DOE hears protests over Pantex airspace

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

AMARILLO — Pampa officials joined over 3,000 Texas Panhandle residents Thursday night in a protest of proposed Department of Energy restrictions of airspace around the Pantex Nuclear Weapons plant.

Such restrictions would force an end to commercial flights into and out of Amarillo International Airport, located near the plant, argued over 50 speakers at a public hearing at the Amarillo Civic Center sponsored by the Federal Aviation Administration and DOE.

"It's not just an Amarillo problem, it's an entire Panhandle problem," said Pampa Mayor Richard Peet before the hearing. "Pampa being one of the leading cities in the Panhandle, it's definitely our problem."

Peet said the closeness of the airport to Pampa is an economic drawing card the city cannot afford to lose.

Amarillo city officials said if the airport's runway 22-04 is closed it will force travelers to drive to Lubbock to catch flights.

John Banasik, chairman of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce said 660,000 people in this region would be adversely affected by such a move.

Charles Ashcraft of American Airlines told DOE officials at the crowded hearing that if the runway is closed as part of tightened security around the nuclear weapons plant, it will force American Airlines to cease service to Amarillo.

He said 240,000 people flew into or out of Amarillo in 1989 on American Airlines.

"It would have a direct impact on our own economic development," Peet said of DOE restrictions, "so, certainly it is an issue we are concerned with."

Peet joined Bill Waters of the Pampa Industrial Foundation in imploring the DOE to consider an alternative plan.

Fifty speakers, led by Amarillo Mayor Keith Adams, spoke against the DOE proposition. Adams asked every member of the audience opposed to the DOE proposal to stand, which had the entire audience rising.

Amarillo City Manager John Ward went on record as asking the DOE to build the region a new airport if they are going to close the current one.

However, State Rep. John Smith later noted that while he originally favored such a proposal, "wasted money is wasted money."

State Sen. Teel Bivins drew laughs from the crowd when he told DOE officials the only economic benefit to their plan, which calls for airplanes to descend on runway 22 from 6,400 feet instead of the current 1,400 feet, as being that the city could host the annual "FAA Kamikaze Diving Contest."

A number of aviation experts testified such a descent would be dangerous and totally impractical.

Louis Ritchie of the Department of Energy said while the turnout for the public hearing was impressive, it would not prevent the DOE from "our procedure of rule making" regarding the proposed airspace restrictions.

Amarillo city commissioners took turns revealing an alternative plan calling for 24 hour a day monitoring of skies over Amarillo by the FAA and restrictions on helicopters and ultra-light aircraft over the plant.

Ritchie said he could not comment on the plan since it had not been submitted by the FAA, the only group authorized to submit alternative proposals.

Adams and Amarillo Commissioner Kel Seliger testified the DOE had been guilty of ignoring the concerns of local citizens.

It was a concern also expressed by U.S. Congressman Bill Sarpalius and U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Democrats, and State Sen. Teel Bivins, State Rep. Dick Waterfield and U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, Republicans.

Gramm and Bentsen had associates read letters into the record since the Senate is currently in session in Washington.

Sarpalius said, "I'm sorry I'm late, but I had to fly in six hours from Washington. I'm just glad I didn't also have to then drive in from Lubbock."

Pampa's Bill Waters said Panhandle residents are "fiercely patriotic" and would never put local interest in front of national security, which the DOE has said is at risk if the airspace is not more tightly controlled.

"It's important to the people of Pampa and the eastern Panhandle,"

From left, Pampa Mayor Richard Peet, Pampa City Manager Glen Hackler and Bill Waters with the Pampa Industrial Foundation, speak to each other at the Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium prior to the Thursday evening public hearing on increased flight restrictions over Pantex.

State Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, makes a point during a public hearing in Amarillo concerning the proposal to increase flight restrictions over Pantex. At lower right are city officials from Pampa.

Waters said, "Pampa is the second largest city in the Panhandle and is directly affected by air service to and from Amarillo."

"If (national security) were the case," Waters continued, "and it were a critical issue, I suppose all personal matters might have to fade some."

"But we don't see it as a critical national issue, and those knowledgeable about it who have spoken to the issue have shown if it were a spy matter or a destructive matter, it could be accomplished whether or not an airplane was in the vicinity."

Also among those speaking against the DOE proposal were representatives from the Texas Board of Aviation, Airline Pilots Association, Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, West Texas State University, the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, Texas Department of Criminal Justice, Amarillo Chamber of Commerce and Southwestern Public Service.

An FAA summary sheet noted the DOE is concerned about securing "increased response time to identify an aircraft as either an intentional or accidental intruder and reduce the potential for release of radioactive materials from accidents induced by aircraft crashes."

Ritchie of the DOE said the matter is not likely to be settled for at least another year. Ross Schlutze, local manager of the FAA, said a final DOE plan should be established by February of 1991, with implementation by August of that year.

Great Texas Trash-Off prepares for keeping lookout for 'Bubba'

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

As state residents prepare for the 1990 edition of the Great Texas Trash-Off this Saturday, Janice Miller of Clean Pampa Inc. said they should also be on the lookout for Bubba.

"Bubba" is the name given to those who litter state roadways with beer cans, gum wrappers and assorted other pollution.

"Bubba is a man, age 18 to 35, who drives a pickup truck," Miller said. Research has shown Bubba accounts for 70 percent of all the trash on Texas roadways, most of which blows out of the bed of his truck.

"Littering doubles when the temperature is from 50 to 75 degrees," Miller said. "Deliberate litter accounts for 50 percent of all roadside trash."

Like many Texans concerned for the environment, Miller said she is urging education of Bubba to encourage him to change his ways.

She said the Don't Mess With Texas campaign, which began in 1985 and specialized in macho messages, was aimed at reaching Bubba.

From the looks of Panhandle roadways, she said, some Bubbas still haven't gotten the message.

"Texas spent $25 million on clean up in 1985 and the cost was rising 15 percent a year, it said in the Wall Street Journal," Miller reported. "That was before the Don't Mess With Texas campaign. Litter along the highways has been reduced by 64 percent."

Miller said the Great Texas Trash-Off is a one day event aimed at picking up the 36 percent of trash still found on state roadways.

Led by those groups and companies that have officially adopted a 2-mile stretch of highway, the event is open to all those who want to send a clear message to litterers they are "tired of taking your trash," Miller said.

While Bubba is especially fond of throwing aluminum cans in the bed of his truck, which blow out onto highways, Miller said he is missing the opportunity to turn litter into loot.

She displayed figures gathered by Clean Pampa Inc. from local aluminum recyclers showing residents made a collective $153,600 by turning in 384,000 pounds of aluminum in 1989.

"When Texas first started the Adopt-A-Highway program, people around the nation said, 'Do you really believe people are going to get out and pick up trash?'" Miller said. However, the program is so popular it has grown into Adopt-A-Beach and Adopt-A-Lake programs as well.

She said most states now have Adopt-A-Highway programs and that this year the Great American Trash-Off, also scheduled for Saturday, will also attempt to copy the success of the Lone Star original.

Gene Loomis, a district manager for Enron, which has adopted a stretch of Highway 60 west of Pampa, said since he and other employees have begun to pick up trash, the sight of a person littering makes him angry.

"After you pick up two miles of trash, you think about it twice before you throw anything out," Loomis said.

He and other Enron employees will be among those out Saturday picking up garbage on the roadside.

Miller said any group or individual interested in joining the effort to show Bubba that trashing Texas is unacceptable can get free trash bags from Clean Pampa Inc., located in the Pampa Community Building, 200 N. Ballard, or be connected with a group picking up litter.

She also pointed out there are still areas to be adopted around Pampa and that "adoption papers" are available at the Clean Pampa offices.

Changing clocks and watches for the switch-over to Daylight Savings Time can be a hard task for some, such as this local watch collector who has already begun changing the time on the dozens of American-made pocketwatches he owns.

Sunday will be day to 'spring forward'

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — America will push back the hour of darkness starting Sunday.

Daylight-saving time is returning, bringing that extra hour of evening light to spend on outdoor projects, sports and barbecues or just fritter away.

The actual moment of change from standard to daylight time occurs at 2 a.m. for most of the nation. That's when clocks should be shifted forward an hour, although most Americans will make the change before retiring or in the morning.

The law calls for the change to be the first Sunday in April. Standard time returns Oct. 28, the last Sunday in October.

Although known as daylight-saving time, the change doesn't really save any daylight — or time. It simply moves an hour of light from morning to evening by delaying both sunrise and sunset an hour.

That means some children must wait for school buses in the dark in exchange for more time after school to play ball or join the family in backyard cookouts.

The idea has been attributed to various people, including Benjamin Franklin, but it was William Willett of England who launched the eventually successful campaign in 1907.

More time for evening recreation, less need for costly artificial lights and a possible reduction of evening crime were cited as major advantages.

It was the energy saving that prompted first use of daylight-saving time, in Germany in 1916. Other countries followed during World War I, returning to standard time afterward and resuming daylight time during World War II.

It was simple confusion that finally led to the adoption of the U.S. uniform time system in 1966, after allowing local communities to decide for or against daylight time resulted in a crazy-quilt pattern of time differences.

Daylight time is observed in all areas of the country except Arizona, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa and the part of Indiana in the Eastern time zone.

Surveys have found that daylight time is generally more popular in urban areas, where the afternoon and evening leisure time is appreciated.

Rural areas seem to be the focus of opposition, largely because of the loss of morning light for travel to work and school and adjusting to the change in dealing with livestock, since animals don't observe differences in clocks.

Clarification

A Page 1 story on Thursday indirectly attributed Coronado Nursing Center administrator Joeline Swanner with saying a nurse's aide had been fired for the reported beating of an elderly resident. Ms. Skinner said she did verify the woman had been fired, but did not make any reference to whether or not the resident had actually been abused. Others involved in the incident did allege the woman had been abused, not in one beating, but in what appeared to be multiple incidents.

House approves child-care plan despite possible presidential veto

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats are tempting a presidential veto by rejecting the White House version of a child-care bill in favor of their own more costly and ambitious plan.

The House approved the measure, estimated to cost at least $27 billion over its first five years, just hours after a spokesman for President Bush issued a fresh veto threat Thursday.

"Rather than waving his veto pen, our president should match his warm words with good deeds and agree to sign our child-care bill," House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said after the vote.

The bill still must go to a House-Senate conference to resolve differences with the Senate. But Democrats hoped the ultimate version would mirror the House bill and that election-year pressures would make Bush back down from his threat.

The House plan would expand tax credits for poor families to offset the cost of child care and would provide federal money for local governments to set up new day-care programs in public schools.

It would create a system of state-issued subsidy vouchers for parents who want to use religious day-care centers, expand the Head Start program for poor children, and establish minimum standards for day-care centers.

