Strange Partnership Is Formed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department and eight major news organizations find themselves as strange bedfellows this week in legal moves against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's investigation of him and find out who leaked information to the press.

The Justice Department planned to submit a brief today in response to Agnew's argument that "malicious and outrageous" news leaks have tainted the federal prosecutors' case that he may have received kickbacks from engineering and architectural contractors when he was Baltimore county executive and governor of Maryland.

At the same time, attorneys for reporters subpoenaed Friday under orders of U.S. District Judge Walter E. Hoffman prepared to hoist the First Amendment to prevent disclosure of their sources.

Lawyers for the eight publications and networks met Sunday to plan strategy, which will probably involve filing a motion today or Tuesday seeking to quash the subpoenas. Failing in that effort, they could appeal the denial and seek postponement of the reporters' scheduled court appearance Thursday.

Another possibility is that the reporters would appear before Hoffman as scheduled and then refuse to reveal the source of their stories, making them subject to contempt citations that could be appealed to a higher court.

Reporters subpoenaed Friday by Agnew's lawyers work for the Washington Post and its subsidiary Newsweek magazine, the Washington Star-News, the New York Times, the New York Daily News, Time magazine, the National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting Co.

Joseph Califano, attorney for the Post and Newsweek, said Friday his clients considered the subpoenas an "invasion of their rights and the rights of the public under the First Amendment to the Constitution."

President Is Elected

DALLAS (UPI) — Empire Drilling Co. president Sherman M. Hunt, the son of pioneer Texas oil man and rancher Sherman Hunt, today was elected president of Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

Hunt, the association's 24th president, succeeds Robert A. Buschman of San Antonio, the president and general manager of Field Drilling Co.

The 3,100-member association's executive committee also selected Roger S. Plummer Jr. of Fort Worth to replace Hunt as a district vice president for North Central Texas. Plummer is the president of Champlin Petroleum Co.

Vice presidents re-elected included E. L. Ames Jr., Southwest Texas; J. S. Blanton, Upper Gulf Coast; W. W. Carter, Panhandle; H. B. Harkins, Lower Gulf Coast; A. V. Jones Jr., West Central Texas; N. E. Loomis, East Texas; James L. Morris, Permian Basin, and W. M. Thacker Jr., North Texas.

Gray County Receives Revenue Sharing Funds

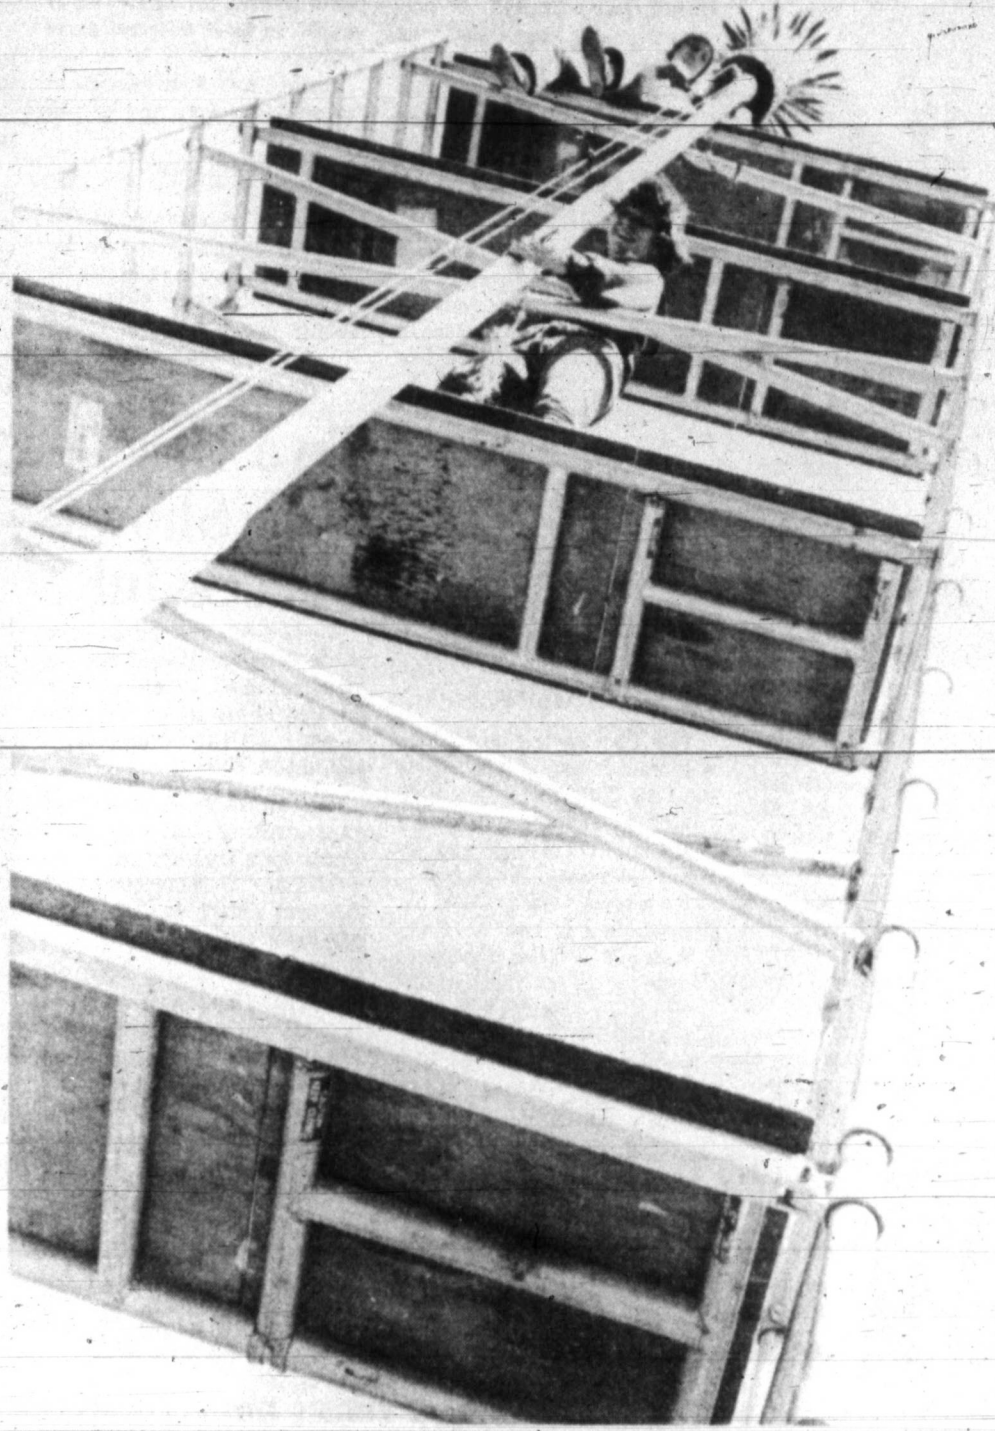

Gray County received a Federal Revenue Sharing check today for $50,822.

The amount covers the first quarter of the fourth entitlement period from July 1 through Sept. 30 of this year.

County Judge Don Cain said today's check was $908 less than the $51,730 check in revenue sharing funds received in the last quarter.

Gray County has received a total of $329,538 in revenue sharing money since the checks began flowing from Washington in January of this year.

The county judge said Gray County also has earned $3,658.37 in interest on federal

From Kissinger Congressman Bob Price Requests An Explanation

Texas Panhandle Congressman Bob Price of Pampa has requested a full explanation from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger of a reported agreement to cancel some $2 billion in rupees owed the United States by the Government of India.

Citing the serious U.S. balance of payments deficit with foreign nations and our nation's own huge public debt, Price said he finds it incredible that representatives of the U.S. government would cancel a debt owed by a foreign nation.

"This is especially true in light of the fact that while India claims poverty in repaying the United States, somehow the Indian Government has had sufficient funds to wage a war with Pakistan and purchase war materials from the U.S.S.R.," Price added in the letter to Kissinger.

The 13th District Congressman, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, also asked Kissinger why the debt was originally incurred if the U.S. had not expected repayment.

why a more equitable arrangement such as interest reduction had not been negotiated, whether India's other creditor nations were also canceling their debts, and whether India had made any concessions favorable to the United States in return for the cancellation.

In a separate action, Price voted "no" last Thursday in the House of Representatives on a bill to appropriate additional dollars to international financial institutions to compensate for the recent devaluation of the dollar on international money markets.

The House approved the bill, 274 to 90, to raise the fiscal 1974 contribution to the World Bank and other such international financial institutions from $1.6 billion to $2,203,000,000.

Assassination Attempt Is Foiled On Cyprus

NICOSIA (UPI) — Police launched a manhunt across Cyprus today in search of guerrillas who set off land mines in an abortive attempt to assassinate President Archbishop Makarios.

Police said the plot failed when four mines exploded prematurely Sunday morning, five minutes before Makarios passed on the way to a religious feast at the village of Agios Serghios.

Security agents seized a 23-year-old waiter and accused him of manning a detonator in a dugout beside the road. They said he admitted setting off the explosions.

Police said the waiter, Kyriakos Tsokouras of Famagusta, gave interrogators the names of several accomplices, all allegedly guerrillas supporting union with Greece and opposing Makarios' policy of keeping Cyprus independent.

Makarios, cheered by villagers as he arrived to officiate at the mass, called the attempt on his life a plan "to undermine the nation."

It was the second time guerrillas have tried to kill the Cypriot leader.

In March, 1970, his helicopter was strafed by machine gun fire as he was flying to attend mass at a country monastery. The helicopter crashed, severely wounding its pilot, but Makarios escaped unharm.

Makarios has repeatedly accused Gen. George Grivas, the 75-year-old leader of guerrillas, with planning his assassination. Grivas has denied the charges.

Grivas guerrillas have stepped up their activities in recent months.

Middle East Reports

Russia Labels Israel
MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev said today the Soviet Union was "prepared as before" to help insure a stable peace in the Middle East.

Speaking at a luncheon honoring visiting Premier Kakuei Tanaka of Japan, the general secretary of the Soviet Communist party labeled Israel the aggressor in the current fight.

Hussein Is Cautious
BEIRUT (UPI) — King Hussein of Jordan, who had his fingers badly burned by intervening in the six day war against Israel in June, 1967, is playing it cool and cautiously this time.

But there are indications he may be considering entering the battle.

Ship Is Seized
ATHENS (UPI) — Syrian gunboats Sunday seized a Greek cruise ship carrying 250 tourists, most of them Americans, but the Syrian government announced within hours the vessel was free to leave.

Council In Session
UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. Security Council summoned diplomats into emergency session today to act on a United States request for immediate debate on the Middle East crisis.

Nixon Contacts Russia Regarding Middle East

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has personally contacted Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev in hopes of enlisting Brezhnev's support in ending the Arab-Israeli war, the White House said today.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told reporters that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger also has conferred with Ambassador Huang Chen, head of the Chinese liaison office in Washington, in an effort to mobilize broadest support for ending the hostilities.

Ziegler said that Nixon exchanged diplomatic messages with Brezhnev after the President returned to the White House Sunday night from Key Biscayne, Fla., where his long weekend was interrupted by developments in the Middle East.

