Hunt Suspects Police Warned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — E. Howard Hunt testified today he suspects the Watergate burglars got caught because their lookout had "intimate ties" to the Democratic party and might have served as a "double agent" to tip off local police.

Hunt, who pleaded guilty to charges of helping plan the break-in, appeared for a second day at the newly resumed nationally televised Senate hearings on the scandal. Hunt said he believes Alfred C. Baldwin could have led police to the Democratic National Committee's Watergate headquarters June 17, 1972, where five men were arrested.

He also testified that former presidential special counsel Charles W. Colson had directed him to fly to Milwaukee shortly after the assassination attempt on Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama in May, 1972, to search the apartment of Arthur Bremer, the man convicted of gunning down Wallace in a Maryland shopping center.

"I argued against it, and I subsequently heard from Mr. Colson's secretary that this was no longer required," said Hunt, who worked on clandestine White House projects under Colson's direction after retiring from the CIA.

Hunt was asked by Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., if he felt that the arrests at the Watergate were the result of a "double agent operation."

"The series of events of that night, taken in their totality, Sen. Gurney, have suggested to me for many months that we might have been—as it were—entrapped by information having been provided beforehand to local law enforcement authorities by a member of our unit," Hunt replied.

"Who do you think that was?" Gurney asked.

"I would have to indicate that most likely subject was Mr. Alfred Baldwin," Hunt said.

In response to questioning, Hunt said: "It developed subsequently that Mr. Baldwin had rather intimate ties with the Democratic party in Connecticut. He was the nephew of a Democratic judge; he at least at one point in time represented himself as being the nephew of John Bailey, the former Democratic chairman. I understand that Mr. Baldwin had a girl friend who worked at Democratic headquarters."

An ex-FBI agent, Baldwin was hired by James W. McCord Jr. to do "security work" for the Nixon campaign last year. He was assigned to man a listening post set up in a hotel across the street from the Watergate to monitor telephone taps installed at Democratic headquarters during a May, 1972, break-in and to be the lookout when a second entry was made June 17, 1972.

Baldwin turned state's evidence and was a prosecution witness at the trial of McCord, Hunt and five other bugging conspirators in January. He has never been charged with any crime for his role in the plot.

Hunt said he suspected Baldwin because McCord, who was security chief for the Nixon campaign at the time, had hired him solely as the result of a help-wanted ad in a publication of former FBI agents.

Banquet Planning Complete

Jerald Sinis, Chamber of Commerce president, said today plans are complete for the most exciting banquet in the history of the Pampa Chamber Tuesday night, Oct. 30, in the Heritage Room of the M.K. Brown auditorium.

An outstanding program for the annual event will feature an address by Dr. W.C. Newberry of Southwest Texas State University. Dr. Newberry is regarded as one of the Southwest's most popular humorists.

As an added attraction, a $1.5 million art exhibit from the Cowboy Hall of Fame will be on display in the auditorium lobby for viewing before and after the banquet.

A musical program especially arranged for the banquet will be presented by the Pampa High School Stage Band and Concert Choir under the direction of Harris Brinson and John Woickowski.

Sims said the banquet, to be catered by Coronado Inn, will feature prime boneless club steaks especially processed for the occasion by the B & B Packing Co. of Pampa.

The banquet will be open to the public and reservations may be made by calling the Chamber of Commerce.

Demand for dinner tickets already is heavy. Sims added, and a limit of 500 persons has been set.

SHULTZ SAYS

Poorer Nations Facing Further U.S. Aid Loss

NAIROBI (UPI) — U.S. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, under pressure from poorer nations to renew American pledges to international aid programs, said today the problem lies with Congress—not the Nixon administration.

Shultz told the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank that the administration will ask Congress to approve $4.5 billion in U.S. contributions over the next three years to the International Development Association (IDA), the World Bank's branch for low-interest loans.

But he warned that "I cannot say with any certainty how long our consultative and legislative process will take or certify its outcome."

World Bank President Robert S. McNamara told IMF delegates Monday that unless the United States makes its commitment by next June 30, IDA may die.

The United States currently provides about 40 per cent of the budget for IDA, which specializes in loans to the world's poorest nations. But Washington is more than a year behind in its payments, wants to cut its contribution to 33 per cent and, until Shultz's speech today, had refused to say whether the administration would recommend a so-called "replenishment" of IDA funds.

Shultz took a hard line generally toward nations that receive aid. The United States "finds it difficult to understand," he said, that it should give government aid to nations that reject private investment and "does not find it reasonable" that nations that confiscate foreign property on their soil should expect any U.S. aid.

At a news conference, Shultz confirmed reports by financial sources that the United States will not join in a new world monetary system until its balance of payments returns to surplus.

WTCC Names Pampa As Site Of Conference

Pampa was chosen today as the site for the 1974 conference of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Executive Association.

The action was taken at this forenoon's final session of the 1973 conference in Fredericksburg when directors accepted the invitation of E.O. Wedgeworth, manager of the Pampa chamber.

In a long distance telephone call to the News, Wedgeworth said approximately 100 chamber managers and their wives will come to Pampa for the meeting next September.

Wedgeworth is a past president of the association. The meeting in Fredericksburg opened Sunday and was concluded this noon.

Senate May Override Nixon Veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration supporters conceded that the Senate likely would vote to override President Nixon's veto of a disaster aid loan bill today, but they were hopeful he would be upheld in the House.

The Senate scheduled a vote for 4 p.m. CDT.

A House vote on the measure was put off until next week and Republicans were seeking to drum up support. The House has voted to sustain six previous Nixon vetoes this session.

Meanwhile, there was political maneuvering on two other veto disputes, involving school lunches and minimum wage legislation.

The disaster and measure, vetoed by Nixon Saturday as an "unnecessary expense," would increase the ceilings on the Small Business Administration's business loan and investment funds and expand the agency's authority to help small firms.

The bill, which cleared the Senate 82-1 earlier this year, would have provided loan forgiveness and lower interest rates for SBA and federal housing administration disaster loans.

"I don't see where we're going to get the votes to sustain," said one Republican vote counter. "My guess is the prospects aren't very good."

The Senate voted Monday to increase federal aid to the school lunch program by 50 per cent, which would swell Nixon's budget request by $300 million.

Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia chairman of the conference's nominations committee, called a news conference Monday to announce Briscoe had "withdrawn" from the race.

It was Carter who first asked Briscoe several weeks ago to let

Finnish Exchange Team Visiting Panhandle Area

A Rotary International Group Study Exchange team from District 141 in Finland, accompanied by group leader Kalervo Mustonen and Mrs. Mustonen, arrived in Pampa yesterday for a week's visit in Pampa and several area towns.

Members of the group exchange team are Hasse Jansson, a dentist, of Pori; Ville Paljakka, an engineer, of Rauma; Bjorn Ronnloff, an engineer, of Pargas; Heikki Salomaa, telephone company marketing manager, of Rauma; and Pecka Tuominen, secretary to a Finnish parliament member, of Mariehamn.

Group leader Mustonen, a retired colonel and ex-pilot in the Finnish Air Force, is a member of the Pori Rotary Club. The five members of the team are non-Rotarians, selected for participation in the program because of their recognized excellence in their business or profession.

While in Pampa, the team will be guests in the homes of local Rotarians.

Today the team visited in Canadian, where they visited a wood finishing mill, had lunch with the Canadian Rotary Club and spent the afternoon hunting and fishing.

Tomorrow the group will split up in the morning, with

Agnew's Lawyers To Define Stance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Court papers to be filed later this week will spell out Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's position on whether a vice president must be impeached before he can be indicted on criminal charges, according to one of Agnew's lawyers.

When asked Monday by UPI about Agnew's stance on the subject, attorney Judah Best said: "That would be a comment in the papers."

Best said the papers would be filed in U.S. District Court in Baltimore sometime this week. They will urge the court to block an investigation of Agnew on charges of extortion, bribery, tax evasion and conspiracy in connection with an alleged political kickback scheme in Maryland.

Agnew was notified Aug. 1

POINT CLEAR, La. (UPI) — Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe withdrew from the race for vice chairman of the Southern Governors Conference Monday because he felt he should not hold two such posts and because the southern conference is probably coming to Texas next year.

Briscoe's withdrawal apparently assured the election of Gov. Rubin Askew of Florida.

Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia chairman of the conference's nominations committee, called a news conference Monday to announce Briscoe had "withdrawn" from the race.

It was Carter who first asked Briscoe several weeks ago to let his name be considered for the post. Carter said Briscoe and Askew, two Democrats, each had the support of six Democratic governors and the five Republicans attending the conference were abstaining.

The person elected to the post will become the conference's chairman in 1975.

Briscoe said he did not want his name considered in Wednesday's election because the 1974 governor's conference is being invited to Texas and because he already serves on the executive committee of the National Governor's Conference.

Briscoe also announced Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Tex., will be a guest of the governors at a Wednesday breakfast. Briscoe said Bentsen's appearance was not to push his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976. During the National Governors' Conference last year, Briscoe advanced a Bentsen candidacy.

Briscoe said the purpose of the breakfast is "to discuss with Sen. Bentsen his performance as chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee."

During Monday's main session Briscoe told about the communications network he has established enabling runaway children to send messages to parents. He urged other states to follow Texas' example.

Commissioners Approve Hike For Taxicab Fares

A resolution granting increased taxicab fares and changing fare zones in Pampa was approved by city commissioners in their semi-monthly meeting this forenoon.

