Democrats and Republicans split election victories in Gray County

By BETH MILLER
Staff Writer

County Judge Carl Kennedy and County Clerk Wanda Carter, both veterans to the Gray County offices, soundly defeated their challengers in Tuesday's general election with a strong voter turnout.

Gray County turned out 8,406 voters, or 64 percent of the registered voters. All vote totals listed below are unofficial. Votes will be canvassed at 1 p.m. Monday in the Gray County Courtroom on the second floor of the courthouse.

Kennedy, who has held the county judge seat for 12 years, defeated Jim Osborne, a Democrat, by 5,317 votes to 2,916. Kennedy, a Republican, carried each of the 14 precincts and absentee ballots, except for Precinct 6. Carter, a Democrat, has held the county clerk's seat since 1971. She was challenged this year by Republican Gay Vanderburg Kuempel, who received 2,890 votes to Carter's 5,364 votes. Carter carried every precinct and absentee voting.

Carter said following the results, "It feels wonderful and grand. I'm excited and probably won't sleep all night."

Osborne said of his campaign and subsequent defeat, "I appreciate the voters of Gray County. I think we ran a clean race and I enjoyed running the race. It's something I'll come back and do again."

Kennedy said that winning another election "felt good." Although Kennedy said he was confident he would prevail, Osborne was the first challenger Kennedy had had since he was first elected 12 years ago. He did have a contested race to first win the county judge's seat.

"I'd like to think of this as a vote of confidence," he said of the almost 2-to-1 win. "I'll keep on watching the purse strings and be fair and impartial in court cases."

Of the tabulation of the votes, Kennedy said he thought the performance was almost a record and was pleased that the vote counting machines were working well. Only one precinct, Precinct 5, held the recording of the votes up somewhat as that precinct had to be counted by hand. All of the votes were recorded by midnight.

"The good part of this whole election is people had many different reasons to go to the polls," Kennedy said. "They had a choice, and they exercised that with their votes."

COUNTY TREASURER

In the closest county race of Tuesday evening, County Treasurer Scott Hahn, the incumbent, narrowly defeated Elaine Cooper, a Democrat, by 117 votes. Hahn received 4,143 votes to Cooper's 4,026 votes. Hahn, a Republican, carried Precincts 4, 7, 8, 11 and 14.

Cooper and Hahn tied for the number of votes in Precinct 3 with 47 votes each and in Precinct 9 with 344 votes each.

Following the tallying of the votes, Hahn said, "At the beginning of the day I didn't think it would be that close. I thought it would be a little better spread. But as the evening wore on I could see it was getting closer and closer."

One of Hahn's sons kept tallies at the courthouse and telephoned them to his father, who awaited the results at Republican headquarters. Cooper stayed at the courthouse with family and friends and anxiously wrote down the numbers as the precincts reported.

"I feel like I've done a good job and I'm glad the voters saw it the same way," Hahn said.

Cooper, who could ask for a recount of the votes, said this morning she will abide by the decision returned Tuesday evening.

"I don't think it will do any good (to have a recount)," Cooper said. "If it was just 17 votes I might consider it. I thought it would be close. I didn't know whether it would be that close. I made a good showing."

Cooper, who works in the county tax assessor/collector's office, said she appreciated all of the voters' help in the race.

PRECINCT 2 COMMISSIONER

Another incumbent to a county office, Precinct 2 Commissioner Jim Greene, carried each of his three precincts and absentee voting over Republican challenger Dr. M.W. "Bill" Horne. Greene's votes tallied 784 to Horne's 578 votes.

"I'm glad it's over," Greene said. "It's a great system, but it sure puts a lot of strain on you."

Greene, who will complete his first four-year term in December, said he was thankful for the voters who exercised their rights to be heard. "I appreciate all the help everybody gave me and the big number of people who turned out to vote."

PRECINCT 2 CONSTABLE

Chris Lockridge, appointed in May to fill the constable's seat vacated by Herman Kieth, carried all three precincts and absentee votes in his bid for the unexpired term of Kieth.

Lockridge, a Republican, was challenged by Mike Helton, a Democrat. Lockridge received 849 votes to Helton's 463 votes. The unexpired term is for two years.

"I feel real good about it. I got a lot of support and I want to thank all of those people," Lockridge said. "I plan on doing a good job."

PRECINCT 2 JP

In a clean sweep, Democratic candidate Margie Prestidge defeated her Republican opponent and a write-in candidate that she also defeated in the Democratic primary.

Prestidge carried each of the three precincts - 2, 10 and 13 - as well as absentee voting. She received a total of 687 votes.

Republican Nell Bailey recorded 387 votes and Wayne Roberts, the incumbent who campaigned as a write-in candidate, came in third with 334 votes. Roberts was narrowly defeated in the Democratic primary in May by Prestidge.

Prestidge said today that she expected a closer race. "I didn't think it would be that far apart, but I'm glad it is," she said.

Many county residents had expressed feelings that Roberts running as a write-in candidate might split the Democratic vote. "That was the only negative thing I heard in the campaign," Prestidge said.

She will continue working as the manager of the Salvation Army thrift store through Dec. 22 before beginning work as the new justice of the peace on Jan. 1. Prestidge has 15 years prior experience as a justice of the peace.

PRECINCT 4 JP

Newcomer Creed Lamb, a Republican, ousted R.C. Parker, a Democrat, in the race for Precinct 4 justice of the peace in the second closest race in Gray County. Lamb tallied 1,439 votes to Parker's 1,317 votes for a 122-vote victory.

Parker has held the seat since 1983. "I'm ready to start. I'm ready to go," Lamb said this morning. "I'll do my best to make the best JP they ever had."

Parker said, "I don't plan on asking for a recount if there's a 122 majority. I don't think we can change that much. That's the way things go. Politics are politics."

M. Kent Sims won in the race for 31st District Judge. He recorded 4,746 votes in Gray County to Jean Martindale's 3,424 votes.

In uncontested races in Gray County, State Rep. Warren Chisum, a Democrat, received 6,647 votes; Lee Waters, a Democrat for 223rd District Judge, received 6,262 votes; District Clerk Vickie Walls, a Republican, received 6,097 votes; County Surveyor V. Lynn Bezner, a Republican, received 5,886 votes; Precinct 4 Commissioner Ted Simmons, a Republican, received 2,142 votes; and Precinct 1 Justice of the Peace Bob Muns, a Republican, received 2,271 votes.

Richards beats Williams to become new governor

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - State Treasurer Ann Richards, 15 percentage points behind in polls only six weeks ago, says Republican Clayton Williams' millions and help from President Bush weren't enough to keep her from the Governor's Mansion.

"I've always believed in people politics more than money politics," the Democrat said after becoming the first woman to win a Texas governor's race since Miriam "Ma" Ferguson in 1932.

With 99 percent of the vote counted, Richards received 1,907,131 to 1,811,226 for Williams, a narrow 49.6 percent to 47.1 percent margin.

The victory for Richards, 57, was a major embarrassment to Bush, who calls Texas home and campaigned with Williams all day Monday.

A jubilant Richards held aloft a T-shirt that said, "A woman's place is in the dome" as her supporters cheered Tuesday night.

She said the vote showed that average Texans didn't want another millionaire as governor. Millionaire incumbent Bill Clements, a Republican, is retiring.

"They want a governor that gets up and goes to work every morning. They want a governor that isn't going to be distracted by other business. They want their children educated ... They want something done about their insurance rates, and they want a governor that's going to do that," she said.

Richards also said her pro-choice stand on abortion was well-received by voters.

"They want a governor who is committed to the freedom of the people of this state and who is not going to allow government to interfere in their private lives," she said.

Her victory came against uphill odds but with the Republican's help. Although he outspent Richards 2-to-1, Williams made two last-minute mistakes that may have tipped the balance.

On a statewide TV broadcast, Williams couldn't explain the only proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot. It involved gubernatorial appointments. Then on Friday, he admitted paying no federal income taxes in 1986. Those followed a series of gaffes made all year.

"Williams made a number of errors," Richards said. "I think we were prepared and organized to capitalize on those errors. We also put together a grassroots campaign."

Democrat Ann Richards holds up a shirt saying "A Woman's Place Is in the Dome" as she celebrates her victory.

Williams, who spent $8 million of his own money on the race that cost him over $20 million total, was gracious in defeat.

Hushing supporters who booed at Richards' name, Williams said, "To Ann Richards and to those who voted for her and worked long and hard and ably for her, I say congratulations. Congratulations. The people have spoken and we must all join together ..."

"This election's over for (wife) Modesta and I and those who supported us. The bad news is that we've lost. The good news is it's not the end of the world. I am sorry I let you down. I did my best. And I will always cherish the faith that you had in me."

In defeat, Williams acknowledged his gaffes and the damage they did.

"The fact that I didn't win is no reflection on the values that we believe in," he said. "Maybe I'm a little too open, maybe straightforward."

Besides setting a spending record, their race also gained national notoriety for mudslinging.

Richards, a recovering alcoholic, found herself dogged by questions about drug use after refusing in the primary to answer "yes" or "no" to a debate question on whether she had ever used illegal drugs.

That issue resurfaced less than three weeks before the election when the Republican sheriff of San Antonio said his investigator had obtained a statement from a New Mexico man who claimed to have seen Richards use cocaine at a party in the 1970s. Richards denied the charge and accused Republicans of planting it.

Williams had his own problems, due in large measure to his series of verbal gaffes.

He was sharply criticized after likening bad weather to rape and joking that if it were inevitable, "just relax and enjoy it." He admitted visiting prostitutes as a youth, saying that's how young men got "serviced."

He threatened to "head and hoof" Richards like a calf and "drag her through the dirt." When told that Richards had said she was catching up, Williams cracked: "I hope she didn't go back to drinking again."

Area voters brave weather to vote

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
News editor

A controversial governor's race and contested local races brought area voters to the polls Tuesday despite the wintry weather.

Voter turnout percentages ranged from 60 percent in Wheeler County to 74 percent in Hemphill and Roberts counties. Sixty-seven percent of the Carson County voters cast ballots in the general election.

Republican gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams carried all of the area counties, but failed to defeat his Democratic opponent Ann Richards in statewide totals. Rob Moshbacher led in the area votes for lieutenant governor, winning Hemphill, Roberts and Wheeler counties. Bob Bullock was the leader in Carson County for lieutenant governor.

Republican incumbent Phil Gramm garnered the highest votes in the U.S. senator race for all four counties, and Dick Waterfield, R-Canadian, carried the U.S. representative, District 13, contest in all but Carson County.

Though the campaign was a dignified one, voter interest was great in the race between Kent Sims, D-Wheeler, and Jean Martindale, R-Pampa, for the 31st District Judge position. Veteran judge, Grainger McIlhenny, is retiring from the position on Dec. 31.

Sims, who resigned from his position as Wheeler County attorney to run for the district judgeship, carried every one of the area counties, in addition to every precinct in Gray County.

"I am proud the way it came out and I appreciate the race my opponent ran," Sims said when contacted at his home early today. "I'm going to take a few days off, then I'm going to do the cases I have in the office and get ready to take office on Jan. 1st."

Sims said he realized that he probably would win the election when eight or 10 Gray County precincts had come in and he had won each precinct.

"I felt real good about it," he said. "I hope I merit the confidence everyone has in me and that I'll do the job that is required of me."

Hemphill County results were not available until after 4 a.m. today, as election workers struggled through the absentee voting box. District/County Clerk Jerry Vandever said six workers began counting the ballots at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday and did not finish the count until 4 a.m. today.

"I've never seen anything like it in 20 years," she commented. District/County Clerk Jackie Jackson of Miami explained that absentee ballots must be counted by precinct and it is not unusual for workers to take a long time to count the votes. In Roberts County, four workers took from 9:30 a.m. until 7:15 p.m. to tally absentee votes for that county, Jackson said.

Roberts County election officials are also waiting to hear from state officials for a ruling of how to handle a tie race between Donald Jenkins (D) and James Duvall (write-in) for the Roberts County commissioner, Precinct 4 seat. Both candidates received 78 votes each.

"I've got a call in to the state office," Jackson said today. "They may agree to cast lots, a new election may be re-ordered or there may be a recount," she said. "We'll just have to wait and see."

The candidates are seeking to fill the position left by Clyde Hodges, who chose not to run again for Precinct 4 commissioner in Roberts County.

Area voters were also interested in the District 88 state representative seat. Republican Davis Swinford carried three of the counties over his Democratic opponent Guy Hazlett. Hazlett received the highest number of votes in Carson County.

Stripper Bubbles Cash, listed as a write-in candidate for governor, garnered a small following in area counties.

"A man came in and was voting and in a minute he asked, 'How do you spell Bubbles?'," joked a representative of Hemphill County clerk's office.

Cash received 18 votes in that county, 9 votes in Roberts and 24 in Wheeler County. A vote tally for her was not available from Carson County.

A proposed constitutional amendment to clarify the authority of the Senate to consider certain nominees to state and district offices and to provide for filling vacancies in those offices was approved in two area counties and voted down in two others. Statewide, however, the amendment was passed.

Hemphill and Carson County voters agreed to the amendment with votes of 481 for, 340 against and 1,038 for and 779 against, respectively. Roberts County voters were split almost 50-50 on the amendment with 159 voting against it and 154 voting for it. In Wheeler County, the vote ran 711 against and 671 for the amendment.