Kissinger also has been in touch with both the Egyptians, and the Israelis, as well as discussing the U.S. position with the permanent members of the U.N. Security Council.

Ziegler said that Nixon did not use the U.S. "Hot Line" to talk with Brezhnev, and that the contacts had been made through normal diplomatic channels. Ziegler would not detail the American initiative, nor would he indicate whether Nixon had been successful in enlisting Brezhnev's support for U.S. efforts to end the conflict.

In remarks today in his Oval Office where he met with Kissinger, Nixon referred to the situation as a "crisis." He canceled a planned appearance in Carthage, Tenn., Saturday, where he was to have dedicated a dam, in order to remain at the White House to keep abreast of developments.

"Our diplomatic efforts are aimed at the objective of mobilizing all nations which have an interest in the area and all nations which have an impact in the area to bring the hostilities to an end," Ziegler told newsmen.

Though Ziegler gave no indication of the Soviet response to Nixon's appeal that it use its influence to urge restraint on its Arab allies, both nations pledged in a pact signed May 29 to avoid situations which might lead to a direct confrontation between the two superpowers.

Ziegler declined to say specifically what plan, if any, the United States would present at the Security Council meeting—or whether it was circulating possible cease-fire plans among diplomats.

Ziegler stressed that Kissinger had been in "equal touch" with both sides in the war.

Initial congressional reaction supported the President's call for an emergency meeting of the U.N. Security Council. "I think he's following the only feasible course. I support him 100 per cent in what he's undertaking," said Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont.

But when asked what he thought the chances were that the Security Council would take effective action, Mansfield said "Based on past performance, not too good. But I don't know what else we could do."

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called the U.N. move the "best course," although without assurance of success.

"It's the best thing there is," Fulbright said. "I can think of no better alternative. I do not think the United States ought to unilaterally intervene, or Russia. It ought to be a collective action, and it should start with the Security Council."

Israelis Claiming Rout

By United Press International
Israel said today its reinforced and regrouped armed forces had counterattacked the invading Syrian and Egyptian armies and that Egyptian tanks which crossed the Suez Canal into the Sinai Peninsula were being routed. The Arab nations denied it.

Israel claimed mastery of the air following deep penetration raids into Egypt and Syria, including attacks on five Syrian air bases today, and said its planes and ground troops shot down 15 Egyptian planes over the Sinai and several Syrian planes over the Golan Heights.

A Cairo communique said the Egyptian forces were in complete command of the whole eastern bank of the Suez Canal and were advancing into the Israeli-held Sinai. The Arabs reported more than 150 Israeli planes shot down—about a third of the Israeli strike force.

An Israeli military spokesman said most of the Syrian anti-aircraft batteries in the Golan Heights had been destroyed, that the Israelis were attempting to encircle a Syrian tank brigade and that the situation in the Heights had eased enough to permit evacuated settlers to return.

The 1973 Middle East War began at 2 p.m. Saturday (8 a.m. EDT) when Israel and United Nations observers reported the Arabs struck into Israel on two fronts. The Arabs accused Israel of starting the war and pledged to continue it until all occupied lands are liberated from Israeli occupation.

Israeli military commentators said Israeli strategy was to block the two invaders and then counterattack. An official spokesman said today, "The holding action has been concluded. Our forces are repulsing the enemy."

Frontline military reporters said the Israeli air force had knocked out the dozen or so pontoon bridges across the Suez Canal and that 400 or so Egyptian tanks were now trapped. Tonight, the Israeli National Radio reported the "routing" of those tanks.

The Israeli command said the Arabs had suffered heavy losses, including 90 aircraft and helicopters, but it refused to disclose its own casualties in fending off the attacking Arabs for two days.

An Israeli military spokesman, broadcasting to the nation, said the situation on both the Egyptian Suez Canal front and the Syrian Golan Heights line was "encouraging," the initiative on the field of battle has turned to the Israelis.

Cairo Radio gave a far different picture of the situation. A communique broadcast at 1:40 p.m. (7:40 a.m. EDT) said:

"The eastern bank is now completely in the hands of our forces."

Syrian communiques reported their troops had liberated large areas of the Golan Heights, that tanks and troops were advancing rapidly under Syrian air cover and that Syria during the day had shot down 32 Israeli planes.

Both Cairo and Damascus reported beating back Israeli counterattacks and said the Israelis suffered heavy losses in men and tanks.

The new Egyptian communique said:

"Our forces are continuing to pour into Sinai across the strong bridges built across the canal."

The enemy attempted during the night to carry out counterattacks to attempts to repel the advance of our troops, but it was met with fierce fire from our tanks, artillery and anti-tank weapons.

"This counterfire completely foiled the enemy's counterattack. Twenty enemy tanks were destroyed and the enemy suffered heavy casualties and damage to its equipment."

The eastern bank (of the Suez canal) has become completely under the control of our armed forces. Enemy personnel in the fortified positions of the bank have surrendered."

So far only Syria and Egypt have been involved directly in the war. Jordan reported its anti-aircraft batteries shot down two Israeli planes today and Lebanese gunners have been reported firing on intruding planes.

The Palestinian guerrillas said they were in action against Israel. The Palestine Liberation Organization appealed to all Arab oil producing countries to halt the flow of oil to the west. Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat called for guerrillas to strike at the Israelis throughout the world.

An Israeli military correspondent in the Sinai said Israeli warplanes finally destroyed all of Egypt's "dozen or so" pontoon assault bridges across the canal.

Air Tour Scheduled For Today

Sixty airplanes carrying 140 persons were scheduled to land at Perry Lefors Airfield here around 5 p.m. today for an overnight stop of the All Texas Air Tour.

The visitors were to be transported to Coronado Inn by Pampans who met them at the airport.

A reception was set for 7 p.m. in the Heritage Room of the M. K. Brown Memorial Auditorium, followed by a 7:30 p.m. dinner and dance.

The air tourists were to be welcomed by Mayor R. D. Wilkerson and Don Lane will emcee the dinner program.

Tonight's affair was arranged by the Chamber of Commerce and E. E. McDowell, chairman of the chamber's Aviation Committee, said this forenoon reservations had been heavy for the reception and dinner which will be open to the public.

The overnight guests will leave the airport at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday for resumption of the air tour.

A.B. Crump Funeral Is Today In Wheeler

WHEELER — Funeral services were scheduled for 2:30 p.m. today in First United Methodist Church of Wheeler for A. B. Crump, 95, Democratic chairman of Wheeler County for 47 years and former Wheeler mayor.

The Rev. Ross Dunn, pastor, was to officiate. Burial was to be in Wheeler Cemetery by Wright Funeral Home.

Mr. Crump died at 10:30 p.m. Saturday in Childress Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Crump and Ace Harmon were associated in a general store in Pampa from 1904 to 1905.

In 1906 he started a banking and ranching career in Wheeler County.

Mr. Crump was appointed Democratic county chairman for a year in 1924. For 46 years after that he was elected to the post. Also serving for several years as mayor of Wheeler, Crump faced little opposition at the polls.

During his years of service to Wheeler County and the Democratic party, he never collected a salary nor was he reimbursed for any expenses.

For many years he was associated with the First National Bank of Wheeler, was in real estate business and worked with the Wheeler Chamber of Commerce.

He was married on Aug. 7, 1904, in Miami to Miss James Anne Stanley, whose family members were Roberts County pioneer ranchers.

Mr. Crump was a charter member of the Wheeler Masonic Lodge, and a 32nd Degree Mason. He was also a member of the Oddfellows Lodge of Wheeler.

He had been living at the Childress Retirement Center for the past two years.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Lola B. Mundy, Shamrock and a niece and a nephew.

Nationwide Station Shutdown Has No Support

By United Press International

A nationwide shutdown of gasoline stations to protest the government's Phase 4 freeze on gas prices failed to materialize anywhere but in Reno, Nev., over the weekend. Even there, dealers called the protest off after it appeared they were all alone.

"If the national closure looks like a weak sister, we have no intention of trying to bury the people of Reno with the burden," said Bob Cashell, a spokesman for the Northern Nevada Petroleum Retailers Association.

Ninety per cent of the stations were closed Saturday, Cashell said, but he added, "I expect everything to be back to normal in this area by Monday."

There had been talk of a nationwide shutdown all last week, but it lost momentum after gasoline dealers in Houston, Tex., Southern California, the New York suburbs on Long Island and other scattered areas staged their own boycotts.

The council granted a price hike of 1 to 2.5 cents a gallon a week ago, but the dealers said the increase was not enough to make up for shrinking profits caused by hikes in the wholesale cost of gasoline.

The California Highway Patrol reported no problems with a shortage of open stations except that "a lot of people have been calling us."

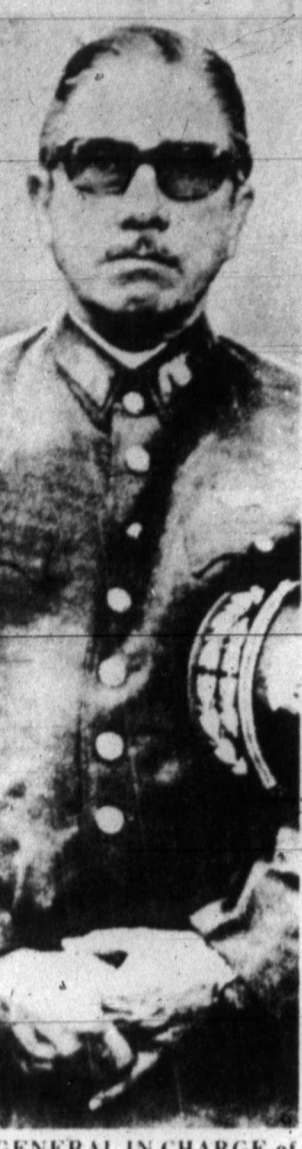

The Nevada Highway Patrol reported only "the normal number" of motorists stranded along roadways on isolated stretches of Nevada's desert highways. The Patrol said rural gas operators ignored the boycott call.

An announcement by Baghdad Radio Sunday said Iraq's Baathist Socialist government moved with the outbreak of war in the Mideast to nationalize the assets of two American oil companies operating in the country, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Mobil Oil.

The radio said it took the action as a "strike against American interests in the Arab homeland" and "to make oil a weapon in our hands and not in the hands of imperialists and Zionists."

The two firms own a total of 23 per cent in the Basrah Petroleum Co. in southern Iraq near the Persian Gulf.

"This would represent a minor nationalization. There is nothing which these left to nationalize," a Mobil spokesman said.

GENERAL IN CHARGE OF the military takeover in Chile is Augusto Pinochet Ugarte. He leads the four-man junta which ousted the late President Salvador Allende Gossens's Marxist regime.

Houston Murder Suspects Facing Arraignment Today

HOUSTON (UPI) — Two young men involved in the six-torture slayings of at least 27 teen-age boys were ordered to court for formal arraignment today. They are specifically charged with 10 murders between them.

Police say the two suspects, Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, and David Owen Brooks, 18, promised young boys liquor, sex and marijuana to lure them into a house belonging to a bachelor electrician who engineered the attacks.

