KIWANIS GOVERNOR SAYS

'Free Enterprise' Needs To Be Taught To Youth

Howard Newton, Houston industrialist and governor of the Texas - Oklahoma District of Kiwanis International, told Division VI Kiwanians here last night there is a need to teach free enterprise to today's youth.

The district governor and his wife were honored at a banquet attended by Kiwanians from Division VI in the Coronado Inn Starlight Room.

The Downtown and Top O' Texas Kiwanis Clubs, headed by James McCoy and Ernest Parks, were joint hosts at the affair.

Childress, Clarendon, Wellington, Shamrock, Vega and four clubs from Amarillo were represented at the banquet.

Lt. Gov. Gerald Hall of Vega was master of ceremonies and introduced the district governor.

Newton said Kiwanis International this year is dedicated to the guidance of youth and giving of self.

Teaching our youth about free enterprise and how it operates is so important," Newton said. "Free enterprise is what makes our country so great."

"And the local Kiwanis club members are what makes Kiwanis tick."

Newton also emphasized Kiwanis activities relating to pollution, alcohol and drugs.

Entertainment was furnished by the Pampa High School Stage Band under the direction of Harris Brinson. Pampa's new high school band director, Jeff Doughton, was introduced. Dinner music was by Sue Higdon.

Following his talk, Dist. Gov. Newton was presented with an oil painting by Richard Thompson, Pampa artist. The presentation on behalf of Division VI was made by James A. Hedgecock, president of the Downtown Amarillo Kiwanis Club.

Light Show Fails To 'Catch' UFOs

AUSTIN (UPI) — A giant light display in the hills northwest of Austin failed to attract any "bona fide UFOs" Wednesday night, although UFO watchers at the sight did report seeing a strange meteorite.

Ray Stanford of the Association for the Understanding of Man said the lights were kept on all night in hopes of attracting UFOs.

"We didn't see any UFOs, at least not anything I would call worthy of the name," Stanford said today.

"The only thing that we saw was what I would have interpreted as a meteorite. The object we saw was moving at high speed, and suddenly arched upward and made a half circle," Stanford said. "then resumed its original path."

He said the path resembled the Greek letter Omega. "A meteorite is not supposed to do that, but we interpreted it to mean some type of thermal layer in the atmosphere caused it to do it."

Stanford said his group also had a "UFO detector" that is sensitive to magnetic fields, and sets off a siren if a UFO gets within about a mile of it.

"We can sleep with ease knowing that if one comes around we will be awakened unless it just doesn't have a magnetic field," he said.

Dwight Pryor, president of the Association for the Understanding of Man, said the group hopes to attract UFOs to Central Texas with its lights.

A psychiatrist calls the sightings flights of fantasy, but some people are not so sure.

N. Korea Aids Egypt

By United Press International
North Korean fighter pilots have entered the Middle East fighting on the side of Egypt in the past 24 hours, the Pentagon announced today as Israel and Egypt fought the second day of an epic tank battle in the Sinai Desert which may decide the outcome of the war.

Israel was trying to infiltrate more commandos into Egypt behind the Suez Canal, but the Egyptians claimed to be surrounding them and have given them the choice "to surrender or face destruction."

In Washington, the Defense Department said it believed some 30 North Korean pilots have been operating MIG21s in Egypt since before the new war began on Oct. 6.

The Pentagon said the first engagements between North Korean and Israeli pilots appear to have occurred in the last 24 hours and while some shots were exchanged "there were no planes shot down on either side."

The Egyptians claimed to be surrounding Israeli commandos trying to infiltrate through the Bitter Lakes near the center of the canal and have given them the choice "either to surrender or face destruction."

With the probability that the battlefield issue must be decided before the peace-makers can take over, both sides were claiming victories.

The latest Egyptian communique said Egyptian forces inflicted "severe losses" on the Israelis in fighting which it described as fierce and in depth. These included 12 Israeli planes. It also said the Egyptian navy sank one vessel of an Israeli force attacking Port Said at the northern end of the canal.

Israel said its forces, with artillery and air support, shot down two Egyptian MIGs and two helicopters carrying Egyptian troops into battle.

From the 3 p.m. Egyptian communique, it appeared the Israeli infiltrators were a different force and perhaps reinforcements for the Israeli task force which got across the canal in amphibious tanks on Tuesday to hit missile and antiaircraft sites behind Egyptian lines.

Israel has claimed that force is still operating, while the Egyptians have claimed it was wiped out.

In the daylong fighting Wednesday, Israel claimed to have knocked out up to 100 Egyptian tanks and the Israeli armed forces chief said the battle "may be the turning point" of the war.

Both sides claimed victory. Egypt said it knocked out large numbers of Israeli tanks and armored cars in what the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram described as "an awesome armored clash," the largest battle of the war. It said the fighting continued into the early hours of today.

"It turned the central sector into an inferno," Al-Ahram said. Israeli armed forces chief Lt. Gen. David Elazar told the Israeli nation after Wednesday's fighting. "We are now calling the tune. Our superiority is clear, and things are going well. But ending the war may take time."

With outside reporters barred from both sides of the lines, the details are skimpy but from what emerged, it appeared that the battle could be decisive if it continues. Elazar said it could be the turning point. Al-Ahram said:

"Both sides have thrown hundreds of tanks assisted by whole regiments of armored cars and heavy artillery and in which air force formations and air defense units are taking part."

Israel claimed that a task force it sent across the canal Tuesday was still operating behind Egyptian lines. Egypt claimed it had been wiped out.

While the two sides fought with tanks and planes on the 13th day of the war, it was disclosed that Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin has been in Cairo since Tuesday conferring with President Anwar Sadat, who launched the massive Egyptian army across the 102-mile waterway on Oct. 6 into the Sinai territory occupied by Israel since 1967.

There also were peace contacts between the United States and Russia, trying to preserve their detente, and in Washington Wednesday. President Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met with four Arab foreign ministers in talks described as constructive.

But the United States and Russia were both airlifting from 700 to 800 tons of war material daily to the warring sides—Russia to the Arabs, the United States to Israel. Russia admitted its airlift for the first time today.

The Sinai was the decisive front. Egypt claims to have advanced from eight to 10 miles beyond the canal. Israel said the advance was from three to five miles.

Israeli commandos reported sabotaging Arab ships today at Egyptian naval bases at Port Said on the Mediterranean and Ras Zafarana on the Gulf of Suez. The Beirut newspaper An-Nahar said Israeli frogmen blew up an underwater phone cable linking Lebanon and Europe.

On the relatively quiet northern front, Israeli troops began digging in for a long stay in a 15-by-20-mile slice of Syrian territory seized in the current fighting. "Nobody is going to move back," a senior officer said.

The State Department said the two superpowers had exchanged ideas "on the nature of a possible resolution" to be submitted to the United Nations on ending the conflict.

President Wins Another Round For Tapes Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has won a round with Watergate investigators over possession of the secret White House tape recordings and he is going to the Supreme Court in hopes of winning another.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica dismissed Wednesday the Senate Watergate committee's suit to obtain the tapes and other documents on grounds the court lacked jurisdiction to settle the case.

Almost simultaneously, the White House announced it would appeal the ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox's suit, that Nixon must turn over the tapes for Sirica's inspection.

Both the committee and Cox are seeking the tapes to determine whether former White House Counsel John W. Dean III was telling the truth when he testified that he and Nixon had conversations about a Watergate coverup as early as Sept. 15, 1972.

Sirica differentiated between the two suits to obtain the tapes. Cox's suit, he said, concerned a subpoena issued by a federal grand jury.

"This present case, by contrast, is a civil complaint, and in such actions particularly, jurisdiction is a threshold issue," Sirica said.

He said that Congress had not given federal courts jurisdiction in such cases.

"When it comes to jurisdiction of the federal courts, truly, to paraphrase the scripture, the Congress taketh away," Sirica said in a reference to Job 1:21.

"The case presents a battery of issues including jurisdiction, justiciability, invocation of the declaratory judgment statute, executive privilege, waiver of privilege, validity of the select committee's investigation, and authority of the select committee to subpoena and bring suit against the President," Sirica said.

"Because of its ruling, the court has found it necessary to consider only one question, that being whether the court has jurisdiction to decide the case."

By dismissing it on these grounds, Sirica avoided the constitutional issues the case had raised. He said the committee was free to appeal.

The Court of Appeals in effect sustained Sirica's ruling in the Cox suit in its order last Friday. It gave Nixon five working days to appeal, which would expire on Friday.

In his discussion of the jurisdictional matters, Sirica did assert some presidential authority.

"Regardless of whatever duty the President may owe the select committee as a citizen with evidence in his possession, it is not 'free from doubt' that his official responsibilities require compliance," Sirica said.

"There is nothing in the Constitution, for example, that makes it an official duty of presidents to comply with congressional subpoenas."

"The existence of the tapes was revealed in testimony before the committee July 16 by Federal Aviation Administrator Alexander P. Butterfield, who was White House director of administration at the time of the Dean-Nixon talks.

Police Arrest Theft Suspect

Jeffrey Douglas Kirk, 20, 521 Montague St., was picked up yesterday by Pampa police and sheriff's deputies on a warrant from Baytown, Tex. charging felony theft.

Police Chief John Wilkinson of Baytown, former chief of Police in Pampa, arrived here today to take custody of Kirk.

Wilkinson said the charges against Kirk arose out of an incident in Baytown about a year ago. The formal charges in the case were filed there last week.

City Planning Open House

City officials today were putting the final touches on plans for the "open house" observance scheduled Sunday at Pampa's new $1.4 million water treatment plant.

City Manager Mack Wofford said the public is invited to visit the plant between 2 and 5 p.m. Sunday.

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson will open the program with a short talk at 2 o'clock. Group tours will be conducted all afternoon by plant personnel under the supervision of Tony Anderson, plant superintendent.

The plant is located on Kentucky Ave., a mile and a quarter west of Highland General Hospital.

"The open house observance will be very informal," the city manager said. "We just want the people to see what a fine facility we have."

Absentee Voting Begins Locally

Absentee balloting for the Nov. 6 special election regarding nine proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution began yesterday in Gray County and surrounding counties.

Those wishing to vote absentee in Gray County may do so at the County Clerk's office in the Courthouse between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. between now and Friday, Nov. 2.

Easily the most controversial amendment on the ballot is the proposal which would raise the salaries of state legislators from the present $4,800 per year to $15,000 per year.

Also included in that amendment is a provision calling for annual sessions of the legislature.

City Sending Out 'Christmas Cards'

The City of Pampa is sending out its "Christmas cards" early this year.

Several thousand statements to city taxpayers will go into the mail tomorrow, according to Mrs. Grace Gibson, tax department office manager.

The billings will cover payments due on the 1973 tax roll which totals $52,318,256 in assessed property valuation and a tax levy of $899,873.79.

The deadline for paying 1973 city taxes is Jan. 31. They become delinquent Feb. 1, 1974.

