Soviet troops storm two hospitals to seize Lithuanian army deserters

By ANN IMSE
Associated Press Writer

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Soviet soldiers stormed two hospitals today to seize at least 23 Lithuanian army deserters and left behind a trail of blood in the first violent action by Moscow since Lithuania declared independence.

"They beat them with their fists," said a duty nurse at a psychiatric hospital where windows and iron beds were broken in the predawn raid.

Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis said he feared it could presage a full-scale crackdown on the Baltic republic, whose Parliament voted to secede March 11.

"It is obvious that the Soviet armed forces have been given permission to use violence," Landsbergis said.

About 4,000 opponents of Lithuania's independence drive attended a Vilnius rally that Landsbergis had warned might turn violent and serve as Moscow's excuse to intervene.

A Soviet military helicopter dropped leaflets on Monday urging people to attend today's rally.

The rally lasted less than an hour and remained peaceful — protesters did not even trespass on the grass in the middle of the square near the parliament building. Inside, parliament officials, convinced that the crowd might try to storm the building, had rolled out fire hoses to repel attackers.

In all, the official Soviet news agency Tass said troops seized 23 deserters in two hospitals.

Rita Dapkus, spokeswoman for the Lithuanian Bureau of Information, said Soviet troops beat 12 Lithuanian deserters "and the militiamen who came to defend them" at the psychiatric hospital before taking the deserters away. She said the 26 others at the hospital escaped.

A trail of blood led down the hospital steps and out the front door. There were no reports on the extent of injuries. Lithuanians have fled the Red Army, complaining of beatings and other abuse since their republic took moves to leave the Soviet Union.

Soviet troops also took over the republic's showcase Communist Party headquarters today, making it the fifth party building to be seized since Sunday in Moscow's bid to assert sovereignty in the republic.

Speaking to reporters today, Landsbergis denounced the "open acts of aggression" and accused Soviet authorities of fabricating stories of provocation to justify the use of force.

Lithuania's Communists broke with Moscow in December, but a pro-Soviet minority in the party has tried to rally against the pro-independence majority.

Until the weekend, Moscow had tried to intimidate the Lithuanians with non-violent tactics. The Kremlin paraded tanks through the capital and ordered Lithuanians to surrender firearms and not to attempt a takeover of Soviet-controlled enterprises.

The Lithuanians did not budge and Soviet troops began seizing Communist Party buildings. In official media, the Kremlin portrayed the small peaceful republic as in a state of anarchy and accused its leaders of planning to jail opponents of independence.

Moscow had warned that Lithuanian soldiers not returning to barracks by last Saturday would be arrested. Lithuania contends the youths were illegally drafted into an army of occupation.

The Soviet Union forcibly annexed Lithuania in 1940 along with the two other Baltic republics of Estonia and Latvia, where pro-independence movements are also strong but more cautiously working toward a break with Moscow.

A Lithuanian Interior Ministry official and a Lithuanian journalist both said on condition of anonymity that two Lithuanian police officers were beaten by the soldiers when they tried to intervene.

An ABC television crew arriving at the scene was held at gunpoint and forced to surrender all its videotape.

Gen. Valentin Varennikov, commander of Soviet land forces, was quoted by Tass as saying the arrests were necessary because: "Deserters, who have become militants in the Sajudis nationalist organization, were undergoing special training ... in one of the buildings of the hospital."

British minister brings message to Pampa

By BETH MILLER
Staff Writer

The Rev. David King of England is in Pampa this week and his visit signifies not only his first trip to the United States, but a chance for residents to hear the Christian message brought in a different accent and possibly a different manner.

King is speaking at the First United Methodist Church each morning at a 6:45 breakfast service and each evening at 7 through Thursday as part of the New World Mission Revival. Dr. Max Browning, pastor of the local church, extends a welcome to the public to attend the services.

King is one of 30 people from different countries who arrived in the United States two weeks ago. The group first went to Nashville, Tenn., for an orientation which lasted four days. Then they split up and are each spending about a week at each of three churches across the United States.

The Pampa church is the second King has been to. His first engagement was at Jerseyville, Ill., about 50 miles from St. Louis. He will spend next week at Fort Atkinson in Wisconsin and return to England in a week from Saturday.

Describing the New World Mission, a program of the United Methodist Church's Board of Discipleship, King said the program normally takes place every other year and so far 300 people have participated in the program.

"The concept is inviting people from a number of countries into a different country and they're presenting the Christian gospel as the local pastor would, but they're using their language, their accent, their illustrated stories and to some extent I think there's something different about hearing the Christian message from the concept of a different culture and a different tradition, really."

This year's group includes people from the Soviet Union, South Africa, Ireland, India and Australia, as well as other countries.

Talking about the differences

King has noticed in England and the United States, he said size stands out in his mind. "The whole size of the place. I mean, England is so very, very small. The scale of things and people eating out at the eating houses is different."

In Pampa as well as other parts of the country, King said he has felt welcomed. "I think there's a tremendous warmth among the American people, at least those that I've met and obviously that's a minority, but I've come across a very rich warmth."

The English minister said increased church attendance in the United States also distinguishes it from England.

"We have started to put out of a decline. But there was a decline in the worshiping life of the church in Britain, numerically."

King said different theories have been made as to why the church attendance declined, but he thinks one reason deals with World War II. "I think that after the first World War the general feeling was things like this can't happen again, and they did," he said.

Also, materialism took over and television came into being, as well as community centers, all of which began to take the place of the church, he explained.

"Also, perhaps, the church at times has not been as vigorous as it might have been in proclaiming the Christian gospel and so there developed a spiritual apathy. We've got signs of good hope and a regaining of confidence, now, though."

England also has fewer denominations than the United States and not as many variations of churches.

In the Methodist Church in England, the music is more progressive,

King said. "There are a number of rich modern Christian song writers in England."

Another difference in the two countries is the "room" or actual space. Speaking in generalizations, King said that most of the housing in Britain is much closer together and the yards are much smaller than in the United States.

King shared his story of how he got into the ministry. He said he left school when he was 15 years old and began working as a laborer for the Parks and Gardens. His supervisor suggested he attend horticulture school at college. Through the supervisor's reference and King taking some night classes, that two years of schooling became possible.

"During the time at horticulture college, although I'd been involved

Greyhound strike violence hits Amarillo bus terminal

By The Associated Press

Violence continued in the Greyhound strike as a shot was fired at a bus terminal in Texas and a bus was struck by gunfire in Florida.

Police and a spokeswoman for the strike-plagued company said no one was hurt Monday when a shot was fired at a crowded bus terminal in Amarillo and gunfire struck a bus near Orlando, Fla.

Greyhound Lines today offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to convictions for shooting at a Greyhound bus or terminal in the drivers' strike now in its fourth week.

"The terrorism must stop," P. Anthony Lannie, executive vice president and chief negotiator for Greyhound, told a news conference. "We hope the reward will bring an end to the violence and help lead to arrest and convictions."

A retired law enforcement officer, usually a former FBI agent, will take information and contact the appropriate law enforcement agency, Greyhound officials said.

Union officials said Greyhound was focusing on the violence issue "as a basic tactic to avoid going back to the bargaining table."

"We view it as a subterfuge," said Nick Nichols, a spokesman for the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions.

Greyhound said it was establishing a toll-free 800 number that will be in operation from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays starting at noon today.

Meanwhile, a California judge ordered striking drivers in the Southwest not to threaten to hurt or kill replacement drivers for the country's only nationwide bus company. The violent incidents Monday were the latest in a 3 1/2 week walk-out by Greyhound drivers.

A bullet destroyed the vehicle's right-hand mirror, but none of the 32 passengers was injured in the incident on Interstate 4 about 30 miles west of Orlando late Monday night, Greyhound spokeswoman Jeanne Fry said.

Ms. Fry said the shot fired at the terminal in Amarillo appeared to have been fired from a passing vehicle.

Workers and passengers initially thought the sound of the shot was a car backfiring, Ms. Fry said. But small holes were found in a window, and police found a 20-gauge shotgun cartridge in the street, authorities said.

Service was not interrupted, Ms. Fry said.

The incidents brought to 28 the number of shootings, including 24 on buses, since the strike against Dallas-based Greyhound began March 2, according to Ms. Fry. No one was hurt in the previous shootings on Greyhound terminals in Tallahassee, Fla., on March 16 and in Chicago on March 2.

Superior Court Judge David Yaffe in Los Angeles issued a preliminary injunction containing the same restrictions in a temporary restraining order March 5.

The injunction against intimidating workers with "fear of bodily harm or death" applies to the southwest region of the bus drivers union, an area extending from Los Angeles to El Paso.

Greyhound alleged that strikers had blocked or damaged buses and harassed replacement workers.

Dr. Max Browning, right, pastor of First United Methodist Church, and the Rev. David King discuss a painting "Offer Them Christ" in the Pampa church. The painting was donated by Ruth Morrison in memory of her father, W.V. Burns, a Methodist minister for 55 years. It depicts John Wesley sending off Thomas Coke in 1784 to the New World. The Rev. King is in Pampa through Thursday as part of the New World Mission program.

Congress holds joint meeting to mark Eisenhower's birthday centennial

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower was remembered today as "a symbol of democratic opportunity" as Congress held a joint meeting to honor the man, born 100 years ago this year, who led Allied armies to victory and became the 34th president of the United States.

"No man did more to rid our planet of the Nazi scourge," Senate Republican leader Bob Dole, himself a disabled veteran of World War II, said in prepared remarks.

"No one gave more in the Cold War against human enslavement," said Dole, from Eisenhower's home state of Kansas. "And no one deserves more gratitude from a world waking up to its own potential."

"A century after his birth, we recognize the man from Abilene as a symbol of democratic opportunity in a world where old oppressions are crumbling like the wall that once artificially divided East from West,"

Dole said.

The Eisenhower Centennial observance in the House chamber was to be followed by lunch at the White House for participants including the president's son, John S.D. Eisenhower, and Winston S. Churchill, the grandson and namesake of the late British prime minister.

Eisenhower, who died 21 years ago on Wednesday, spoke 10 times in the House chamber.

The first time, June 18, 1945, he was supreme commander of the Allied Expeditionary Force, returning from Europe to a hero's welcome that included a joint congressional meeting.

One-quarter of the 100 members of the current Senate and 18 members of the 435-member House served in World War II.

The second time Eisenhower spoke to a joint meeting of Congress, on Feb. 1, 1951, he was supreme allied commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and appealed for arms and leadership to resist communist aggression.

As president from 1953 to 1961, Eisenhower delivered seven State of the Union addresses to joint sessions of Congress — which are more official in nature than joint meetings.

