Giant 8,800-Pound US Satellite Fired Into Orbit; Voice Of Ike Rides In Space

Around The Globe Satellite Briefs

JAPAN MAY SEE SATELLITE FIRST

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—A spokesman for the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said today the first sighting of America's four-ton satellite will probably come from Japan.

The Smithsonian, which is headquarters for all optical contact reports, said experts operating a huge tracking camera in Japan were expected to contribute observations sometime early today. The observatory said it could not yet determine where additional visual contacts with the new satellite would be made. No information was immediately available on possible sightings in the United States.

250 Children To Be VFW Guests At Sunday Party

Some 250 underprivileged children will be welcome guests of the Pampa Veterans of Foreign Wars Sunday at a Christmas party in the American Legion-VFW Hall.

The party will begin at 5 p.m. but VFW members will pick the children up at their homes and take them to the hall. In the hall, children will receive toys repaired by local firemen and toys collected at a Toy Drive by the High School Junior Red Cross.

Rufe Jordan, Gray County sheriff, and Rev. Richard Crews, pastor of Pampa's First Christian Church, will have parts on the program.

The Daily News has it on good authority that Santa Claus will appear.

At a chill supper Thursday night, VFW men drew names of the children they will be responsible for. All children invited to the party will be called for at their homes. The VFW Hall is gay with decorations and ready with toys.

John E. Luttrell, a 47-year-old unemployed butcher, was shot and killed early Thursday night in his Pampa home at 501 S. Reid.

Following the shooting, Luttrell's 16-year-old son, John, admitted to Police Chief Jim Conner he killed his father. The boy, John Edward Luttrell Jr., was taken to city jail and this morning was taken to county jail. No charges have been filed.

BRUSH FIRE KILLS ITS FIRST VICTIM

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (UPI)—Southern California's worst brush fire of the year claimed its first victim Thursday night when a forest ranger was enveloped by flames in a brief flare up along the southeast corner. The fire still was not under control today.

Joe Adams, 34, district ranger for Prescott National Forest, Ariz., was leading a Hopi Indian "hotshot" crew along the fire's perimeter on a scouting mission. He climbed atop a rock for a better view when the wind made a sudden shift, surrounding him with flames. Forest Service officials said he apparently died instantly.

world, swung into action Thursday night minutes after scientists here received word of the successful orbiting of the Atlas missile. Moonwatch directors had no advance warning that an attempt would be made.

LAUNCHING NOT ANSWER TO REDS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Defense Department said Thursday night the successful launching of the world's biggest satellite was not designed to be an answer to the reported Russian claim to firing an 8,700-mile range missile. Rear Adm. John E. Clark, deputy director of the Pentagon's space agency, said the historic U. S. launching was scheduled before the Russian claim was disclosed.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) reported to President Eisenhower last week that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev had boasted to him of the Russian launching. U. S. officials said the boast could well be true.

BIGGER THAN BUS

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Atlas missile fired into orbit Thursday night is nearly twice as long as a commercial bus. The average bus is 44 feet long. The Atlas is 75 feet long. In weight, buses average about 10 tons. The missile in orbit weighs more than four tons.

NO COMMENT

MOSCOW (UPI)—Moscow Radio and the official Tass news agency today reported the successful launching of the U. S. Atlas missile without comment.

TO MISS RUSSIA

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Atlas satellite launched Thursday night will not travel over Russian territory, a Defense Department spokesman said.

The satellite will not get any further north than 32 degrees latitude nor further south than 32 degrees latitude. The spokesman said the Defense Department hoped to have more specific places and times on the satellite's course today.

NATIVITY SCENE IS LIT, WITH CAROLING

By WALLY TRUEDELLE
Daily News Staff Writer

A festive lighting of eight Nativity scenes took place Thursday night in Central Park. Blessed with calm weather and a hint of Christmas, carolers, narrators and musicians cued in on the Pampa presentation of the Christmas story, told in rhythm and Biblical words.

Choir and band members came from Pampa's three secondary schools and narrators from the speech department of Pampa High School. The Nativity scenes were created by local artists and lighted by the High School Troupe.

An organ prelude by Tracy Cary and brass introduction by the Harvester Band set the stage for a combined chorus in "O Come All Ye Faithful" and then Eugene Weinheimer, with "The Promise of a Redeemer."

The High School A Capella Choir sang "O Come, O Come, Emmanuel." Another brass inroduction by the High School and Miss Sue Foster pronounced the "Annunciation to Mary."

The High School Girls Choir presented "Lo, How A Rose." The brass introduction was by Robert E. Lee Junior High. Then came Weinheimer with "The Wise Men Coming."

The following carol was "We Three Kings of Orient Are" by the High School Boys Chorus. Miss Foster presented "No Room in the Inn" and the combined chorus caroled "So Joseph Was Walking." The Junior High Band gave a brass introduction for Weinheimer's "Nativity."

"Silent Night" by the High School Girls Chorus was the ensuing carol with a brass introduction by the Harvester group and "Angels Appearing to the Shepherds" by Miss Foster. "Angels We Have Heard on High" was the combined chorus, then a Lee band introduction and Weinheimer's voice in "The Wisemen Before Herod." "Covenant Carol" by the combined chorus and Harvester brass brought on Miss Postea in "Flight into Egypt."

With the last note of "Joy to the World" off their lips, the chorus broke and surged down the hillside from the Park House screaming with joy.

Mrs. Lynn Boyd coordinated the Nativity Scene Lighting Program with the help of the following Program Committee:

William A. Hunt, High School Choirs; W. E. Tregoe, Harvester Band; Miss Helen Schafer, High School speech department; Mrs. James Webb, Lee ninth grade Choir; Patsy Martin, Lee Seventh and Eighth Grade Choirs; Louise Richardson, Pampa Junior High Ninth Grade Choir; Sue Higdon, PJH Seventh and Eighth Grade Choirs; Bea Gollehon, PJH Band.

The Nativity scenes were designed by Mrs. Claudine Vail, Roger Long, Charles Thomas, Florence Jackson, Mrs. A. D. Wells and other artists. They (See CAROLING, Page 2)

Air Force Scores Bulls-Eye With 1st Mighty Atlas Try

By RICHARD W. HATCH
United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI)—An American satellite weighing nearly 4½ tons circled the earth today, apparently ready to broadcast on cue the voice of President Eisenhower.

The mighty Atlas satellite was a double propaganda victory for the United States. It, twice as long as the average highway bus, tended to downgrade previous estimates of Russian rocket power.

The 8,800-pound satellite roared into the skies at 6:02 p. m. e. s. t. Thursday. It was a bulls-eye on the very first try by the Air Force. An automatic guidance system, in use for the first time on a satellite shoot, performed perfectly, and the Atlas was guided, rather than thrown, into exactly the orbit path that had been planned.

The Atlas carried in its nose cone communications system designed to record messages from stations on the ground and play them back at a specified time. The Defense department hinted strongly that President Eisenhower's voice might be one of the first relayed back from space.

The new satellite measures 75 feet long, twice as long as the average highway bus. It outweighs Russia's Sputnik II, which weighed 1,120 pounds, and Sputnik-III, which weighed 2,925 pounds.

However, the total weight of Sputnik II and its carrier rocket has been estimated at about 7,000 pounds and Sputnik III and its carrier are believed to have weighed even more. Atlas' payload and carrier are one unit.

BULGANIN IN CONFESSION

By HENRY SHAPIRO
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI)—Nikolai Bulganin, appeared today to have taken much of the heat out of the "anti-party" charges against him by making a full confession and contributing to the case against his fellow miscreants.

No such pleas were reported to have been entered by other former leaders accused of trying to subvert Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's plans to reorganize heavy industry, increase farm production and take other steps to improve the welfare of the Soviet people.

Bulganin, who had been under heavy fire from Khrushchev and other Communist party leaders as a member and possible leader of the anti-party group, confessed all in a speech Thursday to the party's central committee.

The former premier said he opposed party policies while serving as "normal leader" of the group but that he had since seen the error of his ways.

Bulganin's speech abounded with damaging epithets against the other members of the group—Vyacheslav M. Molotov, former premier and foreign minister; former Premier Georgi Malenkov, former Presidium member Lazar Kaganovich and former Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov.

Bulganin's words damned Malenkov as an intriguer capable of all kinds of foulness; they criticized Molotov as a man separated from life and the people; they called Kaganovich a phrasemonger who impeded work with his confused speeches.

