Audit letter leads to elimination of deficiencies in city's financial operations

By BETH MILLER Staff Writer

An auditing firm's management letter to the city of Pampa points out significant deficiencies in city's financial operations during fiscal year 1989.

Turnover in city of Pampa management in 1989 and the changeover of firms completing the annual audit for ple we have," Hackler said. the city contributed to problems that surfaced in the management letter, City Manager Glen Hackler said

The city of Pampa had four different officials in the capacity of leading the city during 1989. City Manager Bob Hart resigned in January and then Assistant City Manager Frank Smith took the reins until Jack Chaney was hired. When Chaney left, Smith took over again until the City Commission hired current City Manager Glen Hackler in late 1989.

Hackler said in a recent interview that the change from H.V. Robertson & Co. to Peat Marwick Main & Co. also caused some difficulties because different auditors do things differently.

Although numerous recommendations were made in the management letter, the city did receive a "clean" opinion from the Peat Marwick.

"There are too many variables. To assess the fault would be difficult," Hackler said of items mentioned in the management letter.

However. Hackler did acknowledge most of the comments made in the eight-page letter were valid and have been or will be addressed by the administration and/or City Commission.

Because of points made in the management letter, Hackler said better books are being kept and he has made it clear to the finance department what type of performance is expected. "This is the benchmark for performance measure.

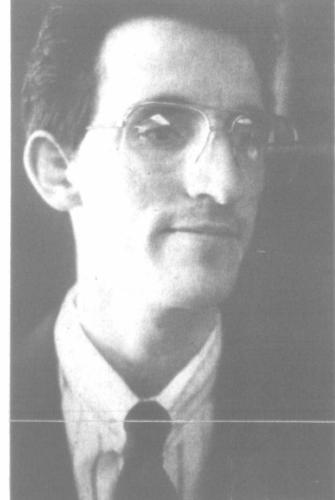

Next year if this crops up, we can identify the problem," Hackler said. "There are things that are correctable. That's part of my job and the expectation of the commission that the problems be resolved."

Speaking of the management letter, he said, "There are a lot of suggestions and a lot of work here,

"Last year there were different managers and different time requirements. Some of the basic accounting procedures weren't done because there was no time to do them."

To help alleviate some of the problems encountered and the city manager's comments. with having enough people and enough time, one person was recently moved from data processing to the finance department. Although that person will still assist data processing at peak times, it will help decrease the work load of the finance department. "It's a move to make more efficiency with the peo-

Thirteen items were listed in the management letter under the heading "Improving General Accounting Procedures." Following is a synopsis of each of the items

City Manager Glen Hackler

Reconciling Due from Other Funds Accounts with Due to Other Funds Accounts and Transfers

The management letter states that on Sept. 30, the to" is a payable to another fund. Transfers between the the standard numbering. funds were also out of balance on Sept. 30, and had been for most of the year, according to the audit report. The city had no policy on periodically reconciling the balances of these accounts, and Peat Marwick recommended that they be reconciled each month. Hackler said, "Their recommendations were totally appropriate. This is a fairly routine accounting procedure and should have been done.'

The city manager said the finance department is now reconciling the balances on a timely basis. As of October 1989, he said, all "due to" and "due from" accounts for that year were adjusted by the auditors.

Accounting for Audit Adjustments

Errors noted relating to the prior year's audit adjustment included some entries posted by the previous auditors that were not posted by the city because it did not receive copies. Some audit adjustments were simply not posted correctly by the city.

Peat Marwick said those types of problems could be overcome if, in the future, the city reconciled the balance sheet accounts in the city's final adjusted general ledgers to match the auditors' final adjusted balance and to the audit.

Hackler said those adjusting entries were made for this fiscal year and everything is adjusted correctly.

Consolidating the City's Accounting Funds

The auditors noted the city's accounting department maintains an estimated 50 "funds" to account for transactions. The firm recommended the consolidation of many of the funds to improve efficiency.

Hackler said the city consolidated a number of funds (about 10 or 13) in early March, due to the recommendations of the auditors. "This is a matter of policy. The more funds you have the more bookkeeping you have."

The city manager said City Finance Director John Horst has said that for at least two years Horst had been told under previous management not to reconcile any of the funds. "That didn't make a lot of sense," Hackler

General Ledger Accounting Numbering

The auditors recommended the city examine the "due to" and "due from" accounts were out of balance. numbering of the general ledger accounts, which had "Due from" is a receivable from another fund and "due" caused some confusion because they did not conform to > Hackler said the general ledger had been examined and some of the accounts were modified.

Allocating Interest Income

Peat Marwick noted that substantially all cash balances are maintained in an interest bearing "cash pool account," and interest revenue from that pool is allocated monthly to funds based on the relative positive balances at the month's end. Those with negative balances are excluded from the calculation.

Because of this practice, the firm said, funds with overdraft balances were allowed to borrow money interest-free from other funds. The firm recommended charging interest to funds that have overdrafts and giving full interest credit to funds with positive balances.

Hackler said this is a "preferred method," and because the city has a three-year contract with Peat Marwick, the city plans to implement the recommendations, although he said it would take some time

Bank reconciliations

The management letter states that the city performs monthly reconciliations for each cash account. However, a "plug" amount, which represents an unlocated difference, is often used to balance the reconciliation. The amount of that "plug" went as high as $1,000 in 1989, according to the auditors.

Peat Marwick recommended the bank accounts be fully reconciled, or investigated until the unlocated difference was determined to be immaterial and can be written off immediately. Hackler said previous philosophy had been that on millions of dollars, $1,000 is a statistically insignificant amount. However, he said he and the City Commission believe $1,000 is a significant amount to individuals

A monthly update on reconciliations is now given to the administration. "It's standard bookkeeping. We need to know our cash position," Hackler said.

Audit

Accounting for Fixed Assets

Fixed assets subsidiary records have historically been maintained by the city's previous auditors. In late 1989, the city began maintaining the fixed asset records in the accounting department.

The following recommendations were made on maintaining the records: the fixed asset ledger should be reconciled on a monthly basis with the general ledger fixed assets control accounts; additions to the fixed assets records should be reconciled to capital outlay accounts monthly; and for proprietary funds, depreciation entries need to be recorded in the general ledger on a periodic basis.

Hackler said this item is a time-consuming task and the proper reconciliations had not been made before the audit. However, Peat Marwick did make the proper entries and all depreciation has been recorded properly.

Accounting for Debt Transactions Peat Marwick found that a $600,000 1989 bond issuance was not recorded in the city's general longterm debt account group until detected during the audit. Hackler said the $600,000 was accounted for, but in a different account group. It was placed in the capital fund.

The accounting firm also noted that proceeds from the $600,000 bond were used to purchase certain equipment for use in the internal service fund, but the transaction was not recorded in the city's general ledger. "The city should institute procedures to ensure that transactions made in any special bank accounts are properly recorded in the city's general ledger."

Peat Marwick also found that payments on general obligation bonds were not recorded as a reduction on the longterm debt account group. When payments are made on debt, the city should always record a corresponding reduction in the long-term debt account group, the firm said.

Also relating to bonds, the firm found the city did not have the required separate bank accounts for several general obligation bonds and water and sewer system obligations. However, the funds are earmarked to meet the ordinance requirements.

Hackler noted that there is $1.6 million in "dead" funds, that could be used to pay off debt or used to restructure finances.

about soon after I became city manager," Hackler said. computer equipment being used. "Now that the purpose has been outlived, we could use the money to get rid of debt or for other purposes."

Hackler said this is a long-range goal, and during a meeting later this month of the City Commission or prepared on a departmental basis each month. Summary during a May meeting, the city's financial advisor will speak to the group about some of its options.

Accounting for Capital Leases

Peat Marwick made numerous audit adjustments to correct accounting for capital leases. Problems mentioned were unrecorded lease obligations for capital leases and payments for capital leases in proprietary funds being charged to expense rather than being allocated between interest expense and principal reduction of the obligation.

Ken Cochran, left, and Roger Jones of Peat Marwick Main & Co. formally present the city's 1988-89 audit at a March 13 Pampa City Commission meeting. The City Commission unanimously accepted the audit as presented.

Capitalization of Assets

City policy requires capitalization of qualifying assets with an acquisition cost of more than $500. That amount was increased to $1,000 during late 1989. The auditing firm said items costing more than the "capitalizable amount" should be recorded in the capital outlay general ledger account (for governmental funds) and amounts less than this should be recorded in the appropriate expense account.

