Hundreds demand better cable TV service at hearing

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Hundreds of angry Pampans, displeased with antiquated cable television service from Sammons Communications, turned out to air their complaints at a public hearing Tuesday night at the M.K. Brown Civic Center Heritage Room.

Dr. John Hopper, the city's cable consultant, who is based in Austin, said the heated response from almost 500 citizens at the meeting was unprecedented in the entire nation.

"I think anybody here who has any experience with cable is shocked - absolutely overwhelmed with the turnout," Hopper said.

In spite of Hopper being the chief negotiator for the city for expanded service and channels from Sammons, he took fire from several citizens when he said federal protection of cable companies would make it almost impossible to force Sammons out of business and bring in a new cable operator.

"Write your congressman," Hopper told citizens who complained repeatedly it was unfair that a monopoly such as cable television was not regulated by any governmental body, due to federal legislation in 1984.

Hopper said after the meeting that the intensity of local anger would give the city tremendous leverage in negotiating a new cable contract.

"Believe me, if I could have this kind of turnout in every city, we would clean up the cable television industry," Hopper said. "Things are going to be done here the way the city wants because of the public pressure."

Gary Stills, a regional vice president for Sammons, said that though he knew there were complaints with the company's currently limited offerings, he had no idea how much resentment there was for his company.

"No company likes to hear those types of comments made about them," Stills said. "I've been with (Sammons) 24 years and I've never heard those type of comments made to me. I want to know why."

Stills said it will take time, but that Sammons can restore public confidence with a new franchise that offers at least 40 basic channels, and maybe up to 60, with a fee of $16 to $20 per month.

"You have to blame Sammons Communications," Stills admitted of the current problems. "Is it the management here? Are they not responsive? Has Sammons not been responsive to Pampa's needs? The franchise is up and we want to go forward."

Stills and local cable manager John Mason stayed on the hot seat throughout the hearing. In spite of requests from Mayor Richard Peet that the audience listen silently, cheers of support and applause for teen-agers who wanted their MTV, country music fans who wanted the Nashville Network and retired people who wanted the Discovery Channel broke the evening's tension repeatedly.

Whit White, a senior at Pampa High School, presented Sammons officials with a petition containing, he said, 750 signatures requesting MTV.

Jeannie Ritchie, owner of the City Limits club, said she had gathered approximately 600 signatures for the Nashville Network or Country Music Television recently, but that Sammons officials in Dallas told her it was pointless to mail them in.

"I don't appreciate Sammons telling us what we need and don't need," Ritchie said. "We're not a bunch of bumpkins and we shouldn't be treated like we are."

Larry Stuart, who identified himself as "a former cable subscriber" who had abandoned Sammons in disgust, told commissioners that citizens would support a boycott of Sammons if that was what it took to get the kind of cable system subscribers want.

After the meeting, City Manager Glen Hackler, who commended citi-

Ray Thornton to represent Region XVI in Elementary Principal of Year program

Raymond Thornton, Woodrow Wilson principal, will represent Region XVI as the Texas Elementary Principal of the Year in a state recognition program sponsored by the Texas Elementary Principal and Supervisor's Association.

Thornton was selected by TEPSA's District 16 nominating committee from nominations received from the area membership last fall. Application for the state award went to Austin last month with the winner to be announced at the TEPSA summer conference in June. The Texas Principal of the Year will represent the state for national recognition.

Thornton's nomination packet included 10 letters of endorsement and information addressing his endeavors in the areas of professional development, community involvement, leadership and instructional improvement and change.

District 16's nominating committee letter speaks of Thornton's leadership as a former TEPSA president and his professionalism as principal of Woodrow Wilson.

"He is vitally concerned with the success of all his students and provides the leadership to fulfill this goal," said the letter signed by Dr. Bill Greene, TEPSA president; Donna Clopton, president elect; Doneice Ray and Dale Howard.

"Ray always considers the other person first, never putting his own accomplishments on display," the committee also wrote. "He very quietly and efficiently works to get the job done and recognize others. He is respected in all areas of his community, school and professional groups."

Thornton, who has been principal at Wilson for the past nine years, taught English and American history at Robert E. Lee Junior High School in Pampa before going to Fresno, Calif., to teach for four years in the Humanities Department at West Coast Bible College. He then became headmaster of grades kindergarten through 12 of Pathway School in Savannah, Ga., before returning to Pampa as assistant principal at Pampa Middle School, where he served for three years.

A life member of the Parent Teacher Association, Thornton works closely with the Wilson Booster Club. He is actively involved as a member of the board of the New Life Worship Center and serves on the building committee for that congregation.

He also teaches a class at Clarendon Junior College in Pampa and is involved in community action groups such as Pampa, the All-American City, the Pampa Harvester Booster Club and Pampa Choir Boosters.

Census workers wrap up homeless survey

By ROBERT DVORCHAK
AP National Writer

A government trying to shed light on how many of its citizens live in the shadows wrapped up an unprecedented 14-hour survey today to count the homeless.

Free meals, blankets and parties helped lure the homeless to government workers carrying clipboards and flashlights. But the counters, some of them homeless themselves, also encountered gunfire in Brooklyn, a spring snow in Vermont, robbers in Florida, and the protests of critics and elusive targets everywhere. And many of the homeless fell, once again, between the cracks.

Although results of the homeless census won't be known for months, the Census Bureau declared it a success. "Nationally, the operation went very smoothly," Census Director Barbara Everitt Bryant said at a morning news conference in New York.

Ms. Bryant noted that there were a few spots, including Cleveland and Washington, D.C., where the census workers didn't finish and would return tonight.

Around the nation, some homeless people took comfort in the very fact of being counted.

"It shows that they're starting to recognize us as humans and not the scum of the earth," said Chester Broadwell, 21, a resident of the Waystation shelter in Burlington, Vt.

But in Toledo, Ohio, 28-year-old Robert Allen snubbed U.S. Census officials.

"What are they going to use the numbers for anyway? To tell us there ain't no homeless problem? Hell, I'm a living example that there is a problem," Allen said. "We need jobs, not surveys."

A total of 15,000 enumerators - the federal term for headcounters - were dispatched to seek the name, age, sex, race and marital status of a segment of society that considers itself forgotten.

The $2.7 million effort, the most ambitious ever undertaken to count the homeless, focused on every city of 50,000 or more residents. The tally will be added to the conventional census that begins April 1 as part of the constitutional mandate to count citizens every 10 years.

The homeless were sought out at shelters, missions, flophouses, cheap hotels, bus depots, subway cars, underpasses, bridges, railroad trestles, bank machine chambers, park benches, trash bins and abandoned buildings.

In St. Paul, Minn., census workers waited outside limestone caves along the Mississippi River. Once the domain of bootleggers, they now are frequented by the homeless.

Pampa school trustees give approval toward delinquent tax property sale

By BETH MILLER
Staff Writer

Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees gave its approval Tuesday night paving the way for the advertising of 103 pieces of delinquent tax property for sale by sealed bids.

The city of Pampa and Gray County governing bodies had already given approval for the sealed-bid process. All of the properties have been through a sheriff's sale and have not sold.

Some of them have been through the sheriff's sale as much as two years ago, David McKinney, building official with the city of Pampa, said Tuesday.

City Manager Glen Hackler had said earlier that the city, which holds the properties in trust for the three governmental entities, had researched alternatives available to returning the property to the tax rolls.

According to a letter from Hackler to Superintendent Harry Griffith, the city has sold 34 of the initial 93 parcels of property obtained in the summer of 1988. An additional 44 parcels were acquired through other sheriff's sales, bringing the total to 103.

Each of the governing bodies was given an opportunity to review the files to see if there were any pieces of property that could benefit them.

The city, as trustee of the properties, will now advertise for the sealed bidding of the property with a minimum $100 bid. Anyone who purchases a piece of property through the process has 90 days from the award of the bid to "clean up" the property to a "broom-clean" condition before a deed will be granted, according to the rules established.

The entities hope the plan will return a large amount of the properties to the tax rolls, which will reduce the maintenance and liability to the taxing entities and help beautification efforts, Hackler said.

In unrelated action, the board unanimously approved the competency-based high school diploma. Amarillo College will administer the program.

To be eligible for the program, a person must be at 17 years old or older, withdrawn from school for two consecutive semesters, perform at a ninth-grade level on reading writing and math skills, and have been in the PISD (grades 9-12) for at least one year.

Twenty-two credits must be earned by the person at Amarillo College. A general high school diploma will be awarded to each student who completes the program and who has demonstrated mastery of the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills. The diploma will be awarded by PISD.

The program will not cost PISD any money, but the students will have to pay tuition. PISD would be required to write a letter to Amarillo College verifying that the student did attend PISD for the required amount of time.

Griffith said the program offers another alternative for youth and others to receive a regular high school diploma.

In other business, the Board:

- Heard from Kathryn Thurman, who spoke in favor of Channel One, a free satellite news service, in the high school.

The service provides commercials as well as news.

Thurman said she has a son in high school and urged the school board to consider putting Channel One in the high school. "It seems to me the satellite system turned down is going to be the ultimate teaching tool," Thurman said. "With governments changing daily, we can't not have it. I feel like we need this satellite system."

She said in the future taxpayers may have to buy such a system, and while it is free the school district should take advantage of it. "It seems silly to pay taxes on something when we can have it for free."

"As far as kids not wanting to watch news, they don't want to be in school ... they don't want to eat vegetables ... But they have to know about the world."

Thurman said she understood Channel One was at the middle school and "If it's not good for high school, how could it be good for middle school students?"

Twenty-three high school teachers signed a list of concerns about Channel One that were turned over to administrators in February.

At that time, Principal Daniel Coward said the high school would not have the program because of concern expressed by teachers and students.

- Recognized sixth-, seventh- and eighth-grade students who recently competed in the Texas Mathematics League Math Contest.

- Recognized DECA students for outstanding performance in recent competitions and instructor Donna Crow for being selected as having one of the two best DECA programs in the state of Texas.

- Recognized April as National School Library Media Month.

- Approved minutes of the regular March 5 meeting and financial statements for February.

- Unanimously approved the adoption of the textbooks for the 1990-91 school year as recommended by the Textbook Committee, which consisted of Dr. Griffith, Anne McAnelly, Gail Cole, Bill Potts, Suzanne Nave, Miriam Lynch, Gaylene Skaggs, Sandra Walsh, Mary Helen Ellis, W.R. Wilson, Sue Thornton, Pamela Bagley, and Raquel Navarette.

- Commended Pat Bagley, chief appraiser of the Gray County Appraisal District, for the Appraisal District's outstanding audit for 1989.

- Unanimously approved the sale of property at 530 Perry for $2,000. The PISD was the final entity that had to approve the sale of the property.

- Unanimously approved the release of bid documents for two 28-station networked computer labs. The bids are for integrated computer math labs at two elementary schools - Wilson and Lamar, Griffith said. This will complete the initial installation of computer labs at the elementary schools as called for in the Pampa 2000 Technology Task Force Report, he said.