Sarpalius wins re-election as U.S. representative

From staff and wire reports

While state Rep. Dick Waterfield, R-Canadian, clearly carried the northern Panhandle for the District 13 U.S. representative race, the support was not enough to defeat Bill Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, in his re-election bid for the House seat.

A Republican blitz of muscle and money failed to win not only District 13 but also two other Texas congressional seats from Democrats, who held on to their 19-8 majority in the state's delegation.

Two Democrats who Republicans had considered vulnerable gained a second term as all 26 Texas congressmen up for re-election won Tuesday. Democrats kept the delegation's only open seat.

Reps. Sarpalius and Greg Laughlin, D-West Columbia, won their first re-election, generally considered the hardest.

In the 13th District, contributions from the national GOP helped Waterfield build a campaign fund nearly twice as large as Sarpalius'.

"We were outspent... but we were not outworked," said Sarpalius, who won 56 percent of the vote overall.

Waterfield, interviewed on television at his campaign headquarters in Amarillo late Tuesday, conceded the race to Sarpalius, saying, "I guess the voters showed they prefer liberals to conservatives in the House."

The defeated candidate went on to say that he thought Sarpalius' win was "a bad day for Texas," adding "I still say we need common sense in Washington."

Waterfield said he hoped voters will press Sarpalius to vote as the people in the district want him to vote and "keep him to his promises."

In Gray County, Waterfield won 10 of the 14 precincts and the absentee vote with a total of 4,878 votes to Sarpalius', 3,340.

However, Sarpalius came out ahead in Carson County, located closer to the incumbent House member's hometown of Amarillo. Carson County voters chose Sarpalius, 1,488 to Waterfield's 1,201.

The majority of Wheeler, Hemphill and Roberts counties' voters cast ballots for Waterfield. In Wheeler County, it was a narrow win with the challenger receiving 1,148 to Sarpalius' 1,123. Roberts County tallied 350 for Waterfield and 188 for Sarpalius, and Hemphill County showed 923 for Waterfield and 597 for Sarpalius.

The Democrats' success Tuesday stung the state's leading Republican, Sen. Phil Gramm, who won a second term with 60.1 percent of the vote but was unable to help down-ballot candidates.

Gramm funneled some of his $15 million campaign war chest to help the GOP candidates. Barbara Bush and members of her husband's Cabinet stumped for them.

President Bush himself invited Waterfield to challenge Sarpalius and he campaigned Monday for Hugh Shine, the Temple Republican who ran for the open seat in the 11th District.

Chet Edwards, D-Waco, beat Shine with 55 percent of the vote.

All three winners said they were particularly glad to overcome such derision from the parade of Republican personalities.

"It was tough. When half the president's Cabinet and the vice president and the most popular woman in America, the First Lady, comes to your district, it's tough," Laughlin said after beating rancher Joe Dial, R-Victoria, with 55 percent of the vote in the 14th District.

"I think the Republicans overdid it," Edwards said after winning the seat that Rep. Marvin Leath, D-Waco, held unchallenged for 12 years.

None of the 11 other contests were close and 13 Texas congressmen faced no challenger.

In Texas' congressional races:

Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs, won a fourth term with 60 percent of the vote, defeating businessman Hamp Hodges, R-Paris, in the 1st District.

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, won 56 percent of the vote as he beat Army reservist Donna Peterson, R-Orange, for a 10th term in the 2nd District.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, won a fifth term with 61 percent of the vote in the 5th District. He defeated Republican Jerry Rucker, a former Dallas city councilman.

Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, beat Waxahachie farmer John Welch, a Democrat, for a fourth term. Barton won 67 percent of the vote in the 6th District.

The dean of the Texas delegation, Rep. Jack Brooks, won a 20th term. The Beaumont Democrat defeated former Beaumont mayor Maury Meyers, a Republican, with 59 percent of the vote in the 9th District.

Rep. Jake Pickle, D-Austin, beat David Beilharz, R-Austin, by a 2-to-1 margin for a 15th term in Congress from the 10th District.

Rep. Pete Geren, D-Fort Worth, defeated accountant Mike McGinn, R-Bedford, with more than 70 percent of the vote in the 12th District. Geren was elected last year to fill the vacancy left when House Speaker Jim Wright resigned amid an ethics investigation last year.

Rep. Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio, won a fourth term by beating attorney Kirby Roberts, D-Kingsland, by 3-to-1 margin in the 21st district.

Rep. Tom DeLay, R-Sugar Land, won 71 percent of the vote and a fourth term from the 22nd district by defeating businessman Bruce Director, D-Houston.

Rep. Albert Bustamante, D-San Antonio, won a fourth term by beating Pleasanton rancher Jerome Gonzales, a Republican, for the second time. Bustamante had 63 percent of the vote in the 23rd District.

Gray County voters split in statewide races

By BETH MILLER Staff Writer

Gray County voters went along with the majority on six of 11 top state races, but for governor, county voters chose Republican Clayton Williams by an almost 2-to-1 margin over Democrat Ann Richards.

And Bubbles Cash, a stripper, tallied 65 votes for the governor's seat in Gray County.

As of this morning, statewide results had Richards with 49.6 percent of the votes to Williams' 47.1 percent of the votes. Williams conceded Tuesday night in the mud-slinging race that got criticism from some statewide voters. Gray County voters gave Williams 4,845 votes and Richards 2,679 votes.

The Libertarian candidate for governor, Jeff Daiell, received 467 votes in Gray County and Jim Wright received 181 votes.

Dick Waterfield, a Republican, also carried the county in the Dis-

Bennett to resign drug czar position

WASHINGTON (AP) — William J. Bennett plans to resign within a week as President Bush's chief lieutenant in the war on drugs, believing the strategy he designed is working, an administration source says.

"He set out to do a task, he's done it, and he's seeing the fruition of it," the source said Tuesday. "Now he's going on to the next phase of his life."

The source said Bennett also has been subject to increasing threats to his safety recently.

The administration plans a ceremony, possibly before Friday, to announce Bennett's departure, 18 months after being confirmed in the post, said the source, who demanded anonymity. The Washington Post was first to report the resignation, in today's editions.

trict 13 U.S. representative race against incumbent Bill Sarpalius, a Democrat. Gray County voters gave Waterfield 4,878 votes and Sarpalius 3,340 votes. But in the total 13th District, Sarpalius retained his seat with 56 percent of the vote as of this morning.

For lieutenant governor, the Republican candidate, Rob Mosbacher, had a strong showing in Gray County with 4,692 votes to Bob Bullock's 3,088 votes. But on the statewide level, Bullock, a Democrat, won the race.

Another race in which Gray County voters went against the statewide tide was the railroad commissioner race with county voters giving Beau Boulter, a Republican, 4,881 votes to Bob Krueger's 3,077 votes. Statewide, Krueger won the seat.

For attorney general, Dan Morales, a Democrat, who won statewide, was defeated in Gray County with 3,110 votes to Republican J.E. "Buster" Brown's 4,645 votes. Ray E. Dittmar, a Libertarian, received 289 votes.

In other statewide races, county voters went along with the state in the U.S. senator race, re-electing Phil Gramm to the seat. In Gray County, Gramm, a Republican, received 6,043 votes, Hugh Parmer, a Democrat, received 1,942 votes and Gary Johnson, a Libertarian, received 203 votes.

For comptroller, Gray County voters sided with the statewide voters in electing Democrat John Sharp. Sharp received 4,335 votes in Gray County; Republican Warren G. Harding Jr. received 3,151; and William E. "Bill" Grisham, a Libertarian, received 474.

The Republican chosen to be state treasurer also won in Gray County with 5,011 votes for Kay Bailey Hutchison. Democrat Nikki Van Hightower received 2,760 votes and Suzanne Love, a Libertarian, received 334 votes.

Also chosen by Gray County and statewide voters was Garry Mauro, a Democrat, who was re-elected as land commissioner; Rick Perry, a Republican, who ousted Jim Hightower for agriculture commissioner; and Chief Justice Tom Phillips, a Republican, who was re-elected to the Supreme Court position.

The constitutional amendment on the ballot also passed in Gray County by a 3,632 to 3,027 vote. Voters statewide approved the amendment, which is to clarify the authority of the Senate to consider certain nominees to state and district offices and to provide for filling vacancies in those offices.

All of the vote totals are unofficial until they are canvassed. In Gray County, votes will be canvassed at 1 p.m. Monday in the Gray County Courtroom on the second floor of the county courthouse.

Democrats win top races in state elections

By STEPHEN L. ARTERS Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Republicans may have failed to take the top prize, but they still managed significant victories, unseating Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower and putting their candidate in the treasurer's office held by Democratic governor-elect Ann Richards.

In unofficial returns from the Secretary of State's office, Republican Rick Perry edged Hightower 49.1 percent to 47.9 percent. Libertarian Karen Tegtmeier had 3 percent.

"We won because all the people out there that worked hard for us would not sit and stomach Jim Hightower's scandal, abuse and embarrassment," Perry said. "They took a candidate who was very ill-known and made him the winner of a statewide election. It's unbelievable."

Kay Bailey Hutchison will succeed Richards, defeating Democrat Nikki Van Hightower 49.9 percent to 46.7 percent. Libertarian candidate Suzanne Love received 3.5 percent.

Richards pulled away from Republican Clayton Williams to claim the gubernatorial race 49.6 percent to 47.1 percent, while Democrat Dan Morales became the first Hispanic to be elected as the state attorney general.

Morales, 34, received 52 percent of the vote to knock off Republican J.E. "Buster" Brown, who had 45 percent. Libertarian candidate Ray Dittmar of Houston took 3 percent.

Morales also became the second Hispanic to ever win a statewide election. The only Hispanic previously voted into statewide office in Texas was Supreme Court Justice Raul Gonzalez, elected in 1986 and again in 1988 after first being appointed to the post.

Voters also selected a comptroller, railroad commissioner, land commissioner, three seats on the Texas Supreme Court, including chief justice, and five seats on the Criminal Court of Appeals.

Democratic Land Commissioner Gary Mauro won a third term, defeating Republican challenger Wes Gilbreath by a 60 percent to 36 percent margin.

In the race for state comptroller, Democrat John Sharp claimed 63 percent of the vote to defeat Warren G. Harding Jr., who received 31 percent. Libertarian candidate William E. Grisham had 5 percent.

Democrat Bob Krueger received 56 percent of the vote to defeat Beau Boulter, who had 40 percent, in the race to replace Republican Kent Hance on the Texas Railroad Commission.

Democrat Bob Bullock, 61, the state's comptroller for the past 15 years, had 52 percent of the vote to beat Republican Rob Mosbacher, 39, a Houston businessman and chairman of the state welfare agency, who received 45 percent.

Will Davis, a Democrat, was re-elected to District 10 on the State Board of Education, beating Republican Charles Jones 63.4 percent to Jones' 36.6 percent.

In races for the Texas Supreme Court:

- Incumbent Republican Tom Phillips beat Democratic challenger Oscar Mauzy in the race the chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court. Phillips had 59 percent of the vote to Mauzy's 41 percent.
- In Place 1, Republican John Cornyn, a state district judge in San Antonio, had 55 percent to beat Democrat Gene Kelly, a former Air Force judge from Universal City, had 45 percent.
- In Place 2, Democrat Bob Gammage won with 57 percent of the vote, while Republican Charles Ben Howell had 43 percent.
- And in the five races for seats on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals:
- Republican Joseph A. Devany lost to Democrat Frank Maloney, 55 percent to 45 percent for the Place 1 seat.
- Democrat Sam Houston Clinton beat Republican Oliver S. Kitzman in the race for the Place 2 spot 51 percent to 49 percent.
- In Place 3, Democrat Bill White tallied 85 percent, while Libertarian Carol Caul had 15 percent.
- In Place 4, Democrat Charles F. Baird defeated Republican David Berchelmann 52 percent to 48 percent.
- In Place 5, Morris L. Overstreet won with 51 percent of the vote to Republican Louis E. Sturns' 49 percent.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Caribbean crisis takes a huge toll

The many long hours of work in 1990 are over for our valiant congressmen. They wearily headed back from Washington, D.C., to the more hospitable climes of their home districts, where the folks will heartily welcome them back from the tough battle of finding the right way to raise constituents' taxes by $140 billion.

Even so, our congressmen still face some tough days ahead. This Nov. 6 they faced stiff election battles in which probably 2 percent of those seeking re-election will be booted from office. And next year when they return to Washington for yet another grueling year of serving the people, they will be given a paltry $35,000 raise.

How happy the people are to know that some of Our Servants did find a way earlier this year to rest themselves from their weary burdens. Yet even then they couldn't stop serving us. Eight honorable gentlemen on the House Ways and Means Committee, with one other colleague, took a busman's holiday from the snarl of legislation on Capitol Hill to travel to Barbados. Only there could they clear their busy minds to serve the people properly.

Suffering for us in the Caribbean were Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, Ways and Means chairman, and Reps. Fortney Stark of California, Barbara Kennelly of Connecticut, Marty Russo of Illinois, Thomas Downey of New York and George Miller of California, all Democrats, and Republican Reps. Richard Schulte of Pennsylvania, Raymond McGrath of New York and Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan. All but Rep. Miller, a Rostenkowski pal, are Ways and Means Committee members, which means they're the folks with the tough job of finding the happiest way to raise taxes.

Fortunately for all back home, Our Servants' travails in the tropics were recorded by the cameras of ABC-TV. Their good deed will not remain obscure! Our Servants spent five days and four nights under sweatshop conditions serving the people at Paradise Village and Beach Club. During that time they worked a grueling total of seven hours. The cost: a paltry $1,176 a day per congressman, charged to grateful taxpayers. The congressmen were also fed by generous lobbyist.