Peat Marwick also said a policy for the capitalizable amount be firmly established, since fluctuations were noted. Hackler agreed with that recommendation.

Accounts Payable

The city's accounting software has an accounts payable system that was not being utilized at the time of the audit. Hackler said that as of February, that system is in place and being used to promote efficiency. Hackler also said the city plans to have someone from This is something John (Horst) approached me the outside examine the data processing and finance

At the time of the audit, financial information was financial statements were prepared only in connection with the annual audit. The auditors recommended the city implement generating monthly summary financial statements to help monitor the financial positions.

Hackler said monthly cash positions are currently

Determining Interfund Charges Peat Marwick recommended maintaining records to support the interfund charges made by the internal service and general fund and to base charges for services mining the charges at the beginning of the fiscal year, based on budgeted costs.

Under the heading of "Purchasing Procedures," the auditing firm found that city policy was not adhered to pertaining to requiring written bids for all purchases over $1,000.

"We noted that numerous purchases between $1,000 and $5,000 from Western Industrial Supply Co. were not replacing with suitable collateral. accompanied by written bids," the management letter states. A request for an annual bid from that supplier was one suggestion made by the auditing firm. Hackler said the city is going to adhere to the city's policy on requiring written bids for purchases over ed. $1,000. However, he explained that where the policy was violated, each time it was in emergency-type situations.

"Sometime practice is not consistent with theory because of the large amount of expense." The city manager said a request for an annual bit is omething the city will scrutinize. Two items were addressed under the heading of

'Improving Cash Flow and Profitability.' Water and Sewer Deposits

Peat Marwick reported it found the city was not depositing payments for water and sewer services on a daily basis. However, Hackler said it has always been the practice to people coordinate their time when access is needed. deposit those payments daily. But, he said, new customer deposits were treated separately and not deposited daily, and that is where some of the confusion might have occurred.

Capital Leases Peat Marwick pointed out that the city is paying 22.58 percent interest on a capital lease of a copy machine from Public Funding Corp. The firm also noted that mainténance costs related to a police tape of petty cash. Before we didn't have a system in place recorder leased from Lanier Financial Services Inc.

were paid throughout the term of the lease. "Careful analysis of the lease agreements should be made to determine that lease agreements are in the best interest of the city. In some instances, it may be to the city's benefit to purchase the equipment rather than to lease at high interest rates," the management letter said. Hackler agreed that the equipment in the police department leased from Lanier needs to be looked at. He said the city at the time apparently did not have the money to fund the equipment up front.

The city manager pointed out that the lease agreements mentioned both have termination clauses, and during budget discussions the City Commission will consider whether to year, around July, Hackler said, to make sure the city is terminate the leases and purchase equipment outright, he said. on track with procedures and will not have problems "We're going to try to avoid lease-purchases unless crop up in the regular annual audit.

we get good interest rates," Hackler said. Under the title "EDP Operations" two items were noted in the management letter.

Improving Segregation of Duties

The firm recommended the city explore the possibility of further segregation of duties where it is practical. Hackler said code access was segregated from the programmer in February. Disaster Recovery Plan

The city has an informal back-up EDP processing arrangement with Potter County to provide data processing services in case the city's facilities cannot operate or are destroyed, according to the management letter. Peat Marwick recommended the agreement be made in writing, and a disaster recovery plan be developed.

Hackler said Potter County has said it cannot legally sign a contract with the city about the agreement. Plans are being made to test the back-up system under an Emergency Management plan.

Under the heading "Other Matters," the auditing rm addressed three items.

Under state law, the corporation pledging the bonds must be based in the state of Texas.

Hackler said that problem has been corrected by

The auditing firm also found another bond with a par value of $250,000 was not rated by Moody's Investor Services, which is a violation of the depository contract. Hackler said that problem, as well, has been correct-

Access to the Vault

While the Peat Marwick firm was conducting the audit, it found the vault was left open during the day and sometimes at night. The firm said the vault should always be locked at night and at most times during the day.

Hackler said the vault had been left open during the day because of the amount of time – about 10 minutes – required to open it. "John (Horst) believed he could monitor the vault since his office is across from it," Hackler said.

However, Hackler said the vault is now locked and Petty Cash

Amounts recorded in the general ledger for petty cash do not agree to the detailed departmental petty cash records, according to the management letter. "The city should institute periodic procedures to account for and reconcile petty cash funds," the letter stated.

Hackler said, "We have to provide greater oversight to reconcile petty cash on a regular basis, but this is pretty routine and should be done:

No matter what problems were encountered with this year's audit, Hackler said he does not believe any money is missing or there was any fraud or impropriety by anyone.

"Examining the books the way Peat Marwick did, they at no point found anything that was irregular or improper," Hackler said. "Basic accounting procedures were just not done properly.

"If they had a hint of it (illegal activity), we would proceed in a different way."

Another smaller scale audit may be done at mid-

Hackler said he does not believe any of the circumstances cited in the management letter caused the city to lose any of the taxpayers' money on a day-to-day

He said the City Commission has instructed the administration to be frugal with taxpayers' money. "I scrutinize expenses and the budget. I look at the revenue summaries. I know where we are. We are scrutinizing operations more on a daily basis. It's not just the job of the finance director, but of the city manager."

Every Friday and Saturday night in America there are about 11 million guys saying this line with a sincerity that would make you think they had dreamt it up themselves.

2. It won't hurt a bit. Doctors use this lie, or a variabout to pour Peroxide on their childrens' open wounds. What they ought to say is, "This won't hurt me a bit. You, on the other hand, would prefer amputation to what is about to happen.'

My mother used to follow this lie with another that went, "Blow on it and you'll feel better."

3. Once you have a child of your own, you won't mind dirty diapers a bit. This is a lie that hits particularly close to home since our baby, Sarah, has begun to be entertained by seeing how many diapers she can go through in one 24-hour period.

Sarah plays a game called "Submarine." She is the sub and the diapers are the enemy ships. I'll leave it to your imagination to figure out what the torpedoes are. The idea of the game is to wait for the enemy ship to approach and then fire. The ship is sunk and replaced with another. She fires again.

The current record is four clean diapers sunk in a single changing. And the whole time, Daddy is standing fine. by gagging and trying to keep the war confined to the

4. Oh, you can tell me. I won't tell a soul. I promise. Believing this lie has probably cost in friendships what Lie #1 has cost in unplanned pregnancies.

But, like Satan standing there with the forbidden fruit, some alleged friend is trying to lure you down the here to help. No explanation necessary. sordid path of worldliness. Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Ehrlich spreading a population dud

As pop biologist Paul Ehrlich warns of another impending apocalypse, his past doomsaying should haunt him. In his 1968, The Population Bomb, and a series of magazine articles, he warned that "it is already too late to prevent a drastic rise in the death rate through starvation ... The time of famines will be upon us fullscale in 1975.

Instead we got the population dud. Over the past 20 years natural famines have ceased. Today famines are exclusively governmentmade, such as that imposed by Ethiopia's socialist regime. Even India, famine-plagued for centuries, avoided famines after adopting market reforms in the late 1970s. And the "green revolution" multiplied food production across the globe.

Yet, in the early 1970s, governments imposed vast programs of coercion to reduce population. China even imposed a "one child per family" policy, including forced abortion. It was following another Ehrlich prescription: "compulsory birth regulation."

Even as the professor's predictions of doom were proving false, economist Julian Simon was at work on his path-breaking 1981 book, The Ultimate Resource (i.e., people). His rigorous analysis and careful research showed that "natural resources have been becoming less scarce over the long run, right up to the present."

Population? Babies are good. Dr. Simon provided evidence that each additional person is "a boon. The child or immigrant will pay taxes later on, contribute energy and resources to the community, produce goods and make efforts to beautify and purify the environment." As Dr. Simon likes to say, each baby adds one mouth but

Dr. Simon's new book, The Economic Consequences of Immigration, which he discusses in the April 2 Forbes, illustrates the boon immigrants bring. We see that in several prosperous immigrant communities throughout the nation.

Curiously, it is not Dr. Simon's careful analysis that is getting much media attention, but Dr. Ehrlich's long-disproved doomsaying. Dr. Ehrlich's new tome, The Population Explosion, received favorable reviews in the leading book magazines. And every few weeks the Today show features him - a bogus expert on the environ-

Dr. Ehrlich made headlines this month by claiming: "Actually, the problem in the world is that there are too many rich people" and that a rich baby will pollute the world "a thousand times more" than

This is nonsense when people are finding out all over the world that rich people become rich by their superior ability to aid others: by discovering a new way to feed people, devising a new computer program to use resources more efficiently, or building a more fuelefficient car. Newly free countries such as Poland and Czechoslovakia are begging rich people to come there. These new market-oriented countries are making it easier for their own people to create wealth and become rich.