On Jan. 5, 1957, he went before Congress with a special message outlining his "Eisenhower Doctrine" of military and economic aid in the troubled Middle East.

Eisenhower was born Oct. 14, 1890, in a house that now is part of a state park in Denison, Texas. He was one of seven sons of David and Ida Eisenhower. One of the sons died in infancy.

When Dwight was less than a year old the family moved to Abilene, Kan., where the future president grew up and where the Eisenhower Presidential Library now stands.

After West Point and his rise to supreme command in Europe, Eisenhower was twice elected president by large margins in campaigns remembered for red, white and blue buttons reading "I Like Ike."

The Dwight David Eisenhower Centennial Commission, established by Congress to observe the 100th anniversary, has planned observances throughout the year, including a hometown celebration in Abilene on Eisenhower's birthday.

Other events include restoration of Eisenhower's first presidential airplane, the Columbine II; observances and symposia on Memorial Day in Gettysburg, Pa., where he and his wife, Mamie, lived in retirement; programs at the parliaments of Belgium, Italy and Britain; and an observance in Moscow.

Congress voted the commission a one-time authorization of $50,000.

John Eisenhower, 67, a retired Army general, was his father's assistant White House staff secretary from 1958 to 1961 and ambassador to Belgium from 1969 to 1971. He is the author of "The Bitter Woods" and other works of military history.

Winston S. Churchill, 50, has been a member of the British Parliament for 20 years. He has written four books, including an account of his childhood and his memories of his grandfather, Sir Winston Churchill.

Minister

in the life of the church for a few years, I very much started to grow and develop the Christian faith through my links with the Christian Union (a Christian college group)."

King went on to become a Methodist lay preacher. "I very much felt it right to use any qualifications I had received to serve God by serving others in some way."

He began working for Social Services running a garden center at a training unit for mentally handicapped adults, ages 17-25. While working at the center, he also was preaching on the side. During one such meeting, he felt the need to open himself as a candidate for the Methodist ministry although his qualifications were in horticulture.

"I just knew I had to offer. It was a compulsion within and nothing could take it away and then on I started to go to night school again and opened myself as a candidate for the Methodist ministry and I was accepted," he explained.

King trained at Bristol and completed a four-year program in three years. He went to his first Methodist Circuit about 40 miles north of London, where he presided over four churches. He met his wife, Brenda, there and they married. They now have two children, Rachel, 6, and Jonathan, 4.

He moved to his second circuit at Bradford Methodist Mission, where he was also a part-time student chaplain to the university. Now King is serving in Blackpool, on the northwest coast of England. Blackpool is a gathering place for "holiday makers" or tourists from about Easter through November, and King said the church attendance increases dramatically during those times. He is pastor of North Shore Methodist Church and also oversees another smaller church in the Blackpool North Circuit.

King said his church has begun to apply itself more to the needs of the area, due in part to the division between the "have and the have nots" — those who have wealth and those who do not. The church is working among families, many of whom are single-parent. The church is also running a pre-school play group, which is expanding rapidly because of the needs.

And last year, the Grapevine Centre was opened. The center is a gathering place for people to talk about their faith and also sells Bibles and Christian books and offers a non-alcoholic bar. The center also collects clothing for Third World countries.

King said his experiences in the United States will be shared with his church in England. Speaking of what messages he would take to his church, he replied, "The challenge of the world church. We are a world family. That particularly comes out of the Nashville experience ... The global dimension of the church and the diversity ..."

Boy Scouts schedule Skill Show April 7 at Amarillo fairgrounds

Boy Scouts from the Golden Spread Council will host Skill Show '90 on Saturday, April 7, at the Rex Baxter Building on the Tri-State Fairgrounds in Amarillo.

Golden Spread Council serves the panhandles of Texas and Oklahoma.

Southwestern Bell Volunteers, sponsor of the program, noted that 12,000 people attended last year's event, which focuses on the adventure of scouting.

Gary Stevens of Bell noted the Skill Show is one of the major fund-raisers of the year for the council and individual units.

Organizers of the event said there will be a parade to start the show on the fairgrounds at 11:30 a.m., followed by opening ceremonies at 12:30 p.m. The show itself will run from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and include pinewood derby races, Kwahadi and Adobe Walls dancers and rapping demonstrations.

In addition, there will be vendors booths for refreshments.

For additional information on the show, call the Boy Scout office in Amarillo at 358-6500.

Clements sets new special session for April 2

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements is giving lawmakers a second 30-day special session to answer court orders calling for the reform of the school finance system and the method of electing state judges.

"We're not making any progress ... I'm going to have to call them back into another special session," Clements said Monday before announcing lawmakers will return to Austin for a session beginning April 2. The current session must expire at midnight Wednesday.

Clements called lawmakers into special session Feb. 27 — two weeks before the March 13 primary elections — after the Texas Supreme Court last year ruled the school finance system is unconstitutional and a federal judge said the system of electing state judges in several counties violates the federal Voting Rights Act.

Some lawmakers predicted then that political concerns could hamper the progress of legislation, but Clements said he has no regrets about the session's timing.

"I think it was the right thing to do," he said. "It brings a tight focus to the issues."

The Supreme Court gave lawmakers until May 1 to reform the school finance system after finding glaring disparities between property-rich and property-poor school districts. The $13.5 billion-a-year system relies on a combination of local property taxes, state aid and some federal funds.

On the judicial issue, U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton of Midland said the countywide method of electing state judges in the nine urban counties unlawfully diluted minority voting power.

Lawmakers have focused on school finance reform this session, but the issue stalled Thursday when the House rejected a plan to put $511 million more into public schools in 1990-91.

Senators earlier approved a $1.2 billion measure, and legislative leaders had hoped differences could be worked out in a House-Senate conference committee.

The House Public Education and Appropriations committees plan a joint meeting Tuesday, and Lewis said he would like them to come up with an agreement that could win House approval early in the next session.

"I think what you will see is that the House will address an education bill and some other matters in the first 10 days of the next session and be through with it," Lewis said.

Clements said he will keep lawmakers in session longer than the May 1 deadline, if that's what it takes to get a bill that doesn't require new state taxes.

The governor estimated that level at $250 million to $300 million, although Lewis said cutting that much money from other parts of the budget could be painful.

"There will be no tax increase. I don't think the Supreme Court is going to put me in jail," Clements said. "If we run past the deadline, we run past the deadline, but we're going to be here until we get a reasonable bill that the people of Texas will be happy with and that I can accept — and that means with no new taxes, period."

Judicial reform remains on legislative agenda

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he wants lawmakers working on judicial reform to stay in session until the issue is resolved. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby contends it would be better to wait until the Legislature meets in 1991.

Just prior to calling another special legislative session on judicial reform, Clements said Monday, "We will also take that up and give that due consideration in this next special session, and if we don't solve it, then why we'll have us another session. So we'll see."

Judicial reform, which is on the legislative agenda with public school finance, became an issue after U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton ruled that the countywide method of electing state judges in nine urban counties violated the Voting Rights Act.

Bunton ordered special elections for 115 judges this year, but the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans stopped that order to give state lawmakers a chance to act. Counties in the case are Dallas, Harris, Bexar, Tarrant, Travis, Lubbock, Midland, Ector and Jefferson.

Hobby, talking to reporters, said, "I see no consensus emerging about that at all. There may be some consensus emerging about single-member districts for appellate courts, but I'm not even sure about that at this point."

Hobby also said he thought the courts would give the Legislature time to properly redraw judicial districts.

"The courts have certainly shown a willingness to do that so far," he said. "I do think that if single-member districts are really found to be the law of the land, the Legislature in the next session — which will be a redistricting session, operating with new census data, with the hardware and the software and the personnel in place — can do a job on it which the present session cannot."

"I see no real alternative to holding off until 1991," Hobby said. "It's just not physically or logistically possible to draw districts, order elections, all those things, within this year."

Trial on Treaty Oak poisoning delayed until late April

By SUSAN HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The trial for a man accused of pouring poison around the historic Treaty Oak last year has been delayed at least one month.

State District Judge Bob Perkins granted the prosecution's request for a delay and rescheduled the trial of Paul Stedman Cullen for April 30. Jury selection had been set for Monday.

Perkins on Monday also denied a defense motion to release Cullen on personal bond, which has been set at $20,000. Cullen, 46, of Elroy, has been in jail for nine months since he was arrested June 29, 1989 and accused of pouring the herbicide Velpar around the base of the tree.

If convicted, Cullen could be sentenced to life in prison.

About half the tree is budding this spring, tree experts said.

The latest delay stemmed from a new indictment filed against Cullen, changing the charge he faces from damaging the centuries-old Treaty Oak to causing "damage and destruction" of the tree, a change Cullen's defense attorney disputed.

Travis County assistant district attorney LaRu Woody, one of Cullen's prosecutors, said the changes in the indictment were administrative and not intended to imply the tree is dead.

"The statute allows for proof of either damage or destruction," Ms. Woody said. "It's to keep our options open."

Defense attorney Terrence Kirk said he may file a motion to dismiss the new indictment because the state "can't possibly prove" the tree has been destroyed.

"At this moment, the tree is budding and it looks like it's going to live," he said. "I just don't see any basis for alleging that it's destroyed. There's no witnesses that will testify to that."

"I think some quacks have said that they saw the spirit of the tree leave last August, but I don't think the state's going to call them as witnesses," Kirk said.

City forester John Giedraitis said it would be possible to "argue on either side" of whether the tree had been destroyed in legal terms.

"When a tree loses 50 to 60 percent of the crown, it generally constitutes a loss," Giedraitis said.

"The tree isn't dead. It's surviving," Giedraitis said. He also said recent tests show the concentration of poison in the new leaves is very low.

"That's a good sign. If the concentration remains this low, I think we've got a good shot" the tree will survive, he said.

Kirk said his client will have a better chance of receiving a fair trial if the oak is revived.

Cullen faces a felony charge of criminal mischief. If convicted, he could be sentenced to life in prison, because the indictment alleges that he had a previous felony conviction for burglary.

Defense attorneys have argued that Cullen should have been charged instead with desecration of a venerated object, a misdemeanor carrying a maximum punishment of one year in jail and a $2,000 fine.

According to legend, the Treaty Oak was the site of a treaty-signing between Indians and Stephen F. Austin.

Contras, Sandinistas argue over disarming forces

By DORALISA PILARTE
Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — With the ink barely dry on a Contra promise to disband by mid-April, U.S.-backed rebels have streamed into Nicaragua and their military leader says they won't disarm until the Sandinista army does.

"We are speaking of total demobilization — that includes both ourselves and the Sandinistas," rebel military chief, Israel Galeano, said Monday.

