Khrushchev Boasts Of 'Fantastic' Weapon

ROBERT J. KORENGOLD
United Press International
MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev said today that the Soviet Union has built up the greatest rocket striking force in the world and that a "fantastic" more formidable weapon was in the works.

Khrushchev said Russia now is far ahead of the United States and the Western powers in its armament forces by a third, 1,200,000 men—within next year or two.

He did not describe the new weapon but said he could announce that "the weapon we have today in the hatching stage is even more perfect, more formidable" than anything developed before.

"The weapon, which as they say is in the portfolio of our scientists and designers, is a fantastic weapon," he said. He said its power was so great as to be "unfathomable."

In Washington, the speech was viewed as an effort to stampede the West into accepting disarmament and a nuclear test ban on Russia's terms.

(Some observers also felt that the overall tone of Khrushchev's utterances took some of the luster off what Soviet propaganda has called "the Camp David spirit.")

Western diplomatic sources said in London that Khrushchev appears merely to be planning what the West has been doing for the past three years—converting from massive armies with conventional weapons to reliance on nuclear power.

(Military observers were curious about the claim of the fantastic weapon, but they could shed any light on it immediately. They said that both the United States and Russia have scientists with designs of weapons with "credible" power in their portfolios at all times.)

Khrushchev, speaking before the Supreme Soviet, already had boasted: "The Soviet army wields such means of warfare and such firepower as no other army has ever had."

Khrushchev said cutting conventional troop strength would leave a 2,400,000-man force equipped with nuclear weapons and rockets so powerful they can obliterate any enemy.

He said Russia was "several years" ahead of the United States in rocketry and would strive to maintain the lead. He added Russia already has sufficient atomic and hydrogen bombs but will continue to make them until there is a world-wide ban.

Khrushchev also outlined a new concept of warfare for the Soviet with the air force eventually abolished in favor of rockets, the navy built around a powerful submarine force and the army made up of smaller units armed with nuclear weapons.

But not all his speech was sabre-rattling and he insisted that international disputes should and could be settled by negotiation.

He said his talks with President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan had been "sincere and friendly" and "gave reason to expect that a spirit of realism, frankness and cooperation would prevail at the forthcoming summit talks," in Paris May 16.

Khrushchev said nuclear weapons would continue to be produced until the Western powers agree to a ban. In the meantime the rocket striking force is taking the place of the air force and the production of some bombers has been discontinued, he said.

Khrushchev set present strength of the Soviet armed forces at 3,623,000 men and said they could be slashed by 1,200,000 because of what he called Russia's growing rocket superiority.

He made the statements before a joint session of the Supreme Soviet, the Russian Parliament, meeting in its first session of 1960.

Khrushchev's speech, not advertised in advance, followed two other major developments:

1. The Soviet announced the abolition of the Ministry of Internal Affairs and the distribution of its powers among the 15 constituent republics of the U.S.S.R. Khrushchev called this a further example of government decentralization.

Orbital Bomb' May Be Soviets' Secret

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nuclear physicist Ralph E. Lapp said today that the Russians may be working on an "orbital H-bomb" which could be stationed in space and launched or recalled at will.

A recallable bomb in orbit and the earth would have tremendous impact upon the world as a psychological terror weapon, Lapp said.

Lapp, who worked in the U.S. atomic bomb project during World War II, also suggested that the Russians may have developed a long-range missile of great power and super accuracy capable of delivering a 100-megawatt warhead on targets continents away.

A 100-megawatt warhead would have the explosive violence of 100 million tons of TNT. The A-bomb which destroyed Hiroshima was a 20,000-ton warhead.

Lapp, now a writer on nuclear affairs, made these suggestions in commenting on a statement by Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev that Russia is working on a "fantastic weapon" of "incredible power."

Some scientists have discounted the likelihood of developing satellite bombs on grounds that it would be extremely difficult to pull them out of orbit and aim them effectively at a target on earth.

But a technical report published by the House Space Committee last year said such a bombing system is feasible. It made the point that a satellite bomb could be placed in orbit in times of peace and then hurled at an enemy by command signals from the ground whenever its masters wished.

Lapp agreed that such a bomb, recallable on demand, would require "highly sophisticated guidance." From a strictly military standpoint, he said, it might not be the best of all possible weapons.

But as a terror weapon, he said, an H-bomb circling the world at an altitude of some 300 miles would have a vast effect upon the minds and emotions of mankind—whether or not it was ever used.

"And," Lapp told United Press International, "Khrushchev is quite knowledgeable about the psychological impact of what he says and does."

The 100-megawatt missile warhead also would be an effective "terror weapon." A dozen dirty bombs of that size, Lapp said, would deposit enough radioactive fallout to "take out" all of the United States east of the Mississippi.

One 100-megawatt missile could destroy every home in New York City with its blast alone. A dozen—particularly if detonated at high altitude—might start conflagrations that would devastate half a continent.

"It would be truly a scorched-earth weapon," Lapp said.

Pampa Gets Light Thunder Showers

Light thunder showers caused some damage in Pampa last night and dumped .29 of an inch of rain on the city.

G. E. Winegart, 1250 S. Christy, said his double garage was blown down and "scattered all over the back yard." Winegart said he didn't think the wind was a "twister," but just a "hard straight wind out of the southwest." He said the wind hit about 9:45 p.m.

Winegart said he had just moved the garage into town from a lease and did not have it anchored down, but "it was a good, heavy building and had quite a bit of stuff in it."

A check with the Gray County airport, police and sheriff's departments revealed no other reports of wind damage. Wind at the airport hit a velocity of 56 mph at one time today.

The pilot of a Cessna 175, flying from El Paso flying service, was able to cut the normal 400-yard take-off run to 70 yards in the high wind.

Up to last night, Pampa had received .59 of an inch of moisture from a six-inch snow that covered the area on Jan. 5 and 6. Last night's showers brought the total for this month to .98.

Last month's total moisture was 5.5 inches registered in the rain gauge atop the Daily News building in 72 hours beginning Dec. 14. The three-day rain, unlike the 5-inch plus rain of last September, did no damage.

Laws Proposed To Fight Crime

By HELEN THOMAS
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice Department officials said today they were drafting legislation to enable the federal government to fight with greater strength against organized crime.

These officials viewed the penalties meted out in New York City Wednesday to 20 figures of the 1957 Apalachin, N.Y., gangland convention as the best the government could hope for with the limited weapons at hand.

The convention "delegates" were given prison sentences ranging from three to five years. In addition, 13 of them were fined $10,000 each.

The 20 men, described by Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman as having "defied law and order for years," were convicted on a charge of conspiring to obstruct justice by their refusal to tell about the Apalachin gathering. The maximum penalty is five years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

In sentencing the men Kaufman said all were "sophisticated, hardened, intelligent" criminals. Their probation reports, he said, "read like a tale of horrors."

William G. Hundley, chief of the Justice Department's organized crime and racketeering section, said several proposals were being considered to strengthen legal dealing with such elements. He did not disclose what they were, however.

At present, Hundley explained, the federal government's hands are tied in many cases because the "great bulk of criminal violations are not within the purview of the federal government." Murder and other felonies, he noted, are prosecuted by the states.

Hundley pointed out that racketeers with a "reputation" for violence frequently are sent to federal prisons only because of income tax evasion, as in the case of Al Capone, or perjury—not their more serious crimes.

To get at the kingpins of the underworld, Hundley said, the Justice Department must search for violations of the federal government's taxing powers or its interstate jurisdiction.

As a result, the department's racketeers have had to concentrate their fire on income tax evasion, narcotic law violations, labor racketeering, perjury and obstruction of justice—all federal offenses.

Piney Firing Touches Off French Crisis

PARIS (UPI) — The government of President Charles de Gaulle was faced today with its first political crisis over the firing of a missile from the French fleet in the English Channel.

The ostensibly "friendly" part of the firing was the firing of a missile from the French fleet in the English Channel. The ostensibly "friendly" part of the firing was the firing of a missile from the French fleet in the English Channel.

Witnesses Crowd Insurance Hearing; Recess Is Called

By PAT CONWAY
United Press International
AUSTIN (UPI) — The State Board of Insurance opened a public hearing today to see what can be done to quiet a storm of protest from throughout Texas over the new automobile insurance plan.

Basically, the plan provides for higher insurance premiums for drivers who have traffic violations on their record in the past three years. Drivers with no violations get a decreased rate.

Penn. J. Jackson, chairman of the board, said the insurance board would be willing to make changes in the plan to avoid inequities.

The issue is so tender that many people are predicting that it could become a major political issue during the 1960 statewide campaigns. Hazlewood warned if the board doesn't work out a more equitable plan, the Legislature will swiftly take care of it at the next regular session.

Many state officials have warned the plan will result in a much heavier court docket of traffic cases because drivers will fight to keep violations off their records.

One of the chief criticisms of the plan is that it is inequitable because traffic violations are not enforced to the same degree in all parts of the state.

Gov. Price Daniel, in Dallas this week, said this aspect of the plan concerned him, but voiced no general approval or disapproval of it. Marshal Fromby, a potential gubernatorial candidate, challenged Daniel to take a stand. Hazlewood has been leading the fight against the plan. He brought thousands of letters with him to Austin, and dumped them on the desks in the Senate chamber. He said all of them backed his stand and offered help in the fight to prevent the plan from being carried out or higher rates charged under it.