The electrician, Dean Arnold Corll, was shot to death during a drug and sex orgy by Henley, who called police Aug. 8 to confess. During questioning, Henley revealed three years of torture-sex killings.

During the next six days, Henley and Brooks showed police where they had buried 27 victims in three different parts of Texas.

Henley has been indicted in connection with six of the deaths and Brooks on four.

Brooks, who claims he never killed anyone but only helped to bury the victims, has given police a three-page statement.

"Dean kept this boy around the house for about four days before he killed him," Brooks said in the statement. "I think I helped bury this boy also, but I don't remember where it was."

"It really upset Dean to have to kill this boy because he really liked him."

Brooks also talked about Henley in the statement.

"Wayne took part in getting the boys at first and then later he took an active part in the killings," Brooks said. "Wayne seemed to enjoy causing pain and he was especially sadistic at the Schuler address (one location where the boys were killed)."

Henley has told police Corll paid him and Brooks between $5 and $10 a boy to lure them to Corll and a plywood "torture board" Corll constructed where the boys were spreadeagled and tortured.

"I feel pretty grotesque," Henley told authorities. "I almost cracked several times. I didn't feel I was going to be able to hold my sanity much longer."

American Is Taken Captive

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Embassy said Sunday an American civilian working for the international trade commission was ambushed and taken captive "apparently by the Viet Cong."

An embassy spokesman said Homer L. Elm, a private American security man, and two Vietnamese were riding in a pickup truck in the Mekong Delta at the time of the attack.

The spokesman said the truck

Two Day Gem Show Successful

The two-day 13th annual show of the Canadian River Gem and Mineral Society drew large crowds again on its final day Sunday in the M.K. Brown auditorium's Heritage Room.

Exhibitors from Texas and surrounding states entered displays in the exhibition.

Officers of the society said this year's show was one of the best in the group's history.

It was the second year in a row the show had come to Pampa. Date and place of next year's event is expected to be made at a meeting in the near future.

Pat Langford Contest Winner

Pat Langford of 1926 N. Faulkner was this week's Pampa Daily News Football Contest winner by missing only one game and correctly picking the score on the Pampa-Canyon tie breaker and then coming closest to the actual score of the WTSU-Lamar tie breaker.

Langford guessed Florida State over Baylor for his only incorrect guess. The winner then picked Pampa over Canyon, 21-7, which was the actual score. On the WT-Lamar game, Langford picked the Buffs to win, 18-7. The score was 13-0.

Russell Kitchens of 909 Beryl missed only one game by picking Oklahoma State over Texas Tech. Kitchens won second by guessing Pampa over Canyon, 21-7, and the Buffs over Lamar, 24-14.

Third place went to Ronnie Loter of 616 Powell, who missed the Oklahoma State-Tech game. Loter predicted the Harvesters to beat the Eagles, 20-7 in the tie breaker.

Games included Canadian over Groom, Wheeler over Silverton, Phillips over White Deer, Oklahoma over Miami, Texas Tech over Oklahoma State, Baylor over Florida State, Arkansas over TCU, Texas over Wake Forest, Packers over Giants, Vikings over Lions and Dolphins over Jets.

Science Today

By BRUCE E. HICKS
HOUSTON (UPI)—Tiny minnows hatched aboard the Skylab space station were adjusted to weightlessness when born, suggesting that humans born in space might skip the slow adaptation process required for men from earth.

Minnows born on earth and carried into orbit in July by the Skylab 2 astronauts adjusted slowly to the sudden disappearance of gravity. This was expected. But Dr. Richard Simmonds, a veterinarian at the Johnson Space Center, said he was surprised at the reaction of minnows hatched in weightlessness.

"The older ones did exactly what we expected them to do," said Simmonds. "They were very disoriented at first, but slowly adapted to weightlessness by visual clues and began swimming with their bellies toward the wall as if that was down."

"I didn't really know what the little minnows would do after hatching, but I was a little surprised that they seemed well adapted already when born."

Adaptive Process Similar
 The aquarium of two mummichog minnows and 50 eggs was only a demonstration and not a full-fledged experiment, Simmonds said, so the results are not as valid as they could be.

However, the fact that the minnows hatched in space were already adapted may be a clue to what a human child's reaction may be in the far future of spaceflight when families travel to distant planets aboard giant stations.

The vestibular, or balancing, apparatus of the mummichog is very similar to the human inner ear, Simmonds said, so the adaptive process to weightlessness may be much the same.

Simmonds said it might be possible that a child born in space will have already adapted to weightlessness as an embryo. But, he said, a newborn's vestibular apparatus

Director Election Scheduled

Tomorrow has been set as the date for the election of the director for Zone 5 of the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District. The director will be elected to serve a five-year term, beginning immediately following the election.

The convention type election will be held at 8 p.m., October 9th, at the Gray County Courthouse Annex on the Wheeler Highway east of Pampa, Texas.

To qualify as a director or voter, a person must own land within the zone for which the director is being elected and live within Gray County. A landowner and his or her spouse are eligible to vote.

Zone 5 of the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District is located in the northwest part of Gray County and includes Pampa, Hoover, Kingsmill and the surrounding farm and ranch land.

Robert Sailor is the incumbent director whose term of office is expiring.

An interesting program will be presented by Foster Whaley, County Agriculture Agent, and Mickey Black, District Conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, on conservation education being carried on with youth in the county.

Fescue Is Good Forage

is not fully developed at birth so the adaptation may be the same when a very young child is taken into space.

Dr. W. Royce Hawkins, chief physician for the astronauts, said the results of the fish demonstration indicated that an embryo does adapt well and future space missions may prove the same for humans.

"I think it is entirely possible that a human child would already be adapted before birth," Hawkins said. "If that doesn't prove to be the case, I would bet that the child would adapt much faster after birth if born in space than the adult would after leaving earth."

Boyd said future fish experiments during the space shuttle program late this decade would include fertilization of the egg in flight. The experiment was proposed for the joint American-Soviet flight in 1975, but was turned down.

"Until we do that, we'll never really be sure about their adaptive process," he said. "Since even the egg we sent up had to be fertilized before launch, the embryo is already developing before launch."

Studies on the fish embryos may tell scientists more about human cell reproduction in weightlessness because the embryos are sensitive to changes and stress. The mummichog eggs are transparent and can easily be studied before birth.

Irrigation farmers and ranchers may want to consider planting tall fescue grass for livestock pasture. According to Rodney Hyatt, soil conservationist, a few Gray County stockmen have already established fescue grass and have experienced notable forage production.

Optimum planting time for tall fescue is late summer to early fall. However, Hyatt stated the grass could be seeded any time up to the middle of March.

Under good irrigation, fertilization, and grazing management, fescue pasture has provided ample forage for one animal unit (cow & calf) for nine months.

Hyatt stated the dormant period is normally through the coldest winter months, but could occur during hot summer months as well. Moisture requirements for maximum production are essentially the same as for grain sorghum.

Other benefits are also included. Tall fescue gives better land protection to steeper irrigated slopes than an annual crop will. Yearly planting cost of annual forage is eliminated after grass is established.

KENTUCKY TALL FESCUE—This variety of fescue has proved to be a fine grass for livestock pasture in this area. The field pictured above is located on the J.D. Skaggs farm east of Pampa. The photo was taken in Nov., 1972. Gray County who is using it in irrigated fields have experienced notable forage production. (USDA—Soil Conservation Service Photo)

Suit Charges Alienation

DALLAS (UPI)—A $10 million suit on file Saturday in Dallas federal court charges that the religious organization of Garner Ted Armstrong and Herbert W. Armstrong caused a Fort Worth woman to leave her husband and become involved in "adulterous relationships."

Vernon Eugene Smith, who filed the suit, also charged that Fort Worth ministers of the Worldwide Church of God, an Armstrong group, mentally intimidated and harassed his son and caused him to have a mental breakdown.

Lawyers for Smith filed the suit Friday.

Willa Cather Festival Is Planned In Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—A series of events spanning 1973-74 will focus attention on the writing of Willa Cather during the Willa Cather Centennial Festival.

Although she was born in Virginia in 1873 and lived in the East during most of her adult life, Miss Cather claimed Nebraska as her home, often returning to Red Cloud, Neb., where she had lived as a child.

Many of her stories were based on her experiences and observations in the Midwest.

Since her death in 1947, Miss Cather's international readership has expanded and today there are more of her books in print than ever before.

She earned her reputation as a major American author through such books as "O Pioneers!," "My Antonia," Pulitzer prize-winning "One of Ours," "Death Comes to the Archbishop" and "Shadows on the Rock." She also distinguished herself as a writer of essays, verse and short stories.

The University of Nebraska at Lincoln, which Miss Cather attended, will further its reputation as the center for Willa Cather study with an international seminar on "The Art of Willa Cather," Oct. 25-28.

Scholars from Japan, Italy, France, England, Canada, Australia and the United States will re-examine and re-evaluate the author's work, studying her world view and her international significance.

Top Speakers
 Principal speakers will include Pulitzer prize winner Leon Edel of New York University and historian Marcus Cunliffe, contributor to the New York Times and professor of American studies at the University of Sussex, England.

Another of the speakers will be Eudora Welty, who recently received a Pulitzer prize for her novel, "The Optimist's Daughter."

Publication of several books by and about Miss Cather will be another highlight of the centennial activities.

The first, "Uncle Valentine and Other Stories," contains previously uncollected short stories written by Miss Cather from 1915 to 1929. The book, published by the University of Nebraska Press, came out in April.

In late December, "Willa Cather: A Pictorial Memoir," will be released. It is made up of a biographical sketch and photo essays, including many previously unpublished photos of Miss Cather, her family and friends, and places she loved. "The Art of Willa Cather," the proceedings of the international seminar, will be published next June.

There's more. In tribute to Miss Cather, Yehudi Yaltah and Hepzabah Menushin, world renowned musicians and personal friends of the author, will come from abroad to give a special performance in Kimball Recital Hall on the University of Nebraska campus on Miss Cather's birthday, Dec. 7.

In March, the university orchestra and chorus will tour Nebraska with performances based on Miss Cather's works, including readings of the author's poetry with musical settings composed by Prof. Robert Beadell of the School of Music, and other music associated with her books.

