AN ORNERY CRITTER

The first episode of the "Wild Brahma Gold Rush," will be offered to brave cowpokes at tonight's initial performance of the 15th annual Top O' Texas Rodeo. There'll be $100 riding on the horns of "Blue Bell Wrangler," the mean looking bull shown above which stock producer Morris Stephens calls "the meanest I've got." Since $50 was left on the Bull's neck last year, rodeo officials will start with $100 tonight and add $30 each night until some fearless and lucky cowboy gets close enough to remove the money. All cowboys entered in the rodeo are eligible to try for the cash.

Nixon In Surprise Visit Finds Cardinal Is Gone

★★★ ★★★★★★★ NIKITA MAY SPEAK TO U.N. ASSEMBLY

By THOMAS J. FOLEY
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev probably will address the United Nations General Assembly when he visits this country next month but there is little chance he will address Congress.

These and other details of the historic 13-day visit, which begins Sept. 12, were learned today.

News of Khrushchev's visit brought mixed but generally favorable reaction from American leaders. The reaction from veteran Washington security men was unanimous, however — it will be a tough job guarding the leader of world communism whose barbed verbal attacks on the United States have been legion.

Soviet leader's itinerary probably will include:

Two days in New York City, including a speech to the U. N. General Assembly which convenes Sept. 15.

An appearance on a nationwide television broadcast, most likely a speech. This may be his talk to the U. N. Assembly.

A cross-country tour including visits at least to Detroit and San Francisco. This would follow the pattern set by Khrushchev's Deputy Anastas I. Mikoyan and Frol R. Kozlov on their tours earlier this year. Khrushchev has expressed a particular desire to see San Francisco.

Attendance at a college football game, or a baseball game, the football date cannot be arranged.

Nixon To Clear Picture — Much will depend on the Soviet state.

premier's desire. A clear idea of these will be available to negotiators when Vice President Richard M. Nixon returns later this week from his trip to Russia and Poland. Nixon talked with Khrushchev about the visit while he was in Moscow.

Eisenhower, in announcing Khrushchev's visit Monday, said he would hold several informal talks with the Communist leader during his three days in Washington. Khrushchev also is expected to take some time out to see the sights of Washington.

There are indications, however, that congressional leaders would not be anxious to invite Khrushchev to Capitol Hill, even if lawmakers still are in session. Congress has an excuse for avoiding an invitation to Khrushchev since he is not a head of state.

★★★ ★★★★★★★ Wyszynski Is On Vacation

By ERNEST BARCELLA
United Press International

WARSAW (UPI) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon paid a surprise visit today to the Warsaw cathedral of Stephan Cardinal Wyszynski, but the Polish primate was "on vacation."

The official explanation for failure of Nixon and the cardinal to meet was given by a vice presidential spokesman, who said that Wyszynski went on vacation Monday.

Nixon himself had said Monday he had no plans to meet the cardinal, and that no request had been made on his behalf for such a meeting.

Western diplomatic circles here had said in advance of Nixon's arrival Sunday that they felt a visit by the president to the cardinal would be diplomatically unwise.

Wyszynski, spiritual leader of 25 million Polish Roman Catholics, remains the storm center of troubled church-state relations. Diplomatic sources felt a visit by Nixon to the cardinal would be impolitic to his official hosts, Poland's Communist government.

Even more important, they felt, was that a meeting with Nixon would seriously weaken Wyszynski's precarious position here.

Nixon also drew big and enthusiastic audiences on visits to the ruins of the Warsaw ghetto, to Palmiry, grave of many Polish intellectuals who were exterminated by the Nazis, and to Warsaw University.

The vice president last week visited the ghetto insurgents' monument, and at Palmiry, where 22,000 Jews were executed as well as hundreds of intellectuals and some former members of the pre-war government.

Nixon was visibly moved by the still-unfinished monument marking the last bunker held by the Jewish insurgents before they were crushed by the Nazis, and by the piles of rubble around it.

"I think this ruined building, even more than the memorial, brings home some lessons we forgot too quickly," he said.

As for the Nazis' policy of hate exemplified by their extermination of the ghetto residents, Nixon said:

"All men should unite against such prejudice because here we see again what happened when such passions which are allowed to be nourished are unleashed."

The vice president cancelled plans to visit the ghetto Monday because his talks with Communist Secretary Wladyslaw Gomulka ran more than two hours longer than expected.

His decision to visit the ruins today was not announced until his car was leaving the Myslawiec Palace, where he is staying in Warsaw but a crowd of several hundred Poles was on hand by the time the official motorcade reached.

★★★ ★★★★★★★ 'Visits' Ease Tension Of The Cold War

MOSCOW (UPI) — The climate of Soviet-American relations improved sharply and suddenly with the announcement that President Eisenhower and Premier Nikita Khrushchev will exchange visits.

The mutual agreement, reached during Vice President Richard M. Nixon's tour of eastern Europe, effectively consummated Khrushchev's often-expressed desire for a face-to-face meeting with Eisenhower.

The story was headline news from Berlin to Bangkok, and world reaction was generally favorable. Even those who held no high hope of agreement felt that it would be a good thing for Khrushchev to see the United States and gauge for himself its desire for peace.

Khrushchev is a firm believer in the advantages of personal contacts between world leaders. There was widespread belief that his meetings with Eisenhower will be a prelude to Big Four summit talks.

The enthusiastic reception that greeted Nixon on most stops on his tour of Russia also was a favorable augury for the President's visit. The vice president was virtually unknown in Russia before his tour, but Eisenhower is still warmly remembered as a wartime ally.

A sampling of man-in-the-street opinion in Moscow indicated a general feeling that "nothing but good can result" from the visits. It also revealed considerable good will for Eisenhower.

House Is Pressured To Finish Session

By LLOYD LARABEE
United Press International

AUSTIN (UPI) — House members were pressured today to dissolve the legislature on Wednesday while an appropriations conference committee continued to deadlock on state spending.

Rep. Joe Burkett of Kerrville worked the House floor for support of a Senate resolution ending the third special session of the legislature at noon Wednesday.

Members of the House — Senate conference committee working on the $2,400,000,000 appropriations bill broke up Monday without agreement and so far haven't returned to their super-secret meetings to work out a compromise.

Sen. William "Pip" of Victoria, however, hinted that a break in the spending deadlock could come at any time.

End of the legislature on Wednesday would send lawmakers home after 200 days of bitter wrangling on taxation and spending.

Rep. Malcolm McGregor, of El Paso said he would oppose the Senate resolution calling for adjournment. The third special session ends automatically at midnight Aug. 15.

"I want a full 24 hours to study the appropriations bill before we vote on it," McGregor said.

Rep. W. S. Healy of Paducah, chairman of the House conferees, told the lower chamber he was "sorry and disappointed" that the compromise version of the spending bill was not ready.

He said, however, that most matters have been agreed upon.

Mum On Stalemate — But neither Healy or Sen. William Fly of Victoria, leader of the Senate delegation on the committee, would disclose the reason for the last minute stalemate.

There were reports that the snag is over salaries in the State Board of Insurance.

The major breakthrough in the legislature's long deadlock over finances came last week when the House accepted the Senate's 18¢ million dollar tax program, clearing the way for the spending conferees to report an appropriations bill based on estimates of new tax program.

FROM MAGUIRE

Commission Gets 'Ticket' Report

By WALLACE TRUEDELL
Pampa News Staff Writer

Pampa City Commissioners this morning received a comprehensive overtime parking ticket report from J. B. Maguire Jr., City Judge.

Maguire's report showed that better than 8,000 tickets have been left unpaid during the first ten months of the current fiscal year.

A City ordinance puts a $1 fine on overdue parking tickets and provides misdemeanor charges for failure to pay fines. Twenty-five cent fines are payable by envelope within 12 hours after the ticket has been written.