Both parties embraced the cause of day-care assistance during the last presidential campaign, and Democrats were trying to seize the political advantage on the popular issue. Less than a week ago, Democrats reported being close to a bipartisan agreement on the issue in White House negotiations that ultimately collapsed.

 "I think President Bush, as he examines the bill, will find a lot more to be comfortable with than not," said a sponsor, Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y.

"I think it will go down as a landmark bill, one of the great achievements of the Congress and this era in American government," said House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash.

To offset part of the new child-care costs, the House plan would take away the income tax credit that more-affluent families now receive for child care. That credit would be reduced for families earning $70,000 a year and eliminated for those earning more than $90,000.

It also would make permanent the 3 percent telephone excise tax due to expire this year. But both revenue sources would not cover the full cost.

The House approved the bill 265-145, after voting more narrowly to reject the less costly alternative that Bush had endorsed. That version's five-year cost was put at nearly $20 billion.

The White House's budget office issued a statement calling the Democratic version "an exercise in fiscal irresponsibility."

Just hours before the vote, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater warned that Bush would veto the Democratic version if it reached his desk.

The White House alternative was sponsored by Reps. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, and Clay Shaw, R-Fla. It was defeated on a 225-195 vote that largely followed party lines.

Fourteen Democratic governors and one Republican, Gov. John R. McKernan Jr. of Maine, signed a letter to Foley endorsing the Democratic version of the child-care bill and opposing the conservative alternative.

East-West faculty basketball game scheduled tonight

Teachers from Austin, Wilson and Baker elementaries will square off against the faculty of Lamar, Mann and Travis schools tonight in a charity basketball game to raise money for the local Latch Key program.

The 7 p.m. game will be at McNeely Field House, with tickets available at the door. Admission will be $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Bill Chaffin, an inspirational speaker who holds the Guinness Book of World Records title for most free throws in 10 minutes, will speak during halftime as part of the current "Pampa Says kNOW to Drugs" campaign.

Winners of local poster and essay contests concerning the campaign will also be announced during the game.

Chaffin will also be shooting free throws during halftime, displaying the talent that led to his record of 190 free throws out of 208 shots in a 10-minute period.

A former associate of inspirational speaker Zig Ziglar, Chaffin is scheduled to speak on the theme "Before you can talk right and act right, you must think right."

Chaffin is a member of the National Speakers Association and the North Texas Speakers Association.

Today Chaffin spoke to Pampa High and Pampa Middle School students.

Proceeds from the East-West Pampa Independent School District faculty basketball game will go to assist in the after-school Latch Key program.

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Moscow tried to install its own man as chief prosecutor in Lithuania today, but the staff in the Prosecutor's Office rebelled and refused to take orders from the new official.

The incident was the first attempt by Soviet officials to take direct control of a Lithuanian government agency since Lithuania's parliament declared independence on March 11. It ended in a standoff with both men trying to run the office.

Moscow's tactics until today had included shows of military force, the arrest of army deserters and orders for foreigners to leave and for residents to turn in their guns.

In response to a Kremlin demand for a referendum, Lithuania on Thursday offered to hold a public vote on whether to rejoin the Soviet Union.

The Lithuanian Prosecutor's Office on Thursday ordered police not to carry out Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's order to confiscate firearms that citizens had not surrendered. Lithuanian police had already refused.

Soviet Deputy Prosecutor Alexei Vasiliev today told more than 100 members of the Lithuanian prosecutor's staff to execute Soviet law. He brought with him an ethnic Lithuanian, Antanas Petrauskas, to replace Arturas Paulauskas, the prosecutor appointed March 22 by the Lithuanian government.

Staff members reacted with angry questions.
 "Do you know our government was elected legally?" one employee shouted.

Lithuanian legislator Egidijus Bickauskas told the staff: "I hope you will consider your place is in your offices under the leadership of Mr. Paulauskas."

Nearly everyone applauded as they rose to leave the room and returned to their desks.

"You must obey the orders of the general prosecutor of the U.S.S.R.," Vasiliev said in a raised voice as people left, but to little effect.

Vasiliev told a handful of reporters afterward that his 11-member team from Moscow is "not an instrument of force," and that his next step in the struggle would be a legal one. He would not elaborate.

Paulauskas, back in his office, said: "I am the prosecutor of Lithuania, and I will stay here until force is used against me."

Foreign reporters attended the meeting, although the press corps in Vilnius has dwindled since Soviet authorities barred foreigners from Lithuania and refused to extend permission to stay for correspondents already there.

Foreign journalists in the Soviet Union are all based in Moscow and must get permission to travel outside the capital and state the length of their stay. As their departure dates arrive, reporters have been leaving Vilnius.

Gorbachev had ordered Lithuanians to turn over firearms by Wednesday, but Lithuanian officials said only 1,500 of the 30,000 registered guns have been turned in. Gorbachev had said any Lithuanians not complying would have their weapons seized.

Lithuania on Wednesday urged its residents not to resist weapons confiscations and shelved plans to deploy border guards.

Greyhound officials, union leaders agree to resume negotiations

By JOHN A. BOLT
AP Business Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Despite a top executive's contention that a four-week-old strike is losing its impact, Greyhound Lines Inc. and its bus drivers' union say they will return to the negotiating table next week.

Greyhound broke off talks with the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions on March 18, citing continued violence since the drivers walked out March 2.

Although the company's own records indicate the violence is continuing daily, with more than 200 incidents overall, it has agreed to resume negotiations Monday in Tucson, Ariz.

Greyhound spokesman Steve Scarpino said a shot was fired at a Greyhound bus about two miles east of Tulsa, Okla., early today. No one was hurt, he said.

Rogers County Sheriff's Office dispatcher Lance Beard said officers were investigating the shooting on Interstate 44.

Scarpino said the bus was enroute to Tulsa from

New York with 26 passengers aboard when what appeared to be pellets struck the windshield of the bus. The windshield was damaged, he said.

Bernard DeLury, head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said Thursday two mediators will participate in the negotiations.

Union spokesman Jeff Nelson said, "We assume that if they have agreed to go back to the table, we hope that they would be interested in negotiating."

Greyhound chief executive Fred Currey said in a memo to replacement drivers that the company does not plan to fire them when the strike is over.

"The company cannot and will not abandon those who are helping it survive this senseless strike," Currey said.

Previous negotiations have ended with the two sides at odds on wage and job security issues. The company says it can afford no more than the $63 million, three-year pact it is offering.

However the union and Greyhound differ over the value of the union's offer, with Greyhound saying the last offer would cost $180 million and the union putting the value at about $40 million.

Greyhound, operating with crossovers and permanent replacements, said Thursday it will expand service Sunday putting it at 54.1 percent of its total pre-strike miles. The company is adding 112 round trips that will increase service to some cities and add 50 destinations.

But President Frank Schmieder also says Greyhound has no near-term plans to add some 205,000 unprofitable miles that constitute about 32 percent of the total Greyhound system.

The decision could leave numerous areas without any intercity bus transportation, although Greyhound spokeswoman Elizabeth Hale said Thursday the company would attempt to subcontract some of the routes.

"In no way are we abandoning that 32 percent forever," she said.

Greyhound is the only nationwide bus company, serving about 9,500 pre-strike destinations. In about 9,000 of those areas, the company provides the only intercity transportation.

Schmieder said Greyhound would like to end the "open warfare" with the union, but contended "we're beginning to have plenty of drivers. ... In certain areas, yes, it's over."

"Essentially through the Southeast and Southwest, I think it's over," Schmieder said in an interview Wednesday. "Chicago, Minneapolis, it's over," although "it's still tight" in the Northeast and West, he said.

"If the company were being as successful as it's claimed to be, I think you would have seen some kind of rush back to work," the union's Nelson said. "That has not happened, and that has not happened, number one, because the company is not up and running."

Nelson claimed the company is operating only 20 percent of pre-strike routes.

Nelson said there will be about 20 union-sponsored rallies across the country through the weekend and drivers "are feeling pretty good," even though they have missed their first pay check.

Schmieder said Greyhound will have 2,250 drivers on Sunday, including about 500 union members. Company officials have estimated it takes 3,200 drivers to operate the system at this time of year.

Debbie Balsa, 9, hugs her kitten Whiskers in the living room of her home Thursday. Debbie is recovering after being critically injured Dec. 9 when she was thrown from a spinning rescue basket as she was being lifted to an Army helicopter.

Botched rescue raises concerns

By SUZANNE GAMBOA
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO (AP) — Army officials who investigated a botched mountain rescue of a girl want military airlift medics nationwide to take note of the accident, which they partly blamed on city police.

The Army investigative board said in a statement Thursday the police Mountain Rescue Team did not properly assemble a rescue litter and did not completely secure Debbie Balsa, 9, when they tried to hoist her to a military helicopter last year in the Franklin Mountains.

The girl was hiking with relatives Dec. 9 when she sprained her ankle. The helicopter and the police rescue team were called to rescue her.

As Debbie was being hoisted into the helicopter, the litter began to spin wildly. She slipped from the litter and plummeted 30 feet. She was treated for a head injury, fractured ribs, a broken hip, a damaged lung and a damaged liver. She remains in a full body cast at home, her mother, Letty Balsa, said.

Mrs. Balsa would not comment on the Army's conclusions. Her attorney, Sam Dwyer, said he would like the city and Army to pay a combined structured settlement that would cover Debbie's medical costs. He said he is awaiting medical results to determine what would be a fair amount.

The family has filed a complaint against the city. Lt. Ed Ortega, police spokesman, was out of the office when called for comment. City officials contend the rescue team is not at fault and is conducting its own investigation.

Army investigators found the rescue team did not use a tag line recommended by the manufacturer to control spinning of the litter and told Army medics she was properly secured.

The Army also concluded that the flight medic of the Army air ambulance was partly at fault for accepting a patient on a litter the medic was not familiar with. The Army did not identify the medic.

However, the Army determined "that the medic acted correctly in light of her training, experience, the situation and the assurances by the mountain rescue team that the patient was ready for the lift."

The investigation is likely to bring changes and improvements in military medical rescue missions.

The investigating board recommended:

— the accident be publicized in the military medical community and that the Academy of Health Sciences of Fort Sam Houston improve training of flight medics.

— helicopter crew members not use civilian equipment unless they are familiar with it.

— a draft field manual on medical evaluation procedures be adopted and distributed by the Army.

— more realistic training for flight medics.

— helicopter flight crews and civilian law enforcement and medical agencies get compatible radio equipment.

The helicopter crew was unable to communicate with the civilian ground crew during the girl's rescue, but investigators said it did not affect the rescue.

Gingrich: Sarpalius irresponsible on Lithuania

WASHINGTON (AP) — The second-ranking House Republican said Rep. Bill Sarpalius made irresponsible comments about the U.S. stance toward Lithuania after meeting President Bush.