VISITING SPEAKER — State Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo, center, addressed the Pampa Rotary Club yesterday during its noon meeting at Coronado Inn. ## Mitchell Loses Tapes Request

NEW YORK (UPI) — A federal judge today denied a request by former Attorney General John Mitchell for all White House tape recordings and records that may have a bearing on his conspiracy trial.

Judge Lee Gagliardi, however, directed federal prosecutors to indicate to him by next Tuesday whether there are any specific White House tapes involving the government's perspective witnesses.

If there are such records, Gagliardi said, he wants them turned over to him for private study to determine if they are relevant to the issue in the trial scheduled to start Tuesday.

If the government refuses to comply, Gagliardi said, the prospective witnesses would then be barred from testifying at the trial in Manhattan federal court.

Mitchell's co-defendant, former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans, had joined in the defense subpoena for the White House tape recordings and records.

The subpoena called for the records in the period between November 1971 and January 1973.

SEN. SHERMAN SAYS Legislators Need Annual Sessions

That No. 1 proposed amendment to the Texas Constitution on which voters will make a decision Nov. 6 is the most important on the list, State Senator Max Sherman of Amarillo told members of the Pampa Rotary Club at their luncheon yesterday in Coronado Inn.

The state senator said it was the most important not because it increases legislators' pay from $4,800 to $15,000 a year, but because it provides for the state legislature to meet once every year instead of every two years.

"It is very difficult to run the state's business two or more years in advance," Sherman said.

He pointed out that some legislation got through the 1973 session that will seriously affect Cal Farley's Boys Ranch.

"If we met annually we could correct any mistakes that are made," said Sherman. "As it is, it will be January of 1975 before we meet again."

Answering a question on constitutional revision, Senator Sherman said he is hoping it doesn't end up in a political squabble.

"It is hoped," he added, "that our legislators will use high statesmanship. A lot of compromises already have been made."

Touching on the energy crisis, Sherman said Texas is one of the four largest energy producing states in the nation.

"Much of our Texas-produced energy is going out of the state," he said.

A report on the sale of tickets for the Rotary Club World of Travel series showed a total of $6,887 had been received and approximately 1,000 seats sold.

Trivia Contest Slated

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Trivia addicts are stepping out of the smoky, dark corners, exposing themselves for what they are.

The new San Francisco Trivia Society of Upper Battery Street Wednesday announced California's first Grand Trivia Tournament. It will begin Nov. 12 with 60 teams.

For the uninitiated, a trivia fan is devoted to knowing all there is to know about totally insignificant facts—a consuming madness once kept in seclusion lest normal people be sent running.

The true trivia fan sidles up to a fellow addict and says "I've got one for you," meaning queries such as:

"In One Man's Family, who played the part of Teddy?" (Winifred Wolfe).

Or, "What National Football League Hall of Famer played offensive, defensive, punt and place kick?" (Doak Walker).

Or, "What was the name of the silent film in which John Barrymore played Captain Ahab?" (The Sea Beast).

Or, "Which three major league baseball players have palindromes (spelled the same backwards as forwards) surnames?" (Toby Harrah, Dick Nen and Eddy Kazak).

A true trivia fan, of course, would not deign to note the obvious, such as the longest known palindrome, Napoleon's "Able was I ere I saw Elba."

Ron Myers, president of the society, said "We feel there are a lot of closet trivialis. A contest will expose the whole thing, and encourage them to step forward as what they are."

"It is in dark barrooms that the most authentic trivia action takes place. That's where the sporting fans hold forth. The trivia is like bacteria."

Not surprisingly, Myers owns a barroom—the Cargo West, where trivia contests occur nightly.

The Grand Trivia Tournament, he says, will involve 4 person teams of natural enemies—Shell vs. Standard, airline stewardesses vs. pilots, and "gays vs. the police tactical squad." Myers said, "One of the rules is that a contestant must have a drink in front of him at all times."

IN FRENCH EMBASSY Havana Police Rescue Kidnaped Ambassador

MIAMI (UPI) — Havana Radio today credited Premier Fidel Castro with rescuing the Belgian ambassador, held captive in the French Embassy in the Cuban capital by a kidnaper demanding passage to the United States.

The broadcast, monitored in Miami, said the bearded Communist leader "penetrated the embassy to rescue" the ambassador. There were no details, but earlier reports said Castro had personally supervised the kidnaper's capture.

The radio said the French and Belgian ambassadors "expressed solidarity" with Castro's handling of the matter.

Wednesday night, the Foreign Ministry in Brussels said Havana police freed the ambassador earlier in the day by shooting and wounding the kidnaper.

The Foreign Ministry said the ambassador, Jean Somers-hausen, was unharmed in the ordeal. A ministry spokesman said police intervened while the French ambassador, Pierre Anthozion, negotiated Somershausen's release with Cuban authorities.

The spokesman said Anthozion also had been taken as a hostage, but was released when an unidentified member of his staff agreed to take his place.

In Paris, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said the French ambassador was "safe and sound," but there was no word on the fate of his replacement.

The British Embassy in Havana relayed news of Somershausen's release to the Belgian Foreign Ministry, the ministry spokesman said.

He said he had no further details of the action by Cuban police, other than that they freed the Belgian diplomat after shooting and wounding his abductor.

The kidnaper, a Cuban identified as Miguel de la Paz, seized Somershausen Tuesday and demanded to be taken to the United States aboard the ambassador's yacht, the spokesman said.

Somershausen refused and the two men went first to the French Embassy, where Anthozion also was taken hostage, the spokesman said.

The Foreign Ministry said Somershausen, 46, married with one child, is the only Belgian diplomat in Cuba.

VFW Auxiliary To Sell Poppy

Ladies Auxiliary to Pampa Post No. 1657, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will conduct its annual "buddy poppy sale" Friday and Saturday.

"The buddy poppy, made by disabled veterans in veterans hospitals and facilities, seems the most fitting tribute we can pay to those men who gave a portion of their life to the service of their country," Mrs. Jones Seitz, chairman, said.

Proceeds are used to aid disabled and needy veterans in this area as well as in the VA hospital in Amarillo, and to give aid to the widows and orphans of veterans in the VFW National Home at Eaton Rapids, Mich., the only home of its kind in the world. It was founded in 1925.

The VFW has conducted an annual nationwide poppy sale since May, 1924.

Murder Trial For Carrasco Granted Delay

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — The murder trial of reputed narcotics kingpin Fred Gomez Carrasco will be moved as far away from Bexar County as possible—perhaps Lubbock—and will be delayed until at least early next year.

Carrasco, 33, captured during a shootout with San Antonio police at a southside motel July 21, is charged with murder with malice, assault with intent to murder and unlawfully carrying a weapon. The trial will specifically be on charges of murdering Gilberto Escobedo last March.

South Texas police and federal authorities have said Carrasco was the leader of a gang which bought drugs in Mexico and smuggled them across the Rio Grande into the United States. During the intense search for Carrasco the last year, police said he or his gang were suspects in over 40 gangland style murders in the United States, and with dozens more in Mexico.

Carrasco had been scheduled to go on trial next Tuesday in Bexar County, but the pretrial hearing Wednesday changed that to no one's surprise.

District Judge Preston Dial Jr. approved a defense motion to move the trial from Bexar County because, attorneys claimed, excess publicity would have made a fair trial in the area impossible. Then Dial granted a delay of at least 90 days because chief defense counsel James Gillespie was suffering from ulcers and high blood pressure.

"It appears to be some time in January" before the trial can start, Dial said. He did not indicate where he would move the trial, though he did say he would preside wherever it was.

Defense and prosecution attorneys agreed that the change of venue was necessary, and did not appear to be beginning a fight over the location.

"We were hoping for as far away from Bexar County and Southwest Texas as possible," said defense attorney Ruben Montemayor. "Our first choice was Lubbock."

Assistant District Attorney Charles Conaway said the prosecution was also hoping for Lubbock, but would agree to Odessa-Midland or Corpus Christi.

Escobedo was killed gangland style last March in San Antonio. Carrasco, who had previous convictions for murder and possessing narcotics and was wanted for federal parole violations, became a suspect and during the search a $5,000 reward was posted for his capture.

Youth Treated After Accident

IN ECONOMICS, LITERATURE

Nobel Honors Awarded To American, Australian

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Harvard University Prof. Wassily Leontief won the 1973 Nobel Prize for economics today for his "input-output" theory used to predict national economic changes. The Literature Prize was awarded to Australian Patrick White because he "introduced a new continent into literature."

Leontief, 67, won the equivalent of $122,000 for his development of the economic theory that was first used in the United States after World War II to study the effect on the economy of national disarmament and the scrapping of war materials. The same method is used by the Soviet Union for its five-year economic plans and has been employed in more than 50 industrialized nations.

In Cambridge, Mass. Leontief said, "I'm very pleased." He said he had started developing the theory when he first went to Harvard in 1951.

For the coveted literature award, The Academy of Letters cited White "for an epic and psychological art which has introduced a new continent into literature."

The Academy said White made his name with "The Tree of Man" which it described as "an epically broad and psychologically discerning account of a part of Australian social development, in the form of two peoples' long life together and struggle against outward and inward difficulties."

It said his last two books, "The Vivisector" and "Rye of the Storm" were among his greatest feats, "both as to size and to frenzied building up of tension."

The Academy said White, 61, who lives in Sydney, showed "unbroken creative power, an ever deeper restlessness and seeking urge, an onslaught against vital problems that have never ceased to engage him and a wrestling with the language in order to extract all its power and all its nuances to the verge of the unattainable."

White's literary production has failings that belong to a great and bold writing, exceeding as it does different kinds of conventional limits," the Academy's citation said.

"He is the one who, for the first time, has given the continent of Australia an authentic voice that carries across the world, at the same time as his achievement contributes to the development, both artistic and as regards ideas, of contemporary literature," the Academy said.

White, who is probably better known overseas than at home, had been a leading Nobel candidate for many years.

In 1969 the Academy had narrowed down the choice to White or Irish-French playwright Samuel Beckett. In the end the Academy selected Beckett.

The awards to Leontief and White came just two days after the Nobel Peace Prize was given jointly to U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho for their negotiations that resulted in a Vietnam cease-fire accord.

Two members of the Norwegian Nobel Peace Prize committee resigned today in protest against the award to Kissinger and Tho.

Helge Rognlieden, a former Center party representative, told parliament they thought the committee's choice was a serious mistake.

Leontief was cited "for the development of the input-output method and for its application to important economic problems."

Leontief, 67, won the equivalent of $122,000 provided by the Swedish National Bank. The economics prize was not one of the original Nobel prizes and was instituted by the bank in 1968.

The Swedish academy said, "Professor Leontief is the sole and unchallenged creator of the input-output technique. This important innovation has given to economic science an empirically useful method to highlight the general interdependence in the production system of a society."

The input-output analysis describes the interdependence in a production system as a network of deliveries between the various sectors of production. It is used extensively in forecasting and planning for the short run and long run.

