Congress Avoids Rulings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House leaders have decided that the courts, rather than Congress, should be the first to rule on which branch of government should hear the case against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said this decision, adopted in a series of closed-door leadership meetings, was behind House Speaker Carl Albert's terse announcement Wednesday, denying Agnew a House hearing for the time being.

Replying to a letter from Agnew requesting the hearing, Albert said: "The vice president's letter relates to matters before the courts. In view of that fact, I, as speaker, will not take any action on the letter at this time." He refused to elaborate.

But Rodino, who took part in the leadership sessions, said the decision turned on the single legal question of whether a sitting vice president can be indicted.

If the courts uphold Agnew's claim that he is not subject to grand jury investigation or indictment, then, said Rodino, the House would probably have to proceed with its inquiry. This indicated that Agnew might eventually get his House hearing if his lawyers succeed in persuading the courts he is immune from criminal prosecution.

Since any such judicial ruling would presumably be appealed up to the Supreme Court, the process could take considerable time.

Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., third-ranking in the House GOP leadership as chairman of the Republican Conference, posed another legal question when he and Rep. William S. Cohnsey, R-Maine, introduced a bill Wednesday which would grant the House hearing which Albert denied.

Anderson said the House should investigate the single question of whether the allegations against Agnew occurred before or after he was vice president. If before, then the matter would be for the courts and not the House to pursue. If after, then the House should start impeachment proceedings, Anderson said.

Local Officials Planning Fire Prevention Activity

Fire Prevention Week will be observed in Pampa Oct. 7-13.

City fire department officials and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce will join in promoting efforts to make Pampans conscious of fire safety methods.

Schools and civic clubs will join in the observance. Fire drills are scheduled in schools and special films on fire prevention will be shown.

The public is invited to attend an open house at Central Fire Station Wednesday, Oct. 10.

Posters will be distributed calling attention to Fire Prevention Week urging that every week be so designated by residents.

U.S.S.R. Launches Manned Spacecraft

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union launched a spacecraft with two men aboard into earth orbit today, the first time it has sent men into space in more than two years. The Tass news agency said.

Tass said the spaceship,

Soyuz 12, was piloted by Lieut. Col. Vasily Lazarev and flight engineer Oleg Makarov.

"The cosmonauts feel well and the crafts on-board systems are functioning normally," Tass said.

The agency said the Soyuz was scheduled to remain in orbit two days. "The experimental flight is one of the stages in the work of further improving manned spacecraft," it said.

Tass said the spacecraft was launched at 3:18 p.m. today. The announcement came nearly two hours later.

Western space experts said it appeared that the purpose of the mission was to test a revamped Soyuz spacecraft in preparation for the scheduled 1975 U.S.-Soviet combined space mission.

The launch came just two days after the American Skylab astronauts completed a record 59-day mission in space.

The Soviet Union had not sent a man into space since Soyuz 11 came down June 30, 1971—nearly 27 months ago—with its three cosmonauts dead. Investigation later showed a faulty hatch seal depressurized the re-entry capsule.

and the President had left the decision-making to the vice president.

Reacting to the spate of rumors, some of which had their origin in the White House, friends and associates of Agnew have countered with the claim that Nixon simply wants to shift talk of impeachment from himself to the vice president.

Among the most outraged of Agnew's supporters is Victor Gold, formerly the vice president's press secretary and now a political columnist. According to his scenario, Nixon realizes that neither the Congress nor the nation would want to go through the trauma of removing both men from office and figures better him than me.

Four Meetings
Whatever the validity of the rumors, relations between the President and vice president, always more formal than cordial, are now at a low ebb.

The two have met privately four times since it was disclosed that federal investigators were looking into charges against Agnew.

The first was on Aug. 7, the day before Agnew went on national television to brand the allegations "damned lies." The second was Sept. 1, the day after Nixon flew back unexpectedly from California.

The third was Sept. 21, a day after the Washington Post bannered a story quoting Republican sources as saying it appeared certain Agnew would resign. The two met for the fourth time Wednesday.

Even when word of Agnew's impending resignation 8 vehemently denied by his aides—was splashed across the front page of hometown newspapers, the President made no effort to get in touch with Agnew and seek the truth of the matter. His spokesmen have declined repeatedly to voice any expression of confidence in Agnew on the President's behalf, pointing out that an agency of the executive branch which Nixon heads is conducting the investigation and any Presidential comment might prejudice the case.

They referred reporters to the President's latest press conference, in which he issued carefully guarded praise for Agnew's work since he became vice president.

All of this adds up to the impression that if the President does not, indeed, want Agnew to resign, he at least wants to put all the distance possible between him and the vice president until the matter is settled.

Agnew Takes Lead
Agnew himself took the lead in his own defense at midweek by asking that the House conduct an investigation of allegations against him. This announcement followed disclosure that a grand jury would consider evidence against him, a move that Agnew challenged on constitutional grounds. But House Speaker Carl Albert denied Agnew's request. On Wednesday, the White House disclosed Nixon and Agnew had discussed the resignation issue

Senate Votes Approval For New Missile Sub

Astros Flying Home

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. (UPI) — The record-breaking Skylab 2 astronauts fly home to Houston tonight in excellent health after a two-month space voyage that showed men can live safely in weightlessness for months at a time.

Dr. Paul Buchanan said the readjustment of Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma to gravity after spending 59 days without it was "just short of amazing."

The spacemen faced more medical tests and doctors asked them to undergo another half-day examination today before leaving the recovery carrier New Orleans this afternoon for the flight to Texas.

Buchanan said the three spacemen were steadier and hungrier than they were after Tuesday's splashdown and he said they were walking about the ship Wednesday "as well as I do."

"Says an Awful Lot"
In Houston, Dr. Royce Hawkins, the pilots' chief physician, said the fact that the three astronauts were able to complete almost all the rigorous exercise testing planned "says an awful lot for their condition."

He said their hearts, not accustomed to pumping hard after having an easy time with no gravity to pump against, were in good shape.

Buchanan said the men had each lost 4 to 5 per cent of their body weight, but this was expected. The only problem occurred when Bean aggravated an old back sprain by sleeping on a soft mattress aboard the New Orleans Tuesday night.

The astronauts' wives planned to greet them when they arrive at Ellington Air Force Base near Houston tonight, but the spacemen must stay in semi-isolation until Tuesday to guard against infections from common earth germs.

They'll Go Home
Bean, Garriott and Lousma will be able to go home with their wives, but their children will stay with neighbors to further protect the astronauts until they build up their immunity after living for so long in the near-sterile atmosphere of Skylab.

The first load of 18 miles of magnetic data tape and thousands of photographs was delivered Wednesday night to the Johnson Space Center.

Under Tight Security
Grand Jury Gets Evidence On VP

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Evidence involving allegations of bribery, extortion and conspiracy against Spiro T. Agnew was presented to a federal grand jury today despite the vice president's contention that he is immune from indictment.

Extremely tight security was imposed at the federal courthouse for the 22-member panel's secret deliberations. A large group of reporters was barred by a small army of U.S. marshals from getting near any areas used by jurors or witnesses.

The vice president sat in on the first hour of a meeting President Nixon held at the White House this morning with Cabinet members and Republican congressional leaders.

Agnew was described by supporters and aides as confident of vindication and expressing public determination to remain in office while resignation rumors continued to circulate.

The federal prosecutors proceeded with the Agnew presentation with the approval of Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson, who assumed the responsibility for deciding how far the Agnew investigation could go as part of a wide-ranging inquiry into political corruption in Maryland.

Agnew sought unsuccessfully to get Congress to take over the prime investigatory role, arguing that he could not be indicted their fight with arguments centering on Soviet missile progress.

Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., was principal sponsor of the proposal to delay the Trident by deleting $885 million from a $1.5 billion administration request for the submarine this fiscal year, which began July 1.

Funds for production of the Trident were sought in the $21.9 billion defense procurement authorization bill that has been before the Senate since last week.

Both foes and proponents agreed the submarine eventually would be built.

McIntyre argued that the Navy's request to expedite the Trident meant the ship would be in production before necessary research had been completed, and that this could result in expensive changes later in the completed subs.

Some senators, led by Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., want to launch the first sub in 1978 instead of 1980, arguing that the Soviet threat necessitated the rush. They cited recent Soviet tests of a missile with a 4,000-mile range like that planned for the Trident.

Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., made public a letter from Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, often referred to as the father of the nuclear submarine, saying delay might increase the Trident cost from $13 billion to $14 billion because of inflation and production disruptions.

Later today, the Senate planned to vote a third time on the issue of reducing American troops overseas.

The Senate voted tentatively 49-46 Wednesday morning in favor of a 40 per cent reduction of land-based forces, but reversed this six hours later by a 54-44 vote when four senators switched their votes.

President Nixon discussed the military weapons bill with Republican congressional leaders in the morning at the White House. He was described afterward as "very deeply concerned and upset" about the efforts to force troop reductions in Europe.

Nixon was said to have told those at the meeting that any unilateral cut would endanger U.S. efforts to negotiate a balance mutual troop reduction with the Soviet Union.

The troop cutback, first passed 49-46 and then defeated when four senators switched in a later vote, would have forced the administration to bring home within three years 200,000 of the 500,000 troops stationed in 38 countries abroad.

Tonight the Senate will vote on a milder proposal by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., to bring home 125,000 troops over the next two years.

One of the four senators who switched votes Wednesday, Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said he never wanted the proposal passed at all but had hoped to throw a scare into Europeans to induce them to contribute more to their own defense.

"I think we gave them a nudge," Aiken said. "I'm not going to put up with them much longer."

BUCHANAN CLAIMS Republicans Used 'Shrewd Strategy'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House speech writer Patrick J. Buchanan says Republicans relied on shrewd political strategy, not illegal tactics, to undercut the Democratic opposition and win President Nixon's re-election.

Buchanan denied personal wrongdoing in the 1972 campaign, but called the Watergate break-in a "grievous error" and a crime for which he said the Republican party was not to blame.

In sometimes impassioned testimony Wednesday, Buchanan defended a series of memos he wrote in 1971 proposing an attack on then Democratic front runner Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

The committee adjourned until Tuesday. No witnesses have been announced for the hearing, but sources indicated among the first to be called will be Donald Segretti, a California lawyer allegedly involved in efforts to sabotage the Florida primary campaign of Muskie.

End of Live Coverage
Buchanan's appearance apparently marked the end of live daily television coverage. The system of rotating coverage by the three networks has been scrapped, but CBS announced it would carry the hearings live when they are considered significant.

Much of the committee's questioning centered on Buchanan's philosophy of what constituted dirty campaign tricks.

Asked how far he would go to insure the President's reelection, Buchanan said "anything not immoral, unethical, illegal or unprecedented in previous Democratic campaigns."

He said there was room in American politics for pranksters and hecklers as well as secretly supporting the weakest opposition candidate for nomination, on the theory that he would be easiest to beat.

in the courts without first being impeached. Speaker Carl Albert rejected Agnew's request Wednesday, about 18 hours after it was made.

The vice president's lawyers have said they will challenge the grand jury's deliberations, but they made no move to do so before George Beall, U.S. attorney for Maryland and in charge of the over-all corruption inquiry, went before the grand jury this morning.

Fall Weather Entrenches Itself In Panhandle Area

Fall weather moved into the Pampa and Texas Panhandle area last night and today for a preview of things to come.

Temperatures dropped into the 60s and .80-inch of rainfall was registered locally during the night with continuing overcast skies and light precipitation today.

Temperatures dropped into the 50s and were not expected to get much higher than the low 60s today.

Thunderstorms generated by Hurricane Irah in the Pacific and colder weather moving down from the Rockies swept most of Texas last night and today.

Funnel clouds were reported just east of Amarillo but no damage reported. Tornado watches in several Texas areas expired without any twisters actually hitting the ground.

The Fort Worth - Dallas reading at Greater Southwest International Airport was 2.8 inches for the 24 hours ended at 7 a.m. The rain in the Fort Worth - Dallas area started during the late afternoon traffic rush hour. Hundreds of cars were drowned out.

Today's forecasts indicated the rain apparently will hang on for the next 24 to 36 hours in the state, with the heaviest amounts falling in the eastern part.

The probability of rain in the Pampa area is 50 per cent tonight dropping to 30 per cent tomorrow. The low tonight should be in the mid-40's with the high tomorrow near 60 degrees.

Winds should continue out of the north - northeast and 10-15 mph, with considerable gusting.

Next Monday a committee from the historical commission will attend the meeting of Gray County commissioners at 9 a.m. in the county court room.

County Judge Don Cain and members of the commissioners court will be invited to attend the annual state meeting of the Texas Historical Commission Oct. 26 and 27 in Fort Worth.

Museum Sets 'Open House'

An open house is scheduled from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the White Deer Land Museum, 116 S. Cuyler St. in Pampa.

It will be an opportunity for residents of the city and Panhandle area to visit one of Texas' most interesting historical spots, according to Mrs. Clotilde Thompson, chairman of the Gray County Historical Commission.

Commission members have been invited to bring along artifacts for donation for use in what is called the "Touching Museum" now in its organization stages.

These would include, Mrs. Thompson stated, such things as old irons, horse shoes, books, clothing, toys, pots and pans, etc.

Agnew's Rising Star May Be Falling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Just a few short months ago, he was considered a star of the Republican party and a likely candidate to carry its banner into the 1976 Presidential campaign.

Now, it appears that Spiro T. Agnew faces political oblivion and may not finish out the term he was elected to serve.

In the words of his Press Secretary, Marsh Thomson, who conceded that the Vice President looked worn and drawn, "he emerged from a meeting with President Nixon last week. The arrows are coming hot and heavy."

In a series of leaks and counter leaks last week, it was variously reported that Agnew, under investigation for allegedly accepting kickbacks from contractors while governor of Maryland,

IN PIANO EVENT

Russians Gain Finalist Places

FORT WORTH (UPI)— The handsome young Russian stepped back from the piano, beamed at the audience as he brushed a shock of curly black hair from his forehead, and walked briskly off the stage, where he warmly kissed several women who clustered around him.

