Ike-Macmillan Agree on Summit

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI) — President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan agreed Saturday on a summit conference with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. They then discussed Britain's proposal to "freeze" Communist and Western forces along the iron curtain.

These were the highlights of the second day at the Camp David cold war strategy talks between Eisenhower and Macmillan.

The two free world leaders agreed to go to the summit with Khrushchev in July or August.

The conference would be conditioned, however, on results of a preliminary foreign ministers meeting to be held in Geneva in May, aimed at solving the Berlin crisis. Khrushchev has agreed that Russia will attend this meeting.

After the Anglo-American summit accord was reached the British laid out their plan to clamp a ceiling on weapons and forces on both sides of the iron curtain. This would freeze East-West strength at about present levels. The British would like this plan carried to the May meeting of Big Four foreign ministers in Geneva, then later to the summit.

Spokesmen for Eisenhower declined to say how he received the British proposal.

Their afternoon meeting also touched on plans for Allied action should Russia precipitate actual fighting over the Berlin crisis.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty and Macmillan's spokesman, Peter Hope of the British Foreign Office, said the British and Americans agreed there should be no "radical thing out" of Allied forces in Europe.

It was learned that Eisenhower and Macmillan agreed to allow Red Poland and Czechoslovakia as well as West Germany, Communist East Germany and possibly other governments to sit in as observers at the foreign ministers meeting.

They would presumably be consulted on questions directly affecting them. However, officials indicated the Allied leaders did not respond to Khrushchev's suggestion that some of the satellites be included as participants in the summit talks.

The Anglo-American accord was announced at press headquarters here, 24 miles from the Calcein Mountain retreat where the two free world leaders are conferring in well-guarded privacy.

The two paragraph joint announcement said:

"There is complete agreement between our two governments that

SPRING'S HERE!

Bright Sun Melts Panhandle Snow

United Press International

Winds died down in the Texas Panhandle Saturday, the first day of spring, and the sun broke through to chase away the remnants of a howling storm that swept across the prairies Friday.

Nearly all of the snow and sleet in the Amarillo and Pampa areas under a bright sun and crisp temperatures in the 40s.

Electrical service, disrupted by popping power lines that gave way under ice and 80-mile an hour winds, was restored over virtually all of the Panhandle.

He said the heaviest snow in his area was the 10 inches at Clayton, just across the line in New Mexico. Snow drifted up to a foot and a half deep at Texline.

The weather bureau said in a late afternoon summary that clear to partly cloudy skies prevailed over the state and that winds had subsided over West Texas and would diminish over East and Central Texas Saturday night.

Survey Wreckage

North Central and East Texas, caught up in a different kind of storm that brought high winds, tornadoes, hail and blinding rains, surveyed their wreckage under moderate winds that the weather bureau said would dissipate by Sunday.

It was the first day of spring but the weather bureau said most Texans wouldn't be able to realize it until Sunday. Near freezing weather was forecast for the upper portions of the state for Saturday night.

The forecasts called for fair, and warmer weather for all portions of the state Sunday.

Highways in the upper Panhandle, closed by snowdrifts and zero visibility due to the high winds and blowing snow, had all been reopened by noon Saturday, Albert Law, Dalhart, newsman, reported.

American Legion Sets 'Egg' Hunt

Francis Schwind, Commander of Post No. 334, of the American Legion in Pampa, announces that the Legion will sponsor their regular Easter Egg Hunt for children, on Easter Sunday, March 29th, at 3 p.m.

All children up to 12 years of age, will be eligible to participate. The field where the eggs are placed will be divided into three sections, one for children of five years and under, another section for children from six to eight years of age, and a third section for children from nine to twelve years of age.

There will be a number of "Lucky Eggs" which will be good for prizes which have been donated by various business firms in Pampa.

Further details will be given in future announcements in the Daily News and on the radio.

Snow Melts

Law said most of the snow except in low places had melted when temperatures climbed to near the 60s.

Despite the high winds, snow is going to do a lot of good to winter wheat and spring pastures, Law said.

William Castleberry, Beloved Pampan, Is Dead At Age 87

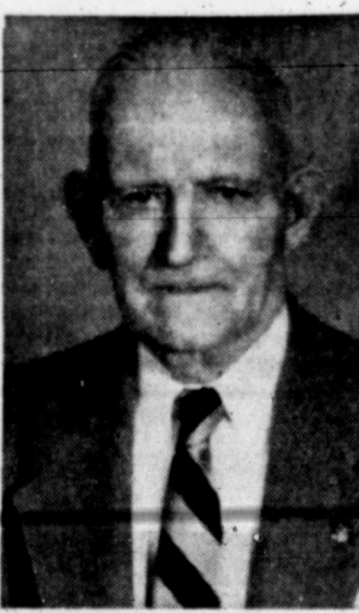

William M. Castleberry, in a newspaper interview a few years ago, told a reporter, "I was looking for a new location. I found it—everything I wanted—in Pampa."

Friday morning, following breakfast at his home, Mr. Castleberry died. He was 87.

Funeral services for the pioneer Texan will be held Monday afternoon at 3 in the Duendel-Caymichael chapel. Officiating will be Rev. E. Douglas Carver, pastor of the First Baptist church. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery.

During his lifetime Mr. Castleberry farmed in the Pampa area, and when oil was discovered in the Panhandle his fortune was made.

Last May he saw a dream of several years near reality when he donated 10 acres of land near Highland hospital for the construction of a home for the aged. The home will be built on what is

PHS Senior Earns Trip To Hartford

Bob Jernigan, exceptional Pampa High School senior, won one of two first place trophies at the Panhandle Science Fair Friday in Amarillo. Jernigan will take his home winning science project to Hartford, Conn., for the National Science Fair May 6-9.

Jernigan won a gold medal in February when he placed first in the biological division of the Pampa Science Fair. This was Jernigan's second win here. He was first in the biological division last year but failed to place when he went to the regional fair in Amarillo.

Modifying his project after a summer at the University of Texas, Jernigan called it "Amino Acid of Normal and Tumor Mouse Tissue." The original designation was "Electrophoresis for Diagnosis."

In Amarillo, Jernigan shared top honors with Calvin C. Smith of Tascosa High School. Smith was high man in the physical sciences division. Jernigan will be accompanied to Hartford by Elaine (See SENIOR, Page 3)

300,000 Tibetans To Arms Against Chinese Communists

Revolt Met By Big Guns In Himalayas

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Thousands of Tibetans were battling their Chinese Communist masters Saturday in the sacred city of Lhasa in the Himalayas, and the Chinese were using artillery and automatic weapons to try to smash this new "Hungary," reports reaching here said.

About 300,000 Tibetans were reported up in arms.

The fate of the Dalai Lama, god and king to the Tibetan people, was unknown. The revolt, fanned by tough Khamba tribesmen, apparently was launched off when the Chinese commander ordered the Dalai Lama to appear before him, without his bodyguards. Some reports said the Dalai Lama had been seized and flown to Peiping. Others said he was killed or kidnaped by the Reds.

Details shrouded

The remoteness of the capital city on the "roof of the world" and the rugged mountains and primitive methods of communication shrouded details of the revolt.

But reports, including some from Indian officials, gave this picture:

Fighting began last week with the order for the Dalai Lama to appear before the Red Chinese leader. His mother at his Potala palace broke into tears and wailing. Loyal Tibetans, chafing under almost eight years of Red rule in the "autonomous region," leaped to the cause.

Rebel Khamba tribesmen, who have been battling the Reds with hit-run guerrilla tactics for two years, began marching on Lhasa for the showdown.

Fight in Streets

Fighting erupted in the streets as it did in 1956 in Budapest. Reports said the battle raged around the spacious enclosure of the Indian diplomatic mission and spread behind the Turquoise Bridge, the main gateway to Lhasa.

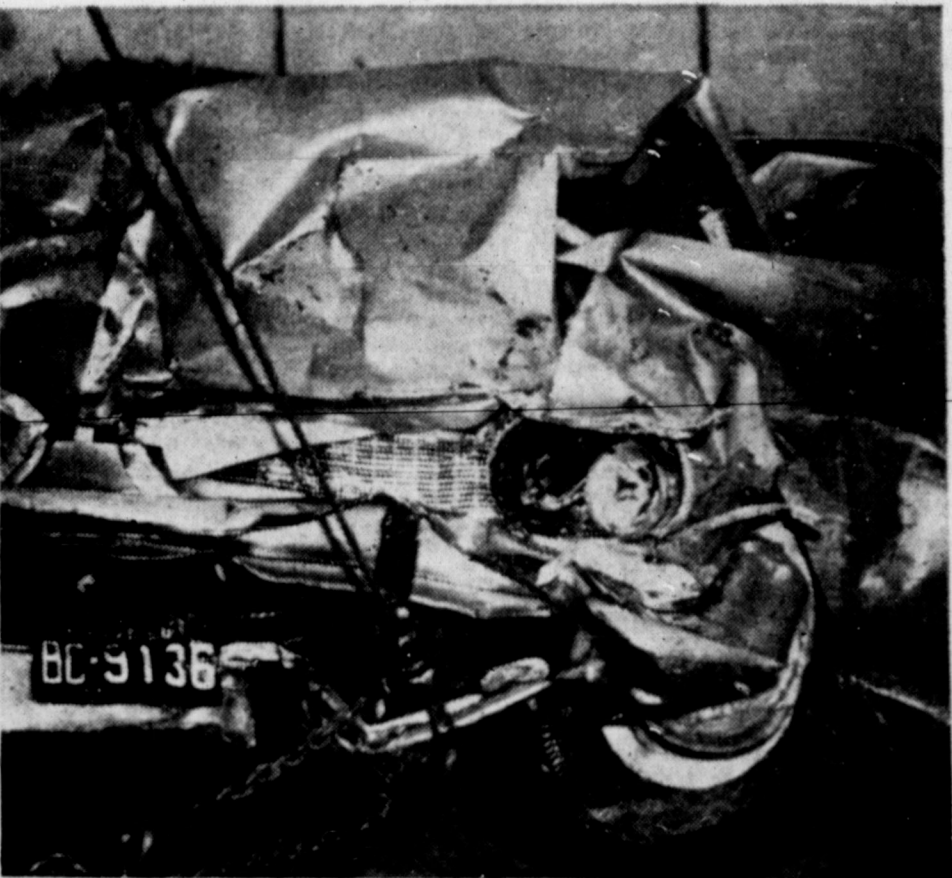

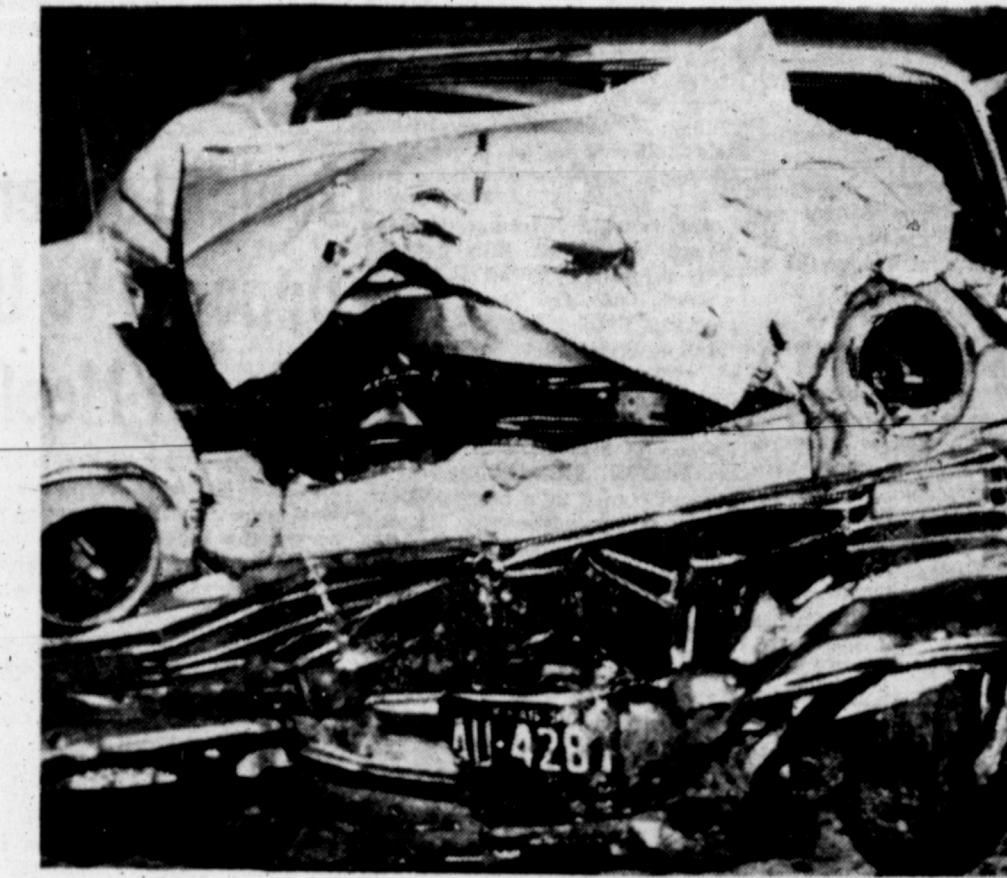

Border reports reaching New Delhi said the resistance forces were under the command of Angus Goumpa - Tashi, a commander from Liling in the rugged eastern part of Tibet.

Another force of 25,000 Buddhists was reported being led in a separate anti-Communist offensive by General Pangatsang.

Head-On Crash Hurts 3 Six Collisions On Slick City Streets

Blowing snow and reduced visibility contributed to three auto collisions in Pampa Friday afternoon. No persons were seriously injured although one driver, Mrs. Ruth Bianco, 2124 Chestnut, required first aid at Highland hospital.

Three more accidents were reported to police Saturday, but street conditions were not considered a factor.

Friday afternoon at 4:10, Mrs. Bianco was injured slightly when her 1955 Pontiac collided with a 1954 Chevrolet driven by Roy Feazel, 2123 N. Nelson. The mishap was at the intersection of Christine and 19th streets.

The new officers were installed at a banquet April 4. The time and place will be determined this week, according to Gene Hollar, Jaycee president.

Hollar will take his place on the board of directors and will serve as State director. The present State director, R. F. McDonald, is filling John Campbell's unexpired term. McDonald will now serve as first vice president.

Hall is the present first vice president. Jaycee, the new second vice president, is secretary of the club. The retiring second vice president is Ray Blum, and the outgoing treasurer, Lyle Gage.

A new Constitution will be discussed at the Club meeting Tuesday. Hollar told the Daily News. However, it will not come up for a vote until ten days after it has been mailed out. If the Constitution is approved, officers will be elected by the membership of the club.

Mishap Occurs During Blizzard

Three men—two from Pampa—suffered serious injuries Friday afternoon when two late model cars crashed head-on in a furious snowstorm nine miles southeast of Pampa on the Lefors highway.

