, the most favorable outlook is for soybeans and feed grains, with some of the feed grains turned into slaughtered beef to save shipping costs.

And if the Arab countries of the Middle East hold most of the world's petroleum reserves, the economists said, the United States holds most of the world's agricultural markets.

"To help meet the increase in world demand, the United States is better endowed with resources for agricultural production than any other country," they wrote.

"With only 7 per cent of the world's land mass, it has more than 12 per cent of the cultivated land and nearly 9 per cent of the pastureland."

OF BLOODY COUP

Chile Recovering From Disruptions

SANTIAGO (UPI)—Chile began pulling itself back together Saturday, four days after the bloody coup that left a president dead, installed a military junta government and totally disrupted the life of the nation.

The junta ordered banks and stores to open during an eight-hour lifting of curfew between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.

The military continued mopping up action against die-hard supporters of deposed Marxist President Salvador Allende, who were still sniping throughout the city. Allende died during the fighting last Tuesday. Scattered shooting could be heard Saturday.

The government announced on nationwide radio the summary execution of a sniper in Valparaiso.

It said "extremists" had attacked an army post and police stations. "One of the snipers was captured and executed on the spot," the broadcast said.

The government still had not made any announcement of casualty figures in the coup fighting. Unofficial estimates placed the death toll at 1,000.

Military forces appeared to be in total control throughout the country except for the small pockets of resistance.

Government employees were ordered back to work by Monday or risk losing their jobs. The mines ministry was ordered to work Saturday.

International communications were beginning to be reestablished. Telex was restored to the outside world and communications satellites were beginning to operate.

The country's borders remained closed and no passenger flights were allowed to land at Santiago. There was no indication when international travel would again be permitted.

Chilean clubs were beginning to open. The country's borders remained closed and no passenger flights were allowed to land at Santiago. There was no indication when international travel would again be permitted.

Key Clubbers To Attend District Meet

Thirty-four members of the local Key Club will join over 200 other Key Clubbers at a district conference today in Amarillo at Tascosa High School.

Pampa's club will serve as host club for the conference, which is being conducted in Amarillo because of its central Panhandle location.

Dane Rasmussen of Pampa, lieutenant governor for District Six of the Texas Key Clubs, will preside over the meeting.

Officers of the Pampa chapter who will attend are President Bert Casey, Vice President David Hampton, Secretary Steve Wilson, Treasurer Steve Weatherly, Senior Director Terry Neslage and Junior Director Willis Price.

Key Club sponsor David McDaniel and other members of the Kiwanis Club will drive cars to Amarillo and attend the conference.

The purpose of the district meeting is to familiarize new members of the Key Club with the activities of the organization.

Speakers at the conference will include the governors and lieutenant governors of several Kiwanis Clubs and Key Clubs.

Registration for the meeting will be held between 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. at Tascosa. After attending church as a group, the Key Clubbers will have lunch in the Tascosa cafeteria and then conduct meetings and hold panel discussion in the afternoon.

DONALD R. CURRY ...to introduce guest

Pampan's Son To Return For C-C Luncheon

Donald R. Curry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Curry of Pampa, and his wife Sue will be here for the chamber's membership luncheon Monday in Coronado Inn.

Curry, a member of the Board of Regents of West Texas State University, will introduce Dr. Lloyd Watkins, new president of West Texas State, who will be the speaker at the luncheon.

Curry, an attorney residing in Fort Worth, is a 1965 graduate of West Texas State, where he received his B.S. degree and then earned his L.L.B. degree from the University of Texas in 1968.

Tomorrow's luncheon is open to the public and reservations will be taken at the chamber office up until 10 a.m.

U.S. Is Rich In Physicians, Doctor Says

LUBBOCK — "The United States is one of the world's richest countries in terms of its production and supply of physicians," the president of the Texas Medical Association stated here Saturday.

In remarks presented at the Panhandle District Medical Society annual meeting, Charles B. Dryden, M.D., of Wichita Falls, head of the 11,700 member medical organization, noted that there are 345,000 physicians in the U.S. today. Of that number, 287,000 are engaged in direct patient care, and 198,000 are office based.

Dr. Dryden told the luncheon audience that there have been many significant developments during the past few years in meeting the medical manpower needs in Texas. He mentioned that the number of medical schools in Texas has doubled from three to six in just a few short years, and that Texas schools graduated 476 new doctors this year.

"By 1980," Dr. Dryden said, "we should be awarding diplomas to more than 1,000 doctors a year. This will represent an increase of more than 100 per cent." He also noted that Texas continues to attract physicians from other states. In 1971, Texas licensed more than 1,000 new physicians for the first time. Last year 1,166 new licenses were granted.

Acknowledging that there is a shortage of physicians, the TMA president noted that "one of the most difficult challenges confronting medicine is medical manpower." He said that Texas not only has a need for more doctors but there are also problems related to distribution, and the need for more doctors to render direct medical service to patients.

Factors contributing to the need for more physicians were stated as (1) dynamic population growth, (2) increased demand for medical services, (3) greater access to care through financing by the federal government, and (4) higher utilization of services.

BATTIN' AROUND

Clarification Of Goals Needed In EPA Action

By C.R. BATTEN
The National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 requires, among other things, that an environmental impact statement be included in every recommendation or report on proposals for legislation and other major Federal actions significantly affecting the quality of the human environment.

The statement must include, according to the Act, the predicted impact of the proposed action on the environment; any adverse impact; alternatives to the proposed action; the relationship between local short-term uses of man's environment and long-term productivity; and any irretrievable commitments of resources that would result from the proposed action.

Federal agencies, resource users, environmentalists and others are still trying to determine just when an action significantly affects the quality of the human environment.

When must an impact statement be prepared under the Act, and when is it not required?

New highway construction; dams for hydro-electric power; irrigation and flood control; power lines; location of new power plants; airports; land management proposals on federal lands; and many other activities have come under the purview of the Environmental Policy Act, and environmental statements have been prepared on each of those subjects.

Many statements have been criticized as merely justifying decisions that have already been made by some federal agency. Those charges could well be true simply because no project would ever be proposed if someone did not believe that it would improve the human environment in some way.

Those who proposed the project and began to work to develop it are naturally among those who believe it should be accomplished — they believe that their proposed action will improve the human environment. So it is to be expected that the resultant impact-statement would be favorable to the project.

Whether the impact of an action on the environment is favorable or unfavorable can only be assessed in the light of a decision that has already been made. Only when the ultimate objectives of the management of any land or other property have been selected can any action be assessed as favorable or unfavorable to the environment.

A wilderness advocate believes that any action by man destroys the wilderness. Construction of a road, the harvest of timber, or the construction of campground facilities are adverse impacts on the wilderness environment.

A sightseer or recreationist that depends primarily on his automobile to get him to his favorite outdoor recreation spots believes that a well-built road improves the environment — it makes it possible for him to get where he wants to go.

The campground facilities make it more comfortable for him when he gets there. To him, they are beneficial impacts on the environment.

If the goal of a landowner is to farm a certain piece of land for food or fiber production, then the construction of a highway on that land will certainly be destructive of the human environment.

But for the highway builders, such an impact is beneficial, because it allows faster transportation of more people and goods. While the highway builders will not argue with the general objective of growing food and fiber, they believe that for that particular piece of ground, a highway would be a better use.

Virtually every action by man is made in the belief that it will in some way improve his condition. If his action has some effect on the environment, then he believes that it will improve the human environment in relation to the goals he has set for himself and for his property.

Those who oppose the ultimate goal of any such action will disagree with any assessment of environmental impact, no matter how objective and well-written it may be.

Therefore, it becomes clear that if we are to avoid controversies and court action, we must first clarify our goals and objectives.

Television notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Katharine Hepburn will make her television dramatic debut during the 1973-74 season in a new two-hour film version of Tennessee Williams' first big play, "The Glass Menagerie." She will, of course, play Amanda Wingfield, the aging southern woman who dreams of a happy past and hopes for betterment of a drab present. Sam Waterston, Joanna Miles and Michael Moriarty are the others in the cast.

"Alice Through the Looking Glass" is a 90-minute musical version of the Lewis Carroll classic, "Through the Looking Glass," that NBC will reprise on Nov. 22. Its original broadcast was Nov. 6, 1966.

NBC's new talk program, to be aired from 1 to 2 a.m. Monday through Thursday, will premiere Oct. 2. Tom Snyder is host for this "Tomorrow" show.

Veteran comics Ben Blue and Herbie Faye, whose roots go back to old-time burlesque, are creative consultants on the new "NBC Follies" series, so look for some funny slapstick bits on that program.

1040 U.S. Individual Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. My garage was damaged during a windstorm. I spent $20 taking photographs of the damage in order to determine the amount of my casualty loss. Can I deduct the $20?

A. Yes, if you itemize deductions the cost of photographs, including the purchase of film and developing charges, for the purpose of establishing or computing your casualty loss deduction are deductible as a miscellaneous deduction. Do not include the $20 as part of your casualty loss.

Q. I was just promoted and, as a result, I'm getting a substantial pay increase. I want to make estimated tax payments to avoid one big tax bill next year, but I've already missed the April and June deadlines for paying the first two installments of 1973 estimated income tax. What can I do?

A. You can still file a declaration of estimated income tax — Form 1040-ES — but you must do so by September 17, 1973. Your estimated tax should be paid in equal installments on September 17, 1973, and January 15, 1974. If you file your return and pay the balance due by January 31, 1974, you need not make your final estimated tax payment. The same rules apply to filing amended declarations of estimated tax.

Forms 1040-ES and instructions are available at any IRS office.

Q. Who can represent a taxpayer at an IRS audit?

A. Generally, attorneys, certified public accountants, and individuals enrolled to practice before the Internal Revenue Service may represent a taxpayer at any stage of the IRS examination-appeals process. These three stages are the audit examination, district conference and appellate hearing. The person who prepared your return (and signed it as the preparer), if he is not otherwise eligible to practice before the IRS, may represent you only at the audit examination level. In addition, this representation may encompass only matters concerning the tax liability for the year covered by the return he prepared.

Q. Is it true that a student can be exempt from income tax withholding?

A. Yes. Students and other individuals are exempt from withholding if they did not owe tax last year, expect to owe none in 1973 and have filed a Withholding Exemption Certificate (Form W-4E) with their employers.

However, if tax has already been withheld this year, the taxpayer must file a return next year to have it refunded.

Savers Entitled To It

The "savings" of each individual, and the accumulated savings of many, is one of the bulwarks of capitalism. Savings represent a surplus of value (money, goods, etc.) beyond that which the individual needs to sustain his life.

Methods of saving are as varied as the individuals doing it, but in these days, many Americans put their surplus in a bank or savings and loan association as a "savings account." He chose this way to make an investment with the hope of a return for some purpose of his own still in the future. Since he has no need for it now, he makes his savings available to someone who does.

Out of the accumulated savings of individuals, the lending institution can provide the money needed to build a new factory, buy additional equipment, remodel a plant, finance research, etc. The lender charges the businessman for the use of that money—that charge is called interest.

In order to have money to lend, the lending institution must attract those who do have surplus of value (savings). They do so by offering the prospective saver a return on his savings; this return is also called interest. Since there are many ways in which a person may invest his savings, and many lending institutions competing for those savings, each one offers an interest rate of sufficient amount to attract as many savers as he can.

For years, these rates have been governed by law with the 'Power' That Is Impotent. The judiciary's attempt to fix the price of gasoline is about as questionable as Judge John Sirica's attempt to lay his hands on the Nixon tapes, and for the same reason.

As to the tapes, the question is whether the judiciary has the muscle to enforce a subpoena even if the highest court upholds the legality thereof.

As to gasoline, it is even more obvious that the appeals tribunal that re-instated price controls on auto fuel has no power whatever to keep the service stations open.

We suppose it is a rule of common sense that a reasonable man doesn't undertake to do that which he believes he has no power to accomplish.

Just A Matter Of Taste. In an advisory to food shoppers, the Department of Agriculture pointed out that a six-cent serving of dry beans will provide the same amount of protein as 66 cents worth of porterhouse steak or 67 cents of lamp chops.

porterhouse steak or 67 cents of lamp chops. To which the Norfolk (Va.) Virginian - Pilot replied that a free glass of tap water will quench as much thirst as a 45-cent mug of beer.

BERRY'S WORLD. "It sure makes you appreciate how Sam Snead might feel. Just think — if we was in our cattle rustlin' prime TODAY..."

present ceiling recently lifted. The fact that the majority of banks and savings institutions put the new, and highest possible, rates into effect as soon as possible, is good evidence that the government controlled ceilings are still artificially low. If interest rates were allowed to respond to the law of supply and demand in the free market place, they would probably be higher.

Hopefully, this very thing may soon come about! In a recent news service story datelined Washington, D.C., President Nixon recommended an end to all limitations on the rate of interest which banks and savings and loan associations can pay on savings deposits. In a statement accompanying his proposals, President Nixon said that the present system is outmoded and has "created unnecessarily severe burdens for the business community and the consuming public."

The news item went on to say that the President proposed phasing out interest ceilings over a five year period and that the result of the recommendations, if approved by Congress, "would mean higher interest payments on passbook savings accounts, the kind of savings held by many Americans."

We won't hold our breath until it happens, but it may be that the average American saver can look forward to more return on his savings account—a higher return which might just help some of us keep even in these days of near-galloping inflation.