Mayor E. A. Myatt suggested a 50 cent fine and Police Chief J. F. Connor recommended that the limit be raised to 24 hours.

Myatt said that any ruling would have to be fully enforced. Maguire asked the commissioners to study the ordinance to determine the type of enforcement needed. He added that from now on Corporation Court clerks will keep track of every ticket written, paid and not paid.

Myatt gave the commissioners a week in which to digest Maguire's written report, before making a formal recommendation to Corporation Court and to the police department.

The Commission accepted a recommendation from the zoning Commission, together with a petition urging that Wilks, Brown and Tyler Streets be put in the first zone. The petition was signed by 100 property owners and mechanics of the area.

Commissioners agreed that this zone would gradually upgrade property and do away with sub-standard buildings. An ordinance will be originated at the next City Commission meeting.

Ordinance 328, which would annex part of Section II of the North Crest Addition, was placed on first reading this morning.

A building code meeting to which local builders have been invited, is set for 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Commission room.

Commissioners concluded the meeting with a discussion of paving on E. Harvester.

SHOWMAN ED SULLIVAN speaks a little Russian

Sully's Big, Big Shew Wows Soviet

By ALINE MORSEY
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI) — Ed "Peterson" Sullivan, speaking in Russian instead of English, opened a Soviet tour Monday night with a gala premiere of a variety show staged as part of the American Exhibition here.

The show, which was approximately 90 minutes long, was a familiar sight to many Soviet citizens, accustomed to seeing on television—burglers, pretty singers in tight, low-cut dresses, a contortionist and a magician, among other acts.

Ballerina Nora Kaye and operatic soprano Rita Stevens, singing "Getting to Know You" in Russian, provided a spice of culture to the bill.

An audience of intent, smiling Russians applauded every act, although in some cases it wasn't certain that they got the point. The turns they liked particularly were called back repeatedly for hours.

A critic for the official Tass agency said the audience "reacted to the performance in a very wildly manner."

Sullivan's show, specially tailored for Russian audiences, is scheduled to play two weeks in the outdoor theater in Moscow's Gorky Park. He plans also to play Orlino and Tbilisi before returning home.

The TV master of ceremonies, whose father's name was Peter, adopted "Petrovich" (Peterson) as his middle name for the duration of the tour.

(A Russian's middle name customarily identifies him as his father's son.)

Sullivan delighted the audience by introducing the acts in halting Russian, a language he learned during a recent three-week stay in Las Vegas.

— Ed was the only person in Las Vegas studying Russian roulette, he quipped Monday night.

In addition to the Misses Kaye and Stevens, hits of the show included dancers Marge and Gower Champlin and a team billed as Janik and Arnaut featuring a girl contortionist who coiled around her legs like a snake.

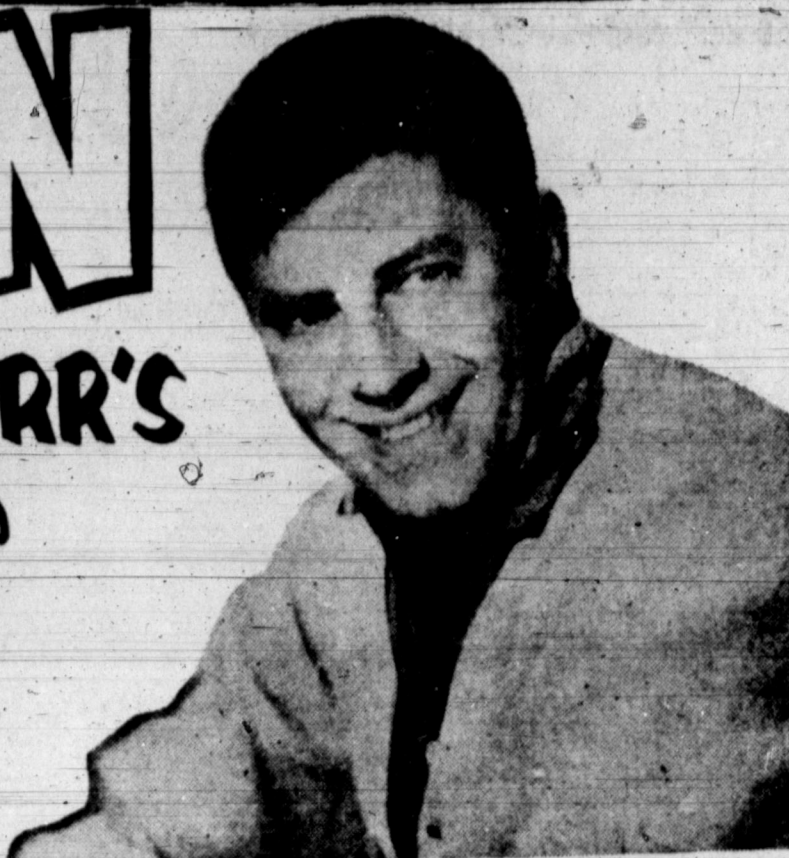

The Barry Sisters, in white dresses so light they could hardly walk, drew gasps of delight with a jazz version of the Russian song, "Dark Eyes."

Earl Long Ready To Begin Gruelling Re-Election Fight

By GERALD MOSES
United Press International

WINFIELD, La. (UPI) — Gov. Earl Long, rested up from two days of hog-feeding at his "little pea patch" farm, returns to the capital today to begin a gruelling stump tour for re-election.

His return to Baton Rouge will mark the first time he has been there since his wild, 17-day vacation.

He said he plans to be at the governor's mansion late this afternoon and will hold a press conference at that time.

Tours Farm
Long, who appeared to have gained strength while resting at his farmhouse, announced Monday night that he will stump 13 towns next weekend.

Tours Farm
Monday, he took two reporters with him on a tour of his 350-acre farm to show them how "peas folks live." During much of the bouncing, hour-and-a-half pickup truck ride around Winn parish.

Wedding Date Set, Aug. 21

SOEGNE, Norway (UPI) — Steven Rockefeller and Anne Marie Rasmussen announced today that they will be married here on Aug. 22 despite a teachers convention which threatened to leave no rooms in local hotels, for the Rockefeller family or other wedding guests.

The American "prince" and his onetime kitchen maid "Cinderella" made the announcement at a brief, informal news conference in the road outside the Rasmussen home.

Steven said "most" of his family would be present for the Saturday afternoon church ceremony and that some of them would remain in Norway after the wedding.

He did all the talking at the brief meeting, which consisted mostly of a picture-taking session for still cameramen. Motion picture cameras were barred by Stephen David, the press aide New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller sent to give his son a hand with his unaccustomed publicity. David said the ban on movies was at Steven's request.

He was born Dec. 23, 1896, in Junction and moved to Pampa in 1926. He resided here a short time, then moved to Borger. He returned to Pampa in 1935 and had lived here since that time.

He was a veteran of World War I, a member of the First Presbyterian Church, American Legion Post, and a life member of the Elks Lodge.

Survivors include his wife, Ann, of the home address, 1120 N. Somerville; three brothers, Leonard, of Borger; three sisters, Mrs. Ben Neely of Borger, Mrs. Cecil Lunn of Abilene, and Mrs. I. P. Simmons of Ventura, Calif.

Application for LIQUOR PERMIT

The undersigned is an applicant for a Retail Liquor permit from the Texas Liquor Control Board and hereby gives notice by publication of such application in accordance with provisions of Section 10, House Bill No. 77, Acts of the Second called session of the 44th Legislature, designated as the Texas Liquor Control Act.

The Retail Liquor permit applied for will be used in the conduct of a business located at 1008 1/2 W. Brown, Pampa, Texas, to be known as McCamery's Liquor Store, Mrs. Jack McCamery, Owner.