The men Saturday remained in fair condition at Worley hospital.

They are Tom King, a Negro from Shamrock; Eugene Snodgrass, 1824 N. Banks; and R. E. Kirkpatrick, 1037 S. Clark.

One man, an unidentified companion of King, miraculously escaped injury when the two cars ground together.

Doctors at Worley said Snodgrass, 42, has a fractured skull and nose, and fractures of both kneecaps. He was the most seriously hurt.

Kirkpatrick, a passenger in the Snodgrass car, has a dislocated left elbow, a fractured left foot, and severe lacerations about his face and left thigh.

King, driving toward Pampa in a 1959 Pontiac, had a broken leg and severe facial lacerations.

Mystery surrounds the cause of the collision. State Highway Patrolman Travis Underwood and Royce Logan said, from the position of the cars, Snodgrass's 1957 Ford was in the wrong lane.

The uninjured passenger in King's car said Snodgrass was attempting to pass another car. The unidentified third car in the mishap did not stop after the crash.

Snodgrass Friday night said the King car was headed straight toward his. He didn't know how to avoid a collision.

The crash occurred during a violent snow and wind storm about 2:30 p.m. Conditions at best were described as hazardous. A 50 mile-per-hour wind was carrying a heavy snow across the highway from the north.

The scene of the accident was about three miles northeast of Lefors on a gently-sloping hill. Snodgrass and Kirkpatrick, oil field workers, were driving to work at Lefors.

Ironically, Mrs. Snodgrass is a nurse at Worley and was one of the first to see her injured husband when brought to Pampa by ambulance.

Air Force Loses Futuristic Nose Cone In South Atlantic

By RICHARD F. ROOPER, United Press International
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI)—The Air Force fired a futuristic nose cone over intercontinental range early Saturday but searched the South Atlantic in vain for the experimental warhead protector.

The Defense Department announced five hours after a Thor-Able rocket shot the "bottleneck" cone into space that the rocket "appeared to achieve its test objectives." This apparently meant the cone—hustled some 5,000 miles through space and back to earth.

Informed sources said recovery ships and search planes looked until dark in the planned impact area for the cone, which was supposed to be suspended from a balloon floating on the ocean's surface.

Will Search Sunday
These sources said that although the search effort was not successful Saturday, the Air Force tentatively planned to scour the South Atlantic waters again Sunday for the cone.

The nose cone was shaped like the neck and shoulders of a soft drink bottle with a gently rounded top, the cone was of a design which may be used on solid-fuel ICBMs of the future.

Two other Thor-Ables fired earlier this year failed to travel more than a few hundred miles, and the Air Force was unsuccessful in attempts to recover three mouse-carrying Thor-Able cones fired last summer.

The Air Force has solved the problem of protecting hydrogen warheads fired intercontinentally but it is continuing to experiment with new materials which might do a better job.

Officials had hoped that a new pinpoint guidance system used by the Thor-Able would increase the chances of recovery. The new system, which ultimately will be used by the Titan ICBM, was considered more accurate and thus the Air Force had narrowed the planned impact area for the cone.

Used "Ablation" Principle
The principle used in Saturday's test was that of "ablation," in which the protective materials on the cone flake or melt away with the intense heat of some 4,000 degrees Fahrenheit generated on the cone's re-entry into the earth's atmosphere from space.

Other cones use the "heat sink" effect of a fire inside the walls of a home at 81 Yeager did light damage Friday night, Pampa firemen said. J. R. Riley reported the blaze at 8:13 p.m.

A faulty starter switch, was blamed for a minor car fire early Saturday morning at 217 E. Brown. The car owner, Richard Taylor, phoned firemen at 1:01 a.m. The blaze was out on arrival.

The 90-foot Thor-Able blasted off at 1:19 a.m. into the first clear Florida sky in five days. The peaceful sounds of crickets and frogs on the rain-soaked Cape was drowned out by the roar of the rocket's first stage engine in the pre-dawn launching.

Four Fort Worth Burglary Suspects Sent To County Jail

FORT WORTH (UPI)—The four underworld characters who figured in the suspension of two Fort Worth policemen were sent to County Jail Saturday when they failed to fork over $15,000 each for bond.

Meanwhile, city and county officials tried to find out how two of them, the pair that pointed fingers of guilt at Detective H.L. Stevenson and Sgt. Phil Coker, became "bloody and bruised" while they were held in city jail.

The pair, Charles Robert Long, 26, and Harry Long, 26, appeared in County Criminal Judge J. C. Duval's court Friday and displayed their wounds—bruised backs and swollen lips.

Two Policemen Fined
The pair and two other burglary ring suspects were questioned Friday about their "walkie-talkie" gang which allegedly included the two policemen.

Police Chief Cato Hightower threw Stevenson and Coker off the force. Friday shortly after the burglary ring was smashed in a gun battle at a west Fort Worth grocery store.

The suspensions, ironically, came on "Police Appreciation Day" in Fort Worth and both Stevenson and Coker denied the chief's charges. Hightower said he acted only after several weeks of investigation, however.

The men captured in the grocery were David Curtis Sampson, 24, and Ollie Chester Wilson, 26. They gave up their gunbattle, surrendered to sheriff's deputies, city police and Texas Rangers, handed over loot of more than $1900 in silver coins from the store, and then told officers where to find the ring leaders.

Long and Kirk were arrested later in an apartment, in the company of two women, Jacqueline Fay Anderson, 26, and Ruth Darleen Bradshaw, 19.

Drugs Men Abused
After hours of questioning, both Long and Kirk said the two suspected officers set up burglary jobs for the gang, Hightower said.

"I questioned all four of the men all day Friday," Chief Hightower said. "They were never abused during that time."

Sheriff Harlon Wright said he was equally at a loss about how the men got hurt.

"We had to use force when we subdued them at the apartment," Wright said. "But there was no abuse."

Joynes spoke briefly on the work of the PHS Key Club, which is patterned after the Kiwanis Club.

The High School club will hold its first installation banquet Monday. Joynes, lauded Dr. Walden Adair and H. O. Darby, downtown Kiwanians, for their work on the Key Club Committee.

The two clubs have joined in a money-raising project in which they will paint house numbers on curbs. The charge for this service is $1.

A guest at the Friday meeting was Robert Bailey from Flaudreau, S. D. He is the father of Jim Bailey of Pampa.

We are looking to negotiations as a means of settling current controversies in Europe.

"We—the United States and the United Kingdom—have agreed on the general line on which we think the reply to the Soviet note dealing with the matter of a summit meeting should be formulated. We are now communicating our proposals to the German government, and to our NATO allies for their consideration."

Give-And-Take
The announcement emphatically spiked published reports that the President and prime minister were snarled in sharp disagreement over the terms of a summit session.

What House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty stressed that the "Big Two" conference was "among friends."

Asked if there had been a serious disagreement, he told reporters: "There has been considerable discussion and that is what these meetings are for. This agreement is the result of these discussions and our announcement answers your question."

Khrushchev has been trying to force a summit conference in the wake of the Berlin crisis created by his demand that allied troops get out of the German city by May 27. Macmillan had previously met with Khrushchev, French president Charles De Gaulle and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who would also play key roles in such top level negotiations.

Responsible officials said the Eisenhower-Macmillan accord involved "a little give-and-take" on both sides.

They said that Eisenhower, who at one time insisted the foreign ministers' meeting achieve "substantial progress" before he would go to the summit, now is willing to attend if events at the lower-level parley "justify" a chiefs of state get-together.

Spring Stumbled In Saturday Like A Crazy, Mixed-up Kid

United Press International
Spring stumbled in Saturday like a crazy, mixed-up kid. The Equinox assured it a place on the calendar but zero temperatures in the northern plains, cold wave warnings in the eastern Great Lakes and the high-drafted remains of a near-blizzard in the midlands gave it a doubtful welcome.

Scattered rains washed the South and the eastern seaboard and threatened floods in already-drenched Florida, the Sunshine State.

Southern Californians, meanwhile, basked in summery temperatures after a winter that has seen thermometer readings average 7.4 degrees above normal.

Mild weather on the Atlantic coast sent the mercury climbing toward a predicted high of 73 at Washington.

New York City had its second day of summer-like weather with temperatures in the 60's. The first sightseeing boat of the season started around Manhattan Island and "recreational stargazing" was scheduled Saturday night at Jones Beach.

A cold wave with threat of snow flurries and locally heavy squalls was bearing down on western New York state and western Pennsylvania. It was expected to carry the mercury down to 15 to 20 degrees by Sunday morning and spread cooler weather along most of the seaboard from Maine to the North Carolina mountains.

Skies cleared in the snow-weary southern plains, where a near-blizzard Friday left up to 10 inches of snow and drifts seven feet deep.

U. S. Highways 87 and 54 still were closed in eastern New Mexico but highway workers hoped to have them open by Saturday night. Bus travel, halted by the drifts, was expected to resume shortly.

Agricultural authorities sought to determine extent of livestock loss from the storm, which was similar to one which struck northeastern New Mexico on the first day of spring two years ago. That storm inflicted heavy livestock loss.

Residents of Fraser, Colo., in the high Rockies, greeted the first day of spring in 22-below-zero temperatures. The Fraser reading was the lowest in the United States except for 31 below at Fairbanks, Alaska.

However, winter also loitered in the upper Midwest. The mercury dipped to zero at Duluth, Minn., and 1 above at Fargo, N.D., and 5 below zero readings were expected Saturday night in upper Michigan.

There are so many music lovers here ... so many piano owners ... that ...

It is physically impossible for our salesman and piano tuner, Mr. Charlie Ruff, (as hard as he works) to keep all the pianos in this area tuned and serviced.

Therefore, effective this date we will tune and service only the pianos purchased from us. We have sold several thousand pianos during the past 30 years, and naturally we feel obligated to our customers who have bought pianos from us, and to our future piano customers.

We appreciate all calls, and we will endeavor to help other customers to contact a tuner who travels this area occasionally.

Washington Can Be Called A Twenty-One Horse Town

By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Don't call this a one-horse town. We have at least 21 of them, and they lead downtown traffic ropes and tied for almost an hour as Montanans paid hilarious tribute to a painter who wore cowboy boots with his palette.

Banners proclaimed this "Charlie's last ride," and it was organized for the avowed purpose of hauling a 600-pound bronze statue of Charlie Meron Russell from the Smithsonian Institution, where it has been on display, to the Capitol, where it will take its place Thursday among the other historical figures in statuary hall.

Actually it turned out to be a happy excuse to get out of the swivel chair and into a Western stock saddle.

Bar Dude Outfits
English saddles and dude outfits were barred, and the riders kept trying to duck their tailor-made smokes whenever a photo was shot.

Rep. Leroy H. Anderson (D-Mont.), in standard cowboy attire, rode the lead horse, hard behind three District of Columbia police on three-wheeled motorcycles. Rep. Francis Case (R-S.D.), another old cowhand who was pressed into service after others of the Montana delegation for one reason or another couldn't make it, followed the color guard.

The unmounted 456th Army Band from Ft. Belvoir, Va., played tunes like "Home On The Range." Pretty girls wearing hoopskirts and sunbonnets waved modestly from atop a two-horse stagecoach, on the back of which was a sign purporting to identify it as a unit of the D.C. transit system. This, of course is possible.

Indians Escort Statue
Charlie Russell, a cowboy and self-taught artist who died in 1926, rode standing up. His statue was mounted for all to see on a flat-bed truck. A small party of Indians kept Russell company during the trip, but weren't much help in answering the "who's Charlie?" inquiries that cropped up along the parade route.

Well, Charlie was a guy who painted things like they look, which narrows the field considerably. He did cowboys, Indians, brandings, Custer's last stand, stage coach holdups and the like, in various media.

One of his best shows a lonesome, starving steer, alone on the range waiting for the spring thaw and some food: It was Charlie's reply to an inquiry from town on how the herd of 8,000 had come through an unusually hard winter.

'LUTE SONG'

Henry (Sonny) Dunn, Lefors, is shown as he helps D'Lila Beckner, Clayton, N.M., with her make-up for the Wayland Baptist College production of "Lute Song," which was presented last week. Dunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Dunn, is also sports editor of the 1959 Traveler, college yearbook, and a member of the Wayland International A Cappella Chior. In "Lute Song" he plays the part of Youen-Kong in the ancient Chinese love story that has been called the Chinese "Hamlet".

Government stock transactions proposed by New York City to help solve its financial problems. The New York Stock Exchange had threatened to move out of the state if the tax went into effect. Rockefeller also rejected a proposed tax on bank checks.

The Chase Manhattan Bank disclosed that the Federal Reserve Board had denied its request for an increase in the ceiling on commercial bank savings deposits from 3 to 3½ per cent. The Chase wanted the new limit so that it could increase its savings rate if savings banks went ahead to put their dividend rates above 3½ per cent.

During this phase of training, Edward will learn to operate, maintain and repair electrical equipment, blueprint reading, installation of communications equipment, pole-line construction and interior wiring. Upon completion of this school, Hawkins will be assigned to an operating Naval Construction Battalion as an electrician.

Most everybody will agree that the 1950s have been quite a decade. It's hard to remember any greater time of troubles for free men outside these periods of general war.

The Berlin Crisis

As we drift closer to the deadline established by the Russians for a showdown in Berlin, we must report a flat contradiction between the calming words spoken by the President and the growing concern in other Washington quarters.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOLLES

Employer Answers 15-Year Union Member's Questions On Economic And Moral Subjects

Editor's note: This is the eighth installment of the transcript of questions and answers on economic and moral subjects between Frank Buck, who was for 15 years a member of the Carpenters Union, and R. C. Holles, president of Freedom Newspapers and the conductor of this column.

33. B: Well, for the sake of the record, let me read a quotation here from the New York Times, Jan. 10, 1931. This was a discussion in The Republican Club by some economists and thinkers and, I believe, an editor.

... In any East-West conference, Nikita Khrushchev's threat to sign a peace treaty with East Germany will hang like the sword of Damocles over the Western powers bargaining position.

The military is certainly far more concerned than the current news reports indicate. Although President Eisenhower has flatly banned mobilization of American or NATO forces, the Pentagon is doing everything in its power to strengthen the U.S. Army in Europe.

Disagreements among the Allies will, of course, sharpen when Erine Minister Macmillan arrives here later this month to further promote the idea of negotiating with the Kremlin. Both De Gaulle and Aepauer will privately resist what they consider a rush of the Western powers to the conference table.

Few officials believe that a foreign minister meeting can do more than delay the impending crisis over Berlin. While the Western powers still hope to delay the date that Soviet Russia will hand over the direct authority to East Germany, people in the position have no plans adequate enough to avert a Berlin showdown sooner or later. The hard underlying facts remain the same. Moscow has not altered its avowed plan to turn over its Berlin responsibilities to the East German regime.

At this time, the sense of urgency will not be spread to the general public. The emergency civil defense radio programs heard in several cities recently, throughout the U.S. were not Washington inspired. The talks on home stockpiling in case of war were part of packaged emergency instructions which all big stations received long ago.