House Minority Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia said he became upset with the Amarillo Democrat after Bush's chief of staff, John Sununu, complained about Sarpalius' comments in the Washington Times Thursday.

"When I saw the headline, I was as mad as Sununu," Gingrich said, referring to a front-page story in The Washington Times with the headline: "Bush would sacrifice Lithuania."

The story quoted Sarpalius as saying Bush had decided to "stick with" Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

A Sarpalius aide said the congressman did not use the term "sacrifice Lithuania over Gorbachev."

Sarpalius and Reps. Richard Durbin, D-Ill., Christopher Cox, R-Calif., and John Miller, R-Washington, who traveled to Lithuania Feb. 24-25, met privately with the president to discuss the situation there.

A press release issued by Sarpalius' office said the president told the group "there was nothing more he could do publicly for Lithuania," which declared itself independent from the Soviet Union earlier this month.

Reached in Dallas Thursday night, Sarpalius said, "For the past 50 years, U.S. policy has never recognized the presence of Soviet Union in Lithuania. By not recognizing Lithuania's independence, in a sense it recognizes the Soviet occupation of Lithuania."

But Sarpalius added, "I respect the position the president is in."

Gingrich charged Sarpalius was using the Lithuania matter as an issue in his re-election campaign.

The freshman congressman faces state Rep. Bill Waterfield, a Republican who Bush urged to run, in November's general election.

"It's not appropriate to use the people of Lithuania, to run risks with their future, for his local re-election purposes," Gingrich said.

Sarpalius shrugged off the criticism.

"The Republicans have targeted my race. They're going to slam at me every time they get a chance," he said.

Federal regulators close three more Texas banks

DALLAS (AP) — Federal regulators closed three banks Thursday, including one owned by developer D.L. "Danny" Faulkner, already accused of fraud in the failure of a savings and loan.

First National Bank of Garland was closed by the Comptroller of the Currency, citing "poor underwriting standards and character-based lending without adequate attention to collateral and the borrowers' ability to repay."

Regulators also closed Crown Bank in San Antonio and Alvord National Bank in Alvord.

The seizures bring to 22 the number of failed banks in the state this year. Nationally, 35 have failed.

Faulkner was a member of the board of directors of First National-Garland, and his son was chairman of the board. Faulkner's daughter and son-in-law also served on the board.

"The bank was forced into insol-veny by conditions that are attributed to a faltering economy," said Chris Tomalin, Faulkner's son-in-law.

State Bank of Texas agreed to purchase First National-Garland, assuming its $9.8 million in deposits and purchasing $6.4 million in assets at a discount of $174,000.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. will advance State Bank $3.6 million and retain Garland assets with a book value of $3.6 million.

Faulkner and six other defendants have been charged with defrauding the government of $135 million through a complicated scheme of land transactions involving condominiums along Interstate 30 northeast of Dallas.

After a six-month trial last summer, a jury was unable to reach a verdict and a mistrial was declared. A retrial has yet to be scheduled.

On Wednesday, a federal grand jury indicted Pamela Faulkner

Tomalin, 27, for jury tampering, claiming she made improper contact with one of the jurors who eventually was dismissed before deliberations began. She is Faulkner's daughter.

"I think the timing (of the bank seizure) is interesting," said Chris Tomalin, "but I can't speculate on that."

The OCC said Crown Bank's insolvency was caused by former management's liberal lending practices, inadequate oversight and lack of proper board supervision.

First City, Texas, of San Antonio assumed Crown Bank's $20.6 million in deposits and will pay the FDIC $6,000. It also will buy some of the bank's assets. The FDIC will advance First City about $11.5 million and retain assets of about $12.5 million. Crown Bank listed assets of $21.8 million.

The bank's two branches will not reopen, the FDIC said.

Hispanic voters gaining power to elect their own to state and national offices

By PETE HERRERA
Associated Press Writer

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Mexican Americans, a mushrooming political power, will have a chance this decade to elect one of their own to national office, the executive director of the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project predicted today.

"Within the decade of the '90s, at least one or two Mexican or Mexicana (U.S.) senators will come out of the Southwest," said Richard Martinez, who heads the voter registration campaign among Hispanics in the Southwest.

Martinez and Antonio Gonzalez, also a member of SVREP, headed a panel discussion titled "Prospects for Chicano Political Empowerment in the 1990s," as the 18th annual National Association for Chicano Studies Convention opened a three-day session in Albuquerque.

The conference will include a variety of workshops, ranging from politics and land grant issues to health issues such as the impact of acquired immune deficiency syndrome on the Hispanic community.

Gonzalez told an audience dominated by college students that the last 10 to 15 years have triggered an explosion of political activity among Mexican Americans.

Gonzalez said voter registration in the five Southwest states of New Mexico, Texas, Arizona, Colorado and California doubled from 1976 to 1988, going from 1.5 million to 3.1 million. The total of registered Mexican American voters nationally has reached 4.6 million.

"That is a major accomplishment for us, considering that between 1972 and 1976 we lost 50,000 voters," Gonzalez said. "Since 1976, Latino political growth has been unparalleled."

Gonzalez said Mexican Americans and Asians now comprise the fastest growing political forces in this country. And he said while participation in the political process has steadily declined among Anglos, the number of Mexican Americans registering and voting continues to escalate.

It is that trend, said Martinez, that makes the emergence of a vice presidential or presidential candidate from the minority inevitable.

Martinez said ongoing legislation to eliminate at-large voting and greater involvement by Hispanics in reapportionment issues will open up additional political doors.

"The voting strength is obviously growing and as litigation continues, as legislation proceeds, that voting base is going to grow stronger," he said. "And as it grows stronger, it also gains the respect of non-Mexicano voters."

"It's only a matter of time. I'm not saying it will be a Democrat or a Republican, but the talent is there. It's not impossible," Martinez said.

Martinez noted that Dan Morales, who recently won the Democratic primary for attorney general in Texas, has a chance to become the first Mexican American to be elected there on a statewide basis.

"Two years ago there were 461 elected officials in the state of California. Today, there are 615. That's political infrastructure," Martinez said. "If you combine New Mexico, Texas and California, we can become the swing votes and have 27 percent of the electoral college votes in just those three states."

Martinez said a key to keeping the momentum going will be the ability of the Mexican American community to recruit additional voters. That will require, he said, a campaign to promote American citizenship among immigrants from Mexico and South American countries.

Nursing home groups suing state welfare agency

AUSTIN (AP) — The state's welfare agency is being sued by two nursing home groups, which allege that the Department of Human Services has failed to adequately pay them for caring for Medicaid patients.

The suit was filed Thursday in U.S. District Court in Austin by the Texas Health Care Association, which represents 750 homes, and the Texas Association of Homes for the Aging, with 120 members.

"We have fought hard to raise the quality of care in Texas nursing homes. We cannot allow the erosion of these services because the state is caught in a budgetary war," said Doris Moore, president of health care association.

About 61,000 elderly and disabled Texans are dependent on Medicaid payments for their nursing home care, the groups said.

Rob Mosbacher, chairman of the Human Services governing board, said he believes the homes would get paid and that the lawsuit was filed to "preserve and protect their position. I don't honestly think they're convinced they're not going to get paid."

Mosbacher said he is working out a plan that will enable the homes to receive adequate funds.

DHS determines the amount of Medicaid that is paid to the homes. Last week the DHS governing board declined to grant increases in the Medicaid reimbursement rates after the agency reported a budget deficit projected as high as $851 million for 1990-91.

The lawsuit charges that the department violated federal law requiring that efficient and prudent nursing homes be reimbursed for the cost of providing care.

The suit contends that Medicaid rates are inadequate to provide basic services and don't account for economic trends, including minimum wage increases taking effect Sunday.

The two home groups also charge that DHS officials have "manipulated" nursing home information to make it appear that basic care costs less than it actually does.

Opinion

Let Lithuanians go, Mikhail the Terrible

Will somebody please tell George Bush that a bloodbath in Lithuania is worse than broccoli? While the president was joking about his distaste for the vegetable, he was being less than direct in his statements about the oppressive actions taken in Lithuania by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Events are still unfolding, but at a minimum Bush should (a) recognize the new, democratically elected government of Lithuania, headed by President Vytautas Landsbergis; (b) tell Gorbachev that the Soviet Union has no right to give orders to Lithuania, an independent country, any more than it does to any other country; and (c) if U.S. diplomats and American journalists continue to be expelled from Lithuania, order all Soviet diplomats out of the United States.

Bush should also remind Gorbachev that as Soviet president he has done much to improve the lot of humankind, such as allowing freedom in Eastern Europe, and that that record should gain him praise, but that the murderous suppression of free Lithuania would depart from that good work. And that the image of a smiling Gorbachev the world sees today would, by the shedding of blood in the streets of Vilnius, become the image of Mikhail the Terrible, the Butcher of Lithuania.

Gorbachev should not think that his good image would survive being drenched in Lithuania's blood, even though Bush's pusillanimous attitude toward Gorbachev's actions in Lithuania resembles his soft reaction to the Tiananmen Square massacre last June. Gorbachev should look beyond Bush to world opinion. Just a year ago Chinese dictator Deng Xiaoping was continually praised as a major reformer, but after the Tiananmen Square butchery Deng's image was transformed into that of a bloodthirsty tyrant, clutching at power atop a pile of corpses.

The spilling of blood in Lithuania would immediately cancel the work Gorbachev has done to get the U.S. Congress to repeal trade sanctions against the Soviet Union. The action, combined with the actions of horror-stricken private Western companies and investors in America, Europe and Japan, would severely curtail investment in Gorbachev's economic program, perestroika.

Such actions would send the already ailing Soviet economy into a steep downturn, leading to a possible revolt that could topple Gorbachev himself.

This is what the free world, in the voice of George Bush, should trumpet: Let Lithuania go, Gorbachev. In doing so you cast off not only Lithuania's chains, but your own.

The astonishing Mr. de Klerk

WASHINGTON — Carlyle and Emerson are authorities for the same proposition: History is mostly the lengthened shadow of the men and women who make it. It is biography. We have seen this truism confirmed in the recent history of the Soviet Union under Mikhail Gorbachev. On a smaller scale, we are witnessing it also in South Africa under Frederik de Klerk.

Since his election as president in September, de Klerk has set in motion an astonishing stream of events. Like Gorbachev, he is demanding reforms that are fundamental reforms — changes that strike at the very heart of long-standing political institutions.

Only a few years ago, negotiations between a South African president and the leader of the African National Congress (ANC) would have been unthinkable. Now the unthinkable is universally thought: Just over a week ago came the announcement that de Klerk will meet in Cape Town on April 11 with Nelson Mandela. They will take the first steps toward a new constitution that will provide for full participation by blacks in the political life of their country.

Things are happening — good things — in South Africa. It was just a year ago this month that a highly respected law commission brought forth a draft of a constitution. Many of its articles echo our own U.S. Constitution.

