McElroy Out As Of Today

Defense Chief Quits, Ike Elevates Gates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower today announced the resignation of Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy and named Undersecretary Thomas S. Gates Jr. to succeed him.

The announcement came after a National Security Council meeting this morning at which the President presented the Medal of Freedom to McElroy "in recognition of his outstanding service to his country and his dedication to his task."

McElroy's resignation was effective today.

In an exchange of letters between McElroy and Eisenhower made public by the White House, McElroy said that "personal reasons of an urgent nature" necessitated his resignation after two years in the top defense job. He said he would leave the department with "feelings of deep regret."

McElroy, 51, plans to return to Procter & Gamble, the soap manufacturing firm he headed before joining the Eisenhower Cabinet in 1957.

Word of his resignation plans had come earlier today from informed sources here. McElroy had said previously that he hoped to resign by the end of the year.

The President said that he was thankful that McElroy left for his successor "a department that will continue to reflect the very beneficial changes effected under your energetic leadership."

Gates, 57, a former Philadelphia investor banker, was undersecretary of the Navy from 1953 to 1957 and secretary of the Navy from 1957 until earlier this year when he was named to succeed the late Donald A. Quarles as No. 2 defense man.

Approached Airport, Pulled Nose Up, Then Disappeared

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) — An Allegheny Airlines plane crashed during a driving snow storm today in the vicinity of the Montoursville airport near here.

State police at Montoursville reported the plane was "definitely down" but they were not able to locate it because of the snow.

David L. Miller, vice president of the airline, said in Washington that a preliminary check showed there were 22 passengers and a crew of three aboard.

He said the twin-engine plane en route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, was making an approach to the airport when it "pulled up" and then disappeared. State police were sent to the area to look for the plane but a spokesman said they found it "pretty tough going."

Allegheny is a local service carrier with headquarters at Washington National Airport. It serves a score of Eastern seaboard cities and had never had a fatal crash.

The plane left Philadelphia at 8:15 a.m. and was due to land at Williamsport, the first stop, at 9 a.m.

Miller said a weather observer at the Williamsport airport saw the plane pull up as it approached the runway in a snowstorm.

"That's all we know," he added. "We have not heard from the plane since."

The flight's commander was identified as Capt. Tom Gault, 41, who is based at George Washington and the flight steward as William Conger.

Officials said several persons reported hearing a crash. The crash scene was believed to be near a farm.

Rocky Faces Big Decision

ALBANY (UPI) — Nelson A. Rockefeller is meeting the big decision whether to oppose Vice President Richard M. Nixon for the Republican presidential nomination.

Rockefeller, a reliable source said, will decide within the next five or six weeks if he intends to actively challenge Nixon in the New Hampshire "first in the nation" primary election.

So far the New York governor has been touring the country making speeches and talking with GOP leaders as an undecided candidate.

The governor's trip from the Atlantic to the Pacific has been a part of an overall campaign plan if he drops his hat in the presidential ring. But as of now he "honestly has not decided" whether to make the fight.

Traffic Tickets Take New Form

A new form of traffic citation went into use today and, according to Corporation Court Judge Buf Maguire, "a lot of the old citations should be eliminated."

One copy of the "quintuplicate" ticket will be given to the motorist which states clearly, Maguire said, the defendant's instructions on court appearances and fines.

Other copies will be given to the corporation system, the Department of Public Safety in Austin, and the police department for filing in the "repeater" file.

Maguire said the ticket has been patterned directly after uniform traffic citations now used in 12 states.

Lack Of AF Funds Delays B70 Debut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Air Force announced today that because of a lack of funds, the debut of the B70 supersonic bomber will be delayed until next year.

The Air Force said that the B70, which is scheduled to be introduced in 1963 instead of 1962, "All major subcontractors for the Air Force said. The economy program will be returned to the prime contractor, North American Aviation Co., at Inglewood, Calif."

The move is expected to save $5 million dollars in the budget to be presented to Congress in January.

The new budget will ask for about $75 million for the B70.

By the time the first B70 flies, nearly a billion dollars will have been spent on its development. Designed to cruise at three times the speed of sound, the plane is to be the first supersonic heavy bomber.

Today's announcement, however, raised some doubt whether a war fleet of B70s will ever be built. The announcement said "the B70 supersonic heavy bomber program is being reoriented to a prototype aircraft program."

The announcement indicates that the question of whether the B70 will be placed in full production will depend on later decisions as to whether money should be spent for bombers or for missiles.

Grammy Awards A Fiasco

Television In Review
By FRED BUNIG
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Remem-ber Alan Handley?

He's the fellow who ran the Academy Awards fiasco last spring. Well, he tried to make up for it as producer-director of another awards show Sunday night on NBC-TV's Sunday Showcase. This time, it was the record in- dustry's turn to hand out the hardware, called "Grammy," to its deserving performers.

While Handley's one-hour color- cast ended on schedule — I sus- pect the use of tape helped — it still couldn't avoid a major boo-boo. This came when Van Cliburn made a shambles of the classical music awards by read- ing from the wrong cards. Serves them right, though, for hiring Cliburn to walk on and talk. He didn't perform.

After this gaffe, the show set- tled down to a smoother, matter- of-fact and duller presentation. Most of the numbers were below the production and excitement levels of Dick Clark's Saturday night rock-roll salvo on ABC- TV, although three of the 10 numbers were staged with unusual imagination. I refer to the ubiquitous Bobby Darin's "Mack the Knife," Duke Ellington's "Antony of a Murder," and Jimmy Driftwood's "Battle of New Or- leans." Host Meredith Willson was handicapped by a static script and nothing to do.

Dialing and Filing: CBS-TV's famed Small World show has the happy habit of leaving in remarks that poke fun at its format. Con- fronted by a middle commercial, Field Marshal Montgomery pro- tested with: "We don't want any commercial stuff in this. I think it's much too good." As Ed Mur- row laughed, Monty added, "I think it's the cat's whiskers." But even Monty and his fellow sol- diers — Generals Mark Clark and Fridolin Von Szegeer — couldn't halt that commercial blitz. The rest of the show was mostly ster- ile and trite — poor Army. First came Saturday's 43-12 loss to Navy on NBC-TV and on Sunday, four West Pointers lost to four Annapolis men on CBS-TV's GE College Bowl, 270-65. Of the two setbacks, I'll bet the quiz show troum- ping was the more humiliat- ing. NBC-TV's swirly, stodgy Friday night special, "The Mirac- le on 34th Street" was filled with Yuletide good will to all but psy- chologists. Ed Wynn's portrayal of Santa Claus contained too much Ed Wynn Jack Benny and his guest Jack Paar, missed a fine opportunity for high comedy Sunday night on the CBS-TV half- hour Routine stuff.