In return, Our Servants helped the lobbyists in the job of making America a more just place. According to the Associated Press, two lobbyists for mutual insurance companies attended; when Rep. Downey returned to Washington, he crafted legislation to help the companies. Another lobbyist helping Our Servants during the Caribbean labors was a former aid to Rep. Russo; the aide now represents Comdisco, a computer firm. Rep. Russo himself got $25,000 from Comdisco in 1989. On return from his Caribbean work, Rep. Russo crafted a law helping Comdisco.

We should all be so happy that Our Servants work so hard to do so much for us.

Berry's World

"Is this a GREAT idea, or what?"

A more or less happy ending

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Edith and Lewis Crosley stopped by the other day on their way back to Stuart, Fla. They brought good news — well, more or less good news — of the Todd Neely case. It's all over. Todd has been exonerated, and the record of his trial has been expunged.

Let me go back to the beginning. About 9 o'clock on the night of June 17, 1986, in the little community of Port Salerno, Fla., an intruder stabbed 24-year-old Linda Zavacky. At 9:12 she dialed the police 911 number and reported the assault. She identified her assailant as a white youth, "16 max," with braces on his teeth.

Todd Neely, who was then 18, was living with his family in the area. He is Edith's son, Lew's stepson. He never has worn braces. Nevertheless, Zavacky identified young Neely from his picture in a high school yearbook. Police promptly made their arrest. Florida indicted him for attempted murder.

He went on trial in January 1987 before Judge. C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge. Todd's defense was simple and straightforward.

On the night of the attack, he had been having dinner with his mother, his sister and his stepfather at a Lobster Shanty 12 miles away. His mother had kept the restaurant check, showing that the party of four had given a waiter their dinner order at 8:26 and paid the check at 9:31.

The prosecution advanced the bizarre hypothesis that Todd had slipped away from the dinner table, commandeered his stepfather's car, driven at breakneck speed to Port Salerno, taken a kitchen knife from his family kitchen, stabbed the woman and raced back to the Lobster Shanty. Judge Trowbridge swallowed this argument, ignored the evidence and found Todd Neely guilty. The sentence was 15 years in prison.

James J. Kilpatrick

"This case will be talked about for a long time to come," the judge remarked. "It's good enough for 60 Minutes."

Neely appealed, of course, and a chain of events began. It transpired that in the days immediately following the attack, local police had canvassed the area. They had turned in canvass sheets to the assistant prosecutor, Peter Neil. One of the sheets provided information that might well have led to the questioning of a youth named Dennis Raether who also lived in the complex.

Raether was then 14, almost 15. He had a history of deviant sexual behavior. He wore braces on his teeth. Inexplicably, Neil kept the canvass sheets in his desk. Police made no effort to find Raether.

In March 1989, Circuit Judge William Frye, reviewing the case, found "strong and convincing evidence that (Neil) has deliberately and actually suppressed vital information in the hands of the state that could, would, and has led to further probative evidence that would have conclusively led to a different result in the trial court."

Frye's order led to a further order directing a new trial.

The second trial was to have been held two months ago. At the last minute, state prosecutors made a stunning confession: They had convicted the wrong man. They had uncovered new evidence that made Todd's innocence apparent. Three weeks ago the full story spilled out.

Dennis Raether's aunt and uncle, with whom he had been living at the time of the attack, had moved to Atlanta. They had read in the newspapers of their nephew's possible involvement. Belatedly they checked their kitchen knives. A butcher knife was missing. Through an attorney they got in touch with assistant state attorney Rick Barlow.

Was the knife in the Todd Neely case a Henkel knife? It was. Did it have a bent tip? It did. (The knife had been used to open a heavy carton.) The identification was positive. Barlow called Neely's parents. Case dismissed.

The abrupt ending, as I say, was more or less a happy ending. Lew and Edith Crosley have raised, borrowed, begged and spent more than $250,000 in their son's defense. The county has reimbursed them $12,500 in a settlement for wrongful prosecution.

They are suing Neil and the state for the balance. The state is furiously resisting the claim, even as it acknowledges that the prosecution has been, as one judge described it, a "travesty" of justice.

Todd Neely is about to pick up the pieces of his life by enrolling in a community college. Lew and Edith are nearing the end of their month's vacation. Soon they will from Stuart, with its unhappy associations, to a rented house near Sarasota. There Edith will pursue her individual slander suit against Peter Neil. He told The Miami Herald that she "needed a shrink."

There's nothing here to laugh about, but Edith has the last laugh anyhow. Who's crazy now?

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 7, the 311th day of 1990. There are 54 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 7, 1917, Russia's Bolshevik Revolution took place as forces led by Vladimir Ilyich Lenin overthrew the provisional government of Alexander Kerensky.

On this date:

In 1885, the transcontinental Canadian Pacific Railway was completed as the last spike was driven at Craigellachie.

In 1916, Republican Jeannette Rankin of Montana became the first woman elected to Congress.

In 1918, during World War I, an erroneous report from the United Press that an armistice had been signed set off celebrations across the country.

In 1929, the Museum of Modern Art in New York City opened to the public for the first time.

In 1940, 50 years ago, the Tacoma Narrows Bridge in Washington state collapsed during a windstorm which sent the 2,800-foot span crashing into Puget Sound.

In 1944, President Franklin D. Roosevelt won a fourth term in office, defeating Thomas E. Dewey.

'New baby' at the Mayo Clinic

A new baby has been conceived and born at Mayo Clinic, 7 pounds, 2 ounces.

Labor spanned three arduous years. Delivery was attended by Dr. David Larson. The new baby is the Mayo Clinic Family Health Book.

In medical history there have been few attempts to compile such a volume as this. Traditionally, inevitably, no two physicians even in the same discipline bring to medical questions the same experience.

So where one doctor can write a book offering readers what he thinks about what he has learned, imagine the monumental task of interpreting the best judgment of 200 specialists on 1,000 different diseases and in shirt-sleeve English.

It has been accomplished, however, and the "new baby" is available to all of us in bookstores and from the Mayo Clinic this month.

As the brothers Mayo were pioneers in demonstrating that two heads are better than one, 200 are better yet. What we get from them within these 1,377 pages has been gleaned from up-to-now research plus clinical experience with 300,000 patients each year.

Paul Harvey

Questions and answers about babies and about geriatrics, about emergencies in every conceivable category — and about nutrition.

Today only one medical school comprehensively teaches the new science of nutrition. Mayo has had a Department of Nutrition for 40 years.

Specific nutrition information gets more than 100 pages in this new book. Maybe the lumps in your breast merit biopsy but maybe you need to do nothing more than cut out caffeine. This medical bible updates us on cancer prevention and on dental disease options.

Whatever can ail you — including complaints for which we don't yet have names — is covered somewhere in this volume along with symptoms, prognosis and present best treatment.

With explanatory pictures where necessary, the book will help you make friends with your heart, your head and even your aching joints.

The Mayo Clinic has never published a book like this. Characteristically, all income from the book will contribute further to medical research and education.

The integrated team approach to the practice of medicine, specialists converging on a problem from several directions, has made available to the Mayo clinics in Rochester, Jacksonville and Scottsdale "instant consultation" by satellite video communication.

Now all of us are privy to the present best in medical know-how in the 43 chapters of the Mayo Clinic Family Health Book.

It's a fat volume, such a weighty tome that recipients of advance copies complain to the editor that the reader invites hiatal hernia.

Dr. Larson just refers them to page 594.

Even patience of Job has limits

By CHUCK STONE

The moral incredulity of 1990 is not that Saddam Hussein invaded Kuwait but that he has been able to hold the world's nations hostage and reduce them to an orgy of impotent television appearances and sterile declamations.

This could be the first war in history to begin after both sides ran out of television sound bites.

Deep in Saddam's heart, he knows he is no modern-day Nebuchadnezzar. But he also knows he can wreak havoc in Kuwait's oil fields.

Now is the time to take his threats seriously. Now is the time for the United States and allied armies to launch an all-out combined air and ground-forces strike that will drive Iraq out of Kuwait and bring the Iraqi army to its knees.

But first, one final three-step irenic effort should be made to negotiate a face-saving resolution for Saddam in keeping with the advice of the late British military strategist, Sir Basil Henry Liddel Hart: Never cor- ner an opponent, and always assist him to save his face.

(1) Negotiate a guarantee that Kuwait will not be allowed to depress oil prices through overproduction.

(2) Work out a modified forgiveness debt formula for Iraq.

(3) Return the oil fields in Rumaila to Iraq.

But reason is not one of Saddam's strengths. After he refuses that last ditch offer to negotiate, the air forces and the armies should strike. In retribution, Saddam will blow up and seriously damage Kuwaiti oil fields. But such damage is transitional. By the end of the war, they would be back in production. And it is more important that the U.S. military move to resolve the present impasse if final negotiations fail.

George Bush made a terrible mistake when he sent troops to Saudi Arabia in the first place. Psychologically, politically and militarily, he was not prepared to engage Iraqi armies in a war. It was a precipitous halfhearted effort on the part of 'President Half-Have.

But once he made the commitment to militarize Saudi Arabia, U.S. forces should have moved with the same rapier-like speed that characterizes Israeli military actions.

Instead, our stagnant armed forces in Saudi Arabia remind me of the title of an old Stan Kenton tune: "Just a sittin' and a-rockin' all-I day."

So far, international sanctions appear to be crippling Iraq more than the distant threat of a military defeat. Eventually, sanctions could dry up the Iraqi economy.

The only problem is time: It will take longer than the American people and the allied nations are willing to wait. Though the mills of God grind slowly, they grind exceedingly small.

But expelling Saddam Hussein from Kuwait is only half of a solution to the congenial Middle East crisis. On most issues affecting foreign affairs, Saddam is irrational. But he makes rare geopolitical sense when he links Palestine to a permanent solution in the Middle East.

Just as America must bite the bullet in Kuwait with Iraq, this nation should bite a similar bullet with Israel on Palestine.

In refusing to negotiate in good faith with the Palestinians on a solution to their homelessness, Israel is on firm ground as a sovereign nation. But when its obduracy is subsidized by U.S. largesse, Israel is on shakier ground.

While it is difficult to criticize a people who have been forced to live in fear and with the constant threat of war for four decades, Israel still abides within the community of nations.

During the past four decades, America has demonstrated an irrevocable fidelity to Israel's security. Like Ruth's promise to Naomi, Israel's peace of mind has been our peace of mind. Nothing can ever disrupt our reciprocity of devotion.

But biting the bullet means nobody can be permitted to hold the peace process hostage in the Middle East. Even the patience of Job has limitations.

Incumbents survive in Washington; Democrats muscle into statehouses

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

Democrats today celebrated a strengthened hold on Capitol Hill and the takeover of governors' offices in high-growth Sunbelt states. They swiftly proclaimed the midterm election results "a vote of no confidence in President George Bush."

In an election framed by fear of recession and war, by unhappiness with taxes and politicians, governors took a beating. But despite talk of anti-Washington sentiment, the 102nd Congress will look much like the 101st.

Of the 32 senators who sought re-election, 31 won easily. Only Republican Sen. Rudy Boschwitz lost — to college professor Paul Wellstone. In the House, the re-election rate for incumbents was 96 percent.

With several House races still to be decided, Democrats added 10 seats to their formidable margin of control. That includes Bernard Sanders of Vermont, who was elected as a Socialist but says he will participate in the Democratic caucus.

The three fastest growing states — California, Florida and Texas — entered the election with Republican governors. The Democrats captured Florida and Texas, while the Republicans held on to California.

Former Sen. Lawton Chiles of Florida and Texas State Treasurer Ann Richards led the Democratic assault on statehouses crucial to next year's redrawing of political maps to follow population shifts to the Sunbelt.

GOP Sen. Pete Wilson won the biggest prize of all, the governorship of California, after a multimillion-dollar battle with Democrat Dianne Feinstein. With 92 percent of the vote counted, Wilson had 48 percent of the total to Feinstein's 47 percent.

Republicans picked up some statehouses of their own, electing governors in Ohio, where George Voinovich defeated Anthony Celebrezze; in Massachusetts, where William Weld edged out conservative Democrat John Silber; and Vermont, where ex-governor Richard Snelling reclaimed his old job, defeating Peter Welch.

But Democratic gains were far more widespread. Joan Finney rode voter anger against GOP Gov. Mike Hayden to victory in Kansas and businessman Bruce Sundlun unseated Republican Gov. Edward DiPrete in Rhode Island on his third try. Democrats won formerly Republican statehouses in Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Former Republican Sen. Lowell Weicker, always a maverick, was elected governor of Connecticut as an independent. In Alaska, former GOP governor Walter Hickel was running as an independent and leading two opponents for the governorship.

The Democratic-dominated Senate emerged unscathed. Challenges once thought formidable were swept aside by well-financed incumbents.

But the night had its terrifying moments for Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., whose anticipated easy ride to a third term ended up a cliffhanger before he outlasted rookie Republican Christine Todd Whitman. She capitalized on virulent anti-tax sentiment.

Generally, it was not a good night for Democrats with presidential ambitions.

Along with Bradley's scare, Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York received a disappointing 53 percent of the vote against a blundering Republican and a little known Conservative who were never seen as more than fighting for second place.

Two other would-be presidents, Democratic Sens. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee and Joseph Biden of Delaware rolled over token opposition. Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia was re-elected without opposition.