One provision establishes "the right to privacy." Another protects a right of free speech. Article 15 ensures a right to private property; Article 19 covers the right to assemble peacefully. Three articles cover the same protections to an accused that are provided by our own Bill of Rights. Article 24 would embed in the South African constitution a veritable Miranda Rule against self-incrimination.

It is a reasonable assumption that de Klerk and Mandela will talk about a constitution as their discussions go forward. Before it is put out for adoption, the draft will have benefited from the blacks' point of view.

This is not the only significant meeting on President de Klerk's appointment book. He met last week in Cape Town with Secretary of State James Baker. Not since 1978 has an American secretary of state set foot in South Africa. De Klerk undoubtedly seized the opportunity to press Baker for an easing — or an outright end — to U.S. sanctions.

Every consideration of politics and common sense supports an end to sanctions. President Bush some months ago set a rough timetable for significant reforms in South Africa. If major steps were not taken by June, Bush indicated, he would continue or even tighten the economic noose.

Short of the overnight dismantling of every political and economic institution — something no politician, not even Gorbachev, could get away with — it is hard to see what more de Klerk might do.

Following his election as president in September, de Klerk in October freed Walter Sisulu, secretary-general of the ANC, after 26 years in prison. In November, de Klerk ordered the desegregation of all beaches. In February, he freed Mandela and other political prisoners. During the current session of Parliament, he will win repeal of the Separate Amenities Act, thus opening all public facilities — parks, libraries, hotels, theaters, restaurants — to all South Africans. Most restrictions on media have been lifted.

In his speech to the opening of Parliament, de Klerk made his intentions abundantly clear. "The government will accord the process of negotiation the highest priority." His aim is to achieve a society "in which every inhabitant will enjoy equal rights, treatment and opportunity in every sphere — constitutional, social and economic."

De Klerk has substantial public opinion behind him. A poll taken last summer in Durban, under auspices of the University of Natal, found 67 percent of whites agreeable to desegregation. Opposition to American sanctions is equally strong among both blacks and whites. In the elections of Sept. 6, de Klerk's National Party took 48 percent of the vote. The Democratic Party, even more liberal, won 31 percent. The mandate for reform thus claims support from about 70 percent of the white electorate.

It is not entirely a rosy scenario. The hard-line Conservative Party gained seats in September. The country is plagued by the violence of black-on-black. Until order is restored, emergency decrees cannot prudently be lifted.

There are other problems, but de Klerk is fostering an atmosphere in which optimism is rising. Friends of South Africa will wish him good luck and Godspeed.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, March 30, the 89th day of 1990. There are 276 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On March 30, 1867, U.S. Secretary of State William H. Seward reached agreement with Russia to purchase the territory of Alaska for $7.2 million. The deal was roundly ridiculed in the United States as "Seward's Folly."

On this date:

In 1822, Florida became a United States territory.

In 1858, Hyman L. Lipman of Philadelphia patented a pencil with an attached eraser.

In 1870, Texas was readmitted to the Union.

In 1964, John Glenn withdrew from the Ohio race for U.S. Senate because of injuries suffered in a fall.

In 1981, President Reagan and three other men were shot and wounded by John W. Hinckley Jr. outside a Washington hotel.

CENSUS WORKERS FIND IT DIFFICULT TO COUNT THE HOMELESS. CAN YOU HELP?

The 50-million-year-old house

Over my shoulder a backward glance: Captain Tim Hubbell has been years flying ambulance service round the Navajo Indian reservation. He knew his way.

Unfolding under our light plane's wings on Friday, March 9, were landmarks and places whose very names are music:

Across the snowy Mogollan Rim to Klagetoh and Gonado — Window Rock, Cathedral Rock and Sunrise Springs.

Most Navajo hogans are many miles from the nearest village. Our mission was to visit the back country overland — negotiating backroads and roadies areas in parts of four states in a four-by-four out of Farmington, N.M.

So first we'd be overnight at the Bolack's B-Square Ranch. I've known former Governor Tom Bolack of New Mexico for more than 20 years.

I've watched his transformation from big game hunter — in the Hemingway tradition — to a profoundly dedicated conservationist.

The 12,000 acres of his B-Square Ranch include a thousand acres of habitat for the preservation and propagation of wildlife — hundreds of deer, thousands of waterfowl — and on what once was swampland, 9,000 acres of erosion-controlled rangeland.

The repairing of our earthly habitat — the replacement and renovation and maintenance of our planet, to which so many give lip service and nothing more — Tom Bolack and his son practice what they preach.

And son Tommy Bolack, with fresh innovation, is nurturing a harmonious marriage of agriculture and wildlife.

And ultimately, generously sharing it.

When B-Square vegetable varieties kept winning everything at the state fair year after year, Tommy withdrew their products from the competition — but continued to instruct, encourage and reward other participants. And to share fruitful B-Square land management know-how with the entire Southwest.

For our expedition I was met at the airport by big Tommy Bolack. I mean "Big"! Six-foot-eight and 300 pounds plus — you're reminded of big, gentle Hoss of the fictional Ponderosa.

Andrew Nagen, an expert in old Indian textiles was there, and a lifelong Indian trader who speaks Navajo like a Navajo, Walter Kennedy.

With these men next sunup I would be out-bound on a most memorable weekend.

Meanwhile I would sleep in a house 50 million years old.

Trees that came down in what is now the wash 50 million years ago got covered with sand and petrified where they lay.

Tommy has built a 10,000 square-foot house against a magnificent bluff — all of it from petrified wood. Walls up to 18 inches thick of petrified wood and similarly lined inside.

Tommy, a graduate electrical engineer, is also a geologist, an agronomist. He's his own No. 1 cowboy and he's the ranch veterinarian.

Between the gate and his house I passed a 60-acre lake hosting 60,000 waterfowl preparing for nesting.

I slept Friday night amid the Rock of Ages and recent vintage native woods — aware that the walls knew so much that I don't.

When I wake up, you and I will head off on our exploration of the reservation. Alongside a loom on the dirt floor of a Navajo hogan we'll try to make friends with yesterday.

Don't oversimplify South Africa's case

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER

What little hope there is that the American people will understand even a modicum of what is going on in South Africa in the months and years ahead depends on grasping at least the basic elements of the racial and ethnic situation there.

It is natural enough for Americans to assume that South Africa's race problem is not unlike our own, with the significant difference that the blacks there outnumber the whites nearly five to one, instead of being outnumbered by the whites (as here) by something on the order of six or seven to one. We further assume that South Africa's black population is more or less comparable to our own, in terms of cultural level, background and desires.

Armed with these assumptions (all of which are wholly mistaken), Americans quickly come to the conclusion that "the blacks" are entitled to take over South Africa — Q.E.D.

It's bad enough to have such king-sized misconceptions floating around at all, but it is vastly more unfortunate when they turn up in an ordinarily intelligent journal of opinion like The New Republic, from which a good many of America's most influential people (primarily but not exclusively liberals) tend to derive their information and their opinions.

I have before me an article from the March 12 issue of The New Republic, entitled "Mandela Unbound." It was written, from Johannesburg, by one John Carlin, who is described as the Southern Africa correspondent of the Independent of London.

It is largely in praise — indeed, one is tempted to say "worship" — of Nelson Mandela. But it discusses the forthcoming negotiations between Mandela and State President F.W. de Klerk with considerable perspicacity and (at least in comparison with most other such articles) commendable balance.

If it were true that the coming negotiations will be essentially a bilateral affair between Nelson Mandela's African National Congress and de Klerk's white regime, Carlin's article would constitute a splendid analysis.

But, alas, that isn't true. It is, in fact, very nearly the exact opposite of the truth. At the bargaining table will be at least a dozen other groups, most (though not all) of them black.

Among those present, you may be sure, will be the shrewd and articulate Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi, political leader of the Zulu nation (pop. 6 million), who detests apartheid every bit as much as Nelson Mandela does, but also detests Mandela's closest ally, the South African Communist Party.

Also present, in person or by proxy, will be the leaders of several African Christian churches (one of which boasts 5 million members), all far more conservative politically than the ANC.

Entitled to representation too will be the elected leaders of the various black homelands, speaking for the nearly half of all South African blacks who still live, tribally organized, in their ancestral areas. The ANC attracts primarily a segment of the urbanized blacks, and has relatively little influence in the homelands.

Then, moving beyond the black-vs.-white debate, what about the 3 million "Coloureds," a mulatto group that has enjoyed three centuries of acculturation to the West? These are the true analogues of America's blacks, and they resemble the average Bantu about as much as a middle-class Harlem resident resembles an Apache straight off the reservation.

Finally, there must also be room for representatives of the "Asian" (i.e., Indian) community, a million strong. These shrewd, hard-working merchants mortally fear the ANC and its radical blacks — and with reason.

Incredibly, not once in his article (which totals nearly 4,000 words) does Carlin so much as mention a single one of these major players in the South African drama. As far as he is concerned, the whole thing boils down to Mandela vs. de Klerk — period.

Congressmen object to dismissal of gays from ROTC programs

By JOHN DIAMOND
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — One semester away from graduation at MIT and a commission in the Navy's prestigious Nuclear Propulsion Program, Cadet Robert Bettiker looked across the desk at his superior officer and said: "I'm gay."

The officer, R.W. Sherer answered without hesitation. "Well then, we will consider the date of disenrollment," he said.

That quickly, the military career of a cadet with nearly four years of government-financed education at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was finished, a casualty of the Pentagon's policy of excluding homosexuals.

Now Bettiker's case, and another like his, have drawn congressional attention. A Pentagon move to require Bettiker and Harvard cadet David Carney to pay back their tuition drew a letter of protest from two dozen House members Thursday.

"We believe that to compel these men to repay this money would not only be fundamentally unfair; it would also reflect an appalling mean-spiritedness which has no place in the Navy," the lawmakers said in a letter drafted by Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., an acknowledged homosexual.

The Navy is showing no signs of wavering. Both Carney and Bettiker have been asked to sign one-page forms acknowledging their debt but have refused. For Carney, that translates into a $50,687 tab. For Bettiker, the bill comes to $38,612.

Carney, 23, graduated from Harvard last spring after the Navy covered all his tuition and some fees. He spent the past year studying at Oxford University in England. Bettiker, 22, is to graduate from MIT this spring. The Navy stopped paying his tuition after the fall semester.

Both men say they are balking at repaying the Navy because they are not trying to avoid their five years of obligatory military service and want to become commissioned officers.

"In my view, the U.S. Navy broke its contract with me, not vice versa," Carney said in an interview.

Although Bettiker and Carney know one another and had the same commanding officer, the similar timing of their cases was coincidental, Bettiker said. Both told their ROTC superior that they had recently discovered their homosexuality. They said they had not concealed their circumstances from the ROTC and were not aware they were gay when they entered the service.

