Taken At Gunpoint

Watchman Nabs School Burglars

A high school night watchman, Albert Bell, shotgun in hand, captured two Pampa youths early this morning in the act of burglarizing Pampa High School.
The youths, 17-year-old Harry Holland, and a boy, 16, were surprised on the building's second floor while taking off an office for at about 2 a.m.
Police Captain Denny Roan said this morning the boys are suspected of also burglarizing B. M. Baker Elementary School Friday night and Pampa Junior High Saturday night. Losses at the three schools totaled nearly $200, while proper damages will probably exceed that total.
Bell this morning described the scene at the high school when he capture was made. He said he was on an upper floor when he heard voices, apparently from the cafeteria, then he heard a glass shatter.
"I tipped downstairs and tried to slip up on them," he said. "One of them said, 'I hear somebody coming,' and then I ran at them. One of them came at me with something in his hand, and I pointed my gun at them and told them not to come a step further."
Not knowing how to phone police, Bell kept the boys under control, and he told them to face the wall and raise their hands. He put office lights on to identify the boys and then marched them out rear door to the building custodian's home nearby. Police were called and the two youths were taken to city jail.
Capt. Roan said Bell was called to duty Sunday night by Principal Jack Edmondson following reports Saturday and Sunday mornings that Baker and the Jr. High school were burglarized.
Baker school was burglarized sometime Saturday morning. Losses were estimated at $875 in damage from a vending machine, $250 from the principal's desk.

IN PARADE — Frank Cain, famous "big top" clown, will bring his attractions to Pampa Dec. 1 for the annual Santa Day Parade.

Cuban Union Election A Rebuff To Castro

Trujillo Wants Ex-American, Aide To Castro

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — Maj. William A. Morgan, an ex-American who now is a Cuban citizen, said today that Dominican strongman Rafael L. Trujillo is offering $500,000 to anyone who "can kidnap me and deliver me alive to the Dominican Republic."
The 31-year-old ex-G.I., formerly of Toledo, Ohio, made the charge during an interview in his secluded penthouse apartment where well-armed Cuban army soldiers maintain a constant guard against any new attempt on his life.
He said Trujillo is anxious to get him — dead or alive — for his key role in luring a Dominican invasion force into a fatal trap at Trinidad, Las Villas Province, in the southern capital part of Cuba, in last August.
Two assassination attempts have been made against him here during the past two months.
"One man, caught in one of the attacks, said he had been offered $45,000 to kill me," the ex-Yank said with a relaxed smile.
"But to anyone who can deliver me alive to the Dominican Republic, Trujillo will pay out a half a million dollars," he added.
"That's a lot of dough and there are a lot of mercenaries willing to work for him."
Morgan became one of the top rebel guerrilla leaders in the successful revolt which ousted the Batista regime last Jan. 1 and brought Fidel Castro's 26th of July Movement into power.

HIGHEST LEAP — Air Force Capt. Joseph W. Kittinger, Jr., photographed by an automatic camera, steps into space 15 miles up over New Mexico. His parachute jump from a balloon was the highest in aerial history. He fell for three minutes before his parachute opened automatically at 10,000 feet.

Communist-Free Executive Board Not Backed By Fidel

HAVANA (UPI) — Cuban unionists rebuffed Premier Fidel Castro early today by electing a Communist-free executive committee for the CTC union federation.
The executive committee chosen shortly after 4 a.m. by an overwhelming majority of delegates to the CTC convention included only three supporters of a Communist-backed "unity" plan, and all of them identify themselves as non-Communists.
Although Castro had appeared directly to the convention for unqualified adoption of the unity plan, only 16 of more than 2,000 delegates voted against the non-Communist executive slate. The Communists abstained.
The convention recessed after electing the new committee, and it appeared likely that adjournment would follow closely.
The three unity supporters on the new executive committee were CTC Secretary General David Salvador, Jesus Soto and Jose M. de la Aguilera.
The election was denounced by Faustino Calines, leading proponent of the unity plan, and Army Capt. Gustavo Mas, leader of the airline workers' union.
Calines charged that the non-Communist slate gave important posts to "Mujalistas" — supporters of the regime ousted by Castro last New Year's Day.
"The rightists and Mujalistas are trying to sabotage the convention," he snapped. "Opponents of the unity plan are an obstacle to the forward movement of Fidel Castro's plans."
The convention had been marking time for more than 14 hours when Salvador appeared to present the slate that had been hammered out in overnight consultations behind the scenes.
The decision broke a near-deadlock which had brought the convention business to a virtual standstill while leaders worked behind the scenes to line up a new executive committee.
The early morning hours were taken up by committee reports and speeches by foreign visitors, while delegates drowsed in their seats or wandered out to nearby restaurants and bars.
Among the few resolutions adopted during the pre-dawn hours was one denouncing the "unfriendly attitude" of U. S. armed forces during this month's anti-American riots in Panama. The convention also voted to assess Cuban workers 4 per cent of their pay to finance plans for industrialization of the country.

Colleges Hit Oath Taking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eleven colleges and universities have withdrawn from the federal student loan program in protest against a loyalty oath requirement, the U. S. Office of Education disclosed today.
It said, however, that 1,370 other institutions are participating fully in the program. These schools, which enroll about 88 per cent of total college population, will extend long-term, low-interest loan during the next academic year to about 120,000 students.
Congress established the student loan program as Title II of the National Defense Education Act. It stipulates that every applicant must (1) swear allegiance to the United States and (2) sign an affidavit that "he does not believe in, and is not a member of, and does not support any organization that believes in or teaches the overthrow of the United States government."
Some of the nation's best-known schools are among the 11 that have balked at the oath requirement. They are:
Harvard, Yale, Oberlin, Amherst, Bennington, Sarah Lawrence, Goucher, Grinnell, St. Johns of Maryland, Reed College of Portland, Ore., and Wilmington College of Ohio.

Amarillo Man Faces Charge Of Murder

AMARILLO (UPI) — An Amarillo man was expected to be charged today with killing his wife.
He is Gerald Miller, 25, who was arrested on a drunk driving charge several hours before the body of his wife, Mrs. Barbara Miller, 23, was found in their home.
Their three small children awoke to find their mother murdered and they ran barefoot next door to tell a neighbor that "daddy shot all his bullets into her."
Police said they didn't know about the murder at the time they arrested Miller, although they found a gun on him and blood on his clothes.
Mrs. Birtis Acton, the neighbor, said 6-year-old Debbie Miller led the other two Miller children, 4 and 2, to her house and said:
"See if you can wake up Mommy. She looks awful dead. Daddy shot all his bullets into her."
Mrs. Acton said Debbie told her she had heard the shooting, but apparently went back to sleep. Another neighbor of the Millers told police he heard screams and some shots, but went back to sleep.
Police estimated Mrs. Miller had been killed by a .22-caliber pistol about 12:30 a.m.
Police said Miller had been charged in the past on two counts of statutory rape, and was allegedly involved in a lewd picture ring broken up about two months ago.

Steel Mills Roaring Back From Idleness

By J. ROBERT SHUBERT, United Press International
PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The nation's steel furnaces, roaring back after a record-smashing 116-day strike shutdown, approached 90 per cent of capacity production today — the 16th day of a Taft-Hartley 80-day cooling off period.
The American Iron and Steel Institute, estimated the output of raw steel for the first two weeks of the Supreme Court back-to-work order at upwards of 3,533,000 tons.
Total steel tonnage poured from the furnaces was expected to reach 20 million tons by Jan. 26, the date when the strike by the 500,000 United Steelworkers may be renewed under provisions of the Labor-Management Relations (Taft-Hartley) Act.
Steel experts said raw steel production for this week would approximate 2,400,000 tons, or roughly 90 per cent of the rated capacity of the nation's steelmaking facilities. Output in the last week of the walkout was less than 330,000 tons, or about 13 per cent of the furnaces rated output.
With steelmaking booming, the "pipeline" to the finishing department, which shape the steel into customer products, was filling. Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., the nation's fourth-ranking producer, estimated that within two to three weeks shipments from its loading platforms at Pittsburgh and Alliquippa, Pa., and Cleveland, Ohio, would be 90 per cent of the top rate.
Both the steel companies and the workers were staging a race against time. The producers sought to pile up production for steel-starved customers, particularly the automotive industry which was forced to layoff 277,000 workers because of a material shortage.
The workers had a stake in the booming output, too. More than 40 per cent work on incentive rates and the higher production the more money they can make to pay off bills and prepare for possible renewal of the strike, which when ended by government order was by far the longest in the history of the industry.

Copper Mill Workers Back With Contract

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The first of about 2,000 steel workers of the Kennecott Copper Corp. returned to the plant today following ratification of a new two-year contract.
Acceptance of the company offer by the five Utah locals was expected to be completed by the end of the week.
The company package was estimated at about 22.3 cents an hour over the two-year length of the contract. It includes an across the board raise of seven cents an hour for each of the two years.
"It's certainly a union victory as far as I'm concerned," Angelo Verdu of the union bargaining team said.
"We hope this will be a basis for the other Kennecott unions to settle," Verdu said.
USW locals at Ray and Hayden, Ariz., had agreed in advance to accept the decision in Utah.

AF Abandons Capsule Hunt

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — The United States suffered another setback in a space race with Russia Sunday night when the Air Force abandoned its search for a tiny capsule ejected from a Discoverer satellite in polar orbit.
All efforts to recover the 27-by-12-inch instrument package were ended with the setting sun.
The United States had hoped to cover the capsule as it paraded earthward or pick it up in the vast Pacific. Naval vessels so had assisted in the futile search.
An area larger than 50-by-200-miles southeast of Hawaii was combed by up to nine Air Force planes and two Navy ships following reports Saturday and Sunday mornings that Baker and the Jr. High school were burglarized.
Baker school was burglarized sometime Saturday morning. Losses were estimated at $875 in damage from a vending machine, $250 from the principal's desk.

Ike Ends Vacation

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — President Eisenhower ended his Georgia vacation today with a farewell round of golf before starting intensive preparations for his December tour of 11 nations.
The President, who has been in Augusta since Nov. 12, was scheduled to take off for the nation's capital about mid-afternoon, getting back to the White House at dusk.
The agenda awaiting him in Washington was crowded. It has been necessary to telescope into a comparatively brief period many of the labors involved annually in preparing for the next session of Congress. This work normally is done during December, but Eisenhower will be gone most of next month.

Annual Yule Parade Plans Announced

Frank Cain Comic Attractions will be featured in Pampa's annual Santa Day parade Tuesday, Dec. 1, Lucian Young announced today.
Young, chairman of the Merchants' Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, said the parade will form at 2:30 p.m. at Cuyler and Craven streets and will move promptly at 3 p.m.
The feature of the parade, of course, will be Santa Claus, complete with helpers passing out Christmas lollipops to the 5,000 youngsters expected to line downtown streets.
The streets, incidentally, will be decked out with decorations which are set to go up Sunday, Nov. 29. Pampa Jaycees are again in charge. Pampa merchants will also have their Christmas displays ready for the parade, and accordingly to Young, a cordial invitation has been extended to residents of the Top of Texas to "be in town for the big day."
Frank Cain, the well-known clown of television "Big Top," will be assisted by 60 high school boys, also dressed in clown apparel. Mert Cooper, president of the high school Key Club, is in charge of arrangements.
Santa Day Parade marshal will be Wesley Langham, warrant officer of the National Guard. He will be assisted by officers and men of the National Guard.
Other features of the parade will be several bands from the Pampa area, organization floats, and dozens of dignitaries.

NATO Officers Get Heave Ho

ROME (UPI) — Thirteen American officers, the entire U. S. command at the NATO base at Izmir in Turkey, have been relieved of their jobs following an investigation of alleged black market activities, it was learned here today.
The case stems from an investigation carried out by Maj. Gen. Joseph Carroll, attached to NATO headquarters in Paris, following the arrest by Turkish authorities of four American enlisted men last August on charges of illegal currency dealings.
At least two of the men said they were beaten by Turkish authorities and held in a "dungeon-like" prison. They are awaiting trial.
The 13 officers transferred or ordered transferred include every unit commander in Izmir, headquarters of Allied land forces in southeastern Europe.
Ten Army and Air Force sergeants also have been ordered transferred, including the secretary to Lt. Gen. Paul D. Harkins, commander of the Allied land forces in Izmir.
Reliable information reaching here said that before the affair is finished "some 50 to 50 officers and sergeants will have been transferred out of Turkey."

Reporters Tell Of Bribe Try

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two newspaper reporters said Sunday night that a high city official had offered them $75 to $100 a week to stop their "prying" into the city's slum clearance program.
The reporters, Fred J. Cook and Gene Gleason of the New York World-Telegram and Sun, said the official is still in the city administration.
They said they had rejected the offer and had reported it to their superiors but not to the district attorney.
"We decided that the very fact that we were onto something pretty hot," Cook said. "Rather than go to the district attorney's office with an undocumented complaint, we proceeded to dig more than ever" into slum clearance activities.
The bribe offer was reported by the two men on a local television program discussing a magazine article, "The Shame of New York," which they wrote based on their newspaper reports of city corruption. The article appeared in The Nation.

Officials of the railroad said none of the passengers was injured and all would be brought out by buses chartered from a town on the east side of the mountain pass.
A huge earth slide just east of the summit at Stevens Pass closed U. S. 2 indefinitely late Sunday night. The highway was reported washed out in at least one other location.
The weather bureau said more rain would continue in Washington today. Rain also was forecast for the Gulf states, the Ohio Valley and the lower Great Lakes.
Some snow was expected to fall in the upper Mississippi Valley and the upper Great Lakes.
A cold wave knifed deep into Texas during the night, plunging the mercury in Amarillo, Tex., from 49 to 23 degrees in 24 hours.

Deaf Mute Stabs Youth

OLATHE, Kan. (UPI) — George Martens, 13, told police Sunday night how he lured an 8-year-old school boy into the woods and then stabbed him repeatedly because the boy had struck his bicycle.
The body of Steven Moscoe was found in a hedgerow Sunday about three quarters of a mile from his home. He had been beaten, stomped and stabbed about 50 times with a pocketknife.
Martens confessed after lengthy questioning by authorities.
"I was mad at him for striking my bicycle," Martens told detectives. "I lured him into the woods on a pretense of catching a rabbit, then stabbed him with a pocketknife in the chest once and in the back and neck numerous times."
Martens was stopped on his bicycle by a detective after the youth had returned to the scene of the murder two or three times Sunday.

School Worker Fatally Stricken

Mrs. Velma C. Meador, a cook in the Pampa High School cafeteria the past several years, was stricken with a fatal heart attack at 10:40 this morning in the school's kitchen.
Principal Jack Edmondson said Mrs. Meador was talking with a co-worker when she suddenly collapsed.
Mrs. Meador lived at 800 S. Somerville. Her body was taken to the Duenskel-Carmichael Funeral Home by ambulance at 11 a.m.

Patrol Strengthened

This area's Texas Highway Patrol force was strengthened this morning when Paul Fischer, a native of Farmerville, began work with the Berger patrol office. Sgt. E. G. Albers in Pampa said Fischer becomes the area's twelfth patrolman.

Adlai Backers Fight Slogan, 'He Can't Win'

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Die-hard artisans of Adlai E. Stevenson are being bombarded with arguments that "he can't win" or that an attempt to nominate him for a third try at the presidency mayomerange against liberal Democrats.

Despite his two defeats and refusal to campaign for 1960, Stevenson's potential power to win a third presidential nomination is fogging the pre-convention outlook for all other Democratic candidates.