Long devoted his remarks to happier days.

He showed the newsmen a hitching post at an old farmhouse where he once lived. "That's where Blanche (his estranged wife) used to ride a lot of horseback," he said.

Long pointed out a concrete pedestal from which she would mount her horse.

He also announced plans to build two extra rooms onto his tin-roofed farmhouse. Long built a $60,000 home for his wife in Baton Rouge, but has said, reportedly, he dislikes it. Blanche didn't like Winnfield, and only spent occasional weekends with Long at the "pea patch."

The governor, who would shout from the front seat of the pickup to the bouncing newsmen in the rear, commented in glowing terms about the quality of his cotton, corn, black-eyed peas and hogs.

Calls Hogs
Obviously pleased with his farm, he shouted to the reporters that "things would have been different if they'd let me come here in the first place." He was referring to being hauled off to a mental hospital in Galveston, Tex.

"I never saw so many doctors and pills in my life," he admitted. "I could take seven or eight pills in one swallow. But I never could learn to like those hypodermic needles."

After the tour, Long and the reporters ate watermelon in his backyard and chatted about farming.

He invited them to a party at the mansion Wednesday night. "We're gonna have church music for those that wanta pray, and some good dancing music for those that wanta dance," he said.

The memorial to 70,000 Jews who died fighting rather than go to the gas chambers of Auschwitz and Treblinka, is being made from stone which the Nazis had earmarked for a monument to Adolf Hitler's "1,000-year Reich."

As Nixon returned to his car the crowd, which had been growing all through his visit, cheered and clapped.

Then the Nixon party set off for the wooded sand dunes of Kalmyr, about 40 miles from Warsaw where the Nazis executed University professors, doctors and other intellectuals in 1940.

Kalmyr was also the execution ground for thousands of Jews and other hostages.

Both places served as grim reminders to postwar Poland of the possible fruits of a tyrannical occupation.

Nixon also planned to inspect the Huta-Warszawa, Poland's proud new factory for making high-quality steel. He and Mrs. Nixon were to dine as guests of Polish Premier Jozef Cyrankiewicz and his wife, one of Poland's leading actresses, before tonight's reception at the U. S. embassy.

More than 700 Polish officials, citizens and members of the diplomatic corps were invited to the reception, one of the biggest American parties ever held in postwar Poland.

Worried Security Officers Work To Protect Khrushchev

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Worried security officials worked today to devise airtight arrangements to protect Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev during his visit to the United States next month.

One local police official, accustomed to guarding VIP visitors, said Khrushchev's visit was likely to touch off protests by organized groups and individuals "who just plain don't like the guy or Russia."

The official said Khrushchev was sure to attract more demonstrators than his deputy, Premier Fról R. Korlov and Anastas I. Mikoyan, who visited here recently, because the Russian leader is much better known in this country. A major international incident would be caused if Khrushchev is harmed while in the United States.

State Department security officers will have primary responsibility for guarding the Soviet chief. They will be aided by the Secret Service, FBI, local police here and in other cities Khrushchev will tour, and the Russian's own guards.

The security forces held the first of a series of planning sessions within hours after Premier Eisenhower announced Monday that Khrushchev was coming. District of Columbia police held a similar planning meeting.

One veteran security man said if any incidents do happen, "it won't be for lack of trying to prevent them."

Eisenhower told reporters in announcing the visit that Russian officials had been alerted to the fact that there were "uncontrolled individuals" in this country. He said he was certain "that we can control this matter."

Mikoyan's party was pelted with eggs and vegetables at some places. In addition, the Russians were picketed by refugees from Hungary and other Soviet satellite nations. Police received some telephone bomb threats which turned out to be hoaxes.

Inventories of manufacturers at the end of June stood at $32.1 billion, a rise of $500 million from the close of May, the Commerce Department reported, with all of the gain in durables. New orders of all manufacturing firms rose $600 million, all in durables. Manufacturers sales were up $600 million equally divided between durable and nondurable goods.

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I love my husband and I know he loves me. We have five children from the ages of two to twelve years old. My husband is a good provider. We've never fought over anything, but now I have a problem. He plays cards almost every night - so he says.

But the men he says he plays cards with say they don't play with him. I am very confused. Should I ask for the truth or should I try to keep our home together and be quiet?

UNDECIDED DEAR UNDECIDED: A home in order to be kept together must have a sturdy foundation. Mutual honesty is the cornerstone. You'll never get rid of termites by ignoring them. Nor will you solve your problem by closing your eyes to the table... and ask your husband to do likewise. Now that he's dealt you a full house - call his bluff.

DEAR ABBY: I wish the woman who signed herself "RECKLESS DRIVER'S WIFE" would read this. Maybe she'd think twice before she let her husband drive again. Five months ago my husband was killed by a reckless driver. He left me with three children, ages 5, 3 and 1. I am 23 years old.

The reckless driver who hit him is now serving time in prison. But that doesn't bring my husband back. No mother enjoys telling her children why Daddy isn't coming home any more. Believe me, I have suffered many sleepless nights because of a reckless driver. Thanks, Abby, for letting me tell my story to millions of people. It's true. EVERY heart-breaking word of it.

YOUNG WIDOW DEAR ABBY: My problem is a sweet little niece who is 14 (almost 15). She thinks she is in love with a 24-year-old man who works at the neighborhood grocery store. She runs there every evening and asks him for a ride home in... the market truck. He takes her for a spin around the block and then have five children from the ages of two to twelve years old. My last name, but firmly believes she's in love with him. She won't listen to her mother. (She says she's "old-fashioned.") Please say something in your column (she reads it faithfully) before this crush gets out of hand.

AUNTY DEAR AUNTY: This crush cannot get out of hand if she leaves the grocery store on foot. Ask the Romeo at the market to co-operate by explaining to her that he isn't allowed to have riders in the truck.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is 24. He's just been divorced and is living at home again. He is robust, gainfully employed and is buying an automobile and motorcycle on time. He is on the go seven nights a week.

DISAGREEING PARENTS DEAR PARENTS: A 24-year-old "boy" is a man. He should, in my opinion, contribute the same amount at home that it would cost him to live in a hotel-for-rooming-house plus his board and laundry. You do him no favor by supporting him when he is able to support himself.

The first day back at school means a lot to any teenager. She'll see friends she hasn't seen all summer. She's eager to look well, to do well both in classes and fun. This teenager uses complexion brush (left) to get her skin into glowing shape. She gives herself a daily soapsuds facial and uses the only make-up she needs: powder and lipstick. Morning or evening, she polishes her hair and keeps it healthy (center) with 100 s'rokes of the brush. She's careful to shampoo her hair once or twice a week. And here she is, ready for classes, ready to see her friends and ready to have fun (right).

RUTH MILLETT Now is Time For All Teenagers To Start "School Days" Beauty Routine

By LUCIA HART NEA Beauty Editor When school closes in June, math and history are promptly replaced by swimming and picnics. And the world seems like a fine place indeed to every girl in her teens. But if you're honest, you'll admit that summer vacation fun begins to wear a bit thin when mid-August rolls around. You find that you're looking forward to crisp autumn weather and new fall clothes. Even the busy high school days ahead are not unwelcome. Whether you're the bright gal who always leads her class, or the average student who just manages to get by, you do have one common goal. Every girl wants to lead a satisfying social life at school.

All you need to achieve the well-groomed beauty that will make you popular is a little common sense. If you look well, you'll feel well, and the confidence and poise that feeling brings can zoom up your popularity like a rocket. Daily bathing, of course, is a "must" on any beauty list. Let the rich lather prove how well it can work for you. You'll need it to remove the perspiration that results from gym classes and the grime that your desk deposits on your elbows. A leisurely, sudsy bath relaxes not only your body, but your mind, too. And that's a point to remember when you're cramming for an exam.