Vladimir Viardo, a bachelor, is one of two 23-year-olds from Moscow to be named finalists in the Van Cliburn International Piano Competition.

The other Russian, Evgenii Korolev, appeared at Wednesday's semifinal ceremony wearing a colorful dress shirt and tie, and blue jeans he had bought in France with a leather patch on them spelling "Oregon."

Neither of the Russians attended a party for the 50 contestants Wednesday night. Instead, they went home with their host families in Fort Worth and practiced.

Finalist Krassimir Gatz, 28, of Sofia, Bulgaria, also studied at the Tchaikovsky Conservatory in Moscow. His roommate there was Radu Lupu of Rumania, winner of the 1966 Van Cliburn contest.

When Alberto Reyes of Monte Video, Uruguay, learned he was a finalist, he rushed from the ceremony to call his wife, Betty, in Bloomington, Ind. Reyes, 25, teaches at the University of Indiana, where his wife is a graduate student in business.

Reyes' second reaction to the announcement was to light up his dark pipe, which he smokes constantly.

Christian Zacharias of Karlsruhe, Germany, another finalist, said he particularly enjoyed the chamber music portion of the semifinal competition.

However, the contest exhausted Zacharias, who stretched flat on his back in the stage wings for several minutes. His dark suit had to be brushed off before he could continue with the solo part of his recital.

Michael Houston, 20, of New Zealand is the youngest of the finalists. He watched Mickey Mouse cartoons while eating lunch Wednesday to keep his mind off the contest, which offers prize money for finalists ranging from $750 to $10,000.

Energy Crisis Produces Sugar, Highway Trouble

United Press International The energy shortage gripping America is causing new problems: delays in highway construction and shortages of sugar.

In attempts to help the problem, a House committee Wednesday approved mandatory fuel allocations; the United Foundation in Detroit decided against burning its traditional 44-foot torch during this year's fund-raising drive; a regional commission in New England allocated $385,000 for a study of the area's energy problems; and a trio of Southern governors threatened to withhold fuel from any state that, for environmental reasons, holds back on refinery and exploratory operations.

Oil Supply Dwindling J. Phillip Richley, director of the Ohio Transportation Department, said Wednesday a dwindling national supply of crude oil for making asphalt will result in the delay of completion of at least 34 state highway paving and construction projects.

William R. Ralls, of the Michigan Public Service Commission, warned sugar is suffering from the energy crisis. "Michigan housewives depend on state farmers for 90 per cent of their sugar and the industry is now critically short of fuel to process a sugar beet crop," he said.

The House Commerce Committee Wednesday approved legislation directing President

Nixon to impose mandatory fuel allocations within 25 days. The Senate approved a similar bill last May.

Sponsored by Rep. Torbert H. McDonald, D-Mass., the bill would guarantee that independent marketers of gasoline and fuel oil, including branded, non-branded, and franchised dealers, could receive supplies.

Better Use Cited The United Foundation in Detroit announced it will not burn its 44-foot torch during this year's because of the energy shortage. "We thought the gas could be put to a better use," a UF official said.

The governors of Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma threatened Tuesday to refuse fuel to states that hold back on exploration and refinery operations for environmental reasons.

"They may feel that it has some value as a threat," Nesbitt said. "To go ahead and accomplish it is something I don't think the governors can do."

Workers March In Strike

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Thousands of workers today ended a paralyzing one-day nationwide strike called to protest the assassination of Jose Rucci, Argentina's top labor leader.

During the Wednesday walk-out, workers marched in a five-mile-long funeral procession through the streets of Buenos Aires to one of the city's cemeteries.

Some of the marchers carried Argentine flags draped in black mourning stripes and others chanted a pledge to avenge Rucci's death.

A member of the leftist Peronist Youth, Enrique Grimberg, 34, was shot to death at his home in Buenos Aires Wednesday by four unidentified men. It was not clear whether there was any connection with Rucci's death the preceding day.

Leftist Peronists, who considered Rucci too conservative, had jeered death threats at him in the past, but Grimberg was not one of their prominent leaders.

Police said the People's Revolutionary Army (ERP), a Marxist guerrilla group, was responsible for Rucci's murder on Tuesday.

President-elect Juan D. Peron, 77, who takes office Oct. 12, attended the funeral with his 46-year-old wife Isabel, who is vice president-elect. Interim President Raul A. Lastiri and other government officials also were present.

Rucci, head of the General Workers Confederation (CGT) since 1970, was a faithful follower of Peron throughout the general's 18 years in exile and helped maintain the CGT as one of the pillars of the Peronist movement.

DESPITE FIGHTING Cambodians Note Honor For Dead

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Tens of thousands of Phnom Penh residents honored Cambodia's war dead today despite fighting only eight miles away and guerrilla threats of an attack against the capital itself.

Thronging of people in the capital, many refugees uprooted by years of war, crowded into pagodas to observe the annual memorial day in honor of the dead.

Buddhist monks, their heads shaved and wearing saffron robes, ended a 15-day fast and were surrounded in the pagodas by mounds of prepared food brought by worshippers.

Police and army troops set up guard posts at roads leading into the capital and mingled with the crowds to head off terrorist violence in the refugee-swollen city.

Attack Threatened The guerrillas, in leaflets found in Phnom Penh, threatened an imminent attack against the Cambodian capital.

In an attempt to halt rebel infiltration, government forces battled guerrillas eight miles south of Phnom Penh and artillery units pounded insurgent strongholds.

Surviving Sextuplets' Conditions Improving DENVER (UPI) — The conditions of the five surviving Stanek sextuplets improved today.

"The babies are doing splendidly," University of Colorado Medical Center spokesman Barbara Springer said. "They are all out of the respirators now, and the doctors are optimistic."

Three boys and the only surviving girl were in good condition. Nathan, the last to be removed from a respirator and still breathing through a tube inserted in his throat, was listed in satisfactory condition.

Nathan and three of the other babies suffered from hyaline membrane disease, a lung ailment which took the life of Julia two days after she was born.

The children were delivered seven weeks prematurely on Sept. 16. The mother, Edna Stanek, returned to her suburban Lakewood, Colo., home Tuesday. The babies won't be released for four more weeks.

UN Nations Take Steps To Recognize Sihanouk

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — At least 17 nations have taken the first step to get U.N. recognition for Prince Norodom Sihanouk's exile government as the legal regime of Cambodia, informed diplomatic sources said Wednesday.

Sihanouk asked Secretary General Kurt Waldheim for recognition in a note sent from the non-aligned summit conference in Algiers Sept. 10, but the letter was never released by U.N. officials.

The diplomatic sources said 17 nations, including China and Albania, have since presented a formal request that the note be published as an official document by the General Assembly.

They said the group intends to press for debate in the General Assembly after gathering further co-sponsors.

The sources said Sihanouk's supporters plan to push for a full political debate on Cambodia even if they fail to get an assembly majority.

Sihanouk was ousted as Cambodian head of state on March 18, 1970, by a group of military officers, including current President Lon Nol. Sihanouk later set up an exile government in Peking and is considered the nominal head of the Khmer Rouge insurgent forces fighting Lon Nol.

In his letter to Waldheim, he emphasized the unanimous decision at the Algiers conference in favor of U.N. recognition for his exile regime as the sole legal government of Cambodia.

"I request you to include in the agenda of the coming General Assembly... the question of restoration to the Royal Government of National Union of Cambodia, which I head, her legitimate rights in the U.N. and its attached organizations," he said.

BOTH MOBILIZE FORCES

Syria, Israel Preparing For Possible Conflicts

By United Press International Today, only hours after Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan accused Syria of building a massive war arsenal on its frontier with Israel, a Beirut magazine said Syria is on alert and preparing for an imminent Israeli attack.

The magazine said Syria made the remark in an introduction to an interview its correspondent conducted in Damascus with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam.

"Damascus is on alert now," the correspondent said. "It is preparing to confront an expected Israeli attack. Enemy forces are mobilized in the occupied territory and advancing toward the cease-fire lines, particularly in the area facing Horan, according to information in the Syrian capital."

The military command in Tel Aviv refused comment on the report.

Dayan claimed Wednesday night that across the Syrian border, there are "hundreds of tanks and hundreds of artillery barrels in operative range as well as an aircraft carrier layout approaching in density that of the Egyptians along the Suez Canal."

Survivors include one brother, Vince B. Williams, Scottsbluff, Nev.; one sister, Mrs. Neal Sparks, Irving; and one sister-in-law, Mrs. Gobel Williams, Pampa.

MRS. MABEL L. WEST Friday 2 p.m. funeral services in Charmichael - Whitley Colonial Chapel are scheduled for Mrs. Mabel West, 68, 1524 Hamilton, who died at 11 a.m. Wednesday in Worley Hospital.

Jay Farber, minister of the McLean Church of Christ, assisted by Rev. Lewis Holland, pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Booker, will officiate. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery.

Mrs. West was born Jan. 26, 1905 in Illinois, lived in LeFors from 1929 to 1935 and then moved to Kellerville, where she lived until 1956. She lived in Lubbock from 1960 until she came to Pampa in February of this year.

She was married to E. Clifford West, June 7, 1924 at Cushing, Okla., and they operated the Dairy Mart in Lubbock. The couple later were associated with Bluebonnet Cleaners there.

Survivors include one son, Ernest, Midland; three daughters, Mrs. Bernard McClellan, McLean; Mrs. Bill Holcombe, Midland; and Mrs. Bonnie Holland, Pampa; one sister, Mrs. Norman Harvey.

Boyle Slips Into Coma WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two days after swallowing a "lethal level" of barbiturates, former mine workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle, remained in a deep coma Wednesday night, his chances of survival poor.

Charged with three murders stemming from a disputed union election in 1969, Boyle apparently attempted to commit suicide late Monday night, just 10 hours before a scheduled court appearance on a government move to have him taken to Pittsburgh to face state murder charges.

A spokesman at George Washington University Hospital said Boyle, 68, remained in a deep coma and was being kept alive by a mechanical respirator. His chances of recovery, the spokesman said, were "slight poor."

He was charged earlier this month by the federal and Pennsylvania governments with ordering the murder of union rival Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, his wife and daughter, who were found shot to death in the home New Year's Eve, 1969.

The government later overturned the election on grounds of voting irregularities and Arnold Miller, an ally of Yablonski, defeated Boyle in the subsequent government-supervised election.

The hospital spokesman said a "lethal level" of barbiturates remained in Boyle's system. The only change in his condition Wednesday was that he showed "minimum eye response to loud verbal commands."

On a visit to the occupied Golan Heights, Dayan urged residents to bolster their defenses against any possible attack from Syria. Israel fought its most recent land battle with the Syrians seven months ago.

The London Times newspaper said U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has proposed a Middle East plan calling for an Israeli troop withdrawal from parts of the Golan Heights seized from Syria during the 1967 Mideast war.

The Times said Kissinger's proposal also called for a partial Israeli withdrawal from the Suez Canal.

In New York, however, Kissinger told a U.N. news conference Wednesday the United States will "avoid at this time any very dramatic move" for a Middle East settlement.

The Beirut newspapers An Nahar said today Syrian authorities have imposed "strict restrictions" on the activities and movements of Soviet military experts and advisers in the country.

Funeral services were set for 10 a.m. Friday in Carmichael - Whitley Colonial Chapel for Odus Lee Williams, 72, 414 E. Kingsmill, who died at 7:10 p.m. Wednesday at Pampa Nursing Home. Burial will be in Chillicothe Cemetery at 3 p.m.

He was born Feb. 16, 1901 in Thompsonville, Ky., and moved to Pampa in 1935 from Electra.

Survivors include one brother, Vince B. Williams, Scottsbluff, Nev.; one sister, Mrs. Neal Sparks, Irving; and one sister-in-law, Mrs. Gobel Williams, Pampa.

MRS. MABEL L. WEST Friday 2 p.m. funeral services in Charmichael - Whitley Colonial Chapel are scheduled for Mrs. Mabel West, 68, 1524 Hamilton, who died at 11 a.m. Wednesday in Worley Hospital.

Jay Farber, minister of the McLean Church of Christ, assisted by Rev. Lewis Holland, pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Booker, will officiate. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery.

Mrs. West was born Jan. 26, 1905 in Illinois, lived in LeFors from 1929 to 1935 and then moved to Kellerville, where she lived until 1956. She lived in Lubbock from 1960 until she came to Pampa in February of this year.

She was married to E. Clifford West, June 7, 1924 at Cushing, Okla., and they operated the Dairy Mart in Lubbock. The couple later were associated with Bluebonnet Cleaners there.

Survivors include one son, Ernest, Midland; three daughters, Mrs. Bernard McClellan, McLean; Mrs. Bill Holcombe, Midland; and Mrs. Bonnie Holland, Pampa; one sister, Mrs. Norman Harvey.

Boyle Slips Into Coma WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two days after swallowing a "lethal level" of barbiturates, former mine workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle, remained in a deep coma Wednesday night, his chances of survival poor.

Charged with three murders stemming from a disputed union election in 1969, Boyle apparently attempted to commit suicide late Monday night, just 10 hours before a scheduled court appearance on a government move to have him taken to Pittsburgh to face state murder charges.

A spokesman at George Washington University Hospital said Boyle, 68, remained in a deep coma and was being kept alive by a mechanical respirator. His chances of recovery, the spokesman said, were "slight poor."

He was charged earlier this month by the federal and Pennsylvania governments with ordering the murder of union rival Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, his wife and daughter, who were found shot to death in the home New Year's Eve, 1969.

The government later overturned the election on grounds of voting irregularities and Arnold Miller, an ally of Yablonski, defeated Boyle in the subsequent government-supervised election.

The hospital spokesman said a "lethal level" of barbiturates remained in Boyle's system. The only change in his condition Wednesday was that he showed "minimum eye response to loud verbal commands."

US, Soviet Good Will Endangered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The good will that now exists between the United States and the Soviet Union could be endangered if America tries to pressure Russia into allowing its Jewish citizens to emigrate freely, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger suggested Wednesday.

