Land of 'Lost Radio Waves' Discovered

"The land of the 'lost radio waves,'" has been discovered, a region of "general silence"—so far as radio is concerned.

This space is located in Southern California between Porterville and Modesto, inside the radius of which radio messages absolutely disappear. Some sort of invisible barrier in the air or ground seems to barricade the radio waves and nothing happens. Not north, south, east or west do radio messages leak in.

L. M. Maynard of the Citizens' National Bank, Los Angeles, tells of this phenomenon of the air. He had been working in that district and expected to keep in touch with his bank by radio. Finding this impossible, he thought his radio was out of order and reassembled it. Then, when he had arrived at home he found other radio operators were having the same trouble. The radio fans in the "lost radio wave territory" are experimenting with boxes in an effort to ascertain the reason for their difficulty.

Do Not Be Tempted

Beware of him who cometh to you from afar with the promise of a sure cure. In the game of health a sure cure is just as rare as in the shell game.

Do not be tempted to sacrifice the essentials of Home, Good Food, Fresh Air, and Rest for the delusive promises of a fine climate.

Better a cabin on the wind-swept prairie with plenty and comfort and sunny friends; than a home among the balmy breezes of the West with luxury and discomfort, and among strangers.

The Cure does not consist in taking some specific drug; not in employing some mysterious magic art; not in searching a continent in search of the fountain of perpetual health; but in striving to bear against the disease all the forces that science and experience have demonstrated to be of service; and in living in harmony with Nature and in conformity to her laws.

Don't Drive Across School Campus
 Drivers of autos and other vehicles are kindly requested to quit driving across the campus at the High School building. There is a road around the campus constructed for your benefit and you are urged to use this instead of driving across the campus as the little time you may save by this practice costs others real coin.
 Driving across the athletic field causes bad ruts; necessitating plowing and regrading this field and this costs money. The next time you are tempted to drive across the campus just stop and consider you are doing the wrong thing—you are damaging the property of all our folks—and it is going to cost someone money to repair the damage you and other are doing to public property.
 If you can not be persuaded to quit this practice it will be necessary to erect a fence around the campus and that will mean more money expended—and a needless expense too—just to force you to respect the right of others.
 Let's help instead of hinder, by cutting out this bad practice and urge others to do likewise.

Why So Far From Home?
 The men may have violated a federal court injunction regarding picketing. If so, it is natural to expect them to pay the penalty. But to take four El Paso workmen away from their friends and families, away from those who could help them as witnesses or otherwise and try them in New Orleans, 1200 miles away, is evidence of something wrong in court practice.
 Admitting the justice of injunctions to prevent wrongs, whatever violation there was of the court's order occurred here in El Paso. The injunction was issued from the federal court at New Orleans, and for that reason the men have been taken there for trial.
 It would have been better if they could have had their trial in the United States district court here. The government would have saved money, too. It costs something for the transportation of officers and four defendants from here to New Orleans.
 These four El Pasoans may or may not be guilty of an offense that may or may not have occurred. Their fellow citizens would have liked for them to be tried here at home, at the scene of the alleged violation, among their friends and neighbors, where justice could have been administered quite as well as at New Orleans.
 El Paso shopmen's unions are to be complimented on the fact that when notice of the issuance of the injunction was given them, they received it respectfully, without protest, and in law abiding spirit have endeavored to conform their acts to it.—El Paso Herald.

T. H. Johnson returned Monday morning from a business trip to Ranger and other points in the oil field. He reports crops almost burnt up from Sweetwater on east but states that from here to Sweetwater crops are looking good and a rain soon would result in a big crop being harvested.