The suit attacking the plan was filed by six Austin and Houston attorneys for the Harris County Chapter of the Texas Assn. of Plaintiff's Attorneys. It lumped seven insurance companies with the board as defendants.

The suit, filed in 98th District Court, asks for a permanent injunction and contends the plan violates both the U.S. and Texas constitutions because it retroactively penalizes drivers for violations and accidents which happened as much as three years in the past.

It also charges the plan discriminates against drivers. Hazlewood charged that "no plan which specifically exempts trucks and taxicabs, together with their drivers, deserves to be called a safe driving insurance plan."

BULLETIN
AUSTIN (UPI) — More than a thousand witnesses jammed the State Highway Department hearing room today, forcing the State Board of Insurance to delay its public hearing on its new auto insurance plan.

State Sen. Grady Hazlewood led a parade of dozens of irate citizens, public officials and insurance company representatives before the board, which Wednesday found itself named defendant in a suit challenging the constitutionality of the plan.

"I want the public to know that I am for a sensible and realistic merit rating plan," Hazlewood, from Amarillo, said. But he termed the plan that went into effect Jan. 1 as "asinine" and "ridiculous."

The issue is so tender that many people are predicting that it could become a major political issue during the 1960 statewide campaigns. Hazlewood warned if the board doesn't work out a more equitable plan, the Legislature will swiftly take care of it at the next regular session.

Father Halts Transfusion

WACO (UPI) — W. T. Knight would rather have his son die than violate his religious beliefs.

Michael Knight, 12, lay in critical condition today needing little more than a blood transfusion to save his life.

The boy fell and cut his arm on a piece of glass Wednesday. It severed an artery just above his left wrist. His mother rushed him to a hospital.

Knight arrived at the hospital just as doctors repaired the severed artery and were about to give him a transfusion. He stopped them.

"Transfusions are just against my religious principles," Knight, a Jehovah's Witness, said.

Swastika Painting Activities Increase

By United Press International
Swastika painting penetrated even deeper into U.S. society today despite increasingly alarmed denunciations by civic, union and religious leaders.

As the newest college fad, it threatened to become as widespread as party raids. As a cult for juvenile energies, it caught on like rock 'n' roll music. As a symbol of bigotry, it thrived unabated.

But offenders were being caught and punished. An Ohio State University student was suspended. A student at La Crosse, Wis., State College and four other youths were ordered to court and a 13-year-old New York City boy was charged with juvenile delinquency.

National leaders, following President Eisenhower's lead, expressed concern over anti-Semitic acts—the desecrating of synagogues and harassing of Jews—and said it brought to mind the Germany of Hitler's era.

David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers Union, said in Pittsburgh Wednesday night that the neo-Nazi activity was "frightening."

He urged "the proper governmental authorities to leave nothing undone to bring the offenders to justice, and to take whatever steps are necessary to end the present anti-democratic threat before it becomes more serious."

In Chicago, where many Jewish temples have been daubed with swastikas, Jewish cultural clubs urged Mayor Richard J. Daley to appeal for brotherhood in a radio-television address. The mayor already had urged residents to report suspects of anti-Semitic acts to police.

Rabbi Jerome Kestenbaum, Nashville, Tenn., told police Wednesday night an anonymous phone caller threatened to bomb a synagogue if war correspondent William L. Shirer, who wrote of Jews' persecution in a history of Germany, were permitted to speak. Shirer spoke but the threat did not materialize.

In Arlington, Va., a veterans of foreign wars post Wednesday night called for the stripping of rank from a naval reserve officer, George L. Rockwell, 41, a self-styled Nazi.

Grand Jury Won't Indict Lynch Party

BILOXI, Miss. (UPI) — A federal grand jury today refused to indict anyone in the lynching of Negro Mack Charles Parker.

The grand jury reported at 10:40 a.m. to Judge Sidney Mize that it had "considered all evidence and was unable to arrive at any true bill."

The decision apparently means the slayers of the young Negro will escape punishment and remain anonymous. State action in the case was virtually ruled out two months ago when a Pearl River County grand jury did not return any indictments in the case.

The FBI had listed 25 men as "known and suspected participants" in the abduction of the 23-year-old Negro truck driver last April from the Poplarville jail, where he was held for trial on charges of raping a Mississippi white woman.

He was beaten and shot and his body was thrown into the Pearl River.

Peru Earthquake Kills 38 People

AREQUIPA, Peru (UPI) — A shattering earthquake—the worst disaster in the history of this second largest city of Peru—killed at least 38 persons Wednesday and injured more than 200, it was reported today.

After shocks continued through the night and thousands of persons slept in the open for fear that another major quake might shake down their homes.

President Manuel Prado, U.S. Ambassador Theodore Acheson and other American and Peruvian officials were flying here today to assess the extent of damage.

An emergency airlift brought doctors, nurses, food and essential medicines for quake victims. Help also was on the way from Bolivia.

Local authorities proclaimed a state of emergency in Arequipa and surrounding areas shortly after the first shock rocked the city at 10:40 a.m., destroying or damaging an estimated 80 per cent of its homes.

The tangle wrecked the Roman Catholic church at Santo Domingo, the Goyeneche Hospital, the Gibson bank and the public works building. Many other public buildings were destroyed or damaged.

The Tiahaya district was reported "completely destroyed."

The city was without electric light or power Wednesday night.

Burglars 'Peel' Turf Club Safe

Burglars "peeled" the safe in the Turf Club, 117 W. Foster sometime between 12 p.m. and 3:30 a.m. today for a haul of nearly $500.

The burglary was reported to police at 3:31 this morning by J. S. Clepper, janitor at the club.

The thieves gained entry into the building by going into an alley, using a ladder they found, and breaking open a window in the alleyway between two buildings. They "peeled" the metal front of the safe, enabling them to unlock it.

Clyde Medkief, owner of the club, said the burglars took $485.50 in bills and change, but left an additional $50 in checks.

Police Lieutenant D. L. Day and Chief Jim Conner investigated the burglary, and Conner said he believes "there may have been two men on the job."

If it comes from a hardware store we have it, Lewis told.

Hotel Directors Meeting Slated

The Board of Directors of the Pampa Hotel Company will meet this afternoon at 4:30 p.m. at Coronado Inn, E. O. Wedgeworth Chamber of Commerce Manager said today. The purpose of the meeting is to put final touches on plans for the hotel opening Jan. 18-19. At 4:30 p.m., guides and ushers will meet with the directors and E. L. Henderson, chairman of the Guides and Ushers committee.

Resigns Without Fanfare

By WILLIAM J. EATON
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — John L. Lewis, labor's living legend, bows out today as president of the United Mine Workers.

The "white-haired warrior," who fought the miners' battles for 40 years and led an army of mass-production workers into industrial union, planned to resign without fanfare.

He arranged to step down at a closed session of the union's 30-man executive board about a month in advance of his 80th birthday on Feb. 12.

Thomas Kennedy, UMW vice president, automatically succeeds to Lewis' job. He is 72.

The union was expected to disclose a well-kept secret—the name of Kennedy's successor as vice president—after the meeting is over late this afternoon.

The man who is elevated to one of the top three UMW offices is sure to be regarded as the crown prince and eventual president of the UMW.

Lewis' departure marked the end of an era for the UMW. Lewis—a bull of a man who used words as his weapons—yields to the mild-mannered, soft-spoken Kennedy.

Lewis Bows Out

As a Shakespearean scholar, Lewis might dwell on "Parting from Romeo and Juliet: 'Parting is such sweet sorrow...'"

Nostalgia was bound to be the keynote of a banquet tonight in honor of Lewis and Kennedy at one of Washington's plushiest hotels.

For Lewis, it was sure to be another day full of memories. Sit-down strikes in the turbulent '30's; the split within the AFL that led to creation of the CIO and took 20 years to heal; mountainous fines for contempt of federal court back-to-work orders.

Finch's Friend Still In Love With Doctor

By JACK V. FOX
United Press International

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Carole Tregoff is still in love with Dr. Bernard Finch despite the ordeal of their trial for murder.

Don Brinkgold, attorney for the ahead mistress, said Tuesday it was "obvious" the 23-year-old divorcee still loved the surgeon accused of killing his wife to break up one-third of a triangle.

Miss Tregoff was to be brought to the case directly for the first time today.

Waiting to testify were the proprietors of two apartments in nearby Monterey Park, where Finch set up Miss Tregoff as a mistress and another in Las Vegas, Nev., which the doctor rented for his sweetheart and where he was found the day after his wife's killing.

Defense attorney Grant Cooper tried to give the murder trial the aspect of a "quadrangle" Tuesday with evidence that Mrs. Barbara Jean Finch, 33, spent an evening at the Los Angeles West Side Tennis Club with another woman the evening of her death last July 15.

The man was identified as Herbert Adair, an investigator in the office of divorce lawyer Joseph Fornio who was representing Mrs. Finch in the suit against her husband, Cooper said Tuesday. He intended to call Adair as a witness.

Brinkgold, one of the attorneys from ace lawyer Jerry Gieseler's stable, is the man assigned to stay with Miss Tregoff constantly through the trial.

He was asked about reports that the former model and the doctor are affectionate during their lunches together and whether they are still in love.

"I think it is obvious," he said. "Obvious, yes or no?" he was asked.

