SMALL WORLD, INDEED!

BALLOON BELIEVED IN OCEAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—The missing balloon "Small World" that left the Canary Islands Dec. 12 on a trans-Atlantic aerial voyage today was believed to be down in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean.

The balloon, with a specially designed gondola that could be converted into a sailboat if forced down, was manned by a crew of three men and one woman on its attempted free flight across the Atlantic.

Peter Eistob, the promoter of the aerial voyage, said he believed the balloon was forced to land in the Atlantic during a heavy rainstorm.

"Judging by the balloon's speed up until the time of last radio contact on Dec. 18, I would estimate that it went down just about in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean," Eistob told United Press International today.

"That would put the boat-type gondola about 1,800 miles east of the West Indies," he said.

Eistob said he felt certain the crew would complete the crossing under sail.

Eistob said that earlier reports from Venezuela that the "Small World" had landed there apparently were a hoax.

Homeward Holiday Traffic Might Avoid Grim Record

Accidents Claim 800 Lives; 596 Perish In Auto Mishaps

United Press International — Motorists in closing hours of the Christmas holidays headed "get scared" warnings and saved the nation from what traffic experts predicted might be a record toll.

A United Press International count at 10:30 a.m. e.s.t. showed at least 596 persons killed in traffic mishaps during the holiday period between 6 p.m. Christmas Eve and midnight Sunday. Eight persons were killed in plane accidents, 96 in fires and 100 from miscellaneous causes for an overall total of 800.

California led the states in traffic deaths with 59. Texas had 46, Illinois 38, New York 34, Ohio 27, and North Carolina and Pennsylvania 25 each.

Five states, Delaware, Rhode Island, Vermont, Wyoming and New Hampshire, reported no fatalities, and North and South Dakota and Utah had one each.

Used Extra Precautions — Early in the holiday period the rate was climbing at a pace higher than in 1956 when 712 persons lost their lives on streets and highways during a four day Christmas observance.

But the rate slackened off during the final two days, and safety experts attributed it to strict traffic enforcement and extra precautions by motorists.

A spokesman for the National Safety Council said, "We are grateful that, bad as it was, the toll ended up so much lower than we had feared it would be in the early hours of the holiday."

"We attribute this sudden improvement that came midway in the weekend," he said, "to all-out traffic enforcement throughout the nation, to the shock of the early toll as imparted to the public by news media, and to the drivers themselves."

"We sincerely hope this shock carries over into the New Year holiday period."

The council had made a pre-holiday estimate of 820 traffic deaths.

AT LAST, NEW YORK PRESSES ROLLING!

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — The giant presses of nine major New York City dailies, stilled 20 days by the costliest strike in newspaper history, rolled once more today, sending forth sorely missed papers for a news-famished public.

Newspapers began hitting the streets this morning, a few hours after the Mail and Deliverers Union Sunday night voted 2,091-537 to accept a new two-year contract.

The reading public, which normally devours 5,500,000 weekday newspapers, and 8 million on Sunday, eagerly snapped up the papers as they reached the newsstands. On all sides there were expressions of relief that the frustrating news blackout was over.

The two morning tabloids came out with jubilant headlines across their front pages.

"We're off and running again," the New York Daily News announced.

And the New York Mirror bannered: "Hello again!"

The prolonged strike had not only gotten on people's nerves but had dealt a hard blow to the city's economy. It cost the publishing business an estimated 25 million dollars in advertising and circulation revenue and additional millions of dollars in losses to department stores, specialty shops, theaters, movies and other concerns.

Also, about 15,000 newspaper workers — editorial employees, printers, pressmen and others — were idled without pay for almost three weeks, losing more than four million dollars in Christmas-time wages.

The publishers granted a $7 package and agreed to distribute the package so the men will receive a $3.55 a week raise the first year, and $1.75 a week more the second year, making a wage increase of $5.30 over the two-year period.

Rebels Nearing Cuban Triumph

By FRANCIS L. MCCARTHY
United Press International
HAVANA (UPI) — Rebel forces driving across the central "waistband" of Cuba in an attempt to cut the island republic in two broadcast appeals to government troops today to end the bitter fighting and join the rebel cause.

The rebels predicted victory on the central front within "a matter of hours."

A rebel radio station which said it was transmitting from the Escambray region in Las Villas province, issued a statement addressed to the Cuban army:

"Men of the armed forces: The end of the dictatorship is near. Soldiers: Join the revolution."

Then, addressing President Fulgencio Batista, the station added: "Fulgencio Batista: you have been left alone with our murderers."

Rebel broadcasts intercepted in Havana said the insurgent forces were on the verge of complete control of the strategic central Cuban province of Las Villas despite heavy losses suffered during more than seven hours of attack by Cuban air force B26 bombers. The rebels also claimed capture of two towns and a sugar mill in Oriente Province, increasing their domination of the area surrounding the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo.

A series of rebel broadcasts heard on short-wave frequencies claimed rebel successes in central Cuba. One broadcast said the mountain city of Trinidad and Cienfuegos on the south coast were totally surrounded by rebel forces and were expected to fall soon.

However, the rebels admitted that Cuban air force B26 bombers inflicted "many" casualties on their forces in attacks near Santa Clara, capital of Las Villas province, and at Jatibonico, 56 miles to the southeast.

Government ground forces pressed their counter-attack against the rebels in the vicinity of Sancti Spiritus, an ancient city of 125,000, and in the Jatibonico area some 19 miles to the east.

President Fulgencio Batista has made Las Villas a major battle area. Last Saturday he shook up the central Cuban army command and ordered 2,000 reinforcements to Las Villas.

The rebel radio in Oriente Province said its forces had seized the Francisco sugar mill on the border of Camaguey Province and the cities of Baracoa in northeast Oriente and Victoria de las Tunas in the central section.

CURRENCY REFORMS

Europe Untying Financial Knots

LONDON (UPI)—Britain and 10 other Western European nations today began removing the last of their wartime financial shackles in a series of currency reforms regarded as the most important economic development in Europe's post-war history.

Currencies of the 11 nations became "externally convertible" which means any foreigner could change them for the first time into "hard" U. S. dollars. The nations hope for full convertibility by the end of 1959.

More than half the world's trade is still conducted in pounds sterling. Businesses could amass great sums of British pounds but could not exchange them for dollars. Now they can to a limited extent; Britain hopes to remove those last limits soon.

Switzerland and became effective at market openings this morning. The Swiss franc and West German Deutsche mark already were rock hard and the Italian lira was sound. First market reaction today came from Switzerland where there was a minute fluctuation of the Swiss franc. The Swiss National Bank upped its buying price for the dollar by one centime to 4.29 1/2 Swiss francs.

Scrap Payments Union — Another major economic development in Western Europe was scrapping of the European Payments Union which for eight years has acted as a clearing house of debts for Western Europe. In its place was put a European monetary agreement with 800 million dollars capital and much tougher rules about lending out funds than the old EPU.

IN FOUR EL PASO DEATHS

COPS HINT MURDER

EL PASO (UPI) — Police hinted today that the killing of four persons in the same house by a mysterious gas may have been cleverly-planned murders and started an all-out investigation.

Detective Lt. Al Hijar of the Police homicide division said he had not ruled out the possibility that the deaths were caused by an "engineered gas job."

The victims were Maj. Forrest Tilson, 41; his wife, Vivian, 39, and Henry Epley Jr., 17. Mrs. Tilson's brother, the bodies of whom were all found Sunday. H. Epley Sr., 60, Mrs. Wilson's father, died in the same house Friday.

Mrs. and Mrs. Tilson came from Lawton, Okla., to attend the elder Epley's funeral. The elder Epley's death was at first blamed on natural causes.

Toxic Gas Possible — There were other theories that something about the adobe house may have caused the deaths. One theory was that something in the mop bucket used in the bedroom where the Tilsons and Epleys died may have created a poison gas.

Another theory was that a septic tank near the bedroom may have given off a toxic gas.

Autopsies were performed on all the bodies and the coroner expected to make his report today after another check at the house.