- Took no action on bids received for the administrative computer system. Griffith recommended the action be tabled until a later meeting of the board.

- Heard from Cameron Monroe, an account executive with Southwestern-Bell Telephone in Amarillo, about the Plexar II telephone system.

Griffith said the plan, which does not require board

City Commission OKs golf cart leasing

Pampa city commissioners agreed Tuesday night to spend $108,960 over the next three years on a lease/purchase agreement for golf carts for the new municipal links, scheduled to open this spring.

That action came during a special session at the M.K. Brown Civic Center Green Room.

Commissioners awarded the bid to Easy Go/Texton of Lubbock, though Associated Golf Carts of Hurst had the lowest bid.

City Manager Glen Hackler and members of his staff said that during checks on Associated's references, they found the company had problems providing adequate parts and service in a timely manner.

City Manager Glen Hackler said Easy Go/Texton had the lowest responsible bid.

Income generated by the golf course, recently named Hidden Hills, will be used to pay for the carts.

In other business, commissioners gave final approval for an election order for May 5 on the issue of zens for their support, said a boycott might indeed be supported if Sammons refused to be reasonable in upcoming negotiations over a new franchise.

"Tell the citizens to rest assured their comments were certainly taken very seriously and will be used to their fullest extent in negotiations with Sammons," Hackler said.

To jeering audience members who yelled, "Then why are we here?" when told it was unlikely Sammons could be replaced with another cable company, Hackler said their discontent was providing leverage the city would use in getting a better cable system from Sammons.

Hopper said because the previous franchise agreement with Sammons was so lax, it would be hard, even in court, to prove the cable company had not fulfilled their obligation to the city.

Mayor Peet received cheers when he told the audience the present City Commission intended to be "pit bulls" in their watchdog efforts toward Sammons from now on.

Dawson Orr, an assistant superintendent with the Pampa public school system, said he was speaking for the district and Clarendon College when he asked Sammons to provide an educational access channel as part of a rebuilt system.

Carl Hills, who said he owns four homes in four different cities, said Sammons has "by far the worst service and fewest channels" for the most money of any place he is familiar with.

Only one speaker, James Cook, gave Sammons good marks. He received a cold reception from the crowd when he said he liked the current number of channels on the basic system, 17 if the television is cable ready, 12 if not.

"I can only watch one channel at a time," Cook said. "Why do I need all those other channels?" He added that all he wanted from Sammons were more Westerns.

Teen-ager White countered Cook with "not everybody is like you," and said those who were not pleased with current offerings deserved having their needs met as well. Again the crowd responded with cheers.

Local Hispanics complained that while 10 percent of the Pampa population speaks Spanish as a primary language, there is not one channel for them on the present system.

Other requests included ending interference from an oil well's electric lines on channels 4 and 12, stopping bleed-over from Coronado Hospital pagers on HBO and the addition of pay-per-view options and a Christian channel.

During closing remarks, commissioners said they recognized their mandate to pressure Sammons for a state-of-the-art system that would carry the community into the 21st century.

Several said they favored suggestions by citizens that they only agree to the shortest franchise contract possible.

One bright spot for Sammons did show up during the 2 1/2 hour meeting. Local Sammons employees were largely praised for their courtesy and promptness.

Larry Haddock said that while the cable company's system was "an embarrassment," he was pleased with the response he had received from their employees.

He also pointed out he was aware that some citizens were venting their frustrations with the Sammons corporation on local employees, which he termed unfair.

"If they are rude, it could be that we are being rude first," he said.

Hackler and Sammons' Stills said negotiations between the city and cable company would now get under way seriously, with both sides aware that anything less than a top-notch system could mean a full-scale revolt by local subscribers.

Oil officials say spill cleanups hamper industry

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH (AP) - Several of the country's leading oil and gas companies say oil spills and a nationwide drive to clean up the environment have handcuffed industry attempts to increase production.

"In California, we're involved in a partnership that has invested more than $2 billion in an offshore oil field," W.W. Allen, a senior vice president for Phillips Petroleum Co., told the Texas Railroad Commission at an industry hearing Tuesday.

"We've taken steps to make it one of the most environmentally safe oil and gas projects ever undertaken on federal land. But we still can't get the permits from local authorities to start production," Allen said.

Officials from more than 25 Texas-based oil and gas companies, including Mobil Exploration & Producing U.S. Inc., Exxon Co. U.S.A., Phillips Petroleum Co. and ARCO Oil & Gas Co., testified before the Texas Railroad Commission Tuesday at the annual state of the industry hearing.

Oil and gas leaders aired concerns about gas proration rules, a shortage of production and reserves in America and an increasing dependency by the U.S. on oil and gas imports.

Some industry leaders said oil and gas may be falling prey to over-regulation on environmental issues.

"We must monitor closely, federal and state environmental initiatives to prevent 'overkill' through costly and unrealistic regulations for protecting the environment," said Glenn S. Brant, president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

"A real danger exists in the current era of mass environmental hysteria which is sweeping the nation," he said.

S.F. Goldman, general manager of Exxon Co., U.S.A., lamented last year's massive oil spill off the coast of Alaska, the nation's largest, acknowledging the accident created new grounds for attacks on the industry by environmentalists.

"We have become a symbol of protest for environmentalists," Goldman said. "But I want to assure you Exxon has shown, and will continue to show, leadership in taking responsibility for such a situation."

David F. Work, vice president of Amoco Production Co., said tax breaks and other incentives are needed to increase oil and gas production.

Without them, drillers will leave the United States to set up exploration and the country's reliance on foreign imports will continue to rise.

"Our industry faces the inescapable fact of significantly reduced exploration and production opportunities in Texas," Work said.

"Compared with frontier areas overseas, which have a much greater potential for large discoveries, this country is becoming a less attractive target for exploration and production spending," he said.

Industry reports show U.S. crude oil imports increased last year by 700,000 barrels per day over 1988.

Officials were split on proposed revisions to several natural gas proration rules.

The rules help regulate against waste, protect property rights of owners in commonly owned pools of fuel and prevent discriminatory behavior of purchasers who have monopoly power.

NASA to consider rescue for stranded satellite

WASHINGTON (AP) - NASA will talk with aerospace company officials Thursday about sending astronauts to rescue a $157 million communications satellite stranded in space by a miswired Titan 3 rocket.

The Intelsat 6 satellite is whirling around Earth at an altitude of 276 miles - about 22,000 miles lower than it should be to do its job.

"The design was wrong," said Judy Stowell, a spokeswoman for Martin Marietta Corp., which built the rocket. "Our analysis shows an engineering design error caused the vehicle to be wired improperly."

As a result, after the Titan was launched on March 14, the satellite didn't separate automatically as it was supposed to. When engineers sent a separation signal, a small rocket that was to boost the satellite to its duty station stayed with the spent Titan and left the satellite marooned.

A Martin Marietta spokesman was quoted by the Denver Post as saying that the Titan had been wired to launch two satellites and that the separation signal went to a location where there was none. But Ms. Stowell said that explanation was premature and that two committees were investigating the failure.

While Martin Marietta searched for the cause, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration scheduled its meeting at the Johnson Space Center in Houston with representatives of Intelsat, owner of the satellite, and Hughes Aircraft, its builder.

Intelsat, a 118-nation consortium, did not insure the satellite, which was to have gone into service over the Atlantic Ocean. A spokesman, Tony Trujillo, said it was the most sophisticated communications satellite ever built, capable of carrying 120,000 telephone calls simultaneously.

Hi-Land Christian plans evening of gospel music

Hi-Land Christian Church, 1615 N. Banks, will be having an evening of gospel music at 7 p.m. today at the church.

Larry Turner, formerly lead singer with The Lads and well known by many in the Pampa area, will be bringing the program, "Exalting a Mighty God!"

Turner's program is a mixture of old-time favorites and contemporary Christian music designed to meet the worship needs of all ages.

Admission is free to the public, and a free-will offering will be received.

Victims of bowling alley shootings return to scene for TV show

By SUZANNE GAMBOA
Associated Press Writer

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Ida Holguin's hair has just begun to grow back, she has relearned how to walk, three bullets remain in her body and she is haunted by the faces of two gunmen.

Mrs. Holguin is one of three people who survived last month's brutal bowling alley shootings that left four people, including three children, dead.

She returned to the scene of the shootings, Las Cruces Bowl lanes, on Tuesday to tell her story for a reenactment of the crime, which will be aired this season on NBC-TV's Unsolved Mysteries. It was the first time she spoke publicly about the slayings.

On Thursday, doctors plan to remove a bullet from Mrs. Holguin's arm. The one in her shoulder and half of one in her brain will remain. Doctors say it would be more dangerous to remove them.

"I can't understand why they (the gunmen) had to shoot," she said. "They already had the money. Why did they shoot?"

According to police, two men herded the victims into an office, forced them to lay down and shot them in the back of the head. They started a fire to cover up the crime and fled with $5,000.

Steve Teran, 26; his stepdaughter Paula Holguin, 6; daughter Valerie Teran, 2, and Amy Houser, 13, were killed. Also wounded were the owner's daughter Stephanie Senac, 34, and her daughter Melissa, 12.

Police, stumped in the case, turned to Unsolved Mysteries, in hopes that one of the show's 30 million viewers in the United States and Canada might know the identity of the gunmen.

Teran's widow, Audrey, also went to the bowling alley Tuesday,

Police released new sketches of two men believed responsible for the bowling alley shootings of seven people in Las Cruces, N.M., last month.

but broke down soon after she arrived.

Police now believe Teran and his two children walked into the bowling alley while the crime was in progress.

Mrs. Holguin said she had already been shot when Teran, who also worked at the bowling alley, entered with his two daughters.

"He said, 'Oh my God! No!' I recognized his voice," Mrs. Holguin said.

Even though she had been shot she was still conscious, she said.

"I was coming and going, coming and going. I felt myself drowning. I was drowning in my own blood, drowning in my own blood," she said.

"After the second bullet, I just started praying. I prayed hard," she said.

Mrs. Holguin said she realized she would die as the gunmen shot the other victims.

"I heard Melissa scream. I started getting really scared. I started thinking those guys are going to kill us. I don't think they're just going to take the money."

The wounds left her unable to walk, her vision is blurry and her coordination is poor.

The shootings have changed her in other ways. She said she is less outgoing and less trusting.

"They (the gunmen) took a lot from me, because I don't feel the same. I'm just not the same person," she said.

Raymond Holguin, her husband of 16 years, said he has given up a second job because he doesn't want to leave his wife alone. The two both previously worked two jobs each. The family's income is supplemented by donations but Mrs. Holguin said they have been forced to give up at least $700 a month income.

Funds for the victims were set up at the Roman Catholic Diocese of Las Cruces, First National Bank and Dona Ana Savings and Loan to help the victims pay for funeral and hospital costs.

Singer Estefan injured in crash

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — Singer Gloria Estefan was in stable condition today after suffering a broken vertebra when a truck ran into her band's bus on a snow-covered highway in the Pocono Mountains, authorities said.