In ancient time false prophets were stoned to death. Today no such drastic action is needed; but it would be good for our souls if Dr. Ehrlich were met with a fusillade of derision.

Why do we listen to 'experts'?

It's not that the experts are wrong so often that bothers me; it's the fact that we listen to them.

Take that hole in the ozone layer, and the global warming that experts have been worrying us about. Somebody forgot to tell it to Old Man Winter who delivered one of the coldest winters in history. But come spring, these environmental doomsdayers will be prancing the halls of Congress whining about global warming. By the way, two decades ago they were predicting global freezing.

We've had other experts. Charles H. Duell, the 1989 director of the U.S. Patent Office, urged shutting down the agency because, "Everything that can be invented has been invented." In 1985, the distinguished Lord Kelvin, president of the Royal are impossible." Then, in 1923, Dr. Robert Milof the atom."

These experts were dead wrong, but no big problem. Lockheed, Boeing and Einstein went about their business and did what the experts said was impossible. Had today's Congress been around and passed laws to close the Patent Office, outlaw aircraft factories and ban research in subatomic least $50 million to manufacturers.

142,000 toy-related injuries: Only 2,600 require hospitalization. Most toy-related injuries are cuts, bruises and scratches. What the Naderites don't tell us is that most toy-related injuries occur when children fall off, over or onto toys. Most of these injuries are toy-related, not toy-caused.

Listening to toy experts, I wouldn't be surprised to see Congress commission studies to see whether manufacturers can make toys that kids can't stumble over, or make harmless baseball bats and kiddie vehicles that won't run into something.

If Congress decides to go that silly route, I'd like to see them mandate "danceless" Lego parts. You know what I mean if you've ever tread barefoot on one of you kid's Lego parts embedded in

On the subject regarding the letters about Rev. Pfeil and the onslaught he took, I am here to lend a word of support and encouragement.

I am proud to be a Christian and I support the boycott of the Hastings store and others that carry pornographic magazines and adult videos. It amazes me to think that people of Pampa have such tunnel vision to think that Rev. Pfeil is trying to run Hastings and others out of business.

The truth of the matter is (NOW TRY TO FOL-LOW THIS) he is just trying to get them to remove the material. Some of the people seem to think that it is all right to have such material around.

Another thing that amazes me is the fact that some of the people that wrote the letters say they are not a fan of adult material but here they are supporting a store that sells that type of material.

One other thing that I must comment on is the fact that quote "some hard-working, tax-paying citizens that Sen. Bivins' bill does enjoy that type of entertainment" unquote - if they enjoy such entertainment, I suppose you would not reject a House of Prostitution to move into town. It would bolster the economy and provide jobs for people and that should be all right because people enjoy that type of thing.

Or how about unharassed drug dealers to push drugs because some people enjoy that type of thing and it too would raise the economy level in the town.

Yes, people, we have a choice to make, but let us make the right choice for our children if not for ourselves. As for me, I still stand firm and will not support stores that sell such material.

He has questions on computer vote

This letter is in reference to the Roberts County Commissioners' Court meeting on March 12. I read in the Miami Chief that the Commissioners' Court bought a computer from the county judge.

It might be interesting to the taxpayers of Roberts County what the so-called "conservative" commissioners are voting for, and the one commissioner who has been deemed the big spender of the Commissioners' Court voted against this purchase.

Perhaps the so-called "conservative" commissioners will say that the member who owned the computer did not submit this motion but I wonder why anyone made the motion at all.

backs landowners

To the editor:

Miami

It is obvious that some people still do not understand what is going on on the Canadian River.

The landowners have stolen from each and every citizen of Texas, plain and simple, and now, through the use of money and political influence (which are the same thing) they are trying to legalize what they have

Sen. Bivins' bill will not benefit the people of the Panhandle. It will, in effect, be the same as blocking off a public street because you're afraid someone might step in your yard. Makes sense doesn't it? If the landowners get this land, they will probably still allow access, but only for a privileged few, and at a high

If this bill passes, the Alibates Ranch would become a Type II area. Sounds great, but do you know what that means? To hunt deer or turkey, each hunter would have to put his name in for a drawing for one of a few permits. Those lucky enough to get selected would only be allowed to hunt on a few, set dates.

What is important here is, why should we give up what is rightfully ours, YOURS AND MINE, for any reason? And as for Sen. Bivins, his integrity is in serious question here. And why, after he already passed a bill to let the landowners sue the state, would Sen. Bivins introduce another bill that would override the last one? Sounds to me like some landowners are getting nervous and are using any means possible to get what THEY want. I ask you, what compromising are costs and are willing to pay for it, one way or the other.

The sportsmen of Borger are not hogging all the good hunting. Any person who wants to use the river for any reason, at any time, can do so. I live in Pampa and still use the river all the time, as do MANY other Pampa residents

With 98 percent of Texas being private land, I don't see how we can give away 18,000 acres, for any reason. We need to get back what has been taken from us already, make sure it's open to the public FOREVER, and work to get more public land, such as the Alibates

The TP&W Commission, one of the members who happens to be Bea Pickens, said it would be unlikely the ranch would be bought without the sale of the river, but not impossible

Once the river is gone, it will be gone forever. Let's keep what we have, and work to get more public land.

If Sen. Bivins truly wanted to help the people of the Panhandle, he would make sure the river remains public, and introduce a bill to buy the Alibates Ranch anyway. We will be watching.

He's still very angry about contamination

To the editor:

I have never heard so many lies about contamination of the Ogallalah aquifer or our air. It has been proven without a doubt that it's contaminated in Pampa

My water sample result was printed in The Pampa News in July of 1989. My water showed 34 parts per billion of benzene. My wife showed Pampa Director of Public Works Nathan Hopson my water test on March 31, 1989. On April 13, 1989, Hopson stated in the news that "there is no pollution of city water supply from the aquifer or anywhere else.

Celanese has been polluting our water or air for over 30 years. If the plant hadn't exploded in 1987, my family would still be drinking benzene water. Celanese has been using the Ogallalah for a filtering system all Celanese should give us the total count of their water wells they have drilled. If none of these wells aren't suitable for drinking, then are you using these new wells you are drilling inside plant yard to drain the two-mile lake beneath the plant quicker? Drilling new wells at plant to find good water is hogwash!

Celanese must think we're a bunch of dummies to believe that the contaminated waste water under the plant is being contained just there when the Ogallalah travels 8 to 10 mph.

It's pretty good living here, with enough underground water to fill hundreds of Lake Meredith's, and Bush has to loan us $9 million to try and make the lake drinkable since we can't drink the Ogallalah.

President Bush has been in office nearly two years. Does he not know about lakes of toxic waste here in Pampa? If not, the EPA must not be telling him about the contamination or he was just concerned about the Boston Harbor before election.

I think Bush owes Dukakis an apology. Most of his campaign was about Boston Harbor being polluted. Bush's home state of Texas is No. 1 in toxic chemicals pollution. The Ogallalah is being used for toxic waste everyday. Maybe the Democrats will see this article and get back in office.

I'm hauling our drinking water 43 miles. This makes me fighting mad since my water well is only a few feet from my house.

In last Sunday's paper, the whole back page was about Celanese. Everyone seems to forget that Celanese is a business. Their whole purpose is to make money, not to support our community. Sure they give money to different organizations and our schools. This is a tax write-off for them. Celanese should be held accountable to the federal government.

Are we going to keep turning our heads and let them keep ruining our water and air? If we do, it'll only get worse and worse. Maybe the polluted water and air was one of the reasons why Pampa wasn't chosen for a

When are they going to cover their ponds and lakes to keep fowls from landing on them? Or does this only pertain to oil companies' salt water ponds and tanks?

Letters to the editor

Aren't we still 'one nation under God'?

After reading the letters recently blasting Ricky Pfiel for making a stand against pornography in Hastings I realized that the statement, "One nation under God," which our country has claimed from onslaught, is not being lived through.

How can anyone justify in their own mind that immoral sex, violence, child pornography and things such as these are under God? Does anybody care what God thinks?