Songs About Politicians Are On Right Key When Written By Popular Writer

By ALICIA HART NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA). — Of the hundreds of thousands of words that are printed and spoken each year about Washington personalities, none are cherished more by them than those of a bright-eyed, feminine dynamo with a southern drawl.

The energetic gal is Tennessee-born Eleanor Hankins Fort, better known to her friends as just "Hank." And the words that have made her so popular around this publicity-saturated town are the lyrics she has composed for more than 150 songs.

Hank is the author of such hit numbers as "Put Your Shoes on Lucy," "I Didn't Know the Gun Was Loaded," and "Save Your Confederate Money Boys." But the songs for which she's best known here are the ones about prominent headline personalities that she writes for parties, birthday celebrations and other special events.

VIPs and other personalities who have been the subjects of Hank's light, clever lyrics include House Speaker Sam Rayburn, Washington socialite Mrs. Herbert May (the former Marjorie Merriweather Post) and lovely Ruth Eisenhower, the President's niece.

Hank's knack for describing people in musical verse has made her one of the most sought-after party guests in town. Hostesses usually consider arrangements for a big shindig incomplete until they have a guarantee from Hank to write a song about the guest of honor.

But the fact that Hank always shows up with a delightful, original number completely baffles friends who know her working habits.

That's because she never starts composing a song until just before it's time for the party to start. Hank says that she works best by putting off a composing job until the last minute. "I like to work under pressure," she explains.

When she realizes that she can't postpone the work any longer, Hank explains, "I go through a horrible panic." But out of all the anxiety always comes the exact words and music that she wants.

The vivacious, former night club entertainer completely poob-poos the idea that her rapid-fire composing ability should make her feel extra smart. "A talent is a gift," she explains. "And when someone gives you a gift, you should just feel grateful."

Hank's activity in Washington social circles is not restricted to being a guest at other peoples' parties. Actually she's considered one of the best hostesses in town.

Her parties, which she calls "Howdy-do's," are strictly informal get-togethers where the accent is on having fun instead of talking politics or making important business contacts.

Hank can usually be found at the piano, surrounded by senators, congressmen, diplomats and an occasional Hollywood celebrity, singing her latest compositions. She has recently recorded 14 of her favorite numbers on a long-playing record which is simply titled "Hank."

In addition to writing songs and maintaining her active social life, Hank runs a dancing school for youngsters in Nashville, Tenn., which she visits every month. She also owns half-interest in a music publishing company.

"I'm going to paint when I get too old to do anything else," she explains. "But I don't know when I'll ever admit that I had reached that age."

Manners Makes Friends If you want your friends to like you, teach him good manners. A dog can and should be taught not to jump on guests or bark at them when they get out of their cars and start to the front door.

And certainly no dog should be allowed to beg food from those who are eating.

The Great Crippler Arthritis Pains Plague Millions Of Americans in All Age Groups

(Editor's Note: This is the first of three articles on the nature, causes and prevention of arthritis by Dr. William S. Clark, director of medical care of the National Foundation.)

By WILLIAM S. CLARK, M.D., Director of Medical Care, The National Foundation

Despite the prevalence of arthritis, most people are uninformed or misinformed about it. Here are three facts they usually don't know:

1. Children sometimes have it. In fact, the disease plagues all ages from the infant to the very old.

2. Causes and cures are mainly unknown. There are no "miraculous" drugs. Diet neither starts nor stops it. Expensive remedies and devices are often no more helpful than the simplest and most economical ones.

3. Nevertheless, there is hope for the arthritis sufferer and he need not despair. Aspirin and hot baths relieve pain. Systematic exercises under proper supervision reduce stiffness and restore joint movement.

Arthritis, a name popularly given to a group of related rheumatic diseases, is one of the oldest ailments known to man. It afflicted prehistoric animals. It plagued the Egyptians, Greeks and Romans.

Today in the United States arthritis or rheumatism tortures, cripples and deforms more people than any other illness. Nobody knows the number of its victims but estimates range from 11 to 30 million. Though few cases are fatal, homes are disrupted, businesses wrecked, careers ruined.

Because of arthritis and the rheumatic diseases an estimated 320,000 Americans are so disabled that they can no longer work.

The resultant loss to the nation in working hours and production, and cost of maintaining victims and of income taxes lost each year, is estimated at $2 billion and a half dollars a year.

Yet despite its costly ravages the United States has only about 400 arthritis clinics, mainly in large cities. Only 700 beds are specifically set aside for it in hospitals. Research funds are woefully inadequate and the number of young doctors and researchers recruited as specialists is far below the need.

A New Impetus The entry of the National Foundation (originally the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis) into this field gives hope for a tremendous new impetus in research, the training of additional skilled manpower. Since it was the National Foundation that conceived, organized and financed the March of Dimes and its work with the Salk vaccine and a whole galaxy of vital breakthroughs in medical science, we may expect its grant-making research and new discoveries concerning the cause, cure and prevention of arthritis.

Arthritis is primarily a disease of the joints. Usually chronic (i.e., long lasting), it is apt to flare up and subside unpredictably. There are many kinds of arthritis. They commonly attack the connective tissues of the joints, often causing inflammation, swelling, pain, deformity and crippling of the fingers, hands, arms, shoulders, legs, feet or spine. Some forms of arthritis result in fever, general weakness, loss of appetite and weight. In addition to the joints, the heart, lungs, blood vessels, kidneys, muscles, skin and eyes may likewise be affected.

The two most prevalent types are osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis. Together they account for 70 per cent of all arthritis victims.

Osteoarthritis is the milder of the two. Some 80 to 90 per cent of all persons over 60 are afflicted by it in greater or lesser degree. A so-called "degenerative disease" due to aging, it results from wear and tear of joint surfaces. The ends of the fingers and the weight-bearing joints—back, hips and knees—are most commonly involved. Men engaged in heavy physical labor, like farmers and industrial workers, are especially prone to it. The disorder usually begins in the third decade of life, but injury or abnormal use of a particular joint may precipitate earlier joint damage. It is not usually accompanied by inflammation or fever. Though it is painful, its victims are seldom immobilized; except for discomfort, they are not really "sick." Overweight may be a contributing factor.

Osteoarthritis victims in the U. S. probably number many millions, variously estimated from 10 to 25 million. Of these, a million and a quarter may require medical treatment in any given year.

Rheumatoid Arthritis More serious by far is rheumatoid arthritis. Called the No. 1 crippler of the nation, it is an insidious, progressive disease that affects the whole body and may last a lifetime. During acute attacks, rheumatoid arthritis patients are genuinely sick. People of all ages are vulnerable, many in their most productive years of life. Three times as many women get it as men. Young mothers often get it badly, especially after the birth of the first child. Symptoms include fever and general weakness, loss of appetite and weight, muscle aches, inflammation, pain and swelling in the joints. These symptoms may abate from time to time, but they usually return, often in aggravated form.

At least one million persons in the United States have disabling rheumatoid arthritis and require medical care. Probably another four million persons have a mild form of this disease. Severe cases end in deformity and crippling. Even the eyes, heart, muscles, lymph glands and spleen may be damaged. Sometimes the joints become permanently rigid.

Contrary to popular belief, children suffer from rheumatoid arthritis. The number is estimated at 30,000, with 16,000 a year sick enough to need medical care. About 5,000 or 6,000 of these may require treatment as intensive as the rehabilitation needed by paralyzed polio patients. As soon as feasible, the National Foundation will give patient aid to arthritis children and adolescents through age 18.

The very young are subject to a particularly severe kind of rheumatoid arthritis called Still's disease, which can impede normal bone growth and may, as the child matures, cause severe crippling.

Besides arthritis, other areas of March of Dimes activity are polio, birth defects and virus diseases.

(The second article in this series on arthritis by Dr. Clark will tell what to do about it.)

Exciting setting for a New Year's Eve buffet. Lobster tail dish is one good resolution for any hostesses to make.

Elegant Lobster Tails Set Mood for New Year's Buffet

By GAYNOR MADDOX NEA Food and Markets Editor

So — it's time to plan that New Year's Eve buffet. We, in this house, have decided on an elegant South African rock lobster tail dish as the anchor food for the midnight supper.