You will probably have fun experimenting with new make-up this fall. But no matter how artfully you learn to apply it, it won't look its best unless you pay equal attention to removing it. Pores clogged with cosmetics that have not been thoroughly washed away result in blemishes and blackheads. So wash your face carefully several times a day.

College-Bound Scholars Advised To Select Best Overall Financial Plan

NEW YORK - You can go to college even if your family can't pay for it. Loans, scholarships, part-time jobs, and taking time out to work after high school are four ways any student with the will can pay for college, reports the August back-to-school issue of Seventeen Magazine. The important thing is to combine those of the four that make up the best overall plan for you. Each has its pleasures and its pains; its happiness and its headaches; here are some tips to help you decide which were cut out for you.

LOANS These are temporary "presents" most colleges give to students who have some money, but not enough. Federal government lends good students up to $1,000 a year. A loan frees you from time-consuming part-time work, but some colleges require a borrower to earn tuition money by working summers. Most colleges defer payment until after graduation, then arrange payments to fit a postgraduate budget; interest on borrowed money is not charged until after graduation. Federal government "forgives" fifty per cent of loans to students if they become elementary school teachers. Disadvantages: To receive a loan you must pull down a B average all the time. Marriage or travel plans may have to be postponed in favor of a well-paying job until your loan is repayed. Loans never pay for everything.

SCHOLARSHIPS Scholarships are won by one million good students each year. Many don't require an all-A average; some go unclaimed. They range from $50 to enough money for full tuition and all expenses. A scholarship doesn't subtract from your college time or energy; the most expensive colleges offer the biggest scholarships. Disadvantages: A scholarship student must keep her grades up or lose her scholarship; she can't cut classes or skip on studies. Since few scholarships cover all expenses, you may have to work summers. PART-TIME JOBS Almost one-third of all college students work part time. Many colleges expect holders of scholarships or loans to earn part of their expenses. A girl who knows typing and shorthand and loves children will find job-hunting easier. A part-time job holder learns about the world and sees some of it. To men, a girl who can manage money and who isn't spoiled makes a good marriage prospect. Disadvantages: You must get to your job on time; may have to turn down midweek appointments. Jobs use up energy.

TAKING TIME OUT Working at a full-time job (for a semester or a year) after high school is the realistic strategy for students who can't swing college any other way. Some colleges give credit for night and correspondence courses taken during this time. Arriving at college with money in the bank allows time to save on lectures, proms, everything. Disadvantages: Seeing high-school friends go off to college ahead of you can hurt. You need mental and emotional agility to make the switch from a full-time job to dorm life.

Electorate Aroused About

Pending Labor Reform Bill

The Lighter Side
By FRANK FLEAZER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—One thing is sure. The electorate is aroused about the pending labor reform bill. This is not to say that it is informed.

Robert F. Kennedy, counsel for the Senate Rackets Committee, went on Jack Paar's TV show recently and told late night viewers the bill ought to be passed and to write their congressmen about it.

That's what they've been doing, too. But members of the Senate, which passed the bill long ago by a vote of 90 to 1, are beginning to wish Kennedy had been more specific.

It's The House of Representatives that hasn't yet voted.

Even Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), Bob's brother and co-sponsor of the Senate bill, has been flooded with mail. Some of it commands him sternly to vote for his bill.

The senator feels that some of the letter writers might have been a little more tactful. These are the ones who are demanding a vote for "Sen. Bob Kennedy's bill."

Thousands of Letters

Other senators have been hearing about it, too, counting their mixed-up mail in the thousands.

House members, of course, are getting their share of letters. And everybody says they're going to do something about it.

The House Labor Committee, which approved a modified version of the bill 10 days ago, finally has got out its formal report to the House. This of course is where House members learn what's in the bill.

The question, though, is which part of the report should they read? Although the committee voted for the bill 16 to 14, only 5 of the 30 members now come right out and admit that they like it.

In addition to a non-partisan, non-controversial and reasonably enlightening analysis of the measure prepared by a staff member, the report includes a "statement" by "additional dissenting" and "separate" views, with some members signing more than one of the total of 10. The whole thing is so perplexing committee clerks felt it wise to index the 106-page volume.

After approving the bill at a closed session, committee members jostled each other hurrying to the press gallery to explain why they weren't for it. Chairman Graham A. Barden (D-N.C.) who voted aye, said the bill was no good and refused to give it his name.

Rep. James Roosevelt (D-

Calif.) voted against it because it was anti-union. Rep. Carroll D. Kearns (R-Pa.) voted against it because it was pro-union.

Rep. Carl D. Perkins (D-Ky.) said the bill "has many good provisions." He voted against it. Rep. Peter Frelinghuysen Jr. (R-N.J.) called it "woefully inadequate." He voted for it.

So if Jack Paar's public is confused, who is to blame them? Certainly not Sen. Kennedy. He's getting inured to confusion.

On a plane trip the other day a lady passenger eyed him awhile, simpered a little, and finally got up courage to say, "aren't you Mr. Kennedy?" He admitted modestly that he was.

Mixed-Up Lady

"I'm so delighted to meet you," said the lady. "I watch you on TV at those labor hearings. I wanted to tell you what a wonderful job you are doing, trying to get Jimmy Hoffa!"

"Thank you ma'am," Kennedy said, "but that's not me. That's my brother, Bobby."

Embarrassed silence. Then, "I'm sorry," she said. "I realize now. But I've seen you too, in the papers and magazines. And I know how happy you must be with your wife and those lovely children out on the farm in Virginia."

"Thanks again," Kennedy said.

"That's Bobby, too."

"Well, I'm awfully sorry to have mistaken you," she said as the plane drew up to the ramp.

"But will you, be seeing your brother?"

"Yes, I will," the senator said.

"Well, take him a message for me. Tell him I'm for him, and I sure hope he gets the Democratic nomination for president."

"That," Kennedy said, "is my brother. That's me!"

Announcer To Make Debut TeeVee Play

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Jovial Don Wilson, longtime (25 years) announcer for Jack Benny, is turning his bulky talent to drama this week in a segment of TV's "Death Valley Days."

Not that the hefty Wilson has branched out in the past. He's appeared in movies without being a benefactor Benny, but always playing an announcer. This time Don portrays a cow man parading through the Old West disguised as a preacher.

"It's a very fat part," said fat Don. "I hope this departure will open new avenues of performing. It's just possible the character I'm playing will become the lead in a new series. I want people to look on Wilson as something more than an announcer."

Appears in November
The show, titled "Gates Ajar Morgan," hits the airwaves next November. Between now and then Wilson will be seen regularly on Benny's program.

"I began with Jack on radio in 1934," he called. "My work was restricted to announcing and reading commercials. As we moved along Jack made me a regular member of the cast—a character. For 17 years I was voted most popular radio announcer."

"It's been many years since I've done outright commercials on the show. Now I guess I qualify as an actor."

"All of us with Jack are fortunate to have been associated with such a great guy. He's a realer than real character."

Portly Don was encouraged by Benny earlier this year when he and his actress wife appeared together in "The Great Seascastians" at the Laguna Beach Playhouse. It started him off on the dramatic kick.

TV Types Announcers
"Television has worked a hardship on announcers," he said. "We're typed as commercial pitch artists and that's it."

"In radio, all of us used to work steadily playing hundreds of roles. Our voices were such that we weren't identified with our regular jobs. On TV we're immediately recognized."

"Harry Von Zell, of the old Burns and Allen show, became a terrific comedian in his own right. The late Bill Goodwin was another announcer who switched to playing comedy, straight roles and drama."

"Frankly, I'd prefer to play comedy roles myself. Thanks to Jack, most of the things I do on his show are humorous and he invariably gives the funny lines to members of his cast while he plays straight man."