The academy said one of its advantages is its use in different types of economic systems—decentralized market economies with mainly private enterprise as well as centrally planned economies dominated by public ownership. Leontief was born in Leningrad, the Soviet Union, on Aug. 5, 1906. He received his Ph.D. in economics in Berlin in 1928 and became professor in economics at Harvard University in 1946. In 1939 he founded the Harvard Economic Research Project, of which he is still a director.

The academy said Leontief outlined his technique in the 1930s and a comprehensive version of the analysis was published in 1941 in the book "The Structure of American Economy 1919-1929." An extended version appeared 10 years later.

In giving an example of the usefulness of the input-output system, the academy said it has proved effective in the analysis of sudden and large changes such as military mobilization.

"The method has also been applied in studies of how cost and price changes are transmitted through various sectors of an economy," the Academy said.

"The method has been extended to include residuals of the production system—smoke, water pollution, scrap and in their processing."

Gasoline Could Cause Fire

As a reminder I would like to mention the four most common causes of fire:

Gasoline is a big cause of fire because in our modern mobile society, most everyone has

Court Upholds Insurance Firm

AUSTIN (UPI)—The Texas Supreme Court Wednesday ruled insurance companies are not liable for mistakes or errors committed by policyholders but only for damages resulting from actual damages.

The court reversed lower court rulings against the Argonaut Southwest Insurance Company and struck down a $5,000 award to Maupin Construction Co.

Maupin was ordered to pay $3,938.50 in another law suit to the owners of Cedarcrest, seven miles west of Austin. The construction firm removed 45,744 cubic yards of borrow material from the property for roadway fills.

Now You Know—

Eskimos live in houses made of earth, and three fourths of them have never seen an igloo, a temporary dwelling used by hunters when traveling.

several uses for it around the home: power mowers, gardening equipment, outboard motors, motor bikes, to name just a few frequent uses for this fuel.

While most of us know that gasoline is very dangerous, we are so used to having it around we sometimes get very careless.

To reawaken everyone to the extreme danger of gasoline consider these facts: gasoline vapor is just as highly flammable as the liquid form. In fact, under certain circumstances it can be far more dangerous.

Let's suppose you are working in your garage, with the door closed, and you spill a gallon of gasoline on the cement floor. Once the gallon of fluid gasoline vaporizes into the air into the closed room, it has the explosive capacity of 600 gallons of gasoline vapor, an equivalent to the force of 83 one-pound sticks of dynamite when ignited.

And, all it takes to ignite the vapor is one small spark.

Gasoline therefore, should always be stored in a safety can made explicitly for his purpose, with double-reinforced seams and automatic release top in case of expansion in warm weather. Gasoline should never be poured or used in any manner for any purpose in a closed area.

And, of course, it should NEVER be stored in a glass container, even temporarily. Aerosols (any pressurized spray can) are also dangerous when not handled and stored properly. They should never be stored in areas adjacent to water heaters, furnaces, or other heat-producing equipment, or in attics. They should never be carried in the family car; both the passenger area and the trunk build up extreme heat during the warm weather months. Aerosols are subject to explosion under these conditions.

In using aerosols in the home, always be sure that you are not smoking or near an open flame of any kind. Be particularly careful when using hair sprays. Also remember, that little electrical shock you get when you walk across the carpet and touch something? That's static electricity, and is usually accompanied by a small spark. Even this can ignite highly volatile sprays and liquids!

Above all, never throw an empty aerosol can into a trash fire or incinerator. They can be as damaging as a bomb when subjected to such extreme heat.

It is best to make it family policy that all can labels are always read for proper instructions on use of the material. Then, those that warn of fire hazard, should always be stored in a well ventilated, cool area in the home.

Families that have children should always keep such items under lock and key until the children are old enough to be taught safe use and handling.

If you are a sportsman, or there is a hunting enthusiast in the family who stores ammunition in the home, the same rules should apply, especially the lock and key storage.

Fire is a wonderful servant of mankind and we could surely never live without it. But, when out of control or carelessly handled, it can be our greatest enemy.

GET IT IN WRITING
NEW YORK (UPI)— Consumers ought to realize that verbal promises or representations do not count legally. Consider the plight of a customer who bought a dishwasher and was assured by the sales person that installation was included in the price.

After the appliance was delivered, the store manager informed her of an added charge for installation. The customer had to pay and could not fall back on the "empty promise made by the salesperson."

By CRAIG PALMER
WASHINGTON (UPI)— A presidential panel has found that health education—providing information and motivation to maintain and improve personal health—is so poorly supported in this country that less than one-fourth of 1 per cent of federal health funds are directed to it, schools often exclude it and state laws sometimes prevent it.

The whole field of health education is fragmented, uneven in effectiveness and lacks any base of operations," the President's Committee on Health Education said after a year-long study.

The panel recommended creation of a National Center for Health Education financed with government and private funds at an annual cost of $15 million to $18 million. The recommendation was not supported unanimously, however, by the 17 panelists, and it caused nearly a full year's delay in public release of the report because the Nixon administration wanted the report to specify how the center would be organized.

Weaknesses Listed
The report said the center would be authorized by Congress but did not suggest who would start the ball rolling for legislation.

President Nixon directed the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to develop an implementation plan by the end of the year. In an economy-minded administration, one justification for increased federal support of health education might be that prevention of illness is important in controlling costs.

in the other areas of our society where you would hope to find something better." The report was presented to Nixon by panel chairman R. Heath Lary, vice chairman of the board of directors of U.S. Steel.

Other highlights of the report:

- Elementary and high school health education either is not provided or is tacked onto other subjects like physical education or biology, or assigned to teachers whose main interest and qualifications are in other fields.

—In many states, some with laws that haven't been changed since the late 1800s, legislation impedes development of effective school health programs.

—What is taught to children is not made meaningful enough to stay with them, such as good eating or non-smoking habits.

—Of the $18.2 billion allocated in 1973 for health and health activities, only $30 million is for specific programs in health education and $14 million more for general programs, or less than one-fourth of 1 per cent. Of the $7.3 billion allocated to other federal agencies for health, even a smaller fraction is spent on health education.

—Most people, 88 per cent according to one survey, look to their doctors or to television commercials for information about health. Yet evidence presented to the committee indicates that physicians are often too busy to do an effective job, and too many TV messages are primarily concerned with product promotion rather than with true consumer health education.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The rally off the summer lows is probably a contratrend rally within an overall move which is likely to go further down," says Timings. Although market breadth has been notable in the recent upsurge, the letter "attributes this to the increased institutionalization of the stock market which appears to have taken place." While a number of stocks in the deeply depressed sector has rallied with the market advance, the Standard & Poor's 500 composite will remain in the 112 to 114 area, it adds.

"We are witnessing even now the demise of what has been a gigantic and unprecedented triple credit boom," according to Blyth Eastman Dillon & Co. Inc. The credit explosion has concentrated on mortgage credit, destined to slow dramatically as the housing boom peaks, installment credit, blunted by the scaling down of consumer demand, and bank credit, bloated by excess borrowing on a number of fronts. As a result, the basic trend of interest rates is down, it adds.

The fading of Watergate, the peaking of interest rates, and a more favorable economic outlook has buoyed investor confidence and created an atmosphere in which a sustained bull market can flourish, according to Paine Webber Jackson & Curtis Inc. But the firm says "the market ran too far too fast" in its recent upsurge, and already there is evidence "of both profit taking and a dampening in trading activity." A low volume pull-back carrying the Dow to the 900 region would provide "base-building for a further advance and an opportunity to continue accumulating common stocks," it adds.

The strong basis for liberal spending which has played a most important part in record sales continues and will be extended into coming months," according to A. W. Zelomek Associates, Inc. Among factors responsible for large outlays are rising employment, a steady climb in salaries and wages, increased dividend payments, and improved agricultural income. "While inflation has eroded a large portion of the gain attained by high economic activity, the public is still better off," it adds.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Recently I spoke at the "Gavel Club" organized by the prisoners at the U.S. Penitentiary at Terre Haute, Indiana. And heard many of them give brief talks. They all surpass the average American clergyman in platform skill! For they follow Toastmaster Club methods!

CASE Y-546: Rev. Simon recently invited me to occupy his Presbyterian pulpit on a Sunday morning.

"We are delighted to welcome Dr. Crane," he said as he introduced me. "Even though he often picks on us clergymen severely."

To which I replied that I only "pick on" those speakers who fail to follow Christ's simple, anecdotal or narrative speech formula.

And when I sit in the audience, listening to a young divinity student, I am really "on his side" and secretly admire any of his bits of platform psychology, even though he may be awkward in their application.

But what irks me is to see men who have occupied pulpits for 25 or 30 years, yet wouldn't even rate a "C" grade in a high school or college class in Public Speaking!

Yet clergymen are being paid for oratory, so they are classed as professionals.

But any professional is supposed to be "good" in his output, even though he doesn't always rate "Superior" or "Very Superior."

For example, if you are called a professional pianist, and are giving a concert where tickets have been sold, the audience has a right to expect reasonable professional skill at the keyboard of that grand piano on the stage.

Yet so-called "professional" preachers will perform as "duds" and put their audience to sleep, fail to use Christ's eye-contact, and maybe never tell a joke or include a relevant case from real life to whet the interest of the congregation.

What is worse, they are often such intellectual snobs that they disdain attending a Toastmaster's Club or enrolling in a Dale Carnegie Course, even when parishioners offer to pay their tuition!

Why? "Because Dale Carnegie didn't have a doctor's degree," I have heard them explain.

Or "I've already had a homiletics course at the Seminary."

RECORDS

Classical

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the most delightful groups recording is the Netherlands Wind Ensemble.

Last year, they happily recorded Richard Strauss' first and last composition for woodwinds. This year there is another fine recording of Strauss for woodwinds, early and late.

Under the direction of Edo de Waart, the group plays Strauss' Suite in B Flat for 13 Wind Instruments (1884) and Sonatina No. 1 in F for Wind Instruments (1943) in a new Philips import (6500 297).

The suite, on side two, shows signs of Brahms but is already Strauss. The Sonatina, with the notation of an older Strauss "From an Invalid's Workshop," looks back on "Capriccio," "The Presentation of the Rose" and "Till Eulenspiegel." Impeccable in performance.

***

Felix Mendelssohn's two violin concertos also are early and late. That in D minor, composed when Mendelssohn was 13, has not been so often recorded.

That in E minor, composed in 1844 three years before his death, is one of the great virtuoso pieces for the violin and has been recorded a corresponding number of times.

Arthur Grumiaux, the fine Belgian violinist, records both beautifully with the New Philharmonia Orchestra under the direction of Jan Krenz in another Philips import (6500 465).

Many of the great pianists have recorded Franz Liszt's two piano concertos. Alfred Brendel does it again, and, as would be expected, very well on another Philips import with the London Philharmonic conducted by Bernard Haitink (6500 374).

To be described in a future column is a major project, Richard Wagner's tetralogy of the Teutonic gods. Der Ring der Nibelungen in a 16-record set, recorded by Karl Bohm at the Bayreuth Festival in 1966/67 (6747 037).