Winning more easily than expected were Republican Sens. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, Mark Hatfield of Oregon, Mitch McConnell of Kentucky, Democrats Daniel Akaka of Hawaii, Paul Simon of Illinois, Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, James Exon of Nebraska, Carl Levin of Michigan and John Kerry of Massachusetts.

In Minnesota, Boschwitz spent more than $7 million, more than seven times Wellstone's budget.

House GOP whip Newt Gingrich also had a scare. The outspoken Georgia conservative, who abandoned Bush when the president was seeking support for a budget compromise that increased taxes, narrowly edged Democrat David Worley.

"If the election for president were tonight, George Bush would lose," proclaimed Democratic Party Chairman Ronald H. Brown. "More than anything else this election has been a vote of no confidence" in Bush.

"This is not a referendum on George Bush," countered GOP strategist Edward J. Rollins. "He runs for re-election in 1992."

The results did nothing to strengthen Bush for 1992. During the campaign, the president made 115 stops for Republicans and White House aides said his appearances raised $80 million.

Particularly devastating to Bush was the loss in his adopted home state of Texas, where millionaire oilman Clayton Williams lost the governorship after spending $8 million of his own money. Florida's results also hurt Bush, who campaigned three times for Gov. Bob Martinez to no avail.

Offering the Republican view of the outcome was Charles Black, filling in for ailing GOP National Chairman Lee Atwater. Black called the results "an anti-Congress trend rather than an anti-president trend."

School trustees change expulsion policy

Pampa Independent School District's board of trustees met in special session Tuesday to consider expelling a student and to take action on a change in the school policy concerning the expulsion of students.

The board members met in closed session with the 14-year-old student, his family, Pampa Police Department and Pampa Middle School officials to discuss the matter before agreeing to the expulsion for the remainder of the semester.

Superintendent Dawson Orr said today that the boy will be provided the opportunity to continue his school work at home and that he should be able to return to school at the beginning of the spring semester.

Board members also unanimously agreed to change the school district's policy which requires that all student expulsion hearings be held before and acted upon by the board of trustees, so that Orr — as the board's designee — could handle this procedure and make the decision concerning expulsions.

Orr had pointed out to board members at the Oct. 16 meeting that the school policy, state policy and the district's discipline plan did not agree on how a student was to be expelled.

Both the state policy and the district's discipline plan allow a designee of the board to handle the expulsion of students, he said.

Limiting student expulsion to a board action could cause problems with conforming to the state's regulations about formally expelling students within seven days from the time they are initially sent home from school, the superintendent explained.

Accident scene

Three Pampa teenagers were injured in this accident at 12:25 p.m. Tuesday in the 1400 block of Duncan Street by Pampa High School. Teri Mogus, 17; Shannon Simmons, 17, and Jocelyn Juan, 19, were all taken to Coronado Hospital by Rural/Metro-AMT Paramedic Service where the teens were treated for injuries suffered in the three-vehicle accident. Simmons and Juan were treated and released. Mogus was admitted for observation, hospital officials said this morning. A fourth person involved in the accident, Julie Powell, 16, reported possible injuries at the scene. Juan was cited for following too closely, according to police records.

Bullock gets ready for work as lieutenant governor

AUSTIN (AP) — Democratic political warhorse Bob Bullock outdistanced his well-connected, well-financed Republican rival Rob Mosbacher to become the first new lieutenant governor-elect in Texas in 18 years.

With 95 percent of Tuesday's vote counted, Bullock led Mosbacher 1,895,975 votes to 1,637,571, or 51.9 percent to 44.8 percent.

Libertarian candidate Tom Owens of Midland had 122,620 votes, or 3.4 percent.

Bullock will take over the job from Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, a Democrat who held the post a record 18 years and shaped it into what some describe as the most powerful position in state government.

Bullock, 61, the state's comptroller for the past 15 years, said he looked forward to his new duties as presiding officer of the Senate during the regular legislative session that starts in January.

"I'm going to work in the morning and start meeting with the senators so the day the session starts we're ready to do business," he said Tuesday. "I'm really worried about Texas and what happens to it this next year."

For Mosbacher, 39, it was a second failure for a statewide office. In 1984, he ran a distant third in the GOP primary against U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm.

"I started 25 points down. I knew Bob was going to be tough to beat all along. We did everything, I know to do," he said. "I'm proud of the race we ran."

Bullock, who has been in state government more than half his life, campaigned on his experience while Mosbacher claimed to have the fresh perspective needed to face the state's problems.

Both candidates were as different on the issues as they were different in background and it didn't take long for the race to become a bitter affair, fueled by negative ads and counterattacks.

It was Bullock, the political insider and a recovering alcoholic who has been married five times, against Mosbacher, the young scion of a wealthy family, whose father, Robert Mosbacher Sr., is U.S. Commerce Secretary.

City commissioners discuss implementing employee drug testing

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
News Editor

Pampa city commissioners discussed possibly implementing an employee drug testing policy during a work session prior to the regular commission meeting Tuesday.

When presenting the proposal, City Manager Glen Hackler emphasized that the primary purpose of such a policy would be to protect the city from potential liability in the hiring or retention of employees who use controlled substances. Hackler also pointed out that he had not discussed the proposal with City Attorney Don Lane. "I'll have to do some reading on it," Lane said at the work session, adding, "but I know there is a constitutional challenge is there."

Hackler said the trend of the U.S. Supreme Court decisions in recent years has been to allow public sector drug testing under the following conditions:

1. pre-employment testing;
2. testing where there is "reasonable suspicion" that an employee is under the influence or impaired by a controlled substance;
3. testing of personnel involved in accidents resulting in injury to persons or damage to property;
4. random testing of public safety employees and those engaged in dangerous occupations such as drivers of motor vehicles and operators of equipment; and
5. testing of those who voluntarily consent to drug screening.

Hackler said he would like to implement the policy by the first of the year, allowing a 60-day notice to employees before the drug testing begins. He added that approximately two-thirds of the city's employees would be subject to being tested, according to their job responsibilities.

"I've talked to all the directors and they have agreed to be tested voluntarily as a show of support for the program," Hackler said.

The city manager also said that educational programs on the testing will be presented to employees before the testing begins.

"I don't want it to become a problem with needless anxieties," he explained.

Should a person who has a problem with substance abuse come forward and admits the problem, Hackler said he believes counseling should be made available to that person. If a person should test positive for drug abuse, that person would be discharged, he added.

"If we're going to take a stand on drugs, how can we not do this?" asked Mayor Richard Peet.

"It's something that needs to be done," Commissioner Ray Hupp said.

Commissioner Robert Dixon asked Hackler what would happen if someone refused to be tested.

"They would be subject to discharge," the city manager said.

"The argument is very strong that this is another infraction (on a person's rights)," Peet commented, but added that he felt an employee drug policy is consistent with the present emphasis on having a drug-free community.

Hackler said the City of Amarillo implemented a drug testing policy a year ago and that, as far as he knew, there had been no challenges to it.

In the general meeting Tuesday, commissioners unanimously approved on first-reading an ordinance providing for the qualifications to be on the tow truck rotation list which was amended to encompass an area one mile around the city's limits. The amendment will now allow at least two other tow truck services to operate on the city's rotation list, officials said.

Also approved was a bid for $27.50 per ton from Lewis Construction for the purchase of an annual supply of hot mix for repairing city streets. Mayor Peet said this is the first time the city has taken bids for hot mix on a bulk basis.

Dr. Edward Williams was unanimously approved for reappointment as City Health Officer for a two-year term. Mike Russell was approved for appointment to the Electrical Board and Ed McNelly and Larry Beck were reappointed to that board. Larry Baker was appointed to the Plumbing and Mechanical Board and Michael Blalock and Fred Kindle were reappointed to that board.

Commissioners agreed to develop a proclamation concerning Student Local Government Day instead of handling the action as a resolution. The day is intended as a way to educate high school students concerning the workings of city government by giving them an opportunity to experience the operations and business of the city.

Following are the students who will be participating in the program and their positions: Laura Hamilton, mayor; John Mize, commissioner Ward 1; Edward Dunigan, commissioner Ward 2; Stacy Mills, commissioner Ward 3; Gia Nix, commissioner Ward 4; Logan Hudson, city manager; Jason Lemons, city attorney; Shannon Simmons, city judge; Carmen Santacruz, director of finance; Mike Cota, director of community services; Doug Williams, director of public works; Ginger Elms, city secretary/personnel; Roger Lee, fire chief; Shannon Organ, police chief; Jessica Hall, pro secretary; Teressa Organ, risk manager; and Jesaka Long, city prosecutor.

While in the work session, commissioners also discussed a possible agreement with CH2M Hill engineering firm of Dallas/Fort Worth on a predesign report on sludge digestion and dewatering facilities for the Pampa Wastewater Treatment Plant. The firm's fee for the work has been set at $14,480. If the agreement is accepted, the firm will study five options for handling the problem for feasibility and cost and give a recommendation.

Director of Public Works Nathan Hopson explained the five options, but indicated that adding aerobic (by air) digestion and a dedicated land disposal site as probably being the least expensive and needing less labor than any of the others.

Actual construction of the project will be budgeted for the 1991-1992 fiscal year, Hackler said.

The city went out of compliance with Texas Water Commission regulations on handling sludge in June, Hopson said. While the wastewater treatment plant retains its certification, he said, the city must still start the process of coming into regulations.

City Secretary Phyllis Jeffers reported on the new Local Government Records Act and how it will affect the city's records. Jeffers, who was recently appointed as records management officer (RMO), said an ordinance must be adopted by the City Commission by Jan. 1, 1991.

She said that a records management committee should be appointed to develop a records management plan and to outline the duties of the RMO and department heads in relation to the records they generate. Each department should also have a records liaison officer, she said.

The City of Pampa is to sponsor a workshop on this new law for surrounding communities, she added.

The Local Government Records Act sets forth the responsibilities of all local governing bodies and officials in the management and preservation of records, consolidating and modernizing present statutes and broadening the authority of local officials in the handling of records.

Phillips takes easy win to keep chief justice post

HOUSTON (AP) — Incumbent Chief Justice Tom Phillips, who campaigned for limited judicial influence, set the pace early for his victory over Democratic challenger Oscar Mauzy.

Phillips, 41, claimed victory in the Texas Supreme Court race shortly after 10 p.m. Tuesday, as election returns continued to trickle in for the judicial races. With 99 percent of the precincts reporting, Phillips had 59.1 percent, or 2,181,373 votes, to Mauzy's 1,156,004, or 41 percent.

Phillips told supporters at the Stouffer Austin Hotel he was pleased Texas would continue to have "a court system that every Texan can support and have pride in."

"The people of Texas in 1990 continued the reform effort they started in 1988. By looking at these court races, separately and individually and on a bipartisan basis, to help restore confidence" in the State Supreme Court, Phillips said.

The Harvard-educated lawyer was appointed chief justice in 1987 by Gov. Bill Clements and elected the following year.

Mauzy, 63, a longtime Dallas Democrat, will continue to serve as a judge on the Supreme Court.

The chief justice post was one of eight court positions at stake, including two other positions on the Texas Supreme Court and five slots on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Democrat Morris L. Overstreet, 40, a county judge from Amarillo, became the first black to win a statewide office in modern Texas history when he beat out Republican Louis E. Sturns in a hard-fought Place 5 race on the appellate court. Incumbent Sturns, 41, who also is black, was appointed to the post by Clements in March to fill the vacancy created when Judge M.P. "Rusty" Duncan died in a Feb. 28 automobile accident.

Overstreet had 51.3 percent of the vote with 1,738,592 ballots to Sturns' 48.7 percent, or 1,651,352 votes.

Democrat Frank Maloney pulled out a late-night victory over Republican Joseph A. Devany for the Place 1 seat on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals with 54.3 percent of the vote. Maloney had 1,865,162 votes to Devany's 1,570,613 votes, or 46 percent.

Democrat Sam Houston Clinton traded the lead with Republican Oliver S. Kitzman for the Place 2 seat throughout the evening, finally edging out Kitzman 1,728,203, or 50.7 percent, to 1,681,622, or 49.3 percent.

Similarly in the Place 4 race, incumbent Republican David Berchermann led Democrat Charles F. Baird early. But Baird pulled away at the end, with 1,736,964, or 51.4 percent, to 1,644,946, or 48.6 percent for Berchermann.

In the Place 3 appeals court race, Democrat Bill White trounced Libertarian Carol Caul with a firm 85 percent of the vote. White garnered 2,473,600 votes to Caul's 440,209.

In the remaining Supreme Court races, Republican John Comyn, a state district judge in San Antonio, won 55.7 percent of the balloting in the Place 1 race to beat Democrat Gene Kelly. Comyn had 1,975,330 votes to Kelly's 1,569,833 votes. Kelly is a former Air Force judge from Universal City.

Democrat Bob Gammage won the Place 2 seat on the supreme court with 56.4 percent of the vote, compared to Republican Charles Ben Howell's 43.6 percent. Gammage got 1,966,074 ballots. Howell, a state appeals judge from Dallas, won 1,519,597 votes.

Customs Service changes outlined

By SUZANNE GAMBOA
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO (AP) — U.S. Customs Service has a bigger than expected budget this year and that means 400 more inspectors for the Southwestern border, the head of the agency said.

"We, the U.S. Customs Service were treated very, very well in this budget," said Carol Hallett, U.S. Customs commissioner. "In fact our budget this year is going to be $1.1 billion. It's $700 million more than what I originally presented."

