Russian And UN

A reader has suggested that some effort be made to publicize the amazing parallels between the constitution of the Soviet Union, and various documents of the U.N., including the Charter. The suggestion is timely and important. For many a glib American presumes that the Soviet Union is truly the leader of a new social order. There can be no question of the fact that the thinking which caused the Soviet constitution to be drafted, and the thinking behind the Charter of the United Nations and the U.N. Declaration of Human Rights, are parallel to the point of being nearly identical.

Socialist Goal

In a subject as large as the one we have undertaken above, to wit: a study of the parallels between the Russian constitution and United Nations documents, there is a temptation to presume that once the parallel has been glimpsed, its full implications will be recognized.

We will have to fight down this temptation for the implications are of such significance as the discovery of the parallels and must be fully grasped. We have shown in the above that at least on one point there is accord between the Soviet constitution and the U.N. Charter, as well as the U.N. Declaration of Human Rights, respecting the subject of work.

All three documents make it clear that it is the responsibility of government to provide employment. That here must be full employment. The Declaration goes so far as to proclaim that minimum and equal wages must be established, that working conditions must be "safe and healthy" and even that vacations with pay are a requirement.

'Ve Have Failed Completely To Teach Children To Think'
I am continuing to quote from Dr. Mortimer J. Adler's article in the Feb. 22 issue of the "U.S. News and World Report". The last article ended by Adler answering the question as to whether there were any exceptions to his contention that students were not as well-disciplined in the actual processes of study and learning as in the schools of earlier centuries. Adler admitted there were some exceptions; that there were some bright students who were energetic and studied, but he said the conditions are growing much worse.

Then Adler was asked: "Did that come with mass education?" Adler's answer: "What educators should have faced is this hard question: How do you do for those whose educational aptitude is low exactly what you do for the most gifted in proportion to their capacity?" Adler contends that the desire for children to learn is almost as strong as the desire for food, except when they are about to starve. And the questions that children ask indicate they have a strong will to understand.

The whole theory of progressive education, if progressive education means that the child is permitted to study as much as he wants to and what he wants to, and is graded according to what his teacher thinks his effort is, and is passed no matter what his grades are, is completely at odds with compulsory school attendance. How can a child be forced to attend school and at the same time let him do as he pleases after he gets there? The teachers under these circumstances have to be irresponsible.

speech, Williams charged the IRS, with State Department approval, had granted similar large tax deductions in a number of other instances of foreign graft by American firms. LATEST MISSILE VERSION — Central Intelligence Director Allen Dulles has tossed a new bombshell into the noisy controversy of who is ahead in the life-and-death long-range missile race. At a private briefing, Dulles revealed that Russia is now tooling up for the production of a "second generation of more powerful and accurate intercontinental ballistic missiles."

completely to teach children to think. Adler was asked why publicly supported liberal education must be continued. He answered by saying: "If education, both in and out of schools, were to remain as it is now, that society would destroy itself, out of the misuse of its time, because of the degradations and corruption that would have to ensue just from sheer boredom. You know, free time is like a vacuum — it has to be filled, in good ways or bad ways, but it has to be filled. People cannot sleep it all away."

fact that the U.N. is a wider and more vigorous effort even than Russia to accomplish universal socialism; we turn back again to the U.N. Charter, Article 55. We continue from where we broke off above: "b. solutions of international economic, social, health and related problems; and international cultural and educational cooperation; and "c. universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion."

Looking Sideways

by WHITNEY BOLTON
NEW YORK — Certain shadowy friends who live in Washington (D. C., that is) occasionally send me transfixing items from the daily news that flows from that fount of information and high purpose. Most of the time, these snippets of fact are about as useful as a toothless rake, but this time, by golly, I am hypnotized with interest. The news is that the United States Navy would not be cold to selling some obsolete submarines to civilians but simply does not know how best to go about attracting the right kind of customer.

Anonymous Olympics Will Never Catch On

Mr. Avery Brundage's suggestion — if the man ever made anything as weak as a suggestion — that all national flags and all national anthems be banned at Olympic Games, comes as no surprise.