Local station managers were the ones responsible for the playing of some of the tapes on their own initiative — nothing official, either directly or indirectly. Civil defense authorities throughout the country will not take steps to prevent similar occurrences which could lead to mass hysteria.

That's what the general attitude. We know we have to pay for such improvements in other communities and we, therefore, feel we are entitled to our share but when we get the money from the Federal Government instead of having to raise it ourselves, we exaggerate our requirements and become wasteful. When everybody all over the country does that the amount of money spent for public improvements of various kinds becomes enormously greater than it would be if the money were raised locally in each instance. It probably would not be an exaggeration to say that the financing of these improvements on the federal level as distinguished from the local level costs all of us at least twice as much as if it were raised locally.

But that isn't the worst of it. When the people look to the Federal Government to finance local improvements, assume the burden of relief, provide roads, subsidies for schools and an infinite variety of financial assistance, our whole economy becomes a pressure group struggle to see how much each community and each group of citizens can get from the rest of us.

We have become a nation of people that without shame, strives schemes and works to get as much as possible of the wealth of others. We know we all have to pay when Chicago builds a great auditorium, so each community in the land strives to get more in proportion for its own local project.

This is coveting and legalized stealing. It takes the minds of the people off of developing better ways of creating wealth to meet their own needs and focuses their energies upon ways and means of getting wealth from others. The results eventually in poverty for all.

... Making it easier for him to satisfy his desires with less time and pain will tend, in most persons, to cause them to work more to satisfy their increased wants.

... H: Yes, it tends to increase total production. It might even cause a man to work so hard that he would, over a long period of time, produce less.

... H: If we had a free and natural division of labor, that would conserve human energy and tend to increase production. A free and natural division of labor so that people thought they were getting all they produced and could exchange jobs and could go where they thought they were most needed, would increase production.

Robert Allen Reports: Stewart Promotion Being Questioned

WASHINGTON—The Air Force's persistence in trying to make movie actor James Stewart a brigadier general is boomeranging in a disconcertingly unexpected way.

Not only is his promotion again being challenged by Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.), but this time she is going further and determinedly putting the Air Force on the griddle for its habit of dishing out stars to Hollywood celebrities, business and airline executives, and other big-name reservists.

Further, Mrs. Smith now has the influential backing of two Armed Services Committee colleagues who are Air Force reserve pilots — Senator Clair Engle (D., Cal.) and Senator Howard Cannon (D., Nev.), who is qualified to fly jets.

"As in 1957, when the Air Force first tried to elevate Stewart to a general officer, Mrs. Smith contends he hasn't met the requirements for that rank."

Following a careful study, she is raising the same issue against some of the other twelve reservists proposed for stars. Seven of them are colonels who would be made brigadier generals, and five brigadiers who would be made major generals.

Also playing a major role in this stormy backstage development are widespread reservists' complaints against "favoritism" in high Air Force promotions.

It is being bitterly claimed that it is "seriously impairing service morale."

"Air reservists, many of them with combat decorations from World War II and Korea, are writing Senators Smith, Cannon and Engle vigorously urging 'immediate corrective measures.'"

"This is exactly what Mrs. Smith is forcefully doing."

In her capacity as a ranking member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, she has demanded detailed answers from the Air Force's command to 150 questions on the promotion system.

One of the proposed brigadier generals has never had a day of combat service. Neither has any decorations. He was a reservist for 20 years in another service, rising to two-bar rank. Then in 1954, he transferred to the AF reserve and became a colonel.

Now, the AF wants to make him a brigadier general over the heads of hundreds of decorated combat veterans who meet every qualification for that rank.

In Mrs. Smith's cold-eyed scrutiny, she has the full support of Senator Richard Russell (D., Ga.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee. He told her, "You will have unlimited opportunity in the hearings on these promotions to ask any questions you want and as long as you want to."

COLLAPSE DAY

Michigan, the state of Walter Reuther and Gov. G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams, was saved this winter by a group of public-spirited businessmen! The story of how they saved their state from ruin received little display in the nation's press, and yet it is one of the most startling and significant stories of recent years.

On Feb. 15, the State of Michigan was dead broke. There was a $110 million deficit. The state has been unable to make payments to Michigan's universities since last November. The universities had been borrowing from banks in order to pay professors and keep the buildings heated and illuminated.

The people of Michigan looked forward to Feb. 15, using the term "Collapse Day." Fortunately, free enterprise came to the rescue. Manufacturing concerns in Michigan handed over to the state government more than $3 million in taxes from two to four months ahead of their due date. With this cash in the state treasury, Michigan was able to pay some of its bills.

This was an experience that should have given pause even to such wild-eyed "liberals" as Reuther and Gov. Williams. Certainly, it should have shocked the taxpayers of Michigan. With Michigan finances in shambles and the state deeply in the red, the public should have demanded strict austerity. There hasn't been any such Fulton Is Top Congressman Now!

The Congressman Of The Week, if not, indeed, the Congressman Of The Fortnight, is James G. Fulton.

While others of his set are screening first, second and third cousins for office jobs, and mailing out seeds, this Republican from Pennsylvania has his eye fixed on the moon as rigidly as the Palomar telescope.

"If the Russians were to turn the moon red," he bluntly asked the head counsel of the House Space Committee, "do we have the right to put a blue and white band around it and make it red, white and blue?"

That's an important question, and one that should have been asked long before this. The answer Mr. Fulton received must have been a shock to him, for it certainly was to me.

Legal counsel did not know our banding rights; couldn't say whether international law permitted us the right to decorate the moon with bunting, the way we do box seats on the opening day of baseball, or not.

This would indicate that counsel hasn't been worrying much over the banding question. If this is true, why? To have the moon, with all things shining down bright red, with not a touch of our colors showing, would be more than most of us Americans could stand.

I think it is time that someone not only did a crash job on the banding rights, but other moon rights as well.

Is there any law that would prevent us, say, from putting an Uncle Sam hat on the man in the moon?

Sokolsky Is Like A Post Card Writer!

by WESTBROOK PEGLER

A certain George Sokolsky, who writes essays for the press in long-hand which is then translated into type-script by a certain Miss Patt, has recently been rattling his tambourine for the contingency fund of the Silurian Society, which is used to stake reporters up against it for various reasons.

I regarded this fellow as a newspaperman-of-the-true-faith until Miss Patt confided that he wrote with the pencil whereupon I phoned and said, "You are no newspaperman; you are just a writer, like those guys who sit at little tables around bazaars in whatever demand, however. And Reuther and Gov. Williams, like the Bourbon kings of France, apparently have forgotten nothing and learned nothing.

Instead of urging retrenchment and a return to financial sanity, Gov. Williams has proposed a constitutional amendment referendum to raise from $20,000 to $50 million the amount the state can borrow without express vote of the people. He also has suggested that a veterans' trust fund of $50 million be made available for collateral. Furthermore, he has proposed heavier taxes on the element that saved the state — the private business firms. He has not proposed cutting public spending at all.

Persisting in this sort of folly, Michigan undoubtedly will face another collapse day. This time the businessmen of the state may not rush to the rescue. A great state may grind to a halt. No one wants a thing like that to happen. Innocent people would suffer. But collapse day, if it comes, would be a warning to all Americans that government cannot borrow and spend its way out of hard times.

What Michigan needs — and the many other states that are attempting to live high on the hog — is drastic cutting of expenditures. For people who have come to expect the soft life to be provided by government, a policy of austerity would be a rough experience. But the only alternatives to austerity in a spendthrift nation are either bankruptcy or dictatorship. The nation of France chose both austerity and dictatorship. Is that what we want here?

Virtually every sort of governmental body in this country has become accustomed to wastrel ways. Millions of Americans expect government aid for everything from sewers to school lunches. Those Americans who expect to live on handouts, must expect to obey the agency that distributes the dole. If state governments live beyond their income they must expect to lose all authority.

The entire country needs to be told the facts such as they have been revealed in Michigan. Americans must make themselves stand and look at the grim scenes of financial irresponsibility. The "liberals" never run out of promises. But the taxpayers run out of money, and so do the state governments that operate on the basis of free-spending promises.

The welfare state of the "liberals" is the twilight before collapse day.

Another lesson in the "spending" philosophy is taking place before our eyes in New York State. Gov. Rockefeller is proposing a budget $230 million higher than the last one, even though a $424 million deficit is in prospect. He proposes to cover $277 million of this with new taxes. "Spending and spend, tax and tax, elect and elect."

"Finally," Mr. Hunt said, "we were fudging into daylight hours and once Jump put us on the street about five o'clock with the Mirror's exclusive on some murder. And the next day we ran a loud editorial blast against the Mirror for waiting until our bulldog hit the street and then stealing our top story for a re-plate."

I said: "You could not get conscientious journalism to stoop to such low practices now."

"I know," said Mr. Hunt, sadly. "That is what is the matter with us. As Sokolsky wrote in his obit on Herbie Swope, in these days the press had a mission and a purpose and reporters were dedicated men."

California Wins NCAA Tournament

Golden Bears Use Defense To Top W. Virginia, 71-70

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A California team playing old-fashioned basketball with old-fashioned courage beat West Virginia's late rally on a lap-dribble shot by big Derrill Imhoff to score 71-70 victory for the N.C.A.A. basketball tournament championship.

It was defense that won the game for the Bears but it was courage and poise that saved it when West Virginia, led by all-America Jerry West, came from six points behind in the final three minutes, and nearly pulled it out.

West Virginia, trailing 65-61, began its late charge when West was fouled by Bob Dalton with 3:36 to go. West missed his first free throw but made his second. Dalton then sank a corner shot to make it 67-62.

Ronnie Retton, West Virginia's pint-sized guard, came in and sank two free throws but Bill McClintock retaliated with a rebound and the Bears still had a five-point lead, 69-64, with two minutes to go. The poise which carried the Bears into the final cracked a little under West Virginia's pressing tactics and Denny Fitzpatrick fouled Bucky Bolyard, who sank both free throws with a minute to go.

California's pass-in went astray. West got the ball under the basket and was awarded two points when Imhoff was called for goaltending.

With California trying to freeze out the game, West tied up Imhoff to set up a jump-ball. The big California center got the tap and took a return pass, missed his shot but tapped in the rebound for what proved the winning basket with 18 seconds left.

Willie Akers stuffed in a basket for West Virginia with five seconds left to make it 71-70. Bolyard fouled Fitzpatrick with two seconds left. Fitzpatrick missed the free throw but time ran out then on West Virginia.

The barbed-wire man-for-man defense with which California limited Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson to 19 points in Friday night's semi-final gave up 28 to West, although the West Virginia star sat out three minutes of the game.

The actual total of "lost" games is four, since the Vernon contest was originally scheduled as a doubleheader. Woldt is now trying to get a game with Amarillo Junior College to fill the schedule gap.

Red Griggs
the pipeline

"It's a shame there aren't more boys to help," said Gene Chance Friday, after snow had cancelled the last day of spring training for his Reaper football team.

Chance's statement just about sums up the entire plight of the athletic program at Pampa Junior High School. The Reapers have some good boys, who are willing to work and hustle, but there just aren't enough of them.

The combined eighth and ninth grade squads coached by Chance and his assistants, Frank Craig and David Kelly, totaled only 33 men—nine less than were out for the ninth grade alone at Robert E. Lee.

Even so, the 33 boys were seldom on the field at the same time. Many times, there weren't enough boys on the field to have a full-fledged scrimmage.

Chance explained that it is hard to get boys interested in spring football anyway, with no game to look forward to; and that since many of the Reapers had to walk home from Harvester Park—several miles for some of them—it was doubly hard to hold their interest.

Speed Better, Size Smaller

Despite his tremendous manpower problem, though, Chance said that he "was very well pleased" with the spring training session. "We had a lot of good workouts," he said.

"We've done most of our work on basic play patterns," the PJH mentor continued, "with a heavy emphasis on defensive fundamentals."

Asked what conclusions he'd draw about next year's team, from the spring training session, he replied that "our speed looked quite a bit better than last year's, and will be hurting for size."

"Our ninth grade team should know a little more football than last year's squad," he continued, "because most of them will have had some football experience. Only two boys on last year's team had played any football."

Chance also explained that the added speed should improve the Reapers' attack. "We moved the ball well on the ground last year," he said, "but the opposition moved just a little better. You've got to be able to go for the long one once in a while, and we just didn't have the speed to do it."

While he was pleased with the increased speed, however, he seemed to feel it might be offset by the Reapers' lack of size. They were smaller than many of their opponents last year, and will be even smaller next fall.

Switching back to the manpower situation, Chance predicted that "we'll be in a little better shape than last fall. There'll probably be a few boys out then that weren't out this spring."

Outstanding Players Named

The talk then turned to something which the Reapers didn't have much of last year—passing.

"I believe our passing attack will be improved next season," the PJH coach said in reply to a question about the aerial attack.

"Randy Matson, who played with Craig's eighth graders last year, is a 6-2 and he throws the ball well. One of our big troubles last year was that our passers couldn't see over the heads of the linemen. Matson won't have that trouble."

Chance added that Matson is a smart signal caller as well as a good passer and "he should do a fine job for next season."

The PJH pilot also mentioned several other backs and linemen who had looked outstanding during spring practice. "They were regular boys who did a great job," he said.

Chance praised ninth grade backs Gerald Vance and Ronald Goodwin; ninth grade linemen Jack Nichols, J. L. Ferguson, David Martin, and Brian Prigmore; eighth grade backs Richard Rexroad, Steve Archibald, Kenny Herbert, Larry Gregory and Charlie Harper; and eighth grade linemen Ronnie Campbell and Alvin Soles. There were several others on the squad whom Chance said showed promise of developing into first rate football players. Among them were Meredith Wallis, Alvin Flipplin, Ben Ingram, Dean Bettis, Jay Wells, Tommy Clinton, Dean Hudson, Calvin Jones, Gene Baten, Jerry Baten, Percy Collier, Dale Pletcher, Jerry Hale, John Watson, Marston Burney, Jerry Stover, Ernest Westbrook, and Gene Davis.

Golf Team Out of Running In Odessa's Westex Relays

ODESSA (Sp) — Pampa's four-man track team came on like gangbusters here Saturday in the finals of the West Texas Relays, to take 11 points and finish eighth in a field of 51 high school squads.

Rex Williams became the first Pampa man to finish first, as he won the high hurdles with a time of 15.1. Paul Brown took third in the shot put with a toss of 48 feet, 6 1/2 inches. Charles Warren finished fourth in the low hurdles and Williams fifth.

Competition was so rugged that only 26 of 51 teams entered were unable to score a point. Midland won the meet with 31 points, and Borger was second with 22. Andrews placed third in the high school track division. Tascosa and Amarillo were in a three-way tie for fifth with Hobbs, N.M., with 14. Palo Duro was ninth with 10, and Phillips was eleventh with 8 1/2.