But Kissinger, who was in Washington today after three days of intense consultations at the United Nations, told reporters before he left New York he does not believe that Russia's warning to the West not to meddle in its emigration policies represents any cooling of the spirit of U.S.-Soviet cooperation.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko told the General Assembly Tuesday that "we shall allow nobody to interfere with our internal affairs."

Kissinger, however, told a news conference at the U.S. Mission to the United Nations, "We do not believe there has been a formal change in the policy of detente but we recognize that there is a point beyond which we cannot proceed."

"There is a great tendency to assume that everything that has been achieved is now automatically perfect and can be drawn upon as a fixed capital, inexhaustively," Kissinger said.

About an hour later, the House Ways and Means Committee voted to withhold major trade concessions from Communist countries until they allow freer emigration.

Wednesday night Kissinger escorted a friend, Nancy Maginnes, to a dinner given for the big five powers by U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

Business Today

By LEE LEONARD
COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Whether he's on the golf course, squirrel hunting in the woods or driving across the country, happiness to John R. Wray Jr. is a cold drink in his hand—right now.

Wray has developed the capability to get instant cold drinks into hands all across the world, and it may make him a wealthy man.

The 37-year-old former oil and gas explorer has invented a soft drink can with a self-contained chilling system.

It enables the consumer, miles or hours from any refrigeration, to pull the tab top on a warm can of soda, wait 90 seconds for the chill capsule to work and then take a swig of a frosty beverage.

Seeks Summer Market
Chill Can Industries, with Wray a major stockholder, is to begin production early next year at its Burns Flat, Okla., plant, of more than 500,000 cans a day containing the device.

"We hope to be in full swing to catch the summer market next year," said Wray, who believes horizons are virtually unlimited for his brainchild which took six years to perfect.

Aside from the obvious use in canned beverages such as soft drinks, beer and juices, Wray said he hopes to apply the device to canned puddings and other desserts, premixed cocktails and items in uncooled vending machines in hotels and motels.

"It will work on practically anything that's canned," he said, "and the best part is it fits all existing dimensions for cooling, filling, loading and handling equipment."

How It Works
Here's the way it works: When you pull the tab on the can, the special capsule under the lid is activated, releasing the refrigerant. Nothing touches the drink, but the chemical process, like a small refrigerator, lowers the temperature of the drink 40 degrees.

The device takes up the space of four ounces of beverage, meaning traditional 12-oz. cans will contain only eight ounces of liquid. They will weigh only a fraction of an ounce more, Wray said.

The big rub will be the cost. Wray indicated soft drinks will probably sell for 30 to 35 cents per can, depending on the retail markup.

"We are going to try to be competitive with refrigeration," Wray said. "Convenience is probably the biggest thing we're selling."

WORRY CLINIC

Tommy was at the educational crossroads! His tactful mother stopped him from becoming a school dropout. And she did it within 6 weeks by the "Home Tutoring" games mentioned below. So try to understand the problems of kiddies. Help them tactfully!

CASE Y-528: Tommy S., aged 9, faces a common tragedy.

"Dr. Crane," his worried mother began, "Tommy has attended 3 public schools already."

"For my husband is a salesman and has been transferred several times since our marriage."

"Maybe that is what has upset Tommy's school marks. His teacher says she thinks he should be dropped back a grade."

"But that would put him in the same class with his younger sister and Tommy would then be humiliated greatly."

"Actually, Tommy is a very shy oldest child and I think that is what helps make him look bad in school."

"For even when he knows the right answer, he fails to put up his hand."

"Dr. Crane, what should we do in Tommy's case?"

PARENTAL PROBLEMS

With deft home tutoring, as by the booklet offered below, you can bring a normally intelligent child up to his class average in 6 weeks!

So I wouldn't O.K. demoting Tommy to the classroom occupied by his younger sister.

Instead, I'd recommend that Mamma prepare a set of "flash cards," each of which contains a printed word drawn from Tommy's current reading book.

Then have a jolly game of 15 minutes each evening.

Mamma can first hold up 2 cards and explain what the words are, in case Tommy doesn't know them.

Then mix the cards, after which hold them up, one at a time, for Tommy to identify.

Meanwhile, Mamma can slowly count to 10.

If Tommy correctly names the word, he gets the card; otherwise, Mamma puts it in her pile.

Within the first night's 15-minute drill, a smart youngster like Tommy can probably Wray said he got the idea when he ran a firm drilling for oil and gas near Kittanning, Pa., in 1967.

"Being out in the oil fields, I got so thirsty sometimes I thought I was going to die," he said. "I actually would lie down in a creek to get a drink. I would have paid anything for a cold drink."

He set to work on his idea, went through about 1,000 drawings and 200 or 300 prototypes. "The first one looked like a monstrosity," he recalled.

Researchers at Battelle Memorial Institute here spent three or four months getting a working model, and the device is still being perfected, Wray said.

As for safety, he said the containers have the stamp of approval of the Food and Drug Administration and will be labeled with warnings against exposure to heat and inhalation of the refrigerant.

'DON'T CALL ME MAMA'

Cass Elliott Getting Set To Remove 'Old Image'

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Don't Call Me Mama Anymore" is the title of Cass Elliott's television special and her own sentiments about her Mama Cass soubriquet.

"There's more than just a note of sincerity in the title," said non-Mama Cass. "The Mamas and The Papas was the name of our group when we started out eight years ago."

"Well, I left the group five years ago and I'd like to break away from the old identification."

"I want people to know I can do dramatic things. It's really not dignified to be going into Chasen's for dinner with a date and have a 1937 Chevy go by with a kid hanging out the window yelling 'Hi, Mama!'"

Mama, er, Miss Elliott, was sitting in the living room of her Hollywood Hills home gnawing on a sandwich, going over the script for the CBS musical special which will be aired Friday.

Imposing Silhouette
"After all," she said, "I'm 32 years old now and I've outgrown the old image."

She may also have outgrown the old wardrobe. One of Cass' great assets is her imposing silhouette. Her size doubtless endears her to millions of music fans who have abandoned calorie counting.

As much as Cass would like to forget the Mama attached to her name, she is and will forever be mama to one Owen Vanessa, her 6-year-old daughter.

To her own mother, the singer is Cassandra.

"That's some name," Cass said wearily. "Cassandra is a Greek legendary character who had the power of prophecy but no one believed her. But I think I can see the day when I won't be called Mama."

"Maybe this special will help. My mother is going to be on the show and so will Michelle Phillips, who was the other Mama in the singing group. My other guests are Carol Burnett, Dick Van Dyke and Joel Grey.

Will Make Concessions
"I tried a television special five years ago and it didn't turn out nearly as well as I hoped. This time I have artistic control to do an hour of honest entertainment which I hope will be enjoyable and moving."

"Of course I'll have to make concessions, but I want to break the old pattern of song, sketch and commercial. We'll have all three on the show, but in a different format."

"I've spent six months preparing for this special. It's actually a pilot. If all goes well there's a good chance it will become a weekly musical-variety series."

Cass was reminded that Julie Andrews couldn't bring in the ratings with her top-flight musical activities last year.

Arab Terrorists 'Lured' To Airport By Officials

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—Munich Police Chief Dr. Manfred Schreiber said the Arab terrorists who killed nine Israeli athletes taken hostage during the 1972 Olympics were lured to the airport so sharp-shooting snipers could kill them.

Schreiber said it was the only chance police had to free the hostages.

The Arabs, armed with sub-machine guns and 10 hand grenades each, demanded 200 Arab prisoners being held in Israel be returned to Cairo before they would agree to release the hostages, Schreiber said.

He said the Israeli government refused the demands and the German government had "decided that under no circumstances could the terrorists be allowed to escape with the hostages."

"For the responsible executives there wasn't room to move within the confines of these decisions," Schreiber told 5,500 members of the International Association of Police Chiefs. "At that moment we could only hope the terrorists would make a mistake we could capitalize on, or that some other stroke of luck would come our way."

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Sloane Simpson is a beautiful example of how a woman, if she wishes and works at it, can merge one career into another, and another.

The Dallas-born dark-haired beauty in the late 1940s and early '50s was one of New York's busiest fashion models, also trying her hand at acting.

Then she married William O'Dwyer, New York's mayor, and modeling assignments merged into her role as hostess for about a year at Gracie Mansion, official residence for the First Family of the nation's largest city.

When O'Dwyer's term as mayor expired, President Truman appointed him the U.S. Ambassador to Mexico. Miss Simpson took on still another assignment, as hostess at the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City.

And she also discovered the resort of Acapulco.

One-woman Authority
Ultimately, she divorced O'Dwyer, now deceased, and returned in 1960 to Acapulco to make it her permanent residence.

"If you have to work," she said, "it might as well be in the most pleasant of surroundings... I love the climate, the people."

For a time, she ran a boutique in the resort which rapidly was becoming a watering place for the international Jet Set and wrote about society's activities from Acapulco for Fairchild Publications.

She also became deeply involved with Mexican cultural, civic and philanthropic events, got to know the language, the aristocratic old families, and enough about the resort to become a one-woman authority on what was going on, where and when.

From all this background emerged her current business venture, "Call Sloane," a tourist service which Braniff International established. The airlines calls Miss Simpson its Acapulco ambassador.

Many Career Women
The many-talented Miss Simpson came into New York City last week to pick up a "distinguished service award" from the Advertising Club of New York, which cited her for "contributions to furthering the cause of friendship between Mexico and the United States."

A career woman once would have been a rarity in the Mexican culture. "Not anymore," said Miss Simpson in an interview. "There are a lot of us now. I'm no longer an oddity."

Even so, she said, the revolutionary women's liberation movement has not really penetrated Mexican life. Most Mexican women still consider the home and family the paramount interest.

Miss Simpson herself hardly is a "lib" stalwart, although she's been in the competitive business world most of her adult life.

"I'm all for women getting equal pay for equal talent," she said. "But when I read about some of the shenanigans of the activists... well, so much of it sounds so common, I can't see myself in that context."

Builds a Home
The "Call Sloane" operation keeps Miss Simpson going a 12 and 14-hour work day, especially during the peak of the tourist season from pre-Christmas until Easter.

"Acapulco becomes just one big party after another," she said. "Most entertaining still is done in the home (elaborate villas in the hills) although new hotels are opening all the time."

To preserve herself for a job that often begins with a 7:30 a.m. call for information or assistance, she keeps her party schedule short.

"Hostesses are used to my quietly disappearing early in the evening," she said. "Parties rarely start before 9 p.m. and then go on and on and on..."

Now, Miss Simpson is building a home in the hills overlooking the Pacific.

"It has overtones of Spanish colonial," she said. "I call it Early Sloanian. If the design is a failure, it's my fault. If the rest is bad, it's the builder's."

identify at least 25 or more of the formerly strange words.

Then next day he will derive quick dividends from this word game at home, for he'll see those same words in that day's reading assignment.

On the back of the cards you can also print each unit of the multiplication tables, as "3 x 1 are 3" and thus speed up his skill in arithmetic.

But don't run your word sessions more than about 15 minutes. And try to get daddy to enter the game, maybe having him pull his punches, as it were, so Tommy can win more cards than Daddy.

Meanwhile, to get a new child better acquainted in the strange neighborhood, invite some of his classmates who live in the neighborhood and have a party.

Concoct some excuse for such a celebration, even if it's his birthday or other calendar holiday.

For when Tommy begins to feel he has pals with whom to trudge to school (or ride the school bus) his self-confidence will zoom.

Between this bolstering of his reading and math ability, plus his zooming social assurance, you will find Tommy soon able to compete with his classmates at least as a "C" student and probably even higher than that.

In your home tutoring, be liberal with compliments and go slow on criticism!

Compliments add extra zest to the school game!

So send for my booklet "How to Raise Your Child's School Marks," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Republic Bldg., Houston, Indiana 47033. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Open Doors In Girl Scouting

We believe in girls! Girl Scouting has been opening doors of opportunity and experience for girls in the United States for more than 60 years. The Girl Scout program is continuously being brought up to date to meet the needs of the girls, but we still believe that the old-fashioned values of honesty, responsibilities, and service are more important today than ever before.

The Girl Scout movement offers fun, adventure, and learning to girls from seven through 17, and to adult helpers of all ages. The girls need people and ideas to grow by; they need help in learning to work and play together — they need someone to share fun and adventure with them.

There are so many ways you can be a help to Scouting — besides leaders or assistant leaders there are needs for troop committee members, troop consultants, neighborhood chairmen, troop organizers, and more. Maybe you would like just to go on an outing or overnight with a troop and help them by sharing your love and knowledge of the out-of-doors, and your camping skills. Manpower is also vital to Girl Scouting, and very much appreciated. They can drive buses on camping trips, provide muscle power on campsouts and special projects, and help with camping equipment, etc.

Can YOU open a door of opportunity for a young heart? Do YOU have a hobby to share, a collection to show, a craft to teach, a story to tell? Perhaps the door you would be opening would be yours in the satisfaction of sharing and giving of yourself in a worthwhile program.

Girl Scouting is a volunteer organization and simply couldn't exist if volunteers didn't give freely of their time and talents on behalf of girls. Open a door to happiness and fulfillment.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 28
Your birthday today: Once the ruffles of the first few months are negotiated, your coming year turns out to be one of normal progress, self-education, and spiritual growth. In any event, conditions are not going to revert to what they once were, nor can they stay what they now are. You must be alert and ready to move with the times. Today's natives are often highly intuitive, gifted with extended sensory perception.