Now A Good Red Only Shepilov was spared. He has been pictured as a late entry into the group rather than a founder-member.

Bulganin admitted having rolled in "anti-party mire" until June, 1957, when the Central Committee exposed one anti-party group and helped him see it in all of its "rotteness." He has been a good Communist since then. Bulganin told the meeting. Now, he added, he asks only that he be allowed to "live up to the high calling of a member of the party" and "try to remove the shameful blot on me."

The case against Malenkov, Molotov, Kaganovich and possibly Shepilov appeared to be growing.

Bulganin pleaded that he be allowed to keep his party card but there was no immediate indication of his fate. Today's official newspapers, Izvestia and Pravda, reported without comment his subject confession before the party's governing body.

The bearded marshal was ousted as premier last March, made president of the State Bank and then shifted to his present post, a minor one, as chairman of the Sviropol Economy Council in the Caucasus.

Released From Hospital He recently was reported seriously ill in a Moscow hospital and apparently was released from the hospital to address the Central Committee.

The anti-party group ousted in July, 1957, included former premiers Vyacheslav M. Molotov and Georgi Malenkov, former Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov and Lazar Kaganovich, a member of the Presidium.

It was only recently that Khrushchev connected up Bulganin in a speech as a member of the anti-party group.

Some sources had been using a rule of thumb theory that it took 1,000 pounds of thrust to get one pound of payload into space. This has been proved unsound.

Total thrust from three rocket engines of the Atlas was 253,000 pounds, but it put up 8,800 pounds.

The firing quickened speculation that this country is nearing the point where it could put a man into space. Some scientists pointed out that the United States now has that capability, but the problem still is how to get the space traveler back alive.

Observers of the U. S. space program recalled that last Jan. 31 this country launched Explorer I, a 30.8 pound tube-shaped satellite only 80 inches long.

Thursday night, less than 11 months later, a four and a half ton satellite 75 feet long was put in orbit.

Some military experts long have felt the reputed Soviet lead in missile development was exaggerated. They believe the United States had the capability to put a satellite in orbit before Russia, but that U. S. missile programs simply had not been pointed toward a satellite launching.

The Defense Department announced the satellite—called "Score," for satellite communications orbit relay experiment—would swing around the earth once every 100 minutes for about 20 days. It was reaching 625 statute miles from the earth at its farthest point and 118 miles at its closest.

Scientists said the big assembly should be plainly visible in the

Eisenhower Upsets Protocol With His Big Announcement

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower upset careful planning by his wife and the State Department protocol office Thursday night with his dramatic announcement of the successful launching of the new satellite.

For the second diplomatic dinner of this year's White House social season all was geared to repeat almost exactly the same evening enjoyed by the first half of the big diplomatic corps Wednesday night.

The Christmas decor was unchanged, the menu was the same, the after-dinner musicale was the same and Mrs. Eisenhower even wore the same Christmas red nylon net gown. Then the President suddenly put a lot more zoom into the repeat performance.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he began, stepping to the center of the big East Ballroom just before leading his guests into dinner. "I have just heard some news that may be of some interest to you . . ."

The foreign diplomats reportedly burst into applause at the end of his brief announcement. Commenting on the successful launching later, the President said, "they got what they were shooting for."

Reds Warned By West On Attack

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG United Press International. PARIS (UPI)—Gen. Lauris Norstad, the NATO supreme commander, warned the Soviet Union today the West will not hesitate to hit back with nuclear weapons if Russia attacks.

"There must be absolutely no misunderstanding about the determination of this alliance to use nuclear weapons in case of aggression," Norstad said. Norstad addressed the assembly of the seven-nation West European Union which is holding a four-day session here.

Norstad said the "shield" forces under his command are designed to force the enemy to pause and consider after launching his initial attack. "This pause, coming shortly after an action is started, is designed to force an enemy to stop and consider his decision, and when he takes it he must do so in the full knowledge that he risks total annihilation, because we are determined to use all the forces at our disposal," he said.

The general's words gave added emphasis to the NATO communique Thursday expressing the West's determination to stand firm against the Soviet threat to push the West out of Berlin.

DEXTERITY—Richie Guerin of the New York Knickerbockers (9) leaps high with the ball on his fingertips before scoring during the game with Philadelphia at Madison Square Garden. The Warriors' Woody Sauldsberry (14) and Jack George, who's partly hidden behind Guerin, are trying vainly to block the shot. The No. 19 visible between Sauldsberry and George is Knicks' Ray Felix.

AWAY THEY GO—An oil derrick is taking the place of the traditional windmill as youngsters skate along a frozen ditch at The Hague, Holland. It's one of an increasing number in that area. Holland's oil industry is booming and derricks are now almost as familiar a sight as the dikes.

FOR WARMTH—The worst winter weather holds no terrors for the ski-lover who's bundled up in this warm package. Designed by Vilmer-Andre Ledoux of Paris, the quilted yellow parka has a halo of white fox fur and tops slim trousers.

YOUTH WILL OUT—Brian Wenzel, 14 (right), is posing with his father, Ranford Wenzel 46 (left), and his grandfather Leon Wenzel, 71, and their kills after a rather successful hunt near Holland, Mich. The youngster outshot the older men by bagging an eight-point buck. His dad got a seven-pointer and Grandpa got a three-point buck.

BASKET FORM—It's being demonstrated by actors Jeff Chandler (left) and Jacques Bergerac as they handle the "chistera," a basket used for catching and hurling the ball in jai alai. Bergerac played championship-form in his native France. He was teaching Chandler the game between scenes for "Thunder in the Sun," on location at Mount Whitney, Calif.

Rangers' Harry Howell is at left. The puck, however, failed to score and Boston won the hockey match with a final 3 to 1.

RETURN OF DeGAULLE PREVENTED REVOLT

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two dispatches by a veteran reporter of French affairs providing a closeup of Gen. Charles de Gaulle as he prepares for his election on Sunday as president of France with unprecedented powers.)

By ARTHUR HIGBEE
United Press International
PARIS (UPI) — Last May 29 the highest personage of the French republic, President Rene Coty, stood before a palpitating chamber-full of deputies and invoked the name of Gen. Charles de Gaulle. There was a historic inevitability about it. The mobs were loose in the streets of Algiers, restive in the streets of Paris. Police leaves had been cancelled; the Champs-Elysees was an armed camp. Rumors of paratroopers dropping from the skies flew thickly. For the National Assembly and for France the choice was between, on the one hand, revolution, anarchy or dictatorship—possibly all three—or the one man whose integrity nobody questioned, however much they might question his politics: De Gaulle. The assembly gratefully chose De Gaulle and the nation ratified this choice months later, in De Gaulle's constitutional referendum of Sept. 28, 1957, by an 80 per cent vote for him.

Yet 18 years earlier when De Gaulle broadcast his appeal to a prostrate France on June 18, 1940, Frenchmen had ever heard of him. "This war is not over with the battle of France," De Gaulle said then. "This war is a world war." (An anonymous but wideawake publicist later changed this to "France has lost a battle; she has not lost the war.") Frenchmen arise De Gaulle went on, "every Frenchman who still bears arms has the absolute duty of continuing resistance. Soldiers of France, wherever you are, arise!" Frenchmen did arise, first by the dozens, later by the hundreds of thousands. It was slow going at first. De Gaulle not only had no official blessing from Paris; within the month the Petain government had stripped him of his French citizenship and condemned him in absentia to death. But the same month British Prime Minister Winston Churchill recognized De Gaulle's free France. De Gaulle had his troubles.

Having tried and failed to win other French administrators and military commanders around the French empire to his cause, he insisted on forming a full-fledged free French government. He won through, with his single-mindedness, his obstinacy, and the fact that he was the only French leader of stature who at that moment wanted to fight on. Inevitably there were clashes with Churchill, who later made his famous remark: "Of all the crosses I had to bear, the heaviest was the Cross of Lorraine." De Gaulle returned to liberated French soil a week after D-day, 1944. On August 25, he marched down the Champs-Elysees to delectable cheers and attended a Thanksgiving Mass in Notre Dame Cathedral. German snipers were still about; shots crashed within the cathedral. Others ducked but De Gaulle stood erect. He was at the head of the provisional government.

On Nov. 30, 1945, the constituent assembly confirmed De Gaulle as premier by a unanimous 555-0 vote. But the honeymoon was nearly over. The following month the Communists were condemning De Gaulle for his refusal to entrust them with the decisive cabinet posts: Foreign Affairs, defense, interior. The Socialists opposed him over the size of the defense budget. Other parties were chafing at De Gaulle's impatience with parliamentary procedure.