This is, of course, a major undertaking and a major addition to the extant Ring cycles on records.

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER
NEW YORK (UPI) — Critics of rock groups say that usually the bands fall apart because the musicians become disillusioned or yearn for better things and desert the ranks.

It is quite true that gifted rock musicians have a tendency to peel off from a group and either join a new combination or form their own.

But this is nothing new. Back in the 1930s, when the big bands began to break out, musicians jumped from one ensemble to another. It's human nature.

The Beatles stayed together because they were the sensation of their generation. Only personal differences broke them apart. The Rolling Stones also have a great track record.

The Spencer Davis group is a good example of a unit which is able to put broken pieces together. Davis formed his group back in 1960 when the rock music that is so popular today was only germinating.

His British group built up a large following with such musicians as Pete York and Steve and Muff Winwood.

In 1967, when the group was turning out hit after hit, Steve Winwood pulled out to join Traffic. York and Eddie Hardin also left Davis.

In 1969, Davis broke away from amplified sound and established a duo with Alun Davies and later with Peter Jameson. Although their music now rave reviews, it failed to sell.

Now Davis has gone back to amplified sound with a group consisting of York on drums, Hardin on keyboards, Roy Fenwick on lead guitar, Charlie McCracken on bass and Spencer on rhythm and slide guitar and harmonica.

Their new album, "Gluggo," (Vertigo VEL-1015) is a mixture of soft and hard rock. Among the numbers are "Feeling Rude," "Trouble in Mind" and "Catch You on the Rebound."

"Today Gluggo, Tomorrow the World" from a musician's standpoint is the most interesting slice because the group achieves an unusual bagpipe-like effect.

It is almost certain that "A Passion Play" by Jethro Tull (Chrysalis CHR 1040) will be another winner for this great rock group.

Designed for theatrical presentation, the musical follows a story line. And those who want to listen to music alone may be somewhat annoyed by a four-minute verbal piece called "The Story of the Hare Who Lost His Spectacles."

"A Passion Play" is a better effort than "Living in the Past" but in some respects fails to equal the high standards set in "Thick as a Brick," "Aqualung" and "Benefit."

A single was made from a section of "A Passion Play" and it is doing quite well on the trade papers' popularity charts.

Tape Deck — John Mayall's "Moving On" was recorded live at the Whisky AGoGo in Los Angeles slightly more than a year ago and released on an LP recently. Mayall fans who own tape recorders should listen to the open-reel playback of "Moving On" (Polydor M 5036), an Ampex tape release. Ampex tracked the tape at 7 1/2 inches per second, the best speed available on commercial reels.

But that homiletics course either didn't take, or its professor was a dud himself when it came to holding an audience's rapt attention.

Many clergymen also grumble about their low salaries!

Such clergymen deserve low salaries!

For good speakers get high salaries, just as star salesmen draw top commissions.

The average clergymen nowadays would be fired by any automobile agency or life insurance company because of poor sales production.

Check your clergyman to see if he fulfills these tests of a pulpit livewire:

(1) Church attendance is increasing every year, not dwindling.

(2) He gets "conversions" instead of merely receiving transferred members from other churches.

(3) At least within every 3 years he "recruits" a student for the missionary field or for entering the American pulpit ministry!

It would be unfair to criticize the pulpit oratory of clergymen if you had to be "born" with a gift for public speaking, but you do NOT!

Instead, pattern after the known orators and outline their speeches to see how they connect a thrilling address.

Dominant Party Upset By Turkish Elections

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — One of the parties pledged that every man would be allowed four wives and vowed to cover up bikini-clad girls, a platform that won it an unexpected 49 seats in the new national assembly.

"Probably only old men voted for it," scoffed a young voter. The inroad made by the National Salvation party was one of the surprises of the weekend Turkish elections reflected in unofficial final tallies announced.

The Republican Peoples party (RPP) of modern

Turkey's founding fathers in its first national election triumph since 1950 upset the once-dominant Justice party (JP).

The RPP captured 185 seats in the 450-seat National Assembly to 148 for the JP, which held a 224-97 advantage in the last Parliament. The slim margin ruled out a one-party government and former Premier Suleyman Demirel, the JP leader, said he would not join a coalition.

Islamic National Salvationists and the right-wing Democratic party, which won 45 seats.

The element mercury is a liquid which flows so freely that it was named for the fleet-footed messenger of the gods in Roman mythology.

Alanreed HD Member Named Cook This Week

By BOBBYE COMBS
The Alanreed Home Demonstration Club has selected Mrs. Lucille Keller of Alanreed to represent their organization as Cook of the Week.

Mrs. Keller and her husband resided in San Diego, Calif., for 30 years before moving to their residence near Alanreed.

She takes great pleasure in freezing and canning the produce from her husband's garden, and had forgotten just how much better home grown, vine ripened vegetables and fruits tasted.

Mrs. Keller likes to cook a variety of foods, including foreign foods of all kinds. She also likes handicrafts, sewing, decorating her home and club work. She is an avid "weight watcher" and delights in nutritious, but low calorie dishes and recipes that are also tasty.

The Keller's have two grown sons. She has listed some of her favorite recipes, which we think everyone will enjoy.

By LUCILLE KELLER
PORK SUPPER SETS THE MOOD

1 pound boned loin of pork, thinly sliced and cut in 2 inch strips

1/4 pound fresh mushrooms, quartered

2 tablespoons shortening

1 can (or pkg.) of dry onion soup mix

1/2 cup water

1/2 cup diagonally sliced celery

2 teaspoons soy sauce

2 tablespoons cornstarch

1/4 cup sliced water chestnuts

In a skillet, brown pork and mushrooms in shortening. Pour off fat. Add soup mix, water, celery, chestnuts and soy sauce.

Cover, cook over low heat 45 minutes, stirring now and then.

Mix cornstarch and 1/4 cup of water; gradually add to the sauce, stirring until thickened. Serve over rice to four.

FRENCH BREAD

Scald 1/2 cup milk, boil 1 cup water, combine and cool to lukewarm. Break 1 yeast cake into 1/4 cup of water. Add to milk and water mixture with 1 1/2 tbsps. shortening and 1 tbsps. sugar.

Measure into large mixing bowl, 4 cups flour, 2 tps. salt, 1/2 tbsps. sugar. Make a hole in center. Pour into liquid mixture and stir thoroughly, but do not knead. Dough will be soft. Cover and let rise 2 hours in a warm place. Make into two loaves, let rise again. Brush with 1 egg white combined with 1 tbsps. water. Preheat oven to 400 and bake 15 minutes. Reduce to 350 degrees and bake 30 minutes longer.

RUSSIAN SALAD

1 pkg. lime jello (small)

1 cup water (boiling)

1 small pkg. cream cheese

1 cup miniature marshmallows

1 small can crushed pineapple

1/2 cup evaporated milk

1 cup diced bananas

1 tsp. lemon juice

1/2 cup chopped pecans

1/2 cup mayonnaise

Combine gelatin, water, cream cheese and marshmallows. Stir over low heat until dissolved; chill until thickened. Add pineapple, milk, mayonnaise, bananas, lemon juice and nuts. Pour into 2 qt.

MRS. LUCILLE KELLER
Alanreed Cook

mold and chill until firm.

TIKI TUNA
1 1/2 cups (No. 2 or 1 lb., 4 oz. can) pineapple chunks
2 - 7 oz. cans solid white tuna fish
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup sliced water chestnuts
1/4 cup sliced green onions
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 tbsps. soy sauce
1/2 tsp. salt
Drain the pineapple chunks five minutes or more. Drain tuna, break into chunks and combine with pineapple, celery, water chestnuts and onions. Mix together the mayonnaise, soy sauce and salt. Pour over the salad and toss gently.

SCRUMPTIOUS COCONUT PIE
4 eggs, well beaten
1/2 cup self rising flour (regular flour won't do)
1 1/4 cups sugar
1/2 stick of butter or margarine, melted
1 tsp. vanilla extract
1 (6 or 7 oz. can) coconut, preferably Angelflake.
2 cups milk
Combine all ingredients. Mix well and pour into two 9 in. pie pans. Bake at 325 for 30 minutes, or until brown. This pie makes its own crust and is yummy!

BISQUITS FOR BRUNCH
3 cups Bisquick
1 lb. Ownes hot Sausage
1 lb. sharp cheese (cheddar)
Mix together above ingredients until it sticks together. Form into small balls and bake in 350 to 400 degrees oven until golden brown.

US And World Watch Finnish Heart Study

By Gaynor Maddox
Ask any man and he'll probably tell you he fears heart disease. It is our No. 1 killer. Over a million of our citizens die of it every year.

Recognizing this, medical groups have set up rules to help banish the threat of a heart attack for many individuals. These are: go easy on dairy products, use fewer animal fats, check your blood pressure and cut out cigarettes. The American Heart Association and practically every other medical group keep telling individual Americans these facts over and over again. But the appeal has been to the individual and not to any large group urging people to cooperate in creating a different life style as a unit.

But in Finland there has begun a five-year experiment involving 106,000 natives of North Karelia which has a terrifically high heart attack rate. Seeking evidence that many heart attacks can be prevented, the World Health Organization and the Finnish government are sponsoring this group movement.

The people of North Karelia are lumberjacks and farmers and lead a hard physical life. They are not office workers who go home to a large dinner and a few hours sitting in front of a TV afterwards. Yet, their record of heart disease is staggering.

They do, however, get great quantities of highly saturated fat via lavish use of butter and thick cream. But under the new programs, they have started using milk with most of the fat content removed. They are to use less butter, too. They have begun to eat more vegetables, something they were not interested in doing before. Their old-eating pattern, based mainly on dairy and animal fats but few vegetables, was shown by scientific research to be the primary risk factor in the rising occurrence of heart attacks in that part of the world.

This massive movement in Finland to urge a large community to change its way of life, might prompt Americans to look through the new American Heart Association's Cookbook. It contains excellent recipes for good eating while eating right for the heart at the same time. It also supplies good menu for meals that will be safer for heart worriers.

In Finland, registries for heart attacks, stroke and high blood pressure have been set up. Doctors, newspapers, radio and other sources will emphasize publicly the risk factors. Pamphlets are mailed by doctors to opinion leaders such as teachers and union officials. Although the task of changing public taste is staggering, current spot checks indicate much progress has so far been made.

In five years, the government, sponsors and the public itself will know how totally effective their efforts have been. Have they been able to induce the group to stop smoking, decrease cholesterol consumption, reduce high blood pressure. A decrease in the number of heart attacks will be the final answer.

Send leftovers to school

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Dressing up leftovers for a school lunch to eat at home or brown bag to school saves time and money.

For example, leftover chocolate pudding takes on a new taste plus more nourishment when sliced peaches or maraschino cherries are stirred in. Cheese slices and pickle relish revive a meatloaf sandwich and another vegetable added to a bean soup gives it new taste life, too.

