Bush vows to not let turmoil affect South American tour

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — President Bush today hailed "extraordinary political and economic change" as he kicked off a five-nation South American visit. He vowed not to let his tour be interrupted by military turmoil in Argentina.

As Bush arrived in Brazil at dawn, Nationalist officers seized army headquarters at Buenos Aires and President Carlos Menem declared a state of siege, a presidential spokesman said.

Bush, scheduled to visit Argentina and hold talks with Menem on Wednesday, told reporters, "I have no thoughts of changing my plans. I have great confidence in the security there."

An administration official, traveling with Bush, described the trouble in Argentina as "an inter-military squabble" and said it would not affect Bush's plans. The official declined to be named publicly.

Bush seemed in good spirits as he arrived at a military air base here.

Bush and President Fernando Collor de Mello opened their meeting by talking about the impact on world oil prices and the global economy of Iraq's takeover of Kuwait.

Bush mentioned the figure $1.5 billion, presumably talking about the impact that President Vaclav Havel told him the occupation was having on Czechoslovakia. "That's why, when people say to me that this can go on and on, I say, 'No!'

Later, in remarks prepared for delivery to a joint session of the Brazilian Congress, Bush hailed the "extraordinary political and economic change that is transforming the face of this hemisphere."

He described Brazil as a leader in this effort, citing Collor's efforts at reducing the size of the state, privatizing enterprises, combatting inflation and liberalizing trade.

These steps, he said, "are the keys to growth and prosperity in the global economy of the 21st Century."

He added: "Our thinking must be bold, our will resolute. Our challenge now is to hew out of a wilderness of competing interests a new kind of opportunity in the Americas.

"To fulfill the new world's destiny, all of the Americas and the Caribbean must embark on a venture for the coming century: To create the first fully democratic hemisphere in the history of mankind," Bush said.

There are no urgent issues to be discussed, but Bush wants to associate himself with what he sees as a rare opportunity in hemispheric relations. The first four countries on Bush's itinerary — Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina and Chile — all were under military rule within the last few years and now have elected governments. The fifth country, Venezuela, has been democratic since 1958. Bush is making the trip at a time of unusual harmony in U.S.-Latin American relations.

The visit was to have taken place in September but was postponed because of the Persian Gulf crisis. Secretary of State James A. Baker III stayed behind in Washington to deal with that issue.

The centerpiece of Bush's policy toward Latin America is the Enterprise for the Americas Initiative, which is designed to achieve economic growth through expanded trade and investment and reduced debt.

Bush's goal is a hemisphere-wide free trade area. Just a week ago, Bush was in Mexico to push for a bilateral free trade agreement with that country.

Although military rule gave way to elected government in much of the hemisphere during the 1980s, the decade was a disaster economically. Production, investment and consumption all fell sharply.

Collor is part of a new generation of Latin leaders who have moved aggressively to reduce the state role in the economy and to reduce inflation through spending cuts. Inflation dropped dramatically shortly after Collor took office in March but is now again on the rise.

Brazil's foreign debt is $112 billion, the largest in any developing country. The country is almost $10 billion in arrears on debt repayments and is negotiating a new repayment schedule with creditors.

In what the administration sees as a breakthrough in its goal of nuclear non-proliferation, Brazil and Argentina last week agreed to renounce the manufacture of nuclear weapons.

Menem declares state of siege in Argentina

By ED McCULLOUGH
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — About 50 soldiers seized part of the downtown army headquarters, a nearby infantry base and a tank factory early today, two days before a scheduled visit by President Bush.

At least three soldiers were reported killed and five wounded in the fourth military revolt in Argentina in four years. President Carlos Menem declared a state of siege, but his government did not appear threatened.

Some politicians suggested the uprising was intended to disrupt Wednesday's visit by Bush, who arrived in Brazil today. Menem spokesman Humberto Toledo and White House officials said Bush's visit to Argentina was still on.

One rebel spokesman said the mutinous soldiers wanted changes in the way the military was run and did not want to overthrow the government.

The insurrection, mounted at 5 a.m., was the first in Argentina since Menem took office in July 1989. He is the country's second civilian president since the military ceded power in 1983.

All of the previous insurrections have been by officers who declare themselves nationalists and demand pay increases, pardons for rights abuses during the 1976-83 military regime, and changes in the military high command.

All but a handful of officers from the military regime have already been pardoned by the government.

Military pay, however — like the pay of most Argentines — has been severely reduced by hyperinflation and government budget cuts.

The reported casualties were loyal soldiers killed or wounded in fighting on the capital's east side outside the Patricios Infantry Regiment building, where radio stations said firefights were occurring.

Rifle fire also was heard at the 20-story army headquarters, where the mutineers occupied an undetermined number of floors. The administrative building is not normally guarded by a large detachment of soldiers.

The rebels also captured a factory that manufactures tanks under contract with France at Boulogne, north of the capital.

Troops loyal to Menem also exchanged fire with rebels four blocks from the presidential palace. Police halted mass transit in the area, and machine gun and heavy arms fire could be heard.

Cheney and Nunn clash over economic sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee clashed today over whether economic sanctions will force Iraq to withdraw its army from Kuwait.

Cheney, testifying at Senate hearings on the Bush administration's Persian Gulf policy, said he saw "no indication" that Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein is willing to settle for a peaceful withdrawal.

"There is no guarantee that sanctions will force him out of Kuwait," Cheney said. He insisted the United States could not "wait indefinitely" for the embargo to work while Saddam uses the time to prepare for an attack.

Cheney's comments prompted Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, a Georgia Democrat and critic of Bush's gulf policy, to question the administration's attitude toward sanctions.

"If we have a war, we're never going to know whether they would have worked, would we?" he asked Cheney.

"That's the major point here. The way you find out if sanctions going to work is to give them enough time to work," Nunn said.

Cheney said Nunn was assuming that sanctions will work if given enough time.

"That's a big assumption," Cheney said. "There's a big difference between saying we know if we use military force we can achieve our objectives (and) it may be, if we wait a year or two, economic sanctions will get him out of Kuwait as well."

Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were the first administration officials to appear before the committee following President Bush's dramatic announcement Friday that he was sending Secretary of State

James A. Baker III to Baghdad to meet with Saddam.

Cheney, responding to Democratic pleas to give the sanctions more time to work, said "there are consequences, costs to our coalition partners and to the country."

"It isn't a clean, clear-cut choice," Cheney said.

He said the United States cannot trust Saddam when "he tells us his intentions are benign."

City to enforce ordinance on parking in fire lanes

Residents busy with the Christmas holiday shopping tasks are warned that they cannot park in the emergency fire lanes in front of local businesses.

Pampa Fire Marshal Tom Adams said today that the city will begin enforcing prohibitions against parking in the fire lanes.

"We'll probably start enforcing the fire lanes later this week, keeping an eye on them," Adams said.

The emergency fire lanes, under city ordinance, are to be kept free of parked vehicles in case a fire breaks out in the business, Adams explained. The lanes are set aside strictly for use of emergency vehicles, he said.

The restriction on parking in the fire lanes apply at all times, even for those who wish to pull up in front of a business and run in just for a few minutes, he said.

The fire lanes that the city will be keeping a special eye on in the coming weeks include the red zones at the Pampa Mall, Wal-Mart, Coronado Center and M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium and Civic Center.

Strong cultural differences exist between Argentina and U.S.

Editor's note: This is the eighth in a series of 12 articles written during a recent five-week trip to America, part of a Rotary International Group Study Exchange to that continent.

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

ELDORADO, Argentina — Ready for a shock? Ask any patriotic Argentine who the big loser in the Falkland Islands/Malvinas War was.

The answer you hear most often, and with the most conviction is, "The United States!"

What? You didn't think the U.S. was involved in that unfortunate, and hopeless war that Argentina waged against the British for control of a tiny island off its eastern coast.

"The United States lost more than it will ever be able to regain," said prominent provincial attorney Marcol Acuna VeDoya. "You showed that you are not loyal to your neighbors in the Americas during their time of need."

VeDoya stated, "Argentina stood by the United States when you had your Cuban missile crisis. Why did America not stand by us when we faced an equal challenge? It showed us that the government of America is not loyal."

That is only one example of the hard feelings many Argentines have toward the United States, which President Bush will see firsthand later this week if an attempted military coup here does not cancel his trip to see President Carlos Menem.

It is interesting to note that even though Argentina was soundly defeated by the British, even new maps here show the Islas Malvinas as part of Argentina.

Understand the War of the Malvinas/Falkland Islands and you will understand Argentina, a paradox of views that is equal parts patriotism and contempt for the government.

Like North Americans, many Argentines take great pleasure slamming their government, but would fight to the death against any outsider who dares speak ill against their nation.

Many Argentines also love criticizing the United States, and are not shy about explaining why.

An Argentine businessman and Rotarian, who asked that his name not be used, gave background.

"The problem is that people don't believe in the government or the system," he said. "We don't believe the Army or the police or the justice system will take care of us. It is not a democracy here [though Menem defeated the former president in open elections]. It is a limited dictatorship. So we look out for ourselves and our family first and our friends second. After that, we do not care."

He continued, "To be friends is the most important thing. That explains many things because the people in power will not select the best qualified person. They will select their friend who is the most qualified. North Americans here are generally unaccepted because they are all business. There is no time to make friends. That is not human. Humans make friends and consider human relationships the most important thing."

"We have had many experiences with the 'ugly American' and it has hurt the image of all Americans. They come here and criticize us instead of saying, 'Well, that is just their way.' Americans come here and say, 'We do it this way or that way in the United States.' We do not care how you do it in the United States unless that is where we are, and then we will do it your way. We believe that people in business from those countries should have the same respect when they come here."

It is easy to understand the conflict in cultures when you spend time in South America. Passwords for survival include tranquilo, (just be calm) and manana (we will get to it tomorrow).

Americans, used to being concerned with schedules, agendas, and getting down to business, are seen as rude at best and "inhuman" at worst.

Meals routinely last from two to four hours, with most of that time given to conversation. Americans, used to jumping up from the table and getting on with life, are seen as extremely discourteous.

Exchanges of ideas are given heavy play here. Such American bywords as "never discuss politics or religion" are seen as silly.

"Why not discuss them? They are seen as unimportant?" a puzzled Argentine asked. "Or is it because Americans cannot tolerate people

"For the next six months it will be a very difficult time. There is only a 50-50 chance that Menem will be supported."

— Miguel Freaza, Argentine economist who disagree with them and feel they must be right?"

Argentines are also fiercely independent, as explained by VeDoya.

"People here are not accustomed to the idea of teamwork," he said. "Even our (national) futbol (soccer) team, which has won the world championship twice, does not play as a team. They are individuals who happened to win as individuals and not as a team."

VeDoya said there is "no connection between good planning and action here."