Experience shows that politicians eventually settle for what they can get. Politically appointed judges are no exception. That being the case, the appeals court that slapped price ceilings back on 165,000 gasoline dealers may find that it has overreached itself. The dealers certainly do not have to continue to operate. If they find that operation will ruin them, they have the alternative of locking their pumps and going home.

The upshot may be that judges who tried to tell private businessmen what price to sell their product for will be walking to the courthouse. Whatever power the judiciary has in a final showdown won't burn in an internal combustion engine.

I see where the power-hungry superbrains of press and politics are working on Vice President Agnew now, with their pontifical pasquinading. If there is any truth in their accusations against Mr. Agnew, they wouldn't need to "leak" the grand jury moves; indictment and political ruin will come properly.

There is considerable pious deployment in the news these days about how sinful it is to tap a telephone or make tape recordings of your conversations unbeknownst to the other party. But my untapped and untaped neighbor says there are worse sins.

Crossroads Report

Dear Editor: I see where the power-hungry superbrains of press and politics are working on Vice President Agnew now, with their pontifical pasquinading.

If there is any truth in their accusations against Mr. Agnew, they wouldn't need to "leak" the grand jury moves; indictment and political ruin will come properly.

So it must be they are slathering the news media with reputation-wrecking muck about the VP now because they know there is no truth in their damnable "reports"; or because they're afraid there isn't.

There is considerable pious deployment in the news these days about how sinful it is to tap a telephone or make tape recordings of your conversations unbeknownst to the other party.

But my untapped and untaped neighbor says there are worse sins.

And he doesn't see why tapping somebody's telephone is considered an unpardonable sin while public honors go to people who steal secret documents and publish them, or take sensitive jobs and blab all they learn about same to the press.

I see where acting politician Ronald Reagan has governed California into an almost unprecedented dilemma.

The state treasury finds itself with $826 million in surplus funds. And to top off this strange situation, Reagan has arm-twisted the legislature into giving the money back to the taxpayers.

Hopefully, this unnatural development will stop any Reagan-for-President movement before he can get sent to Washington to mess up the bureaucratic playhouse there.

Big social push these days is for every kid to go to college and be turned into an executive, a teacher, a politician, or a pious secret-leaker.

Which would leave the social order without anybody to do the tiresome, grubby and mentally demanding jobs like plumbing, auto repair, cooking, etc. These jobs require labor, study, talent and experience, and lack prestige. But when there is nobody to do them, it won't be much fun to be a Ph.D. with a stalled car or a stopped-up john.

I see where it is reported that the gasoline shortage is causing some problems where thousands of new school buses have been ordered into service by power-pose-possessed wiser-than-God judges.

But it is not expected that this gas dearth will be allowed to halt Progress. After all, we're told that when God saw darkness upon the face of the deep He said "Let there be light; and there was light." The judges, therefore, have only to say "Let there be gas," and there will be gas.

I see where the power-punchy pooch-bahs in the Federal Trade Commission are massively distressed about soap and detergent makers may be lying in their advertising.

It is moderately sad, of course when a lady gets suckered on soap, but she gets some good experience at low cost, and even a big box lasts only a few days.

The FTC Don Quixotes, however, have never used their vast power to crack down on false advertising by politicians. And when we buy a lying pitch from one of these, he usually lasts expensively for years and years.

BRUCE BLOSSAT Brazil 'right on' as export nation

By Bruce Blossat

WASHINGTON (NEA) —With the world taking fright over its capacity to sustain itself through vital resources, it's a pleasure to report on the determined opening up of Brazil, one of its great yet hitherto largely untapped storehouses.

The story has many facets. This huge Latin land, a bit bigger than the United States, has immense stocks of iron ore, barely touched. It is presumed to have other extensive mineral reserves, unknown still as to kind and real size.

Manufacturing is growing apace. A new, brief Brookings Institution report devoted fundamentally to the "trading greats," meaning North America, Europe and Japan, made passing reference to Brazil as an example of a nation growing through the building of its exports.

To speed its development, Brazilians are cutting long new swaths of highway through previously "impenetrable" jungles — one even traversing the sprawling Amazon river basin from east to west. But let's dwell here on just a piece of the story. Soybeans. Big in this country now for animal feeds and oils, and a high cash-value crop longer than many Americans realize. In demand elsewhere, too, particularly in Japan, where soybeans spell food and they've depended on us for 90 per cent of their consumption.

When President Nixon for a while slapped export limits on our soybean output, he hit the Japanese where they live. And suddenly Brazil popped into the picture, as Japan let loose the word it's been eyeing that Latin country as a new and possibly, in time, sizable alternative supply source.

It turns out that, though far back, Brazil is already the third largest soybean producer after the U.S. and China. More important, it's hot for expansion in this field. The product grows well in the country's higher, somewhat drier southern regions.

Wheat farmers there, disappointed over recent poor output, are switching to soybeans, despite the fact Brazil right now has to import part of its wheat needs and doesn't want to become too dependent on imports.

Still, providing the pursuit of this new big-seller doesn't get too feverish. Brazilian authorities want to encourage what's happening. This year they estimate they may export $600 million worth of soybeans as they produce perhaps three million tons.

In 1974, they say exports of this product may surpass $1 billion, with production possibly reaching five million tons. If that occurs, it may be the first time in the country's history that coffee slips from its historic perch as Brazil's top export.

This doesn't mean coffee is falling from favor. Demand is stable, and the world market price high. Brazil wants to hold its place in this lucrative field.

Your Health

Which Foods Have Potassium?

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you please tell me what potassium is? My doctor tells me I am low in it and tells me to eat lots of bananas and drink orange juice. What other food is helpful? What does it do to your body?

Dear Reader — Potassium is one of the basic chemical elements. Everything we know is made up of chemical elements. Such as oxygen, hydrogen, carbon, sodium, potassium, chlorine, zinc, lead, gold, and so on. There are a little over 100 elements.

Our entire body is made of combinations of these chemical elements, so are our household furniture, buildings, automobiles, etc. It is this fact that amuses me when someone tells me that something is harmful because it is "a chemical," for example a given ingredient in a food. Everything we know is "a chemical." This is true whether it's part of a plant, part of an animal, distilled water, spring water, purified water, medicine, poison, "organic food," a food additive or anything else you might want to mention.

In the fluid part of the body, the water in the bloodstream and outside of the cells contains a small amount of sodium which is an element and is the same sodium element that we have in ordinary table salt called sodium chloride. We have about the same amount of sodium salt in our body water as exists in sea water. Inside the cell membrane we have relatively little sodium, and, instead, we have potassium which can occur as a salt called potassium chloride. Both sodium and potassium belong to the same group of chemicals and have a number of similar characteristics.

When the body retains too much sodium we tend to retain excess fluid and this can cause edema, swelling and other problems. Many medicines are used to eliminate sodium through the kidney and, with it, eliminate the accumulation of water. Some of these medicines also eliminate potassium, and then we lose potassium from the cells.

In order to maintain good health, one needs a normal amount of potassium inside the cells. These chemicals are necessary for normal function of the cells. The heart muscle won't contract normally, or act normally, if you have a deficiency in potassium. If you have too much potassium the electrical activity of the heart may even be stopped. There is a proper balance of almost everything in the body, and this includes sodium and potassium. Potassium, as a salt, is commonly used as a salt substitute for people who need to avoid sodium.

A deficiency of either sodium or potassium can cause a lot of vague symptoms, including excessive fatigue. A large glass of orange juice three times a day will usually provide about the same amount of potassium as prescribed in most medical conditions. Orange juice is probably the best natural source of potassium and contains considerably more potassium per weight than do bananas and most other fruits. In general, however, the fruits are an excellent source of potassium.

Rearview Mirror

By TEX DEWEESE Editor Of The News

SINCE ONE of the current main topics of conversation is food prices, E.H. Ousley, 606 N. Sumner, thought perhaps a comparison of supermarket prices of today with those back 34 years ago might be of interest to Rearview Mirror readers.

Mr. Ousley said he got the list from Marshall Formby, District Governor of Rotary International who made an official visit to the local Rotary Club recently.

Formby and Ousley are old friends. They were county judge and county clerk, respectively, of Dickens County, Texas, back in the 30s.

Formby, now a resident of Plainview, made it a point to contact Ousley on the Rotary governor's recent visit here. They had not seen each other for 30 years.

It was during the course of their reunion chat that Formby produced a reproduction of a grocery advertisement that ran in the weekly Texas Spur in July of 1939.

Here are the prices on some of the specials at Hyatt's Food Market in Spur 34 years ago:

Bananas, 1-cent each; tomatoes, 3 lbs. for 10 cents; sugar, 25 lbs. for 4.25; Folgers Coffee, 25 cents a lb.; lard, 8 lbs. for 79 cents; candy, 3 bars for 10 cents.

Cookies, 19 cents per lb.; flour, 48 lbs. for $1.25; cigars, $1.50 per carton; veal cutlets, 45 cents per lb.; Armour Star sliced bacon, 25 cents per lb.; bologna, 10 cents per lb. and cheese, 16 cents per lb.

Steaks and roasts were not listed in the ad but as we recall the going price back then was about 25 cents a pound for choice beef cuts.

In the name of nostalgia, why not check the list with prices on the same articles in the supermarket today. Formby, who discussed the prices with Rotarians in his Pampa talk, reminded them that wheat at that time was about 60 cents a bushel, cotton about 7 or 8 cents a pound and wages were low.

"So," he said, "maybe things are not so bad now after all."

NOW, FOR a complaint registered by a couple of citizens during the week just ended.

Both wanted to know why county, city and school governing bodies meet in the daytime when it isn't easy for taxpayers to leave work and attend.

One man said he thought the school board, especially, should meet at a time when it is convenient for the public to be present.

The school board just recently changed its meeting time from 7 p.m. to 9:30 a.m.

City and county commission meetings have been held in the forenoon for a long, long time. Not many persons attend them.

School board members draw no salary. City commissioners are paid $10 a meeting. Perhaps it is understandable they might not like to give up their evenings to conduct business.

County commissioners are well paid for their services. They receive a salary of $650 a month plus $100 travel expense. So maybe there is some argument for asking them to give up some of their nighttime hours to conduct county business.

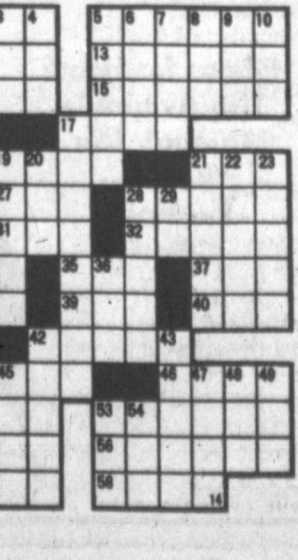

To meet day or night has been

The veterans and the future

Are there Vietnam casualties still to come?

By Ralph Novak

NEW YORK — (NEA) — With American participation in the fighting in Southeast Asia apparently ended, we are left with, among other things, about three million Vietnam veterans.

And they present a problem: How has the war affected them and their future role in American society?

Will their experience make them activists seeking to improve their communities, more or less like the four veterans in a fanciful new movie, "Gordon's War," who use their knowledge of guerrilla warfare to quadruple-handedly destroy the narcotics traffic of Harlem?

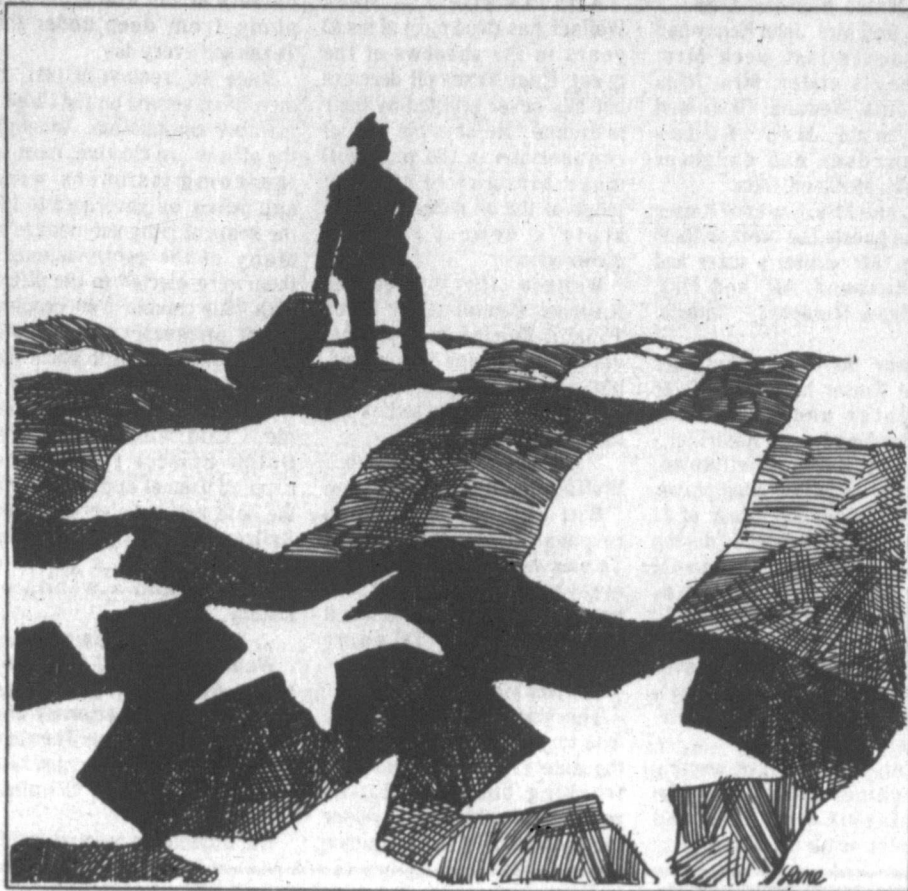

Will their experience leave them bitter and valueless potential revolutionaries, as psychiatrist Robert Jay Lifton suggests might happen in his recent book, "Home from the War"?