Movements have been launched in several states to draft the former Illinois governor in another bid for the White House. There has been talk of entering him in a regional presidential primary under a procedure not permitting him to withdraw.

Backers of the other candidates are trying to chip away at Stevenson's strength. A major argument is that Stevenson could not win, even though he would not be a President Eisenhower, who defeated him in 1952 and 1956 by landslide margins.

National convention delegates normally want to choose a nominee who they think can win. Yet it is easy to find Democrats who predict that Stevenson will win a third nomination after a convention deadlock and who also doubt they deny that he could win the election.

Supporters of both Sens. John Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) regard their candidates as heirs to such or most of the Stevenson strength. If Stevenson somehow were blacked out of the picture, they believe their favorites have greater appeal to the liberal wing of the party than Sens. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) or Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.).

An argument used to court Stevenson's liberal supporters visualizes a boomerang action. This theory suggests that Symington or Johnson rather than Stevenson might emerge from a convention deadlock with the nomination.

Hence the liberals are being urged to make an early choice or risk getting a nominee they would consider less acceptable.

New Gambling Game Costly

LAS VEGAS (UPI)—A Las Vegas hotel opened the first legal card game of baccarat in the United States Sunday and today is just about $200,000 poorer.

Sixteen players beat the Sands hotel out of $251,000 in the first five hours the fast-moving game opened.

Betting on each hand by each of 12 players ranges from a minimum of $20 up to $1,500. Players lined up 10 to 15 deep all day to get a chance at the blackjack-like game, and the house slowly whittled its losses down to about $200,000 by the end of the first 24 hours.

Singer Frank Sinatra, a partner of the hotel, was credited with getting the game brought here after having seen it played in France.

The game—which originated in Greece—is played by 12 players, a house dealer and a house banker with six to eight decks of cards. The dealer inserts the cards into a mechanical contrivance and each player pulls out his own cards, seeking a winning total of eight or nine.

The loss was reminiscent of the day the desert resort hotel opened in December 1952. The house lost $215,000 the first night.

But a Sands spokesman said: "We're not too worried. We think things will average out by the end of the year."

Biggest winner in the game was an unidentified Texan who pocketed $172,000. A woman who gave her name as Marie Gragnaud of Paris also was among the big winners.

Mrs. Motteshard is survived by two sons, Roper of Canyon and Tommy of Miami; three daughters, Mrs. Purnie Reeves and Mrs. Emma Hill of McLean and Mrs. Dovie Rasberry of E. Chicago, Ind.; 14 grandchildren and 60 great and great-great grandchildren.

Grandsons will be pallbearers.

Shah Of Iran To Wed Again

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—The Shah of Iran, who divorced two empresses because they failed to bear him a male heir to the peacock-throne of Persia, will become engaged tonight to a 21-year-old beauty.

The formal engagement party will take place tonight in a private ceremony at the Shah's marble palace when the 40-year-old monarch places a gold ring on the finger of the lovely Farah Diba, the imperial palace announced.

The wedding will take place Dec. 21. The announcement of the Shah's intention to marry Miss Diba, whose first name Farah means "Joy," followed her return Saturday from a trousseau-shopping spree in Paris.

Play Hits Target, Not Bullseye

By FRED DANZIG
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — A story about Eli Whittey and his rifle hit the target but missed the bull's eye Sunday night.

The NBC-TV production, second in the series called "Our American Heritage," was titled, "The Practical Dreamer" and dealt with the uphill fight waged by Whittey in getting his New Haven rifle-making assembly line rolling early in the 1800s. (The play also showed that our founding fathers had budget troubles and bureaucratic corruption to deal with.)

Since personalized history of this sort is so easy to take, the Heritage series is a valuable one for TV. But despite its built-in appeal, story-telling problems still exist. Sunday night's teleplay, by Paul Crabtree, began with those awkward, noble expository speeches that are supposed to explain too much about the hero too quickly. Then came other hurried vignettes as we watched Whitney tackle his many superlatively-detailed obstacles. As a result, the story unfolded with twitches instead of a smooth, consistent flow. Burgess Meredith, as old Eli, was called upon to blend sweetness, kindness, dreaminess and determination with anger, shrewdness and callousness, since it was Meredith and since the script was so herky-jerky, the portrayal was fairly believable only in its sweeter aspects.

Betsy Palmer, Peggy Ann Garner, Mark Stevens and Philip Bourneuf also were in the cast. Again, their achievements were limited by the oratory nature of their lines.

Dialing and Filing: The CBS-TV hour featuring Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic, filmed in Venice last summer and shown Sunday night, was another informative, engrossing musical experience. However, it lacked the dramatic impact and the exceptional camera-work of the Moscow-filmed program that was seen in October. I didn't exactly dig the Inbal dance troupe from Israel on the Dinah Shore Show Sunday night, but I thought they offered a colorful and captivating number, whatever it was. Brawny Gene Kelly's Saturday night special on NBC-TV overtook with Kelly's rakish, jaunty, all-too-familiar dance patterns. Except for his opening number and the chair dance with guest Donald O'Connor, there was too much posturing and very little freshness in Kelly's choreography. I kept waiting for him to break into his "Be A Clown" number at any moment. He's still an attractive performer, in his way, but he's in need of new ideas.

The Channel Swim: Patrice Munsel will be the hostess for CBS-TV's next woman special, Wednesday, Dec. 16. The subject: "You Can't Raise Children By The Book." Dr. Benjamin Spock, who wrote "the book," also will appear on the daytime program.

Gian Carlo Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors" will be presented for the 10th time on NBC-TV Christmas Eve. Jay North will help Steve McQueen search for Santa Claus on CBS-TV's "Wanted: Dead or Alive," Saturday, Dec. 19. The following night, as Dennis the Menace, North will search his house for Christmas toys.

Danny Kaye has ended his long holdout against TV. Starting next fall, Kaye will star in a full-hour show once a year for three years with General Motors picking up the tab. Network to be announced. Piper Laurie has replaced Kim Stanley as the star of the U.S. Steel Hour play, "You Can't Have Everything," set for CBS-TV Jan. 27.

TO ENTERTAIN TUESDAY—"Honest Jess" Williams, Amarillo entertainer, will be one of the features during "Turkey In The Mall Day" in Pampa Tuesday afternoon and evening. This is the second annual turkey day event.

Eighty-five Pampa merchants will give away 34 turkeys at 3, 5, 7 and 8 p.m. The promotion is under the direction of the Retail Merchants Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. The "Mall," three blocks on Cuyler which will be free of traffic during the afternoon, will also have on display 1960 model cars and trucks, under the auspices of the Pampa Auto Dealers Assn.

Airliner Crash In Lebanon Kills 24

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—An Afghan airliner crashed in flames onto a hilltop near Beirut Saturday night, killing 24 persons including two Americans. Three passengers survived.

The Americans were listed as Gordon Hay Clark, 48, a Nebraska physician, en route to Kabul from Rome and Frank William Shepherd, 51, an accountant en route from London to Kabul.

Both Americans were reported employed in Afghanistan. Their hometowns were not immediately available.

Most of the passengers were from Turkey, Czechoslovakia, Afghanistan and India.

Lola Recovering

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Actress Lola Albright was back home today after spending nearly three days in the hospital for back and chest pains.

Miss Albright, co-star of the "Peter Gunn" television series, was released from Sherman Oaks Hospital Saturday. She underwent observation for the pains which doctors said came from a nervous disorder.

Mao Up To Sabotage

LONDON (UPI)—Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-tung is trying to sabotage an East-West summit conference for the second time, diplomatic dispatches reported today.

Mao succeeded in blocking a summit conference in August, 1958, after an emergency meeting in Peking between Premier Nikita Khrushchev and now is slowing down Russian pressure for an early summit meeting.

Diplomatic sources said there has been an almost total absence of pressure from Moscow for a top-level meeting and that Khrushchev himself has been notably silent on the conference he long has demanded.

Communist affairs experts said behind Peiping's desire to thwart a top-level East-West meeting was a suspicion of independent Soviet moves at Red China's expense.

There also was Peiping's anxiety that a meeting involving the leaders of the Soviet, United States, Britain and France would tend to exclude Red China from international councils for a long time to come.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Petrochemicals, which entered vocabulary of industry during World War II, have maintained phenomenal growth rate during postwar period, according to Alexander Hamilton Institute.

As of now, more than 300 chemical substances have been produced from petroleum and natural gas, and their output grew from 4,100,000,000 pounds in 1949 to an estimated 40 billion in 1959, the institute points out in weekly business report.

The uses of petrochemicals are being put to are virtually endless, the report notes. They go into everything from lipstick, detergents, bowling pins and paint cellophane, anti-freeze, insulating and tastier foods, it adds.

For the defensive part of portfolio, the $7-million-dollar D. A. Ware Fund says it made a substantial investment in bank stock including Chase Manhattan, First National City, National Bank, Detroit and the Bank of America.

Garner Says He'll Celebrate At 100

UVALDE, Tex. (UPI) — Compared to last year, John Nance Garner celebrated a quiet 91st birthday Sunday, but he told old friends who dropped by his house that he would "go all out again when I'm 100."

The former vice president of the United States and his friends watched home-movies taken on his 90th birthday last year when former President Harry S. Truman said some 3,000 others helped him celebrate.

Garner was vice president under Franklin Delano Roosevelt, but he and Truman were old Washington cronies.

Because American Cyanamid is such a stickler for research and has an extensive interest in associated companies, it offers the investor added appeal.

Reynolds & Co. considers a commitment in today's market capital appreciation. Discussed Burlington Industries, it says it inasmuch as the textile outlook bright, this stock still appears reasonably priced and is recommended for market appreciation.

SQUEEZE PLAY — Wrapped in a cocoonlike cover, a giant Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile inches along a special track assembly into the belly of a Douglas C-133 Cargomaster. The tight drama took place during a test at Miramar Air Station, San Diego. The huge aircraft, belonging to the Military Air Transport Service (MATS), then successfully airlifted the missile to Warren AFB in Wyoming. In 1958 a MATS C-133 broke the record for lifting the heaviest payload—nearly 59 tons.

Astronauts Not Alarmed By Failure To Capture Capsules

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Air Force's failure to recover space capsules from Discoverer satellites has not discouraged the seven U.S. astronauts. In the following exclusive interview they tell why.

By DARRELL GARWOOD
 United Press International

LANGLEY FIELD, Va. (UPI)—America's seven astronauts are convinced that if they were launched in a space capsule now they could bring it back safely in an orbit around the earth. They are not worried about failure of efforts to recover capsules in orbit but feel success will be attained once man is shot into space in such a vehicle.

These space pioneers involved in "Project Mercury" say they rely on automatic devices to do the job and that man himself will provide the reliability if he has been lacking.

Every one of the astronauts is confident that even if all the automatic devices should fail he could operate manual controls to bring down the orbiting vehicle.

It is a misconception that you need to build a system that will automatically before you put a man in space," Air Force Capt. Donald K. Slayton, United Press International.

Actually, it's the man aboard that gives you reliability," Slayton pointed out that automatic instruments are available in planes but that no commercial airline would think of relying on the instruments to the exclusion of human pilots.

It is no secret that each of the astronauts, who have been trained at this base for six months, will be the first man to be launched into orbit.

But they are trying to demystify "firsts." Each is training to make the flight himself to support in some special way a man who is selected for the attempt.

Slayton believes that reliability of manned space flight may be doubled as compared to automatic orbital recovery operations.

"I don't know just what the figures would be," he said, "but I can easily imagine that if a system were 50 per cent reliable automatically it might be 99 per cent reliable when you add a human pilot at the controls."

Slayton's statements were made in an interview with four of the astronauts, all test pilots, who were picked from the military services by the Civilian National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

Backing his views were Air Force Capt. Gordon Cooper, of Shawnee, Okla.; Navy Lt. Comdr. Walter M. Schirra, of Hackensack, N.J.; and Navy Lt. Comdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr., of East Derry, N.H.

Baptists Adamant In Fight On Aid To Parochial Schools

By STEVE GERSTEL
 United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Baptist Church served notice Saturday it will fight any federal school aid bill in the next session of Congress which includes help for parochial schools.

The Baptists conceded they may not have the strength to overcome the Catholic Church and others favoring such a provision. But they said the effort at least may convince church members of the importance of political action.

Two school aid bills cropped up in Congress last session. One, the Murray-Metcalf bill, called for federal assistance both for school construction and teacher salaries. It wound up in a House Rules Committee pigeonhole.

A Senate bill providing for one million dollars in federal matching grants for school construction only failed to reach the floor before adjournment. Neither bill made any reference to parochial schools.

W. Barry Garrett, associate director of the Baptist joint committee on public affairs, predicted be one of the "sharpest" to come before the second session of the 86th Congress.

He said he expected the Catholic Church to lead the fight for what it considers an "equitable share" of any federal funds voted for school aid. He also conceded that proponents of the idea were much better organized.

Garrett quoted the Catholic Bulletin as saying that the National Catholic Welfare Conference Education and legal departments have been told to try and kill any bill which does not have a withholding provision.

Such a provision would make it mandatory for states to withhold a certain portion of any federal aid for parochial schools, even though state laws may prohibit the use of public funds for parochial schools.

"I regret to say that we don't have the organization to put up a good fight," Garrett said. "We don't have the manpower, the money or the organization."

He said, however, that the Baptists are "perfecting state organizations to exercise influence." At the same time, he said, the church is trying to convince its followers to exert more influence on congressmen.

Unless it succeeds, Garrett said, it is "problematical" whether Baptist representatives even will appear before committees considering federal aid to education.

"We can't appear before a committee unless the people back home do something," Garrett says. "They won't pay any attention to us as long as they know that the people back home won't do anything."

PAID IN FULL. BEDFORD, Ind. (UPI)—A man who took a free ride on a bus 34 years ago paid his fare over the week end.

Charles Pelizzari, who has operated the Bedford-Mitchell bus line since 1923, said he found $2 in his office. Attached to the bills was a note explaining the money was owed for a bus ride in 1923.

Latest Paris estimates on the date of the East-West summit is the latter half of April, just after President Charles de Gaulle visits England. The argument: Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev wants the summit as soon as possible after his trip to France the latter half of March. A late April meeting, however, might not give De Gaulle time to get in his projected trip to the United States before-hand.

The French regard with suspicion an Algerian rebel announcement naming five French-held rebel leaders as a committee to get talks started on restoration of peace in Algeria.

TELEVISION IN DEPTH — Item of interest to hunters of sunken treasure: The Navy now has an underwater television camera that can make visual surveys of sunken ships more than 500 feet below the surface. Shown being lowered over the side, above, the camera is mounted in a self-propelled vehicle and can be controlled from the ship. It is able to hover at desired depths and carries an underwater lighting system. If fitted with mechanical arms, the vehicle could collect samples from the ocean floor or retrieve sunken objects, say its makers, Vase Industries of Roselle, N.J.

Ike's December World Visits Is A First For Any U.S. Chief Of State

By FRANK H. BARTHOLOMEW President United Press International

Rome

ROME (UPI) — Stand on any one of Rome's seven hills and you can almost hear official Italy sigh with relief at President Eisenhower's decision to stop here first on his 11-nation tour next month.

It couldn't have been better arranged for the pro-Western government of Premier Antonio Segni. It gave Segni something tangible to hold back at the highly vital and vocal Communist minority in Italy.

The Communists do their best to substitute the hair shirt for the Roman toga as the official robe of Italy's political leadership. Their favorite charge is that while Italy has continuously and unflinchingly cooperated with the Western democracies since the war, the West in general and the U.S. in particular has failed to reciprocate.