Last month Studds, in a letter also signed by 23 congressmen, complained about a similar policy move by the Army ROTC against James Holobaugh, 24, who attended Washington University in St. Louis. In the Holobaugh case, a preliminary board recommended he repay his tuition.

But in the Carney and Bettiker cases, the lower-level board called for no repayment. That recommendation was overruled by Navy Secretary H. Lawrence Garrett III, who routinely reviews such cases.

Navy spokesman Jim Turner declined to comment in detail on the Carney and Bettiker cases but provided a written explanation of the Pentagon's policy excluding homosexuals.

It said the Defense Department views homosexuality as "incompatible with military service," for reasons of morale, chain of command, discipline and security. It indicated a concern about homosexual encounters among military personnel who must live and work close together and about the possibility that homosexual relationships could lead to breaches in security.

Bettiker said that when he realized he was gay he inquired about the military's exclusion of homosexuals but decided to report his situation anyway.

"I looked at the Navy's policy and was really angry that they could so arbitrarily decide that I was not fit for service," Bettiker said. "I thought about it and decided that I couldn't lie to them and couldn't live a lie for four to five years."

Sherer, in a telephone interview, described his response to Bettiker last Nov. 7, when Bettiker reported his homosexuality: "I said I would have to disenroll him, that that was a disqualifying factor for commissioning," the Navy officer said.

Americans buying Lithuanian flags

By CHARLES CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush may be reluctant to recognize Lithuania's new government, but customers at a colorful stand in Union Station's Main Hall are eager to wave the flag.

They're so eager that there's been a run on Lithuanian flags, patches, key chains and lapel pins at Alamo Flags, where manager Dante Payne's order book amounts to a weathervane of world events.

"People will come by and say, 'I heard about it on the news. Give me one.' They think freedom is great," Payne said.

In the past week, Payne has sold about 100 of his 4-by-6-inch flags at $3.99 each, and 25 of the demonstration-size 3-by-5-foot banners for $35.

"I have to order at least twice a week," Payne said from his stand in Washington's elegantly renovated main train station. "You can see we've almost sold out of patches. There's just one left."

Patches sell for $4. For Lithuania supporters who want to show the yellow, green and red colors more discreetly, key chains and lapel pins are priced at $3.99 each.

Payne said many of his customers are Americans with Lithuanian roots, others buy in bulk for demonstrations and the rest are mostly curious passers-by.

Dan Raber, a 17-year-old high school student from Kingsport, Tenn., falls into another category: the motivated collector.

"I collect flags from different countries," he said. "With all this going on and Lithuania becoming a brand-new nation, I thought it would be interesting to get a flag of theirs."

While he was at it, Raber picked up little flags from Estonia and Latvia in case Lithuania's Baltic neighbors follow it down the tricky path toward independence from the Soviet Union.

Some other Washington-based flag outlets reported no special increase in Lithuanian flag sales.

"I have had some calls, I wouldn't say dozens by any means," said Diane Wolter, a saleswoman for Betsy Ross Flag Girls Inc.

But she said political currents do affect the flag business.

"Since the Berlin Wall came down, there's been a lot of interest in Eastern Europe," she said. "When we had this flag-burning thing, that increased business tremendously."

The extra sales were to flag supporters, she hastened to add, not to people wanting to set the stars and stripes ablaze.

Report: Death rates down, life expectancy up

By ROBERT BYRD
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Life expectancy in the United States has never been higher, but disparities remain between whites and blacks, federal researchers say.

Overall U.S. life expectancy rose to 75 years, according to 1987 data, the Centers for Disease Control reported Thursday.

That was up 0.2 years — about 73 days — from 1986, said Ken Kochanek, a statistician with the CDC's National Center for Health Statistics in Hyattsville, Md.

The life-expectancy concept means that someone born in 1987 would live, on the average, 75 years. Women, on average, outlive men by 6.9 years.

Overall, Americans can now expect to live about 12 years longer than they could expect 50 years ago; the life expectancy rate in 1940 was 62.9.

But while average life expectancy for whites was 75.6 years — up slightly from 1986 — life expectancy for blacks was 69.4 years, same as the year before.

And though the nation's mortality rate was down, annual black death rates were 50 percent higher than for whites — 778.6 per 100,000 blacks, compared with 511.1 for whites.

The greatest single disparity in death rates was for death by homicide. The black homicide rate in 1987 was six times higher than that for whites, the CDC reported.

Meanwhile, the nation's overall mortality rate in 1987 — the latest year for which analysis is available — fell to a record low of 535.5 deaths for every 100,000 Americans. That's down 1 percent from a year earlier and down 7 percent from 1979.

A total of 2,123,323 U.S. deaths were reported in 1987 — the highest number ever, as the nation's population has grown.

The decline in the overall death rate came as fatality rates dropped for 13 of the previous year's 15 leading causes of death, including the big four: heart disease, cancer, stroke and accidental injuries.

The death rate from heart disease, the nation's leading killer, dropped 3.1 percent. The rate for cancer declined 0.2 percent, the rate for stroke and cerebrovascular disease fell 2.3 percent, and the rate for accidents dropped 1.7 percent.

Among the 15 leading causes of death, the only increases were among diabetes, up 2.1 percent, and septicemia, or blood infections, up 4.7 percent.

Year-by-year comparisons were unavailable for AIDS — deaths because of 1987 changes in categorization in the mortality study, the CDC said.

But CDC data on AIDS found a 32 percent increase in deaths between 1986 and 1987, and "mortality from AIDS appears to be increasing more rapidly than mortality from other conditions," the Atlanta-based agency said.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome replaced birth defects as the 15th leading cause of death.

36 dead in fighting between rival blacks in South Africa

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Rival black factions traded gunfire for a fourth day today and thousands of refugees fled Natal Province townships after savage fighting left at least 36 people dead and hundreds wounded, police said.

President F.W. de Klerk warned that political violence was becoming a threat to stability and the government would use force to restore order. He said a growing wave of violence and demonstrations was getting out of hand.

"Demonstrators openly espousing violence or preaching class and racial hatred are playing with fire.

Fanning these flames may easily lead to a catastrophic intergroup conflagration," he told the Cape Town Press Club today.

De Klerk said he would make a statement to Parliament April 2 on measures to stop the violence, but gave no details. South Africa has been hit by a wave of violence that has claimed hundreds of lives in recent weeks.

De Klerk starts talks next month on ending white-minority rule and sharing political power with blacks. The speech Friday appeared to be aimed at radical black groups who oppose a negotiated settlement and call for violence against the government.

Police said at least 36 people had been killed since Tuesday in widespread clashes between Zulu war bands in the rugged hill country near Edendale.

"It's impossible to say how many people have been hurt. It's in the hundreds," police Maj. Piet Kitching said.

Rival war bands were clashing today in rural areas, exchanging gunfire, but the situation was quieter, police said.

"It's very tense. It could erupt again at any time. It's a terrible situation," Kitching said.

Three bombs exploded early today in Thohoyandou, capital of the nominally independent homeland of Venda on the Zimbabwe border, police said. No injuries were reported in the homeland that has been hit by political unrest.

Police patrols trying to restore order in Natal were ambushed during the night. Police units came under heavy gunfire, but no officers were seriously hurt, Kitching said. South African army troops were supporting police operations, he said.

War bands of between 2,000 men and 4,000 men armed with guns, spears, knives and clubs had been roaming the area, attacking and burning villages, residents said. Police said at least 250 homes had been burned.

Thousands of terrified refugees, mainly women, children and old people, had fled from villages in the Edendale Valley. Refugees were seeking shelter in schools, churches and community centers, police said.

FDA seeking consensus among experts for food labeling

BOSTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration is hoping for a consensus among health experts and food companies on how to make sure consumers striving for health and fitness aren't fooled by product labels and advertising.

Executives from some of the country's largest food corporations met Thursday with federal officials at a conference prompted by FDA proposals to tighten regulation of food health claims.

"We're trying to define boundaries so consumers can believe what's on that label," said Fred Shank, the agency's director for food safety and applied nutrition.

At the heart of the debate: a conflict over what diet and health messages should be allowed on food packaging and who should set the standards.

"It's clear that the current situation must change. Otherwise, the bad messages may drive out the good," said Frank Young, deputy secretary for the Department of Health and Human Services.

The FDA hoped for agreement with the food industry, national health experts and other policy makers by today's wrap-up of the Tufts University-sponsored conference. The FDA plans to institute new regulations by year's end.

Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan announced the proposed regulations last month, calling them a "mid-course correction" of rules that have allowed food sellers to make health claims since 1987, when the Reagan administration abandoned a long-standing prohibition against such claims.

The proposal generally would let companies make certain health claims that are backed up by studies by the Surgeon General and the National Academy of Sciences. Other claims would be allowed only in certain circumstances.

The policy would allow health claims about fiber and colon cancer, fiber and heart disease, fats and cancer, fats and heart disease, sodium and high blood pressure, and calcium and osteoporosis, a softening of the bones found in the elderly.

'No smoking' becomes a sign of the times

By CHRISTOPHER SULLIVAN
Associated Press Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Tobacco USA, the smoke shop is called, but it could be a nickname for this region. And so when the city of Greensboro hung a "No Smoking" sign in this and other businesses, it was a sign of the times, hard times, for tobacco.

"You get some hostile reactions," acknowledged Matthew Pappas, who works at Tobacco USA, a wholesale-retail outlet. "Some people, you tell 'em they can't smoke in the store, they'll throw their cartons down and walk out."

They're not just reacting to the irony of smoking regulations in a cigarette store. Even here at home, they realize, they can't escape the sea change in American attitudes toward smoking.

Not that long ago, it wasn't just OK to smoke. It was cool. "I'd walk a mile for a Camel," the slogan said. "Winston tastes good like a cigarette should." There was the Lucky Strike Radio Hour, the barn painted with the familiar Mail Pouch logo. What happened?

Remember the Winston man in the ads, the hero who'd rescue someone and then light up? Nowadays, a model who portrayed him is stumping for the anti-smoking forces.

And what about the romance that drifted on cigarette smoke through "Casablanca" and so many other old movies? Now, one James Bond film with a pack of smokes as a prominent prop carries an on-screen health warning.

During World War I, the New York Medical Journal said that, given the nervous strain at the front, it would be "folly, both from a medical and a military standpoint, to deny tobacco to the men." Now, study after study cites new dangers. Surgeons general refine their warnings. More than 40 states and 400 localities restrict smoking. Even Greensboro.

"It's everywhere you turn," said Martha Vick, who grew up on a tobacco farm, raises the leaf with her husband and is director of a museum of tobacco farming in Kenly, N.C.

"This is a legal crop we produce," she said. "Tobacco farmers are hardworking, God-fearing citizens. ... I imagine every producer wonders what the future is going to hold."