De Gaulle was more than impatient. He admitted later that he had considered—and rejected—a coup d'etat. In December he told the shocked deputies, "This will undoubtedly be the last time I will speak in this chamber. Therefore I want to tell you now: If you do not respect the necessary conditions for responsible and dignified government, you are heading for a time when you will bitterly regret the path you have chosen." France was close to starvation. France was free, yes, but her troubles were just beginning. Within two years Communist strikes and riots led France to the edge of civil insurrection. Indochina was in rebellion, the currency had embarked on the non-stop spiral of inflation that within a decade reduced the franc to one quarter of its immediate postwar value.

But Frenchmen did not forget De Gaulle. And with the degeneration of democracy into a political game, they remembered his warning to the deputies: "You are heading for a time when you will bitterly regret the path you have chosen." Creates New Party On April 7, 1947, he created his "rally of the French people." The party had a great initial success. But it was not enough to bring De Gaulle back to power. The party began to splinter. In May, 1953, after heavy losses in the municipal elections, De Gaulle set his party at liberty and retired from politics, but not from other activity.

His return to power was characteristically dramatic. The morning after May 13, 1958, Frenchmen awoke to find that settlers and soldiers in Algiers had carried out a bloodless mutiny to demonstrate their fears of a French giveaway of Algeria. They were defying the authority of Paris and demanding the return of De Gaulle. The mutiny jumped to Corsica and threatened to spread to France itself. On May 19 De Gaulle came to Paris and at a press conference surrounded by the greatest security precautions that security-conscious Paris had ever seen, announced, "If the people want it, as in the preceding national crisis, I am ready to take the leadership."

Returns to Chamber On June 1, 1958, De Gaulle returned to the chamber he had so abruptly walked out of 12 years before. The Communists suffered their first postwar defeat. De Gaulle appealed to the Mos-

The youngsters, dressed in their crimson and white choir robes sang a variety of Christmas numbers, including "Silent Night" and "We Wish You A Merry Christmas."

The songs of Christmas were heard in the Courthouse, City Hall, the Hughes Building and then in the News office just before deadline. But hope was rediscovered in Algeria. And order was restored in France, notably with the referendum of September 28, 1958, which brought De Gaulle's long dreamed-of strong executive constitution—and the fifth French republic—into effect. In the campaign for the Nov. 23-30 parliamentary elections, the chief issue among the candidates was who favored De Gaulle most.

It's Not Easy Keeping Christ In Christmas For The Kids

EDITORS NOTE: The following dispatch reports the results of a United Press International poll in which leading clergymen from all parts of the nation were asked to appraise America's Christmas celebration and offer specific advice to families on how it can be made more meaningful.

RELIGION IN AMERICA

For several years, churches have been imploring Americans to "keep Christ in Christmas." Many Christian families are ready, even eager, to cooperate. But how? What can one family do to rescue the birthday of Christ from commercialization... to make its real significance clear to children?

United Press International put the question to 10 of the nation's leading clergymen. Their answers, as could be expected, varied widely. But there were several common themes. "Virtually all of them emphasized the importance of worship — not only attendance at church services, but worship in the home with the whole family taking part."

"Read the Christmas story from the Bible on Christmas Eve," counseled the very Rev. Francis B. Sayre, dean of Washington Cathedral. "Let the father of the family explain to the children in simple words the meaning of Christmas," said the Rt. Rev. James A. Pike, Episcopal bishop of California.

Rowland, 36, is assistant to the editor of The Quill, national publication of Sigma Delta Chi, the journalism fraternity. He has written many articles for national magazines. In 1957, he was in Korea for three months under sponsorship of the State Department to study the Korean press. He visited other Asian countries before returning. During World War II, he was a combat artillery officer in Europe and worked in Army public relations and special services after VE Day.

Rowland is married and the father of four daughters and one son. The family will move here next summer. "A Gift For Christ" will be pastor Delbert Priest's topic on the Soul Winner Broadcast Sunday at 7:45 a.m.

It's Not Easy Keeping Christ In Christmas For The Kids

Catholic Archbishop Joseph F. Rummel of New Orleans recommended "the recitation of the Rosary every evening in the family circle, and the preparation of a beautiful crib to be unveiled in every home on Christmas Eve."

Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of Washington said Christmas should be treated as "a day of merriment." "Begin the day with the family singing a Christmas carol... then let each individual meditate upon the significance of the first Christmas gift, which was God's gift of his Son."

Asks Unselfish Approach "It would be better to stop the custom altogether than to let Christmas giving degenerate," said Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, stated clerk of the United Presbyterian Church. "The Rev. E. C. Scott, stated clerk of the Southern Presbyterian Church, said the best antidote to a 'selfish' approach to Christmas is to 'center our thoughts and gifts on those from whom we can expect nothing in return.'"

Msgr. Irving A. Deblanc, director of the Family Life Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, suggested Santa Claus be quietly replaced by the real-life Saint Nicholas (whose name, pronounced "sinter klasts" by early Dutch immigrants to America, gradually evolved into the modern Santa Claus.)

Several ministers urged that Santa Claus be de-emphasized. The Rev. John T. Tavlarides of the Greek Orthodox Cathedral of St. Sophia, Washington, said Santa Claus has been so thoroughly "identified with commercialism" that his symbolic value has been lost. "Not merely gifts of money, but of time and companionship," Bishop Christopher J. Weldon of the Catholic Diocese of Springfield, Mass., offered this suggestion about gifts: "Let those to whom you are giving gifts know that these gifts are being given to honor the birthday of the Christ child, and to imitate his example of opening the heart to others."

TCU Offers Major In Art-Theatre

FORT WORTH (Sp) — A new major in art-theatre is being offered at Texas Christian University, announced the university curriculum committee.

The departments of art and theatre arts of the TCU School of Fine Arts are cooperating in offering the new program, which will award a bachelor of fine arts degree with a major in art and theatre.

"We feel that many of our students could be better prepared for careers if an opportunity were created enabling them to take courses in both departments," states Dr. Walter R. Volbach, chairman of the department of theatre arts.

Students who sign up for the new degree program receive an equally strong training in both art and theatre. This degree is meant for art students who wish to become interior decorators and for theatre students who are interested in becoming costumers and designers.

Dr. Karl Richards, chairman of the TCU art department, and Dr. Volbach will supervise the new degree plan.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

H. M. HUTCHINSON, Pastor
Bible Baptist Church

CHRISTMAS

Christmas means crowds, children, carols and kindness for most of us in the Western Hemisphere. For Christians, it should mean Christ. Preachers may help to rescue Christmas from the secularization that has all but smothered it beneath the tinsel which sentimentalists and salesmen heap upon it. But we would not forego the sentiment which "gentles" our spirits.

Keeping Christmas in the heart, as children do, prepares us for Him who came as a babe, yet was very God, to confound the wisdom that is not wise. The central truth that Christmas conveys is God has visited his people and has come to redeem—therefore, we rejoice.

Consider a few New Testament references: Heb. 1:2—"Hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also He made the worlds;" "And his name shall be called Emmanuel (which means God with us)."—"Matt. 1:23) "And he Shall reign—and of his Kingdom there will be no end."—(Luke 1:33) And John says, "the word became flesh and dwelt among us, full of grace and truth, and we beheld his glory as of the only begotten Son from the Father." And from his fullness have we received grace upon grace.

May all sermons this Christmastide proclaim the deep truth of God's unique self-disclosure and self giving in the child that was laid upon the doorstep of the world.

'One Red Rose' Typical Of TV's Usual Holiday Efforts

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—"One Red Rose For Christmas," a one hour tranquilizer administered by CBS-TV's "U.S. Steel Hour" Wednesday night was painfully typical of what passes for drama during the Christmas season on TV.

What television spoons out at this time of year is great soothing doses of everything-will-come-out-all-rightness. It is a kind of super Tiny-Timism in which small children and small animals and adults with small problems fumble around for awhile, but then come together in one grand emotional pomade while buttered snow falls softly outside the window.

"One Red Rose For Christmas" was, as I said, typical. It posed no real problem nor real emotional conflict. It simply presented a nun who was unable to forgive an orphan who had indirectly caused the death of the nun's sister. In the end, of course, the little girl was forgiven. End of hour. End of play—its problems solved in the main.

by the simple passage of time. Helen Hayes starred in the play and managed, for the most part, to keep her grabbing of tricks under control. She was guilty only occasionally of flicking her lips, closing her eyes while looking heavenward, clasping and unclasping her hands, patting the arms of other players — one of her favorite devices, fluttering her voice, letting her breath run out at the end of a phrase, and inserting calculated catches into her delivery. These hardly flawed her performance at all.