"The potential is that she'll be fine," Dr. William Pfeifer, a trauma surgeon at Community Medical Center, said Tuesday.

He refused to say if surgery was planned.

Among the well-wishers who called the hospital were Dick Clark of American Bandstand fame, and a representative of the White House, where Estefan and her husband met Monday with President Bush to discuss her anti-drug work.

Estefan, the 32-year-old star of the pop group Miami Sound Machine, was listed in stable condition early today at the hospital.

Five other people and the truck driver were treated at the hospital and four were later released. They included the singer's husband, Emilio Estefan Jr., 37, who suffered head and hand injuries, and their 9-year-old son, Nayib, who suffered a neck injury.

Estefan's personal assistant, Barbara Arencibia, 25, was in stable condition with a back injury, the hospital said.

The group was headed to Syracuse, N.Y., to join the rest of the band for a Tuesday night concert. The accident occurred about noon on westbound Interstate 380 near Tobyhanna in eastern Pennsylvania.

"The road was wet and snow-covered," said Trooper Joseph Kearney, the second officer on the scene. "It was light snow at that time and slippery. Traffic had stopped."

"He (the truck driver) came up on them and was unable to stop. ... He was unable to stop and he should have been. That's the bottom line."

Bolin medical expense fund started

A fund is being started to cover funeral and medical expenses for Carmella Jo Bolin, 24, who died Tuesday.

Friends said the family has no insurance to cover the medical expenses, which included a stay in the intensive care unit during her hospitalization.

Donations can be made at the First National Bank for the Carmella Jo Bolin Fund or may be dropped off at the Coney Island Restaurant, where she had been employed since 1982.

Mrs. Bolin was a lifelong resident of Pampa. She attended Pampa schools and was a Catholic.

House committee rejects Senate plan, OKs $450 million for school finance

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House is scheduled to take up a $450 million school finance reform bill Thursday, after its Public Education Committee rejected a Senate bill with a $1.2 billion price tag for next school year.

The committee substituted its measure for the Senate bill on a 6-1 vote Tuesday, with Rep. Alan Schoolcraft, R-Universal City, voting against it.

But a sponsor of the House measure, Rep. Kent Grusendorf, said he voted for it in committee only to get it to the floor, where he plans to introduce his own substitute.

"There's too many unknowns" concerning the future cost of the House measure, as it was amended in committee, said Grusendorf, R-Arlington.

Another bill sponsor, Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, said the bill provides the equity that the Texas Supreme Court said was needed when it threw out the current system.

"I think that it would finally say that the quality of education for any school child in the state of Texas is not going to be a function of where they live," said Ms. Glossbrenner, D-Alice, head of the Public Education Committee.

Lawmakers are working in special session to answer the Texas Supreme Court's ruling that the school finance system is unconstitutional because of disparities between property-rich and poor school districts. The $13.5 billion-a-year public school system relies on a combination of state aid, local property taxes and some federal funds.

The bill finally approved by the House likely will end up in a conference committee with the Senate measure, so lawmakers can try to work out differences.

"If everything goes right, we could pass an education bill" to Gov. Bill Clements before the special session ends at midnight March 28, House Speaker Gib Lewis said.

If a tax increase is required to pay for the measure, Lewis said, "We'll have to be back here week after next, and take that issue up." That would require a second special session, which only the governor has the authority to call.

Clements, who has promised to veto any new taxes for court-ordered public school finance reform, said of Lewis' statement, "I never heard of such a thing. I think that's mostly just conversation."

A bill spending no more than about $250 million in the 1990-91 school year would be acceptable, Clements said, because that amount wouldn't require a tax increase.

But Glossbrenner said Texans are willing to spend more money if they can be sure children are getting a good education. The House and Senate measures, besides calling for additional money and a more equitable distribution of funds, include provisions designed to make educators more accountable for the job they do.

"I believe that the people of this state want, and are willing to pay for, a quality education system," Glossbrenner said.

Six metropolitan chambers of commerce — Austin, Corpus Christi, Dallas, El Paso, Fort Worth and San Antonio — said they would support spending more state money to equalize school funding, if necessary, but only if major changes are made to raise education standards.

"Quite simply, the economic health of our state and the quality of life in our communities rests heavily on the successful restructuring of our education system," said John Crawford, chairman of the Metropolitan Chambers Education Task Force and vice chairman of public affairs for the Greater Dallas Chamber.

Judicial selection issue stalled in special session

AUSTIN (AP) — Judicial selection — one of the two reasons Gov. Bill Clements called lawmakers into a special legislative session — has become the lost issue.

"Trying to ignite enthusiasm about judicial reform is like trying to set Lake Austin on fire," Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, and chairman of a Senate committee considering several judicial proposals, said Tuesday.

With one week left in the 30-day session, lawmakers have yet to pass a bill out of committee to address a federal court decision that the current method of electing judges in nine urban counties violates the Voting Rights Act by diluting minority voting strength.

House Speaker Gib Lewis also appears ready to throw in the towel and tackle the issue in another special session.

After meeting Tuesday with Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said, "It's going to be very difficult to get a judicial selection bill passed this session."

But black and Hispanic lawmakers said they have a plan that will solve the problem and they blamed Clements for the impasse.

When asked how lawmakers can change Clements' mind, state Rep. Orlando Garcia, D-San Antonio, said, "That assumes he has a mind."

Clements called the Legislature into session for judicial and public school reform.

But so far, public school issues have taken center stage. "Public education is ahead of it on the agenda," Montford said.

The Black and Mexican American legislative caucuses said their proposal would serve as a temporary solution. The plan is similar to one offered by U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton except it maintains partisan elections.

Under the proposal, state district court candidates in Harris, Dallas, Tarrant and Bexar counties would run from the same single member districts as do state representatives.

In Jefferson, Ector, Lubbock and Midland counties, the candidates would run from commissioners court precincts. Candidates in Travis County would run from justice of the peace precincts.

State Rep. Larry Evans, D-Houston, and chairman of the Black Legislative Caucus, said the bill is supported by the plaintiffs in the judicial selection lawsuit, the Texas Democratic Party and Texas Conference of Black Mayors.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political graft from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Federal agencies should be labeled

This month, Secretary of Health and Human Services Louis W. Sullivan announced that his agency planned to impose new food guidelines beginning next year. They would be enforced by the Food and Drug Administration and would replace old guidelines imposed 17 years ago. But the increase in private food guidelines makes this action unnecessary, as well as a possible nuisance to consumers.

The American Heart Association has spent three years developing HeartGuide, a food-labeling program for which manufacturers would pay up to $40,000 to have their products "tested and approved." Nadine Wilk, a board member of the AHA in California, explained: "The program is an effort to simplify the shopping process. I see it as a consumer aid." The FDA at one time supported HeartGuide, but no longer does.

If Sullivan has his way, government food ratings will prevent or hinder the development of private food ratings like HeartGuide. Sullivan says uniform, mandatory federal guidelines are necessary because, "The grocery store has become a Tower of Babel, and consumers need to be linguists, scientists and mind readers to understand the many labels they see."

This attitude insults every American consumer, who is assumed to be incapable of weighing various health claims printed on a package. But it is also flat wrong. Under Sullivan's plan, the states could still impose their own guidelines, giving us not one standard, but 51. How good is current government food regulation? Last month, government food products given to needy Indians, all stamped "USDA approved," were examined by the U.S. House Select Committee on Hunger. The food was found to contain large clumps of lard, animal veins, fat and sodium. After examining one of the "USDA approved" cans, Rep. Tony Hall of Ohio choked, "I'm not sure that I'd give this to a dog."

Also last month, Robert Scheuplein of the FDA's Center for Food Safety announced, "Ordinary food contains an abundance of carcinogenic initiators which, in totality, appear to dwarf all synthetic sources." Yet the FDA continues to ban many "synthetic sources."

The Sullivan proposal will face questioning from Congress and possible legal challenges. Indeed, it is becoming clear to many Americans that we don't need a nagging nanny in Washington telling us what to eat. Private organizations, such as the AHA, are ready to come out with their own food ratings. And food companies compete to bring consumers the healthiest food.

Indeed, Americans are the most health-conscious people in history. The average life span stretches every year, from 69.7 years in 1960 to 74.9 years in 1986.

Some labels identify how much fat is in a particular food. We should stamp a label on HHS, the FDA and the entire federal government that reads: "100 percent fat, lard and pork-barrel. Consumption will cause social and economic sclerosis. Eliminate from political diet."

Berry's World

Free speech and the flag again

WASHINGTON - When the Flag Protection Act of 1989 became law this past October, many critics predicted that the act would not survive until spring. They were right.

Two federal judges, one in Seattle and the other here in Washington, now have held the law unconstitutional. We are headed for another bloody round in the U.S. Supreme Court, and the end of this controversy is not in sight.

This is what the act provides: "Whoever knowingly mutilates, physically defiles, burns, maintains on the floor or ground, or tramples upon any flag of the United States shall be fined under this title or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both."

The law applies to "any flag of the United States, or any part thereof, made of any substance, of any size, in a form that is commonly displayed." A final provision orders the Supreme Court to accept a direct appeal from a U.S. District Court and to expedite a decision.

A ruling is expected before the court ends its term in late June.

In Seattle, District Judge Barbara Rothstein found that the act is only superficially "content-neutral." In reality, the purpose of the law is "directly related to the suppression of free expression." She brushed aside the argument of counsel that the flag may be legally protected as an "incident of sovereignty."

Here in Washington, District Judge June Green came to the same conclusion. She was acutely aware that flag burners "mock and trivialize this solemn symbol of our nation's soul," but the First Amendment was not adopted to protect only the expressions of "pleasing, lovable persons" with whom everyone agrees.

James J. Kilpatrick

It seems unlikely, at least to this observer, that the Supreme Court will reverse these judgments. True, a tradition of comity holds that the high court looks at an act of Congress with some degree of respect. Federal laws are presumed constitutional until found otherwise. Moreover, the 1989 act is significantly different from the Texas law that figured in the landmark Johnson case last June.

Even so, the purpose of flag burning has not changed. This is political expression - contemptible expression, to be sure - but expression nonetheless. And freedom of expression is one of the great values symbolized by the flag.

In the landmark case of Gregory Lee Johnson last June, five members of the high court - Brennan, Marshall, Blackmun, Scalia and Kennedy - agreed that burning the flag as an act of political protest is constitutionally protected expression.

Nothing has happened that we know of that might persuade any one of them to change his mind. The probabilities are strong that the 1989 act will be thrown out, 5-4, on the same reasoning that applied to Johnson's conduct.

What then? The lamentable prospect is that pressures immediately will form behind a constitutional amendment. No fewer than 57 resolutions are pending, all of them intended to overrule the court.

One such resolution, sponsored in the Senate by Bob Dole of Kansas, bears the signatures of 53 members - not far from the 66 votes needed for approval. It is short and simple: "The Congress and the states shall have power to prohibit the physical desecration of the flag of the United States."

Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia is a little more explicit. His amendment would cover "the desecrating, mutilating, defacing, defiling or burning" of any flag of the United States. Charles Grassley of Iowa would add the offense of "trampling" upon the flag.

On the House side, Andrew Jacobs of Indiana weighs in with some unrelated language. His resolution provides that neither desecration of the flag nor "the expenditure of money for the election of public officials" is protected speech. It is but a short step to ban pornography and to authorize prayer in public schools. This way lies the gutting of the First Amendment.

Various public opinion polls show regrettably strong support for a constitutional amendment on desecration of the flag. Members of Congress who believe in freedom - who really, truly believe in freedom - ought to resist this emotional wave of misguided patriotism. The pending resolutions, all 57 of them, should be killed.

Flag burning is not a serious problem in our republic. The few isolated incidents that come along should be ignored, and the show-offs should be treated with the contempt they deserve.

But unwarranted limits on freedom of expression are serious matters indeed. Leave the Constitution alone!

"This," thought Alice, "is a very strange place for me to be!"

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, March 21, the 80th day of 1990. There are 285 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
Twenty-five years ago, on March 21, 1965, more than 3,000 civil rights demonstrators led by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. began their march from Selma to Montgomery, Ala.

On this date:
In 1685, composer Johann Sebastian Bach was born in Eisenach, Germany.

In 1790, 200 years ago, Thomas Jefferson reported to President Washington in New York as the new secretary of state.

In 1804, the French civil code, the Code Napoleon, was adopted.

In 1871, journalist Henry M. Stanley began his famous expedition to Africa to locate the missing Scottish missionary, David Livingstone.

In 1945, during World War II, Allied bombers began four days of raids over Germany.

In 1946, the United Nations set up temporary headquarters at Hunter College in New York.

In 1960, some 70 people were killed in Sharpeville, South Africa, when police fired on demonstrators.

Scientists returning to God

Take one god from a man and he will create another. When a scientist discards his faith in God, there is a strong tendency for him to worship science or some aspect of nature.

The accelerated evolution of the "thinking computer" has some scientists wondering if man is creating God, instead of it being the other way around.

A wry joke is circulating in academic circles: The most sophisticated computer at MIT was challenged by the question, "Is there a God?"

The lights flashed and the circuitry beeped and the wheels whirled and the machine finally responded: "There is now!"

John M. Templeton authored the book, The God Who Would Be Known.

His research led him to believe that science is consistent with faith. "Everywhere you look in science, the harder it becomes to understand the universe without God."

Generations of clergymen, without questioning, accepted basic scripture which says that Jesus lived a good life in a wicked world to demonstrate that it could be done.

But as clergymen began to accumulate academic degrees in a secular environment, they were less willing to rely on blind faith. With their new learning about physics and the cosmos, they began to question - and some to deny - the Jesus story and the Genesis version of creation.

Even more recently, however, scientists of substance have "reconverted themselves to a conviction that God, in some form, has to exist."

Alexander Polterak grew up in the Soviet city of Krasnodar. His teachers taught Marxism, materialism and scientific atheism.

But the more Polterak pondered their theory that matter is merely quantum bundles of energy, the more he began to ask what held the bundles together.

Today Polterak is convinced there has to be a creator, that things did not just "happen." Fired from his job in the Soviet Union, Polterak is in the United States, working in New Jersey in electronics and worshipping as an Orthodox Jew.

Robert Russell, a student of physics and anthropology at Stanford, has "found peace," he says, in the conviction that "God is." And that God is not a deity off in the sky somewhere, but a presence pervading the universe. He believes that explains the Bible verse that says, "In Him we live and move and have our being."

Russell got a Ph.D. in physics the same day he was ordained in the United Church of Christ.

Thus scientists - as scholar C.S. Lewis was sure they would - are coming full-circle, back to a sense that there is more to the universe than they can prove. Religion and science are no longer compartmentalized.

Geneticist Elving Anderson of the University of Minnesota, says, "Science had better have religious values to keep it on track."

A tribute to a long life that's now over

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER

As a young girl, among her playmates in the little southeast Kansas town of Independence, in the first decade of the century, she was a bit of a tomboy. When the oil company was about to bring in a gusher, she would vie with the other kids to see who dared get nearest to the well - then run like the wind when it blew, to avoid being splattered with crude oil.

And when, a little later, the handsome salesman passed through town and she accepted his proposal of marriage and went off with them to travel the length and breadth of the country, that too showed a taste for tempting fate. By the early 1930s, they were settled in the New York suburbs.

As a teacher in Independence she had played the piano, and on Sundays the church organ. Now she bought a splendid Wurlitzer piano accordion (the instruments were just then at the height of their popularity) and became a genuine virtuoso. But her husband jealously forbade her to perform outside their home, so for years she played - brilliantly - for imaginary audiences in the privacy of her bedroom every afternoon.

The marriage ended as World War II began. On her own in wartime New York, she seized the opportunity afforded by the relative absence of male competition and, in short order, became head of the Certification Department in the big branch of National City Bank at Madison and 42nd. Then, after the war, married a second time most happily, she moved with her new husband to Charlottesville, Va., and in 1953 to an old favorite of theirs, Miami.

Now she decided to become an entrepreneur, buying large swatches of space in local newspapers, filling them with a popular by-line column of her own ("Down Shopper's Lane With Jane"), and selling paragraphic endorsements in it to merchants who couldn't afford display ads themselves. Convinced that other women could do the same, she self-published a how-to booklet on the subject.

In the 1960s, her astonishing versatility suggested yet another road to fun and profit. She had always been a superb cook, with a special knack for baking. Now she took to entering cooking contests and promptly began knocking off lucrative prizes. One year, at the Waldorf Astoria in New York, she amazed even her friends by walking off with first prize in the senior division of the Pillsbury National Bake-Off.

She always firmly declared that she didn't want to live to be old, but in this regard she was the victim of her genes. Both her parents lived into their 80s, and various relatives thought nothing of cresting 90. So a time came when her splendid drive and vigor were devoted, instinctively, to the grim business of staying alive.

She wept when she turned 70, but soldiered on. Her 80th birthday came and went, bringing with it feebleness but not the eternal rest she longed for. She was alone now, her second husband having died. "What's the point?" she demanded insistently. "What's the point?"

Eighty-five ... 90 ... At last, nearly three months after her 92nd birthday, physically helpless, but mercifully free from pain, she died. Her only child, a man of 66, accompanied her casket from Miami to Independence, and there she is buried, as she said she wanted to be, beside her parents in "that good old Kansas prairie."

So there you have it. No material, certainly, for a Nobel Prize. And no competition for Malcolm Forbes, either. Just a brave little girl who wasn't afraid to take her chances with oil wells or anything else. So she will have to settle for this loving tribute from her son, who will always honor and remember.

Namibians celebrating their independence

By GREG MYRE
Associated Press Writer

WINDHOEK, Namibia (AP) — The world's newest nation celebrated its birth today with all-night parties, tribal dancing and parades before swearing in ex-guerrilla leaders as ministers of the new government.

About 25,000 Namibians cheered wildly at a sports stadium as the South African flag was lowered in Africa's last colony just after midnight, replaced by the red, green and blue banner of newly independent Namibia.

"Africa's last colony is from this hour liberated," President Sam Nujoma said in his inaugural address after U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar swore in the former guerrilla leader.

Nujoma led the 23-year fight to end rule by neighboring South Africa.

As a fireworks display lit up the sky, Namibians began impromptu parties throughout the capital of Windhoek and car horns blared through the night.

"This is beautiful. We are all thrilled. We have waited so long for this day," said Olga Basson as she watched gold and red fireworks ripping through the night sky.

President F.W. de Klerk of South Africa, who held his hand across his heart as he watched his nation's flag being lowered, called for an end to violence in southern Africa.

"I stand here tonight as an advocate for peace. The season for violence has passed for Namibia and the whole of southern Africa," de Klerk said.

"It is above all a moment for hope. Hope that the future of this vast and beautiful land will bring peace."

The new government gathered this morning at the legislative building on a Windhoek hilltop to be sworn in and become the new National Assembly.

Forty-one of the 72 members belong to the South-West Africa People's Organization, the guerrilla movement that fought South African rule then captured

U.N.-supervised elections in November.

Seven parties, ranging from black Marxists to right-wing whites, are represented in the assembly, which wrote a democratic, Western-style constitution that has earned praise both inside the country and from abroad.

De Klerk has pledged to end South Africa's apartheid system of racial segregation and the date chosen for the ceremony was rich in symbolic meaning for his country.

It marked the 30th anniversary of the "Sharpeville Massacre," when 69 unarmed demonstrators were shot and killed in South Africa while protesting racial segregation laws in a black township south of Johannesburg.

Sharpeville was the turning point for the African National Congress, which broke with decades of non-violent protest to fight against South Africa's white-run government.

"The day was chosen as a sign of solidarity not only for the people of Namibia, but also with the people of South Africa," said Hifikepunye Pohamba, home affairs minister in the new government.

South African black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela drew a fervent burst of applause when he entered the stadium.

Others attending included Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze; Egypt's President Hosni Mubarak; the leaders of at least 12 African nations; Yasser Arafat, the head of the Palestine Liberation Organization; and the foreign ministers of Britain, West Germany, Indonesia and Romania.

The huge, arid territory of 1.3 million people on Africa's southwest coast was a German colony until it was captured by South Africa during World War I.

South Africa agreed in December 1988 to grant independence to Namibia under a regional peace treaty that also calls for Cuba to withdraw its 50,000 soldiers from Angola by mid-1991.

Ethnic Hungarians, Romanians clash with clubs and chains in street battles

By ABNER KATZMAN
Associated Press Writer

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Three months after the revolution, long-simmering tensions between ethnic Hungarians and Romanians have exploded in street battles between thousands of people wielding clubs and chains.

At least six people were killed and 300 injured in four days of violence in Tirgu Mures, 250 miles northwest of Bucharest, state-run radio said today. It said the situation was "still tense" this morning in the Transylvanian city, which gangs roamed in the early morning hours.

Witnesses said the army cordoned off the city during the night in a bid to apprehend rioters and prevent outsiders from joining in the violence.

Police and soldiers, armed only with clubs, have been unable to halt the clashes, they said, adding that about 4,000 people were involved in the fighting Tuesday.

One witness, Ioan Pol, said some ethnic Hungarians were throwing firebombs. He said he heard what appeared to be gunfire but its origin was unknown.

Hospital officials said many of the injured were suffering from head wounds. Among those hospitalized was Kevin Harvey, a British photographer working for The Associated Press, who was beaten and clubbed.

The fighting, the most widespread ethnic violence in Romania in decades, began Saturday when a crowd attacked a Tirgu Mures pharmacy that posted a Hungarian-language sign, Hungarian media reported.

On Monday night, ethnic Romanians attacked the headquarters of an ethnic Hungarian political association that is working for greater cultural autonomy — including the long-denied official right to speak Hungarian.

Romania's provisional government appealed for calm. Neighboring Hungary asked for immediate U.N. mediation to restore order in the region, the Hungarian state news agency MTI reported.