To economic forecaster Geoffrey Greene, the future of smoking in the United States can be glimpsed in the demographics of the baby boom generation.

"There was a long period of time when there was inertia building, when the evidence became more and more clear that there were concrete health effects," said Greene, senior economist at Data Resources Inc. of Lexington, Mass.

Then a few years ago came the spur. "You started hearing the stories — Joe X from college dropped dead of a heart attack at 39 or 42. ... People who'd always been thinking about, 'Well, maybe I ought to quit smoking,' started saying, 'Now I'm going to do it.'"

Around the same time, former Surgeon General C. Everett Koop issued a report on the effects of breathing smokers' "sidestream" smoke — a message baby boomers were ready to hear, in Greene's view.

"We're increasingly aware that it's an interconnected world," he said, and there's "more willingness to accept some constraint on individual liberties" if others could be harmed.

The milestones of tobacco's recent decline are just as clear to Billy Yeargin, president of the Tobacco History Corp., which studies and preserves the commodity's heritage.

The surgeon general's report in 1964, warning of health risks from smoking, gave birth to the organized efforts against tobacco, Yeargin said, and later reports by Koop and other officials have conferred "the sanction of the government" on tobacco's antagonists. Since 1965, the percentage of adults who smoke has dropped from 40 percent to 29 percent.

Still, anti-smoking sentiment is not new. It goes back at least to King James I of England, who in 1604 blasted the "black, stinking fume" of this "custom loathsome to

By ENEDELIA J. OBREGON

AUSTIN (AP) — It's a tough decision for a soon-to-be-8-year-old: whether to follow in the footsteps of great inventors like Alexander Graham Bell and Thomas Edison, or to turn away from the world of science, dress in black and become a Ninja warrior.

So, until it's time to make such career decisions, Rodney Fluker, a second-grader at Blanton Elementary School, continues dabbling in the world of invention.

His most recent creation — a sleep belt for the back seats of cars — won a blue ribbon and a certificate in the Invent Austin! contest.

For the second year, the event was sponsored by the Microelectronics and Computer Technology Corp. and the Austin Independent School District's AIM High Program.

Rodney won first place in his grade level with an invention that allows a child lying down in the back seat of an automobile to be comfortable and safe at the same time. The V-shaped belt buckles at the bottom of the seat instead of at the folds of the seat.

"It's pretty ingenious," said his teacher, Mary Smallwood. "If a child rolls off, he'll be safe."

Rodney said he got the idea after his family was involved in a car accident. Rodney, who always wears his seat belt, wondered what would've happened to him if he'd been lying in the back seat without a seat belt.

"My mama's always talking to me about lying down," he said, adding that it's uncomfortable to lie down while wearing a seat belt. "So I wrapped the shoulder belt and wrapped it around me and then used the middle (lap) belt and wrapped it around me, too. Then I showed my mom and dad."

The award isn't the first for the budding inventor. He took first place honors at last year's competition with his car door umbrella holder.

Laurie Fluker, a journalism professor at Southwest Texas State University, thinks the youngster got his creativity from his father, Rodney, an administrator with Austin Community College.

"He (Rodney Sr.) is good with his hands," Laurie Fluker said. "But most of the family is involved in education, and I think that stimulates his thinking."

Twelve other AISD students won first-place ribbons in the competition.

Their inventions can be viewed at the Austin Children's Museum beginning in late April. Winning inventions will compete at state, regional and national levels.

Texas man held in Delaware extortion case

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A Texas man has been charged with attempting to extort $130,000 from a Wilmington man who owed him $100,000, the FBI said Wednesday.

Glenn Schaffer, 46, of Gainesville, Texas, the owner of Schaffer Construction Co., was arrested at his home Tuesday night, the FBI said.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Edmond Falgowski said Wednesday that Schaffer could be extradited to Delaware in about two weeks.

Falgowski said Schaffer faces up to 20 years in prison, a $250,000 fine and three years' probation if convicted.

Schaffer is accused of attempting to extort money from Fred W. Dalton, a vice president with Reston Corp., a Wilmington construction company.

The FBI said the alleged extortion scheme stemmed from 1987 when Dalton, then living in Texas, borrowed $100,000 from Schaffer for a sand and gravel business, but filed for bankruptcy the same year.

The FBI said Dalton was assaulted at his Wilmington home two weeks ago and given a note demanding payment of $130,000. The FBI said the note included details on how and where to send the money.

A month of lawmaking adds up to zilch

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Think of the Texas Legislature as a math problem. Add 181 lawmakers, 30 days, two subjects, one governor and what do you get?

Nothing.
The Legislature ended its 30-day special session on school finance and judicial election reform Wednesday, but no bill was passed on either subject despite court orders to change things.

Lawmakers and Gov. Bill Clements already were taking heat. "I would hate to go to the Pearly Gates and have this state judged now," said Superintendent James Vasquez of the Edgewood Independent School District, which sparked the school finance reform engine with a successful lawsuit against the current system of state aid.

If there's no action in the next special session, which begins Monday, Vasquez said plaintiffs in the landmark case would be back in court on May 1 seeking to shut down Texas public schools.

May 1 is the deadline set for action by the Texas Supreme Court, which ruled that the current system discriminates against property-poor districts.

Clements called the special session but offered no specific school reform plan of his-own for lawmakers to consider.

The governor didn't make a speech to lawmakers when the session opened, but he did repeatedly vow to veto any bill costing more than $300 million the first year.

An AP News Analysis

Several lawmakers said at least $800 million was needed unless the state uses the very unpopular "Robin Hood" scheme — taking money from wealthier school districts and giving it to poorer ones.

The Senate passed a $1.2 billion bill, knowing Clements had promised to veto it if it reached his desk.

The House failed to pass anything at all, killing plans with price tags ranging from $260 million to $950 million.

Then they adjourned. But the Supreme Court's clock keeps ticking.

Sen. Carl Parker, the Senate Education Committee chairman, criticized Clements for not moving sooner to allow lawmakers to consider school finance reform. The Supreme Court ruled on Oct. 2, 1989, but Clements waited until Feb. 27 to call the Legislature into session on its order.

"I've been concerned for a long time ... about the wisdom of waiting until the 12th hour to convene a session. I thought that showed poor judgment on the part of the governor," said Parker, D-Port Arthur.

There was even less action on judicial selection, where U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton has ruled that at-large elections of state judges in nine urban counties illegally dilute voting rights of minorities.

Neither the House nor Senate ever considered a bill on that subject. Several proposals languished in committee during the final week.

"The mentality seems to be that we do nothing and try to outguess the (appeals) courts. I think that's wrong. I think we have a responsibility to respond to the court order," complained Rep. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi.

Legislative leaders tried to sound upbeat Wednesday. They said the first special session was needed to start the ball rolling and predicted quick action next time.

"By no means is it an embarrassment, because what we have done made a great deal of progress," said House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth. "It takes time to get the wheels of government moving..."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who presides over the Senate, said his chamber would debate an identical $1.2 billion bill by the second day of the new session.

"I would anticipate the Senate would pass that bill on Tuesday," he said. But with characteristic understatement, he said prospects in the House and governor's office are less certain: "There are very serious disagreements about issues."

Lewis predicted his House would pass its plan and be negotiating with senators in a conference committee within 10 days. "What we will be doing next week is moving very quickly," he pledged.

Not everyone seemed so sure. "I don't think it's unrealistic," House Public Education Committee Chairwoman Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, said of the 10-day plan. "But I wouldn't be willing to bet my 1978 Lincoln on it."

Personal income shows gain, while spending lessens

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Personal income rose 0.9 percent in February, its biggest gain in three months, while consumer spending advanced 0.4 percent for its smallest increase in four months, the government reported Thursday.

The Commerce Department said incomes totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $4.64 trillion after rising a revised 0.7 percent in January. The January increase originally was reported to have been 0.8 percent.

Consumer spending totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $3.63 trillion after a 1.0

percent gain in January, an upward revision from the 0.6 percent advance originally reported.

The increase in income was matched by the 0.9 percent gain last November, while the consumer spending advance was the smallest since a 0.3 percent increase last October.

Consumer spending is watched closely as a barometer of economic health since it accounts for about two-thirds of the nation's economic activity.

Another closely watched component of today's report, Americans' savings rate — savings as a percent of disposable income — rose 5.7 percent on top of a 5.3 percent advance in January.

"The February and January increases in personal income were affected by several special factors," the department said, including farm subsidies which both raised the February change and lowered the January change.

"A pay raise for federal government employees raised the changes in both months," it said. "The January change was also boosted by cost-of-living adjustments to several transfer payment programs and was lowered by an increase in personal contributions to social insurance."

The department said payroll increases were spread through all industry categories. Government payrolls also were up, reflecting the federal pay raise.

FBI seizes records at LULAC complex

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — FBI agents seized financial records at a LULAC-sponsored, federally-subsidized apartment complex placed in receivership last year by the League of United Latin American Citizens, league officials said.

National LULAC treasurer Jose Botello of Dallas said the FBI took all the records at LULAC East Park Place Apartments in San Antonio.

The confiscated files covered a period from 1986 until new managers assumed control of the apartments in February under the national LULAC order.

Ruben Sandoval, the San Antonio lawyer who is national counsel for LULAC, also confirmed the records were taken by federal agents, the San Antonio Express-News reported.

Join Us In Worship

In The Church Of Your Choice

In the Beginning

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth."

Out of the void God created this wonderful world, he created the stars, the herbs, the trees and animal life. All of these wonderful things, God spoke into existence, but he created man with his own hands.

"And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul."

God has done so much for us... attend church regularly and learn more of man's relationship to God.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Allen Groff Briarwood sets family enrichment conference series

A family enrichment conference will be conducted at Briarwood Church, 1800 W. Harvester, from Sunday through Friday with Allen Groff from San Antonio.

During the past 37 years, Groff has pastored historic churches in Texas, Oklahoma, Illinois and Oregon. Through the years, he has spoken on college campuses, at marriage and family enrichment conferences, district camps and minister's institutes and seminars.

Married and the father of four children, Groff, who attended the University of Arkansas and graduated from Frank Phillips College, Henderson State University and Southern Illinois University, draws on his experiences as a husband, father and pastor for the constructive living out of Biblical and clinical applications.

He illustrates life and passion with humor, according to Briarwood Church Pastor Gene Allen. Groff is convinced daily that God's word addresses and directs people to health and healthy handling of their humanity, Allen said.

Allen extends an invitation to the public to attend the services, which are set for 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Sunday. Services Monday through Friday are set to begin at 7:30 p.m. A nursery will be provided.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: Have faith in God, Jesus answered. I tell you the truth, if anyone says to this mountain, 'Go, throw yourself into the sea,' and does not doubt in his heart but believes that what he says will happen, it will be done for him. Therefore I tell you, whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you have received it, and it will be yours. (Mark 11:22-24 NIV)

Meteoric technological progress has catapulted us into an age of astounding mathematical, scientific, and informational advancement. It's a breathtaking ride that few of us were even firmly seated for much less properly belted in and holding on tight. We are being whipped around the curves and over the crests, hanging on by our fingernails.