At a luncheon Tuesday, Ms. Hallett outlined for members of the El Paso Foreign Trade Association the initiatives planned by the Customs Service to respond to the push for a U.S.-Mexico free trade agreement.

She announced that Customs will add 400 new inspectors to the Southwestern border. Texas would get about 200 of those inspectors, with at least 50 and possibly as many as 116 going to El Paso.

Hallett's first visit to El Paso Tuesday included a tour of the Customs facilities.

Judy Turner, Customs spokeswoman, said Hallett has met with many trade groups to reassure them that Customs has not abandoned its role in trade for one in drug interdiction.

"We have something else important going on here as well and that is my efforts to balance ... both enforcement and commercial operations," Hallett said.

The Customs Service is testing a program in Canada to establish a fast lane at ports of entry. Regular cross-border commuters would be allowed to register with customs, which would allow them to cross the border without stopping for inspection or checks.

"If it works in Canada, it should work in Mexico as well," she said.

Part of the modernization of the Customs Service will include updating laws governing the agency that is part of the U.S. Treasury, she said.

"Our laws that govern the Customs Service today are 197 years old," Hallett said. "No one should have to operate under laws that are that old and that archaic. In fact, one of the provisions says that every captain of every ship must still report and document how many cannons he has on board his ship."

Hightower blindsided by Perry for ag commissioner

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The end was near. But Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower didn't know it.

As the polls opened Tuesday, Hightower spoke in anticipation of his third term as Texas agriculture commissioner.

He talked about returning to Austin to continue promoting his populist views and bashing Republican leadership.

Seemingly overlooked in Hightower's future was Republican state representative Rick Perry, who brought the Democratic incumbent's reign to a crashing end Tuesday in a razor-thin upset victory.

With 99 percent of the precincts reporting, Perry led Hightower 49.1 to 47.9 percent, or 1,839,653 votes to 1,795,685. Libertarian Karen Tegtmeyer had 3 percent.

Hightower already had laid out plans to continue fighting pesticides and diversify crops.

And he reflected with spite on two years of attacks by the Texas Farm Bureau, which recruited six candidates to try and unseat him in the Democratic primary.

The farm bureau even sought Texas Rangers pitcher-cattelman Nolan Ryan to challenge the Democratic incumbent.

"This indeed will be the sweetest electoral victory I have ever had," Hightower said Tuesday afternoon.

Hightower, shocked and discouraged after the upset, would not talk to reporters. He promised a statement today.

"I would call it probably the biggest upset in the last 10 years of Texas politics," said Perry, the first farmer to be elected agriculture commissioner in 40 years.

'Hightower is like the Wizard of Oz. He got exposed as the little man with a big voice, and Rick Perry pulled the screen back and saw him for what he was.'

Perry, who trailed Hightower by as many as 14 points during the campaign, attributed his success to well-placed television ads attacking Hightower and a relentless effort by rural supporters.

A third-generation cotton and wheat farmer and cattelman from Haskell, Perry went to the sprawling fields of Texas and set up phone banks and countless signs in what campaign officials call "the middle of nowhere."

Perry accused Hightower of bringing scandal to the agriculture commissioner's office after reports of an FBI investigation into Hightower's 1988 campaign finances surfaced.

"Hightower is like the Wizard of Oz," a jubilant Perry said. "He got exposed as the little man with a big voice, and Rick Perry pulled the screen back and saw him for what he was."

"Our TV probably had as much to do with our victory as anything. Our ads were vivid, showed real people and showed that Hightower is not suited for this job. The people were receptive."

S.M. True, president of the Texas Farm Bureau, said Perry's victory was grounds for celebration.

"Texas agriculture has won a major victory," said True, one of Hightower's greatest adversaries. "Two years ago, I said it is my number one priority to change the leadership of the TDA and we have attained that goal. I am very pleased."

"Rick Perry is qualified to serve us in Austin and Washington. I'm not going to run Hightower down. He did the best job he could do. He just didn't understand how to run the Texas Department of Agriculture. He didn't understand mainstream agriculture."

Hightower had been favored to win a third consecutive term largely because his name recognition in cities like Houston, Dallas and San Antonio is around 75 percent.

But he registered significantly less support with the rural farmers and ranchers his office regulates and Perry swooped in for the kill.

(AP Photo: National Dairy Board) Whether sliced from a loaf, or served as biscuits, Cheddar Cheese Pepper Bread can be served with your favorite soup or salad.

Homemade cheese bread spiced with black pepper

NEW YORK (AP) — Homemade cheese bread seasoned with black pepper goes well with soup or salad, or can be served thinly sliced and lightly toasted as an hors d'oeuvre.

The batter can be baked three different ways: in a loaf pan, as rolled biscuits, or as dropped biscuits. The sharp cheddar cheese provides flavor, protein and calcium. Swiss cheese and caraway seeds can be substituted; it's particularly good with onion soup.

CHEDDAR CHEESE PEPPER BREAD

1/2 cup (1 stick) butter
2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1 to 1 1/2 teaspoons ground black pepper
3/4 teaspoon baking soda
3/4 teaspoon salt
2 cups (about 8 ounces) shredded sharp cheddar cheese
2 eggs
One 8-ounce container plain yogurt

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. Butter and flour a 9-by-5-by-3-inch loaf pan; set aside. In a small saucepan over low heat melt butter; set aside to cool. In a large bowl combine flour, baking powder, pepper, baking soda and salt. Stir in cheddar cheese. In a medium bowl lightly beat eggs; stir in yogurt and melted butter. Add to flour mixture; stir just until dry ingredients are moistened; spoon into prepared pan. Bake in a 375-degree F oven until golden, about 35 minutes. Remove from oven and cool on wire rack for 10 minutes; remove from pan. Serve warm or toasted, if desired. Makes one loaf.

For rolled biscuits: Butter a large baking sheet; set aside. Prepare dough as directed above. On a lightly floured surface roll or pat dough 1/2-inch thick. Using a 2 1/2-inch biscuit cutter cut into rounds; place on prepared baking sheet, about 1 inch apart. Bake until golden, about 15 to 18 minutes. Makes 16 biscuits.

For drop biscuits: Butter a large baking sheet; set aside. Instead of rolling dough, drop by 1/4-cupfuls onto prepared baking sheet, about 1 inch apart. Bake until golden, about 15 to 18 minutes. Makes 16 biscuits.

For a variation: Use Swiss cheese instead of cheddar cheddar. Omit black pepper. Add 1 1/2 teaspoons caraway seeds to flour mixture. Add 1 tablespoon prepared Dijon-style mustard to yogurt mixture. Bake as a bread or biscuits as directed above. Makes 16 servings.

Festive cheese wheel is edible centerpiece

NEW YORK (AP) — Festive Saga Scoop-Out makes an edible centerpiece for holiday buffet tables and cocktail parties. Serve with Scandinavian crispbread or thinly sliced Danish black bread.

FESTIVE SAGA SCOOP-OUT
1 wheel Classic Saga (blue) cheese
6 ounces (about 3/4 cup) finely chopped dried apricots, dried peaches or figs
1/2 cup fruit — or almond-flavored liqueur or fruit juice

4 ounces (about 1/2 cup) toasted slivered almonds or chopped, unsalted, dry-roasted peanuts
Slice top off cheese wheel (about 1/2 inch) and reserve. Scoop out soft inside, leaving 1/2-inch rind. Place cheese in a bowl.
Soften apricots in liqueur or fruit juice for about 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add apricots and nuts to cheese. Mix gently.
Replace mixture in rind and top with reserved lid. Garnish with apricots and nuts before serving. Serves 10 to 12 as an appetizer.

Proper care of game birds means best flavor

The better that game birds are treated from the moment they're harvested, the better they're going to taste at the table. Jerry Waters offers the following tips to get the best flavor from your hunt.

— Birds should be picked within an hour of the time they're harvested. Feathers left longer can leave a bitterness in the follicle, and the birds will pick more easily. Dig out shot and feathers driven in with shot with a small knife. Remove craw (outer stomach). Leave first joint on wing feathers, cut off feathers beyond that.

— Gut birds, removing all inside organs and being especially careful to remove lungs and kidneys. Wash birds thoroughly at least twice.

For quail or dove: starting at the tail, take scissors and split backbone, then remove organs.

For pheasant, partridge or duck: cut off tail and cut under breast bone at the vent, lifting breast without detaching it about 2 to 3 inches on each side. This allows you to reach inside the bird and pull out the organs without cutting apart the bird.

— Do not skin bird; the underlying fat layers help keep the birds moist when cooked.

— Immerse bird in ice and water for at least two hours.

— Split bird down the back — To store, package submerged in water using cleaned milk cartons or cardboard freezing containers. Birds packaged this way will keep up to 12 months. Or, you may package clean birds in plastic freezer bags, squeezing out as much air as possible before sealing. Birds will keep up to six months.

— When ready to cook birds, remove from freezer container and immerse in cold water for an hour. Wash well. Fill a sink or large container with water and add 1/2 cup salt for every dozen birds. Place birds in salt water and soak for 30 minutes to an hour.

— Wash well, pat dry. They're ready to cook.

— If birds are not frozen, immerse in salt water and rinse well. May be refrigerated packed in ice for up to two days.

EDA LITE WATERS STUFFED QUAIL

12 quail
12 thin slices of bacon
2 sticks margarine
1 pound pure pork sausage
2 cups flour
3 tablespoons grape jelly
2 cups red wine
Stuff quail with sausage. Wrap a strip of bacon around quail breast and secure with a toothpick. Roll quail in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Melt 2 sticks of margarine in frying pan; place quail in pan and brown. Remove quail from pan.

Add some of the seasoned flour to drippings to make enough brown gravy to cover birds, adding plenty of water to make a thin gravy. Add wine and grape jelly. Place quail in deep pan or baking dish. Pour gravy over quail. Cover top of pan with foil. Bake in slow oven, about 250 degrees, until tender, about 2 or 3 hours.

HAWKEYE HUNTING CLUB DUCK

3 ducks
3 large onions, chopped
2 sticks butter
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 cup Burgundy wine
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
Water
Salt and pepper
Salt and pepper the ducks and brown well in 2 sticks butter melted in iron pot. Remove ducks from pot. Make a roux by adding 1 1/2 tablespoons flour to the pot, stirring constantly over low heat. Add onions and cook until tender. Add 1 1/2 cups water and garlic. Add ducks. Cover and simmer over low heat, adding water as needed.

Cook until ducks are tender and gravy is very thick, 5 or 6 hours. Add wine the last 30 minutes of cooking time and baste ducks every 7 or 8 minutes.

(Cook Sharon Morris removes the meat from the bone and also removes the skin, before serving this dish.)

This is Jerry Waters' own recipe for quail, guaranteed to impress the woman, or man, in your life.

J.W.'s QUAIL

2 quail per person
Garlic
White wine
Butter
Salt and pepper
Sugar
Steam quail for 30 minutes. Wrap individually in aluminum foil with 1 clove garlic, 2 tablespoons white wine, a pat of butter, salt, pepper and a sprinkling of sugar on the breast. Bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees. Open foil and brown under broiler about 5 minutes.

FRIED QUAIL

Place quail in a bowl and cover with buttermilk; let stand about 2 hours. Place peanut oil in deep skillet or deep fryer and get it very hot. Mix flour, salt and pepper. Roll quail in flour mixture and drop in hot oil. Fry until birds come to the top of the oil, about 12-15 minutes. Remove from oil and drain.

Note: pheasant may also be fried in this manner, and the pan drippings make a mean cream gravy.

Atlantic Brass Quintet

Pampa Community Concert Association welcomes Atlantic Brass Quintet Nov. 11

The Pampa Community Concert Association's second concert of the season will be Sunday afternoon, Nov. 11.

The Atlantic Brass Quintet will appear at 2:30 p.m. in the M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium.

As North America's foremost young brass ensemble, the Atlantic Brass Quintet has quickly captured the attention and praise of audiences and critics across the nation with its exciting performances of traditional and contemporary repertoire. Designated as "Young Artists of 1988" by Musical America magazine, the quintet performs more than 100 performances each season coast-to-coast.

Founded in 1985 at Boston University, the Atlantic Brass Quintet is the recipient of numerous chamber music awards including the 1987 grand prizes at the Shoreline Alliance Chamber Music Competition and the Carmel Chamber Music Competition, as well as the 1988 grand prizes at the Coleman Chamber Music Society Competition, the Summit Brass First International Brass Ensemble Competition, and the Second Annual Rafael Mendez International Brass Quintet Competition. In addition, the Atlantic Brass Quintet has distinguished itself through many recital and concert performances, including a Carnegie Hall debut with the Empire Brass and its New York recital debut at Weill Recital Hall. More recently the Quintet was chosen to open the 1990 summer concert series at Lincoln Center's Damrosch Park, which was broadcast live on WQXR-FM.

The Quintet has appeared in concert with the American Boychoir, the Jacksonville Symphony, and Mitch Miller. The Atlantic Brass has also performed for French President Francois Mitterand and President George Bush.

A leading proponent of contemporary music, the Atlantic Brass Quintet regularly performs works by contemporary composers such as Jan Bach, Luciano Berio, Witold Lutoslawski, Richard Dunser, Marti Epstein, Alvin Etlar, Ray Luke and Edwin London, whose "Brass Quintet" they recently performed as part of ALEA III's new music recital series in Boston. The Quintet also recently released the world premiere recording of Alexander Arutiunian's "Armenian Scenes."

The Atlantic Brass Quintet maintains an active role in music education, giving youth concerts and master classes across the nation and teaching at the Boston University Tanglewood Institute.