"Yes," he said.

LSU Official To Be Quizzed In Murder

By GERALD MOSES
United Press International

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Deputies indicated today they will resume questioning a high-ranking Louisiana State University official about the clubbing-death of an attractive biology professor on a rural river road.

Sheriff Bryan Clemmons left the case to his deputies to undergo minor surgery early today after eight hours of questioning the official. Deputies said they had questioned "several" faculty members but were concentrating on one.

The body of Dr. Margaret Rossmund McMillan, 39, a music-loving biologist who was working on a space project, was found in a pool of blood Sunday beside her foreign car. The car was parked on a lonely road beside the Mississippi River outside Baton Rouge.

Dr. McMillan, who was not married, had apparently "met a male friend" on the road Saturday night, Clemmons said. He indicated he thought that friend caved in the back of her head.

The coroner's report said the killer had an "unusual personality," reflected by the brutality of the blows. She had not been molested and the only sign of a struggle was a broken necklace with pearls scattered over the road. She clutched a pack of cigarettes in one hand and matches in the other.

Dr. McMillan, a native of Evanston, Ill., was working on a research grant project concerning the use of algae for oxygen regeneration in space ships. She was a professor at the Louisiana State branch school in New Orleans.

Borough Chief Job In Danger

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tears gathered in the eyes of Hulan E. Jack as he stood with hands clasped in front of him before a judge he might well have sat next to at a city banquet a week earlier.

But his "not guilty" was stated in a clear, challenging voice when the charges were read of conspiracy to obstruct justice and three counts of gift-taking from a real estate operator doing business with the city.

Jack, 51, had traveled a hard road from his birthplace in the West Indies to the $25,000-a-year job of borough president at Manhattan, the highest elective office a Negro has attained in this nation.

Now, his job was in jeopardy and his trial on the charges could end in disgrace. He also had become a political hot potato.

Jack, a staunch supporter of Tammany Hall, the New York County Democratic organization, has become an embarrassment to the city Democratic administration and a probable target for the Republican state administration.

A grand jury indicted him Wednesday on charges of violating the city charter three times in accepting a $5,500 remodeling job on his Harlem apartment from Sidney J. Ungar, a real estate operator and lawyer.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The big capital gains in 1959 are most likely to come from issues which are now undervalued, or from companies which are turning the corner, predicts Gersen of Wall Street.

The firm indicates that securities now selling at 30, 40 and 50 times their earnings will not likely raise much dust in the coming year.

Trendex notes that most of the high-grade stocks that have been quite strong in the past three months are now suspect. "There is much less long-side risk in depressed low-priced stocks and secondary stocks. Many such issues drifted in 1959 down to unrealistic low prices."

Bache & Co. favors accumulation of the following issues in short-term trading accounts: General Telephone, General Electric, Western Union, Checker Motors and National Distillers.

Standard & Poor's Corp. lists the following stocks for safety and income: American Telephone, Bank of America, Boston Edison, General Foods, National Biscuit, Sears, Roebuck, Standard Brands, Borg-Warner, Sherwin-Williams and Standard Oil (Indiana), among others.

Changes Noted In Farm Credit Act

The Farm Credit Act of 1959 provides several changes which affect the Pampa National Farm Loan Association, J. E. Gunn, secretary-treasurer, said today.

Three of the changes in the association, serving Hemphill Gray and Roberts counties are:

The name has been changed to the Federal Land Bank Association. J. E. Gunn will be known as the manager of the association under the new act.

Suma loaned to purchase capital stock in the Federal Land Bank Association can be over and above the present loan limit of 65 percent of the normal agricultural value of the farm or ranch.

Influenza Bug Hits Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A half-million Los Angeles residents have been stricken in an epidemic of what authorities believe is Asian influenza.

The disease which broke out on a large scale early this week was declared of epidemic proportions Wednesday by acting city health officer Ralph Sachs. He said it would hit its peak in about a week.

Dr. Malcolm Merrill, state health officer, said the disease was identified as Asian influenza in patients from San Diego and nearby counties. He said the virus invading Los Angeles was believed to be the same.

The infection causes high temperatures, sore throats, chest and stomach pains—but so far has not been reported to be fatal. It usually runs its course in two to five days.

STREET MARKING — The City of McLean is doing something about its named, but unidentified streets.

Under the direction of Mayor John Haynes, left, and City Manager Don Mize, right, a program of street marking began the first of the year with the erection of 35 signs and standards. That many more are expected to be erected in February. The entire job will require several hundred signs and the program will be continued until all streets are marked.

May Leave Ice Station

FAIRBANKS (UPI) — The Air Force today was seriously considering abandoning scientific ice station Charlie in the Arctic Ocean due to a new fissure in the ice, 500 feet from the camp occupied by 16 men.

Brig. Gen. Gordon H. Austin, commander of the 11th Air Division at Ladd Air Force Base here, and Capt. James F. Smith, an expert on ice island breakups, were to inspect the ice today and with Capt. Arthur Schroeder, head of the operation on Charlie, make the decision on whether to withdraw all men as soon as possible.

The ice station began disintegrating a week ago "because of tension caused by internal pressure and temperatures" and has been reduced in size to a mile by a mile and a quarter. It was originally 2 1/2 miles by five miles in size.

The "orderly withdrawal" of men and scientific equipment was begun last week but has been hampered in recent days by bitter cold here ranging as low as 50 degrees below zero and poor visibility.

The shell of mollusks, made of carbonate of lime, hardens from a liquid, which the animal secretes from its body.

Government Controls 70 Per Cent Of Cotton Futures

By KYLE THOMPSON United Press International

HOUSTON (UPI) — Lamar C. Johnson Jr., head of the world's largest cotton firm, said today government's role in the cotton market has grown so big it "spurs market operations and drying up" the cotton futures.

Johnson, who has been in the cotton business for 30 years, said the government's role in the cotton market has grown so big it "spurs market operations and drying up" the cotton futures.

Heiress Held Above Prisoner

PARIS (UPI) — American heiress Gamble Benedict still was a virtual prisoner today in a Paris apartment — but a prisoner of love.

A Romanian lawyer in blue checkered coat was at the sole link between the heiress and the snow-covered outside world of Paris. It looked like long siege.

Distinguished-looking, silver-haired lawyer Jean Coscesco was kept busy acting as go-between for the heiress, 18, and her Romanian friend Andrei Porumbanu, 35, and the outside world.

Gamble and Andrei had moved from the moment they fled New York in December aboard a Norwegian freighter, but now they were staying put to avoid family friends and newsmen.

Coscesco was the busy one, shuttling in and out of the apartment, bringing in newspapers, shooting across the city on mysterious taxi errands and making statements — brief ones — to newsmen.

He said without elaborating further that "a settlement may be arranged." Sometimes he added, "We shall have to see what happens." Sometimes he gave out only with a wide, Slavic smile.

Eating Habits Developed At Age Six May Chart Course Of Adult Health

Most modern doctors are agreed that the foundation for health is laid in the first six years of our lives, and modern nutritionists are convinced that the eating habits we have developed by the age of six may chart the course of adult health.

The Texas Beef Council feels that American mothers, aware of our national abundance of foods, and aware of the possibilities of superb health, are probably most conscious of the child who does not want to eat. We are not satisfied that our children are "not sick;" we want them to be definitely "well."

The thin child who does not have sufficient appetite to support a growing body is a particular worry to a mother who can provide her child with ample food to keep him racing to climb trees with his playmates, and for this reason many American mothers are particularly grateful for the ever-present hamburger.

The child who wants a hamburger three times a day may not gain weight as rapidly as his playmates, the Beef Council has found, but in his repetitious demand for hamburger, he is getting nearly all the food value he must have for growth. Beef is tickling only in carbohydrates (starch and sugar) and in ascorbic acid (Vitamin C). The bread or bun on his hamburger provides the carbohydrates he needs, and, for the child who absolutely refuses orange juice, this necessary vitamin can be given in tablet form.

However, worrisome the small appetite may be to a mother who is trying to develop healthy bodies and appetites for varied, balanced meals, the Texas Beef Council reminds mothers that many severe feeding problems are produced by too much urging to eat more.

A thin child should, of course, have regular medical check-ups. Doctors find that thinness, failure to gain weight, and fatigue come more often from emotional troubles than from physical causes. However, some children seem to inherit their parent's thinness. These children—often relatively low-calorie foods such as meat, vegetables and fruit.

Some children, despite their aversion to rich foods, will take additional butter on vegetables and a mixture of milk and cream which provides additional weight-producing calories, but these changes must be tried very gradually. Too-rich foods can easily cause a further reduction of a delicate appetite.

Trying to entice a child with foods he doesn't want, and making him aware that his lack of appetite is a problem, can create even bigger problems.

Mothers of thin children can be comforted by the fact that these youngsters usually grow to slender adulthood, and a life free from the calorie-counting which plagues much of the American population. And the mother of a child whose appetite "needle" is stuck on hamburger can comfort herself that he may be getting fat—but he is getting the protein necessary for growth.

TIME TO DECORATE HAM

This is the time of year that a whole ham just needs that special glaze and decorative scoring before being brought to the dinner table. Plain fruit glazes, brown sugar or even a honey glaze are appropriate. Use your imagination when scoring a ham and stuffing it with cloves. Garnish the platter on which the ham is placed but remember not to over-garnish, making it difficult for the carver.