Italy, say the Communists, is taken for granted, somewhat like a poor relation who never gets more than second class treatment.

The Red and Left-Wing press took delight in taunting Segni and Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella for assertedly being "brushed-off" by Eisenhower during their recent Washington visit. It gleefully reported that Eisenhower received the two Italian statesmen only once, and then immediately flew away on vacation.

Italian pride is sensitive on the point of equality and prestige, a feeling by no means confined to the leftwing. It is thus easy to understand the relief and enthusiasm of Segni's Christian Democratic government and the Western diplomatic corps at the premier place assigned to Italy in the President's schedule.

A major point at issue in Italy now is the government's agreement to permit establishment of a NATO missile base in the country. Its importance was underscored at the time when Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev immediately flew to the Albanian capital of Tirana, a relatively few miles across the Adriatic from Italy, and made a warlike speech threatening Italy with extinction. Segni held his ground. Today, the Italian technical crew who will man the new missile base are being trained in the United States. The 1,800,000 registered Communists in Italy normally constitute about 11 per cent of the electorate. But they manage to total vote about 22 per cent of the total vote; and with the support of left-wing Socialists, they can get the left-wing total up by another 14 per cent.

The Communists are making much of the fact that Italy is neither asking nor receiving any U.S. aid whatever (outside of military aid); that she continues to "take orders" from the West; that in spite of this she has never been admitted to the top echelon of Western policy making. Particular capital is made of the fact that France, which has declared herself a part of the Big Three, has refused NATO permission to operate a missile base on her soil.

Premier Segni, in his efforts to prevent the Communists from unbolting him, draws scant comfort from current activities of President Giovanni Gronchi. Under the Italian constitution Gronchi is not supposed to be a leader in policy. But despite this, the Italian president, always left of center, has

'ROUND AND 'ROUND WE GO—Even though Jack Norris is a field representative of the Humane Society, this steer distracts his motives in St. Louis, Mo. Norris chases the runaway steer around a pillar in an apartment parking garage. The animal had gotten away from a packing company. Its spirited escape try ended in a trip to the slaughterhouse.

Ankara

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI)—When the Eisenhower airplane comes to rest on the high Anatolian Plain near the spot where Genghis Khan entered Turkey centuries earlier, the American President will find a situation not apt to be duplicated elsewhere on his long trip.

Here at Turkey's capital city of Ankara, he will find a friend of the Western powers that does not need to have its spine stiffened against Communism. Instead it needs assurance that the spine of the U.S.A. has not softened.

"Our major concern is not Communism," an official of the national government told this writer. "We are concerned with Russians. 'Communism' or Czarism, we have learned through bitter centuries not to trust the Russian. Truth and sincerity are not his virtues. Compacts are worthless. In a quid pro quo, he takes the quid and finds a reason for never giving up the quo."

The Turkish nation is concerned with the effect upon the West in general and the American people in particular of the recent visit of Premier Khrushchev to the United States.

Although most of the country, including the capital city, is in Asia, Turkey has contributed what is said to be the largest army in Europe to the NATO cause. The Turks have fought many wars with the Russians, and they fear they will have to fight again if the West is lulled by the Kremlin into relaxing its guard.

Turkey is proud of three things in its national life. First is its military force. Second is the star and crescent flag as a symbol of as fierce a nationalism as you can find. Third is the memory of Mustafa Kemal Ataturk, who westernized the nation and whose spectacular tomb, perhaps the greatest of its kind in the world, crowns an Ankara hilltop.

Turkey's great national and military pride, so evident in Istanbul and Ankara, was exemplified for this writer during the Korean War when a gravely wounded soldier was brought to a front-line aid station. Silent among the wounded men as he waited his turn, he uttered his first and only words when a blood-spattered surgeon turned to him: "Me, Turk!"

Symbolic of Turkey's determined stand to prevent the Russians from gaining longed-for access to the warm water of the Mediterranean are the submarine nets at the juncture of the Bosphorus and the Black Sea. Russian vessels are permitted to pass through a narrow and zig-zag course between the nets. In accordance with the Lausanne Treaty and the Montreux Convention.

The Turkish army, navy and air force are expensive to maintain. Their strain on the national economy will be made apparent to President Eisenhower as he is driven over the hills through busy, dusty Ankara and up to the presidential palace in the clear, chill air of the heights overlooking the city.

Directness is an outstanding Turkish characteristic. Walking down Ataturk Boulevard with a Turkish journalist, this reporter asked the reason for a large wooden pylon being constructed at an intersection.

"That's a joke," the Turk replied. "It is to welcome the Eisenhower party. It will be draped with American and Turkish flags."

Then he added, smiling: "There'll probably be a banner saying 'Welcome Ike! Where's the money?'"

Turkey regards the situations in Berlin and southeast Asia as merely diversionary from the Communist point of view, believes that the unswerving aim of the Reds is to control the Middle East with its underfed and emotionally overcharged millions, and that this is the basic situation from which the West must never take its eye.

If it does, they say, the world will be engulfed in chaos and Communism will appear as the solution.

Whatever the problems of its internal economy, the nation is a solid unit in historic and unyielding opposition to Russia and in its partnership with the West.

Iran

Iran, sixth country on the Eisenhower grand tour, is a desert wonderland of romance, antiquity and tumult sitting atop a vast pool of oil.

Its very name, the one it bore for 3,600 years, is one to conjure with — Persia. Its ruler is one of the world's most handsome monarchs, Shah Mohammad Reza Palavi, 40. His said quest for a male heir to Persia's peacock throne has been all romance and fairy-tale sadness; Princess Fawzia, the beautiful Princess Soraya, and now — with an engagement announcement expected any minute — the young, doe-eyed Farah Diba.

These in succession have shared or will share as queen one of the world's oldest thrones, once occupied by such names of legend as Darius, Xerxes, Cyrus and Artaxerxes. Once the rulers of the peacock throne held sway over an empire stretching from Greece to India, from Russia to Libya. Within the past 10 years, its occupant has had trouble holding his own palace.

Today Iran is the bullseye of the Middle East target for Russian propaganda and attack. But tumult is nothing new to Persia. It has been threatened, fought over and divided by Romans, Greeks, Arabs, Tamerlane's Mongols, British, Russians and Mohammed Mossadegh, Premier Mossadegh, nationalizing oil in 1951, managed to toss out both British influence and the Shah. A three-day revolt brought the Shah back and clapped Mossadegh in jail.

Since then, while the world has watched the Shah's romances, Iran has stood up squarely to a barrage of Soviet threats. It camps on Russia's southern doorstep, blocking the way to the Persian Gulf. — and in March of this year it signed a defense treaty with the United States.

Iran's 19 million people are spread thinly over a desert area bigger than Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado combined. Oil gushes from five major fields at the rate of 750,000 barrels a day. Yet further resources go begging; Persia's potential oil reserves are considered the largest in the Middle East.

Still an agricultural county in spite of its oil and desert, Iran produces grains, wool, tobacco, cotton and Persian carpets. Ruins of its former greatness stud its plateau; Persepolis, the capital Darius built; the Palace of Cyrus at Pasargade; the immense reliefs of Naksh-e Rostam.

Iran was an absolute monarchy until 1906, is a constitutional monarchy now. Its army is tough and strong, its people independent and Moslem, its future hard but promising.

Morocco

Morocco, last stop of President Eisenhower's Asian-European tour was the first stop in Gen. Eisenhower's conquest of Europe.

Eisenhower's Allied forces invaded Vichy French-controlled Morocco in November, 1942, to begin the end of Adolf Hitler's dreams of glory. Morocco has since shaken off its French control to become a self-styled link between East and West.

Morocco's ruler is King Mohammed V, a 49-year-old absolute monarch who enjoys bowling with his French cook. He has nearly 10 million contented citizens in a land the size of Utah and Nevada combined. Best known Moroccan city is the port of Casablanca where Winston Churchill and Franklin D. Roosevelt conferred in wartime.

The capital is Rabat on the Atlantic where Eisenhower will enjoy a Florida-like winter climate.

Mohammed became the national hero as well as ruler when he led the fight for independence from France. Morocco relies heavily on continued French goodwill and on the friendliness of fellow Arab nations. Mohammed is doing everything possible to promote a cease-fire in the civil war in French Algeria.

As French financial aid decreases, economic help from Uncle Sam has increased. But Mohammed's most recent victory was American agreement to withdraw his five air bases, an embarrassment to so young a nation.

Morocco has been Moslem for 1,200 years since invading Arabs chased the lighter-skinned Berbers into the hills. The Berbers still live in the hills.

Mohammed dresses in traditional Arab robes. His daughters have shocked some Arabs by appearing in bathing suits in public pools. Mohammed tirelessly travels his country to promote economic progress. He dislikes shaving and lets a stubble grow when he spends a day padding about his palace.

Phosphate and manganese mining are big in Morocco. Much of the world's money travels in wools stamped Moroccan leather. Along the coast in the largest towns, Western style dress is in fashion. Moroccan hill folk still veil their women.

Morocco has 124,868 telephones. Most persons speak Arabic. Mohammed is a lineal descendant of the Islamic prophet, Mohammed, and his government is headed by left-of-center Prime Minister Abdallah Ibrahim.

Moroccans drink more tea than coffee, and no hard liquor.

Greece

President Eisenhower's seventh stop is in a nation slightly larger than New York state which gave the Western world the foundations of its government, its art and architecture, its philosophy, its science, its political thought. It also gave the West its first post-war victory over Communism.

Greece points like an outspread hand into the wine-dark Mediterranean Sea, dripping jewels from its fingertips to form islands. This cluster of mountains, deep-cut bays and tiny islands became in the centuries before Christ the seat of culture which formed the basis for Western civilization. Dig deep under almost any aspect of

Pumpkin Chiffon Pie With Spicy Filling Will Add Just-Right-Touch To Holiday

For holiday menus, hostesses will be delighted with our Pumpkin Chiffon Pie which is made with whipped super nonfat dry milk. Seasonal, of course, but light and frothy it is an ideal dessert to top off the many "soup-to-nuts" menus of the holiday season.

Lamb Stew Fare Sticks-To-Ribs

Stews are family mealtime favorites in many homes once the weather gets cool. This stick-to-the-ribs fare is family eating at its best — hearty and delicious food. Many homemakers say their families enjoy stew even more the second time it is served so they always make enough for at least two meals.

LAMB STEW
(Makes 6 to 8 servings)
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup Super Starlac nonfat dry milk powder
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 pounds lamb, cut into 2-inch cubes
1-3/4 cup butter
4 cups liquefied Super Starlac nonfat dry milk
6 medium-size carrots, sliced
10 small white onions
1 tablespoon bottled mint sauce
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
Combine flour, Super Starlac nonfat dry milk powder and seasonings in a strong paper bag. Drop in the meat cubes; shake bag gently to coat meat. Melt butter in large skillet; add meat cubes; brown over medium heat. Blend in liquefied Super Starlac nonfat dry milk. Add remaining ingredients. Cover; cook over low heat until meat and vegetables are tender and mixture has thickened (about 30 minutes). Serve over rice or noodles.

Macaroni Salad Fits Into Menu

Macaroni salads fit into year-round menus to furnish "something filling" to go with "something savory." And they can be interesting and delicious if properly made. This macaroni salad includes sliced, broiled mushrooms, colorful quick-frozen vegetables, sliced radishes. You can add any cooked or raw vegetable that suits your fancy. This Macaroni Mushroom Salad makes an excellent accompaniment to the savory food on the Mixed Grill.

MACARONI MUSHROOM SALAD
4 oz. shell macaroni
1 package (10 oz.) quick-frozen carrots and peas
1 can (6 oz.) sliced, broiled mushrooms
1-3 can well-seasoned French dressing
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup sliced radishes
Cook macaroni according to package directions and drain well. Cook vegetables according to package directions, until just tender-crisp. Drain mushrooms, reserving broth for future use. Combine macaroni, vegetables and mushrooms in suitable container. Add French dressing and mix thoroughly. Cover, and chill for several hours — stirring occasionally. Drain excess French dressing from macaroni mixture. Combine and add mayonnaise, lemon juice, mustard and salt — and mix well. Just before serving, add radishes and toss lightly.
Makes: 4 generous servings.

Chocolate Balls

All in together — go the makings for French Chocolate Balls, a quick and easy way to satisfy a sweet tooth. In the top of a double boiler, melt 4 ounces of semi-sweet chocolate. Then add these ingredients: 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar, 1-3 cup (chopped) toasted salted almonds, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons strong coffee, and 2 cups toasted 1/2-inch bread cubes. Form into balls with a tablespoon and place on a cookie sheet. Refrigerate for 1 hour.

Fromage Cookies

It's a time for trimming — all through the house. You've time to decorate holiday foods, too, if you make Fromage Tea Cookies with a package of vanilla wafers. Give them pink blush by frosting, thinly, with a mixture of 1/2 cup cream cheese, 1 tablespoon cream, and 1 teaspoon currant jelly — enough for 25 cookies. Then, dip them into finely crushed vanilla wafer crumbs and dot them with a merry twinkle — maraschino cherry slices. Just before serving, broil the cookies in a moderate oven (300 degrees F.) for 10 minutes.

Thanksgiving Pie and Coffee — A Finale to be Remembered

PUMPKIN CHIFFON PIE
(Makes 1 (9-inch) pie)
2 (3-ounce) cans pecans, finely chopped
2 tablespoons butter
1/4 cup sifted brown sugar, firmly packed
1 cup cooked pumpkin
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup cold water
1/2 cup Super Starlac nonfat dry milk
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup liquefied Super Starlac nonfat dry milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon clove
2 tablespoons butter
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
Sauté pecans in butter about 2 minutes; stir in brown sugar; mix well. Firmly pack bottom and along sides of 9-inch pie plate. Put pumpkin into top of double boiler. Cook over boiling water 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Combine lemon juice, 1/2 cup cold water, and Super Starlac nonfat dry milk in small mixer bowl. Beat with high speed on electric mixer, 6 minutes or until stiff. Place in refrigerator. Combine eggs, 1/2 cup sugar, liquefied Super Starlac nonfat dry milk and seasonings with pumpkins; cook over boiling water until mixture mounds when dropped from spoon. Add butter; remove from heat. Soften gelatin in 1/2 cup cold water; add to pumpkin mixture; stir until gelatin dissolves. Place double boiler top in bowl of ice and water; stirring pumpkin mixture constantly, until quite thick and read to set. Fold into whipped Starlac. Pour into pie shell. Chill about 2 hours.

A BEAUTIFUL walnut pie and a cups of fragrant coffee — this is the perfect way to end a memorable Thanksgiving dinner.
The walnut pie is a marvelous rich confection that captures all the flavor and tang associated with the autumn celebration. Made with brown sugar, coffee and a generous filling of walnuts, it's bound to be the main attraction of your meal. The best part about it is that it's prepared so easily the day before Thanksgiving, then served up with a flourish.
Of course, there should be plenty of freshly-brewed hot coffee to go with Thanksgiving dessert and, like the rest of the meal, it should be made with care. After all, it's the coffee that makes the final impression — an impression that should last until next Thanksgiving comes around!