The Atlantic Brass Quintet can be heard on the Northeastern recording of works by Gardner Read with Leonard Raver, organist of the New York Philharmonic, and on a new digital recording on Summit Records, A Musical Voyage.

Joseph Damian Foley plays trumpet in the Atlantic Brass Quintet. A native of Concord, N.H., Foley is a graduate of Boston University.

Trumpet player Jeffery Luke is a native of Oklahoma City, Okla., and a graduate of Oklahoma City University and the New England Conservatory.

Robert Rasmussen, who plays the French horn, comes from Seattle, Wash., and had performed with many orchestras.

Trombonist John Faieta of Lynn, Mass. is a graduate of Boston University and has performed with orchestras from all across the country.

John Manning is a native of Raynham, Mass. and attended Boston University. A former member of the United States Air Force, Manning was solo tuba in the Air Force Band of the Golden Gate.

Pampa Charter Chapter of A.B.W.A. to host style show and brunch Nov. 10

Pampa Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association will host a brunch and fashion show Saturday, Nov. 10 at the Pampa Chamber of Commerce building.

Scheduled to begin at 10 a.m., the show is timed so that working women will be able to attend. The models for the style show are all members of Pampa Charter Chapter, and will be wearing fashions from V.J.'s Imports and Fashions.

Funds raised by Pampa Charter Chapter A.B.W.A. provide scholarships to a graduating senior girl.

For reservations to the brunch and fashion show, and for more information about Pampa Charter Chapter of American Business Women's Association, telephone Jan Allen at 669-2135 or Estelle Malone at 669-9614.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Mother-in-law-to-be says son's fiancée never helps

DEAR ABBY: My son is engaged to a girl I'll call Lucy. Lucy has eaten dinner at our house every Sunday for the last seven months. I fix good meals and she eats heartily and acts like she enjoys the meal, but she has never once offered to help me with the dishes, or even take her plate into the kitchen.

My son says Lucy is a guest and she's not supposed to. I say he's wrong. What do you say?

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

DEAR DIFFERENCE: Who's right and who's wrong is not nearly as important as developing a good relationship with your future daughter-in-law.

Try treating Lucy more like a member of the family than a guest. For openers, after dinner, say, "Let's clear the table—many hands make light work." Or, "How about giving me a hand with these dishes, Lucy? It's been a long day, besides I'd appreciate the company."

It will make Lucy feel useful and will do wonders for your relationship with your future daughter-in-law.

DEAR ABBY: Three months ago, I returned home to find our 29-year-old son lying on his bed, dead! Autopsy report: acute hemorrhagic pancreatitis due to acute alcohol intoxication. Where was the darling 6-year-old child we adopted—the son of alcoholic parents? We took him, raised him and loved him. In his teen-age years, he took his first beer, and from that day on, every dime he got went for alcohol.

Sober, he was charming, sensitive and caring. Drunk, he was mean, abusive and unreasonable. We had brought him home from a large city, hoping to help him after he had become a street person. We got him into a treatment center. He had counseling and went to AA. He used to ask me why I didn't go to Al-Anon, and I would say, "Because I am not the one with the problem, you are!" How I wish I had gone!

Now I have recriminations. Why did I lock him out of his home the night before he died? Was he ill and dying and looking for help? Had I not interfered in his life and left him in the city, would he be alive today? How I wish I had another chance!

Please, tell other parents of alcoholic children that alcoholics are ill. Why isn't more done for alcoholism and finding a cure? I would bet it kills more young people than all the other diseases combined. Sign me ...

GRIEF-STRICKEN

DEAR GRIEF-STRICKEN: Please don't beat yourself up with recriminations. You did what you thought was best.

I am printing your letter to let others know that Al-Anon is there for friends and relatives of alcoholics. Unless they've given Al-Anon a chance, they haven't done all they can for their alcoholic loved ones.

DEAR ABBY: How come all those wise guys who claim to know how to run the country are driving taxicabs and cutting hair?

AVERAGE CITIZEN

DEAR AVERAGE CITIZEN: Be thankful that all those wise guys who claim to know how to run the country are driving taxicabs and cutting hair—and not running the country.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Had Enough in Wisconsin," whose husband of 40 years always introduces her with, "Meet my wife—but please don't laugh."

You may get through to this insensitive clod by introducing him in the following manner: "Meet my husband—but please don't laugh; he was much better looking when I married him."

If you print this, please don't use my name. Sign me ...

Powell, Vogler claim SWC weekly honors

AUSTIN (AP) — Tired of being replaced with a defensive back on some passing downs, Texas linebacker Boone Powell reminded coach David McWilliams that he hadn't done so badly when the other team was passing.

"He said, 'You know coach, not many guys have caught passes against me this year. I can cover those guys,'" Williams recalled, smiling.

"And he proved a point, I guess, the other day," McWilliams said following Texas' 41-22 victory over Texas Tech at Lubbock.

In that game, Powell made what Texas coaches consider the key play: an interception off Tech's Robert Hall, which he returned 26 yards for a touchdown and a 17-10 Texas lead.

Minutes later in the fourth quarter, Tech had 2nd-and-1 at the Texas 10-yard line, but Powell sacked Hall for a 14-yard loss, and two plays later, Texas blocked a Tech field goal attempt.

For his performance, Powell, a junior from Richardson, was selected as The Associated Press' Southwest Conference defensive player of the week.

"Boone has been a real steady football player for us the last two years," McWilliams said. Texas' Christian quarterback Matt Vogler, subbing for the injured Leon Clay, was chosen SWC offensive player of the week for his performance in TCU's 56-35 loss to Houston.

Vogler, a junior transfer from Auburn, passed for a NCAA record 690 yards, becoming the first player to win the honor with a losing team.

Vogler had 44 completions on an NCAA-record 79 attempts, and threw for touchdowns of 80, 88, 5, 9 and 15 yards.

This week Texas plays Houston, and Powell said the Longhorns must pressure Cougars quarterback David Klingler. "We can't allow him eight, nine, 10 seconds to throw," Powell said.

SWC on television

DALLAS (AP) — Four Southwest Conference games will be televised by three different networks over the next two weekends.

Baylor and Arkansas will play at 12:07 p.m. on Saturday in Waco with Raycom televising the game. At 6:30 p.m., Houston and Texas will meet in Austin with ESPN televising the clash.

On Saturday Nov. 17, CBS will televise the Texas-Texas Christian battle from Fort Worth. Kickoff will be 11:07 a.m. for the nationally televised game.

That same day Rice hosts Baylor at 12:07 p.m., in Raycom's SWC Game of the Week.

TCU's Matt Vogler poses outside his dorm on the Fort Worth campus Monday. The Frogs' backup quarterback passed for a record 690 yards Saturday against Houston.

Braves' Justice named NL's top rookie player

By BILL SCHULZ
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Dave Justice is among those wondering what he could've done in a full year for the Atlanta Braves. Then again, he's just glad he got to play at all.

Justice, who began the season in the minors, didn't get a chance to start full-time until Dale Murphy was traded in early August. But once he broke into the lineup, he broke loose.

"If Dale had not been traded, I probably would still be platooning at first. I wouldn't be sitting here," Justice said Tuesday after winning the National League rookie of the year award in a near-unanimous vote.

Justice hit 28 homers, most of them after Murphy went to Philadelphia and right field opened up. Justice batted .282 with 78 RBIs in 439 at-bats in 127 games.

Justice got 23 of 24 first-place votes for 118 points; Montreal second baseman Delino DeShields got the other first-place vote and had 60 points.

Cincinnati first baseman Hal Morris (13 points) was third, followed by San Francisco pitcher John Burkett (12), Cubs pitcher Mike Harkey (7), St. Louis catcher Todd Zeile (4) and Montreal outfielders Marquis Grissom (1) and Larry Walker (1).

Justice, 24, joined Earl Williams (1971) and Bob Horner (1978) as Atlanta players to win the award.

Two members of the Baseball Writers Association of America in each NL city voted.

The American League rookie of the year will be announced today.

While the Braves began the season touting their young pitchers, Justice did not figure prominently in Atlanta's plans, especially since the club had signed power-hitting free agent Nick Esasky.

In spring training, Justice got another blow — he was hit in the face by a ball and sustained a broken cheekbone and nose, requiring plastic surgery. When he healed, Justice started the year at Triple-A Richmond.

The Braves got off to a bad start and Esasky played only a few games before being sidelined for the rest of the year with vertigo. On May 16, Atlanta brought up Justice and put him at first base, a position he had played only a few times in his pro career.

Justice, Atlanta's fourth-round choice in the 1985 draft, had never hit more than 12 home runs for one team in a season before this year. He had hit only eight homers and was batting .243 when Murphy was traded.

The Braves made Justice to right field, and he played like the two-time Most Valuable Player he replaced.

In the outfield "my natural position ... I was able to concentrate on my hitting," he said.

Mavericks rally past Knicks; Rockets post first victory

Tarpley, Blackman lead Dallas' scoring attack

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks, who scored 85 points in losing their opener and 140 points in winning their second game, were at an early-season crossroads late in the second quarter of Game 3.

Trailing 49-33 to the New York Knicks on Tuesday night, the Mavericks scored the final seven points of the first half to get within nine, then faced the wrath of coach Richie Adubato at halftime.

"We didn't play very hard in the first half. We didn't get back on defense or contest any shots," Adubato said. "That shows a lack of energy and at halftime I let them know they weren't playing very well."

The Mavericks continued the rally in the second half, tying the score eight times before taking the lead with less than two minutes remaining, then handing the Knicks their second straight home loss, 96-91.

In the previous loss, on Saturday night against Boston, the Knicks blew a 19-point advantage.

"We knew from watching them against Boston that they had blown a big lead once before," Roy Tarpley said after scoring 29 points for the Mavericks. "We thought it was only a matter of time until we clicked."

Rolando Blackman scored 20 points, including a go-ahead layup with 37 seconds left, as the Mavericks outscored New York 10-3 down the stretch.

"Anytime you lose a big lead, you tend to get tentative, and that's magnified when it's happened before," Blackman said. "But it eventually makes a team stronger when they overcome it."

"Losing the leads has been a combination of mental and physical execution," said Knicks center Patrick Ewing, who had 26 points.

Dallas' Herb Williams (right) and New York's Jerrod Mustaf (32) and Charles Oakley battle for the ball Tuesday night in Madison Square Garden. The Mavericks came from 16 points behind to win, 96-91.

Smith hits career-high 35 points for Houston

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Denver's version of the run-and-shoot offense ran the Houston Rockets to a near fourth quarter standstill but they had just enough stamina to keep the Nuggets winless.

Kenny Smith scored 35 points, including seven free throws in the final 1:09, and Otis Thorpe scored 21 points and got 22 rebounds, leading the Rockets to a 145-135 victory Tuesday night.

It was the Rockets' first victory in three games and the Nuggets dropped to 0-3 using the highly mobile offensive design of first-year coach Paul Westhead.

"We would hope that with the way we play, a lot of teams will slow down in the second half," Westhead said. "That's part of what we thrive on. I don't ever like to lose but when a team plays all out the way we did tonight, I don't feel as bad."

The Rockets led by as many as 16 points in the first half and they started the fourth period with a 10-point margin at 111-101.

But fatigue set in and the Nuggets narrowed the deficit to 136-133 with 1:41 to go and it looked like the Rockets might not have enough to finish.

But Smith, who had a career high point production, hit seven of 10 free throws in the closing minutes to secure the victory.

"Tonight's pace contributed a lot to my numbers," Smith said. "The key thing is you have to make decisions quickly."

Houston broke away from a close first quarter and built a 79-63 lead with 2:36 left in the half. They led by 87-74 at the half, Houston's second highest halftime production in the team's history.

The Rockets had to finish the game without center Akeem Olajuwon, who fouled out with 4:49 left in the game.

Pumped up Cowboys

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers have won games 13-12, 19-13, 24-21, 20-17, and 24-20 this year. Are these guys just lucky besides being good?

Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said on Tuesday the close scores are a tribute to the defending world champions.

"Teams look forward to playing the 49ers and giving them their best and that's why the 49ers have been in so many close games," Johnson said.

"The 49ers are the best and playing the best brings outstanding performances from their opponents," he said.

"San Francisco does what it takes to win in the fourth quarter." Johnson said the Cowboys will be just like everybody else who plays San Francisco — "pumped." "Our players know that sometimes strange things happen," Johnson said of a possible upset.

"Granted, it would be a strange thing if we beat the 49ers."

The 3-6 Cowboys and the 8-0 49ers meet on Sunday night at 7 p.m. CST in a rare primetime television (ESPN) appearance for Dallas. San Francisco was a 10-point favorite.

Johnson called San Francisco the best NFL team of all-time.

"Our guys are upbeat and looking forward to playing the 49ers who just might be the best team to ever play the game," Johnson said. "I know we'll give a maximum effort."

The game will mark the Texas Stadium debut of Montana. San Francisco and Dallas have played in Texas Stadium just once since 1980 (last year) and Montana didn't play. Sun Devil Stadium in Phoenix is the only other NFL stadium where Montana has never played.

Six-Man Rankings

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The top four teams remained the same for the fourth consecutive week in six-man high school football poll conducted by The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, but previously unbeaten Bosqueville took a plunge in the rankings.

The Bulldogs tumbled from No. 5 to No. 10 after dropping a 65-53 decision to Bynum Friday in a District 16 contest.