Will their experience be important to them only as individuals and will they have no more serious impact on society than did the apolitical veterans of World War II and Korea, as Veterans Administration officials argue?

The questions are muddled by the same political and moral overtones that confuse most discussions about Vietnam. How one defines such words as heroism, atrocity, victory, cowardice and guilt depends to a large extent on how you feel about the war, which makes it difficult to find anyone detached enough to make unprejudiced judgments even about veterans.

And the only veterans who have had a tangible effect so far have been those whose experience has left them opposed to the war, most notably and publicly the Vietnam Veterans against the War, the do-gooder vigilantism of "Gordon's War" having thus far been confined to fiction.

Lifton, a Yale University psychiatry professor, admits that he opposed the war and that most of the veterans he talked to in researching his book were antiwar veterans who were already motivated enough to seek out "rap sessions" to explore their own usually-troubled feelings about their participation in the war. And he also concedes that most of them were white and relatively well educated.

But he says: "While they are not typical, they do represent a useful model for men who got into a process they saw as tainted."

"Any veteran in a combat situation develops enormous reservoirs of rage that can lead to violence if they are unfocused and unmanageable and I have seen some tendencies like that among the men I've been in contact with."

"These men have learned to use weapons and that could present serious consequences to society, from the left, where the veterans now oppose the government and the military, or from the right, where veterans have joined chauvinistic groups or law enforcement agencies that provide an outlet for violent feelings."

Lifton also argues that most Vietnam combat veterans feel guilt about fighting in the war, which may turn out to be traumatic for the country.

"The real American casualties of the Vietnam War," he says, "at least in numbers, may well be those who see no psychiatrists and bear no psychiatric or medical labels, yet are nonetheless plagued and diminished by numbed guilt they can neither animate nor even recognize. Even a society whose leaders are bent on numbing cannot hide these casualties; we shall hear of more and more of them bringing their bitter guilt and rage, which they are unable to reorder, back to a society already suffused with dislocation and bitterness."

Lifton is not the only one to be concerned about the emotional problems of Vietnam veterans. Dr. Chair Shatan, a psychiatrist and New York University professor, says that "significant numbers of Vietnam veterans, especially those with extensive combat experience, are deeply troubled emotionally" by what he calls "the post-Vietnam syndrome."

And a former Army psychiatrist, Dr. A. Carl Segal, told the American Psychiatric Assn. last year that at Fort Benning, Ga., "increasing numbers of combat veterans were being seen by the post's mental health staff for rage reactions, anxiety, depression and psychophysiological symptoms. These often appeared to be associated with depressed and repressed guilt about their combat roles."

Pentagon statistics, however, say that there were fewer victims of "combat fatigue" and "shell shock" in Vietnam than there were in any previous war. And Dr. Eugene Caffey, the Veterans Administration's associate director for psychiatry, said in an interview that his agency has seen no signs of widespread mental problems among Southeast Asia vets.

"Some veterans of this armed conflict may stay away from the VA because they want to avoid the 'Establishment' or are worried about getting in drug problems, so we don't see everybody who is upset," Caffey says. "But we do see a good chunk of them and I think there is a real question whether the aftermath of this war is any different from the aftermath of any other war."

"You have to remember this was the most carefully selected and trained group of people who have ever fought in a war and I believe that those with mental problems constitute only a very small part of the millions who passed through Vietnam."

All of which adds up to a not surprising conclusion: like so many other aspects of the Vietnam war, its effects on the men who fought it are still undetermined and likely to be a source of controversy for a long time.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — My father, the sage, turned 90 this week and when I called to extend felicitations he sounded somewhat dispirited.

I asked my father if anything was wrong and he said no, not really; it was just that he had been looking forward to being 90 for a long time, but now that he had finally reached that age it really wasn't all that great.

He said that, frankly, he couldn't see that being 90 was much better than being 80. Or, for that matter, 75.

I asked my father in what way being 90 failed to live up to his expectations.

My father said the biggest letdown was that he had always heard that when you lived as long as he had that truthseekers would come from far and near to sit at your feet and drink from the font of wisdom that 90 years had filled to overflowing.

Crowds Disappointingly Small
My father said he had spent practically the entire day uttering verities, but the crowds that gathered to hang upon his every word were disappointingly small.

I asked my father how many truth-seekers came to venerate him and he said probably not more than half a dozen, if you didn't count kinfolks.

I told my father that my three minutes were almost up but it wasn't every day a person celebrated his 90th birthday so if he had some pearl of wisdom he wanted to fall from his lips he should go ahead and let fly.

My father said that uttering verities all day had taken a lot out of him and he was too tired to articulate the distilled essence of life at such a late hour.

But he said that since we were on night rates he would try to muster up one more verity in honor of the occasion.

Government Finances Study
My father said he had been reading in the papers where the government up there in Washington had financed a study by some of the nation's foremost tricycle engineers.

He said the engineers were trying to determine why there were so many tricycle accidents, with tricycle-related injuries now running at the rate of about 100,000 a year, give or take a couple of skinned knees.

My father said he had been giving this matter a lot of thought and he had concluded that most tricycle accidents occur because a tricycle only has three wheels.

My father said that if the government could figure out a way to build a four-wheeled tricycle, or better yet, a five-wheeler, the safety factor would improve immeasurably.

I thanked my father for sharing his gift of perspicacity and asked how I might acquire a similar grasp of life's true meaning.

My father said that type of enlightenment only comes with age.

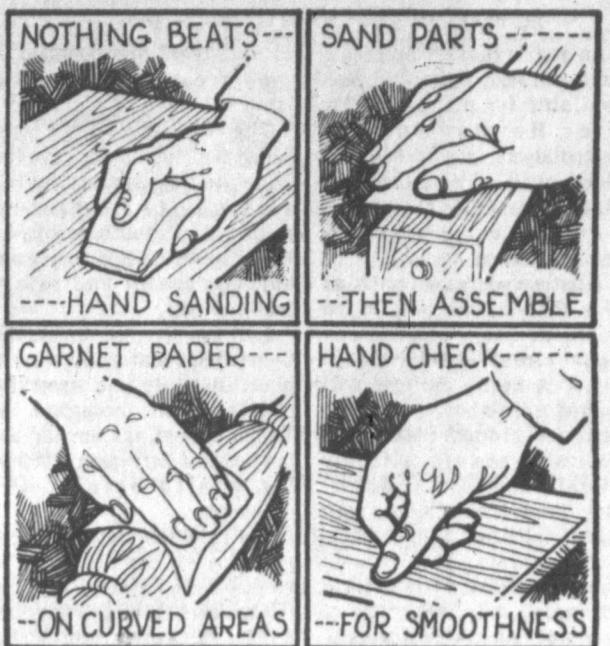

Auto defects
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — More than 64 per cent of 1.5 million motor vehicles checked in a random inspection program last year had mechanical defects, the California Highway Patrol reports.

Faulty lights accounted for 57 per cent of the defects found, while bad tires and exhaust systems each represented about 9 per cent of the defects.

Sanding O.K. Calls for Care

By MR. FIX

There's many a home or apartment that's been furnished with secondhand furniture or unfinished furniture that was turned into a finished piece by the owner.

Whether it's an old piece of furniture that has been stripped clean of the old finish or a brand new, smooth but unfinished piece of furniture, it still needs sanding before you apply anything to it.

The way you use sandpaper determines how successful that finishing or refinishing project turns out. This is especially true with the clear finishes—varnish, shellac, lacquer.

In fact, any of them will gleam on a properly sanded surface. But you can buy the most expensive finish available and if your sanding has been careless it will magnify every flaw, scratch and rough spot. Any rough spot will immediately come through darker than a smooth surface.

Power sanding has become popular, but power sanders can be tricky and if not used properly can ruin a job. Nothing really beats hand-sanding. When you sand by hand you are always in control of the job. It isn't going to get away from you.

The sanding disc mounted on an electric drill is out so far as fine furniture finishes are concerned. The circular motion of the sanding cuts across the grain and the first rule in sanding is to sand with the grain.

The power sander that sands in a straight line is the only thing to use, but it needs a light touch. Keep in one place too long or apply too much pressure and it will take off more than necessary.

In hand-sanding, wrap a piece of sandpaper partially around a block of wood. Make a block that will fix the hand comfortably.

The general rule is to start with the coarsest sandpaper and work up to the fine. Actually, on most projects you will start with a medium grit.

If you are building the furniture or assembling the unfinished furniture, sand individual wood parts before assembling. If you wait until you have put everything together you may find some spots too hard to reach.

Garnet or aluminum oxide paper is generally used. Grades may vary with some manufacturers but general O-grade is medium, 1 or 2 coarse or very coarse, 3/0 is a fine paper.

Remember to stay with the grain. If you find yourself sanding an area where two pieces come together but with the grain running differently in each, then carefully sand so that you don't cross over onto the other piece.

When you have carved or curved areas to sand, use garnet paper. This is flexible but strong and can bend around curves and it won't crack.

Stop occasionally and check for smoothness with your hand. Touch is the best test. If you feel any roughness, keep sanding.

POW Information Hoped From Pact

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — American authorities hope the new peace protocol in Laos will lead to more information on the estimated 350 American fliers listed as missing in Laos, an embassy spokesman said.

The number of missing Americans is constantly fluctuating, the spokesman said, as former POWs are debriefed and more information is gathered on the fate of the missing men.

Under terms of the Laos peace agreement, all prisoners of war of all nationalities will be released within 60 days after the new coalition government is officially formed, probably sometime early next month.

American authorities have been in touch with the Communist-led Pathet Lao on the subject of Americans missing in their territory. The authorities said they hope that once the Pathet Lao become part of the official Laotian government, more information will be forthcoming.

At least one American pilot is known to be held by the Pathet Lao. He is Emmet Kay, a private pilot whose plane was forced down last spring. He is currently being held in Sam Neua, the Pathet Lao capital, but he is receiving good treatment and being allowed to write and receive letters from his wife, authorities here said.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

An individual with chronic kidney disease has two means available for maintaining his life. He may undergo hemodialysis, that is, have his blood purified by means of a dialysis machine, or he can undergo a kidney transplantation.

A patient who requires the use of a dialysis machine in the hospital can expect to pay approximately $12,000 each year. A home dialysis unit would cost about $6,000 per year. A kidney transplant operation can cost a family literally thousands of dollars. Few people can withstand such staggering financial burdens.

Recognizing that chronic kidney disease patients face financial crises for lack of personal financial resources to pay for the expensive equipment and care necessary for their survival, the 63rd Legislature passed SB 386 (VCS 4477-20), The Texas Kidney Health Care Act.

As a result of that act, the Division of Kidney Health Care has been created within the Texas State Department of Health to provide the care and treatment of chronic kidney disease.

The program provided by the act is designed to bring to bear all possible resources of the State and to coordinate the efforts of the state in the matter of renal disease.

Most important, however, is that the act provides for treatment services to chronic kidney disease patients for a fraction of the cost such patients would normally have to pay. The Texas Kidney Health Care Act has given a new lease on life to some 500 Texans afflicted by chronic kidney disease each year.

This major health program is only one of the health related bills approved by the 63rd Legislature.

Another Health Department Division engendered by a legislative measure is that of Coordinated Emergency Medical Services. This division is responsible for developing a state plan for the efficient delivery of emergency medical services to high risk infants during the neonatal period, and to persons who are injured or suffering from acute illness.

Toward this end, the state will be divided into emergency medical service delivery areas, with at least one hospital in each area designated as a "trauma center."

The Texas Youth Camp Safety and Health Act gave the State Health Department the authority to license and regulate all youth camps in Texas to insure that they meet certain health and safety requirements.

Still another bill directs the Central Education Agency to plan, institute and supervise pilot programs throughout the Texas school system for the purpose of screening children for health defects and problems.

While the Health Department gained a few new divisions and responsibilities, it also relinquished an established one, as HB 739 designated the Air Control Board as an independent state agency.

Other health legislation included a bill authorizing the issuance of bonds by cities to purchase air control facilities; a bill relating to the reporting and control of venereal diseases; and a bill relating to certain reports, permits, and duties required by the State Health Department regarding death.

Still other legislation resulted in the creation of some 10 new hospital districts in Texas.

Environmental related aspects of health are the focus of several interim Senate committees created before the end of the legislative session to investigate the need for additional health legislation in the 1975 session.

One committee was created to study all aspects of solid waste, while another will seek to determine the adequacy and enforcement of environmental laws.

The House Environmental Affairs subcommittee on pollution control was directed to study the effectiveness of air and water pollution control efforts, while still another committee will examine ways in which state agencies can improve their programs of maintaining the environment.

One again, the Texas Legislature has demonstrated its concern for health of Texas citizens.

When Paganini died in 1840, he left his famous Guarneri violin to the city of Genoa, Italy, where it is now kept in a museum.

New Railroad Commissioner Believes He'll Be Effective

AUSTIN (UPI) — Mack Wallace has lived most of his 43 years in the shadows of the great East Texas oil derricks but has never profited by their presence. He says his lack of connections in the past will make him a more effective judge of the oil industry as the state's newest railroad commissioner.

Wallace officially replaces Railroad Commissioner Byron Tunnell Sunday in a job that very few Texans understand, but will be hearing more and more of as the nation settles into its energy crisis.