Letter From B. Reagan
 The following letter from B. Reagan to the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce will be of interest to Big Spring and Howard County friends:
 My Dear Friend:
 I have wanted to write to you and my friends there many times since I have been here, but have been so busy trying to get started in business again that I have sadly neglected doing so.
 To say that I miss my Big Spring friends puts it mildly. Some times I get very lonesome here. However this is a fine old town and it has many advantages that I wish you people out there could enjoy.
 It is about the same size, perhaps a little larger than Big Spring. Has well paved streets, sewers, The South West Texas Normal school, which enrolled this year above 3,000 pupils, the Baptist Academy which has five or six hundred students. These schools are fine institutions and mean much to the life of the town.
 To people who have lived in the West as long as we did, the rivers here are wonderful. The San Marcos river breaks out a perfect river at one place right in the edge of town. The volume is enormous. There are several bathing beaches where the water runs over the gravel bottom and it will be over your head in most places—clear and as pretty as crystal. The Rogers Park, a small park in the edge of town and a very popular resort. All kinds of things arranged for those who love to go in the water, and you can not go there any hour of the day but that you find some one in the water. The beautiful shade trees along the west bank makes it a delightful place to go in the evening and many people take their lunch and eat on the tables or have a watermelon feast. This river running so clear and deep that it is regarded as one of the prettiest rivers in this country. About three miles away is the Blanco river, a beautiful river of clear mountain water. This river runs into the San Marcos about 3 or 4 miles below town. There are a number of delightful bathing places along this river also. As to fish, I suppose that they are here tho I have seen none. But never a day passes but that I see several cars with fishing poles and judge that there must be some fish in the streams somewhere. However this is on the highway between Austin and San Antonio—which runs right in front of my store—and no doubt that many of the cars come from some distance.
 The country to the south and east is all farms—to the north and west it is practically all mountains—as beautiful scenery as you will find anywhere, but very rough road over them.
 Crop conditions here are fairly good. Cotton is said to be late this year.
 The Ku Klux were here in full force one night shortly after I came. About 500 robed men were in the marching line, following the fiery cross. It was said that there were about two thousand cars parked around the square and on the streets. Cars began to park as early as 2 p. m. Old settlers said there were more people in San Marcos that night than they ever saw before.
 The election was the all absorbing theme until Saturday night. But being a stranger to the men on both sides, it did not contain the interest for me that I usually find in them. Of course I was sorry to see Cullen Thomas lose, but Mayfield will make a good senator.
 As yet I have not heard a word about how the election went at Big Spring.
 I want to thank you and the good people there for the many nice things said and done for me before leaving there.
 I believe that Big Spring will yet be one of the leading towns out that way and I shall always be ready to do all in my power to promote her advancement.
 With every good wish for you personally and with best regards to members of the Chamber of Commerce, I am,
 Your friend,
 B. Reagan.

Complete Fair Exhibit Planned by United States Department of Agriculture

Whether it's entertainment or information they seek, fair-goers this year are sure to find many features of interest in the exhibit of the United States Department of Agriculture at the Texas Cotton Palace, Waco, Texas. There is something there for everybody, young and old, and no pains have been spared by the various bureaus of the Department, who are doing big things of vital interest to the people of the country generally, to make the Government displays as complete and attractive as possible.

The exhibits will cover about 4,000 feet of floor space and will illustrate the activities of the Department and the results achieved for the betterment of American agriculture. A wide variety of displays will be used. There will be actual working models that give a realistic presentation of the subjects they illustrate. Some of these are of particularly ingenious construction. There will be beautifully colored transparencies, charts, maps, and photographs. Instruments and appliances of all kinds used in the various activities of the Department will be on display to show how work of every-day value to the people of the country is performed.

Among the exhibits of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics is to be one illustrative of the radio news service by means of which the bureau's market information is disseminated throughout the country wireless. There will also be an exhibit illustrating hay-making methods, and the work of the Bureau in standardizing market baskets and shipping containers will be illustrated. Many phases of the cotton industry will be illustrated, including cotton standards, sources of damage to crops, manufacturing and warehouses. There will also be a transparency case showing the various grades of live stock animals and meat cuts.

Among the exhibits of the Bureau of Animal Industry will be a display on the standard varieties of poultry, method of pedigree breeding, a model poultry laying house, methods of tick eradication in cattle, organization and results obtained from a bull association, a model dairy barn for a large herd, pathological specimens showing tuberculosis in cattle, model sheep barns, hurdles, fence, lamb creeps, sheep feeding racks, barn appliances, and the production of beef cattle on farm and ranch.

The Bureau of Plant Industry will have a display showing the various wheat varieties, a seed exhibit, methods and results of tree surgery, diseases of vegetables and fruits on the farm, in transit and storage, and the prevention and control of same, including diseases of berries, cabbage, potatoes, fruit and corn. The production of sorghums, forage crops and fruit is also presented.

The exhibit of the Forest Service includes a windbreak model showing the proper arrangement of windbreaks on a 160-acre farm in the region of Oklahoma; a post treating model showing an inexpensive way for farmers to treat fence posts to prevent decay and replacements; a fence post panel of treated specimens showing the efficiency of treatment to prevent decay; a box testing model showing how the Forest Products laboratory tests boxes, and a panel showing the bad effects of lumbering without consideration for the future.

How to waterproof leather and other materials for farm use will be shown by the Bureau of Chemistry. Of particular interest are two sets of harness, one in good order that has been used for 34 years on a farm, and another that, because of neglect, is ready to be discarded after 4 or 5 years of use. The Bureau will also show how it condemns and destroys foods that are unsuited for use in the enforcement of the pure food and drug act. There will also be exhibits showing the preparation of tea, country hides and skins, the skinning of animals, the skinning of calves and sheep, adequate and deficient proteins in foods, and proteins and amino-acids. The difference in the resisting qualities of waterproofed and unwaterproofed canvas will also be illustrated.

