

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We are two old-timers in the credit department and we have a typical office who thinks she is hot stuff. She started to work here in 1938 and was pleasant enough but she came to work every day dressed up like a circus horse. Her work was poor and she misfiled everything but the boss fired her. She ignored it and came to work anyhow. She worked for nothing for a month and then he put her back on the payroll because we were short-handed around Christmas. He fired her again just before Easter but she kept right on coming to work, and now she's back on the payroll again. What is going on here? If you can solve this you're a genius.

DEAR ABBY: I don't think that lady heard right when she said her doctor told her to have all her teeth pulled if she wanted a baby. I am sure the doctor said to her HUSBAND to have HIS teeth pulled. My husband was only 24 and his teeth were perfect but he had pyorrhea of the gums and that kept me from getting pregnant. After his teeth were pulled I became pregnant.

DEAR ABBY: I can't name the place because it might be embarrassing, but a certain place of business where I go frequently employs a pretty young woman of about 25 years old. I notice that she has been wearing the same checked dress with a washable white collar every day for almost a year. (Not a uniform!) The collar is immaculate so I imagine she takes it off at night and washes it. I have some nice dresses I would like to give her. They belonged to my daughter who has joined a convent. Would I be out of line to offer them to her? I don't even know her name.

Mature Parent

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

The morning after Christmas you came downstairs early. The tree still shimmered bravely in the morning sun but the spines of the balsam wreaths at your windows had begun to fall. Tinsel sparkled from your rug.

Getting out the vacuum cleaner, you thought, "You can never really be tidy at Christmas. As a matter of fact, you have to let yourself go in every way. We paid too much for Hank's wristwatch. But he loves it, and how happy he is to be at home."

Then the phone rang. To Hank's college roommate you said, "Merry Christmas to you, too, Bart," and your son came rushing downstairs tying the belt of his new bathrobe.

Hanging up, he did what he had to do as well as he could. He kissed you, and said, "Don't work too hard, Mom. By the way, you and Pop won't mind if I spend the rest of vacation at Bart's, will you? His sister's roommate just wired she could come for the weekend. Going will be O. K. with you and Pop, won't it?"

Sinking down on the nearest chair, you thought, "What you mean, my child, is that it's O. K. with you. The truth is, your visit home ended yesterday. You saw us, loved us, exchanged gifts with us. Now you're done with us. Now your father and I have become people you touch only to leave again."

You said, "No, I don't think Dad will mind, dear." But when Hank rushed back upstairs to start hauling suitcases from his closet you began to cry.

I hope you cried long and hard. Because if you feel your whole sadness on these occasions, if you cry hard enough, something will die in you. It will be your attachment to what is gone.

Keep it alive and you won't start seeing the possibilities of what is here.

You won't burst into the truth behind your sadness to find yourself thinking in a kind of marvelous, childlike exhilaration. Why, this child no longer needs us, we no longer need him. His demand for freedom is our chance for it.

But if in self pity he holds on to what is gone, we get stuck in a tunnel, blind to the new life offered us in the death of the old one. Quite properly we suffer. We have refused to grow with our son.

Neat 'n Tidy Checks For Spring Style

By GAILE DUGAS, NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) - The neat and disciplined check, done in fine worsteds or silk-and-wool mixtures, could very well be your first spring dress this year.

In black-and-white or navy-and-white, the check lends itself to slender, simple lines and therefore is ideal for many versions of the Empire. In brown-and-white or beige-and-white, checks start small and wind-up giant-size in fashions for daytime, evening and sports wear.

The checked dress looks best with neat, unadorned accessories - the simple-soft-pumpkin handbag, a piece or two of gold jewelry, a coat in a harmonizing solid color.

We show here two examples of the checked dress for spring as done by Ben Barrack. The two-piece check (left) is actually a sheath topped by a back-button blouse. The Empire waistline is wrapped in a taffeta cummerbund.

A sheath dress (right) buttons down the back with quarter-size fabric buttons. Empire waistline is marked by belt with propeller bow.