"The only reason is the individualism," he stated. "People want what they want and do not follow the team plan."

Actually, there is another reason. Under Juan Peron, the dictator whose mark will be felt on Argentina for hundreds of years, the two keys necessary to remaining in power were (1) give people everything they want that you can afford to give them, and (2) blame what you can't afford to give them on the United States.

Asked about this situation, VeDoya conceded that, "Under Peron many laws were passed that gave the people many rights and no obligations. It was his way of getting re-elected."

Peron was a dictator who probably would have found a less friendly way of staying in power had he not won the elections outright.

"Peron did many good things for us such as industrializing the nation during the Second World War. But he kept friends by taking away all responsibilities and putting them on the government or the United States," VeDoya said.

On Thursday, Nov. 8, President Menem stated, "In two years time [after the privatization of the economy] Argentina is going to be spectacular."

Menem is a staunch supporter of free enterprise and individual accountability, which makes him extremely popular with the nation's European immigrants, but an enemy to old-fashioned Argentines accustomed to the Peronist/socialist approach.

"The fact is, most people here have an aversion to hard work and so they don't like Americans and they don't like Menem," said Tony Chantrell, an Argentine of English extraction.

If Menem is still around in two years to see Argentina to its "spectacular" days, he is deserving of all the credit and applause the world can give him.

In Jujuy, Chubut, Buenos Aires and Corrientes, which is very close to Eldorado, protests and demonstrations are everywhere, largely due to Menem's economic plans.

Because the current economic scheme includes reducing government control and increased privatization, employees on the national or provincial payroll are being laid off by the thousands.

In LaMatanza, administrators and teachers of the 270-school education district are striking, asking for increased government handouts for their union. They are also encouraging their students to join the protests.

They claim they are owed back wages and are demanding free health care for themselves and their families, which Peron would have gladly given.

In Menem's own back yard, a gubernatorial candidate for the country's most prominent province is calling for Roosevelt-style public works projects for the governmental workers who have been laid off.

Menem is vowing that Argentines will benefit over the long run from privatization, promising that short-term suffering is for the long-term good.

Court hearing set for district judges

LUBBOCK (AP) — The future of nine district judges will be on the line when a federal court hearing is held to determine if they will be permitted to manage their courts pending the resolution of a voting rights issue.

Three federal judges will decide if the district judges remain on the bench until the U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C., resolves the issue of the state's failure to obtain preclearance from the U.S. Justice Department for elections of the nine district judges in November.

State District Judge Brad Underwood, who has been asked by the state Attorney General's Office to testify at the Dec. 12 hearing in Austin as a factual witness, told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal that he was extremely concerned, but he declined further comment.

"As a party to the lawsuit, I'm unable to express an opinion about the possible outcome of the federal judges' decision or what the future holds," Underwood said.

Underwood was unopposed in the Nov. 6 election for Lubbock

County's 364th District Court. Judges in Georgia and Louisiana have been allowed to remain in office in similar situations pending resolution of lawsuits.

Two federal lawsuits have been filed alleging state violations of the federal Voting Rights Acts. An Oct. 26 lawsuit was filed by the Mexican-American Bar Association (MABA), the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) and others. A Nov. 27 suit was filed by the Department of Justice.

The suits both refer to Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act, which deals with changes in the voting system. The plaintiffs argue that the state, which created new district courts in 1989, made changes in the manner of electing judges and should have obtained preclearance from the Justice Department.

Dallas attorney David Godbey of Dallas, who represents Underwood and other judges, said he believes the Dec. 12 hearing will consolidate the two suits. But he said he has not been officially notified by the court of a consolidation.

If the 364th District Court is declared invalid, then federal courts will decide what will happen with cases the court already has dealt with. Underwood said similar situations in two other states have resulted in federal courts deciding that all cases handled were valid up to the point where the courts were declared invalid.

Underwood said various cases currently on the docket in the 364th District Court would have to be transferred to other courts if the 364th is declared invalid.

The lawsuits mark the second time a voting rights issue has been raised regarding the election of district judges. A suit challenging the election of district judges on a countywide basis was filed in 1989 by LULAC and other plaintiffs in U.S. District Court in Midland.

The plaintiffs, which sought single-member districts for the election of district judges rather than countywide elections, alleged violations of Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act.

Before U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton III could rule on the suit, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox and the plaintiffs agreed on a plan for single-member districts.

Bunton, one of the three federal judges to hear the Dec. 12 case, rejected the agreement and substituted his own plan for single-member districts.

Two district judges, one in Dallas and one in Houston, appealed through attorneys to the U.S. Fifth Circuit of Appeals in New Orleans, and the appeals court stayed Bunton's order.

The court later voted 12-1 to reverse Bunton's ruling, deciding that Section 2 of the voting Rights Act did not apply to judges. The section refers to the election of representatives, and the appeals court ruled that judges were not representatives.

The Department of Justice filed a brief with the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals supporting LULAC.

The case is currently under appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Authorities investigate allegations of discrimination

HOUSTON (AP) Federal authorities are investigating allegations that a subsidiary of Service Corp. International, the nation's largest funeral provider, instructed employees not to sell pre-planned funerals to blacks.

About a dozen former employees of Memorial Guardian Plans Inc. complained to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission last year that commissions were withheld from telephone sales personnel who arranged appointments with prospective clients who turned out to be black, the Houston Chronicle reported in a copyright story in Sunday editions.

Memorial Guardian Plans marketed prepaid funeral plans nationally for Service Corp. International, the largest owner and operator of funeral homes and cemeteries in North America.

SCI, which is based in Houston and had revenues of $518 million in 1989, sold the subsidiary in January 1990, the corporation's lawyer said.

An attorney representing SCI said the firm denies any wrongdoing.

On Sept. 26, the EEOC notified the former Memorial Guardian Plans employees that it had investigated their claims and found "reason to believe violations have occurred."

The EEOC also found that the firm refused to hire blacks as telephone solicitors and failed to retain blacks' employment applications for the six months required by law.

Mende Snodgrass, trial attorney supervisor for the EEOC, said the six-month requirement is based on provisions of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

"If employers don't retain records and someone files a charge, there would be no realistic mechanism for investigating the violation. But it also provides protection for an employer against charges," Snodgrass said.

In a document outlining the EEOC's formal "determinations" after its investigation, the agency's district director in Houston, Harriet Joan Ehrlich, wrote:

"Records revealed that the corporate telemarketers were not allowed to solicit the business of black customers. This practice directly affected the telemarketers' wages and created an adverse working condition."

In SCI's 1989 annual report, investors were told that the profitable prearranged funeral business was sold because its continued growth required a "substantial cash commitment" that the parent company did not want to make.

But the former employees disagreed, claiming they were fired in retaliation for complaining about the firm's racist policies.

The EEOC would not discuss the complaints. However, the company and the complaining employees confirmed that a formal, EEOC-sponsored conciliation process that seeks "full compensation" for the former employees had failed when an offer of $1,000 for each of them was rejected. Under EEOC policy, conciliation comes only after the agency has investigated and found reason to believe discrimination has occurred.

Keith Payne, the company's lawyer, said SCI denied any wrongdoing but made a $1,000 conciliation offer to each of the complainants to avoid a costly legal fight or other expenses.

Payne called the allegations against the subsidiary "implausible" and said he would be "shocked" if they were true.

"I am surprised to hear these allegations," said Larry A. Farrow, executive director of the Texas Funeral Service Commission, the industry licensing agency. "In this day and time, these are such overt racial slurs."

Payne said SCI, which owns about 500 cemeteries and funeral homes around the nation, has many employees and cannot control discussions among them. But it is not company policy to deny services on racial grounds, he said.

He said the EEOC was pursuing the case because the agency believed the employees were fired in retaliation for their complaints about the policy. In truth, he said, SCI had intended to sell the marketing arm and moved the operation several miles out of town in anticipation of the sale.

Carnegie H. Mims Jr., an attorney representing the former employees, said Memorial Guardian Plans established a system to ensure that a prospect was not black before a telephone sales agent could make an appointment.

Mims said the prospect was prompted to pronounce certain words on the theory that an accent might reveal race. If the prospect appeared to be black, agents were instructed not to schedule an appointment, he said.

Another former employee said in a sworn statement that her supervisor told her "that I was not to set up appointments with black customers."

"We were told ... that we should be able to tell by the way the customer talked," said Mary Davidson, who worked for SCI between November 1988 and February 1989.

Odessa touts local program to bolster number of minority teachers

ODESSA (AP) — The Ector County Independent School District is trying to increase its number of Hispanic teachers by tapping its abundant Hispanic enrollment.

But it faces stiff competition from several school districts nationwide grappling to attract the most-talented black and Hispanic college graduates.

"All schools are chasing after a small number of minority teaching candidates," said Gene Buinger, district superintendent.

Hispanics make up about 43 percent of the ECISD student population, but only 12 percent of the district's teaching professionals are Hispanic, according to statistics in the district's annual report to the U.S. Justice Department.

The district is required to file an annual desegregation report to the government every fall to assure it is complying with a 1984 court-mandated desegregation order.

Buinger said the district plans to implement a program that would supply its schools with minority teachers who grew up in Odessa.

"We're developing a program to grow our own teachers," he said.

A Tri-Ethnic Committee, formed to comply with the court order, reviews the annual desegregation report and advises the school board.

Routine license tag check results in pairs' arrests

CLARENDON, Ark. (AP) — A small-town policeman's routine check on an out-of-state license tag resulted in the arrest of two men wanted in connection with a kidnapping and a killing in Texas, officials said.

Sgt. Randy Julian of the Monroe County sheriff's office said Sunday that David Hernandez, 37, and Servando Pachecano Jr., 24, were being held in the Monroe County Jail, pending extradition to Texas.

Authorities want the cousins from Fort Worth in connection with the abduction of two women during a robbery Tuesday at a Credit Optical store in Fort Worth.

A Clarendon officer spotted a car with Texas tags leaving a local night spot late Saturday night, Julian said. As he trailed the vehicle, he ran a check on the tags and found out the vehicle had been reported stolen in Dallas, Julian said.

The vehicle's occupants were arrested without incident after it was pulled over, the deputy said. No weapons or stolen items were found in an initial search of the car, Julian said.

One of the men was identified through his driver's license as Hernandez, Julian said, while the other fit the description of Pachecano.

The two were being held Sunday on a theft by receiving charge for being in possession of a stolen vehicle and were available for extradition to Texas in connection with the abduction and slaying, Julian said.

Texas authorities had been seeking the two since Tuesday.

Bush's recession rises to forefront

President Bush's credibility gap continues to widen. First he gave his "no new taxes" pledge, then broke it, then promised he "absolutely" would oppose any new taxes. He's done more flip-flops than Mary Lou Retton.