GLAZED HAM BALLS — Plump ham balls glistening with a brown sugar glaze are a tempting sight indeed and they taste every bit as good as they look. One recipe makes sixteen juicy balls so there will be plenty for all. Evaporated milk takes a good part of the credit for their succulence and a little onion and thyme spark the good ham flavor.

Glazed Ham Perks Up Winter Day Menus

These glazed ham balls will be a great satisfaction to your family, your budget and you. Your family will be delighted with their juice flavorfulness, the budget will appreciate their economy in the slightly lean days that follow the holidays and you'll be assured that they add lots nutrition-wise to a winter menu.

Both ground ham and ground pork are used in these meat balls that are baked in muffin pans. Evaporated milk keeps them light and moist as well as adding a lot to the nutritive value mentioned before. For seasoning there's instant minced onion and just a dash of thyme as well as salt and pepper. Then, too, there's the sweet-sour flavor of the sugar, vinegar and mustard glaze to further brighten up the flavor.

The recipe makes sixteen good sized balls, but everyone is certain to want at least two so it would be best to count on about eight servings in all.

GLAZED HAM BALLS
1 pound ground ham
1 pound ground fresh pork
2-3 cups cracker crumbs
1 egg
1-2 cups evaporated milk (1 full can)
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
Dash of thyme
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
Brown Sugar Glaze
Place all ingredients in a medium size mixing bowl and mix well. Divide mixture into 16 portions and shape into balls. Place in large greased muffin pans. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 20 minutes. Meanwhile prepare Brown Sugar Glaze according to direction below. Remove ham balls from oven and spoon a scant teaspoon of glaze over each one. Return to oven and

SAUSAGE UNIQUE
To prepare a quick luncheon or light supper, plan on pork sausage links. They'll be a lifesaver during the Christmas rush. Arrange cooked pork sausage links and asparagus spears on toast. Cover with a cheese sauce. A fruit salad, coffee and dessert complete this easy yet nutritious meal.

All the money in the world can't take the place of careful selection in making up a wardrobe. It's possible to be beautiful on a budget, frugal with a fortune.

Exotic Places Caught In Short Rib Flavor

Beef Short Ribs on an Oriental Holiday describes a dish which captures the imagination and pleases the appetite. The delightful mingling of flavors from spices simmered with the meat hints of far away places. Pluffy rice, mushrooms and cooked celery pieces which are tender yet retain a bit of crunchiness make a perfect accompaniment.

The less tender cuts of meat such as beef short ribs provide eating adventures in low cost fare. The secret of success is in a slow moist-heat type of cooking. The moisture may be in the form of a spicy barbecue sauce or a small amount of water with herbs or mild seasonings added. Short ribs braised in this fashion will be fork tender and delicious.

Since beef short ribs contain sections of the rib bone, it is best when shopping to plan on a pound of meat per serving. Fresh meat should be stored in the refrigerator in the transparent wrap or covered loosely. Peak quality is assured if the beef short ribs are prepared and served within two or three days.

CATTLE FOR KHRUSH

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three gift cattle for Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev left here Wednesday by an Air Force plane for Moscow.

SMALL CAR, SMALL REVENUE — TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The popularity of small foreign and domestic automobiles is costing the state of Florida money.

Mrs. Ina Thompson, state motor vehicle commissioner, said Wednesday that although her office sold a record number of license tags last year, revenue from that source did not keep pace with the number of cars. She said the small cars carry $8 and $10 license tags compared to $20 for larger models.

India's ruling Congress Party in its annual convention this week with Prime Minister Jawahar Nehru under criticism for his tardy recognition of the communist danger from without, the party facing the threat of being defeated by the Reds.

There was, however, no danger to Nehru's party or national leadership.

When his opposition agrees that Nehru is around, there is no effective opposition.

Even though his reaction to the Chinese menace had been only a general belief, it was a critical and this 65th party convention the party's founding in was one of its most critical: industrial and agricultural development had not kept pace with population.

The problem of Red Chinese aggression remained unsolved, and many areas, the Congress Party had lost prestige.

A land where millions hover the verge of starvation, a full of more important than a local concept.

High on the convention agenda would be a reorganization plan to eliminate charges that some of leadership had grown fat and kept in the face of business want.

The question of Red Chinese aggression against India's borders just an added starter to other range problems with which Nehru and his leadership must in the coming year.

In Feb. 1, an election will be in the state of Kerala.

In 1957, it became the first Indian state to elect a Communist government. It lies at India's southern tip, far removed from Communist threat to the south. Literacy is high and income low among its more than 13 million people who blamed the Congress Party for their hardships.

Last July, the federal government ousted Kerala's Red regime after a series of crippling strikes and unruly demonstrations.

United Press International Correspondent B. Tiwari reported in New Delhi that three months ago, no one would have given the Reds a chance to repeat in Kerala.

Now even Congress Party workers refuse to predict the outcome. The Communists are on a door-to-door campaign and have managed to overcome much of the stigma brought on by the Red aggression by proclaiming their support of Nehru's rule.

They promise "equal opportunity for all" and a workers' union.

The opposition slogan that Communism is a menace is met by an Indian equivalent of: "So what's new?"

Ten years ago Nehru and his lieutenants realized that India's development toward the democracy depended upon the government's ability to develop an economic program to feed the population. But, despite massive efforts, India's greatest product still is people and still more people.

New York Designers Create Top Interest

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—New York fashion designers usher in the 1960's with the top-heavy look. The mid-section is skinnier and elongated, a woman gets a choice of narrow or full skirts but seventh avenue manufacturers still the Paris hobbles of last season, hemlines remain the same as last spring, shoulders remain rounded, but sleeves never have been bigger or breezier.

Sleeves are capped, kimonoed, cut, waistline deep, dolmaned, fluted, flared and flared. And many of them on suits and coats are chopped off at the elbow and above.

The wide, airy sleeve treatments so dominate the New York collections being shown this week to some 350 visiting reporters that Jane Arndt, showroom director for Lord's Sportswear, compared this bit of doggerel:

"Last season, my collars concerned me;
"Before that, I sagged in the sack;
"Between these, I floated winged panels
"With streamers from both side and back.
"Now, these things are no longer vital,
"It's almost too much to believe
"That all of the chic that I constantly seek
"Now depends on the size of my sleeve."

Helping to create the top-heavy look also are blouse effects in suits, dresses and costumes.

The New York couture group, with 55 designer members and auxiliary groups, sponsors the semi-annual shows. The group's "watch for" roundup suggested the woman shopper watch for these other major trends for spring:

A tendency to longer jackets in suits, although there still will be plenty of latitude in choice. Some suit jackets come well below the hipbone for a tunic effect. An increase in the number of belted and collarless suits and continued popularity for the semi-fitted suit jacket.

In coats, the cape back with flat front is a new silhouette; fitted, semi-fitted and belted coats continue, and there are many of the "double-breasted" coachman types.

In dresses, slim silhouettes dominate for daytime, but there is a resurgence of the full-cut dirndl of another day.

The coat dress as a favorite spring costume; runner-up, the full length coat and dress of matching silk or silk and wool.

Double skirts with the tunic almost as narrow as the underlay; oriental over-skirts slashed at the sides; skirts box, knife and accordion-pleated.

Drastically low-cut strapless evening dresses dominate, and these are sleeveless daytime and sports dresses throughout the collections. The slender evening dress and the full-skirted, short formal share honors for dressy occasions.

In fabrics, chiffon runs throughout the collections and designers now talk in terms of yardage in a skirt; one manufacturer showed an afternoon chiffon using yards of material. Mesh and knit-like textures are important; silk prints abound in dresses and costumes.

Grey looms large as a spring basic shade; the various tones of beige to bone are popular; strong violet is a favorite with many designers; and white is used for coats and suits as well as dresses.

Cranberry Crop Now Naps Peacefully Under Snow Blanket Until Next Spring

Right now, the vines that will produce next year's cranberry crop are sleeping peacefully under a protective blanket of ice and snow. Even the happy shouts of children skating overhead do not disturb their slumber.

It's all part of the intriguing cranberry picture, made complete by January means brightened by delicious cranberry products.

Water and ice are important aspects of cranberry production. Beds of cranberry production are surrounded with water-filled moats. If freezing temperatures threaten during harvest, the fields are flooded in the evening and drained the next morning so harvest can continue. Bogs are left completely flooded during winter.

Swallows and bees also are essential. After a few days of springtime sun, the bogs are drained and the sleepy vines become a vibrant green. They push out runners of the new season's growth. Then the swallows move in to destroy insect pests.

At the proper time, beehives are brought to the edge of the bogs. They aid pollination to assure another good crop of the bright, tangy berries.

That's where we are now in the cranberry cycle. The water, swallows and bees were effective last year. The crop was record - large, according to Agricultural Marketing Service estimates. Many of these were processed for year-around eating pleasure.

As vegetable, dessert, salad, appetizer, beverage, relish, garnish, or as an accent in main dishes, the jointly bled cranberry sauce, whole or jellied, and cranberry fruit drink can enliven all meals of the day.