Beverages and sandwiches stay fresh when properly packed. For example, insulated bottles keep hot things hot and cold things cold in a hard-to-break container. Sandwiches are easier to eat and stay fresher when cut into sections and wrapped separately.

Sandwiches frozen in advance stay cold until lunchtime or you can keep ingredients cool by spreading them on frozen bread. Never make a sandwich with lettuce and tomato to pack in a lunchbox. Wrap these separately in waxed paper or put in plastic bags. If bread is buttered and filled to the crust then it will not get soggy from moist fillings. Another tip to get the youngsters to expand their eating habits - peel and section citrus fruit and place in sealed container or plastic bag. An unpeeled fruit remains freshest and is easier to eat when cut into wedges and again wrapped properly. Here are a Corny Bean Soup, Cheesy Meatloaf and Cherry Chocolate Pudding for school day eating.

Prosecutors Had Long List Against VP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal prosecutors investigating Spiro T. Agnew were once prepared to seek an indictment against him on as many as 50 counts of bribery, extortion and tax evasion, the Washington Post said Wednesday.

The Post quoted an unidentified source as saying that it was Agnew's knowledge of the Justice Department's feeling there was sufficient evidence to ask for a massive indictment that led Agnew to resign last Wednesday as vice president and plead no-contest to a single tax charge.

Other charges against Agnew were dropped as part of an arrangement where he did not contest a 1967 tax evasion allegation. Judge Walter E. Hoffman placed him on unsupervised probation for three years and fined him $10,000.

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., said he got the impression that President Nixon knew about the investigation against Agnew even before the former vice president did. Goldwater said Agnew and he talked about it as early as last April—some four months before the first news broke that an inquiry by federal prosecutors in Baltimore of Maryland state kickback allegations had involved the former Maryland governor.

"He knew they were after him," Goldwater said in an interview on the CBS-TV Morning News program. He did not elaborate on his view that "I think the President knew about the vice president's troubles probably before the vice president did."

Two Post reporters, Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward, who won several journalism prizes for Watergate disclosures, wrote of the investigation of Agnew that one source told them that "the prosecutors had voluminous corroborative material about the flow of money and meetings" in connection with kickbacks involving Agnew.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The text of a computer printout containing an "important final notice" from a mail order gift house.

"Our records show you have not made any purchases from us for quite some time even though we have sent you our catalogs regularly. Ordinarily, we would remove the West name from our mailing list without notice... but we are giving you one last chance."

The text of the statement responding to the notice:

"Upon advice of my attorneys, and in order to spare the nation the agony of a protracted correspondence between man and computer, I plead nolo contendere.

"Which is to say that without admitting any wrongdoing I shall not challenge the computer's allegation.

He Admits Receipt

"The matter could not be resolved otherwise without a long, divisive and debilitating struggle that would distract my attention from important national problems—to the country's detriment.

"I admit that I have received catalogs from the company named in the computer printout. I further acknowledge that no orders for items listed in the catalogs have been placed by me.

"For the record, however, I categorically deny having solicited the catalogs or promised anything in return. I further state that I was in no way responsible for my name being placed on the mailing list.

"And finally I do assert that my failure to order any merchandise was part of a well-established pattern that existed before the catalogs began arriving.

"Therefore, the computer's attempt to prove ingratitude on my part is invalid.

Charges Effort to Embarrass

"Moreover, I do aver that attaching the 'final notice' to the cover of the company's 1973 Christmas catalog was a deliberate, contrived effort to embarrass me and pressure me into ordering something.

"Its location was such that the notice could easily be read by the postman and by my associates who may have seen it in my mail slot or on my desk.

"The effect was to brand me as an ingrate in the eyes of persons unfamiliar with the true circumstances of my failure to buy anything.

"Thus was I denied the right of privacy that has traditionally existed in communications between man and computer.

Agnew condemned news leaks about the investigation concerning him, contending they were part of a concerted effort within the Justice Department to force him from office. For a time, the Post said, his lawyers felt the leaks were coming from the White House.

The Post also said that President Nixon's counsel J. Fred Buzhardt, played "the dominant role" in getting negotiations going between lawyers for the Justice Department and Agnew, which ultimately led to Agnew's resignation and no-contest plea.

At one point, according to the Post's sources, Buzhardt's actions "led Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson to wonder if he were going to be fired."

Richardson assumed the final responsibility for deciding whether to let the Agnew case go before the Baltimore grand jury. He authorized the inquiry in which the prosecutors, according to the Post, intended to press for a massive indictment until the compromise was reached.

Goldwater said he had talked with Agnew last Friday, two days after his resignation, and found him in a comparatively good mood.

"I was really proud of him... He was naturally concerned about his future, whether he can remain a lawyer in Maryland which has one of the toughest bars in the country," the senator said.

The Maryland Bar is said to be considering disbarment action against Agnew because of his no-contest plea to a tax charge, which Judge Hoffman told Agnew was tantamount to a plea of guilty.

Government Offers Committee Rebozo Records

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government will give a congressional committee all records relating to the denial of a charter to a group trying to compete with a bank owned by President Nixon's close friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, a committee spokesman said Wednesday.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking Committee, had asked Comptroller James E. Smith, head of the agency that regulates national banks, for the entire file plus any letters and records of telephone calls bearing on the case.

Mortimer Fried, a Key Biscayne lawyer and one of the founders of the proposed bank, told CBS correspondent Robert Pierpoint Monday that he believed political influence had caused the charter application to be rejected twice. Smith denied this.

Patman, in a letter to Smith, said news reports "raise very serious questions which I feel must be answered both in the interests of the public and the integrity of the comptroller's office."

"At this point, I do not have any data which would either refute or support the position taken by your office and I am in no way prejudging the case," Patman said.

Pierpoint said in a televised report that the same data on population growth cited as evidence of need for a second bank on the island, which was used by the group competing with Rebozo, was relied on by a group of Rebozo associates to win approval of an application to set up a savings and loan association at Key Biscayne.

Patman asked for "the fullest report possible" on why the bank application was turned down by Smith and his predecessor and why earlier decisions at lower levels in the comptroller's office were reversed.

Television's Radar

tends hurt birds

By VERNON SCOTT HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Gary Burghoff is the oddball corporal Radar in the "M.A.S.H." series who wanders around minding everyone else's business, but off-screen there is nothing weird about the guy.

Gary and his wife, Janet, married a year and a half, live right on the beach at Malibu in a small, two-bedroom cottage with two enormous aviaries. Gary built the aviaries before they met. He lived alone at the beach taking care of injured sea birds. Now this avocation has become an obsession with the young actor and his wife.

Neighbors bring all manner of seagulls, pelicans, arctic loons, herons, mums and terns to the little house. Gary treats their broken legs and wings, mending other hurts, and turns the creatures loose in the topless aviaries. When the birds are well they fly away.

Janet helps restore the birds to health with her expertise as a surgical nurse. She works at Santa Monica Hospital.

The Burghoffs are morning people. Janet must report to surgery at 6 a.m. every morning. Gary isn't much better off. He must arise at the crack of dawn for the long drive from the beach to 20th Century Fox where his show is filmed. He gets a break about once a week when the series shoots on location at a ranch only 15 minutes from his house.

Janet and Gary have furnished their living quarters with modest, knockabout pieces. They are essentially outdoor beach people.

Gary does all the family cooking for a simple reason. According to him Janet is a dreadful cook and doesn't mind admitting to the fact.

While Gary takes great pride in his own culinary exploration he is in no danger of becoming another Julia Child. His best dish is broiled lobster. He's also pretty handy with stuffed trout.

Pets and wildlife are important to Gary. He has purchased 15 acres of land in Malibu canyon where he hopes to build a small house and establish an animal refuge for the fauna of the wild area.

"I operate the clinic for injured birds because it's a way of life with me," he says. "Acting helps provide the money to support my work in this field."

Gary still wants to become a major star; no mistake about that. But he is happiest when he is treating wild creatures. On weekends he devotes almost all his time to the clinic or seeking funds and help from other sources. He works closely with a local veterinarian.

He wears a sloppy uniform on the CBS series and sloppy blue jeans and sandals when he's not working.

Both Gary and Janet are caught up in religion, but not with an organized church group. Janet is studying Yoga.

Much of their social life is involved with other members of the "M.A.S.H." cast, a very close-knit community of actors. Earlier this year the whole gang visited the Burghoffs for a lobster feed.

Some day Gary and Janet hope to raise a family of their own. At the moment they are too preoccupied with caring for their large brood of animals, wild and domestic.

"There's plenty of time for a family," Gary says. "Right now we're both a little too busy doing other things."

Not infrequently Gary provides his own dinner by surf fishing at his front door, often bringing in calico bass weighing more than two pounds. What he doesn't eat he feeds to his flock of recuperating birds.

In addition to the winged boarders, the Burghoffs own a racoon named Timbuctu; two possums, Humperdinck and Priscilla; Shy, a dog; four cats named Jennifer, Ajax, Black Cat and Flame; two mice and seven rabbits.

Mets Square Series At Two Apiece

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets tied the World Series at two games apiece Wednesday night as crippled Rusty Staub, whose shoulder hurts so much he can hardly lift a bat, drove in five runs to beat the Oakland A's 6-1.

Staub blasted a three-run homer and three singles to support the superlative, three-hit pitching of 23-year-old left-hander Jon Matlack, who was lifted after eight innings and now has not surrendered an earned run in 23 innings of post-season pitching.

The four hits by Staub tied the World Series record and his five RBIs were one shy of another mark, and the performance proved that Staub was right in insisting he play despite his injury.

New York's victory was the first game in this series not decided by defensive blunders—as well as the most one-sided to date—and assures the teams' return to the West Coast this weekend for at least one more game.

The fifth game will be played here at 8:30 p.m. EDT Thursday with left-handers Vida Blue and Jerry Koosman the opposing pitchers.

Matlack allowed only three singles, struck out five and walked two before Berra decided to give him an inning's rest and called on Ray Sadecki to pitch the ninth.

Oakland, a team beset by almost unprecedented World Series bickering, filled the bases with two outs in the ninth against Sadecki on singles by Gene Tenace and pinch hitter Deron Johnson and a walk by pinch hitter VIC Davaillo, but Sadecki fanned Bert Campaneris to end it.

Mike Andrews, the second baseman "fired" by owner Charlie Finley for his two costly errors in the second game, returned to the team Wednesday on orders of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn but the A's received another jolt when it was learned Manager Dick Williams will resign after the Series, win or lose.

Andrews got into the game as an eighth-inning pinch hitter and received a standing ovation from the packed crowd and the wives of his teammates, who were seated in a box near the dugout. But Finley just sat there stoically. The wives gave Andrews another pennant-waving salute when he returned to the bench after grounding out.

"It was great, just great," Andrews said, "but my only thought was getting on base."

The Mets made Matlack's task easier when they knocked out Ken Holtzman in the first inning after Staub's homer provided all the runs New York would need.