Miller John Gross was the only Harvester entry who failed to make the finals at Odessa.

The four-man team at Odessa was the only Pampa squad running this weekend, since the Clayton, N.M., Relays were canceled because of snow. An 11-man Harvester team was to have entered the Clayton meet.

Golf Results

Pampa's golfers finished far back in the links division, with 70. Larry Tarvin shot 91-86-177. Don Fox fired 85-83-169; Gene Yeary carded 95-86-181, and Paul Machowicz scored 91-83-174.

Borger won the golf tourney with 64, and Amarillo was fourth with 66. Tascosa carded 67, and Palo Duro carded 718. Don Whitlock of Tascosa was tournament medalist with 82-72-154.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Tony Jackson, spectacular sophomore jump-shooting star, scored four crucial points in overtime Saturday to lead St. John's to a come-from-behind, 76-71 victory over Bradley and a record third National Invitation Basketball Tournament championship.

Jackson, a 19-year-old Negro from Brooklyn, scored 21 points and grabbed 27 rebounds to climax a superb, four-game performance that won him the tournament's Most Valuable Player award. Jackson also was named M.V.P. for his part in helping St. John's win the Holiday Basketball Festival title last December.

St. John's thus became the first team ever to win the N.I.T. three times during the 22-year history of the event. The Redmen previously won in 1948 and 1949. All three champions were coached by Joe Lapchick.

A crowd of 14,376 at Madison Square Garden and a national television audience watched St. John's better-than-expected eighth point, first-half deficit to tie the score at 35-all on Jackson's jump shot with six minutes left to play.

A jump shot by Al Seiden minutes later put St. John's ahead for the first time in the game and the Redmen from Brooklyn appeared home free, when two free throws by Seiden gave them a 61-57 lead with 1:36 to play.

However, Mike Owens drove in for a lay-up and Bobby Joe Mason stole a loose ball under the goal to tie the score with 1:14 to go.

Glis Alfieri's two free throws put St. John's into the lead again, only to have Al Saunders score in a jump shot with 38 seconds remaining and send the game into overtime.

A terrific fight by Ray caught Anthony on the head with slightly more than a minute left in the bout and staggered him against the ropes. Anthony pulled himself together momentarily and fought back, but seconds before the bell, ray landed another hard right-left combination which sent Tony reeling.

Then he dropped his hands and turned his back on Ray. Before the 23-year-old Chicago fighter could take advantage of Anthony's condition, the final buzzer sounded.

In his dressing room after the fight, Anthony said he had gone back to the ropes to gather himself together for the final seconds.

Brown Named Morrow Takes Both Races; To All-Frosh Evens Duel With Dave Sime

By ED FITE
United Press International

ODESSA (UPI)—Bobby Morrow evened his all-time sprint supremacy duel with Duke's rambling redhead, Dave Sime, Saturday when he broke in front and led all the way to win their special 100-yard dash duel by a yard in 9.4 seconds in the West Texas relays.

Actually, Abilene Christian's Olympic triple Gold Medal winner was officially clocked by three watches in 9.35 seconds, only a hair-breadth over the world's record of 9.3 seconds which Morrow and Sime share with five others, but records are not recognized in hundredths of a second.

Sime, who had two false starts to Morrow's one as they went through the final three seconds before a West Texas Relays crowd of 8,000, was clocked on 9.4 seconds.

Morrow's 9.4 timing in the 100 was equalled in the college division by Sidney Garton, East Texas State freshman. Garton's mark lowered the 9.3 record set here by Morrow in 1956.

Morrow definitely did not beat the starter's gun, but he left Sime on the blocks, by a stride and widened his lead to a yard and a half before Sime made a desperate bid to close the gap. He never came close, however, as Morrow averaged a loss to the Duke star in their last meeting at Big Spring, Tex., almost a year ago Saturday.

Morrow's victory evaded the score at two-all between the top contenders for the title of world's fastest human. Sime had beaten Morrow at the Drake Relays in 1956 and at Big Spring, while Morrow had won in the NCAA finals at Berkeley, Calif. the same year.

Sime had started against Morrow twice before in 1956, but pulled up lame each time and didn't finish in the 200-meter NCAA finals and in the 100-meter Olympic tryout prelims.

Glenn Davis, Ohio State's Olympic 400-meter hurdler champion and world's record holder at 440 yards, scratched from the special 100 at the last minute and left only a four-man field. Ollan Cassell, Hodson's 1957 AAU 220-yard finalist, was three yards behind Sime and Abilene Christian's James Segrest was even further back.

In contrast to their 1958 meeting when they duelled in a 50-mile-an-hour sandstorm at Big Spring, Sime and Morrow had perfect conditions for Saturday's scrap. The temperature was around 50 degrees under bright sunlight and the wind gauge was almost idle at race time.

Baseball Team Has Troubles

Three Pampa High baseball games were cancelled in rapid-fire order this weekend, leaving the Harvesters without a game for possibly as long as 10 days.

Friday, a scheduled intra-squad game was cancelled by the snow-storms which hit the Panhandle. Then Saturday's scheduled game at Vernon was cancelled because of inclement weather.

Saturday afternoon, Coach Deck Woldt called Frank Phillips Junior College to check on Tuesday's scheduled game here, and found that Frank Phillips is not fielding a team.

The actual total of "lost" games is four, since the Vernon contest was originally scheduled as a doubleheader. Woldt is now trying to get a game with Amarillo Junior College to fill the schedule gap.

AVILA CHANGES MIND; TO PLAY

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI)—The Baltimore Orioles announced Saturday night that infielder Bobby Avila, who said 11 days ago he was quitting baseball to take a job with an oil company in his native Mexico, has changed his mind and will report to the club Sunday.

The 32-year-old second baseman, who came to the Orioles in a trade with the Cleveland Indians, reportedly agreed to terms in excess of the $20,000 he got last year when he hit only 253 for the Indians.

purely paydirt

Everything's back to normal now, and thanks for asking pal.

For a couple weeks there, it really felt like spring. But it was too good to be true. Yesterday was the first calendar day of spring, and Whamo . . . Pampa shivers and shakes with wet snow and whistling winds.

But it's still spring, even by the thermometer elsewhere in the south. Despite heavy showers, the big league baseballers are in Florida and Arizona running around in their rubber shirts and getting sunburned beaks.

And the rookies are breaking into the headlines, the ones who will surely replace Cobb, Ruth and Dimag. Casey Stengel has had his annual spring picture made, looking cross-eyed into a crystal ball and our old Lufkin chum, Pete Runnels, is still talking with self-amazement about his 92 point batting average lift to .322 with the Sox last year after seven years in the garb of the Senators, which is like wearing your birthday suit to a dress ball in diamond prestige. (You may read a UPI story about Pete on Page 11.)

That lucky ole sun will have to work overtime again this year to melt the snows of the North during the next three weeks for the 1959 Major League baseball openers.

There are many citizens, of course, this year like every year already looking forward to the season's opening. Large and small wagers are being made and there's even been some foolhardy talk the Yanks won't be slugging in the Series come October. Seems the Bronx Bombers grabbed their Grapefruit Circuit opener (6-3 over the Cards at St. Petersburg, Fla., two weeks ago), and that it was Casey's first exhibition opening-game verdict since 1934. A bad omen! That was the only year in the last ten the Yanks didn't snatch the AL flag.

Here's one citizen who's hoping the omen bears fruit. Let's have a cool drink; heavy on the ice cubes, and a Pittsburgh-Boston World Series.

It Musta Been The Ulcer!

Newspaper guys are supposed to be real cynics, it says in all the books and movies: Sour grins, loose ties, tooth-picks and ulcers.

You won't get anywhere disputing the books and movies. So we went out last Thursday and bought a tie and loosened it, grinned sourly, sucked on a toothpick, spat badly and penned a pretty harsh column on last week's basketball banquet fun.

After re-reading the column of last Thursday, and with the heat of misunderstanding subsiding, we must confess some of our comments were pretty rash.

Fred Neslage, who handled the gag-end is probably Pampa's outstanding civic leader and really a talent as a master of ceremonies. We're hoping our blowing off too much steam wasn't construed as a lack of esteem for this outstanding and selfless citizen, whose tireless devotion to his community and neighbors is one of Pampa's most valued assets.

Some Hither, Others Yon

Jack Keever is a young man who edits the sports pages of the Daily Texas, University of Texas student newspaper.

In his column Sports Voice, dropped on our desk by Lee Roy Mc-

Bride, Keever had some mighty fine things to say about Pampa's state champs. Here are excerpts from Keever's column.

"The Pampa Harvesters as a unit were probably the nearest thing to a college team that has ever performed in the high school tournament. Coyie Winborn, Charlie Minor and Mack Layne performed like they were ready for the college ranks already. How Layne was left off all state is hard to imagine.

"Winborn and Layne both move like guards, and Minor is almost mechanically perfect. He took the pleasure out of the Pampa-Milby 42-41 thriller as a game by playing such arrogant and perfect basketball. The big plays all during the Milby game were Minors. It was Minor who made passes to Layne driving under the basket, it was Minor who intercepted passes into the two big Milby boys. Minor stole the ball, he feinted and caused the Milby boys to palm the ball or travel, he stood confidently away from his man after he had forced him to stop his dribble and dared the man to shoot.

"Minor doesn't have the scoring ability that Bill Brown, 1958 Pampa all-stater and now a UT frosh has, nor does he have Brown's ability to make the sensational pass, but he's close on both counts and he does play a much tighter defense and he equals Brown's composure in a close game."

Ten UT Yearlings received cage letters Saturday, including Pampa's Bill Brown and Palo Duro's Paul Hyatt, the two back-court slicksters for Jimmy Vironomes hoopers. Brown was named to the all-SWC Frost quint Saturday.

Bill Ledbetter, secretary of the Pampa Chapter of Southwest Basketball Officials Assn, reminds all men interested in calling games next season to file their applications for entrance to the SBOA by April 1 with Abb Curtis at Box 7185 Inwood Station, Dallas 9, Texas.

The even 2:00 p.m. Berger's Don Box clicked off in the 860-run at the March 7 Possum Kingdom Relays rates as the best schoolboy time in the state. Tascosa's Spencer Johnson hurled the discus 181.85 at the March 14 Canyon Reef Relays in Snyder to top the state in that event.

Woodhouse Clocks 9.4 at San Angelo

SAN ANGELO (UPI)—Eddie Southern missed a duel with Bill Woodhouse in the 100-yard dash and the little Abilene Christian spring bomb flew in for a winning 9.4 in the first annual San Angelo Relays Saturday.

Unreled under bright skies and a minimum of wind, Woodhouse rolled out with a 10 m.p.h. wind behind him for an easy two-yard victory over second place Hollis Gainey of Texas.

Capitalizing on four-place sweeps in the discus and javelin, Texas had no trouble in claiming the team championship with 80 points. ACC was second with 65-1-2, Southern Methodist third with 36 and Texas Tech last at 18-1-2.

Southern Keeps Busy

Southern, who was scratched by Steer Coach Clyde Littlefield in the 100, managed to keep busy as he handled legs on all three of the Longhorns' relay teams.

He was instrumental in giving the Steers an easy mile relay win over SMU in a nifty time of 3:12.9 and kept the Longhorns on an even keel in running the sec-ond leg on the sprint relay. Texas whipped this 440-yard baton event off in 40.5 seconds.

Abilene won the high school division, outscoring second place San Angelo, 81 5-6 to 63-1-2.

However, the host supplied the outstanding athlete in the school-boy division in big Emery Martindale, double winner in the discus and shot put.

It was Martindale who surprised the field Friday with a 179-11 discus heave. He won the shot Saturday with a 55-11 1-2 effort.

Cooley Honored

ACC's Calvin Cooley, scoring twin victories in the hurdles, was voted the outstanding athlete in the University division. Cooley won the high in 14.8 and skipped over the 220-yard low timbers in 22.7.

The expected mile duel between Texas' Joe Villarreal and SMU's Jan Ahlberg fizzled in the end as the little Texas holed held on for a 4:20 and Ahlberg faltered, allowing ACC's Thomas O'Neal to take second, some 15 yards behind Villarreal.

SMU's Don Stewart, cleared 68-1.2 for a victory in the high jump.

Bayer Takes Lead In Open Golf Tournament At St. Petersburg

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—George Bayer of Glenaville, Ill., fired a three-under-par 69 Saturday in the second round to take a one-stroke lead at the half-way point of the $15,000 St. Petersburg Open Golf Tournament.

The long-hitting Bayer had a 36-hole total of 135, boosting him ahead of Wes Ellis Jr., Alderess, N. J., and Bob Goalby, Belleville, Ill., who shot 66's Saturday for 136's.

In third place, each with 137's, were Tom Mahan Jr., Danvers, Mass., and Jay Hebert, Sanford, Fla. Mahan had a 71 while Hebert had a 69.

Cooper Fires 70

Pete Cooper, Lakeland, Fla., shot a 70 for a 138.

Mahan and Bayer were tied with Tom Lema, San Leandro, Calif., in the opening round Friday, all shooting 66's over a soggy waterlogged course. But Lema fan into putting trouble Saturday, going four over par for a 76 and falling far back in the pack. He was tied with 10 other players at 142.

A thick fog covered the Lakewood Country Club course when the first players teed off this morning in the second round. But the sun broke through in spots later, and though there were threatening clouds overhead, no more showers fell.

Bayer, a 6-5 giant who weighs 245 pounds, posted five birdies and two bogies, using 33 putts. On the 16th hole, he was on the green in two but missed his eagle when he two-putted for a birdie.

The best two rounds of the day were fired by Ellis and Goalby. Ellis had eight birdies and an eagle, and one bogey.

Field Cut

After Saturday's round, the field was cut to low 60's and ties, with Tom Lema, San Leandro, Calif., in the 148 cutoff. Among those eliminated were Walt Burkemo, Franklin Hill, Mich.; Gay Brewer Jr., Paradise, Fla., and John McMullin, Fair Oaks, Calif.

Rookie Elgin Baylor: Makes NBA's All-Star Cage Team

NEW YORK (UPI)—Elgin Baylor of the Minneapolis Lakers became the first rookie to make the National Basketball Association's annual All-Star team Saturday since Bob Pettit pulled the trick in 1955.

Baylor, a unanimous choice as the professional league's "rookie of the year," is only the third first-year man named to the All-Star team in the circuit's 13-year history. Alex Groza also made the team during his first season with Indianapolis.

Pettit, the St. Louis Hawk star who set a new league scoring record during the 1954-55 campaign, received the most votes for the team but failed by only one ballot to become a unanimous choice. Bill Russell of the Boston Celtics and Baylor were runners-up in the balloting to Pettit and Bob Cousy of the Celtics. Cousy and Bill Sharman, Boston's backcourt duo, rounded out the first team and gave the Celtics three of the five berths.

The team was selected by sportswriters and sportscasters who covered the 1958-59 games in the eight league cities.