The Bureau of Biological Survey will display specimens of pocket gophers, utility rabbits, birds of paradise and gours or crowned pigeons, American egret and snowy heron, injurious ro-

Poem

by UNCLE JOHN

There's many a puzzlin' problem that attacks a feller's mind, when discoursin' to a Public, of a mighty various kind. There's some will differ with ye, and there's others that applaud—an' some that won't believe ye on yer oath, so help ye God! Which brings the solemn query into this here humble song: Can anything be honest—yet remain, dead wrong?

HONESTY

I've allers heard that Honesty was fust among the things, that took a man to Heaven, on the shiniest of wings; that a man that wuzent honest, had mighty nigh as well, consult the ticket agent fer the slowest train to hell— So, a little sober thinkin' will arouse the question strong.—Can any man be honest—yet, remain dead wrong? I try to foller reason in the ideas I evolve—an' I sometimes pray fer guidance, when I've got a thing to solve. I've catered more to judgement, than to tolerance or taste, in these days of much palaver where the sintax goes to waste. Let me cast this humbly pebble in the philosophic pool —That Honesty is resky—in the bosom of a Fool!

Uncle John

HOMELY PHILOSOPHY

For 1922

The best way to entertain a man is not to entertain him at all. Don't make yourself a four-flusher by giving him a better dinner than you always have. But give him what you have cheerfully. Then, too, your guest knows you've got to work for a living and have lots of things to do, so go an' do them, telling your friend to do exactly what most pleases him till you get finished. Don't be afraid to say what you think and don't agree if you don't agree, but don't expect your guest to agree with you because you're entertainin' him. Just widen out. Let love an' tolerance be King and Queen of the home while the guest is with you, and then maybe you won't be able to throw them out after he's gone.

Farmer Capitalists

Denton Record-Chronicle: Everywhere there is coming a realization that smaller and better kept and better cultivated farms are essential to the best welfare of the community. As the land grows older and poorer it can be seen that scraping the top of the ground, planting the seed and then doing little else until harvest will not provide much to harvest. Saving of the soil and intensive cultivation of the crops planted will insure a much better return than is being secured from most of the farms now under cultivation in the older sections of Texas.

If there is anything worse than seeing an inadequate farmer musing up a big farm, probably it is the sight of an inept merchant trying to run a big store. Farming no less than merchandising demands ability. Happier by far is the man who knows how to run a little farm, when he is satisfied to keep it little, than the ambitious agriculturist who assumes to say grace over more ground than he can cover with his management. The farmer who succeeds on a small farm, and finds himself with spare capital, after making his homestead comfortable should not regard himself as obliged to buy more land with his surplus earnings. That is the usual way, almost the invariable custom in this country. But oftener than not it proves unprofitable. Land is regarded as a safe investment, but there are other safe investments. For example, the bonds of the Farm Loan Banks. These can be had always at a price to return almost 5 per cent, free of taxes. A farmer who is successful with a small farm would be, in a majority of cases, much better off with a $5,000 farm and $5,000 in farm bonds than with a $10,000 farm and no bonds. The French farmers, perhaps the most thrifty in the world, are content with small acreage. But they are not content with bond investments. They own an enormous percentage of the French national debt. The Russian Government owed, and the Bolsheviks repudiated, about $3,000,000,000 of debt due to French citizens, many of them farmers. This money was used largely in building Russian railroads before the war, railroads which the Bolsheviks have practically ruined. It isn't necessary for American farmers to invest in foreign bonds. They can invest in land bonds, bonds as safe as the land. Others than farmers, of course, may also invest in farm bonds, and they do. Wall street regards them highly.—State Press in Dallas News.

The Editor

George Fitch once wrote a vest-pocket essay on "The Editor." Fitch began his newspaper career as a reporter at $6 a week, but more recently was a litterateur at many times $50 a week. The last sentences of his observations, which are printed below, probably explain why Mr. Fitch gave up editing for contributing:

"An editor is a tired, nervous man who decides what shall go into a newspaper and explains why it got in afterward.

"The editor works at an antique desk entirely surrounded by old papers and noise, and produces the results which enable the business manager to sit in a room fitted with mahogany furniture and Persian rugs and to respond to toasts at great banquets in solemn state and a dress suit.

"It is the editor's duty to feel the pulse of the world and hold the stethoscope to business; to assist at the birth of history, to translate the present, refute the past and arrange the future; to illuminate ignorance, reward merit, put the spotlight on villainy and he pulmotor on reform; to make statesmen and desecrate demagogues; to elect presidents, crown heroes and secure bigger salaries for baseball pitchers; to act as an alarm clock for public opinion, as an elevator for political candidates, and as a goat for every man who says something in a careless moment and who repents too late by declaring that he was misquoted; to embalm truth, annihilate error, to bring the national tear for great misfortune and the national laugh at great foolishness.