I had planned to be on deck one sunrise — it was a great watcher of rising suns on those days — and save the American Olympic team to the games in Berlin. Eleanor's idea of training did not match that of Mr. Brundage. He placed high value on such items as milk, sleep, and quiet contemplation. She thought milk and sleep were for babies, and that a real breakfast of champions, especially on shipboard, involved champagne, strawberries, and an occasional burst of song.

And what happens to you — an American — happened to the citizens of every other country who are in the stands. Mr. Brundage might manage to have the flags kept from flying, and the bands mute, but he won't change the people. Not if he goes even further and has the athletes compete anonymously, minus national colors, national names. Properly, the Olympic games are not countries. But that ideal situation is a long way off. And as long as nationalism exists, the flags and anthems might just as well be flown and played.

Fair Enough

Personal Protection No Proof of Guilt

I need not say that I have no sympathy for vendors of narcotics in protesting against the outrage of the so-called Apalachin case. I need not say, sitting right here in midtown Manhattan, the name of a likely prospect at the moment but I think I could walk into a variety of watering holes in the neighborhood and drum up some interest. I think if I walked into Absinthe House or Sardi's or some such oasis about 6 p. m. and, after casually ordering an aperitif, said quietly: "Anybody want a submarine at the right price?" I would command immediate attention. A submarine is something that does not come along every day.

There exists, too, the problem of driving one of the things. Although our pleasant little island is surrounded by waters, a bay, two rivers and a creek, and we have some expert sailing men on hand, the fact is that running a submarine without drowning in it takes skill. Now, there is Billy Rose: he has everything. Money, paintings, a town house, a Rolls-Royce and other treasures. He might, just conceivably, want to be the first on his block to own a submarine.

Congress had made itself contemptible by sending a ridiculous representative into the public eye. So if Costello was guilty of contempt that contempt was appropriate.

I have a friend out on Long Island who years to get out of the country and start a small, expensive and terribly smart restaurant and he would be a possible prospect. How many people run a restaurant in a submarine? He could call the bar area the Torpedo Room, but some sound and dedicated drinkers find themselves torpedoed nightly without having to climb down into a submarine. I even thought of a little table for two in the corner tower to be called 'The Coming Tower' since most fellows these loose days are not sincere sailors but are, instead, always trying to con some, but that seemed a little obvious.

Just maybe, however, this will give the Navy some ideas.

Walter Rogers Reports Sugar Act Destined To Be A Hot Issue In Congress

The question of whether or not the Sugar Act should be renewed for one year may turn out to be one of the hottest issues during this session of Congress, the reason being that Cuba furnishes about one-third of the sugar used in this country. In round figures, Cuba last year furnished 3,215,437 short tons (raw value) of the United States consumption of 9,400,000 tons. In fact, we buy more sugar from Cuba than from any other source, including all the sugar produced in this country. The final adjusted quotas for 1959 were as follows:

Sugar	12,405
Virgin Islands	980,000
Philippines	3,215,437
Cuba	278,545
Full Duty Foreign	$,400,000
Totals	9,400,000

Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, because of droughts or other causes, were unable to meet their original quotas by almost 300,000 tons. This deficit was divided up between the domestic beet growers, the mainland cane growers, and Cuba. The domestic beet growers got 224,185 tons, mainland cane growers got 68,984 tons, and Cuba got 95,802 tons. It will be noted in the table above that Cuba is being permitted to provide approximately 300,000 short tons more than the domestic beet growers and the mainland cane growers thrown together are allowed to produce.

GROWN-UP — She's only 19, but Natalie Trundy appeared in 200 TV shows and a Broadway play before marrying a hubby with 20 million dollars and taking on Hollywood to make a name in films.

In fact, this country, together with Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, which are all a part of this country, produce less than 35 percent of our sugar needs. One of the reasons argued in support of this law is that sugar can be purchased from Cuba at a much lower price than it can be produced in this country, even though a premium above the world price is being paid to Cuba. In any event, the program definitely cuts down the number of acres of sugar beets and cane which can be grown in this country.