However, the following did mar her performance: One hand to the brow (resignation), one hand covering the eyes (please, I must think), one hand covering the face (horror), two hands to the face (despair).

Ruth White, Ruth McDevitt and Joseph Sweeney, in minor roles were quite satisfactory. Patty Duke, a child performer, seems to have been watching too many old Shirley Temple movies.

wrong on one serious count — It was rather dull. Dennis Hopper turned in a sound job as the bad-die.

The Channel Swim: Roy Campanella, who was on the first CBS-TV "Person To Person" on Oct. 2, 1953, is ticketed in for Ed Murrow's Jan. 2 show along with George Jessel. CBS-TV is considering a new Ray Milland series for Saturday night in the spot following "Gunsmoke."

CBS-TV expects to have finished taping 13 episodes of its upcoming "Peck's Bad Girl" series by the end of January — Susanne Sydney has been added to the cast as Patty McCormack's sidekick. It looks now as if "Rock-skin" will replace "The Tac Dough" on Monday night for NBC-TV.

NBC-TV has shifted the taped repeat of its Fred Astaire spectacular from Jan. 28 to Feb. 11. The special all-star tribute show to the late NBC-TV vice-president, Manie Sachs, also has been shifted from January to March.

Dennis Day is ill and has begged off next Monday's ABC-TV "Voice of Firestone." The NBC-TV "Jack Paar Show" may film some of its shows in France next spring. CBS-TV's "Where We Stand" one-shot, that'll compare American and Russian strengths and weaknesses, is set for Jan. 4.

TB Thrives In Congested Areas

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — In Kansas the annual new cases rate for tuberculosis is about 15.5 per hundred thousand population. In the central Harlem district of New York City it was approximately 800 per hundred thousand, despite the concentrated efforts of one of the most efficient public health departments in the world. The central Harlem thousands live close-packed in tenements, often five and six to a room, in a condition doctors call "physiological misery." That condition among people crowded together always favors tubercle bacillus. Even during the past 100 years of steady decline, TB rates have consistently increased in war-torn countries.

What tuberculosis experts would like most are a vaccine capable of bestowing reliable and long-term immunity, and drugs capable of killing all the tubercle bacilli in a human body quickly. Such a vaccine and such drugs are the prime objective of publically and privately financed tuberculosis research.

Has Drawbacks
A good vaccine already exists but it has drawbacks which limit its use in the United States, prevents it from being the weapon that could wipe out the bacilli, and points up a glaring deficiency in science's knowledge of the disease. It is BCG, a vaccine based on an attenuated or weakened strain of the bacillus. It causes an extremely mild form of the disease which is quickly put down by body defenses, and leaves an unknown degree of immunity to any subsequent invasion of fully virulent bacilli. There is no question of it being safe — it has been in wide use in Scandinavia and other parts of Western Europe for years.

The immunity it bestows varies from person to person. In some it may be long-lasting; in others it may hardly exist. There is no way of telling which person has immunity short of a challenge by virulent bacilli, but it makes all who get it "positive reactors" to the tuberculin test which can separate the TB-susceptible from the non-susceptible. It is on this ground that U.S. medical authorities oppose its widespread use.

Not Fully Understood
The layman may find it hard to believe, but science does not fully understand the chemical make-up of tubercle bacillus, how it breathes, multiplies, and finally dies. Not does it know precisely how the anti-tuberculosis drugs act against bacilli. There are a number of theories, none proved.

Science also has the problem of bacilli learning to multiply despite the attacks of anti-tuberculosis drugs. Most scientists feel this is bound to happen some day on a large enough scale to make the present drugs more or less worthless. So far this "resistance" problem appears in only about two per cent of the case treated.

Dulles Reportedly to Undergo Surgeon's Knife Upon Return

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—If there be occasions when it is right and decent to join in the circulation of rumors, perhaps this is one of those occasions.

The rumors concern the health of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. A responsible diplomat told a United Press International reporter this week that Dulles' condition was such as to require delayed surgery on his return from the Paris NATO talks.

Other equally responsible and presumably well informed news sources, much closer to the secretary, instantly told UPI men that no surgery was in prospect. None claims, however, that Dulles is a well man. He was accompanied to Paris by a physician. Best judgment here is that his illness — inflammation of the colon — just before leaving for Paris was quite serious, that his recuperation was not complete and that he made the Paris trip with reluctant medical consent.

Dulles himself took note of reports about his health and authorized this statement from Paris Thursday:

"There is no basis in fact for speculative stories appearing in the press today that Secretary of State Dulles is expected to re-enter the hospital following his return to Washington with a view to surgery. In fact the secretary has almost completely recovered from the inflammatory condition of the colon which required treatment in Walter Reed Hospital, Washington."

The health of Dulles' colon is peculiarly his own personal concern except for this fact: Dulles is a public servant engaged in most urgent importance to millions upon millions of free people. A fair question would be: Is that a job for a man who is not physically fit?

Author - doctor Hugh L'Etang wrote a year ago in a British medical journal that British and American statesmen controlling the destinies of millions over the past 50 years were ill, even dying, men at times of crisis. He cited: President Wilson, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Stanley Baldwin, Neville Chamberlain, Ernest Bevin, Sir Stafford Cripps, Harry L. Hopkins and Lord Keynes. These men were ill when the people and events demanded their best, vigorous judgment and action.

(treaty and entering the League of Nations.

He said of FDR: "It has been said that the concessions made to the Russians at Yalta were the mistakes of a dying man."

L'Etang noted that FDR nominated Harry L. Hopkins to act for him — "a man so debilitated by sickness that Roosevelt, himself, referred to Hopkins as 'half a man'."

It is a matter of record now that some of FDR's friends knew him to be ill and perhaps nearing death before his fourth term reelection in 1944. William D. Hassett's fascinating "Off the Record with FDR," just published, relates that shortly after the return from Yalta the presidential party arrived on March 30, 1945, in Warm Springs. Bill said to Dr. Howard Bruenn: "He is slipping away from us and no earthly power can keep him."

Dr. Bruenn was non-committal. Bill adds: "I reminded him that I gave the same warning when we were here last December."

That was some weeks before Yalta.

Turkeys Rate As Leading Market Buys
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pre-Christmas food shoppers will find many good buys at markets this weekend.

Among the meats, turkeys lead the parade, as they are in ample supply in nearly every desired size. Broiler-fryers are plentiful and inexpensive, also. Although some markets will feature certain economical cuts of beef, pork is about the best bet in red meats, with smoked ham, sausage, and bacon bearing excellent price tags. Legs of lamb will be a good buy at many markets

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our son's favorite sport is deer hunting. He's a good hunter and I am not worried about him because he is careful, but my problem is that he skips school to go deer hunting. He's not such a hot student, either. I have covered up for him in the past, but refuse to do it again. Don't tell me to talk to his father because his father travels. Thank you.

MRS. J. L.

DEAR MRS. L.: Tell the lad that he is not to skip any more school to go deer hunting... and if he does, TAN HIS DEAR HIDE!

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of four young boys. I have taught them never to accept money from strangers and they don't. On the bus yesterday, a strange man offered my 8-year-old a dime. My boy said, "No thank you I am not allowed to take it." But this full grown man insisted and forced the dime into his little hand and turned away. I watched the whole thing and hesitated to interfere because I didn't want to cause a scene. What would you have done in a case like that, Abby?

MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'd have told the man politely, but firmly, that my son was taught never to accept money from strangers.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend's parents are good friends with my parents so on Parents' Visiting Night at school they stopped by to pick up my parents just to be sociable, my mother got out a bottle of wine and some small glasses. They all had some. They might have smelled a little, but they acted just like everybody else's parents. My mother has a natural giggly way and my father always talks loud. Now it's all over school that our parents came to school "high as a kite" and "half-plastered." We are so ashamed we can hardly face our friends. How can we get people to believe our parents are as nice as theirs?

