The tax bill, passed by the House last Monday, will receive its first airing at an afternoon public hearing of the Senate State Affairs Committee, scheduled to consider provisions on natural gas, oil, sulphur and special fuels: Hearings will continue week long.

Gov. Price Daniel was resigned to a special session - after the regular session ends May 12 - and held out hope that only the lawmakers will do something about the 65 million dollar deficit before winding up the regular session.

The governor was expected to call the special session no later than a week following the May 12 regular session adjournment - possibly May 18 or 19. But he has not indicated when he will issue

BETTER JOBS By R. O. HOILES

Relative Rightness In the last issue I was quoting from Salvatore Saladino, professor of history, Queens College, on the subject of education in a free society. It showed that many of 51st our instructors have contended Year that right was relative, that there were no absolutes as far as rightness was concerned, Dr. Saladino explains it in this manner: The Problem Of Morality

"The portion of American education which clings to this relativistic, manipulating view of moral values and practices is markedly reluctant to teach morality, or even to face the problem. This is at least both logical and consistent. For if it is believed that there are no absolute values and that transitory utility is the sole basis for making valid judgments, then the only sensible approach 8.