In my work and home offices, I have enough computer capability to amaze myself and the world with Walter Mitty-type feats of derring-do.

I have at my fingertips the capacity to produce accounting systems, drafts and graphs, original works of art, or the great American novel. I could build or topple an empire. I could develop new surgical techniques or image an athlete's motion. I could track the progress of DNA research, or I could track a tornado cloud. I could benefit mankind or design nuclear weapons.

The possibilities seem endless. I have only one problem; I don't know how to use all that computer capability at my disposal. The computers won't do a thing I don't know how to free them to do.

We Christians have at our mere request, all the power of an omnipotent God.

We have just one problem; we don't know how to access all that power capability. We don't know how to give our souls in wild abandon to perfect belief in The Power Source.

Such prayerful faith lights the fuse that allows God's goodness to explode into miraculous response.

Just think! If we only knew how, God and we could... yes, we could!

Clergymen challenged by hatchin', matchin' and dispatchin' strangers

By HELEN PARMLEY
The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS (AP) — It happened to a Dallas minister. He was preaching a funeral for a man he did not know, and in the middle of the eulogy, he forgot the man's name.

It has never happened to the Rev. S.M. Wright of Peoples Baptist Church, however, because, Wright says, "I always keep the funeral program in front of me where I can look down and see the name."

Clergy members often are called on to conduct funerals for strangers. They also are tapped by people who don't ordinarily attend a church or synagogue to perform weddings, baptisms and bar mitzvahs.

The practice was once called "hatchin', matchin' and dispatchin'," said the Rev. William Carl of First Presbyterian Church.

No minister interviewed for this report had ever been asked to perform a wedding in a hot air balloon or on a roller coaster at the State Fair, but several recounted interesting experiences of delivering matrimonial vows to people they did not know.

While serving a congregation in Virginia, Carl was asked to marry a couple who worked with the Virginia Museum Theater. The service took place in an apartment, and all members of the wedding party and guests were theater people.

The couple told the minister that two friends from New York and Washington also would participate in the ceremony, singing and reciting poetry.

"It turned out these friends were from the Broadway stage," Carl said. "And suddenly these big booming voices were singing and reciting sonnets from Shakespeare. I got into it with Corinthians 13. I had to play it up, too."

When he pronounced the couple married, there was not a dry eye in the place, Carl said. And at the benediction, a big voice from the back of the room shouted, "Great show. Let's take it on the road!"

The Rev. Jim Ozier of Munger Place United Methodist Church remembers being asked to conduct a wedding in front of the old boat dock at White Rock Lake. During the ceremony, a storm struck suddenly, and the wedding party and guests scurried into the boat house.

No sooner had the ceremony begun again than the minister heard an incredible roar. When the noise grew louder, it became apparent that a pack of barking dogs was closing in. Everyone scrambled.

It turned out that a kennel club was having a show of attack dogs in another area of the park, Ozier said. After a talk with the kennel people, Ozier completed the ceremony, the longest and most memorable wedding in his career.

The clergymen said that when they conduct a funeral for someone they don't know, they try to talk to a relative or a close associate so they can preach in a more personal way.

Carl remembers once getting his information on the run. He was asked to conduct a funeral for a man whose son said his father wasn't Presbyterian, but "he leaned that way."

"I had to find out about the guy while we walked from the car to the grave site," Carl said, "I learned he had been a scout for the New York Yankees. He had brought Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle to the team."

And he had brought a lot of joy into people's lives, Carl said, so he "hurriedly figured out a text that fit the baseball cards I collected when I was growing up."

Although clergy members regularly conduct funerals — and some conduct weddings — for people they don't know, some draw a line on performing baptisms and bar mitzvahs for strangers.

In the Presbyterian denomination, people who are baptized must be members of the church. In the case of infants, at least one parent must be a member, Carl said.

Rabbi Sheldon Zimmerman of Temple Emanu-El said bar mitzvahs must follow required studies or "they would only be a facade."

The clergymen expressed no surprise that, at certain times in their lives, people who otherwise do not think much about God and worship feel a need to touch base.

"We're talking about folks who have long since forgotten their need for the church until they come to these points in their lives," said Ozier.

Carl calls these times "passages — key seasons of our lives when the church and synagogue and our relationship to God become more important to us as human beings."

"In times of crisis, people plug in, and when there is nothing there for them, they come to us," Zimmerman said.

The rabbi remembers the time in 1985 when he received an urgent call from a family who had been in a car crash. One member of the family was brain-dead. Having moved to Dallas only three days earlier, Zimmerman didn't know the family and didn't know where the hospital was.

He got directions to the hospital, and on the way there, he thought, "How can I be here for this family without any personal knowledge?"

There are times, he said, when it is very difficult to counsel. But this time, he worked with the family.

"I was there for them," he said, "and that's what the ministry is all about."

Chronic snorers' methods of coping

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether you sound like a train rumbling past the window or a sail flapping in the breeze, you're among 45 percent of the adult population that snores occasionally or 25 percent known as habitual snorers.

Dr. Frank E. Lucente, chairman of the Department of Otolaryngology, Head and Neck Surgery at the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary, says there are several things you can do to try to reduce the frequency of snoring before resorting to more drastic measures such as surgery or divorce.

— Keep fit. Overweight people are often problem snorers.

— Avoid tranquilizers and sleeping pills.

— Avoid alcoholic beverages for three hours before bedtime.

— Eat meals at least three hours before retiring.

— Establish regular sleep patterns.

— Sleep on your side instead of your back. Consider sewing a pocket on the back of your pajamas to hold a tennis ball. This will prevent you from sleeping on your back.

— Try tilting your bed upward by placing a brick under each bedpost at the head of the bed.

— Allow the non-snorer to go to sleep first.

Devout and pious co-worker fails in practice of her faith

DEAR ABBY: I work in the medical profession where the professionals are supposed to be sympathetic and caring, right? Well, as I write this letter, a co-worker is cursing and complaining about the blankety-blank patients, the working conditions, the shortage of help, space, telephones, etc. But what really bugs me most about this woman is the fact that she is a devout churchgoer. Her conversations are peppered with "the Lord this" and "the Lord that." I have great difficulty understanding the inconsistencies between her professed faith and her actions. Although I am not an active member of my church, I wouldn't treat a dog the way this pious churchgoer treats people.

She is not an isolated case by any means. In my experience, I have usually found that those who thump their Bibles the loudest would benefit more by being thumped by them.

UP TO HERE IN SAN DIEGO
 DEAR UP: We all know people who are faithful churchgoers but fall short when it comes to practicing their religion. But what better place for them to be? As I have said before: A church is not a museum for saints — it's a hospital for sinners.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in response to a recent letter from an elderly Ohio widow who wanted to be fair in the distribution of her estate. She had two grown children. Her daughter is married to a very successful businessman and they have no children. Her son is a struggling schoolteacher with three children to educate. The well-to-do widow had originally planned to leave her daughter and son equal amounts in the interest of fairness.

Now she is having second thoughts, so she asked you. You simply told her, "It's your money, so do whatever gives you the most pleasure."

Your advice wasn't very helpful, Abby. I would have suggested that she divide her estate in thirds. Leave one-third to her childless daughter, one-third to her struggling son and the other third in a trust fund to educate her grandchildren.

BEEN THERE IN OREGON
 DEAR BEEN THERE: Thanks, I needed that. Also, the Ohio widow would be wise to seek the advice and counsel of an attorney

Four finalists employ run-and-gun offenses

By JOHN MOSSMAN
AP Sports Writer

DENVER — Jerry Tarkanian remembers as if it were yesterday the moment he conceived the fabled running game that is viewed as the offense of tomorrow.

"I think the transition style really is a trend," the UNLV coach said Wednesday during a telephone conference call involving the Final Four coaches. "I don't think you can win big unless you play an up-tempo game. Had Loyola Marymount beaten us, you might see an even bigger trend."

UNLV, beating the nation's highest-scoring team at its own game, outran Loyola 131-101 Sunday in the NCAA West Regional final to advance to the NCAA tournament semifinals: The Rebels (33-5) will take on Georgia Tech (28-6) on Saturday and Arkansas (30-4) goes against Duke (28-8) at Denver's McNichols Arena. The championship game is Monday night.

Those who have competed against Tarkanian the past 16 seasons aren't surprised he was able to run with Loyola, which averaged an NCAA-record 122 points per game this season.

"We went to the running game in the 1974-75 season," Tarkanian recalled. "We had lost a big kid who transferred to Hawaii, and we had a 7-footer who decided to sign with the Virginia Squires of the old ABA. That left us without a big man."

"We knew we had to speed the game up. We knew we needed to get a shot off before the defense set up. We got rid of our zone and went with a pressing, trapping defense. We had some success with it, our kids loved it and we stayed with it." It is not coincidental, in Tarkanian's view, that the tournament's four remaining teams use a variation of his attack.

"All four teams are good transition teams," agreed Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson, "and we all have guys who can shoot the 3. I think it's going to be a high-scoring Final Four. I expect the scores to be at least in the 80s."

And close. The coaches were unanimous in their belief that parity has arrived in college basketball, citing the unprecedented number of close games in the tournament.

"There are good players on about every team in the country," Tarkanian said.

"I've been to 16 tournaments, and this is the most exciting one I've seen," Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins said.

"There are great players everywhere," Duke's Mike Krzyzewski said. "It's amazing how well these kids can play under pressure."

Johnny Mitchell and his Georgia Tech teammates are hoping for another happy conclusion on Saturday.

"I honestly believe there are no upsets in the tournament," Richardson said. "Parity is definitely here. If you tossed it all up again, you might have four different teams here."

If there is a favorite among the finalists, it is UNLV, and Tarkanian's NCAA tournament record is a reason. He is 31-15 in tournament play, trailing only such notables as John Wooden (47), Dean Smith (43) and Denny Crum (32) in victories.

Richardson and Cremins picked UNLV to go all the way.

Harvesters host Dumas, Borger at Top O' Texas

By SONNY BOHANAN
Sports Editor

The Pampa Harvester track and field team will host Borger and Dumas in a triangular Saturday at the Top O' Texas Relays, set for a 9 a.m. start at the Pampa High School track.

The meet originally was scheduled to include more teams, but the field was reduced to three over the past week.

"We had some teams pulling out on us here at the last, but it should be a battle with the teams we've got," said head coach Mike Shklar, whose Harvesters finished second behind Liberal, Kan., at last year's TOT.

"Borger won the Guymon meet (on March 20), and they look like they'll challenge Levelland for the runner-up spot in this district. They're up and coming with a lot of young, quality athletes, and they're well-rounded. And Dumas has always had a quality track program."