TWO ASHAMED GIRLS
DEAR GIRLS: Don't attempt to defend them. They used poor judgment in having even a little "nip" before going to school. They'll know better next time.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a retired Coast Guard officer who is crowding 55 and am all alone. Do you think somewhere there is a good girl for me? My pension is $220.80 for life. I'd gladly go to work and give this girl my pension. I'd love her very much and give her everything I have. I am partial to Spanish girls. They will be true to you. I'm Irish Catholic and studied to be a priest. I speak Latin, French and Spanish. If you send me an address, I'll go anywhere.

DEAR L. R.: Go to your nearest parish priest and have a long talk with him. He can introduce you to people whose interests are the same as your own. Don't be in such a big hurry to "go anywhere" to find your dream girl. She's probably right in your own back yard.

CONFIDENTIAL TO BOB AT IBM: "A lie will be half-way around the earth before the truth gets its trousers on." Forget it.

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.
If you want a collection of Abby's best letters and answers in one book, ask your bookdealer to get "DEAR ABBY" for you.

YOUNG IDEAS
from Polly Ponde

Q: "If I really want to look glamorous when I'm out on a special date, what kind of make-up would you suggest?"

A: Use a tinted liquid make-up and a matching shade of compressed powder. Smooth the liquid make-up on first; blend it evenly over your entire face, then pat on the compressed powder. This slightly heavier but natural looking complexion cover should last through an active evening without requiring touch-ups.

Since electric light tends to wash out color, you'll look well with a touch of rouge on your cheeks. If this cosmetic is in cake form apply it over your foundation and powder.

Wear bright, medium-to-dark lipstick. To make it last longer, first dust your lips with powder. Apply the lipstick, let it set for a moment, then blot with a tissue.

Touch your eyebrows with cold cream and persuade them, with a tiny brush or the edge of your comb, to lie in a perfect arch.

Mature Parent

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

John is 4. Mike is about 2 years old.

Soon after their parents introduced us, they invited me to inspect their treasure chests. Mike leaned against my arm while John filled my lap with airplanes, toy autos, train tracks and conductor's cap. Mike gazed meditatively and tolerantly upon us, as his brother interpreted their merits to me.

When John, finally exhausting his toy box, said, "Mike's got a frog that squeaks," his younger brother trotted over to his box, and hauling out his frog, started his parade of books, stuffed animals and old pot lids.

Twenty minutes later we rejoined the grownups, John brandishing a pistol to which he is especially attached.

As I sat down, Mike made a lung for it. John knocked him down. As their mother rushed to Mike, she looked to me over his head to ask with mingled anxiety and embarrassment, "What do you do about that? It goes on all the time."

Now, we really resent people who give us the answers to our problems. So in social situations, I evade questions like this. But this time I answered.

I said, "How can that be so? It can't go on all the time. I've just finished watching a 20-minute display of your little boys' respect and tolerance of each other."

Our hostess treated me with an awe for the rest of the afternoon that made me horribly uncomfortable. For in my observation of her children there had been nothing remarkable. It just seemed remarkable to her because she has no eyes for their respect and tolerance.

For reasons which have to do with our anxieties about ourselves, we are often blind to the respectful tolerance which children mix with their jealousy of each other.

We use their happy times of mutual acceptance to fret about ourselves. So we don't register these times as happy and good.

We only register the yelling moments because they force us out of our preoccupation — and invest them with the importance of the fears and resentments we have been feeling ourselves. We say helplessly to anyone who'll listen, "This goes on all the time."

But where it does go on all the time is in ourselves.

"Dear Santa... Please Bring Me Clothing For Christmas This Year... Love Dad"

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA) — Assorted Christmas ideas, suggestions, hints, tips and clues:

There's no doubt but that men like gifts of clothing. Certain things they wouldn't otherwise buy for themselves are perfect gift items. But you either must know the size or get a gift certificate or arrange for easy exchange of the merchandise. Otherwise, you can spread gloom.

If size is beyond you ken, and you'd rather steer clear of a gift certificate, stay away from sized merchandise completely. You could take a chance on a sports shirt (small, medium or large are the usual sizes, and you can generally estimate that) or stretch socks which are sizeless.

Or accessory items. This year, the stores are packed with gift sets which couple all kinds of things in attractive packages. You can get ties to match handkerchiefs, belts to match wallets, cuff links to match belt buckles, and so on. The package wraps neatly and offers a well-chosen treat.

Handkerchiefs are old standbys and this year they've blossomed some. You'll find them in paisley designs and decorated with sports themes that make nice giving. You might also try kerchiefs—big handkerchiefs—which are being used increasingly under open-necked sports shirts.

Also safe are the new reversible mufflers, which go with almost any coat a man has; jewelry of all kinds (but make sure your man is big and bold before you give him big and bold jewelry); the new knee-high stretch socks that support the leg and foot and have no size; and the old favorite, the tie.

This year, designers are capitalizing on the fact that men's and women's sport clothes are getting closer together and you'll find many packages of "his and hers" sports wear. (In a burst of coyness, Carter's call their packages of matching knit sleepwear "Together Knits.")

Manhattan has sets of matching sports shirts and matching pajamas. The latter come packaged with pom-pom caps and soft sole slippers for both parties.

The question naturally arises, with these "his and hers" sets—who gives them and who gets them. If that can be settled satisfactorily, they do make a cute gift idea, and one that has a practical side, too—with the same pajamas, husband and wife can have the same dream and cut down on the times it takes to compare dreams.

Christmas can be a the-sky's-the-limit time, if you have a the-sky's-the-limit budget. You can find presents for any price, including what could be the most luxurious hat in the world. It's Churchill's "The Eden," and it retails for a nice even $100. This includes a black leather traveling case.

The hat is a soft, snuggly job, something like a Homburg, but less formal. It's made of beaver and vicuña and is an elegant affair.

Red Griggs ★ the pipeline

The Harvesters came pretty close to having their 20-game winning streak broken last night—without setting foot on a basketball court.

In fact, through a schedule snafu, they came dangerously close to not showing up for the Lawton tournament. Coach Clifton McNeely thought the tournament was to start Friday, and the Friday-Saturday dates had been printed on the Harvester schedules.

However, McNeely got a call Wednesday from a Lawton newspaper man, and he found that the tournament was to be played Thursday and Friday.

The Harvesters departed for Lawton early Thursday morning—so they won't have their winning streak broken by a forfeit loss. Wouldn't it have been something, if the longest skein in the state had been broken, by a team the Harvesters had never seen?

Good Reserve Strength—No?

When basketball season started, many people thought that the Harvesters had a good starting five, and not much to back it up.

But now it's easy to see how wrong that idea was. One of the reserves proved to be so good, that a Hobbs sport writer didn't even suspect he was a substitute. McNeely was accused of running up the score by not using any reserves until the third quarter.

Joe Timms played both Hobbs games, in place of ailing Craig Winborn, and did a fine job. Phillip Gist also did a good job in both Hobbs games, although he didn't play as much as Timms. Gist and Timms would probably be on the starting five for any other basketball team in the state. Timms is the best rebounder we've ever seen, for his height, and Gist has a very good shooting eye.

Two Exes Make Good

Sam Condo, a former Harvester, is one of the two sophomores starting for the Hardin-Simmons basketball team.

Condo, a 6-3 forward, broke into the starting lineup last year as a freshman. He played in 16 games, scoring 190 points.

This year, Condo scored 26 points and got 10 rebounds in his first three games. Hardin-Simmons coach Bill Scott considers Sam one of the best players on the team because of his speed, ball handling ability, and playmaking.

Another Harvester ex (football this time) is one of the 25 grid lettermen at North Texas. John Darby got his third Eagle monogram this year.

Darby helped Odus Mitchell's Eagles put together one of their best seasons in history, as they won the Missouri Valley Conference championship with a 7-2-1 record.

The 165-pound halfback scored three touchdowns, gained 187 yards and had a kickoff return of 88 yards.

Darby, the son of Mrs. Gladys would probably see a lot of action on most cage squads, though they might not start for some of the better ones.

It's a cinch no one is going to beat the Harvesters just by causing one, or even two players to foul out. There'll always be someone pretty good, ready to replace them. Any team that beats Pampa is going to have to outplay five good men, no matter which five men are on the floor.

Craig Winborn has been out for two full games, and Coyle Winborn has been pulled out of two games for more than a full quarter, because of fouls. Good as the Winborns are, neither was missed very badly.

When you can lose players the caliber of the Winborns, and play as if they weren't even out of the game—you've got some real bench strength.

Reese Retires; Signs as Coach

By JOHN G. DIETRICH
United Press International

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—The Little Colonel hung up his glove the same way he played it in the major leagues for 16 seasons like a ballplayer and a gentleman.