OREGON'S SIRE
 Salem, Ore. (UPI)—Dr. John McLoughlin, who came to the Pacific Northwest in 1824 as a representative of the Hudson Bay Company, has been given the honorary title of "Father of Oregon" by the state legislature.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, OCT. 3

Your Birthday today: Make no special ripple in your steady maturing toward a higher spiritual existence. The year ahead is active, normal despite noisy external situations and repeated changes. Each incident adds knowledge for immediate application. Today's natives manifest metaphysical and religious principles as a part of their generally vigorous style of daily living.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Not a very exciting day, but a good one for completing what you started yesterday. An hour invested in light exercise, your favorite pastime, may be just the right touch to close the evening.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): The way may be cleared for beneficial changes. Go ahead with routine. Make progress on work already started, but delay start on fresh projects until a better time.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Take yourself out of the group or family for the day. Choose personal adventures or work that only you can achieve, get busy with all the energy you can muster.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Use your own resources, records, books, rather than trying prying answers out of people [who are apt to know no more than you do, anyway]. Routine requires your continued attention.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Day should have a leisurely pace for best results. Line up your budgets, accounts, review tangible assets, but make no significant rearrangements yet. Extra rest is desirable.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accept no more of the load than you can conveniently carry—let somebody else pick up where your range of effectiveness falls short. It's an evening of good companionship.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Even with things as they are, try letting well enough alone for a while. Carry on with your regular work; also devote a definite period to earnest prayer, meditation.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): This is about as smooth and favorable a day for normal, enthusiastic pursuit of creative success as you may expect. Include good friends and neighbors in any excursion or venture.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Wherever you've come to differences, make peace now. The pervading calm of this low-keyed day ought to be savored, enjoyed to the fullest—never mind calling it dull.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You have more energy than places where it can be constructively expressed. Attend to your own special interest. Serious study carries you past an old limitation.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Extra effort is indicated for regular tasks, still more for a much needed review of your material situation. Inventory of available means or supplies is worthwhile.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Unfinished business can be brought to quiet conclusions, with much personal pressure and use of your resources. Expecting others to carry the main burden is unrealistic today.

All-season wardrobe blends, chic, practicality

Perfect climate-spanning after-five look in separates and bare dress and jacket need never languish in out-of-season storage.

By Helen Hennessy
NEA Women's Editor
NEW YORK — (NEA) — Remember the fall wardrobe? The spring coat? Storing all your clothes at the end of each season and then buying new ones after all? Those outdated, time-wasting and expensive customs are gone forever with the new styles.

Now it's chic to ignore seasons. Buy an outfit, wear it all year long. That's the sensible new combination of fashion and economy.

There are certain tricks to choosing a trans-season wardrobe. The first essential is to buy only synthetics like polyester or nylon. Not only will you be delighted with their wasy-care, nonwrinkle qualities, but the new knit weights in synthetics can easily go from the Equator to the Pole — with an added or subtracted wrap or two.

After that, look for dress and jacket combinations especially when the dress is a bare one. It can go from hot days to cool evenings — or season to season — effortlessly. Find separates when you can to add their mix-match versatility to your climate-spanning clothes.

Once you have your all-season wardrobe put together you will discover a delightful side benefit of your planning. With a smaller over-all clothes budget, you will have a much larger selection of clothes because no outfit will ever be out of the action.

The shrew leads a fast, short life of about 16 months during which it propagates two or three families.

Jim: "The very simplest is to use the two-spade response as a transfer to three clubs and the three club response as a transfer to three diamonds. If responder has a very bad hand he passes right there. If he bids again he is forcing to game and showing a good hand."

Oswald: "Today's hand shows North's action with a club bust. He bids two spades and passes after his partner bids three clubs."

Jim: "The play at three clubs is fairly simple. South wins the heart lead and goes after trumps. Eventually he leads spades from dummy a couple of times; sets up the fourth spade in his hand for a diamond discard and winds up losing a spade, a diamond and one or two clubs depending on how he plays the suit."

Oswald: "Getting to three clubs with these North-South cards is not a unique feature of Jacoby transfer. They can get there in most any bidding system. We make no claims of sole perfection, but merely that Jacoby transfer is fairly simple and works well."

Dear Abby

Artificial breast? See your surgeon

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 45-year-old married woman who fortunately survived breast cancer three years ago. My right breast was removed, and altho I wear a padded bra and look normal in clothes, I haven't totally adjusted to my loss, even tho my husband has been very kind and understanding.

I suppose I will sound vain and silly [that's why I haven't spoken to my doctor about this] but I would like to know if it is possible for a plastic surgeon to reconstruct an artificial breast and successfully make it part of me?

MRS. J.

DEAR MRS. J.: I have discussed your problem with my plastic surgery advisor, Dr. Eugene Worton, who advises me that every case must be evaluated individually. Whether it would be possible to do a reconstructive operation on you would depend upon the type of surgery you had [the size and location of the removed tumor]. He suggests you contact a qualified plastic and reconstructive surgeon, and discuss it with him.

DEAR ABBY: How does a woman let her friends know she is available? I am being divorced, and a woman my age can't afford to waste much time, so I'd like to have it known that I am in the market for a new husband.

What do you think of having some cards printed saying: "I AM AVAILABLE!" and without going into detail I could add: "My divorce was final March 10th" and then something cute, like: "The line forms on the left." Then my new phone number.

I suppose this would seem rather forward a few years ago, but Abby, times have changed. What do you think?

AVAILABLE

DEAR AVAILABLE: Times may have changed, but men haven't. When they play for keeps they avoid aggressive women. I recommend a more subtle way to get the word of your availability around.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CAN'T BELIEVE IT IN TEXAS": I couldn't believe it either, so I wrote to the State Bar of Texas and inquired. The reply:

"Dear Abby: You wrote that a woman had written to you saying that an unmarried woman cannot own property in Texas and wanted to know if this is true.

In the words of my patient and long-suffering secretary: 'An unmarried woman CAN own property in Texas—and the more, the better!'"

Cordially Yours,

Davis Grant, Office of Gen. Counsel

CONFIDENTIAL TO R. IN L.A.: Forgive. That is the cure, for forgiveness is the fragrance of a violet on the heel of the one who crushed it.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69796, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

There's some fashion news in what you won't be seeing much of — the "chinoiserie" in vogue after President Nixon's trip to Peking is fading from the scene. So, sad to say, are such luxury fabrics as silk, which are giving way to synthetics both because of the practical advantages of manmade fibers (remember how silk dresses would develop lap creases?) and because of the shortage of the old luxury fabrics.

The Question of Mandatory Retirement: Does ability end at 65?

(This is another in a series of articles about America's elderly which will appear throughout 1973.)

By Tom Tiede
WASHINGTON — NEA — Gandhi was 78 when he led the struggle for India's independence. Disraeli was prime minister of England at 76. Clemenceau was 75 when France called him during World War I. Webster was 70 when he wrote the American Dictionary of English Language. Grandma Moses did not begin painting until she was 72. Learned Hand was on the bench at 79, and Pablo Casals, now in the ninth decade of his life, is still making music for the world.

Who was it that said ability ended at 65? Probably Otto von Bismarck, who, after organizing the German Empire, established a mandatory retirement age for his countrymen. (He, by the way, was excluded; he did not leave office until 75.)

The Bismarck example. Sixty-five, sometimes earlier, is by law the age when workers are told their services are no longer required.

Actually, the milestone is not usually so harsh as this. Rather, an exiting employee is told that he's "earned his rest." Then comes the gold watch, maybe a party and everybody wishes the old chap happiness before they get back to running the mill.

To a large extent Americans have bought the retirement laws without objection, and in fact with pleasure. Those in jobs requiring little creativity, or jobs where physical stamina is necessary, look forward to retirement — at least until it comes. "I can't wait to get up and just go fishin'."

But there are others, probably a minority, for whom retirement is like a sentence of death. Indeed, the metaphor is not outlandish. Geriatric authorities say that when some people are forced to leave their jobs, told by society they can no longer perform, the drop-out is the first step to the grave.

Many of these forced retirees do restructure their lives, certainly, and find new interests or outlets; but many others, as anthropologist Margaret Mead says, "are like the admiral who can't, in retirement, find a substitute for the fleet."

But though the problem has been well known for years it is only recently gaining serious attention. A number of civil libertarians, senior citizen groups and geriatric students are talking now about changing the system.

"Mandatory retirement," says Dr. Eric Pfeiffer of Duke University's Medical School, "is just not very bright."

More than that, says a spokesman for the American Association of Retired Persons: "It's clearly discriminatory. The 14th Amendment prohibits age discrimination. Forced retirement is outdated."

The courts, however, have not agreed. The one big case which has been tested, that involving noted philosopher Paul Weiss, now 72, says he had been offered the Albert Schweitzer chair on humanities at Fordham University in New York. "But there was a delay and in the end they said they didn't want me." Actually it was the state of New York which nixed the Weiss appointment — because, as he and his lawyers grumble, he was a few years too old.

Weiss sued and lost. A federal district court said that his denial was "not Constitutionally infirm." A court of appeals upheld the decision. The Supreme Court, giving no reason, as is its policy, refused to hear the matter. (Five of the justices are in their 60's. William Douglas is 75.)

Weiss, of course, still believes the courts were wrong. He says the idea of retirement is fine for people who want it, he says those people should be allowed to retire at a fixed age. "But retirement should be based on an individual rather than a wholesale basis. Why should I be denied employment if I want it and can handle it?" Under these conditions, he argues, denying him employment because of age is little different from denying blacks employment because of color.

Actually, Weiss is not out in the cold. When Fordham refused him, Catholic University hired him for a "special" post. He says he's carrying a stiff teaching load, has two books at the printers and is writing two more. "I may not have as many ideas popping out today, but the ones I have are good." He says he's not slowed down and still works "all day long."

To be sure, Weiss could handle the Schweitzer chair or any other. So too could many people retiring today work on into their 70's with no loss of production or strain. In fact, numerous studies have disproved the image of older workers as falling asleep at their desks, or ever ready for a coronary when the boss is pushing something. To the contrary: experts say older people, being less prone to distraction, are often better workers than the young, and certainly more experienced.

Yet a change in the retirement laws does not appear an immediate possibility. American business has operated too long under the out-at-65 principle. The older fellows, for one thing, earn larger salaries than their younger replacements.

But critics of the status quo are not giving up. "Weiss has started something that can't stop," says a lawyer familiar with his case. "There'll be another test, and another, and a thousand more. You just can't kick the old people around anymore."

THERE'S A BRIGHT SIDE TO THE WORST DAYS, apparently, even for problem-plagued Vice President Agnew.

Cusps are the pointed ends of the crescent moon; they always point away from the sun.

Correspondent Tells About Being Arrested In Russia

By CHRISTOPHER OGDEN-MOSCOW (UPI) — The plainclothes men were all in place today, sitting in cars reading newspapers, leaning against buildings and smoking, when the five Jews pulled out their hand-lettered signs in front of the Ministry of Internal Affairs.

A busload of uniformed police waited, door open, in front of the stone-building a block off Gorky Street in central Moscow.

Across the street walked two United Press International reporters, Gordon F. Joseloff and I, and Time magazine correspondent John Shaw.

At 11:45 a.m. precisely, the Jews—all men—protesting restrictive emigration policies pulled signs from their coats. The security men jumped them in less than five seconds, so quickly that the signs could not be read. Several never even got unfolded.

Simultaneously, as Joseloff and I began taking pictures, plainclothesmen charged at us, swinging for our cameras.

"Enraged citizens" is how the Soviets invariably refer to them euphemistically. They indeed sounded enraged, screaming "nyet! nelza!" (no, forbidden) and "hooligan!"

The plainclothesmen beat at the hands of both of us, attempting to jar the cameras. Uniformed police had by then run across the street and grabbed us. We made no attempt to resist.

One uniformed officer grabbed me by the collar, twisting it at my throat, and the upper left arm. Although I was going in the direction he demanded, he moved me along by repeatedly kneeling me in the small of the back, finally sending my glasses flying.