"It's not a glamour job," Wallace said in an interview. "But it's a tremendous responsibility to the people of Texas because it affects everybody. It has a national impact and, whether we like it or not, there is some international impact too."

Oil Main Business
The Railroad Commission, true to its name, does regulate the state's railroad industry and trucking business. But its primary function is to oversee the production of the 2.5 million barrels of oil which drillers pump from deep under the Texas soil every day.

Since its creation in 1891, 25 men have served on the three-member commission. Although the offices are elective, most of the commissioners were appointed by governors to fill the seats of resigned members. Many of the commissioners then were elected to the office with little trouble in succeeding years primarily because the public knows so little about the commission.

"Texas history fascinates me," said Wallace, who Gov. Dolph Briscoe appointed to succeed Tunnell and serve until the next general election. "The Railroad Commission is a field all by itself. It's got five divisions and a wealth of history."

Was District Attorney
Wallace practiced law in his native Athens for 20 years and served as county attorney and later district attorney. Then last January Briscoe appointed him to head the state's Criminal Justice Council. His time in the courtroom left him opportunity to invest his earnings elsewhere, despite Athens' close proximity to the super rich east Texas oil field. Wallace said he knows little of the two commissioners he will serve with — chairman Jim C. Langdon and Commissioner Ben Ramsey. Likewise, he has spent much time since Briscoe appointed him reading up on the commission's functions.

Included in his reading diet is a large dosage of the energy crisis.

Pampans will be asked to make donations for the Multiple Sclerosis house-to-house fund raising campaign set for Monday, Sept. 17, from 6 to 8 p.m.

Funds collected will go toward research, patient services, rehabilitation manuals for MS sufferers and other local chapter services. MS is a chronic, progressive disease of the central nervous system and usually strikes young people between the ages of 20-40 years.

Often, too, they are young parents, many of the men are just beginning to achieve success in their chosen field or profession. Many of the women, young housewives and mothers, are deprived of the feeling of fulfillment that comes from running a home.

MS has been called the greatcrippler of young adults. It is usually progressive, proceeding in a series of unpredictable attacks. Each attack usually causes further disability, although this is not always the case. A number of patients may suffer mild and fleeting symptoms and enjoy long periods in which there is an absence of the symptoms.

The written story of MS really began in 1822 when a young English Nobleman, Sir Ausustus D' Este, began noting in his diary unmistakable evidence that he was a victim of the disease known as Multiple Sclerosis.

Today, a century after it was recognized as a distinct medical entity, MS remains a destructive disease with an unknown cause, an unexplained geographic distribution, an unpredictable course, an undiscovered cure and without a simple laboratory test to confirm its diagnosis.

A sudden breakthrough is a hopeful possibility, but that goal is not apt to be reached momentarily, despite significant developments.

Continued research must be done to provide help to MS patients and their families. This can be done with the aid received from contributions.

THE BRIDE

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an empress styled wedding gown of white satin, encrusted with seed pearls and re-embroidered lace. A high shaped neckline of scalloped lace framed the face, and pleated belled sleeves enhanced by wide cuffs formed points over the wrists. A detachable train, etched in matching re-embroidered lace, complemented the gown design. Her cathedral length veil of imported tulle, bordered with medallion lace, fell from a coil of white rose petals and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of gardenia with a cascade of stephanotis.

All bridal attendants wore chiffon over peau de soie in a rainbow of colors, open blue, hot pink, lime, yellow, powder, cherry and lilac. All gowns were fashioned with an empire bodice, full puffed sleeves, scoop necklines and tear drop backs, with double chiffon ruffles cascading from a large bow forming a short train. They carried hand bouquets of muted colored carnations.

Brock Hoffman was ringbearer and Angie Devers was flowergirl. Joe Curtis lighted the candles.

Serving as best man was Clyde Elrod, Tucson. Groomsmen were Jack George, Tucson, George Benson Cree III, Dallas, Raymond Edward Reid II, Denver, Harold Adair Cree, Flagstaff, and Richard Eugene Cree, Dallas.

MOTHERS

The bride's mother wore a chiffon gown embroidered in gold metallic styled with a mandarin draped neckline, with two full panels falling softly from the shoulders. The high rise bodice, fell to a full circle skirt. The bridegroom's mother wore a long, olive green dress with silver thread, complemented with a matching hat and white orchid corsage.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Pampa Country Club. The cake, in pastel colors, designed around a fountain, was served from a table centered with a five-tiered candelabrum holding pink roses. Miss Wendy Hills served the cake and Miss Diane Bicknell poured punch. Miss Carrie Hoover registered guests. Other members of the houseparty were Miss Stephanie Imel and Mrs. W.R. McKean.

For the Caribbean Cruise, the bride traveled in an ensemble of taupe colored, faille jacket dress with topaz encrusted buttons, a scoop neckline and a wide self belt.

The couple will reside in Southeastern United States.

Election boosts price of house SYDNEY (UPI) — Gough Whitlam's election as Prime Minister of Australia put an extra $12,000 onto the value of his house at Cabramatta, 13 miles west of Sydney.

The house had a normal market price of $36,000. But an estate agent negotiating for sale of the house said the fact that it belonged to a Prime Minister sent the price up to around $48,000. The Prime Minister moved to the capital, Canberra, after his election.

McPheeters-Britten Vows Are Repeated Saturday

MRS. MAX ALLEN BRITTEN
...nee Miss Christie Lee McPheeters

Sacred Heart Catholic Church of White Deer was the setting Saturday, Sept. 15, at 7:30 p.m. for the exchange of nuptial vows by Miss Christie Lee McPheeters and Max Allen Britten, both of White Deer.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick E. McPheeters, Blue Springs, Mo., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Britten, White Deer.

THE CEREMONY
The Rev. James Gurzynski, pastor, officiated for the double ring ceremony before a background arch decorated with a daisy arrangement and two candelabra holding 14 yellow tapers. Pews were marked with white doves and yellow streamers.

Shelie Timmons, organist, accompanied Betty Garcia as she sang, "We've Only Just Begun," and "Precious And Few."

THE BRIDE
The bride, presented in marriage by her father, with the "her mother and I" avowal, wore a formal gown of white flocked lace over bridal taffeta styled with billowing sleeves and ending with wide cuffs fastened with tiny covered buttons. The scoop neckline was accented with a white lace ruffle, and the empire waistline was enhanced by yellow appliques of small daisies. The skirt was complemented with a wide ruffle at the hemline. Her floor-length veil of bridal illusion bordered with lace, fell from a lace bandeau.

ATTENDANTS
Sharon Everson, Wichita Falls, was matron of honor, and maid of honor was Debbie Hughes, Shidler, Okla. Cindy Britten, sister of the bridegroom, White Deer, was bridesmaid. All attendants wore yellow floor-length gowns styled with empire waistlines accented with daisy trim and matching garden hats. They carried nosegays of miniature carnations and daisies.

Eric Ritter was ringbearer and Shannon Paul was flower girl.

Gary Limbaugh, Lubbock, served as best man, and groomsmen were Nicky Britten, brother of the bridegroom, Amarillo, and Danny Sandlin, White Deer. Serving as ushers were Eddie McPheeters, brother of the bride, Blue Springs, Mo., and Michael Van Hoecke, Overland Park, Kan.

RECEPTION
Parish Hall of the church was the setting for the reception. The serving table was covered with a yellow cloth overlaid with white net and centered with the bridal bouquets. Yellow bows decorated the corners of the table.

The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated in yellow and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

Babbie Jean Brown, Amarillo, assisted at the punch service and Mrs. George Baxter, Borger, served cake. Registering guests was Tricia McPheeters, Blue Springs, Mo.

The bride traveled in a yellow street-length dress trimmed in daisies and lifted the daisy corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will make their home at 411 Horn, White Deer.

AFFILIATIONS
The bride is a junior at White Deer High School and the bridegroom is a 1973 graduate of WDHS and is employed by Farmers Elevator, Kingsmill, Tex.

Childless Families

COLLEGE STATION — Although not every family wants children, for others "something may be missing" without them, one survey indicates.

Childless wives in one research group were asked to cite advantages in not having children.

"More than a third could think of no advantage at all," according to Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Many childless wives who feel frustrated tend to have difficulty trying to rationalize their fate.

"On the other hand, some felt that advantages of not having children are parallel to genuine disadvantages in having them," the specialist pointed out.

"Most childless wives reported they are quite convinced children would be well worth any disadvantages involved," she continued.

"In the survey, couples without children indicated several things were missing" — they cited companionship as the primary factor.

"Most parents spend the bulk of married life with their children.

"Typically, only two years elapse between the wedding ceremony and the birth of the first child. Later comes launching — and 14 years or so of "empty nest" living.

"Between these two stages parents spend about 25 years living with children — and childless couples spend about 41 years without them," the specialist explained.

"Those couples who can't have children for biological reasons mention a special loneliness," she said, quoting the survey.

In addition to companionship, couples with children said they feel children give life purpose.

"They provide something to work for, plan for and look forward to — they keep you going," couples asserted.

"Some wives suggested their lives revolve around their children. Because most married women spend more time in a homemaker-mother role, homemakers without children often feel their role isn't challenging enough," the specialist explained.

The survey quoted other homemakers who said childbearing contributed to their own maturity, helping them "settle down, become more responsible, more understanding and wiser."

Mothers felt that children made them "less self-centered and more considerate."

These mothers stressed feelings of "pride and accomplishment."

A few words about lip lines ... If you have a heavy mouth, don't try to change the shape too much. Instead, strike a compromise. SUNDAY, SEPT. 16
Your birthday today: Opens a personally favorable year while associates and others nearby face an uphill scramble. Your increasing serenity, gained by meditation, makes the difference. Material concerns are superceded in your life plan by spiritual considerations. Today's natives are talented at putting together creative ideas to instruct and entertain, but may not choose to work at it consistently.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Be up and about very early; attend to your normal Sunday obligations quietly, then make it a day of genuine relaxation, rest. Health care is important now.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Your role today is that of counselor—encourage all to let go recent tensions, partisan debates, simply to relax and give themselves a chance to recuperate.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: The less you do to announce your moves ahead of time, the better. You may find reasons for changing plans; in their place, opportunity for spur-of-the-moment enjoyments.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Seek open change and variety; fix up your home a bit. Creative ventures of single-handed sorts work out. Group activities falter as people lose enthusiasm for repetitious cycle.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Fill your leisure moments with definite planning, always on the hopeful side. Discuss what may come, what you and your own people want to do in preparation.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: First, give yourself a break; forgive yourself for being as human as the next person; then turn outward and accept others as they are. Give everybody a clean slate.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Progressive adjustments and changes are featured, can be both instructive and constructive. Budgets may also be revised. Romance turns up in the most subtle ways.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Attend your normal Sunday customs with grace and good humor. Enjoy some activity which interests you deeply. You have opportunity for improving serious relationships.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: There is a premium on getting your plans definitely set before life becomes overly complex. A brief pause for prayer possibly brings with it a flash of intuition.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Wear your finest smile and make the most of today's diverse opportunities. Pursue social, emotional goals rather than business. Shop-talk is strictly unproductive.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Make this a quiet Sunday of personal forgiveness and reconciliation. Do whatever you must do with a minimum of comment. Concentrate on hobbies that are truly mind-relaxing.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: It is just as well there's less urgency about the affairs of daily living this Sunday. Do what you can to make it peaceful, both for yourself and all around you.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

MONDAY, SEPT. 17

Your birthday today: Finds you busy in search of a better life style amid erratic external circumstances. The first three-quarters of your year include one experiment after another, with no particular sequence or continuity of subject. Prayer brings you the composure to enjoy all the changes. Then you find the path and you are on your way. Today's natives have a faculty for assembling diverse ideas and facts into a coherent whole.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Neglected things and people get in the way most of the day, and it's a puzzle how to get your work week off to a reasonable start. Later hours call for a switch of tactics.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Spend the morning assembling your information and checking it out. Measurements, inventory, and the like turn up surprises. By afternoon you'll be ready to take action.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Don't let early, humdrum routines lead to ill-humor. Your energy rises, finally, near the end of the day. Target for financial improvement: six months hence.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Just enough complication exists to make you realize the worth of what you have—hopefully in time to hang on to it all. Travel is favored, likewise fresh contacts.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: On the surface, things appear to go along well all day. Let them do so while you placidly search for ways of making them run even better. By evening you can do some changing.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: The promise of the morning may turn out to be premature, may yet be valid if you will drift with the situation and work to improve it rather than complain and criticize.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Since you haven't the full picture most of the day, why not wait a bit before stepping in to do anything to change it? By evening, you have emerged into an easier phase, with a clear view.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You suffer from impatience, then a rush of energy which is misdirected for a few hours. By the time you get around to analyzing the situation, a great deal must be done to correct the trend.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: You begin a three-day campaign to get past some obstacle. Success is achieved in accord with the determination you bring to the task. Don't involve loved ones.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: General social movement is favored. Serious business is difficult, subject to second thoughts if pressed. Evening may find you in a dilemma; too many things to do.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Stick to routines; get something done despite a veritable circus of distractions. Being earnest may seem to other people as bossiness on your part. Take it easy!

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: This is not the day to go plunging into new programs, large projects. Decisions made on the spur of the moment set up future games you'd be just as well off missing.

Fashion Parade Highlights ABWA Fall Friendship Tea

The Pampa Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association held their Fall Hand of Friendship Enrollment Tea recently in the Hospitality Room of Citizens Bank.