Retired as a player and signed as a coach by the Los Angeles Dodgers Thursday, Peeewe Reese accepted the end of his playing career cheerfully but with a touch of sadness too.

"When you've played so long, you hate the thought of not being in the thick of things any more," Reese said at his home here, "but maybe it's for the best. I've had a bad back for a couple of years... maybe it was time to quit." Reese hinted his baseball career might not last much longer than his playing days. "I don't expect to be in baseball all my life," he said, "or at least I hope not. I'll try this coaching deal for a year and see what works out. Not that I'm complaining at all, you understand, but coaching isn't the best money in the world, and besides it's time for me to settle down with my family."

ball coach. Holladay and his team are looking for their first state championship.

The Bucks went to the regional playoffs four times before this year, but never got any further. Last year, Holladay's gridders won the bi-district championship, but lost to Ralls 27-26 in the regional playoff.

This time, White Deer is favored to take it all. The Bucks have won 13 games and tied one — a 6-6 deadlock early in season with powerful Stinnett. In the other 13 games, only Mason (12-8 last week) and McLean (22-6 in district play) gave White Deer a real scare.

The Bucks are one of the highest scoring teams in the state, as they have amassed 5,269 yards on the ground.

Powell has run for 1970 yards, and Harmon has a rushing total of 1152 yards.

The Bulldogs have a 12-2 record, having lost two early season games, 0-21 to Caldwell and 8-24 to Taylor. Their main claim to fame was a 16-8 win over defending champion Mart in the quarterfinals.

Elgin has scored 329 points while allowing 129. According to White Deer scouting reports, they usually put only two or three drives together in a game, and average less than 200 yards on the ground.

In playoff games, the Bulldogs have beaten Waco Midway 26-15, Warren 28-24, Mart 16-8, and George West 14-6.

White Deer Squad
Eleven seniors will be playing their last game for White Deer Saturday; and in addition to the seniors, Holladay will take seven juniors, six sophomores, and five freshmen to Sweetwater.

The seniors are tailback Hershel Powell, tackle Tommy Powell, wingback Don Adams, tackle Bob McCreary, and Ronnie Cade, center Jimmy McKernan, guard Robert Anderwald, tailback Allen Harmon, halfback Charles Jackson, end Jeff Bearden, and end Rodney DeFeaver.

Juniors making the trip are tackle Scottie Barnes, guard Bryan Coady, quarterback Jackie Burns, guard Roger Crawford, center David Crawford, end Mark Collins, and halfback Don Driskill. Sophomores are halfback Tommy Lester, tailback Don Carter, quarterback Dickie Hanna, guard Wayne Hughes, halfback Joe Grange, and end Dean Reed.

Freshmen are center Jimmy Lopez, guard Joe Gorzelik, fullback Joe McAdams, guard Jimmy Hassler, and quarterback Shelby Sharp.

Wellington — Carver High of Pampa won its ninth straight conference game here Wednesday night, outscoring Wellington 66-53.

Robert O'Neal led Carver scoring with 18 points; Raymond Duke and George Duke each had 11.

Carver also won a girls' game, 39-24. Roy Sue Bunton netted 23 points, and Claudette Cash scored 10 for Carver.

Olmedo, Richardson Win-Net Openers

PERTH, Australia (UPI)—Alex Olmedo and Hamilton Richardson ripped through their opening matches—with comparative ease to give the United States Davis cup tennis team a 2-0 lead over Italy today in the inter-zone final.

Olmedo, a 22-year-old student at Southern California, spotted Nicola Pietrangeli the first set and then bounced back with a vengeance to win the opening match of the best-of-five series, 5-7, 10-8, 6-0, 6-1.

A small crowd of about 2,500 then watched Richardson, a Cup veteran from Louisiana who now resides in Arlington, Va., cut Orlando Sirola down to size by winning his match in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2, 7-5.

The Yanks need only one more victory in the three remaining matches to gain a berth opposite Australia in the challenge round at Brisbane, Dec. 29-31. They can clinch the series in Saturday's doubles match when Richardson and Olmedo will team up against the same Italian pair they handled so easily in the initial firing.

VIRGINIA IN OPENER
WILLAMSBURG, Va. (UPI)—William & Mary resumes football activity against Virginia next fall in the opener of a 10-game schedule for the Indians.

Three Slight Injuries
All players on the squad, except for Driskill, are ready for action. Driskill was injured in the Gruver game, and has been unable to play since then.

However, three other players may be slowed somewhat by injuries — Powell, Burns, and Adams. Adams, who was out of the Mason game last week with an injury, is probably the only one who will be seriously handicapped.

Burns turned his ankle last week, but is pretty well recovered. He was never taken out of the game. Powell has been limping from a slight knee injury, but is expected to see plenty of action.

Big Vic Klinker led the night's scoring, with 19 points for Tulane. Tulane led at the half, 28-25.

In Southwest Conference action tonight, Texas A&M plays Alabama there, Tulsa goes to Arkansas, Loyola goes to Texas Christian, North Texas goes to Texas, and Louisiana State travels to Texas Tech.

Four Bowie players scored in double figures. Brown netted 17 to top the losers. John Stephenson tallied 13; Don Smith bucketed 11, and Love meshed 10.

Feature match of the night will be Carl McClure vs. James Stepp. McClure, the Dumas heavyweight fighting for Pampa, is Texas Golden Gloves runner-up. Stepp was a national quarter-finalist last year. Stepp, a 210-pound colored fighter, is a southpaw.

The Clovis team includes three other New Mexico champions and one runner-up. They are 155-pound runner-up Blaze Garcia; 126-pound champ Wally Nelson; five-time welterweight open champion Wilbur Washington, and welterweight novice champ Theo Nance.

The Greens hit 23 of 33 free throws, while the Bears hit 13 of 19.

Gene McCarley was high scorer for the Bears with 15 points.

Slugging averages are determined by the number of total bases a player collects compared with his official times at bat. Colavito finished with a slugging percentage of .620 by rapping out 303 total bases in 189 times up.

The Cleveland outfielder's batting average was only .302, but he hammered out 41 homers, 26 doubles and three triples. His 113 runs batted in was exceeded only by Jackie Jensen of the Red Sox, who led the league with 122.

Mickey Mantle of the Yankees and Bob Cerv of the Athletics finished in a second place tie as far as slugging laurels were concerned. Each registered a mark of .502.

Ted Williams, the Boston slugger who won the 1957 slugging crown with a .731 figure, wound up fourth this year with .584. He was followed by Roy Stevens of the Senators, .544; Jensen, .535, and Bob Nieman of the Orioles, .522.

Mantle drew the most bases on balls, 129, but that total was well under the 146 with which he led the league in 1957. Of those 129 walks, 12 were intentional, and that figure also was tops in the circuit.

Mantle and Jim Lemon of Washington each struck out 120 times to wind up in a tie for that "distinction," while at the other extreme, Nellie Fox of the White Sox fanned only 11 times in 155 games.

Ted Williams, the Boston slugger who won the 1957 slugging crown with a .731 figure, wound up fourth this year with .584. He was followed by Roy Stevens of the Senators, .544; Jensen, .535, and Bob Nieman of the Orioles, .522.

Mantle drew the most bases on balls, 129, but that total was well under the 146 with which he led the league in 1957. Of those 129 walks, 12 were intentional, and that figure also was tops in the circuit.

YOUR FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is not license. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, The Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence. This newspaper is dedicated to promoting and preserving YOUR freedom as well as our own. For only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

Population Boom

Unquestionably, there is a growth in population in the United States. Thru the years, periodic surveys are made with various prognosticators suggesting future population totals in general, and in certain localities specifically.

There is a general feeling that population growth is a good thing for business. What is usually overlooked is that business, while it unquestionably depends upon customers, also is dependent upon capital. And the enormous population expectations in this country, unless they are matched by an equal or greater expectation of capital for investment purposes, presage a decline in the American standard of living during the next twenty years.

We have only to examine the tremendous populations of such heavily populated areas as China and India, to recognize that population alone does not signal an economic utopia. What does make for a sound economy is a plus factor relating to investment capital, coupled with a reasonable population expansion.

As America's population expands, it is mandatory that private savings be multiplied many times over. It is now estimated that in order to employ one worker gainfully today, a minimum investment of $15,000 in tools and equipment is essential. This is an average. In some lines of work the investment per worker is far greater, running up to $50,000 or $60,000.