Joseloff was also marched into the building. Shaw, cameraless, followed to the door where he was shoved inside with a "you, too." We were then taken inside a first-floor command post.

Ordered to sit, we watched uniformed officers, each group sporting more chest decorations than the last, run in and out of the office.

One Jew started smoking. "No smoking," an officer said. The other four Jews lit up.

We asked to call the American Embassy. "Sit down and wait" was the order.

One Jew pulled out another sign from his coat, unfolded it and placed it in his lap.

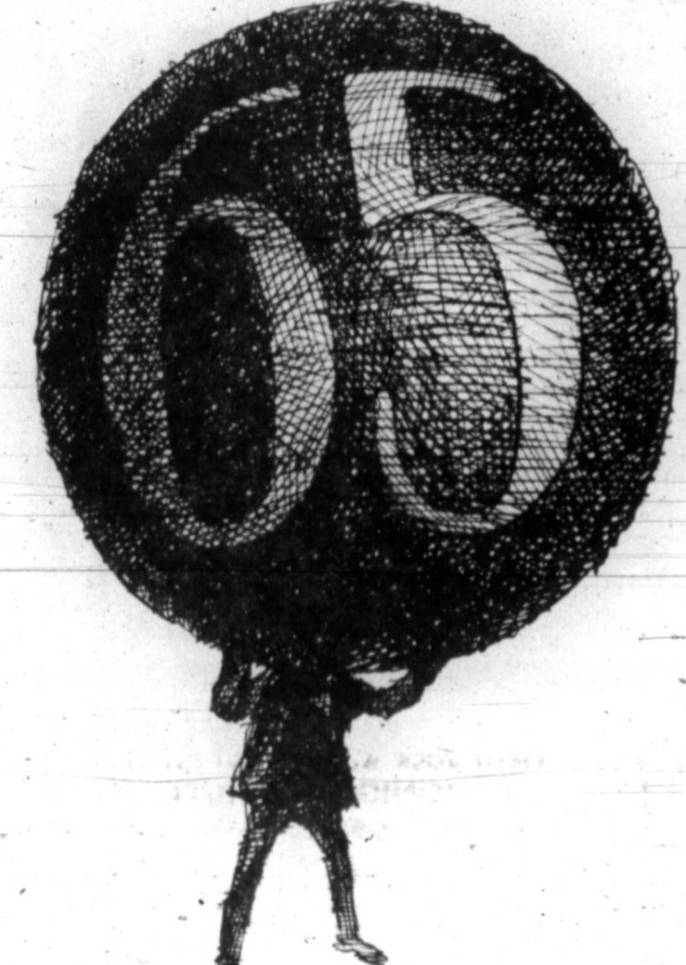

"Free my friends," it said.

A policeman asked him to remove it. The Jew smiled and blew more smoke. The policeman asked me to "put the lens cover on my camera and went back to making phone calls.

A tall, balding man in a green suit opened the door. The two policemen in the room braced.

"Correspondents?" he asked, nodding toward the three of us. "Yes," the officer replied. "American correspondents?" he asked. "Yes," the officer said again.

The man shook his head from side to side and slowly went out the door.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Judge Givan cites the fascinating background of the origin of Lifesavers — the candy mint with a hole in the center. Similar trivial events can still launch big corporations and make the inventors rich.

CASE Y-537: Judge Richard Givan, astute member of Indiana's State Supreme Court, was my dinner companion at a recent banquet.

"Dr. Crane," he mused, "it is interesting to analyze how some of our famous American business corporations got started."

"Sometimes a minor incident or even an accident may have been the starting point."

"For example, did you ever hear how the production of these round, white Lifesavers began?"

And I shook my head.

So Judge Givan then said a young returning soldier from World War I, had arrived in New York from service in Europe.

He had $100 dollars in his pocket and decided he'd like to go into some kind of business for himself.

As he strolled along the streets, he chanced to see a doughnut shop, that was really merely a hole in the wall.

When he went inside, he asked the owner what he'd want as a sales price for the little shop.

The latter asked $300, so the soldier used his $100 as a down payment and took over.

But on the counter was a small plate containing a number of little white mints, about the size of a nickel, and shaped like tiny pacakes.

When he sampled one, he liked the taste very much and decided to keep on selling them.

But he figured that if he punched out the center of each mint, it would look like a little white doughnut.

"Ha!" he thought, "if I punched out the centers of every 4 mints, then I'd salvage enough for a 5th."

"But they ought to have a name, so what can I call them?"

Then he remembered that on the steamship which had brought him back from France, there were a number of large white lifesavers, for use in case of a wreck.

"Why not call my new doughnut-shaped mints 'Lifesavers'?"

And that's how this clever young ex-soldier ultimately made himself a millionaire!

In our wonderful "free enterprise" system, new millionaires are still sprouting.

But the odds are not as good nowadays, because of the confiscatory taxes that our braintruster legislators keep inflicting upon the creative workers of America.

So modern leaders in business deserve even greater praise than such tycoons as Henry Ford, Andrew Carnegie et al.

Another fascinating instance of how trivial factors created great industries, is that of the Wrigley Chewing Gum Company.

Originally, Wrigley produced soap.

But it then offered a box of gum as a premium to merchants who bought a certain amount of the Wrigley soap.

The gum proved so popular that Wrigley shifted to that product!

And even later used soap as a premium to merchants if they purchased a certain number of boxes of Wrigley chewing gum.

Sometimes, too, a small item like a Lifesaver or stick of gum or even a safety pin will net its inventor far more than an intricate improvement on an automobile engine!

But it still requires superb modern advertising strategy to move the new merchandise into the homes of the potential customers.

So send for my booklet "The New Psychology of Advertising and Selling," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Blvd., Melrose, Indiana 47988. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover mailing and printing costs when you send for one of my booklets.)

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's no place like home, except the highway, for hazards that can put us out of commission temporarily or permanently.

The dangers lurking around the house came into the spotlight anew when the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission a few days ago listed 15 product categories most likely to injure, maim or kill the average person.

It singled out bicycles as the number one risk.

But right there second in the top 15 were stairs, ramps and landings, indoors and out. Then followed an assortment of other commonplace hazards from non-glass doors to certain cleaning agents to bathtubs and showers to space heaters.

Now, just behind the commission's report comes another from the National Safety Council, zeroing in on falls, part and parcel of that indoor and outdoor stairs danger.

The council reports that falls are the number one killer in the home today. And, as a runner-up to traffic accidents, falls are the largest single cause of accidental death in the United States—roughly 18,000 fatalities each year.

The council's report is based on a study it co-sponsored with a consumer research organization, which asked a panel of householders to keep records of all injuries in and around the home for a three-month period.

Vikings Coast By Lions, 23-9

By United Press International
 Fran Tarkenton, the quarterback the skeptics said would never be a winner, may never be a loser this year.
 Tarkenton, often maligned because he has quarterbacked only two clubs with records above .500 in his first 12 years, may be getting the last laugh on his critics this season.
 He hit Ed Marinaro on identical TD swing passes of 12 and 8 yards early in the first period Sunday and the Minnesota Vikings then coasted to a 23-9 victory over the Detroit Lions. The Vikings now have beaten the Lions 11 straight times.

 The triumph boosted the Vikings' record to 4-0 as they remained one of the four unbeaten teams in pro football. And counting exhibitions, Minnesota is 9-0.

Pittsburgh and Los Angeles also boosted their regular season records to 4-0 Sunday while the other unbeaten club, the Dallas Cowboys, meet the Washington Redskins in the Monday night TV special.
 Asked to explain the difference for the Vikings this year, Tarkenton quipped, "we're 4-0 instead of 1-3."
 "A year ago everything in the world went wrong for us. But this year things are going right and we're playing better," he said.
 Tarkenton completed 16 of 22 passes for 194 yards and said, "we weren't planning to run that much—but we were struggling on the ground." Foreman missed much of the first half with an ankle injury but still gained 114 yards in 16 carries.
 Los Angeles edged Houston, 31-26, and Pittsburgh turned back San Diego, 38-21, as they remained unbeaten.
 In other games, Oakland downed St. Louis, 17-10. Green Bay turned back the New York Giants, 16-14. Miami routed the New York Jets, 31-3. Cleveland beat Cincinnati, 17-10. Kansas City edged Denver, 16-14. San Francisco topped Atlanta, 13-9. Buffalo nipped Philadelphia, 27-6. New England beat Baltimore, 24-16, and New Orleans upset Chicago, 21-16.

 John Hadl threw three touchdown passes to pace Los Angeles past Houston. Hadl hit on 10 of 16 for 179 yards.
 Pittsburgh ruined John Unitas' return to his hometown. Unitas completed only 2 of 9 passes for 19 yards and had two intercepted in the first half before being lifted after Pittsburgh surged to a 38-0 halftime margin.
 Ken Stabler, handed the starting QB job after Daryle Lamonica failed to produce a touchdown in three games, directed two long second half drives that lifted Oakland past St. Louis. Stabler hit on 19 of 31 for 207 yards.
 Chester Marcol kicked a 32-yard field goal, his third of the game, with just one second left to play to give Green Bay the victory over the New York Giants.
 Miami finally exploded. Bob Griese threw three touchdown passes to lead the Dolphins over the Jets. It was a disaster for the Jets because Al Woodall, Joe Namath's backup, suffered an injured knee and will miss at least three weeks.
 Jan Stenerud's third field goal of the game, a 39-yarder with 6:36 to play, lifted Kansas City to the win over the Broncos. Stenerud's field goal overcame a 72-yard TD run by Joe Dawkins with 10 minutes left.
 Ralph McGill's 54-yard punt return early in the second period set up the game's only touchdown as San Francisco took a 10-0 lead and hung on for the victory over punchless Atlanta.
 O. J. Simpson ran for 171 yards, scoring one touchdown and setting up another, and John Leybold kicked a 47-yard field goal with 3:51 left to lift the Bills over Philadelphia.

Peterson Passes Rookie At Finish In Grand Prix

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (UPI) — Ronnie Peterson finished strong. James Hunt looked like a future world driving champion and Peter Revson failed in the clutch.
 Peterson and Hunt played "Me and my shadow" for the entire 199-mile United States Grand Prix Sunday, with blond Ronnie beating the British rookie by 0.688 seconds to win the top prize of $50,000 in the world's richest road race.

 "I had the power I needed to stay in front," said the 29-year-old Peterson who could be Lotus' No. 1 John Player Special driver next year. "The car can win it all in two years, maybe even in 1974."
 The victory was the fourth Grand Prix decision for the Swede and third in his last four races. His sleek black JP went through the 59 laps without a pit stop as he averaged 118.055 miles an hour on the 3.4 mile course.