On the buffet there will also be vegetable relishes, sliced ham, liver pate and a cheese board with wafers and rye and French bread. Also, in a chafing dish, little cocktail sausages simmered in sweet vermouth. And, of course, lots and lots of hot coffee.

None of these foods requires much kitchen work, and can be prepared in advance. That means the hostess can greet 1959 in a happy frame of mind.

LOBSTER AVHOLEMONO Blend together 3 egg yolks, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon cornstarch. Slowly add 1 can clear chicken broth and 1/4 cup French dry vermouth. Cook over low heat

MATURE PARENT By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

The little boy's name is Apu; his sister is called Durga. Their home is a Bengali village in India — a mud-floored, broken shack.

One day some strolling players visit the village. Apu, enchanted by their costumes' glitter, steals a tin treasure from Durga to make himself a crown.

She recognizes it, chases him, and is beating him when their mother rushes to intervene. After pulling the children apart, she leaves them to go on about her own business.

Denied the sweetness of revenge on Apu, Durga runs away. Retreating to the sheltering, feathery fronds of a neighboring rice field, she consoles herself with a piece of sugar cane.

There Apu follows her, sits down beside her — and waits. She sticks out her tongue at him. He waits some more.

After a while he reaches for her discarded piece of sugar cane, looking at her questioningly. She nods.

NO CUDDLER SHE—TV fans who will see Joan Marshall in TV's new telefilm version of "Bold Venture" would scarcely guess that being fired as a "furdler" led to her acting career. A "furdler" is one of those gals who model furs on TV and gush over them. A stunt she pulled when she thought the camera was dead led to her hasty exit—by invitation of the boss. So she went to Hollywood, took dramatic lessons and made the grade.

Reds Warn Of Fighting Again

BERLIN (UPI) — Moscow and the East German Communist ratted Soviet inter-continental rockets today with a new warning of war if the West refuses to bow to Communist demands to get out of Berlin.
 The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda said that "any provocation in West Berlin and attempted aggression against the German Democratic Republic East Germany may start a major war."
 It added that in such a war Russia would have "the most up-to-date arms, including inter-continental rockets which are invulnerable carriers of powerful thermonuclear warheads."

Glasses Found

A pair of boys glasses in a light colored case have been turned into the Pampa police station, Chief Jim Conner said today.
 The glasses were found Saturday at Crawford and Huff Rd. They have no identification and are apparently for a near-sighted boy.
 More than 4,000,000 Americans fish in salt waters annually.

"NURSE TRUCK"—Odd-looking vehicle shown in Napa, Calif., is a "nurse truck." The gun-like projection carries fertilizer from truck hopper to a flexible spout which feeds the fertilizer into the aircraft at rear. The planes then "bomb" evenly a swath 30 feet wide from a height of about 100 feet. While cost of aerial application is relatively high, it is reported profitable on large spreads. Method offers additional advantage of fertilizing quickly to take advantage of good weather.

Jet Crash Injures Several, Kills One

IPSWICH, England (UPI)—One person was killed and several others injured today when a flaming U.S. Air Force jet fighter sliced between a group of houses and slammed into a garage at Keesgrave near here.
 The pilot, 1st Lt. Charles L. Prescott, Santa Monica, Calif., ejected himself from the F100D Super Sabre and parachuted to safety before the crash. He was treated at a local hospital for shock and minor injuries.
 Two houses and the garage were destroyed by fire, and several other houses and a group of unoccupied trailers were damaged. A number of dogs were killed when debris plunged into their kennel area.
 Prescott was on a training flight from Sutton Heath Air Base, which is shared by the U.S. Air Force and the Royal Air Force. The crash occurred 5 1/2 miles from the base.
 The body of a young woman was recovered from the wreckage of the garage struck by the plane. She was identified as Mrs. Elizabeth Aggis, 28, Keesgrave, who worked at the garage as a clerk.
 A deep crater was left where the plane dove into the rear of the garage, and wreckage was strewn over a wide area. Police moved in to guard the scene of the crash.

TV Booming In Japan; To Continue

TOKYO (UPI) — One and one-half million television aerials rise from the graceful, tiled rooftops of Japan today, symbols of a boom that is growing apace.
 In another year three million officially registered sets will be picking up telecasts in every corner of the nation, from southernmost Kyushu to northernmost Hokkaido.
 By the end of 1960 the figure should reach four and one-half million, with 109 stations in operation.
 The boom has thrust Japan, in the space of only six years, into a position of world importance in the television field.
 Right now Japan is so far ahead of the rest of Asia that it is doubtful whether any nation in this part of the world will be in a position to challenge it for many years.
 The Philippines, Formosa and South Korea all have embryo television operations, but nothing approaching Japan's.
 Actually, more than two million sets are believed to be in operation here now.
 "Two out of every five set owners hide their aerials," explained Kotaro Fujiyama, public information director of the National Association of Commercial Broadcasters.
 The purpose is to hoodwink the man from NHK, the semi-governmental network, who collects a monthly 83-cent tax from every home with a tell-tale aerial.
 This means there will really be five million sets here by next year and seven million by the end of 1960 — or better than one for every four households.
 At the moment, Japan trails only the United States — which has an unapproachable 46 million sets. Great Britain and Canada in the number of sets. When all of its 109 stations are in operation — 58 commercial and 51 run by NHK — only the United States will be ahead in that department.
 Only six years ago Japan had fewer than 150 sets. "Terebi" was considered an amusement for the wealthy, far beyond the reach of the average man.

Corey Claims He's Middleclass Star

By VERNON SCOTT
 UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Wendell Corey says he is a middle-class movie star—financially, at least.
 "It's all a part of Corey's theory on Hollywood's caste system."
 "The really high-priced stars make it hard on us middle-class actors," he said seriously. "For the super-colossal pictures the producers don't even think of me. The salary for the star is so high, they say, 'he doesn't make that kind of money.'
 "Within the first few years in movies an actor usually establishes his income standard. Once it's fixed, you rarely earn more—and if you accept less it can ruin you forever."
 When a producer or a studio casts a picture they call the actor's previous employer to discover what he was paid. Then they offer him the same amount.
 "If you agree to take five cents less, they won't hire you," Wendell grinned. "And I've never understood why."
Sinatra Took Out
 "The only guy who ever got away with taking a drastic cut was Frank Sinatra for his role in 'From Here to Eternity.' But anyone else would have been dead."
 "I'll give you an example. If a player makes $100,000 per picture, and asks for $150,000, he's turned down. The producer then moves up to the next category and hires a $150,000 actor instead."
 "The caste system doesn't bother me at all. I'm somewhere in between the big stars in orbit and the untouchables."
 "Some of those in orbit — who can darned near name their own price — are John Wayne, Bing Crosby, Gregory Peck, Bill Holden, Jimmy Stewart, Sinatra, Bud Lancaster and Kirk Douglas."
 "Then there are the 'rich' actors who aren't quite as important, including Clark Gable, Gary Cooper and Rock Hudson. Another category is the 'sincere' or 'important' group who have marquee value and usually co-star with aging actresses."
Graduated Salaries
 Corey explained actors' salaries for recognized names start at $100,000 and graduate up to almost a million dollars at $50,000 steps.
 "Sometimes when an actor begins to slip he begins to take less than his standard price. He keeps taking less and less until nobody would hire him for anything," he said.
 "I've known some who did this, and they are 'poor' movie stars."
 To keep his income in boxcar figures Wendell, who just starred with Bob Hope in "Alias Jesse James," will undertake a new TV situation comedy series next month with child star Patty McCormack in "Peek's Bad Girl."
 "I decided to appear in a series for just one reason — money," Corey said. "I'd have to make two pictures a year to earn as much loot as I will on the TV show. This way I can do both."

WATCH OUT FOR LAWNMOWERS!