The executive officers were introduced and other members and guests were welcomed by Mrs. Homer McNeil, president.

Mrs. Don Elledge presided at the punch bowl, and Mrs. David McNair assisted at the coffee service.

Mrs. John King, tea chairman, introduced Heidi Allen, who sang "He Touched Me" accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Gene Allen, on the accordion.

The program, Preview 25, ABWA's Fashion Parade, was narrated by Mrs. Ted Mastin. The Presentation of models gave highlights of the American Business Women's educational program.

First, a traveling model, Mrs. J.W. Jennings, attired in casual dress carrying an overnight bag ready to go on vacation while the narrator explained the Group Accident Policy.

The Graduate, Miss Karen McNair displayed the eligibility for a young woman to receive an ABWA Scholarship, especially those who deserve the opportunity for higher education.

Depicting Milady at work, Mrs. E.E. Willis, attired in "office garb" displayed the major aims and purposes of the organization that are devoted to keeping business women up to date on business techniques.

Mrs. James Quarry, her ensemble providing the perfect background for a member joining the chapter, displayed the membership card, ABWA pin, and Inner Circle ribbon.

Mrs. Don Elledge modeled an appropriate dress to wear at the Boss Night Banquet indicating that one of the organization's purposes is improving employer-employee relations.

Mrs. David McNair wearing a long costume for relaxing after a busy day in the office was ready to enjoy reading the official magazine "Women in Business."

Next, the vacation girl, Mrs. John Locke, attired in attractive vacation pantsuit knowing that at certain well-known resorts from coast to coast, discounts are available to members bearing their current membership cards, and a member may take a guest for the same discount price.

Mrs. Elmo Hudgins, properly attired in an after-five pink dinner ensemble was prepared for "dinner out" and the local chapter monthly meeting, where she learned about other occupations from vocational talks by chapter members. She will enjoy the evening and increase her knowledge and understanding of the business world.

There was "personality" in the pantsuit ensemble modeled by Mrs. Ken Plotner. The suit and her personality demonstrated perfection and poise in a business woman.

For a break in her busy year, Mrs. Lloyd Summers packed her bags and was prepared to attend a National Convention or perhaps a Regional Meeting, either an exciting adventure that can happen to any member of ABWA.

The History of ABWA was told by Mrs. Fred Glick.

Miss Heidi Allen concluded the program by singing "Sheltered in the Arms of God," and "Release Me."

Others guests attending were Mrs. Gene Allen, Miss Karen McNair, Penny Summers, Stacy Duenkel and Jack McNeil, who took photographs for the chapter scrapbook.

Guest in picture eligible for membership: Mrs. DeWayne Furrh, Linda Clark, Ethel Seawright and Glynda Schickevanz.

Membership Drive For Austin PTA

PTA membership enrollment was held recently at the Back-to-School night sponsored by the Stephen F. Austin PTA. Parents were invited to visit their child's room, learn about the curriculum and methods being taught, and to become acquainted with school personnel. Memberships to the PTA were available in each room.

A new volunteer program, sponsored by Austin PTA, was explained to the parents. It is hoped that this program will bring together children who need help and volunteers who have time, energy, and compassion to give. Volunteers will work only where their services have been requested by school personnel.

Abby's anniversary tribute to her husband

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I shall never forget hearing you speak before the Independent Life Insurance Company's convention in New Orleans. When you read that beautiful tribute to your husband, which you published in your column on your 25th wedding anniversary, we ladies and gentlemen in your audience counted our blessings as you counted yours. After your talk, I asked you how I could get a copy of that tribute, and you told me to write to you and you'd send it to me.

Instead of doing that, I'm asking you to please print it in your column again, so all your readers can read it, and have a copy, too. We loved you!

JEANNE GREGORY, JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

DEAR JEANNE: Flattery will get you everywhere. Here it is:

"Today is a very special day for me. It's my 25th wedding anniversary, and I have this to say: I had a mother and father who really loved each other, so I know what love is.

I have worked hard to see two teen-agers safely thru their traumatic teens, so I know what satisfaction is.

I have prayed. And my prayers have been answered, so I know what faith is.

I have had by my side, the kindest, gentlest, most considerate human being I've ever known, so I know what happiness is.

And because I've known all these things... I know what wealth is."

MRS. MORTON PHILLIPS

DEAR ABBY: My mother in law, who is a widow, has two children, my husband and his sister. Mom travels a lot, and she always brings home souvenirs for my sister in law and me.

Here's the problem: Mom always gives my sister in law and me identical gifts, and consequently my home is full of the same objects as my sister in law's.

Mom is going on another trip soon, and I know she'll be shopping for gifts for us, and I hate the thought of getting another one of those "twin gifts."

Should I drop a hint before Mom leaves and hope she catches on? Or should I be quiet, and pretend I'm pleased when she gives me and my sister in law identical gifts again?

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: The poor mother in law just can't win. In order to show no favoritism between her daughter and her daughter in law she buys you identical gifts, and what does she get? Complaints! Don't "hint" for something "different," because no matter what you get, you'll probably think your sister in law's is better.

DEAR ABBY: My 16-year-old son got his 15-year-old girl friend pregnant. My son and the girl's parents want me to give my consent for these two kids to marry. I just can't do it because I would feel like I was ruining three lives.

The kids are nowhere near mature enough for marriage, neither are they financially able to care for themselves, let alone a baby.

Do you know of anyone I can get to talk to the girl's parents? Abortion or adoption would be much better for everybody. Please help me.

CAN'T SLEEP NIGHTS

DEAR CAN'T: Perhaps your clergyman can talk to the girl's parents. Your local Planned Parenthood also offers free counseling service. They will NOT try to persuade anyone who does not want an abortion to have one. They simply counsel, and will guide them in adoption procedures if that is their choice. Good luck.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Lila mentions that one verse in the usual church hymn is treated like the famous "Ugly Duckling." Notice how people have an urge to add their own personality "trademark" to the superb compositions of the diligent creative geniuses!

CASE Y-518: Lila S., aged 18, is a college coed.
"Dr. Crane," she began, "I am especially interested in music."
"And in that connection, I often wonder about the song leaders in Sunday School."
"For example, they will select a hymn with 4 stanzas."
"But then they ask the congregation to sing only verses 1, 2 and 4."

Red Cross News

We had 20 members present and one guest at our Red Cross board meeting Tuesday, Sept. 11. Rev. George Warren gave the invocation and reports were given by the standing committees.
J.D. Ray, First Aid chairman, announced Ray Fisher was teaching an advanced First Aid class to the firemen at the Central Fire Station. He also announced there would be a multimedia First Aid class Sept. 22 in the City Club Room, City Hall from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

There is no charge and persons expecting to take the class should call the Red Cross office.

Mrs. Jessie Newberry, nursing chairman, announced Mrs. Aloise Martin, R.N. at White Deer, had received her home nursing card to teach in the White Deer schools. Mrs. Martin is a Red Cross nurse.

Jack Chisum, water safety chairman, told of the summer water safety program and complimented Mrs. Carter, W.S.I. on her work with the program at the City Pool. Fourteen classes in beginner swimming with 106 beginner certificates were issued; 14 classes in advanced beginner swimming were taught with 102 receiving certificates; six classes in intermediates were taught with 38 passing the course; six classes in swimmers with 16 receiving certificates; two classes in junior and two classes in senior lifesaving were given with a total of 32 passing.

During the new business, it was announced that the vice president, James Dalrymple, was moving to Austin, so the board elected Wayne Wilson to serve as vice president this year.

The program was given by Keeshan Tackrar on the International Red Cross. Keeshan is a native of Africa. When he and his family had to leave their country, the Red Cross helped them in many ways. Keeshan is working at Highland General Hospital and told how our local Red Cross was helping him get a new visa to visit his parents in England.

Jack Bailey was named as Red Cross youth chairman in the place of Cameron Marsh.
We have a new LVN, Alma Pearl Robinson, who is working part time at Worley Hospital and in clinics. Also we have a new nurses aide, Winnie Clark, who works at Worley Hospital. We are happy to have these two.

"You can sure mangle a dummy," muttered North.
"Why did you give me that silly raise?" asked South.
"Three no-trump was a cinch. I admit I could have made four hearts, but it looked to me as if hearts were going to break 4-2."
"What difference did that make?" yelled North. "You played the hand well until you went nuts!"
North was right. South started out by assuming that West held the ace of spades at the head of a suit that was less than six cards long. He won the diamond lead with his ace; led a second diamond to dummy's

"Yet on the next hymn, they may tell us to sing only verses 1 and 4."
"As a rule, however, it is that poor little verse No. 3 that is avoided like the 'Ugly Duckling.'"
"Yet I see no logical reason why we shouldn't sing all 4 verses."
"And I notice that a lot of modern musicians like to add variations to the famous tunes of the past, though such variations don't seem to add more charm to the familiar tunes."
"So why do people constantly try to change the products of the great composers of the past?"

EGO INFLATION
Haven't you readers noticed that children obtain far more pleasure out of something they can manipulate than even the most costly toy that papa operates for them?
It inflates our human ego to create or even embellish and rearrange the products of other inventors or authors and composers.
Even the various new versions of the Bible are an indirect example of this.
For the King James version was written in the beautiful prose of Shakespeare's day.
Several words have changed their current meaning during the intervening centuries, as in Christ's statement, "Suffer little children to come unto me."

That word "suffer" meant "let" or "permit" and a glossary could easily have explained these few changes.

But Biblical scholars wished to add their two bits worth of innovation, so they have retranslated the Bible, arguing that their new versions appeal to people much better.
That's malarky.
Do you see English scholars trying to translate Shakespeare into modern hippie lingo?
Instead, we append a glossary to Shakespeare but keep his writings in their beautiful original phrasing.

Lazy but egotistical musicians likewise find it so much easier to try to add variations to the melodic masterpieces of past composers than to create entirely new songs or hymns.
And this urge to inject our own personality into our environment is expressed by the fact that boys will climb dangerous cliffs to write their names and the dates on the sheer walls.
Or put their handprints in fresh concrete sidewalks.

"Kilroy was here!" expressed this same desire to leave our personal imprint on rocks or walls or even tree trunks.
It is a natural human urge to leave our personal "trademark" even if we do so by rearranging the compositions of superb musicians.
But it is better to sing all verses of a hymn!
Omitting one or two is like skipping chapters in a novel.
If you young song leaders wish to spend the effort to create new songs, well and good.
But don't spoil the melodic gems of the past by jiggering around among the verses!

king and a third diamond to be won by East.
East led the fourth round of the suit. West ruffed with the six and dummy overruffed with the king. A heart lead to his ace dropped the nine from West.
South led a spade. West took his ace and led back the queen to dummy's king. The last trump was led from dummy and after East followed South went through a process of what might be called thought and finally finessed his eight.
West collected a surprise trick with the 10 and the setting trick with the jack of spades.
That trump finesse had been entirely unnecessary. A high trump play was a sure winner. Actually, it would have dropped the 10; if it hadn't, three rounds of clubs would have allowed South to score the eight irrespective of what East did.

Sports '73: flushed with royalty

By Joan Ryan

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Before professional athletes were socially acceptable enough to rate as regulars on the White House guest list, the sports world was justifiably touchy about its limited sophistication. Oh, there were a few moments of grandeur when an athlete married a Rose Bowl queen or a Cotton Bowl princess but it was nothing elaborate, mind you.

That has all changed now. When ex-tackle Dick Schafrath of the Cleveland Browns sat down at the White House and broke bread with West Germany's Chancellor Willy Brandt, I knew that the race for the royalty in the sports world had been officially ignited. The concept of the athlete as a wholesome, red-blooded kid was erased forever, and the quest for blue blood and royal lineage began.

Avery Brundage was quick to spot the new trend. The 85-year-old former president of the International Olympic Committee, without asking for sanctioning, recently announced his engagement to a 37-year-old German princess, Mariann Reuss.

While amazed sports fans were still digesting the revelation that inside this aging bundle of sentiment, there beat a heart just like yours and mine, Brundage further defied tradition. He slapped his fist down on a damask tablecloth and said spiritedly, "Let's get married right now."

At the reception following the quickie wedding, the new Mrs. Brundage chatted amiably about proposed names for the twins she said they hoped to have. Her choice of conversational subject matter was coincidental, of course, but there were a few eyebrows raised over the stemmed champagne glasses.

Brundage was slightly terse with those who commented on the age span between him and his bride. Using all the charm and tact that he had learned at the helm of IOC, where he uprooted colonialism from the snowy slopes of Sapporo and clamped bans on errant track stars in Munich, Brundage denied that his marriage could be classified as a May-December affair. "She is more like 46," he said fondly. "And I am more like 55." You don't have to be a psychologist to figure out who won in that comparison.

Elsewhere on the continental sports front, Princess Anne was motoring to Bad Lippspringe, Germany, to cheer for her fiance, Lt. Mark Phillips, who was competing in the British Rhine Army Horse Show. Sitting cross-legged on the grass and biting her fingernails, the princess watched Phillips tie with three other equestrians for first place in the show jumping contest.

In the jump-off, Phillips had to settle for the third place after his mount knocked off the fifth jump in the nine-jump course, plowed straight through the sixth and knocked off the eighth. Anne, whose disposition has never been compared to a ray of sunshine, was displeased. Royalty displeased.