 The 26-year-old Hunt, a newcomer to the circuit this season after several years in formula three competition, surprised observers with the high finish in his March car. He kept on Peterson's tail throughout the race and even managed to go alongside the Swede during one turn midway through the race.
 Revson, a handsome 34-year-old bachelor who won the British and Canadian GP's this year, made a gallant comeback as he rallied from last place to finish fifth among the 25 starters. The Rondono Beach, Calif., driver said he couldn't get his car moving at the starting gun because the clutch on his Yardley-McLaren wouldn't release.
 Carlos Reutemann of Argentina drove a Brabham to a third place finish and Denis Hulme of New Zealand, Revson's teammate, was fourth in the SCCA-sponsored race. Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil finished sixth, losing a chance for a higher position when two flat front tires forced him into a last-minute pit stop.
 Francois Cevert of France was killed Saturday during a practice session when his Tyrrell smashed in the metal railing at a speed of 170 miles an hour.

A's Even Playoffs With Baltimore, 6-3

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland A's and Baltimore Orioles brought the American League playoffs to a raintormented Oakland today all even at 1-1 but with A's Manager Dick Williams claiming an advantage for the world champions.

 "I think we have the advantage now," Williams said after the A's squared the series Sunday with a 6-3 triumph in the second game at Baltimore.
 "We're going back to our park and we have two 20-game winners staring them in the face."
 Ken Holtzman, who won 21 games during the regular season, is scheduled to start today's third game against 18-game winner Mike Cuellar. Williams plans to come back in the fourth game with Vida Blue, a 20-game winner who lost the first game Saturday. He will face 12-game winner Doyle Alexander.

Mets Whip Cincinnati 5-0

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jerry Koosman went to "school" Sunday and hopes to earn his degree today.
 Koosman watched teammate Jon Matlack handcuff the Cincinnati Reds on two hits Sunday as the New York Mets won 5-0, at Riverfront Stadium in Cincinnati to even the National League playoff at one game apiece.
 The best-of-five series switched to Shea Stadium here today with Koosman (14-15) opposing the Reds' Ross Grimsley (13-10) at 2 p.m. EDT.
 "I've been pitching behind Jon all year and it's certainly been an advantage," said Koosman. "With Jon a lefty like I am, it was more beneficial for me seeing how the hitters reacted to him than for me watching when (Tom) Seaver pitched.
 "However, you've got to remember, the hitters are also more prepared for a lefty pitching after they've faced Matlack."
 Preparation might not be enough for the Reds unless they can generate more offense than they've shown in the first two games against Seaver, whom they beat Saturday, 2-1, on late inning homers by Pete Rose and Johnny Bench, and Matlack, who did not permit them a runner past second base.
 "If we don't get more offense," said Reds Manager Sparky Anderson, "we'll be going home very soon."

Blake Team Wins PTC Mixed Meet

Husband-wife team of Bob and Betty Blake defeated Dorothy and Dick Stowers, 6-1, 6-3, Sunday at the Pampa High School tennis courts to win Pampa Tennis Club's Mixed Couples Tournament.
 Anna Holt and Jerry Allen downed Beverly and Thurman Brown, 6-2, 6-4, winning the consolation bracket in the finals.
 The Blakes downed Mary Hughes and Joe Davis, 6-2, 6-4 in semifinal play Sunday, while the Stowers' beat Linda Williams and Bill Sargent, 6-0, 6-1.
 The tourney completed the club's 1973 schedule.

Cowboys' Skins Battle In Big Contest Tonight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Dallas defense has not allowed a touchdown by air in the regular 1973 season but the Cowboys expect a severe test of their secondary and their hold on the NFC Eastern Division lead from Washington's Redskins tonight.
 Washington coach George Allen refers to the nationally televised contest as "a championship game." Dallas coach Tom Landry says it is "important."
 But to Redskins quarterback Sonny Jurgensen who one game ago revitalized the sputtering offense, the game is another step in his comeback trial (which started with a 28-7 win over Philadelphia last week.
 "I felt I threw the ball well for my first start," Jurgensen said. "I'm satisfied in winning. It's nice to play and contribute."
 "There was apprehension on my part. A terrific amount of it. I couldn't run or set up for the longest while (after last year's Achilles tendon damage). I doubt if a runner could come back from what I had."
 For years Jurgensen has been a Cowboys' nemesis. A win tonight would drop Dallas from from the regular season unbeaten ranks and even the Eastern standings between the clubs at 3-1.
 But the contest is a fierce personal rivalry. It was early this year (that Washington ended Dallas' two-year reign as NFC champion with a 26-3 drubbing in Kennedy Stadium, the site of tonight's game.
 Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach, who will start tonight, was selected in the NFC championship game as the

Nicklaus Winning

KINGS MILL, Ohio (UPI) — There was at least one person who saw Jack Nicklaus' nine-under-par round of 62 Sunday in the third round of the $125,000 Ohio-Kings Island Open golf tournament who didn't appreciate it — Tom Weiskopf.
 "It wasn't too much fun to watch," said the dejected Weiskopf, who was three shots behind Nicklaus when the round started and 11 behind 18 holes later despite shooting a one-under-par 70.

A Look At Mainland China Today

The door to Red China is open, and the welcome mat is out. The Mainland is the place to visit this year, and the thing to do is to go there and send back rapturous reports about the wonderful way in which the people live.

The report of Wu Shu-ju is not rosy. But then he is not a Western "expert"; it took him eight hours of swimming to escape to Hong Kong.

Wu Shu-ju, an engineer, was a member of Red China's water polo team, and was selected as a swimming bodyguard for Mao Tse-tung when Mao made his famed swim across the Yangtze River. After fighting with a Red Guard faction during the 1967 cultural revolution, Wu feared retaliation by the army and bribed his way to the border town of Pao Am, opposite Hong Kong. In 1969, he swam to freedom. While Westerners carry on about life in the Mainland, Wu tells how many people are willing to risk their lives to escape it.

"According to the official statistics released by the Hong Kong government, in the last year there were 22,000 people picked up by Hong Kong police who had escaped from the Mainland into Hong Kong. The Hong Kong government also said that for each refugee picked up by the police, three others sneaked in undetected. So, all told, there were as many as 88,000 people escaping from Mainland China to Hong Kong last year alone. There are other places like Thailand, Burma, Turkey, the Soviet Union and even North Korea and North Viet Nam.

"Many intellectuals, workers, farmers are discontented with the Communist regime, especially the group of 60 million young people who have been forced to quit their schools and go to work in remote provinces as farmers. These young people, once in the villages, simply do not have the ways to survive and many of them have sneaked back into the cities. In the cities they have committed many crimes such as burglary, robbery and even prostitution. Once given the chance, these young people will be the most powerful force against the Communist rule.

"The Chinese Communist government would never let any outsiders see the real conditions in Mainland China. As far as I know, there are several model cities and model people's communes in Mainland China especially designed for foreign visitors. The foreigners are provided escorts and given guided tours of these model areas but no foreigners would ever be shown the darker side of Mainland life. For instance, there are so many prisons in Mainland China which are full of prisoners but may I ask, has any single American visitor been admitted to any of these prisons?"

"Because of the news blackout in Mainland China and the strict watch over the people by the authorities, I doubt very much that many people there know about Taiwan or about any news of the Free World. But still, as far as I know, many people are listening to broadcasts from Taiwan at great risk of their lives. But even if the people know very little about the outside world they are still escaping in large numbers because they know that nowhere, no place in the world can be any worse than the Mainland China today."

Don Oakley Nuclear power could resolve energy crisis

By DON OAKLEY
NEA Staff Writer

Over the next 30 years the United States is expected to consume more energy than it has since the Mayflower landed. Put another way, by the year 2000, our consumption of energy will have tripled over what it is today.

This is the long-term "energy crisis," as opposed to the current one involving shortages of gasoline and heating oil.

Where is all this energy going to come from? The

H. L. Hunt Writes

RED HOT CHILE

It was predictable that a storm of leftist protest would arise from the recent overthrow and suicide of Salvador Allende in Chile. However, when the storm subsides, the Chilean people must certainly find themselves confronted with the awesome challenge of rebuilding their government and their republican institutions.

There are significant facts which have emerged from the power struggle in Chile. Allende is reported to have taken his life in reaction to the armed takeover. It is somewhat ironic that Allende reportedly killed himself with a submachine gun presented to him by Fidel Castro. It is also a fact that the Marxist government of Allende was extremely unpopular with large numbers of people in Chile, especially the middle classes, primarily because of disastrous social and economic "reforms" he instituted. Allende was opposed by 64 per cent of the voters, so the leftists and the media are dishonest in calling him a "popularly elected" president.

While the leftist elements throughout the world condemn the takeover as blatantly fascist and a U.S. plot, this is not the case. The new government has already been endorsed by the two largest political parties in Chile, suggesting that the military intervention will be only a temporary measure.

When the situation in Chile stabilizes, it may even become apparent that current resistance to the takeover is only the reaction of radical students and organized communist cells who stand to lose a major foothold in South America now that the people of Chile have experienced the repressions of Marxism and rejected them.

Question Box

QUESTION: Aren't most people getting fed up with big government? Is there a chance that the growth of big government will be checked?

ANSWER: We believe most persons believe and say they are opposed to ever-expanding government and bureaucratic control over their lives. Whether they are enough in opposition to big government to forego the goodies they think they are receiving from government so that reductions can occur is questionable.

A Freedom Newspaper staffer on a trip across the nation found people nearly everywhere saying they wanted less government intervention in their lives. Yet many of the same persons seemed to believe political government should continue to provide certain services and protections and in some cases they indicated there were other fields in which they believed government should intervene.

Many said they were opposed to continued increases in Social Security taxes. Some of those same persons at the same time were advocating increased Medicare assistance. Others said the government should not be controlling prices paid to farmers, but should limit the prices of people supplying the farmer. Some advocated government control of exports or imports, but said wages should not be restricted by law.

One newspaper advocated less government spending, but urged greater use of so-called revenue sharing by the federal government. The editor of that newspaper seemed not to understand that the national government has no money that it does not either take from the people directly in taxes or indirectly by inflation; that the national government is broke and has been the principal cause of inflation by its deficit spending practices.

Until more of the people understand that big government is caused by demands for government programs of "assistance," and that individuals should be allowed to be self-reliant and self-responsible, we are afraid there is little chance to stem the growth of big government and its attendant bureaucracy.

The people must learn and insist to their legislators and other government officials at all levels that there is not such thing as a "free lunch." Someone must pay the tab, and that someone is the individual. The payment is both in money and in loss of freedom.

P.O.W. ?

Merchants willing to profit by the Watergate diversion are now offering a series of P.O.W. bracelets bearing the names of such persons as John W. Dean III, H.R. Haldeman; John D. Ehrlichman; and John N. Mitchell. Also offered is a number of games including one with a rule declaring that "cheating is permitted if it is not seen by the commander-in-chief."

The Review Of The News

Washington Juggernaut Of Spending Continues

WASHINGTON - On and on goes the mindless juggernaut of spending in Congress while inflation pushes ever higher the costs of living and doing business in this country and the dollar steadily shrinks in value at home and abroad.

Among other legislative actions last week, the House of Representatives approved the authorization for spending by the State Department for the next fiscal year. It provides $687½ million—an increase of $106½ million over spending for the same general purposes last year. And it was $36½ million over the budget.