One statement was made that Pampa will become a ghost town by boycotting places that sell pornography. Is pornography our source to keep Pampa alive? What kind of foundation is that? Sodom and Gomorrah were based on that foundation and God destroyed them.

Convicted rapists, child molesters, sex abusers and the like confess that they started out by looking at porno magazines and watching pornographic videos. Are we telling our children in Pampa this is OK?

Ricky Pfiel is not trying to close down businesses in Pampa. He is called to speak out against filth. Pornography is ungodly. Why would we try to keep a city alive with ungodliness when God destroys ungodliness? Asking Jesus to be Lord of our lives is the answer - giving into pornography is not.

As a community we declare to God our stand. By not standing against pornography we agree with it. If we think that God will show favor toward Pampa with this compromise, we are certainly deceived.

Ashamed of our attitude, Terry E. Ferguson

Pampa

P.S. After writing this letter I heard a documented report of a lady and her six-year-old daughter who were watching a show on TV which depicted a woman being raped by someone using a plumber's helper. She turned the TV off, choosing not to watch such an act.

However, a few days later she was at the beach with her daughter. Six boys came up to them, overpowered the mother and raped her little girl with a soft drink

After being caught, the boys testified that they got the idea from watching the same movie that the mother had chosen not to watch.

If this happened from watching TV, couldn't worse things happen from watching X-rated pornographic films? The idea that I choose whether pornography will affect me by choosing to view it or not really doesn't

This incident was reported by the American Family Association, P.O. Drawer 2440, Tupelo, Miss. 38803.

Freedom of choice can aid crimes, too

I truly hope that you print this letter because I feel that writers of the letters that you have published need to be informed of their freedom of choice.

That did seem to be the issue – that their freedom of choice was being endangered by the stand that Rick Pfeil has taken on pornography and the moral decay that it is proven to produce.

Throughout American history, laws, legislation and morality has been changed, altered or done away with because of our freedom of choice, or in some cases the lack of wanting to exercise our freedom of choice, depending on which side of the fence you are standing

Some writers seem to agree that they are all adults capable of making their own decisions. Then, I say, welcome to democratic American society.

There has always been at least two sides to every story. We as full grown adults have the right, the freedom of choice to boycott this store or not, depending on our moral conscience. After all, that is usually the

No one is barricading Hastings or keeping supporters of that type of "entertainment" from their freedom of choice. Rick Pfeil was simply presenting the issue the way that his moral outlook perceives it. Now it's your decision which side of this moral fence that you will make your stand.

You may wish to stand on the side of the fence of pornography, and the situations that go along with it such as increases in rape, incest and family problems. Or you may wish to stand on the side that is opposed to pornography and stand for respect of women, children and the family.

The issue has been brought out in the open. The stand that you make could affect the outcome of our town, state or even country - it's your choice.

Billy Williams

There are legal ways against pornography

Concerning the article about Rev. Pfiel and Hastings, may I express my thoughts on the issue of pornography? Thank you.

Pornography is everybody's business. When a British sailor came through U.S. customs, he was asked, "Do you have any pornographic material?" He replied, "Blimey! Oi don't even own a pornograph." I wish we were all that ignorant about the meaning of pornography.

I admire Brother Pfiel for his stand against pornography. However, in my opinion, there are other ways to address the issue without a boycott.

There is plenty of evidence to indicate that pornography, if not considered to be a crime itself, certainly does contribute to crime,

If we are serious about wanting to reduce the crime rate, we should try to limit "legal" pursuits which inflame some people and influence them to commit

There are people, who, when under the influence of alcohol or other drugs, become uninhibited and commit crimes they would not have committed had they been sober. That's why those things must be regulated or banned altogether as situations require.

Concerning pornography, we must realize that the sex urge is a power, which, if controlled, can bring untold blessings to mankind. Out of control, our libido, which God meant for good, can result in great tragedy, sorrow and unhappiness.

Even with God's help, most of us have all we can do to restrain ourselves from falling into sexual immorality. But when we are inflamed by pomography, it is like pouring gasoline on a fire.

A recent news item showed that major and minor crimes decreased 80 percent in a seven-block district of downtown Cincinnati after adult bookstores and cinemas were closed due to efforts of a group called, "Citizens for Community Values" - 1175 Reading Road, Cincinnati, Ohio 45241. (Incidentally, why do they call them "adult" book stores when it is JUVENILE to be obsessed by sex?)

In other statistics, the rape rate in Oklahoma City decreased 26 percent after sex-oriented businesses were closed by a movement called "Oklahomans Against

The evidence against pornography seems to indicate that it often leads some people to commit crimes of abuse, rape and even torture and murder.

In light of what we have seen, some of us believe the question is not, "Should people have the right to view what they want to?'

Instead, we need to ask, "Shouldn't we prohibit by law that which is against majority community values and which is without a doubt a contributing factor to a crime rate which is already unconscionable?"

In America, we, the people, have the right to determine what shall or shall not be allowed by law.

If Pampans don't want salacious material to be sold or distributed here, there are legal ways to prohibit or limit it.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) An Indonesian communications satellite plucked from orbit by space-walking shuttle astronauts more than five years ago was launched back into space Friday aboard a Delta rocket.

The unmanned rocket blasted off on time at 6:28 p.m. from Cape Canaveral Air Force Station. The satellite separated 26 minutes later, and an on-board kick motor was to boost it into its proper orbit on Sunday.

"It looks like we have a normal vehicle on hand," said Skip Mackey, a NASA test director who tracked the satellite's progress.

An Indonesian official who witnessed his first takeoff said he was thrilled with the rocket's uneventful launch.

"We are fortunate that it went very well. We have experienced the launch of the same satellite was not so successful, so we are very excited," said Makarim Wibisono, press consulate for the Indonesian Embassy in Washington.

The $60 million satellite, a Palapa B-2R, was one of two spacecraft rescued from a uselessly low orbit by Discovery in November 1984. The rescue came nine months after the satellites were launched by NASA aboard Challenger. Astronauts Joe Allen and Dale Gardner manually placed the satellites in Discovery's payload bay.

The second satellite, originally built for Western Union, was renamed Asiasat 1 and returned to space on a Chinese "Long March 3" rocket on April 7. The successful sendoff

Traffic was reported heavy throughout the Germanys on Friday, the traditional start of the long Easter weekend.

East Germany's new government, headed by Lothar de Maiziere, on Thursday eased passport checks to handle the holiday crush.

Border guards usually open passports to verify identification, but on Friday they barely glanced at them.

Bumper-to-bumper traffic stretching 42 miles was reported near the West German city of Hanover. At the Helmstedt border crossing, police said traffic was moving slowly and backed up for 30 miles.

Many Germans seized their first chance in decades to spend Easter with relatives on the other side. Othweekend to sightsee for the first time in their neighboring state.

Officials said most traffic was heading from west to east. East Germany and East Berlin in general have become tourist meccas since the nation's October revolution ended four decades of communism.

West Germany expects to spend about $117 million this year just to make basic repairs to the new border crossings.

Meanwhile, East Germany's new finance minister, Walter Romberg, was quoted Friday as saying the West German government must understand East Germans need a 1to-1 exchange of money in the monetary union planned for July 1.

Romberg told West Germany's Die Welt newspaper he could foresee initially limiting the equal exchange to salaries and retirement pay, and for savings accounts up to 7,000 marks.

Die Welt quoted Romberg as saying an equal exchange for larger amounts could be delayed until East Germany's economy is back on the rails.

At a 1-to-1 exchange, 7,000 East ers took advantage of the long German marks would be worth $4,100. At the current exchange, the amount is worth about $1,370.

Average salaries in East Germany are about 1,000 marks a month, now worth $196. Retirement pay is about one-half that sum.

Officials of West Germany's central bank, the Bundesbank, have proposed a 1-to-1 exchange rate for savings accounts up to 2,000 East German marks, or $1,175. The Bundesbank would make the rate two East German marks for one West

Teacher: Good parenting makes good students

Editor's Note: The following guest column tion on a subpar basis in school. vas written by former Pampa student Greg Sweatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Sweatt of Pampa. He is an art teacher at Ponderosa High School in Parker, Colo. The article was originally published in the Parker News Press.

By GREG SWEATT

As a teacher, I am often confronted (quite disconcertingly) by high school students who choose to fail my class. Very often that same student is doing poorly both emotionally and academically in the majority of his classes.

counselors shed little light toward solutions, because very often the problems have become so ingrained (by high school age) that the student cannot overcome them.