The clashes have their roots in traditional historical rivalries in the region, fueled by ethnic Hungarian demands since December for greater cultural and political autonomy, including the use of Hungarian street signs, Hungarian-language television, schools and other social institutions.

In the Hungarian capital of Budapest, about 50,000 people rallied Tuesday in support of the estimated 1.7 million ethnic Hungarians in Romania, who were long suppressed by Communist dictator Nicolae Ceausescu.

"Ceausescu is dead, but it seems that some want to keep his spirit alive," Istvan Csuska, a leader of the nationalist Hungarian Democratic Front, told the torch-bearing crowd.

In the Romanian city of Iasi near the Soviet border republic of Moldavia, demonstrators also took to the streets to protest the ethnic clashes.

Ceausescu, ousted and executed in a popular revolution in December, was replaced by a provisional government pledging democratic reform, but ethnic Hungarians say his discriminatory policies have continued.

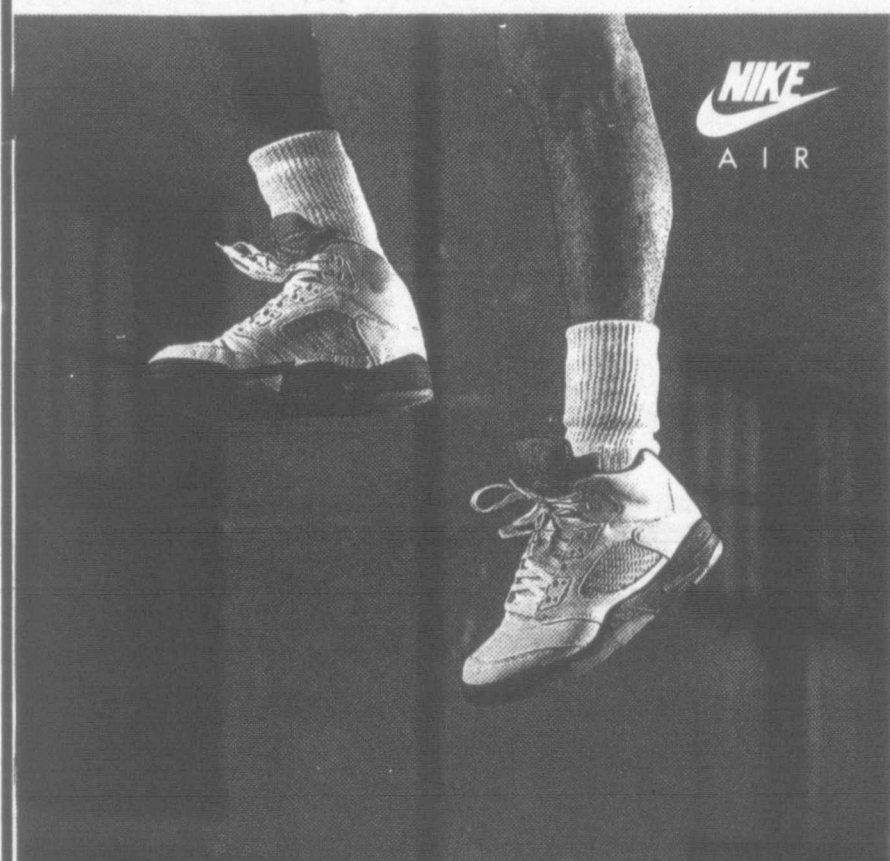

Hungary asked for immediate U.N. mediation to restore order in the region, MTI reported.

Romania's leadership repeatedly broadcast a warning Tuesday that "any kind of extremist, nationalist or chauvinistic actions, irrespective of who they come from, are of the nature to destabilize the national and international situation of Romania."

"We insist that you go back to your homes in peace," said the communique, signed by leaders of the ruling Council of National Unity.

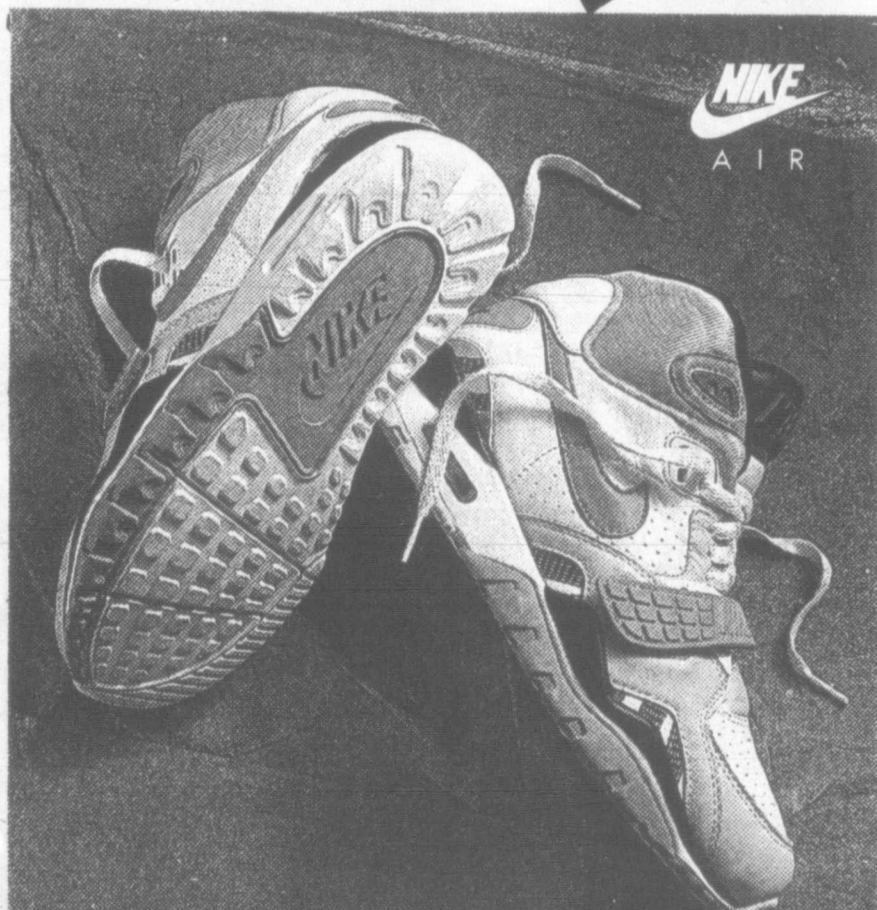

Tirgu Mures is considered a cradle of ethnic Hungarian culture in Transylvania, which was ruled by Hungarians for centuries before being granted to Romania under a 1920 treaty. Most of Romania's ethnic Hungarians live in Transylvania.

Chunky Mexican Beef Soup wins Texas beef cook-off

A flavorful, nutritionally balanced beef soup that highlights Texan and Mexican influences was crowned champion of the 1990 Texas Beef Cook-Off Feb. 17 at Houston.

Winning the $3,000 first prize and an expense paid trip to Seattle, Wash., Sept. 20-22 to compete for National Beef Cook-Off honors was Robin Bonifay, an amateur cook who works for a Dallas petroleum company. Bonifay's winning entry, which she calls "Chunky Mexican Beef Soup," is an original adaptation of caldo, a popular beef soup in Mexico.

Two other contestants also captured top awards at the Cook Off. Doreen G. Howard of Garland won second place and $2,000 for "Bangkok Beef Bundles." Her recipe calls for stir-frying marinated strips of top sirloin and then wrapping them in large Redleaf lettuce leaves. The bundles are served with a tangy dipping sauce.

Third place and $1,000 went to Jean Connor of Palestine, Texas, for her "Off-The-Wall" Fillets with Borscht Salsa. Connor's dish, which was inspired by the tearing down of the Berlin Wall, is an innovative combination of beef tenderloin fillets with pickled beets as components of the Borscht Salsa and as garnish.

The Texas Beef Cook-Off was hosted by Texas CattleWomen and kicked off the 1990 Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, the largest show of its kind. Overall, 10 finalists competed for the honor to represent Texas in the indoor competition at the National Beef Cook-Off in Seattle.

Mrs. Jerry O'Neal, Texas CattleWoman from White Deer and from Wheeler; Mrs. Richard Brown, Mrs. Lynden Sims and Mrs. Billy Buckingham all attended the cookoff working with contestants.

For copies of the winning recipes, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to 1990 Texas Beef Cook-Off Recipes, c/o Texas Beef Industry Council, 8310 Capital of Texas Hwy. N., Ste. 440, Austin, TX 78731.

"Off-the-Wall Fillets" with Borscht Salsa
4 beef tenderloin fillets, 1" thick, approx. 4-5 oz. each
1/4 cup extra virgin olive oil
2 tsp. Balsamic vinegar
1/2 tsp. seasoned salt
Borscht Salsa (recipe follows)
4 Endive or Romaine lettuce leaves, outer edges only
2 tsp. sour cream
4 small whole pickled beets

Combine olive oil, vinegar and salt in 8"x 8" flat glass dish. Place fillets in mixture, turning to coat. Cover and refrigerate several hours, or overnight. Next day prepare Borscht Salsa, set aside. Broil steaks 4-5" from heat approximately for 7-10 minutes, turning once. Place on serving plate, spoon Borscht Salsa on lettuce leaves to side of steak, dollop Borscht Salsa with sour cream, garnish with whole beets. Serves 4.

Borscht Salsa
2/3 cup chopped pickled beets
1/3 cup fresh green onions, with tops, chopped
1/4 cup finely chopped celery
3 tsp. Balsamic vinegar
1 tsp. extra virgin olive oil
1 tsp. prepared horseradish
1/2 tsp. sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. dill weed
2 tsp. chopped walnuts
Combine all ingredients in small bowl, chill.

"Chunky Mexican Beef Soup" combining flavor, nutrition and Tex-Mex appeal won first place for Robin Bonifay of Dallas at the 1990 Texas Beef Cook-Off, hosted by Texas CattleWomen.

Bangkok Beef Bundles
1 1/4" thick top sirloin steak, cut into 1/4 inch slices
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup soy sauce
2 cloves garlic, crushed
1/4 cup peanut oil, divided
8 large lettuce leaves (Redleaf suggested) large end of vein removed
1/2 cup alfalfa or radish sprouts (radish is spicier)
4 scallions, chopped
2 tsp. minced cilantro tops
2 tsp. minced fresh mint
Combine first five ingredients and 2 tablespoons of the oil. Marinate at least one hour (overnight is ideal). Drain meat on paper towels. Heat one tablespoon oil in a heavy skillet or wok. Add half of the meat and stir-fry rapidly over high heat. Remove cooked meat and keep warm. Repeat with the remaining 1 tablespoon of oil and meat. Serve meat, sprouts, scallions, cilantro and mint separately. Assemble individually by placing ingredients in lettuce and folding in half, "taco style." Accompany with Tangy Dipping Sauce.

Tangy Dipping Sauce
1 clove garlic
1 small dried or fresh chile pepper
1 tbsp. lemon juice
3 tsp. soy sauce
3 tsp. water
2 tsp. peanut butter
1 tsp. brown sugar
Puree garlic and chile in a blender or food processor. Add remaining ingredients and process until smooth.