Now the president seems to realize that a storm of recession is sweeping across the county. Recently he said that most economists "seem to feel that if we have a recession, it will not be deep and that we'll come out of it relatively soon, six months at most, and I'd like to think that is true." Notice the hesitant tone: "if we have a recession." But if the president isn't sure we're in a recession, how can he say how long it will last?

Another point: President Jimmy Carter, whom Bush sometimes resembles in style and policy, also thought the economic difficulties of the late 1970s and early 1980s would be of short duration, part of a national "malaise" not of his making. The American people had a different opinion: In 1980 they vetoed Carter, his "malaise" and the recession, elected Ronald Reagan and gave themselves a decade of economic prosperity, now sadly ending.

The same day Bush spoke of the recession, he signed into law one of the things that will deepen it: the Clean Air Act. It will impose from $20 billion to $40 billion per year in added costs to industry and consumers. That means thousands of jobs lost to a policy that minimally cleans up the air, but coddles the powerful environmentalist special interests.

The impending Bush recession could very well last not just six months, as the president wishes, but a year or more, with unemployment lines snaking around the block even during his 1992 campaign for re-election. No wonder even his own party is restless, talking about running someone against him in the ides of February 1992. Given that the first primary state is fanatically anti-tax New Hampshire (no state sales or income taxes), who knows what could happen? Republicans also remember that Reagan nearly pushed aside another unpopular sitting president, Gerald Ford, in 1976.

Bush approvingly cited the words of one businessman, speaking of a recession, who told him, "it doesn't hurt to shake things out." In fact, of course, every business, every day, faces a shakeout. The essence of competition is a continual adjustment, some businesses failing, some retrenching, others succeeding and growing.

The point Bush seems to miss is that government's job is, above all else, to make sure that it does not make the shakeout worse than it would naturally be (and, second, to make sure that the competition between businesses is conducted without violence or fraud).

Bush's administration has done the opposite of this. It has saddled businesses and citizens with new taxes and regulations. It has dishonestly broken its most solemn campaign pledge to the American people. But there's hope yet in this sad saga. A revolt against taxes and incumbents is brewing across the land. Come 1992, it could well shake Capitol Hill and the White House to their foundations.

Lessons in Helms' victory

WASHINGTON — On Nov. 6, Jesse Helms of North Carolina, the Senate's much abominated No Man, won a hotly contested race for re-election. His victory over Democrat Harvey Gantt is ancient history now, but there are things to be learned from ancient history.

Let it be noted first that Helms' win was convincing. He led Gantt by 100,000 votes, 52.5 to 47.5 percent. He carried 71 of North Carolina's 100 counties.

Gantt could not complain of an inadequate war chest: He raised $6 million in little more than six months. Only two of the state's 51 daily newspapers backed Helms. As a millionaire architect and former mayor of Charlotte, Gantt added political experience and an attractive personality to his strongly liberal positions in a reputedly liberal state. Still he lost decisively. How come?

This will not be a popular lesson, but politicians, editorial writers and media celebrities should pay attention anyhow: Helms won because he understood the gut concerns of the people. Gantt may have understood these concerns also, but Helms' steadfast record was something Gantt could not match.

During the final two weeks of the campaign, Helms aired an especially effective TV commercial. This was the now famous "hands" commercial, in which a narrator speaks for an unseen white man. The man has lost a job to a black by reason of racial quotas — the kind of quotas that would result from Sen. Edward Kennedy's civil rights bill.

The hands commercial has been violently denounced almost everywhere. For one example, Tom Oliphant of the Boston Globe said on television that "no decent person" could condone such a racist ad. Michael Frisby of the Globe called it a

James J. Kilpatrick

"negative, race-baiting ad." Andrea Mitchell of NBC lamented a "racial message" that led to Gantt's "heartbreaking" defeat.

Who is missing the story? The demonstrable fact is that whites are indeed losing jobs to blacks because of affirmative action programs. That is one inevitable result of affirmative action. At the core of the hands commercial was a kernel of undeniable truth.

Some months ago I documented a flagrant case at a college in Virginia, where a qualified white professor of biology was turned down for one reason only: His skin was white.

What was the consent decree in Birmingham, Ala., all about? It was to fill a quota of black firefighters. Do you recall the Supreme Court's decision of June 27 in the Metro Broadcasting case? The court upheld the award of TV licenses to Hispanic applicants because they were — Hispanics.

Is this resented? Of course the preferential treatment of individuals who have never been victims of discrimination is resented — deeply, keenly resented. In reflecting that strong opinion, Helms was close to his people. Gantt was far away — and for a good reason: Gantt himself was a major figure in winning a TV license in Charlotte for Metro-

Crescent Broadcasting. Gantt reportedly invested only $450 and sold out to a white-controlled company four months later at a profit estimated at $400,000. Who has been capitalizing on race in North Carolina?

Take another issue: abortion. Helms is right-to-life. Gantt is right-of-choice. I have said that I regret Helms' adamant position; I wish he would display the same compassion for the unfortunate woman that he extends to the inchoate embryo, but I do not argue the issue here. Helms understood that many North Carolinians are not as liberal on abortion as they are made out to be.

Crime. A U.S. senator cannot do much about crime, for 90-odd percent of all crimes are matters of state law. Even so, Helms managed to articulate fears that are real fears — fears that are widely held. People are angry about crime. They are disgusted with lenient judges. They weary of hearing about the criminal's rights. What of their own right to walk the sidewalks safely by night?

Just as they believe good books enhance a good society, the people believe that bad books lead to a bad society. Sophisticates rolled their eyes at Helms and his attacks on pornography. How gauche! How primitive! How lacking in artistic sensitivity! What a boor!

But Jesse Helms has a sure finger on the pulse. Many of my brothers and sisters of the media are deaf and blind. They do not sense the growing revulsion against the filth that laps at our cultural shores.

The candidate for public office who correctly reads these tides in the affairs of men, and takes them at the flood, leads on to fortune. Helms correctly read the tides. He deserved to win.

Today in history

Today is Monday, Dec. 3, the 337th day of 1990. There are 28 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Dec. 3, 1967, a team of surgeons in Cape Town, South Africa, headed by Dr. Christian Barnard, performed the first human heart transplant on Louis Washkansky, who lived 18 days with his new heart.

On this date:

In 1818, Illinois was admitted as the 21st state of the union.

In 1828, Andrew Jackson was elected president of the United States.

In 1833, Oberlin College in Ohio — the first truly educational school of higher learning in the United States — opened its doors.

In 1894, author Robert Louis Stevenson died in Samoa.

In 1947, the Tennessee Williams play A Streetcar Named Desire, starring Jessica Tandy as Blanche DuBois and Marlon Brando as Stanley Kowalski, opened on Broadway.

In 1979, 11 young people were killed in a crush of fans at Cincinnati's Riverfront Coliseum, where the British rock group The Who was performing.

Take back your neighborhood

Local volunteer fire departments with dedication and discipline are highly effective.

They augment regular firefighters who otherwise would be outdistanced and/or outnumbered by fires.

Now it is our police who are outnumbered and outgunned by criminals. Why not mobilize a legion of disciplined volunteer police officers?

This suggestion comes from a respected chief justice of the West Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, Richard Neely. His books, Take Back Your Neighborhood, includes carefully prescribed guidelines for restoring traditional neighborhood values.

As is, criminals control the streets, and the rest of us are barricaded behind locked doors and barred windows.

That's backward!

Judge Neely's experience has convinced him that our nation's retreat from "the traditional family" has resulted in problems government cannot solve: divorce, illegitimacy, teen pregnancy, child abuse, welfare dependency and crime.

These factors have created "an underclass" that has taken over our neighborhoods. We, the people, must take our neighborhoods back.

Paul Harvey

Judge Neely is careful to specify that we do not create another Ku Klux Klan. We must not in desperation rely on German Brown Shirts or Chinese Red Guards.

Both England and the United States historically have had experience with responsible private law enforcement. Present law in most states delegates to private citizens all the authority they need to make a citizen's arrest.

Citizens can take the law into their own hands, but they must be guided by the same legal standards that govern professional police.

It has been tried with the Guardian Angels in New York, with the Seattle Block Watch and with limited groups in Washington, St. Louis and Dallas.

It does not have to degenerate into vigilante justice if there is a proper selection process for volunteers.

Just "keeping watch" and copying license numbers of suspect vehicles have demonstrated that would-be burglars will soon steer clear of a patrolled area.

Volunteers, therefore, need to be equipped with uniforms, radios, still cameras, note pads and video cameras. In some instances they may elect to carry nightsticks and/or mace, but mostly as symbols of authority.

Take Back Your Neighborhood offers a step-by-step blueprint for organizing citizen patrols.

Crime has been excused by some sociologists as "a product of poverty." Feed and shelter everybody adequately, they say, and crime will go away.

Judge Neely notes that his state, West Virginia, has our nation's highest unemployment rate, our second lowest-per-capita income — and yet has the lowest crime rate in the United States.

This book offers our bleeding country an opportunity to try crime prevention one neighborhood at a time.

Mr. President: Please read this

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER

In the matter of President Bush's deviations from conservative orthodoxy, I have generally been a good deal more forgiving than most of my colleagues on the right.

For one thing, I sympathize profoundly with his basic problem: how to cope with a Congress both Houses of which are controlled by the opposition party (a problem, incidentally, that Ronald Reagan didn't have for the first six of his eight years in the White House).

But I feel obliged now, to warn Mr. Bush that I am beginning to detect rumbles on the right that are deeper and more serious than any I have heard heretofore. If he disregards the disaffection that is now growing among conservatives, it is not impossible that he may confront a rebellion in 1992 that will spell the end of his presidency.

Normally the response of a president to supporters farther than he is from the supposed "center" would be, "They have nowhere else to go." He might even welcome their criticism on the theory that it would simply endear him to voters nearer the center who might otherwise vote for his opponent.

But the bad news for Mr. Bush is that serious conservatives have begun talking seriously about running an independent against him in 1992, even if the result is a short-term victory for the Democrats.

And the things about his administration that are beginning to disaffect conservatives are not firmly centrist policies that can be expected to gain support for Mr. Bush among "moderates." They add up, instead, to a sense of directionless drift that alienates liberals as thoroughly as conservatives.

Thus, the latest issue of Policy Review, the quarterly publication of the Heritage Foundation, the largest and most important of all conservative think tanks, contains an article by Heritage's senior vice president, Burton Yale Pines, proposing that conservatives walk out on Mr. Bush in 1992 and run a candidate against him, much as Theodore Roosevelt walked out on the GOP in 1912 and ran on the "Bull Moose" ticket.