Bosqueville (8-1) had been ranked fifth for the past seven weeks. The Bulldogs' fall in the poll was the largest since Jayton slipped from fourth to ninth during the fourth voting period after being upset by Trent.

There was no shuffling at the top, however, in the weekly poll of seven Texas sports writers. Fort Hancock, a 51-6 victor against Sierra Blanca, maintained its No. 1 ranking.

Christoval, Guthrie and McLean won their games Friday by a combined 160-6 and held on to the second through fourth spots, respectively.

Rule moved up a notch and replaced Bosqueville at No. 5.

Rule (9-0) squares off against Jayton (7-1) Friday at Jayton to decide the District 9 championship.

Here is the weekly Lubbock Avalanche-Journal high school six-man football poll of Texas sports writers with records, first-place votes in parentheses, total points (tabulated on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis) and last week's ranking:

1. Fort Hancock (5) 9-0-0 68 1
2. x-Christoval (2) 6-2-0 65 2
3. Guthrie 9-0-0 55 3
4. McLean 9-0-0 49 4

Pampa spikers shoot for 4A playoffs next season

Volleyball Playoff Goal. This year, third place. Next year, the playoffs. That's the goal of Pampa High volleyball coach Jo Beth Palmer...

"I wish I could have them back next year," she added. Palmer, however, may not need them to contend for the district crown next year.

Kristen Becker and Bridget Mathis are solid front-line players. Leigh Ann Lindsey, Joy Cambem, Lisa Jeffrey and LaTonya Jeffrey turned into steady performers. All were juniors this season.

All signs point toward a strong run at the playoffs for the Lady Harvesters. Dumas and Hereford will be formidable opponents again, but both teams have some rebuilding to do.

A New Sport. Girls fastpitch softball may be part of the PHS sports curriculum the next school term.

A proposal to make the sport available to high school girls is scheduled to be on the PISD business agenda at the Nov. 20 board meeting.

Benny Horton, who has coached girls softball in the Pampa Optimist League for several years, expects board members to approve the proposal.

"This is something that's been needed for a long time. We have some outstanding softball players, but after a girl turns 15, that's the end of her career," Horton said.

Horton said girls softball would be sponsored by the high school, but the sport would have to be funded by individuals and businesses at the beginning.

"Later on, we're hoping the school will get involved and make softball a budgeted item," Horton said. "In the meantime, we're going to be soliciting donations to get things started."

PHS Athletic Director Dennis Cavalier said girls softball would probably be classified as a spring sport and would be played during the six-weeks period following the track season.

"Everything is in the planning stages right now," Cavalier said. Since no other high school in the area has a girls softball program, just who would the Lady Harvesters be playing?

Horton is counting on the 'domino effect' to get the ball rolling. "Once Pampa gets a softball program, we're going to work on getting other schools to follow suit."

Horton and other Optimist coaches would be coaching the softball team to begin with. Home games would be played at Optimist Park.

Flashback: Nov. 1963. Kenny Hebert and Jerry Garrison scored two touchdowns each as Pampa came from behind in the second half to defeat Lubbock High, 27-19, in high school football action.

Pampa meets Caprock to decide playoff berth

Pampa meets Caprock Thursday night with the winner of the District 1-4A game advancing to the Class 4A post-season playoffs.

The game will be played at Dick Bivins Stadium in Amarillo, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Hereford defeated Caprock, 26-7, last weekend to claim the district's other playoff spot.

Both Pampa and Hereford have 3-0-1 district marks. Caprock has a 3-1 record in league play.

Pampa and Hereford battled to a 24-24 tie when the two teams met on Oct. 12, but Caprock coach Preston Smith feel the Harvesters have the better team.

"Their talent is about the same, but Pampa seems to play with a little more enthusiasm," Smith said. Caprock is looking for its first playoff berth since the 1975 season.

Smith is concerned about stopping Pampa's explosive backfield of quarterback Logan Hudson, fullback Zach Thomas, and running backs Quincy Williams and Wayne Cavanaugh.

"We're going to have to slow Pampa down and we're going to have to go out and do the things we've been doing, only do them a little bit better," Smith said.

The Longhorns lost all five of their non-district games, but than won their first three district outings to take the lead in the 1-4A race.

Smith coached at Wheeler for nine years. He led the Mustangs to two state championships.

NFL season is halfway home

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Football Writer

Has there ever been an NFL season when so many teams had virtually clinched playoff berths midway through?

Has there ever been an NFL season when so many teams could be in contention going into the last week? Those contradictory questions are the essence of NFL '90.

At the top are the San Francisco 49ers, seeking to become the first team to win three straight Super Bowls, and the New York Giants. Both are 8-0, the first time since 1934 — when Chicago and Detroit were 10-0 — that two teams have progressed this far unbeaten.

It can even be argued that both have clinched playoff berths — 8-8 could well make it in the NFC.

At the next rung are the 7-1 Chicago Bears, 31/2 games ahead of Tampa Bay in the NFC Central and cruising. Put them in the playoffs along with the 7-1 Buffalo Bills and Miami Dolphins, one of whom will win the AFC East while the other will make it as a wild card.

And add the 6-2 Los Angeles Raiders, a game ahead of Kansas City in the AFC West. Only a complete collapse keeps the silver and black out.

Then chaos — only the Washington Redskins and Chiefs, at 5-3, look to be pretty good wild-card bets.

And keep in mind this for the 49ers, Giants and Bears — one will have to play a first-round playoff game because under the new format, the division winner with the worst record has to play a wild-card team.

"People forget about that," says George Young, general manager of the Giants. "They think all we have to do is play out the season. You do that and you're in deep trouble."

In fact, Chicago could have the edge over both the Giants and 49ers, who meet in San Francisco Dec. 3. Because they collapsed to 6-10 last season, the Bears play a fourth-place schedule, meeting neither New York nor San Francisco, both of whom won their divisions last season.

On the other hand, that could work for New York and San Francisco. They don't have to play the Bears, who are methodically playing as well as anyone in the league right now, even though coach Mike Ditka keeps saying in his best CoachSpeak:

"We're not on a level with those other two teams." Here's a look at the races by division:

AFC EAST: Miami and Buffalo meet Dec. 23 in the frigid north. The winner probably takes the division, the other is a wild card.

AFC CENTRAL: Write off the Browns (2-7) and then try to figure the rest of the pack. Make the Steelers (tied at 5-4 with the Bengals) the favorite.

AFC WEST: The Raiders and Chiefs should make the playoffs though neither has Super Bowl quarterback.

NFC EAST: The Giants are three games and a tiebreaker ahead of the Redskins with the 4-4 Eagles another game back.

NFC CENTRAL: The Bears are just about in. The rest? Tampa Bay (4-5) is fading; Detroit and Green Bay (both 3-5) probably will stay mathematically alive for a while and Minnesota needs to win six of eight in a tough schedule (the Giants, 49ers, Bears and Raiders) to have any kind of chance.

NFC WEST: The 49ers have a five-game lead over the other three teams, tied at 3-5. The Rams are the most likely to get hot although they still must play the Giants on Sunday and the 49ers twice. Three upsets could do it.

And just for the fun of it, a prediction on the 12 playoff teams:

AFC: Dolphins, Bills, Steelers, Raiders, Chiefs, Chargers.

NFC: Giants, Bears, 49ers, Redskins, Eagles and ...

Bulls still winless, but it's still a long season

By JIM LITKE AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bulls lost the first two games of the 82-game NBA season and one of the city's dailies rushed them into analysis. The first doctor to examine the patient this season, like all the others in seasons past, concluded the problem was schizophrenia.

"Michael Jordan played the first halves restrained, as if he were challenging the offense to find a personality of its own. ... few new offensive twists were unveiled. So Jordan took off in the second half to keep the Bulls in both games.

"This," the medical man concluded even before Tuesday night's loss to the Celtics dropped Chicago to 0-3, "is deja vu."

Is it ever. Michael Jordan has now been the property of the Bulls for five full seasons (a fractured foot caused him to miss all but 18 games in his second year, 1985-86). And if truth be told, the team is no closer to putting a balanced offense on the floor than the leaders of the Soviet Union were when, at the launching of yet another five-year agricultural plan, they promised to put bread on every table.

Lord knows, though, that the Bulls certainly have talked about it: "We don't want Michael to have to do as much," Chicago Bulls coach Stan Albeck, 1985.

"We don't want Michael to have to do as much," Chicago Bulls coach Doug Collins, 1986-88.

"We don't want Michael to have to do as much," Chicago Bulls coach Phil Jackson, 1989-present.

"We don't want Michael to have to do as much," Chicago Bulls vice president for basketball operations Jerry Krause, 1985-present.

Say this much, at least, for Krause: He has done more than talk. He has drafted and traded, traded draft choices, combed the waiver wire and the Continental Basketball Association, begged, borrowed, stolen and pursued players from every corner of the globe where a basketball is bounced.

Down through the years, Krause has marched a parade of centers through the paint to draw opponents' attention away from Jordan; finagled to get wide-bodied rebounders to keep Jordan from having to go under the basket to get the ball; brought in aging sharpshooters and 3-point specialists to dissuade opponents from double-teaming Jordan; hired hatchet men to protect him and waterbug-sized point guards to spare Jordan the trouble of bringing the ball upcourt.

But as Tuesday night proved again, nothing really has changed. Crunch time for the Bulls remains Jordan's time — or nobody's.

During one of his several sneaker campaigns, Jordan's likeness was stretched 10 stories across the side of a building, and most of the sleepy-eyed commuters who saw it probably figured it was life-sized. But for all this talk of detroning the Pistons, when Jordan is not superhuman — as the playoffs demand of him, night after night, in quick succession, or as the Celtics' contest found him, on an off night — the Bulls are still no better than an average team.

Tuesday night, Jordan had 33 points, 20 of them in the second half and eight in the final quarter, to go along eight rebounds and 12 assists (some off night). The points and assists were team bests; the rebounds tied him with Bill Cartwright for the same honor. Only one other Chicago player, Scottie Pippen with 23 points, had more than 15, and only Stacey King, with six rebounds, kicked in more than five.

The Celtics, by contrast, got 24 points and 11 rebounds from Larry Bird, 20 points and eight rebounds from Brian Shaw, 19 points and seven rebounds from Kevin McHale, and eight points and eight rebounds from Robert Parish.

And won 110-108.

Previously-unbeaten McKinney fighting for playoff life

By The Associated Press

The McKinney Lions two weeks ago were 7-0 and ranked third among Class 4A teams in the Associated Press Schoolboy Poll.

This week they'll be fighting just to qualify for the playoffs. Paul Oatts ran for 96 yards and a 13-yard touchdown Friday, leading Gainesville to a 14-9 victory over McKinney. The Leopards held James Thornton, the top rusher in 4A, to 72 yards and the McKinney offense managed only 153.

The Lions, who lost to Denison the previous week, tumbled from the poll and suddenly are third in District 9-4A.

In order to make the playoffs, McKinney must beat Coppell in its season finale this week and both Gainesville and Denison must lose. That scenario could create a four-way tie for first place.

McKinney coach Ron Poe has seen this situation before. His team finished as tri-champion last season, only to miss the playoffs on a coin flip.

Five other ranked teams lost last week, while all five No. 1 schools survived. Week Nine undefeated. Plano, previously No. 10 in 5A, dropped a 25-14 thriller to No. 7 Lake Highlands.

Lake Highlands, which trailed 14-0 at halftime, beat the Wildcats in Plano for the first time in its 25-year history.

In 4A, Lubbock Estacado fell from fifth to eighth after a 9-7 loss to Levelland, while No. 5 Austin Reagan slapped Austin Westlake from the 10th spot in the poll with its 14-3 victory.

No. 9 Wilmer-Hutchins (8-1) and No. 10 Athens (7-1-1) debuted in the 4A rankings.

In 2A, Post lost to Crosbyton 18-17 and fell from the poll, while Era was beaten 31-0 by Muenster and fell from fourth to ninth in Class A.

Aldine, No. 1 in 5A, smashed Eisenhower 48-7. The Mustangs received 27 of 29 first-place votes and 288 overall.

Class 4A's top-ranked team, A&M Consolidated, escaped with a 7-2 victory over Tomball, thanks mostly to a pair of interceptions late in the game by Mark Anderson.

Tomball had marched to the Tigers' 9 with 6:11 remaining when Anderson stole his first pass in the end zone. The second came less than a minute later at the Consolidated 14.

The Tigers garnered 26 first-place votes and 287 overall, leading No. 2 Bay City.

Vernon, which thrashed Bridgeport 57-6, received 19 first-place votes and 276 overall to retain the No. 1 ranking in 3A.

Groveton battered Lovelady 56-7 and kept its stronghold on 2A's top ranking, while Munday did the same in Class A with its 68-0 crunching of Crowell.

It's show-and-tell time for unbeaten University of Houston

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Show-and-tell time comes down to show time for No. 3 Houston Saturday against No. 14 Texas and Cougars coach John Jenkins wouldn't have it any other way.

Jenkins has been telling any listener that his run-and-shoot Cougars should be the national champions if they go unbeaten this season.

So, Jenkins welcomes showtime with three games left in the season.

"We take it as a challenge that all of the voters (in The AP poll) are out there saying, 'not so fast, we'll see if you're the No. 1 team on Saturday, show us,'" Jenkins said. "That's the message I'll relay to the squad so let's tee it up and let it happen."

Houston (8-0) is 7-0 in Southwest Conference games and the Longhorns are 4-0 and will be testing the Cougars' 12-game winning streak that is the longest in the nation.