Aries (March 21-April 19): A connection you had given up some time ago turns out to have significance. Your finances and your friends continue to be better mixed. Pursue the creative idea.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): This is an excellent day for getting to know distinguished people. Legal affairs also are expedited. Career enterprises thrive while personal concerns lag.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Caution with budgets, some self-discipline about impulsive acts is indicated. Your weekend should be moderate. Be on the ball to wind up routines neatly, early.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): No matter how well you have thought things out, other people may not understand or accept your opinion. Care and consideration in explaining may make a big difference.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Business deals go extremely well in the mornings, encounter delays or errors in the afternoon. Personal differences arise naturally and it's fun to smooth them out.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Speculative actions are to be left out of your scheme of life for the day. Get busy to finish up the essentials so that you can close out your work week promptly.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Moves of the recent past now tend to pay off. Expect nothing to repeat in quite the same pattern. Everybody is going to make something different of weekend opportunities.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your time for concerted action has arrived. Be up and on your way early to pursue enterprises in keeping with the current situation. Nothing out of harmony with the main issues tends to last long.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Seek creative expression. Two sets of people seem to run contrary courses: the overly-materialistic, and those who feel they have some special link with you. Be especially alert.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your gifts for organization, putting matters into coherent patterns and simple expressions is in demand today. Nothing is in over-supply, so thrift is imperative.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Look for the best qualities in the people you meet, both the familiar and the strange.

Rebecca Poole Becomes Bride Of Gary Potter

Miss Rebecca Kay Poole became the bride of Gary Wayne Potter Saturday, Sept. 15 at 7:30 p.m. in Mary Ellen at Harvester Church of Christ.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgle Poole, 2421 Navajo, are parents of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Potter, 1017 Varnon, are parents of the bridegroom.

THE CEREMONY
Glen Walton, minister, officiated for the double-ring ceremony. Vocalist, Linda Reed, and Bush Jordan, sang, "The Wedding Song," "Twelfth of Never," "The Lord's Prayer," and the processional and recessional.

The wedding scene featured a 24-branched candelabrum holding blue tapers, entwined with lemon leaves and centered with an arrangement of white gladioli, mums and carnations with blue bows. Either side of the altar was flanked by spiral candelabra holding blue tapers and entwined with lemon leaves and basket arrangements of white mums, gladioli and carnations. Pews were marked with blue bows.

THE BRIDE
The bride, given in marriage

She was first
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — The first woman to practice dentistry in the United States was Dr. Emeline Jones, whose husband died in his late 20s after teaching her the profession.

In 1873 she opened her practice in New Haven and did a thriving business for 40 years. The National Dental Society confirmed her as the first American woman dentist at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893.

Ice skates were common in Scandinavia during the Viking era, and Norse warriors ranked prowess on the ice nearly as high as fighting.

by her father, with the "her mother and I avowal," wore a gown of white bridal satin trimmed with Chantilly lace, seed pearls and satin covered buttons down the front. The bodice was styled with an empire waistline and large satin bows at the back. The bodice featured a stand-up collar and long puffed sleeves ending with wide cuffs, covered with lace and seed pearls. The bodice and skirt was fashioned with a lace panel and pearls. The back of the gown ended in a long train. The gown was designed and made by Shirley Williams, aunt of the bride. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a headpiece of white embroidered gardenias with pearls attached to a bow. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and roses tied with white streamers atop a white Bible.

For something old and borrowed she carried a handkerchief belonging to her maternal great-grandmother; something new was a charm bracelet, a gift of the bridegroom. She wore a blue garter and placed pennies with the couples birth dates in her shoes.

Before the ceremony, the bride presented her mother with a red rose. At the close of the ceremony, she presented the bridegroom's mother a rose. The couple lit a memory candle while Miss Reed sang, "We've Only Just Begun."

ATTENDANTS
Maid of honor was Donna McMinn, Pampa, and bridesmaids were Maria Villarreal of Pampa, and Genevia Davis, cousin of the bride, Perryton. They wore identical gowns of blue dotted Swiss styled with empire waistlines with lace entwined with blue ribbons. They wore headpieces of bridal illusion attached to a velvet bow. All attendants attire were designed and made by the bride.

Tiffany Brockman was flower girl and Jerry Lynn Shipp was ringbearer. Candle lighters were Rhonda Poole, sister of the bride, and Mark Williams, cousin of the bride. Miss Poole was dressed identical to the other attendants.

Best man was Gary Hicks of Pampa. Bart Gooch and Billy Buck, cousin of the bridegroom, both of Pampa, were groomsmen. Serving as ushers were Mike Poole, brother of the bride, and Steve Snelgroose, cousin of the bride, both of Pampa. All male attendants wore black tuxedos with blue ruffled shirts.

MOTHERS
The bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother wore blue floor length gowns of knit and pink orchid corsages.

RECEPTION
For the reception, which followed the ceremony in Fellowship Hall of the church, the serving table was covered with a blue cloth overlaid with lace. The centerpiece was an arrangement of white mums and blue candelabrum. The four-tiered wedding cake was decorated with white bells and blue roses and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom on a music box.

Frankie Mitchell of Pampa poured punch, and Lana Poole, sister-in-law of the bride, Pampa, served cake. Shelia Holian, sister of the bridegroom, Pampa, registered wedding guests.

The bridegroom's table was covered with a blue gingham checked cloth and was centered with a bouquet of white mums and blue candles. Serving chocolate cake was Joan Frick and serving coffee was Dreka Weatherly.

For the wedding trip to Amarillo, the bride wore a pink, three-piece pant suit and lifted the white roses from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will live at 625 N. Faulkner, Pampa.

AFFILIATIONS
The bride is a senior at Pampa High School and will graduate at mid-term. The bridegroom is a 1971 graduate of PHS and is presently employed at Grayco Machines.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS
The bride was honored recently with a bridal shower hosted by members of the Church of Christ, Mmes. Wanda Mitchell, Maxine Shipp, Beula Cox, Marilyn Walton, Melba Hester, Peggy King, Edith Bryant, Marlene Shaw, Darlene Courtney, Thelma Darnell, Nelda Patton, Vic Houchin, Ruby Adcock, Audie Atherion, and Lynne Nichols.

The bridegroom's parents were host for the rehearsal dinner held in Fellowship Hall.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS
Wedding guests attending from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Davis and Judy Perryton; Mr. and Mrs. W.E. Corcoran, Darrrouzett; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hooker and family; Dumas; Mrs. Jim Hood, Denton; Dale Meadows, and Diana Weinheimer, Groom; and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Burgeon, Miami.

Container Gardening ...Is Booming

COLLEGE STATION — There's a kind of gardening booming in popularity. It's called container gardening.

"With this type of gardening, all kinds of plants from petunias to pine trees can be grown," said Everett Janne, landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Containers can be moved around wherever they are most effective or most needed. Shrubs, trees, vines — every kind of plant — can be moved from indoors to out, from front yard to patio, at a moment's notice."

Container plants can be in the spotlight when they are looking their best and banished when they go into a decline. A new garden can be beautified instantly with pots of geraniums, begonias or petunias.

The Texas A&M University horticulturist offers some general guidelines for container gardening.

"Containers must be strong and able to stand continual moisture. Wooden boxes, tubs, barrel halves and similar containers are available at garden supply centers. Clay pots are another good choice. Or you can use your imagination in creating your own containers. When building wooden containers, be sure to use moisture-resistant wood such as redwood or cedar."

Since plants in containers will dry out much faster than those growing in the ground, more frequent watering will be necessary — probably every day during hot weather, points out Janne. Soil in the container must be porous and yet must retain moisture. The container should have drainage holes to permit excess water to run off.

With frequent watering, nutrient supplies are washed away and need to be replenished often, emphasizes the horticulturist. Use a complete plant food, preferably a liquid or completely soluble kind. Once plants are established and growing, apply plant food about every three weeks.

"Since the big advantage of container gardening is the movability of your plants, remember these tips on transportation," advises Janne. "Plan your moving in advance to let the soil get somewhat dry to reduce the weight of the container. Then set the container on a dolly, a small wagon or a piece of canvas to make the trip easy."

Container gardening can indeed be a "moving experience," contends the horticulturist.

Be thankful
STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — If you think food costs in the United States are too high, be glad you don't live in a country where rice is the staple diet, says Walter Falcon, director of Stanford University's food research institute.

"American food price increases are dwarfed by recent movements in rice, the staple food of over a billion Asians," Falcon said on his return from a six-week trip to five Asian countries.

"During the last 24 months alone, the international price of rice has gone from less than $100 to more than $400 a ton." He blamed the price increase on continued drought.

The doctor's wife gets some answers

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-M. V. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the doctor's wife who said she may have to call her husband's office and make an appointment under an assumed name in order to see her own husband for an hour.

I do volunteer work at a hospital, and 99 per cent of the doctors' wives live like queens and cry all the way to the bank.

Did that doctor's wife who complained that her husband never had time for her or their children make an appointment to conceive those children? It takes two to tango, you know.

I've seen and heard enough to know that doctors get put down so much at home it's no wonder they eat up all the attention they get around the hospital.

Most doctors' wives have college degrees, and many were secretaries and nurses, but once their husbands get up in the chips, all these social butterflies do is play golf!

KNOWS THE SCORE

DEAR KNOWS: Hold it! Generalizations are dangerous and unfair. In most communities you will find the doctor's wife to be a hard-working volunteer for any number of worthwhile charitable organizations.

DEAR ABBY: The doctor's wife, complaining of her absentee husband hit home with me.

For 22 years I was married to a professional social worker who had a private counseling practice on the side. He specialized in children's problems.

While our own five children were young, he constantly brushed their problems aside while helping other children. There were times when my husband was supposed to be in his office, but was "unreachable."

All the while, people kept telling me what a "wonderful, sympathetic, understanding" man my husband was.

Rats! When the children were old enough, I divorced him. I have since married a man who is everything my husband was not, but got credit for being.

The doctor's wife might consider that sometimes it's a good idea to change horses in midstream.

HAPPY CHANGER

DEAR HAPPY: I'm happy if you're happy. I've heard from quite a few horse-changers who would be glad to get their old horses back.

DEAR ABBY: Some questions for the doctor's wife who complained that her husband's work keeps him from his family:

• If you wanted a husband with the work schedule of an office clerk or a factory worker, why didn't you marry one?

• If you are ill, why don't you see another doctor? Physicians shouldn't treat their own families anyway.

• Does your extravagance make it necessary for your husband to work harder in order to keep ahead of your spending?

• Is your home an inviting place, and are you an inviting person for your husband to hurry home to?

PROFESSIONAL

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 09706, L. A., Calif. 90009. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

We are not going to name the knight of the round table who sat South. We don't want to be challenged to mortal combat. Suffice to say that the wily Mordred, sitting West, really fixed him.

Mordred opened the jack of hearts. South saw that he had to win the trick and go after clubs. You readers, looking right at all the cards, can see that since West holds both club honors, South is sure to make his contract, but watch the wily Mordred in operation.

South led the ace of clubs and Mordred dropped the queen. He continued and Mordred played the nine. South was fooled and decided that Mordred had started with doubleton queen-nine. So South rose with dummy's king and succeeded in working a diamond finesse.

Then South cashed the ace, king and queen of spades while Mordred dropped the eight, 10 and jack.

It became evident to South that Mordred had started with 3-5-3-2 and not 4-5-1-3 distribution.

South decided Mordred had been dealt three spades, five hearts, three diamonds and two clubs so that a high heart lead would end-play him.

It did, all right. Mordred fanned his hand for the rest of the tricks.

Super private eye on Watergate

By Murray Olderman

SAN FRANCISCO — (NEA) Hal Lipset looks like an accountant who just took off his eyeshade. He was the first man hired by Samuel Dash, the then-new majority counsel for the Senate Watergate Committee. He is moon-faced, wears owl-thick glasses, is a little past 50, with a slight paunch.

Harold Lipset is really a superduper private eye in the city, San Francisco, which spawned the fictional Sam Spade.

Hal went to Washington last March and interviewed applicants to work on the investigating committee. He also was the first to question James McCord, one of the Watergate five.

"I was the troubleshooter," he recalls. "We had to serve subpoenas and I got on a plane and went out to serve Herbert Kalmbach (the President's lawyer and a Watergate witness)."

But by mid-April, when the McCord furore broke publicly, the media was interested in the people hired by Sen. Sam Ervin's committee.

"He knew my background," says Hal. "When you're an investigator, you're not like Billy Graham. I had been arrested a number of times. I do have a misdemeanor on my record, for listening from one New York hotel room to another in a domestic case. It would not have been a crime then in California. We heard through the grapevine the media was going to publish it. The fact Watergate had to do with bugging raised some question in the senator's mind about this being a red herring. I tendered my resignation on April 16 rather than embarrass the committee."

Hal Lipset, from his old Victorian home on Pacific Avenue, with velvet brocade walls and walnut paneling and a Japanese garden out back, has stayed in touch with Sam Dash and the workings of the Watergate committee.

Hal first met Dash when the latter was researching a book called "The Eavesdroppers" — all about bugging and tape recording, very relevant subjects today. This happens to be an area of Hal's expertise, going back to 1947, when he started as a private eye.

"I was trying to get work from a legal firm," recalls Hal, "which handled quite a bit of work from private investigators. 'Have you had any recording experience?' the lawyer asked me."

"I said, 'Certainly.' 'I'm going to interview certain people tonight,' he said. 'Be here at seven.'"

"I left his office and went to the nearest phone book and looked in the yellow pages for recording devices. Tape wasn't in yet. I found a place and bought my first machine, called a Peirce Wire Recorder, and took a half hour lesson. Then I went back to his office without ever having made a recording in my life. At seven, the lawyer called and said he couldn't make it and for me to interview the witnesses. It was a murder case."

"He was very satisfied with the results."

Over the years, during which he mastered the most minute, sophisticated listening devices, Hal has solidified his notions about surreptitious recording.

"A tape recording," he says, "is used only to impeach somebody's testimony. Therefore, somebody has chosen to lie. The immorality of making the recording is far outweighed by the immorality of the other person involved. Kalmbach said it was a kick in the stomach to find out he

Texas Drivers Offered Better Insurance Savings

AUSTIN (UPI)—Texas drivers looking for bargains in auto insurance because of rate reductions approved recently by the State Insurance Board may find some companies are offering the savings with one hand, and taking them away with the other.

But all the reductions will offer some advantages to policy buyers, even if it isn't a pocketful of change. Insurance Board officials say.

The reductions approved by the board range from 10 to 20 per cent below the standard rates — about the same level many of the companies have been paying in dividends to their customers.