For instance, you may wish to try Cranberry - Sausage Pancakes. This is hearty fare for blustery January mornings. It also is an easily prepared supper entrée. Allow two pancakes for each serving. As soon as they are beautifully browned on both sides, place one pancake on serving plate and spread with jellied or whole cranberry sauce. Then add two or three cooked - to - perfection high sausages and top with the second pancake. Perch a square of butter atop the "sandwich" and serve immediately.

"Happy Birthday," was sung as the honoree blew out seven candles and made a wish. Cake was served with ice cream and cokes.

RUTH MILLETT

The reason why most of us so rarely keep the New Year's resolutions we make is that we make too many good resolutions. We promise more than we can deliver.

So if you really want 1960 to be a better, happier more enjoyable year than 1959 why not try making just one resolution for the New Year and sticking by it?

What will that one resolution be? To decide, think long and carefully over the year gone by. What did it lack?

Where did you fall down most often in being the kind of person you would like to be, in accomplishing the things you consider important, in living harmoniously with others?

Was your biggest mistake in taking on more than you could do calmly and completely? If so, resolve to cut your obligations to the point where you know you can finish what you set out to do.

Do you feel that the past year was wasted because you had no goal and frittered your time and energy away? If so, decide what you want most to accomplish in 1960 and make a strong resolve to get going on it immediately.

Was the biggest frustration of the year the inability to get along with someone in your own family or a business associate or an in-law?

If it was, give a lot of thought to the relationship. Once you have figured out how you can change your own attitude and reactions, set about doing it. It's a cinch you are never going to be able to change the other person.

One carefully thought-out resolution is far better than a long list of resolutions you'll forget before the year has barely begun.

A strident voice robs you of charm. No matter how clever your conversation, if your choice is grating, no one will stay around long enough to hear what you say. Learn to speak softly and effortlessly with anyone who crosses your path. It's a sure sign of charm and poise.

The housewife who greets her husband with a head full of curries and a long tale of woe is looking for trouble. Far better, for the sake of a happy marriage, to present a pretty face, a quiet house and children who are bathed, fed and ready for bed. Dad comes home (left) to a tidy house and children all set for a brief playtime. He has a glass of tomato juice and relaxes (center) in the living-room while mother puts the finishing touches on dinner and small sister helps herself to a single piece of candy. The children are off to bed and mother and dad sit down to dinner (right) at a nicely-set table. Candles shed a soft light and add a little glamor to a simple meal. A silver bonbon dish filled with assorted candy also helps to dress up the table. Dinner becomes a pleasant time for both husband and wife.

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I went with this son, Billy, beats him to it. man for three years and it was the real thing, but we had a big fight and before he cooled off he jumped into a marriage which he regretted right away.

I am still single but I have no time for him because he is a married man now, and has been for 6 years.

Every time his wife goes to a hospital to have another baby he calls me at work and sends me telegrams begging me to see him. He says he still loves me. To tell you the truth, I still have a soft spot in my heart for him. I know I shouldn't see him, but how can I get him out of my heart before I weaken?

DEAR STILL: There is nothing you can do about a "soft spot in your heart." Just make sure it doesn't spread to your head. Try to get interested in someone else. Nothing kills an old romance quicker than a new one.

DEAR ABBY: I have this to say to the mother of the retarded child who wrote that her mother-in-law mistreated the boy.

I am the father of a 7-year-old retarded child. I have been working for two years, striving to get instruction and recreation for those retarded children. I hope I can continue to work for this cause for the rest of my life.

As for the husband, I'd put him out just as fast as I'd put his mother out. Since he has permitted this to happen, he has ceased to be a man, let alone a father. I pray this grandmother will right her ways, and that the father (?) becomes a man before his retarded son.

South should really have opened with a two bid but chose to open one club only. North might well have passed but decided to respond one spade whereupon after a fast and furious series of bids South jumped to seven clubs.

His reason for the grand slam bid was that East had doubled four spades so that North probably was not very strong in spades and therefore would have more elsewhere.

West opened the four of spades and after one look at the dummy South wished that he had been considerably more modest in his bidding. Then he saw a ray of hope and with everything breaking just right proceeded to wrap up his contract.

He took his ace of spades, cashed the ace and king of hearts, discarding a diamond from dummy and ruffed a third heart. He came back to his hand with the ace of diamonds, ruffed his last heart, led back to the king of diamonds and ruffed his last diamond.

East and West had to follow all this time and now all South had to do was to lead dummy's first trump, finesse his queen and drop the king and jack under his ace. A lot of luck but he did give the cards a chance.

Rocket Fuel Plant Put Out Of Action

MARSHALL, Tex. (UPI)—The Army confirmed today that an explosion at its Longhorn reported the ground "rocked violently."

The blast took place in a building where components of the solid fuel were being mixed by remote control while it is still in the semi-liquid stage.

The plant, operated for the government by Thiokol Chemical Corp., turns out solid propellant rocket motors for the Army's Nike-Hercules surface-to-air missiles and for the Air Force's air-

A team of Army investigators is trying to determine the cause of the explosion.

A spokesman called the crippled mixing unit the "life-blood" of the rocket production operation and said operations "won't be resumed until the early part of April at least."

LT Col. John E. Harrison, officer in charge, said some rocket motors were still in the "curing" stage and would be shipped out under normal production sched-

Driver Hits Child, Didn't Know It

DALLAS (UPI)—The driver said he didn't know his truck struck and killed Deborah Sue Coker, 8, Wednesday night as she sat on her bicycle at a curb.

A witness gave police the license number of the truck en route to Odessa, and state police stopped the driver on the highway.

There has been no decision about the 1,500 person work force. Workers are being told to "come in" or "stay at home" on a day-to-day basis, a spokesman said.

Gloves Semifinals Set; 11 TKOs, 2 KOs Scored

By RED GRIGGS
Daily News Sports Editor

Open fights and 11 high division bouts, along with two battles, are scheduled in the Pampa District Golden Gloves tournament. Action gets away at 7:30 p.m. at Pampa at Boys Club.

Two of the open bouts are Lucky Dunham, 135, of vs. R. C. Welby of Hereford, and Garcia, 112, Dumas vs. Ambro Martinez of Pampa.

One of the hardest punches in tournament will be making first appearance tonight in high school division. They are Rexroat and James Snider of Pampa, and Johnny Welby and Robert Welby of Hereford.

In the 147-pound division, Snider will go against George Mulligan of Borger and Johnny Welby will take on Eddie Martinez of Amarillo. In the 160-pound weight, Rexroat will meet Larry Lopez of Hereford in a rematch of an earlier fight won by Rexroat, and Robert Welby will clash with Rule Perry of Hereford.

These fights, as well as most of those on tonight's card, will be semi-finals.

Two highly-rated bouts are set in the 135-division, which produced much of last night's best action. Ronnie Morgan of Pampa will meet Albert Moline of Amarillo and Donnie Leslie of Hereford will fight

Corky Morse of Pampa.

Another good high school fight should be the 122-pound semifinal between Trent Olsen of Pampa and Joe Villa of Borger. Both Olsen and Villa scored first round technical knockouts Wednesday night.

Olsen and Villa did not board the honors last night, by any means. The marathon 33-fight opening card was shortened considerably by 11 TKOs and two knockouts. One knockout and eight TKOs occurred in the first round.

Ronnie Morgan of Pampa led off the knockout parade by stopping Freddie Rodriguez of Hereford, in the second fight of the night, with a series of quick left-right combinations. Time of the knockout was 20 seconds of the second round.

Then, in one of the greatest displays of small-try punching power ever seen here, seven of the 18 pee fights were ended by TKOs, six of them in the first round. Scoring technical knockouts were Gary Watson, 55, of Pampa; Jimmie Watson, 70, of Pampa; Jerry Goodwin, 70, of Pampa; Andrew Rodriguez, 75, of Hereford; Ronald Dunn, 85, of Pampa; Eddie Davis, 95, of Dumas; and Roy Ward, 95, of Pampa.

Olsen, Pampa's hard-hitting 112-pounder, continued the trend into the high school matches, scoring a TKO over Lee Johnson of Dumas in 47 seconds of the first round.

Three straight TKOs then followed in succession, as Villa, 112, of Borger stopped Eugene Marak of Pampa in 1:27 of the first round; Billy Matthews, 112, Pampa was declared the winner over Charley Easley of Borger after 46 seconds of the first round; and Gary Smith, 126, Lefors TKO'd John Smith of Borger in 1:30 of the third round.

There was then one fight which went the distance — but it was one of the best of the night. James Rouse, 112, of Borger almost upset team mate, Charles Moore, as he landed the most punches. However, Moore landed the harder punches and copped the decision.

Jim Reaves of Perryton then scored the last and most solid knockout of the night, stunning Amelio Rivera of Pampa with a hard looping right, then finishing him off with a similar punch, in 1:34 of the first round. Rivera was out for at least 30 seconds.

The last two fights of the night were lightweight quarterfinals, and three of the contestants were fighters who had already won first round bouts earlier.

The best crowd-pleaser of the night was between Gene Shipman of Lefors, who had already fought and was obviously tired, and Albert Moline of Amarillo, who was fighting for the first time. Shipman made a game effort, slugging it out with Moline for all three rounds. However, he was no match for the rested Amarillo boxer, who took the decision.

Shipman's first fight, in which he defeated Eugene Young of Borger, had also been a crowd-pleaser. Shipman kept Young against the ropes for almost all three rounds, pounding him with punches to the face and body.