International observers said there appeared a split among the Contras over the pact signed Friday in Honduras. Rebel loyalty seemed divided between Oscar Sovalbarro, a commander who signed the agreement, and Galeano, who did not.

The Sandinistas, defeated at the polls last month, have said they won't hand over control of the army and police to the new government headed by Violeta Chamorro until the U.S.-backed rebels turn in their weapons.

There were reports of intensified fighting and, in Washington, the State Department asked the United Nations to increase the number of observers it is sending to the region to so tensions can be kept at a minimum.

The 200-member force is to monitor the disbanding of the Contras and transfer of power from the long-ruling leftist Sandinistas to Mrs. Chamorro's victorious alliance.

Representatives of Chamorro negotiated Friday's accord, which says Contras in Honduran camps will demobilize by April 20, five days before the conservative coalition takes office.

But the agreement sets no deadline for disbanding rebels on Nicaraguan territory, now at least half the 12,000-man Contra army.

Galeano said it was unrealistic to expect immediate demobilization.

"An eight-year process cannot be decided by the dismantling of an organization in 15 days," he said.

Most of the Contra army that set up camps in Honduras after U.S. military aid ended in 1988 began returning to Nicaragua in September. As many as 4,000 were believed in Nicaragua by the Feb. 25 elections.

Sovalbarro, who negotiated the accord for the Contras, said Monday that an "insurgent military contingent of 2,000 rebel fighters" has returned since Friday and "its numbers could increase at any moment."

Contra bases across the border in Yamales, Honduras, are practically empty, according to journalists and international observers.

They "have become ghost camps. There's just a few of them left there," one international observer said on condition of anonymity.

Friday's accord also calls for an immediate cease-fire, a provision the Sandinistas say the Contras have already violated.

The Defense Ministry said that on Friday, a dozen soldiers and four rebels were killed when 100 Contras ambushed Sandinista troops. Chamorro's newspaper, La Prensa, condemned the attack as "terrorism" and insisted the Contra's disband "without fail and without pretext."

Social club fire suspect under suicide watch

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A Cuban immigrant accused of torching a club to avenge a romantic snub was under a suicide watch in a psychiatric ward today after allegedly telling police he set the blaze because "the devil got into me."

Julio Gonzalez, 36, was taken Monday from a city jail to Kings County Hospital after allegedly confessing to setting the fire Sunday that killed 87 people at the jammed Happy Land Social Club, an illegal Bronx nightclub.

Police said Gonzalez, accused of the biggest mass murder in the continental United States, was remorseful and in tears when questioned about the fire.

District Attorney Robert Johnson is investigating the building's ownership and lease to determine whether the landlords or owner face liabilities for allowing the club to operate despite a shutdown order, the Daily News reported today.

One of the landlords is entrepreneur Jay Weiss, husband of actress Kathleen Turner. His company was leasing the building from a corporation headed by Alex DiLorenzo 3rd, a major city property owner.

Early childhood conference scheduled April 7 in Pampa

Teachers of kindergarten, pre-kindergarten, transitional-first, first and second grade public school classes in Region 16 are being invited to a regional conference on early childhood at Austin Elementary in Pampa on Saturday, April 7.

Teri Hackler, an Austin teacher, said participants will receive six hours of advanced academic credits from the Texas Education Agency.

Hackler said the conference is being sponsored by KToT, Kindergarten Teachers of Texas.

Cost for the conference is $10. A catered lunch from Dyer's Bar-B-Que will cost $5. Hackler said information may be obtained by calling 669-6090. Registration forms should be returned to 2309 Cherokee, Pampa, 79065.

Weiss' attorney, Roger Boyle, confirmed his client's involvement in the building but said Weiss' company had tried to evict the Happy Land manager, Elias Colon. The eviction proceeding against Colon, who died in the fire, was to have gone to trial Wednesday, Boyle said.

Across from the fire-blackened club in an impoverished neighborhood near the Bronx Zoo, families drifted in and out of Public School 67, where agencies helped arrange funerals and offered counseling and financial aid.

"There are a lot of outbursts of grief," said Ken Curtin, a Red Cross disaster relief director.

Acting in the direction of an angry Mayor David Dinkins, city authorities early Monday ordered 187 other illegal social clubs closed, officials said.

Police issued 52 safety violations and 30 summonses, said Sgt. Dick Vreeland.

Police said Gonzalez had vowed to "shut this place down" after an argument with ex-girlfriend Lydia Feliciano, a Happy Land employee who had split with the unemployed Gonzalez several months ago.

"I got angry, the devil got into me, and I set the place on fire," Gonzalez told authorities, according to a police source who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Gonzalez was arraigned on 87 counts of murder committed in the course of arson; 87 counts of murder by depraved indifference to human life; one count of attempted murder, and two counts of arson.

Bronx District Attorney Robert T. Johnson said he hoped Gonzalez would get consecutive sentences amounting to 2,000 years in prison if convicted.

Gonzalez, who was jailed for army desertion in Cuba in the 1970s, came to the United States from Cuba on the 1980 Mariel boatlift. He told immigration officials he had portrayed himself as a drug trafficker to get kicked out of Cuba, The New York Times reported.

The victims of Sunday's fire, many of them Honduran immigrants, suffocated, burned or were trampled to death. They had to "choose between a wall of fire or retreating and dying of asphyxiation," Johnson said.

Police believe five people escaped: three patrons; Ms. Feliciano, and the club disc jockey, Ruben Valadares.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

The taxman cometh, if Bush won't stop him

The last time Rep. Dan Rostenkowski made it big in the news was after angry constituents chased him down a street in Chicago, his hometown. They were outraged that he supported the disastrous catastrophic health-care act that walloped retired Americans up to $800 per year, or $1,600 per couple. The act was repealed.

Now Rep. Rostenkowski, head of the House Ways and Means Committee, has come up with an idea that should earn him similar treatment. He has proposed tax hikes that would hurt everyone while giving an uppercut to the economy. He wants to boost taxes on gasoline, cigarettes and alcohol, while raising the income tax rate from 28 percent to 33 percent for top-income wage earners.

The proposal includes a one-year freeze on most federal programs, including Social Security payments. Thus, the $100 billion federal budget deficit would supposedly be reduced by a combination of new revenues and lower spending. But we've seen this trick before.

In 1982, President Reagan signed a $98 billion tax hike because Congress prevented him triple that in spending cuts. We sure got the taxes, but instead of decreasing, spending in 1983 rose by 8.4 percent, $63 billion, and the deficit ballooned to $208 billion.

A study by economists Lowell Gallaway and Richard Vedder of Ohio University found that between 1947 and 1987, every $1 in new taxes brought $1.58 in new spending. So Rep. Rostenkowski's tax boosts will not bring lower spending, but likely will fuel a new spending binge.

No wonder Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole called the Rostenkowski plan a "good step." Sen. Dole seldom sees a tax he doesn't like. As chairman of the Senate Finance Committee in 1982, he led the push for the three-for-one budget flimflam. Said Dole of the Rostenkowski plan: "His proposal could be the wakeup call we've been waiting for. We'll see who answers it."

Is one who answered the call President Bush? He said Rostenkowski's plans could help "break the ice" in talks for a budget agreement between the White House and Capitol Hill. Is Bush giving up his "no new taxes" pledge? He insists: "No, I'm not for a tax [increase]."

Bush may just be humoring Rostenkowski, an old pal from the president's days in the House. And Bush may know just how bad a tax increase would be. For one, it would actually reduce revenue and so worsen the budget deficit. As predicted by the Laffer curve, it is tax cuts that actually increase revenue. The 1981 tax cut dropped the top income tax rate from 70 percent to 50 percent; by 1985 the top 1 percent of taxpayers paid almost 20 percent more in taxes than they had in 1981.

Why? Because they took their money out of tax shelters and invested it in taxable businesses that fueled the economic boom we've enjoyed nationally for the past eight years. A tax hike now would risk reversing the boom.

Bush should take Rostenkowski aside and inform him that no tax hike, leading to a possible recession just before the 1992 presidential election, will be allowed.

Berry's World

Producing a zombie nation?

There is good news and bad news about cocaine. The bad news is that captive monkeys given unlimited access to the stuff will sprun everything else to get high, until they die of starvation.

The good news is you're not a monkey. In a society of lower primates, who are incapable of prudent restraint in the use of mind-altering substances, legalizing cocaine and other illicit drugs would probably be a bad idea. When it comes to humans, the issue looks a bit different.

We know that a 20-year government effort to stamp out illicit drug use has been a colossal failure. We know it has swallowed vast amounts of money, prison space and police time. We know it has spawned epidemics of violent crime in the inner city, much as Prohibition sparked gangland wars.

What we don't know is what would happen if drugs were legal. Would we become a nation of zombies — a "citizenry that is perpetually in a drug-induced haze," as drug czar William Bennett predicts?

Bennett says we don't have to try legalization to know how horrible it would be: "We have just undergone a kind of cruel national experiment in which drugs became cheap and widely available: That experiment is called the crack epidemic."

But what keeps clean-living citizens like Bennett from becoming crackheads? Is it the fear of jail? If crack were sold at a legal outlet around the corner, would he pick up a case? Would Miss America? Would you?

Not likely. A poll sponsored by the Drug Policy Foundation asked Americans if they would try illicit drugs if they were legal. Of those who had never tried marijuana before, only 4.2 percent said they would try it. Fewer than 1 percent of those who had never used cocaine said they'd take it out for a test drive.

That 1 percent can be mightily grateful to Bill Bennett for deterring them. The other 99 percent gain essentially nothing from the drug war. In fact, if they live in the inner city, the drug war puts them in danger every day, by reserving the business for violent people with lots of guns and ammo.

The poll confirms the few experiments with drug tolerance. After the Netherlands practically legalized marijuana in 1976, its use declined. In the various U.S. states that decriminalized marijuana in the 1970s, pot grew less popular.

Even if everyone were tempted to sample the newly legal drugs, very few would imitate monkeys. The government's National Institute on Drug Abuse says 22 million Americans have used cocaine at least once. Of these, 8.2 million have used it in the last year. Just 862,000 use it every week. That doesn't sound like a ferociously addictive drug.

When it comes to crack, a smokable form of cocaine which is allegedly more tenacious in its hold, no one knows how exactly many addicts there are. But NIDA says fewer than one in five of the 2.5 million people who have tried it are regular users, blasting off at least once a month. Bennett's

"epidemic" has afflicted no more than one American in 500.