Cab fares will go up 20 cents in four city zones effective Oct. 1.

Tommie Nichols, operator of the cab company, asked for the increase two weeks ago. She cited higher costs of repairs and gasoline as reason for the fare hike request.

The resolution provides a maximum zone charge of $1.50 from one zone to other and a minimum charge of 85 cents from one point to another in any zone for the first passenger.

For each additional passenger from one pickup to one delivery there will be an additional 25 cents charge per passenger.

Commissioners in a short 25-minute session also:

Approved on first reading Pampa's $2.5 million budget and $1.72 tax rate for fiscal 1973-74.

Called a special meeting for 8:30 a.m. Friday for a second reading of the budget and tax rate ordinances to finalize the legislation before the new fiscal year starts next Monday.

Accepted bids of the S.E.C. Corp. and Stauffer Chemical Co. for chemicals at the city's water treatment plant.

Approved on final reading an ordinance increasing the residential sanitation fee from $2 to $2.50 a month.

Resumed action on removing debris from premises where abandoned apartment buildings were demolished in the 400-block of N. West St.

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 2 astronauts closed their home in space and prepared to fly to a Pacific splashdown late this afternoon to end man's longest spaceflight and open the way for voyages lasting a year or longer.

Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma, carrying a treasure of information about the earth and sun, land at 5:20 p.m. CDT after 59 days, 11 hours and 9 minutes and 24.4 million miles orbiting earth.

The astronauts sealed the main hatch to Skylab at 9:25 a.m. CDT, and strapped themselves in the Apollo command module they flew up to the orbiting station July 28. They prepared to undock from Skylab five hours later and start their return to earth.

The USS New Orleans was on station 224 miles southwest of San Diego. Helicopters and an experienced team of frogmen were ready to pluck the pilots and their Apollo ferry craft from the rolling seas beneath partly cloudy skies.

Hurricane Irah, heading toward the tip of Baja California with sustained winds of 105 miles an hour, was about 700 miles from the splashdown point. Forecaster Les Jordan said it posed no threat to the astronauts if the Apollo is on target.

"What kind of seas do we have in the recovery site," Bean asked.

"Five foot seas, right now," replied ground communicator Bruce McCandless.

"Not bad," said Bean.

The crewmen were awakened from their last night in space at 2 a.m. CDT by the recording "Going back to Houston" by Roger Miller.

"Watch out Houston, here we come," Bean told mission control.

The pilots, in good spirits and surprisingly healthy, were coming back in an Apollo command ship crippled by propellant leaks in two of four control rocket systems. The problems at one time forced officials to ready a rescue ship for possible duty but engineers later determined the Apollo could make it back safely.

Bean successfully test fired the two good control rocket systems at 10:30 a.m. The astronauts planned to use only those two rocket sets to line up for the 17,000 mile an hour reentry.

Controllers Are Confident
Apollo spacecraft manager Glynn S. Lunney said ground controllers approached the final phase of the historic mission "with full confidence that the system is entirely capable of doing a normal job."

To be on the safe side, however, the astronauts were told to use only one firing of Apollo's main engine to reduce their speed for re-entry into the atmosphere. Normally, they would have used two shorter "burns" but this would have required more use of the control rockets.

The big question to be answered tonight and in the days ahead is how well will the three spacemen readapt to the rigors of gravity on earth after spending two months learning how to do without it.

Dr. Royce Hawkins, the astronauts' chief physician, said the spacemen were in prime physical condition and likely could have continued to live and work in orbit indefinitely with no damage to their health.

"I think they will be able to get out of the ferry craft by themselves," Hawkins said. "But there's no question in my mind, we're going to see a very unstable crew once they get up on their feet."

that he was under investigation by the government for allegedly accepting kickbacks from state contractors. The probe extends back to the years when Agnew was Baltimore County executive and Maryland governor before he became vice president in 1969.

Agnew's lawyers have reportedly claimed that their client is not subject to criminal prosecution because of his office but could only be impeached by Congress. Best would not confirm the reports Monday and gave no indication what position the court papers would take.

The Washington Star-News quoted "reliable sources" Monday as saying multimillionaire land investor Joel Kline has told federal prosecutors investigating the alleged kickbacks that he funneled as much as $100,000 in cash to Agnew and other Maryland political figures.

The newspaper said Kline, a Chevy Chase, Md., businessman, admitted being a "conduit" for the money.

The newspaper said it could not determine how much of the $100,000 Agnew received, whether he obtained it before or after becoming vice president, or whether Kline gave the money to Agnew and others as political contributions.

In other developments: —Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson, who has ultimate control of the inquiry, canceled a scheduled appearance in San Antonio, Tex., saying that he was forced to do so by "the most pressing of national business."

—Best denied reports that he and other Agnew attorneys are bargaining with the Justice Department toward a possible deal in which Agnew would resign in exchange for being charged with a lesser offense than warranted by the evidence against him.

—Agnew's aides said they may announce details today on the establishment of a legal "defense fund" to cover the costs of a court battle.

Indochina Knocked By Fierce Battles

SAIGON (UPI) — Guerrilla troops shelled a key Cambodian power plant, overran a second South Vietnamese outpost and battled U.S.-paid Laotian mercenaries in an outbreak of fierce fighting on all three Indochina war fronts.

In Phnom Penh, the military command said insurgents slipped into the outer limits of the capital early today and shelled a vital electric plant with rockets and mortars. The command said the rebels launched the attack from a swamp just outside the village of Chak Angre and only a mile from the American Embassy.

In Saigon, military sources said insurgents overran a militia outpost 60 miles southwest of the South Vietnamese capital early today, the second government camp to fall to guerrillas in two days.

The sources said the raiders stormed the Popular Force outpost two miles west of the town of Tam Binh and pushed out the 20 defenders. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

The command said today an estimated 2,000 North Vietnamese troops wrested the Central Highlands camp from Le Minh's 500 defenders. A spokesman said the Communists abandoned the smoking rubble after the attack and pulled back into the nearby rough jungle.

Science Today

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD HONOLULU (UPI) — High in a valley, where giant trees filter the sun, lies the only tropical arboretum in the United States. The Harold L. Lyon arboretum, a University of Hawaii facility, supplies rare specimens for medical research and provides scientists throughout the world with plants unavailable elsewhere. The staff also works to preserve rapidly vanishing plants and introduce new ones.

Dr. Yoneo Sagawa, director of the 124 acres of tropical splendor, is particularly proud of the arboretum's participation in a National Cancer Institute project seeking a cure for leukemia.

"Plants in the temperate regions have already been explored for anticancer factors," Sagawa said, "and researchers have been turning their attention to the tropics."

Plants Collected Monthly Members of the arboretum staff have been sending plant parts to the University of Wisconsin, working under contract with the National Cancer Institute.

"Each month we collect tropical plants and separate the leaves, stems, flowers and other parts," Sagawa said. "Then we dry them in an oven and send them off."

Of the thousands of samples submitted, Sagawa is pleased that "a couple dozen are under investigation for antileukemic activity."

The scientists at the arboretum also deal with the problem of plant species dwindling, and then disappearing. Some plants that were common here 10 years ago are becoming endangered today.

Much of the loss Sagawa blames on industrialization, overgrazing and fire, and the arboretum's two greenhouses and ample grounds are a haven where plants that are becoming rare may be protected.

With an annual rainfall of 160 inches and temperature ranging from 57 to 80 degrees Fahrenheit, the arboretum is filled with abundant growth.

Taro Plants Collected Since the problem of vanishing plant species is prevalent elsewhere, Sagawa is particularly interested in getting the endangered ones to flourish again outside the protection of the arboretum.

The scientists have been successful in sparking growth in plants that are unusual from an evolutionary standpoint.

"Probably because Hawaii is so far away from a large land area, some plants have evolved differently here than their related species," Sagawa said.

"The chrysanthemum here grows almost like a small tree," he said, "and violets have grown as little woody plants."

Nowhere else are the plants found to have evolved in this way, Sagawa said, although the original seeds had to have been carried to Hawaii from elsewhere.

The arboretum has a huge collection of taro plants, descendants of 154 different specimens gathered from countries and islands of the Pacific.

Koreas Sparking UN Debate

By PHIL NEWSOM UPI Foreign News Analyst Debate over the future of the two Koreas provides the most likely source of fireworks in the 28th general assembly of the United Nations.

North and South Korea are the last of the unnatural divisions which followed World War II, setting up rival regimes in Korea: East and West Germany and North and South Vietnam.

The two Germanys this year entered the United Nations as separate members, thus recognizing the semi-permanent nature of their existence. After more than 10 years of fighting at least a semblance of peace has returned to Vietnam after a war fought largely with the resources of the Soviet Union and China on the one hand and the United States on the other, including on the U.S. side, manpower.

The Korean debate once again aligns against each other the old cold war antagonists and once again the decisions, if any, to be reached will be with minimal regard for those most effected.

Two Resolutions To be debated are two opposing resolutions.

One, sponsored by China and Algeria in behalf of North Korea, and backed by 28 other nations, is in two parts.

It would (1) "annul the right to use the United Nations flag by the foreign troops stationed in South Korea and dissolve the United Nations Command, and (2) recognize that "all foreign troops stationed in South Korea should withdraw so that further steps may be taken for accelerating the independence and peaceful reunification of Korea."

The other, sponsored by the United States and 12 others, asks that the U.N. Security Council consider those aspects of the Korea question which fall in its responsibility, "bearing in mind the need to insure continue adherence to the armistice agreement and full maintenance of peace and security in the area."