Charles Finley — Baseball's Baddy

NEW YORK (UPI) — If Charles O. Finley were to send Mike Andrews anywhere—and it certainly seems that way—Mike would be more than welcome in Shea Stadium.

When Andrews pinch-hit for Oakland on Wednesday night, the capacity crowd on hand to root the New York Mets home gave the goat of the second series game an ovation equal to that reserved for only the most favored of Met players.

And joining the Met fans in welcoming Mike were the wives of the Oakland A's players, who squealed their delight while Charles O. sat in stone-faced silence.

Andrews seemed embarrassed by the warmth of his reception and quietly grounded out to third.

"I got the chills," he said, describing his reaction to the two standing ovations he received from the Met fans, one as he came to bat and the other after he grounded out. "I didn't know if it was proper. I should have tipped my hat. I'm sorry about that," said Andrews, whose hand went to his helmet as he stepped into the dugout even though he didn't lift it. "I didn't know if it was proper to tip your hat after grounding out. Tipping your hat is something for guys like Hank Aaron. I just had so many things going through my mind. I was thinking of trying to get a base hit."

Andrews had rejoined the A's Wednesday afternoon, and the first thing he did was explain the bizarre circumstances which led to his being "fired" by Finley.

He maintained Finley pressured him into signing a

Wayne Garrett lined a single to right center on Holtzman's second pitch. Felix Millan got a bunt single on the first pitch to him, and Staub drove Holtzman's seventh pitch of the night to the opposite field, over the left field fence near Oakland's bullpen.

A walk and a single by Jerry Grote finished Holtzman after only one out, but reliever John "Blue Moon" Odom got out of the inning on one pitch, a double play ball hit by Don Hahn.

Oakland went on to make three more double plays in the game, tying the series one-game record of four—it had been accomplished five times previously—but this night, it didn't matter.

Matlack held the A's hitless until the fourth, when they scored their only run after Sal Bando reached on third baseman Garrett's error and came around on Reggie Jackson's single and Gene Tenace's infield out.

He gave up a fifth-inning single to Ray Fosse and an eight-inning hit to Joe Rudi, and permitted only one runner as far as second base, except for the scoring inning.

The Mets meanwhile, got their other three runs in the fourth, the final two of them on a bases-loaded single by Staub.

Singles by Hahn and Bud Harrelson started the inning and Garrett was hit by a pitch to fill the bases. Second baseman Dick Green booted Millan's bouncer to allow the first run and Staub then drove a pitch right for two more.

The appreciative Shea Stadium crowd of 54,817 responded with a warm ovation for Staub, who severely bruised his right shoulder on Oct. 9 when he crashed into the fence after making a brilliant catch in the fourth game of the National League playoffs.

The four hits made Staub the 35th player in history and the second in this Series—Jackson had four in Sunday's marathon—to get that many in a World Series game.

The Pampa Daily News

Pampa To Open District Play

Pampa, sporting a two-game win streak and playing a different brand of football than it did earlier in the season, travels to Amarillo's Dick Bivins Stadium Friday for a 7:30 p.m. game with the Caprock Longhorns in the district opener for both teams. "and it's going to be a battle," says Longhorn coach Ray Basinger.

"Pampa is always our most important game—we're either in it or out of it after we play Pampa," said the Caprock mentor, whose Longhorns lost last year to the Harvesters, 29-14.

Caprock, 3-2 for the season, lost to Odessa Ector in the opener, 12-7, then beat Andrews, 26-0, Canyon, 38-8, Perryton, 42-7 and lost to Lubbock High, 13-3 Friday.

Buddy Williams' Harvesters, 2-3, lost their first three—to Hereford, 12-0; to Dumas, 10-7 and to Perryton, 7-6. Pampa, after one week, then defeated Canyon, 21-7 and Carlsbad, N.M., 21-12.

Both teams are alike in many different aspects. Both have a scrambling quarterback who can also pass exceptionally well—Caprock's David Ream and Pampa's Chuck Quarles. Both also have a set of running backs that has developed into an important part of each school's scoring attack. The Longhorn rushers (besides Ream) are fullback Jerry Kern, tailback Ronald Burton and wingback Jackie Russell. Pampa's running backs are fullback Jack King, tailback Joe Curtis and slotback Chuck Reeves.

Both teams have defenses which aren't accustomed to giving up a lot of points. Caprock has yielded 40 points in its five games, while Pampa has given up 48.

Williams had a lot to say about last week's win over the Carlsbad Cavemen. "We played real well except for some fumbles and individual breakdowns."

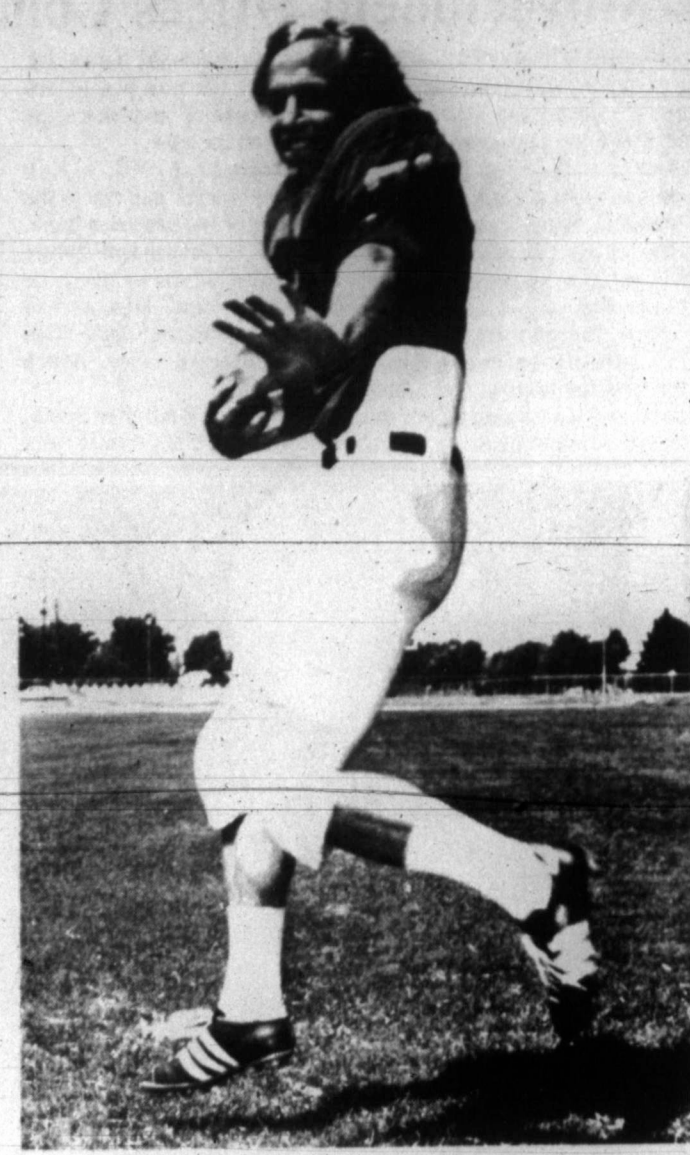

"Our running game looked real good. Both our offensive line and backfield did a good job of execution. We played real well on defense most of the time, and our punt coverage and kicking game looked good. Also our return team did a good job."

Pampa rushed for 308 yards as Curtis gained 102 on 22 attempts and Quarles racked up another 95 on 10 carries. Curtis, Reeves and substitute running back Tim Thornburg each scored on a short run.

Perhaps more impressive than Pampa's rushing offense was the Harvester defense, which picked off three Richard Forrest passes and recovered three fumbles. Safety Rick Leverich intercepted a Forrest pass in the end zone late in the game after Carlsbad had driven to the nine. The interception killed any New Mexico hopes of a comeback.

The Harvester defense also contained breakthrough halfback Frankie Theragood, as the touted rusher was held to 36 yards.

According to Basinger, defense will be the key to winning Friday for both teams.

Kaiser Missing Greats

NAPA, Calif. (UPI) — With the wearying Professional Golfers' Association's 1973 tour drawing to a close, many of the top stars have begun dropping out.

The $150,000 Kaiser International Open, the fifth from the end on the tour trail, is no exception. Of the top eight money winners this year, only two—Johnny Miller, the U.S. Open champion, and Hale Irwin—will be among the 156 pros teeing off today.

Miller, who has pocketed $126,709 this year, is seventh on the list and Irwin eighth.

Among those skipping the Kaiser were Jack Nicklaus, Bruce Crampton, Tom Weiskopf, Lee Trevino, Lanny Wadkins and Billy Casper. Wadkins, winner of the Byron Nelson and USI classics, was a late scratch, pulling out Sunday.

With the absence of the top eight money winners, Miller has been installed as the protournament favorite. His chief challengers are expected to be defending champion George Knudson and Irwin, who finished in a tie for second last year.

The 72-hole tournament will

Ex-Coach To Be Inducted

EASTON, Pa. (UPI) — Former Lafayette coaching great Herb McCracken will be inducted into the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame Saturday during halftime ceremonies at the Lafayette-Bucknell game.

McCracken, a Scarsdale, N.Y., resident, was born in Pittsburgh and starred at Sewickley High School and the University of Pittsburgh. His coaching career began at Allegheny College.

The Most Difficult Thing

"The most difficult thing I ever had to do in my life was sign that piece of paper," admitted Andrews. "I felt that if I didn't sign it, I wouldn't get back with the A's. And after I signed it I felt the same way. As I look back now, I'm sorry I signed but I was in a state where it was difficult not to."

Andrews said as far as he's concerned the incident is over. "I don't want to say anything about Finley. What I want to do is throw a ball and get my arm straightened out."

Andrews' teammates welcomed him back with open arms.

The A's, who also learned that their Manager Dick Williams will quit the team after the Series to take over as the New York Yankees pilot, kidded, as usual, during pregame warmups.

Sal Bando, the team captain, joked about all the turmoil that has surrounded the club in the past few days.

"We heard the Mets are saying if they can keep us happy they got a chance to win."

Six Area Games Scheduled Friday

MILTON BEST
McLean Guard

By PAUL SIMS
The season's half over and neither team has played a district game yet, but Friday's Canadian - Stinnett clash will probably decide who'll be involved in post-season play, as the 1-A opener for both teams highlights this weekend's area high school football action.

Alabama-Tennessee: A Lot On The Line

By United Press International
It was a big game before I played at Alabama and showcases what intercollegiate football is all about.

The speaker was Paul "Bear" Bryant, coach of the Alabama football team, and he was referring to Saturday's Southeastern Conference game between second-ranked Alabama and ninth-ranked Tennessee, which brings together two undefeated-untied clubs in one of the big games of the 1973 season.

"About all you need to say is Alabama versus Tennessee and anyone who knows anything about football realizes this game has been a headliner for a long, long time," says Bryant. "It has all the color, excitement, glamor, etc. that you could ask for in any athletic event."

The regionally televised contest is indeed the highlight of this Saturday's college football schedule, and the outcome is likely to decide the fate of the two schools for the remainder of the season.