Problems of self-esteem, learning skills, communication, motivation and direction are major stumbling blocks in education. If we as parents and teachers don't address those problems with workable solutions, we will lose a significant number of kids.

I am a firm believer in the importance of family to education; parents are the crucible that forms kids' personalities, and the mold that kids model on.

Schools are dependent upon parents to give us study, diet and associations. a good metal to work with. I feel, as a teacher, that given good kids, I can excel at my job. In a utopian society, every potential parent would have to graduate from parenting college before given permission to procreate, thus creating "perfect" kids.

This is not likely to happen, but there are certainly some guidelines that would help us in raising our kids. My issue, of course, is getting students in my classroom who are motivated, responsible and teachable. What a joy it is to teach these types of kids.

to help their kids is not original, but is a compilation of things I've assimilated over the last few years by observation and learning.

There are parenting classes, such as the Faywell worth considering. However, time is one thing in our lives that we have too little of. My so-called list is just a step toward better parenting. 1. Set guidelines for sleep and nutrition and follow through.

Poorly fed kids in our society would seem to every minute of a child's day, for fear our children be an anomaly, but all too often I teach kids who are malnutritioned. Likewise I teach kids who do not get enough sleep on a regular basis. It's hard to learn if you are tired or anemic.

Restrict hours your child can work during the from hobbies and leisure-time activities. school week; kids that "close" at fast-food places will not get enough sleep, and very often func- person.

2. Show an interest in what your child is Simple to say, but hard to do. I've found that my low-achievers go home to indifference in many cases. Parents are so involved in their own lives and problems they have little time to devote to their kids.

Untended kids are almost an epidemic in today's world. I believe a very important part of the job of being a parent is attention to your children. 3. Praise in public, criticize in private.

This is courtesy of my high school principal, and is tied to the issue of self-esteem. Public criti-Conversations with parents, teachers and cism of your child is humiliation at its most insidious. Children learn early that they are no good and will continue to prove it under your criticism. Students with low self-worth come through our system often, and become involved in drugs, alcohol and crime, or just quietly vegetate. 4. Let kids participate in decision making.

Responsible decision making is a skill that is learned, not natural. Allow young children to decide issues such as bed-making, clothing, purchases, etc., within reasonable guidelines, so that when they're older they can make responsible decisions on their own.

5. Punishments should fit infractions. Rebellion occurs when you cross the line of reasonable punishment, and kids have an innate sense of appropriate punishment. It's possible that a child may even help design his own punishment, and is more likely to learn from it.

In a school, it is appropriate to give detention time for tardies, but sometimes less effective to give detentions for fighting.

6. Help your child set personal goals. Students who I see succeed in high school have My own personal list of things parents can do clear goals of what they wish to accomplish on a daily basis, on a semester basis, and on a life basis.

I think goal-setting practice can begin at an early age, but it is a life skill. A daily planbook can help a student organize homework, as well Cline Institute, that are outstanding and would be as leisure and sport time, and will help you as way; the parent who allows a child to drop a the parent be involved.

Unreasonable goals can be discussed and evaluated.

7. Allow your child play time. Too much emphasis is placed on organizing will not get to do ballet, or soccer, or gymnastics, etc. Play time, as proven by studies, reduces stress, fosters creative thinking skills and balances involvements. Parents too could benefit

8. Direct your child to be a well-rounded

We often pressure our children to concentrate on one thing, to be good at that one thing; sometimes this is at the expense of joy of life.

The young gymnast is made to practice for three hours a day or more (unfortunately, the state of sports today fosters this idea). That child, if not the best, grows up again with a low self-esteem and has no other hobbies to turn to, or other interests to pursue.

By rounding out the opportunities you present to the children, you offer them unlimited potential for self-worth.

9. Establish a reading hour.

Turn off the television for one hour a night, and have the whole family read for enjoyment. Model this behavior by reading a novel yourself while asking the child to read.

Have it a quiet time so that the sounds they hear are in their imagination, created from the books they are reading.

Certainly I recognize the difficulty of giving up an hour each evening, with all our commitments, but the rewards are beyond measure. Reading test scores have been at best holding their own, and not improving. Reading is a skill which doesn't come naturally, but must be practiced. There is a magic point when reading becomes Poor decision making contributes to poor a joy and not a chore. Too many students never reach that point, and reading will always be an agony. That student will forever be limited in life. My wife tutored a high school junior who had never read a book; his reading level was low, and his grades reflected his poor skills.

10. Allow your child to fail.

Don't rescue your child from every personal failure. Rescue lowers the child's self-esteem. Certainly intervene in serious matters, but in the process of growing, a child must be given chances to make mistakes and then extricate himself from the situation.

The owning up to responsibility is a major point of growing. The parent who whips out the checkbook when a kid breaks a window down the street has not done that child a favor.

Failure in school can be treated the same class just because the child is failing, again has not helped that child.

I recently read an article outlining what schools do wrong, and while reading it I realized that most of the points were not just school issues but issues of good parenting. I realized more than ever the important symbiotic relationship we must have to take students in today's world and turn them into responsible, caring adults.

I don't know that there has ever been a more difficult time to raise kids, but I do know that there has never been a more important time to raise them right.

The program is expected to cost the industry $400 million over its first five years of operation.

As another example of the petroleum industry's environmental efforts, Murray pointed to the recently announced decision to reroute tanker and barge traffic in highly congested and environmentally sensitive areas, such as California's Santa Barbara Channel and the Straits of Florida. The industry has agreed to consider such rerouting "It is a search," Murray noted, wherever potential hazards exist.

Stewart chasing second straight Heritage crown

By RICK SCOPPE AP Sports Writer

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Defending champion Payne Stewart, seeking to become the first golfer ever to win the Heritage Classic in consecutive years, fired a 5-under-par 66 on Saturday to take the third-round lead.

Stewart, who shot a record 16-under-par 268 to win last year's Heritage, was at 8-under 205 going into Sunday's final round at Harbour Town Golf Links. But a host of players were well within striking distance, including 1988 champion Greg Norman, who had a hole-in-one on Satur-

Norman, who had a 67, was at 207 along with Masters champ Nick Faldo and Steve Jones. Faldo, the 1984 Heritage winner, shot a thirdround 70 with two birdies and a bogey, while Jones had a 66, with six birdies and one bogey, to pull into contention.

Davis Love III, who beat Jones for the Heritage title in 1987, is tied at 208 with secondround co-leader Calvin Peete and Loren Roberts.

Love shot a 69, while Roberts carded a bogey-free 67. Peete had an up-and-down day, shooting a 1-over 72 with three bogeys and two birdies, including one on the 18th.

Steve Pate, the other second-round co-leader, birdied the 18th for a 73 and was alone at 209. Pate double-bogeyed the first hole and had five birdies and five bogeys.

It didn't take McCullough long to size up the competition that the Lady Harvesters will face at region-

Douglas victory sets Foreman's title shot back a year

EDITOR'S NOTE — AP boxing writer Ed Schuyler Jr. was in Tokyo Feb. 12 when "invincible" Mike Tyson lost to James "Buster" Douglas. He was also in Kinshasa, Zaire, on Oct. 30, 1974, when the "unbeatable" George Foreman lost to Muhammad Ali.

By ED SCHUYLER JR. AP Boxing Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. — George Foreman, the preacher, was doing his work as an evangelist when George Foreman, the fighter, suffered a setback.

"I was in church the night it happened," he recalled in talking about the James "Buster" Douglas knockout in Tokyo of the seemingly invincible Mike Tyson for the world heavyweight championship.

It also was a loss of sorts for the 41-year-old Foreman, who was angling for a title match with Tyson

"When I got home, people were calling me," Foreman said by telephone from Houston. "They were shocked and surprised.

"It was awful surprising, but not shocking. I knew somebody was going to beat him because of the life he was living.

They said nobody could beat him, but I heard those same conversations about George Foreman,' said the former heavyweight champion, who was similarly thought to be invincible before losing to Muhammad Ali in Zaire in 1974.

Had Tyson beaten Douglas, he would have defended the title against Evander Holyfield June 18. Foreman very likely would have fought the winner of that match in the fall.

Douglas isn't scheduled to fight again until September, against Holyfield, and a fight with Tyson could be next for the winner. That would push Foreman's hopes of a title challenge into at least late 1991. At his age, time is an enemy.