Showdown Shunned Several considerations lie behind the wording.

For China the most important is the demand for withdrawal of the United Nations flag.

China is the chief strategist and is ignoring the Soviets in the planning.

Interstate Highway Near End Of Projected Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interstate Highway System is coming to the end of its 42,500-mile long road.

First proposed to Congress in 1955 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, 98 per cent of the coast-to-coast, border-to-border system has either been completed or is under construction.

The final bill for $76 billion. What did the money buy? Backers of the system praise it as the finest highway system in the world. Critics claim it is simply a government-fed goose that laid golden eggs for the highway lobby.

Safest in World When the last mile is paved in the early 1980s, enough concrete will have been poured to build six sidewalks to the moon.

Put another way, the pavement used in the system, if put into one parking lot would be more than 20 miles square and more than half the cars in the United States could be parked on it.

The tar and asphalt would be enough to pave driveways of 35 million homes in suburbia. And enough dirt and rock was excavated to cover the state of Connecticut knee deep. Over 14,000 interchanges will have been built and the land used for the rights of way totals 1.7 million acres.

Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar earlier this month termed the system "the safest and best engineered highway network in the world."

First Major Setback

Critics of the system scornfully refer to it as the biggest public works project in American history. President Nixon expressed still another view when he signed the $23 billion highway bill Aug. 13. He said he thought it was "boring" to drive on super highways.

But when Nixon put his signature on the bill it was acclaimed as the first major setback for the highway lobby since the Interstate Highway System was sold to Congress.

The reason is, the bill specified that for the first time, funds from the $4 billion Highway Trust Fund, which financed construction of the Interstate system, may be used for mass transit.

Under the compromise, three-year bill, the fund will remain inviolate for the first year, but $200 million will be released during the second year for purchase of buses. During the third year, $800 million will be freed for buses, rail systems or subways.

"No longer must urban planners think 'just highways'... Now they will be able to consider tradeoffs to alternatives," Brinegar said.

But the highway lobby is not about to panic in fear its trust fund will eventually be taken over by mass transit advocates. Keep in mind that even this small leak in the fund came only after a tough fight in Congress, a highway trust fund backer said. "Besides, any nation with 100 million vehicles is going to need highways in the future — lots of them."

The sun is 400,000 times brighter than a full moon.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Sally not only had a high I.Q. but also a classy chassis and good paint job! But still she lacked 2nd dates. For boys dropped her after their first date. Girls, there is a special strategy for solving this problem. Scrapbook this case and re-read it!

CASE Y-526: Sally D., aged 19, is a college sophomore. "Dr. Crane," her mother began, "Sally has an I.Q. of 135, so she is considered very brilliant."

"And she makes straight 'A' grades, so she should qualify for Phi Beta Kappa when she graduates."

"But she doesn't seem popular with boys and this disturbs her so much that she wants to quit college."

"Yet Sally is a very pretty girl, with a good figure, so what can the trouble be?"

PIANO FALLACY

Just because Sally is pretty, brilliant and interested in a piano, doesn't make her an accomplished pianist, does it?

For we don't inherit the art of bringing forth harmony or melody from the keyboard.

No, it requires precise study of the basic laws of music, plus a lot of diligent practice.

Same is equally true of harmonious adjustments to people!

The art of gay, easy conversation is not inherited! It must be learned via the same scientific rules as piano playing.

Sally thus needs to remember that the cardinal law in winning friends of both sexes (and especially suitors) is contained in this axiom:

"I WANT TO FEEL IMPORTANT."

But on a date, the girl must generally be the deft practical psychologist and thus employ the "Stoop to conquer" technique.

Sally thus wants the boy friend to pay her compliments and inflate her ego.

But even boys with her own high I.Q. are usually awkward at conversation.

Moreover, they also want to feel important and thus are waiting for her to build up their ego.

that necessary ego inflation from their companion which will lead to 2nd and 3rd dates.

Instead, they will rebuff or alienate each other and thus call it quits after that first date.

So Sally must become a social detective, ferreting out the visible merits or virtues in her boy friend and then be lavish with honest praise thereon.

Soon he will expand happily, for he will thus begin to feel more important.

And a corollary of that axiom states that when our companion makes us feel more important, then our resulting pleasure spills over and paints our associate in a more attractive hue.

So we soon crave return dates, just to get bigger doses of those compliments.

It isn't long until the boy friend will then awkwardly praise Sally in return!

Thus, they both get their horns tooted! And romance is likely to ensue!

Girls, experiment with this "Compliment Club" strategy, using it on any male you may meet, regardless of his age.

"For practice makes perfect," is a truism that applies here, too.

So your gay repartee will then be far easier when you finally meet THE boy friend that you'd like to attract for permanent dates!

A classy chassis and a good paint job may attract the eye of a boy but it is your deft conversational skill that holds him and keeps him coming!

So send for my "Compliment Club" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Hobart, Indiana 47424. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

We've got a lot of new ways to win you over.

Darrell Royal

This is the start of my second season with your Chrysler-Plymouth Dealer... and you can bet we're all pretty excited about our chances of winnin' you over to a new '74 Chrysler or Plymouth this year. We figure we've got what it takes.

There's the new '74 Chrysler. A whole new expression of an idea that's never changed. The idea: that a Chrysler should be a luxurious, elegant car that's still affordable. Then there's the new '74 Plymouth Fury. They took the toughness Plymouth's famous for... added sleek new looks and new features... and believe me, Plymouth tough is beautiful. There's the new big-enough, small-enough '74 Plymouth Duster and the mid-size '74 Plymouth Satellite. Well, these two cars have been winnin' people over in record numbers for the last few years. And from what I can see of these new cars, that winnin' streak looks pretty safe. So before you buy any new '74, c'mon in and have a look at what your Chrysler-Plymouth Dealer has to offer. He's really out to win you over. And maybe '74 is gonna be your year.

Dear Abby

Her cool dude cools it when it's a family affair

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I met a really cool guy who travels, and he makes this town once every two weeks. Tex and I dug each other right away, and I might as well tell you we ended up at his motel on the second date.

Every time he'd come to town, we'd go to his motel. I really grooved this dude, Abby. He even told me he loved me.

Well, imagine how hurt I was when I found out his brother got married right here in this town last week and Tex took another girl to the wedding.

Wouldn't you think if Tex liked me well enough to have me at his motel every time he got to town he should have asked me to that wedding?

Should I ask him how come I'm good enough to go to bed with, but I'm not good enough to take to a family wedding? HURT

DEAR HURT: Don't ask him any questions. The answer is obvious. Just because a man says: "I love you," doesn't mean he means it. And doesn't the fact that he took another girl to a wedding where his friends and family would be present tell you something?

DEAR ABBY: There is a poem by Ogden Nash that I would like to find, but all my efforts led me nowhere. It goes something like this:

"He drinks because she nags, he thinks.

She nags because he drinks, she thinks."

Then it goes on to say that: "In fact, he's a sot and she's a shrew."

I am going crazy trying to track it down. Can you help me, please? AVID CHICAGO READER

DEAR READER: My reference library contains 15 volumes of Ogden Nash and I can't find it either. But I'll bet one of my readers out there can.

DEAR ABBY: My pet peeve is the way some daughters in law pick on their mothers in law.

I refer to that silly crab who griped because her mother in law always got to sit next to her son (daughter in law's husband) when they rode in the car.

She wrote: "As my husband opens the car door for us, I step back and let his mother get in first. This puts her next to my husband, which I think is MY place."

Well, for Pete's sakes, gal. Get in the car first if you want to sit next to your beloved. He can then help his mother in, and close the door. This puts his mother on the outside, next to the door, which is really the best spot because then she can view the scenery, and isn't squeezed between two bodies with nothing to look at but the hood of the car and the pavement ahead.

More power to you! Me? I'm a mother in law, and prefer to sit near the door and let my daughter in law sit next to my son.

I've noticed, too, that after a mother in law becomes a grandmother, she no longer is despised, but suddenly becomes a wonderful baby sitter. What a difference a child makes!

Just wait, young wives, one day you'll become mothers in law, too. And then God help you!

Children's Rainwear To Brighten-Up Days

COLLEGE STATION — "Brighten up" those rainy days with cheerful, sporty rainwear for children.

Nylon, vinyl, cotton poplin, patent leather and polyester fabrics highlight the all-weather cover-up scene for fall. According to Marilyn Brown, consumer education clothing and textiles specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Short jackets and above-the-knee length coats complement skirts and pants — making them popular with children of all ages.

Besides style, consider fit and comfort when selecting rainwear.

"Raincoats too large or small hinder a child's activity," the specialist noted.

"The shoulders should be roomy enough for free arm movement — yet small enough that seams stay in place.

"Well-fitting garment sleeves and armholes also allow free movement."

The coat neckline and collar should fit low enough in front to prevent binding — with the back snug so it won't ride up or slip down.

Other important selection factors involve fabric. Miss Brown continued.

"Consider fabric durability, weight and colorfastness. Does the fabric show soil readily? Does it have a water-repellent finish?"

Check permanent care labels before buying rainwear," she advised.

Most rainwear — even some vinyls — can be washed and dried automatically. However, some can't — so, read labels beforehand.

To clean plastics which can't be machine washed, wipe with a damp, soapy sponge, the specialist suggested.