A&M, BAYLOR COACHES ARE SUCCESSFUL RECRUITERS

FORT WORTH (UPI) — The recruiting forces of coaches Jim Myers of Texas A&M and John Bridgers of Baylor have been the most successful among the 56 stellar Texas schoolboy football players gathered here for Friday night's North-South all-star game.

Between them, they have accounted for slightly more than a third of the total with the Aggies nosing out Baylor 10 to 9 as the choice of the freshmen-to-be.

Texas, Rice and Houston were the closest with five players each; TCU and Oklahoma got four each; SMU and Texas Tech three each; North Texas, Tulane and Southwestern Texas one each. Five said they would continue their football.

The Aggies came up with Fred Deutch of Belleville, Benny Hopkins of Valley Mills, Jerry Hopkins of Mart, Alan Higgins of Houston Milby, Ben Krenek of El Campo, Danny Davidson of Rousey City, Ronnie Brice of Andrews, Mike Gieb of Garland, George Hogan of Longview and Donald Sanders of Fort Worth Paschal.

Baylor grabbed Don Adams of Groesbeck, Stuart McBirnie of San Antonio Jefferson, Max Cox of Brady, James Moore of Harlingen, Carl Choate of Pasadena, Ronald Godwin of Odessa, Bobby Sulton of Ozona, Stan Cozy of Abilene and Jeff Bearden of White Deer.

Texas got Harry Krenek of Elgin, Jerry Cook of Galena Park, Bobby Woolley of Temple, Emery Martindale of San Angelo and Leonard Alkied of Wichita Falls.

Rice got Johnny Gole, Fort Worth Carter, Wayne McCallahan of Orange, Fred Hansen of Cuero, Doug Harvey of Kingsville and Kenneth Tilton of Barbers Hill.

Houston drew Donald Davis of Stamford, Wayne Fielos of Big Spring, Pat Keller of Mason, Mike Carey of Corpus Christi Miller and Anton Merka of Granger.

TCU got Donny Smith of Taylor, Hal Stanislaw of Rockdale, Lynn Morrison of Cleburne and Jerry Davis of White Oak.

Oklahoma got O. C. Haley of Poteet, James Parker of Sweetwater, Andy Lea of Terrell and Bobby Wisnand of Electra.

SMU drew Don Campbell of Jefferson, Joe Miller of Dallas Jefferson and Raymond Schoenke of Weatherford.

Injuries Plague North Grid Squad

By ED ETE
United Press International

FORT WORTH (UPI) — The North's stock in the annual All-Star football game Friday night took a decided dip today with word that two all-star linemen had reinjured old hurts and might not be available for the contest against the South.

placed on end Leland Allred of Wichita Falls and guard Mike Gieb of Garland after they aggravated injuries, for which they had recently undergone operations.

Allred, the 6-4 end who figured heavily in North Coach Elwood Turner's plans to use a passing attack, hurt a foot from which he had some bone chips removed about six weeks ago.

Kenneth Tilton of Barbers Hill, Don Adams of Groesbeck and Dohny Smith of Tevlor, McBirnie looked sharper on the long ones.

The South scrimmaged King's single post with Tom Pennick of Houston Bellair, Jimmy Cobb of Buna, Mickey Barthe of Big Sandy, Newton Terry of Huntington and Jimmy Gilbert of Beaumont French coming in for some nice words from the coach.

NEW PROMOTER GETS TWO BIG GUARANTEES

NEW YORK (UPI) — Irving B. Kahn, new promoter of the Ingemar Johansson-Floyd Patterson return, said today he was considering two "huge guarantees" for the Sept. 22 fight, in the wake of Bill Rosenzohn's resignation as promoter.

no matter what the books show, Ingemar will get every quarter that's coming to him, even if he has to pay him out of my own pocket."

Despita Rosenzohn's resignation as president of Rosenzohn Enterprises and his offer to sell his one-third of the corporation's stock, Kahn and Vincent J. Returned black-haired Kahn only declined to state whether the big offer was from New Yorkers, hopeful of keeping the fight at Yankee Stadium where Rosenzohn had tentatively scheduled it before he withdrew from the promotion Monday.

He recalled that certain New York Millionaires had made a gross-gate guarantee of $500,000 for the June 26 fight in which Johansson won the title from Patterson; but that they had later withdrawn the guarantee which had not been backed.

EASTERN ALL-STARS EXCEL BOTH AT BAT, ON MOUND

Despite their loss in the finals of the district tournament last weekend at Hereford, the Eastern Little League All-Stars finished their season with outstanding batting and pitching records.

As a whole, the pitching staff turned in an outstanding record in every department. They won four games while losing only one, and struck out 50 batters in 30 innings while walking only 13, allowing only 18 runs, and yielding only 24 hits.

Wightman Team Named

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Members of the women's U. S. Wightman Cup team were named today as the Americans hoped to recapture the trophy from the British at the Edgeworth Club here Aug. 15 and 16.

Named to the American team were Darlene Hard, Beverly Baker Fletz, Sally Moore, Jean Arthur and co-captains Mrs. Margaret Osborne Ford and Janet Hoppers.

The championship British team, which is expected to arrive here Wednesday, includes Mrs. Bea Walter, non-playing captain, Christine Truman, Angela Mortimer, Ann Haydon and Mrs. Chris Brasher, the former Shirley Bloomer. Mrs. DuPont, chairman of the USLTA Wightman Cup committee, said the selections of the American team "were made on the basis of the players' record in tournaments for the current season, not on last year's rankings."

Led by Miss Truman's brilliant play, the British won the trophy at Wimbledon last year, 4-3, after the first time in the series since 1930 Edgeworth was the scene of a 6-1 American triumph in 1957.

The Americans hold a 25-5 advantage in the series which began in 1923 with a suspension during World War II.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The second All-Star game of 1959 was a "good production" by "hero" Yogi Berra, the managers, line players and 55,105 fans who saw the American League defeat the National League, 5-3.

is nothing wrong with this park." To ward off possible criticism of his using three Baltimore hurlers, Stengel explained he carefully asked each pitcher if he felt he was ready to throw and felt good.

But nobody felt any better than Berra who said he caught a chest-high fast ball for his homer in the third with Nellie Fox of the White Sox on base. "When I caught it I knew it was a good one and gave it the barrel-chested Yankee catcher explained.

Manager Paul Richards of the Baltimore Orioles, who uttered a pregame disgruntled criticism of his rookie hurler, Jerry Walker, being placed to pitch on one day's notice could be proud of the 20-f-0 year-old.

Things were a little quieter in the National League dressing room but manager Fred Haney of the Braves and all the players did not appear too unhappy about having lost. Haney called the second All-Star game a "good production."

Owners In New Grid Loop Vow 'No Cutting Throats'

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — Owners of the first two of six teams to make up the new professional football league said today there will be no "cut-throat competition" between the American Football League and the current National Football League.

Lamar Hunt, 28, who will field a team from Dallas, said he was the first to announce the formation of the new league, was on hand when Adams announced his entry into the "loop."

They said that there would definitely be four more teams ready for the 1960 season, and that they would be announced within the next 30 days. They are expected to be from New York, Denver, Los Angeles and the Minneapolis-St. Paul area.

Two additional teams will be added in 1961. Hunt and Adams, both millionaires, said the new league has a verbal agreement with the National Football League to honor each other's contracts and that there will be an unlimited television policy.

Putting Meet Results Told

W. T. Fain and A. D. Prichard tied for the men's singles title Sunday in the putting tournament at Pampa Country Club, sponsored by the Women's Golf Association. Each had a 5-under-par 21.

Yields, Only Two Hits

Walker, the youngest pitcher to start an All-Star game, got credit for the win as he gave up two hits and one run in the first three innings. American League manager Casey Stengel used three Baltimore hurlers despite Richards' criticism, sending in Hoyt Wilhelm for one inning and Billy O'Dell for one.