Allstate Giving Refunds For example, Allstate Insurance Company, the second largest auto insurer in Texas, has been giving its customers a 10 per cent dividend on their premiums. Allstate charged the same rates as other companies as required by law, but refunded 10 per cent of the premium at the end of the premium period.

Now the company has won permission to cut its initial rates by 10 per cent, meaning that the buyer will get the reduction at the beginning of the policy period rather than at the end of it.

At least five of the 13 companies which have announced rate reductions were already giving dividends as large or larger than the announced cuts.

had been recorded. I really don't agree with that."

Did he find revelations of the President's secret tape recordings distasteful?

"No, sir. I'm not afraid of preserving words on tape. The President should record. I don't see how he can remember things for historical preservation. I can't see why he's got to tell anybody. Are we worried about what somebody's going to say to the President? Mr. Kalmbach, Mr. Dean, Haldeman or Ehrlichman?"

But Lipset also believes the presidential tapes should be produced as evidence. Ironically, in his own business, he has virtually forsaken electronic devices.

"In 1967," he points out, "California passed a very strict law which differs from the federal law and minimized the use of recordings. It's a felony to record what a teacher says in class. I don't use electronics except in criminal cases where it's permissible and I use it to confirm or verify what a witness has said."

From his sprawling 23-room house on Pacific Heights, he directs a permanent staff of 10 employees in cases which vary from jewel theft to marital infidelity. His life as a private eye isn't dull.

"The glamor for me," he says, "is that when I get up in the morning, I never know what the day has in store. I'm dealing with people."

Kennedy Urges Close Look At Stamp Request

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has asked the Cost of Living Council to take a close look at postal rate increases requested by Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen.

Kennedy wrote the council's director, John T. Dunlop, Tuesday, saying "the proposed increases in postal rates are exorbitant and inflationary on their face."

The Post Office filed formal applications to raise the price of a first-class stamp Jan. 5 from 8 cents to a dime, airmail from 11 cents to 13, and other classes of mail by from 6 to 40 per cent.

Klassen told a news conference that the Post Office needed the money not only to cope with "severe inflationary pressure" but to make good on past promises of improved service.

He said most of the money would go to covering an estimated $1.9 billion 1974 deficit, research and purchase of machines and real estate. The aim, he said, is to guarantee overnight airmail delivery between the 500 largest U.S. cities.

Klassen said the reason for picking Jan. 5 as the effective date was not to give the public a Christmas season reprieve but because it would take that long to push the increase through the bureaucracy.

The request for higher rates was filed with the independent Postal Rate Commission, a five-man advisory body appointed by the President.

Speaking Of Telly, Savalas Usually Is

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — There are some actors you talk to and all you get is wall-to-wall bland. And then there is Telly Savalas.

Over the years, Telly has proved to be what we in the columnist trade call "good copy." He opens his mouth and out pour words with some meat to them. Maybe it's because he's bright. Maybe it's just because he's Greek. Who knows? Or cares?

Like now. He's up to his Greek hips in his new series. I'm glad that CBS has finally reached a corporate decision on how to spell it. They've settled on Kojak, after experimenting with Cojak, Kojack and Cojaques.

Anyhow, Savalas breezed in and the first thing he said, after the usual socially graceful introductory phrases, concerned Sigmund Freud. It wasn't very pro-Freud, either.

"He was a villain," Savalas said, "equal to or surpassing Adolf Hitler in the breadth of his villainy. Don't forget, he ruined a few generations of kids with his ideas."

He knows what he's talking about in this area. He was a psychology major at Columbia University . . . before he went into the State Department . . . before he became a newsman . . . before he became an actor. Besides, one of Savalas' uncles, he says, is a leading psychiatrist.

"What we need," he says, "is more LOVE!"

Apparently, in his mind,

TELLY SAVALAS

love is better than Freudian analysis any day. Or night.

All this was preparatory to talking about a screenplay he's written. He says it will be turned into a movie on the first break he gets from Kojak. The script is based somewhat on his psychic experiences (he's a firm believer) and somewhat on his psychological background.

In it, the Devil takes the form of a beautiful young girl. (So what else is new?) He says four directors are fighting over the property. He also says his uncle, the psychiatrist, has flipped over the script.

He thinks Kojak has a chance to make it because he's going to insist on it being honest.

"If some hood has a gun," Telly says, "Kojak will hide somewhere. If Kojak sees a prostitute on the street, he'll kick her in the rear and tell her to get lost. He'll behave like a real cop behaves, not like some TV Boy Scout-cops."

They've been after Savalas for years to do a series. He never wanted to but CBS sneaked up on him. When he did last season's very good TV movie, "The Marcus-Nelson Murders," there was a contingency thing in the contract, which meant that he'd have to do it if it became a series. He didn't want it to work. He says he hoped it wouldn't sell.

"Being in a series is too secure," he says. "My father made a million in the tobacco business, then lost it and piled his five kids in a truck and peddled cakes. He was happy. So were we. I don't want my kids to be too secure."

Portability Programs Envisioned Under New Act

By GEORGE J. MARDER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The year is 1995. John Doe is ready to retire. Back in the 1970s he worked for a firm for a few years and earned a vested right in a private pension when he reached 65.

He can't remember the full name of the company. He doesn't even know where it is now located. Perhaps it may have gone out of business.

The Senate took a cautious step forward last week to see to it that John Doe collects the retirement money due him. It was one of the least understood provisions of a pension reform bill passed by the Senate and expected to be approved by the House.

The provision has to do with portability—carrying a worker's earned pension rights from one job to another.

Portability Opposed
Many workers have lost pension rights because of lack of portability. They either changed or lost jobs before they had earned an irrevocable right in a pension. For example: a man could have worked for several different firms for 30 years without staying long enough on one job to earn a pension. Even if he stayed with one long enough, the years he worked for the others wouldn't count.

The concept of portability has been opposed strenuously by business spokesmen in congressional consideration of private pension reform. They do not want any single pension fund linked to another through portability. Complete portability would vastly increase the cost of pension plans.

Two Senate committees which investigated the private pension plan system felt that the problem was serious enough to warrant reform.

The bill approved by the Senate would give workers in private pension plans progressive vestment—or irrevocable—rights to earned pensions.

After five years, the worker would gain a 25 per cent vested right; after 10 years, 50 per cent; and after 15 years, 100 per cent. That doesn't mean that after 5, 10 or 15 years the worker would collect that money. But he would have a vested right in collecting it at retirement age.

The right couldn't be taken away or lost.

Voluntary Form Okayed
While senators were willing to make vesting compulsory, they were not willing to go that far on portability. Compulsory portability raised complications such as how to mesh one type of pension benefit with another. It also faced the kind of opposition which could have defeated the entire reform bill.

So the Senate approved a form of voluntary portability, with the government acting as central bookkeeper. The government would set up a Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp., with prime responsibility for insuring private pension funds. It would charge employers $1 a year for a covered worker. The insurance fund would pay the worker his full retirement pension even if the private fund went bankrupt or couldn't live up to its commitments for one reason or another.

Senators who worked on this problem are convinced that portability will become more important and more acceptable as pension vesting rights increase.

Social Security Q & A

(Have you a question about social security? Address it to Howard L. Weatherly, Branch Manager, Social Security Administration, 1541 North Hobart, Pampa, Texas 79065. You will receive an answer in this column or by mail.)
By HOWARD L. WEATHERLY

Q. Our daughter, age 31, is receiving benefits as a disabled "child." She has been receiving these benefits since she was 18. Will she be entitled to both parts of Medicare?

A. Yes. She is eligible for both parts of Medicare, effective July 1, 1973.

Q. I understand that our son, age 24, who is receiving benefits on his father's record as a disabled child, will be eligible for Medicare. How much will the premiums be?

A. The premium for the supplemental insurance is $6.30 a month. There is no premium on the hospital insurance.

Q. Our son was disabled last year at the age of 20. His application for benefits was turned down because he was over 18. He is still disabled. What should we do now?

A. You should contact your social security office and make a new application. The law has been changed to permit payment to children who were disabled before age 22.

US Shows Signs Of Metric Usage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Signs along Ohio's Interstate 71 are giving road distances in kilometers, the space agency is expressing rocket thrust in newtons and school children are buying metric rulers.

It's all part of a growing effort to get the United States in tune with the other industrial nations which are either using or converting to the international metric system of measurement.

Dr. Malcolm O'Hagan, executive director of the American National Metric Council, told a recent meeting of the International Organization for Standardization that the status of metric conversion in America is like a pot of water about to boil.

He said the effort to switch from the customary system of weights and measures—inches, feet, yards, ounces, pounds, etc.—to meters and grams got a major boost in 1971 when the Secretary of Commerce recommended that the U.S. embark on a 10-year, voluntary metric conversion program.

Metric use already is widespread in some segments of American industry and metric measurements have been used for years for such things as drug prescriptions, bearings, photographic film and spark plugs.

Dual labeling is common in the food industry. Home economists know, for example, that a 20-ounce bottle of ketchup is also labeled 567 grams and that an 8 1/2 ounce can of peas contains 241 grams.

The National Bureau of Standards and most other scientific bodies have been working in metric units for a long time and the bureau has sent complete sets of metric weights and measures to the states to make way for legislation establishing the system.

The effort for international standardization extends far beyond weights and measures. There are about 2,500 international standards today and R.L. Hennessy, executive director of the Standards Council of Canada, said world trade requires at least 10,000 different standards.

"More and more, products being traded will be required to meet increasingly stringent certification requirements as to quality, performance, health and safety and effect on the environment," Hennessy said.

Opera contest
NEW YORK (UPI) — A youth opera contest will be sponsored in Vienna this fall by the Vienna Drama Council, with the assistance of Austria's Federal Ministry of Education and the Arts.

The prizewinning work will be presented by the Vienna Chamber Opera Company, the Austrian Federal Press and Information Service reports.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "A scant minority of financial analysts expect the Dow Jones Industrial Average to rise through the October-December quarter," according to a survey by Investment Dealers' Digest. The American and Canadian respondents anticipate an upward trend, however, in 1974 and 1975, the financial magazine says. "They pin their optimism on declining inflation and higher dividends and earnings," it adds.

A closer look at the Gross National Product for August indicates a rate of $1,307 billion, putting the thrust in the current dollar GNP for the third quarter at $35 billion, says Townsend-Greenspan's Business Outlook. The deflator for the third quarter appears to be running above 7.1 per cent for the year, it adds. "leaving real growth in the third quarter in the area of 3 to 3 1/2 per cent at an annual rate."

"At this point in the market the odds are very favorable that commitments made now will offer exceptional gains within a year or two," says Keeffe.

Bruyette & Woods, Inc.'s Market Outlook. The letter says the stage is being set for a recovery within the next six months and advises the investor to shore up his confidence and "begin actively purchasing good quality bank and other equities." It adds there is no evidence institutions plan to liquidate banks stocks in the year ahead.

Research Institute Recommendations says "unmistakable signs" indicate the sharp jump in interest rates for 1973 is over and "the next major move in the money market will be downward." Treasury bills are being offered at lower discounts and the 10 per cent prime bank loan rate is softening, it continues. "Longer term rates will lag in the developing turnaround, as they usually do," it adds. The letter counsels businessmen not to indulge in hasty borrowing for fear money will cost more tomorrow.

The Lighter Side

BY DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Let's see. Fuel oil, natural gas, electric power, gasoline, paper, anti-freeze, lumber, bathroom fixtures, soybeans, anchovies. Does that about cover the current list of shortages?

Probably not, scarcities are developing so fast it's difficult to keep the inventory up to date. By the time you read this, there may be a dearth of manhole covers, swizzle sticks, boar bristles, eyebrow pencils and I don't know what else.

The present period of mushrooming shortages could even include a shortage of mushrooms. Or possibly this:

WASHINGTON—Federal election officials warned today the nation is facing a severe shortage of presidential candidates.

Indications are that by 1976 the next presidential election year, there barely will be enough White House aspirants to meet the needs of the two major parties.

If, in the interval, there is any sizable outcropping of third party movements, there may not be enough candidates to go around, officials said.

Signs of the impending shortage were seen within the past days as Sen. McGovern denied a report he planned to run again. Sen. Mondale said he didn't know whether he would run. Gov. Reagan said he didn't think he wanted to be president and John Connally said he was "not at all sure" he would like to be in the White House.

Additionally, thus far this year there have been noncommittal statements by Eugene McCarthy, Sen. Kennedy, Gov. Wallace, Vice President Agnew, Gov. Rockefeller and Sen. Humphrey, among others.

Officials pointed out it was unusual to have so many nationally known politicians not running for president so far in advance of an election.

They said widespread outbreaks of disclaimers, uncertainties and indecision ordinarily would not occur until at least 1974.

Nominations by Default
"At this rate," one official said, "the Democratic and Republican nominations will go to someone by default and some of the third parties may not be able to field a ticket at all."

He recommended that two or more parties voluntarily get together and form a candidate "pool" by nominating the same person. Otherwise, he said, some sort of mandatory allocation program may be necessary to insure that all parties have standard bearers.

Asked what was causing the prospective paucity of presidential candidates, he said he was the old law of demand.

"The woods are full of politicians who would like to run, but there isn't any demand for them," he explained.

Unenviable record
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Alcoholism is the oldest and most prevalent form of drug abuse among U.S. workers, Arthur D. Little, Inc., research company, reports.

About 4.5 million Americans employed in business, industry and government have problems with alcohol, the report said. The resulting cost in absenteeism, sick pay, high accident rates, low productivity and poor executive decisions is an estimated $8 billion annually, or $32 million each working day.

GIFT SHOP, Japanese style, features daruma dolls in a variety of sizes and faces. But the shape is the same, for a reason. Honoring an ancient Buddhist priest said to have meditated in the lotus position for so long that his limbs atrophied, the dolls, constructed and weighted so that they always return to upright position, are symbolic of perseverance and fortitude. They are popular gifts to friends.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Nixon And Land Control

If you are going to be free, you will have to be free some place. That statement will make a lot more sense after you have thoughtfully considered what President Nixon and Congress plan to do with federal controls over land use—that is, federal controls over the use of privately owned land.