Chunky Mexican Beef Soup
2 lbs. chunk pot roast, trimmed of fat and cut into 1" chunks
2 large onions, cut in 8 pieces each
1 tsp. garlic powder
2 tsp. ground cumin
2 tsp. olive oil
4 cups good, strong beef stock, preferably homemade*
4 cups water
4 large garlic cloves, minced
salt to taste
1/2 tsp. pepper
1 bunch cilantro, washed well and coarsely chopped (2 cups, loosely packed), divide in half
3 carrots, peeled and cut in 1" chunks
9 red potatoes, scrubbed and halved
4 ears corn, cut in fourths
2 medium zucchini, cut in 1" pieces flour tortillas
Brown meat with onions, garlic powder and cumin, in oil. Add stock, water, garlic, salt, pepper and half the chopped cilantro. Bring to a boil, cover pot, reduce heat and simmer 30 minutes. Add carrots, corn and potatoes; continue simmering until tender, about 15-20 minutes. Add zucchini and return to a boil; simmer 5-10 minutes. Zucchini should remain crisp-tender. Add remaining chopped cilantro just before removing from heat. Ladle soups into large, shallow bowls, garnish with cilantro sprigs and serve with flour tortillas.

Notes: To further reduce fat, prepare soup up to the point of adding zucchini, corn and cilantro and refrigerate overnight; remove any fat that rises to the surface. Bring soup to boil and proceed with recipe.

May also be prepared in an electric slow cooker. Combine ingredients and cook on high about 6 hours (or 8-10 hours on low.)

*If using canned beef stock, increase to 6 cups and decrease water to 2 cups; less salt will be needed.

It makes great flapjacks, but convenient pancake mix does more than one job well. Start with buttermilk pancake mix and you can make a coffee bread so rich and tender it can double as a dessert. Like many quick breads, this one slices best if wrapped and stored overnight. It freezes well, too. Frost the loaf after chilling or defrosting.

Harvest Chocolate Bread
2 cups packaged buttermilk pancake mix
1 1/2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
2 eggs
1 cup canned pumpkin
2-3rds cup sugar
2-3rds cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup coarsely chopped walnuts or pecans
2 squares (2 ounces) semisweet chocolate, melted and cooled
Powdered Sugar Glaze (recipe follows)
1/2 square (1/2 ounce) semisweet chocolate, melted and cooled

In a medium mixing bowl stir together pancake mix and pie spice. Set aside. In a large mixing bowl beat together eggs, pumpkin, sugar, milk and vanilla. Add dry ingredients and nuts, mixing well.

Remove 1 cup of batter to a small bowl; stir in the 2 ounces chocolate. Place half the remaining plain batter in a greased and lightly floured 8-by-4-by-2-inch baking pan. Carefully spoon the chocolate batter down center. Spoon remaining plain batter over chocolate layer.

Bake in a 350-degree F oven about 65 minutes or until a wooden toothpick inserted near the center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Remove from pan; cool completely on wire rack. Wrap and store overnight.

To serve, pipe or drizzle about half the Powdered Sugar Glaze over loaf. To remaining glaze add the 1/2 ounce chocolate and enough hot water (1 to 2 teaspoons) to make glaze of drizzling consistency. Pipe chocolate glaze beside Powdered Sugar Glaze. Makes 1 loaf (12 slices).

POWDERED SUGAR GLAZE:
In a small bowl combine 3/4 cup sifted powdered sugar and 2 to 3 teaspoons water until of drizzling consistency.

Honey-Nut Pasta Pudding
6 ounces (1 cup) uncooked orzo (rosamarina) or 2 1/2 cups cooked small pasta
2 slightly beaten eggs
One 12-ounce can evaporated skim milk
3/4 cup honey
1/2 cup slivered almonds, toasted
1/4 cup raisins

Cook orzo according to package directions. Drain. In a medium mixing bowl stir together eggs, cooked pasta, milk, honey, almonds and raisins; mix well. Pour into a greased 1 1/2-quart casserole. Bake, uncovered, in a 350-degree F oven about 20 minutes. Stir mixture to evenly distribute the raisins. Bake for 20 to 25 minutes more or until nearly set (the center remains soft set with the outside edge somewhat firmer). Cool slightly on a wire rack; serve warm. Top with whipped cream and additional almonds, if desired.

Veronica Unruh, 10, donned one of the Red Cross uniforms, circa mid '30s, and helped entertain guests at the Red Cross Open House on Saturday.

Red Cross recognizes volunteers this week

In connection with Red Cross Month, Katie Fairweather, director of the local Red Cross, has announced this week as Volunteer Appreciation Week.

"You couldn't ask for a better group of volunteers," says Lynda Duncan, eight-hour-a-day, five-days-a-week volunteer herself. "If you call no matter what time of day, someone comes down here."

Volunteers who teach standard first aid, adult CPR and community CPR are Darryl Hext, Gordon Four, Cindy Cooper and Lendy Wooldridge.

Water safety instructors include Julie Long, Margaret White, Andrea Walling, Norma Young, Janice Monds, Donna Holland, Nannette Allen, Janet Bilyeu, Sara Caramichael, Pat Cox, Rosella Stout and Frankie Hildebrandt, chairman.

"In this chapter volunteers give at least 100 hours per week of time, probably more," says Fairweather.

Youth volunteers include Kim Strate, Zee Strate, Jereé Waters, Angie Hill.

Holly Unruh and Regina Vanderlinden complete the list of office staff.

Chapter chairman is James Frogge. Other board members and directors include: Jim Baker, Marian Fugate, John Horsch, Carol Pete, Susie Murray, James Baird, Jim Wingert, Art Hill, Dorothy Stowers, Jack Skelly, Mae Williams, and Dee Dee Laramore.

Nursing and hospital volunteers include: Janice Carter, Majunta Hills, Donna Reynolds, Thelma Moore, Thersia Johnson, Coralee Unruh, Sadie Durning and Belle Lee.

Leona Walker helps in the office and service to the military.

Many volunteers provide two to three different services to the Red Cross - helping with problem locks or the van, handyman type of services.

Baker is the liaison with radio operators as well as board responsibilities and Baird maintains the loan closet equipment.

Disaster volunteers include Bill Graham of McLean, Wyvon Griffin, Reed Kirkpatrick, Bill Hildebrandt, Steve Vaughn, Ted Gikas and Kathy Beck.

Bill Graham and Lendy Wooldridge went to Puerto Rico, being local volunteers qualified to handle national level disasters.

Organizations who donate time or resources to the Red Cross include the Fire Department, Rural Metro Ambulance and Shepard's Crook Nursing. Quality Cleaners has helped to restore old Red Cross uniforms.

"I'm really impressed with the civic mindedness of the citizens of Pampa," says Fairweather. "It seems everyone I've met has been a Red Cross volunteer at one time or another."

Two mothers sink their teeth into debate on breastfeeding

DEAR ABBY: I am 33 years old and have been reading your column for as long as I can remember. The letter from "Grossed-Out Grandma" prompts my first letter to you. Grandma was amazed and upset that her 3-year-old granddaughter was still breast-fed.

Abby, you are sure to get a lot of mail on this subject, so please pick the best ones and educate the public.

Breast milk is what nature intended for babies to drink. Women have breasts primarily to nourish their offspring. There is nothing gross about it. What I find distressing is the number of mothers who breast-feed for only a few weeks, or months — or not at all. Instead, they feed their babies man-made formulas that rank a distant second in their capacity to nourish. Not to mention the expense of formula and bottles, and the time it takes to sterilize them.

The convenience of breast milk can't be beat. It's always the right temperature, always available, no bottles to sterilize, and there's nothing to pack or carry on outings. I fail to understand why anyone can be "grossed out" at something that is so natural. Also, this notion that a child can become "too attached" to its mother baffles me. What else should a baby be attached to?

By the way, I have two children. The oldest is now 4, and nursed until he was 3 years old. The youngest is 2, and still nurses two to three times a day.

Incidentally, I am a registered nurse, working part time. Thanks for listening. I feel as though I am talking to an old friend.

PRO BREAST-FEEDING

DEAR ABBY: I don't care what the La Leche League says, I agree with "Grossed-Out Grandma" — nursing a 3-year-old child is absolutely disgusting!

I have two children. They were both weaned before their first birthday. I just can't stomach the idea of nursing its mother!

Tralee to sponsor "10 Best Dressed" contest

Hey guys! Want to win two round-trip tickets, courtesy American Airlines, to Las Vegas?

All you have to do is win Pampa's Ten Best Dressed Contest sponsored by Tralee Crisis Center.

The Center is offering as a fundraiser a fun evening complete with dinner, entertainment and a fashion show and some lucky man will be crowned the "Best Dressed" in Pampa and be presented with two airline tickets to Las Vegas.

The event is scheduled for April 6 in the M.K. Brown Room of the Community Building.

Citizens are asked to send in their nominations for the Best Dressed to Tralee Crisis Center, 119 N. Frost, Pampa, TX. 79065.

Ten men receiving the most votes will then be contacted and ask to defend their nominations by modeling in three divisions - formal, sporty and casual - during the evening.

Nominees must be 18 years of age to enter.

Winners will be decided by a casting of votes (50 cents each) from the audience.

Ladies - does your favorite guy look great in formal wear but his present closet selections seem like slim pickings?

Not to fear. Several local merchants have agreed to help outfit the men to give everyone an equal chance at "looking good."

Nomination deadline is Mar. 29. Send your nominee, complete with name, age, and daytime phone number to Tralee Crisis Center, 119 N. Frost, Pampa, TX. 79065.

For more information contact Lendy Wooldridge at Tralee Crisis Center, 669-1131.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

In the year ahead you are likely to establish more ambitious objectives for yourself than you have in the past. This is all well and good, provided you do not take on more than you can handle.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Action taken upon the advice of a know-it-all could lead you to a dead end street today. Less mistakes are likely if you give credence to your own insights and perceptions. Aries, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91426, Cleveland, OH 44101-3426. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Focusing on the frailties of others today could cause them to take a closer look at you. When you're put under the magnifying glass, it might make you squirm with discomfort.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be very selective today regarding friends with whom you socialize. If you link up with someone who likes to impress others, it might spoil your day.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Consider yourself equal to anyone with whom you're involved today, but not superior. Snobbish behavior on your behalf will cause others to lose respect for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Guard against inclinations today to think you can perform well when you have only sketches of information with which to work. Self-deception could lead to your downfall.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A well-intentioned friend might tout you onto something today that this person feels will be good for you financially. Before jumping in, you'd better get a few more opinions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Without even trying, the attention of others will be focused on you today. This is well and good, provided you keep in mind that all who will be watching might not necessarily be your admirers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In managing subordinates today, be neither too harsh nor too wishy-washy. Above all, don't ask them to do things you won't do yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Business matters should be treated indifferently today. A failure to do everything that's required could turn a potentially profitable venture into a "bummer."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your mettle may be tested in one-to-one relationships today. There is a possibility you might have to contend with individuals you usually make an effort to avoid.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you might be a much better talker than you will be a producer. In the final tally, it's not what you say you're going to do that counts, but what you actually do.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's best not to try to mastermind the financial affairs of a friend today unless you truly know what you're doing. If you make an error, it could result in mutual losses.