Bill Battle, coach of Tennessee, played under Bryant at Alabama in the early 1960's and would like nothing better than to show up his old teacher. A victory by Tennessee would practically guarantee the 31-year-old Battle his first undefeated season as a head coach.

The Vols' chances of defeating the Crimson Tide, especially at Birmingham, Ala., are looked upon as slim, however. Alabama has far more depth than Tennessee and the Tide ranked (Harris) Canadian Wildcats were tied 6-6 last week by Shamrock, a AA Panhandle power, and have won four while not losing. Jerry Elbert's Rattlers are 5-0 and fourth-ranked in the state. Both teams can score (Canadian, 135 points, and Stinnett, 143) and both have been almost immovable defensively. Canadian has given up 12 points for the year, while Stinnett has yielded 28 points in its five games.

Forecasters prior to the season predicted the game would decide 1-A's championship. However, Sanford - Fritch, also in 1-A, has outscored five opponents, 204-33, and is also unbeaten.

Other weekend games on tap are White Deer at Sunray, Wheeler at Valley, McLean at Claude, Lefors at Perryton JV and Follett at Miami. Groom and Perryton are idle.

Canadian at Stinnett
The Wildcats (4-0-1) were tied by unbeaten Shamrock, 6-6, but still possess one of the Panhandle's most potent scoring attacks, averaging over 30 points a contest prior to last week's tie. Canadian is led by halfback Kem Carr, quarterback Lonnie Hines and linebacker Bob Dickinson.

Stinnett (5-0) has won the hard way — downing four AA teams (Panhandle, Dalhart, Phillips and Spearman) and Guyton, Okla. The Rattlers feature an extremely talented quarterback — Dennis Cobb, who made second-team all-state as a defensive halfback two years ago.

A barn burner for sure, but — Canadian by two.

White Deer at Sunray
White Deer (1-4) has been the hard-luck team of 1-A, but potentially Larry Anthony's Bucks are among the strongest in the district. The Bucks just haven't put it all together, but they have to this week because time's going to run out on them. Quarterback Buddy Cummins and two-way lineman Donnie Thurman lead the White Deer attack.

Sunray (2-2-1) tied 1-AA's Stratford, 14-14 last week, and Buddy Sharp's charges have outscored opponents, 89-51 on the year. The season is turning out to be quite a turnaround from last year when the Bobcats were 3-7. They are headed by quarterback Ronnie Jones.

Sunray at home, so — Sunray by seven.

Wheeler at Valley
Jim Bateman's Wheeler Mustangs (1-3-1 and 1-0-1 in 2-A) are another team that has got to put it together or else. White Deer has to win, because Canadian, Stinnett and Sanford - Fritch will pull too far out in front if the Bucks lose a district game. And Wheeler must cope with Memphis and Clarendon — also two of the best A teams in the state. Running back Lewis Britt is a quality football player for the Mustangs.

Valley High (0-6 and 0-3) was winless last year (its first year as a school) and things are pointing to another 1972. The Patriots are led by quarterback Brent Guest and tailback Brian Wheeler.

A sure win for Jim Bateman (maybe) — Wheeler by 15.

McLean at Claude
Still another do-or-die team is McLean (2-3 and 1-1), who was shelled by Memphis, 57-8 last week. McLean has proven it can win — the Tigers beat tough Groom earlier. Bill Nitcholas,

Lefors at Perryton JV
The only unbeaten, untied school in the area, 1-B's Lefors (6-0) has been the surprise team of the Panhandle, downing four Class A teams (Wheeler, McLean, Valley and White Deer) and two junior varsities (Pampa and Canyon). The Pirates, under coach Leonard Tolbert, have been getting consistent running out of Barney Sawyer and Robert Gifford. Other standouts are quarterback Randy Klein, Orville Shook's Miami Warriors (1-3 and 1-0) belted lowly Estelline in Miami's last outing, 64-6, and was idle last week. Miami has been outscored, 111-84, mainly due to inexperience. But Shook says Miami is improving more each game. The Warriors are headed by sophomore tailback Don Ed Howard and end Allan Clark. Follett by 15.

Follett at Miami
The Panthers (3-1-1 and 1-0) have the second-best team in 2-B (eight-man) behind defending state champ Goree and have experience and size to boot. Follett is led by halfback Dana Ehrlich and quarterback Kelly Wynn.

Orville Shook's Miami Warriors (1-3 and 1-0) belted lowly Estelline in Miami's last outing, 64-6, and was idle last week. Miami has been outscored, 111-84, mainly due to inexperience. But Shook says Miami is improving more each game. The Warriors are headed by sophomore tailback Don Ed Howard and end Allan Clark. Follett by 15.

Tigers are paced by hard-running Gary Griffin and guard Milton Best.

Claude (3-3 and 2-1) finished 8-2 last season, losing to Clarendon and Memphis. James Anglin's Mustangs have Greg Forbes returning from that team — an exceptional passer and all-around athlete. Claude also boasts a top-notch linebacker — Red Campbell.

Could go either way, but I'll go with McLean — Tigers by five.

Lefors at Perryton JV

SWC Roundup

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI)—Dickey Morton is not a fellow to go on about things, and to him the Texas-Arkansas clash Saturday "is just another football game."

Baylor was just another game, too, and in that one last week Morton made touchdown runs of 68 and 81 yards on the way to picking up 271 yards in 27 carries, a school single game record. Good enough also to put him in the United Press International backfield of the week.

The outburst also put him into the Southwest Conference rushing lead with an average of 115.4 yards per game and move him to third on the list of all-time Southwest Conference rushers behind Chris Gilbert of Texas and Jim Swink of TCU. Morton already owns the Arkansas career rushing mark, erasing the previous high, typically, on a 68-yard touchdown burst against Iowa State three weeks ago.

"I don't care how many yards I make," Morton said Wednesday. He recalled against Texas as a sophomore he had 70 and Arkansas won. Last year he picked up more than 100 and the Razorbacks lost. "That's why I don't value the rushing performance that much," he said.

"It doesn't do you much good unless you win," said the 175-pound Dallas senior, who will be getting his last crack at the Longhorns in Fayetteville Saturday. Morton said he hadn't thought about that.

"I've been on a lot of teams," he said. "But I've had more fun and the players and coaches on this one are a lot closer than any I've been on." Why? "I don't know. It's hard to say. It's a young team. There's a lot of enthusiasm."

Dick Wants To Quit A's

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dick Williams will be gone as manager of the Oakland A's once the World Series is over, and what happens next should be interesting.

Williams would like to fill the managerial vacancy with the New York Yankees, but there's one little hitch involving his contract with Oakland.

It has two more years to run. Normally, that's not much of a problem because owners and general managers are reluctant to hinder the movement of their managers if they should sense a better opportunity.

It may be a problem for Williams, however, because the man he works for is Charlie Finley and if you haven't figured it out by this time, Charlie Finley is not an easy man to work for.

There's never been any indication Finley and Williams don't get along and Williams always has shown allegiance to his boss. But three years under Finley is a long time and the other night Williams told his players that "no matter how this thing comes out, win or lose, I'm resigning after the World Series is over."

Williams said he would deny the story if it became public, and that's just what he did Wednesday, over and over, but the players say he told them he's leaving.

The Yankees haven't yet approached Williams and there's a pretty good guessing game going of exactly what approach Finley is going to take.

The feisty Oakland owner is just unpredictable enough that he might willingly release Williams from his contract. Or he might take him to court to enforce it.

As for the Yankees, they say simply, "we're still looking for a manager."

"We have made no commitments to anybody," said Gabe Paul, the team's chief executive. "We're looking for a man with experience."

Dick Williams has taken three American League teams to the World Series in his six years as a manager. You have to figure that's experience.

Land-Use Juggernaut

Local governments in the United States began assuming planning and zoning powers late in the 19th Century. Sold on the false notion this was the only way for their towns and cities to develop in an orderly way, property owners by and large have accepted this intrusion into their rights to use a piece of land for whatever purpose they choose. We are reaching a point, however, where land use controls are spinning a web around property rights in a way that surely should cause a reevaluation of this majority view.

City and county governments are yielding to pressure to surrender their planning and zoning powers to regional bodies. Many states have placed the control of development of at least part of their land in the hands of state agencies. Predictably, the federal government is next. Legislation is moving through the 93rd Congress that will make the question of what happens to the vacant lot at the end of your block an issue of national policy.

The proposed Land Use Policy and Planning Assistance Act, which has bipartisan support has the usual innocent outlines of a piece of environmental legislation, with the customary price tag of federal funds. It would distribute $100 million a year to state governments to encourage them to adopt statewide land use policies and see that they are enforced. With that kind of impetus for distant centralized planning and zoning authority, the local role appears doomed, not to mention what might remain of the rights of the individual property owner.

This is the time for citizens to draw back and consider how far they want to go in creating government agencies to hold sway over the use of land. What exactly is the deed to a piece of property going to mean when there is an environmental policeman in a federal uniform. The question is as much a philosophic one as a political one.

The environmentalists argue that land can no longer be considered as only a commodity to be bought, sold and used freely, even within the framework of a community plan. It must be "managed" in the public interest, they say. Are the American people really so irresponsible that they must conjure up a presumably wiser Big Brother to decide how they will use their land?

Our towns and cities are already bowing to the dictates of the state and federal governments to clean up air and water. Those environmental problems, we are told, are too big and too serious — too "regional" — to be left to local action. At the rate we're going, the day will come when we have to apply to the federal government for a building permit.

Your Dollar Blended

A mixer can stir sauces and gravies, mash cooked potatoes, cream sugar and shortening, mix batters, and whip eggs and cream. A blender will chop nuts, cheese, and pieces of vegetable, crumble bread and crackers, puree cooked foods and some fresh fruits and vegetables; blend spreads, dips, dressings, and beverages; and aerate juices.

You may have known all that stuff before and suppose that we are being careless with newsprint. But actually the statement is most revealing. It is a direct quote from an information release GSA 1089, Consumer Product Information Center, General Service Administration, U.S. Government. It was printed at tax payer expense and mailed to hundreds of other publications throughout the country as well. In other words, it shows where the dollar goes that the IRS wrang out of you.

Detente That Haunts

We do not believe the Soviet politicians are solely on the side of the Arabs in the current Mideast encounter, nor are they exclusively on the Israeli side. They are far too sophisticated for such indulgence. The record clearly shows the Kremlin understands the power struggle too well to be faked into a bonafide commitment at this preliminary stage. If past strategems are an index to the present case, the Soviet will have agents in both camps, each doing the respective work of all the belligerents, but following a program laid out in Moscow. The one definite thing we can say at this stage is that, but for the timely arrival of American wheat, corn and soybeans, the Soviet energy would now be devoted more to farming and less to adventurism in the Mideast.

This Is No Repeat Of 6-Day War

By BRUCE BOSSAT
WASHINGTON (NEA) — The differences between this Arab-Israeli war and the 1967 struggle are important to note:

Though the Soviet Union, and this time China as well, are giving open vocal support to the Egyptian-Syrian attack, there appears far less danger than in 1967 of a big-power conflict growing out of this confrontation. At that time, President Johnson used the hot line to Moscow for the first time, to help keep things cool.