Foreman, who says he wants to keep busy, will fight Mike Jameson in a scheduled 10-round bout Tuesday night at Lake Tahoe. He also

That's what happens to a guy. "You have to be hungry for the championship even if you hold it." Another a cog in Tyson's downfall, Foreman believes, was the breakup of his stormy marriage to actress Robin Givens.

"Divorce devastates a man more After he lost to Ali, Foreman got than anything, more than a right to involved in a wrestling-type circus the jaw. You've got to regain your manhood.'

For-profit schools have highest loan default rates in Texas

By JENNIFER DIXON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Students are defaulting on millions of dollars in government-backed loans after attending expensive for-profit trade schools across Texas that offer training for jobs with little demand, officials say.

In a report this week, the U.S. Education Department said millions of dollars in loans are in default in Texas and those with the highest rates are the for-profit trade schools.

Leading the list is Eason's Institute of Technology in San Antonio. The report said 79.5 percent of 521 students scheduled to begin repayment in 1988 defaulted on loans worth $737,442.

The school with the greatest amount of money in default, $7.6 million, was identified as Professional Career Centers of Houston. The Education Department said 49 percent of 4,678 students scheduled to begin repayment had defaulted on their loans.

The report covers students scheduled to begin repaying their loans between Oct. 1, 1987, and Sept. 30, 1988, and defaulted that year or in

Trumpeters make historic visit to Texas

AUSTIN (AP) - Trumpeter swans made a historic visit to Texas, wintering on a chain of golf course lakes, say experts of the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife.

The big birds' migration from Wisconsin to lakes at the Plantation Resort in Plano is believed to be the first appearance in Texas by the species in more than 50 years, the department said Thursday.

Their 900-mile flight from the Crex Meadows Wildlife Area in Wisconsin was the longest made by any of the birds produced in a captive breeding program in that state, officials said.

The all-white trumpeters are the nation's largest waterfowl, with seven-foot wingspans.

Research biologist Mike Mossman of the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources said the swans were part of a complicated restoration effort for the species. The birds were hatched from eggs obtained in Alaska, and the young swans were "imprinted" to life in the wild through the use of life-sized models of adult trumpeters.

Trumpeter swans once ranged across much of the northern United States and Canada, but their numbers were reduced by market hunting in the late 1800s.

Mossman said restoration efforts have been slowed by the swans' susceptibility to lead poisoning from ingesting spent lead shot from hunters' guns.

"The swans often eat seeds and tubers they pick up from wetland bottoms, and it only takes one or two lead pellets to sicken or kill a. trumpter swan," Mossman said.

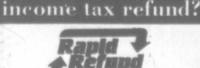

According to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, the trumpeters arrived in Plano on Dec. 26, 1989, and six of the seven birds departed in late March. A seventh was being held for treatment of a fish hook injury.

Cindy Judson, center, sings "Diary of a Homecoming Queen" and relives those glorious moments when "the marching band was playing, and the kids all threw confetti, and I feel like I still have some in my hair." Framing her as the wistful memories fade to the reality of being a not-so-glamorous housewife and mother years later are from left Kelly Beesley, Boydine Bossay, Tom McGuire, Bill Hildebrandt, Janet Whitsell and Jeff Hogan.

Is There Life After High School?

Bud Behannon, left, plays a character named Eddie Rondello, and relives for his reunion friends the outcome of his first fight in high school. Listening to his tale are Bill Hildebrandt, Jeff Hogan and Kelly Beesley.

"And here's a picture of me, Harvey Bellerby, co-chairman of the Logarithm League," says Bill Hildebrandt, as he relates to the audience the fateful outcome the day the most popular girl in school ask him to help her cheat on a final exam.

"If I only was half as good in high school as I am in my second thoughts," sing Tom McGuire, left, Cindy Judson, Jeff Hogan and Janet Whitsell as they all have "Second Thoughts" about high school memories and things that might have been said.

The ACT I stage located at Pampa Mall is being transformed into a high school gymnasium complete with school lockers for their final show of the season - Is There Life After High School? directed by Sandy Crosswhite. Book is by Jeffrey Kindley and music and lyrics are by Craig Carnelia. The play was first performed in New York City in 1982.

Cast members for the musical comedy include Janet Whitsell, Cindy Judson, Kelly Beesley, Boydine Bossay, Bud Behannon, Bill Hildebrandt, Jeff Hogan and Tom McGuire.

"There's a kid inside all of us that only takes an outside trigger to reappear," says Crosswhite. "The opening number 'The Kid Inside' invites the audience to come along and revive the kid inside to enjoy this play."

Is There Life After High School? is a series of vignettes in dialogue and song remembering first dates, the yearbook, the prom, homecoming, fist fights, gym class, class nerds and class bullies.

"I learned to count to 10 in French. I learned to cut a frog in two. I learned that showing how you feel can be a deadly thing to do," sings Hildebrandt in "Things I Learned in High School," the second number in the show before going into his monologue as Harvey Bellerby, co-chairman of the Logarithm League.

"If I was only half as good in high school as I am in my second thoughts," sing McGuire, Judson, Hogan, Behannon and Whitsell as they team up to perform "Second Thoughts", a song that remembers, sometimes painfully, friends that were snubbed, speeches that were flubbed, things that should have been said or done.

"Nothing Really Happened" is a number performed by the ladies as they each remember that special someone and a special date. Whitsell is joined by the cast as she performs "For Them", a song that talks about the close ties generated in four years of team playing.

"Diary of a Homecoming Queen" relives for one woman, played by Judson, the thrill of the Homecoming Queen coronation balanced against the not-so-glamorous life of being married to the "football king".

ACT II opens with a rousing tribute by the cast to all those band instruments tucked away in "thousands of closets" in a number called "Thousands of Trumpets."

Transforming the gym for the reunion puts the finishing touches on the play as classmates gather for a 20-year reunion.

"I know the guys are in ties and the girls have new names, but it's high school all over again," sings Hogan in "High School All Over Again".

Judson and Whitsell pair up to sing "Fran and Janie," a song about being girlfriends in high school and all the things they used to do together - sleeping over, playing records, sharing secrets.

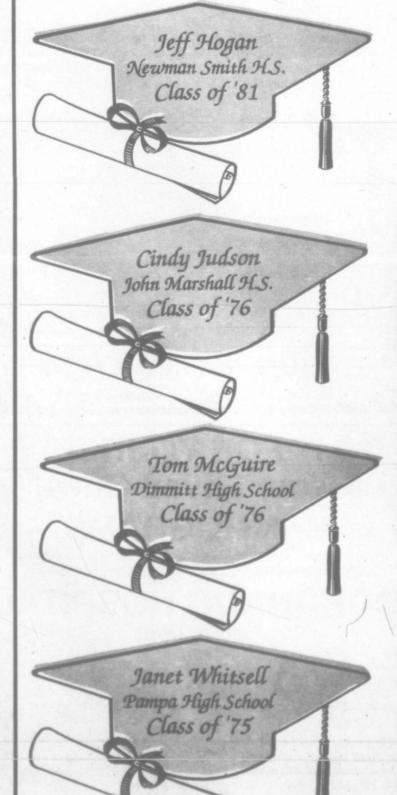

A reprise of "The Kid Inside" completes the evening's entertainment.

Crew members include Bettany Cisneros, assistant to the director and stage manager; Berinda Turcotte and Teresa Kaiser, sound technicians; and Rick Crosswhite, lighting.

Production dates are April 20-21 beginning at 7:30 p.m. and April 22 for a 2 p.m. matinee.

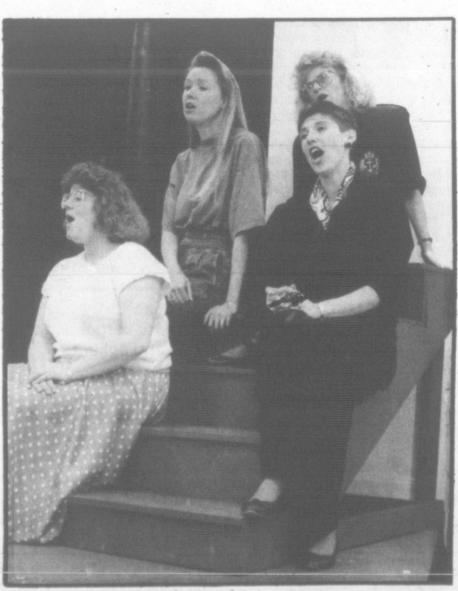

"This show will not be dinner theatre," says Crosswhite. "For our first two shows we have had to turn audiences away due to the limited seating required of tables for dinner theatre. We anticipate being able to seat 90 people per performance comfortably and because of the intimacy of our theatre in the Pampa Mall, there shouldn't be any 'bad' seats."