Nixon has proposed, and Congress is acting on, a proposal to reward state legislatures monetarily for adopting federally approved land use laws, and for withholding such rewards from such state legislatures that do not pass the sanctioned laws. The President urged Congress to enact a law that would support the kinds of land use policies which he said the state themselves must ultimately adopt.

In urging this legislation, the President stated, "Land use control is perhaps the most pressing environmental issue before the nation. How to use our land is fundamental to all other environmental concerns."

Mr. Nixon is 100 per cent correct. Land is basic. If the individual is free to develop his property, he is free. On the other hand, if the land owner must get a by-your-leave from some politician, he is not free. That is what we mean when we say, "to be free a person has to be free some place. For example, one of the reasons the Puritan fathers came to the wilderness was that it provided a place where they could be free—at least for their line of belief."

You might wonder how either the federal government or the state governments derive their capacity to interfere with land development from the Constitution. The answer is that they don't. Their rationale is twofold: (1) land zoning and planning are an exercise of governmental police power, and (2) police power is "prior" to the Constitution.

By the term "prior," the zoners and planners mean that police power would be a part of any workable government and hence was understood to be a part of the governments that were set up under the U.S. Constitution and the several state constitutions. By this line of reasoning, any government could legitimately do anything by classifying the desired activity as a police power.

Mr. Nixon along with his associates and some of his apparent political enemies is rapidly building a reputation for a Constitution-be-damned attitude. For this much is certain, that the framers of the Constitution had two objectives. One of these was to frame a workable government. The second objective was to put a limit on the police power of that government. The Constitution itself contains this restrictive language: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the states, respectively, or to the people." (Amendment X).

That provision has never been mangled by the courts. The effort of Mr. Nixon, his associates and the Democratically controlled Congress to bribe the state legislatures to adopt federally sanctioned land use laws is a corruption of the Constitution. It has become a familiar pattern.

Scientific Individualism

Some scientists are in a flap between themselves because one of their number claims he discovered that blacks are hereditarily lower in their IQ rating than are whites.

The more-equal-than-others clique undertook to silence such statistical heresy by muscle power. One apostle of black inferiority was thoroughly pummeled at the London School of Economics. Others have run afoul of faculty disdain and administrative regulations on American campuses.

But a third view has emerged which partakes neither of the white-supremacy nor black-is-better emotionalism. Professor Edwin Ghiselli, University of California - Berkeley, doesn't believe that people can be studied as groups on the basis of body characteristics. "Psychologists who lump people into these kinds of categories are being lazy," he asserted.

The professor also criticized the categorizing of people as to whether they have Spanish surnames. He used his youngest granddaughter as an example. "Just on the basis of her name, an earnest investigator would without any qualms classify her as a child of Latin descent." But, he said, her ancestry is primarily English, Lithuanian, Polish, with a dash of German, Portuguese, Italian and Swiss.

Ghiselli advises his fellow scientists to look on people as individuals. Other things are secondary. Our experience is that this "third view" is more in accord with the observable facts than either of the other two.

Hunters wear plaid jackets so other hunters can say: "Oh, look! A plaid deer!" — and then go BLAM!

BERRY'S WORLD

"Since the Arabs are making it tough to buy their oil, we ought to hit 'em where they live, and make it tough for them to buy Cadillacs and Lincolns."

Clearing House

Editor: On Nov. 6, 1973, one of the most important elections in the State's history will be held, and we hope that you are aware of it. We ask that for the sake of the State of Texas as well as its people, you will help us defeat this effort to disfranchise us of our right to set the salaries of our legislators. Leaving it up to the legislators to set their own salaries would be disastrous. The people of this State of ours have voted this down several times, yet it always keeps coming up again. These legislators that we now have know what their salaries were when they ran for office. If they do not like the salary, then don't run for office.

To cite you an example of what happens when elected officials are given this right to set their own salaries, we give you the following example. Dallas County Commissioners Court with legal authority to raid the treasury at will, within four years raised their salaries from $16,500 to $28,900 per year. None of these men could make over $14,000 in private industry. And to make matters worse, they recently raised the salaries of 14 county judges (some more political do-nothings) $4,020 per year.

The big four of our State officials (whose salaries are excessive) with the help of the big two newspapers are giving this proposal loads of publicity regularly. This is a delusive effort to brainwash you into believing that the more the salary, the more efficient they would be. Neither be deluded into thinking honesty is a commodity to be purchased in the market place, nor lead you to believe that special interests will not be there with their money lobbyists to get what they want. Such a salary is an incentive for private gain, and there would be more hick lawyers as candidates than you could shake a stick at. To place the setting of salaries in the hands of a committee or commission would only add another opportunity for corruption. In the cry for the "poor" legislator, no one ever mentions the expense accounts of $875 for representatives and $2,400 for senators per month. Nor do they mention how the legislature made it "legal" for raids on the treasury by the county commissioners at will. The higher the salary, the higher the retirement.

The taxpayers will be at the mercy of the mercies if the proposal carries. Plans are already being laid to by-pass the legislature to limit the salaries of county commissioners and judges, before we can afford to raise their salaries. Certainly we are sympathetic with their wants, but estimates place the government's take of the gross national product at from 36 per cent to 41 per cent. 25 per cent of the taxpayers in our state are retirees on fixed incomes. For this proposal to pass, will be to take the retirees out of their homes and bread from the mouths of the poor.

So we ask the voters again to help us defeat this proposal. We try our best to help bring sanity to the political scene in our great State of Texas, but what a huge task we do have. Leo G. Wenzel Vice President Texas Taxpayers, Inc. Richardson, Texas

BRUCE BIOSSAT Watergate abuses are laid to fear

By Bruce Bioassat

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A crucial element in the Watergate affair has, as far as can be recalled, never been mentioned. It is fear.

You can't listen to the parade of witnesses before the Ervin committee without catching the vibrations. Many men had doubts about what they were asked to do. If they responded to commands anyway, fear of the power of the White House often was the unspoken component in their behavior.

To the extent that major independent agencies like the FBI and the CIA were drawn into the Watergate net, their reacting officials seemed in clear awe of the presidency. Patrick Gray, former acting FBI director, is a prime example of a man torn between a sense of duty to his organization, and a fear of the consequences of "crossing" the White House.

Unless one has been reasonably close to Washington activity for a good while, much longer than the tenure of Richard Nixon as President, it is difficult to realize how men in the bureaucracy — whatever the department or agency — are affected when the magic words "the White House is calling" are spoken, or a letter arrives on White House stationery.

Indeed, a caller from 1600 Pennsylvania avenue, assuming he is in the higher echelons, need not even make a statement. He can arouse emotions running from modest concern to outright terror simply by asking a question like: "What's the status of that case?"

Down to a certain civil service level, the President obviously has big leverage. The power to hire and fire is never far from the forefront of a vulnerable bureaucrat's mind. His reputation, his earning capacity, his family, all these and more may be at stake.

For all its flaws and frailties in recent years, Congress still is widely thought of as, potentially at least, an effective counterweight to presidential power. The Ervin hearings, inquiries into White House activities by other congressional groups, the cutoff of funds for Cambodian bombing, indicate this is no illusion.

Yet most senators and congressmen fear the White House, with its acknowledged and much-used power to dispense or withhold favors in particular states and congressional zones. There is really nothing new in this, except that fear seems greater than normal.

The fright has been heightened by increased awareness that White House authorities, by taping, wire-tapping and other methods, may have been closely tracking the movements and utterances of individual lawmakers. Recall the early days of the Ervin inquiry, with its pageant of clean-cut young White House aides belatedly "telling all," and you can easily see how they — full of hope and an ambition for higher things — could be intimidated (and probably were) by constant cut orders from obviously feared higher officials. Your Health

Doctors Differ On Treatment

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am caught between conflicting recommendations, medical and surgical, given by two famous medical centers about doing an angiogram and possibly coronary artery surgery. I am a 52-year-old university professor with mild angina attributed to the occlusion of one coronary artery. My weight is 148; fasting blood sugar, 108; cholesterol, 210; triglycerides, 195; and blood pressure, 138-85.

A treadmill test with an electrocardiogram (heart tracing) was diagnosed as positive, but another doctor stated that the findings were negative and the test should be repeated. Is it not true that once you've been diagnosed as having a positive test that it does not change?

Still another doctor stated my condition was due to anxiety and prescribed Inderal and Sorbitrate, plus nitroglycerin for chest pain. Of course, I was a nervous wreck and had to take nitroglycerin for activities and emotions that I had never had prior to all this conflict. One doctor said my palpitations were due to my coronary artery occlusion, but after five months of medicine both of these conditions ceased entirely. Why? I thought that if an artery was filled with fat and lime it couldn't heal itself. If these heart conditions were caused by an occlusion, how could they stop?

Dear Reader — There is quite a divergence of opinion in interpreting electrocardiograms with exercise. I did a large amount of the early treadmill work in healthy young pilots. Many of them had electrocardiographic changes, but no heart disease. Such tests may unmask underlying heart disease, but a great deal of caution has to be used in interpreting such tracings. Electrocardiograms can change in response to exercise. Individuals in poor physical condition often have changes which disappear after their physical condition has improved.

It is possible after blockage of one artery for small connecting arteries to open and detour blood around the occlusion. In this way nature provides its own bypass without surgery.

Angiograms and surgery should be reserved for individuals with persistent chest pain, usually in the form of intermittent episodes, after a recognized heart attack. Coronary bypass operations or revascularization of the heart are not always successful and can impose their own problem.

You should do everything you can to minimize the fat underneath your skin. Follow the measures suggested for preventing heart disease, including diet, no smoking, and if your condition permits, begin a gradual increase in normal physical activity. This means walking in your case.

Your palpitation may have improved because of your medicine and relief of concern about your problem, or an improvement of the circulation to your heart, which can occur in time if everything else is left alone. Just the fact that you have done this well this long, and assuming that your letter means that you no longer have symptoms, I would concur with the conservative approach — which means no surgery.

Good Government? Well It's Entirely Up To You

"Politicians not allowed!" proclaims a sign on the outskirts of the small Turkish town of Tashkale.

The 1,300 villagers have reason for their frustration. During each election campaign, candidates solemnly pledge to solve local water and pasture problems and promise to build new roads.

But after every election, the winners are never seen or heard from again.

In retaliation, villagers have posted the sign declaring Tashkale off limits.

Citizens in many a town and city in the U.S. must occasionally have a similar urge. But such a proclamation would do nothing to "... establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessing of liberty to ourselves and our posterity..." (U.S. Constitutional, Preamble)

On the other hand, if even one person out of five became actively involved in party politics or citizens' groups on a year-round basis — and if four out of five voted attentively — there could be a significant and hopeful change in the political climate of the nation.

CALL FOR THE MISSING MILLIONS

A marine traveled 1,800 miles from California to Iowa to vote in the last Presidential election — only to find he was not eligible.

Arriving in Des Moines, he learned to his dismay that his absentee ballot had mistakenly been sent overseas, where he had previously been serving.

"It makes me mad," the disappointed man said. "I've been pretty critical of the government in the past, and I feel that if I don't vote, I have no right to criticize."

An examination of the 1968 election by the Gallup Poll reveals that, out of 44 million eligible Americans, who did not vote: 15 million were registered but were disinterested or did not like the candidates; 10 million could have registered but did not; 7 million were sick or disabled; 5 million were prevented from voting by residence requirements; 3 million were away from home; and 1 million did not obtain absentee ballots.

Many non-voters were prevented from exercising this right through no fault of their own. Some could not vote. Overly strict residence requirements, complicated procedures for absentee ballots and non-cooperation of some registration officials — especially toward black and Spanish-speaking citizens — account for this deplorable situation. And such conditions call for swift remedies.

But what of the 25 million who either were registered or could easily have done so? Will they sit out the next one too? If you know some of these persons, or any of the more than 25 million youthful voters eligible for their first national election, you might remind them that two of the last three Presidential elections were decided by less than one-half of one per cent of the popular vote. And if that fact does not furnish proof that every vote counts, what does? KEEP UP YOUR INTEREST

A Kansas Congressman got a highly favorable response after sending a blank newsletter to the folks back home. The mixup was due to human error and a faulty mimeograph machine.

"No news is good news," wrote one constituent. "Keep it up!"

Another called it "the only newsletter I got from you that I really understood."

Leaders are not like clocks — to be wound up and left to go under their own power. They depend on feedback from their electorate for guidance on crucial votes.

Read carefully the newsletters from your state and congressional representatives. Answer questionnaires promptly. Look for your officials' voting records in the daily newspaper. If this information is lacking, ask your local editor to provide this service. Watch closely for reports on such issues as — full disclosure on campaign spendings — regulation of lobbyists — conflict of interest legislation — excessive secrecy in matters that do not touch on national security — reasonable reforms in the House and Senate seniority system. UPHOLD THE PUBLIC GOOD

More than 20 centuries ago, the youth of Athens took this oath:

"We will never bring disgrace to this our city by any act of dishonesty or cowardice. We will fight for our ideals and the sacred things of the city both alone and with many."

"We will reverse and obey the city's laws and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in those about us. We will strive unceasingly to quicken the public's sense of civic duty. In all these ways we will strive to transmit this city to others not less but greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

Beware Of Cookware Bargains

COLLEGE STATION — Despite claims and advertisements, waterless cooking isn't anything new or fantastic, one authority said this week.

"It simply involves cooking food by steam rather than water — so great quantities of liquid aren't necessary," Lillian Cochran, home management specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University system, explained. Salesmen for "waterless cookware" have several sales pitches, the specialist cautioned.

Some include "reducing the amount of food needed" and "increasing flavor and nutritive value of food prepared."

"However, wise consumers know that cookware will not improve family health or decrease food bills."

LEMON ICE BOX PIE

Juice of 3 Lemons and Grated Rind of One 1 Can Condensed Milk
Mix the juice and grated rind with the milk. Stir well and pour into a graham cracker pie crust. Spread sweetened whipped cream over the top as you would meringue. Let stand in refrigerator over night.