Yields, Only Two Hits

The second All-Star game proved a financial success with gross receipts of $283,120. The net receipts after taxes were $262,326.47. In the first All-Star game at Pittsburgh, the crowd of 35,777 paid a gross $229,836 through the gates with a net of $194,302.46. "It was a good game," a well-played game," Stengel commented in the clubhouse. "And there were a lot of fans."

House Labor Bill Will Be Subject Of Congress Debate

The big question in this country is "What kind of labor bill will the Congress pass?" The Senate has already adopted its version. Many have argued the Senate Bill is not strong enough, because it did not include the McClellan Amendments. On the other hand it is being argued in many quarters that the Senate Bill is much stronger than the House Bill recently reported. The House Bill will probably be the subject of debate in the Congress by the time you receive this letter or shortly thereafter.

It is contemplated that several substitutes may be offered to take the place of the House Bill. Whether or not any of these will be adopted is highly conjectural but it can be expected there will be many amendments to the measure. What its final form will be, no one knows. But, when it is completed the contest between the House and the Senate will be in reconciling the differences between the two bills.

It is generally conceded that the American public demands the passage of legislation effectively prohibiting racketeering and gangsterism in the unions. This is a primary requirement by the people of this country, and rightfully so. The racketeering and gangsterism which has been exposed should never have been permitted in the first place. A great number of the acts alleged to have been committed in carrying on violence by many of these groups constituted violations of the criminal statutes of the states in which these acts occurred. I am at a loss to understand why these violators were not prosecuted and sent to prison where they belong.

Ex-convicts, racketeers, gangsters and every other kind of hoodlums, who have weasled their way into these organizations, will surely destroy them unless they are removed. It is entirely unfair to the honest, sincere, law-abiding laboring people of this nation to permit these practices to continue. They bring honest union officials

HARRIMAN LAUDS NIXON

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former New York Gov. Averell Harriman praised Vice President Richard M. Nixon Sunday for standing up to Nikita Khrushchev in their public debate at the U.S. Exhibition in Moscow two weeks ago. "I was glad to see that happen," Harriman, a former U.S. ambassador to Moscow, said on a television program. "Mr. Khrushchev has gone a round the world boasting about a lot of things, saying a lot of things against the United States, and I was glad to see him 'called' by an American."

From Adrain we had Rev. Johnnie Williams, who is pastor of the Methodist Church at Adrain, and his daughter, Marlene, and her friend, Paula Creitz. They were vacationing in and near Washington, and were going on to New York.

Self-Control

Rose Wilder Lane is the author of this statement: "Freedom is self-control, no more, no less. And with the statement we are in hearty accord. But there is an interesting area of mental exploration exposed by the statement. Perhaps all of us could profit by a penetrating analysis of the meaning of the phrase. Let's ask this question: "Does my freedom depend upon YOUR self-control or upon MY self-control?" Most persons, almost without taking time to draw a full breath, respond, "Of course, my freedom depends upon YOUR self-control. If you won't control yourself in respect to me, obviously I won't be free."

Living In Saigon

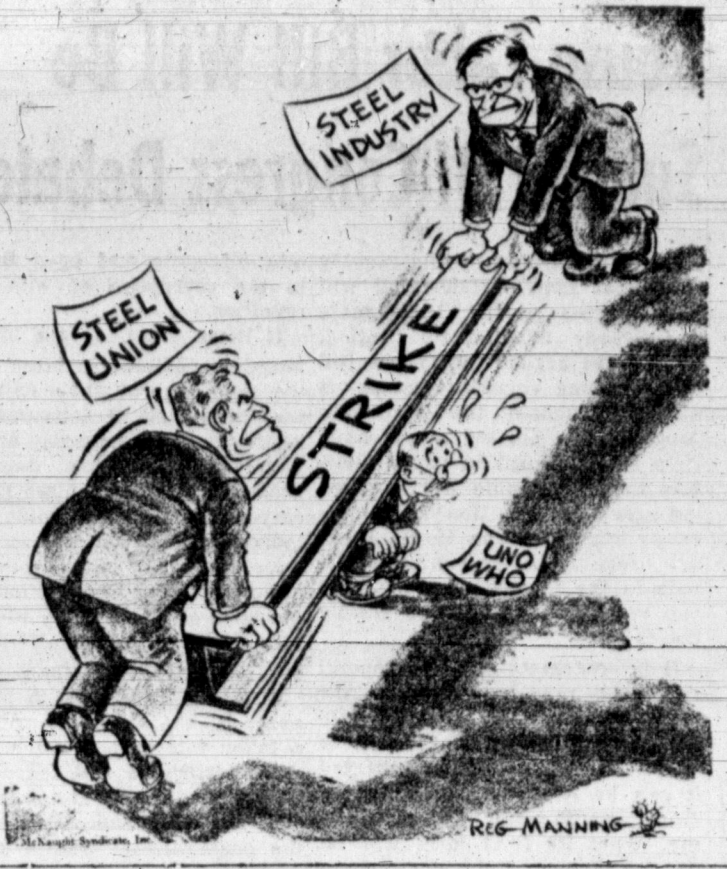

There seems to be an impression in a number of minds that the life of the State Department dignitary who travels far away from his home for a series of days as a representative of this nation is fraught with discomfort and peril. This impression is assiduously promoted by our government, which seeks to offset the "peril" and "discomfort" by offering all kinds of financial inducements to the person who will agree to go. A case in point is found in Viet Nam. According to the rumors, pressures for our State Department excess personnel in that far away place are enormous and life is tough and dangerous. We are indebted to the Scripps-Howard newspapers for a series of articles which expose this completely fallacious assumption. According to the series of articles to which we refer, the moment the average government worker gets off his tax-paid-for plane ride in Saigon, he is in for a two-year stretch of luxurious living he will probably never achieve again in a lifetime. For example, all U.S. government civilians living in Viet Nam receive bonuses amounting to 20 percent of their base pay. In addition to this and to compensate for the "high cost of living," an unmarried civilian receives $400 extra pay a year and a family man draws $800. Let's examine this "high cost of living" item. In Saigon, a mile taxicab ride costs about 16 cents in American money, including tip. If you wish, you can cover the same distance in a human-powered pedicab for less than a dime. Scotch whisky, supposedly an item of necessity in these climes, is available to American civilians at the Navy operated commissary (for government employees on duty) at $2 a quart. Even in civilian stores the same bottle will cost less than $5. Cigarettes at the commissary are 10 cents a pack. But to make certain that none of our hard-working State Department people are really up against it, the government furnishes them with free rent and pays for all utilities. Here is about what the typical