The Channel Swim: The award- winning program Omnibus, which NBC-TV was unable to sell to sponsors for the current season, has caught the CBS-TV eye again and now is reported to be near a sale. Trade sources say the net- work is anxious to revive the pro- gram as part of its new effort to improve its public image.

Peter Lawford and Hermione Gingold have been added to Frank Sinatra's ABC-TV special on Sunday, Dec. 13. Hooten- nery will preside over an NBC-TV Rexall special on Jan. 10. The for- mat is based on Miss Hopper's 33 years in Hollywood. Singer Bobby Darin is the subject of Ralph Ed- wards' This Is Your Life show on NBC-TV Wednesday, Dec. 2. Ar- thur Godfrey's next CBS-TV spe- cial, set for Friday, Jan. 15, will feature segments taped in Jami- ca, where Godfrey will spend a week starting Dec. 3. Sam Leven- son subs for Godfrey will spend a do during that time.

SCHEDULE FIRST MEETING WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republican Arrangements Commit- tee will hold its first meeting in Chicago Dec. 10 to map plans for the 1960 convention. The GOP Na- tional Committee also will meet in Chicago Dec. 11-12 and will re- ceive a report on convention plans.

Tight-Lipped LBJ Schedules Extensive Tour

AUSTIN (UPI) — Senate Major- ity Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, still tight-lipped about any presi- dential aspirations, sets out Sun- day on a 12-day tour of the West, North and East.

Johnson headquarters in Austin said the intensive swing through five states was no indication of a campaign for a Democratic presi- dential nomination, but was Johnson's only way to work in as many out-of-Texas appear- ances as possible in a short time. Sunday he goes before the Na- tionality Division of the Demo- cratic National Committee at Philadelphia. Then he flies to Washington for a breakfast con- ference Monday with President Eisenhower and other congres- sional leaders.

Observers foresee that ideas will be exchanged at the break- fast meeting concerning the Pres- ident's forthcoming world tour. Johnson will go to St. Louis University Dec. 7 and then at- tend a Democratic dinner in Hut- chinson, Kan., the same day.

On Dec. 8 he will speak to the combined service clubs of Des Moines, and will attend a dinner- ally of Democrats in Marshall- town, Ia.

The last day of his tour is Dec. 10, when he will attend a party rally in Phoenix, Ariz.

Highway Use Tax Reports Are Due

A considerable number of truck operators have not paid their fed- eral use tax on highway motor vehicles, according to Willey E. Davis, administrative officer of the Pampa office. The Internal Re- venue Service has surveyed the state registration records and has pre- pared a list of the truck operators subject to the federal highway use tax who have not filed their tax return on Form 2290 and paid their tax.

Davis explained that although the law had been in effect since July 1, 1956, many truck operators still are not familiar with the tax and with the fact that a return must be filed annually and the tax paid. Other returns may be due if additional trucks are put into operation during the year. In general, this tax applies to the use on the public highways of mo- tor vehicles having a taxable gross weight of more than 26,000 pounds. The tax applies to these vehicles even if they are operated solely within a city, town, or other metropolitan area.

The Internal Revenue Service has a available Publication 349

Johnson's staff maintains the itinerary of his tour was arbi- trary, but Texas supporters of the Senate leader indicate consid- erable support for a presidential bid could come from the areas he will cover, particularly the West and Midwest.

Those who do not file and pay on time are required to pay inter- est at the rate of 6 percent per year on the tax from the time it is due. MUSIC TO BURN BY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Patrons of the Harbor Inn restaurant held their tempers Sunday while the juke box played "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," over and over for 30 minutes. Finally, the customer who kept playing it left. Another customer put his coin in the machine and punched his se- lection — "There'll Be A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight." For a teen-ager, spending the night at the home of a friend means raiding the refrigerator and trying out the latest hair styles. It's also a golden opportunity for the girls to give each other home permanents. The permanent becomes simple (left) when there's an extra pair of willing hands. The girls are careful to read the directions first and follow them to the letter. There's even time (center) for a phone call during the 20-minute processing period. The finished results (right) are soft and pretty hair styles, easy to care for and with assurance that curl will stay in during the stormy days of winter.

Excess Poundage No Deterrent To Hefty Prima Donna Nightingale

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—The saying goes that a prima person also is a person who laughs. In the case of Eileen Farrell, it's a matter of she who laughs last.

For the Metropolitan Opera Co. finally has gotten around to hiring this soprano, after she established herself as a top-flight singer on radio, in opera in Chicago and San Francisco, and with concert audiences in the United States, Canada and Europe.

The gossip in musical circles long has been that Rudolf Bing, general manager of the "Met," wanted no prima donna as hefty as the 39-year-old Miss Farrell, even though she sang like a nightingale.

The Met denies this was so. And Miss Farrell figures that the whole thing must have been a matter of timing and her own busy concert schedule, not one of pounds.

"The subject of weight did not come up in our talks," said Miss Farrell, discussing her new contract with the famous old opera company.

"The Met came to me; I didn't go to them. But I understand this is how it all came about."

Miss Farrell was talking to conductor Max Rudolf, who said he recently had lunched with Bing, who remarked, "I've got great plans for her (Miss Farrell)."

Next thing she knew, John Guttman, the Met's assistant general manager, asked her to come in and talk with Bing. Miss Farrell said she, with her manager, did just that and Bing remarked, "Everyone always is asking me, 'why doesn't Farrell sing with the Met?'"

"Well, now I'm asking you?" the soprano will make her debut next season in "Alceste," last heard at the Met with Kirsten Flagstad.

"I'm not nervous now, but when the time comes I'll be petrified. No, I don't look on the Metropolitan as the epitome..."