Coffee Walnut Pie
1/2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1/2 cup soft butter or margarine
1 cup granulated sugar
3 eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup heavy cream
1/2 cup strong coffee
1 cup coarsely chopped walnut meats
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup broken walnut meats
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell
Cream brown sugar and butter until well-blended. Add granulated sugar and mix well. Add eggs, beating well after each. Add salt, cream and coffee and mix well. Cook over boiling water, stirring for 5 minutes. Remove from water and stir in 1 cup walnuts and vanilla. Four carefully into pie shell. Bake in moderate oven, 350°, 1 hour. Scatter broken walnuts on top and bake 5 minutes longer. Cool. (Note: pie will puff during baking and shrink slightly as it cools.)

Chocolate Chiffon Cake Is A Light After-Turkey Treat

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor
For those who want a lighter dessert after a mammoth Thanksgiving dinner, this really tender and delicate chocolate chiffon cake is a perfect answer. We think it unusually good. Everyone in our family gave it a high rating.

MEAT COOKERY INSTRUCTIONS

Pan-frying is an easy way to prepare family favorites. However, correct procedures are always important. To pan-fry, brown meat on both sides in a small amount of fat. Season with salt and pepper. Do not cover the meat and cook slowly at a moderate temperature until done. Turn the meat occasionally.

oil, egg yolks, chocolate flavored syrup, water and vanilla. Beat with spoon until smooth. Add cream of tartar to egg whites. Beat until whites form very stiff peaks. Gently fold first mixture into egg whites until well blended. Fold, do not stir. Turn batter into an ungreased 10 x 4-inch tube pan. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) 70 to 75 minutes or until cake springs back when touched lightly with finger. Immediately invert pan. One-half cup sugar, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, well beaten; 2 teaspoons vanilla, 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped.
Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt in the top of a double boiler. Gradually add milk, mixing until smooth. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Cover; cook 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in small amount of the hot mixture into beaten eggs. Blend into remaining invert pan. Let cool; then loosen side of cake with spatula. Serve with whipped cream, or Fluffy Vanilla Cream.

Brian Aherne Among Last Of Matinee Idols

By JOE FINNIGAN

UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Brian Aherne, one of the few authentic "matinee idols" still around, classifies actors in two categories, those who constantly play themselves and the ones who portray a role.

"One type, like Clark Gable, Jimmy Stewart and Gary Cooper, established a personality, selling it all their lives," the handsome mustached Aherne explained.

"Then there's the performer who subdues his own personality into the part he plays. Alec Guinness and Laurence Olivier are of that school and I rather think I am also.

"I don't believe as many people would recognize Guinness as Gable. Guinness is always in disguise and you rarely see Olivier when he doesn't have a false nose or something."

The British-born actor — he's from Worcestershire, England, which should remind folks of steak sauce — was advised to develop a fan-enticing personality or movies when he reached Hollywood.

"I was told it was necessary to sell yourself as a screen star," he said. "And, I guess that's so."

"Olivier and Guinness are great actors but not big box office stars. And, like them, I never was, certainly not like the Coopers and Gabies."

"Aherne wasn't crying 'foul' in his analysis of movie stars, nor was he critical of the personality system.

"We'll always have personalities," he said. "Especially in the movies, because the public wants that way."

"Much of the public, myself included, wants to know who's in a picture before going to the theater. Knowing the cast tells a moviegoer what type of a picture is being shown."

Aherne is currently touring the country with Katharine Cornell in "Dear Liar," a play based on letters George Bernard Shaw wrote to Mrs. Patrick Campbell.

Lunching in a restaurant near the Huntington Hartford theatre where he's currently appearing, the 57-year-old actor looked at his watch and dashed off to a matinee performance.

"I have to get ready for a bunch of old ladies we'll have at the matinee," he said, hurriedly putting on a black hat.

"Kit and I have a zettina of fans who saw us together in the Barretts of Wimpole St. 28 years ago. Some of them are old ladies now but they still come to the theatre."

Today is Monday Nov. 23, the 27th day of the year, with 38 more days in 1959.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning star is Venus. The evening star is Saturn.

On this date in history:
In 1804, Franklin Pierce, 14th president of the U. S., was born.

In 1903, Italian tenor Enrico Caruso made his American debut in New York City, singing the role of the duke in Rigoletto at the Metropolitan Opera House.

In 1917, the first American shot was fired in World War One.

In 1945, the rationing of meat, butter and other red point foods ended in the U. S.

In 1954, the Chinese Communists announced that 11 Americans captured during the Korean War had been convicted on charges of espionage.

Although for today, American actress Cornelia Otis Skinner once said: "Women's virtue is man's greatest invention."

GETS TV RIGHTS

BOSTON (UPI) — Promoter Sam Silverman said Wednesday night that the Gillette Co. will pay $100,000 to televise the Jan. 22 middleweight title bout here between champion Sugar Ray Robinson and Paul Pender.

"ANIMAL" LIFE STUDIES

BOREHAM WOOD, England (UPI) — Father Christmas, the British version of Santa Claus, handed out gaily-wrapped press-button viewers to the little guests at a Boy Scout party.

The guests seemed so pleased that the jolly old man decided to take a look himself. He found the manufacturer had made "a dreadful mistake" by substituting nude pin-ups for "glimpses of animal life."

SNAKES FOR IRELAND

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Officials of the Washington Zoo admit they don't know what St. Patrick would think of their latest project.

The Washington Zoo has a surplus of snakes and is shipping the extra reptiles to the Dublin, Ireland, zoo.

Modern life and you will find it in Greece.

It is the land of gods; of Mount Olympus and its Zeus-led tenants; Homer, Plutarch, Plato, Aristotle, Aristophanes and countless other demigods of thought and literature; of Alexander the Great and Spartan courage; of the Olympiad and the first marathon.

The Greeks had a word for it, their Golden Age produced a civilization which is still the wonder of the world. Its architecture and art are still revered and copied; its monuments still rank among man's greatest achievements. The Acropolis and the Parthenon, the temples at Paestum, the sculptures of Delphi, the sea of Attica, crumbling Doric and Ionic columns, the Winged Victory of Samothrace—all main targets at which lesser civilizations aim.

But Greece is not all history. It is not all Golden Age. Its 110,000 people are still revered and comparatively poor in spendable wealth. Its forests are denuded, manufacturing almost nil, its agricultural dependent on the article 14 of the country.

But the Greeks are used to fighting. They fought the Romans 46 B. C. and lost, fought the Ottoman Turks in 1453 and lost, fought for their independence in 19 and won.

They fought the Italians in 1940 and were winning when Nazi Germany moved in to beat them. They fought World War Two, they fought bitter guerrilla war against local communists who attempted to seize the government.

Greece is governed by a royal republic as popular as any anywhere: King Paul, 58, and Queen Frederika, his prime minister, 42-year-old Constantine Karamanlis, a tough anti-Communist friend of the West. With the dispute with Turkey over Cyprus settled, Greece is taking its place in the councils of the West.

France

France, eighth of the ten countries on the Eisenhower travel calendar, is America's oldest friend in Europe. The land which gave Americans Lafayette, the Statue of Liberty, French fried potatoes and onion soup; it is America's large clunk of what is the United States in the Louisiana Purchase. It is the land of Joan of Arc, Paris, Brigitte Bardot and Napoleon; the birthplace of the philosophy of modern democracy; the home of the Dame and the Tuilleries; of Turinets, dadism and the "new look."

La Belle France has a fertile 2,659 square miles, famed for rolling hills, the world's greatest vineyards, and 15,781-foot Mont Blanc, Western Europe's highest peak. President Charles de Gaulle, one of the world's taller statesmen and heads one of the world's

Spain

Spain discovered America. President Eisenhower is returning the favor.

Italian navigator Columbus sailed the ocean in 1492 under the Spanish flag when the Spanish flag signified world power. President Eisenhower visits Spain while Generalissimo Francisco Franco's nation rebounds from international isolation.

Spain reached its historical peak when Columbus' colleagues staked out the Western Hemisphere, carrying soldiers and Roman Catholicism to the Americas and returning with gold. In the 19th Century the Latin American nations wrenched free and the 1898 Spanish-American War doomed the Spanish empire from the Philippines to Cuba.

Spain was left to its own meager resources. Economic and political woes caused the late King Alfonso to flee in 1931. Then came catastrophe.

Civil War flared in the late 1930's. Army Gen. Franco led the forces of the right and the church to victory against the forces of Communist-infiltrated liberalism. Hitler and Mussolini aided Franco and Russia helped the Loyalists. World War II.

Francisco sagely outstepped Hitler's plea to join the Axis during the war. Neutral Spain became an unapproachable island when the United Nations declared its members should boycott Spain.

But in a cold war world, Spain's unwavering anti-Communism attracted Western rapprochement. In 1950 Spain became a U. N. member. Its strategic position moved Spain into the Western defense network. The United States has given Spain three billion dollars in military and economic aid. Spain still is barred from membership in NATO.

Spain was last to be included in Eisenhower's itinerary. In many ways his stop in Madrid is the most significant of all. It gives Spaniards their greatest personal recognition from the free nations since the Civil War.

The Spanish Riviera is Europe's all

Interview With Visiting Soviet Musicians Like Musical Chairs

By FRANK ELEAZER, United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Dmitri Kabalevsky, it is true, lost his balance and pretty nearly fell to the floor, but otherwise it was plain, the six touring Russian composers weren't about to make any slips.

They were winding up a month's tour of the United States with a press conference at the 2 a. m. and then strolled in at about 10:05.

In fairness, they probably had been tipped off by some local squealer that this was the American custom.

There was an exchange of smiles and greetings with the 18 or so newsmen.

Howard Mitchell, director of the National Symphony Orchestra, and an interpreter came in with the visitors, including Dmitri Shostakovich. There was a brief game of musical chairs as the group arranged itself behind a long, baize-covered table. In the good-natured confusion, I think Kabalevsky took a seat where there wasn't one. Mitchell helped him recover, and invited our questions.

Somebody asked for a short report on the trip.

Tikhon Khrennikov, with smiling full face said he was glad to oblige. He said the Russians had visited eight big cities and many states from coast to coast and had been greatly enriched by their tour.

Through the interpreter he covered this thought, in a number of ways, in not more than 10 or 12 minutes.

"There is no doubt," he said, "but that our trip has broadened our idea of the American nature, the American people, and the American culture—and in particular the American musical culture. We have a knowledge now of the system of musical education in the United States. We had an opportunity of meeting the musical youth of America. Now we know about the American people and culture much more than we knew before."

He hadn't said specifically, I pointed out, whether his group's broadened view of America came as a change for the better or worse.

"Our attitude toward American culture is that it is an extremely high culture," Khrennikov said, smiling firmly.

I had a feeling this fell short of an answer. Maybe Boris Yartovsky had been made on the group by our "wealthy and clever planning" of libraries, universities, public buildings, and theaters. He said they were impressed, too by our art forms other than music, like painting.

"I cannot say of course," he added, however, "that our tastes are always the same."

Well, why not try it once more? I said to myself. So I noted there was pleasant mention of classical music and symphonic orchestras but I wondered if any of the visiting six had had time to catch radio's musical fare—popular stuff like, say, rock 'n' roll—and if so, how did they like it?

One thing I learned out of this was that rock 'n' roll, when translated into Russian, comes out rock 'n' roll. Also that Kabalevsky for one didn't care for the smacker that went up at its mention from the more long-haired segment of the press.

"The question is somewhat strange," he said, icily. "Even more strange is the act that the newsmen present are smiling." Mitchell leaped diplomatically into the breach to say he was sure the question had been misunderstood. He rephrased it. Even so, "I've heard good popular music and music I don't like," was about the best I could get for an answer.

Mitchell told the visitors he was happy they had been enriched by their tour. He said we had too. The press smiled said thanks, and reached for its coats.

For gala evenings during the holidays, a famous French perfume is a real dazzler. It's a scent that's both sweet and sophisticated. Many women will find it ideal.

Perfume Dazzler For Gala Dates

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

During the holidays, every woman wants to feel like a beauty. There's something about the fun, the sparkle and the goodwill that makes each gal want to blossom. One of the surest ways to do this is via a perfume that makes you feel pampered. Regard it as a luxury, one of the special things that makes life just a bit more fun. And don't save it for one or two special parties during the holidays. Wear it every single time you're going someplace, even when the someplace is a Christmas shopping expedition. Actually, this is the way that perfume was meant to be used. It was not meant to be hoarded meekly until its very essence has vanished. It was meant to help you create a picture of a great lady or a mix of a siren. If you want a perfume that will stay not only with you but in the memory of others, treat yourself to one of the great perfumes of France. This one has a tangy sweetness and is definitely sophisticated. It is both subtle and tantalizing. It might very well help to make the coming Christmas holidays memorable for you.

Dear Polly: Could you write something about decorative accessories for kitchens? Something not too expensive or, better still, useful things that could be unusual. Mrs. Kitchen Cornered.

Altar Cloths Are Topic For Society

Mrs. A. D. McNamara presented "Altar Cloths Tell Us A Story" as the program for the Wednesday meeting of Altar Society of St. Vincent DePaul Church. The meeting, held in the school cafeteria, was conducted by Mrs. Raymond Laycock, president.

Mrs. McNamara, who was introduced by Mrs. Fred Ammeter, described the liturgical significance of the cloths used during the Sacrifice of the Mass. She showed the group a sample of each cloth and told how they should be ironed and folded for use at Mass.

In conclusion, Mrs. McNamara said "The women of the Altar Society are especially privileged to be able to work around the tabernacle where our Lord and Savior is reposed and multiple graces will come to those who lavish our altars with gifts, especially the gift of willing hands prompted by a loving heart."

Because of First Holy Communion for the school children, the group decided to have its corporate Communion on Nov. 29 instead of the usual fourth Sunday of the month.

Mrs. Victor Jamieson announced that the annual Thanksgiving food shower for the sisters would again be held. Parishioners who wish to take part are asked to leave staples in the school on the days prior to Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Laycock reminded the group that a nursery for pre-school children is maintained at the school for members of the Altar Society attending the meetings.

out on a counter. Bean pots, in graduated sizes, are also decorative when used for sugar and spice and other things nice. Many kitchen towels are too smart to keep hidden away in a drawer. Frame some of them to hang on the wall. A large wall space, covered with perforated hard board, is perfect for different arrangements of items usually kept out of sight. There could be a collection of baskets or cooper-bottomed pots and pans and measuring spoons. Wicker baskets holding pots of herbs are useful bits of decoration. Far too many closets are full of things that could be put to decorative uses. But DON'T line your window sills with useless dust catchers.

Dear Polly: In my living room I have a plain rug, plain living-room suite and club chair. We are getting ready to repaper. I want grass cloth paper and my husband wants flowered paper. What should I do? Please suggest an idea for drapes. Mrs. V. B. B.

Dear Mrs. V. B. B.: Make a deal with that husband of yours. If he agrees to the grass cloth paper, which is more suitable for a living room, then promise him flowered draperies. That combination should make everybody happy.

Dear Polly: Should window cornices be painted to match the woodwork? My woodwork is stained and varnished and I would not like to paint to match it. Mrs. L. K.

Dear Mrs. L. K.: Cornices to match stained and varnished woodwork could only attract attention to what is doubtless one of the most unattractive features in your room. Paint them the color of the walls or the background color of the curtains. When wood trim is painted, cornices can be painted to match.

Baby Adds New Touch To Author's Writing

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Raising a baby holds a special attraction for a pretty Washington author that few women ever experience. Mtherhood is providing her with ideas for new stories.

That's what magazine fiction writer Elizabeth Stowe has discovered since her infant daughter, Susan, was born a year ago. "Taking care of the baby has stimulated my imagination," she says. "I have an idea for a short novel right now that she jogged into being."