LUBBOCK — Man is a mammal sharing many characteristics with other mammals such as bats, rabbits, deer and even whales. And man is subject to the same biological laws which govern the relationships of other mammals to the ecosystem.
While all these biological laws are not known, scientists are making efforts to learn more of them and to understand the biology of mammals," said Dr. Dillard C. Carter, associate dean of the Graduate School of Texas Tech University and associate professor of biology.
Carter is director of a study of mammals from the Mexican state of Hidalgo. The mammal specimens used in the study were collected by Carter, members of the staff of The Museum of Texas Tech University, and students in a field course in vertebrate zoology taught in Hidalgo.
The field course was

Princess Anne - Willy Brandt
Who needs the Rose Bowl queen?

When a British reporter attempted to speak to her, she dug a heel into the grass and snapped, "I'm NOT answering any questions." A palace spokesman reminded the media that anyone chasing the princess would be arrested, which, if compared to the edicts of the Queen of Hearts, is a considerable improvement on "Off with their heads!"

That minor disappointment behind them, Anne and Mark went back to planning their November wedding. Anne is said to be against having bridesmaids. "A gang of girls trailing behind tends to take the attention off the bride," someone heard her say shyly.

Her salary will be elevated to $87,000 per year with the marriage so she will be able to keep Mark in bits and bristles comfortably. She plans to give him a new car for a wedding gift.

Ah, yes, the pace in the sports world has definitely picked up since the crowned heads have joined the jocks. But somehow, I felt more at home when all we had for royalty was a Rose Bowl queen.

King, Riggs To Play Thursday Night

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Ms. and the Mouth meet Thursday night with $100,000 going to the winner in a tennis carnival spectacular that would rival the best thing P. T. Barnum could have thrown together.

It's Billie Jean King, winner of everything there is to win in women's tennis and the banner carrier for Women's Lib, vs. Bobby Riggs, the 55-year-old huckster and self-proclaimed monarch of Male Chauvinism.

A national television audience will be tuned in on Billie and Bobby, except for those who are busy watching "Bonnie and Clyde" on another network.

Some 35,000 persons are expected in the Astrodome, the perfect setting for such a circus-like attraction.

"This is going to be the greatest hustle of all time," said Riggs. "I don't see how anybody can ever top this. This is show business."

Promoters hope the live gate will net $400,000 and are selling 2,000 court-side seats for $100 each.

Mrs. King underwent week long blood tests at Hilton Head Island, S.C., after a recent illness but the results, according to her secretary, "showed no problems and she is going on with the match."

The pride of women's tennis was ill with the flu during the U.S. Open at Forest Hills last week and the ailment knocked her out of the tourney. Blood tests were taken to determine if Mrs. King had suffered a recurrence of the mild case of hypoglycemia (low blood sugar); she has tests were taken to determine if Mrs. King had suffered a recurrence of the mild case of hypoglycemia (low blood sugar); she had about three years ago.

This will be the second "Battle of the Sexes" match for Riggs this year. He badgered and taunted the leading women tennis players until he finally secured a match with Margaret Smith Court last Mother's Day.

After presenting Mrs. Court with a bouquet of roses before the match, Riggs threw his collection of garbage shots at her and waltzed off with a straight set victory, allowing his opponent only three games.

That was too much for Ms. King to take and she soon greed to the match with Riggs. The winner-take-all prize money for King to take and she soon agreed to the match with Riggs. "I can play under pressure — I think I proved that at Wimbledon," she said. "I'm going to beat Roberta's brains out."

"She'll have the women's libbers rooting for her," Riggs said in his automatic, non-stop promotional spiel. "She is not used to playing for this type of money. She'll be so uptight she'll crack under the emotional strain."

Billie Jean attacks on the court like a man and Riggs plays a so-called woman's game of lobs and junk shots. He is a veteran hustler who knows this is her most lucrative purse and how that can affect anyone's game.

"There should be a cool million dollars come out of this match for Bobby Riggs."

BARNEY SAWYER Winning Touchdown

Missouri Romps Past Ole Miss

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Tailback Tommy Reamon made up for two second-quarter fumbles inside the Mississippi 10 by racing for a pair of touchdowns in the second half Saturday, one covering 70 yards, to lead Missouri to a 17-0 victory over the Rebels.

Missouri thoroughly dominated the team from Oxford, but led by only 3-0 until late in the third quarter before a crowd of 51,620.

Linebacker Scott Pickens intercepted a pass from Kenny Lyons and returned it 18 yards to the Ole Miss 27 to set up the Tigers' first touchdown. John Cherry passed 23 yards to Jim Sharp for a first down at the four.

A five-yard penalty put the ball back to the nine, but three plays later, Reamon scampered four yards for the touchdown, with 1:46 left in the third quarter.

Missouri got the ball back on its own eight after a 66-yard punt by Gregg Berland. But that proved to be no problem for the Big Eight Tigers.

Three running plays moved the ball to the 30 and Reamon, taking a pitch to his left, cut back to the center and scampered 70 yards for the chancing touchdown with 13:03 left in the game.

The game was the opener for Missouri while Ole Miss fell to 1-1 after an opening victory over Villanova.

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — The San Antonio Spurs of the American Basketball Association "terminated" their agreement Friday with their No. 1 draft choice, Kevin Kunnert of Iowa, because a representative of the 7-foot center allegedly "went back on his word."

Angelo Drossos, secretary-treasurer of the Spurs, flew to New York Friday to finalize the contract "which had been previously agreed on both verbally and in writing with Kunnert's representative, Arthur Morse," a Spurs spokesman said. "However, at the meeting, Morse went back on his word and reneged on the agreement, thus ceasing all negotiations."

ADELMAN TRADED — PORTLAND (UPI) — The Portland Trail Blazers of the NBA traded Rick Adelman, one of the two original members still with expansion club, to the Chicago Bulls Friday for a future draft choice and cash.

Adelman's departure left only Geoff Petrie, also a guard, remaining from the original squad.

TO DEFEND TITLE — INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Rafael Herrera, who holds the World Boxing Council version of the bantamweight title, will defend his title against Thailand's Venice Borksoer Oct. 13 at the Forum, it was announced Friday.

OVER IOWA Michigan Victorious

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Sixth-ranked Michigan meshed a ball control offensive attack with a tenacious defense Saturday to dominate Iowa 31-7 in the Big Ten opener for both teams.

Michigan, capitalizing on a series of Hawkeye mistakes, opened a 17-7 lead early in the first quarter on an attack powered by the running of tailback Chuck Heater and fullback Ed Shuttlesworth.

Michigan's defense, which led the nation in fewest points allowed last year, held the Hawk offense scoreless. Iowa employed two quarterbacks but was unable to initiate a sustained drive. Iowa's lone touchdown came on a 47-yard return of a pass interception by defensive back Earl Douthitt.

The Hawks had several chances to stay close early in the game, but fumbled three times in Michigan territory and surrendered the ball on an interception on their own three.

The powerful Michigan attack rolled up 475 total yards, including 440 on the ground and 35 in the air as the Wolverines scored in each quarter. Heater finished with 133 yards while Shuttlesworth rushed for 88.

Michigan took a 3-0 lead with 12:50 left in the first quarter when Mike Lanry booted a 39-yard field goal four plays after Douthitt fumbled the opening kickoff.

Heater broke away for a 56-yard jaunt late in the opening period to set up his one-yard touchdown plunge six plays later.

The Hawkeyes closed the gap to 10-7 on Douthitt's interception of a Dennis Franklin pass.

The Wolverines, however, capped a 76-yard march late in the second quarter with a three-yard dive by reserve Bob Thornbladh to take a 10-point intermission lead.

In the second half Michigan sustained drives of 75 and 59 yards for touchdowns.

Canadian Wildcats Win Second Tilt, Handle Spearman Lynx Friday, 34-0

CANADIAN — Canadian's explosive Wildcats piled up 378 rushing yards, giving them 747 for two games, and annihilated Spearman, the second AA team to fall to the Wildcats, 34-0 Friday night here.

Last week, Canadian gained 369 yards on the ground and crushed Phillips, 38-6. Kem Carr gained 152 yards last week to pace Jack Hawthorne's running attack, and Steve Schafer, a sophomore fullback, was this week's leading ground-gainer with 125 yards on 12 carries.

Carr gained 109 yards on 19 rushes.

Schafer also scored the game's first touchdown, on a four-yard plunge in the first period. The run culminated a 55-yard drive, which began when defensive tackle Terry Innis recovered a Lynx fumble on Canadian's 45. A snap over Bill Hines' head thwarted the extra point try.

Schafer gained 33 of the 55 yards on the drive.

In the second quarter, Carr skirted around right end for a five-yard Wildcat touchdown, and quarterback Lonnie Hines added two points with a keeper on the conversion. Schafer was the big man on the drive again, going up the middle on the first play for 62 yards.

Canadian led 14-0 at the half. Spearman couldn't manage any threats in the half, in fact, the Wildcats didn't allow a single penetration inside the Canadian 20 all night.

In the third period, Canadian took the opening kickoff and marched 74 yards in 16 plays, as Carr scored on a three-yard run off left tackle. Lonnie Hines scored the extras on a keeper, making it 22-0.

Following a Spearman punt in the last part of the third period,

Canadian drove 80 yards for its next score. A Lonnie Hines pass to Ricky Wheeler for eight yards gave the Cats a 28-0 bulge. Lonnie Hines scampered 29 yards on a keeper the third play of the drive.

Bill Hines, who played the final period at quarterback, scored Canadian's final touchdown on a 15-yard keeper around left end. Hines passed to Steve Whatley for the extras, ending the scoring at 34-0.

Lonnie Hines gained 49 yards on seven carries, Bill Hines picked up 43 on 10 attempts. Bob Dickinson gained 32 on seven tries and David Wilson gained 20 on eight attempts.

Lonnie Hines was two of nine passing, while Bill Hines was zero of six.

2-A Clarendon Stampedes By White Deer 42-0

WHITE DEER — Clarendon, behind a powerful running attack which gained 353 yards, rolled up 28 points in the first period and walloped winless White Deer, 42-0 Friday here in Class A football action.

The Broncho defense limited the Bucks to 110 total yards and five first downs, while the offense racked up 395 total yards and 20 first downs.

Clarendon scored three times in the opening minutes of the first period, as Kenneth King hit paydirt on a 47-yard romp. Wayne Hardin recovered a White Deer fumble in the Buck end zone on the losers' initial possession and Kenneth Reese scored on a 47-yard run around right end. King, who didn't miss an extra point boot all night, tucked on the three PAT's.

Early in the second period, Reese, scored on a four-yard run to make it 27-0, and King added the extra point. Johnny Gerner, Clarendon's wingback, scored on an 87-yard run late in the first half. King's extra point made it 35-0 at the half.

On Clarendon's first series of the second half, Reese scored on a one-yard pitch.

White Deer's biggest threat was a drive to the Broncho 21 in the third quarter.

Randy Crosslin started at quarterback for the Bronchos, and Reese played most of the game at tailback, but played solo at the quarterback slot.

"Our quarterback (Buddy Cummins) played a good game considering everything, we were real pleased with his effort," said Buck head coach Larry Anthony. Cummins completed four of 13 passes for 35 yards. Dan Cathey passed twice for White Deer, completing one.

"We've got to work on everything. We have a good offense, but we're not consistent; we beat ourselves because we make too many mistakes. Defensively, we've got to start playing technique," said Anthony.

White Deer hosts Panhandle Friday. Panhandle's got pretty good size; they're not as quick as Memphis or Clarendon though. We think it'll be a real good ball game," said the Buck coach.

Darrouzett Rolls Over Warriors 44-6 In 2-B, 8-Man Play

DARROUZETT — Darrouzett rolled up a 30-6 halftime lead and added two touchdowns in the last two quarters as the 2-B, eight man team from the Northern Panhandle whipped the Miami Warriors 44-6 Friday night in eight-man football non-conference play.

Miami's only score came on a 30-yard pass to end Allan Clark from Freshman quarterback Kirk Flowers near the end of the first half.

On Miami's first series of the contest, Darrouzett's Mark Potter blocked a punt and ran the ball in himself from 25 yards out. The run for extras failed and Miami was down 6-0.

Kelly Lewis, Darrouzett's fullback, made it 12-0 with a seven-yard run midway through the first quarter. Wade Robertson passed to Tommy Bailey for the extras, and the Warriors were down 14-0 quickly.

Lewis scored on a three-yard scamper early in the second period and added two more, running in the conversion attempt.

Towards the end of the initial half, quarterback Robertson scored on a three-yard keeper, and passed to Randy Howard for the two points.

Robertson scored on a 35-yard sweep early in the third quarter, going down the left sideline. The run for extras failed, and Darrouzett led 36-6. Robertson hit Jeff Holt with a 10-yard scoring strike early in the fourth period. Lewis ran in the points after.

"Our passing game was real good, and we played good defense except for on that pass play when they scored on us," said Darrouzett coach Charles Beebe.

Miami hosts Darrouzett Friday.

Pro Charts

AFC Central Cincinnati Bengals

By Murray Olderman

PROSPECTUS — This is my darkhorse team for entire NFL. Sure, they're in suddenly strong division, with Browns, Steelers. But old maestro, Paul Brown, has been building carefully for five years and has strength up front both offensively and defensively. Just need a little more offensive spark, especially running, to startle league.

PASSING — Little Virgil Carter has the verve, but for the big, hard-throwing passer to carry them to a title, Brown has a fix on Ken Anderson, the third-year guy from little Augusta, Good.

RECEIVING — Drafting of Isaac Curtis is supposed to provide the big bomb threat and round out a department which features tail Chip Myers (No. 2 in NFL) and rangy Bob Trumpy, latter a premier tight end. But first like's got to stay ahead of Charley Joiner, the ex-Oiler with beaucoup speed. Very good.