BARRANCOES, Portugal (UPI)—The sheep down here don't let the grass grow under their feet. They grow it on their own backs.
 Francisco Pulido, 74, and veterinary scientist Joao Mendes de Vasconcelos noticed a group of flocks.
 They looked closer and found the sheep wool was sprouting grass. The explanation, according to the newspaper Diario de Noticias, was that grass seeds became embedded in the wool, and germinated during the recent heavy rains interspersed with sunshine.
Man Fined $100
 Tommy Ray Carver, 20, was fined $100 plus court costs this morning after pleading guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated. Carver, who lives at 981 Malone, was arrested by Pampa police late Thursday night.

HAPPY REBEL—Pampa's Harold Lewis, right, is shown with his University of Houston coach Harold Lahar. A senior and one of the Cougars' tri-captains during the past grid season, Lewis was a standout back for the South as they staggered the North, 49-20, in Miami, Fla., Saturday night, Lewis, all-Missouri Valley conference halfback in 1957, set up the fifth Rebel touchdown when he snagged a 20-yard pass from Baylor's Buddy Humphrey in the third period and on the next play rambled 11 yards to the Yank 29 where Humphrey fired for the TD. The former Harvester great saw plenty of action against the North, used chiefly as a decoy being flanked wide all night.

Colts Capture Pro Grid Crown In Football's First Overtime

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Johnny Unitas, a former six-dollar-a-game sand-lotter, won $10,000 today, an automobile and a permanent place in the hearts of Baltimore fans for leading the Colts to their first National League title on one leg.

The Colts won the championship in their first title appearance following nine years of frustrating failure in two leagues. In order to do it, they had to set up the first "sudden death" overtime in NFL history and then conquer the indomitable New York Giants, 23-17 as dusk closed over Yankee Stadium Sunday.

This sports drama, a series of plays so fantastic no director would dare film them as the plot of a make-believe story, unfolded before 64,183 fans plus hundreds of thousands of TV and radio rosters. Unitas, a quarterback everyone now is comparing with Sammy Baugh and Otto Graham, was the key to victory—bad leg and all—but a herd of other Colts also starred in the story-book finish.

Many Heroes

There was Steve Myhran, whose 20-yard field goal with seven seconds to go in the regulation game sent it into overtime. And Alan Ameche, the fullback whose one-yard scoring blast ended the most successful and incredible of NFL campaigns.

How could anyone overlook Ray Berry, the Texan who wears contact lenses on his eyes and a brace on his back because one leg is shorter than the other? He set pass receiving records of 12 catches and 178 yards for a title game.

Then there was Baltimore's magnificent defensive line, headed by Gino Marchetti. That line forced New York to give up the ball and set the stage for Myhran's field goal with seven seconds left. Marchetti was injured helping make the crucial tackle that kept Frank Gifford from making a first down. With Marchetti lying in the dressing room, that line forced the Giants to punt again in the overtime to set the stage for victory.

Giants Win Toss

The Colts won the toss to receive the kickoff in the overtime. All they needed to win was to keep the ball and score in any fashion. The Colts had only one idea in their huddle before this final kickoff. Maybe it was corny, but they said, "Let's win this one for Gino."

Baltimore immediately forced the Giants to punt. Unitas, Ameche, Berry and L. G. Dwyer went to work on their 20. Dick Modzelewski, New York's tank-like tackle, halted the drive momentarily when he bolted through and dumped Unitas for an eight-yard loss on the Baltimore 36. But Unitas fired 21 yards to Berry on the New York 43 and b-l-ited a trap for Modzelewski. When he fell for it and came barreling through on the next play he left a big hole and Ameche ran 23 yards to the new 20.

Unitas, who played sandlot football for $6 a game after he was released by the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1955, was hobbling on a right leg injured earlier in the game but his head was clear and he still was the gambling signal-caller who now makes more than $1,000 a game. Instead of playing conservative football and sticking to rushes, he fired to Berry on the eight. Then he bulletted one to Jim Mutscheller in the right corner on the one. Mutscheller and George Fries then opened a big hole at right tackle and Ameche rammed over to win the thriller.

Unitas Sets Record

Unitas set a record of 349 yards gained on passes in a title game, bettering the former mark of 335, set by Baugh of the Washington Redskins against the Chicago Bears in the 1937 championship contest. Unitas' tosses to Berry, Lenny Moore and Mutscheller helped the Colts set a title game record of 17 first downs on passes and a championship game mark of 20 first downs.

Unitas and each of the other Colts collected victors' shares of $4,718.77 from the game. This cut, plus the bonuses from the award system set up by Coach Webb Ewbank and Colts President Carroll D. Rosenbloom, and the wages from the All-Star game next August, made Sunday's triumph worth approximately $10,000 to each of the Baltimore players.

That gave the Giants a 17-14 lead and they still held it when Marchetti and 288-pound tackle Gene Lipscomb hit Gifford and forced New York to punt with only 2 1/2 minutes to go. The Colts took over on their 14 and New York's inspired defense, led by Modzelewski, and Andy Robustelli and linebacker Sam Huff, appeared to have Unitas and victory in its grasp.

Unitas missed with two passes, hit Moore for 11 yards and missed again. Then he hit Berry with passes of 25, 15 and 22 yards. Myhran followed with his field goal to match the 36-yarder Pat Summerall booted in the first period and force the overtime period.

The only other "sudden death" overtime in NFL history took place during an exhibition game at Portland, Ore., Aug. 29, 1955, with Los Angeles winning, 23-17. The losers? The Giants.

Webster Recovers Fumble

Kyle Rote fumbled Charley Conery's long pass after being hit by Andy Nelson but Alex Webster scooped up the ball and ran to the one to complete an 86-yard play. Mel Triplett's plunge made it 14-10. Then the Giants drove 81 yards in four plays with Conery passing 15 yards to Gifford for a touchdown.

Boxing Match Here Tonight

Pampa boxers will fight their eighth match of the year tonight, at Pampa Optimist Boys' Club, against a team from Blackwell, Oklahoma.

The Blackwell team includes four Kansas state champions and at least one other highly rated boxer, among its eight-man team. Preliminary matches begin at 7:30 p.m., and main events follow at 8. Feature matches are expected to be a middleweight bout between Gary Wilhelm and Bob Astron, and a heavyweight clash between Carl McClure and Dale Nicholson. Kansas champ, McClure is Texas Golden Gloves runner-up.

YANK COMEBACK WAS BEST SPORTS STORY

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—The fact that the mighty Yankees didn't strike out—but that the New York Yankees were the first team in 33 years to come back from a 1-3 deficit and win the World Series—was the number one sports story of 1958.

That comeback surge swept the perennial world champions into the top sports spot of the year. It took a lot of doing, too, because this was a year replete with muscular headlines.

The top 10, from here, were:

1. The Yankees' series comeback.
2. Roy Campanella's near-fatal auto accident.
3. Silky Sullivan's buildup and fall.
4. Columbia defeats Sceptre in America's Cup.

5. Jimmy Bryan's win and Pat O'Connor's death at Indianapolis.

6. Herb Elliott's 3:54.5 world record mile.

7. Tommy Bolt's U.S. Open win and subsequent probation.

8. Ray Robinson regains midweight crown from Carmen Basilio.

9. Rafer Johnson's Moscow de-cathion world record.

10. Terry Brennan fired at Notre Dame.

TCU, Aggies Clash In Tourney Finals

HOUSTON (UPI)—H. E. Kirchner, the 6-10, 235-pound giant no one wanted when he was a gawky Houston Reagan schoolboy, will be the spotlighted star tonight in his old home town as Texas Christian meets Texas A&M for the Southwest Conference tournament title.

Kirchner, who has slowly developed from "just another tall guy" into one of the circuit's most potent performers, has assumed the tourney's individual scoring lead in pacing defending champion TCU into a chance to rack up its fourth title in the affair's eight-year history.

He scored 23 points in TCU's 62-55 opening round victory over Baylor and pumped in 27 more and hauled down 17 rebounds to prove the difference in the Frogs' come-from-behind 78-64 triumph over Southern Methodist in the semifinals last Saturday night.

Kirchner couldn't earn a high school basketball letter until his final semester in school despite his height, and TCU was the only school to offer him a scholarship—admittedly with much trepidation on the part of TCU Coach Buster Brannon.