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. BOLLES

People's Padre A friend of mine loaned me "People's Padre" by Emmett McLoughlin, a former Catholic Priest. It was rather an interesting book, although it seemed to me to be unnecessarily vindictive. I had read "Transition" by Will Durant, who was studying to be a Catholic priest and couldn't go through with it and had to give it up. It was not a book that had the same "Padre" book hall. McLoughlin was a Catholic Priest stationed at Phoenix, Arizona. The book was written in 1954 and has had 14 printings. The publisher claims there are 1,000 books being sold a week. Undoubtedly the reason the sales are so large is that a lot of people like to read something that makes them believe they are superior to others. Of course, if the Catholics believe in their infallibility, they don't just like other people do who believe they are right. I used to have an editor who said it didn't make much difference what organized church was predominant in a territory or a country, it would be pretty hard to live with. This is true because, as Lord Acton said: "All power tends to corrupt, and absolute power corrupts absolutely." If an organization can, undoubtedly, followers believe they are going to hell and be eternally punished if they do not obey explicitly, it is inclined to exalt those doing the interpreting. McLoughlin makes one amusing remark in the book, where one Protestant preacher complained that it was not much use to preach about hell in Phoenix to get members because it was so hot there that it didn't seem to scare people into joining the church. He objected to the Catholics wanting to move him from Phoenix. I think they were perfectly justified in wanting to move him. The reason was that he was in politics, head over heels. He was advocating the use of initiated force by way of taxation and he didn't even seem to know that this was a violation of the Covenants and the Stealing Commandments. In fact, they had a perfect right to remove him from being a priest because of his lack of understanding of the eternal natural laws that govern human relations and the universe. He still calls himself Reverend, and evidently thinks that it is all right to use the tax pistol to scare people but not all right to threaten of excommunication. Of course, the Catholics, like other strong religious organizations, try to guide what their members read. McLoughlin seems to think it is great credit that he was able to force everybody in the United States to help pay to build houses in the Phoenix suburbs to improve the physical well-being of those privileged to get something for less than cost. He seems to think that is Christianity, but he seems to fail to realize that that is far different from voluntary assistance which certainly is an essential element in Christianity. He quotes John Wesley, founder of the Methodist Church, trying to show how different the Methodists used to be in John Wesley's time from the Catholics. He quotes Wesley as saying: "Whoever imagines that a Methodist is a man of such and such an opinion is grossly ignorant of the whole affair. The distinguishing marks of a Methodist are not his opinions at all. I am sick of opinions; give me a humble gentle lover of God and of man. (Protestant) Christianity is essentially a social religion." However, McLoughlin failed to quote John Wesley as saying: "If you've got to give up witchcraft, you've got to give up the Bible" and that certainly is pretty strong opinion. The Methodists, of course, used to prohibit dancing and card playing and various other forms of innocent recreation. They, of course, have changed in recent years. It is certainly an entirely different kind of book than Will Durant's "Transition" in his departing from becoming a Catholic priest. It seems to me when the Catholic organization spends a lot of energy in training a priest, he has, of course, a right to cancel the contract, but the contract remains. For the organization, it seems to me, for the energy they have spent in carrying out their part of the contract.

Which Side Will Bend First?

The Allen-Scott Report ROBERT S. ALLEN PAUL SCOTT

RICKOVER BLAMES 'SLOPPINESS' FOR MISSILE TEST FAILURE WASHINGTON - Three factors behind those numerous gravely disturbing failures in ballistic missile tests are - indolent business management, defective workmanship and negligent inspection. That's the blunt opinion of Admiral Hyman Rickover. The Navy's top nuclear expert voiced these characteristically outspoken views in response to questions at a private meeting of the House Appropriations Committee shortly before accompanying Vice President Nixon to Russia. Other jolting pronouncements made by Rickover were: "Ten nuclear submarines could keep the Atlantic Ocean swept of surface ships." "Russia has the shipyard capacity to build 100 nuclear submarines and will be able to outfit them in a very few years if we permit that." "Too much money is being wasted on research and development. We could get more and go further by cutting out various projects and concentrating on certain activities." "A minimum of another $1 billion and possibly another five years will be necessary to develop an atomic-powered plane." "We have a humbug gadget which has become - Rickover pointed an accusing finger at industry when asked by Representative Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.), chairman, "Why are we having so many missile failures?" "One reason is the lack of attention to many small details, particularly by business management. Too often these executives turn their jobs from push-offices. Except for hearsay, they don't know what is really going on. We have had the same problem with our nuclear shipbuilding program." "For example, Two weeks ago I visited a large shipbuilding company. The general manager told me that many of the items they are receiving are defective, despite the fact they have been inspected by both industry and government inspectors. Notwithstanding this, many of the important items that come to this large shipyard are defective in one way or another. This is an area where our industry can improve a great deal. In my opinion it is where we are falling down as a nation. We think we are so much better than everyone else that we don't realize how much sloppiness has entered into many of our organizations. For our security and progress, it is essential that there be widespread improvement in management and technical standards." NEEDLING THE NAVY - The Navy also came in for some blunt chiding in Rickover's answers. He inferred strongly it is building "too many obsolescent ships." This serious criticism was voiced when he was asked by Chairman Cannon, "Just what programs would you push and what projects would you eliminate?" "I would spend more money on nuclear submarines, destroyers and aircraft carriers," replied the Admiral. "We now have five nuclear submarines, and are building or planning to build 28 more. We should be building 100, including attack submarines. We have the lead in nuclear submarines and should exploit it." "It's unwise for the Navy to build obsolescent ships. For example, There are three conventional destroyer leaders in the 1960 shipbuilding program. For an additional $40 million, these ships could be made nuclear-powered. I know there is a dollar problem. But I also know it is a grave error to build second-best weapons. In war you either win or lose; there is no such thing as coming out second." Representative Joe Evins (D., Tenn.) wanted to know if "Con-

NEW YORK - It is simply not possible to take a short walk on either side of Broadway between 44th Street and 54th Street, a cement glass lined with hoards of flint and ambitious like cold-rolled steel, without running afoul of at least four young men who look you in the eye and tell you that if they could find the script of a new play they liked, and if they could pin down a theater and if they could get together say $80,000, they would forthwith become Broadway producers and like as not set the woods on fire. All they ever set on fire is their old bills which they can't pay. But even though it was raining the other afternoon, I took the prescribed walk and ran into a young man who has learned just about all there is to learn about the English language, except the word "if." I don't think he knows it exists. He has found a script, he has a theater, he has an impresario, his father was an impresario, his tutor on the side was Michael Chekhov. He was a ripe, experienced 14-year-old when he directed his first play at the Klau-na Theater in Poland. The name of the play will astonish you, but he chose to do it: "Uncle Tom's Cabin." "How did you happen, at 14 or any other age, to select that chronicle?" I asked this dynamic, fast-talking young man. "It's theme of repression intrigued me," he said. "I had no vast philosophy about such things, but repression, which was engulfing all of us at that time, fascinated me. Perhaps this was no adolescent lashing out." Not long after that, he was thrust into the first of several concentration camps. He had, at school, organized the first Polish youth jazz orchestra. A little combo of five pieces? Not quite, he said with a smile. It was 40 instruments and it did fine. It and "Uncle Tom" were earning him some fame if no money when the Germans walked in. He arrived in the United States in 1947 as a Displaced Person. Now, let's pay some attention to the orchestra. In 12 years, Buckhantz has done this way: First, a job. He wanted to earn his keep. The job was as mail boy at the 20th Century-Fox film studios. Studios abound in mail boys. Many of them stay as such or quit and go on to other things, like selling cars or real estate. Inside of the first year he had so impressed the executives to whom he delivered mail that they gave him permission, when he asked for it, to organize the Studio School Players Co. Did he use extra kids and unknown writers because he couldn't hope for better? He did not. He induced seasoned, highly-paid writers like George Seaton and Robert Hill to write original little musical comedies for him. Then he went up front and asked for permission to put a girl named Marilyn Monroe in one of them. The Hollywood bills did not crumble, nor did the studio dissolve. They said, sure, if she wants to. She wanted to. By 1950 he had done six of these and CBS, offered him a job, as floor manager for TV. This is like a stage manager in a play. Inside four years he was a top director and for the last five years has directed more than 130 dramatic shows for both CBS and NBC. "How do you account for your success here?" I said. "You have to admit it was something like a rocket going off." "You have really to want to be something," he said. "If you want it hard enough - it happens. It's not a new thought but it is true. Who wants to be a mail boy all his life? Who's finding more than a quarter of a million willing dollars?" "Go where they are - Texas, Oklahoma, New York. Tell the people what you want to do - and they'll go along with you."

San Marino's Standing Army Mostly Sits!