"An editor can lower a tariff, head off wars, harness the wrath of the whole people and raise a million dollars for food sufferers. And some editors are so powerful that they can raise their own salaries $10 a week.

"Editors are seldom praised, but they do not mind that. Editors do not often save any money and if they do, the business office feels as cheap about it as if it had paid too much for printer's ink."

Lodge "Discredited and Disgruntled," Says Banner Republican Paper of Iowa.

Henry Cabot Lodge is the Republican leader of the United States Senate. True, he is a leader without a following and one who is being rapidly discredited in his own party.

Iowa is the banner Republican state of the West, but is now preparing to send a Democratic Senator to Washington. The Des Moines Register is the banner Republican paper of that state, but like most of the great newspapers of America, regardless of politics, is honest, sincere and frank in expressing opinions of public measures and public men. Here is its opinion of Henry Cabot Lodge, the Republican leader, in name only, of the United States:

"Senator Lodge held a position of great influence in our foreign relations. He was able to balk and hamper and hamstring the very things he had himself in other days, and days not so very remote, urged upon the country.

"The worst thing that can happen to the Republican party for the future is to keep Senator Lodge in a place of influence, or where he will seem to have influence. He is a discredited, disgruntled, mean spirited, backward looking, cynical old man. His day of usefulness was over long ago, if he ever had a day of real usefulness in public life. The story of his public career is going to be told in mighty words when the history of American progress is finally written.

With such discredited party leadership in the United States senate, is it any wonder that banner Republican States like Iowa and banner Republican newspapers like the Des Moines Register are rebuking the reactionary and malevolent element which now controls the Republican party?

Though the defeat of Charles A. Culberson for renomination as the Democratic candidate for the United States senatorship from Texas may be ascribed to Mr. Culberson's impaired health, the country at large cannot fail to regret that the service of so efficient and high-minded a lawmaker is to be lost at Washington. The regret that Mr. Culberson is to retire from public life is tempered by his intelligently patriotic record in the senate where he has admirably maintained the best traditions of that body. Of the five candidates in last week's primary, Mr. Culberson finished third, the leading two candidates being Earl B. Mayfield, whose qualifications for high public office are not to be derided, and James E. Ferguson, whose impeachment and removal from office while governor are recollected.—Louisville Courier-Journal

A Fable

Said a wise old bee at the close of a day, "This colony business doesn't pay. I put my honey in that old hive, but others may eat and live and thrive; and I do more work in day, by gee, than some of the fellows do in three. I toil and worry and save and hoard, and all I get is my room and board. It's me for a hive I can run myself, and me for the sweets of my hard earned pail."

So the old bee flew to a meadow lone, and started a business of his own. He gave no thought to the buzzing class, but all intent on his selfish plan he lived the life of a hermit bee.—"Ah, this is great!" said the wise old bee.

But the summer waned and the grew drier, and the lone bee who he dropped a tear; for the gobbled his little store and played out and his heart was broken and took his meals at the door.

Alone, our work is all together we are the lords of the so, it's all for each and it's a united stand, or divided fall.

Motion Picture For Education

During the closing hour of the National Education Association Convention in Boston three sessions were taken place which may have the utmost importance in furthering the spread of education. By a vote of all delegates which lacked but two of being unanimous, the Towner-Sterling bill, creating a Department of Education, with a Secretary in the President's Cabinet, was endorsed as being the great necessity if educational progress is to receive proper governmental aid in this country.

Mr. Will H. Hays, former Postmaster General and now head of the motion picture industry, offered the cooperation of the movies to the educational world.

"There is already a great demand for pedagogic pictures," Mr. Hays said. "I propose that we jointly study that demand, and that we jointly find ways and means of supplying it. Let a committee be appointed by this association made up of the very best talent within your ranks; let them meet with the great producers of the country and find ways to use our facilities. We ask you to aid us and to let us aid you in the study of the whole problem of the use of the motion picture as a direct pedagogic instrument."

Plans for a world conference on education, to take place in 1923, were offered the convention.

Invitations are being sent to 45 countries to join America in the enterprise. The committee recommended that out of the world conference should come an international education association. The committee also proposed that the world conference discuss a world peace exposition to be held in 1930.

If you desire to know why thousands are drifting to the banner of Socialism you have merely to consider how the master minds figured out—a six per cent guarantee for the railroads; a subsidy of millions for the shipping trust with intoxicants on the side; they figured out how to protect the profiteers by a tariff; but they cannot figure out a living wage for the man who works—Labor.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Flaniken left Saturday evening for a visit in Dallas, Jacksonville and other points to enjoy a two weeks' vacation.