But, Brannon and Assistant Coach Johnny Swain patiently spent many hours working with their awkward charge helping him develop a scoring punch. Kirchner played second fiddle to Dick O'Neal and Ron Stevenson.

Now, O'Neal is gone and Stevenson is the one playing second fiddle as Brannon switched to the double post to make use of Kirchner's height. Kirchner ranks second to Rice's Tom Robitaille in scoring with a 19.8-point average to 21.3 for Robitaille.

His presence in the lineup makes TCU a firm favorite to trim Texas A&M, which got to the finals by upsetting co-favored Texas Tech 66-58 in the first round and edging host Rice 50-59 in the semifinals with the aid of a goal-tending call against Robitaille.

Aggies No Push-Over

The Aggies aren't likely to be any push-over, however, for they own the best defensive record in the league, a 55.5-point mark, and sport fair height and scoring punch in Wayne Lawrence and Neil Swisher.

The championship game will start at 9:15 p.m. e.s.t. after Rice and SMU play for third place at 7:30 p.m. Baylor and Texas Tech meet for fifth place at 4 p.m.

The Tech-Arkansas contest will be a preview of one of the four games which will launch conference title play next Saturday night.

The Razorbacks, co-champions with SMU last season, will host Tech at Fayetteville, while TCU goes to Waco against Baylor, the Aggies to Dallas against SMU and Texas to Houston against Rice.

U. S., Aussies Split Matches

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI)—The United States split the opening singles matches of the Davis Cup challenge round with Australia today but appeared to have lost the daring gamble on which non-playing captain Perry Jones had pinned his hopes for final victory.

Alex Olmedo of Los Angeles gave the United States its first opening match victory in a challenge round since 1954 when he beat Mal Anderson, 8-6, 3-6, 9-7, 8-6 before a crowd of 18,000 in Milton Arena.

But then Ashley Cooper generally considered the No. 1 amateur tennis player in the world, ruined Jones' gamble when he beat 23-year-old Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4 in the second match to square the best-of-five series at one victory each. The doubles match is scheduled for Tuesday with the concluding singles matches on Wednesday.

MacKay's defeat was a bitter pill for the 70-year-old Jones, captaining his first U. S. Davis Cup team, because the 6-foot, 3-inch Dayton power player had been picked for the singles match over Hamilton Richardson, of Arlington, Va., the United States' No. 1 amateur player. Jones by-passed Richardson in favor of MacKay because he thought MacKay's size and power were better suited to the grueling conditions under which the challenge round matches are being played.

Year-Long Epile

Columbia's defense of the America's Cup against Britain's Sceptre was a sea-going Silky Sullivan tale, the American boat winning four straight from the invading craft. O'Connor's death in a breath-taking crash at Indianapolis marked the annual 80-mile race won by Jimmy Bryan.

Elliott was a fantastic performer whose feat of running 10 times under the old four-minute barrier, capped by his world record, was a year-long epic. Bolt's saga stretched over a period of time, too, as temperamental Tommy won the Open and then was put on indefinite probation for unbecoming conduct.

Robinson, already a ring immortal, proved himself again by regaining the middleweight crown—again—from Basilio. Johnson went to Moscow for a head-and-head battle with Russia's Vasily Kuznetsov, who had broken Rafer's world mark, and the big Californian got the mark back with a dazzling 8,802-point world mark.

And Terry Brennan's dismissal as head grid coach at Notre Dame raised such a riot among the alumni that it figured to have repercussions into the new year.

Which will have to go some to match 1958.

Jordan Charged In Narcotic Case

VERNON, Calif. (UPI)—Youthful Don Jordan, who became the welterweight champion of the world just 24 days ago, was free on $1,000 bail today after he and four other men were arrested on suspicion of possession of narcotics.

Jordan, 24, was a passenger in an automobile stopped by police early Sunday in a routine check for holiday drunk drivers. The men were arrested when officers found a marijuana cigaret butt in the car.

Cellar Teams Go On Scoring Sprees

The Rochester Americans and the Providence Reds, the two tail-end teams in the American Hockey League, erupted into sudden scoring sprees over the weekend to throw a few clinkers into the AHL pennant race.

The Americans smothered the third-place Cleveland Barons, 5-1 at Rochester Sunday night, while the Reds trounced second-place Hershey, 8-3, at Providence.

The Americans also handed the same Barons a 6-4 beating at Cleveland Saturday night.

In Sunday night's other game, the Buffalo Bisons made it a perfect weekend by trimming the Springfield Indians, 5-1, at Buffalo.

The win, coupled with a 4-0 lead in the AHL race after the blanking of Hershey Saturday night, gave the Bisons a five-point busy weekend.

LOOSE TALK SINKS GIANTS

United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Loose talk sinks ships and apparently it also scuttled the unwary New York Giants.

"The Giants just proved that they had bigger mouths than hearts," said center Buzz Nutter of the champion Baltimore Colts today, pointedly raking up some old coals which obviously hadn't been allowed to die out by the new National Football League title-holders.

The Colts, it seems, never forgot the 24-21 beating the Giants handed them last Nov. 9. That hurt. What hurt more was Giant quarterback Charley Conery's comment after that game.

"We out-gutted them, that's all," Conery said.

Baltimore players took that to mean that Conery felt the Colts were lacking in courage. Just so Conery's comment would stay in the Colts' craw, Coach Webb Ewbank tacked that particular clipping in Baltimore's dressing quarters.

There was no special rah-rah in the Colts' huddle at the start of Sunday's historic "sudden death" overtime at Yankee Stadium.

Credits 'Trap' Play

One Baltimore player remembered another saying, "Let's ram it down their throats," but that was the extent of any conversation which didn't concern itself particularly with signals and play assignments.

In the dressing room later, quarterback Johnny Unitas, the hero of Baltimore's 23-17 victory, singled out Alan Ameche's 23-yard "trap" play as the straw that broke the Giants' back.

The "mouse" who was trapped on that particular play was Giants' defensive tackle Dick Modzelewski, who crashed through the line to tackle Unitas as he had done several times before. Only this time, Unitas handed the ball to Ameche, who plowed through the hole created by Modzelewski's rush and romped all the way to the Giants' 20.

A pair of short passes by Unitas

plus a one-yard touchdown plunge by Ameche then wrapped it up for the Colts.

"That was the big play in the drive," Ewbank agreed.

Howell Praises Unitas

Over in the Giants quarters, Coach Jim Lee Howell summed up Baltimore's victory this way: "Too much Unitas and too many good linemen."

Howell couldn't say enough about the plucky Unitas, who suffered a leg injury in the third period but kept pegging away until the end.

"Unitas can do everything a top pro quarterback should do," Howell said. "He can fake a throw in one direction, then turn and throw in another. He's a quick thinker. He knows just when to pass or to run with the ball. He makes good plays. He sure did against us."

Howell said Unitas has a chance to do all these things because of "that great line in front of him."

Rangers Jinx The Canadiens

United Press International

The Montreal Canadiens may terrorize the rest of the National Hockey League but they're just another team to the New York Rangers.

The Rangers scored their fourth victory in seven meetings with Montreal and ended the Canadiens' 13-game unbeaten streak Sunday night when they downed the league leaders, 5-3, at Madison Square Garden. The Canadiens had won 11 games and tied two since their last defeat—a 2-3 loss to the Rangers at New York.

Boxing Match Here Tonight

Pampa boxers will fight their eighth match of the year tonight, at Pampa Optimist Boys' Club, against a team from Blackwell, Oklahoma.

The Blackwell team includes four Kansas state champions and at least one other highly rated boxer, among its eight-man team. Preliminary matches begin at 7:30 p.m., and main events follow at 8. Feature matches are expected to be a middleweight bout between Gary Wilhelm and Bob Astron, and a heavyweight clash between Carl McClure and Dale Nicholson. Kansas champ, McClure is Texas Golden Gloves runner-up.

The Free Market

Not nearly enough has been said about the merits of the open and competitive market place. Since the days of Godwin, Proudhon, Marx and the Webbs of England, so much hostile propaganda has been released against the free enterprise structure that there is almost a feeling of apathy if not a feeling of hostility leveled against it.