By HENRY MCLEMORE

San Marino - This is the oldest, smallest tourist trap - I mean Republic - in the world. I won't bore you with statistics, but will just tell you that if you stand on the shoulders of a tall citizen you can look around and see everybody else in the country. San Marino has a standing army of 25 or 40, and it mostly sits, which is bad for the uniforms, which are strictly musical comedy. Privates look like generals, and generals look like distinguished heads of Burial Societies. The Republic perches on a mountain peak some 15 miles inland from Rimini and the Adriatic coast. It does a brisk business in stamps, which are turned out in batches almost every day, just as a farmer's wife does biscuits. There is also a good trade in citizenships. If you are a mad without a country, and have $20,000 to spare, you can start voting in San Marino next week. San Marino also sells titles across the counter. They start at $2,500 for a knight but if it's a Duke you want to be, you'd better have ten times that. It's all cash on the barrelhead, else I'd seriously consider making a down payment and leave here as His Grace. For the large part, though, San Marino lives on tourists. Bustards of them chug up the steep, curving road toward the castle atop the mountain peak, from dawn to dusk. The parking lots, and I am sure that half of the Republic's area is reserved for parking, are packed all the time. Most of the other space is devoted to stalls, booths, tiny stores and Lilliputian bazaars, selling everything under the bright sun. Ninety-five per cent of the population works at selling souvenirs to tourists, and they make no pretense of not being out for all they can get. Let other tourist traps - and Europe has its full share - try to disguise their main purpose in life if they want to but not San Marino. The Republic is refreshing in its frank, smiling determination to part the tourist from his dollars, marks, francs, shillings, pounds, or whatever he has in his wallet. A great deal of the merchandise looks as if it had been bought at a fire sale from a carnival midway, but having come out of his way to get to San Marino, the tourist always buys something to prove he made the trip. Take me, for example. I bought Mary a dandy little pin, shaped like a banjo and made from the best grade clay available in San Marino. It does not matter that the pin part broke when she tried to fasten it on her sweater. The only thing that is free in San Marino is the scenery, and it's wonderful. From the ramparts of the castle you can see fifty country miles, with the blue Adriatic on one side, and a mass of mountains on the other. Maybe I'd better stop before the lyric poet in me breaks out.

The Nations Press

A DEMOCRATIC SPLIT (N. Y. Daily News)

has opened up, with Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler denouncing his party's professional leaders for conservatism and kowtowing to the President, and Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) cracking back that Butler's remarks won't help the party a little bit in the 1960 elections. What irks Butler is that Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson and House Speaker Sam Rayburn (both of Texas) have sensed a widespread grassroots yearning for some economy in government, and are trying to take the economy play away from President Eisenhower and his fellow Republicans. Before the Republicans get too happy about the Democratic split, though, they'd better reflect that the Democrats habitually fight one another between elections but vote together at ballot time - and why can't the Republicans acquire that habit, too?

It is entirely possible that Soviet claims for launching an accurate intercontinental missile are pure bluff. The celebrated story of the "Lunik" launching (which was supposed to have passed the moon and fallen in orbit around the sun) was given to the world on Friday, January 2, 1959. This was a holiday weekend when few of the Free World's scientists were at their posts. This would have been an ideal time to pull a propaganda trick. After making a worldwide survey, Lloyd Mallan in "True Magazine" (May, 1959) reports that, in his opinion, that was what was done. Professor Bernard Lovell, at England's famed Jodrell Bank radio observatory, who WAS on duty, failed to pick up a trace of "Lunik." Neither did any of the 90,000 members throughout the world of the American Radio Relay League. Drs. Nakada and Tachibana, top Japanese tracking scientists, publishing in "Astronautics" that they "could not acknowledge the existence of our own findings." All of this gives weight to General Nathan Twining's statement, "THERE'S NOTHING TO IT" when asked about reports of Russia's operational ICBM's. JACK MOFFITT

Bid For A Smile

A Navy recruit on guard had strict orders to admit no car unless it bore a sign that said "I am a car carrying a high ranking officer." He heard the brass instructor's chauffeur "Drive right through. Recruit (definitely) - I'm sorry, sir, but I'm new at this. Who do I shoot you or the driver?" "Much that we may be thought cannot waste his said." "George - How do Henry gettin' along with school, Eight?" "Not bad, they learnin' him to spell later with a 'p'." "The dead old lady went to live near one of the naval parks. Shortly afterwards, a battleship fired a salute of 16 guns. The old lady, who lived alone, got out of her chair, smoothed down her dress, patted her hair, and said sweetly, "Come in."

Texan Becomes 'Aficionado' Of Bullfights, Spanish Women

By ERNEST COATES
United Press International

MADRID (UPI) — More than two years in Spain has made Texan Mordon Carthew - Yorstoun of Dallas an "aficionado" (fan) of bullfights and Spanish women.

Carthew — called Charley by his friends here — came to Spain in May, 1957 to learn Spanish and Spanish history at the University of Madrid.

He lives in a three-room apartment in downtown Madrid. "When I came here I used to go to nearly every bullfight in Madrid," 30-year-old Carthew said. "Now I know more about them. I only go when top fighters are on the card."

Likes Bullfights
"I guess I've seen about seven-five fights. I like them," Carthew has also seen bullfights in Mexico. He said he could not compare the standards of fights in the two countries as he had only seen low-ranked fights in Mexico.

He was born in San Antonio but raised in Dallas. He was educated at Woodrow Wilson High School, Allen Military Academy at Bryan, Tex., and spent four years at southern Methodist University in Dallas. He graduated from there in 1950.

Carthew's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Carthew - Yorstoun, live at 5953 Joyce Way, Dallas.

Through the University of Madrid, Carthew has studied Spanish and Spanish history. He's under one of the University professors. He has finished all courses except Spanish grammar.

At the same time he held down a full-time administrative job in the office of a sub-contractor to the United States military base construction program.

Praises Women
Carthew has become an admirer of Spanish women, whom he calls "the most beautiful women in the world."

"They're very feminine and know how to take care of themselves as women," he said. "There's no chance of me getting caught by them though."

Spain and the Spanish way of life has not disappointed Carthew. He has visited North Africa and travelled over most of Spain in his Volkswagen car.

"I feel right at home here," Carthew said. "A lot of the land is arid like in Texas, though I like the dry heat here better."

"I didn't know what I'd find when I came here so I didn't have any illusions shattered. I've come to like the Spanish people. Their character and customs are the most distinctive in Europe."

Cites Incentive Lack
Carthew believes that the most clear-cut difference between Spain and the United States is the lack of imagination and opposite basic philosophy here.

"There's not much incentive in Spain for a man to work hard. He can't get rich overnight as he can in some other countries," Carthew said.

"I wouldn't be interested in working hard either for their salary of around two thousand pesetas (40 dollars) a month."

Carthew shares his apartment with another American. They employ a full-time maid for 700 pesetas ($14) a month and board and lodging.

"She's a fantastic worker," he said. "She's very honest and clean and works from early morning until late at night."

More Night Clubs
Carthew has found Madrid of few more entertainment than Dallas.

"There's more to do here," he said. "There are more night clubs and they stay open until four in the morning. A man doesn't have to go home early because everything's shut."

"The legitimate theater is really alive, too. I go regularly and also attend Sunday morning symphony concerts."

Though he is happy here, Carthew wants to return home to Dallas.

"I plan to return home after touring Europe by car this summer," he said. "Back there I want to make use of my experience by establishing business relations between Texas and Spanish firms."

PAY HIRES GIVEN
DALLAS (UPI) — Pay increases have been given to about 1,000 Lone Star Steel Co. employees, E. B. Germany, company president, said Saturday. Germany said the pay raises averaging more than five cents an hour will increase Lone Star Steel's monthly payroll by about $10,000. He said the pay-hikes will be retroactive to July 1.