Play vital to child's growth

Parents are often concerned about how to play with and how much time to spend playing with a child. Today we explore this positive parental skill of play and its importance to a child's growth and development.

Play is vital to a child's total growth. In play, he practices his skills, and develops theories about the world; he investigates and experiments; he gains control of Homemakers' News himself and parts of his world; he learns about success and failure; about what he is good at and what tunities for the child to discover for he is interested in; he imitates herself the physical properties of behavior preparing himself to be a objects and the logical relationships part of our society; he begins to be creative and develops his own unique individual style.

that are very much related to play and are necessary for successful learning, independent behavior, and effective communication with peo-

(1) Cognitive Skills - (a) attention skills such as persistence, curiosity, and exploration; (b) perceptual skills, including the ability to notice discrepancies and to learn from observation; (c) conceptual skills such as anticipating consequences, taking the perspective of another person, planning and carrying out activities, developing strategies for problem solving, and acquiring basic knowledge.

(2) - Behavioral Skills - (a) motor skills such as manipulation of objects and control of body position; (b) control skills, including the ability to carry out instructions and to inhibit impulsive behavior; and (c) self-care skills such as toileting and eating in a regular manner.

(3) Social Skills - (a) being able to understand and use language; (b) being able to use adults as resources by getting their attention and asking for help when necessary; and (c) developing personal skills such as feelings of self-worth and independence, the ability to express feelings, being able to feel and express warmth, be flexible, and to cooperate with others.

Remember that children don't complete this learning through their play but begin their life-long path of learning. What can you as a parent

(1) Be aware of the stages of development to know the direction in which your child is heading. By doing this, you can provide opporamong them.

(2) Watch your child's signals about what he's trying to do. By There are three kinds of skills reading the signals, you can figure out what the child is ready for next.

(3) Watch the balance of your child's day to see that she has time with you and other people, time alone, time inside and time outside, time for resting, and time for play.

(4) Remember that love, learning, and play are all related, and that interaction between parent and child is more important than a specific toy or skill.

Here are some guidelines for parents when playing with their small child: (1) Keep in mind that the parent's role is that of a facilitator who sets up the opportunity to play and helps with play if necessary. (2) Try to tune in to your child and allow him to play with toys or objects in his own way rather than the way you think he should. Avoid playing for the child. (3) Allow your child to solve his own problems as much as possible (rather than always retrieving toys for him, for example). (4) Let a child play with a toy as long he's interested in it. (5) Rotate toys to provide variety and extend the length of time the toys will be interesting.

From the child's point of view, play is his doorway to the world. He uses every experience to add to his growing store of information about himself and his environment. In play with his parent's and alone, a child's self-confidence in what he can do is enhanced. Child's play, like adult's work, expresses what the person is, what he likes, and what's on his mind in addition to providing valuable opportunities for owth and development.

'Carmen' comes to Coronado Dance Club 30 years young

Happy Easter to one and all! Women of the Moose hosted an Easter egg hunt last Saturday afternoon in the Hobart Street Park for their children and grandchildren, ages 12 or younger, about 30 children in all. Joyce Mann, chairman, Mary Lance, Leonard David, Trent Loter, Leonard and James Owens, Raul Soriano and Randy Swires hid the 35 dozen eggs dyed by Joyce, Geneva Corcoran, Lula May Engle and Bunny Anderson. The 30 egg hungers scurried about looking for the prize eggs.

At least 50 children of Coronado Hospital employees enjoyed the annual hospital Easter egg hunt last Saturday morning. Prize eggs contained coupons from McDonald's. Ida Hess, activities director, was in charge of arrangements.

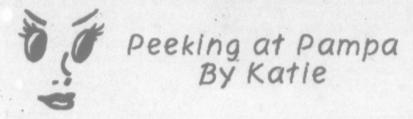

Belated 80th birthday congratulations to Elmo Wright. There was a surprise birthday party for him given by his golf buddies at the Pampa Country Club.

Members of the Coronado Dance Club donned dancing clothes for their Sunday evening tea dance. Did you know this group was organized 30 years ago and that several of the charter members are still active?

Little three-week-old Anna Elizabeth Julian, accompanied by her mother Marsha, was the center of attention at a baby shower given in her honor in the private dining room of Coronado Hospital. Guests agreed the little one looked ever so much like her proud dad, Dr. R.D. Julian. Belated congratulations to the proud parents.

Congratulations also to Kelly and Gimmye Rushing on the birth of a baby girl, Valerie Gyl. Twelveyear-old Jennifer is the proud sister and Jean Rushing the grandmother. Kelly and the Rev. Norman Rushing, pastor of Central Baptist Church, are brothers.

More congratulations to Tammi and John A. Kotara IV on the birth of a baby girl, Hailey Ann. Her big little brother is Jarett. Grandparents are Nancy Dunlap, Durward and Sharon Dunlap, John A. Kotara IV, and Carol Jean Kotara. Great-grandparents are Dixie Sims, Loyd Wilson, Johnnie and Theresa Kotara, Mary and Malcolm McDaniel. Hailey Ann has beaucoups of aunts and uncles, plain, great and great-great, and cousins by the dozens. A warm Pampa "Welcome!" to Jean and Dale Beard, recently from Graham. Dale is a supervisor for Natural Gas Pipeline Company. They previously lived in Wheeler for years. Dale is a motorcycle enthusiast, including cross-country tours. Jean likes to crochet, sew and do crafty things. They are used to moving frequently and look on each new place in anticipation of lots of enjoyment and making new friends. They sound like good instant Pampans, huh?

Now for a little people glimps-

Mary Wilson and Jeannie Willingham, longtime friends, seem to meet for dinner almost every Sunday evening. Cathy Carter, Pampa High School Student Council sponsor, is busy as can be making plans for the senior prom with lots of emphasis on decorations.

daughter of Clyde and Marsha Coffee, and the granddaughter of Betty and Tom Coffee.

It's good to see Ann Pitcock back in town after spending seven months at her daughter's home recuperating from a broken bone.

J.E. Gibson is always immaculately dressed, even when in coveralls and getting his yard ready for spring growth. Don Sheppard is a dedicated early morning walker in rain or sunshine.

When Mark at the Browning and Ballard convenience store says to a customer, "You have a nice afternoon," somehow the afternoon becomes just that. Glad to see Ginger Ackfeld out and about following recent surgery. Glynn Bell is recovering at home following recent surgery, as is Dena Carter. Quick recovery wishes to all.

John and Virginia Glover were delighted to hear that their son Michael has been accepted in Baylor School of Dentistry. Congratulations to Ward Mitchell on being named Pampa's Best Dressed Man at the Tralee Crisis Center fundraiser. Ward has a twin brother Wade. John Kotara was named runner-up. Sam White livened things up a bit when he hippity-hopped across the stage in fluffy bunny house shoes and a gold satin robe. Jack Gindorf, emcee, did his fair share in keeping the show going. Jack always has a clever joke to share. Congratulations, gentlemen, and "Thanks!" for helping a worthy cause.

Bill Campaigne's sister from way up north has been visiting him and Chris. Goldie McNabb celebrated her 80th birthday in Vega with her daughter Verna Lee Chapman, whose birthday was on March 23. Attending from Pampa were Barbara Keller, Randy and Gary Keller, their wives and sons. Great-grandchildren and grandchildren, relatives and friends made the party a joyous occasion. Goldie is the oldest of 10 children. Congratulations, Goldie, on a milestone birthday!

Mary and David Fatheree truned their home into an art gallery recently to give area collectors a look at the kinds of work that will be featured in the High Plains Epilepsy Association's Art Show '90 coming up April 21 and 22 in amarillo. The Fatherees and co-hosts Betty and Jim Brown showed paintings, embossings, sculpture and jewelry from their own collections plus pieces loaned by other Southwest art fanciers from around the Panhandle.

The world of all 11 artists who will appear in the HPEA show was represented at the party and Pazipa sculptor Gerald Sanders and his wife, Juanita, were on hand for the occasion. Guests were treated to New Mexican and regional food specialties prepared by the hosts, providing a feast for the palate as well as the eye.