Yet, if we were asked by parents what line of endeavor they should encourage their children to pursue, we should undoubtedly suggest that the most gainful, constructive and rewarding activities are to be found in the world of business and the world of the market place.

Show us any other area of human endeavor that is so infinitely and meticulously fair! In the market place, when it is free and untrammelled by government interventionism and control, a perfect balance is always maintained between those who buy and those who sell. Why? Because the buyer must always be willing to exchange his money for the goods he seeks, or he will not make the exchange. Therefore, he gets something for his money and is satisfied. If he is not satisfied, he will not make the exchange.

But the same thing is true of the seller. He will not part with what he has unless what he receives is, at least in his own mind, of comparable value. Again, the seller gets something for his something, and the books are balanced.

Nowhere in the world is an obligation so swiftly remunerated as in the market place. The whole theory of market practice is related to a two-way flow of goods and services. It is never a one-way operation. It cannot be. The minute attempts are made to prevent either the ebb or flow of the great tides of human energy, ability and desire, the whole market place is injured and impaired.

The socialist sophistry which needs to be exposed thoroughly lies in the assumption that those who provide goods and services for the market place are profiting at the expense of others. But, in fact, they are not. The profit which they make is not at the expense of others, but is only a part of the profit by the exchange. The man who sells pianos, automobiles, houses, vacuum cleaners, or cans of tomatoes is providing something that the buyers did not have before. The buyers want these things or they would keep their money. Therefore, the buyers profit by obtaining what they did not previously have; and the seller profits by obtaining what he did not previously have. In the market place, the gain of one is the gain of both parties to every transaction, so long as the exchange is made voluntarily and freely.

There are other avenues of endeavor which young people can pursue. But most of these avenues — the professions, the arts, the crafts — also function in the market place. And we can think of no finer way to encourage a rise both in standards of living and in self-improvement, than in the market place where rewards are based upon merit and where something for something is the rule.

There is only one type of work where the something for something formula has been abandoned. That is in certain offices of the government where work is done that is not needed or wanted. In those cases, although the service may be performed, the taxpayers are compelled to pay for what they don't actually want. Therefore, the taxpayers are paying something for nothing. And by every kind of definition to be applied, something for nothing constitutes theft.

We would not encourage parents to urge their children to practice the theft. Rather, we would suggest that a sound understanding in moral law would automatically prohibit the morally based young man or woman from entering such a pursuit.

Looting and begging have rarely been looked upon as reasonable employments. Yet in our age we have made the looter and the beggar respectable by law and have dignified the something for nothing rackets as to they were a type of charity.

The free market is always superior to the rackets.

Ahead—More Socialism

For a number of years, conservative forces have performed a valiant rearguard action. They have, thru efforts little less than heroic, and far more effective than their numerical strength would indicate, managed to prevent a wholesale debacle in financial and industrial areas. But as 1958 draws to a close, it is possible that we may be nearing the end of an era which has been characterized, at least in part, by these valiant energies of the few who have sustained conservative principles.

It may appear odd to us now, but it is possible that this past year may go down in history as the end of a conservative decade.

The first indication to be mentioned springs from the results of the November national elections. Few observers can find anything in that balloting but a demand on the part of the majority of Americans for unbridled and unlicensed squandermania on the part of our politicians. Events in the state indicate that Texas is, simply one part in the gigantic picture which is in total harmony with the rush toward insolvency.

Of course there are those conservatives who claim that the overwhelming victory of Barry Goldwater in Arizona reveals that the cause of holding the line against rampant socialism has not been lost. But we must look with jaundiced eye in that direction. A recent AP dispatch from Washington reveals that Mr. Goldwater may be giving up his position as a foe of unionism and is now working hand and glove with Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell. According to this advice: "Goldwater told a news conference he now is proposing that key labor and management leaders meet and try to agree on how far they can go with propriety in political campaigning. Goldwater is talking of business political power, too. He said he would like to see a situation in which anyone running for office would have to be bound by one of two groups."

Altho we would applaud Mr. Goldwater's position respecting those union bosses and industrial leaders who go to government seeking special favors, it is difficult to see how his switch in viewpoint is going to sustain the rights of free enterprise. We suspect that in future conservative action Mr. Goldwater is going to be anything but the great white hope.

Add to these disturbing indices the fact that the National Small Business Men's Association is now applauding the intrusion of the federal government into their field, and you have a triumvirate of storm clouds which presage no good for any efforts to hold the line. As was recently reported here, the small business men are now going to be able to receive federal tax money in the form of loans whenever they require new long-term financing and their businesses cannot justify such financial assistance.

Altogether, the picture has never looked quite so bleak as it does now. We are far gone in socialist experimentation and the day has come when those who produce little or nothing will be rewarded outlandishly, whereas those who are truly deserving, will be lucky to escape with their living vouchsafed thru their own efforts.

It may yet be that future historians will remind our progeny that Harry Truman was a great conservative. Roosevelt may be seen as a stalwart reactionary. And Mr. Eisenhower may be credited with turning this nation into little more than a socialist military encampment. Whoever follows Mr. Eisenhower, it is quite likely, will simply follow the sign posts already erected which point to the decline and fall of the American republic.

Taxes Means Used To Eventually Take Away Our Liberty

Most all people eventually lose their liberty by means of government taxation.

Taxes usually start on a small scale and gradually increase. The increases are usually so gradual people do not realize what is taking place. Taxes are the means used to eventually take away from man his liberty.

This fact is brought out by a report of the Tax Foundation on how much money was spent during 1958 by the federal, state and local governments. The report shows that the total was $131 billion, an increase of $7 billion over the previous year. This report, in order to make it easier understood shows how much per man, woman and child is spent by the federal government, by the state governments and by the local governments.

This $131 billion spent by the different governments, according to Tax Foundation, amounts to $769 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

This spending was divided by the federal government spending $493 per capita, an increase of $11 over 1957, the state governments spending $129 per capita, up $7 over the previous year, and the local governments spent $147 per capita, up $7.

Of the federal government's, $45 billion was spent for what is called defense. This was an increase of $1 billion over the previous year, while the increase for non-defense purposes was up $2 billion over the previous year.

The report shows that the state and local governments, which are not concerned with national defense, have been going hog wild. In 1948, only 10 years ago, total spending by the state governments was $9 billion. In 1958 they managed to get rid of $22 billion. In 1948 the local governments spent $10 billion, while 10 years later they spent $25 billion.

Of course, this increase is not exactly a real increase in spending of real wealth per capita. We have had inflation during the 10 years, and we have also had an increase in population. Even taking this into account, all the expenditures are taking a bigger percentage of individuals' real income than they have in the past.

When the United States was formed, the total taxes—federal, state and local—were around 6 per cent or 7 per cent of the national income. Now they are taking 31 per cent, if we figure the national income at $425 billion.

And, of course, a lot of this spending has not been paid for. Debts have been contracted for that those living do not expect to pay. It seems very strange that people now living are so anxious to spend money to educate the youth of the land and then ask the youth in later years to pay for this thing called "education." In fact, if it was education we wouldn't have this constantly increasing growth of government that eventually deprives the individual of his God-given right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

The growth of government, by way of taxation is evidence, if not proof, of the axiom that he that exalts himself shall become abased. And the voter who has exalted himself to the point that he believes he and the majority know better how to spend the fruits of a man's labor than the man who produced it is able to spend it, is also evidence of the truth of this great statement. It is also evidence of the truth of Lord Acton's statement that all power tends to corrupt, and absolute power corrupts absolutely. And Lord Acton, of course, was speaking about political power, because it does not seem rational to believe that the man who unlocks the laws of nature and makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before is corrupting himself or anyone else. In fact, he has become humble enough to try to live in harmony with Nature's or God's laws.

Harry Sherman in his book, "The Promises Men Live By," contends that all nations eventually renege their obligations. And this is the same belief as held by Madison and Jefferson, that the children were not legally or morally obligated to pay for the debts contracted by their parents. They both agreed that they were not legally or morally obliged, and furthermore, that they would not pay these obligations.