Giggy-Thompson Vows Solemnized

Miss Cynthia Lynn Giggy became the bride of Douglas Ray Thompson, Saturday, Aug. 25 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, Pampa.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Giggy, north of city, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H.R. Thompson, 100 Nicki.

THE CEREMONY

Officiating at the double-ring ceremony was the Rev. H. Evans Moreland of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Amarillo. He was assisted by Joe Daniel III as acolyte. Organist Jerry Whitten played "Solomon Melody," Davies; "Area," Handel and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," Bach, while the guests were seated.

The processional was the hymn tune "Westminster Abbey" and recessional "Now Thank We All Our God." Bach.

The wedding setting was before the festival white draped altar. A pair of seven-branched candleabra and the single altar candles flanked the cross on the altar. Family pews were marked with a daisy centered green bow and yellow satin streamers. The white covered registration table was highlighted by a bouquet of white daisies. Mrs. Robie Walters, Pampa, registered the guests.

THE BRIDE

Presented in marriage by her father, with the "her mother and I" avowal, the bride wore a gown of white polyester crepe with princess styling. It featured a dainty lace overlay on the front panel, edged in narrow lace, with matching lace ruffles from front waist to back waist, also edged in the narrow lace. A lace sash tied in the back created a pinaflore effect. The high neckline was enhanced by a gathered ruffle of lace edged in the narrow lace as were the circular ruffles at the end of the long fitted sleeves. The bride's mother fashioned the dress and elbow length veil of bridal illusion. The veil was attached to a fitted lace covered cap tied as the side with narrow lace ties.

She carried a white Bible covered with a casual cascade of perky white daisies and greenery. The Bible has been carried at her mother's marriage 26 years ago and by Mrs. Hugh Giggy, her sister-in-law, at her marriage a year ago. Her only jewelry was a tiny, dainty gold cross, a baptismal gift from her godmother, Mrs. Fred Acree, Port Charlotte, Fla. The bride wore a blue satin and white lace garter with a tiny pocket holding the couple's birthyear and wedding year pennies.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Ronald Schultz was matron of honor, the bride's only attendant. She wore a pale yellow voile gown flopped with tiny white flowers. It was designed with a low, round neckline with self-fabric ruffles, long full sleeves ending in deep cuffs, fastened with tiny pearl buttons, a midriff band above the fitted waistline and full gathered skirt, enhanced by a deep ruffle at the hemline. She wore a white garden hat with yellow satin streamers and carried a white wicker basket laced with yellow satin ribbon ending in a bow. The flowers were dried and sprayed white, yellow and mint green. The arrangement was made by the bride's mother.

R. L. Douglas, of Shamrock, was best man for his grandson, the bridegroom. Serving as ushers were Ricky Harris, John Watson, Jerry Lindsey and Jay Roth.

MRS. DOUGLAS RAY THOMPSON ...nee Miss Cynthia Lynn Giggy

MOTHERS

The bride's mother wore a floor-length gown of lavender double knit with long kimono sleeves, high straight neckline in front with a self-fabric sash. Her corsage was a pink orchid. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a long gown of apricot eyelet, accented with a white collar and cuffs on the long sleeves. A green orchid completed her outfit.

RECEPTION

The reception was held in the Parish Hall. The table was covered with a white linen cloth with a net over satin ruffle falling from table to floor. The centerpiece, a creation of the bride's mother, featured a large circle of bunched white wicker.

Two white wicker bells were attached at the top of the circle with yellow satin ribbon and white net. A fluff of pale yellow bridal illusion covered the base. A pair of lighted yellow tapers in crystal holders surrounded by daisies and greenery flanked the centerpiece. The bride's daisy covered Bible was placed in front of the centerpiece. The punch was served from this table by Mrs. Clifford Atkins, Pampa, assisted by Miss Jill Bartel, cousin of the bride from Albuquerque, N.M.

A smaller round table covered with a white cloth, featuring a full yellow net ruffle with yellow and mint green bows scattered around it, adjoined the main table and held the cake. The three-tiered white wedding cake was decorated with little yellow roses and white sugar bells on the two square bottom tiers. The round top tier and second tier were separated by white Grecian pillars. A pair of white doves surrounded by little yellow roses adorned the top tier. The cake was made by and a gift from Mrs. Carl Johnson, Pampa. Serving the cake were Becky and Linda Thompson, sisters of the bridegroom.

Mrs. J.C. Beyer, Pampa, hosted the reception. David Bartel, Albuquerque, cousin of the bride, distributed the rice bags.

For the wedding trip to Amarillo and Tulsa, Okla., the bride traveled in a gray cuffed pants and flowered top. Her corsage was of daisies lifted from the Bible.

The couple is residing on the campus of John Brown University in Silvan Springs, Ark. where the bridegroom is attending school. The bride is employed in the admissions office at the university.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride is a 1971 graduate of Pampa High School and completed a medical secretary course in Amarillo.

The bridegroom attended PHS and graduated from the Wasatch Academy in Mount Pleasant, Utah in 1971.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS

The bride was honored with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Robert Mack, 1711 Charles. Other hostesses were Mrs. A.L. Hopkins, G.E. Lunsford, Stanley Chittenden, H.J. Johnson and John Best.

A rehearsal dinner for the wedding party and families was hosted by the bridegroom's parents in the Crown and Shield Room at the Pampa Club.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 26

Your birthday today: Whatever life style you have achieved, there are new dimensions and unfamiliar influences coming to bear soon in your daily living. Make a habit of assessing your real capabilities, reviewing your resources, and praying for guidance in how best to apply and improve them. Relationships tend to be off on tangents, requiring care to bring them back onto an even keel. Today's natives are fastidious and precise.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Opposition or resistance continues until you untangle some of the results of yesterday and last night. Then cooperation begins and you're off on a different tack.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Expecting no particular help or encouragement, resolve to get through this heavy day with little comment. No practical jokes or flip remarks for the moment, please.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Your pet secrets catch up with you and you may as well face the truth (and consequences). Make adjustments, and go ahead with the air cleared and a better understanding achieved.

Cancer [June 21-July 21]: In fixing things around the house, beware of any gadget that might overheat. Your regular work requires special care as conditions are somewhat less orderly than usual.

Leo [July 22-Aug. 22]: Those who love you are with you all the way. Put your main persuasive efforts onto external contacts, those who don't know you or the background of what you do.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Beginnings may be made now with caution; plan just one sound step and its checking before adding another. No move in group affairs should be made without full consultation.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: If you have the tenacity to wait just a bit, things turn sharply in your favor. Friends seem moody. Leave them to their own devices for the day.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Facts and figures begin to click into place and you gain additional perspective. Within days, long-stalled plans commence to move. Be patient with the needs of others.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: There are many ways of scattering energy, the likelihood of disagreement among friends. On investments, sit this one out. Share what you have with those who need it.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Given today's opportunities, it should be no great problem for you to come up with a general solution for whatever you consider to be wrong with your immediate locality.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Discussions of personal theories are provocative and need care so that you are not misunderstood. Avoid ultimatum-like demands. The other fellow has the right to be wrong.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: You gain little or nothing making others face their errors. Go your own way, doing what you know best how to do, and being accurate. By and by the imbalance levels out.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss ... and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done." But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss ... but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 33 days, at their risk, and see for yourself! Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped. But, if you are not already sick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. No matter what one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are sick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair ... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 33 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation. (Adv.)

NEW YORK (UPI) — A company seldom suggests ways to lessen the need for its product or products. But Holmes Protection, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of National Kinney Corp. of New York, has done just that in compiling tips on how businessmen can foil burglars and robbers, exclusive of the Holmes protection systems.

BUSINESS NEWS

Goodyear Announces Innovation

BEAUMONT — To make sticky things stickier, the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company is sharply increasing its capacity to make a substance once burned for lack of a better use.

Goodyear Chairman Russell DeYoung said a $1.5-million initial expansion of the company's Wingtack hydrocarbon resin operation in Beaumont is the first phase of a multimillion-dollar program that eventually will raise capacity to 100 million pounds a year.

The product without a use for so many years at the Beaumont plant was recently developed into a valuable resin that adds stickiness to such consumer items as bandages, labels and masking tape, and is an effective packaging adhesive and coating.

The initial expansion, to be completed the second quarter of 1974, will include increased production for the existing line of Wingtack products, according to DeYoung.

There's only a small chance that Holmes will drive itself out of business, however, because crimes against businesses and residences are growing at a staggering rate. In 1972, there were 5,064 million crimes against property, a 53 per cent increase since 1967, according to a recent FBI report. There were 374,540 robberies. Bank robberies were up 51 per cent, gas or service station holdups up 46 per cent, chain store robberies up 138 per cent, residential robberies up 108 per cent.

Victims Lose $722 Million
Burglary victims alone lost $722 million in 1972. All of which explains why Holmes, in the $3 billion per year protective business since 1858, is a growth industry. Last year it had sales of $20.3 million, almost $2 million over 1971. And the projection for this year is about 30 per cent over 1972.

It has 12 central offices and 60,000 operational systems—50,000 in commercial locations. They are in New York City, which had 171,000 burglaries last year, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Orlando, Fla., and Rutherford, N.J. Its 1,500 employees, half of them guards, spread into Mexico and Spain.

In New York City alone, Holmes protects more than $500 billion in bank deposits, Wall Street securities, clothing, furs and jewelry.

Jerry G. DeRoma, Jr., vice president-sales and a former footballer at West Point and baseball player in the Chicago White Sox organization, has the following advice for businessmen.