Pettit, Cousy and Sharman are repeaters from last year's first team while Russell moved up after winning a second-team berth last season. Cousy made the first team for the eighth consecutive year while Pettit gained a berth for the fifth straight time.

Adolph Schayes of the Syracuse Nationals, who made the squad for the 10th straight season, Paul Arizin of the Philadelphia Warriors and Cliff Hagan of St. Louis headed the second team. Richie Guerin of the New York Knickerbockers and Slater Martin, 5-10 St. Louis backcourt star who is the league's smallest player, rounded out the second unit.

The players derive more than honor from All-Star berths. Each man on the first team will receive $200 and second-team berths are worth $100 each. Baylor will receive an additional $200 from the league for being chosen the season's top rookie.

Baylor finished fourth in the regular season scoring race with 1,742 points in 70 games for a 24.9 point average.

CHANGE OF UNIFORMS AVERAGE RUNNELS' BATTIFORMS HELPED

By SCOTT BAILLIE
 United Press International

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI)—Pete Runnels hates to say so, but he did feel a lift when Washington traded him to the Red Sox, and his batting average soared with it.

The thin-lipped infielder from Lufkin, Texas, had the worst season of his career with the Senators in 1957, finishing with a .230 average. They closed out his seven-year stay there by trading him to Boston for Albie Pearson, who became the American League's Rookie of the Year in 1958, and Norm Zaichnik.

While Pearson turned into a star for the Sox and finished the season with a surprising .322 average. This was 92 points higher than he could do the previous season and it placed him second by six points behind teammate Ted Williams in the batting race.

Gets New Outlook
 "A change of uniforms and a little advice from an eye doctor helped me along," Runnels said today, leaning more heavily on his bat after a playful rookie tried to pull it from under him. "Not that I wasn't happy at Washington. It was the only major league team I'd been with and after seven years you can't help miss 'em."

"Yet a lot of ballplayers seem to improve when they join a new club. They get a new outlook to go with it—that lift. The ball drops in for hits more, and that's what happened to me."

Runnels said, however, that he actually began to break out of the slump toward the end of the 1957 season with the tail-end Senators and kept going in 1958 for the third-place Sox.

He's Relaxed Now
 "I'd decided there was something wrong with my eyesight because I couldn't buy a hit," Pete said. "So I visited this oculist. I can't remember his name but he had a lot of well-known players for patients, such as Joe Judge. The doctor told me only one thing was wrong 'you just aren't looking at the ball!'"

Armed with this bit of elementary advice, Runnels decided to quit worrying about his stance—which is very closed—his grip or how close he should be to the plate.

"I just relaxed more up there and decided to look for that ball," he said.

Delany Wins 35th Straight

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—Ireland's Ron Delany, whose appearance prevented a possible suspension, held his 35th consecutive indoor mile victory after another hairbreadth win over Istvan Rozsavolgyi of Hungary.

However, the fleet Irishman's 4:04.8 was far above his world record of 4:01.4 set two weeks ago. Delany, who admittedly runs only fast enough to win, ran fourth during half of the race and turned on the steam in the final two laps.

A slight jostling occurred as Delany made an unsuccessful attempt to pass Rozsavolgyi on a corner in the second last lap. However, the Hungarian could not withstand Delany's closing drive in the final lap. Delany opened up a six-yard lead which was cut to about a yard as they crossed the finish line.

RIDES THREE WINNERS
 LINCOLN, R.I. (UPI)—Jackey Jack Fieselman rode three winners, including Fibre King ($18.80), in the feature race at Lincoln Downs Friday. Fieselman's other winners were Matarador ($5.00) in the fifth race and Count Bull ($12.40) in the seventh.

ACC STARS WILL DUEL IN TEXAS RELAY RACES

AUSTIN (UPI)—Sprinters are expected to make an assault on the record books in the annual Texas Relays April 24.

Two of the nation's swiftest men—Bobby Morrow and Bill Woodhouse—will compete in an invitational 100-meter race.

Sufficient competition, including possible Ira Murchison of Western Michigan, have been invited to spur the Abilene Christian runners toward a possible world record.

Murchison, who has completed college eligibility, is one of the co-holders of the 10.1 mark in the event.

Two years ago the University of Texas established a world last season will be honored during the relays, posting a 1:22.7 for the 880-yard relay.

Three members of that team return for action this year: Wally Wilson, Eddie Southern and Hollis Gaines will be joined on the anchor carry this time by sophomore Ralph Alsbaugh.

Abilene Christian, although sliced by graduation, will join Houston, Rice and title-defending Oklahoma State in challenging the favored Texas Longhorns for the 880-relay championship.

The 1959 relays will determine championships in 40 events, 17 of them on Friday night and 23 on Saturday.

Pioneer Teacher Dies In Amarillo

Funeral services were conducted Thursday for Mrs. Annie Baker Daniels, former teacher in the Pampa public school system, in Blackbird-Shaw Chapel, Amarillo, on Thursday afternoon by Rev. James T. Cameron, assistant pastor of First Baptist Church.

Mrs. Daniels was a pioneer school teacher in this area. She taught in Amarillo public schools beginning in 1898; later in the Canadian schools; and in Pampa schools for approximately 20 years. She taught in the Little Red Brick Schoolhouse for a number of years and was the first principal of Woodrow Wilson, where she taught for many years. After retiring as principal, she taught in B. M. Baker school, which was named in honor of her father, the late Judge B. M. Baker of Canadian, who served as the first superintendent of public instruction in Texas. Later, Mrs. Daniels taught in Sam Houston School until she retired in 1947 and moved to Amarillo, where she conducted a private school in her home.

Mrs. Daniels was born Nov. 27, 1873 in Carthage and was a member of the First Methodist Church in Carthage.

She is survived by a son, B. M. Daniels of Amarillo; a grandson, B. M. Daniels Jr. of Waco; a granddaughter, Mrs. Herbert Satterfield of Amarillo and a niece, Miss Maurine Willis of Austin.

Palbearers were G. D. Gotheright, C. C. Jones, Jack Self, Herbert Satterfield, E. E. Head, and T. B. DeLashaw.

Burial was in Llano Cemetery in Amarillo on Thursday.

GRAY COUNTY Soil Conservation District News

By JIM SMATHERS

A good deal of conservation activity has been started on farms and ranches in the Gray County Soil Conservation District. Several farmers are preparing to construct livestock ponds for better grazing distribution.

Wayne Shaw, near Groom, is in the process of constructing a pond, and Bill Bralley, on U.S. 66, is preparing to build three ponds. Loyal Bird has a pond staked, and others are talking about constructing ponds before the spring rains set in.

Clyde Organ, on his farm east of Pampa, has a terrace staked to stop run-off and to reduce erosion. Ransom Carter, north east of Laketon; and Mopley Doss, southwest of Pampa, have both completed installation of more underground pipeline. The pipes were installed to conserve water and soil.

A number of ranchers have discussed brush control and some have made plans for chemical spraying in the spring. Aerial spraying with 2,4,5-T or its equivalent, is very effective in the control of sandbush, shinnery, wild-plum and skunkbrush.

Spraying should be done in May when the brush is obtaining its brush growth. Wild plum and skunkbrush is controlled with one spraying; sandbush requires spraying for two consecutive years; while shinnery requires three years.

The results obtained have been good. Grasses under good management have simply sprung up. Pastures on which brush control has been carried out need to be deferred grazed during the growing season immediately following control.

Actual results can be observed on the Johnny Hines place on the north fork of the Red River about six miles east of Lefors. Hines sprayed last year.

Activity in the Great Plains conservation program is going strong. There are presently 27 applications on file. Seven contracts have been signed and approved for operations. Several farmers have completed part of their conservation plans made for the contract.

Others are in the planning stage now. Applications can be made at any time with any of the agricultural agencies. In order to get such practices as livestock ponds, terracing and brush-control started this spring, applications should be made now.

Sugar Cookies Program Given

The club's next meeting will be at the home of Jeanie Skaggs on Tuesday, March 31.

New Summer Frocks Won't Need Ironing

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—You can just about stow the iron for the summer.

Dallas fashion manufacturers claim you won't need it for their cottons or synthetics—unless you are so determinedly neat you want to touch up collar or seams. The manufacturers, previewing their summer dresses, suits and sportswear this week, bragged about their "drip-dry" and "wash-wears" the way the rest of the state boasts about its oil wells.

One firm participating in the Dallas fashion center's shows for visiting reporters showed a blue and white polka dot cotton which had just come from a spin dryer. It looked as smooth as if the model had been staving over a hot ironing board for an hour.

The secret of the no-wrinkle cottons lies in the finish. The National Cotton Council estimated recently that each year some two billion yards of the chemically treated fabric are produced.

The easy-care fabrics include a variety of synthetics, or blends of cotton with dacron, arnel, or orlon. One manufacturer showed a short formal in drip-dry white nylon chiffon.

The dress firms haven't eliminated the natural fabrics by any means—many silks and linens were included in summer collections. Presumably, these go to the cleaner.

Peg O' Pampa

THEY COULDN'T HAVE picked a better day for it... we're speaking of the Parent Ed's pilgrimage this week to the Chamber's Ranch for an overnight stay... a whole afternoon, evening, and morning to while away in a luxurious feminine fashion... drinking coffee, playing Bridge, fishing, hiking, or "just sitting" and you should have seen the huge coffee "pot" they took along... certainly were some gay and pretty sportswear worn Tuesday morning when the group took off from Joan Osborne's home for the care-free outing... we especially liked Katy Key's russet brown pinwheel corduroy capri pants with matching jacket free from fixing baby formulas or sending the kiddies off for school for one whole morning, at least, were Betty Garra, Darleen Vanderburg, Norma Fathere, Alice Federer, Carole Swanson, Mary Johnson, Harlean Rose, Joan Osborne, Jan Lockhart, Ruth Goodwyn, Ruth Meador, Judy O'Conner and Katy Key... didn't Judy Wells make a lovely basketball Queen? our admiration for the Harvesters on the basketball court now extends to their selection of feminine beauty... the Harvesters cagers looked so handsome in their white dinner jackets with red carnation boutonnieres... we are not a world traveler, but we think Pampa is blessed with the handsomest boys and most beautiful girls in the USA... its young people are really outstanding in looks and abilities... Mabel Torvie did an excellent job with the staging of the coronation of the Queen and with the table decorations... dark green paper, especially ordered from Dallas, was used to cover the long dining tables along which was alternately placed arrangements of gold basketballs nestled in golden mums... yellow napkins complemented the paper... the table decorations literally voiced "school spirit"... place favors were so cleverly done... white styrofoam formed the shape of Texas with a gold crown placed at the top, Pampa marked with a green star, and a gold loving cup at the base... white wrought furniture was used for the coronation scene with a back-drop of blue net swag... a big basketball sprayed with silver glitter arranged in a large spray of golden mums was suspended above the Queen's chair... and to add to the festivities, Roy C. Johnson of Amarillo Air Force Base, accompanied by Maxine Milliam, sang selections from four hit musicals.

"PALE GREEN and white, in keeping with St. Patrick's Day was the color scheme selected by Mildred Cook, Lillian Whitten, Libby Shotwell, Vallie Shotwell, Verdala Cooper, Florence Radcliff, Grace Purviance, and Cecil Johnston for the bridal shower given on Tuesday evening in the First Methodist Church parlors honoring Betty Jane Boynton, bride-elect of Frank H. Frandsen of Denver, Colo... her fiancé flew her down this past week-end for a brief visit with her parents, the H. H. Boyntons and for the party... Mae Foreman Carr and Betty McWilliams added to the pleasantness of the occasion by playing piano selections throughout the evening... special guests were Mrs. W. L. Bumpers, aunt of the bride-elect, Mrs. Guy Valentine, who lives in Shamrock, her cousin, and her sister-in-law, Betty Boynton... Betty Jane and Frank plan to be married on April 4, in the Trinity Methodist Church in Denver and will make their home in Salt Lake City, Utah... and quite a pleasant time, we know, was had by all who attended the Cocktail Buffet last evening in the Country Club when Jack and Beulah Merchant, Howard and Alice Federer, Gene and Norma Groom, Eben and Alice Warner were hosts... we go to press too early with this to garner any special details on the affair... and another nice affair, Ralph and Theresa McKinney opened their lovely home to guests on Tuesday evening for a reception honoring the Knife and Fork guest speaker, Major General Charles A. Willoughby.

AS IRISH AS PADDY'S PIG is Roy C. Dawson... and his friends and co-workers couldn't have picked a more appropriate date than St. Patrick's for the surprise birthday and retirement party given for him on Tuesday evening in the Cities Service Club House... he's retiring from Cities Service after 25 years and in appreciation of this many years of service he was gifted with a watch... a lovely birthday cake, marked the birthday anniversary... Fern's mother, Mrs. Pearl Andrews of Wichita, Kan. was here for the occasion and plans to visit with the Dawsons through the Easter holiday... we'd like to add our congratulations to the top spelling champions of the county, which in our opinionated opinion is as important as any basketball championship... congrats to Phyllis Dalsing, Marilyn McIlroy and Ann Christie in the senior division... and to John Paul Bowers, first, Corletta Johnson, second, and Charles Snuggs, third, in the junior division... we know a lot of hard work and training went into preparing for this contest... and they're all still spelling champs even though only one will be so honored... that is such a pretty spot the Pampa Garden Club, Pampa Rose Society, and Top of Texas Garden Clubs are preparing out on North Duncan... later this year and in the years to come it will be a spot that we can point to with pride and take our out-of-town visitors by to see... the members are not only planning it but are actually down in the goopy mud on their hands and knees placing the rose bushes to the proper depth... we saw them... the project seems such an unselfish thing for the club to do for others to see and enjoy... we extend our civic thanks and express personal pride in the Garden Clubs' project... speaking of pretty garden spots, oops, Peg goofed last week... the very pretty lawn with its geometrically-designed flower garden in the middle is the result of the very hard work and devotion of the Glenn H. Studebaker's, who reside at 853 S. Banks... thanks to a neighbor of theirs for letting us know our error... pretty lawns, and we should know, are not born, they are made... and we are glad for the opportunity to correct our wrong accreditation... you see, it was this way, we thought the lawn we saw was at 853, but it was really 853... never was any good with "figgers."