RUNNING — Area of greatest need. Stumpy Essex Johnson is superb threat but he functions better as spot guy coming off bench, not as heavy duty carrier. That's why they've got such earnest hope for a sleeper rookie from Bethune-Cookman named Booby Clark, who has size (235) to team with holdover Doug Dressler. Fair.

LINE — Has been together long enough for fine weld as a unity. Anchor remains Bob Johnson, the original Bengal at center. Couple of surprises should find Stan Walters squeezing into regular tackle job ahead of Rufus Mayes and Tom DeLoone, who can back up at center, moving into guard role. Vern Holland, Pat Matson are solid. Good.

DEFENSE

LINE — General feeling that this is the strongest part of team. Everybody knows about Mike Reid, the piano-playing impresario who's all-world at tackle. More should know about Royce Berry, an underrated end who's defensive captain. Sherman White, coming off knee surgery, should progress at end. They put lots of pressure on passers. Very good.

LINEBACKING — Switch finds Ron Pritchard, a toughie from Houston, taking over the right side, letting Ken Avery (strong against run) battle Al Beachamp (sterling vs. pass) for left side post. In the middle, no one worries about the capabilities of Bill Bergery. Good.

SECONDARY — Standing firm with last year's regulars. Not exactly standing because these kids can move, especially Lemar Parrish and Ken Riley at corners. Tommy Casanova at safety is swifly moving into all-pro class. Neal Craig is his safety mate. Beauty of this quartet is over-all youth and agility. Very good.

KICKING — Not much need for change with Dave Lewis doing the punting and Horst Muhlmann delivering the three-pointers. They're sure-footed and dependable. Bengal forte has always been special units, with Bernie Jackson and Parrish the ace return men. Very good.

PREDICTION

All the Bengals need is a hot streak — they get good early break in schedule. But competition's tough — third in AFC Central. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Buckeyes, Nittany Lions Register Wins Friday

Penn State Rips Stanford, 26-0 Ohio State Belts Minnesota, 56-7

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — The bull-like rushes of John Cappelletti, who scored one touchdown, and an air-tight Penn State defense Saturday gave the seventh-ranked Nittany Lions a 26-0 victory over Stanford in a nationally televised intersectional battle.

Cappelletti, who also completed a pass to set up his 7D run, carried 26 times for 76 yards to complement the signal calling of junior quarterback Tom Shuman, who completed 11 of 17 passes for 117 yards and a touchdown.

While Cappelletti and Shuman handled the offense, defensive stalwart Randy Crowder and Ed O'Neil shut off Stanford's attack holding the Cardinals out of Nittany Lion territory until late in the fourth quarter.

Mike Boryla, who ranked fourth in passing nationally last year, completed 17 of 29 passes for 188 yards but Stanford's running attack was completely stopped.

After a series of first-half punt exchanges—Stanford punted 11 times in the game—the Lions got 10 points within a three minute span late in the second quarter. Two came with 5:10 left when linebacker Doug Allen broke through to block Tom Lynn's punt which rolled out of the Stanford end zone for a safety.

After a Penn State punt, defensive back Jim Bradley, who earlier had intercepted a Boryla pass to end Stanford's only first half scoring threat, recovered a fumble on one Card' 10. On the second play, Shuman rolled to his left and hit Gary Hayman from 14 yards out for the touchdown.

Shuman, who completed only eight of 21 passes last year as an understudy, passed to Dan Natele for the two-point conversion.

Cappelletti, a 1,000-yard plus rusher last season, bulled over from two yards out in the third period to make it 17-0. The 31-yard drive was set up by a 36-yard punt return by Hayman and a key play was a 17-yard pass from Cappelletti to Chuck Herd.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Fullback Champ Henson, the nation's leading college scorer last season, plunged for three touchdowns and tailback Archie Griffin raced 93 yards with a kickoff for another score as third-ranked Ohio State overpowered Minnesota 56-7 here Saturday.

The Buckeyes' other touchdowns came on a four-yard run by sophomore quarterback Cornelius Greene, a five-yard run by wingback Brian Baschnagel, a 73-yard punt return by Neil Colzie and a 55-yard pass play from Greg Hare to Billy Ezzo.

Minnesota's lone touchdown came on a one-yard run by fullback John King.

Ohio State marched 66 yards in 12 plays with the opening kickoff with Henson going over from the two with a little over 10:24 remaining in the first quarter. A minute and a half later, after a fumble on the kickoff by the Gophers' Rick Upchurch, Greene went over capping a 23-yard drive in four plays.

Minnesota's only touchdown came after cornerback Kevin Keller intercepted a pass by Greene and raced it back 55 yards to the OSU 38 and King scored nine plays later.

Griffin, who rushed for 128 yards in 15 carries while playing about one half of the game, ran the following kickoff down the left sidelines to make the score 21-7 and the route was on.

Ohio State scored twice in the last minute of the first half. Henson going over from the two yard line to cap a 68-yard drive in 12 plays with 51 seconds left. After defensive back Tim Fox intercepted a pass by Minnesota quarterback John Lawing, the Buckeyes to the Gopher five yard line with five seconds to play. On a field goal attempt, Baschnagel fumbled the snap but picked it up and ran for the touchdown.

Ohio State's final touchdown came on a 55-yard pass play from Hare to Ezzo, a split end. Hare, who started every game last year at quarterback, gave up his starting role to Greene because of a slight thigh injury.

OSU Bombs Texas-Arlington

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) — Halfback Alfred Nelms scored two touchdowns in the second quarter and Oklahoma State's reserves exploded for 28 second-half points Saturday to demolish Texas-Arlington, 56-7.

Rookie coach Jim Stanley used five quarterbacks, including two freshmen, in the Cowboys' largest single game scoring spree since 1946 when the Pokes downed Drake 59-7.

Nelms scored on runs of four and five yards, his first touchdown capping a 71-yard, 10-play campaign, and the second climaxing a 16-yard, three-play drive following a fumble recovery.

Tight end Reuben Gant opened and closed the scoring. He caught a one-yard pass from starting quarterback Brent Blackman in the opening quarter and tallied on a 44-yard pass from freshman Charlie Weatherbie in the final period.

Blackman, who saw little action in the second half, scored on a 29-yard run 1:30 after Gant's first tally.

Early in the third quarter, when a mixture of first, second and third string players were on the field, fullback George Palmer dove across from the one-yard line and less than three minutes later backup quarterback Jeff Trout plunged across on a four yard run.

Reserve halfback Leonard Thompson capped a 74-yard, 9-play drive just seconds into the fourth quarter with a 41-yard run.

Texas-Arlington scored its lone touchdown on a 20-yard pass from reserve quarterback Craig Holland to halfback Dexter Bussey late in the third period.

The Cowboy defense demolished the Maverick ground game, holding UTA to a net of 17 yards on 38 rushes. The visitors picked up 89 yards on eight of 16 pass attempts.

OSU rushed 68 times for 467 yards and completed four of 15 aerials for another 75 yards.

Blackman gained 101 yards rushing and 23 passing before turning over command Saturday, to bring his career total yardage to 2,154—the fifth best in Cowboy history.

Arizona Wallops Wyoming Cowboys

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — Arizona quarterback Bruce Hill threw a 57-yard pass to "T" Bell for one touchdown and ran three yards for a second Saturday as the Wildcats took advantage of Wyoming miscues for a 21-7 Western Athletic Conference win.

Wyoming racked up impressive offensive statistics, but Arizona took advantage of a pass interception to get two quick scores.

Hill threw a bullet to Bell for the first score, one play after safety Dennis Anderson intercepted a deflected Steve Cockreham pass. Arizona scored again two plays after Wally Brumfield recovered a Cowboy fumble by fullback Lawrence Gaines at the Cowboy 18.

Hill connected with Bell for 15 yards and then kept from the three for the score.

The Wildcats' final score came in the fourth quarter when the score 14-7 on a one-yard run by Jim Upchurch. The score capped a 51-yard drive in four plays, including a 49-yard run by Upchurch.

Charlie Gorham kicked all three Arizona extra points.

Wyoming's only score was in the second quarter on a 10-yard pass from Cockreham to fullback George Lockyer.

Black Indian Amherst grad is all Cowboy

By Murray Olderman

DALLAS, Tex. — (NEA) — The credentials for intellectualism are impeccable. Jean Fugett has his bachelor's degree from Amherst College, where he devoted his senior year to a 137-page study — "Conquest and Expansion: some aspects of the relationship between blacks and Indians on the North American Continent."

His great-grandmother was an Onondaga Indian and his great grandfather was a runaway slave. He was only 20 when he got his college degree. He had already worked one summer in a Smith College-Amherst tutorial program. He also spent one summer as the first newspaper intern ever on the Baltimore Evening Sun and had a by-lined front page story.

His brother is a Harvard lawyer.

And, Jean Fugett is running searing penalty laps after practice, would groan silently, semi-delirious, "He's not going to break me!"

quickly because at Amherst there had never been spring practice and in the fall they worked out only three times a week, casually. "It took me two weeks," he says, "to find out you had to hit somebody with your head to block."

Blocking is an essential part of being a tight end. By the fourth game of the regular season he was already being used as an alternate regular.

With Ditka to carry plays from Landry to the quarterback. He ran downfield on the special kick teams, the kamikaze units, and showed he was a hitter. But Jean Fugett wasn't your obedient, awestricken rookie.

"I told him (Landry) I could never make all-pro playing every other play," he says.

Now he is firmly stationed as the regular tight end of the Cowboys because Landry has temporarily abandoned his system of calling plays from the sidelines. "I know exactly what I'm doing," insists Jean, "and what's expected of me. I really know I'm the best tight end on the team."

If we don't make it to the Super Bowl this year," he says seriously, "I might quit or ask to be traded."

Jean thinks this way because achievement is important to him. That white collar education didn't come as a matter of course. He was a kid raised in a segregated part of Baltimore.

"The nearest white family," he recalls, "was five miles away. We had a back yard, sure. But we also had rats."

Being young and black and smart, and married to a handsome Smith girl who had a 3.8 average, Jean Fugett could have gone successfully into almost any profession. They're looking for young men like him — even if there is a wisp of tokenism involved.

So when young, tall, proud Jean finds himself with cumbersome pads weighing down his shoulders and strange knee pants tightly girdling his thighs, and, at the end of a hot, humid afternoon of exercise, a tight-lipped coach exhorting him to run as fast as he can from one end of the field to the other and back again, then once more back and forth through the torturing, gasping ritual, he agonizes introspectively.

"I run those sprints," he muses, "and I keep thinking, 'What the hell am I doing here?'"

This is the penalty for being a professional football player, which Jean is — as tight end for the Dallas Cowboys, one of the finest teams extant. How did it happen?

"I tried pro football," he traces back his history to last year, "because I was 20 and curious and tired of school."

He was also, this black graduate (Amherst '72), the youngest man in the National Football League. Now in the fall of '73 he is definitely the youngest working regular in the pro game. And it's quite unbelievable on other counts because guys from Amherst don't ordinarily try pro football — Jean was the 338th man drafted, on the 13th round — and they don't want to.

"For most of last year," admits Jean, "I hated to think I was a pro football player."

"I think he made the club," says Mike Ditka, a pugnacious and he made it, as an unknown rookie getting the bare minimum of $13,000, learning the penalty for being

TEE-OFF TID-BITS

By Hart Warren

It seems like the difference between day and night after the tournament this week — going from herds of people who were conditioning their games before the tourney and those who played in the tourney to the few people who are playing now.

Some of these players are continuing to play well. B.R. Nuckols, 83-year-old, young, came withing three strokes of his age with a 39-47-86. Jan Elston was low for the girls with 40 blows. The left hander strikes again.

Delmar Watkins and Eddie Duenkel both carded 34 on the front nine. Delmar is still trying to figure out how Duenkel finished one-up. And that's just about all the action for last week.

The ladies journey to Huber Golf Course in Barger for the Panhandle Ladies Tournament Thursday.

A GOOD RULE TO KNOW: — If a player plays when his opponent should have done so, the opponent may immediately require the player to replay the stroke, in which case the player shall replace his ball and play in correct order, without penalty.

See you in the rough!

Purdue Nips Wisconsin, 14-13 In Big 10 Win

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Barefooted kicker Rich Barrios' try for an extra point went low with less than six minutes left in the final quarter Saturday and Purdue hung on for a 14-13 Big Ten victory over Wisconsin.

The Badgers had just driven 80 yards, with Ken Starch bowling in from the one, but Barrios' kick went into the center of the line, barely four feet off the ground.

Purdue jumped ahead 14-7 after a sparkling drive engineered by quarterback Bo Bobrowski.

Do you have any idea who was the biggest man ever to play pro football? ... Answer is Les Bingomann who played for the Detroit Lions from 1948 through 1954. He set the pro football record in 1954 when he weighed in at 349 pounds.

Here's a football oddity ... There are 5-yard penalties in football and there are 15-yard penalties — but, oddly enough, there are no 10-yard penalties ... And, nobody has ever come up with a good reason why there aren't any 10-yard penalties in football.

Can you imagine a football player scoring 100 points himself in one football game? ... Did you know that such a feat was once accomplished? ... Back in 1916, Leo Schlick of St. Viator College in Indiana scored 100 points against Lane College ... Schlick had 12 touchdowns and kicked 28 extra points in that game, which his team won 205-0 ... By the way, scores that high were not unheard of in 1916 ... That same season, Georgia Tech, for example, beat Cumberland 222-0.