One woman found that she cut off approaching wrinkles by taking her worries apart instead of letting them tear her apart. When she got the jitters, she sat down and picked over her troubles, reducing each to its just deserts. It's surprising how small each worry is once you see it in proportion to an overall picture.

It's foolish for a woman to try to look like her teenage daughter. She's a little about her looks and...

But it's just as foolish for her to dress so drably that she looks like her teenage daughter's grandmother.

Mrs. B. is making that mistake. She hasn't changed her way of wearing her hair in 20 years. Pulled back severely from her face back, it is far from flattering, now that it is completely gray.

She wears almost no makeup, and while a freshly scrubbed look may be charming on a young girl, few middle-aged women have enough glow to set it off.

Her clothes are so dull and drab that it is a wonder how she could find them in these days of bright colors and unusual color combinations.

Now Mrs. B. is an intelligent woman, and perhaps she feels she is above making the most of her appearance. But however intelligent a woman is, she isn't very bright if she makes that mistake.

Husbands and children like to feel proud of "Mom." It gives them a feeling of pride to see her looking her best.

And it does something for her own personality to change her hairdo now and then, experiment with make-up, and to hunt for becoming colors and flattering fashions.

There's a happy medium between dressing too young for one's age and dressing to sedately for one's years. That's the happy medium any middle-aged woman ought to make a real effort to achieve.

The secret, of course, is change. The woman who refuses to change to look like she did 20 years ago - her appearance never manages to look like she did 20 years ago - but more than like looks 20 years older than she is.

COOK'S NOOK

Mocha Valentine Pie Is Decorative And Delectable

By GAYNOR MADDOX, NEA Food and Markets Editor

A luscious mocha filling for a heart-shaped pie results in a delightful Valentine's Day surprise dessert. Incidentally, mocha is a very popular flavor with men.

For the message, use a pastry tube. Or else use heavy writing paper formed into a cone, or use a cone-shaped paper drinking cup. Slip off a little of the tip, leaving a 1/4-inch opening. Fill cone with melted semi-sweet chocolate morsels slightly cooled and force through cone to write message.

MOCHA VALENTINE PIE (Yield - 1 8-inch pie) One 6-ounce package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels, one 6-ounce package cream cheese, softened; 1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons firmly packed brown sugar, 2 tablespoons instant coffee, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 eggs, separated; 1 cup heavy cream, whipped; one 8-inch baked heart-shaped pastry shell.

Melt semi-sweet chocolate morsels over hot (not boiling) water. Remove from heat; cool 10 minutes. Combine and blend in mixing bowl, cream cheese, 6 tablespoons of the sugar, instant coffee, salt and vanilla. Beat in one egg yolk at a time. Stir in melted semi-sweet morsels. Beat 2 eggs whites until fluffy, but not dry. Gradually add remaining 4 tablespoons sugar; beat until stiff. Fold into prepared shell. Chill until firm. To garnish pie, trace heart outline in center of pie with end of wooden pick. Spoon in additional whipped cream; spread evenly inside outline. Force additional melt...

Flares Spur Rescuers In Hedtoft Area

HALIFAX, N.S. (UPI)—Possible flare sightings from a plane and Coast Guard cutter led to a thorough check of an area south-west of Greenland today in the search for survivors of the missing Danish ship Hans Hedtoft.

A Royal Canadian Air Force Lancaster and the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Campbell were combing the area 60 miles south-west of Cape Farewell on the south tip of Greenland in an effort to check out the reports, which were made late Tuesday.

The Hedtoft struck an iceberg on her maiden voyage Friday and disappeared. Her last radio message indicated—The 2,875-ton ship was sinking. Ship owners said there were 35 passengers and a crew of 40 aboard.

A hope for survivors was almost gone when a U.S. Navy Neptune and the cutter Campbell radioed that crew members had sighted what could have been flares or dim lights flickering on the water.

The Campbell searched the area and late Tuesday night radioed: "No radar or visual contact with anything." However, the search was continued.