GRAHAM CRACKER PIE CRUST

1 1/2 Cups Graham Cracker Crumbs
1/3 Cup Powdered Sugar
1 Stick Butter
Roll out graham crackers with rolling pin and mix with sugar and softened butter. Pat mixture firmly into pie pan. Place in refrigerator for several hours.

By MRS. FLORA WILLIAMS

NO-PEEK-CHICKEN

Heat in sauce pan:
1 can cream of celery soup
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can pet milk (small can)
1 can of water
Remove from stove and stir in 1 cup long grain rice, and stir until mixed well. Spread above mixture over buttered, oblong baking dish. Place on top of rice mixture, 1-2 1/2 lbs. cut-up uncooked chicken. Spread with 1 pkg. dry onion soup mix. Cover tightly. Place in oven 350 degrees for 2 hours. Yield: 10 servings.

MR. JOHN MEAT DISH

1 lb. lean ground meat
1 cup chopped onions
1 cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon chili powder
Place in large skillet or pan. Let cook until meat turns gray. Salt to taste. Place on top of 5 oz. package of egg noodles. Pour over all, one No. 303 can tomato juice and 1/2 can water. Cover and let cook slowly for 1 hour. Remove from heat and spread with 1/4 lb. longhorn cheese. Cover and keep warm until serving time. Serves 8.

PINEAPPLE SALAD

Mix 1 pkg. lime jello in 1 cup boiling water and set aside. Bring to a boil, 1/4 cup sugar and one No. 2 can crushed pineapple. Add to jello and let set. Combine 1 cup whip cream, 1 cup longhorn cheese, grated, and 1 cup pecans to pineapple mixture. Mix well and let set. Serves 8.

CABBAGE SALAD

1 small head cabbage, finely grated
1 cup finely grated carrots
1 tablespoon sugar
1 large apple, diced
1/2 cup Miracle Whip

Toss all together and serve with most meat dishes or baked beans.

BUTTERLESS, EGGLESS AND MILKLESS CAKE

Simmer together for 20 minutes:
First mixture:
1 cup Crisco
2 cups raisins
2 cups sugar
2 cups water
Let cool.
Second mixture:
3/4 cups flour
2 teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon nutmeg
Add:
1/2 teaspoon salt, vanilla and nuts.

Fold mixtures together. Bake in tube pan at 325 degrees for 1 hour. For Christmas fruit cake you may add your favorite candied fruits and nuts.

OSGOOD PIE

Use one 9-inch unbaked pie shell.
Mix:
2 eggs, separated
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon allspice
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup pecans
1/2 cup raisins
Beat egg yolks, sugar and butter until light and fluffy. Add spices, pecans and raisins, plus vanilla. Mix well. Beat egg whites until stiff, then fold into above mixture. Pour into unbaked pie shell and bake until golden brown at 350 degrees.

MARSHMALLOW PUDDING

1 lb. small marshmallows
1 small bottle cherries, drained and diced
1 cup pecans, chopped fine
1/4 cup pineapple tidbits
1 pint whipping cream
3 heaping tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons Knox gelatin
4 tablespoons cold water
4 tablespoons hot water
Whip cream and add sugar. Then add gelatin, which has been dissolved in the 8 tablespoons of water. Mix other ingredients, and add to whipped cream. Place in refrigerator to set, stirring occasionally.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By United Press International

The ladder industry has adopted a standard color code and use-and-care labels. This is part of a campaign to help ladder users select the right ladder for the right job. Standard use-and-care labels for metal ladders used around the home include this caution: Don't use around electrical circuits. Read the labels at the hardware store before purchasing ladders. And ask the clerk's assistance when in doubt about whether you're buying the right ladder for the right job.

A brand label printed in red on a ladder indicates a ladder intended for household duty, blue for commercial duty, and yellow for industrial duty. These are, respectively, Type III, Type II and Type I ladders.

No ladder, especially the extension type, should be used in high winds.

Ladders are intended only for one climber; two or more: taboo.

A second person on the scene to hold a ladder firmly is highly recommended.

Step ladders should always be placed firmly on all four feet on a level surface.

Never drop or apply an impact load to a ladder. This can cause a metal ladder to bend, or a wood ladder to crack. In both cases the ladder probably is weakened.

Delaware Man Wins Cooking Contest

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — The flurry of excitement and expectancy peaked here Tuesday at the final cook-off of the National Chicken Cooking contest as the $10,000 top winner of the contest was selected.

He is R.C. Holley of Wilmington, Del. placing first in the NCCC line-up of winners with his recipe for "Chicken and Asparagus Casserole."

Holley and four other cash prize winners were awarded their prizes Tuesday night at the festive awards pageant which climaxed the 24th annual cook-off.

He says cooking is "in my blood and I love it." He approaches his work and other hobbies with the same kind of zest. Holley describes his interests as boating, traveling, "working hard," and cooking. He is employed in sales, public relations and advertising.

Second prize went to Linda Ann Rudzinski of Centerville, Ohio who cooked "Hong Kong Chicken." That recipe was worth $4,000 to Linda Ann who likes Chinese food and chicken. She experimented with the two for the NCCC and the combination proved to be a good one. Linda, who is a real estate saleswoman, says that cooking has been a tradition in her family. She also likes to play tennis, jog, swim and read.

Kiyoko Aoki of Honolulu, Hawaii placed third in the national cook-off. She will bring home $3,000 for her recipe of "Shoyu Chicken." Kiyoko had used her original recipe for years before thinking about entering it in the NCCC. She formulated the recipe through trial and error. Kiyoko is exposed to food daily in her job as a cafeteria manager. She is also interested in knitting and ceramics.

The $2,000 fourth prize was awarded to Sylvia Bothmer of Englewood, Colo. for "Chicken Breasts Supreme." Sylvia's life revolves around two demanding and highly creative interests — music and cooking. She says she has always enjoyed cooking and experimenting with food. Her NCCC recipe meets her approval after years of experimenting with it. Sylvia is active in the Denver Areas Music Teachers Association and the Musicians Society of Denver.

Judges also selected Helen Nolte of Reno, Nev. to receive the fifth prize of $1,000 for "Oven Chicken Ole." Helen describes her occupation as homemaker - wife - mother - yoga instructor and part-time public relations council. Besides that she cooks for four children, cans, reads, and does creative writing. Helen developed her recipe especially for the NCCC and explains that her interest in cooking can be traced to the fact that she is "a life-long enthusiastic eater."

Each of the 51 finalists competing in the National Chicken Cooking Contest were given an all-expense paid trip to the cook-off as well as a $100 cash award, a state championship trophy and a year's supply of products from the contest co-sponsors. The National Broiler Council sponsors the contest with the makers of Accent, Alco Wrap, Weavever Cookwear, and Mazola Corn Oil.

WINNING RECIPE - CHICKEN AND ASPARAGUS CASSEROLE

2 whole broiler-fryer chicken breasts, skinned, boned and cut into 2x4 1/2 inch pieces
1 1/2 teaspoons Accent
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup Mazola corn oil
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen asparagus
1 can condensed cream of chicken soup
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese

Sprinkle Accent and pepper over chicken. Pour corn oil into a Weavever Registered 10-inch fry pan. Heat over medium heat. Add chicken and saute slowly about 6 minutes or until white and opaque. Remove from fry pan; drain on paper towels. Cook asparagus by package directions 4 to 5 minutes. Drain. Place asparagus on bottom of 9x2x2-inch baking pan. Place sauteed chicken over asparagus. Mix together chicken soup, mayonnaise, lemon juice and curry powder. Pour over chicken and asparagus. Sprinkle cheese over the top. Cover with Alcoa Wrap aluminum foil. Bake in 375 degree oven 30 minutes or until done. Makes 4 servings.

Owl-ish study MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — The wing of a common owl — the quietest of all birds in flight — is being studied by the Space Agency's Ames Research Center as the possible answer to jet engine noise.

Scientists have duplicated on engine rotary blades the same kind of saw-tooth edge found on the wings of owls in hopes this will lead to quieter jet engines.

ROCK MUSIC

By BRUCE MEYER
 United Press International
 Commander Cody and His Lost Planet Airmen look like a gang of well-fed Skid Row dropouts. They play rock 'n' roll, boogie and country funk, and are the rightful heirs to the rockabilly tradition of Bill Haley and Buddy Holly.

George Frayne became Commander Cody around 1966 when he put the first Airmen together in Ann Arbor, Mich.

"As soon as we found we had a real band on our hands," he says, "we split for the West. Planned to go to San Francisco, but ended up across the Bay in Berkeley. Now, Berkeley just happens to have six bars that charge two dollars at the door and give the band 80 per cent of the take, and that's how we lived for two years."

In that time, Frayne and the others began hanging around with the Grateful Dead and the several Bay-Area bands which form the Dead's special orbit. The band gradually enlarged from four pieces to eight ("Big band rock 'n' roll," says Frayne).

Frayne's pseudonym came from a couple of ancient science fiction movies he saw as a kid. Commander Cody was an evil genius (?) from outer space who tried to destroy the world by surrounding it with an impenetrable layer of ozone. The band's first album was called "Lost in the Ozone."

After seeing four thousand and one rock bands in silk bell bottoms and sequined vests open to display four or five uniformly pale, sunken chests, CCHLPA are a welcome change. Frayne chews on a cigar and pounds his piano in a sweaty "Linda Lovelace Blows My Mind" T-shirt, while fiddler and true individual Andy Stein does his thing in baggy, knee-length Bermuda shorts and a faded, short-sleeved Hawaiian shirt.

Mellow
 They are a mellow group. "What we're playing is energy—we're tapping into the energy and just playing good music," says Frayne. "We don't have to play it so loud it presses you against the wall. I want people to dance instead of just sitting there, wasted by decibel after decibel of power."

The Codies play some of the most delightfully tasteless truckstop cowboy rock 'n' roll I've ever heard—the kind that attracts what Frayne calls "your basic Cody fan, who comes with a half-pint in his pocket and a six-pack under his arm."

The band has three albums out so far: "Ozone," "Hot Licks," "Cold Steel and Trucks' Favorites" and, most recently, "Country Casanova" (Paramount: PAS-6054). Their two talkin' country boogie singles, "Hot Rod Lincoln" and "Smoke That Cigarette," have done moderately well, but (as Frayne readily admits) they aren't particularly representative of the rest of the band's music.

If you're into the Dead, the New Riders, the Burrito Bros. and the country-western period of the Byrds, you'll have no trouble with Commander Cody. Those who approach from a harder (Led Zep, Deep Purple) standpoint will require a little open-minded adjustment time. And those whose idea of music is the Carpenters, the Osmonds and Gilbert O'Sullivan—well, there's no pleasing all of the people all of the time.

But, for my money, rock 'n' roll should be music that gets an audience out of their seats to boogie—and that's where the Codies are at.

The Almanac

By United Press International
 Today is Thursday, Sept. 27, the 270th day of 1973 with 95 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

American patriot Samuel Adams was born Sept. 27, 1722.

On this day in history:

In 1825, in England, George Stephenson operated the first locomotive to pull a passenger train.

In 1939, after 19 days of resisting heavy air raids and artillery bombardment, the heroic defenders of Warsaw, Poland, surrendered to the German Nazis.

In 1940, Germany, Italy and Japan signed a 10-year mutual aid pact, forming the Axis powers arrayed against the Allies in World War II.

In 1961, Syria broke away from the United Arab republic in a revolt led by army officers.

Seattleites Gloomy Without Rain

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Based on a premise expounded by a psychiatrist, Seattle has just gone through one of the gloomiest summers on record. It hardly rained at all.

Dr. S. Harvard Kaufman, a Seattle resident for 28 years, is convinced that nice weather in Seattle makes most of its residents gloomy.

Why?
 "Because they figure it's going to get worse," said Kaufman. "People carry around a lot of guilt. When they are happy, they wonder when the knife is going to fall."

"Good weather in Seattle activates a deep-seated sense of guilt in most of the residents," Mythology Plays Large Part Mythology, he said, plays a large part in the mental state of Seattleites.

"From birth they are taught that the weather here is rainy," he said. "They also are taught that because of this the air is clear and the grass is green."

The fact is there is less annual rainfall in Seattle than in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Trenton, N.J., and Atlanta, Ga.

But the myth persists that Seattle is the sponge of the United States, and Seattleites visiting elsewhere have found it usually expedient to let the legend linger on.

Now an agency charged with luring visitors to Seattle the year around, rain or shine, have decided to capitalize on the myth.

- Most hours spacewalking on one mission—13 hours, 43 minutes in three walks—more than the entire Gemini program.
- Longest spacewalk outside an orbiting craft—6 hours, 31 minutes—set by Garriott and Lousma.
- Individual spaceflight mark

- of 69 days, 15 hours, 53 minutes and 59 seconds set by Bean on two missions. Previous record of 49 days, 3 hours, 38 minutes and 36 seconds set by Chaples "Pete" Conrad on four missions.
- Longest distance for a spacecraft, 24,423,122 miles.
- Most revolutions of earth, 858.
- Most pictures ever taken of the sun from orbit, 77,600 frames.
- Most data ever taken of the earth from space, 16,800 pictures and 18 miles of recording tape.
- First man to pedal bicycle around the world, by Bean in 93 minutes.

"If we can't scrub out the legend that Seattle is in a constant deluge, we might as well put the myth to work," said Sears.

"Anyhow," he added, almost furiously, "rain is our most important attribute."

Clyde W. Tombaugh, an American, discovered the planet Pluto, in 1930.

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. In June, my home was damaged by flood. I would have gotten a better tax advantage by deducting my casualty loss on the return I filed in April. Do I have to wait to claim this loss on my 1973 return?

A. If, in 1973, your area was declared a disaster area by the President, and, as a result of that disaster, you suffered a casualty loss, you have the option of deducting the loss on your 1972 Federal income tax return or waiting until next year. If you have already filed your return for the prior year, file Form 1040X, which is specifically designed to expedite your refund. For details on how to do it, see IRS Publication 547, "Tax Information on Disasters, Casualty Losses, and Thefts." Send a postcard to your local IRS office for a free copy.