Crack is supposed to be uniquely destructive because of the severe damage it does to fetuses. Propagandists for the drug war claim that 375,000 "crack babies" are born every year, requiring billions of dollars in extra medical care. But the government itself says there are fewer than half a million people who smoke crack regularly. Apparently we're supposed to believe that four out of every five of them give birth each year.

In fact, despite being cheap and widely available, crack hasn't produced mass addiction. Why not?

The best explanation comes from Dartmouth neuroscientist Micheal Gazzaniga in a recent interview in National Review magazine. Only a small portion of the population is inclined to abuse drugs (including alcohol), and these people will systematically wreck themselves with whatever is at hand, he says. But those who aren't prone to abuse won't become addicts regardless of what drugs are legally available.

"In our culture alone," said Gazzaniga, "70 percent to 80 percent of us use alcohol, and the abuse rate is now estimated at 5 percent to 6 percent. We see at work here a major feature of the human response to drug availability, namely, the inclination to moderation." People allowed to make free choices generally make sound ones.

But a recognition that humans can use freedom wisely is not one of the distinguishing traits of those behind the drug war, who can imagine all sorts of costs from legalization but can't see the real ones from prohibition. If the citizenry ever emerges from the haze produced by the drug war, it may realize that the greatest harms are the ones we've already got.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, March 27, the 86th day of 1990. There are 279 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On March 27, 1977, 582 people were killed in aviation's worst disaster when a KLM Boeing 747, attempting to take off, crashed into a Pan Am 747 on a runway on the Canary Island of Tenerife.

On this date:
In 1512, Spanish explorer Juan Ponce de Leon sighted Florida.

In 1625, Charles I, King of England, Scotland and Ireland, ascended the throne upon the death of James I.

In 1794, President Washington and Congress authorized creation of the U.S. Navy.

In 1836, the first Mormon temple was dedicated, in Kirtland, Ohio.

In 1860, M.L. Byrn of New York City patented a corkscrew.

In 1884, the first long-distance telephone call was made, between Boston and New York.

In 1958, Nikita Khrushchev became Soviet premier in addition to first secretary of the Communist Party.

And every new day is a bonus

A lot of people who watched that awful tape that showed Hank Gathers convulsing and dying on the basketball floor probably asked, "Why did he keep playing? He knew he had a heart problem."

I know why he did it. He did it because he was 23 years old, basketball was his life and his planet, and he was certain he would live forever — heart problem or no heart problem.

I've been there. When I was 15, I had to have a physical in order to play in a baseball tournament. The doctor listened to my heart and told my mother and me that I had a "heart murmur."

The first thing I asked the doctor was, "Can I still play ball?"

He said I could but to keep my heart checked regularly. If he had said I couldn't play, I probably would have found a way to play anyway.

I basically forgot about my heart murmur. I played baseball and basketball in high school. It never occurred to me I could drop dead in the middle of the game.

I lived for sports, and I was certain I would live forever, too.

I took up tennis when I was 23. I played tennis every day.

When I was 35, my doctor called me into his office after a physical and told me my heart murmur was actually a faulty aortic valve.

Then, he said the most frightening words I've ever heard in my life.

"You need heart surgery."

My first question, even at 35? Simple: "Can I still play tennis after this is over?"

The doctor said, "We'll see."

The operation was a success. My doctor said I could play tennis again as long as I stuck to doubles and didn't get overworked.

I played singles and continued to play every day. Often I played all day long.

Three years later, I had a second valve surgery.

The first implant became infected and had to be replaced. I came close to dying.

But even after that, the doctors still said I could play tennis under the previous restrictions, which I had ignored.

But I wasn't 15, nor even 35 anymore. I was over 40.

I tried playing tennis again, but a new thought had crept inside my head. That thought was: "Is it safe for me to be running around out here on the tennis court with heart disease?"

I decided I could drop dead on the court. I gave up tennis.

If Hank Gathers had lived long enough, that question eventually would have gotten to him.

He might even have quit pro basketball in the midst of his prime.

Aging does things like that. It puts your eyeball to eyeball with reality.

I must have seen that tape 10 times on television and each time I saw it I thought, "That could have happened to me."

This heart thing will kill me one day, if something else doesn't get me first.

But I'm thankful I at least got 20 more years than Hank Gathers got.

And every new day is a bonus.

When celebrities endorse products ...

By SARAH OVERSTREET

Earlier this year, actor Lloyd Bridges made history. He agreed to an out-of-court settlement of a lawsuit that was filed by people who lost their shirts to a couple of crooks he had shilled for.

The lawsuit alleged Bridges misrepresented investment products in TV ads he made for the men, who are now doing time in prison for fraud. His lawyers say the settlement will have a chilling effect on the use of celebrities in advertisements.

"In the end, the risk associated with celebrity endorsements may not be justified by the rewards," one of Bridges' attorneys said.

"The fact that a celebrity is merely reading a script may no longer be an excuse," said another.

Aw, pass me a tissue.

Ever since the first ad man conceived of having a well-known personality sell Dr. Feelgood's Premium Cough Elixir, we've been listening to these famous yahoos lie to us. Their excuse? "We're just reading a script."

If you're just a poor schmoe of an actor trying to scrape together a living, it's one thing to read a bunch of words and not have a clue if they're true or not.

But when you're a celebrity, people believe you when you read words like, "I love the way Bertha's Blonding Bleach makes my hair feel ... It's a little more expensive, but I'm worth it." They buy the product.

But does Meredith Baxter Birney really use Preference? Does Linda Evans trust her million-dollar mane to Ultrass?

Do-it-yourself hair coloring products smell bad, burn your scalp, drip down your neck and take the dye out of your clothes. They can turn your hair tangerine if you don't follow directions exactly. Television stars depend on swell-looking hair for their livelihood, so they have professionals color it. Why, then, do they say they use shampoo-in home hair color?

The reply: "We're just reading the script."

In the last few years, not only have we been treated to the likes of Bill Cosby hawking Jello pudding, Jerry Hall throwing over Pepsi for Coke and journalist (you remember journalists, they're the folks pledged to bring us the truth and protect our right to know) Linda Ellerbee selling coffee, we've also been entertained for hours by celebrities in "paid promotional programs."

If you haven't had the pleasure of watching "paid promotional programming," they are the long advertisements that masquerade as informational programs.

In one, actor Dick Van Patten and his wife "visit" a couple in their lovely home, lovely boat and lovely plane, and fawn while the couple explain the get-rich quick secrets of the real estate investment program they want to sell you.

If Van Patten's excuse in this one is that he's "just reading a script," he certainly doesn't try to hide it. I saw more realistic emoting in a junior high production of Grease.

And now, to add insult to injury, these celebrities are starting to ply us with guilt. "It's the RIGHT THING TO DO," Wilford Brimley tells us about Quaker oats, his loving old grandpa eyes locked seriously with ours and almost brimming with tears.

Watch out, Wilford. I read recently where surgeons had to remove a serious intestinal blockage from a man — that's right, Wilford, it was oat bran, packed solid.

If the next health crisis turns out to be oat-packed intestines, you may find yourself in court.

'Driving Miss Daisy' named best film at Academy Awards

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Academy Awards celebrated movies low in budget but rich in talent as Driving Miss Daisy took the Oscar for best picture and actress, while My Left Foot won for best actor and supporting actress.

Jessica Tandy, who played the combative Southern widow who'd rather walk in Driving Miss Daisy, became the oldest performer to win an Oscar at age 80.

A surprised Miss Tandy wondered aloud why the producers cast an actress whose career has mostly been on stage to play a lead in a movie.

"I think I'm very lucky they trusted me with such a wonderful part," she said backstage at the Los Angeles Music Center. "I never thought of myself as a movie actress."

The movie, about the widow's growing friendship with her black chauffeur, won four prizes, the most of any in the 62nd annual Academy Awards on Monday night. It took screenplay honors, for Alfred Uhry's adaptation of his Pulitzer Prize-winning play, and the makeup Oscar.

Daniel Day-Lewis was named best actor for My Left Foot, the emotional account of artist-poet Christy Brown's battle against cerebral palsy. Brenda Fricker, who played Brown's selfless mother, won for supporting actress.

The Civil War movie Glory drew three prizes, and another high-priced war film, Born on the Fourth of July, won two, best director for Oliver Stone and best editing.

Denzel Washington, who played a runaway slave turned soldier in Glory, got the supporting actor Oscar. The film about the first black regiment to fight in the Civil War also gathered trophies for cinematographer Freddie Francis and for best sound.

"My son said he was going to make one of these out of clay for me, now I've got a model for him," an exultant Washington said as he held up his gold statue, first award of the evening.

Stone won a directing Oscar for the 1986 movie Platoon.

Born on the Fourth of July, the account of Ron Kovic's passage from gung-ho soldier to disabled anti-war protester, was among the most hyped Oscar contenders, as was its star, Tom Cruise.

But Academy voters seemed determined to ignore the efforts of the immodest, favoring instead those films whose path to the screen was more unconventional.

The award for art direction went to Batman, which was the top moneymaker of 1989 at $251 million but failed to win a nomination in any other category. Another top box-office draw, Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade, won for sound effects editing. The Oscar for visual effects went to the $60 million underwater thriller The Abyss.

The makers of Driving Miss Daisy, on the other hand, had to cut the production budget almost in half — to $7.5 million — because studios feared it wouldn't be a commercial success. It is. It has grossed $74.5 million. My Left Foot was made for a paltry $3 million and distributed by independent Miramax Films.

Miss Daisy was dropped by MGM-UA and picked up by Warner Bros., which provided only part of its budget. Producers Richard and Lili Zanuck found foreign financing and slashed their costs to get the film made.

The movie's director, Bruce Beresford, wasn't even nominated for an award, a fact lamented by several award winners and presenters. In his opening remarks, show host Billy Crystal described Driving Miss Daisy as "the movie that apparently directed itself."

My Left Foot carried the imprint of one man, too — Christy Brown.

"For everyone involved in the film, all our desire to make the film, all the strength that we needed, all the pleasure that we took in making the film came from Christy Brown," Day-Lewis said.

The Dublin-born Miss Fricker gave thanks to "Christy Brown, just for being alive, and to his mother, Mrs. Brown. Anybody who gives birth 22 times deserves one," she said, referring to the Oscar.

Italy's Cinema Paradiso, a reminiscence of growing up in a Sicilian village, was named best foreign film.

The announcement of the foreign film award came after an ear-rattling satellite feed from Moscow, where Jack Lemmon and Soviet actress Natalya Negoda announced nominees with a triple echo reverberating through the sound system. There also were satellite feeds from Australia, Argentina and England.

The show, seen by an estimated 1 billion viewers in 90 countries, ran a long 3 hours and 34 minutes.