"As in 1912," Pines argues, "there is great merit in opposition even if immediate election victory is unlikely and even if it may give the Democrats near-term gains. Open opposition would allow conservatives to go on record against the betrayals of the Bush administration. Open opposition would challenge the White House's monopoly on what a Republican (or even a conservative) is. Open opposition would show the public that conservatives are not responsible for nor even associated with the economic and other disasters toward which Bush and his top advisors are driving the nation."

As if that weren't enough, the current issue of National Review, the oldest and biggest journal of conservative opinion, describes even Mr. Bush's veto of the so-called "civil rights bill" (a veto it approved) as follows: "The Democrats deserve most of the credit. They're the ones who made the alternative-unbearable even when he was ready to capitulate."

The same issue calls for the firing of Budget Director Richard Darman: "Most of the president's problems today derive from his failure to recognize his mistakes. Sacking Darman would represent the first sign that he has begun to understand where he went so disastrously wrong."

These are not the voices of crackpots or extremists. Nor, if he loses their support for good, can Mr. Bush readily replace it with that of near-beer liberals — a breed that died out long ago, leaving the Democratic Party to the coalition of single-issue flakes that dominates it today.

Ah, but just what serious conservative might be persuaded to make a purely symbolic run against Mr. Bush in 1992. Well, to borrow a line from Hamlet, I see a cherub that sees one.

Only one diploma awarded from Grandview-Hopkins high school

B.R. Nuckols, former Gray County Superintendent of School, wrote that Grandview Common School District #17, Carney CDS #19 and Prather CDS #20 were consolidated in 1925 to form Grandview CDS #17.

Another source names the consolidating schools as Wakefield (XVII), Steed (XIX) and Grand Valley (XX).

In 1927 the Grandview CDS #17 was classified by the Gray County Board of Education as an elementary and high school, but it reverted to elementary status in 1947. Beginning in the fall of 1973, Grandview and Hopkins were consolidated to form Grandview-Hopkins Independent School District.

From Pampa, the Grandview-Hopkins building is 15 miles south on Texas State Highway 70, then two miles west and one-half mile north on FM 293.

Among the early landowners in the Grandview area were the Furneaux Brothers (Joseph H., William C. and John L.) of Dallas. Of the 65 sections they and J.B. Wilson bought from the Groom Ranch in the early 1900s, about 15 sections were in Gray County. For a time "Bud" and A.J. Babcock

The Stephens' always kept in close touch with their English relatives and were known never to miss having their afternoon tea. Their three children, Patricia (Peggy), Jack Jr. and Barbara May, attended school at Grandview.

Both the paternal and maternal grandparents of Donald Lee Ritter came to Gray County in 1915. Ritter has lived most of his life in the "home place" which his parents built in 1930 when he was about two years old. The house is two miles south and one mile east of Grandview-Hopkins School.

Ritter was engaged in farming and ranching since 1944 when he rented the "Deep Lake" William Jackson Estate place while he was a sophomore in high school. He has served on the Grandview

In 1918 Davis married Katie Mae Elder of Pond Creek, Okla. In 1919 a three-legged windmill was built, and the family no longer had to haul water for two miles, using a sled pulled by horses.

John Reuben Davis, the son of R.I. Davis, was the only person to ever receive a high school diploma from Grandview School. On August 1, 1926, he married Julia Kuykendall, daughter of Calvin and Minnie Kuykendall. The Kuykendalls moved to the Grandview community soon after they came to Pampa in 1924.

In 1910 John (Jack) Stephens came from England to the Panhandle with the encouragement of his cousin, Tommy Cocks, who owned land near Alanreed. Stephens worked as a farm hand until he saved enough money to buy his own land from the White Deer Land Company for $12 to $15 an acre. At the time of purchase, he could ride his horse 15 miles in any direction without seeing a fence. He was known as the "crazy Englishman on the gray horse."

On a visit to England after WWI, Stephens married Dorothy Bice, a childhood friend, and the couple returned to Gray County in 1918. They lived from seeing wheat and row crop farming done with teams of mules and simple

In 1915 Reuben Isaac Davis, a widower with three children, came from a farm near Ringwood, Okla. He bought land ten and one-half miles south and two miles west of Pampa. The next year he loaded his furniture, farm equipment and livestock on railroad cars for shipment to Pampa. He built a three room shack for his children and his sister and her-husband, Eve and Dode Couts.

The Davis children walked or rode horseback to a school called Grand Valley, which was about two miles from their home. Later when they attended Grandview, which was about five miles from their home, they rode the school bus, a converted truck.

J.M. McCracken served on the Grandview School Board for a number of years. In 1955 he was elected County Commissioner of Precinct 3 by write-in votes and had served nine years at the time of his death in June, 1964.

James O. McCracken, son of James M. and Elsie, was only six months old when his family moved to the Grandview community. He attended Grandview School and graduated from Pampa High. After serving in WWII he came home to help his father farm.

He was appointed County Commissioner, Precinct 3, when his father died while in office. He ran for commissioner in November 1964, and held that office for 20 years.

Nursing care at home

Eula Thornhill gets a checkup from Gail Preston, left, a home health aide, and Johnnie Hazle, R.N., right, from Shepard's Crook Nursing Agency. Last week was National Home Health Week throughout the country. Home health care is both the oldest and newest form of a health care, and is a viable alternative to long-term hospitalization and nursing homes. In addition to providing skilled nursing care, home health also is served by home health aides who are able to provide personal care such as bathing, grooming, light housekeeping and meals.

Determined single mom is success

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "One Plus Seven" really got me where it hurts. It was from a woman with seven children whose abusive husband taunted her by saying, "You'll never find a man who will want you with all those children."

Fifteen years ago, I was a mother with five children under 18. I was also trapped in an unhappy and abusive marriage. I knew I had to find a way to support myself and my children, so I decided to go to beauty school, so if I got a job I could be home when my children left for school. I worked hard at beauty school and prayed a lot. I got a divorce when my eldest was a senior in high school. I was determined to give my kids a chance to have a decent life, although everyone said I could never support five children.

Well, Abby, today I'm the proud mother of a social worker (head of her department), a physician, a professional football player, and three kids in college. Oh yes, after the divorce I adopted a 14-year-old girl, knowing if I could feed five, I could feed six, and she desperately needed a home.

So, please tell "One Plus Seven" that with God's help, all things are possible. You may use my name.

BETTY THOMAS, HOUSTON

DEAR BETTY: Beautiful. Read on for another "They-said-it-couldn't-be-done" success story:

DEAR ABBY: "One Plus Seven" reminded me of my own situation—only I was the father of eight motherless kids under the age of 15. (Two sets of twins.)

Soon after my wife died, a friend fixed me up with a young widow with five children ranging from 3 years old to 14. She had also been told that nobody would want her with "all that baggage."

As it turned out, 13 was our lucky number because we merged families, and between us we have 13 kids who get along great—for the most part.

Now we laugh because we both thought, "Who in their right mind would take on somebody with a houseful of kids?" The answer was, pening to us?" and "How much at risk are we?"

The doctor should be able to put your fears to rest, since he is familiar with your family history. I'm happy that you wrote. The best way to conquer your fears is to face up to them—and by writing, you have already taken the first step.

DEAR ABBY: I am about to hit 40, and I think I'm scared. I need one of those "if I knew then what I know now" talks. I can look back at my 20s and 30s and see so many wrong decisions that have contributed to who and what I am today.

I have been divorced (married for two years five years ago, no children). Like a lot of women, I work hard. I live alone and try to maintain some sort of personal life, but the financial burdens of making it on your own are very demanding.

I think I want to have a baby, but I am not seeing anyone that I would want to marry. I am healthy, but I know time is running out.

What advice would you or your readers who have traveled this road have for me? What will I wish I had done when I reach 50 or 55?

AVOID READER

DEAR AVID READER: So you "think" you would like to have a baby. Well, before you do, you had better be 100 percent sure, because babies are not returnable, and they require somebody's full-time attention. Unless you can stay home and raise it or hire someone to do it—or pay for day-care—you had better think this decision over. And over, and over!

DEAR SCARED: Tell your father about your fears, and ask him to schedule an appointment with your family doctor for you and your sister. The topics of discussion should be, "What is the healthiest lifestyle we can adopt to prevent this from happening to us?" and "How much at risk are we?"

Skin care for teenagers is more than soap and water

NEW YORK (AP) — Preventive skin care for teen-age boys and girls needs to include no more than a daily routine of mild cleansing, moisturizing and sun protection — plus regular shampooing for oily hair, says Dr. Ellen Gendler, a dermatologist.

"The single most important criterion of any skin care routine is that it neither aggravate an existing acne problem nor bring on breakouts where there were none before," says Gendler, a member of the board of the Oil of Olay Skin Care Center.

Wash your skin morning and evening with a cleanser designed to provide a rich lather without drying. Limit exfoliants or scrubs to twice a month since they can be irritating to acne-prone skin. For oily skin, use a mild, low-alcohol toner. If you are using acne medication, however, a toner can aggravate your skin.

For dry skin, apply a greasless moisturizer that won't clog pores. And use a sun block of at least SPF 15.

"Although most people are aware of the danger of prolonged exposure to the sun, few realize that the greatest damage comes from exposure before the age of 20," says Gendler.

She says girls generally are more diligent than teen boys about skin and hair care, but boys must fall into a routine, too. As they experience a burst of testosterone, they have a greater tendency than girls for breakouts on the chest, back and face, and shaving often increases the flare-ups.

"Boys experiencing acne breakouts in the beard area may want to try a topical antibacterial lotion," she says. "In addition, they should also avoid harsh soaps or scrubs."

SHOOTING PAINS

If you're a victim of sciatica, you know what "shooting pains" are all about. The sometimes excruciating pain of sciatica frequently affects the hip, thigh and back of the leg. The ankle and foot are sometimes affected, too. But that's not where the problem is.

The sciatic nerve, the largest nerve in the body, extends from the lower spine to the back of the thigh and knee. Then it divides. One nerve goes down the front of the lower leg, and the other goes down the back of the leg.

It's the inflammation of the sciatic nerve that causes the pain. This can be triggered by an irritated nerve root. What causes the irritation? The cause may be traced to a misalignment of the spinal column that's putting abnormal pressure on the roots of the sciatic nerves as they pass between the vertebrae.

Through x-rays and other procedures the doctor of chiropractic can locate the misaligned vertebrae. Using a gentle adjustment, he can align it properly again to help eliminate the cause and the pain.