Q. I've earned more than $10,000 so far this year. Shouldn't my employer stop withholding social security tax from my pay?

A. The maximum wage base for social security tax withholding in 1973 is $10,800. This equals $631.80 in social security tax. After this point, your employer should not be withholding social security tax. If he is still withholding this tax, see him to adjust this over-collection.

Any taxpayer who holds more than one job during the year and has more than $10,800 of his wages subject to social security tax can claim the excess tax withheld as a credit against his tax.

Q. I used money from my part-time job to buy new furniture for my bedroom. Will this have any effect on whether or not my parents can claim me as a dependent?

A. No. Capital expenditures for furniture and appliances are not included in total support. As long as your parents contribute more than one-half of your total support and meet all the other dependency tests, they can still claim you as a dependent.

Q. I increased the value of my home by installing central air conditioning. Can I get a deduction for what I spent?

A. No. This expense cannot be deducted, but it can be added to the cost basis of your home. This way, the cost of the air conditioning unit will be taken into account in the event you sell your home.

Chamberlain Now With San Diego

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Wilt Chamberlain, one of the dominant forces in pro basketball since his entry into the NBA 15 years ago, entered perhaps the most controversial phase of his career Wednesday when he jumped to the San Diego

Conquistadors of the rival ABA. Signed for three years as a player-coach, Chamberlain brushed aside possible legal repercussions from the Los Angeles Lakers. He said he would play 10 years more if his mind and body permitted and hoped to model his career after University of South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire. "I won't 'handle' the players," he said. "I believe you handle horses and animals and work with men. I admire the way McGuire is able to work with men." Lakers General Manager Pete Newell said he hopes Chamberlain has every success as a coach, but Los Angeles will take "all necessary steps" to keep him from playing for San Diego.

"The Lakers legal position is quite clear," he said. "Chamberlain has a binding contract with the Lakers for the 1973-74 season and the Lakers will making sure that if your record is tied or broken, it'll be done properly, without any hanky-panky, without anybody grooving pitches and without—let's have a drum roll here—any possible breach of liberty and justice for all.

Rich Hebrner drove in four runs and Gene Clines and Dal Maxvill batted in three each to lead the Pirates' 13-hit attack. Moose's five strong innings earned him the victory and squared his record at 12-12.

Expos kayo Seaver The Expos kayoed Tom Seaver with five runs in two innings, were tied at 5-5, and then won the game on Bob Bailey's two-run homer off Harry Parker in the seventh. It was a brutal loss for Seaver, who saw his chances of a fourth 20-victory season become almost non-existent.

Chamberlain said he probably thought I was after a better contract. Chamberlain said. Chamberlain's attorney, Cy Goldberg, said he could not comment until legal action had been taken.

He declined to discuss the amount involved in the deal but said $300,000 a year was "way too low." He indicated his acquiring a percentage of ownership in the club has been discussed and he plans to do all he can to make the Conquistadors a great operation.

SMU, TCU Leading Conference Charts

DALLAS (UPI) — Some rather unfamiliar names — Southern Methodist and Texas Christian — are dominating the team offensive and defensive statistics early in the Southwest Conference season.

SMU's Mustangs, after two explosive performances against Santa Clara and Oregon State, lead the conference in total offense with an average of 47.5 yards a game while TCU is second with 40.

Pinch-hitter Ken McMullen's double drove in the winning run for the Dodgers in an old-fashioned slugfest in Atlanta. Mike Lum and Darrell Evans homered for the Braves and Steve Garvey hit a three-run homer for the Dodgers. Aaron drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly and a single but now has only three games left in which to tie or break Babe Ruth's career record of 714 homers this season.

Top-ranked Southern Cal, which had its problems getting past Arkansas and Georgia Tech, must demonstrate more offensive firepower if it's to retain its unbeaten ways against No. 8 Oklahoma.

Crusaders roll to fourth straight. Also—Rhode Island 3 over Brown, Dartmouth 28 over New Hampshire, Yale 14 over Connecticut and Colgate 1 over Cornell.

will show up. UCLA 21 Michigan St. 17—Bruins get going. Northwestern 28 Pittsburgh 7—Wildcats on the rebound. Ohio State 42 TCU 7—Horned Frogs could stay home. Notre Dame 42 Purdue 0—Irish want another shutout.

Tiger League Game Cancelled Due To Rain

Now you know why Bowie Kuhn really is here. He doesn't wish to be embarrassed again. This time, whenever and wherever it happens, he's going to be on hand to congratulate Aaron personally. He'll present him with the keys to the kingdom when he hits No. 714. For 715, Hank gets the kingdom itself.

Other Leaders Other individual leaders include: —Texas A&M's Skip Walker, who leads the league in scoring with 24 points. —Teddy Barnes of Arkansas, whose six-yard punt return average is good enough to lead the league.

How about about in the South where No. 9 Tennessee and No. 13 Auburn tangle? On the surface, the temptation is to go with the Vols—except that in all three years of Bill Battle's tenure as head coach at Tennessee, he has yet to beat the Tigers.

Shockers Visit Perryton JV's PERRYTON — Pampa High School's junior varsity will try to make it three in a row today as the Shockers travel to Perryton for a 7 p.m. game today against the Rangers' JV.

Against Dumas, Kelly Baker scored twice on short runs. Pampa has not allowed a point since Hereford tied the Shockers, 8-8 in the season opener.

Blue Hens Lead UPI College Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Delaware is off to a roaring start toward a third straight national small college football title.

Wanted to Clear Things Up "Basically, I wrote the letter to clear up with the commissioner any misunderstanding that may have arisen," said McGraw. "I tried to explain that as a professional baseball player and athlete it is my duty to live up to my contract and protect the integrity of the game."

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United Press International Board of Coaches top 15 small college football teams with won-lost records and first place votes in parentheses: (Second Week)

Blue Hens increased their lead over Grambling in the latest ratings of the United Press International Board of Coaches, pulling in 26 first-place votes for a total of 325 points. Grambling (also 3-0) received two first-place votes from the 35-coach board and 280 points.

Beaman Picked In Quad Cities Golf Tourney BETTENDORF, Iowa (UPI) — Deane Beaman, despite a so-so performance on the 1973 PGA tour, was the favorite as the third annual $100,000 Quad Cities Open began here today.

Beaman was considered the man to beat on the basis of wins in each of the first two Quad Cities events. This year, Beaman has the Robinson Open title to his credit yet ranks only 53rd on the PGA money list with earnings of more than $42,000.

Lefors To Host White Deer

By PAUL SIMS
Lefors has more on the line Friday night than just its three-game winning streak as area high school football enters its fourth week with four Friday night games and the Perryton-Amarillo Caprock clash Saturday night.

Lefors (3-0) hosts White Deer (1-2), and Leonard Tolbert's Pirates, who, along with state-ranked Canadian (open this week), are the only area unbeaten teams. But Lefors will be trying to keep another streak intact against White Deer—the Pirates haven't allowed a point for 10 consecutive quarters, downing Wheeler in the opener 7-6, McLean 7-0 and Valley, 16-0.

Friday's other area contests include Wheeler at Shamrock, McLean at Groom and Miami at Balke, Okla.

Perryton vs. Amarillo Caprock
Perryton, playing one of the toughest non-conference schedules of any state AAA team, is fresh off a 7-6 win over the 3-AAA Pampa Harvesters, while Caprock decided the out-classed Canyon Eagles Friday, 38-6.

Quarterback David Ream (69 yards on six carries, four of six for 78 yards passing against the Eagles), fullback Jerry Kern, tailback Ronald Burton and two-way linemen Rick Banda and Louis Mendoza pace the Longhorns.

Perryton will face its fourth straight AAA opponent in Caprock as the Rangers have fallen to Berger, 14-6 and Clovis, N.M., 22-9.

Halfback Robert Palmer (82 yards on 11 rushes against the Harvesters), quarterback Jim Dear, end Russ Ellledge, linebackers Brian Wyman and Dale Deike and guard Rob McGarrough were all factors in Perryton's first season win.

Caprock, has balance, size, a strong offensive attack (965 total yards in three games) and a home advantage—the Longhorns by 15.

White Deer vs. Lefors
Buddy Cummins did it all last week against 1-AA Panhandle, running for two TD's, passing for one and scoring another on an intercepted pitchout, as the Bucks won their first game of the season, 28-14.

The Bucks, even though losing to Memphis, 26-0 and Clarendon, 42-0 have had consistent play thus far out of Cummins and the quarterback's brother, Allen, who starts in the defensive secondary. Donnie Thurman heads both lines at his right tackle and noseguard positions.

Lefors, rated 24th in Class B by the Harris Ratings, started late against Valley, as all 16 points were scored in the final four minutes and 10 seconds.

Robert Gifford (16 rushes for 64 yards), Barney Sawyer (13 for 60), quarterback Randy Klein (11 for 60) and Jim Hicks (eight for 54) were the leading Pirate rushers against Valley. Sawyer was in on 16 tackles from his linebacker position to pace the defense.

If ever there was a tossup, it's this one. Just a hunch—White Deer by three.

Wheeler at Shamrock
Jim Bateman's Wheeler Mustangs (0-2) looked impressive in the first half against Canadian last week down only 6-0 going into second-half play.

1972 all-district tailback Lewis Britt gained 93 yards against Lefors in the opener and 50-plus last week to lead the running attack against Canadian. Fullback Kent Ware gained 40 yards last week against a defense which has been practically immovable this year.

Linebacker Bill McIlhany and linebacker Chris Britten are also among Don Sesson's stalwarts.

Groom at home will make it doubly tough for the Tigers (McLean Tigers, that is) so—the Tigers (Groom) by 20.

Miami at Balke, Okla.
Balke ransacked Forgan, Okla., 36-0 last week, and Forgan was the team that dealt Orville Shook's Miami Warriors a 28-6 shellacking in both teams' season opener.

Miami of District 2-A (eight-man) lost to Woodson, 36-0 last week.

Freshman quarterback Kirk Flowers, tailback Don Ed Howard and tackle Jay Strahan head the Warriors offensively, while end Donnie Buice and linebacker Wayne Bright have shown promise defensively.

Miami's getting much-needed experience each game, but the Warriors still have a long way to go—Balke by 30.

Junior High Squads To Play Today

The eighth- and ninth-grade Pampa Junior High Red teams will be at home against Canyon today as junior high football goes into its third week with all four teams in action.

The freshmen (Red) play Canyon at 4 p.m. in Harvester Stadium while the eighth grade plays at 4 p.m. on the junior high field.

The ninth-grade Blue team travels to Hereford to play Laplata Junior High at 6 p.m., and the eighth-grade Blue team plays at 4 p.m. in Hereford.

ONE-YEAR PACT
BALTIMORE (UPI)—Baltimore General Manager J. Frank Cashen announced Wednesday that Orioles' Manager Earl Weaver has signed a one-year pact to manage the club in 1974.

The 43-year old Weaver has piloted his teams to four Eastern Division titles in five full years at the helm. He put together a 539-344 won-lost record since replacing Hank Bauer midway through the 1968 season, a .617 percentage.

"Were you shocked that St. Louis beat Washington last week?" was the question.

"It wasn't as much of a shock to me as it was to George Allen," replied Landry.

St. Louis' surprising 34-27 win over the Redskins last week has tossed a new element into the NFC's Eastern Division, which in the past three years has turned from one of the weakest to one of the strongest divisions in the NFL.

The Cardinal win also set up a meeting this Sunday between the division leaders—St. Louis and Dallas. Landry is faced with the problem of stopping the suddenly explosive St. Louis attack.

Jim Hart is the main reason for their success. Landry said of the St. Louis quarterback. "Against Washington he threw the ball into tight spots and got away with it."

With Hart and Donny Anderson they can score. They have scored 68 points in two games and that is impressive enough to get your attention."

Washington was the almost unanimous pick for the division championship this year with the New York Giants receiving a lot of votes ahead of Dallas for second.

But now St. Louis has rushed into the picture and Philadelphia with its strong showing against the Cardinals and a tie with the Giants, cannot be overlooked.

"This division is better than ever by far," Landry said. "Philadelphia came back in its first game with the Cardinals so they are a factor. It is going to be a wide open race and if you stub your toe a couple of times you are in trouble."

"I think Washington is still the most solid team. Washington may have taken St. Louis a little lightly but that doesn't take anything away from the Cardinals because Washington actually played a pretty good game."

Baby Buffs Play UTEP In Midland

CANYON, Tex. — West Texas State's freshman football team seeks its second victory of the season with a 7:30 p.m. contest Thursday in Midland against the University of Texas at El Paso junior varsity.

The Baby Buffaloes of coach Ronnie Mankin defeated Cisco Junior College, 16-0, Saturday night in Cisco.

University of Texas at El Paso's JV team has fallen in its two games, losing 35-6 to the New Mexico State junior varsity, and 14-0 to the University of New Mexico junior varsity.

"From what we have learned, New Mexico had a stronger junior varsity team than the New Mexico State JV team, so Texas - El Paso must have made a great deal of improvement between the two games," said Mankin.

San Antonio's Joe Flores, 6-0 and 185, will probably start at quarterback for Texas - El Paso. He will be joined in the backfield by David England of Dallas, Dennis Smith of Odessa High and George Henderson of San Antonio.

Most of Flores passes will be aimed at Jerry Knoepfel, 6-1, 185-pounder from Big Spring. He has four receptions for 119 yards and one touchdown.

A foot injury to Buffalo starting tailback Donald Jackson will probably cause Mankin to make a position switch. John Paul Lee of San Angelo, who played tailback along with Jackson against Cisco, has been moved to varsity this week in order to give depth at the tailback and wingback positions.

Mankin will probably move little Bryan Carr, who quarterbacked the Baby Buff victory against Cisco, to tailback. Mike McVay of Beaver, Okla., will move into the starting quarterback position.

Larry Johnson of Childress will start at wingback. Hereford's Danny Harris and Jeff Nunn of Tucumcari, N.M., will alternate at fullback.