- Maintain minimum cash on the premises.
- Deposit cash frequently but stagger the times during which you make deposits.
- Record the serial numbers of a few bills and mix them in the cash drawer to provide evidence in event of a crime.
- Limit the number of employees authorized to carry keys and even if only one is lost change the lock cylinder.
- Always use some lighting on the premises.
- Have a good safe and see that it is bolted to the floor. One-ton safes have been removed.

DeRoma was asked if there ever are humorous moments in this serious business.

"Not often," he said, "unless you consider some of the bank robberies. Often the robbers notice cameras are trained on them. Some come up close to the camera and shoot it up in a moment of anger. That's funny. Because we get a very good picture of them when they come

Senate Moves Toward Major Pension Reform

By Samuel Hastings-Black

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — After several years of indecision and petty squabbling, Congress is finally on the verge of passing a major pension reform bill. This time the winner should be the American worker.

Despite enthusiasm for pension improvement last year, congressional action was scuttled by a judicial dispute between the Senate's Finance and Labor committees. Now that dispute has been settled, and from the full Senate debate which began Sept. 18, the outlines of the bill seem very promising.

Since half the workers in the United States are covered by congressionally regulated pension plans, the new bill — which is expected to get final approval from President Nixon — is likely to affect you or someone in your family.

WHO WILL BE ELIGIBLE?

At present, if your company has a tax-free pension plan, you may have to work many years before you can join. Under the proposed bill, you would be eligible at age 30, or after one year's work — whichever is later. (If your union has opted out of the company's plan, you will probably be joining your union's plan instead.)

Samuel Hastings-Black is a member of Tax Analysts and Advocates, a public interest law and research firm in Washington. He is a tax lawyer and has worked in both the House and the Senate.

With half the nation's workers covered by regulated pension plans, congressional reform legislation is likely to affect you or someone in your family.

HOW SECURE IS YOUR PENSION?

A major flaw in the pension system has been that some people have worked for years under a plan, only to learn that they have lost their benefits along the way. The new bill will change all that. In the future, if you're covered by a plan for five years, your employer's contributions will be "vested" in you. The new ruling is expected to ensure that 25 per cent of your employer's contributions will be non-forfeitable after five years, and 100 per cent after 10 years of work.

WHAT IF THE COMPANY GOES BANKRUPT?

If this happens, you might lose your job, which is bad enough. But it is worse to lose your savings, which is what pension contributions really are. This happens a lot nowadays. The new law will require employers to "fund" pension plans which means that your pension money will be deposited in an account which cannot be raided by management. This "funding" process will take many years. Meanwhile, the pension plans will be guaranteed by the federal government.

SUPPOSE YOU CHANGE JOBS?

Presently, if you work for a company and move to another, you could lose the pension you accumulated with your previous employer and start again from scratch at your new job. Many unions have solved this problem for their members by having only one plan, no matter where they work.

But for the non-union workers, or people who change unions, the new law provides the protection of "portability." When you leave a company, your rights in that company's plan are transported to a new government corporation.

When the Senate completes its discussion of the proposal, it is expected that the House Ways and Means Committee will report out a similar bill in late fall. After a House floor discussion, which is expected to be routine, a few House and Senate members will meet to iron out differences and then the bill will be sent to the President's desk, probably early in 1974.

When you begin work for the new company, your accumulated pension rights go to the new company's plan and you pick up where you left off. This "portability" provision is one of the most radical improvements under the proposed bill.

THE LAWYERS' LOBBY

Law firms now often become "professional corporations" so that lawyers can get bigger pension benefits. In many cases, tax-free pension contributions can be $45,000 for one lawyer for one year. The Senate wanted to cut this figure to $7,500. Attorneys all over the country raised a war chest to lobby to keep the "lawyers' loophole," which raises everybody else's taxes by $125 million every year. Just before the debate began, the lawyers succeeded in forcing an exception to the loophole-closing proposal. But the House may try to put it back in.

Most of these proworker pension changes are not extremely radical. But they do build on aspects of the current law to substantially increase the security of a promised pension. And they make many more people eligible for this security.

WHAT HAPPENS TO THE BILL AFTER THE CURRENT DEBATE?

When the Senate completes its discussion of the proposal, it is expected that the House Ways and Means Committee will report out a similar bill in late fall. After a House floor discussion, which is expected to be routine, a few House and Senate members will meet to iron out differences and then the bill will be sent to the President's desk, probably early in 1974.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Partly because so many railroads are broke, or nearly so, federal and local authorities are spending millions to eliminate bumpy track crossings by laying rubber pavement.

Actually, improving grade crossings is the legal obligation of the carriers. But many haven't the money to do it. Since the federal government ruled a few years ago that states and cities can get Uncle Sam to pay half of the cost of eliminating dangerous crossing surfaces, hundreds of the new rubber crossing surfaces made by Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. have been installed by public authorities.

Goodyear introduced the rubber pavement 18 years ago to make crossings smoother. What really interested the federal government was research by safety experts revealing that rough crossing surfaces caused an enormous number of accidents—rear-end collisions after the first driver slowed down because of the rough surface, or loss of control of cars. A study made at Rochester by the New York Department of Transportation concluded that half of all grade crossing accidents were caused by rough surfacing.

New York transportation officials have urged Rochester to lay rubber on 18 of 23 crossings in the city, and Philadelphia is expected to start laying rubber surfaces for its crossings soon.

Under the federal aid program, the state normally provides 45 per cent of the funds and the local government 5 per cent to match the 50 per cent federal contribution.

Edward L. Robinson, West Virginia's railway-highway coordinator, said that while under West Virginia law maintenance of crossing surfaces is the responsibility of the railroads, the state has decided to go ahead and put the rubber surfaces down if the carriers can't pay for them now.

The value of the Goodyear rubber crossing is that it lasts. Smooth track crossing surfaces can be made of asphalt, steel, concrete or timber, but they don't stay smooth very long. On the other hand, says West Hansen, manager of Goodyear's Industrial Products division, the first rubber crossing surface laid 18 years ago in New Britain, Conn., is in virtually perfect condition. None of the 1,000 installations laid so far has worn out although a few have been damaged by snowplows or derailleurs.

"They withstand the ice and snow in Minnesota, the dry heat of Arizona and the torrential rains in Florida," Hansen said. "They are immune to the vibration from passing trains that shakes asphalt, concrete or timbered surfaces to pieces."

Even though the rubber surface costs two to three times as much as conventional surfaces, railroads put them in if they can afford them. The Long Island Rail Road in New York has laid 60.

'Have-Nots' Climbing To Top In Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — After a weekend of "scars" to many of the nation's elite college football teams, some of the "have-nots" have begun creeping their way to the top.

Southern California, which had to rely on its defense to nudge by Georgia Tech, 23-6, increased its lead over Nebraska as the nation's No. 1-rated team according to the United Press International Board of Coaches. The Trojans received 23 first-place votes from the 35 coaches voting—two more than last week—to up their point total to 328.

Nebraska, also a hard-fought winner in outlasting North Carolina State, 31-14, received eight first-place votes from the coaches and a total of 296 points. Idaho State was third again with the remaining four first-place votes and 281 points.

Michigan, one of the biggest winners among top 20 teams last week off its 47-10 trouncing of Stanford, jumped past Alabama into the top four with 238 points. The Crimson Tide, undoubtedly hurt by its narrow 28-14 win over unsung Kentucky, remained at No. 5 with 205 points.

MAYS' NIGHT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Willie Mays will be the guest of honor tonight in a good old-fashioned crying jag organized by the New York Mets.

It's called "Willie Mays Appreciation Night" and it should attract a capacity crowd of about 53,000.

The party was organized before Mays announced his retirement last Thursday but is expected to be a "hail and farewell" sendoff for Mays.

Smith. They did call me after they got him though and tell me I was their No. 1 center."

Some parts of Chamberlain's book are X-rated. They deal with his sexual experiences and make most of the passages in Jim Bouton's first book, "Ball Four," look like weak tea by comparison.

"I wouldn't compare the things I wrote about with the things Bouton did," says Chamberlain. "I didn't get into the other players' sex lives like Bouton did. I told only about my own sex life. I was very self-conscious writing about it. But sex is part of my life. My mother did get on me about some of the things in the book, she got on me a little, but not about the things you probably think she did."

SWC Roundup

Oklahoma, 14-7, might have turned the team around.

High Hopes

"We went into the Oklahoma game with great hopes," said Lacy, a 6-0, 200 pound product from San Angelo. "We started off badly and did not move the ball well. We were down because we hadn't moved it well and we thought it was our fault."

"The offense worked hard before Pittsburgh and we take a lot of personal satisfaction."

"I don't know if we were scared or what against Oklahoma. But I felt in the second half against them we moved we could play."

"I think that second half made a ball club out of us. When we walked off the field trailing 35-0 at the half against Oklahoma we still got an ovation from the fans and we all made up our minds were going to play."

Leading Performance

Lacy had never carried the ball 39 times before, not even in high school. In his junior year Lacy's leading performance came against Miami, in which he carried 22 times for 85 yards.

"I was feeling it," he said, "but at the half knowing we were leading 14-0 against them it kind of helped."

Baylor must return to the Big Eight this week and face Colorado, which lost to LSU in its opening game and last week had trouble subduing Wisconsin.

"Their personnel is very, very similar to Oklahoma," Teaff said. "They are very strong and very quick. I would have to rate them equal with Oklahoma."

Reds Down Padres, 2-1, Clinch NL West Crown

By United Press International

The Cincinnati Reds are home free and the Pittsburgh Pirates are still alive.