Friends won't be surprised if that baby jobs a multitude of additional ideas that will wind up in such magazines as Redbook, Cosmopolitan and McCall's. For one of the secrets of Elizabeth's success is that she writes about only the things which she knows and likes best. And raising Susan meets both qualifications.

Elizabeth explains, however, that its unlikely her friends will recognize either Susan or herself as story characters. Although she bases all her characters on real people, she writes in such a way that they have a hard time recognizing themselves in the story. For instance, in a recent yarn, she used traits of an elderly relative to describe a 24-year-old girl.

Members of the Federal Trade Commission currently are trying to identify themselves in a Stowe yarn. Her latest novelette, "Dangerous Promise," concerns an FTC investigation of a quack cancer cure. Her husband, Sam, is the agency's information chief.

Elizabeth says that the only time her real-life approach to fiction boomeranged was when she did a story about a young married couple trying to decide what to do with some old furniture given to them by in-laws.

Elizabeth explains that she described an old lamp in the story which was like one that had been given to her by a relative. "She finally forgave me," Elizabeth says.

Elizabeth states that being a housewife, mother and writer at the same time is "both delightful and difficult." She says, "The difficulty is squeezing out that special time for writing without neglecting those things that shouldn't be neglected."

Before Susan was born her writing hours were between 10:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. "Now I have to wait until the baby takes a nap," she says. "That's usually between 9:30 to 11 in the morning and 2:30 to 4 in the afternoon. But before long the baby is not going to want to sleep that long. "So I imagine my production is going to be low during the next few years. Someday, however, the little one will start to school. Then I'll have my five hours a day to write again. Taking care of Susan, though, is the most important thing."

Elizabeth was born in Overland Park, Kan., and was graduated with honors from Kansas University. Her first writing job was as a newspaper reporter. She sold the second short story that she wrote. Since then, she has sold 40 stories and five novelettes.

Dear Abby

★ By Abigail
Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I agree with your statement that Peeping Toms (and others) guilty of moral offenses) should be reported. But I don't think they should be reported to the police. They should be reported to their wives and families so they can get the psychiatric treatment they need instead of the shame and disgrace they get when reported to the police. You wouldn't report him to the police if he had cancer, would you?

S.W. DEAR S.W.: "Peeping" is a symptom of a mental illness which often results in rape, murder and violence to small children and unsuspecting women. Police records show that almost every sex offender has had an early record of "peeping."

While "peeping" itself may not be a serious crime, it is only fair to society to let the police know who these offenders are. Wives and families cannot always be depended upon to get the sick person to the psychiatrist in time.

DEAR ABBY: The Peeping Tom letter brought back memories of an experience I had years ago. I spent many nights home alone as my husband traveled. One night I heard noises in the bushes outside my window. When I looked, I saw the figure of a man crouching there. I called the police, but by the time they arrived he was gone. Later that summer I heard a strange noise at my back door. I crept quietly into the kitchen in time to see a man's hand touching my screen door. I quickly connected my flat iron which was standing handy, and just as he was about to unlock the screen door, I pressed the hot iron to his hand. He fled.

The next morning, my neighbor told me that her husband had burned his hand badly while trying to fix their heater. He was one of the most respected family men in town.

DEAR ABBY: I was tickled to death to see that item in your column about PEEPING TOMS. I was to that Peeping Tom but was a police reporter for twenty-two years and I know from experience that a guy who hangs around windows trying to get a thrill is a dangerous character. Sooner or later he gets himself worked up to a pitch where somebody gets hurt. You should report that letter again, Abby, and have it set in sixty-point type so nobody will miss it.

First Methodist Friendship Class Honors Junior Department Workers

Friendship Class of First Methodist Church honored the teachers and workers of the Junior Department with a Coffee on Saturday morning from 10 a.m. until 11 in the Fellowship Hall of the church. Friendship Class president, Mrs. H. H. Butler, welcomed guests and presented each with a religious book.

Mrs. Luther Pierson, Mrs. J. E. Kirchner and Mrs. Joe Shelton had charge of the program which included a reading by Mrs. Kermit B. Lawson entitled, "Love Letter For Thanksgiving."

Mrs. Bob McCoy provided a background music during the morning social.

Friendship Class officers introduced by Mrs. Butler were Mrs. Pierson, first vice president; Mrs. A. F. Johnston, second vice president; Mrs. Van Pate, secretary; Mrs. Jerry Boston, assistant secretary; Mrs. W. R. Ewing, pianist; Mrs. Hernan Jones is the class treasurer.

Mrs. Pierson concluded the program with prayer. Refreshments of fruit tarts, miniature cream-puffs, coffee were served from a Thanksgiving table covered with a white cloth and appointed with Pilgrim figurines. A straw cornucopia spilling forth a bountiful harvest of fall flowers and fruit centered the serving table and was flanked with orange tapers.

Members and guests attending were Mrs. Pierson, John Hesse, Fred Cary, Lee Harral, Van Pate, John K. Sweet, J. E. Kirchner, Joe Shelton, W. R. Ewing, Sherman White, C. S. Boston, Marnie Thut, W. E. Jarvis, M. K. Griffith, Chester Thompson, Roy G. Floyd, William Wagoner, Valton Martin, Allan Wise, C. R. Grimsley, R. D. Morris, R. C. Martin.

Also, Mrs. Thelma Bray, Marguerite Baldwin, W. W. Adcock, W. R. Campbell, Kermit B. Lawson, T. B. Parker, A. F. Johnston, J. E. White, Lola Harper, George Taylor, Frank Bailey, W. A. Hardy, Clarence Lutes, Bob McCoy, Ralph Thomas, J. A. Knox, H. E. Carlson, C. M. Carlock, Henry Butler, Myrtle Dorsey and Jerry Boston.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

One morning, soon after Clark's parents had moved to a new town, a neighbor's child came over to play with him. As Clark's mother approached the playroom with a plate of cookies, she heard him say to his guest:

"If you'll come over this afternoon, I'll give you that dump truck."

She was horrified. An avid reader of child guidance books, she knew the meaning of Clark's effort to buy himself friendship. His "self-confidence" was in a bad shape. He had more confidence in his toy's charm for his visitor than in his own. So upset was she by discovering the poor state of Clark's self-confidence that she could hardly wait for the guest to leave to say: "You must not give toys to children to make them play with you. They must come to play because they like you."

If Clark's self-confidence was in a bad state before she spoke, it fell apart afterwards. Now he takes no social initiative at all but just moans about the back yard by himself, trusting neither his own charms nor those of his toys to attract friends.

It's very high-minded of child guidance experts to want children to be loved for themselves alone. But they can't always manage this. So we are destructive when we disapprove their efforts to buy good will. Until they find a better way to get it, we'd better restrain our horror at the method they've got. Otherwise, they're left with no method at all — and this can be very discouraging to self-confidence, indeed.

Child guidance experts who deplore children's efforts to purchase friendship must live in ivory towers. For their fellow grownups do it all the time. Today, it's an accepted business custom to buy a client's good will with gifts of anything from cases of whiskey to invitations to Hollywood parties. I myself know a buyer for a large corporation who's so loaded with presents at Christmas time that some people who want to buy his good will that it takes him weeks to audit his list.

So it's all very lovely to want Clark to trust his own value to a friend more than the value of his dump truck. But until big men can do better at self-trust themselves, we aren't entitled to horror at a little boy's failure in it. If grownups have to trust cases of whiskey more than their business ability, Clark is certainly entitled to trust his toys more than his social ability.

Fashion Designers Have New Ideas Up Their Spring Style Sleeves

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Woman's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — American designers rolled up their sleeves and went to work on sleeves when they put together the spring 1960 collections.

Rarely has one segment of a garment had so much attention. Most frequently seen are the sleeves in coats, suits and dresses are funneled, fluted, flared, ki-sleeve flared like a funnel. Some are monoed, caped, canopied, callalied, and chopped off so short with the bertha, with its cape it's bound to be a breezy Easter parade. Almost all sleeves on daytime apparel end at the elbow or above.

The sleeve treatments are part of a general focus on increased width, without padding, through the shoulder area. Many armholes are cut waist-deep, like the old-time Dolman, and in most cases the sleeve is all in one with the bodice.

Most frequently seen are the cape effects, with the hem of the sleeve flared like a funnel. Some collars help to accent this top-litted, and chopped off so short with the bertha, with its cape it's bound to be a breezy Easter parade. Almost all sleeves on daytime apparel end at the elbow or above.

The shape of things to come was highlighted in a trend show, reported by the New York fashion group, an organization of women in various facets of the garment industry.

The group predicted 1960 would be a year of "evolution rather than revolution" and that there would be no major shift in silhouette.

But, there are these alterations: Plenty of use of the bias cut in daytime dresses, in sheer wool suit skirts and evening clothes, for a clingy look; Necklines on suits and dresses are cut lower and stand away from the neckline; Skirts have more swing, and no longer have what the commentator called the "Wallpaper Fit."

"Twelve Days of Christmas" assumes a new dimension in this foil, felt, and feathered decoration. It's homemade.

Handsome Wall Design Interprets Song "Twelve Days Of Christmas"

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

If you prize the pleasure of decorating your home at Christmas with something you've made yourself, it's time to start thinking what to do this year.

One suggestion: a handsome, hand-drawn wall decoration designed for the modern fireplace — without mantel.

It takes its motif from the old Christmas song "Twelve Days of Christmas," which is all about a partridge in the pear tree. Although it's imposing above the fireplace, it would also be fitting in a dining room or a study, on a boyer table.

The design as worked out for the Le-Page Home Crafts unit. To interpret all 12 verses of the song would make the decoration too large; they limited it to the first five verses.

Those are the verses about the five gold rings, four calling birds, three French hens, two turtledoves and a partridge in a pear tree.

The decoration is made as a wall hanging, and is then attached to the wall with cellulose tape. It's also possible to anchor it in a flower pot with a block of plastic, clay sand.

Materials include: dowel rod and metallic paper, light wire and green felt, gold and red sequins, feathers, sequins, five gold rings, ribbon, rubber cement, glue and sticky tape, green crepe paper or green paint. The vertical dowel for the trunk is about 42 inches long. The wall unit, a few inches higher if you'll be poking it into a flower pot.

Three branches are three dowels graduated-lengths—the longest about 40 inches. Either wrap the wire in green crepe paper or paint them green. Join them into basic tree shape.

Now make the birds. The partridge is the biggest bird of all, appearing about a foot tall. Work a simple bird shape on paper, cutting the partridge a plump torso and cut out of gold paper. Wings are cut separately and glued on with gold sequin. Sprinkle the doilies folded in half-pasted each wing.

A real feather, ringed with a red lace strip, makes the tail. The lace paper strips make a "pear" and a fanciful topknot. Sequins pasted on collar and top add glitter and put sparkle in the eyes which are small pieces of colored metallic paper centered with a sequin.

Two turtle doves are on the next branch. Those have pleated foil wings and tails and real feathers atop their heads. On the next branch are three French hens. These are basically round shapes with heads and wings pasted on separately, again with feathers on top.

White Gardenia corsages were presented to Mrs. S. W. Paul.

Aggies, Mustangs Can Act As SWC Spoilers This Week

By ED ITE
United Press International

The Texas Aggies and Southern Methodist Mustangs, whose playing abilities have changed colors like a chameleon, get their chance to be the big spoilers of the Southwest Conference grid season this final week.

The Aggies' chances come first on Thanksgiving Day on their own Kyle Field — when they meet one of the best Texas teams in years, one that can sew up a Jan. 1 Cotton Bowl date against mighty Syracuse by winning.

SMU, which only last year put the only bid on champion Texas Christian's record, can wreck and put another blemish on the record the Frogs will carry into the Dec. 19 Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston when those old rivals meet at Fort Worth Saturday.

In addition to those two crucial windups, Rice and Baylor get together at Houston with nothing at stake but fifth place in the standings.

Arkansas, which already has clinched a tie for the championship and a visit to either the Cotton or Gator Bowls, will mark time and await the results of Thursday's contest at College Station.

If the Aggies, who have managed only one victory in their last nine games with Texas at Kyle Field and only two wins

BULLETIN D'Amato, Del Mar College Is Invited To Junior Rose Bowl Game

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The Del Mar College Vikings, often bowl bridesmaids but never the bride, finally made the grade today when they were named to face Bakersfield College in the junior rose bowl.

Del Mar, often in contention for a berth, was always out-voted in the past.

The Vikings, the only unbeaten junior college team in the always-rugged Texas circuit, will clash Dec. 12 with the Renegades of Bakersfield, Calif., who boast the longest winning streak among the nation's junior colleges.

This year's 14th annual tussel in the famed Rose Bowl will decide the national junior college championship as Bakersfield, representing the west, is ranked No. 1 in the country and Del Mar is sitting in the No. 2 spot.

The Renegades were unbeaten in nine straight season games and piled up a total of 292 points versus 46 points for their adversary.

Baugh To Coach South Backfield

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Singin' Sammy Baugh, former all-pro great and coach at Hardin-Simmons College, has accepted an invitation to coach the South Backfield in the annual Blue-gray football classic here Dec. 26.

Baugh, credited as the greatest passer in the history of the game with a stack of pro records which probably will never be surpassed, will be making his second appearance here for the game.

Amarillo to Meet Coyotes Saturday

This Saturday, the Amarillo Sandies have the dubious privilege of meeting the Wichita Falls Coyotes in the bi-district playoffs. The game will be held at 2:30 p.m. on the Coyotes' home field.

The Sandies tied with the Monterey Plainsmen for the District 3-4A championship, each with 8-1-1 records, but the Sandies got the playoff spot because of having beaten Monterey.

Both squads won shutout victories Saturday. Amarillo whipped Palo Duro, 21-0 and Monterey whitewashed Lubbock, 32-0.

The Sandies will be meeting the number two team in the state Saturday. Wichita Falls beat Pampa in the first game of the season, 40-0, while Pampa and Amarillo tied, 14-14.

Pampa, despite its 28-0 loss Saturday to the Borger Bulldogs, finished in fifth place, with a 2-4-1 district record. Palo Duro finished sixth with a 2-5 mark and Plainview, which lost to Tascosa, 36-0, is seventh with a 1-5-1 record. Lubbock lost to Monterey, 32-0, and finished in the cellar with a 1-6 mark.

Every team in the district finished in the same position in which it entered the last week of play. All of the favorites won the final District 3-4A games by shutouts.

as the four first division teams played the four second division teams on the same weekend.

Pampa had its best season record in several years, 4-5-1, but lost an opportunity for a winning season by losing to the Bulldogs.

Detroit Pistons Grab Lead In NBA's Western Division

The Detroit Pistons grabbed the lead Sunday by whipping the New York Knickerbockers, 115-104, while the St. Louis Hawks were dropping a 106-100 decision to the Cincinnati Royals.

The Pistons grabbed the lead Sunday by whipping the New York Knickerbockers, 115-104, while the St. Louis Hawks were dropping a 106-100 decision to the Cincinnati Royals.

Hub Reed, a former St. Louis player, led the comeback surge, scoring 19 of his 23 points in the second half and pulling down 11 of his 15 rebounds. However, Jack Twyman wound up as Cincinnati's top scorer with 25 points, while Bob Pettit with 39 and Cliff Hagan with 26 led the Hawks, who played without Clyde Lovellette, out with a chipped bone in his foot.