TUG

The passenger pilot, Capt. Albert H. DeWitt, 39, who is missing, was described as one of the world's most experienced commercial pilots with 20 years of service with the airline and more than 28,000 hours in the air.

The co-pilot, flight engineer and one of the two stewardesses were among the survivors.

Among the missing was an American Airlines executive, Richard Winn, of Norfolk, Conn., who had been appointed Feb. 1 to head all facility research, development and planning for the line's jet aircraft.

Try to Raise Plane

Others believed dead in the crash included: Beulah Zachary, producer of the television program Kukla, Fran and Ollie; Herbert S. Greenwald, Chicago real estate man with interests in many other states, and Harris Shelvelson, of Westport, Conn., a former editor of Pageant magazine now a member of the faculty of the University of Bridgeport.

His wife, Mary, was also listed as missing. Two ministers also were aboard the plane and believed missing. One was identified as the Rev. F. E. McGrath of the Elmhurst Lutheran Church, New York City, the other only as the Rev. W. Meadows.

As efforts continued to raise the plane and recover the bodies from its wreckage and the tides, an FBI disaster squad of three fingerprint experts was sent from Washington to assist in identification.

Kemach said there had been no warning of the impending crash. "I was sitting in the plane's lounge with another guy and two stewardesses, joking and talking," Kemach said. "Then we went down and I thought I was going to die."

Swim In Icy Water

Kemach and some of the other survivors swam in the icy water to a commercial tug that was hauling barges near the scene. Others were picked up by police and Coast Guard launches.

They were suffering from internal injuries, cuts, bruises, shock, exposure, and submersion, but no burns were reported.

Among the survivors were three crew members—Frank S. Hlavacek, first officer; Warren E. Cook, flight engineer; and Joan Marie Zeller, stewardess. Miss Zeller, 21, who became a stewardess because she thought flying was "thrilling," was in a daze as she was brought to Flushing General Hospital.

"That crash, that horrible crash," she moaned. "Please turn me over on my side. My stomach hurts."

It was the first crash of an American jet airliner since the nation entered the commercial jet age last November. Relatives and friends waiting at LaGuardia to see "loved ones" come in "on the jet" received the news with disbelief. Then they wept and several fainted. A nurse was called to treat them for shock.

Set Up Morgue

Police set up a temporary rescue headquarters and morgue in the College Point section of Queens County, the nearest point of the Long Island shore to the crash scene. Searchlights from the launch crisscrossed the dark icy waters which survivors described as "freezing—really freezing." The temperature was 32 degrees.

A three-foot section of the plane's 32-foot tail projected above the surface of the river. A 20-foot section of the plane was spotted by the helicopter floating near the Bronx shore on the other side of the river. Some bodies were probably trapped in the submerged section, police said.

The plane appeared to be in no difficulty when it informed the airport's control tower that it was approaching for a landing at 11:15 p.m. e.s.t. It was four miles from the airport at that time. There was no radio contact after that.

Samuel Nicholson, captain of the tug that arrived first on the scene, said he heard an explosion when the plane crashed. He said he found survivors floating in the water and many floating bodies. "When the Coast Guard launches arrived at midnight, they began 'picking up bodies everywhere.'"

There were 68 passengers, including an infant and at least four other children, and five crew members aboard the plane which had been in service only since Jan. 23. The flight number 320, was a round-trip from New York to Chicago and it was running nearly an hour late at the time of the crash. It left Chicago at 9:45 p.m. e.s.t.

The crash scene was south of the Whitestone Bridge, connecting Queens and the Bronx, and one mile east of Rikers Island where a Northeast Airlines DC8A crashed in a snow storm Feb. 1, 1957, killing 20 of the 101 persons aboard.

Pampa Pops Plainsmen, 56-46

Cagers Take 35th Straight, Cop Three-Game Loop Lead

By RED GRIGGS
Daily News Sports Editor

The Pampa Harvesters racked up their 35th victory here Tuesday in routine fashion, as they toyed with the Monterey Plainsmen for a 56-46 triumph.