LAURENE CHINN'S book, "The Unappointed" was released by the publisher for sale on Friday... we liked so much Mrs. Chinn's explanation of why she chose the title "The Unappointed" for her book... she explains, "The Unappointed are people whose skills and minds are dedicated to the great and famous and without whom these men would never have become great and famous... sometimes we feel 'unappointed'... the book is 'not without our hometown' touch, even though the author is from Borger... the map illustrations on the inside front cover and on the back cover are by Helen Huff to clarify the locations of the events in the story... and the picture of Mrs. Chinn on the back cover is by Irene Smith... local friends and guests will have the opportunity to see and become acquainted with Laurene at a Book Coffee Evelyn Nace and Charles Hart are planning on April 4 in the Country Club... Duplicate Bridge seems to be picking up steam in town... two new clubs have just recently been formed... and, of course, there is no end to the number of private "spur-of-the-moment" duplicate sessions... a Morning Duplicate Club meets each Thursday morning in the home of Mrs. E. J. O'Brien... and the newest of the group is the Saturday Night Club which meets in the Pampa Hotel and is a branch of still another club, The Pampa Duplicate Bridge Club, which meets on Monday evenings in St. Matthews Parish Hall... as we understand it, the clubs are not closed groups but has open membership and welcomes all interested Duplicate players... us? not eligible, for we've not yet read pass the first page in Goren

THIS IS ABOUT ALL we have to offer this week... other than these off again-on again warm days we've been having reminds us that it is almost time to stop paying to have the air warmed in our home and about time to start paying to have it cooled... whatever happened to that old cliché, "well, at least the air is free?"

See you, Peg

Sheriff Rufe Jordan Urges Complete Knowledge Of Civil Defense At Meet

Pampa Junior High School Band, under the direction of Ben Golehon, presented selections for members of the PTA at the meeting held Thursday afternoon in the school auditorium. Selections presented by the band were "Layette" (Handel); "Flashing Brass" (Nugust); "Holiday" (Whitney); "Appalachian Suite" (John Kenyon); "Hutchinson Field" (March); "Mother Goose Jumps" and "Three Gosses Of Gold."

Mrs. R. A. Mack, vice president and program chairman for the Junior High PTA, introduced Sheriff Rufe Jordan, who spoke to the group on "Civil Defense." Mr. Jordan said that "here in the Panhandle we think of tornadoes, cyclones and other weather conditions, which we should but we should also remember that we are less than eight hours jet-flying time from Russian jet bases. So we should think of hydrogen fallout from bombs, which can affect an area as far as 150 to 250 miles." He advised that the best thing to use for clothing and skin contaminated by fallout is water.

He outlined five steps to remember with regard to local civil defense—warn—warning—signals—know the community plan for protection; know First Aid and the operation of the Conelrad station. "Conelrad stations here in Pampa are in the sheriff's office, police station and radio station KPDM. These are in use at all times and in a few minutes, warning can and will save many lives." He also advised the group that in times of extreme weather to keep in contact with KPDM.

During the business meeting conducted by Mrs. J. H. Trotter, president, Mrs. R. K. Johnson, Alvin Macartney and Bob Powell were elected delegates from Pampa.

MIAMI (SpI) — Mrs. Abbie Landrum was hostess to a group of women recently for the purpose of organizing a "Miami Widows Club."

During the organizational meeting, Mrs. Landrum was elected president with Mrs. David Stribling to serve as reporter. "Others" has been chosen as the motto. It was decided that no dues will be paid and no programs presented, but the group will meet monthly for a covered-dish luncheon and work on a current project.

At the present time, the club is collecting clean, old nylon hose to be sent to Japanese widows to enable them to earn enough to buy food for their families. A spokesman for the club said 2 1/2 pounds of useless nylon will provide one day's work for a woman. They will unravel these nylons and reweave them into socks and other goods.

The spokesman went on to say that "Of the 687 Miami population, 8 per cent are widows." The club extends an invitation to widows of any age to participate in its membership.

The speaker's table was centered with a silver Easter Egg Tree with Easter Eggs encircled with pastel shades of tulle ruffles hanging from the branches.

"You can carry your arm in a sling for a month and it will become paralyzed; you can carry your mind in a sling, and it will become paralyzed. Keep active and keep young."

Nothing is more irritating than to get a run in your stockings. One way, experts say, to cut down on these is to wash new stockings before wearing them. This makes them more flexible and adds to their durability.

Now's the time to go through your closet and weed out last year's winter hats. They won't look right with this year's clothes so don't keep them under the illusion that you don't need a new hat or two.

Those furry fabric berets come with matching scarves. They're done in dramatic color combinations, too, like mauve and green.

First School Of PTA Instruction Held: Second Planned For Officers Tuesday

A school of instruction for incoming officers of local PTA units was held Tuesday morning in the First Christian Church under the direction of Mrs. R. A. Mack, City Council president. She was assisted by Mrs. James E. Lewis who outlined the duties of presidents; Mrs. E. A. McLennan, who illustrated the duties of vice presidents; Mrs. Warren Jackson, the duties of secretaries; The treasurer's duties were defined by Mrs. H. E. Saum; Mrs. K. H. Cambren discussed the duties of publicity and yearbook chairmen.

Mrs. Robert Redell and Mrs. Harry Gordon, council hospitality chairman, served doughnuts and coffee to the group during the meeting.

Preceding the workshop sessions, Mrs. Mack talked to the group about the functions of the PTA. "It is basically an educational organization, not so much because it is concerned with education, which it is, but because it educates. Who does it educate? You, the parent."

She went on to say, "It has been said by some parents that the PTA 'gets into politics, where they have no business being.' The official PTA position is that 'politics' in the sense of 'taking stands on legislation and issues' is part of its function. The PTA does not, however, endorse or support a political party or a candidate."

Mrs. Mack told the new presidents to praise good work, "If criticism is needed, criticize constructively, never spitefully. Reserve an open mind on all debatable questions. It is a mark of superior minds to disagree, and, yet, be friendly. Good fellowship is as important as good leadership."

It was announced that a similar school of instruction will be held Tuesday morning at 9 a. m. in the educational building of the First Christian Church. Leaders for

"Annual Flowers" Topic For Merten

"Annual Flowers" was the program topic given by Mrs. T. G. Groves for members of the Merten Home Demonstration Club in the home of Mrs. Jack Prather on Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Groves said, "Annual flowers add color and charm to your yard. A strong plant can be planted in the fall, but tender plants should be planted early in the spring in a hot-bed and then transplanted to the yard when the danger of frost is over." She went on to say that, "One should not plant flowers at the base of shrubs, as it would ruin the bottom part of the shrub. Commercial fertilizer is best to use, but it should be put on in the fall, so that the freeze will kill grub worms and weed seed."

"Large seeds should be planted deep, but fine seeds should be planted shallow. A few good annuals to plant in this country are petunias, phlox, zinnias, larkspur, marigolds and baby breath."

Following the brief business meeting, Mrs. Clyde Edmundson led the group in recreation. Mrs. Jack Howard and Mrs. Alvina Brandon won gifts for "Walking to Ireland."

JEWELLED CROWN! — The shining white taffeta banding the crown of this elegant hat is highlighted with a sparkling blue French jewel. Trim emphasizes the extra-high crown of this purple-cloche-of-straw braid.

Higher, Brighter, Gaye Headline Theme In Hats

The "brim" is the thing for spring! The dominating theme of the fabulously colorful and delightful new season millinery picture.

Closely following in importance are the new tall crowns. This double-barreled emphasis on more crown and more brim heralds the shift of interest to newer and more fascinating hat silhouettes.

Keeping company with shape is color! Color, strong and vivid, used alone or in bold combinations, showing its Eastern influence in every bright shade or subtle tint! The new brims appear in every imaginable size from "skinny" inch-wide versions to deep, deep brims which shadow the eyes or curve upward to repeat the line of the high crown.

Profile brims, turned-up brims, high-crown cloches with narrow eye-shading brims all follow the path to spring. Even classic Bretons, sailors and rollers carry out the new-fashion theme with gently lifted brims.

Riding high in the fashion picture is the tall crown as delineated in high cone shapes, pillboxes built up in tiered layers, softly towering toques and turbans a peak rounded effects that rise to a peak.

Color choice is a matter of individual preference as spring hats run the full gamut from vivid hues to tinted roman shades bearing little or no resemblance to past season "basics". In fact, sunny yellow is emerging as the new basic color for Spring '59. Vivid pinks, bright blues, Oriental greens, orange and lavender to purple tones are all featured.

For you who want to be different, the Eastern lantern or coolie shape, occasionally rippled or laden with flowers is the most interesting of the new style.

New Continentals Capture Interest As Style Leader

"Snappy" dresser, middle of the road or conservative, no matter what a man's taste, he'll find a style to please him this spring.

The slim unfitted Ivy look of past seasons is still being shown. The dressier, three-button "American Ambassador" model is also a consistent best seller. But, the very newest and most important style in the men's fashion world is the "Italian-Continental!"

The Italian Continental is a welcome change for those men who like to dress with verve. It is debonair — more sophisticated and worldly looking!

The Continental has a two-button cutaway jacket, is slightly shorter, more rounded in front, with a slight indentation at the waist. The shoulders are conservatively accentuated.

Shawl collars, peak lapels, side vents, slanted flap pockets and slimmer trousers complete the picture.

With the Continental, a gentleman may wear his classic felt hat but derbies are destined for a new popularity.

These style leaders are featured in tropical-weight worsteds, jacquard weaves and feather-weight wools. They're treated to stay neat and hardly ever wilt or wrinkle in the summer heat.

Color For Foot At Head Of Class

Color and contour are the buy-words for the teen-age miss shopping for new spring shoes.

Gemium pink, coral orange, turquoise, leaf green, bright blue — these are just a few of the colors seen in smooth leather and suede teen shoes that are contoured on sophisticated, tapered lines.

Needle-point toes hit peak popularity in shoes on all heel heights, from flat to the most-favored mid-heel. Starting with flats, the low-riding vamp is one of the top treatments in teen shoes.

Variations include the pointed-toe flat in bright-hued brushed leather with vamp tie of shiny patent or matching smooth leather, brushed leather with an instep tie in smooth leather, and the two-eyelet tie in smooth leather with brushed leather mudguard.

The T-strap shoe appears in a new version with the strap extending up from a cut-out vamp. Other variations are the short T-strap that stops just a little above the instep and the split T-strap that reaches up high on the instep.

The T's in many cases are of a contrasting leather.

Novelty ties add a new open look to ghillies. The hood-and-eye fastening popular last season is rivaled this spring by brass eyelets, sometimes in novelty shapes, and the ghillies are brighter, in new colors, and lighter, with slim, flexible leather soles.

Mid-heels, which get the big green light from fashion, are the top teen choice for day and dress wear.

Fashion Scoop In Blouse Necklines

The neckline is the style scoop in spring blouses! Strongly fashion-endorsed are either the high-high or low-low lines, with no concession made to the "in-between" range.

Length too, makes news, with shorter blouses designed to complement spring's short jacket suits. They're shown in both tucked-in and overblouse types.

Pink, blue, yellow and green head the color line-up with white-on-white patterns close behind the classic pure white.

High necks are adorned with self ties, soft bows and applique touches. Or, they are cut simply in the jewel, mandarin or Peter Pan collar fashion.

Low necks also feature bows, in addition to self-fringed ties, jeweled touches and embroidered, cut-out borders.

Miracle blends have the upper hand in fabrics, with cottons treated to wash-wear, following close behind.

The slightly longer over-b blouse in cotton hopsacking, stripes or florals is the style leader for wear over pants, shorts and cotton skirts. Even in these, necks are very high or very low!

Children's Shoes Shape Up In Lighter Leathers

Boys' and girls' shoes will come to a point this spring. It won't be as sharp a point as the one on mother's pump; in fact, "papered" is a more exact description. And it will be scientifically lasted to fit growing young feet. But the shape will be definitely different from last year's.

To assure real foot comfort, children's shoes will be of the most flexible leather and softer construction, with pliant leather soles to give plenty of freedom along with healthful support.

Black is the top shade in both boys' and girls' shoes. White, red and navy come next in popularity for little girls and shades of brown with boys.

The T-strap will be much in evidence in both school- and party shoes for girls. Tear-drop cut-outs just like those on mother's dress shoes will appear on the dress-up styles, along with fringed leather bars and even jeweled trim where the strap is fastened.

Smooth and patent leathers are ahead for girls, but many spring party shoes will be of suede leather. Grained leather in small boys' shoes in combination with smooth leather will please their young hearts.

There will also be more slippers for the boys, sporting such grown-up features as straps and buckles, pointed toes, and elasticized goings. Both slippers and oxfords will be slightly lowered topmés to help establish the long, slim look.

Bridal Gowns Take Freshness, Charm From Tradition

Gowns for the spring bride combine traditional influences with new ideas for freshness and charm.

High empire waists are marked by bows, bands or sashes, often in contrasting pastel shades. Lace, floral appliques, seed pearl and crystal beadings are also used to emphasize an empire bodice.

Silhouettes range from dome shapes to styles with flat fronts and side fullness. Carriage skirts with bouffant backs and fan skirts with soft waistline pleating are other choices. Many skirts are slightly raised in front, with court trains in back.

Period influences include high-riding Regency backs and trains, Watteau panels and Victorian seifoes and bustle-back effects. Sleeves are usually never longer than sleeve length.

Among the favored fabrics are Chantille lace, taffeta, nylon chiffon and nylon tulle, peau-de-soie and satin. Sheer fabrics, such as organdy, are often embroidered with allover floral patterns or feature allover lace appliques.

Milady's Spring Chapeaux Shows More Of Coiffure

Fashion's "lifted look," with its focus on the top of the silhouette, gets support from milliners, who give spring hats more height in the crowns.

Along with this goes more news — and very welcome news for the many women who would like their hats to show greater respect for their hairdos. Spring hats take notice of the coiffure. New silhouettes often show more hair, and where the hair is covered, the hats are designed to protect the coiffure against excessive mussing.

Higher crowns frequently combine with wider brims this spring. The brim has a high-rising brim that goes straight up. Whether the brim is wide or narrow, the classic cloche keeps a tall crown. Toques are step-like or smoothly slanted. Sailors combine high or spread crowns with bumper brims, while pillboxes show new depth.

Wide-brimmed hats, flower-heaped, and head-hugging shapes are noted among the popular spring silhouettes. Still others have an Oriental motif.

Whatever the silhouette, hats show new softness, both in shaping and trims. Fabrics are put to good use, from the airy light organzies to the textury checks, and many creators accent the use of fabrics in their designs. Both textured and smooth straws are evident in the millinery fashion world, the latter predominating.

Feathers, satin or grosgrain banding, velvet, chiffon and flowers from tiny to out-size are among the many pretty spring trimmings.

Often suggested for how-to-wear-a-hat is a back-on-the-head pose. This back-tipping of hats reveals the hairline, and adds to the ways hats are considered of coiffures.

Clear colors give spring hats extra sparkle. Use of colors in pairs creates a newer look, particularly in duos of black and white or yellow and orange.

The blue spectrum, from the palest shade of royal or turquoise, enhances the color scene, as do bright hues of sun yellow, acid green, paprika and brassy gold.

White, as ever, gives the clean fresh look for spring and offers pleasant contrast in the color panorama. In addition to the many black-and-whites, there are all black hats, seen most frequently in a shiny-surfaced straw that makes them ideal for wear with spring's black patent shoes and bags.

Shirtwaists Top Spring's Hit Parade

Spring heralds the return to universal popularity of that great American fashion — the shirtwaist!

In the classroom, or the office, shopping or sight-seeing, dancing or relaxing, the shirtwaist reigns supreme among fashion-conscious women.