For those of you who remember Brent Martin, he will be in town to celebrate his 28th birthday with a party at the Coronado Inn from 2 to 4 p.m. Brent is living at the state hospital in Denton. All he asks for his birthday are snapshots of all his friends that he can take back home

Winborn has about 80 works of art reflective of all her teaching and painting experiences to display for the show set for April 22 from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. and April 23 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Lovett Library

A Fine Arts "members only" reception is scheduled for April 21 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Each spring a committee of former Artists of the Year meet to recommend a new recipient of the award. The committee who met in 1989 were hesitant about how to tell Winborn she had won so they approached Bill with the news and he told her first.

"I cried," says Winborn, her eyes welling up with a little moisture, "but I cry about everything since the stroke. I'm so emotional, I can't control the tears. It was a complete shock.'

Lilith Brainard and Billie Osborne visited Winborn a few days later to make the formal announce-

Artists of the Year have one year to prepare for their special show.

'Richard Steele has been very helpful," says Winborn. Steele was Artist of the Year last year.

"I have friends who have been previous Artists of the Year and they have given me lots of encouragement," adds Winborn.

This year's committee included past Artists of the Year - Cile Taylor, Evelyn Epps, Lois Minnick, eggy Palmitier, Gerald Sanders, Walt Bailey, Richard Steele, and Homer and Mary Johnson.

Preparing for the show takes lots of work and can get expensive.

"I thought I would have to prevail on my children to give some of my work back, but now I don't need to," says Winborn of her paintings. She and Bill have two sons, Coyle and Craig. She says she had many paintings that were in storage and unframed. Getting them framed was the expensive part.

Today Winborn has two painting areas set up in her home - one in the den and the other at a bar in the kitchen. Her work in the den is for the Fine Arts Show; the work in the kitchen is for the Pampa Art Club show set for May 1.

She also paints every Thursday with friends at the Senior Citizens Center. She can't paint anything she has to hold because of the paralysis in her left hand. She paints on a watercolor block, a thick pad of 4-H Helps Youth To Develop The whole idea of 4-H is development of young people. Most of the characteristics we want our young people to develop can all be acquired through the 4-H program. Youth are taught to be more responsible, self-respecting members of society.

Since 4-H is family-oriented and co-educational, it is truly about people. It provides valuable learning experiences through family, church and community involvement.

The 4-H program starts in the family, where infulence is high. It goes down to the "grass roots" because the people involved in 4-H, such as: local leaders, parents and even the young people themselves, actually help decide programs and activities. Besides involving the family, 4-H closely involves the community.

Anyone who works with young people can tell you that most of them want and need to belong, to be recognized, to be respected for what they are, to develop a sense of responsibility and a sense of freedom which disciplines, and to have the good feeling of doing something meaningful by themselves. Our 4-H program in Gray County is a people development program and can proQuilters prepare for show on April 21

Wife hopes neutral marriage will shift into a higher gear

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice. me. No name or town, please. Sign I've put off writing to you for several me ... years, but now it's time. I've been married to my husband for 27 years. We have a son, 26, who is married to a lovely girl, and a daughter, engaged to be married in June. We are very proud of them. So, you ask, what's the problem?

It's my husband. He's a good provider and a good husband, but he's a lousy lover. We make love once every seven or eight weeks. I'm 49, keep myself immaculate, exercise regularly and weigh only five pounds more than I did on my wedding day.

My husband is 52 and still working regularly. He's healthy and hardworking, and we go to church every Sunday. He was never what I would call a passionate lover, but I feel as though I'm living with my brother. If I feel romantic, he says, "Not to-night, maybe tomorrow." I miss the closeness we once had.

I know he loves me, Abby, but I feel so empty and alone. Please help

DENVER (AP) - For more than a century, scientists have been digging into a vast dinosaur graveyard in the Rocky Mountains, unraveling the mysteries of the largest creatures ever to roam the planet.

Here lie the fossilized bones of dinosaurs that lived 140 million years ago when the Front Range was a great semi-arid lowland with periods of rain and drought. Colorado was a flat landscape with large meandering streams, vegetation and open spaces.

Man was still 138 million years away.

Called the Morrison Formation for a small town southwest of Denver where the first dinosaur skeleton was found here in 1877, the graveyard lies on either side of the Rocky Mountains from Idaho south to New Mexico.

Paleontologists call it "the capital of dinosaur research.'

In January, a Colorado expedition found a jaw and vertebrae fragments west of Fort Collins that belonged to the rare, meat-gulping hunter epanterias.

Robert Bakker, a University of Colorado paleontologist who led that team, says people weren't interested in dinosaurs before the 1877 discovery because they didn't know much about them. He said that before the Colorado find there were "miserable fragments" of fossils from Europe.

"The Morrison finds really put American science on the map and continues to surprise us every field season," says Bakker, who has been working on the formation since 1974. A group of preservation-minded

Shell Oil Co. introduces new gasoline officials say is better for environment

By LAURA TOLLEY Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Shell Oil Co. is pumping a new gasoline at stations in several metropolitan areas that reduces hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions.

The gas, called SU 2000E, was put on the market in the nine metropolitan areas the Bush administration has identified as having the most severe air quality problems, said Frank H. Richardson, Shell's president and chief executive offi-

"We think this new product from Shell represents an important step toward improving the nation's air quality," Richardson said.

The gas is being sold in the metropolitan areas of New York City, Chicago, Houston, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Milwaukee, San Diego and Hartford, he said.

It also is available in the Washington D.C. area, which was targeted as having a serious, not a severe air quality problem. Houston-based Shell said it may expand production in the future.

More than 2,000 Shell stations are selling the gas, which can be used in virtually any car.

The new gas has the same octane number and additive package as Shell's SU 2000 premium gas, which it has replaced in the 10 targeted areas.

The new gasoline reduces hydrocarbon vapor emissions, a component in smog formation, and carbon monoxide emissions from automobile tailpipes, Shell officials said.

Steven L. Miller, president of Shell Refining and Marketing Co., said the carbon monoxide emissions are reduced because the gas contains methyl Tertiary-butyl ether, or MTBE.

MTBE replaces butane, which results in a gasoline with a lower vapor pressure that evaporates less quickly.

About 3.7 million gallons of premium gas are sold on an average summer day in the 10 areas.

The gas costs about 2 cents more per gallon to produce than other premium gasolines. Shell officials said the new gas is priced the same as SU 2000, but they added the future price will be determined by competitive conditions in the marketplace.

Miller pointed out that the Shell believes the gas will do well because people now consider the environment "a major agenda item." He noted that about 20 years ago, Shell had little success when it introduced an unleaded gas to the

Man planting Texas-size apple orchard in Hill Country

By LARRY HUNTER Kerrville Daily Times

CENTER POINT, Texas (AP) - Driving toward Center Point from Kerrville on Texas 27 would make Johnny Appleseed burst with pride.

A local business has adopted the American folklore hero's goal of spreading apples across the country and may have given the Texas Hill Country another bright spot on its economic

Robert Shelton is busy converting acres of prime ranch land into what may become the largest apple orchard in Texas. Officials from Texas Orchards – a division of Shelton Ranch Corp. - say California is the only state with orchards comparing in size to their Hill Country

Using a method capable of planting 1,000 trees per hour, Texas Orchards planted 180 acres of apples last year, said SRC's Jim Bobbitt. This year another 250 acres of Fuji, Gala, Granny Smith and Ginger Gold apples will be planted. Within three years, Texas Orchards will have established an apple orchard covering more than 1,500 acres.

"In the industry, other growers are well aware of what we are doing," Bobbitt said on a recent tour of the orchard held in conjunction with the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association give the company year-round business. annual convention in San Antonio.

Included in the new enterprise will be a packing plant that will be able to pack approximately 1,000 bushels of fruit per hour and an accompanying processing plant that will press juice and other processed apple commodities, said Dr. Steven H. Blizzard, vice president of production for Texas Orchards.

In their preliminary research, Shelton Ranch personnel found what they called a "window of opportunity" for an apple orchard in the Hill Country. With Kerrville lying on the 30th parallel, it would be one of the southernmost regions for tree fruit in the Northern Hemisphere, Blizzard said, and Texas Orchards would be able to lead Southern California to market by 10 to 14 days.

The initial production during the early years has been targeted for Texas, with anticipated sales on both the East and West coasts as well as Texas Orchards now has about 40 full-time employees, and expects to add to that as more trees are planted and come into production. Bobbitt and Blizzard said they expect to have 60 to 70 permanent staff and 200 seasonal employees.

Texas Orchards is going after the apple business in a style different from the traditional orchards of Washington, New Mexico, West Virginia and other apple-producing states.