NOTICE OF CLASS ACTION AND SETTLEMENT. THIS NOTICE MAY AFFECT YOUR RIGHTS. PLEASE READ CAREFULLY. TO: All class members who are owners of certain Magic Chef microwave ovens. There was a class action, Case No. CV90-PT-00702-M, in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Alabama against Maytag Corporation doing business as Magic Chef Company ("Magic Chef"). The action was filed by persons claiming that they purchased "Magic Chef" branded microwave ovens sold as new but which were reconditioned or repackaged at the Magic Chef Arriston, Alabama plant, without disclosure of the previously sold nature of the microwaves. Plaintiffs sued for damages against Magic Chef and other relief as described below. If you own a Magic Chef microwave oven, you could be affected, and you should carefully read this entire Notice. The Honorable Robert B. Probst held a hearing on the 19th day of October, 1990, at 2:00 P.M. at the Federal Courthouse, Birmingham, Alabama, for the purpose of determining whether the proposed settlement of this class action, as set forth in the Stipulation of Settlement and Compromise ("Settlement Agreement"), was fair, reasonable and adequate and should be finally approved by the Court. At that hearing, the Court approved the Class members as described below, approved the Settlement in accordance with the Settlement Agreement, and approved attorneys' fees and costs of court. The Settlement is hereby approved for Plaintiffs' counsel. The action has now become final, and the Settlement is fully effective. If you fall within the definition of the Class as set out below, and did not request to be excluded, you will be entitled to settlement benefits, if you take the necessary actions prescribed below. HISTORY OF LITIGATION On April 11, 1990, this suit was filed alleging that Magic Chef was liable for triple damages for violating the federal Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act ("RICO"). The Complaint alleged that Magic Chef, for several years, had engaged in selling microwaves to the public through retail stores as new when in fact, they had been reconditioned, rebuilt or repackaged at the Magic Chef Arriston, Alabama plant, and no disclosure of their previously used nature was made to the public. Plaintiffs claimed that this conduct entitled them and the Class to damages, a permanent injunction against such further sales, a rescission of all transactions, attorneys' fees and costs of court. The Complaint was subsequently amended to add additional plaintiffs and class representatives who are owners of Magic Chef ovens, to assert additional claims for fraud, breach of contract and breach of warranty, and to expand on the allegations and theories of relief. As a result of the Settlement described below, this action has now been dismissed. The Class on whose behalf the action was brought is: All persons presently or previously owning a legal or beneficial interest in a "Magic Chef" branded microwave oven purchased at retail from a retailer, which microwave oven had heretofore been sold by Magic Chef, returned to Magic Chef, and then repackaged and resold by Magic Chef, without notice to retail buyers of its having previously been sold. The only microwaves involved are a small percent of Magic Chef Model Nos. MSB-1-W4, MSC-1-W9, MSC-6-W9, M15B-6P-W4, M15C-6P-W9, M15C-10-W9 and MSE-1-W9. SUMMARY OF SETTLEMENT BENEFITS 1. Each Class member who did not elect to be excluded from the Settlement, and who complies with the procedures for receiving benefits, shall receive a cash payment of $25.00, and a credit certificate of $10.00, good until September 1, 1993, which may be applied toward the retail purchase price of any new "Magic Chef" branded product. Only one package of benefits ($25.00 cash plus $10.00 credit certificate) will be distributed with respect to any single microwave, even if there are or have been more than one owner of such microwave. Details are available on request. The Court has appointed Magic Chef as Trustee to carry out the terms of the Settlement Agreement, including distribution of the settlement benefits to each Class member executing and returning a Proof of Claim. 2. An injunction has been entered, as part of the final order by the Court approving the Settlement, enjoining Magic Chef for a 5-year period from selling to the public microwave ovens which have been reconditioned or repaired at its Arriston, Alabama plant without disclosure to its purchasers of their previously used or reconditioned condition. 3. Magic Chef paid or will pay attorneys' fees in the amount of $200,000 which was sought by application by the Class counsel. Magic Chef has also agreed as part of the settlement to pay to the State of Alabama, through its Attorney General, the sum of $100,000 in civil penalties and attorneys' fees. 4. If you are a Class member, you must identify yourself to Magic Chef by calling the Toll Free Number at the end of this notice to obtain a Proof of Claim form which must be executed by you and returned by you to Magic Chef. You may also obtain a form from Class Counsel Andrew P. Campbell whose address is given below. Within 30 days after return of a properly executed Proof of Claim, the Trustee shall distribute the settlement benefits to the verified Class member. Any Class member who does not execute and return the Proof of Claim by June 7, 1991, shall not receive settlement benefits. Any settlement benefits unclaimed by Class members shall remain the property of Magic Chef. ACTIONS TO BE TAKEN BY CLASS MEMBERS 1. If you are a member of the Class and desire to receive the settlement benefits, you must verify yourself as a Class member and obtain a Proof of Claim form in time to make a proper filing of that form by June 7, 1991. You are in any event bound by the Settlement Agreement. If you did not make a timely request for exclusion, whether or not you file a Proof of Claim and receive any settlement benefits. 2. The Class action described above and all claims therein have been dismissed with prejudice and the Defendant and retail distributors and all others who could conceivably be liable have been released from liability, precluding any further claims from class members for any occurrences or transactions made the subject of this case. However, acceptance of benefits by class members will not affect any existing written warranties on the microwaves, except insofar as any warranty claims relate to the reconditioned or repackaged nature of the microwaves. MISCELLANEOUS All of the above descriptions of the litigation, the Stipulation of Settlement and other matters are only summaries of the actual documents, which are on file and may be inspected at the Office of the Clerk of the U.S. District Court, Federal Courthouse, 1729 North 5th Avenue, Birmingham, Alabama 35203, in Case No. CV90-PT-00702-M. ## Harvester boys set 15 records in Shootout basketball tournament, take championship

HAYS, Kan. — The Pampa Harvesters' varsity team went to the Hays Shootout hoping for their first basketball tournament championship in eight years.

They achieved not only that, but also set 15 tournament records and saw three of their players receive individual awards in the Harvesters' third trip to the Shootout.

And there were no close wins. The Harvesters led their Kansas opponents — Great Bend, Liberal and Hays — in every quarter of the three games Thursday through Saturday on their way to winning the championship, and establishing an unbeaten opening season record of 8-0.

The Harvesters defeated Great Bend 98-62 in their opening Shootout game Thursday, then passed over Liberal 92-80 Friday to advance to the winners' bracket and rolled past tournament host Hays 93-71 in the championship clash Saturday.

The Shootout tournament victory was "the first time we've done that there," said assistant coach Scott Flynn, adding that it was also the Harvesters' first tournament championship in about eight years.

The Shootout kept the Harvesters undefeated for the season and looking for their ninth victory as they face the Plainview Bulldogs in Pampa's McNeely Fieldhouse at 8 p.m. Tuesday. The junior varsity boys will play at 6:30 p.m.

In their opening games, Pampa has been the victor against Tascosa, Dalhart (twice), Perryton, Amarillo High and the three Kansas teams.

The Harvesters also will see Liberal again Tuesday, Dec. 11, on their home court in McNeely Fieldhouse.

In Thursday's game against Great Bend, the Harvesters led 25-17 in the first quarter, 55-29 in the second, 77-49 in the third and 98-62 in the final quarter.

Cederick Wilbon fronted the Harvesters with 35 points, with three other Pampa team members scoring in the double-digit column: Jayson Williams, 17; Jeff Young, 16, and Quincy Williams, 10.

Against Liberal Friday, Pampa outdistanced their opponent 32-17 in the first quarter, 58-41 in the second, 74-62 in the third and 92-80 in the fourth quarter.

High scoring Harvesters for the Friday game were Wilbon, 27; Jayson Williams, 24, and Dwight Nickelberry, 11.

In the championship action Saturday against Hays, the Harvesters went out front 31-20 in the first quarter and continued to lead 49-31 in the second, 74-46 in the third and 93-71 in the fourth to take the Shootout trophy.

Wilbon again topped the Harvester scorers with 28 points. Others landing in the double-digit column were David Johnson, 16; Nickelberry, 12, and Randy Nichols, 10.

Wilbon, amassing 90 points in the three games, was named the Most Inspirational Player at the tournament. He was also named to the All-Tournament Team, along with teammate Jayson Williams.

David Johnson was named to the Shootout's All-Academic Team.

Along the way to the Shootout championship, the Harvesters set the following 15 tournament records in Hays:

Leading the Harvester girls were Nikki Ryan, with 24 points, and Amber Seaton with 20.

Houston Oilers' Bernard Ford (88) fumbles the ball after being tackled by Seattle's Tony Woods as teammate Joe Nash rushes upon the scene in the overtime period Sunday.

Seahawks down Oilers 13-10 in overtime play

By JIM COUR
AP Sports Writer

hands, I hit him in the back. I think I surprised him."

SEATTLE (AP) — For the fourth straight week, the Seattle Seahawks went to the final play. And for the third time in four weeks, the Seahawks won in dramatic fashion — it was the second straight week the Seahawks won 13-10 on a Norm Johnson field goal in overtime.

After defeating the Houston Oilers' run-and-shoot offense Sunday on Johnson's 42-yard field goal 4:25 into overtime, the Seahawks (6-6) are .500 for the first time this season. They've bounced back after an 0-3 start.

"We've taken a big step," Seahawks coach Chuck Knox said. "Our team has fought all year."

The Seahawks weren't supposed to be a good team this season. They still may not be a good team, but they're winning the close ones now and they're doing it by capitalizing on their opponents' mistakes.

Their game plan against Houston's high-powered offense was simple: Try to keep Oilers quarterback Warren Moon off the field and make the Oilers receivers pay every time they caught a Moon pass.

That was Houston's downfall. The Oilers had the ball almost 10 minutes less than Seattle. They made three critical turnovers.

The Oilers scored just one touchdown. Moon was held under 300 yards passing for the first time in five games.

In overtime, Bernard Ford fumbled on the Houston 23 after catching a 5-yard pass from Moon. The ball was recovered by Dave Wyman after a vicious hit by 264-pound Tony Woods caused Ford to be separated from the ball.

"Tony made a great, great play," Seahawks defensive coordinator Tom Catlin said. "Ain't no question about that. We stressed that all week long: 'Hit 'em.'"

Woods has been a starting defensive end this season. But he was on the field as a linebacker in a 3-4 defense in a passing situation in place of outside linebacker Rufus Porter because Porter suffered a groin pull.

"I just fell on the ball," Wyman said. "Tony did it all. I didn't know if we could hold that offense to 10 points the way they've been playing, but this sure makes us happy."

"Some people have doubted us, but if you hustle and go to the ball, good things happen," Woods said. "I just wanted to hit him as hard as I could. As soon as the ball hit his

"I took a good shot," Ford said. Houston's players were downcast. It was a defeat that may keep the Oilers out of the playoffs.

They blew two chances to win the game in the fourth quarter. A Moon fumble on the Houston 19 also set up a 39-yard Johnson field goal with 1:37 left in the third quarter to give Seattle a 10-3 lead.

In the fourth quarter, Houston tied the score 10-10 on Moon's 2-yard touchdown pass to Ernest Givins with 3:46 gone. The Oilers then appeared on their way to either a game-winning touchdown or a Teddy Garcia field goal before James Jefferson intercepted a Moon pass off Allen Pinkett's hands on the Seattle 6 with 3:14 left in regulation.