This stupendous spending by federal, state and local governments really originates in local governments. If people did not believe that local governments had the right to force people to pay for things they did not want, then they would not sanction it in state or federal governments. When local governments disregard the moral principle of limiting government to the consent of the individual governed then it is only natural for the state and federal government to do the same thing and make people pay and pay and pay.

If people understood that producing wealth benefited everybody in the world and was not like gambling or robbery or wars, they would be more inclined to respect men's rights in property.

This increase in spending by governments is a denial of the law of Nature that man must live by the sweat of his own brow.

Robert Allen Reports:

Antarctica About To Become Hot Spot

WASHINGTON (SpI)— Antarctica is about to become a new hot spot in the East-West cold war. Russia and the U.S. are squaring off to stage a momentous race to be first to penetrate the Bellingshausen Sea. Winner of this epic contest will have the basis to claim possession of this crucial region, still unreached by explorers.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff consider this still-unknown race of utmost significance in the efforts to keep Antarctica out of Russian hands. Intelligence authorities say the Soviet is planning to assert Joint Chiefs of Staff consider to a major part of the vast icy continent if they get through the Bellingshausen Sea first.

This sea is in a most strategic location. It is 1,300 miles directly north of the South Pole, between the Palmer and Thurston Peninsulas, on the side of Antarctica nearest South America.

Most of the year, the sea is frozen over and not navigable. But fights over the area during the International Geophysical Year disclosed that in late January the ice appears to break up sufficiently to allow ice-breakers to get through.

This significant discovery triggered the fateful U.S.—Russian race.

NEXT STEPS—U.S. Navy ships have orders to penetrate the Sea as far as they can go.

They will explore as much of it as possible, and then pull out. This exploration, if the Navy gets there first, would be sufficient for a U.S. claim to the coast line and adjacent territory.

The Russians are understood to be planning to establish a permanent base in the Bellingshausen Sea area. Intelligence reports the Reds plan to use this base for the greatest exploration operations in Antarctica history.

One of their major aims is to attempt to set up a base at the "Pole of Inaccessibility."

This is the highest point in Antarctica, and so far no explorers have ever reached it. It towers 14,000 feet above sea level, and is located 550 miles northeast of the South Pole.

Temperatures there are believed to drop well below the coldest readings known so far — 132 degrees below zero.

If the Reds succeed in establishing these two new bases, it will bring their total to nine in Antarctica. U.S. plans call for maintaining five bases there. Two others have been closed for economic reasons.

The other Soviet bases are in the Wilkes Land coastal area on the side of Antarctica nearest to Australia. This is 1,300 miles directly south of the South Pole.

The Russians will attempt to link these northern and southern bases by the greatest over-snow

Parley Deadlocked

Russia has been stalling a foreign ministers conference on Antarctica, and its contemplated extensive explorations there are deemed the reason for this halting.

Parley Deadlocked

The parley was to have taken place last October between the U.S. and 12 other countries. Invitations were sent out by President Eisenhower.

But the Soviet blocked even these preparatory talks by refusing to permit consideration of territorial claims to be put on the agenda.

It is claimed to be a lot bigger if it explores more territory before a conference is held.

So far, the U.S. has not claimed sovereignty over any part of Antarctica. However, it has reserved the right to do so if no agreement to use the continent for peaceful purposes is reached.

CRISP AND COLD

The Russians plan to use their giant ice-breaker OB to ram their way through the Bellingshausen Sea . . . The U.S. will use the Glacier . . . Dr. M. M. Somov, Deputy Director of the Soviet Arctic and Antarctic Institute, calls the seas in the Bellingshausen area the richest in the world, biologically . . . The Antarctic continent is about the size of the U.S. and Europe combined. With less than two percent of the continent explored, already 175 minerals have been found there, including gold, silver, copper and coal. . . Both the U.S. and Russia plan to launch small rockets from Antarctica next year.

Bid For A Smile

Perhaps you've sometimes been annoyed when some pet piece of literature has come back from the printer with several mistakes in it. You may be surprised, then, to read an article by Frank Bergen, well-known New Jersey lawyer and publicist that appeared some time ago in Scribner's.

Several years ago I prepared a brief of about thirty-five pages which I desired to have printed. Both the printer and his assistant, when I read the proof myself, and requested the printer to send another proof on the following morning, which he did. Thereupon, I stated that I would give 25 cents for every error that they found in the second proof. Within an hour they pointed out sixty-four, and I paid them $16. Shortly after, I handed the brief to two girls stationed in the anteroom to announce visitors and run errands, and offered them $1 for every additional error they might find in the proof. They pointed out ten. I paid the money, and made no further effort to eliminate errors from the printing.

Two men, members of a religious order, wanted to smoke while walking in the garden. They agreed that each would ask his superior for permission.

The first one returned to find the second one smoking and complained indignantly:

First one — I was refused!

Second one — What did you ask?

First one — I asked if I could smoke while meditating.

Second one — (blowing his smoke reflexively) — I asked if I could meditate while smoking!

Proud parent — My son is only three, yet he can spell his name backwards.

Looking Sideways

By Whitney Bolton

NEW YORK — There is practically no time left for you, and you probably are shopped to the hilt now, but if by some evil mischance you have left a friend or relative until the very last, I think I can help you make that person happy at Christmas.

Let us say that you forgot that Aunt Adrienne wanted a new purse for Christmas and, now, the stocks of bags and purses are so combed over that nothing you like is left. Be not dismayed, I saw one today that is lovely with a cloisonne frame and mirror to match and it is a swift bargain, friend, at $50. This does not include any Treasury savings bonds, General Motors stocks or other knick knacks. It is five pieces for the bag and mirror, as is. Or should it be, as are?

Black, Starr & Gorham, a fashionable house of jewels and other objets d'economie, has the most pleasant little pink marble clock which they are holding, perhaps just for you, at $3,000. Tiffany's where I like to look at watches and exclude myself from wading in diamonds, has the thinnest wristwatch in the world at $80. This is a lovely gold watch by Audemars Piguet, and although I am not going to challenge their claim seriously I do remember that Jack Warner, a movie king, once had a watch that was made from a hollowed-out $50 gold piece and you know how thin gold pieces are. I am in no position to put these two watches side by side and caliper their respective thicknesses, but I would say that the Tiffany job is every bit as thin, or almost, as Jack Warner's.

There is a new thing in cigaret lighters, where you carry a tank of butane around with you and can refill your lighter at will, much like a refueling plane working for SAC. This little pocket conceit costs to $37.50, which is a lot of money to light a cigaret, yet I know an actress who has a solid gold lighter set with rubies and diamonds and that comely little toy came to about $4,000.

In East 52nd Street there is a store for men which goes in for such gauds as dressing robes of such fine wool you could almost pull one through a wedding ring, although the customers of this elegant coign often enough are not young men accustomed to pulling anything through a wedding ring. In any case, this place has a necktie which is cream in color and shot through with threads of 14 karat gold bullion and you can wrap this around your own or any other neck for a brief $100.

Hammacher-Schlemmer, a hardware store which hides the tools and hinges in the basement and gives its street floor splendor with the unusual in gifts, offers a gadget which, at the coming of dusk, automatically lights whatever lamps in your empty house you want lighted to scare off burglars. I asked them if they had one that lit up when a column was due, but they said they did not. More's the pity. I wish I were a typewriter need just such a little gimmick to prod us into useful life.

Did you ever think you would like to put a few cigarets in something more pleasant and attractive than a crumpled paper package? Well, I know just the place for you. It has little cigaret urns in marble or hand-blown glass and these objects aren't too much money. A small, hand-turned marble urn comes to about $45 and holds maybe nine cigarets, but in a classy way, and when they are gone you might be able to use it for Uncle Charlie's revered ashes. His own set his cigarette's. It ought, at the price, to have more usefulness than just to hold nine cigarets.

There is, from Cuba, a double-door miniature armoire which holds 500 cigarets at about $1 each, plus, I suppose, the cost of the cabinetry. Anyway, it all comes to $750, and when you have smoked all the cigarets you have a nice, wooden cabinet, you will always wonder what to do with.