Rookie Wilt Chamberlain was the big show again as the Philadelphia Warriors trimmed the Syracuse Nationals, 114-103, in the day's only other game. Chamberlain poured in 37 points and snagged 24 rebounds as the Warriors built up a 21-point lead in the third period and then coasted home. Larry Costello led Syracuse with 22 points.

3 Bowl Spots Will Be Set This Week

United Press International Bids by Texas, Mississippi and Miami (Fla.) to clinch bowl berths and the annual Army-Navy classic feature a college football card this week which will leave Syracuse's attempt to complete a perfect season as the only unfinished business of the '59 campaign.

The holiday bowl picture was pretty well lined up Saturday when Wisconsin and Washington were paired in the Rose Bowl, Missouri won the Big Eight's bid to the Orange Bowl, Louisiana State received an invitation from the Sugar Bowl and Texas Christian announced that it will go to the Blue Bonnet Bowl, Dec. 19, in Houston, Tex.

Syracuse — which must wait until Dec. 5 before it tries to end a perfect season against UCLA — will learn its Cotton Bowl opponent Thanksgiving Day when Texas faces Texas A&M. Texas will play the nationally-top-ranked Orange if it wins; if Texas loses, Arkansas will get the Southwest Conference bid to Dallas. Arkansas has tentatively accepted a bid to the Gator Bowl should Texas win the Cotton Bowl bid.

Mississippi should get the Sugar Bowl berth opposite LSU if it beats Mississippi State next Saturday while Miami should win up in the Orange Bowl against Missouri if it defeats Florida. An LSU-Mississippi Sugar Bowl game would be a rematch of a regular-season game won by LSU, 7-3.

Miami, which beat Michigan State, 18-13, Friday night, has been promised "first consideration" by the Orange Bowl committee if it wins its last two games.

Georgia, which winds up Saturday, has a bye in the Sugar Bowl. Georgia will play the Sugar Bowl on Dec. 19, in Houston, Tex.

Syracuse is lone 'Major' Unbeaten

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four of the nation's unbeaten and untied college football teams play their final games of the season Saturday. Syracuse, which is nationally ranked, is the only unbeaten team in the country.

AUSSIES BEAT YANKS

AFL Holds First Draft Meeting

By ED SAINSBURY
United Press International
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — The American Football League headed into its first draft meeting today in a state of confusion.

League spokesmen spent much of their time Sunday denying reports that backers of the newly-formed AFL's Minneapolis — St. Paul franchise were pulling out. Charles Johnson, executive sports editor of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, said a local group which had accepted an AFL franchise was withdrawing to accept a franchise for 1960 in the National Football League.

The report was denied by Lamar Hunt, holder of the American League's Dallas franchise and principal organizer of the AFL. The league picked eight players as initial draft choices at a meeting Sunday night attended by representatives of the eight cities holding franchises — Boston, Buffalo, Dallas, Denver, Houston, Los Angeles, New York and Minneapolis.

WF, Breckenridge, Stamford Picked to Repeat as Champs

By United Press International
Defending champions Wichita Falls, Breckenridge and Stamford, which have been wrecking everything in sight in their own ballwiks, may find the going a bit testier this week as they move along the schoolboy football play-off trail.

While all three will be favored to clear their hurdles and move on into the quarterfinals the caliber of opposition stands to improve.

The AAAA champion Coyotes, for instance, bump into once-beaten, once-tied Amarillo High in the opening round Saturday afternoon at Wichita Falls. The Coyotes are unbeaten but tied.

And, Breckenridge, tied by Wichita Falls and beaten by Abilene of AAAA, entertains a twice-beaten Lamesa team that has shown steady improvement late in the season. This also is a Saturday afternoon affair.

Stamford, unextended in its own class and numbering AAA power Cleburne among its 11 straight victims, bumps into a perfect record Cisco team that brushed past De Leon with ease last week.

The three champs, however, are still favored to wade through to the finals with Corpus Christi Ray, Nederland and Brady wearing similar labels in the South.

Ray and Nederland are among the rapidly dwindling list of unbeaten — untied teams left in the four divisions playing to championships.

Ray has no such company in AAAA, while San Marcos is the only other perfect record team in AAA. Denton City, Olney and Freer along with Stamford and Cisco are AA's only contributors to the list, while in Class A there are left only Crowell, Liberty-Eyau, Anahuac, Katy and Bishop.

One team in each division — Wichita Falls in AAAA, Bay City in AAA, Palacios in A and Kennedy in A — is unbeaten but tied. And, Bay City isn't even in the playoffs. It lost that honor to Nederland's opponent, La Marque, via the penultimate game.

Class A with 1958 champ White Deer sidelined in its own district, has no outstanding favorite. But, Anahuac and once-beaten Albany may be the teams to beat.

Colts, Giants Are Bidding For Titles Again

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press International

Johnny Unitas and Charley Conerly are pitching bullseyes again and their target appears to be a replay of the "dream game" between the Baltimore Colts and New York Giants for the National Football League title.

Both teams took a big step in that general direction Sunday and Unitas and Conerly were the ones who led the way.

Unitas threw two touchdown passes and scored once himself in a 45-14 victory over San Francisco that boosted Baltimore into first place tie with the Forty-

Niners in the Western Division. Faced with the prospect of losing all chance to retain the league title they won from the Giants last December, the Colts ran up their highest score of the season, causing San Francisco Coach Red Hickey to comment he felt "like a freight train just ran over me."

Conerly had much the same effect on the Chicago Cardinals. Limping on a sprained ankle, the veteran 38-year-old Conerly fired two touchdown passes and had a hand in a third as the Giants licked the Cards, 30-20, at Minneapolis and climbed one game in front of the Eastern Division race with a 7-2 record.

Pittsburgh upset Cleveland, 21-20, thereby knocking the Browns out of a first place tie in the Eastern Division. The Browns now have a 6-3 record, the same as the Philadelphia Eagles, who defeated the Los Angeles Rams, 23-20. The Chicago Bears kept their faint Western Division hopes alive with a 24-14 triumph over the Detroit Lions, and Green Bay snapped a five-game losing streak by walling Washington, 21-0.

Colt Coach Wee are now back in the fight, "we are world champions," played their best game of the season" against the Forty-Niners.

Unitas was largely responsible. He provided Baltimore with a 7-0 lead in the second quarter when he capped an 80-yard drive by plunging over from the one yard line, then threw scoring passes to Ray Berry and Lennie Moore. The two TD's increased his season total to 24 and ran his all-time league record of consecutive games in which he has thrown touchdown passes to 34. The Colts and Forty-Niners both sport 6-3 records and meet again at San Francisco, Dec. 5.

Conerly, whose injured ankle kept him sidelined the past two weeks, tossed touchdown passes of 33 and 45 yards in the second period, he latered to Frank Gifford, who hit Alex Webster with a 37-yard scoring pass. The TD's were the first for the Giants in 10 periods.

Bobby Layne led Pittsburgh to its victory over favored Cleveland when he passed 17 yards to Vern Nagler with 41 seconds remaining and then clamy kicked his third extra point of the game. Layne's last-minute dramatics—he beat the Giants with only 89 seconds to go last week—took the play away from Cleveland's Milt Plum, who had tossed three TD passes to Ray Renfro. A missed conversion attempt by Lou Groza turned out to be the margin of Pittsburgh's victory.

Three field goals by Paige Cochran, his last with 16 seconds left, gave the Eagles their win over the Rams. Cochran was cut loose by the Rams and picked up as a free agent by the Eagles five weeks ago. He tied Sunday's game with an 18-yard field goal in the second period, put the Eagles in front with a 40-yarder in the same period, and won the game with a 14-yard placement after Lou Michaels had booted a 38-yarder to tie the score for the Rams.

The Bears capitalized on three Detroit fumbles to beat the Lions. Fumbles by Terry Barr and Earl Morrall helped the Bears to their first two touchdowns, scored by Willie Gallimore and Rick Casares in the second period. Later in the same period, John Aveni kicked a 39-yard field goal to give Chicago a 17-0 lead after John Damore recovered another Lion fumble by Yale Lary.

Second-string quarter back Starr who started in place of injured Lamar McHan, guided the Packers to all three of their touchdowns against the Redskins. Star passed for two TD's in the second period and handed off for a Chicago Bears third in the third quarter. The shutout marked the first scored by Green Bay since 1949.

Haralson, Rawls, Warren Lead Harvesters Statistics

Terry Haralson became the Harvesters' top runner of the 1959 season Saturday, when he gained 32 yards against Borger to pass the injured M. R. Cooper on the ground-gaining list.

Haralson went into the Borger game needing only two yards to capture the ground-gaining crown, and he finished the season with 78 yards, to Cooper's 348. Cooper did not play the last two games of the season, because of a shoulder separation.

Haralson is also the Harvesters' season scoring leader, with five touchdowns. Since Pampa didn't score Saturday against Borger, there are no changes in that department.

Except for Haralson gaining the rushing leadership, there were no changes in the rushing standings, and there were also no changes in the list of passers. One new name was added to the list of pass-receivers.

Buddy Rawls is Pampa's top passer for the season, with 15 completions in 45 tries for 154 yards. Saturday against Borger, Rawls completed two of 11 tosses for 13 yards.

Sherrill Miller caught his first two passes of the season Saturday, for a total of 22 yards, to rank eighth for the season among pass receivers. Charles Warren is the top pass receiver, with six catches for 96 yards.

Ronnie Smith's kicking average for the season dropped 2 of a point Saturday, because he had one kick blocked. He finished the year with a punting average of 29.2. Cooper finished the season with a slightly better average, 29.5, but attempted only six punts, while Smith kicked 50.

The Harvesters went into the Borger game leading their combined opponents in total offense and rushing, but lost both those Borger's 110 yards passing gave Pampa's combined opponents a lead of 490 yards to 345 in that department. Strangely, however, pass defense was about the only thing at which the Harvesters excelled Saturday. Despite the fact that Borger completed one long touchdown pass, Pampa's overall pass defense was superb. The Harvesters intercepted two Borger passes, and knocked down five others.

Bobby Stephens knocked down three Borger tosses; Jimmy Storms intercepted one and knocked one down; Duke Garren made an interception; and Buddy Rawls knocked one down.

D'Amato Learns

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fight manager Gus D'Amato and promoter Bill Rosenzohn learn their fates today at the New York State Athletic Commission.

Whether their licenses shall be revoked is the big question as the commission announces its decisions after a long investigation into the promotion of the June 26 fight between Sweden's Ingemar Johansson and Floyd Patterson.

Lesser penalties could be long suspensions or fines or both.

Services Set For Max Baer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Funeral services for Max Baer, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, will be held here Tuesday.

The rites will be conducted at the Chapel of the Valley and entombment will follow at St. Mary's Mausoleum.

The body of the sometime actor and good natured "clown prince of boxing" was flown here from Hollywood. Baer died Saturday of a heart attack.

Baer is survived by his widow, Mary; two sons, Max Jr. and James; a daughter, Maudie; two sisters, Mrs. James Young and Mrs. Louise Santucci; and two nephews, Jacob Henry (Buddy) and Augie.

Baer won the heavyweight championship in June of 1935 when he scored a 10th round knockout of Primo Carnera. A year later, Baer lost the title to James Braddock in a 15 round decision.

Gene Tunney Advocates Federal Boxing Control

By JACK CUDDY
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Conservative Gene Tunney, the wealthy and respected former world heavyweight champion, declared today:

"Professional boxing must have federal control if it is to survive as a big-time sport."

He added, "It should have had federal control years ago when it became a business consistently engaged in interstate commerce through the medium of network television."

Nevertheless, today's declaration apparently was Gene's first public espousal of the federal control cause. This millionaire clubman, financier and industrialist always shied away from utterances that might indicate, even in far-fetched fashion, that he was telling others how to run their enterprises.

depleted in historic title fights, in Supreme Court finally broke up. Rend Dixon, counsel to the Senate's Kefauver boxing subcommittee, said last week he expected to call both Tunney and Dempsey as advisory witnesses during the hearings.

Dempsey began shouting for federal control back in the days when promoter Mike Jacobs was getting a "strange hold on big-time talent. That was before Jim Norris and his International Boxing Club cemented top talent, choice arenas and television into a monopoly that the United States

Morality & Custom

Undoubtedly we need a new word. The lack of suitable symbols to express different kinds of morality and immorality was borne out the other day when a sister paper's reporter inquired of the Reverend John Connelly, S.J., professor of moral theology, West Baden College, Indiana, if morality goes beyond the matter of sex.

The good reverend admitted that it did. But the admission, in itself, shed little light on the enormity of the omission in our language.

Clearly, when most people speak up respecting morals they are talking or thinking about the male-female relationship. We have this kind of thing dinned at us a good deal of the time. Questions are raised, particularly among young people, respecting dating, going steady, petting, late dates, and the like.

In more adult circles the questions of morality seem to center around pre-marital or extra-marital relations, divorce, alimony, double-standards, chastity and similar sex-laden or sex-oriented subjects.

Thus, the feeling grows that morality deals with the sex problem. And an immoral act is some action which is either illegal or out of harmony with local custom as it pertains to sex.

Perhaps this is entirely satisfactory. Words are simply the tools of communication and we should employ them with as much precision and skill as it is possible to employ them.

But, while a good many persons are engaged in trying to get to the roots of the sex problem, we'd like to suggest that if we can't have another word, we must at least expand the meaning of the word morality so that it covers more than these personal intimacies.

And perhaps our failure to find another word in previous years is responsible in part for the fact that sometimes persons don't understand what we mean when we point out that an act of theft is immoral. If they are thinking of immorality as relating only to

Comparisons

Since Khrushchev's visit to this country we seem to have moved into an era of comparison. Everything Soviet is being compared to everything American. Folks are busy with statistics trying to compare production, land masses, propaganda effectiveness, personal aptitudes and virtues. And there are all kinds of attitudes being evolved from this new pastime.

There are those who suddenly see America as a loser in a great international race. This nation, it appears, is way behind everything. Russians have ever done, are doing, or might ever do. Some who accept this conclusion are filled with gloom, others with gloom. But we rather imagine that this conclusion is a trifle premature, and whether it inspires joy or sorrow, we suspect that it is not accurate.

For in many ways, not only is Russia away behind the United States, it is so far behind in instances that it is almost necessary to conclude that it will never catch up even under more favorable circumstances than exist for Russia at the moment.

We are thinking of the inadvertent admission made during the Russian "cultural" exchange when one of the Russian "economists" boasted that in the Soviet Union advanced advertising techniques were unnecessary.

He explained that in Russia, all that happened was that when any new product or service became available — simple government announcement in the newspaper took care of the supply. No need for special displays, slogans, titillating jingles, competitive claims. All that had to be done was to explain what was available and where it could be purchased. That ended the procedure.

The Russian was certain, when he explained this facet of his country's economy, that he was demonstrating the superiority of government-owned and controlled businesses. Had he but known it, he was demonstrating the paucity of the entire socialist productive system.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOLLES

Inflationism Designed To Help The Poor Really Helps The Rich

Many people seem to think that inflation is good for employees. In the long run I do not believe inflation is good for the employer or the employee or the rich or the poor.

The magazine, "First Principles In Morality And Economics", has an interesting article on this subject, which I am reproducing below:

"The late J. Laurence Laughlin, at one time professor at the University of Chicago, wrote a book 'The Principles of Money' (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, 1921) which is of considerable interest as monetary history. On pages 43-4 he asked: 'But who compose the debtor class?'