"We could have won the game if we'd played like we're capable of playing," said a disgruntled William Fuller. "We made some stupid plays that helped them out. If we play like that, anybody can beat us."

"When you hold a team to 10 points in regulation and you think you're a playoff team, you have to find a way to win that football game," added Sean Jones.

Ford was involved in the final play at the end of regulation play that had the Oilers second-guessing themselves.

With 13 seconds left, Moon passed 8 yards to Ford over the middle to the Seahawks 25. Houston was trying to position Garcia for a game-winning field goal.

But Garcia never got that chance because time ran out as Nesby Glasgow of the Seahawks lay on Ford. The Oilers (6-6) hoped to complete a pass and have their receiver step out of bounds.

"We wanted to run two plays," Houston coach Jack Pardee explained. "We wanted to go outside. But maybe the receiver should have dropped the ball."

Ford said the Oilers coaches shouldn't second-guess him.

"That wasn't told to me," Ford said. "They should have told me if they didn't want the completion. The ball was thrown right at me."

Seattle won by the same score in San Diego seven days earlier. It was almost a repeat finish of the Chargers' game, too.

At San Diego, Glasgow forced tight end Arthur Cox to fumble and Porter recovered the ball on the San Diego 23. Johnson kicked a 40-yard field goal 3:01 into overtime.

Baylor tops Dr Pepper play

By The Associated Press

Kelvin Chalmers helped Baylor win its Dr Pepper Invitational with 16 points, but it was the basket that didn't fall that kept the Bears undefeated.

A 3-point shot by Penn State guard Freddie Barnes rimmed out as time expired as the Bears (3-0) held on for a 72-70 victory Saturday night in the championship game. Delaware State beat Northwestern Louisiana 102-90 in the consolation game in Waco.

Texas Christian, the only other undefeated Southwest Conference team, improved to 4-0 with a 92-55 thrashing of Brooklyn College.

In other games Saturday, South Carolina nipped Houston 74-70 in overtime to take the Tournament of Champions in Charlotte, N.C.; Texas A&M beat Mercer 72-65 in the consolation game of the Marshall Memorial Classic in Huntington, W. Va.; New Mexico whipped Texas Tech 66-55 in Lubbock; Rice handled Samford 78-51 at home; Wisconsin beat Southern Methodist 65-49 in Dallas; and Arkansas took care of Kansas State 112-88 in Fayetteville, Ark.

Texas (1-1) was idle. Freshman Willie Sublett added 15 points coming off the bench for Baylor and earned the tournament's Most Valuable Player award.

Sublett sparked Baylor by scoring 13 of the Bears' 17 points when they rallied from a 46-44 deficit to take a 61-59 lead late in the game.

Oliver Miller, fighting a cold, scored 22 points, grabbed a career-high 16 rebounds and blocked three shots as third-ranked Arkansas whipped Kansas State 112-88. The Razorbacks are 5-1.

UNLV remains No. 1 to defend national championship

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Basketball Writer

UNLV, which received the news it wanted last week when the Runnin' Rebels learned they could defend their national championship, remained the No. 1 team in the college basketball poll today.

The Runnin' Rebels, who opened their season Saturday night with a 109-68 victory over Alabama-Birmingham just two days after learning the NCAA shifted their probation from this year's tournament to next season, received 45 first-place votes and 1,579 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters.

Arizona (6-0), the only other school to receive first-place votes, and Arkansas (5-1) held second and third, while Syracuse (4-0) and Duke (5-1) each jumped three places to be fourth and fifth, respectively.

Three teams joined the Top 25 this week — No. 21 South Carolina, No. 24 Temple and No. 25 Kentucky.

Arizona, which was No. 1 on 19 ballots, had 1,555 points, while Arkansas, which lost to the Wildcats in the preseason NIT championship game, had 1,435.

Syracuse had 1,312, 80 more than the Blue Devils, whose only loss was to Arkansas in the NIT semifinals.

Georgetown (3-0) and Indiana (4-1) each jumped three places to sixth and seventh, respectively, while UCLA, Ohio State and North Carolina rounded out the Top Ten.

The Hoyas, who have yet to beat a Division I team, had 1,164 points, 54 more than Indiana, which rebounded from last week's loss to Syracuse with wins over local rivals Notre Dame and Louisville.

UCLA (4-0), which has set the school's single-game scoring twice this season, including Sunday night with a 149-98 win over Loyola Marymount, had 1,097 points. The Buckeyes, who have broken the 100-point mark in each of their victories this season, had 1,069 points, 71 more than North Carolina (3-1), which dropped from fourth to 10th after losing to South Carolina 76-74 in the semifinals of the Tournament of Champions in the first meeting of the border rivals in 18 years.

Pittsburgh led the Second Ten with 957 points and was followed by Alabama, Georgia, Connecticut, Southern Mississippi, Oklahoma, St. John's, Louisiana State, Michigan State and Georgia Tech.

The final five in the balloting were South Carolina, Virginia, Texas, Temple and Kentucky.

Buffalo Bills still seek to convince skeptics with victory over Eagles

By The Associated Press

The Buffalo Bills are December bridesmaids and NFC patsies no more.

The Philadelphia Eagles came into Rich Stadium on Sunday riding a five-game winning streak and a confidence-boosting victory last week against the previously unbeaten New York Giants.

But the Bills, 2-5 in December and 3-5 against the NFC the last two seasons, were up to the task, rolling to a 24-0 lead and holding on to beat the Eagles 30-23.

"It's just up to us to prove everybody wrong," linebacker Darryl Talley said.

The Bills, 10-2 and, because of Miami's loss to Washington, in sole possession of first place in the AFC East. Still, linebacker Cornelius Bennett said, the skeptics probably are still not convinced.

"Sooner or later, they are going to become Bills fans, one way or another," he said. "Even if we have to win the Super Bowl."

Elsewhere in the NFL on Sunday, it was Tampa Bay 23, Atlanta 17; Cincinnati 16, Pittsburgh 12; Chicago 23, Detroit 17 in overtime; Kansas City 37, New England 7; the Los Angeles Rams 38, Cleveland 23; Washington 42, Miami 20; Seattle 13, Houston 10 in overtime; Phoenix 20, Indianapolis 17; the Los Angeles Raiders 23, Denver 20; Dallas 17, New Orleans 13; San Diego 38, the New York Jets 17; and Minnesota 23, Green Bay 7.

Tonight, the New York Giants are at San Francisco, which clinched the NFC West when New Orleans lost to Dallas.

Jim Kelly, who threw for a season-high 334 yards for Buffalo, threw a 63-yard touchdown pass to James Lofton on the second play of the game. Lofton caught four other passes and finished the game with 174 yards, moving him into third place on the NFL's all-time list for receiving yardage with 11,889 yards.

The Eagles punted after failing to make a first down on their first two possessions, and Buffalo came back with Scott Norwood's 43-yard field goal and Kelly throwing a short pass to Andre Reed that he turned into a 56-yard touchdown and a 17-0 margin.

The Eagles got two first downs on their next series, but they punted again. Three plays later, Kelly beat a blitz with a pass to Lofton for a 71-yard gain, setting up a 4-yard scoring strike to Thurman Thomas that made it 24-0 with 1:42 left in the first period.

"We were kind of stunned," said rookie cornerback Ben Smith, who covered Lofton on both of his long receptions.

"The first quarter just killed us," Eagles coach Buddy Ryan said. "We weren't tackling or covering."

Bears 23, Lions 17, OT

Chicago, given a new life when Detroit's Eddie Murray missed a 35-yard field goal attempt in overtime, improved its record to 10-2 on Jim Harbaugh's 50-yard pass to Neal Anderson.

Green Bay's loss to Minnesota later Sunday clinched the NFC Central title for the Bears, who gambled by taking the wind when they won the coin toss after Kevin Butler's 19-yard field goal with 33 seconds to go forced overtime.

Vikings 23, Packers 7

Anthony Carter's spectacular 56-yard catch off a flea-flicker and Fuad Revez's three field goals led Minnesota to its fifth straight victory.

Minnesota Vikings wide receiver Anthony Carter (81) lunges out in the end zone to take the ball away from Green Bay Packers cornerback Mark Lee for a 56-yard touchdown catch in the third quarter of Sunday's game.

The Vikings (6-6), back in the wild-card chase in the NFC, scored 17 points in a 2:54 span of the third period in pulling even with the Packers in the division.

Cowboys 17, Saints 13

Dallas (6-7) also stayed alive in the wild-card race by reversing a 28-0 loss to New Orleans last year in Jimmy Johnson's NFL coaching debut. It was the first consecutive home victories for Dallas since 1985.

Redskins 42, Dolphins 20

Washington demolished the league's top-rated defense, with Earnest Byner rushing for 157 yards and three touchdowns.

The Dolphins, allowing 85 yards a game on the ground, yielded 222 to the Redskins. Miami gave up 467 yards overall and more points than they had in the last five weeks combined.

Art Monk led the passing assault with 10 receptions for 92 yards and two scores. The host Redskins (7-5) held Miami to 34 yards rushing.

Bengals 16, Steelers 12

Cincinnati denied Pittsburgh coach Chuck Noll his 200th regular-season victory with its sixth straight victory over the Steelers.

Pittsburgh drove to the Bengals' 7 in the final three minutes, but Bobby Brister threw four straight incompletions into the end zone.

The biggest defensive play of the game for Cincinnati came when it sacked Brister in the end zone for a second-quarter safety that made it 9-6. The Bengals (7-5) drove 63 yards in 12 plays after the free kick, and James Brooks' 7-yard touchdown run gave them a 16-6 halftime lead.

Boomer Esiason threw only 14 passes for the Bengals, but one of them was a 50-yarder to Eddie Brown in the first quarter.

Gary Anderson kicked four field goals for Pittsburgh (6-6). Seahawks 13, Oilers 10, OT

Seattle won another last-second thriller, taking advantage of Houston's overtime fumble to win on Norm Johnson's 42-yard field goal.

The Seahawks, who have played four consecutive games decided on the final play, have won three of those, including two straight in overtime.

This time, Bernard Ford fumbled at the Houston 27 on a hit by Tony Woods. Dave Wyman recovered, John L. Williams ran twice and Johnson connected.

Chargers 38, Jets 17

Marion Butts joined Buffalo's Thurman Thomas as the league's first two 1,000-yard rushers this season. Butts ran for 159 yards, giving him a league-leading 1,154, and scored twice.

The Jets (4-9) lost their fourth-straight despite two TD catches by Al Toon.

Raiders 23, Broncos 20

Another outstanding rushing performance came from Bo Jackson, who ran for second-half touchdowns of 11 and 62 yards and had 117 yards overall. He helped keep the Raiders tied with the Chiefs atop the AFC West.