Two very tired youngsters, Morse of Pampa and Glenn Nelson of Hereford met in the final bout of the night, and Morse punched his way to a decision. Earlier, Morse had decided Joe Jeanway of Borger, after staggering him a couple of times with hard right hands, and Nelson had beaten Charlie Barber of Borger.

In the night's other lightweight bout, division favorite Donnie Leslie of Hereford defeated Doc Wilkerson of Borger. Leslie had Wilkerson on the ropes a few times, but the shifty Borgerite always managed to work his way out of danger.

The two lightweight quarterfinal fights were made necessary by the large number of boys entered in that division (11). The odd number of fighters also made necessary the one bout between a tired and a rested boxer.

Wild Card' Rule Okayed By NCAA

By TIM MORIARTY
United Press International

Although some of its members refused to pine for a revival of platoon system, college football coaching fraternity today voted the liberalized "wild card" substitution rule as "a step in the right direction."

Only Joe Kuharich of Notre Dame publicly accused the NCAA Rules Committee of being "short-sighted" after it voted Wednesday to permit a single player to enter a game at any time, even while the clock is running. Under the old rule, a single player could be substituted only during a time-out and provided he had not used up his allowed two entries per quarter.

"I personally feel that you are hurting the game by not allowing unlimited substitution," said Kuharich. "It is shortsighted of the Rules Committee not to make the move now. Eventually it has to come."

Ben Schwartzwalder of Syracuse indirectly answered the Irish coach by declaring that the new rule "will give coaches a flexibility that will help improve the game" and is "better than the stamper rule which would result if brought back."

Woody Hayes of Ohio State and Milt Bruhn of Wisconsin admitted they would have favored a return to platoon football but, unlike Kuharich, they apparently agreed that half a loaf is better than none.

"I am somewhat disappointed that they didn't return to platoon football, but the action they took is a step in the right direction," Hayes said. "The new rule will help a little but I'd rather have free substitution." Bruhn declared, "It will be similar to last year, but we won't have to worry about the clock now."

Other comment: Bill Barnes California — "It will eliminate some coaching from the sidelines... and it might make it more exciting, too." Rip Elmer, Penn State: "This should eliminate coaching from the sidelines, but I don't think many coaches will use an errand boy to rush in plays on every down, as some pro teams do."

LaSalle Bites Dust, 91-84; Two Unbeaten Teams Left

By FRED DOWN
United Press International

And now there are two Cincinnati and Villanova.

They stand alone as the nation's only major unbeaten college basketball teams after Syracuse's 91-84 double overtime upset Wednesday night ended LaSalle's nine-game winning streak. Texas A&M, which started the week as a fourth major unbeaten, was whipped Tuesday night by Southern Methodist.

But Cincinnati and Villanova—both of which have tough schedules this week—kept rolling with relative ease.

Second, first round.
85 — Mackie Hawkins, Perryton dec. Larry Babbs, Borger.
85 — Eddie Davis, Dumas TKO'd Johnny Lumpkin, Pampa, 38 seconds, first round.

85 — Robert Rodriguez, Hereford dec. John Johnson, Dumas.
85 — Roy Ward, Pampa TKO'd Jerry Martin, Perryton, end of second round.

105 — Richard Owen, Dumas dec. Lewis Meers, Pampa.
105 — Isidoro Morin, Amarillo dec. Donald Whitfield, Dumas.

112 — Trent Olsen, Pampa TKO'd Lee Johnson, Dumas, 47 seconds, first round.

112 — Joe Villa, Borger TKO'd Eugene Marak, Pampa, 1 minute, 27 seconds, first round.

112 — Billy Matthews, Pampa TKO'd Charles Easley, Borger, 46 seconds, first round.

126 — Gary Roger Smith, Lefors TKO'd John Smith, Borger, 1 minute, 20 seconds, third round.

126 — Charles Moore, Borger dec. James Rouse, Borger.
126 — Jim Reaves, Perryton knocked out Amelio Rivera, Pampa 1 minute, 34 seconds, first round.

135 — (Quarterfinals) — Albert Moline, Amarillo dec. Gene Shipman, Lefors.
135 — (Quarterfinals) — Corky Morse, Pampa dec. Glenn Nelson, Hereford.

Cincinnati, the nation's top-ranked team, led by only five points at halftime but roared to its 13th straight victory with a 79-57 conquest of 10th-ranked St. Louis.

Oscar Robertson was held to 27 points, far below his 38.2 per game average, but poured in 19 during the second half when the Bearcats solved St. Louis' sticky slow-down game.

Villanova stretched its winning streak to 10 games as John Driscoll and George Raveling controlled both backboards against the smaller Temple Owls in an 81-69 victory.

Syracuse (6-2) pulled out a sensational triumph over LaSalle in the nightcap to the Villanova-Temple game at Philadelphia's Palestra on the strength of eight points by 5-10 senior Ed Goldberg in the second overtime period. Goldberg and Dick Conover led Syracuse with 21 points each.

Third-ranked West Virginia ripped Virginia, 102-81, averaging a 75-72 upset loss last season, fifth-ranked Bradley downed Drake, 84-55, and sixth-ranked Georgia Tech scored an easy 80-64 triumph over Georgia for its 12th win in 13 games.

Jerry West scored 40 points for the second highest total of his career as West Virginia raised its record to 14-1.

Bradley went on a 28-8 whirl that opened a 41-25 halftime bulge and erased any Drake hopes for an upset. Dan Smith collected 21 points for Bradley.

Georgia Tech raced to a 43-28 halftime advantage and never led by less than 12 points in the second half. Capt. Roger Kaiser led the Yellow Jackets with 22 points.

Jimmy Darrow, a 5-11 senior guard, turned in one of the top performances of the season when he scored 32 points, 41 of them in the second half and overtime period, to lead Bowling Green to an 86-82 win over Toledo.

Robert Harris and George Duke paced Carver's scoring with 10 points. Robert Mitchell, Ernest Mathis and James Taylor each netted four, and Joe Nibbitt and Otis Williams each made two. Ervin Buntun scored one.

For the Carver girls, Mary Duke tallied 15, Claudette Cash 10, and Jewel Colbert seven.

BY CHARLIE CROSS

Goose season ended Friday at sunset and the Texas quail season ends Saturday 30 minutes after sunset.

As far as I'm concerned, quail season ended last Sunday when Bob Andis, Roscoe Elmore, Paul Hinton of Skellytown, Nathan Edwards and "Shorty" Hix of White Deer and myself walked over every inch of the 14 sections of the Andis ranch near Clarendon and got only 16 birds.

Of course that was nobody's fault but the quail. They just wouldn't cooperate. We had three good dogs and a pup and should have found plenty of quail, but they must have been visiting. Anyhow, until next season quail hunting is for the birds.

That doesn't mean I don't want to go the rest of this week because the hunting news in this column will no doubt get a little thin after Saturday.

Three pet quail at the John Shawner farm near Geary, Okla., know when they are well off. Liberated, the pet bobwhites refuse to go "wild" and join others of their kind in the fields, preferring instead company of the chicken flock. On mild nights they roost in trees, but when sub-zero temperatures arrive, warmth of the chicken house is sought.

The Texas State Varmint Calling Contest will be held in Fort Worth Sunday. Three trophies will be awarded to the winners and the champion will be eligible for the national contest set for Chandler, Ariz., next month.

A $2 fee is charged for entry in the contest and it will be held in the Childers museum or on an adjacent baseball diamond, depending on the weather.

Well, it's gonna be time to go fishing soon. That is, for those of us who hang up our tackle in the winter months. News from the various lakes around the area is getting larger, and I'm beginning to see more boats being pulled down the highways.

Got a news release from Possum Kingdom today, and Mrs. Hank Satterwhite, who tells all, said Sunday was a beautiful day on the lake, with lots of people driving around and putting their boats in the water for a quick run. She says it looked like spring was here already. Says not many fishermen yet but catches that were made were unusually good.

From Mrs. Satterwhite's letter I gather the crappie are hitting good with black bass beginning to strike better. Notice where Mrs. Bobbie Lancaster of Lancaster caught a black bass that weighed in at seven and a half pounds, with several other people getting them from three to five and a half pounds. Mrs. Lancaster caught her bass on a Bucktail.

Bill Green, pressman here at the Daily News, took a week of his vacation and went to the coast fishing. And hunting too. I guess because he told me he got five geese besides catching plenty of trout.

Citizens Bank Defeats Miami

Citizens Bank won its 21st consecutive victory of the season Wednesday night, defeating Miami 78-55. For a while, the Miami squad seemed to be ready to pull an upset, as they trailed only 29-28 at halftime. However, Citizens came back strong in the second half to take it going away.

Sam Condo led Citizens' attack with 27 points, followed by James Lee with 15 and Don Fagan with 14. The game was a practice contest, not a regular Industrial League game.

Market Democracy

Norris Crump, president of the Canadian Pacific rail system, stated the case about as clearly as we have ever heard it.

"He said, 'On this continent... we have relied upon the market economy mechanism to motivate and control the vast majority of our productive enterprises.

"But, in transportation, the market mechanism has not been allowed to run in the full measure of its effectiveness... Much of the capital allocated to transportation is by government edict. This is the so-called mixed economy — part free enterprise, part socialism.