"To that question his answer was: 'Large capitalists... obligations... in excess of their... capital. Merchants are constantly doing business... far beyond their own capital. They borrow and create the greater proportion of general indebtedness. The largest part of the obligations of a country, so far as amounts are concerned, necessarily arises from those who engage in the more extensive transactions... A poor man may be in debt, but the total (debts) of the poorer class is but a fraction of the obligations of a few large institutions, and legislation giving preference to debtors will serve the poor man infinitely less than it does the large producer.'

"Many of the people of the United States today favor inflationary policies: (1) they have abandoned the gold standard, whereas it is only by having an inert metal standard that inflation of prices can be prevented; (2) they have legislated to authorize circulation credit, which raises prices; (3) they are, in general, complacent or semi-complacent about increases in government debts; and (4) they think that by inflation they are helping the rich and helping themselves.

"But in regard to number (4), as Laughlin indicates, they are deceiving themselves and doing just the opposite of what they intend; they are indeed following policies contrary to purpose. In the process, presumably of helping themselves (and hurting others), they are really hurting themselves.

"Inflationism is basically wrong because it is theft. It is not justified for the purpose of enriching the poor (which means injuring the rich), nor is it justified for the purpose of further enriching the rich (which means injuring the poor). Inflationism is always wrong.

"The poor man usually saves in the form of insurance, savings accounts, purchases of bonds or mortgages. Where does all this money go? To finance the big debtors. The poor man, through these institutions of insurance etc., becomes a creditor. Big corporations are almost always big debtors. A few, large modern corporations have no debts and apparently pride themselves in that. Their pride is misplaced. The managements of these companies are living in the past."

"Later, as a semi-conscious defense against inflationism, many poor people (usually young, because the young are naturally poor, not having had time to accumulate capital) have taken to buying a residence for themselves on time, rather than renting. This is significant, but is relatively not yet of great importance in the general situation. Big corporations are pursuing the same policy even more strongly; they are steadily doing more and more of their financing by means of borrowing, rather than by stock financing, which is known as 'equity financing'. There are limits beyond which a corporation should not borrow. Many corporations are pressing against those limits.

"The tax laws of the United States also encourage corporations to borrow rather than to seek money from stockholders. If a corporation finances by means of 5 per cent preferred stock, it must earn more than 10 per cent on that money in order to benefit the stockholders by this expansion. The reason is that the Federal Corporation Income tax rate is 32 per cent. But a 5 per cent debenture or bond (that is, borrowed money) is profitable to stockholders whenever the use of such funds yields to the corporation more than the 5 per cent."

discover that our rate of growth right now looks just as rapid as recent Russian spurts, if not more rapid.

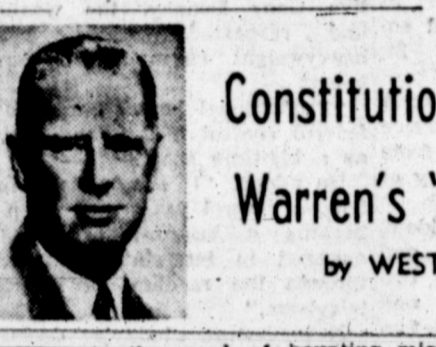

The thing that Russia has never been able to overcome totally, was its disastrous adoption of a series of five-year plans encompassing collectivized production.

However you look at it, on any long-term comparative study, Soviet Russia is lagging behind America with the possible exception of rocketry. And in this one place it is interesting to note that all-Soviet rocket experimentation is handled by the Soviet Academy of Science, which has been completely divorced from political control. On the contrary, in this nation, all rocket experimentation is totally under political control. This is the place where we come out second best.

Fair Enough

Constitution Hit By Warren's 'Expert'

by WESTBROOK PEGLER

What is the good of haunting Earl Warren with his 'authorities' in the integration case? For one thing, there is no hope of making him reverse the decision. The deed is done and Warren has flouted the Constitution in favor of radical propagandists who had no better standing before the court than so many beatniks in a Greenwich Village dump. Thus Warren invited attack by a body of honest, patriotic public opinion which, belatedly, realized what an insult proposition he had stated, and rallied to discredit him.

It was almost a year before the truth of Warren's reliance on these people dawned on the country. Then, in the Senate hearings on Eastland, of Mississippi, revealed that Warren's friend, Gunnar Myrdal, the Swedish sociologist, had written that our Constitution was "impractical and unsuited to modern conditions" and "nearly a plot against the common people." Inasmuch as Warren had cited this book "generally," as the justification for his decision, he plainly endorsed those belittlements.

Nobody ever heard of Myrdal or Warren's other 'authorities' before the text came out with their names in fine print footnotes.

As I have related, I learned in Stockholm that Myrdal was a typical double-dome brain-truster and a radical socialist and that Warren and his wife, of Scandinavian background, had been receiving red-carpet courtesies on their journeys to Scandinavia.

And, on my return to New York, I went to the United Nations and learned that Gunnar Myrdal had spent 10 years in a fat, parasitic job in the U.N. at the expense of the taxpayers, mainly Americans. His wife, Alva, the Swedish minister to India since December, 1956, at $8,000 a year plus living quarters and official expenses, formerly merely the chief of the Department for Social Questions of the U.N. and of UNESCO's Social Science Department — whatever that is. I do not know what her pay was in that spot. Warren knew the Myrdals.

The salary and "expenses" of Alva's job in India constitute fat patronage in Swedish politics. Gunnar, himself, could shake up with mama in her embassy and live very well on her pay and perquisites. But papa is doing all right, no little thanks to Warren's job of log-rolling. That should bring Gunnar income for the rest of his life.

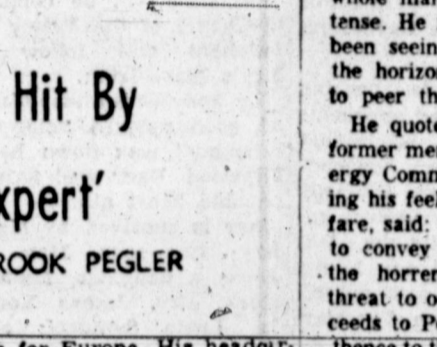

The publicity department of the U.N. on April 17, 1957 kicked out a half-dozen of a little less than two pages, double spaced, about Gunnar. He was then drawing $18,000 a year plus $3,500 a year expenses plus occasional trips between Geneva, where he had his headquarters, and New York. The U.N. fiscal tables suggest that he was taxable $6,000 a year by the U.S. itself. But the U.N. has no such laws and courts as menace Americans for non-payment. The U.N. has no Leavenworth nor Atlanta. It can't sue or prosecute.

The U.N. publicity on Myrdal says he spent "one year" in the United States on a Rockefeller scholarship in the '20's. In 1928 he was "asked to direct a comprehensive study of the Negro problem in America for the Carnegie Institute." His pay and expenses are not given and foundations are not forced to tell. This was the so-called "law of the land" for us, although Warren has doggedly refused to condescend to prove that Myrdal knew any more about his subject than any talkative bore at a bar.

After the Carnegie job, Myrdal went back to Sweden, but in 1945 he was among us again to "study our political and economic development," for the Swedish government.

And in 1947 he struck it rich with the ten-year appointment as secretary of the U.N. economic

A House Is Not A House Nowadays

It was not until we started looking for a house to rent for the winter did I realize how old-fashioned I was, architecturally.

The type of houses I have used to all my life must have disappeared with the sleeveholder, the curly clip, the boucler cape, the motorizing duster and pianoforte.

I wanted a house, that looked like a house, to begin with, it means one with a front porch, front porch swing, front steps, a second story.

That kind, it seems, is as rare as the automobile crank.

So are the ones with a reasonable living room or parlor, a kitchen that looks like a kitchen, windows in the shape of windows.

There must be a law that I own homes must have a picture window. I have nothing but picture windows if there is a picture outside to view and admire. But why a picture window in all one can see from it is a picture, parked automobiles and occupants of the house across the way gazing out of their picture window at you?

But ninety per cent of these homes have them great expanse of glass reminding of old automobile windshields. But out the wipers, which miserably needed a great deal of time.

What really threw me, though, as I went from house to house, neighborhood to neighborhood, the number of houses in which kitchen was everything, and about everything.

It was a smack dab in the eye where I was accustomed to the living room.

"This," I said to myself, "is central heating."

I like food as well as that fellow, and I like kitchens, especially those in the old-fashioned houses with rockers, a fire and a table big enough for a party.

But to have the oven which sofa belonged, or to have the place of the piano or the chair is too new-fangled for taste.

A roast in the oven is a sight, but if it isn't the first I want to see when I open my door. Neither is a skillet cooking frying away, or a pear perking.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — For 346 pages of his book "The Ocean of Air," David I. Blumenstock does a careful, detailed and scientifically supportable job of discussion concerning every age-old facet of our planet's atmosphere. Heat, rain, cold, sleet, snow, wind, ice ages, droughts, inundation, hurricanes, the whole catalogue of weather impacts, including the withering dust storms and typhoons. Nothing escapes him and he passed something better than 10 years in assembling and marshaling his facts.

On page 347, things change. He becomes extra careful, super-cautious, one feels almost that every syllable and word is thrice examined to be certain that it is truthful and factual. Where once he coured the gamut of our atmosphere and its effect on land, sea, mountain and valley, he now looks with exquisite closeness at something that has happened in only a few years and unless something is done by mankind of all races to stop it, it will happen beyond the point of safe return. He studies nuclear weapons. His whole manner becomes more intense. He is like a man who has been seeing as far as he can to the horizon and, suddenly, turns to peer through a microscope.

He quotes Thomas E. Murray, former member of the Atomic Energy Commission who, in describing his feeling about nuclear warfare, said: "Words are inadequate to convey a real appreciation of the horrendous nature of this threat to our existence." He proceeds to Pentagon points of view, thence to those concerned because of the intake of Strontium-90 into our blood cells from nuclear tests alone and the intake of cesium-137 into our muscle tissue from tests alone. These have happened without atomic war and in an era of relative peace. And, finally, he arrives at the most concerned of all groups, the geneticists, who confess that once upon a time they were comfortable enough with the old biblical theory that the sins of the fathers are visited upon the children of the third and fourth generations. Now they are neither so sure nor so comfortable.

He inserts one slight point of scientific humor. He quotes Bachler on how an H-bomb is set going. This problem is a little bit like the job of making a fire in 20 degrees below zero in the mountains with green wood covered with ice and very little kindling. It is the first and last element of wit and light-heartedness in the section of peril.

Blumenstock proceeds to illustrate that a nuclear attack by us on the USSR would have its punishment: we would, winds being what they are, inevitably radioactively poison our friends, like Finland, Poland and Greece and move Eastern USSR targets would injure Japan. There is no confining, thanks to wind, the fallout. Then he goes into a profound study of the present contamination, that of today, and arrives at the genetic belief that "about 2 per cent of the children present born in the United States have genetic defects of the kind already discussed."

By the same circumstance, of course, an attack by the USSR on the United States would contaminate friends of the communists. The author lists as it will, which is old but true, and no one knows of any force that can be built to pinpoint contamination into one area and keep it from another. Actually speaking, a full-scale nuclear attack on us would, in time carry contamination around the world to Russia itself. Just as debris from the violent Krakatoa explosion in August, 1883, soon was a belt of dust around the whole world, so would a concentration of nuclear blasts in one fixed area soon send a belt of contamination around the rest of the world.

Mr. Blumenstock sums up by writing that a 1956 statement by the AEC as to what is a humanly safe amount of contamination was reached in 1957. It is Blumenstock who says it was reached then, not the AEC.

He concludes the almost perfect statement made by that author of well-nigh perfect statements, Sir Winston Churchill: "Death stands at attention, obedient, expectant, ready to serve, ready to stand away the peoples en masse; ready if called upon, to pulverize without hope of repair what is left of civilization. He

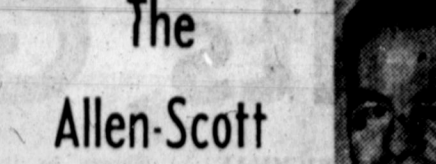

There was no place to flee for quiet or solitude. No matter where you went, someone could page you as if you were in a hotel lobby. Who, when they are absorbed in a book, or stealing a little nap, wants to hear a voice yelling: "Money, will you please report to the dining area immediately?"

Or, in case of a family row, have one's wife order all hands to battle stations.

None of the houses I looked at had an extra room that had no name. Like a room for hiding junk, storing clothes that should have been abandoned years ago, and which was never, or hardly ever, dusted or cleaned. A house without a room like that isn't a real house.

I am still looking for a house that looks as if grandmother slept there, not Frank Lloyd Wright.

The Allen-Scott Report

ROBERT S. ALLEN

HUMPHREY, KENNEDY MA-NEUVER FOR WISCONSIN LABOR BACKING

WASHINGTON — The tense maneuvering in Wisconsin between Senators Hubert Humphrey and John Kennedy is taking an intriguing new turn.

Humphrey has embarked on a vigorous drive to win the endorsement of the Wisconsin AFL-CIO Executive Committee, which he hopes will be opportunely bestowed on him soon after he formally announces his presidential candidacy in January.

Both Democratic hopefuls already have the approval of their own state AFL-CIO organizations. Outcome of Humphrey's labor drive in Wisconsin is conjectural. Fully apprized of it, Kennedy and his labor supporters are losing no time in seeking to block it. They have had one encouraging success.

At a recent meeting of top AFL-CIO leaders, Machinists officials tried to eliminate Kennedy's name from a list of congressional "liberals" who "secured several important concessions from the (Landrum-Griffin) version of the House labor bill." This was a definitely hostile move against Kennedy.

But other AFL-CIO chiefs warmly defended his legislative record, and his name stayed on the widely-published list of "friends of labor." Also on this list were Senators Humphrey and Stuart Symington.

Spearheading Humphrey's backstage drive for the Wisconsin AFL-CIO endorsement is Sam Rizzo, former United Auto Workers official and Humphrey's Wisconsin campaign manager. At a crucial moment in the 1956 convention, Rizzo swung the state's delegation to Senator Estes Kefauver for the vice presidential nomination against Kennedy. Rizzo also had a hand in influencing the Ohio and Michigan delegations.

The Humphrey-labor endorsement drive in Wisconsin is aimed at both the leaders and rank-and-file.

Largely through Rizzo, the Minnesota Senator has had several personal talks on this matter with AFL-CIO vice president Walter Reuther. One of them was at last month's Auto Workers convention, when Kennedy and Symington also addressed this gathering, but only Humphrey conferred privately with Reuther and other UAW leaders.

Similarly, earlier this month, Humphrey and Rizzo had a discussion with George Haberman, president of the Wisconsin AFL-CIO, and other state leaders.

To implement these top-level efforts, local AFL-CIO groups are being asked to vote resolutions urging a Humphrey endorsement. These "grass-roots" pronouncements are to be forthcoming before the State Executive Committee meets in January, around the time Humphrey is slated to throw his hat into the ring.

Kennedy's principal labor backing in Wisconsin is among the steel workers.

POLITICALS — While little is being heard of New Jersey's Governor Robert Meyner in the intensifying presidential scramble, his supporters are still earnestly plugging him. Their latest effort is a pamphlet, being mailed throughout the country, detailing Meyner's political career and characterizing him as a "man of dynamic action." Interestingly, a large number of these pamphlets have School authorities say the domes, to be used as picnic shelters, are supposed to take the undergraduate mind off automobiles which are being "phased out" of their campus lives.

Steel Output Week Ahead Of Schedule

United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—Steel production continued to snap back sharply today with output scheduled to climb to 90 per cent of a rated capacity this week or a week ahead of the timetable set before the Taft-Hartley injunction.