Denver (3-9) had a chance to force overtime and perhaps avert its fifth straight loss and eighth in nine games. But as David Treadwell lined up for a 41-yard field goal with seven seconds left, a high snap forced Treadwell to hurry the kick and Scott Davis deflected it.

Chiefs 37, Patriots 7

Another long day for New England, which has lost a club-record

10 straight to sink to 1-11, began early. Steve DeBerg hit Stephone Paige for an 86-yard touchdown with 21 seconds gone and threw for 312 yards in the first half. Kansas City (8-4) scored on its first five possessions and Albert Lewis blocked his fourth punt of the year, giving the Chiefs an NFL-record six.

Cardinals 20, Colts 17

Phoenix (4-8) snapped Indianapolis' three-game winning streak by ending Jeff George's run without an interception at 146. The Colts (5-7) led 17-6 after three quarters.

Bucs 23, Falcons 17

A streak had to end, and it was Tampa Bay's six-loss slide. The Falcons (3-9) have dropped 17 consecutive road games and lost their fifth in a row overall when Vinny Testaverde found Mark Carrier for a 35-yard touchdown with 39 seconds to go.

Steve Christie added field goals of 39, 44 and 21 yards for the Bucs (5-8).

Rams 38, Browns 23

Jim Everett had four TDs passes after not getting one in three games, and Henry Ellard became the Rams' all-time leading receiver. Ellard had four different receivers score: Pete Holohan, Gaston Green, Robert Delpino and Buford McGee.

Everett completed 22 of 29 passes for 261 yards and was not intercepted. The Rams (5-7) had four different receivers score: Pete Holohan, Gaston Green, Robert Delpino and Buford McGee.

Cleveland (2-10) has lost seven straight, including a team-record six consecutive home games. The Browns are 0-3 since Jim Shofner replaced Bud Carson as head coach on Nov. 5.

New Orleans Saints quarterback Steve Walsh (4) is pressured by Dallas Cowboys defender Jimmie Jones, left, as he throws from the end during the fourth quarter Sunday afternoon in Irving.

Cowboys near a possible playoff berth with win over New Orleans

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) — Jimmy Johnson said in training camp he wouldn't be happy with less than a winning season.

The second-year coach of the Dallas Cowboys might reach that goal and astound critics of his "college" offense and defense by making the NFL playoffs.

Johnson also pro'ed on Sunday he kept the right quarterback in a 17-13 victory over the New Orleans Saints.

Troy Aikman shot down Steve Walsh in a duel of Dallas first-round draft picks. Walsh was traded by the Cowboys to New Orleans two months ago although he had played for Johnson at the University of Miami.

"I had feelings for Steve but that's because I have feelings for my players, too," Johnson said. "But as a coach it didn't bother me during the game. As a coach, I can assure you I wasn't thinking about it."

Aikman directed Dallas on two 30-yard scoring drives and threw a 5-yard scoring pass to Darryl Johnston.

Aikman hit 15 of 21 passes for 177 yards. For the first time in 14 games, he had no interceptions.

Walsh completed 18 of 27 passes for 177 yards.

"Troy was just excellent," said Johnson. "Troy made some great plays against an outstanding rush."

Dallas improved to 6-7 while New Orleans dropped to 5-7, and it was hard not to look ahead to a possible Cowboys playoff berth.

"Everybody starts talking about the playoffs but for us every win is great," said Johnson. "You worry about having some success and then get complacent about it."

As defensive tackle Dean Hamel said last year's 1-15 season is still on his mind.

"After last year, which was really tough, this feels awfully good," Hamel said. "Our guys are just fightin' and scratchin'. We keep winning these games in the fourth quarter which is surprising for such a young team."

Dallas has won all six games in the fourth period.

Dallas has a week off and Johnson said, "I'm not talking playoffs yet. I'll have to wait until after next weekend."

Aikman, who hit only 4 of 10 passes for 29 yards in the first half, completed all 11 of his second-half throws.

"It was tough putting the duel with Steve out of my mind but I just took a 'I don't care attitude,'" Aikman said. "Steve and I spoke before the game. I think he played well, hitting some key passes."

The victory was revenge for a 28-0 loss to New Orleans last year in Johnson's NFL coaching debut. It marked the first back-to-back home victories for Dallas since 1985.

It also was the first time Dallas had won three games in a row since 1986. It was the first back-to-back victories at home since 1985.

Dallas is 8-0 against the Saints in Texas Stadium.

"We've won three in a row and that hasn't been done around here in a long time," Aikman said.

Walsh, the first round pick by Dallas in the 1989 supplemental draft, said he felt a little odd going against Dallas.

"A defeat is a defeat and it hurts," Walsh said. "It doesn't matter who is on the other side. It did feel a little different because I knew the guys on the other team. Otherwise, no big deal."

Saints linebacker Vaughan Johnson said New Orleans is a longshot playoff team now.

"It was a game that we felt we had to win and we didn't," Johnson said. "We felt we had to have it to keep our playoff hopes alive."

Dallas safety Ray Horton said he felt like he had just hit a big payoff at a race track.

Hawaii stops BYU's hope for national championship

By RICK WARNER
AP Football Writer

Brigham Young's hopes for a national championship died in Honolulu, but Georgia Tech, Miami and Texas remained very much alive in the title chase.

Hawaii humiliated fourth-ranked BYU 59-28 hours after Cougar quarterback Ty Detmer won the Heisman Trophy on Saturday. Detmer was intercepted four times in the first half and threw for only 319 yards, his second-lowest total since becoming a full-time starter two years ago.

The loss, BYU's second of the season, made it hard for Detmer to savor his Heisman victory over Notre Dame's Raghib "Rocket" Ismail.

"After a loss like this, you just can't enjoy it the way it should be enjoyed," Detmer said.

Although Detmer set NCAA records for most passing yards (5,188) in a season and most touchdowns passes (86) in a career, he had a miserable time against Hawaii. Fans at Aloha Stadium taunted him by shouting, "The Rocket should have got it," and Hawaii receiver Jeff Snyder celebrated a touchdown catch by imitating the Heisman Trophy stance.

Georgia Tech had reason to celebrate after beating arch-rival Georgia 40-23. The second-ranked Yellow Jackets (10-0-1) extended their unbeaten streak to 15 games and remained the only major team without a loss.

If Notre Dame beats top-ranked Colorado (10-1-1) in the Orange Bowl and Tech defeats

Nebraska in the Citrus Bowl, the Yellow Jackets would have a strong claim to the national title.

"I want to be No. 1, but we still have another game to play," said Tech quarterback Shawn Jones, who threw for 225 yards and four touchdowns.

Third-ranked Miami (9-2) edged San Diego State 30-28 in a game marred by a bench-clearing brawl.

"We're satisfied with the win, but we'd like to look a little better doing it," said Miami quarterback Craig Erickson, who threw for 284 yards and two touchdowns.

The fight was triggered by Shane Curry's late hit on San Diego State quarterback Dan McGwire after he threw a 2-point conversion pass with 2:40 left.

"He body-slammed me," said McGwire, who passed for 323 yards and two touchdowns.

"After the game, he apologized. He didn't know I had gotten rid of the ball."

Fifth-ranked Texas (10-1), which will meet Miami in the Cotton Bowl, closed out its regular season with a 28-27 victory over Texas A&M. It was the Longhorns' first victory over the Aggies in seven years.

"If we beat a great Miami team, then I certainly believe we deserve to be considered as a national championship team," Texas coach David McWilliams said. "But I know Miami will have something to say about that."

A&M's Darren Lewis ran for three touchdowns and 150 yards, becoming the fifth rusher in NCAA history to surpass 5,000 yards in his career. But he was stopped short on a 2-point conversion attempt that would have put the Aggies ahead with less than four minutes left.

"We didn't want to tie," A&M coach R.C. Slocum said. "Both teams played hard and neither team wanted that. We went for the win and came up short."

No. 8 Florida State beat No. 6 Florida 45-30 behind the rushing of Amp Lee and the passing of Casey Weldon. Lee ran for 147 yards and three touchdowns and Weldon threw for 325 yards and two scores as the Seminoles (9-2) beat the Gators (9-2) for the fourth straight year.

"They had a good plan and they've got a lot better players than we thought they did," Florida coach Steve Spurrier said.

Florida State is heading to the Dec. 28 Blockbuster Bowl against Penn State. Florida can't play in a bowl because of NCAA probation.

Tennessee won the Southeastern Conference title and earned a Sugar Bowl berth by beating Vanderbilt 49-20.

The 12th-ranked Volunteers (8-2-2), who will play Virginia on New Year's Day, came back to win after trailing 17-14 at halftime.

"It was tougher than even I imagined," Tennessee coach Johnny Majors said.

Alabama beat Auburn 16-7 for the first time in five years to earn a spot in the Fiesta Bowl against Louisville. No. 20 Auburn plays Indiana in the Peach Bowl and No. 15 Mississippi meets Michigan in the Gator Bowl.

St. Louis singing the blues over hockey losing streak

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Hockey Writer

At this point in the NHL season, the St. Louis Blues are trying to figure out what's wrong. Strangely enough, the Quebec Nordiques are suddenly doing everything right.

After establishing themselves as one of the elite teams in the league, the Blues can't buy a victory these days. A 3-2 loss to Chicago on Sunday night extended their current winless streak to six games—0-4-2.

The Nordiques, meanwhile, have come out of the doldrums—and last place overall in the NHL—with a four-game unbeaten streak (2-0-2) that included a dramatic 5-5 tie with the powerful Calgary Flames on Sunday night.

"I think the guys are a lot more confident now," Tony McKegney said after the Nordiques came back from a two-goal deficit in the third period to tie the Flames. "I think they know now that we can come back with a strong third period and win games, or tie them, as we did tonight."

In other NHL games, it was Edmonton 6, Philadelphia 3; Detroit 3, Buffalo 3, and Vancouver 5, Winnipeg 1.

Nordiques 5, Flames 5

Joe Sakic scored a power-play goal at 16:12 of the third period to cap the Nordiques' comeback from a 5-3 deficit. Quebec fell behind by two goals at 1:28 in the third period before rallying on goals by Tony Hrkac and Sakic.

Sakic popped in a rebound for the Nordiques, who have the second lowest point total in the NHL behind Toronto (5-18-6 for 16 points).

Blackhawks 3, Blues 2

Steve Larmer notched his 400th career assist and Dirk Graham contributed a key shorthanded goal as Chicago defeated St. Louis.

The loss pushed the Blues five points behind the first-place Blackhawks in the Norris Division.

Larmer, playing in his 669th straight game, and Graham helped the Blackhawks build a 3-0 lead. Goaltender Ed Belfour, winning his NHL-high 16th game, allowed third-period goals by Brett Hull and Rich Sutter before shutting the door.