The Harvesters also competed at Guymon a week and a half ago, compiling 104 points to finish fourth in the team standings.

"We've got several areas that are looking pretty good," Shklar said. "Our sprint relay seems to have the best chance."

Pampa's 400 relay, made up of Wayne Cavanaugh, Heath Parker, Cornelius Landers and Charles Williams, has clocked a season-best time of 44.05, good enough for the No. 8 spot on the area honor roll. In Guymon, the Harvesters added a new face to that lineup and captured first place with a 44.08 clocking.

"We had a sophomore, Trent O'Neal, to replace Cornelius, and he did a great job," Shklar said. "We missed two of our handoffs and still clocked a 44.08, our second-best time of the year."

"We think with Cornelius back, we can go in the low 43s if we hit our handoffs."

The Harvesters' other gold medal at Guymon came in the 100-meter dash when Heath Parker finished in 11.16. Parker owns a season-best of 10.9, which he ran on March 16 at Levelland, eighth on the area honor roll.

"That 10.9 leaves Heath tied for second in our district right now," Shklar said.

Dolvin Briggs, a triple jumper and member of the 1600 relay team, has been another standout for the Harvesters. He made the honor roll with a leap of 41 feet, 6 1/2 inches in the triple jump and provides one leg of the Harvesters' mile relay, which has a season-best of 3:33.03.

"Dolvin has won or medaled every meet in the triple jump," Shklar said. "He's currently third in the district behind two kids from Dunbar."

Other members of Pampa's 1600-meter relay include Wayne Cavanaugh, Charles Williams and Mike Jones.

"We're going to see if we can bring it in under 3:30," Shklar said. "If not, we probably won't be able to place in district."

Jones also made the honor roll in the 800 after clocking a time of 2:04.8.

Nathan Rains and Alberto Carrillo have improved in their respective events over the course of the season. Rains, who cleared 5-6 in the high jump in the first meet, is now up to 6-1. Carrillo, a sophomore, has

Lady Harvesters lead District 1-4A golfers

LUBBOCK — The Lady Harvester A and B golf teams finished first and second, respectively, during the first District 1-4A round of the season at Elm Grove Course Thursday.

Pampa's A team shot a 406 to win the competition, followed by the B team with a score of 416. Hereford's A team gave the Lady Harvesters their only real competition, claiming third place at 419.

Borger was a distant fourth at 452.

Three of Pampa's players finished in the top six in the medalist standings. Brandy Chase, playing for the B team, shot 91 to finish second overall, one stroke behind medalist Naomi Grijalva of Hereford. Kristin Largin paced the A team with a 96, fifth in the medalist standings, followed by Kelley Harris, who was sixth overall at 102.

"Winning first and second was a pleasant surprise," said Pampa coach Frank McCullough. "That was helped by Brandy Chase being on the J.V. She didn't make the varsity this week, then turns around and shoots a 91. That kind of got our J.V. going."

"She broke out of her slump, and I knew she would. I'm really proud of her."

Thursday's round was played despite wet conditions, which slowed the game considerably. "The weather was kind of yucky and muddy, but it wasn't terrible," McCullough said.

The victory puts Pampa's A team 13 strokes ahead of Hereford after one of four district rounds. The B team has a three-stroke cushion. The top two teams in the league will advance to regionals in the postseason.

"That would be great to take two teams to regionals," said McCullough, whose Lady Harvesters will play the second district round Saturday at Dumas. "Hopefully, we'll be able to increase that lead."

Tee time Saturday is 9 a.m. at Dumas Country Club.

Thursday's results are on today's Scoreboard.

The Pampa boys team is competing in the Amarillo Relays at Amarillo Country Club today and Saturday. They tee off at 9 this morning as scheduled, despite wet conditions. See Sunday's edition for final results of both boys and girls teams.

Simmons chosen Player of the Year by AP . . .

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Basketball Writer

DENVER — Lionel Simmons, the third-leading scorer in Division I history, was named college basketball Player of the Year today by The Associated Press.

The 6-foot-7 senior forward from La Salle received 135 votes in nationwide balloting conducted before the NCAA tournament, outdistancing runner-up Gary Payton of Oregon State by 35 votes.

Derrick Coleman of Syracuse was third with 63 votes. Loyola Marymount's Hank Gathers, who died on March 4 after collapsing on the court during a game, was fourth with 42.

Simmons' emotional reaction during a game to the news of the death of Gathers, a close friend since their boyhood days in Philadelphia, allowed the nation to see the human side of one of the game's most consistent players.

He averaged 26.5 points per game this season to follow seasons of 20.3, 23.3 and 28.4. He led the Explorers to the country's best record, 30-2, and first appearance in the second round of the NCAA tournament since 1955, when La Salle lost the title game in a bid to repeat as national champions.

Simmons led the Explorers in rebounding, 11.1, and blocked shots, 65. He was second in assists, 3.6, and third in steals with 58. He shot 51 percent from the field and made 31 of 65 3-point attempts. He managed these numbers while averaging 38.1 minutes per game.

As Simmons went, so did the Explorers, who were 100-31 in the four years the criminal justice major spent at the Philadelphia school.

He had just one 40-point game in his career — this season against Manhattan — in amassing 3,217 points, a figure bettered only by Pete Maravich's 3,667 and Freeman Williams' 3,249.

He was just the fifth Division I player to score 3,000 points and when he reached that mark on Feb. 22 with a free throw at the Philadelphia Civic Center, the game was stopped for 15 minutes while a school and city poured out their love and admiration for the man known as the "L-Train."

Before each home game, the Explorers would take the court to the piercing call of a train whistle while smoke billowed from machines stationed at the corner of the floor where the team made its entrance.

. . . while Calhoun takes top coaching award

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Basketball Writer

DENVER — Connecticut's Jim Calhoun, who led the Huskies from preseason all-stars to the Big East title and within one game of the NCAA tournament's Final Four, was named college basketball coach of the year today by The Associated Press.

Calhoun, the first Big East coach to win the award, received 194 votes in nationwide balloting conducted before the NCAA tournament. He easily outdistanced Kansas' Roy Williams, who received 83 votes, and Michigan State's Jud Heathcote, with 80.

Connecticut was picked eighth in preseason voting by the Big East's nine coaches as Calhoun began his fourth season with the Huskies.

All the young team — one senior — managed was a share of the Big East regular-season title with Syracuse, the championship of the conference tournament and three victories in the NCAA before falling in the East Region final by the margin of an overtime buzzer-beater by Duke's Christian Laettner.

The Huskies finished with a school-record 29 victories against just six losses and were ranked as high as fourth in the poll.

The ride became much more than a basketball team on a roll. The state of Connecticut contracted a severe case of Husky-mania as the team progressed.

The Huskies won the Great Alaska Shootout to start the season and then won eight of their next nine to raise some hopes.

A 31-point loss at St. John's seemed to cast doubts on the Huskies as the Big East season began, but it turned into a rallying point and the precursor of a 10-game winning streak.

In that run were victories over Syracuse, Georgetown and St. John's — all in a four-game stretch — and the nation's eye had been caught.

The Huskies, who played on three different home courts this season, went 12-4 in the conference regular season and followed that up with a sweep of Seton Hall, Georgetown and Syracuse.

Briefs

Baseball

The Harvesters baseball game at Borger this afternoon has been rescheduled for 5 p.m. next Thursday, April 5, at Borger. And with water standing on Harvester Field, Pampa's home game against Levelland, scheduled for Saturday at 2 p.m., may be switched to Levelland's field.

Monday: Pampa at Lubbock Estacado, 3:30 p.m.
Tuesday: Dumas at Pampa, 4:30 p.m.
Thursday: Pampa at Borger, 5 p.m.

Golf

Volunteer workers are asked to report to the new Hidden Hills Golf Course for a work party at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Work to be done on the course includes painting, finish carpentry, installing the remainder of the boundary fence and sorting the surplus lumber for a sale soon to be announced.

Paint brushes and rollers will be provided for the painters.

All volunteers are welcome to help insure the will be open for play as soon as possible.

Racquetball

The Pampa Youth and Community Center is hosting a racquetball tournament today, Saturday and Sunday.

Approximately 50 players from all over the southwest will participate, including four professional players.

Drew Kaschik, ranked 14th in the world, and Lance Gilliam, ranked 18th, will both compete, as will Charlie Guerrero, a junior national from Houston. The tournament is open to players from the professional to the beginners' level.

Final Four

"I think Tark has a tremendous basketball team," Richardson said. "We got a chance to play them earlier in the year (losing 101-93). They've got a nice front line and good guards, and they've got that wild man, (Moses) Scurry. He scares me."

Cremins came away impressed after UNLV's romp over Loyola Marymount.

"Particularly after the Loyola game, I feel you've got to favor Tark's team," Cremins said. "But there might not be any favorite with how close the games have been."

Krzyzewski seemed to be leaning toward Georgia Tech, although his comments were laced with good-natured ribbing.

"Bobby Cremins said all those nice things about me earlier and then he goes and picks someone else," Krzyzewski said. "I think he should do it. If not, the people of Atlanta should string him up."

Tarkanian diplomatically called it a wide-open Final Four.

"I don't think there's a clear-cut favorite," he said. "If you took a poll after our game with Ball State (a 69-67 victory in the West semifinal), I don't think anyone would have picked us. I think it's about as equal a tournament as you'll find."

But Tarkanian had gone on record earlier as saying, "If we play real well, there isn't a team we can't beat."

Track

shown a steady increase in the two distance runs, the 1600 and 3200.

"We're looking for some good, quality sophomore times from Alberto," Shklar said. "He's ready to break 4:50 in the mile and 10:32 in the two miles. We think he's got a chance to place in district, but it will be pretty tough with (state cross-country champion) Randall in this district."

Saturday's meet features field events at 9 a.m. and running prelims one hour later, followed by running finals that afternoon at 1:30. See Sunday's edition of The Pampa News for results.

NAZARETH (AP)—Sandy Heiman, who coached the Nazareth Swifties girls' basketball team to three consecutive Class A state championships, has resigned her coaching and teaching duties in order to spend more time with her family, school officials say.

Mrs. Heiman's resignation will be effective at the end of the school year.

She joined the coaching staff in 1981 and was an assistant under Joe Lombard for four years and then coached the team for five seasons.

Nazareth advanced to the state tournament four times in Heiman's five seasons as head coach, and won three Class 1A state titles in the process. Her teams compiled an overall won-loss record of 152-19.

Mrs. Heiman, 32, lives in Canyon and makes the 80-mile round trip almost daily to Nazareth. She and her husband, Wayne, also have a 2-year-old daughter, Kelsea.

Mrs. Heiman said with her daughter getting older and more active, she felt the need to spend more time at home. But that didn't make the decision any easier.