Actually, however, there is another factor at work in our burgeoning cities and rural areas which is rarely mentioned and scarcely understood. That is, that despite the increase in the number of babies to arrive, the fertility of the nation's people as a whole is now less than half what it was in 1800.

Right now, even in the twelfth year of our post World War II marriage and baby boom, births per thousand of people per year have dropped to 25. In 1800 it used to be more than 50 per thousand per year.

Experiments

One of the doctrines enunciated by Franklin Delano Roosevelt while he was first running for office is contained in the following excerpt from a speech he delivered in May of 1932 at Oglethorpe University.

"The country needs and, unless I mistake its temper, the country demands bold, persistent experimentation. It is common sense to take a method and try it. If it fails, admit it frankly and try another. But above all, try something."

If the governor of New York had been speaking in terms of chemicals, metals, foods or other scientific experimentation with inanimate objects, we could readily applaud him. But since he and other socialist-minded persons were actually thinking in terms of human beings, the doctrine thus set forth is an alien one which supposes that human beings are to be used like so many guinea pigs; that they can be converted, twisted, warped and frustrated, like rats in a laboratory, and, in theory, they are supposed to be grateful for whatever happens to them.

This policy of experimenting with human beings has been carried on from 1933 to the present date, by our government. It has resulted in the creation of the most far-reaching emotional and mental instability. For there are few Americans now who can, with certainty, attest to what conditions will be like for them a few years from now. Everywhere is great confusion and instability.

The lack of fixed principles is to be noted in the market place, the schools, the churches, and everywhere that man lives and works. If government has a useful function, a part of that function is to provide a climate of assurance, not a climate of frantic insecurity. Yet, this policy of experimentation with human beings, even experiments in such things as social adjustment and social security, accomplishes little except to create a climate of consternation and confusion.

We now have, in this nation, an atmosphere of constant and ever-mounting emergency. We move from one emergency to the next, applying non-scientific, experimental theories on the people. If this program is continued indefinitely, we will end by converting rational people into persons with the mentality of field mice.

One of the most far-reaching experiments ever conducted by any government in any age, is the socialist-inspired integration program. The evil in this program relates to the use of compulsion. Persons are not urged to integrate. They are not pleaded with or argued with as to the advantages supposedly contained in integration. Rather, whether they like it or not, they are forced, at bayonet point, to integrate.

But since the human beings in this vast sociological experiment have reacted to this idea in very definite and measurable degrees, it might be instructive to examine some of this reaction to see how the experiment is working out. Some two years ago President Eisenhower announced with great joy that integration had been achieved in the schools in the nation's capital. He went off to say that he hoped that the example set by the schools in Washington, D.C. would be followed in all other cities in the nation. Very well. Let us see that the results of integration as they now appear, after a little more than two years of this particular experiment.

"A Short History Of Liberty" By Dean Russell

I know of few better ways that a man who loves the American way of life can better serve his fellowman than to get a set of "Essays on Liberty" issued by The Foundation for Economic Education, Irvington-on-Hudson, New York and read it and get his friends to read it.

What is needed most in the United States is more people who understand and can explain the meaning of free private enterprise. This book will help one understand that Liberty is synonymous with free private enterprise.

The cost of the complete set, I believe, is $12. You might buy one book of "Essays" for $2.50, then you'll have a good idea whether you'll have to put the money into the complete set. Each book has a little more than 400 pages.

As a sample of what these "Essays" are like, I want to reproduce Dean Russell's essay on "A Short History Of Liberty" as follows:

"From Biblical times onward, the history of liberty and progress among various peoples seems to have followed a remarkably similar pattern. There are exceptions, of course — and the time element varies widely — but the pattern may be generally described by ten key ideas in sequence:

"1. BONDAGE. At some point in their histories, all peoples seem to have existed in some form of bondage or slavery — frequently even to their own domestic rulers by their own votes or acquiescence. But when thoughtful persons finally become aware that they are no longer free men, they want to know why. When they ask themselves that question, they automatically turn to contemplation and soul searching. Out of this grows . . .

"2. FAITH. If people in bondage have no faith — either in a personal Creator or impersonal ideal — they will remain slaves and eventually die out or be absorbed by another culture. But an intelligent faith will almost always develop into . . .

"3. UNDERSTANDING. A person's faith needs to be buttressed by an understanding of why it is evil to force any peaceful person to conform to the will and ideas of another person. Otherwise, he is apt to remain a faithful slave or attempt to become a slave-owner. But the combination of faith and understanding results in the necessary . . .

"4. COURAGE. You may depend upon it, courageous men with faith and understanding will neither remain in bondage nor keep others in bondage. Even against great odds, this combination leads to . . .

"5. LIBERTY. Liberty is a relationship among persons wherein no person molests any other peaceful person in his ideas, possessions, or actions. Liberty may also be viewed as the responsibility one assumes for himself and recognizes in all others, for there can be no liberty where there is no responsibility. Liberty has never existed completely among people at any time, but where it has existed to a high degree, the resulting freedom to work, trade, choose, win, lose, and bargain has always meant . . .

"6. ABUNDANCE. But if an abundance of material things is the primary aim of a person, his life is devoid of any real meaning. For if the goal is abundance, its achievement logically results in . . .

"7. COMPLACENCY. Complacency and self-satisfaction (the "full barns" of the Biblical lesson) inevitably lead to . . .

"8. APATHY. With apathy comes a dullness and a loss of interest — a "let George do it" philosophy. And there will always be many political "Georges" around to accept this invitation to seize both the reins and the whip. This always degenerates into . . .

"9. DEPENDENCY. For a time, it is possible for dependents to be unaware that they are dependents. As they continue to shed the personal responsibilities which are freedom, they also continue to delude themselves that they are still free people — "We never had it so good." Or they may be deluded into believing that they are still free so long as they themselves are able to participate in the mechanical processes of selecting their rulers—"We can still vote, can't we?" But dependents are at the mercy of the persons or groups or parties upon whom they depend for their housing, or security in old age, or subsidies, or education, or medical care, or any of the other aids from political authority which cause persons to depend on others instead of themselves. Sooner or later, this dependency becomes known by its true nature . . .

"10. BONDAGE. Fortunately, the record shows that people can regain their faith, understanding, and constructive pastime.

of venereal disease. Total cases: 896, of which 13 were among whites, 883 among Negroes.

Boys: 286 cases, of which 8 were whites, 258 Negroes. Girls: 630 cases, of which 5 were whites, 625 Negroes. If Mr. Roosevelt was correct, we must simply examine these statistics and conclude that the experiment has provided us with some useful information, never mind the cost in human misery. If Mr. Roosevelt was incorrect, we might conclude that experimenting with human lives is a dangerous and destructive pastime.

Robert Allen Reports:

Three Point Program Will Be Recommended

WASHINGTON — A three-point program to help security agencies deal with dangerous Soviet espionage in the U.S. will be recommended by the House Un-American Activities Committee when Congress convenes.

The recommendations, adopted unanimously, are based on a year's study and a Committee finding that Communist diplomats are using blackmail and threats to recruit naturalized-American citizens for spying.

The Committee will propose: Legislation requiring all Communist nations to furnish sworn statements before sending anyone to this country with diplomatic status, or as part of a trade or other mission, saying the diplomat has never been declared persona non grata by another nation for espionage.

Legislation making it mandatory for U.S. citizens approached by any representative of a foreign nation for espionage purposes to report this to the Attorney General within two weeks.

Official announcement that we plan to do everything possible to encourage defection of Soviet diplomats sent from behind the Iron Curtain as spies.

The Committee will urge that these same policies be extended to NATO and SEATO countries, which share many of our secrets. To dramatize the danger from Moscow's use of diplomacy for spy activity, the Committee is publishing, for the first time, details of a number of cases in which threats and blackmail were used in an effort to entrap American citizens in espionage.

FROM THE FILES — CASE NO. 1: Miss Z, a naturalized citizen, is employed by a government defense agency. She went to the embassy of her native country, which is now under a Communist regime, to inquire about relatives.

A short time later, she was contacted by an official of the embassy who tried to recruit her into the Soviet espionage network. He asked about policies of our government affecting his country. He also questioned her about employment in our Central Intelligence Agency, certain Intelligence schools of the armed forces, and the State Department, who could be useful to Communists. He tried to persuade Miss Z to invite influential employees of her own agency to lunch with him at her home, and made no secret of his desire to get information on policy trends.