A Weekly Report Of Agri-Business News

Compiled From Sources
Of The Texas Department of Agriculture
John C. White, Commissioner

New Export Facility... Turkey Production Increases... Red Meat Production Expands.

New livestock export facilities for Texas will become a reality soon. The state of Texas has entered contracts for construction of the new facilities to be located at Brownsville and El Paso.

The new facilities, along with those already constructed in the state, will boost Texas further into the realm of international agriculture. About $40 million a year is now added to the Texas economy through the livestock export business.

The new facilities will meet standards set by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and will include sheltered and curbed pens, vats for dipping, laboratory and office space, and hydraulic-operated chutes.

Other export pens are in operation at Houston, Eagle Pass and Del Rio.

TURKEY producers in Texas are expected to produce 16 per cent more turkeys this year than last year, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service notes.

The current crop is estimated at 9,091,000 birds compared with 7,851,000 raised in 1972.

Nationwide, turkey production is expected to be two per cent higher than last year. Minnesota is the leading turkey production state in the nation. Texas has ranked in the top 10 for several years.

The increase in turkeys in Texas for 1973 is in the heavy breed variety. A decrease of 5,000 birds is reported in light breeds.

RED meat production in Texas commercial slaughtering plants is up two per cent in July from the previous month and is one per cent above the amount produced in July, 1972.

Nationwide, red meat production is almost identical to a year ago, but is five per cent under June of this year.

In Texas, cattle slaughtered during July is 1,000 below the number slaughtered last month. Hog slaughter is down 9,000 head from last month. Sheep and lambs killed are up 4,000 head from a month ago.

Average live weight of cattle slaughtered in July was 944 pounds.

AUCTION sales in Texas report sales were below year ago totals for cattle, calves, sheep, goats, and hogs.

Cattle and calves marketed through auctions during July numbered 588,000 head, six per cent below a year ago, and nine per cent under a month ago.

HARVESTING of 1973 crops is behind schedule of last year. Cotton harvesting is nearly 10 per cent completion. Corn harvest is about two-thirds behind in completion compared to last year.

Grain sorghum harvest is picking up momentum with some excellent yields of 5,000 to 6,000 pounds per acre reported in the Blacklands. The crop in the High Plains shows generally good growth.

Early fields of wheat have been planted on the High Plains. A shortage of fertilizer is being reported in wheat areas.

PLANS are nearing completion for the Food and Fiber Pavilion at the State Fair in Dallas to be held in October. The Texas Department of Agriculture's Marketing Division will again be in charge of the pavilion.

Purpose of the pavilion is to show the abundance and quality to be found in Texas-produced food and fiber.

4-H CENTER

Homer Taylor, Sr. recently presented a nice check to the Gray County State 4-H Center Fund. If there are leaders or others that have not turned in checks or wheat check off slips, we urge you to do so. We would like to forward the balance of this account after closing same. Gray and three other counties in the state have now completed their established goal. Gray County exceeded its goal on a wider margin than any of the other counties.

JULY RED MEAT PRODUCTION

On Aug. 30, a Government report was released that surprised a great many people including this writer. The report is put out by the USDA and is called the Livestock Slaughter Report.

The report showed the production of red meat was almost the same in July 1973 as July 1972. This was quite a surprise to many since news of the lifting of the freeze on Sept. 12 was known. Apparently farmers and ranchers felt Sept. 12 was too long to wait to market cattle that were ready.

In watching the weekly reports that came in for August, apparently slaughter was nearer normal than anticipated. For cattle people this is a good indication there is no big backlog of cattle now ready for the market.

On September 13 (one day after the deadline for this column), a most important cattle on feed report is to be released. I am anxious to see how many cattle were placed on feed in August. I'm also anxious to see a summary of cattle slaughtered for August.

In my opinion, one of the main causes of recent decline in the cattle market has been the volume of gloomy forecasts and press releases by people that have as a goal breaking the market. The statistics don't add up to any further declines. If we have had a big withholding action, the July slaughter report does not indicate such. From the increased calls I have had about how to obtain a beef for one's locker, I'd say the demand has not slackened.

Check the source of your gloomy forecast on cattle prices. Most of these releases have a distorted slant. They will quote some person that has a selfish motive. Most of the sources would like for the price to tumble. For relatively brief periods of time, this kind of publicity can have an artificial effect on market. But in the long run (without government interference), supply and demand will set the price.

Last weekend's rain was one of the finest I've ever seen. This was ideal for irrigated land that had just been bedded.

Wheat drills are now running like mad. Within 10 days to 2 weeks, thousands of acres of wheat will be planted. The time is just right to make abundant wheat pasture and also for grain.

The replacement cost of light calves is still sky high. With two bad winters behind us, it will be interesting to see how speculators react to high feed cost and high priced replacement calves.

No doubt there will be a great deal more wheat pasture over the Panhandle this year because of two things. The acreage of dryland milo is down tremendously because of extremely dry conditions at planting time. A lot of land was summer fallowed that had been intended for dryland milo.

Government farm programs have encouraged the planting from fence to fence. Another very important factor is the price of wheat. Should wheat stay near the present price over the next several years, I believe you would see a strong trend toward reduced acreage of dryland milo and an increase in dryland wheat acres. Farming is simplified... no change over in machinery.

Panhandle Water

By FELIX W. RYALS
The Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District each year sponsors an essay contest on the importance of water conservation. The contest is open to all senior students who live within the District. Panhandle High School requires every senior to write an essay on water conservation. The essays are graded by the agriculture instructor and the English instructor.

When one reads these fine essays there comes the feeling that our youth will one day solve the water shortage problem of West Texas. In today's column we are carrying a portion of the 1973 essay by Jackie Kelly of Panhandle.

"Buried treasure always appeals to the adventuresome spirit in each of us. Indeed there are few people who have not thrilled at the chance of finding a vast hoard of gold buried somewhere along the sandy beach or deep in an inland glen far from the roar of the mighty ocean. At this very moment, you are sitting on top of a buried treasure! It is not in the usual form of treasure chest, and the key that unlocks it is not an ordinary key. Though you are not the first to discover this treasure, you do hold rights to a part of this vast fortune. Like any treasure of great value, this one is subject to thieves and robbers. Water is the treasure that holds life for every one of us. Conservation of the sparkling jewels of our buried treasure is essential to the High Plains if there is to be a promising future development of agriculture, industry, and population growth.

"Before we go into the study of this 'gold mine,' let's look at the treasure chest itself. Percolation defines the process of water seeping through porous topsoil and soil layers to reach the large reservoirs encased in the depths of these layers. The soil types composing the treasure chest shell include caliche, clay, rock, sandrock, coarse gravel, and finally coarse sand. Water-bearing sand and gravel beds are two to three hundred feet thick and contain vast reservoirs of excellent water. The amount of water that can be stored here may be several times the amount stored on the surface, even including the Great Lakes. The chest has been thickened by soil deposits and weathered by many years.

"Covered wagons carried pioneers westward into the High Plains during the late 1800's, with the dreams for ranching and developing agriculture.

Little did they know that their quest included a search for buried treasure.

"The land was carpeted with buffalo grass and pitted by playa lakes and gullies that filled with the occasional rains. An early grain and coal businessman of the Panhandle, the late Judge J.E. Southwood, stated several years ago, 'It doesn't look like the same country now. You should have seen it then. Why, you could cut hay every year in these lakes. It was more beautiful than anything I ever saw.'

"When it rained, valuable water was obtained from the playa lakes that dotted the prairie. However, when drought plagued the plains, water had to be hauled from springs located on several area ranches at the price of one dollar a keg.

"In 1880, men became suspicious of a buried treasure. They began a search for the right key to unlock it. This key, in the form of a new engineering achievement was the windmill. Major W.V. Johnson, owner of the Dixie Ranch in Lubbock County, erected the first windmill in 1884. Ranchers and cattlemen know the value of this water to their herds. In previous dry years these men had seen the result of water shortage — dusty watering holes, yellow grass, and crazed cattle that dropped dead due to water starvation, creating huge piles of wasted beef carcasses.

"The coming of the railroads also brought the sight of windmills. A dependable supply of good quality water was necessary for a steam locomotive boiler supply.

"Eventually, horse-drawn plows laid over the vast grasslands to produce grains, cotton and vegetables. The area became more and more populated, and every addition to life on the High Plains meant a new shareholder of the water supply. Wells were drilled to bring water to the people's homes and businesses.

"Agriculture became the main industry. As farmers faced the dry years of the Dust Bowl with parched crops and blowing fields, they began to question, as cattlemen had years earlier, the possibility of pumping underground water to save their crops.

"Irrigation was unheard of thing until the late 1930's. A Bureau of Reclamation report compiled then pictured most of the Panhandle as a barren, desolate area, lacking in water and ultimately unfit for human habitation.

(Next week we will carry further portion of this Essay.)

Vineyards In Texas?

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—The West Texas Plains, which reap millions of dollars annually as ranch and farm lands, may one day produce vineyards to rival in the world, according to Texas Tech University researchers.

"The soil is a sandy loam with plenty of depth," said Dr. C.M. McPherson, project director at Texas Tech. "The weather is mild with hot, dry summer days to pump the sugar into the grapes. There is sufficient irrigation water to control the amount the vines receive, and they have used only one watering a summer."

McPherson also said there is abundant light on the Texas South Plains, and the land is cheaper than in the heavily populated areas of California and New York where America's wineries are located.

"Two Lead Help
McPherson has been joined by two associates from Texas Tech to prove that the land, the climate and the economics of grape production apparently are ideal in Lubbock county and probably for the areas surrounding it.

Texas Tech's research interest in the project is in the testing of the quality of almost 70 varieties being grown to determine they have the properties necessary for making wine. This is being done in laboratories of the department of chemistry under state and federal licensing requirements and with a small grant from the Institute for University Research.

McPherson's associates are Roy Mitchell and Robert Reed, a viticulturist on the faculty in horticulture.

"The concept of large scale grape production in Texas is new," McPherson said. "Only the Del Rio area on the southern border produces sufficient quantities for a small industry. It is there that the Lone Star state's only winery is located."

Have Confidence
The three Texas Tech researchers are confident the Texas High Plains can produce high yields of superior grapes for excellent wines.

McPherson and Reed's interest in grape growing on the South Plains began in their backyard. Reed, for instance, planted some grape vines to provide ornamental shade for his patio.

"Because I don't know the variety, I call them Patio No. 1," Reed said. "They grow better and more productive every year."

The scientists now have 15 acres planted in numerous types and hope to find five varieties particularly well suited to the country and to the wine industry.

Seek Acid Balance
"It looks as though we'll find a great many more than that, but we'd be satisfied with two white and three red," Reed said. "The grapes have the sugar, and we're more interested right now in determining the acid balance."

THE OLD WEST LIVES

At Moise, Mont., during the annual buffalo roundup on the National Bison Range. Highly unpredictable, buffalo don't take easily to herding, above. Coming at you, left, a buffalo thunders down a lane between corrals to end up ignominiously, right, in the "squeezers," for vaccinating and branding. Once hunted almost to extinction, buffalo are now pampered, thriving and a tourist attraction, below.

Food Stamp Program Will Be Discussed

A meeting to discuss the Food Stamp Program with grocers and wholesalers from Gray, Carson and Roberts Counties will be conducted by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture Sept. 19. The program will open in these counties on November 1, 1973.

The meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. in the Citizens National Bank Building (Hospitality Room), Pampa, according to James Sattler, Officer in Charge with the Lubbock Field Office of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service.

Purpose of the meeting is to acquaint grocers and wholesalers with Food Stamp Program operations and responsibilities. "Store owners and employees must understand Food Stamp Program operating procedures before a store can be certified," Sattler pointed out. "So it is most important the county grocers attend the meeting."

The Food Stamp Program is a cooperative effort involving the State Department of Public Welfare and USDA's Food and Nutrition Service.

Klondike crossing
JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI)—The Canadian government has informed the State of Alaska it plans to complete the Canadian section of the Carcross-Skagway road to provide access from Skagway, in southeastern Alaska, to the Canadian border. From there it will connect with the Alaska Highway via another road.
The new link, to be known as the Klondike International Highway, will provide a less expensive and 150-mile shorter means of transportation between Skagway and Whitehorse, Yukon Territory.

SOURCES OF ENERGY

Man first began using energy when he discovered fire and the benefits that fire could give him. Cooking and warmth in the winter.
As time went on and man learned more, he started using animal and whale oil to light the lamps to see by at night. Next, came coal, then oil from the ground and, in the process, natural gas. This replaced manufactured gas because it was cheap and, many thought, plentiful.
But then the natural gas started to run out and suddenly there was an energy crisis . . . and people worried about the future.
The great hope for the future was left to electricity.
But, you say, it takes gas to make electricity. Yes, in our plants we do use natural gas but there ARE other sources of things from which to make electricity.

Coal is one — and that's what our next plant, about to be built, will use . . . low sulphur western coal with the most advanced pollution control equipment.
Is there enough coal? Yes, we have under contract a fifty year supply.
What other sources are there? Beyond the fossil fuels there is nuclear energy. The breeder reactor will actually make more fuel than it uses. The fusion process will use seawater for fuel — that supply is unlimited.
So, it's obvious that the big source of energy now and for the future for industry, agriculture, business and the home is electricity.
With electricity you can be sure that the electric appliances you buy today can still be used in the future . . . no shortage, no obsolescence with clean electricity.

Your future is ELECTRIC!