Bedraggled feathers never made any bonnet a thing of beauty to behold. But it's surprising how many women cling to them, along with a torn, limp bit of veiling. Be ruthless about discarding both and applying new trim.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Maybe your children used to watch the rigged quiz shows.

If so, they'll remember the careful secrecy of the isolation booths and the quiz master's aloof, virtuous impartiality. They'll recall the mounting tension in his voice, the tortured faces of the sweating contestants behind their windows as they struggled so hard to command connotations in their memories. They'll remember how they shared the exhausted winner's triumph when the lights finally flashed—and he was told that his work had again paid off in another mass of dollars.

As well as feeling sympathetic triumph with the winner, your youngsters may have envied his good luck.

Well, his good luck was bad luck. So perhaps we might say to the children:

"It's silly to want what luck can give you. You can never be sure of what you get through luck. Its value can disappear in a minute like Cinderella's coach."

If we don't make this point, the impression that the rigged quiz shows fooled them more cruelly than they fooled the poor winners who wanted so badly to make a fast buck.

So let's identify the real victims, use the quiz shows' scandal to help children register the pain. As your boys and girls appreciate the winners' luck so ardently in 1957, it's only fair that they appreciate something of the winners' humiliation in 1959. It's only fair that they register the price now being paid for that wonderful luck.

Personally, I dislike the atmosphere generated by TV's big money-grabbing quiz shows, rigged or unrigged. Children who watch them can't help getting the idea that money is something luck will ultimately drop in your lap instead of something you have to do something about yourself.

How much of our own respect for honest work has been whittled away by quiz shows' calculated hysterics over unearned cash, speedboats and Hawaiian holidays?

Let's think about it. And let's usually a cool iron will put the finishing touch on miracle fabric blouses. It will, if they are hung correctly to dry and not wrung so wrinkles are creased into them.

the fear, the disgrace involved with their easy-come winnings. It's good for them to recognize that Lady Luck, who presided over the phony labor in the isolation booths, is the mean old witch she always was.

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I married a widower and you can imagine my embarrassment when, on the second anniversary of his deceased wife's death, my husband placed a basket of flowers in church in her memory. Add me a bride of four months!

My first impulse was to send him to join his first wife. But I had a better idea. The following Sunday there was a much larger, more beautiful basket of flowers in church in memory of my first husband. And guess who received the bill?

GOT EVEN
DEAR ABBY: It's women like you who make "basket cases" out of marriages. With your present attitude, you'll be risky to be a bride of five months!

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of four children. Our eldest is retarded. When our suspicions were confirmed, our hearts were broken. But we have accepted the fact and are learning to live with it.

My mother-in-law has never accepted the fact and is constantly trying to talk my husband and me into putting the child in an institution. I'd die first.

My mother-in-law showers our other children with gifts, but she has never given Billy anything. She says, "He can't appreciate anything." When she visits us (which is almost daily) she asks me to send Billy out of the room as she says it "makes her sick" to look at him. She treats him like an animal.

I can't tell my husband's mother she is not welcome in my home. But I can't stand it much longer. Can you advise me, please?

DEAR NO NAME: Your husband can and should tell his mother that she must treat Billy like the other children or she can stay home. What kind of father is your husband to permit his child to be treated "like an animal"? If your husband doesn't straighten out his mother—you have every right to put her out.

DEAR ABBY: There is a certain woman who plays bridge with us and she is getting on our nerves. When she is the dummy, she will run around (and while she's at it she takes a good look at everybody else's hand) to stand behind her partner. She will sigh and gasp and groan and make all sorts of telling noises. We have had this standing foursome for over 20 years and I would be very awkward to get rid of her. We all agree that bridge with her isn't fun any more. How can we let her off without hurting her feelings, or drop her from the foursome? She reads your column.

"THE TUESDAY CLUB"
DEAR CLUB: If she reads this column, it will no longer be necessary for her to read your minds.

Confidential to Lonesome: Go somewhere on your vacation. Nobody needs a "LOOKER LICENSE."

What's your problem? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, care of this paper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Gone Are The Days Of Sloppy Blue Jeans Today's Teeners Are Fashion-Wise

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

When teen-ager girls get together to spend an evening at home, chances are the refrigerator will be raided as soon as the homework is finished. The rest of the time will be spent in trying out the latest hair styles.

Gone are the days when young girls slumped around in jeans and sloppy, oversized shirts. They are as fashion conscious today as their older sisters were when they were teeners.

When daughter has a friend over for the night, they can experiment with hair style. And if there are both rod-type and pin-curl home waves in the dressing table drawer, they can create the styles they choose.

For a bouffant fluff of curls, fringed with a feathery bang, a rod-type permanent, with a no-rot neutralizer should be used. For a casual, softly waved bob, a pin-curl permanent is best. There are three types of curlers with the pin-curl wave offered by one manufacturer: mid-gel curlers for neckline tendrils, sponge curlers for side and temple tresses, and plastic pin-curlers for the rest of the hair style. The process itself is easy.

You just put up the pin-curl, apply lotion, wait twenty minutes, then water rinse. During the night the curls will dry.

Today's teen-agers can easily handle the home wave, for it no longer means mixing and messy-dripping. And there's no better time than when the teen has a guest. An extra pair of hands make the task even simpler.

Once the curls are set, out can come the phonograph records. It's taken such a short time that the evening is still young.

Deputies Due In With Sexton Today

Cecil Sexton, the 18-year-old Californian who eluded lawmen in Friday's manhunt near Groom, was expected to arrive in Pampa today in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Buck Haggard, Haggard and Claude Timmons, pilot of a chartered plane sent to Coalinga, Calif., Sunday, are scheduled to arrive at Perry-Labors Airfield shortly after noon today.

Sheriff Rufe Jordan said today that Sexton will be arraigned the moment he arrives at the courthouse on charges of burglary and theft.

Sexton, Jordan said, has already signed a confession to Friday morning's burglary of the Harvester Bowl on Texas Hwy. 70, one-half mile south of Pampa. Sexton was chased at high speeds by a city police car some 40 miles into Donley County.

Sheriff Jordan said Sexton's return should clear up a number of puzzling elements of the case.