Yet in another way the United States position is more difficult. Its natural disposition to approve cease-fire arrangements could in this instance be harmful to Israel, to whose survival as a nation we are committed.

As noted in a prior report, any speedy cease-fire call from the United Nations might certify a new Arab military presence on soil near the Suez in Sinai, and in Syria's Golan Heights — with resulting new uncertainty for Israel.

Ousting the Arabs could be harder this time. Both Egyptian and Syrian armed forces are better equipped, and some accounts say better-trained, in 1967. Furthermore, both in 1956 and 1967 Israel (convinced of imminent Arab invasion and in the latter year harassed by a sea blockade at the entry to the Gulf of Aqaba) mounted pre-emptive strikes. It had the initiative.

This time it was put on the defensive by a surprise Yom Kippur assault. It has added handicap of needing, in the case of the Egyptian action, to move all the way across the forbidding Sinai desert to counterattack.

Israel, with just three million people in a land the size of New Jersey, can never afford a long war tying up its crucial young civilian manpower drawn in as reserves. Its economy would shrivel. Any heavy losses of men and equipment, especially planes, would be painfully damaging.

This danger inevitably puts high strain upon us, since we, while committed to Israel's safety, are anxious as well to avoid over-equipping it and thereby giving substance to professed Arab fears of Israeli expansion. We must supply the sustenance of survival, but no more.

The line is delicate, partly because we long have tried to woo the Arabs by evidences of fairness, more recently because oil-rich Arab lands threaten to limit expanded output as a lever in the Mideast conflict, which would hurt us just when our dependence on imports from these nations is growing.

President Nixon, warned Saudi Arabia, possessor of one-fourth of the Middle East's 600-billion barrel oil reserve, that we will not submit to oil blackmail.

Still, that may be easy talk. Western Europe is almost wholly reliant on Arab oil and could take more. Japan draws from there and also could take more. And where would we get the imports we need increasingly?

Canada plans to cut a fair chunk out of its oil exports to us. Yet in the famous Athabasca oil sands in Alberta, it has reserves as large or larger than in the Mideast. The trouble is development is just beginning and is sure to be costly, what with long, cold winters, necessary experiments in methods of extracting the oil which in some places lies thousands of feet deep.

The Arab threat may never materialize. Iraq never ceased sending oil during the 1967 war. Nevertheless, the situation dramatizes the differences between then and now.

GLOBAL VIEW 'Peace' letdown is hurting Hanoi

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The end of the bombing and the withdrawal of American troops have not eased Hanoi's plan. They may have made it worse. Intensive study of North Vietnamese domestic press and radio reports by Asian researchers indicates Hanoi's economic troubles are growing. Politically, the country is plagued by a nationwide letdown in factories and on collective farms, a reaction to the years of wartime restrictions and production drives.

The government, long able to blame economic problems on the bombing and the war effort, no longer has that excuse for its economic bumbles. Criticism apparently is growing apace. Industrial manpower is dreadfully short. Especially skilled labor. The agricultural labor force is depleted. Discipline is sliding. So is economic morality.

Some cooperatives reportedly keep two sets of production figures, one to conceal the fact they are holding back from the government more than their share of the profits.

Editorials complain industrial and agricultural workers put in only four or five hours a day and waste much time talking, sitting around waiting for materials or looking for missing tools.

Agricultural cooperatives and factory workers alike, these reports say, neglect their official jobs to work on private plots or in other sidelines (moonlighting).

North Vietnamese news accounts lay stress on the amount of bribery and the theft of state supplies. Inefficiency and carelessness go hand in hand. There are reports of waste and misuse of very considerable amount of Soviet reconstruction aid and now reportedly coming into the country. Some reports mention excessive amounts of equipment left to deteriorate in the open.

Economic troubles are apparently increasing pressure in North Vietnam to put top priority on domestic reconstruction and cut down on funds being spent in attempts to take over the South.

The funneling of materials to occupied areas of South Vietnam apparently is being covertly criticized. Key Hanoi leaders have come out for building Socialism in the North as the first priority.

There's also been a shift in political emphasis in the North. Even Communist hardliner Truong Chinh, who for three decades has been arguing that ideological and cultural revolution was more important than, technical development, recently demanded that technical revolution be the main emphasis of the government and country.

There's a new emphasis on importing foreign science and technology. If the Russian experience is a valid example, this could push Hanoi closer to the United States and the West, at least superficially.

Your Health

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What diet for a day would you consider as adequate to provide 70 grams of protein. They say people who drink alcohol daily should get more than 70 or 75 grams.

There are about nine or 10 essential amino acids, the remaining 12 or so are non-essential. But these non-essential ones are manufactured by the liver. Are they not as important to the body as the essential ones? If the liver make non-essential amino acids then we would have to take them in orally, wouldn't we?

DEAR READER — As a guide, about 11 ounces of lean round steak with no visible external fat, raw, contains about 70 grams of protein. Obviously fat beef contains a little less per ounce. As a ball park figure you can consider that three-fourths to one pound of beef contains the needed protein for one day. It is complete protein containing all the essential amino acids.

For ready-to-cook chicken, a pound, including the skin and bones, has about 60 grams of protein. A pound of most fillets of fish contain 70 or 80 grams of complete protein. A pint of whole milk contains about 16 grams of complete protein and a pint of fortified skim milk, about 20 grams. Turkey, ready to cook, has about 60 to 70 grams of protein in a pound weight, including the bones. A pound of creamed cottage cheese has about 60 grams, and a pound of uncreamed cottage cheese, about 70 grams of protein.

Any of these foods are excellent sources of protein. Cereals are also useful, but they contain far less protein per unit of weight than most of the foods listed above.

It is true that you need all of the essential amino acids in sufficient amounts in your diet, but their total amount is far less than the total 70 grams of protein recommended for the diet. The other amino acids are usually included in the proteins found in complete protein foods as those mentioned here.

The liver is critical in the metabolism of proteins, and usually anyone who has liver disease is placed on a high protein diet unless there are complication factors as can occur in a critically ill patient. The main function of the liver, though, is to tear down the amino acids into even smaller chemical units. The amino chemical complex attached to the carbon chain that makes it an amino acid can then be used to build new amino acids. A great deal of protein synthesis actually occurs in the other body cells from the available amino acids. As long as they are functioning normally and there is an adequate supply of amino acids available, protein formation for the body will proceed normally.

I think there is a general unawareness that the body is able to convert proteins or amino acids that it does not need into carbohydrates and fats. Proteins, carbohydrates and fats are all similar in chemical structure, being long chains of carbon atoms.

Mideast War Hurting U.S. Soviet Trade Bill Chances
By Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — The fierce fighting in the Middle East is a long way from Capitol Hill, but it is directly affecting that trade bill President Nixon is strenuously trying to put through Congress.

Outrage and resentment among the legislators is so widespread and furious at Russia's flagrant meddling in the desperate war that it is costing the President crucial support he was counting on, in and out of Congress, to get the kind of measure he wants.

As conceived by him, the Soviets would be the chief beneficiary of this far-reaching legislation.

It was designed not only to promote and finance extensive trade between the U.S. and Russia, but also presumably to further East-West detente in strategically sensitive areas throughout the world — high among them the war-rant Middle East.

With characteristic deviousness and duplicity, the Kremlin rulers are still unctuously bleating detente, while at the same time openly inciting the Arab aggressors and busily airlifting huge amounts of armaments to them. In the ten days since the "surprise" Egypt-Syria assault, the Soviets have poured more than $100 million in combat hardware into the raging conflict — in the opinion of Pentagon experts.

A direct result of this sinister Russian hypocrisy is to very definitely imperil the fate of the President's highly cherished trade bills.

If it isn't killed outright — now a real possibility since the outbreak of the Middle East war — it is certain to be so stringently revised as to be of little or no value to the two-timing Soviet Union.

Already securely sniped into the measure is a sweeping provision barring most favored-nation status to any country restricting emigration.

This is aimed squarely at Russia. While the prohibition applies to all countries, it originated as a direct consequence of Moscow's harsh treatment of its Jewish and other ethnic nationals.

More Shackles
Still slated to be written into the bill is another and in many respects even more important curb.

This is denying government guarantees and credits to U.S. firms proposing to do business in countries that in any way restrict emigration; in other words, not only bar such nations most favored-nation tariff treatment, but also to slam the door on their obtaining vitally essential financing to trade in the U.S.

That is the "real killer" as far as the Kremlin is concerned. It's the hundreds of millions of dollars in credits — from the Export-Import Bank, Commodity Credit Corporation and other U.S. agencies — the Russians are counting on to finance their acquisition of the technology, plants, foodstocks and other supplies they want from the U.S.

Privately, they are willing to forego most favored-nation status if they can wrangle the vast credits they're after.

Strikingly illustrative of the latter's immense size and importance — in the past year the U.S. committed more than $900 million in credits and guarantees through the Export-Import Bank and the Commodity Credit Corporation to build in Russia a giant truck factory, a huge fertilizer complex, and to finance the purchase of textile equipment, other machinery and wheat.

Both the credit and most favored-nations limitations are in the key amendment sponsored by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and widely supported by Republicans and Democrats in both branches of Congress.

In the Senate, the Jackson amendment has 78 co-sponsors; in the House, 273. That is well over a majority in both chambers.

Crucial Battleground
As the trade bill comes before the House, already riven into it is the first of Jackson's momentous limitations — the most favored-nation provision.

That was written into the measure after weeks of tense battling in the secrecy of the House Ways and Means Committee. Reps. Al Ullman, D-Ore., acting chairman in the absence due to illness of Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., and Herman Schneebeli, Pa., ranking Republican, both opposed to Jackson's amendment, tried to scuttle it by various diversionary stratagems.

Unable to get away with that, they finally "compromised" Ullman and Schneebeli "accepted" the most favored-nation limitation, but at the last minute pulled a parliamentary gimmick to block the far more important restriction on credits and guarantees.

They raised a point of order that this provision violated the House's germane rule.

Basis of this extraordinary contention was that legislation of this nature was outside the jurisdiction of the Ways and Means Committee; that only the Banking Committee could act on it.

Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, sponsor of the Jackson amendment in the House, challenged this stand. On a showdown vote, the committee split squarely down the middle — 12 to 12.

Under its rules, Vanik's motion to include the provision was lost. As a consequence of this backstage setback, the next round in this eventful battle will be in the Rules Committee, which is due to clear the way for the legislation to be considered by the House.

Vanik will seek a rule permitting a floor vote on the Ullman-Schneebeli scuttled credits restriction. Outcome of this test is uncertain. Rep. Ray Madden, D-Ind., Rules Committee chairman, and other ranking members of the 15-member committee reportedly favor allowing a House vote on the barred provision.

If such a vote is authorized, overwhelming approval of the Jackson proposal is certain.