Disney's much-praised animated fairy tale The Little Mermaid won two Oscars — best song for the calypso "Under the Sea," and best original score.

Japanese filmmaker Akira Kurosawa, director of such classics as Rashomon, The Seven Samurai and Ran, received an honorary Oscar.

In his acceptance speech the 80-year-old master struck a humble note, saying, "I really don't feel yet that I have grasped the essence of cinema."

Henry V took the prize for costume design. Tom Schulman, author of Dead Poet's Society, won for best original screenplay.

First heart, liver, kidney transplant recipient dies

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The world's first recipient of a heart, liver and kidney transplant has died, nearly four months after the triple transplant, hospital officials said today.

Cindy Martin died Monday evening at Presbyterian-University Hospital, said administrator Pat Carlier. Mrs. Martin was 26.

The cause of death was not disclosed, Ms. Carlier said.

Mrs. Martin underwent a 21 1/2-hour transplant operation Dec. 2-3.

Although multi-organ transplants have been performed previously, this was the first involving these three organs, according to Dr. John Armitage, who performed the heart transplant for Mrs. Martin.

Mrs. Martin had suffered from familial cardiomyopathy, an inherited heart disease. Her father died when he was 31 and many relatives of his relatives died at a young age. Mrs. Martin's husband, John Martin, said in December.

Mrs. Martin of Archbald received her first heart transplant in November 1985. She later suffered from chronic rejection of the heart and developed hepatitis and kidney dysfunction, according to the hospital.

Florida thrift collapse could top $2 billion, examiners say

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is examining $328,000 in political donations by the chairman of a failed Florida thrift, while a top regulator says the institution's failure could rival the $2.5 billion collapse of Lincoln Savings and Loan Association.

A "fraud squad" of federal examiners is investigating the legality of contributions from CenTrust Savings Bank Chairman David L. Paul to state and national politicians, said L. William Seidman, head of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Resolution Trust Corp.

The propriety of meetings between Paul and politicians and regulators also is being examined, Seidman said Monday.

Any evidence of wrongdoing will be given to the Justice Department, he said.

Seidman, in testimony to the House Banking Committee, said the failure of Miami-based CenTrust, Florida's largest S&L, will cost taxpayers "probably in excess of $2 billion."

Until now most analysts counted Lincoln, based in Irvine, Calif., as the nation's worst S&L collapse.

"It's going to be a horse race and I'm afraid that whoever the winner is, it's going to set a record," Seidman said.

CenTrust, which spent millions of dollars on yachts, limousines, fine art, gold-plated toilets and other luxuries, was seized by the government Feb. 2.

It made few residential mortgages and specialized in junk bond investing, many underwritten by Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc.

Rep. Chalmers Wylie of Ohio, the ranking Republican on the Banking Committee, released a list of Paul's political contacts, which included a luncheon with former President Carter in June 1988. Paul met twice with Sen. Donald

W. Riegle, D-Mich., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, in November 1987 and August 1988. The second meeting included Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., the No. 2 ranking Democrat in the Senate.

Riegle and Cranston are among the so-called "Keating five" — senators who accepted political contributions from Keating and are accused of improperly intervening with federal regulators on his behalf.

Paul's desk calendar, according to Wylie, showed that Sens. Bob Graham, D-Fla.; Timothy Wirth, D-Colo.; and John Kerry, D-Mass., flew on CenTrust's corporate jet in 1987 and 1988.

All are now members of the Senate Banking Committee, although Kerry was not at the time.

The CenTrust chairman held receptions aboard his $7 million yacht maintained at company expense in September 1988 for Louisiana Democratic Sens. J. Bennett Johnston and John Breaux. Atlanta-based federal regulators told the House Banking Committee they were not contacted by politicians on behalf of CenTrust, although they said Paul frequently bragged of his connections.

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, chairman of the banking panel, said examiners in Atlanta recommended seizing CenTrust as early as January 1986 but were ignored by superiors in Washington.

Paul met four times with M. Danny Wall, then chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board — in September and November 1987 and January and June 1988.

Paul had been scheduled to testify to the committee, but he said through an attorney that he had not decided whether to appear. Gonzalez gave Paul two weeks to set a date and said he could be subpoenaed if the committee approves.

A list of political contributions provided by Seidman showed that most of Paul's gifts were to Democrats, although Republicans received some smaller donations.

My mother was ill a long time before she died. At first we didn't want anyone to see her before the funeral. We were afraid she wouldn't look like herself. When you gently said, "Let us see what we can do before you decide," we agreed. After seeing the results of your work we were so pleased and relieved! You gave us a beautiful memory of our mother and a meaningful way to say "good-bye."

Japan offers U.S. 80 suggestions for improving nation's economy

TOKYO (AP) — Japan has given the United States a list of 80 suggestions on improving the U.S. economy, including a proposal to limit the number of credit cards American consumers could hold, a newspaper reported Monday.

The aggressive measures also include imposing a value-added tax, abolishing income tax deductions on housing loans, and building high-speed railroads to reduce reliance on energy-wasting cars, Yomiuri Shimbun reported.

The measures were aimed at cutting the $49 billion U.S. trade deficit, curbing excessive consumer spending and helping balance the federal budget, the nationally circulated newspaper said.

The proposals were made during unofficial talks between U.S. and Japanese trade negotiators in Warrenton, Va., to discuss economic reforms aimed at shrinking the trade imbalance, the newspaper said.

In the latest round of meetings, dubbed the "Structural Impediments Initiative," U.S. officials urged Japan to revise land use policies, streamline its retail distribution system and boost consumption of imports through public investment.

Japanese officials have, in turn, urged the United States to cut its federal budget deficit, increase savings and investments, and improve worker training and education to boost the competitiveness of American exports.

A Foreign Ministry official refused to comment on the newspaper report.

Last week, another Japanese newspaper, the Asahi Shimbun, said Washington gave Japan a list of more than 200 suggestions aimed at eliminating structural barriers it said prevent foreign firms from entering Japanese markets.

The U.S. list included a proposal to increase public works spending from 6.8 percent to 10 percent of Japan's gross national product in the next years.

Japanese and U.S. officials began discussing trade barriers last year. Each nation is to come up with an interim report on the talks in early April. A final report is expected in July.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu told an upper house Budget Committee session Monday he believed the United States was "making an effort to reduce excessive consumption, promote exports of manufactured products to Japan, change short-term management styles to a long-term outlook, and improve U.S. education."

Workplace schools aid youngsters at places where parents have jobs

By CATHERINE WILSON
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — A three-year-old program under which youngsters go to school where mom or dad works is going strong in Miami, helping employers attract and keep working parents.

"I think the way society is going right now, it's almost a necessity in very many situations," said Joseph Reynolds, a Pan Am worker who each day drives his son Brian home from first grade at the satellite learning center at Miami International Airport. His wife, Linda, another Pan Am employee, takes Brian to school in the morning.

Dade County operates the satellite schools, which are built by major employers for employees' children at the airport, a suburban insurance company and a community college.

Three other Florida cities have schools in place or in the works, and inquiries have come from as far as Japan and Australia. New York City schools Chancellor Joe Fernandez, the former superintendent of Dade County schools, earlier this month proposed setting up satellite schools in Manhattan office buildings.

The Miami program, designed for kindergarten to second grade, has gotten some rave reviews.

The three satellite schools, with 160 children enrolled in six classes, help the district with overcrowding, capital outlays and transportation costs because parents are responsible for driving their children, say school officials.

Employers say turnover, absenteeism and tardiness are down, while productivity and morale are up.

"It changes the attitudes of the workers. Their attention at the job site changes because they don't have to worry about where their children are," said Dade County School Board Chairman William Turner.

About the only drawback, some say, is that the mini-school students are not exposed to the "big school" assemblies, big libraries and other benefits that come with size. There is only one class per grade at each satellite school.

At American Bankers Insurance Group, absenteeism is 25 percent less for employees with children in the company's day care and satellite school, said Philip J. Sharkey, senior vice president of human resources. Companywide turnover was 14.5 percent last year but only 5 percent for parents with children in the programs. Recruitment is easy.

"Tardiness among those employees has almost become nonexistent," he said. "That all translates to better productivity within the organization."

Under the program in Miami, the 280,000-student district provides the staff and teaching materials. The employer can spend up to $350,000 on the school building and is responsible for maintenance and utilities.

The next satellite schools are expected to open in September at a suburban hospital and a downtown government office tower.

"Anywhere you have a skilled female work force, you've got to have it," said Joe Tekerman, executive assistant to the superintendent in Dade schools.

He sees hospitals as a natural site, saying: "In years to come, that'll be a perk. They won't be able to get nurses if they don't have child care or a satellite learning center."

The question of student performance is still an unknown. Second-graders took the first formal standardized tests used for comparison, and the inaugural second-grade class at American Bankers will be tested this spring.

Study gives six factors raising risk of skin cancer

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — People with one or more of six characteristics run higher than normal risks of getting the deadliest form of skin cancer, a new study suggests.

Because of its high curability in early stages, and the ease in identifying likely susceptible people, "no one should die from melanoma," said researcher Darrell Rigel of New York University.

Melanoma is expected to kill 6,300 Americans this year, according to the American Cancer Society. Some 27,600 new cases of melanoma, caused chiefly by excessive exposure to the sun, are expected this year.

Rigel described the new study at a science writers conference sponsored by the cancer society. The work included data from 200 people with or without melanoma, and considered 43 possible factors that might have been found to contribute to the disease.

Six factors appeared to raise the risk of melanoma: blond or red hair; marked freckling of the upper back; the presence of rough red bumps on the skin called actinic keratoses that come from sun exposure; a history of other family members with melanoma; a history of three or more blistering sunburns during the teen-age years; and having spent three or more years at an outdoor summer job as a teen-ager.

Having any one or two of these factors gives a person a three to four times increased chance of developing melanoma, the study suggested. The combination of three or more factors gave an increase of 20 to 25 times, Rigel said.

The overall risk of getting melanoma for Americans is estimated to be about one in 120, Rigel said.

It was one in 250 in 1980 and is forecast to be one in 90 in the year 2000, he said. Scientists blame much of the trend on increases in the time people spend on the beach, and skimpier swimsuits.

Rigel said people at high risk of melanoma should learn the so-called 'ABCD' method.

Because melanoma takes 10 to 20 years to appear after damage from the sun, Rigel said, the behavior of people in the 1960s and 1970s has only recently begun to show up in melanoma rates.

Lawrence Garfinkel, the cancer society's vice president for epidemiology and statistics, said previous research gives "good evidence" to support the conclusions of Rigel's study of risk factors.