"Why do we say that the market is a better mechanism for the allocation of capital to productive purposes than is government decrees? The answer is that the market imposes a penalty for bad judgment and offers a reward for good judgment — a loss if the productive facility fails to satisfy consumers — a profit if it does.

"The consumer exercises the discipline of the market."

Not only is Norris Crump correct insofar as transportation is concerned generally and as the railroads are concerned particularly, he is right insofar as all business, enterprise and, indeed, all professional enterprise are concerned as well.

For those who are enamored of the word Democracy, it might be wise for them to consider the merit of a system which is so democratic in character that it runs entirely on the basis of choices made by every human being and in such a manner that no political or monetary favoritism is long possible.

As Crump put it, "The consumer exercises the discipline of the market," which is invariably, true unless or until the government intrudes into this idyllic relationship. When the government moves in, the wishes of the consumer or the customer are abrogated and moved out.

And the reason there is no place for government in the market economy is because however certain bureaucrats in government may be, they cannot individually or collectively provide the genius and the wisdom which is active in the minds and decisions of every human being in the world.

True democracy can be found

'Practical' Politician

Not long ago, in listening to one of our numerous presidential hopefuls over one of our mass media of communication, the thought was borne home as to the true nature of political action.

The particular candidate, who needs no publicity in this space, commented that a good politician really didn't like to talk about issues. What really concerned the able man, he announced, wasn't so much WHAT could be done, as what COULD be done.

We were reminded of the fact that once, long ago, a famous British courtier had commented that politics is merely proper names. And we began to get a new light as to why we are forever in difficulties respecting our political climate in this country.

Political science courses, so far as we have been able to learn, concentrate on what is called "the possible." There is no effort to awaken in the mind of the political neophyte the idea that some things might be right, some wrong, some morally speaking. The politician is not interested in morals, hence, he is basically disinclined to consider the true value of issues.

What he is concerned with is the various things he can accomplish. To be a favored politician, you have to turn in a record of success. This means that you must achieve your objectives, whether your objectives deal with compelling everyone to wear a green tam-o-shanter on St. Patrick's day, increasing taxes by means of a tax on chest expansion, or making attendance at a labor day parade compulsory.

The witty politician doesn't try to figure out which of these things is right or wrong. He puts his ear to the ground and tries to find out how popular opinion is flowing. He hires experts to take samples of public opinion, than which there is no more unreliable guide

"Economics For The Teachable"

"Freeman" magazine for January has a very timely article on how best to promote integrity, self-respect, peace and prosperity. It is written by Leonard E. Read. He has a subhead as follows: "The socialistic or governmentally planned system pre-supposes bureaucrats competent to control human action, whereas the market economy requires no supermen—just ordinary people freely exchanging their goods and services as they choose." Then Read continues as follows:

"The teachable—those who aspire to an even greater understanding — are those with an awareness of how little they know."

He has a footnote as follows: "The teachable shall inherit the earth appears to be a sensible interpretation of the Biblical pronouncement, 'The meek shall inherit the earth'."

Of course, if one defines "teachable" as one who aspires to ever-greater understanding, this is a good substitute for the word "meek."

Then it occurred to me that this statement might be explained by saying the meek—those seeking understanding—shall inherit the earth, or the meek—those respecting others—shall inherit the earth, or the meek—the understanding—shall inherit the earth. Certainly David or Jesus did not mean that a meek person was one who was all things to all men and never took a stand on anything. David and Jesus certainly meant the men who recognized the omnipotence of the Eternal or God or Nature.

The meek, of course, are men who do not pretend to know how to plan the lives of other people. The exalted are those who seem to believe that they are wise enough to not only plan their own lives, but plan the lives of others by the use of aggressive force.

Then Read continues: "Least teachableness and lowliness or inferiority be associated, consider the case for teachableness and wisdom as having a relationship."

"Said Socrates, 'This man thinks he knows something when he does not, whereas I, as I do not know anything, do not think I do, either.'"

For such knowledge of fallibility, Socrates was acclaimed a wise man. He and many others, for instance, Lecomte du Noy and Robert Milliken, scientists of our time—discovered, as they expanded their own consciousness, that they progressively exposed themselves to more and more of the unknown. Edison's fact-packed, inquiring, ever-curious mind concluded that, "We don't know a millionth of one per cent about anything. We are just emerging from the chimpanzee state." These teachable persons came to realize how little they knew and that, perhaps, is a measure of wisdom.

"For the student of economics, this is an interesting question: Is it possible to have a workable, productive economy premised on a society of teachable individuals, those who are aware that they know very little?"

"We can assume that such an economy would differ markedly from the planned society of egotists or know-it-alls, those at the other end of the intellectual spectrum, the ones who see no difficulties at all in arranging the lives of everyone else in accord with their designs. Further, they are quite willing to resort to the police force to implement their schemes for improving society by nationalizing it."

Read then states that a group of seven economists recently voiced the following view, quoted from the First National City Bank Letter for August 1959: "The federal government is our only instrument for guiding the economic destiny of the country."

These men were not meek men. They were conceited egotists and probably believed that they should be the men in the government to guide the lives of all other people.

The planner's incompetence. Then, under the heading of "The Planners' Incompetence," Read continues:

"Let's further test the knowledge of the egotist. He wants to plan production; what does he know about it? For example, there is a company in the U.S.A. which manufactures well over 200,000 separate items. No one person in the company knows what these items are and there is no individual on the face of the earth who has the skills, by himself, to make any one of them. It's a safe bet that the egotist under examination has never been closer to this company than a textbook description by some fellow egotist. Yet, he would put this intricate, voluntary mechanism under the rigid control of government and would have be pointed out that virtue may accrue to the wrestler, boxer or other sportsman who is bound by certain rules of conduct and rules of the sport in which he contends. Not so, the politician. Again we see that victory is the only excuse for political action. The politician simply must not fail. And this means that he can (and frequently does) get away with anything... so long as he isn't discovered.

But secrecy, too, is a part of politics. The wise politician doesn't get caught. Many things will always be a matter of secrecy for him.

How foolish it is for us to place our hope and faith in the political arena. Here is where our future is being frittered away by thousands of 'practical' men whose only guide is success; and who have neither time nor tendency to consider morality as a valid argument for political conscience.

NUCLEAR WEAPONS FOR NATO ALLIES TO BE ASKED OF CONGRESS BY PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower will ask Congress for authority to give nuclear weapons to our NATO allies.

The formal request for this far-reaching legislation will be submitted to Congress later this month. The Atomic Energy Act prohibits the transfer of U.S. nuclear weapons to foreign countries.

Two factors are behind the President's momentous decision—France's persistent efforts to perfect its own nuclear bomb. The first test of this weapon is now slated for sometime in the spring. It has to have taken place in the Sahara last fall, but had to be postponed because of defects. The U.S. has refused repeated French requests for secret technical information and material to construct arms.

President de Gaulle's adamant refusal to permit U.S. nuclear weapons to be stockpiled in France except on two conditions: That France have control over them, and also a voice in the use of atomic weapons in any conflict involving the NATO alliance.

In the discussions of the National Security Council, top policy agency, the President opposed yielding to these French demands. Instead, as a "simpler and sounder solution" of this critical NATO problem, he favored revising the law to allow nuclear weapons to be made available to NATO allies under certain conditions and safeguards.

This view has the full backing of Secretary of State Christian Herter, Defense Secretary Thomas G. Gates, Atomic Commission Chairman John McCone, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and General Lauris Norstad, NATO commander.

Prime Minister Macmillan, President de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Adenauer also have been apprized of this eventual proposal.

UNCERTAIN FATE — The President's plan is certain to arouse stormy controversy in and out of Congress.

Already, leaders of the Joint Atomic Commission, who have got wind of this backstage matter, are up-in-arms over it. Representatives Chet Holifield (D., Calif.), who is in line to be chairman of this potent committee in the next session, has no hesitancy at all in accepting the post of Chief Administrator. He would then arbitrarily allocate and price all raw materials and manpower and, after long and complicated statistics of the past, arbitrarily allocate and price the more than 200,000 items, most of which he never knew existed. Involved in the operations of this company alone — a mere fraction of the American economy — are incalculable human energy exchanges, many billions of them annually; the egotist would manage these with a few 'big man' gestures! Such cursory attention he would find necessary for, bear in mind, he also would have under his control the lives, livelihoods, and activities of the 176,750,000 individuals not directly associated with this company.

"Next, what does the egotist know about exchange? In a specialized or division-of-labor economy like ours, exchange cannot be carried on by primitive barter. It is accomplished by countless interchanges interacting on one another with the aid of a generally accepted medium of exchange or money."

"An economy founded on the premise of know-it-allness is patently absurd."

"But, can there be a sensible, rational economy founded on the premise of know-next-to-nothingness? An economy that would run around socialism? In short, is there a highly productive way of life which presupposes no human precidence, no infallibility, nothing beyond an awareness that it is not the role of man to pattern others in his own image? There is no such way!"

Extinction Road. Scientists warn that climate changes and hunters in the Arctic threatened to wipe out the polar bear, hooded seal, walrus and reindeer.

LITTLE LIZ. It's not what people say that hurts, it's how many times they say it.

Looking Sideways

by WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK, N. Y. — Although I keep reading grim little warnings that one should never underestimate the power of a woman, I seldom have read anything about the power of 25 cents. Today's theme will, therefore, concern the power of 25 cents. Do not scorn this lowly sum. It can be parlayed into thousands of dollars. In a secondary sense, the theme will concern the wonderful, little self-confidence of the extremely young. Thus, today is bargain day. Two highly-themed for the price of one.