White Deer's Brown sets sights on Austin

White Deer senior Jill Brown certainly has her sights set on Austin again.

Brown was clocked at 47.85 in the 300-intermediate hurdles last weekend at the Comanche Relays in Stinnett. That time may be the best in Class 1A so far this season, according to her coach, Doug Porter.

"I know that's the fastest time in this area in all classifications," Porter said. "She ran quite a race."

It was doubtful that Brown would win the event, much less have one of the state's fastest times. She was third in the preliminaries with a 49.01.

Brown and Spearman's Joy Gafford were all alone coming down the stretch in the finals.

"It was neck and neck. Jill beat her right at the finish line," Porter said.

Gafford had finished first in the preliminaries.

The Does placed sixth in the seven-team meet with Brown scoring all of White Deer's 34 points.

"We were short-handed because of spring break," Porter said.

In three meets, Brown has won the 300-meter hurdles twice, the 100-meter dash twice, the 100-meter hurdles once and the long jump once.

She qualified for the state meet a year ago, taking third in the 100-meter hurdles. It looks like she's gearing up for a return trip.

Spring break, coupled with injuries, also hampered the White Deer boys, with only three varsity tracksters showing up for the Comanche Relays.

The Bucks still came up with 62 points for a fifth-place finish.

"Without enough people to enter the relays, the other teams really passed us by," said Bucks' coach Gary Richardson.

"We're starting to compete a little better. Some are starting to improve their times and I'm looking for others to start coming through for us," Richardson pointed out.

Ed Barrett and all-arounder Troy Cummins captured first place medals for the Bucks.

Barrett was timed at 10:56 to win the 3200 while Cummins won the 110-high hurdles in 15.15.

"Barrett is looking better and I'm hoping he'll keep improving his times," Richardson said.

Barrett also placed second in the 1600.

Cummins, one of the area's most versatile trackman, also placed second in the 300-meter hurdles and high jump and third in the long jump. He tried his hand at the triple jump for the very first time and finished third with a 39-2 leap.

"Cummins is looking good," Richardson said. "It looks like he's going to be ready for district."

Cummins, a senior, won five gold medals at last year's district meet.

Jerod Cox, who placed third in the 400, was a pleasant surprise for Richardson.

"He's only been out a couple of weeks, but he still scored some points for us," Richardson said.

Harvesters whip Randall to remain unbeaten

AMARILLO — The Harvester baseball team boosted its undefeated streak to seven games Tuesday with a commanding, 11-4 victory over the Raiders at Randall High School.

Pampa also improved its District 1-4A record to 2-0, good enough for a three-way tie for first place with Lubbock Dunbar and Lubbock Estacado. The Harvesters are the only undefeated team in the league.

Pitcher Brandon Knutson turned in a sterling performance on the mound to collect the win, improving his record to 3-0. In 5 1/3 innings, he allowed only four walks and three runs while striking out four batters.

By the end of the fifth frame, Knutson had surrendered only one hit and still owned a shutout as the Harvesters held tight to an 11-0 lead. However, the PHS senior loaded the bases with three walks in the sixth inning and was relieved by senior James Bybee.

"Brandon did a good job," said Pampa coach Rod Porter. "He struggled there near the end, but that was probably my fault for leaving him in too long."

Bybee gave up a triple to Randall's Trey Burleson that sent all three baserunners home. Burleson later scored on an errant pitch to account for Randall's fourth and final run.

In 2/3 inning, Bybee gave up one hit, one run and struck out one.

Pampa opened with one run in the first inning, but left two runners on base. On the day, the Harvesters stranded 10 baserunners.

"We scored every inning, but every time we scored, we should have scored even more," Porter said. "We're doing a good job of getting on base, but I really feel like we can't make those mistakes when we play a good team."

Pampa added another run in the second inning, then drove Randall starter Jon Ostrawski from the mound in the third inning with a four-run deluge. The Harvesters scored five more runs over the next three innings and collected 11 hits on the day.

Third baseman Brian Bullard and designated hitter Steve Sanders paced Pampa at the plate with three hits apiece. Bullard nailed two singles and a double with three RBI, while Sanders added three one-baggers and three RBI.

"Steve has been one of the surprises of the year for us," Porter said of the junior dh. "He's batting well over .500, and one of those hits (Tuesday) was to the shortstop and he just beat it out to first base."

Bybee added a single, double and an RBI, while Chris Roden knocked down a double and two RBI.

Pampa hosts Frenship Friday in another District 1-4A game, scheduled to start at 2 p.m. at Harvester Field. Frenship enters the contest with a 1-1 district record, 4-6 overall, tied with Dumas for fourth place.

On Saturday, the Harvesters travel to Lubbock to take on Estacado, District 1-4A's runner-up for the past three years. At present, the Matadors are tied with Pampa and Dunbar for first place.

The Pampa junior varsity team hosts Hereford in a doubleheader Friday beginning at 10 a.m.

See Sunday's edition of The Pampa News for results of those games.

Regular-season schedule depends on CBS Sports

Restoration of 162 games likely

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

NEW YORK — Today, a place might be found for some missing baseball games.

A decision is likely on the regular season, and it is expected the schedule will be restored to 162 games. Because opening day was delayed a week by the lockout, teams were assured of just 158.

"The issue is not totally resolved," Commissioner Fay Vincent said Tuesday. "They're still working on it."

Baseball would prefer to add games at the end of the season. Other choices include playing doubleheaders or filling open dates.

"I guess that would be ideal," Vincent said of extending the season. "It would be so much easier to transpose the week. It would be crisp and clean."

If games were added in October, it would push back the playoffs and World Series. CBS holds the rights for the postseason and must give its approval before that change can be made.

"Baseball initiated discussions with us yesterday on giving consideration to moving the postseason back," Jeremy Handelman, vice president of program planning at CBS Sports, said. "We have not established a position, we're examining it."

"We're in a business partnership with baseball, we have a collective interest here," Handelman said. "I can appreciate from a fan's standpoint that what happens in October is not an immediate concern. But there are numerous things that are affected within CBS."

Meanwhile, the exhibition schedule has been revised. The spring season had been set to go through April 1 — the day before the original Opening Day — but was changed when openers were delayed until April 9.

Baseball

Spring training began Tuesday and exhibition games start March 26. All teams will play at least 13 times and the Chicago Cubs will play the most, 16. Some split-squad and "B" games are being added daily.

But Memphis, Des Moines and some other cities that were to play host to big-league exhibition games lost them. Teams that had been scheduled to play on the road on their way to opening day now will stay longer in Florida and Arizona. Las Vegas, Jacksonville, Fla., Oklahoma City, Columbus and Greenville, S.C., also were among cities that lost exhibitions.

Also, baseball clarified a scoring rules decision, saying that for the first two weeks of the season, starting pitchers will need to work just three innings to get credit for a victory. After that, starters will need to pitch the usual five to be the winner.

PHS tennis team edges Perryton

Judson Eddins and Brad Chambers won two matches apiece to pace the Pampa High School tennis team to an 8-7 victory over Perryton Tuesday at the PHS courts.

Chambers, Pampa's No. 2 seed, defeated the Rangers' No. 1 seed Caleb Pingleton, 6-1, 6-0, then rolled over No. 2 Don McGarraugh, 6-0, 6-0. Eddins, the Harvesters' top singles player, defeated Pingleton and McGarraugh by identical scores, 6-0, 6-1.

Overall, Pampa's boys team defeated the Rangers, 5-3, while the Lady Harvesters lost a narrow, 4-3 decision.

Sophomores Joe Welborn and Sameer Mohan teamed up for the Harvesters' only doubles victory, a 6-4, 6-4 win over Steve Black and John Allen.

Daphne Cates and Shannon Simmons each captured singles victories for the Lady Harvesters. Cates defeated Allysa Faulkner, 6-2, 5-7, 6-0, while Simmons took an easy 6-0, 6-0 win over Amy Sena.

Anne Bingham and Leigh Ellen Osborne pooled their talents for a 6-3, 6-3 doubles victory over Perryton's Faulkner and Misty Smith. Allyson Thompson and Heather Gikas, who entered Tuesday's matches with a 7-1 doubles record, were defeated by Perryton's Christie Freeman and Traci Whittenberg.

The PHS tennis teams travel to Amarillo this Saturday and Sunday for the United States Tennis Association Zone Advancement Tournament. The tournament qualifies a player for ranking in the Texas Tennis Association.

Approximately 30 Pampa players, including high school varsity, junior varsity and eighth-grade divisions, are entered in the tourney.

For complete results of Tuesday's matches against Perryton, see today's Scoreboard.

Middle school thinclads shine at Borger

Pampa Middle School's seventh and eighth grade boys track teams turned in a sterling performance last Friday in the season opener at Borger.

The two teams nailed down almost identical finishes, each capturing first place in six of the 16 events and second place in four others.

"With that many first and second places, it was a good team effort," said Pampa assistant coach Dick Dunnam. "We had a lot of guys earning points for us, and that's what it takes."

No team totals were kept, by agreement of the Panhandle Junior High Athletic League, of which Pampa is a member. Team totals will be kept at the district meet, scheduled for April 21.

Tyrone Washington, who competed in five events, paced the seventh-grade Patriots with four gold medals and one silver. He provided one leg of the winning 400 relay, then won the 100 (12.56 seconds), 200 (26.73) and long jump (15 feet, 11 inches). He was also second in the high jump (5-0).

"Tyrone participated in five events and won four blues and a red," Dunnam said. "We don't plan on running any of our guys in five events, but Tyrone is new to the system and we wanted to see what he could do."

Pampa dominated the relays, winning the 400 and 800 relays in every division, both boys and girls. The boys seventh and eighth grade teams took second in the 1600 relays.

Dewayne Hair led the eighth-graders with three first-place finishes and one second place. He grabbed the gold in the 200 (25.69) and the high jump (5-4) and was a member of the Pampa's winning sprint relay. He was second in the 100 behind teammate Greg Moore, who finished in 11.95 seconds.

Pampa's eighth-graders won four of the top six places in two different events, the 100 and the 200.

"That was another thing we

voted on in this league," Dunnam said. "Instead of just three people per event, we're going to enter as many people as we want in the first two meets just to get more participation."

Devin King took second-place in the eighth-grade 400-meter dash with a time of 57.99.

"He didn't run in seventh grade, so that was his first race," Dunnam said. "We look for him to improve to 55. The school record is 56 seconds, so there's no doubt that it will be broken."

"There's a possibility of some other records being broken, too. We competed well for the first time out this year. We're on the road to building a good track program for Pampa."

See today's Scoreboard for Pampa's individual results at the Borger triangular last Friday.