Houston is in the final year of a three-year NCAA probation sentence that will prevent them from playing in a bowl game but Jenkins thinks it would be good for the SWC for the Cougars to win the national title.

"The greatest thing that could happen to this league would be for Houston to win the national title and for the Cotton Bowl representative to have a good showing," Jenkins said.

The Cougars moved up from No. 6 to No. 3 behind Notre Dame and Washington Monday and Jenkins didn't complain about the positioning.

"We're within a rock's throw of winning the national championship with three games remaining and the greatest opportunity for us comes Saturday," Jenkins said. "It's not the lineup that counts, it's where you wind up."

Houston has beaten Texas 60-40, 66-15 and 47-9 the past three years and Jenkins has special memories of the Cougars' 60-40 victory in 1987.

"This offense (run-and-shoot) finally took its place against Texas in 1987," Jenkins said. "That was the beginning of this era. Since that time we've had a 29-5-1 record. I guess we have a sentimental attachment to this game, like a reunion."

Jenkins said he has a job to do in getting his team ready to play the Longhorns.

Major bowl lineup predictions calls for educated guesses

By The Associated Press

A victory Saturday by top-ranked Notre Dame could simplify the bowl picture if the Irish agree to an Orange Bowl rematch with No. 4 Colorado.

Whether they will — should they beat ninth-ranked Tennessee — is open to considerable speculation.

"I don't think they want to play Colorado again," an Orange Bowl source said Tuesday. "Colorado is an experienced team, they'll be coming in with a nine-game winning streak and they'll have the revenge factor on their side."

But a Cotton Bowl insider thinks the Irish will accept an Orange Bowl bid if they beat Tennessee.

"If they're No. 1, they can go anywhere they want to. And I think they want to go to the Orange Bowl," he said.

If the Irish beat the Volunteers, they will probably play Colorado no matter what happens in their final two games against Penn State and Southern Cal. But if Notre Dame loses, it will set off a mad scramble for top teams among the Orange, Sugar, Cotton, Fiesta and Citrus bowls.

If the nation is waiting on Notre Dame, it may wait longer than anticipated.

"I don't think there's any way this will be settled by Sunday," athletic director Dick Rosenthal said. "We haven't even sat down to discuss it yet."

Such discussions could be for the foolhardy, Rosenthal said.

"Every time you look up, there's another big surprise," he said. "How do you explain Tennessee-Florida or Florida-Auburn?"

"We're ranked No. 1 and we're an underdog against Tennessee, so you figure it out. Each week you make bowl predictions and each week you throw them away."

Three weeks before the official bids are announced, the bowl picture remains cloudy. One thing is clear, however — the outcome of Saturday's Notre Dame-Tennessee game in Knoxville will have a snowball effect on the rest of the major bowls.

Even if Notre Dame wins on Saturday, the Irish may decide to pass up an Orange Bowl rematch against Colorado.

The Orange would offer the biggest payout ($4.2 million per team) and probably the highest-ranked opponent. But Notre Dame might not want to give Colorado a chance to avenge its 21-6 loss last season. That defeat cost the Buffaloes the national championship.

If Tennessee beats Notre Dame, No. 5 Miami should get the Orange Bowl berth even though the Hurricanes lost to the Irish. The Orange Bowl traditionally matches the highest-ranked team available against the Big Eight champion.

A loss to Tennessee would probably leave Notre Dame with a lower ranking than Miami.

Under that scenario, Notre Dame would end up in the Cotton, Sugar, Citrus or maybe even the Fiesta. Which one would the Irish choose? It's difficult to tell right now because each bowl has its drawbacks as well as its selling points.

If the Irish go to the Orange Bowl, will Miami play in the Cotton Bowl? And where are Nebraska, Virginia and Florida State going to spend New Year's Day?

If Texas loses another game, the Southwest Conference representative in the Cotton will have at least two losses. The Sugar might mean an undesirable rematch with Tennessee, the Citrus payout may fall short of the other major bowls and the Fiesta may not be able to attract a Top-10 opponent.

For now, predicting pairings for the major bowls comes down to some educated guessing. So here goes:

Orange — Colorado vs. Notre Dame or Miami.

Cotton — Texas, Baylor or Texas A&M vs. Miami, Notre Dame, Nebraska, Virginia or a Big Ten team.

Rose — Washington vs. Iowa.

Sugar — Tennessee, Auburn or Mississippi vs. Notre Dame, Miami, Nebraska, Virginia or Big Ten team.

Fiesta — Virginia vs. Notre Dame, Penn State or Florida State.

Citrus — Georgia Tech vs. Florida State, Notre Dame, Nebraska, Penn State or Illinois-Michigan winner.

Morales looks forward to working as new attorney general for Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Dan Morales says his top priority as Texas' next attorney general will be resolving lawsuits over such major state issues as the way public schools are financed.

"I think that Texans are tired of having policy made in the courts," said Morales, a Democrat who beat Republican J.E. "Buster" Brown in Tuesday's election.

Morales made Texas history by becoming the first Hispanic elected to the attorney general's post and the second ever to win a statewide election.

The only Hispanic previously voted into statewide office in Texas was Supreme Court Justice Raul Gonzalez, elected in 1986 and again in 1988 after initially being appointed to the court.

Morales, 34, is a Harvard Law School graduate and state representative from San Antonio. Brown, 49, is a state senator from Lake Jackson and has two more years on his term.

With 95 percent of the precincts reporting, Morales had 1,861,817 votes, or 52.1 percent, to Brown's 1,607,220 or 45 percent. Libertarian candidate Ray Dittmar of Houston had 104,531, or 2.9 percent.

Morales, who will succeed Democratic incumbent Jim Mattox, said he was gratified by his victory. Mattox didn't run for re-election, instead making an unsuccessful try for the governorship.

"I'm so pleased that our state has now matured and developed politically to the point where Texas voters select their political leaders based upon qualifications, experience and records of accomplishment irrespective of race and irrespective of ethnicity," Morales said.

"I think that Judge Gonzalez showed that to be the case four years ago when he was first elected. I am simply following in the judge's footsteps. There will be others following behind me."

Morales received 86 percent of the Hispanic vote in the race, according to an exit poll conducted by the Southwest Voter Research Institute, Inc. The poll was conducted among 4,430 voters, including 2,430 Hispanics, in 50 voting places throughout Texas. Polling places were selected to cover 90 percent of Hispanic voters.

But Morales contended he had broad support and said having an Hispanic surname in Texas "probably is a wash" — helpful in some parts of the state but not in others.

In his fight to return public policy decision-making to the Legislature from the courts, Morales said he expected help from Ann Richards, who was elected governor Tuesday, and the legislative leadership.

"I look forward to a very productive and a very fruitful 1991 legislative session," he said.

Besides public school finance, Texas has been entangled in lawsuits in such areas as its prison system and mental health and mental retardation services.

As attorney general, his responsibilities will be far-reaching.

The office is involved in antitrust, consumer, environmental and public health lawsuits. The attorney general gives advisory opinions on legal matters, and administers the child support enforcement program.

District and county attorneys have the primary responsibility for criminal cases, but the attorney general can provide assistance at their request.

After a year in private practice in Houston, Morales worked as a Bexar County prosecutor from 1983 to 1985. Since becoming a lawmaker, he said he has provided free legal services to constituents. In the Legislature, he has headed the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee.

His legal background was attacked during the campaign by Brown, a lawyer and former Brazoria County prosecutor who challenged Morales to release a list of cases he has tried before juries.

Morales said he has tried such cases. Former Bexar County District Attorney Sam Millsap Jr. said Morales was one of his best prosecutors.

Continental parent shows third-quarter loss

By WENDY BENJAMINSON
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Higher fuel prices increased Continental Airlines Holdings Inc.'s third quarter costs and contributed to a $88.3 million loss.

The loss, announced Tuesday, amounted to $2.31 a share. In the same period last year, Continental lost $158 million, or $4.09 a share. The company had revenues of $1.5 billion in the quarter, compared to $1.7 billion in the same quarter last year.

"Our (third quarter) results mirror the industry-wide problems posed by unrestrained increases in the price of fuel," Continental chairman Hollis Harris said in a prepared statement.

Fuel costs, the company's largest expense, are $70 million higher per month now than before the Middle East crisis, Harris said.

Last week, Harris said the airline may have to sell some international routes and possibly furlough employees to cope. The airline's directors briefly considered a bankruptcy filing, but chose instead to sell assets.

Also Tuesday, the company said it had taken the Honolulu-Tokyo leg of its Houston-Tokyo route off a list of assets for sale, saying the hard-won route was too important to Houston.

"We decided against it because it is of great importance here in our hometown," Continental spokesman Art Kent said.

Continental released the earnings statement after the markets closed Tuesday afternoon. The airline holding company's stock closed up 12 1/2 cents at $2.75 a share on the American Stock Exchange.

For the first nine months of 1990, the company lost $97 million, $2.83 a share, on revenues of $4.9 billion. That compares to a loss of $522.8 million, $13.51 a share, on revenues of $5 billion in the same nine months of 1989.

The company, which was known as Texas Air Corp. until this summer, is the parent of Continental Airlines.

Texas Air was the parent of Continental and Eastern Airlines, which filed for bankruptcy protection in 1989 and has been in control of a government-appointed trustee since April 10.

Included in the holding company's nine months 1990 results is Eastern's $149.1 million loss on revenues of $673.1 million before April 10.

The company's nine months results last year included Eastern's loss of $569.7 million on revenues of $1 billion.

Continental Airlines lost $55.1 million on revenues of $1.4 billion during the third quarter this year. In last year's third quarter, the airline earned $43.5 million on revenues of $1.3 billion.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, Continental earned $62.9 million on revenues of $4 billion. That compares to net income of $59.1 million on revenues of $3.9 billion for the same nine months in 1989.

Jury rules lawyer must relinquish Ruby gun

DALLAS (AP) — A lawyer said he plans to appeal a jury's decision that effectively removed him as executor of Jack Ruby's estate.

The major asset of the estate is the .38-caliber Colt Cobra revolver the Dallas nightclub owner used to kill presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald.

A six-person jury on Tuesday ruled that Ruby's former attorney, Jules Mayer, grossly mismanaged the estate after Ruby died in 1967. Mayer continues to practice law at age 82.

Dallas County Probate Judge Robert E. Price must now decide how to distribute Ruby's assets. State law mandates that if he upholds the jury's decision, he must appoint a new executor. No hearing date was set.

Ruby's brother, Earl, filed the lawsuit, asking to be named executor of the estate. Ruby's heirs and Mayer have wrangled over the estate for 23 years.

And the fight may continue.

"He's got a long way to go, because I'm going to appeal the Mayer told The Dallas Morning News as he left court.

The gun Ruby used to kill Oswald in the Dallas County Jail two days after President Kennedy's assassination on Nov. 22, 1963, is stowed in a bank safe deposit box. Mayer has said it could bring $125,000 on the collectors' market. Ruby bought the revolver for $62.50 in a Dallas gun shop.

Mayer wanted proceeds from the gun's sale to pay off Ruby's debts. He said they include the $65,000 it has cost him to handle the estate, including the expense of fighting Earl Ruby's lawsuits.

Earl Ruby, of Boca Raton, Fla., who is also acting on behalf of his sister and a nephew, charges that Mayer is trying to profit from the estate. He wants the estate liquidated to pay off his brother's debts and "wipe the slate clean."

"I've got to talk to the heirs ... to see what they want to do," Earl Ruby said after the ruling. "It looks like we've got ourselves a gun 'cause we've got so many bills."

Ruby was convicted of murder in 1964 and sentenced to die in the electric chair. A Texas appeals court overturned the conviction in 1966, citing reasons that included failure to move the trial from Dallas. Ruby died at age 55 before a new trial could be held.

Judge says woman must have own boot camp

HOUSTON (AP) — The first woman sentenced to a military-style boot camp in Texas may also have to spend her three-month sentence in solitary confinement.

State officials may have to set up a personalized camp for the woman because no prison boot camps exist for women.

Patricia Manuel, 19, pleaded guilty to injury to a child and was sentenced to serve 90 days in a prison boot camp, which features rigorous exercises and work to provide young felons with a glimpse of prison life.

Ms. Manuel was accused of rubbing her 1-year-old son's face in a carpet to punish him for defecating on it. The boy suffered rug burns.

Manuel voluntarily surrendered Monday to the Gatesville prison unit, where she will undergo about two weeks of testing and evaluation.

Then, unless an appeals court decides otherwise, she is to be separated from other prisoners and placed in the boot camp.

State District Judge Joe Kegans, who sentenced Manuel, ruled in August that the state boot-camp law was unconstitutional because it limited the camp to men.

The Houston judge ordered prison officials to provide a camp for women.

On Monday, the state attorney general's office asked the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals to postpone imposing the sentence until it decides whether Ms. Kegans had the authority to send Manuel to a boot camp without hearing arguments from the state.

"Judge Kegans can declare a law unconstitutional, but she cannot legislate a whole new program," said Bill Zapalac, an assistant attorney general.

Prison officials said they still have no physical setup for Manuel, but they added that a program will be designed just for her if necessary to avoid being held in contempt of court.

"But it will be kind of rough on the old gal, being in there alone," commented prison director James A. "Andy" Collins.

About half of the 400 male boot camp beds in Texas are now filled, prison officials said.

Houston lawyer Tom Moran, who represented Manuel, said he is interested in how the prison system resolves the issue.

"At this point, it's very much wait and see," Moran said. "It's their move."
