Why "Good-Time" Charlie Suffers Uneasy Bladder

Unwise eating or drinking may be a source of mild, but annoying bladder irritations — making you feel restless, tense, and uncomfortable. And if restless nights, with nagging backache, headache or muscular aches and pains due to over-exertion, strain or emotional upset, are adding to your misery
-don't wait - try Doan's Pills.

Doan's Pills act 3 ways for speedy relief. 1—They have a soothing effect on bladder irritations. 2—A fast painelieving action on nagging backache, headaches, muscular aches and pains, 3 - A wonderfully mild diuretic action thru the kidneys, tending to increase the output of the 15 miles of kidney tubes. How To Bring Up A Problem Father

My father is a problem. He drinks, smokes, gambles, and likes lots of ladies

Let's face it though - a kid my age needs a mother's love. But whenever I ask Pop about it .. he says "Shut up and deal the cards - I need a wife like I need a hole in the head!"

Someday, however, hell come home with stars in his eyes and a lovely lady on his arm. He will ask my permission to marry. I will give it. and from that day on my new mother will have the job of caring for two men: myself, a tired age 8, and one who is slightly immature, but sings rather well.

B; R. O. HOILES Charity And Brotherly Love

I am continuing to quote from Frederick Nymeyer's essay on the "Hebrew - Christian Law of Love". Mr. Nymeyer ought to be a good authority on charity because he has been for 414 years issuing a magazine attempting to get people to better understand the Decalogue and the law of love.

He has also had translated a monumental Austrian work, "Capital and Interest", by Bohm-Ba-

Charity "But our definition of brotherly love is not yet complete. It is necessary to add another idea to the definition. That idea is charity. Charity is referred to in the statement: give to him that asketh thee, and from him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away. "The idea of charity is taught in Scripture in two ways: "1. A pervasive teaching of the required universal payment of tithes, or a tenth of income annually, or occasionally of a tenth of all assets.

"2. A spasmodic teaching that a man must dispose of everything, in one single act, for charity. "Let us consider the second idea

"The occasional demand in Scripture for an act of charity involving 100 per cent of a person's assets obviously cannot be a general rule. If it were a general rule it would swallow up the tithe idea entirely. The occasional rule is either the universal rule or it is a special rule. Without engaging in elaborate proof because the idea is logically so indisputable, the thought of 100 percent charity all of the time is rejected. To require 100 percent charity is to negate the right to property. One-hundred per cent charity will prevent any property existing which can be stolen. Theft is impossible if the right of title to property is denied. Scripture nowhere questions the right of private property as between persons. (The general idea that God is the ultimate owner is accepted, but that is wholly irrelevant in this discussion.) "When the rich young ruler (Matthew 19:16-22) came to Christ, and was instructed to give up all his possessions, that must be taken as an exceptional case. The demand was not because his ownership of property was invalid and wrong. The young man was presented in his special case with a demand for the Kingdom of God and not for the poor. He flunked out because between his property and the Kingdom of God he would not give up his property. It was not the claim of the poor but the claim of God which he rejected. Christ by his adroit question brought out the evidence that the young man was unprepared to keep the whole law, the first table (to love Goo above all) as well as the second (to love the neighbor as he loved God. "The claim made on the young man was a special case. It is not the general case. There will always be such special cases. There are such special cases today. The responses in those special cases are individual. There is no validity in quoting the special case to establish the general case.

The hormones produced by the thyroid affect the general health, the rate of growth, the speed of the heartbeat and several other functions of the body.

When the thyroid fails entirely to manufacture its hormone in infancy and early childhood, the result is a tragic condition known as cretinism. A cretin does not grow normally, and is seriously underdeveloped.

If the diagnosis of this condition can be made early enough, thyroid extract obtained from the glands of animals can be given as a substitute for the normal

A complete absence of the formation of the thyroid hormone in grownups results in the uncommon condition known as myxedema. In myxedema - including, sur-

More difficult to diagnose and to treat than cretinism and myxedema are those patients who appear to have an incomplete loss of the secretion of the thyroid hormone. In them the symptoms may be vague, sometimes including unexplained fatigue, or perhaps a slight anemia.

The level of the basal metabolism is often of doubtful meaning. For example, a metabolism which is not lower than minus 15 is usually considered normal However other tests may be helpful.
