BUENOS AIRES (P)— Argentine meat shipments to Britain have declined some 8000 tons a monopoly on meat sales abroad, fixed prices which packing houses should pay for cattle. Stockmen were willing to sell cattle at the time the price was fixed. But now, they say their costs a regoing up. Ranchers have asked the going up. Ranchers have asked the government several times to raise Food ministry officials here say the floor price of cattle. The matter is now under study. they believe the slowdown will Meantime, cattlemen are no selling any more than they must to meet running expenses. The current sales are not enough to fill Argentina's domestic needs and still provide enough meat for normal exports. Government trade circles con-tend that the value of Argentine neat has doubled since 1939.