"We'd like to know how he got to California so fast," Jordan said. "We think he either took a train

Fish, Fleas To Be Shot Into Space

DALLAS (UPI)—The United States plans to shoot fish and fleas into outer space with its astronauts.

It's part of the equipment that Jack Bates explained.

Bates is a staff psychologist at the Air Force school of aviation medicine in San Antonio. He is handling an Air Force exhibit at the Dallas Health Fair.

What we will create for our astronauts is a small earth away from earth," he explained.

This means an apparatus that converts the astronaut's carbon dioxide waste into pure oxygen through utilization of algae, water, heat and light.

The only trouble, Capt. Bates said, is that algae (a common water plant similar to seaweed) tends to double itself daily.

"The man will eat some of it in one form or another," he said. "But we are thinking of sending fish and water fleas along too. They'll take care of the surplus algae."

Search teams, hampered by driving snow and icy conditions, worked down-river from Williamsport and up the mountain. There are no roads over the rough terrain of the mountain and only one railroad track.

A train was sent to take searchers over the lone track in an effort to reach the area believed to be the scene of the crash.

Police said it began snowing about 7:30 a.m., reducing visibility to almost zero and making conditions extremely icy.

This isn't quite the poet's age, reality is all the rage, and U.S. novels, sex-obsessed, are still the books that sell the best. Yet Betje-man manages to get, such fans as Princess Margaret, with rhymes about the world that lies, before his sharp, observant eyes.

It won him last year's poetry prize.

("Love-thirty, love-forty, oh! Weakness of joy, 'The speed of a swallow, the grace of a bee, 'With carefulest carelessness, gaily you won, 'I am weak from your loveliness, Joan Hunter Dunn...")

How come, I asked, rhymes so demure, outsell the tortured and obscure, which modern poets try to write, as though they grope on through a night, whose twisted psychiatric gloom leads only to an H-bomb doom?

"I have no theory," he said — of course he did not speak in rhyme — "why I should be so popular. Perhaps my verse is for the time. You see, I find my muses play with things that happen everyday, although I can be hard and gritty, have you read my verse 'The City'? — 'business men with awkward hips and dirty jokes upon their lips'."

"Some verse one reads unto one's self, and some of this stays on the shelf. The kind of meters that I write are meant to tempt one to recite..."

("We sat in the car park till twenty to one 'And now I'm engaged to Miss Joan Hunter Dunn'").

Let others sing the soaring lark the Grecian urn, the woodland park. John Betje-man hymns the water tank — and has a balance at the bank.

AROUND THE WORLD

THE REACH—Wilt Chamberlain (13) is going up to block Bill Russell's shot during action in Boston, Mass. Despite his efforts, however, the Celtics won, 115-106.

HELPING HANDS — While filling a singing engagement at Lake Tahoe, Nev., curvaceous Abbe Lane seems to have had another job. Whether or not she worked at it, she did pose with a wheelbarrow.

DOUBLE DUTY—Wearing hip boots and riding bareback, Jan Oneto handles the reins with one hand and a fishing rod in the other while trying to hook one at Nags Head, N. C. The lad is mounted on a banker pony, a domesticated animal. It formerly roamed wild on a nearby island.

HOME OF WINTER OLYMPICS—Squaw Valley, Calif., has been transformed into a thriving city in preparation for the 1960 Winter Olympics. This is one of the unusual homes which are springing up in the area. Rents during the games next February will probably be astronomical.

SOME GUNSLINGER—A two-gun cutie of the Old West, well-stacked British starlet Yvonne Buckingham had plenty of youthful admirers in London. Appearing at a charity show in a park, curvaceous Yvonne drew approving glances from pleased adult male spectators as well. Her high heels are a new style note in a Western outfit.

ELEGANCE ON ICE — A midgy blouse of Himalayan snow leopard, dramatically trimmed with red fox collar and cuffs, takes to the ice at New York's Rockefeller Plaza in a benefit fashion show. The glamorous topper was included in a winter preview group, all of which were shown for the benefit of the United Hospital Fund.

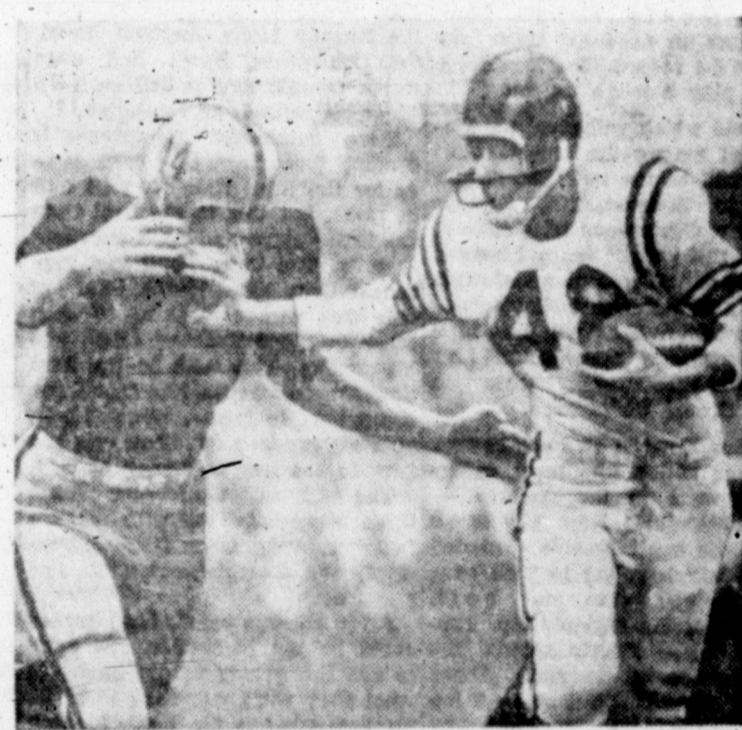

PRIZE CATCH—Eight-year-old Edwin Pabich, of Chicago, is showing his five-pound, 14-ounce small mouth black bass to his dog, Colette, at Lake Geneva, Wis., and Colette can hardly believe her eyes. The lad caught the fish and won first prize in a contest.