Included were expenditures of nearly $12½ million to take care of the "shortfall" in the purchasing power of the devalued dollars which American diplomats and their employees spend abroad. No such consideration is given to citizens in this country whose dollars were likewise devalued.

$$$ TO JUNKET

The bill also provides that members of Congress who junket to foreign countries will have their "living" expenses increased from $50 to $75 per day. One member of the House said this was necessary because on his last junket to England, and as a result of the dollar devaluation, he "had to pay $50 per day for a hotel room in London."

Again, no such consideration is given the American who has to travel to make a living and who pays the bills for members of Congress who must have $50 a day hotel rooms while they sojourn abroad.

The bill also provided $36½ million for Jewish emigres leaving Russia while providing $8 million for the thousands of Palestinian refugees who have been incarcerated in filthy, squalid concentration camps for years.

Also last week the House approved a minimum wage law which in one year will increase the pay of many workers from $1.60 to $2.20 per hour. Farm workers, currently covered, will be jumped from $1.30 to $2.20 per hour in the next three years. More than 4 million additional farm workers are brought under coverage and these with other categories of workers assure that the revised law will provide built-in inflation.

Meanwhile, wholesale prices in this country leaped up another 2 per cent in May, further fueling the fire of inflation and making a mockery of the so-called "Phase III" controls.

During the three months of March, April and May, wholesale prices have climbed to an annual rate of more than 23 per cent. Now where are the administration "experts" who so glibly predicted a few months ago that there would be a "cooling off" in the first half of 1973?

THE MOOCHERS

It seems that foreign diplomats stationed at the United Nations in New York ("Fun City") are having a merry time, but city officials and others don't appreciate their brand of "fun."

For instance, in the last two years New York police have issued 8,000 tickets to foreign diplomats for parking their cars in front of fire hydrants, in fire lanes and other flagrant violations of parking laws. Almost all these summons have been ignored, the violators claiming diplomatic immunity.

U.S. officials charge that unreasonably large shipments of tax-exempt liquor and cigarettes are coming into New York for the U.N. diplomats, the implication being that the liquor and cigarettes are being resold at a profit. More diplomatic immunity from prosecution is claimed.

A score of U.N. foreign diplomats have unpaid telephone bills running into the thousands of dollars. The telephone company says it is about to cut off service despite claimed immunity.

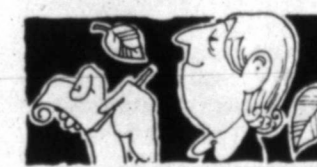

U.S. officials report a growing number of U.N. diplomats depart New York and return home leaving strings of unpaid bills for merchandise, unpaid loans, and unpaid medical bills. Then, U.S. ambassadors in the diplomat's home country are called upon to play the role of bill collectors.

Meanwhile, good old Uncle Sugar continues to extract millions of dollars each year from American taxpayers to support U.N. headquarters in this country from which these alleged diplomats carry on their nefarious operations and live high on the hog.

Did someone once say: "What fools we mortals be?"

No Special Sanctuary

Vice President Agnew claimed in a letter to the Speaker of the House that the Constitution bars any criminal proceedings against him or the President while they hold their respective offices. If his interpretation is correct, the two offices confer upon the occupants thereof a legal status not equally enjoyed by other men. The essential question is whether the intent and effect of the Constitution lets one man, or two, have what others are denied, in setting up different procedures for trial and punishment.

Our conclusion is that the Constitution does not such thing. But we hasten to add that we do not allege anything against Mr. Agnew. Indeed, it is not unthinkable that he could be the victim of a "trial-by-leak" process as malicious as any that the appointive bureaucracy has ever concocted. Time will shed light on that. For the moment, we wish to point out why we believe that the Vice President must stand on the same legal grounds as the most humble resident of the country.

By way of clarification, the Vice President was not claiming immunity from criminal prosecution, even though at first blush his letter gives that unfortunate impression. Basically, he was saying that, according to his interpretation of the Constitution, the President or Vice President can be impeached and removed from office. After those steps are taken, and only then, either may be prosecuted in the normal manner.

The Vice President rested his contention on a portion of the Constitution (Article I, Section 3, Clause 7) which states: "Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office, honor, trust or profit under the United States; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law."

Thus it may be deduced by some that the accused party is subject to the following process in the listed time sequence: (a) impeachment; (b) trial and conviction; (c) removal from office; (d) criminal proceeding, according to law. That is to say, ordinary criminal proceeding cannot commence until impeachment and its consequences have ended.

We cannot find that such a doctrine of executive protection originates in the Constitution. The clear wording of Article I, Section 3, Clause 7 is that "indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law" are not barred by the impeachment process. Are they then postponed until the impeachment process, if any, shall have run its course, or

Lacquer protects metal fixtures

IF POSSIBLE REMOVE HARDWARE CLEAN WITH METAL POLISH REMOVE POLISH WITH ALCOHOL APPLY TWO COATS OF CLEAR LACQUER

By Mr. Fix
Metal hardware always looks good in a new kitchen or bathroom, on new furniture and in hardware store displays. Hinges, knobs, pulls and catches of metal are both attractive and durable. But some of that attractiveness fades in time.

Metal pieces lose their luster and may tarnish in time. Some are more durable than others and some are easier to clean than others. A few will pit and corrode if not taken care of right from the start. Some will be ruined by improper cleaning, even losing the exterior coating that made them so attractive in the first place.

A wide variety of metal polishes is available and a good hardware store will carry most of them. A metal polish generally consists of a solvent and a mild abrasive. The solvent dissolves the oxides that form on metal surfaces. The abrasive is there for polishing.

These are mild polishes generally and are to be preferred because they do the least damage to the metal. But a mild polish is only effective before tarnish becomes too thick and heavy. Although the polish may be mild, use it sparingly, especially on plated metals. Frequent polishing eventually wears through the plating.

To avoid this problem with plated surfaces give them a protective coating while still new and clean. A coat of clear lacquer lasts indefinitely and the surfaces can be wiped off with no damage to the plating.

Apply lacquer only to a clean surface. Use a mild polish that will not scratch to remove all dirt and tarnish. Wipe with a rag dipped in denatured alcohol to remove all traces of polish. Then polish with a dry cloth.

If possible remove the hardware before lacquering. Apply two coats with brush or spray.

Do not use lacquer on objects that come in contact with flame or high heat.

Solid copper, bronze or brass are durable and do not present the problems of thin plating. But a coating of lacquer can help these too since they are metals that tarnish easily. They can then be cleaned with the mildest polish and soap and water.

Objects of copper, bronze and brass may become pitted through neglect. Clean first with a mild kitchen cleanser, then rinse with hot water. Remaining stains should be cleaned with a solution of vinegar and salt followed by rinsing in clear, hot water and polishing.

Aluminum doesn't rust but it does become dull and pitted in time, especially when exposed to the weather. Make aluminum bright again with fine steel wool pads and mild soap. Avoid strong cleaning agents, particularly those with lye. These discolor the aluminum. Special aluminum cleaners are available which will do the job easily if not neglected for too long.

Stainless steel does stain if substances dry on the surface. Soap and water are generally enough to clean it. Acid containing foods may discolor the steel but this can be corrected with a metal polish.

Chromium is a plated metal and should be cleaned with care. Use soap and water or a mild polish. The kind sold especially for chrome cleaning is best. Harsh abrasives will scratch the surface. If possible, protect the surface with wax.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Welcome Mat Out:
Qualified diplomats in London say U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will find a cooperative, though cautious response from the Chinese leaders during his forthcoming visit to Peking later this month. The Chinese have hinted they want a further step toward normalization of relations with Washington, but are watching American moves toward rapprochement with Russia. They have left little doubt that they consider Russia enemy number one and say they are systematically preparing for the eventuality of a Soviet attack on them. In talking to the Chinese Kissinger, will, according to the diplomats, be left in no doubt of Peking's uneasiness about too close a relationship between the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R.

Ulster Accord?

Prospects for formation of a new Northern Ireland executive are looking better. The Social Democratic and Labor Party (SDLP), the main group representing the Roman Catholic minority, has conceded the major point that Unionist leader Brian Faulkner should head the executive. Faulkner was last northern Ireland premier before Britain imposed direct rule in March, 1972. In return for this concession the SDLP wants the key finance post for itself. Apparently, it considers controlling the purse strings of the province no less important than the job of chief executive. No one in Belfast expects the talks to be short or easy. But most Ulster politicians now think it will be possible to set up the new executive before the end of the year.

Brezhnev Visit to India:

Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev will resume his efforts to win India's approval of his Asian security pact scheme when he visits New Delhi in November. Asian diplomatic sources say Brezhnev's attempt to warm up relations with New Delhi—the main backers of Soviet foreign policy views in Asia—is reflected in his offer to start shipping immediately two million tons of grain to India to alleviate its food shortage—although Russia itself had to purchase huge quantities of western grain, sources say. They say part of the Soviet-offered wheat may be of western origin. Though India's relations with China have been cool since their frontier war five years ago, Indian Premier Mrs. Indira Gandhi may hesitate at joining a formal Asian pact promoted by Moscow for fear it might increase her tensions with Peking, sources said. China has condemned the Soviet design as an attempt to encircle China.

Nader now has some starry new raiders

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Hollywood stars, who used to be justly pictured as being almost exclusively self-centered, are more and more becoming interested in the world around them. Witness the crowd who showed up at Irving Wallace's house to meet Ralph Nader and help establish a new California Citizen Action Group to combat all the modern ailments. Among those present: Polly Bergen, Carroll O'Connor, Jean Stapleton, Steve and Jayne Allen, Martin Landau and Barbara Bain, Carl and Rob Reiner, Ray Bradbury (wearing a "Male Chauvinist Pig" button) and Norman Lear. For Martin Landau and Barbara Bain, the party was their last Hollywood appearance for some time. Marty is off to England, Barbara and their daughters will follow soon, where he'll star in a science-fiction series for Sir Lew Grade. He says it will be shown on network TV here, probably next year. Barbara was a little nervous. She said she realized the move would change their whole lives — "my 13-year-old daughter, assuming the series lasts a few years, could conceivably wind up marrying an Englishman."

Nancy O'Connor, Carroll's wife, was wearing a neck brace. She said it was just a pinched nerve but it was painful. "I'm just wearing it," she said, "to attract attention."

A few nights later, Hollywood assembled again, this time as the P'Nat B'Rith honored Par amount's boss, Frank Yablans, as its Man of the Year.

Jack Lemmon was the MC for the evening and started the festivities off right by saying, "This is more than a thrill — it's a damned inconvenience."

Another Lemmon-quip I enjoyed was this remark: "I think Spiro-Agnew will go down in history as a man of many gifts."

Eddie Albert is a man of many parts. He's always been in the forefront of the ecology war and now he's doing something about it — which might make him some money, too.

He's behind a company manufacturing glass fiber chambers for controlled gardening. These are like small hothouses, designed so people can grow their own vegetables at home, organically and in unpolluted air.

Rumors of a Frank Sinatra-Milton Berle feud are exaggerated. The story is this: There will be a 60th anniversary in-show-business dinner for Berle and Sinatra agreed to be the toastmaster. Then ABC contracted to telecast the dinner later (on Nov. 27) and that changed things.

Sinatra's lawyers made him bow out of the deal because of a possible sponsor conflict between that show and his own coming special. But the two men are still good friends.