Orders are flooding the mills but shipments of finished products are not likely to reach full volume until sometime around Christmas. The auto makers appeared in the worst supply situation and many do not expect to regain high-volume production for another several weeks.

A panel of eleven private economists said that the economic growth of this country has slowed to a pace that lags behind most other major industrial nations. The American love of leisure and luxuries may have been among the chief factors behind the lower rate of economic expansion in the 1950s, the economists said.

General Motors Chevrolet division will resume production of division to parts this week. Industry experts said this meant car assemblies will resume in three to five weeks. The division will recall about 2,432 of some 59,800 idled workers today.

The Kaiser Steel Corp. reported a third quarter loss of $10,895,000 wiped out a first half profit of $10,198,000. In the first nine months of 1958 Kaiser Steel cleared $2,677,000 of 17 cents a share.

Reasons For Food Price Hike Given

WASHINGTON (UPI)

A farm researcher has an explanation for the reason that food prices are rising while farm income is dropping.

W. E. Hamilton, research director for the American Farm Bureau Federation, said in a report to the National Planning Association Sunday that most retail food prices depend not so much upon farm prices but on the costs of the middleman.

He said that costs for hauling, processing, packaging and selling have a persistent tendency to rise in recent years "regardless of whether farm prices were rising or falling."

Hamilton said many of the middleman's marketing costs, such as non-farm supplies, taxes and union wage scales are largely independent of farm prices.

As a result, he said, a drop in farm prices "can be, and often is, offset by increases in other costs."

Opinions Today

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court meets today to hand down opinions and orders before taking a two-week recess for opinion writing.

Because the justices were hearing cases all last week, today's business was expected to be brief. The next meeting of the court was scheduled for Dec. 7.

In 1943, American forces captured the Gilbert Islands from Japan.

Walter Rogers Reports

Mail Heavy Concerning TV Quiz Show Investigation

The hearings which were recently concluded concerning the television quiz shows in the Subcommittee on Legislative Oversight, of which I am a Member, resulted in a considerable amount of mail to my office from all over the country. I received correspondence from 29 states, and it would be a close race as to whether California or New York expressed themselves the most. The substance of the correspondence varied to such a degree, I thought you might be interested in some of the reactions throughout the U.S. which were addressed to me. Many of the people who wrote offered helpful suggestions and observations. Some of the correspondents were obviously not aware of the legislative purposes which prompted the hearings. A usual, the most thoughtful and studied comments which came to me on the subject were from Texas and specifically from the 18th Congressional District.

Most of the writers expressed a real concern that a regulatory agency of the government had allowed a situation to develop where by frauds were perpetrated on a public medium belonging to all the people. The expressions varied all the way from one man who advocated my candidacy for the presidency to those who think I am a despicable conniver.

With the thought you might find of interest, here are excerpts from some of the correspondence.

"The TV quiz scandals have exposed a shabby situation and, for one, do not go along with the 'so what' attitude of some smart and cynical people. TV ought to be more than an opportunity for a lot of crumbly little chiselers and petty swindlers to make a dishonest dollar. I hope that Congress will enact some legislation that will restore TV as a medium of entertainment, information and education. Mere legislation against the fakers and cheaters will not do the public or TV much good."

"Why all the fuss about the TV quiz shows? The contestants won money; the viewers were highly entertained, so why the hub-bub?"

"In my opinion Quiz TV Shows are the very best on TV. Reason: They are interesting and entertaining and at the same time informative and instructive, in good taste, and you see new faces (amateurs) not just the same performer singing another song or acting silly. How they are produced is not important."

"PS. Forgot to say why do they put a good show like... on after 11? Working men can't take it staying up so late. If you can't help, can you tell me some one who can?"

"I do not approve of the cheating methods used by the quiz programs, but not too strenuously after all, it was entertainment and most entertainment is li, or part, legdeman and it harms no one but the fool himself. But false advertising is another matter that affects everyone! In past years I have been the victim of so much 'sucker' advertising that I am fast becoming the world's biggest cynic. I don't believe anything I see or hear, anymore. I am always looking for the 'catch' in everything, no matter how sincere it appears. Some one removed the white coats from the quack doctors in medical commercials, now please remove the quackery from ALL advertising."

"These people... have given me many happy hours of entertainment, and many hours of beautiful dreams, also the wonderful knowledge that this—is or is not—a land where miracles could happen to anyone. Is it any of our business that they cribbed? Can you say that you never did I can't, and I was the brightest pupil in my school."

"As a college teacher—I schute my televiewing very closely, but from time to time I will flip the dial to see if there may be something of value coming over the airwaves. Most heartily I applaud your efforts and the aims of our committee on Legislative Oversight to clear out the quiz 'fud' which have had a bad enough effect on our youth and adult population."

Visitors in Washington from the Panhandle last week include Mr. Harold Rector of Amarillo, Md. Messrs. James Witherspoon and Ernest Langley from Hoard.

All were here on business and we appreciated their droppir by the office for a visit.

Shah Sends A 'Kiss Off' Letter

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi has written a letter to former U.S. ambassador Llewellyn Thompson wishing her happiness and granting her $1,000 a week for expenses for life, palace fees disclosed today.

"Whatever steps I took for the good of my people are for the continuance of the democratic constitutional monarchy," he wrote to the empress he divorced in 1948 because she failed to bear him an heir to the throne.

"I wish you luck," he said in a note. "You will always be a place in the thoughts of the people of this country and mine."

Government sources said the former queen now was to marry but that she could never return to Persia.

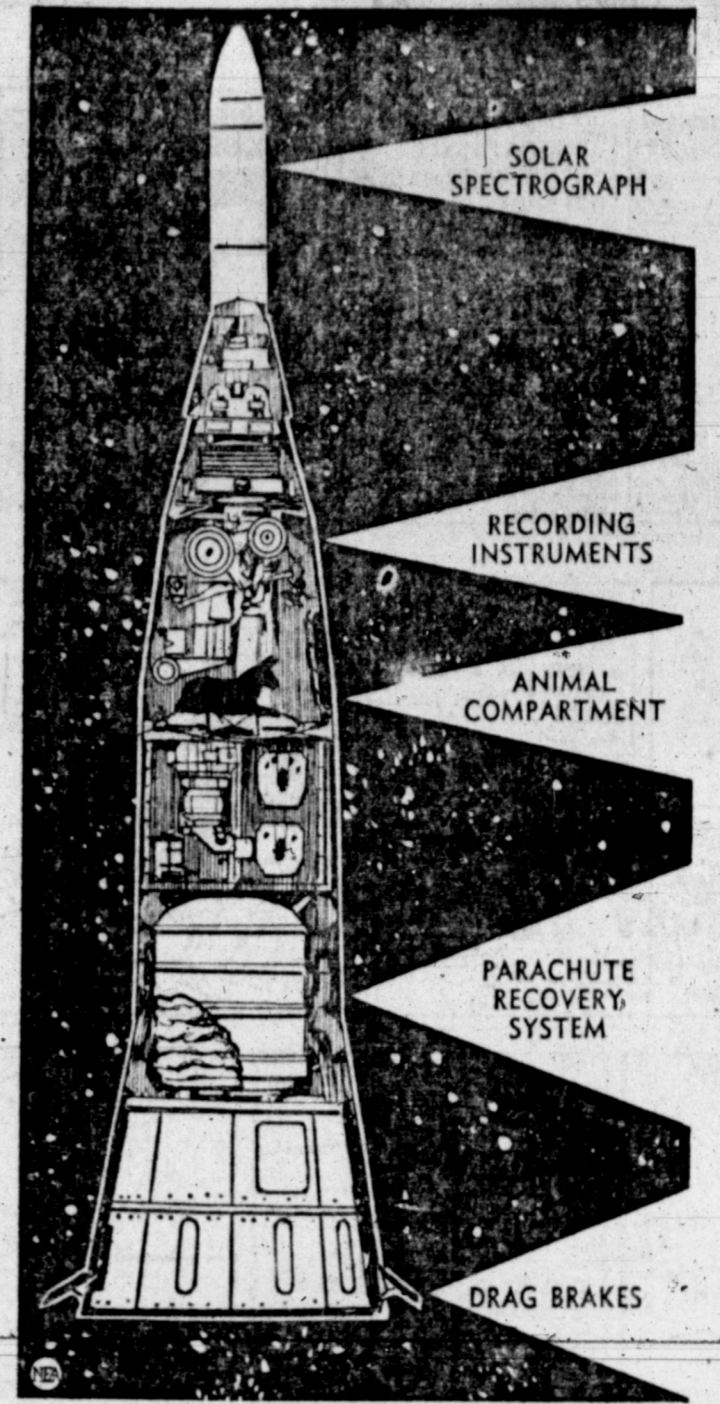

On this date in history:
In 1781, Zachary Taylor 12th president of the U. S. was born.

In 1863, President Abraham Lincoln proclaimed the last day in November as Thanksgiving.

In 1901, Anna Edison Taylor became the first person to power Niagara Falls in a barrel.

In 1944, U. S. Superbombers made their first on Tokyo.

A thought for today: Theek philosopher Socrates said: The life which is unexamined is not worth living."

DOG GONE HIGH—Russia claims to have fired dog-carrying rockets as high as 200 miles and recovered the animals alive. Cutaway drawing above shows one of the rockets the Russians have been using in their biomedical researches and is based on details published in Aviation Week magazine. This one, designated the "A-2," is a one-stage vehicle with an altitude range of about 130 miles. Solar spectrograph (for photographing the sun) is at top. Sealed and pressurized dog compartment is surrounded by instruments. Recovery is by parachute.

Marines To Invade Russia - To Play

By HENRY SHAPIRO
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI)—The United States Marine Corps band will tour Russia and direct air service will open between New York and Moscow next year under a new signed-to-know-you exchange pact getting Saturday.

The 20-page agreement for 1960-61 provides for mutual exchanges in industry, science and education and for a greater flow of Russian tourists to the United States as well as entertainment that will give Russians the smash musical "My Fair Lady" and the United States a glimpse of the Moscow Art Theater.

Soviet culture chief Yuri Zhukov and U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson signed the pact which also calls for:

Joint medical conferences on cancer, heart disease and polio. Reciprocal tours by experts in the automotive, aluminum and aviation industries.

Exchanges of American and Russian teachers.

An exchange of radio and TV broadcasts on non-political topics. Greater exchange of movies.

Exchanges in the fields of sports, agriculture, construction, publishing and literature.

Direct flights between New York and Moscow were to be opened, ending the roundabout method now used on commercial flights which are forced to stop at western European points.

The United States said it eagerly awaited negotiations to arrange details of the New York-Moscow flights.

It was reported the flights might start next summer when Russia had enough TU-114 turbo-prop airliners in service. The largest commercial airliner in the world, the TU-114, can carry 170 passengers, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev flew in one on his trip to the United States last September.

The Marine Corps band in the familiar blue and red-striped dress uniform of the service was expected to visit Russia when President Eisenhower goes next spring. Russians love music and the band was expected to be a smash hit.

"My Fair Lady," already broadcast in part by Radio Moscow, was expected to be sold out just as it was on Broadway.

An American ballet troupe also will tour the Soviet Union. UTT will tour the Soviet Union. UTT will send to the United States its State Symphony Orchestra and the Georgian Folk Dance ensemble in addition to the Moscow Art Theater.

State Department negotiator Frederick T. Merrill hailed the tourist exchange agreement. The current exchange program was "lopsided" in favor of Americans visiting Russia, he said.

Soviet culture chief Zhukov said he planned to fly to London Sunday and then to Paris. Presumably he would investigate the possibility of similar exchange pacts with Britain and France.

The Soviet-American pact was worded so as to leave the possibility of other exchanges besides those already agreed upon.

There were reports that the famed Moscow State Circus might tour the United States if the Americans could come up with a similar attraction to show the Russians.

"Ballets U.S.A.," which was a hit at the Brussels World Fair last year was mentioned as a likely candidate.

The two nations said the exchanges would provide "a further widening and increase in the contacts between the two peoples."

The exchanges should be "conducive to an improvement in the climate of relations between the countries," they said.

Negotiation Seen Feasible

PARIS (UPI)—President Charles de Gaulle declared Saturday it was "necessary that the fighting be stopped" in the five-year-old Algerian rebellion. He said he was sure, that sooner or later "common sense will prevail the rebel vs. DNA d'ns in ETA RDL the rebel camp.

The president, speaking in Alsace, indicated that he considered as a political maneuver the proposal by the Algerian rebel government-in-exile that De Gaulle negotiate a cease-fire with five rebel leaders imprisoned in France.

De Gaulle had quickly dismissed the Rebel move Friday, pointing out that his standing invitation to the rebels for Paris peace talks was directed to active insurgent leaders and not those "out of combat."

"But De Gaulle," apparently undeterred by the rebel move, told audiences on the final day of his Algerian tour that he was confident peace would be reestablished in Algeria.

Speaking at Selestat, near Strasbourg, De Gaulle exhorted the rebels to believe that his invitation to truce talks and his offer of self-determination for Algeria was a sincere and trustworthy project.

"In Algeria, we have found, outlined and pointed out the road which must lead to peace, then to appeasement and finally to reconciliation," De Gaulle declared.

"We have invited all those who, on the other side, fight us to follow us on this road," he added.

"And we have done it in the best possible faith and we continue, we persist loyally to tell: Come, and surely we shall be able to cease fighting."

Thereafter, the French president declared, "the Algerians themselves will determine their destiny."

"This is the only road," De Gaulle added, "and it is not permissible for reasons of ambition and pretention to prolong the tragedy one more day."

Speaking with a group of prominent Alsatians Friday night, De Gaulle was reported to have told them that peace in Algeria "will in any case come before the end of 1960."

Mikoyan Winds Up Mexican Tour Today

MONTERREY, Mexico (UPI)—Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan winds up a four-day industrial northern Mexico today and heads for the oil center of Ciudad Pemex on the south Gulf coast.

Mikoyan flew in Sunday night from Moscow where he offered to sell "all kinds of industrial machinery" to the 70-million-dollar Altos Hornos steel mill, Latin America's largest. He said Mexico could have 10 years to pay for Soviet purchases at 2 per cent interest.

ATLAS

FROM MISSILE TO MAN—An Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile and an Atlas topped by a Big Joe capsule are pictured above. Only shortly after the bomb-carrying ICBM declared ready for troops, another versatile Atlas on a par mission hurled a Big Joe capsule out to sea as a prelude to first manned rocket launching. The nine-foot-long Big Joe closely similar to the Project Mercury capsule that sent a man into orbit, successfully re-entered the atmosphere and was recovered intact.

animal life studies:
"It was a dreadful mistake."

NEW YORK — British Field Marshal Montgomery on generals becoming politicians:
"Generally speaking, I would say that generals are not trained for politics. When generals go into politics, I think they find it a pretty rough game."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Mrs. A. T. Gibbs, 63, on her intention to clamp down on the tobacco-chewing habits of her new 80-year-old husband.
"He's not going to spit all over the house."

SHOOTING CHAMP KILLED

WAUPACA, Wis. (UPI) — The junior champion of the Grand American Trapshoot has been killed in a hunting accident. Authorities said Eugene Durant Jr., 17, of Waukesha, Wis., was struck by a shotgun slug Saturday, the first day of the Wisconsin deer season. The shooting was ruled accidental.

SUGGESTIVE TITLE
CHELMSFORD, England (UPI) — Prisoners in the local jail held their first rehearsal under the usual heavy guard Sunday for a Christmas play entitled "Morning Departure."