TRUNCING A TEAM—New York Rangers' goalie Lorne Worsley (right) crouched in front of the net an instant before the Montreal Canadiens scored their first goal of a game in Montreal. Montreal's Maurice Richard (9) is about to flick the puck (arrow) to teammate Bernie Geoffrion, who then scored. Their team won, 8 to 2.

TRY IT!—With the football season in full swing, Sue Alberston, of Greenville, S. C., thinks girls should handle wolves with gridiron penalty signals. Starting at top, from left to right, Sue shows how an eager date could be told he's off-side; using illegal procedure; making an illegal motion; guilty of illegal use of hands; out of luck because his pass is incomplete, and stuck because Sue is for safety.

WELL DONE—Mrs. Herbert C. Chase, of Virginia, presented a cup to American equestrian star Hugh Wiley. He had just won the second round of the Low Score Competition challenge trophy at National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden.

HUDDLING—Carrying the ball, Alex Webster (29) of the New York Giants, scoots around opposition before being tackled on the first down of the third quarter in the Giants-Cardinals game in New York. The Giants won, 9-3, enabling them to stay one game ahead of the Cleveland Browns in the National Football League's Eastern Division.

Red Griggs the pipeline

For the first time in many years, most of the teams playing in the bowl games are the ones which should be there.

Only one team which was in the nation's top ten last week, Southern Cal, is not going to a bowl game.

There does seem to be one miscarriage of justice, since Georgia Tech (6-4) is going to the Gator Bowl instead of Alabama (7-1-2) but the difference there is not great enough to call for a congressional investigation.

Of the eight teams playing in the four major bowl games (Cotton, Sugar, Rose, Orange), there's only one which may not belong there.

Of the seven teams so far selected to play in the four near-major bowls (Liberty, Gator, Blue Bonnet, Sun) only Georgia Tech is an even slightly doubtful.

Cotton, Sugar Bowls Are Tops

The Cotton and Sugar Bowls this year should provide two of the all-time great football games.

The Cotton Bowl was slightly tarnished by TCU's late-season victory over Texas.

The Sugar Bowl game, a rematch of the LSU-Mississippi early-season thriller, may be an even greater attraction.

'Minor' Bowls Should Be Good

In the "high minors" the top attraction may be the Gator Bowl, which, thanks to the close race in the Southwest Conference, has a conference champion this year.

Arkansas, Southwest tri-champ which lost only to Texas and Mississippi, meets Georgia Tech, another Southwest Conference tri-champ, which has an excellent team.

A game which will rival the Gator Bowl among the lesser bowl games will be the Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston.

The Sun Bowl in El Paso has for its teams two of the most underrated squads in the country.

North Texas and New Mexico State. Both are offensive-minded squads, which rolled to well over 300 yards per game.

Harvesters to Play Phillips Tonight

Last Game Before Opener at Home

PHILLIPS — The Harvester basketball team will be shooting for its 46th consecutive victory here tonight against the Phillips Blackhawks, a class AAA team.

The defending state champions opened their season Saturday with a 55-29 victory over Quannah, a class AA squad.

Pampa's offense, as might be expected for the first game of the year, was erratic, but the defense was good.

Post man Craig Winborn and guard Pat Carter led Pampa's attack in the one game played. Winborn racked up 21 points while hitting almost 50 percent of his attempts from the floor.

Other probable starters for the Harvesters tonight will be post man Allen Wise, 6-2, and guards Joe Timms, 5-11, and Phillip Gist, 5-11.

Tonight's game, against a fairly good AAA squad, should be a warmup for the important series this weekend against the Bowie Jackrabbits.

The Harvester defense, led by Winborn and Gist, was very good in its only test, against Quannah.

NEW YORK — British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, calling Moses the greatest commander of all time for leading the children of Israel to the land of Canaan.

"He said: 'I can't do it' and he kept on wandering about in the desert for 40 years, and they weren't lost at all, but he was training them for war. I think he was a great-guy, Moses."

LONDON — Christopher Floris, who presided over baking Sir Winston Churchill's 60-pound 85th birthday cake, revealing how he got the ingredients:

"I wrote to embassies and heads of state of almost every country in the world asking them for an ounce of ingredients from each country. I received almost three hundredweights of ingredi-

U.S. Policy Said Lacking By Romulos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Phil Weaver (R-Neb.), who has accused the Philippine government of condoning harassment of U.S. servicemen, suggested Saturday that Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo return to Manila for a re-examination of Philippine-American relations.

Romulo replied immediately with a suggestion that the United States take another look at its foreign policies for an explanation of recent anti-American incidents in Cuba, Panama and Tokyo.

"I was in the Philippines recently and I do not have to be told by fly-by-night visitors the conditions in my homeland," the envoy said.

The exchange coincided with reports from Clark Air Force Base, a major U.S. installation near Manila that armed Filipinos had infiltrated a restricted area and trussed up an Air Force sentry.

Weaver and Romulo have been trading barbs since the congressman charged earlier this week that

BLAINE, Kan. — Navy Cmdr. Malcolm Ross, who made a 13-mile balloon ascent with a Cambridge, Mass., scientist, stating that the temperature dropped as low as 80 degrees below zero: "It was cold as hell."

a "graft-ridden" Philippine government had been condoning mass theft of U.S. property and harassment of military personnel.

Romulo Friday charged that U.S. military representatives were conducting a "whispering campaign" against the Philippine government and were using Weaver as their spokesman.

Weaver conceded Saturday that U.S. officers he met during a brief visit to the islands were the source of his report. He said they would be identified when they are called to Washington to testify before a House defense subcommittee on appropriations.

Officials of the State and Defense Departments have described Weaver's charges as exaggerated.

In his latest statement, Weaver accused Romulo of trying "to cover his mistakes of the past and those of his government, by becoming personal in his reply to my criticism of the treatment of Americans in the Philippines." He then urged the Ambassador to return to Manila to re-examine U.S.-Philippine relations.

Concerning the latest incident at Clark Field, the Air Force said in an official announcement today that Airman 2-C Gerald D. Cook was trussed up and questioned by three Filipino intruders armed with rifles.

Cook was left bound and gagged and was found later by an Air police patrol, the Air Force said.

There also have been reports from Clark of looting by armed gangs, pilferage and robberies and the manhandling of two servicemen's wives.