That's the story in the National League today after the Reds clinched their third Western Division title in four years with a 2-1 victory over the San Diego Padres Monday night and the Pirates remained a half game out of first place in the Eastern Division by splitting a "survival doubleheader" with the Montreal Expos.

The world champion Oakland A's and the Baltimore Orioles already have clinched the American League's Western and Eastern Division crowns, respectively, leaving the NL East the only undecided race in the majors.

The Reds, traveling at a .700 pace for the last two months, clinched the NL Western crown with the help of homers by Andy Kosco and Tony Perez plus the late-inning relief pitching of Tom Hall and Pedro Borbon. The victory went to Dick Baney, a 25-year old rookie who shut out the Padres on six hits for the first seven innings.

A "Must Victory"

The Pirates, faced with a "must victory" in the second game, were shut out until the sixth when Stargell homered. Singles by Al Oliver and Stargell, a sacrifice and Zisk's single gave the Pirates two more runs in the eighth. Nelson Bries went 6 1-3 innings for the win with Dave Giusti pitching the last 2-3 innings for his 20th save.

Bob Watson's two-run single and Cesar Cedeno's three-run homer were the big blows for the Astros, who tagged San Francisco 23-game winner Ron Bryant with his 12th loss. Jerry Reuss went 7 1-3 innings for his 16th triumph.

Tommy Harper hit a grand slam homer. Carl Yastrzemski a three-run drive and Reggie Smith a two-run shot as Marty Pattin pitched a nine-hitter to raise his record to 14-15 for the Red Sox. Fred Holdsworth was tagged for six runs in 4 2-3 innings and suffered his first loss.

Steve Brye, Rod Carew and George Mitterwald each drove in two runs in a 16-hit attack that carried Minnesota over playoff-bound Oakland. The A's, who clinched the AL West title Sunday, set a league record by using four pitchers as pinch-hitters. Darold Knowles became the first pitcher in the AL to drive in a run this season when he delivered a sacrifice fly in the sixth to give the A's a 6-2 lead.

Lee Stanton's two-run double with two out and the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth inning ended a see-saw battle and gave California its victory over Texas. The Rangers had taken the lead with seven runs in the top of the ninth.

They Were Counted Out

"Two months ago when we were 11 games behind the Dodgers everybody counted us out except 25 players, one manager, four coaches and a batboy," said Cincinnati star Pete Rose, who is en route to his third batting title. "Everybody said we couldn't win it except us. This is a fighting, struggling team. Coming back to win it this year is a lot more satisfying than last year when we didn't have it so hard."

Borbon, making his 78th appearance, earned his 14th save although tagged by a two-out homer by Ivan Murrell in the ninth.

The Expos beat the Pirates in the first game of their doubleheader, 5-4, but Pittsburgh rallied for a 3-0 victory in the nightcap on Willie Stargell's 4th homer and a two-run single by Richie Zisk. The Pirates trail the New York Mets by a half game with both teams even in the loss column at 7-7.

Houston defeated San Francisco, 10-6, in the other NL game Monday night while Boston routed Detroit, 14-0. Minnesota edged Oakland, 7-6, and

3-New York Knicks

NBA — Atlantic Division

1972-73 finish: W57, L25 — 2nd Place

PROSPECTUS: People are beginning to see kinks in the Knicks. Some predict this will be their last great year. The defending NBA champs will lose Dave DeBusschere next season, when he becomes general manager of the Nets. Bill Bradley will probably retire and go into politics. Willis Reed's aging, aching knees must be about to give out. Dick Barnett has retired, to be a Knick assistant coach. But — for this coming season, they are all there. And with Walt Frazier, now an undisputed All-Pro, leading the offense and defense, the Knicks are again strong contenders. They do it with an extraordinary coach, Red Holzman, who has made team defense an art form. The Knicks have led the NBA in defense four of the last five years.

FORWARDS: DeBusschere and Bradley are still magnificent, particularly in the scope of the team concept. DeBusschere is a monster on the boards and a good outside shot. Bradley keeps the offense moving with his calculated scampering. Phil Jackson, Jerry Lucas and rookie Mel Davis lend added force and skill.

Rating: A

CENTER: Reed is still a question mark, though he came back after injuries to play very well in the playoffs. Lucas is a good backup center. Rating: B plus.

GUARDS: Frazier ranks with Jerry West as the best in NBA. Earl Monroe is erratic, dazzling at best, desperate at worst. But has made his personal style (with Baltimore) conform to team pattern with Knicks. Dean Meminger is a solid and sparky sub who showed mettle in clutch. Henry Bibby appears to be developing as the little outside shooting guard that Meminger, a driver, is not. Allie McGuire, former Marquette guard, has a chance to stick. His chances are not hurt that uncle is Knick scout Dick McGuire.

Rating: A

PREDICTION: Few expected the Knicks to win it all last season. And their whipping of L.A. in final playoffs, four games to one, shocked many — including Sharman, West, Chamberlain, etc. The Knicks' fine defense is a powerful lever. And the Knicks therefore should again be a team to deal carefully with.

(NEXT: PHILADELPHIA.)

bridges behind him in Los Angeles by some of the opinions he includes in his new book.

"Wilt: Just Like Any Other 7-Foot Black Millionaire Who Lives Next Door."

And for a third thing, Chamberlain's "buddy," Bill Russell, has decided to go back into coaching and will be handling Seattle in the NBA this season. Anything Bill Russell can do... Wilt Chamberlain figures he can do better, and what nicer time to prove it than now—at an even higher salary than Russell is getting.

Chamberlain was here to plug his book Monday. He was pushing it over TV and at one of those book parties, and he wasn't shocked to discover there was far more interest in where he'll play this coming season than in what he had to say in his book.

He can tell when he's being baited, and he knew that was what was happening at one of the sessions when one member of the media said to him:

"They're 'Saying'

"They're saying you've already signed a contract with San Diego and all you're really waiting for now is for the money to be put up front."

Dallas Deals Saints 2nd Straight Killing

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Don Meredith, who used to play some football in the neighborhood, did some quick figuring before the Dallas-New Orleans game Monday night and announced that considering the scores of recent contests involving the two teams, the Cowboys should be favored by 103 points.

The Cowboys fell short of that by 66 points but the results were fairly conclusive, nevertheless.

Despite a bout with the heat, despite a momentary scare when quarterback Roger Staubach hit the artificial turf with a thud and despite the expected flatness because their opponent had been beaten, 62-7, the week before, the Cowboys downed New Orleans, 40-3, and presented Coach Tom Landry with his 100th pro victory.

Landry thus becomes only the 10th NFL coach to reach that plateau.

"I have said before that longevity is the most important thing as head coach," Landry said following his club's win. "And you have to win to have longevity. I was lucky to have

Doctor Hopeful Namath Won't Need Surgery

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. James A. Nicholas, the man the New York Jets entrust with keeping Joe Namath in one piece, is hopeful the star quarterback will not need surgery to repair his separated shoulder.

"We have a perfect reduction of the shoulder right now," Nicholas said Monday. "It's a question of whether we can maintain it or not. We don't want to operate."

Namath sustained the injury early in Sunday's 24-10 rout of the Baltimore Colts when he was hit by blitzing linebacker Stan White and fell heavily to the turf on his right shoulder. Surgery would finish him for the season while treatment might have him back in eight weeks.

"The target date is Nov. 18," Nicholas said. "Right now we have to wait and see how the shoulder responds to the splint. When you put a pin in and repair the ligaments, there's so much stiffness that it might hamper his effectiveness for a year or two. If he loses five per cent of the rotation in the shoulder, it could hamper his effectiveness."

Nicholas said Namath is in "considerable pain" but added, "he can handle pain well. He's got a lot of strength."

The final decision on whether or not to operate will come later this week. If Namath does not need surgery, Nicholas indicated he could be able to throw by Nov. 10.

Seattle SuperSonics Ax Three Veterans To Reduce Roster

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Seattle SuperSonics Monday cut three veterans from their squad, trimming the team to 13 players—just one above the National Basketball Association limit.

Dropped from the squad after two weekend exhibition losses to Golden State were guards Charles Dudley and Harold Fox and forward Joby Wright. Fox is the property of the Buffalo Braves and was with the Sonics on a trial basis.

President's War Power

We have talked about the value to individual taxpayers of reading the U.S. Constitution to see if they can understand what the Founding Fathers had in mind and to try to understand the official current interpretation of that document.

We contend that it has been stretched far afield, but what we think is not so important as what individual Americans come to think after careful study.

The Watergate affair should have renewed individual interest in the U.S. Constitution because so much has been said about separation of powers, inherent powers and the like.

The difficulty with expecting individuals to "understand" the Constitution stems from the fact that as a legal document, it is subject to official interpretation by the judiciary, and interpretation changes over the years depending upon the philosophy of those doing the interpreting.

One matter up for much discussion involves the power of the President to commit American military personnel to do battle. The Constitution clearly states that only Congress may "declare war."

Don Oakley of Newspaper Enterprise Assn. discusses this subject in a recent commentary in which he quotes Sen. Barry Goldwater as holding the opinion that the President has the constitutional authority to make war because he is commander in chief of the armed forces.

Goldwater is quoted as saying that this nation has engaged in hostilities abroad at least 199 times without a declaration of war by the U.S. Congress and the historical precedent of these actions is cited to support Goldwater's contention.