Ranging from casual to cocktail styles, the new shirtwaists are fashioned of every imaginable fabric, in every imaginable color, feature a wealth of new, smart detailing.

Daytime models have either slim or slightly full skirts, with buttons that stop short of the waist or continue to the hem.

Cottons and miracle blends, many in drip-dry versions, are favored for these sun-loving types. Colors are varied, with polka-dots, bold stripes and neat prints predominating.

Braid and scroll trim in contrasting colors add a bright touch, as do pleated backs and novelty buttons, many in gold or silver color.

Nylon, silk organza, lushly colored brocades, even satins fashion the shirtwaist designed to shine at the cocktail or dinner hour.

These dressy models, with bouffant of crumpled skirts sparkle with rhinestone buttons jeweled collar and cuffs, and many other types of eye-catching trim.

Casual or dressy, whatever the occasion, there's a shirtwaist, or two, or three, in your spring fashion future!

THE BOLERO EFFECT

On this coat-dress the front is cut to give this impression while the back remains straight. One large black button ends the long wide collar and contrasts with the black and white small dogtooth pattern. Crisp touches of white set off the neckline and cuffs. Hat is of same woolen fabric.

THE BOLERO EFFECT will be very popular for spring. On this coat-dress the front is cut to give this impression while the back remains straight. One large black button ends the long wide collar and contrasts with the black and white small dogtooth pattern. Crisp touches of white set off the neckline and cuffs. Hat is of same woolen fabric.

Masculine Sportswear For Spring Colorfully Refreshing As Sassafras

As bracing as a Spring tonic is the 1939 range of masculine sportswear. In addition to colorful good looks, these garments for fun and leisure also boast new construction features for greater comfort and ease. And greater use of "science" fibers in the fabrics makes for easier care, says the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear.

A quick run-down of what's new for and in tune with 1939 starts with sports jackets, fashioned in lighter-than-ever wool fabrics; wash-wear cottons, man-made fabrics, or blends of any or all of these. All are designed for that basic consideration: to keep cool in the hottest weather, and to look smart and crisp at all times.

As for the good looks, the jackets range, all the way from the traditional blazers in solid colors, to bold checks and king-sized plaids. The muted tones of India madras are also in favor.

Fans of wool will find lightweight hopsacking weaves attractive, while other men will prefer the sleekness and sophistication of silk coats. Flannel blazers never go out of style, and this year will be found in solid colors, stripes, and again solids with contrasting piping.

The same variety and appeal are to be found in the range of sports slacks, with Ivy models heading the list for many. Some of these feature back-flap pockets, English-inspired self-supporting beltless slacks, and the new-as-tomorrow "Continental" which are distinguished by their single-pleat cut, slim lines, polo pockets and side tabs, among other features.

The growing demand for wash-wear slacks brings about a greater variety of them than ever. There are even wash-wear, featherlight flannel slacks this year, ready to wear after laundering and drip-drying. Other models include slacks with that now-familiar iridescent sheen effect and a great variety of patterned types that go with solid colored blazers.

It's a safe prediction that more men will turn out in walking shorts this year than ever, with Bermuda lengths or slightly longer versions getting the preference. Sweaters continue to enjoy their great revival, with cardigans among the standouts. These fea-

Color And Comfort With New, Jauntier Styling Is High Spot In Men's Wear

This season, fun and leisure wear for men is slanted more than ever toward the growing idea that it's twice as enjoyable to relax when you're dressed right for it.

A survey of the entire range of spring and summer sportswear by the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear, bears this out.

For instance, sports jackets are now fashioned in feather-weight wools for increased comfort and ease in wearing, along with crisp smartness in looks.

Styles for good looks, they also boast new built-in tailoring features that make for utmost freedom of movement.

The sports jacket range goes all the way from traditional wool fabrics — in the tweedweights men now prefer — to wash-wear treated cottons and the newest test-tube fabrics that are both handsome and versatile. Many comprise blends of these and other fabrics such as silk, to make for one of the widest selections ever to appear from the apparel makers.

Knits Are Newsworthy

The Institute also points out the continuing popularity of knitted sport shirts. Easy to wear pull-overs, for instance, are just the thing for boating, tennis and other active times. Some of the new ones are buttoned down the front like cardigan sweaters. They're available in stripes, solids and scores of patterns. As for colors — you'll find every shade of the rainbow.

Slim, Trim Slacks — Slacks to go with the jackets are so headlined by new "Continental" features, including the slimmer-than-ever streamlined effect. "Continental" slacks, besides their slim, and slimming lines also spotlight a single-pleat cut, polo pockets and side tabs.

Ivy-inspired slacks are likewise much to the fore, marked by their now familiar back straps and back flap pockets.

Many have built-in self supports — no belt needed.

Wash And Wear

Incidentally, wash-wear lines are available in both slacks and jackets this season. Thanks to test-tube fabrics and science-treated natural fabrics such as cotton and clever blends, both jackets and slacks in these fibers can be dunked in suds, rinsed and hung to dry, for quick freshening.

Amazingly enough, some fabrics in these and other men's sportswear items can even be dried via machine drier — and still emerge with that crisp, pressed look.

Shoppers should not overlook the increasing popularity and variety of walk shorts. Bermuda lengths are common, and a trend toward longer-than-Bermuda is noticeable. It's a cinch that more of these will be seen this year than ever before.

Sweaters Are Tops

A man without a sweater nowadays is a rarity indeed. They have made a sweeping comeback. The sweaters men are favoring for spring include the ever-popular cardigan in button-front or pull-over styles, woven in featherlight wools, man-made yarns and cottons, or blends of all three.

Bulky knits also continue to appear everywhere in crewneck or V-neck models. Colors and patterns are available in a wide array.

Beach News

The beachers beckon as never before, thanks largely to the persuasion factor of the new beachwear. Swim briefs for instance, or elasticized shorts, mid-length boxer shorts, and the new surf riders fairly invite a plunge into

Ladylike Handbags Is Fashion Trend

No dress a young woman chooses is as important to her as her wedding dress... and never before in history has it been so easy to find just the right dress as it is today.

Most of the new wedding dresses are full-skirted and worn over a stiffened petticoat or hoop. But exquisite slim silhouettes are ready for the more sophisticated bride-to-be.

Waistlines are a little higher or a little lower than normal, or the waistline may be molded in a basque effect.

Variation of the gowns depends mostly on the shape of the neckline or the outline created by the ruffles and lace on the dress.

Thanks to the miracle of nylon, brides may now choose a wedding dress as ethereal as a cloud — that never loses its pristine beauty — and takes to color like a blotter absorbs ink. It can be freshened with effortless ease.

"ponchos" for luxurious dry-offs.

Silk For Spring

The new accent on silk in men's sportswear is as strong this season as last, and their sleek iridescent effects will be seen just about everywhere.

However, wool jackets, especially the classic blazers, are as much in evidence as ever. You'll find these in solid colors, bold checks, and plaids. Solid-toned flannel blazers are featuring a piping treatment that promises to be a favorite.

Little Ladies Behave Like Little Ladies In Light-Hearted Spring Wearables

In the wonderfully enchanted world of little people, what could be more "grown-up" than the "fairy princess" look of the high-waisted Empire? At last, the vagabond waistline has picked the most feminine position and is settling down... way up on top!

Complementing the Empire picture, fabrics contribute to the dimension of fashion with texture rising to new heights enhanced by the season's clear, clean colors.

REIGN OF THE EMPIRE
It's no surprise that the newest fashion is the flattering Empire. The chief shape arrangement: narrow shoulder, brief bodice and a skirt falling freely from an elevated waist.

Many of the young natural waisted dresses — and there are many — have Empire detailing such as obis, cummerbunds and sashes.

FIRE-BRED COLORS
Here are some of the most delicious, hot colors being served from the vats this spring:
Pink — with vibrant qualities is slated to lead the parade.
Blues — influenced by green and clear bright hues.

Liacc — bloomed early and is picked for special wearing.
Green — takes its cue from bright, clear, grassy greens.
Gold-Coral — a luscious reminder of peach-lemonade.
White — shows alone or combined; looks newest with beige.
Light Beige — the big neutral slated to combine with a variety of blazing colors.

TEXTURE ADDS EXCITEMENT
Bulky, lightweight fabrics such as mohair, cotton knit, boucle, basketweave, and terry gain in importance in little girl fashions. Hop-sacking (beautifully printed), pique and embroidery float high in the world of little girls. Shark-skin (printed or plain), ribs and cordis continue... and of course, synthetics return.

The 1939 version of florals is a flat, stylized print outlined in black, white or a contrasting color. And, stripes look refreshingly new when accompanied by texture such as shagbark.

The Empire influence will dominate to in spring coats and suits marked by subtle details such as bandings, belts, bows and sashes. Just like mommy's and big sister's, the junior misses' suit jackets are brief (as are those

Bright Hues Go To Men's Heads

Hats for Spring are following the color trend to medium shades this season, and as a result, they're brighter and more cheerful.

Styles and shapes have undergone a few changes, too — with shapes a bit smaller and brims showing a "deep-dish" effect.

In harmony with the lighter-shade trend in suits and coats, the season's hats are in hues of gray, brown and green, among others. Some are in a mixture of these hues, with none predominating. Many of these springtime lightweight felts, incidentally, are crushable. The traveling man can squeeze one into a suitcase, and out it comes looking as good as ever at journey's end.

For dress-up wear this Spring, black felts are at the top of the list. The use of black has also Tyrolean sports types. The center-spread to some sport hats, especially those with colorful bands and feather trims.

Hat shapes range all the way from the center-crease style favored by "Ivy" fans to the familiar with new "Continental" suits.

Wash 'n Wear For Easy Cloths Care

This summer, wash-wear suits will be more in evidence than ever. And the revolution they're making will go full cycle. For now men can freshen a sound-looking business suit in a matter of an hour or less. Fashioned from so-called test tube fabrics, or a blend with natural wood and cotton, they can be dunked in a washing machine and run through the dryer along with the rest of the wash. These types do not have to be hung out to dry — the simple wash 'n' dry cycle does it. Nor do they have to be pressed. They come out of the dryer ready to be put on, with little or no touch-up needed.

Along with this convenience, which is good for both travelers and stay-at-homes, the new summer suits are lighter than ever, to provide cool comfort on the hottest days.

The wash-wear revolution has also affected rainwear. Thanks to new fabrics and fabric blends and special treatments of established fabrics, some new raincoats can be washed instead of dry-cleaned. They don't even need sizing or other treatment afterward, for they retain their rain-resistant qualities through it all.

The wash-wear revolution has also affected rainwear. Thanks to new fabrics and fabric blends and special treatments of established fabrics, some new raincoats can be washed instead of dry-cleaned. They don't even need sizing or other treatment afterward, for they retain their rain-resistant qualities through it all.

Wide Belts Rise High, Handsome

Designers are giving the waist back to fashion this spring — beautifully wrapped with wide soft belts.

Softness means delicately crushed and that means suede — a decidedly different fabric for spring and one of the most important.

A hair a foot is not too wide, but most daytime belts linger at around three inches.

Calif, of course, remains as a rich complement in many of the more conservative ensembles. Soft glove leathers appear most often in cummerbund, cross-over or sash styles.

Most belts settle at around one inch above the natural waistline. Some contour belts sit on the hip tops and rise high on the midriff.

The new belts do not indent at the midriff but swathe it gently. Vibrant, exciting colors play a starring part in the show of belts this spring. Tri-color belts offer many match 'n' mate possibilities. Striking the high hue-note are cyclamen pink, streamer blue, blazing poppy, aqua, fern and apple green.

Buckles are as unusual as the size and colors of the belts they decorate. Over-sized bows, jeweled squares and ovals, and novelty button-medallion types capture the limelight.

Gloves Show Elegant Airs, Vaired Trims

Gloves have an especially elegant look this spring. Trimming techniques are many and varied and always subtle. Typical are all-over pin tucks, appliques and discreet bandings.

Embroideries have a hand-made, delicate air. They appear in both vivid colors and such soft shades as pale green, blue and yellow. Some are empire-inspired designs of fruits or flowers.

Evelets and perforations serve as decorations and also offer coolness.

Leather trims are popular, too, and leather is often combined with fabric. Patterned sheer nylon teamed with French kid looks new, feels light and comfortable, while washable leather and stretch yarns are another favorite combination.

Feather-trimmed washable kid, pique, printed cotton and stretch gloves are all in fashion's favor. High-count cotton gloves are closely knit, very soft to the touch and, in some cases, give the appearance of doekskin.

Fashions, Ever Onward, Now Upward As New "French Uprising" Sets In

There are new directions in the world of fashion for Spring 1939! And, every day of the new season will prove to be lady's day in a mood of more feminine, casual elegance.

SUDDENLY — nipped-in, clearly-defined waistlines make news again!

One of the newest directions taken in fashion's fling — is upward! Fashion is up to its high waist in a trend that accents a moulded bustline or keynotes an upward-of-the-waist emphasis.

The High-rise of Empire Silhouette is unquestionably the leader of the season. Dresses, coats and suits are all pointing up the just 'neath-the-bust detailing.

The Blouson — an established silhouette that find favor in fashions for larger sizes, is important in sportswear and casual themes.

The Shirtwaist: from the most casual day-timer to suavely-handled date-times, the perennially popular shirtwaist is sure to be a great favorite this season. Particularly handsome with a wide, high-rise belt, it is destined for acceptance in full-skirted and slim skirt stylings.

The Shaath: this silhouette especially, it creates a new excitement in the costume class — especially in Empire styling and topped with bolero, jacket or long coat.

The Overblouse: Sportswear has really taken this style to its fashion heart. Overblouses — in all fabrics, colors and textures — top slim skirts, long or short-skirts and pants. The overblouse currently is being brightened with Empire detailing.

THE NATURAL WAIST — It's been a long time since fashion has remembered that a woman's charm is often encircled at the middle!

The natural waist look for spring into summer is pointed up with smart emphasis with full skirt, shirtwaist-top or scoop-neck, short-sleeved top.

Wherever you look, fashion will play many variations on the high-rise and Empire themes. In every facet of the style picture, this decidedly-feminine look will come to the fore for flattery, fit and a fashionable future.

Fashions Have Silky Swish

In a season that stresses the elegant and colorful, it's no surprise to see pure silk emerge as inspiration for the loveliest fashions of this or any other spring.

Sweeping everything before it, the smooth elegance of silk, daily increasing in importance, is expected to be the fabric most-in-demand for every type of day or evening wear.

Silk linen and silk shantung, in stubbed and textured surface weaves, have set of a whole series of daytime fashion-fireworks.

Silk chiffon in inky black, stark white, dreamy pastels or pale-to-potent prints swirl glamorously through your evening hours.

Lavishly embroidered silk or ganza is used for casual and dressy styles; gives a luxurious air to even the simplest shirtwaist.

Silk broadcloth, a beautiful basic, is used for the shirt — wait that rank so high in fashion's favor.