Oil-Gas Conservation Pact Has 29 Signatory States

In the busy days of the latter part of the last session of Congress while much controversial legislation was being considered, almost unnoticed was congressional action which extended for four years the consent of Congress to a most worthwhile endeavor. I speak of House Joint Resolution 280 which renews the authorization for signatory states to enter into a compact specifically designed and created for the promotion of oil and gas conservation.

The Congress first gave consent to the establishment of such a compact in 1935, which compact was entered into at that time by the states of Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Illinois, Colorado and Kansas. Since 1935 the compact has been renewed and extended six times and now has 29 signatory states. When, in 1955, the compact received first congressional consent, it was hoped that the several oil-producing states would be able to effect conservation of this important natural resource, prevent its waste and give assistance to the petroleum industry in its effort to achieve a relatively stable balance. During the 24 years this compact has been in force, that hope has been fulfilled in substantial and ever-increasing degree.

It seems to be a compact such as this one is representative of the spirit of our form of government in that it preserves the rights of each separate state while enabling the several states to work together on a sound program which will all of them accept and endorse. The compact involves no utilization of police power except if each participating state may choose to exercise police power within its own jurisdiction in accomplishing the general purpose to promote the maximum ultimate recovery from the petroleum resources of each state. The compact imposes no prohibition which each participating state does not voluntarily accept. The compact does enable the signatory states to achieve the general purpose of conservation by cooperative and coordinated action beyond the capacity of independent action. The compact expressly states that nothing in it authorizes the participating states to limit the production of oil or gas for the purpose of stabilizing and fixing the price thereof, to create or perpetuate a monopoly or to promote regimentation.

Since this interstate compact was first established, it has been the leader in the promulgation of sound conservation practices throughout most of the oil and gas producing states in the country. It has provided a forum where all contingents of the industry could present and resolve their common problems. Its influence has spread beyond the borders of this country, and many other oil-producing countries have sought its guidance and counsel.

The foundation and work of this organization, it seems to me, is a splendid example of democracy at work, and I believe the Congress has done well to extend its authorization to September 1, 1963.

Union Violence

Some people continue to think that unions do not deal in violence. It is true, of course, that some unions try to avoid the open and overt type of violence that cause them to be discovered; that skulking and various acts of vandalism breed bad public relations.

However, whether the violence is overt or covert, there isn't a union that doesn't employ it. Indeed, their entire effort is geared to the concept of coercion, the practical effort of trying to wrest from the employer, by fair means or foul, more money than the market will voluntarily provide.

Now, it is also a customary union dodge to accuse management of the very same violent actions of which the union is guilty. It appears to be almost a matter of form, nowadays, to accuse your opponent of being guilty of the very crime you wish to perform. And this the union is particularly skillful at doing.

Thus, when Ralph Helstein, union president of the United Packinghouse Workers Union announced that "the company's repeated illegal acts and attempts to provoke violence" had compelled him to call a strike against the Wilson and Company meat packing plants in some seven cities, those who were best informed cocked an ear for the sound of breaking glass, and an eye for riots and mob scenes.

Nor were they disappointed. The management at Wilson proceeded to do exactly what any strike plant should do. It proceeded to put up the "help wanted" sign and, as a consequence, about 500 of the regular employees who were theoretically "on strike" reported for work properly. In addition, others who wanted to work were also taken into the various operating plants.

At Memphis, Tennessee, this proper procedure was followed by workers being bombarded with stones and empty bottles as they left the plant for their homes. And families of non-striking workers are now being subjected to anonymous and threatening telephone calls. The threats, incidentally, include warnings of impending injury — even death — and are made to the parents of little children, frequently being aimed at the kiddies.

Of course, under the Lindbergh kidnap law, such an action occurring out from under union sponsorship, would quickly bring the FBI to the scene. But unions are privileged groups and can get away with practically anything, including threats of kidnapping, violence or even murder to little children.

Strikers at one plant piled tires and iron on its railroad siding in an effort to obstruct the movement of products in or out of the plant. Also, mass picketing, totally against the law, has occurred at one of the plants and one of the pickets was arrested for throwing rocks.

At Omaha, Nebraska, a light bulb filled with paint was thrown against the car of a working employee and other employees were followed by goon squads, terrorized and harassed.

It is in the face of these actions, carefully inspired by the union and brought off under union direction, that the union hurries the charge of violence and aggression against the management of the company. But this is typical.

We just thought it might be wise to remind ourselves that this sort of thing is still going on. Or course, in the Wilson Packing Company case, as in all other cases, not one of the unions has ever been justified. One cannot justify violence when it is initiated by violence. And there has never been a case on record to the best of our knowledge where the unions haven't been the aggressors.

Steel Strikes '52-'59

Since we first met him, we have always been impressed with the works of Dr. V. Orval Watts of Atladema, California. The other day a friend sent us one of his books which we had some time missed before. It is called "Union Monopoly" and is a particularly appropriate study right now, in view of the strike-torn steel industry.

Dr. Watts, who obtained his doctorate at Harvard University, begins his exposition by citing the problem:

"Giant corporations against giant labor unions, with the public in between!

"Is this what we face from now on in America, as well as in other capitalistic nations? Must we continue to have the head-on clash of stubborn men, with ever more costly national wide strikes that cause untold loss to millions of innocent bystanders?

"Or shall government set up machinery to dictate terms and stop this senseless strife? If so, can we be sure that one side or the other may not one day seize the government, or win an election, and establish its own dictatorship?"

These few questions were in many minds when Dr. Watts had this book published back in 1954. They are even more in the forefront of public thinking today. Indeed, we seem to be facing a dilemma with each suggested solution worse than the problem, yet with the problem so serious that we can scarcely continue to survive without a solution.

In the year this book was written, the nation had just experienced its most crippling steel strike up to that time. This had occurred, as you may recall, in 1952. Of this strike, our then Secretary of Defense Lovett was to say: "No enemy nation could have so crippled our production as has this work stoppage. No form of bombing could have taken out of production in one day 380 steel plants and kept them out nearly two months."