We suggest that argument is faulty. Repeated instances in which a law is not enforced does not make an illegal act legal. Still a Supreme Court might one day side with Goldwater's view if the question were ever put to the test.

To get a more dramatic picture of the importance of issue, one needs to get a bit fanciful and prepare a scenario in which the question of which branch of government holds the ultimate power is tested to its conclusion.

The president as commander in chief can order his troops into action at any time and at any place, as Mr. Nixon did in the Cambodia bombing.

Congress may oppose such military action, but is powerless to halt it except through legislation to terminate funding. The President could veto such a measure, Congress could then override the veto, but by that time, whatever military action U.S. troops were engaged in could become a full-blown war with retaliation on a major scale.

Assuming that Congress could be successful at that point in terminating the funding for armed conflict, American troops would be at the mercy of whatever foreign power was involved.

Now this bit of fiction may seem difficult to imagine, but it seems to us that is a definite possibility under the interpretation of war powers seen by Sen. Goldwater.

We do not think this is what the Founding Fathers had in mind when they wrote that the president is commander in chief.

As Oakley's commentary pointed out, Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman (D-N.Y.) said "after careful study of the Constitution, I have concluded that the President lacks the power to begin or carry on a war without congressional approval for every one day, except in an emergency to repel an attack on this country."

But an attempt by Rep. Holtzman to have the Supreme Court intervene by ordering a halt to the Cambodian bombing was not successful. This seems to indicate that the high court did indeed agree with Sen. Goldwater that the 199 previous "undeclared wars" was precedent enough to conclude that the President can make war all right, but he simply cannot "declare war."

Mr. Nixon did not use his powers to create a war in Southeast Asia, but was effective in winding it down and ending American troop involvement.

But the way the Constitutional interpretation seems to come down makes the "safeguards" seem a bit flimsy.

It is frightening to think about what havoc some future President with a penchant for war might be able to bring about.

UNION, N.J. (NEA) — It's a strange sort of political year in New Jersey. Listen to Brendan Byrne, the Democratic nominee for governor, make his case before some conventioners at Atlantic City.

"I've never been a candidate for public office in my life... There's nothing that makes me a good politician, a good speaker, or even a good candidate...."

"I don't know it all. I don't know a lot of things..." With Jersey hip-deep in political scandals, talk like that may go over big. It's a good year to profess inexperience, and even a little ignorance.

Of course Byrne doesn't want that kind of thing taken too literally. He lets the customers know he was an aide for a time to former Gov. Robert Meyner, that he headed the state's Public Utilities Commission, spent nine years as prosecutor in Essex County (Newark), and just quit as Superior Court judge in Morris County.

So the plan is to offer him as clean but not too green. Byrne's strategists don't know any more than do those of his GOP rival, U.S. Rep. Charles Sandman, about the prospective impact of Watergate in this important race. But they figure if it makes New Jersey voters just a little more attentive to character at a time their own state is in a mess, Byrne may be the new face they're looking for.

"Shopworn" is one of the key labels they pin on Sandman.

If Byrne is new, he's also stiff, especially for an Irishman with seven kids. His managers know it, and it makes them a little nervous. Some top Democrats privately fear he'll blow something big before November election day.

But top aides like Richard Leone, a Muskie man last year, and Lew Kaden, once with Robert Kennedy, can't see Byrne giving away what they think is a safe lead. They think Sandman, the veteran legislator from Cape May who himself has six kids, has piled up enough "negatives" in 17 years in office to keep Byrne on the winning side.

In branding the GOP nominee a "rightwinger," a "splinter candidate," they'll tell you he's got an incredibly bad labor record — that he's voted against higher minimum wages, better worker safety, food stamps for the poor, even "hot and cold running water" for migrant workers.

Byrne's managers added that if Sandman argues he's done all this as the taxpayer's friend, it amounts to overkill. They think that when they get through laying out Sandman's record, his presumed advantage as the "gut issue" candidate will evaporate.

Says Kaden of Sandman's showing at a recent confrontation of the contenders in Smithville:

"He sounded like he was running for chairman of the board of General Motors..." Well, that's the easy part of a New Jersey report. But, dashing from northern cities to Cape May, you find the total scene and the tons of "facts" baffling. Both the sights and the talk are a shifting montage which eludes definition.

Many gauges say the economy booms, but rail lines totter in or near bankruptcy, high unemployment smothers heavily black Newark, pollution is so bad Sandman dares to say a deepwater port (with threat of oil spills) couldn't hurt. Crime perils the streets.

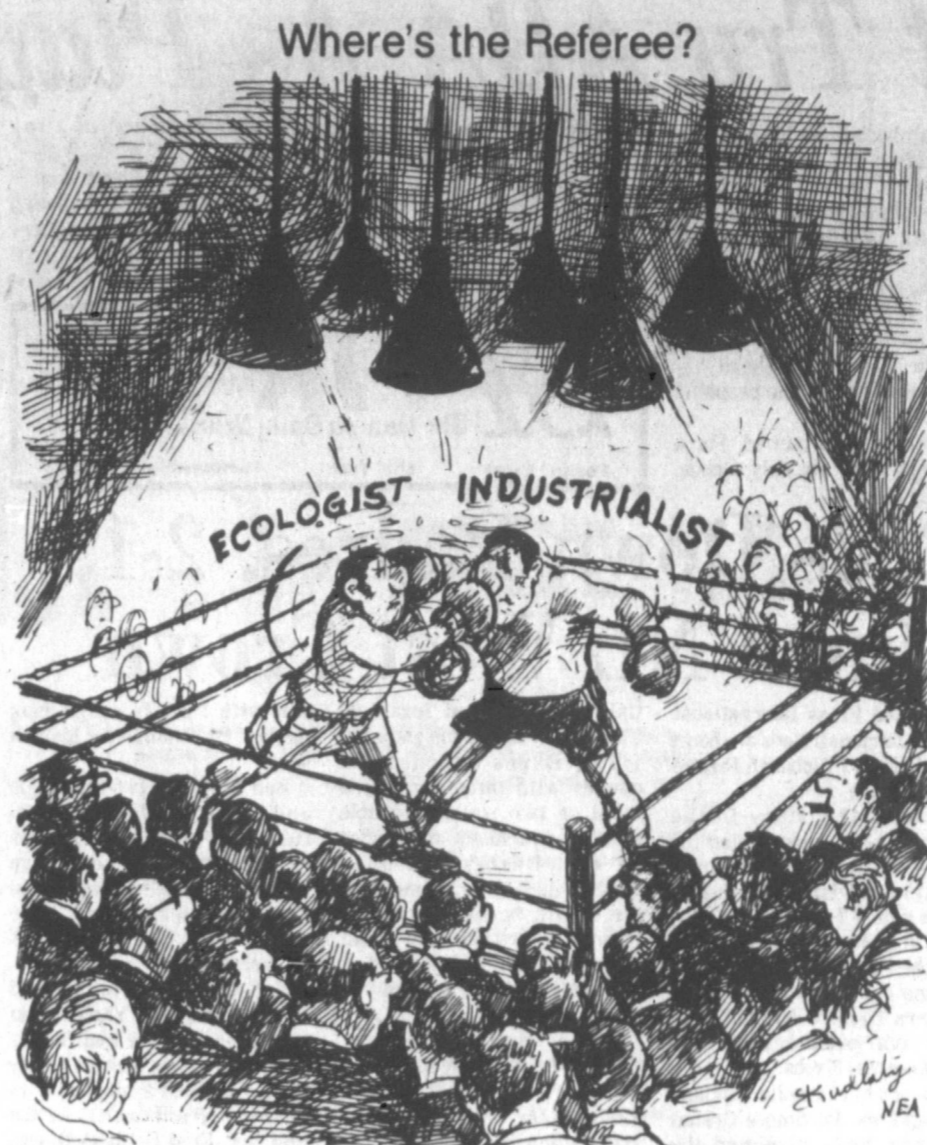

Bright new houses fill up the long coastline, yet the piney, swampy inland is nearly a human desert. Large areas seem a throwback to the 1940s. Can there be a real New Jersey?

Beauty Aids

A dear old lay was asked what she used to make her complexion so beautiful and her whole being so bright and attractive. She answered:

- "I use for my lips, truth; I use for my voice, kindness; I use for my eyes, compassion; I use for my hands, charity; I use for my figure, uprightness; I use for my heart, love; I use for any who do not like me, prayer."

"God and the soldier we adore in time of danger, not before. When danger is past and all things righted; God is forgotten and the soldier is slighted."

BRUCE BLOSSAT World trade talks climate not right

By Bruce Blossat

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The world trade talks starting in Tokyo Sept. 12 are badly needed, yet promise to be substantially unproductive.

Among the reasons hopes are not high are the unsettled state of U.S. trade attitudes, and some internal squabbling going on within the European Economic Community, the world's biggest trading unit.

Given these uncertainties and a rapidly shifting, highly troublesome general trade picture, it is hard to see how the negotiators will get beyond the surface.

Not too many months ago, the United States was fretting desperately about a flood of imports and a huge trade deficit, especially with potent Japan.

Despite this year's chaos over the weakened dollar, the various U.S. devaluations have altered circumstances and, in an astonishingly quick turn-around, the prospect now is that in the last half of 1973 this country may actually show a trade surplus.

U.S. exports are booming, and some economists are saying the dollar today is actually undervalued. Items like American television sets are competing well in world markets against Japanese output, and are said even to be making some inroads in the more liberalized Japanese market itself.