Rigel said people at high risk of melanoma should learn the so-called "ABCD" method of identifying melanoma early.

The "A" refers to the asymmetry of melanoma's mole-like growth, in which one half does not match the other. "B" stands for border irregularity, because the edges of the growth are ragged, notched or blurred.

"C" refers to color, which varies within the growth. And "D" stands for the growth's diameter of greater than six millimeters, about the size of a pencil eraser.

Rigel said research suggests that if melanoma is detected while the lesions are still thinner than about one thirty-second of an inch, the 15-year survival rate is about 98 percent. In contrast, if lesions are more than about one-eighth of an inch thick when the cancer is discovered, the survival rate is about 53 percent, he said.

Melanoma spreads to other parts of the body more quickly than many other cancers, he said. A melanoma growth that is the size of a dime has probably already spread cancer cells elsewhere, he said.

In a separate presentation, another researcher said experimental treatments that use the body's disease-fighting immune system show some promise against melanoma in early studies.

One approach uses a "theraccine," an abbreviation of "therapeutic vaccine," so-named because it aims to fight cancer rather than prevent disease, said Malcolm Mitchell of the University of Southern California School of Medicine in Los Angeles.

U.S. policy now focusing on war-torn El Salvador

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Nicaragua and Panama added to the democratic column, U.S. policy in Central America is focusing anew on the hottest remaining trouble spot: tiny, war-torn El Salvador.

A shadow version of El Salvador's conflict is being played out in Washington, between supporters of the current government who argue for more time to resolve the country's decade-old civil war, and opponents who want to immediately cut or attach strings to U.S. military aid.

The issue has been taken to the streets as well as the halls of government.

About 10,000 people calling for a halt to military aid marched in front of the White House on Saturday and 5,000 participated in a similar demonstration in San Francisco. Police arrested 83 protesters at the Washington march for demonstrating without a permit and blocking traffic.

The clash over aid is occurring at a particularly delicate time in El Salvador. The two warring sides have agreed to come together for peace talks under United Nations auspices, and as a scheduled trial approaches for the military officers accused of murdering six Jesuit priests.

In addition, the leftist FMLN rebels are under pressure as never before to make concessions. The electoral defeat last month of the Sandinista government in neighboring Nicaragua is expected to close off their most reliable military supply line.

"I honestly believe conditions have never been better in the history of this conflict than they are right now," Bernard Aronson, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, said last week. "I think we can end this war this year."

But Aronson added: "If it becomes politicized ... we will once again screw it up."

Liberals on Capitol Hill claim broad support for an effort to impose strict new conditions on U.S. aid to El Salvador, which is among the largest per-capita recipients of American largesse. Military, economic, development and food aid total $345.4 million this year to the nation of 5 million, and President Bush has asked for about $375 million next year.

Opponents contend that nearly $4 billion in aid over the past decade has not brought an end to the war that has claimed some 70,000 lives, and that the Salvadoran military remains beyond the control of the civilian government and prone to human rights abuses and death-squad activity.

House supporters of aid restrictions are drafting legal language that would withhold half of the money that goes to the Salvadoran military — $84.6 million this year, an expected $90 million next year — and make its release dependent on both sides' behavior.

The provision, a variation of legislation introduced in the Senate by Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., is aimed at adding pressure to keep both sides at the bargaining table and to minimize hostilities in the field.

Those who would restrict the military aid see the potential for strong leverage with Bush if they succeed in adding their proposal to an $870 million supplemental appropriations bill the president is seeking to reward new democracies in Panama and Nicaragua.

The administration believes that the new governments of President Guillermo Endara in Panama and President-elect Violeta Chamorro in Nicaragua could falter unless they are able to quickly demonstrate tangible benefits of democracy to their people. The aid would go to revitalize Panama's private sector and to plant spring crops and create jobs in Nicaragua's devastated economy.

JOINT PROBLEM, MUSCLE PAIN

If you've developed symptoms that make you think you have arthritis, it would be wise to have an examination to see if the muscles in the affected area are out of balance.

Muscles help keep a joint stable and assist it through its normal range of motion. But if the muscles on one side of the joint are weak, this puts a strain on the joint. It may also cause arthritic-like symptoms.

The doctor of Chiropractic will test the muscles to determine their balance and strength. He will also evaluate nerve patterns and may take an x-ray to study the joint structure involved. Perhaps some laboratory procedures will also be needed.

If the problem is in the muscles around the joint, treatment can be given to strengthen and return them to proper balance. Once this is achieved, the arthritic-like pain and discomfort may be greatly relieved or eliminated.

Lecture series offered on ethnic groups of the region

"Impacting a Region: Native Americans, English, Germans, and Polish" will be the theme of a series of four lectures at the Carson County Square House Museum in Panhandle on consecutive Sundays in April.

Beginning at 3 p.m., all lectures will be followed by an open discussion. Continuing education credits will be awarded to persons attending three or more of the lectures through Amarillo College.

Bill Waters of Pampa, and Proxie Warminski and Carolyn Rapstine, both of White Deer, are among the guest speakers for the lecture series.

Bill Brown, curator of history at the Panhandle Plains Museum in Canyon and former executive director of the Center of the American Indian in Oklahoma City, will speak on the Plains Indians at the first lecture April 1.

Waters, Pampa attorney and chairman of the M.K. Brown Foundation, will speak on April 8 on the English settlers in the region.

The third lecture will be on April 22, presented by Dr. Billy Weaver, assistant director of the Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City. He will present a lecture and slide show entitled "German Folk Islands in Northwest Texas."

The final program on April 29 will concentrate on the Polish settlers by Warminski and Rapstine.

Dr. Frederick Rathjen, professor of history at West Texas State University, is the humanities advisor for the program. The final lecture will conclude with a brief overview of the series by Rathjen, highlighting the interrelationships and cross-cultural influences of the ethnic groups featured in the four-part series.

A special presentation featuring the Museum collection of Kiowa art, accompanied by three dimensional exhibits and interpretive text, will be on display during the month of April.

This program is made possible in part by a grant from the Texas Committee for the Humanities, a state program of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

A bibliography is available for the series upon request.

Those teachers attending the lecture for CEU's should contact the museum for enrollment information by calling 537-3524.

Easter Seal twins keep parents' lives busy, full

By ALDEN BROWN
Wichita Falls Times Record News
ELECTRA, Texas (AP) — Introductions to this year's Easter Seal Children for the North Texas Rehabilitation Center should be made quickly. They don't have time to talk when there is only so much time to play in any given day.

The two 3-year-old blonde tornadoes keep their mother hopping like a gym instructor. Their bodies may have had a tough time of it in the first three years of life, but the minds of Rachel and Rebekah Rodgers move with an agility that can startle unsuspecting adults.

Mother and father are an exception, of course. The attributes of their children come as no surprise. The fact that the parents have been able to continue to work and raise two special children does surprise others, though.

"Which surprises the girls' mom, Allison."
"Some people say, 'Oh, I couldn't do that,'" she said. "There was never a question of whether we could take care of them or not. God gave them to us and we just do it."

For Eddie and Allison Rodgers, apparent tragedy has grown into obvious joy.

"They have filled my life," Allison said.
In 1986, Allison went into labor two months early and gave birth to twins weighing less than six pounds combined.

Rachel and Rebekah were rushed to Fort Worth Children's Hospital, and Allison had to recover from her emergency Caesarean section delivery without holding her babies or even knowing how they were doing from moment to moment, hour to hour.

And then Allison, recovering at her home in Electra, received a call from Fort Worth hospital. Rebekah had suffered a brain hemorrhage and lung collapse and eventually was diagnosed with cerebral palsy.

Rachel continued to have respiratory and heart problems. Monitor wires and tubes covered the infants' bodies.

"Looking at the babies lying there in the hospital...I couldn't hold them. I couldn't help them. It was really weird."

"It was really hard," Allison said.
Rebekah recovered and came home when she was 8 weeks old, her mother said. "She was growing fine and getting fat. Then we noticed her feet starting to turn in."

Rachel came home after four months. They started therapy for the twins when they were 6 months old.

All the while, medical bills continued to roll in. Allison said, totaling more than $1 million in the first year.

Electra citizens and civil and religious organizations came to the rescue, along with medical and government agencies.

"One of the benefits of living in a small town is that the whole community knows you and knows your problems," she said. "That can be one of the disadvantages, too," she said, laughing.

The Wichita Falls rehabilitation center has provided Allison and her husband with other resources to help pay for the therapy and medical expenses.

"We're very lucky to have the rehab center here," she said. "If we have a question, all we have to do is ask."

From potty training to the newest treatments for cerebral palsy, the rehab center has provided answers to the parents' day-to-day questions.

Three years after birth the two girls are blonde and beautiful. They bounce from toy to toy with an energy that only 3-year-olds possess.

Rebekah soaks up attention like a human sponge. She rolls her pink wheelchair about and keeps an eye on her sister.

The twins' relationship is especially close.

"I think (Rebekah) experiences stuff through Rachel," Allison said. When Rachel runs or jumps, Allison Rodgers pushes daughter Rebekah's wheelchair as Rachel runs along near their home in Electra, Tex. The 3-year-old twins are this year's Easter Seal Children.

Rebekah laughs and almost seems to feel the exhilaration that her sister feels, their mother said.

The two do compete for attention. Like normal sisters, they try to keep Mommy and visitors in their corner.

Their struggle for life has left its mark, however.

"Rachel is more conscious than most 3-year-olds," she said. When her sister needs her, when she undergoes therapy, the two have to be together.

Which may present a problem next year when Rebekah attends the rehab center's Early Childhood Intervention program.

Problems don't bother the Rodgers family too much, though. Not as long as they have each other.

"I worried the day they told me of Rebekah's brain hemorrhage," Allison said. "I did fear for her independence."

"I think she will be able to walk, to get around and be independent in the future," Allison said.

Rebekah focuses on one thing at a time and another step in her walk to adulthood doesn't seem to concern her. What is more important at age 3 is what Rachel is doing across the room.

Customer calls clipping foul on her scissors-happy stylist

DEAR ABBY: I've read your column for years, but I've never seen this problem addressed before: Last week, I went to the beauty shop to get my hair cut. I am a very conservative person and don't like unusual haircuts, so I gave my beautician (he calls himself a "stylist") a few instructions on how I wanted him to cut it. Well, he didn't seem too pleased with me and my instructions; then he turned my chair so that my back was to the mirror, and I couldn't see what he was doing.

After he finished and I saw what he had done, I nearly cried. My hair was so short, I looked like a man!

This is not the first time I have been "sheared" by a beautician. After talking to my friends, I learned that every one of them has had a similar experience.