What was the result of the 1952 steel strike? "Union Monopoly" tabulates that result briefly:

In that strike United States industry lost over 17 and 20 million tons of steel — as much as the mills of Great Britain can produce in a full year of operation. This was enough steel for 250,000 latest-type tanks, or for 9,000,000 automobiles, or for 3,500,000 six-room homes. The steel workers lost more than $350,000,000 in wages — an average of $625 per worker. Yet all of this was only a part of the cost of ONE STRIKE IN JUST ONE YEAR."

The present dispute between the steel companies and the union has brought on a strike almost twice as long as the 1952 affair. And, even with workers ordered back to their jobs the strike isn't settled yet.

So, it would be safe to say, at today's higher wages and with the steel companies' ability to produce more and better steel than they could manage seven years ago, that the current stoppage has cost this nation enough steel for

Today is Tuesday, Dec. 1 the 353rd day of the year, with 30 more days in 1959.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning star is Venus.

The evening star is Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1909, the first "Christmas Club" was introduced in a Carlisle, Pa., bank.

In 1915, the U. S. called for the expulsion of two German military attaches, both accused of heading sabotage activities in America.

In 1919, for the first time in British history an American woman was sworn into the House of Commons. Her name: Lady Nancy Astor.

In 1943, President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin issued a communique to the world summarizing the agreements reached in Teheran, Iran, to destroy Nazi Germany.

In 1958, a fire in Our Lady of the Angels School in Chicago took the lives of 92 children and three nuns. More than 100 others were injured.

A thought for today: English writer John Ruskin said: "Give a little love to a child, and you get a great deal back."

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOLLIS

Each Child Is Sensitive

In the last issue I was quoting from an address made by Headmaster D. Crichton - Miller before The Society For Individual Freedom in London, England. The speaker explained that there were always three things in which parents were particularly interested regarding the education of their children. I continue to quote from the article:

"Finally you will recognize the description which begins 'My boy is rather sensitive, but...' One may laugh at this, and school-masters, who say it as frequently as other people about their own children, may brush the suggestion aside. But once more there is real significance in this constantly repeated phrase. The parent is striving to explain that the child has an individuality of its own; that there may be special difficulties in making adjustments to the common herd; and that, however much the teacher's experience may help him to understand children in general, this particular child will never be so well understood by others as by the parent. Now parents are frequently wrong in their judgment, as well as being unreasonable in their demands. But, at the end of the day, it cannot be denied that many parents do in fact know their children better than the teachers, and, in passing, I might say that this becomes increasingly true in the bigger schools with the more elaborate organizations. There are many cases in which the simple village school, with daily personal contact over many years, provides more for the soul of the child than elaborate classifications and rapid promotion in large educational centres. Personal contact is indeed the key to this particular problem. I would like to think that every parent was as well placed as those whose children were described in that charming book 'The Village School' (by Miss Reed, published by Michael Joseph & Co.). Anyway, the easy access of parents to teachers is surely an absolutely vital element in successful education. To what extent have the authorities of the Ministry striven to maintain this? I would describe their efforts as half-hearted and inconsistent. I do not think that our rulers would say that there was anything in principle against the closest possible contact between parents and teachers; but they would undoubtedly point to the administrative difficulties. Head teachers are asked to do many things besides teaching — organise meals and milk; fill in forms; keep accounts and so on. The claims of the parent cannot be rated apparently above those of Michael Joseph at it another way; throughout school age the authority may have to supply supervision and instruction up to ten thousand hours for each child. But in a busy industrial area it is hoped that these hours will not be increased by more than five or six to cover the requirements of parental contacts.

"I have arranged my 'talk' round three points for two reasons. First, because any sensible employer would not employ a child; secondly, because you are engaged in preserving the freedom of the individual. Independent schools have flourished more in the last fifteen years than ever before. It is true that this is partly owing to a rise in the standard of living in this country. But it is also, I believe, partly because in State education the parent loses so much of the personal liberty which makes parenthood worthwhile. During these fifteen years the education service has greatly improved. On the other hand it has run into grave difficulties. Parents do not appear to appreciate what is done for them, either in elementary or secondary schools, as much as they used to; while no-one can deny that the present revolt against the 'eleven plus' examination is much more than a dissatisfaction with a particular educational technique. It is significant of a deep and growing resentment against a system which puts the parents a very poor last. Incidentally, that appalling phrase 'having regard to the wishes of the parents where possible' has done an immense amount of harm in my view. It merely reminds us that our own appreciation of the weakness of their position, but feel that on grounds of administrative convenience they can do little to improve it.

"Education is in fact a personal service — personal to the child and personal to the parent. For that reason it is not likely to be successful when carried out on the lines of those services which provide us with roads, railways and gas and drains.

"A significant point can be noted today whenever there are cries of dissatisfaction from the Minister of Education replies with plans for new buildings. New buildings are the easiest thing that can be provided; there can be no controversy about their usefulness nor any doubt about their great cost; and they go nowhere to solve the real problems. Thus the Minister can appear to have done nothing, when in fact he has done nothing. I will remember as a young headmaster my great fears about fire in some of the buildings which were under my charge. A very experienced and much older headmaster said to me 'Don't worry about that. If the school is burnt down, you will teach the boys in huts and they will live in tents. You can still have the best school in the country.'

Material Welfare State

"At the beginning of my talk I referred to the term 'Welfare State'. The fact is that the more accurate definition is 'Material Welfare State'. Here we are, trying to make up with bricks and mortar for which we have lost by casting away, apparently with hardly a sigh of regret, these and other priceless things that the treasure house of education. Voluntary sacrifice is out of place; the parents wish can be treated with lip service; and the child must be capable of classification. Administrative efficiency is a valuable thing these days but, if I were National Dictator of Education I would demand that every single regulation affecting children or their parents should be broken from time to time, just to show that their task is not mechanical. His last is one of human adjustment. Adjustment can never be carried out satisfactorily through an agency which is itself unready or unable to break the chains of uniformity."

TRIAL BALLOON LAUNCHED ON NIXON-HERTER TICKET

WASHINGTON — Secretary Christian Herter is being cast in an intriguing new role — as a potential running mate with Vice President Nixon.

Friends of both of them are behind this latest 1960 trial balloon. In launching it, they are carefully stressing that neither Nixon nor Herter has any connection with this effort to sound out public and Republican party sentiment on such a state. Presumably the two officials know about it, but it's being emphatically asserted they have not been consulted in any way.