SINATRA: No Berle Feud.

Washington Knew About Arab Military Buildup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States had advance information of the Arab military buildup along the borders of Israel but the outbreak of fighting Saturday came as a surprise, U.S. officials said.

An Israeli Embassy spokesman, Ghod Ranon, told UPI "We had information the past few days—and so did our friends in the Pentagon—that there were movements of big units both in Egypt and in Syria."

Defense officials confirmed they had received reports of the Arabs massing their forces during the past two days.

U.S. intelligence sources added they had also received reports of a large number of Soviet flights in and out of Cairo on Friday.

Tel Aviv reports said the Soviets had been withdrawing their military advisers and dependents from Egypt in apparent anticipation of the fighting.

Ranon said the Israeli government had sent word to Cairo that the Israeli forces had "no intention of crossing the Suez Canal."

He said the message was passed through diplomats stationed in Tel Aviv. He disclosed no details.

The State Department, in the absence of Secretary Henry A. Kissinger in New York, said it was following developments in the Mideast closely and that personnel concerned with the area were at their desks.

Expressing surprise at the sudden outbreak of hostilities, one Pentagon official noted the fighting started about 2 p.m. middle eastern time and commented "That's a crazy time to start a war."

Wars, he said, usually begin at daybreak to give an attacker the maximum number of hours to gain ground.

Business Today

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Phase 4 domestic price controls end the only brake left on expansion of the American fertilizer industry will be the shortage of raw materials.

During the past summer, American farmers complained bitterly that they couldn't buy enough fertilizer even as ships loaded hundreds of thousands of tons of it in American ports for sale abroad.

"This was true to a certain extent because the world price of fertilizer was way above the controlled domestic price," says a spokesman for W.R. Grace & Co., a leading U.S. producer. However, Grace had rather limited export commitments and sold most of its fertilizer on the U.S. market at the controlled price.

"The farmers kept telling Congress they were willing to pay higher prices because they needed the fertilizer desperately," said the Grace spokesman.

Fast Turnaround

George Blackwood, Grace executive vice president for agricultural chemicals, said the company has embarked on a $150 million program to increase output of fertilizers and other farm chemicals. He said industry projections forecast sales gains of 5 per cent annually for the next 10 to 15 years.

This marks a fast turnaround for an industry plagued by substantial overcapacity only four years ago. All through the 1950s and '60s, the fertilizer industry grew dramatically because of plentiful supplies of phosphates, natural gas feedstock for making nitrates and potash and the surplus cash position of oil companies.

Then things changed with nightmarish speed. Phosphate deposits began to be depleted suddenly, and demand for gas zoomed. Inflation raised all business costs so much that oil companies began to get out of the fertilizer business to conserve operating capital.

Most of all, the global demand for fertilizer soared beyond all expectations.

Urea Output Expanded

"The whole industry needs to expand rapidly now," Blackwood said. Grace is in a particularly fortunate position at the moment, he said, because it recently expanded annual capacity at its Memphis nitrogen plant from 275,000 to 340,000 tons of anhydrous ammonia. This plant serves the southern and eastern sections of the corn belt.

Grace also is expanding output of its urea plant at Memphis from 138,000 to 350,000 tons a year.

Urea, used in many industries, lately has found a market as a low-cost substitute for soybean meal and cottonseed meal to supply protein to livestock diets. "Urea fed cattle can be brought to market at the lowest possible cost per pound weight gain," Blackwood said.

"Hagar The Horrible" Creator Has Had Extensive Experience

Dik Browne, creator of "Hagar The Horrible," is a native New Yorker, born August 11, 1918, son of accountant William J. Browne and his wife, Mae.

He was educated in New York and later in New Rochelle, N.Y. schools and went forth into the business world in the middle 1930's, just in time to catch on to the tail of the depression.

The Brownes were not rich, and Dik (Richard Arthur Allan Browne) went to work at the New York Journal as a copy boy.

"I always liked drawing," he says, "but for a while there, it looked as if I'd passed art by. I was vitally interested in becoming Willie Scoop, the boy reporter. I went to art school at night, but my interest in being a newspaperman made me sort of drift away from the drawing board."

He was yanked back in line, he says, when the Journal drafted him to draw maps and murder diagrams. In 1941 he joined the art staff of Newsweek, and the next year he married Joan Kelly, a pretty New York brunette who had been working on the Daily News.

Almost immediately he was inducted into the army, and he spent three and a half years with the engineers corps.

"That's where I learned to draw cartoons," he explains, "so when I came out of the service, I went into advertising art, drawing strips for cereal foods and so on."

Dik drew for such accounts as Camel cigarettes, Lipton tea, Birdseye frozen foods, Post cereals and Campbell soups, and among other accomplishments, re-designed the famous Campbell soup kids and designed Chiquita Bananas.

He was working at the time for Johnstone and Cushing, the agency where he keeps a desk even now.

Through a friend, he met Bishop Fulton J. Sheen and did some voluntary cartoon work for the bishop, in connection with missions, and in 1953 he illustrated The Bishop's "Life Is Worth Living," published by McGraw-Hill. Later, he did another illustrating job for another Sheen book.

Dik works both day and night, preferring the night, and he labors in a separate studio because he says he can't get disengaged from his family when he's home; he likes them too much and wants to be in on whatever they're doing.

His two boys — "both exceptional," he says, like a proud suburban pop — are Robert and Christopher. Bob who started college in the Fall of 1966, majoring in journalism, has shown a flair for art.

Delight of the Browne family is Sally Anne, the pretty little Chinese girl adopted by Dik and Joan in 1961 when she was four years old.

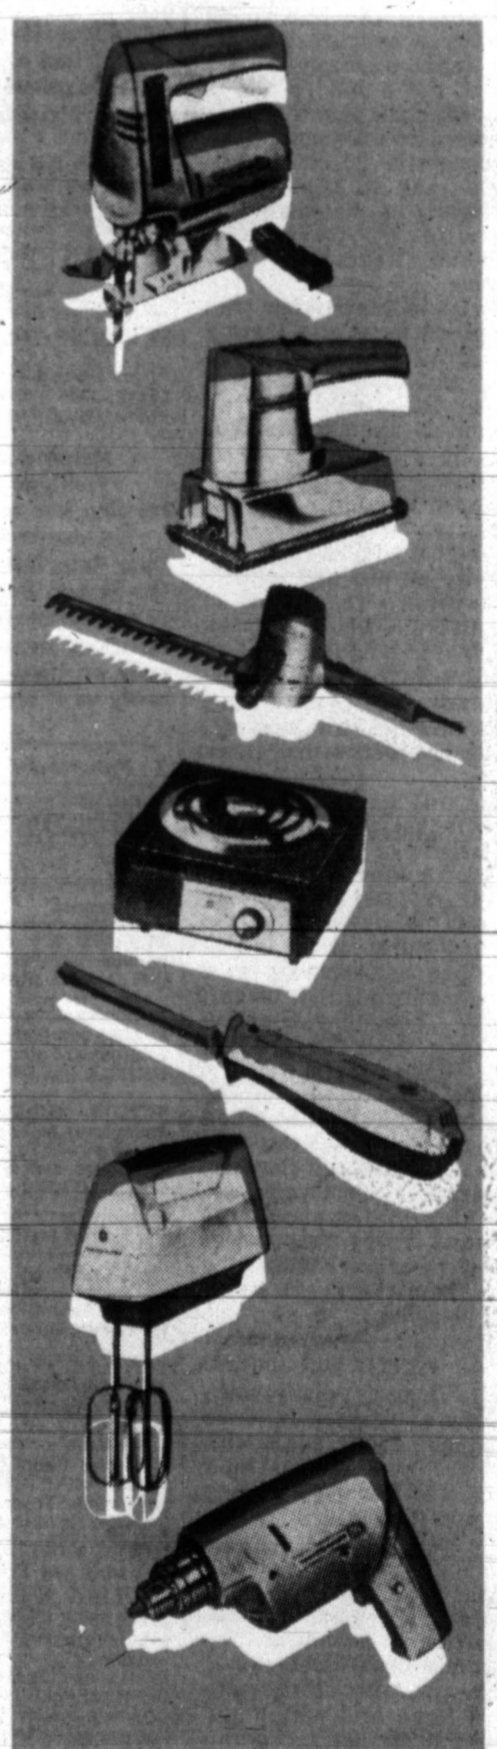

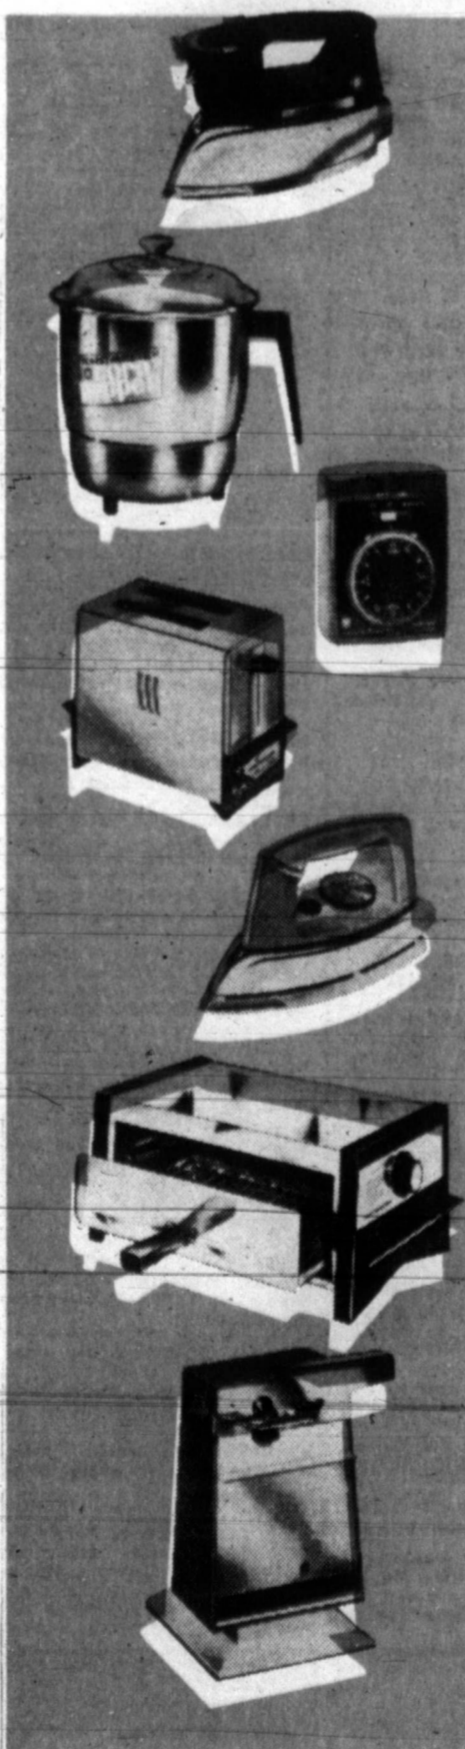

Harold S. Vanderbilt is credited with inventing contract bridge on an Atlantic cruise in 1925.