Abby, why do beauticians do this? And has anyone ever sued a barber for a lousy haircut?

SHEARED
DEAR SHEARED: Some beauticians get scissors-happy for a variety of reasons; first they cut off a little too much, then they try to "even it up." Others get carried away, or want to give the customer his/her money's worth.

I doubt if anyone has ever sued a barber for a lousy haircut. By the time the case would get on the court calendar, the plaintiff's hair would have grown long enough to sit on.

DEAR ABBY: My wife insists on total privacy when she gabs on the telephone. None of her conversations are less than 45 minutes, and a two-

Santa Fe Trail lecture offered
A program offered by the combined efforts of the Catholic Historical Society, Santa Fe Trail Association and Independent Scholars Network will be presented at 3 p.m. April 1 at Amarillo Central Library.

Charles Pitts, president of the Panhandle Archeological Society, will talk about "The Ft. Smith Branch of the Santa Fe Trail with Josiah Gregg."

Pitts is also the president of the Texas Panhandle Chapter of the Santa Fe Trail Association. His talk will detail the eighth and final crossing in 1840 of Gregg's company across the plains in the Santa Fe Trail. This was Santa Fe to Ft. Smith, Ark. Every trip but one was made north of the Canadian River.

The last trip was fraught with difficulty, according to Pitts, complicated by bad weather, the company's getting lost, and the loss of horses and livestock.

Pitts will have maps of the trail and other materials he used to research Gregg's last crossing on display.

Displays by the Santa Fe Trail Association will be featured in the Amarillo Library through April 15.

hour gabfest is all too common. If I want to talk to her, I must wait until she hangs up the phone. This waiting has irritated me for all 27 years of our marriage.

Am I selfish to think my wife should put her telephone gabbers on hold while I steal a minute of her time to tell her something before I forget it altogether? Or is she rude and inconsiderate for ignoring my need to talk to her? I signal for her to please hang up, but she just turns her back on me.

I know she reads your column. Which one of us needs straightening out the most, Abby? Please help. I'm signing my name, but if you print this, call me ...

FRUSTRATED HUSBAND
DEAR FRUSTRATED: Your wife is indeed rude and inconsiderate, but if you've been putting up with it for 27 years, you have my profound sympathy. Next time, try slipping your wife a note while she's talking. Also make a note to yourself to remind you of what you wanted to talk to her about.

DEAR ABBY: In response to letters about discrimination and humiliation suffered by exceptionally tall people, I was reminded of a 6-foot, 7-inch acquaintance of mine. He got so tired of people he hardly knew asking him if he played basketball, he got a shirt on which is printed, "No. Do you play miniature golf?"

J.K. IN LAKELAND, FLA.
DEAR ABBY: I am the director of a 14-unit shelter for the homeless and would like to ask your help in eliminating what I find to be a costly and frustrating problem — inappropriate giving. I am sure that human-service providers everywhere would be grateful if you'd ask your readers

There are indications that your circle of friends and acquaintances will be considerably enlarged in the year ahead. More emphasis is likely to be placed on the social aspects of your life in this cycle.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your financial trends look rather sturdy today. There is a possibility of gains where you work is concerned as well as through a second source. Aries, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) All that is required today to gain support from associates for advancing your interests is to show proper initiative. The first move is up to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Conditions that pertain to your material security are encouraging, as well as unusual today. Others might do more for you than you'll do for yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today's social plans might not work out exactly as you blueprinted them. However, don't let this disturb you, because you'll have fun wherever you go.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're not likely to push yourself too hard today unless you feel challenged. Once you are, however, your pride won't let you settle for second best.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something for which you've been hoping could now be a lot closer than you think. Keep moving in your present direction and don't take your eyes off of your objective.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Some type of commercial or business opportunity might unexpectedly develop for you today. If this should occur, you'll have to think and act quickly, so be alert.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You should be rather fortunate today in arrangements you have where there is a partner involved. This is a time when teamwork could yield larger rewards than usual.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Strive to be industrious and productive today and direct your efforts toward objectives that offer you material returns. Your chances for personal accumulation look good.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you are likely to be even more charismatic than usual and the impression you'll make on others will be favorable. This will be especially true of persons who meet you for the first time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your possibilities for success will be considerably enhanced today if you view the outcome of events positively. Your imagination has greater powers than you may realize.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Owing to restless inclinations today you might feel a calling to go where the action is. Find some friends who are of a similar turn of mind and go have fun.

Play Ball!

Exhibition season finally under way

By JIM DONAGHY
AP Baseball Writer

It didn't take long for the players — and the fans — to get back to talking baseball.

For most of the winter, the talk was about lockouts, arbitration eligibility and minimum salaries. On Monday, it was time to play ball after a long delay because of the 32-day lockout while the players and owners negotiated a new contract.

"I couldn't sleep last night, I wanted to get here so bad," San Francisco manager Roger Craig said. "This sure beats doing everything else we were doing."

After the Giants' exhibition opener with Cleveland, Craig's contract was extended through the 1992 season.

"I'm 60, but as long as I feel healthy and enjoy what I am doing, I'll keep going," Craig said. "It was fun just to be back managing again today."

Not everyone was smiling, though. "It was a flat-rat, dull piece of junk," Milwaukee manager Tom Trebelhorn said after watching his Brewers lose 7-0 to the Seattle Mariners at Tempe, Ariz. "It surely wasn't worth waiting 30 days for. We fulfilled our obligation to be here. That's all you can say about that game."

Giants 4, Indians 3

At Scottsdale, Gary Carter made his debut in a Giants uniform and blooped a double to score the winning run with two outs in the ninth inning to lift the Giants past Cleveland.

Carter, signed as a free agent by the Giants, is trying to make a comeback after an injury-plagued season with the New York Mets.

Red Sox 2, Royals 1

At Haines City, rookie Mickey Pina's eighth-inning home run off Mark Davis, last year's National League Cy Young Award winner, gave Boston a victory over Kansas City.

Dodgers 13, Twins 6

At Orlando, Hubie Brooks and Eddie Murray each hit solo home runs during Los Angeles' seven-run eighth inning as the Dodgers beat Minnesota.

Pirates 5, Cardinals 3

At Bradenton, Barry Bonds and newcomer Don Slaught homered as Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis.

Yankees 5, Braves 4

At Fort Lauderdale, Steve Balboni's two-out, two-run double highlighted a four-run sixth inning to help New York beat Atlanta.

Expos 5, Orioles 3

At Miami, Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd made his debut

Unbeaten Harvesters roll over Perryton

Senior first sacker Mike Cagle blasted two home runs to spark unbeaten Pampa to a 9-2 win over Perryton in non-district baseball action Monday at Harvester Field.

The Harvesters are now 9-0 for the season while Perryton dropped to 0-3.

Cagle's solo homer over the center field fence in the third inning gave Pampa a 4-1 lead over Perryton. His three-run shot cleared the right field fence in the fourth put the Harvesters up, 9-2.

Others in Pampa's eight-hit attack were Steve Sanders, two singles; Brian Bullard, two singles, one RBI; Chris Roden, single and RBI, and James Bybee, a single. Barry Coffee added an RBI.

PHS coach Rod Porter got solid pitching from Quincy Williams and Barry Coffee as Perryton could manage only three hits.

"We're fortunate that we've got both good hitting and pitching. Hopefully, we can keep it going," Porter said.

Williams (2-0) started off shaky when he yielded a run and two hits in the first inning, but the junior righthander settled down and didn't allow another hit until the fourth inning when Shawn Luke rapped an RBI single.

Williams gave up two runs on three hits while striking out five and not walking a batter in four innings on the mound.

Coffee held the visitors hitless the rest of the way, striking out seven and not walking a batter in the final three innings.

Scott Hodges took the mound loss, giving up nine runs on eight hits while striking out five and walking six in six innings.

Perryton did have the game's defensive gem when second baseman Clint Cox had an unassisted triple play in the first inning.

With runners on first and second and no outs, Bybee lined sharply to Cox, who tagged the runner coming from first and then stepped on second for the third out.

"That's the first unassisted triple play I've seen in high school baseball. We had a double steal on and the ball was hit just right for him (Cox) to make that type of play," Porter said.

Left fielder Brandon Knutson turned in Pampa's best defensive play when he cut down Scott Pingle at the plate. Pingle, who led off the game with a single, had attempted to score from first base on Wade Allsup's line-drive hit to left center. Knutson's perfect one-bounce throw to catcher Tory Peet caught Pingle sliding in.

The Harvesters travel to Lubbock Estacado for a District 1-4A tilt Thursday afternoon, starting at 3:30 p.m.

Both Pampa and Estacado are tied for second in the league standings with 3-0 marks.

Lubbock Dunbar, which whipped Dumas, 6-3, Monday, lifted its league-leading record to 4-0.

In other district games Monday, Estacado pounded Randall, 13-1, and Borger battled Levelland to a 4-4 tie.

Pampa's junior varsity squad, originally scheduled to face Caprock on Thursday, will instead take on the Longhorns Friday afternoon. The game will be played at Southeast Park in Amarillo (34th and Osage) at 4:30 p.m.

Basketball

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Jim Valvano wants to stay on as North Carolina State's basketball coach, even under certain restrictions, his lawyer said.

Valvano has been under pressure to resign since one of his former players, Charles Shackelford, admitted accepting $60,000 from two men while he was still a student at N.C. State. Such payments, one of which was from a prospective agent, would have been in violation of NCAA rules.

Some members of the 1987-88 basketball team also have been implicated in point-shaving allegations. Valvano has not been accused of any wrongdoing in either situation. Nor has he been implicated in the selling of complimentary tickets and sneakers that led to two years' probation for his team.

Attorney Woody Webb met 90 minutes with Raleigh attorney Howard Manning, who represents N.C. State, and Andrew Vanore Jr., chief deputy state attorney general.

NEW YORK (AP) — David Robinson, who averaged 31.5 points, 13.3 rebounds, 6.0 blocked shots and 3.0 assists per game in leading the San Antonio Spurs to a 4-0 record last week, on Monday was named the NBA Player of the Week.

Robinson, a 7-foot-11 rookie center from Navy, had 34 points, 14 rebounds, eight blocked shots and a career-high seven assists as the Spurs defeated Phoenix 113-103. In that game, Robinson set a rookie scoring record for the Spurs, surpassing the 1,508 points scored by Willie Anderson last year.

Robinson had 39 points, 10 rebounds, seven blocks and four assists in a 128-106 victory over Seattle on Tuesday; 29 points, 19 rebounds and six blocks in a 107-106 win over Portland on Thursday; and 24 points, nine rebounds and three blocks in a 105-98 victory over Detroit.