It was their ninth straight district win. Together with Plainview's 60-56 upset win Tuesday night over the Borger Bulldogs, it gave Pampa a safe three game lead in District 3-A, with only five to play. Borger, Plainview, and Amarillo are all 6-3.

Next on tap are the Lubbock Westerners, here Friday night. The Harvesters walloped the Westerners in Lubbock, 75-57, so that one shouldn't pose too much of a problem.

Any resemblance between the team which almost beat the Harvesters almost a month ago in Lubbock, and last night's Monterey Plainsmen, was purely coincidental. This time, the Harvesters led all the way except for the opening minute, and were never in any real danger.

Minor Struts

Charles Minor, starting for the first time in more than two weeks, showed something like his pre-injury form, as he dunked four field goals and three of three free throws, for 11 points.

Minor, who was still wearing a shoulder harness, moved around, passed the ball, and shot without any apparent strain. The play-making guard had a shoulder dislocated 16 days ago, but has apparently almost fully recovered.

Coyle Winborn led the Harvesters both on attack and on defense, as he scored 14 points, set up several buckets for his team mates, and grabbed nine of Pampa's 26 rebounds.

Ironically, Monterey again out-rebounded the Harvesters, despite Pampa's easy victory. The Plainsmen grabbed 28 to Pampa's 26. Dick Dieke captured 10 of Monterey's rebounds.

Dieke Impressive

Dieke's performance was impressive, but less so than the last time the two teams met — despite the fact that he scored more points this time. Tuesday, Dieke scored 20 points, to 15 a month ago. But many of Tuesday's points were against reserves. A month ago, he took 21 rebounds, 11 more than Tuesday night.

David Hutson of the Plainsmen and Mack Layne of the Harvesters each scored in double figures. Hutson made 15 points and Layne 10. Bob Gindorf of the Harvesters netted nine points.

A total of nine men broke into the scoring column for the Harvesters, as every man on the team saw some action. A complete reserve team was on the floor in the last half of the fourth quarter.

Both teams had a fairly good shooting percentage. The Harvesters sank 43.5 percent of their shots, the Plainsmen 38.8 percent.

Plainsmen Score First

Monterey drew first blood in the game, on a set shot from the left side by Hutson, but that was the last time they were ever really in the game. The Harvesters piled up a 14-6 first quarter lead, a 33-21 halftime margin, and a 45-33 third-quarter gap.

The Harvesters lead, after the opening minutes, varied from five points early in the second period to 17 points at one time in the fourth quarter. Though the margin was never overwhelming, Pampa was never in any real peril and Monterey never showed any signs of launching a rally like the one which almost beat the Harvesters in the previous game at Lubbock.

MAKING THE WEIGHT — Dickie Wills, Pampa's open bantamweight entry in the regional Golden Gloves tournament at Amarillo, weighs in Tuesday at the Pampa Optimist Boys' Club. Unlike many boxers, Wills has no weight problem.

LEFT-HANDED, TOO! — When Charlie Minor returned to the starting lineup Tuesday night after a two week layoff, he not only scored 11 points, but he did it left-handed. He's a natural right-hander. Minor still wears a shoulder harness, after dislocating a shoulder two weeks ago. At left he drives in for a southpaw layup shot. Center, he again drives under for a layup. At right, he sinks a one-hand, left handed 13 foot jump shot from near the free throw line.

Shockers Halt Losing Streak

The Pampa Shockers broke a two-game losing streak here Tuesday as they breezed to a 62-42 win over the Monterey B team, the Lancers. The Shockers are now 17-3 for the year.

The Pampa B team was never in any serious trouble. They led 32-23 at halftime, and most of the boys on the team saw some action, as six men scored.

Three of the Shockers hit in double figures, as Pat Carter led the way with 10 field goals and three free throws, for 23 points. Hershel Terrell meshed 16 points and Larry Stroud netted 12.

For the Lancers, McCrummen scored 13 points and Sanders made 12.

Red Griggs
the pipeline

We tramped through the mail this morning and found that someone, besides myself and the proofreaders read this column. As proof, we offer in evidence the following letter.