Carole Stuppel, by the way, having mentioned clocks heretofore has one with pastoral scenes of the 17th Century and some mother-of-pearl inlay, and a certified check for $5,500 will put this in your hot little hands. I think if you argued, you might get $3 off, but not much more.

And if your lady has a shoe fetish, which many bright people have, I know of evening shoes at $200. They have gems set in the brocade, in colors to match evening gowns.

Don't wire me, if you are intrigued. Wire them.

Labor Chiefs Assume They've Public Opinion

By HOWARD KERSHNER, L. H. D.

Many labor leaders assume, and they are backed by wide-spread public opinion, that the wages of workers should be advanced in step with productivity to the point of absorbing whatever increase in man-hour output may be achieved. To reduce the matter to its simplest terms, let us assume a small business of 100 workers. A group of savers has supplied these men with tools and equipment amounting to about $15,000 each. With the aid of these tools and skilled management the business is turning out a goodly volume of goods. Now let us say that during the next few years man-hour production is doubled. Some say labor, therefore, is entitled to double its former wages.

Upon closer investigation, however, we find that the group of savers has been putting additional capital into the business and that each workman now has at his disposal $30,000 worth of tools and equipment instead of $15,000 as formerly. It appears that the increased man-hour output is due to the fact that each man has more expensive and more efficient tools with which to work and that the savers who have put these tools into his hands are in very large Measure Responsible for the happy result.

Surely they are entitled to generous consideration when it comes to sharing the results achieved.

If the entire benefit of the increased production goes to labor, savers will be discouraged and labor will not continue to have more and better tools placed at its disposal.

The right way, of course, is to let the free market determine the value of the contributions of savers, workers and managers. In that case rising interest rates and profits would stimulate savings when more capital is needed and rising wages would attract more workers when more are needed.

As greater efficiency appears in any industry due to better tools, more efficient management or more efficient labor, the most helpful way for the improvement to benefit the people is in the form of lower prices for the product. All of us are consumers and we all benefit as prices are reduced.

If the workers or the savers or any other group takes all the gain it is unfair to other groups and will limit the market for the goods or services being produced. This, in turn, results in unemployment and depression.

Freedom in the market place resulting in lower and lower prices, increasing wages with interest rates high enough to encourage continuous and substantial saving for further improvement in tools and equipment and enough profit to induce men to risk their capital in new enterprises — these are the ways to share the gain. This is the spiral of well-being which if followed faithfully will lead on to the conquering of poverty and a steady decrease in human suffering and toil.

Grabbing based on a lack of knowledge of how to improve one's condition by rendering more service to others and exercised through the coercive power of government, is the reason for the economic ills of the world which keep the bonds of poverty and suffering fastened upon us.

FORT WORTH MAN DEAD

TONKAWA, Okla. (UPI)— A two-car collision at a Tonkawa intersection early Saturday killed a 46-year-old Fort Worth man and injured two Tonkawa teen-agers.

The Fort Worth man was identified as Ray Alton Hatfield, Robert William Burns, 17, driver of the other car, and Bill Barker, 16, a passenger, were injured.

A PERCEPTIVE SCHOOL EXECUTIVE

The remarks of Yuba City High School Superintendent Clarence A. Summy concerning the trend of the nation and the nature of the textbooks honest teachers have to put up with in state schools should not go unnoticed or unappreciated.

Mr. Summy pointed out, during a conference of trustees and instructors the other night, that it is difficult to find any textbook on the United States or world history that is not advocating in more or less degree the trend toward socialism.

And he added a key comment: "The school must depend on our teachers to dig out and present the true facts about our country that will promote pride in the nation and our democracy."

We suspect that Mr. Summy would be among the first to concede that such teachers in these times are hard to find. Most of the younger generation are graduates of teacher factories where the faculties are the same men or of the same ilk as the authors of the textbooks of which Mr. Summy complains.

These are the textbooks — cited during the Yuba City meeting — which are brilliantly dissected by Dr. E. Merrill Root in his new book, "Brainwashing in the High Schools."

There will be, of course, no solution to the educational problems of the American society until the day when the school system is divorced from state supervision and compulsory legislation, but Yuba City high school district seems more fortunate than most areas of this country in having a superintendent who recognizes and proclaims the vicious propaganda to which the young are being subjected.

Matter of FACT

Catapults were the artillery pieces of ancient warfare. Some had a range of half a mile, while others could throw a 60-pound stone with enough force to sink a ship. By the Middle Ages, the secret of making the catapult had been lost. Models, made today, will not fire a stone weighing more than eight pounds.

DOGS HAVE DAY

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—Two mongrel dogs named Mae and George will be living the life of Riley from now on. The relatives of their benefactor will have to wait. The dogs were bequeathed the entire $100,000 estate of Thomas E. Shrewbridge who died early this month. After 20 years his relatives get what is left.

DRIVE RIGHT IN

Ford's Body Shop, west of Pampa City Hall, is a big, factory-like business place where you can get A-1 body work performed on any vehicle. You can have a slick paint job. You can have your vehicle completely rebuilt. There is no limit to the services you get when you drive into Ford's.

Final Exit Of 'Funny Money' Ford's Body Shop Keeps Them Rolling

By JOHN CALLOTT
United Press International

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI)—Any way you look at it, 1958 was a big year for U. S. forces in Europe. There was a troop movement to and, eventually, from Lebanon. And there was Pfc. Elvis Presley. But the event that personally touched the greatest number of soldiers and their families in Europe was the long-awaited end of military "funny money."

The gaudy military payment certificates, including paper nickles, dimes and quarters, went out of circulation on May 27. They had been in use since World War II and their conversion — into good old staid side greenbacks — involved more than 100 million dollars.

The "funny money" was retained only in the United Kingdom, Libya, Morocco and Iceland. Black Market Continues

The script originally was introduced to halt a flourishing black market and inflation in occupied countries, but the black market continued. In the Lebanon troop movement, about 15,000 U. S. troops and airmen were sent into that country to safeguard the revolt-torn regime.

They included 5,000 Marines of the U. S. 6th Fleet, 1,500 airborne troops of the 24th Infantry Division from Augsburg, Germany, and paratroopers from Germany and France. Many were called away from their families on less than an hour's notice.

One of the year's most popular events was the inauguration of the American Forces Network in France. It already was a troop standby in Germany and Italy.

Presley Invasion
On May 23, the first five limited range stations began beaming their "stateside" newcasts, comedy and drama programs and disc jockey shows to the France-based U. S. soldiers.

Then there was the European invasion by rock 'n roll trooper Elvis Presley, who still is on assignment in Germany.

To his music-loving Army buddies, that was a bigger story than Lebanon.

There were two cases involving soldiers who reappeared after long absences, and one disappearance. Sgt. William Brown touched off one of the Army's biggest search operations when he disappeared from Heidelberg, Germany, with his Japanese wife and two children. He turned up seven months later in Chicago.

Pvt. Wayne Powers, an all-but-

Joe Autry, metal men. They will be happy to serve you whenever you appear.

NEW FREIGHTER SERVICE
MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—Two new Cunard Line freighters will begin making monthly calls to Gulf ports in January inaugurating new service between the United States and London.

Ford's Body Shop has all the door and desire that it needs to do a first class job on any vehicle. The shop's best advertisements are the slick paint jobs that it puts on old cars and the total wrecks that it turns into serviceable vehicles.

An important feature is 24 hour wrecker service. During the day call MO 4-7542. The night phone number is MO 4-4618. You won't have to wait long by the side of the road with a Ford's Body Shop wrecker coming.

Not so long ago the Shop was located on Kingsmill. Good service enabled Ford's to change location and expand operations to account for more vehicles at a faster clip.

Ford's trusted employees are Henry "Rezz" Johnson, Painter; "Red" Golden, Robert McCain and forgoten World War II deserter, reappeared with a French wife and five children after 14 years of hiding. His wife, Yvette, was expecting a sixth child when Powers was sentenced to 10 years, but he was later set free.

ALL BALLED UP—Balancing neatly on one leg, a crane tucks its head among its feathers as a zoo in Chessington, England. Could be that the bird is shy, or else just doesn't like to be photographed.