Oilers 6, Flyers 3

Mark Messier's power-play goal midway through the third period broke a 3-3 tie as Edmonton beat Philadelphia and snapped the Flyers' six-game unbeaten streak (5-0-1).

The win was just the Oilers' second in their last 12 games in Philadelphia (9-2-1).

Red Wings 3, Sabres 3

The Red Wings appeared headed for victory when Shawn Burr scored his second goal of the game at 16:58 of the third period.

However, with goaltender Clint Malarchuk on the bench for an extra attacker, Andreychuk went to work. Dale Hawerchuk backhanded the puck in front and Andreychuk moved into the slot and picked the far corner on Glen Hanlon to force overtime.

Canucks 5, Jets 1

Greg Adams and Trevor Linden each scored two goals to power Vancouver over Winnipeg.

The Jets (9-17-3) have won just twice in 12 games and their lead over last-place Edmonton in the Smythe Division slipped to one point.

Vancouver gained just its third win against Smythe opposition in nine games this season.

Steve Bozek also scored for the Canucks and defenseman Garth Butcher had four assists. Fredrik Olausson had the Winnipeg goal.

Portland Trail Blazers continue their string of victories

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

The Portland Trail Blazers, feeling right at home in the NBA early in the season, are ready to take their 14-1 record on the road.

The Blazers, after beating Utah 101-97 Sunday night behind Buck Williams' season-high 23 points and 11 rebounds, have compiled the NBA's best record by playing all but four games at home.

They leave this week for four games on the road, but the first three stops are in Miami, Orlando and Indiana, where the teams have won less than 30 percent of their games. The fourth game will be at Chicago.

"We know going on this trip that we have Miami and Orlando and if we play well we have a good chance to win. If we don't play well, they'll knock us off," coach Rick Adelman said. "We have every ability to win on this trip."

Elsewhere in the NBA on Sunday, Indiana tripped Milwaukee 107-103 and the Los Angeles Clippers routed Minnesota 102-77.

Portland snapped Utah's five-game winning streak with more late-game heroics by Terry Porter, who scored 10 of his 17 points in the fourth quarter, including two 3-pointers in the final 5:06.

On Saturday night, Porter's 3-pointer at the buzzer forced the second overtime in Seattle, and the Trail Blazers won in the three overtimes.

"That reminds you of what he did last year in the playoffs," Adelman said. "I think Terry always has that ability. He's always been a big-time player when the game is on the line."

"I'm not afraid to do things at the end of a ball game," Porter said.

Karl Malone, who led the Jazz with 36 points and 16 rebounds, said the team had reason for encouragement despite the loss.

"Portland is a great team. A lot of people say they're the best team in the league," he said. "We've won five in a row and we had a heck of a chance to win tonight. You've got to be encouraged."

John Stockton added 17 points and 14 assists for Utah, which shot only 41 percent from the field.

Clippers 102, Timberwolves 77

Minnesota failed to reach 80 points for the second straight game and Los Angeles rookie Bo Kimble scored 21 of his season-high 27 points in the first half.

Charles Smith, who scored 52 points Saturday night at Denver, added 26 points and 14 rebounds for the Clippers, while Tony Campbell scored 20 points for the Timberwolves.

Pacers 107, Bucks 103

Chuck Person scored 20 points as Indiana fought back from a 14-point first-period deficit and snapped a four-game losing streak by defeating Milwaukee.

Person and Reggie Miller, who scored 19 points, hit two free throws each in the final 20 seconds to put the Pacers ahead 105-102.

The Bucks' Jay Humphries was fouled with 5.1 seconds left, but he missed one of his two free throws. Detlef Schrempf was fouled at the other end and sank both free throws, giving him 18 points and sealing the victory.

Milwaukee got 16 points and 14 rebounds from Jack Sikma.

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Mark David Chapman says that he feels great remorse for killing John Lennon but that the slaying doesn't make him an evil person.

"You can't judge a man's life by one act. Before I became 'The man who murdered John Lennon,' I was basically a decent person," Chapman said from his isolation cell at Attica state prison, where he is serving 20 years to life.

In the interview in Sunday's Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, Chapman said he suffered mental dissolution for years before killing the former Beatle on Dec. 8, 1980 outside Lennon's apartment building in New York City.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Whoopi Goldberg was named black Entertainer of the Year and won best supporting actress honors for her role in "Ghost" at the NAACP Image Awards.

Pampa on parade

Abducted woman recounts trek of terror through Fort Worth

FORT WORTH (AP) — Breaking her silence after two days of seclusion, an optical store worker has recalled a 30-hour ordeal of terror that she and a co-worker endured following their abduction last week.

Yvonne Molina, 23, of Fort Worth said she feared for her life Tuesday even though her captors promised no one would be hurt, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday.

The two armed men broke that pledge when they killed Ms. Molina's friend and co-worker, Cruz Torrez, 41.

The two suspects wanted in the case were arrested and taken into custody Saturday night in Clarendon, Ark., following a routine traffic stop.

David Hernandez, 37, and Servando Pachecano Jr., 24, were being held in the Monroe County Jail, pending extradition to Texas, Sgt. Randy Julian of the Monroe County sheriff's office said.

Ms. Molina chauffeured her captors in her own car for hours, with one of them holding a gun to her side while a knife-wielding accomplice rode in the back seat next to Mrs. Torrez.

She said she contemplated wrecking the car in hopes it would jar her and Mrs. Torrez away from their captors and allow them to escape.

She decided against causing a wreck, she said, "because more than likely they the kidnapers would be the only ones living through it."

Ms. Molina said the suspects had at first intended to leave Mrs. Torrez locked in a bathroom at the Credit Optical store where the two women were abducted. But they changed their minds, expressing fears that the mother of four, would escape and contact police.

Ms. Molina said she was in a back room of the store and had just finished counting the day's business receipts when, through a mirror, she saw the reflection of two men entering the shop. She said Mrs. Torrez was at the front counter when the men entered about 5:50 p.m. Tuesday.

All seemed quiet in the front room, Ms. Molina said, when a man walked up behind her, brandishing a gun.

"He told me to get all the money out of my purse," Ms. Molina said. She said the man then rifled through Mrs. Torrez's purse.

After gathering no more than $100, the robber began asking for more money and Ms. Molina replied that there was none, she said. "He kept saying that I better not be lying to him."

Ms. Molina said the man also "told me to be calm and to not do any sudden move or he would kill me."

She said he then led her into the front room, where she saw Mrs. Torrez frozen still as the other man scooped up eyewear from display racks.

Ms. Molina said the gunman ushered Mrs. Torrez into the bathroom and locked the door. She said the other robber shouted "She's going to call the cops, she's going to get out and she's going to call the cops. Go back in there and get her out and bring her with us."

Ms. Molina said she was then forced to lead the men to her car where they drove through south Fort Worth for hours.

Ms. Molina said that through her rearview mirror she could see Mrs. Torrez sitting erect in the back seat, her head cocked to the right so she could not see her captors.

"She didn't talk at all," Ms. Molina said. "I just told her that we would get through this."

Ms. Molina said she did not want to talk about what happened when they were taken to a shack in northeast Fort Worth, where Mrs. Torrez was suffocated, because it would only cause further grief for her friend's family.

"I'm sorry for what happened to Cruz. And I hope the Torrez family can just take it day by day," Ms. Molina said.

"I often wondered why they let me go. But I really don't know. I did what they said," Ms. Molina said.

After Mrs. Torrez was killed, Ms. Molina was taken to a west Dallas County motel and later driven to Fort Worth, where she was freed early Thursday.

"I'm just glad to be home," she said. "I'm glad to be with my family and I can see my son. I'm glad to let everybody know that I'm still alive."

"I will overcome this, somehow. It may not be soon, but I will do it."

Shuttle Columbia finally blasts off on long-delayed astronomy mission

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia blasted off Sunday after an agonizing half-year delay with seven astronauts and an astronomical observatory that will examine some of the hottest objects in the heavens.

The shuttle rose from its seaside pad atop a 700-foot pillar of flame at 1:49 a.m. EDT. It was the sixth nighttime launch in 38 shuttle flights.

The 100-ton spaceship flooded the sky with light visible hundreds of miles away as it thundered toward a 218-mile-high orbit. Its journey into space was supposed to have been in May, then September, but was postponed repeatedly by hydrogen leaks.

A thick layer of clouds threatened to call off the latest launch attempt, and NASA delayed the liftoff 21 minutes while determining that visibility was sufficient for a safe takeoff.

After the brief delay, the moonlit sky proved to be clear enough for launch.

Two minutes into the flight, Columbia's two solid fuel rockets burned out and dropped into the Atlantic Ocean. The shuttle continued upward on the thrust of its three main liquid fuel engines.

It was the fifth time the National Aeronautics and Space Administration tried to send Columbia on the astronomy mission. Three countdowns were halted by leaking hydrogen and another by a problem with the Astro observatory.

Following the fourth launch attempt in mid-September, more repairs were made on Columbia.

The shuttle was cleared for flight during a fueling test a month ago.

"It's been a long year since January when Columbia previously flew. So flying Astro on Columbia signifies to us that the long summer of hydrogen leaks is totally behind us," launch director Bob Sieck said Saturday.

It is NASA's sixth shuttle flight this year, three fewer than planned because of the hydrogen leaks that grounded Columbia and Atlantis through summer and early fall. Atlantis returned from a secret military flight less than two weeks ago.

Astronomers have been waiting anxiously to send up the $150 million observatory since the mission's original launch date in 1986. The mission was delayed until this year by the Challenger accident.

Violence erupts in New York newspaper strike, three arrested

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Daily News replacement drivers were charged with possessing a loaded, unlicensed gun, a pipe bomb was found near the paper's Brooklyn plant and a striker was charged with assaulting a News hawker.

Meanwhile, Publisher James Hoge, fearing a fight over subway newspaper sales today, said the Metropolitan Transit Authority should seek an injunction if transit workers threaten to walk out in solidarity with Daily News strikers.

A 6-inch pipe bomb was found Sunday on a ramp leading to a truck parking area at the News' Brooklyn printing plant, police said. Nearby were two unexploded, M-80 firecrackers taped to boxes of nails, authorities said.

Police had gone there to investigate 12 explosions, apparently caused by firecrackers, said Sgt. Tina Mohrmann.

The News said about 200 strikers threw cherry bombs and M-80 firecrackers.

Sgt. Peter Sweeney, another police spokesman, said one man was arrested for throwing a bottle that hit an officer. In addition, four demonstrators were arrested for disorderly conduct, he said.

In a separate incident, two News replacement drivers were charged with weapons possession after a loaded .25-caliber handgun was found in the front seat of their truck early Sunday, police said.