It was the second time this season that Robinson has won Player of the Week honors.

Mets 7, Astros 2

At Kissimmee, Mike Marshall's two-run single put New York ahead in the eighth inning and the Mets went on to beat Houston.

Reds 4, Blue Jays 1

At Plant City, Lou Piniella made his managerial debut for Cincinnati a success as Paul O'Neill singled home two runs. Toronto managed just four hits and committed three errors, one of them setting up the Reds' four-run fifth.

Rangers 9, White Sox 4

At Sarasota, Kevin Reimer's three-run double in the fifth inning rallied Texas past Chicago.

Monday night, the teams shifted to Port Charlotte and Kevin Brown and Brad Arnsberg each pitched three scoreless innings for the Rangers. Mike Stanley had a two-run double in the second.

Phillies 6, Tigers 3

At Lakeland, Pat Combs pitched three hitless innings and Ricky Jordan, Jim Vatcher and Victor Rosario each had RBI doubles as Philadelphia beat Detroit.

Mariners 7, Brewers 0

At Tempe, Edgar Martinez drove in two runs and five Seattle pitchers held Milwaukee to three hits. Ken Griffey Jr. had two doubles and scored twice for the Mariners.

Padres 9, Angels 2

At Yuma, Roberto Alomar had three hits, drove in three runs and stole two as San Diego beat California.

Athletics 6, Cubs 5

At Phoenix, pinch-hitter Steve Howard bounced a two-run single to center with two out and the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth inning as defending World Series champion Oakland beat Chicago.

Rookie umpers take their lumps

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — He sounded like a major league umpire and, except for the "PCL" on his cap, looked like one, too.

That was on the outside. But on the inside, Hank Schwarz was feeling the jitters of his first big league game, just like any rookie.

"I'm a little shaky," Schwarz said before Cleveland played San Francisco in an exhibition opener Monday. "I'm a little nervous, I guess."

Schwarz is one of many minor league umpires working this spring while major league umpires are away in protest. The major league umpires are unhappy they weren't consulted when baseball revised the regular season schedule after the lockout, and have threatened to stay out until opening day.

In the meantime, the umpires' union has given its OK for minor league umpires to work exhibition games. So Schwarz, Dan Wickham and Tom Mellor took the field before a crowd that included an ESPN crew televising its first game.

It didn't take long for the fans, who already were impatient enough over baseball's delayed spring, to practice one of the game's oldest rituals — heckling the boys in blue.

In fact, this time it took only one fastball.

Rick Reuschel's first pitch of the game was slightly high, and Mitch Webster took it for a ball. Catcher Kirt Manwaring, unaccustomed to a new umpire's strike zone, held his glove in place for an instant, checking the call. The crowd took its cue.

"Open your eyes, ump!" a fan bellowed. "You're missing a great game."

There figures to be plenty of that in Florida and Arizona this spring. For just how long, no one knows.

Baseball owners have gone to court, seeking a temporary restraining order that would force the major league umpires back to work. The owners say the umpires' protest breaks a no-strike pledge in their contract.

Triple-A and Double-A umpires are being used, including many from the Pacific Coast League. They're the ones with "PCL" on their black caps, in place of where the "AL" or "NL" would be.

Bob Engel, Jim Quick and Paul Runge, all veteran NL umpires, were originally scheduled to work the Indians-Giants game and they were even listed on the starting lineup sheet. But, just as for every spring training game where the names change, so did the umpires.

Johnson turns UNLV's top 10 team into Final Four team

By TIM DAHLBERG
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS — After coaching Larry Johnson and the United States team to a gold medal in the World University Games last summer, Purdue's Gene Keady contemplated the impact the junior college transfer would have at UNLV.

"I don't want to put any pressure on Jerry (Tarkanian) but I sure wish I had him," Keady said. "Whatever team he plays on has a chance to win the national title with him."

Thirty-eight games later, UNLV is two wins away from that national title. The Runnin' Rebels returned a talented class of four starters, but it is Johnson who turned another perennial Tarkanian top 10 team into a Final Four team that odds-makers here favor to win it all.

"He's everything I thought he would be, plus more," Tarkanian said Monday. "Larry puts us to that level where we can compete and win a national championship."

Johnson's play on the court has been rock steady and at times spectacular. The 6-foot-7 junior averaged 20.9 points and 11.2 rebounds a game, leading the Rebels to a 33-5 record and becoming the university's first All-American.

Perhaps more importantly, though, Johnson has stood above the turmoil that swirled around the team. UNLV has endured suspensions for fights and academic problems before jelling to win 19 of its last 20 games.

"He's just such a super person and he fits in beautifully with the team," Tarkanian said. "He's not a team leader, he just goes out there and plays."

Tarkanian said before the season that Johnson, a transfer from Odessa Junior College in Texas, would be the big man the Rebels have lacked in previous years in falling short of the Final Four.

Coupled with a front line of 6-foot-10 senior David Butler and 6-foot-7 former Olympian Stacey Augmon, Johnson gives UNLV the unique combination of a running team with perhaps college basketball's best front line.

That front line has overcome some shaky play at guard, where the Rebels are thin past starters Greg Anthony and Anderson Hunt.

"We're playing harder than we've played all season," Johnson said. "But every one is going to be tough from here on. There's so much luck involved now. We're just going to take it game by game. We're just going to play our hearts out."

The problems and off-court turmoil seem a thing of the past for a team now appearing to jell at just the right moment. A 131-101 victory over Loyola Marymount on Sunday in the West Region final was arguably the best game the team has played all season.

"They were so awesome, they were just beautiful," Tarkanian said of his No. 2 ranked team.

Tarkanian, whose team plays Georgia Tech on Saturday, is hoping the third time is the charm.

Vanderbilt faces St. Louis in NIT finals

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

NEW YORK — Vanderbilt, which found success with its first big-man assignment in the NIT semifinals, faces an even bigger test in the championship game against St. Louis.

The Commodores held Penn State's leading scorer, Ed Fogell, to six shots and eight points Monday night and advanced to Wednesday's NIT final with a 75-62 victory over the Nittany Lions.

In the other semifinal, St. Louis got 24 points and 19 rebounds from 6-foot-8, 225-pound Anthony Bonner in an 80-73 victory over New Mexico.

Lobos coach Dave Bliss sounded a warning for Vanderbilt before the championship game.

"Bonner is the real McCoy," Bliss said. "That's what a basketball player should look like. I told my recruiters to get me one of those. He's a man playing a man's game."

St. Louis, looking for its first NIT championship in 42 years, also got a career-high 19 points from Jeff Luechtefeld, including five 3-pointers.

Luechtefeld hit five of 10 from 3-point range, while Vanderbilt (20-14), making its first appearance in the semifinals of a postseason tournament, got a 5-for-9 3-point performance and 20 points from Scott Draud.

"Draud got us off to a great start with his 3-pointers," Vanderbilt coach Eddie Fogler said. "Eric Reid and Steve Grant did a great job inside on Fogell. He's hitting 60 percent from the floor, he can pass and handle the ball, but we kept the ball out of Fogell's hands as much as possible."

Draud, who made three 3-pointers in the first six minutes of Vanderbilt's victory over the Nittany Lions, said his early hot streak "threw them out of what they wanted to do. When we shot well from the perimeter, it opened things up inside."

Vanderbilt's reserves outscored Penn State's 29-9, including 13 by Morgan Wheat and 10 by Todd Millholland.

Penn State (24-9), runnerup in the Atlantic 10 Conference, was led by Freddie Barnes with 18 points and James Barnes with 12.

"Vanderbilt made it tough for us on both ends of the court," said Penn State coach Bruce Parkhill, whose team was outshot 54.2 percent to 42.6 percent.

Bonner, the nation's leading rebounder with 13.7 per game, scored eight points in the final six minutes for St. Louis (21-11), which lost to St. John's in last year's championship game.

Luechtefeld, from tiny Okaville, Ill., averaged only 6.5 points for the season but 14.8 in four NIT games. He hit 32.1 percent of his 3-pointers during the season, but has made 13 of 29 (45 percent) during the tournament.

New Mexico (20-13), making a record seventh consecutive appearance in the NIT but its first trip to the semifinals since 1964, was led by Darrell McGee with 23 points, 18 in the second half.

The Lobos shot only 39.2 percent from the field. Other than McGee, who hit nine of 14 shots, the Lobos managed only 20 baskets in 60 attempts.

Luc Longley, the Lobos' 7-2 junior center averaging 18.5 points and 9.5 rebounds, finished with 12 points and 18 rebounds.

Bartow leads list of hopefuls for Texas A&M post

HOUSTON (AP) — Alabama-Birmingham coach Gene Bartow is the leading candidate to become the next coach at Texas A&M, The Houston Post reported Monday.

The newspaper reported that Bartow left Birmingham Monday morning and was believed to have met with Texas A&M Athletic Director John David Crow late Monday afternoon. Bartow's wife, Ruth, told the newspaper that her husband left town Monday, but would not say where he was going.

Bartow had a meeting scheduled today in Birmingham with Dr. Dudley Peewitt, the UAB faculty representative for the Sun Belt Conference.

Bartow could not be reached for comment Monday, but Crow admitted a decision would be announced soon.

"Something could happen Wednesday or Thursday," Crow told the Bryan-College Station Eagle. "But it might not happen until after the Final Four."

Texas A&M is seeking a replacement for interim coach John Thorn-ton, who took over in January when Shelby Metcalf was fired.

Bartow, 58, just completed his 12th season at UAB and his 28th season as a head coach. After stints at Illinois and Memphis State, Bartow replaced the legendary John Wooden at UCLA and coached the Bruins for two years before becoming UAB's first basketball coach in 1977.

Bartow coached Memphis State when the Tigers lost to UCLA in the NCAA championship game in 1973. He guided UCLA to the Final Four in 1976 before losing in the semifinals to Indiana.

Ironically, Bartow's UAB team finished this season with a 68-58 loss to UCLA in the first round of the NCAA Tournament. The Blazers were 22-9 this year, giving Bartow a 536-279 career record.

Bartow is five years into a 10-year contract with UAB that is believed to pay him $100,000 a year.

Crow met last Friday at Oakland, Calif., with Loyola Marymount Coach Paul Westhead, who is not believed to be seriously interested in the job coaching the Aggies.

Other reported candidates have included Idaho Coach Kermit Davis Jr., Oklahoma's Billy Tubbs, Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins, Xavier's Pete Gillen and Tim Floyd of New Orleans.

Bartow was quoted earlier this season as saying he had become frustrated with the Sun Belt Conference because UAB was carrying the load for the rest of the league and added, "I miss coaching against the big schools."