Miss Z was assured by the "diplomat" that if she ran into trouble for cooperating with him he would see she had safe passage back to her native land.

ENFORCED COOPERATION — CASE NO. 2: Mr. F, a naturalized American citizen who is active in anti-Communist refugee and exile groups, was approached by an official of a Red embassy in Washington, and asked to gather information from his contacts inside the government.

In his talks with Mr. F, the embassy official revealed surprising familiarity with case histories of many persons in anti-Communist and refugee organizations. He also knew about assignments and backgrounds of key employees of the U.S. Information Agency, and asked Mr. F to find out which of these still had relatives behind the Iron Curtain.

The agent told Mr. F he had been ordered by his superiors to purposes of regimentation and subsidization. The record shows that people can, by their own intelligent actions, regain their liberty any time they want it.

and courage. They can again become persons and citizens who are responsible for their own welfare, rather than units and sub-jects identified by numbers for

Looking Sideways

By Whitney Bolton

NEW YORK — New York and environs is a system of circuits. The old days of the theater had nearby but outlying houses as try-out theaters for new plays. This was known as the Subway Circuit, since the actors could get to their jobs by subway. An area of Manhattan's East Side, dotted with expensive restaurants, is known as the Mink Circuit. The financial district often enough is the Money Circuit. A summer area of hotels with entertainment, in the Catskills, is known as the Borscht Circuit. And no one, until this pretty minute, has ever noted that Manhattan is also dotted with Latin-American, Spanish and Portuguese restaurants which entertainers call the Castanet Circuit. I had it from Anita Alvarez, a lithe Mexican orchid who is by way of being a major castanet clicker.

The three major houses in the Castanet Circuit are El Chico, El Charro and Liborio, with Cafe Madrid and Jai-Alai in there as king pieces in the circuit.

"There are many of these," said Anita, "but those are the principals. In the Red Book under restaurants, it may astonish you to see Latin restaurants are exceeded in number in New York only by French and Italian houses. And each specializes in regional dishes. They all offer atmosphere and a background of fiery music and castanets, but the menu is of a region. El Chico is Asturian, Cafe Madrid is Galecia and Jai-Alai is Basque. Liborio is pure Cuban, El Charro is Mexican. There are South American houses, too, offering in each case either Argentinean or Brazilian cooking, or even Central American. Look at Liborio and his famed roast baby goat. That is Cuban of the Cubans. Or a more generalized dish which is as Spanish as it is Cuban or Vera Cruzano: baby squid cooked in their own ink over a snowy mound of rice.

CASE NO. 3: Mr. and Mrs. T are both naturalized citizens. They came from different European nations now under Red domination. Mrs. T heard that one of her relatives, who still lives abroad, was seriously ill and needed medicine then went to the embassy of the country in question to find out if he could send medicine to the sick relative. He was told the matter would be looked into.

A short time later, Mr. T was contacted and asked a series of questions about himself, his wife and the sick relative. He was told the only way to send medicine was through the embassy. Mrs. T then took a supply of medicine there for shipment.

Mr. T is employed in a defense agency, and has access to classified information. Several times he has been contacted by the embassy official and asked about classified defense matters. The same diplomat tried to persuade Mrs. T to visit her sick relative. After talking this over with U.S. security agencies, Mrs. T decided not to risk being seized as a hostage.

UNWITTING COURIER — CASE NO. 4: Mr. S, a naturalized citizen, went to New York on behalf of a committee trying to get exit permits for persons wanting to leave an Iron Curtain country. When he talked to an official of the consulate there, he was promised cooperation if Mr. S would do some favors for consular employees who were not allowed to leave New York without a permit, and wanted to stop in other cities. Mr. S agreed to help.

A few weeks later, he received a phone call from the official. He was asked to stop at a store in Boston and pick up a package, then bring it to New York on his next trip.

For a year, Mr. S picked up packages in various cities and took them to the consulate in New York. Occasionally he carried material to other cities, including some in Canada.

Finally, on one call, he was taken to the office of a consular official. He was told the package he had just delivered contained espionage material, and that all his "favors" had been work for the Soviet spy ring. He was told he could be jailed or killed for this, and had no choice but to continue. He was reminded of his family and warned not to go to the FBI.

Mr. S left the consulate in despair. He began saying he was sick and couldn't travel when calls came urging him to pick up packages. Finally it was suggested to him that one of his grandchildren might disappear. He turned to his parish priest for help. Government security agencies were brought into the case, and the consular official was expelled from the country.

It is important to identify a youngster with crossed eyes just as early as possible and to start skilled treatment promptly. Those who do not do this will have a child who is handicapped by something which might have been corrected.

There are several kinds of treatment for crossed eyes. Some of them can be started as early as the first year. Which of the various methods to use is a matter which must be decided by the physician. It may be that glasses will be recommended and this alone may or may not be sufficient.

Another method of treatment is to place a patch over the "good" eye. This forces the youngster to use the weaker eye and therefore strengthens the muscles and vision. Eye muscle exercises are sometimes prescribed and this may be in addition to glasses.

Sometimes surgery is necessary if the other methods fail or if the physician feels they will not work. This is not considered a dangerous procedure when done by a competent specialist.

The results of treatment do not come at once. It may take a year or longer to bring about improvement, but it is well worthwhile. The poor eyesight which accompanies crossed eyes is a severe handicap for any youngster. It interferes with his work in school and his pleasure at play. It can also have a serious psychological effect, since playmates may call him "cockeyed" or some other condition by himself.

It is important to identify a youngster with crossed eyes just as early as possible and to start skilled treatment promptly. Those who do not do this will have a child who is handicapped by something which might have been corrected.

Hankering

There are only two people a man trusts completely in his lifetime. The two are his doctor and his automobile mechanic.

And of the two, he trusts the mechanic the most. He sees his mechanic more often, for one thing. This is due to the fact that the automobile is not as good a chunk of machinery as is the human body. Carpenters need adjusting much more than the heart. For which we can all be thankful.

For another, most of us seem to care more for our cars than we do for ourselves. Let our car rattle, or let it skip, and off to the garage we go. But how many of us, when our human cylinders get to missing, take immediate care?

This column is being written in a garage. The Grand Prix garage on Empire Way in Seattle, just to pinpoint it. I came here this morning with an ailing car. I wanted it diagnosed.

From the moment I drove through the doors of the garage, cooking. You also go to that place in 52nd Street below the Alvir Theater for paella and Spanish cold soup in summer. They call it gaspacho. It's really Gaspacho. But delightful. And where but at Xochitl can you get that serene Isthmian dish, straight from Yucatan, but baby pig with hot peppers and an oil sauce?

Did the people working these restaurants as entertainers really think of the group as the Castanet Circuit?

"Oh, sure," she said. "What else covers them all? The castanets are as indigenous — that's the word, hombre? — as butter. More. Butter is not Latin. We work here a few weeks and there a few weeks and in some we work with orchestra and in some with a mad genius at the Flamenco guitar who sits there in a rickety chair making divine music that sets you aflame and crying out his 'ole, ole' every now and then. Go see Perez Blanco at Liborio or Renito Calanca at El Chico, they will tell you. Great, wonderful eating places and each with its immediate truth-sign: the natives of the areas each restaurant represents come there and they are not tourist traps. They are homes away from homes for Puerto Ricans, Cubans, Spaniards, Mexicans, Portuguese, Central and South American men and women. You hear the accents of the areas in the soft, liquid Spanish. The 'Ricans' with their elliptical speech, dropping 's' and 'd' from words. Like 'tostado' becomes 'toto.' 'Pescado' becomes 'pecao.' Cubans tend to drop these letters, too, but Castillians are precision itself, the perfect speech, the language of Cervantes, pure and golden and warm. Like Madrid is, of course, 'Mahdreed' but to a Castilian it is 'Mathreeth,' with the 'th' as soft as sunlight."

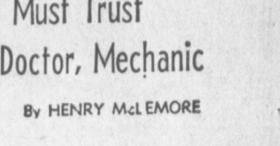

What brought about this concentration of Latin restaurants? "I think the influx of Puerto Ricans, a heavy South American influx, increased trade with Latin areas, bringing their business men here, and finally the rapid rise of Mexico and Spain as 'musts' for American tourists. They learn to like the native dishes there and come back home demanding some place to get the same, authentic and honest. I'm working El Chico in a couple of weeks. Come see me. We'll have arroz con pollo together. So long, Cechupin."

So long, Anita. Hasta la vista, hija.

Yes, my car pulled through.