Football

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indianapolis general manager Jim Irsay says he's had no serious contract discussion with Eric Dickerson since July, and isn't sure what the star running back wants.

Dickerson, mainly through occasional interviews, has hinted he wants a renegotiated contract for more money, a trade or even retirement.

"There has been obviously a lot of different signals," Irsay said Tuesday, a day after an Indianapolis television station aired an interview in which Dickerson said he would rather quit the NFL than stay in Indianapolis.

"I hope Eric can come back with a clear mind and we can get to the bottom of this," Irsay said. "It's hard to put a finger on what it is he wants. We're trying to be patient."

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Illinois quarterback Jeff George is giving up two dreams to pursue a third.

George announced on Tuesday that he wouldn't be back for his final season at Illinois, ending dreams of playing in the Rose Bowl and winning the Heisman Trophy. Instead, he'll make himself available for the NFL draft next month.

"It's always been my dream to play in the NFL," George said.

"I'd like to play right away," George said during a news conference at Memorial Stadium, where he played for two years. "I'm going there to play, not sit on the bench. I think I'm ready."

Tar Heels' Madden out for remainder of tourney

(AP Laserphoto)

Arkansas guard Lee Mayberry thinks his team is No. 1 entering Thursday's semifinals.

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — The Sweet 16 has turned sour for North Carolina.

The Tar Heels' Kevin Madden, who hit all 10 of his field goal attempts in the NCAA basketball tournament subregionals in Austin, injured a knee in practice and is out for the rest of the tournament.

North Carolina (21-12) is making its 10th straight appearance in the Round of 16 and faces Arkansas (28-4) in Thursday's NCAA Midwest Regional semifinal opener at Reunion Arena. Texas (23-8) meets Xavier of Ohio (28-4) in the second game.

Madden, a 6-foot-6 senior from Staunton, Va., tore the anterior cruciate in his right knee while driving past another player on a one-on-one drill.

Madden, averaging 10.1 points and 4.7 rebounds, scored 12 points against Southwest Missouri State and 14 against Oklahoma.

North Carolina coach Dean Smith said the loss of Madden will change the Tar Heels' look.

"Of course, we're extremely disappointed that Kevin will be out," Smith said. "We've been using Kevin as a big guard-small forward. That means Rick Fox ... will be at small forward, and then (Henrik) Rodl will give Fox some rest."

"Then Rodl, Hubert Davis and Jeff Denny will see more action in Kevin's spot," Smith added. "It changes the look of our team a great deal."

Madden will accompany the team to Dallas, Smith said.

"I think we're all just under a shock right now. Kevin's handled it well. ... He wants to be with us," the coach said. "They put a form of a cast on so he can't hurt himself anymore and they'll operate as soon as our season is over because he wanted to be with the team."

Clemson coach Cliff Ellis said the Tar Heels' loss of Madden will "takes away some team chemistry."

"I think it will affect them from a chemistry standpoint, but they play a lot of people anyway," said Ellis, whose Tigers face Connecticut in the East Regional.

"I think from an emotional standpoint I'm sure Kevin will get his team fired up. Any time you see one of your own hurt and you're a family, sometimes players respond to that in a positive way."

To add to North Carolina's woes, it'll be like a home game for the Arkansas Razorbacks, and North Carolina knows it.

Reunion officials estimate that 65 percent of the 17,007 tickets sold for Thursday's semifinals have been purchased by Razorbacks' fans, who prefer watching their Hogs play at home in Barnhill Arena but are more than happy to travel to Dallas.

Even with Texas in the other regional semifinal, Arkansas fans were able to purchase the majority of tickets.

Injuries have taken their toll. Sprinter Daniel Gillespie and distance runner Chris Luster are still on the injured list. Sprinter Stephen Urbanczyk is the latest casualty after pulling up lame in workouts last week.

"Urbanczyk has got some kind of muscle strain, but I think he'll be back next week," Richardson said. "It doesn't look to be that serious."

White Deer competes in the Gruver Invitational this weekend.

"We're hoping to get some of these guys back for that meet," Richardson added.

Justin Price was the only gold medalist for the Canadian boys at the Commanche Relays. Price cleared 12-6 to win the pole vault for the Wildcats, who finished sixth in the team standings.

Price made quite an improvement in a week's time. He finished third with a 12-0 vault at Canadian's Wildcat Relays.

Canadian girls finished fifth in the Commanche meet. Cassie McNeese placed third in both the shot and discus to take top individual honors for the Lady Wildcats.

Dusty Roberson of Lefors turned in a strong performance in Division Two of the Bobcat Relays in Sunray last weekend.

Roberson placed second in the pole vault and claimed third in the long jump and 400.

I.M. Smith of Pampa won a runnerup trophy in his class at the Z-93 Street Nationals held last weekend at Amarillo Dragway. Smith was entered in the Chevy (10-16-99) class.

David Tolbert of Clarendon was the overall Street King champion.

Sprint and points championships will be held Sunday at the Dragway, located on the Claude Highway between Osage Street and Washington.

Gates open at 11 a.m. and eliminations begin at 2 p.m.

Now that the NCAA Tournament is down to the Sweet 16, I might be able to correctly predict at least one of the teams that advances to the Final Four. Would you believe Arkansas, Loyola Marymount, Syracuse and Duke? I'll go as far as picking Syracuse to take home the championship trophy.

Flashback: March 21, 1959 - California nipped West Virginia, 71-70, in the NCAA finals. NBA hall of famer Jerry West scored 28 points for the losers.

Century-old saloon now modern-day music hot spot

By KELLEY SHANNON
Associated Press Writer

GRUENE (AP) — By day it's a quiet little town overlooking the rocky Guadalupe River. Travelers hunt for antiques, eat barbecued brisket and sip cool drinks.

After dark it's a different story. And Gruene Hall is the tale.

Local regulars and big-city curious line up at the century-old saloon to order longneck beers and beat the boards to the sounds of the Fabulous Thunderbirds, Jerry Jeff Walker or Bo Diddley.

"A lot of great, sweaty nights happen here," says singer-songwriter Hal Ketchum, leaning back in an old chair near the hall's bar. "There's nothing like a good 105-degree day in here with your band."

The hall that by day is a meeting spot for Girl Scouts and debutantes by night has become one of Texas' hippest honky tonks. It's pictured on album covers and serves as folksy stage set for videos and television specials.

It brings thousands of music fans to Gruene, a historic district that has remained a community unto itself despite being incorporated into the larger town of New Braunfels.

The hall was built in the 1870s as a social center by town namesake Henry Gruene. Local farmers came to the hall to weigh their cotton before delivering it to the gin next door. Families flocked to it on Saturday nights to dance, bedding down their children next to the wall while the fun went on.

It hasn't changed much. There's a wood-burning stove and an old hardwood floor. Signs dating to the 1920s hang overhead.

The hall and several other Gruene buildings are owned by New Braunfels' Jane Nalley and Pat Molak of San Antonio. Molak bought the hall and reopened it 15 years ago after it had been in disuse for several decades.

It long has been a favorite haunt of country-and-western, blues, rock and folk musicians, and in the last few years gained some national renown.

George Strait, who played here about once a month for six years before rocketing to country music stardom, returned in January to tape commercials promoting his upcoming tour and its beer sponsor.

June Carter Cash — Johnny Cash's wife and Roséanne Cash's stepmother — arrived in January with her three sisters to film a documentary about their musician mother.

Despite its success, Molak and Ms. Nalley keep Gruene Hall a laid-back place. There aren't any advance ticket sales and there aren't any dressing rooms for the musicians — no matter how big they've gotten.

Truth is, Gruene Hall is just a beer joint. It's a dive, as Molak likes to call it.

The place holds 500 people, and those who frequent it say there's no place like it when the dancing starts during a live performance.

"They have good concerts, I know that. For a town this small, it's amazing how they attract big-name people in here," said John Graves, a 23-year-old student at nearby Southwest Texas State University who likes to hang out and play pool at the hall.

Country singer and recent Grammy winner Rodney Crowell heard about Gruene Hall and called one time wanting to play here, Ms. Nalley said.

Another Grammy winner, Lyle Lovett, also played the hall as have Michael Murphy, Delbert McCClinton, Gary P. Nunn and dozens of others whose pictures dot the walls near the bar.

Ketchum, 37, hopes to one day count himself among the famous who got their start in Gruene.

The New York native had never heard of the hall when he moved nearby eight years ago. But it gave him his first chance to play one of his own songs in public, and now he and a five-piece dance band play there about six times a year.

Ketchum's looking beyond Gruene these days, writing country blues for Forerunner Music Co. and recording an album in a Fredericksburg horse barn.

But he considers Gruene Hall his music school in a way — a place where he was able to hear some of the greats.

"There's a lot of old notes hanging in the air here," he said.

Study: quickly giving clot drug stops heart attacks

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Speedier injections of clot-busting drugs to heart attack victims improves their chances of escaping permanent damage, suggesting that ambulance crews can save lives by administering this medicine on the way to the hospital, a study concludes.

Even when hospitals are prepared to offer this treatment, hours may pass before patients reach the emergency ward, are evaluated by heart specialists and eventually hooked up to lines that drip the medicine into their bloodstreams.

The new research supports the growing belief that for this approach to work well, it must be offered fast, perhaps even before heart attack victims leave their homes.

The research found that 92 percent of clogged arteries could be reopened if the medicine was given immediately as a shot. Currently hospitals administer the medicine as a continuous drip infusion, which takes longer to set up and is impractical for use by paramedics.

In past studies, clot-dissolving drugs have been about 60 percent to 70 percent effective in opening up clot-blocked heart arteries.

The new study, meant to simulate ambulance administration of the drug tissue plasminogen activator, or TPA, was conducted by Dr. George R. McKendall of Rhode Island Hospital. He presented the findings Monday at a meeting of the American College of Cardiology.

"They achieved what appears to be a startling patency," or reopening of closed arteries, of more than 90 percent, said Dr. Carl J. Pepine of the University of Florida. "This is striking."

Dr. C. Richard Conti, president of the college of cardiology, said that in light of the latest research, "we ought to think about giving the first dose in the home by paramedics."

In the latest study, patients with heart attacks were given an injection of TPA as soon as they arrived at the hospital. Doctors waited a half hour to mimic an ambulance trip and then set them up on a continuous drip to deliver the rest of a standard dose of TPA.

Heart attacks usually occur when an obstruction, typically a blood clot, gets stuck in an artery that feeds the heart muscle. Unless the blockage is removed within a few hours, a section of muscle is starved of oxygen and dies, permanently weakening the heart.

While TPA and similar drugs are effective, they also are risky because they can cause uncontrolled bleeding. If the bleeding occurs in the brain, the result can be a crippling stroke.

To make sure that during emergencies the medicines are given only to people who truly are having heart attacks, the ambulance crew typically sends electrocardiogram readings back to the hospital over a cellular telephone. A doctor there gives instructions about what medicines to administer.

Several clot-dissolving drugs are now on the market, and others are being tested. Many studies are under way to determine which is the best.