Also at the concept of a Nixon-Herter ticket was "entirely spontaneous," and the movement to promote it "wholly voluntary."

As key reasons for such a combination, the following are listed: Peace is to be a principal GOP issue in next year's presidential campaign. As Secretary of State, Herter is a leading figure in the Administration's peace policies and endeavors.

Coming from Massachusetts, Herter is "perfectly suited" to run with Nixon, a Californian.

Herter is a proven potent vote winner. He served a number of terms in the House of Representatives, and was twice elected Governor of Massachusetts.

Nixon and Herter are on warm terms. Next to Attorney General Rogers, Herter is closer to Nixon than any other cabinet member. As a result, the Vice President is being credited with influencing foreign policy to a far greater extent than during the tenure of the late Secretary Dulles.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — Janet Gaynor, after almost 20 years of retirement from films, with an occasional TV show chosen to prove that a pro is always a pro, is about to make her stage debut as star and leading woman of a play called "The Midnight Sun," written and co-produced by Joseph Hayes. Having been aware of her for a long time in California, and having visited her house perhaps half a dozen times at not one time of which was she there (this begins to sound like the confessions of a burglar), it seemed to me a good time to go see her face-to-face.

She was rehearsing on a blinding sunny day and her lunch break was at 1 p.m. We met at 1 p.m., and the only way you could tell she was a movie star and not a Broadway actress was that she had a speckless, shining Thunderbird at the curb at the stage door and a chauffeur waited at the wheel.

"Let's walk," she said. "It's too wonderful to ride." We walked three blocks to a hotel, went to a corner table and sat down and fell to talking. I said it seemed to me an amazing piece of casting sagacity to choose her and her name. Conceivably, a dozen theatrical producers might have

The Doctor Says:

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

In a previous column, I told you how to use the methods of Sherlock Holmes to solve a symptom whodunit. For an example, we took chronic or recurrent headache. And we got rid of a small army of suspects who could establish pretty fair alibis.

Now we're ready to put the major suspects in the "line-up," turn on the spotlights and give them a real going-over.

Headache, with constipation. Perhaps "autointoxication." Sunday morning headache. Perhaps "hangover."

Monday morning headache. Perhaps faked or exaggerated to get out of return to school or work.

Headache between or just before menstrual period. Perhaps water retention with weight gain due to cyclic changes in glandular activities.

Headache in middle of night, wakening you out of sleep. Perhaps eyestrain from prolonged television or reading in bad light.

Headache above one or both eyes, behind one or both cheeks or back of one or both ears. Perhaps sinus infection especially if associated with nasal stuffiness or discharge, and if made worse by head-shaking.

One-sided headache with definite pattern and a definite warning signal like spots before the eyes. Perhaps trigeminal neuralgia.

Headache mostly confined to back of neck and made worse or reproduced by pressure on a "trigger area." Perhaps a modular headache that may be relieved by local injection.

Headache at work. Perhaps due to poor light, poor ventilation or excessive heat.

Headache when outdoors. Perhaps mild sunstroke, inhalation of smog or tight hat band.

Headache after meals. Perhaps sensitivity to certain foods like milk, chocolate, starches, members of cabbage family. Or sensitivity to gin (Martini) or wine.

Headache after smoker. Perhaps tobacco poisoning or over-indulgence in food or liquor.

Headache, due to medicines. Especially sulfa drugs, sleeping pills, appetite killers and preparations for blood pressure reduction.

And many others, too numerous to mention.

Now, while do-it-yourself diagnostic sleuthing won't get you to ride top — speed up and down the hilly streets of San Francisco with sirens shrieking and two-way radio in operation, you will have this great advantage over Sherlock and his many successors:

You can repeat the crime and catch the criminal with the smoking revolver in his hand.

All you do is expose yourself to the headache suspect and reproduce the crime. Repeat the test to be sure you're a bullet-proof case. Then, with your doctor's help, you're all set to wipe out the crime wave that was terrorizing your skull area.

Baer Was A Clown, Also A Good Fighter

By HENRY McLEMORE

That was in a dressing room in Madison Square Garden, Maxie Baer, as he explained it was "warming up" for a 12-rounder against Ernie Schaaf of Boston.

It was opening-night for both of them in the Garden, and in all the fights I was to cover I never again saw two such perfect physical specimens.

The youthful Baer, just starting out on the road that would lead to the heavyweight championship of the world, looked as if he had been carved from a redwood tree, and Schaaf, later to die after a bout with Primo Carnera, was a sculptor's model.

You would have to have seen the fight those two boys fought to believe it. For twelve rounds they stood toe to toe and swapped lightweight who's legs so hard you'd have trouble sticking an ice pick in them and a stomach as tough as the back end of a shooting gallery.

I never saw Maxie really hurt in the ring. Cut up, yes, but never hit hard enough to make him even come close to unconsciousness. And he was hit by some powerful punchers, including Joe Louis when the Brown Bomber was at his very peak.

When he fought Louis, Maxie had Jack Dempsey as his second, and Dempsey had warned him a thousand times in training camp that his only chance was to forget all about boxing and come out swinging from the floor. And Maxie had promised to do just that.

But when the bell sounded for the first round, Maxie came out in a shell. Dempsey was fit to be tied. As he was later to admit, Maxie was afraid of Louis, but he did make one stand, or try to. I can see him now: He braced himself, spread his feet, and drew back the big right hand. But before he could swing it, Louis hit him! I don't know how many times, Joe's fists sounded like a giant woodpecker whacking a drum.

Baer went down, but he was far from being out. He could have counted as well as the referee.

Grantland Rice told me of having breakfast with Maxie the day after the fight, and of asking him why he took the count when it was obvious that he wasn't badly hurt and could have gotten up.

"Mr. Rice," Granny told me Maxie answered, "when I get excited people are going to pay more than fifty dollars for a front row seat."

Had Maxie loved to fight he could have been one of the great champions. But the world was too full of things for Maxie to himself-off to lonesome spots to train himself to stand up to batter someone. He had killed a fighter early in his boxing career, and I am sure it was on his mind every time he dropped that giant fist on an opponent's jaw.

He was a real all right guy, Maxie. I still find it hard to believe that he's gone.