A year ago, the threat that would bring the big trading nations was the evident growth of U.S. protectionism against imports. President Nixon's trade bill, presented last winter but still languishing in Congress, asked for discretionary executive authority to raise trade barriers as well as lower them.

Now he hardly seems to have need to push for this authority, even though certain perpetually aggressive protectionist forces are busy leaning on Congress and, in that body's present anti-Nixon mood, it may wind up giving him more import-restrictive power than he can use.

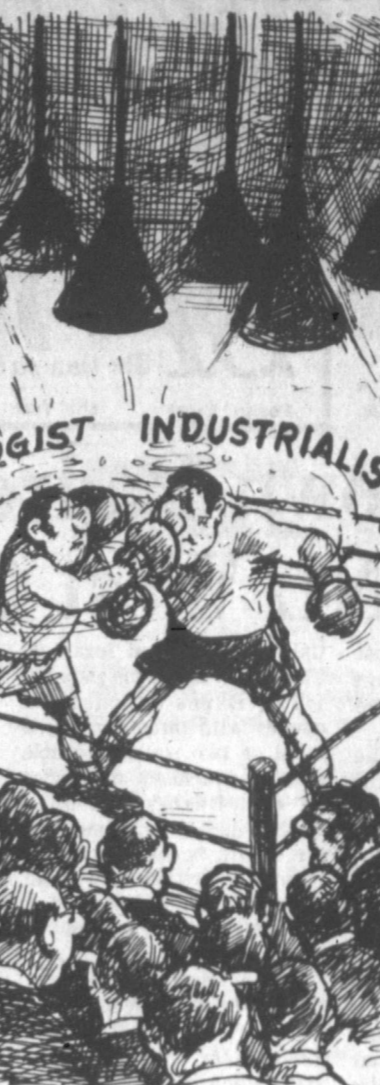

What world traders face today is another kind of fear — that America, perhaps increasingly beset by shortages, may slap on more extensive export controls that those narrowly or temporarily applied by the President late last spring.

Meantime, in the EEC, where Britain's entry was counted upon to signal a new drive toward economic unity and harmony, 1973 has seen Britain, France and West Germany battling like alley cats.

The British, with their special ties to established old commonwealth partners, haven't fared easily. The French seem dominated by concern over protecting their weak agriculture. The Germans, strongest of the lot, nevertheless have inflation and other troubles, and are distrusted by the French, who think Willy Brandt is too cozy with Moscow.

As for Japan, its world image as the power grabbing for everything it can buy and trying to unload its industrial output everywhere is a portrait more overdrawn than usual. It has never been allowed to

Your Health Coffee, Tea Have Caffeine

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I was particularly interested in your remarks regarding caffeine in relation to coffee. You do not mention tea, and I am wondering if there is not as much, or even more, caffeine in tea as there is in coffee.

My mother and father were English and both heavy tea drinkers and lived to over 80. What does this signify, if anything?

Dear Reader — The age span of your parents indicates that there's a lot more to longevity than drinking tea, and it begins with inherited factors. Don't count, however, on heredity determining one's lifespan, because there are so many other factors, such as those that contribute to fatty deposits in the arteries (atherosclerosis), common in our society today that the heredity factors play little, if any role in group statistics on longevity.

Tea certainly does contain caffeine, and the caffeine in tea behaves exactly like caffeine from any other source, including that of coffee. The only difference, and this has to be a generalization, is the way in which coffee and tea are brewed. It is commonly said that a cup of tea has about half as much caffeine in it as a cup of coffee. This means if you're used to drinking five cups of coffee a day, to get the same amount of caffeine from tea drinking, you'd have to drink 10 cups of tea. Of course, this depends on how strong you brew your tea, and how strong or weak you brew your coffee.

Incidentally, the tea leaves originally contain much more caffeine than does the coffee bean. It's the way in which it's brewed and processed that makes the final difference. It's important to remember that when you talk about habits or specific findings, such as coffee drinking, tea drinking, alcohol drinking, smoking, physical activity or diet, that in each instance each one of these is only one of many factors that influence what happens to your health and longevity.

There are individuals who have greater resistance to disease than others, just as some people are susceptible to colds and others are not. It requires careful statistical analysis of groups of individuals to really gain an impression of what the difference environmental factors in life styles, and habits do in terms of increasing the likelihood and risk of health problems.

If you were to take a group of individuals who were overweight and had high cholesterol levels, you would find that they have a much higher rate of heart and vascular disease than a comparable group of individuals who are of normal weight and had low cholesterol levels, but this does not mean that you could tell each and every individual in the overweight group, for example, that he was going to have a heart attack, nor could you tell everyone in the thin group with low cholesterol levels that they were not going to have one. All you can do is express the increased or decreased likelihood, as the case may be.

The treat tragedy of life is not that men perish, but that they cease to love. — Somerset Maugham, British author.

Inside Washington

Panama Strongman, Family On Secret Trip to Spain

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — That history-making anti-Communist upheaval in Chile obscured some strange — and possibly equally eventful — goings-on in Panama.

While the Marxist Allende regime was being forcibly liquidated in Santiago, Panama dictator Omar Torrijos, accompanied by his family and close henchmen, quietly took off for Spain.

Cost of their air fare was more than $8,500 — one way!

Reportedly in the party was finance minister Jose Guillermo Aizpu, virulently anti-U.S. and a key figure in Torrijos' rule. Some time ago, Aizpu met secretly with Libyan strongman Muammar Qaddafi, truculently hostile to both the U.S. and Israel, on a plan to construct a sea-level canal to be owned and operated jointly by Panama and Libya.

Aizpu's proposal reputedly called for Qaddafi putting up $2 billion. The Panamanian is said to have stressed that the new canal would give the Arabs domination of the world's two main waterways — the Suez and Panama.

There is no authoritative indication what is behind Torrijos' secrecy — cloaked trip.

Two of his top lieutenants, Foreign Minister Juan Tack and United Nations Ambassador Aquilino Boyd, both militant leftists, are seemingly in control. With Aizpu, they engineered the scheme whereby the UN Security Council held a week's session in Panama in March — as part of a propaganda drive to wrest control of the Canal from the U.S.

Their aim, to ram through a bitterly anti-U.S. resolution, was blocked only by veto of U.S. Ambassador John Scali.

Supporting this denunciatory maneuver were India, Yugoslavia, China, Russia, Kenya, the Sudan, France and Guinea. Several months later, Panama proposed "reopening negotiations" for a new canal treaty. The U.S. agreed, but nothing has transpired since.

The last negotiations took place in Panama in December 1972. The U.S. indignantly broke them off when the Torrijos cabal leaked details of what was being discussed — in direct violation of a specific understanding to maintain secrecy while the deliberations were in progress.

The original 1903 Canal treaty has been twice revised — in 1936 and 1955. Torrijos is demanding virtual complete control over the Canal as well as the U.S.-ruled 500-square-mile Canal Zone.

Meanwhile, an increase in toll rates is being quietly weighed by the directors of the Panama Canal Co. — which operates the 50-mile interoceanic waterway and is wholly owned by the U.S. government.

There has been no change in toll rates since 1915. The proposed hike is being considered because of two basic factors: mounting costs coupled with declining transit tonnage.

A toll boost would be certain to evoke furious Latin American opposition. Approximately 30 per cent of Canal traffic originates in Latin countries, for whom the Canal is a vital link to U.S. markets.

Next quarterly meeting of the Canal directors will be in Washington next month; the annual meeting will be in Panama in January. At one of these sessions the board is expected to recommend a toll increase — most likely around 10 per cent.

The final decision is in President Nixon's hands. He will determine what if anything is done about tolls, and how much.

Last year, toll revenues totaled $113 million — $11 million more than the previous year.

This increase was partly offset by a slight decline in transits, from 14,238 to 14,200. Among the factors responsible were a sharp drop in the number of Vietnam-bound munitions and petroleum shipments, new and larger ships replacing old small ones, and the increasing number of super-tankers too large to transit the Canal.

Thomas Constant, secretary of the Panama Canal Co., maintains a "moderate toll increase is logical because conditions warrant it." But he admits it is certain to draw furious fire throughout Latin America.

Indispensable Asset

If and when new Panama treaty negotiations are resumed, the Nixon administration is on blunt notice that control of the Canal cannot be included.

That is the emphatic warning of Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., chairman of a key Appropriations subcommittee, and leading authority in Congress on the strategic waterway.

Characterizing the Canal as a "priceless" defense and commercial asset, the veteran legislator maintained that loss of control would quickly lead to Russian seizure.

"If we lose the Canal," Flood said in an unreported House speech, "its control would quickly fall into the hands of the U.S.S.R. That is the grim reality of the Canal Zone sovereignty question, and no amount of official State Department sophistry can change it. That is why the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, in its report earlier this year, summarized the major Canal issues as:

"Retention by the United States of sovereign control over the Canal and Canal Zone, and modernization of the existing Canal under present treaty provisions."

Citing the UN Security Council's March meeting in Panama, engineered by the Torrijos regime, Flood declared it was part of a prolonged plot to "foster worldwide hostility against the U.S."

"This is a two-pronged conspiracy," he told his intently listening colleagues, "to gain domination of Panama's advantageous geographical location and exploit this to the maximum degree, and to liquidate U.S. sovereignty over the Canal."

Flood characterized Panama's attitude as "resembling the position of the Barbary pirates in the early part of the 19th century."

"I would rather have my people laugh at my economies than weep for my extravagance."
— King Oscar II of Sweden