Dear Mr. Griggs,
I read in your column of Sunday's Pampa paper that you wished the stall would be taken out of high school basketball. Tell me just what is wrong with the stall. I want you to know that there is still one Pampa fan that likes to see a good stall in any basketball game, win or lose.

As for the twenty-four second rule in professional ball, I am opposed to it, too. My main purpose in this note is to ask the question, what is wrong with the stall? I enjoy reading your sports page very much. Keep up the good work.

Yours Truly,
Marion Wilson

First, thanks for writing and expressing your opinion, and for the compliment. We appreciate hearing from any sports fan, anytime. If you have anything you want to discuss, gripe about or just put two cents worth in on, feel free to pass it on to The Pipeline. We'll print all the letters that space permits.

No Defense For A Stall

Now, as to the reasons why I humdrum finish for an otherwise don't like to see a team stall, they're exciting ball game, by choking off as follows: 1. It artificially gives a Borger rally. And slows down the game; 2. It artificially shortens the game; 3. For four to six point lead, it could have gone the other way around.

Speaking of choking off, any chance for a rally, that always brings us to the third point — no workable defense. The only way to break a stall is to foul, and that almost always leads to one or two more points for the opposition. It's a vicious circle.

In football, there is some stalling, but it is limited. A play must be run within 25 seconds. And the stall can be broken by holding the other team for downs. In basketball, there's no time limit, and no holding for downs. There's no way to hold a basketball team for downs, but a time limit could be enforced, and I think it should be.

That's my opinion (market value 1 1/2 cents) and of course everyone else is entitled to theirs. We'd like to know what yours is, on this or anything else in sports that interests you.

Pee Wee Tilts Set Thursday

The pee-wee basketball program gets underway Thursday, with three sixth grade games and three fifth grade contests.

In the sixth grade games, Woodrow Wilson is at Baker, Sam Houston at Stephen F. Austin, and Lamar at Horace Mann. In fifth grade contests, Baker is at Woodrow Wilson, Stephen F. Austin at Sam Houston, and Horace Mann at Lamar.

Three sixth and three fifth grade games are also slated for Saturday. In sixth grade tilts, Sam Houston is at Woodrow Wilson, Baker at Lamar, and Stephen F. Austin at Horace Mann. Fifth grade contests Saturday are Woodrow Wilson at Sam Houston, Baker at Lamar, and Horace Mann at Stephen F. Austin.

Each fifth grade and each sixth grade team is scheduled to play 10 games. Games will be played on Thursday and Saturday with the season ending on March 7.

The complete pee-wee schedule will be published in Sunday's Daily News.

Phillips Player Hits 3,000

One of the club's leaders, Phillips, has passed a milestone in his career. Burdick Halderson has become the third player in Oiler history to go over the 3,000 mark in scoring — and on a percentage basis he's the top scorer in their history.

Halderson, the Oilers' 6-8 pivot man, has now scored 3,088 points in four years and 138 games. That's hitting at close to 20 points per game, and for a rough league like the National Industrial Basketball League, that ain't bad at all.

The only two Oilers who scored more were the fabulous seven-foot-er, Bob Kurland from Oklahoma A&M, and someone named Chuck Darling. Kurland scored 4,904 points in 335 games over six sea-

White Deer Girl Nets 42

WHITE DEER (Sp) — Jeff Bearden of the Bucks and Mary Ann Freeman of the Does turned in sensational performances Tuesday as White Deer won a one-sided victory over Memphis.

Bearden scored 27 points in his three quarters of playing time, to lead the Bucks to a 73-45 triumph over the Memphis Cyclones. Ronnie Cade tallied 18 for the Bucks, and Coy West and Ray Burnett of Memphis each scored 14.

Miss Freeman turned in possibly the top performance of any girl basketball player in the Panhandle this year, as she netted 42 points while playing only two minutes of the second half. She scored 32 points in the first half, and 10 in the second, before being pulled out of the game. Other girls who scored more points this year, but not in that length of time.