Joe Manchester was 14 years old, exactly, give or take a week, when he decided, during a walk along Broadway in the 50's, that of all the things he wanted to be the one he wanted most was to be a producer of plays on Broadway. Having decided that, he fished in his nether pocket and dug out a lone, forlorn nickel. In those days — it was all of 11 years ago — you could make a telephone call for a nickel. Then he thumbed through the telephone directory until he found the number for the Waldorf-Astoria. He dialed it and asked for Emil Coleman, who was musical director for the hotel. Being terribly young, it never occurred to Joe that Coleman (a) might not be there or (b) might not choose to take the call. In either case his lone, large nickel would be gone. But Coleman answered. The best way to reproduce the dialogue: Mr. Coleman, this is Joe Manchester. Have you ever considered producing a Broadway play?

"Well, yes, at times," said Coleman, guardedly.

"Good. I'll be in touch with you."

Joe hung up before his three minutes ran out and proceeded to grow up, stop away education and perhaps lose some, but not all, of his bravura. Now just short of 10 years have passed. Joe fished in his same pocket and dug out a dime. The phone rates had changed. And, once again, he called Emil Coleman. Once again — verbatim:

"Mr. Coleman, this is Joe Manchester. You may remember: I discussed Broadway play production with you about 10 years ago, maybe a little less? Well, I am able to tell you I am negotiating for the American rights to a Dorensmatt play. You have not changed your mind, I hope."

"Well, — well, no," said Coleman, even more guardedly, "but I'd want to know a little more about it. I'm always interested in a good play, of course."

"Fine. Fine," said Joe. "I'll get in touch with you."

Now four months have passed and, once again, Joe snakes a dime out, calls Emil Coleman and gets him.

"Mr. Coleman? Manchester here. I have purchased 'The Deadly Game.' I can get Pat Hingle, Claude Dauphin and Max Adrian. Actually, I have them. Partially based on your interest twice expressed, Can you come right over and meet your new associate? Me?"

And there it is. In just under 11 years Joe grew to be 27 years old, had a quarter to keep things warm and induced Coleman to be his partner.

"Truth," he said the other afternoon. "We never met face to face until he walked in here the other afternoon, and said, 'All right, partner, tell me about it.'"

"Didn't you think it at least — unusual — to get a full partner on the basis of three calls to a man you never met and starting when you were only 16 years old?"

"Not really," said Joe. "He could always have said no."

Is it true you are also a lawyer?

"Not yet. One more year, I'm becoming a lawyer, at New York Law School, because I want to be respectable. You don't know how many people, including young women, don't think the theatre is respectable. I was astounded. So I'll be a lawyer and produce plays, too. I hope to do both successfully."

"What else did you do?"

"I studied playwrighting at Carnegie Tech. How could a kid know a good play from a bad one without that knowledge? I won't ever write a play, but I'll use what I learned to guide me in choosing plays. I also was an actors' agent for awhile, to learn about actors. I'm also in real estate in New London. I may want to know how to buy a big house."

"Not yet. One more year, I'm becoming a lawyer, at New York Law School, because I want to be respectable. You don't know how many people, including young women, don't think the theatre is respectable. I was astounded. So I'll be a lawyer and produce plays, too. I hope to do both successfully."

Here are some of the commoner causes for sleeplessness which any observant and intelligent person can get rid of:

Overheating or excessive chilling of the bedroom.

Poor ventilation of the bedroom with resultant stuffiness of the nose.

Undue light or noise. If not preventable, lessened by use of eye-shade or ear plugs.

Excessively hard or excessively soft mattress. In the latter case, corrected by bedboard between spring and mattress.

Too many or too few pillows.

Former abuse of backache and neck strain; latter, difficult breathing, especially if nose is stuffy.

Too many or too few bedclothes. Former results in perspiration and later chilling when coverings are kicked off; latter, chilliness preventing relaxation.

Too much or too little activity before retiring. Former may be due to stimulation of exciting movie, TV program, card game or conversation; latter is listless, boring evening during which you yawned or even napped.

Fullness or emptiness of stomach. Former due to retiring shortly after meal or snack; latter to hunger, especially in the person with ulcer symptoms.

Drug stimulation from doses of thyroid, appetite killers, nose drops, caffeinated beverages or alcoholic drinks like brandy that often produces initial drowsiness and later excitation. In hospital practice, from late reaction to drugs of the morphine series.

Exposure to industrial stimuli while on the job. Especially lead, mercury, tetraethyl lead (garage employees and men at filling stations).

Restlessness or cramps of leg muscles. Sometimes relieved by wearing long woolen undergarments, stockings or bed socks.

And finally, if you are a doctor, worrying about all of the foregoing.

Too Many People Worry About Others' Leisure

by HENRY McELMORE

A man hardly dares collapse in a hammock with a good beatnik book these days for fear a sociologist or some other "ist" will come poke him and say, "Get up!"

These worthy workers in the vineyard of human behavior are in a ring-tailed fro over the way we Americans spend our leisure time. They want us to give up bowling for Bach, swimming for Spinoza, television for Thucydides, dancing for Dante, and movies for Milton.

They want an America of culture, spelled with a capital "C". So do I. It is one of my fondest dreams, and one of my most recurrent. I dream of it nearly every time I go to sleep watching the Late, Late Show.

I hope to live long enough to see the day when American children draw chemical formulae on the sidewalk instead of hopscotch patterns, when poetry-soaked, policemen hand-out tickets with a "Hail to thee, little speeder," and paperback book covers show Plato bared to his waist.

What a blessed day it will be for America when a man goes on vacation not to fish, but to attend a seminar on cave paintings, and his wife gives up dreaming of a milk coat and nags him for money to buy a hind leg bone of a dinosaur which she is putting together in her leisure time.

Night clubs will advertise the number of first editions they have on shelves, not torch singers and crooners. Travel agents will try to sell you tickets to Greece, not Chicago or Birmingham, and fathers seen waiting their spare time kicking a football with their boys will be rounded up by Culture Truant Officers.

The torch in the Statue of Liberty's hand will be replaced by a textbook, the businessman's briefcase by a cell or fiddle case. Miss America, will wear horn-rimmed glasses, and golf club manufacturers will re-tool to meet the demand for microscopes and slide rules.

I wouldn't be surprised, if the sociologists have their way, to see the presidential election set up, changed, with the candidates all engaging in a giant and unrigged quiz show — and the winner's going to the White House.

Milliners and haberdashers throw out picture hats and burles to stock up on the latest moribund styles, and the League took replaced by the flowing toga cut.

Of course, I wouldn't want to drive for culture to become frantic that it would defeat its purpose. And it could, of course. Men might start working a hour week to avoid going and curling up with Homer, Handel, and women might p torch to their housework gads as not to have so much time for mural painting, Sa lessons, and anthropology of

If culture should take over, will be a problem or two. Will happen to TV announcers, box manufacturers, pool hall operators, comic book publishers the like?

A new, loud and uncultured voice will be heard throughout the land.

Having always been a pro-Swedish descent, I was denied to read what is happy to the homeland of my father. The Swedes have been a people, and in years past I have been pleased to think they done so much to conquer our rigors with material achievement.

But the Saturday Evening Post for December 19, in "Sw Paradise With Problems," tells the fatal consequences of strong, free people — the dependence for "security" and hardship have been totally eliminated from this highly developed of the states. Now they have reason to worry about "the worry-free" for suicide, drunkenness, delinquency, dissolution of home, apathy, boredom — say, taxes — are rising at alarming rate. Once sturdy — a clerk is giving way to moral "They've thought of everything but the human spirit," said the idea, said another, "to give people benefits and will turn out to be good citizens. Things have apparently not out that way. And another, "The boring predictability lack of adventure of life in a cure society can be just as strating to restless youth as slums and poverty that breed liguency in the United States."

It's an article for reading weeping — and for setting chin against similar stuff the soul here in America!

Clergymen Divided On Catholic For President Views

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The clergymen of one major Protestant denomination are sharply divided in their attitudes toward a Catholic presidential candidate, a poll disclosed today.

The denomination is the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., which has about 3,100,000 members mostly in northern and western.

The views of its clergy were solicited by a magazine named "Monday Morning" which is published by the denomination and distributed free to all of its members.

Of the 10,947 ministers on the mailing lists, 1,047, or about 10 per cent, filled out and returned a questionnaire which appeared in the Nov. 16 edition. Since the questionnaire had to be clipped out, pasted to a postcard and mailed, a voluntary response of 10 per cent indicated a fairly strong interest.

The questionnaire consisted of three statements supposed to cover the range of possible Protestant attitudes toward a Catholic presidential candidate. Clergymen were asked to check whether they agreed, disagreed or were undecided about each statement.

The most "liberal" position was reflected by the statement: "The religious affiliation of a presidential candidate is irrelevant."

Only 57 of the clergymen agreed with this, while 875 positively disagreed. Seventeen were undecided and the rest didn't respond to the statement.

The only avowed Catholic presidential aspirant, Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) is on record with assurances that he would uphold church-state separation. Neither Kennedy nor any other possible candidate was mentioned by name in the poll, however.