Silk crepe-de-chine and georgette, newly-revived, appear in some of the smartest styles.

This spring, it's a silken-spre for the style wise.

Checks Are Smart New Spring Asset

Checked and double-checked for fashion distinction is the spring revival of... checks.

Little checks, big checks and out-size "race-track" checks are seen everywhere. Yes, checks are featured on every inch of the spring fashion picture.

Favored for sports, casual and travel wear are the big bold checks in dramatic combinations ranging from stark black and white to two-toned pastels. Dressier clothes feature variations of smaller checks in subdued, yet vivid colors.

Here's a tip for the fashion-conscious on a limited budget...

check your closet and add a strategic helping of checks to up-date your spring wardrobe.

Here's Answers On Project Argus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here are some questions and answers on Project Argus:

Q. What happened in Project Argus?
A. Three low-yield atomic bombs were exploded more than 300 miles above the South Atlantic. Each was equal to about 1,000 tons of TNT. The bombs, provided by the Atomic Energy Commission, were fired Aug. 27, Aug. 30, and Sept. 6.
Q. Where was the project carried out and how?
A. The bombs were launched aloft by three-stage research rockets from the decks of the Navy missile ship, the North Sound. It was about 2,000 miles east and a little south of Bahia Blanca, Argentina.
Q. What was the purpose of the experiment?
A. To observe the effects of nuclear explosions above the atmosphere.
Q. What were some of these effects?
A. Electrons ejected in enormous surges into the earth's magnetic field quickly formed a thin shield of radiation around the planet, open only at the polar regions where the magnetic lines of force dip toward the earth.
Q. What did this indicate?
A. That man can create artificial radiation zones comparable to the natural belts discovered by satellite and moon probe experiments.
Q. What visible manifestations were there of the Argus shots?
A. Artificial auroral displays appeared over the ships of the task force and at the "conjugate point" of the magnetic field pattern in the Northern Hemisphere. This point was over the Azores. It was not officially disclosed whether there was a brilliant flash of light in the sky when the bombs exploded, but presumably there was.

Q. Would injection of electrons from the explosions into the earth's curving magnetic field have any effect on radio communications?
A. Yes. The electrons which entered the ionosphere (electrified layers of the atmosphere) would greatly increase its electrical conductivity. This in turn would affect the ionosphere's ability to reflect radio waves without distortion.
Q. Is this something like the magnetic storms created in the ionosphere by charged particles from solar flares?
A. Yes. Scientists say big nuclear explosions would disrupt high frequency radio communications in a way similar to the effects caused by giant solar flares.
Q. Would high altitude explosions mess up electronic guidance of the still-to-be-perfected Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile.
A. Military authorities say the answer is No. But if man-made ionospheric storms impaired radar early warning systems, Nike-Zeus would be grounded.
Q. Would high altitude nuclear explosions create a snare for incoming hydrogen missiles?
A. This is highly problematical. It used to be thought neutrons from such explosions might prematurely trigger the fission charge of enemy missiles. Scientists now believe this would take an unachievable density of neutrons. Electrical impulses from nuclear explosions might fire high explosive components of a warhead's triggering system. But blocks against such impulses could easily be installed.
Q. Are high altitude atomic explosions detectable?
A. Yes—if you're looking for them. The Russians apparently did not detect the Argus shots. Satellite detective patrols are feasible against high altitude tests.
Q. Do high altitude tests pose a fallout threat?
A. No. Any particles big enough to escape entrapment in the magnetic field would remain aloft indefinitely, circling the earth as tiny satellites.
Q. How long did the radiation zone created by Project Argus continue in existence?
A. It was still detectable as late as December. It eventually dissipated. Authorities would not state its exact lifetime.
Q. Would the magnetic disturbances created by high altitude explosions affect radio beams from earth satellites?
A. Probably not. These beams are "highly directional" and presumably would pierce the disturbance area without being absorbed.
Q. When will the public get a detailed report on the scientific results of Project Argus?
A. They will be summarized at the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences here April 27, 28, and 29.

WARHEADS EXPLODED

The Defense Department has revealed that the U. S. exploded three nuclear warheads over the South Atlantic last September. The warheads were reported from the experimental missile ship, Norton Sound, near the Falkland Islands (A) just above the Antarctic, and the shots burst near the Azores (B) in mid-Atlantic. It was reported that radiation from the blasts was caught by the earth's magnetic field and formed a net around the world in a matter of hours with the exception of the poles, shown in white on the newsmag.

Radial Contact With Venus Really Only The Beginning

By CHINA ALTMAN United Press International
WESTFORD, Mass. (UPI) — Man's first contact with another planet, a radar signal's 36-million mile round trip to Venus, was only the "antialiasing beginning" of many new things in science.
This was the prediction of Dr. Paul E. Weiss, as he and his fellow scientists at Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Lincoln Laboratory here reported in the major breakthroughs of the space age.
Dr. Herbert G. Weiss, who also worked on the project, was equally optimistic. He said the research team at the Millstone Hill installation would try to contact Venus again next September when it moves closer to earth. He also said the next stop for the giant radar device here "could be Mars."

The history making brush with Venus was the first two-way contact with any celestial body beyond the moon. It afforded man his first chance to study the planet, which until now has only been a mysterious place which pops up frequently in science fiction.
Weiss also said that if there had been anybody on Venus and if they had a receiver, they could have picked up our radar signals "easy."
The Lincoln Lab's announcement late Thursday at a special press conference said "preliminary calculations... indicate that the dimensions of the solar system are somewhat smaller than the previously accepted value."
The experiment will enable research teams to accurately measure space distances, according to Green and Dr. Robert Price, the two men who led the team of scientists on the project. It also extended radar range about 100 times.
The experiment was performed over a year ago but was not fully evaluated until only recently.
The scientists here received a congratulatory message from President Eisenhower "for this notable achievement in our peaceful ventures into outer space."

WHO KNOWS?—Rear Adm. Jack P. Monroe, above, says "it's anybody's guess" whether Russia or the United States will be the first to put a man into space. He adds that the Russians could be first because they "won't take the pains we intend to take to protect the man."

Nuclear Weapons Do Not Reduce Need For Manpower

Personality Spotlight
United Press International
GEN. LYMAN L. LEMNITZER
New Army Chief of Staff

Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, the new Army chief of staff, expects the Communist menace to go on unabated and rejects the idea that nuclear weapons reduce the need for Army manpower.
He believes the Army should be modernizing its equipment at a more rapid rate and foresees the need for increased funds in the future to support "essential levels" of manpower and weapons.

President Eisenhower named Lemnitzer, now vice chief of staff, to succeed Maxwell D. Taylor next July 1.
Lemnitzer, 59, is a black haired, sharp-eyed, stocky officer of medium height.
He has had a long career of mixed command, staff and diplomatic experience.
In World War II Lemnitzer joined Gen. Mark Clark in the secret submarine mission which led to the African landings in October, 1942. In intervals between command and staff duties during the war, he negotiated with Italian representatives for Italian capitulation and with the German high command for surrender in Italy and southern Austria.
He was instrumental in getting American military aid under way in 1949 as special assistant to Defense Secretary Louis Johnson.
At the age of 51, Lemnitzer was determined to become a paratrooper. He took the airborne course and won command of the 11th Airborne Division.
That was in December, 1950. The next year he commanded the 7th Infantry Division in Korea. After a tour as deputy chief of staff in Washington, he returned to the Far East in 1956 first as Army forces commander and then as U. S. Far East commander. He was named vice chief of staff in April, 1957.

Lemnitzer was born in Honesdale, Pa., and graduated from the Military Academy 86th in a class of 2711 in 1920. He was a classmate of Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Thomas D. White.

person of Rev. Therman O. Upshaw, beloved pastor of the Central Baptist Church, 513 E. Francis.
Upshaw spent two weeks last month talking to Eskimos and, in some cases, at them. He conducted revivals in Kobuk, Shungnak and Selawik.
The pastor flew into Kobuk by bush plane, landing on the frozen river. "That's the airport," he says. The river is also the source of drinking water. In winter, natives have to chop a hole in the ice.
Kobuk is a village of log huts with a mission church, a territorial school and a trading post. A former Pampan, Richard Lunsford, runs the Mission. Lunsford plans to return to Texas for seminary training but expects to spend the rest of his life in Alaska.
Most Eskimos eat, sleep, clean fish and skin Caribou in the same room. Upshaw recalls a visit to an Eskimo whose wife was sick. "How's Sally?" someone asked. The Eskimo was chewing upon a piece of raw Caribou meat. "Him's fine," he finally replied. The Eskimos want nothing better than to be left alone. They are quite happy with their way of life. They feel their rights will be intruded upon when Alaska becomes the 49th State. Upshaw predicted that the government will outlaw fish traps, which the Eskimo uses extensively to catch fish for his dogs.
"The Eskimos do not waste a thing," he adds. "When they catch a seal they do not even waste the intestines. But they feel there has always been plenty of fish and wild life and that there always will be."
When Upshaw told natives that temperature in Pampa was 50 above, they said it was too hot. A Caribou hunter thinks nothing of sleeping out for five nights in 80 below weather.
A glove made from a 55 gallon oil drum heats the Kobuk Mission to a comfortable zero degree in the winter. Natives, wrapped in furs, sit in the pine pews and listen to the preacher.

Hoffa Brewing Up Oil Labor Trouble

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Teamsters President James R. Hoffa is brewing a pot of labor trouble for the oil industry and possibly the unions that keep its wheels moving.

As a beginning, the No. 1 target of Senate racket investigators has embarked upon a bold campaign to absorb 12,000 workers in Standard Oil company (New Jersey) plants, starting with a huge refinery at Baton Rouge, La.

Most of these 12,000 workers already belong to independent, or so-called "company" unions, or to O. A. Knight's AFL-CIO Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International. Hoffa has been waging a personal "selling" campaign and already has demanded a bargaining election among the 5,000 workers in Baton Rouge.

"Knight for years has tried in vain to crack the independent front, and especially the impregnable Jersey Standard opposition. If Hoffa succeeds — and he is supremely confident — he would have a strong wedge into other big company independents.

He also would be in a position to scuttle some of Knight's hard-won gains and possibly reverse a rank-and-file trend toward the OCAW.

This, according to an industry spokesman, could sow the seeds of industry-wide labor strife.

Hoffa is proceeding on a let-the-chips-fall-whenever-they-may basis. Unlike Knight, he has a potent weapon. He claims his union hauls 90 per cent of all oil products moved over the highways.

If his members struck, or refused to cross picket lines, no great volume of products would be transported by truck. The Teamsters also have organized some bulk plant and pipeline workers.

This is a type of campaign Jersey Standard and other big companies have not faced. On the average, their dealings with Knight and the independents have been mostly amicable, with the independents usually winning wage benefits patterned after gains won by Knight.

Workers Invited Early this week, Hoffa wired officials at the Baton Rouge plant that the Teamsters now represent a substantial majority of their workers — members of the Independent Industrial Workers Association — and demanded recognition as their bargaining agent.

Knight, who has been discussing counter-strategy with his executive committee in Denver, wrote letters inviting the 5,000 workers to join the OCAW. He went along a form asking each to return it if he was interested in OCAW membership. The letters pointed out that the OCAW is the oldest and strongest in the industry.

H. J. Voorhies, vice president and general manager of the Baton Rouge plant, said: "We have no evidence whatsoever that the Teamsters represent any of those employees, much less a substantial majority." He added that both the company and the IWA had declined to recognize the Teamsters.

This put the next move up to Hoffa. "These conditions make for an economic squeeze," he said. Mitchell pointed out the concept of state regulation over spacing of wells has existed in Texas since 1919. He said his remarks were not intended to be critical of the Texas Railroad Commission, but rather of some of the statutes under which it has to operate.

Mitchell Calls For Wider Well Spacing At WF

WICHITA FALLS (UPI)—Houston oilman Johnny Mitchell has called for wider well spacing to correct what he referred to as "abuses and inequities" in oil and gas production.

Mitchell, in a speech before the annual meeting of the North Texas Oil and Gas Assn., said operational economy, good conservation practice, preservation of correlative rights and advantages of voluntary pooling all are closely related to a solution of the problems of well spacing.

Mitchell, partner in the Houston firm of Christie, Mitchell and Mitchell, said the domestic oil industry is entering a critical era of relatively slow increases in market demand, excess production in foreign nations and lowering crude prices in the face of increased costs.

"These conditions make for an economic squeeze," he said. Mitchell pointed out the concept of state regulation over spacing of wells has existed in Texas since 1919. He said his remarks were not intended to be critical of the Texas Railroad Commission, but rather of some of the statutes under which it has to operate.

Import Controls Are Here To Stay!

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—Compulsory import controls are a fact of life, and I think we're always going to have them with us unless there is another Suez crisis or something like that.

Those words were spoken in Tulsa this week by Minor S. Jameson Jr., the chief economist of the Independent Petroleum Association of America which fought along the hardest for the controls.

Assailed on one side by domestic petroleum importers and on the other by friendly nations who would like to sell to the U.S., the import controls were not an easy decision for President Eisenhower to make.

Aiken Outlines Reasons A sample of the opposition was a statement from U. S. Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) who urged the President to change his mind—and quickly.

Aiken said the oil import restriction is discriminatory to populous regions which have no natural fuel; it contributes to inflation; is conducive to unemployment; is harmful to relations with other oil producing nations; will place U. S. industry at a further competitive disadvantage in world markets and will weaken national security.

And last but not least, says Aiken, the controls will contribute toward a growing domination of government bureaucracy over industry and people.

On the other side of the question is Jameson, who says that had the old voluntary import plan not been replaced by mandatory controls, this would have happened:

1. When you come of age, marry, have children, get a divorce, buy or sell property, move to another state, or when someone in your family dies, you may take on new rights and duties.

2. Then you may need to update your will, your insurance program, or the way you figure your taxes.

3. The law defends your rights, but sometimes only if you yourself act within certain time limits. Make sure you do. Otherwise your claim may be outlawed, or it may be too late to file an action to protect your rights.

4. A few other questions may put you in good shape to avoid legal trouble. In case something happens to you, who knows where you keep your papers — your deeds, will, insurance policies, or contracts?

5. Has everybody in your family a birth certificate? Where is your marriage certificate? Your social security card? Have you checked your life, hospital, health, home and accident insurance policies? Do they protect you the way you want? Does your life insurance plan, for example, fit in with your will?

6. Are your tax records in good shape? (This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved because slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

250 Oil, 35 Gas Completions Made

AUSTIN (UPI)—There were 250 oil well and 35 gas well completions during last week, the State Railroad Commission said Saturday.

The number of well completions brought the total for the year to 2,476 white gas well completions, 109 total 449. There were 120 dry holes during the week for a total of 1,336.

The daily allowable increased from 3,172,686 barrels daily to 3,180,888. The total number of wells increased 146 during the week.

There were 454 drilling applications bringing the total for the year to 3,918.