The Does defeated the Memphis girls, 85-52, for their eighth straight district win and their 15th triumph of the year against two losses.

The Bucks are now leading the girls in District 2-A by two full games. White Deer is 8-0, while the Pirates have lost two contests.

The Bucks are 11-3 for the year.

Region Gloves Meet Will Begin Tonight

AMARILLO — Pampa will bring a squad of seven open and 10 high school boxers into Amarillo Sports Arena tonight for the beginning of the regional Golden Gloves tournament.

Fights begin at 8 p.m. tonight and Friday, and 7:30 for Saturday's finals. There will be no fights Thursday.

Heading Pampa's entry list is Carl McClure, who represented Texas last year in the heavyweight division at the national Golden Gloves meet. McClure is expected to have little trouble taking the open class in the regional meet.

All winners in the regional meet open class will be eligible to go to the state meet in Fort Worth. For high school boxers, the regional championship will be the end of the line.

Charles Snider, an open middleweight, was lost to the Pampa team yesterday as he was coming out of a steam bath. Snider, attempting to make the weight, was leaving the steam room, and stepped back to let another person pass. As he leaned back, his shoulder touched against a steam pipe. He received second degree burns.

Glenn Ward, Gary Wills, Jesse Ring, Dickie Wills, Charles Coffee, and Pete Garcia are other Pampa open fighters.

Wills, the open welterweight champion of both the Borger and Pampa district tournaments, has moved down a weight class, to lightweight. He is expected to have an extremely rugged competition.

Middleweight Ward is expected to have no easy time. The middleweight division is considered as probably the roughest, except for the lightweight. Ward is Borger Pampa district open champ.

Pete Garcia, a talented Dumas lad, will go for Pampa in the 112-pound open division, and Dickie Wills will shoot for the 118-pound open title. Wills last closed division in the Pampa district championship fight.

Jesse Ring, an Eyear veteran who has been inactive most of this year, will go in the welterweight open class for Pampa. Ring, who has won 97 fights while losing only 14, is reported to be in good physical shape.

Rounding out the Pampa open crew is Charles Coffee, a member of the "murderers row" which made a shambles of the high school divisions during both the Pampa and Borger tournaments. Coffee has moved down a weight class, to 126, along with moving up to the open division.

The other three "murderers row" members, Norman Rexroat, James Morse, and Trent Olsen will remain in the high school division. Rexroat scored a knockout or TKO in every fight he entered, on his way to the Borger welterweight and Pampa middleweight was 126-pound open runnerup at titles. He will box as a 156-pounder.

Morse and Olsen also garnered TKOs on their way to district titles. Olsen will fight in the 108-pound class, and Morse will box as a 118-pounder.

Other Pampa high school boxers are John Ironmonger, 105; Dickie James, 112; Corky Morse, 126; Kenny Powell, 126; Lucky Dunham, 135; Juan San Miguel, heavyweight; and Wesley Crites, heavyweight.

Many Titles Won
James was runnerup in his weight class in the Pampa tournament, open division, and Dunham was 126-pound open runnerup at both Borger and Pampa. Ironmonger was unopposed for the Borger championship, and was Pampa runnerup, both in the high school division.

Morse was high school runnerup at Borger, losing to his brother James, and Crites is Borger and Pampa high school heavyweight champion. San Miguel, along with Kenny Powell, 126; Lucky Dunham, 135; Juan San Miguel, heavyweight; and Wesley Crites, heavyweight.

It is expected that there will be 20-tournament entries from Borger, 14 from Plainview, 7 from Hereford, 5 from Littlefield, and 2 from Lockney.

Senate To Decide On Use Of Force In School Integration

By LYLE C. WILSON, United Press International. WASHINGTON (UPI)—The civil rights dispute blazes up in the Senate will center on how much and what kind of federal force proposed legislation could bring to bear on southern communities.

Expect Bitter Debate. The nub of the new proposal is that it would authorize the attorney general, after a stipulated legal process, to start "civil actions against those who deprive persons of their rights to equal protection of the laws because of race, color, religion or national origin."