And it might be pointed out that it is generally accepted without question that this country could produce its sugar needs domestically without too much effort. In view of this situation and the feeling generally that the present government of Cuba has been hostile to this country and overly friendly to the USSR, there is a great deal of sentiment for a re-appraisal of this country of the entire sugar situation, especially the preferred treatment which has been accorded Cuba.

There are several schools of thought, one being that the Congress should immediately act to withdraw any further grant of quotas or preferred treatment to Cuba. Another is that the quota being enjoyed by Cuba at the present time should be measurably reduced and spread among other sugar producing countries. Still another is that the quota now held by Cuba should be measurably reduced and that portion given to mainland beet and cane growers.

There is still another to the effect that the matter should remain static, and that any and all increases in sugar demands of this country should be filled by increasing acreage allotments to mainland beet and cane growers. Some argue that to take the entire quota away from Cuba or even to measurably reduce it would be playing into the hands of the Reds.

They feel that the Castro government would merely say to the world that the United States was punishing it for no good reason. Others feel that unless something is done to cut off or reduce the Cuban quota in the face of Cuba's recent actions which, taken at a minimum, have been definitely not friendly, this country could justifiably be accused of being soft.

Regardless of the school of thought to which anyone might subscribe, I think it could be unanimously agreed in this country that it is not to the best interest of this country to permit a Red-controlled government to be established practically at our front door, and certainly it is not to the best interests of this country to help finance the setting up of such a Red-controlled government. —d that is what is happening. And many think just that. Whatever happens, every consideration possible should be given to increasing the production by mainland producers.

The names of those who achieved this honor were released by Dr. George Detmold, Dean of the College, and included Wanda May Wood of 411 North Madden, Shamrock, Texas, a graduate of the Oklahoma Schools for the Deaf at Sulphur, Oklahoma. It made my heart swell with pride when I received this good news. I know of the great accomplishments by the faculty and students of this fine college, and everyone in the Panhandle should be deeply proud and honored at this fine accomplishment of Wanda May.

Young Music Lovers
High school students visiting Washington this year will again have the opportunity of enjoying free concerts given by the National Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Howard Mitchell. This series is made possible by Mrs. Merrivether Post and the National Symphony. It will be conducted for five weeks from April 21st through May 23rd. Any of you desiring to attend these concerts or any of them, please let me know and we will arrange to get your free tickets.

Visitors
We were honored to have three visitors from the Panhandle in Washington last week. Mr. Kenneth Kendrick from Stratford, Mr. Dave Moore, Chamber of Commerce Manager from Borger, and Mr. George Gandy from Wheeler were all in town on business and we certainly appreciated visiting with all of them here in the office.

LIFT THE HOOD!
LEARN WHERE CHEVY'S GOT THE JUMP
ON ALL OTHER LOW-PRICED CARS

It's plain to see that Chevy holds the whip hand under the hood. You get a choice of seven engines and five transmissions—the widest in the industry—to satisfy the most finicky driver. And all of Chevrolet's popular engines have an automatic choke, a positive-shifting starter, oil-hushed hydraulic valve lifters and dozens of other engineering refinements. Let's lift the hood and take an engineer's look at Chevrolet's standard V8—and see all the extras you get at no extra cost.

1. Positive shift starter—engages gently and says engaged until engine is going, to eliminate gas-wasting false starts.
2. Forged steel crankshaft—Extra strong, for extra long life.
3. Hydraulic valve lifters—oil-hushed for quieter operation, they absolutely eliminate periodic tappet adjustments.
4. Automatic choke—combines economy and convenience by cutting in automatically when you need it, cutting out automatically when you don't.
5. Built-in carburetor filter—designed for trouble-free fuel filtration, it's easily accessible for cleaning and never needs replacing.
6. Economy-contoured camshaft—with this and other gas-saving refinements, Chevy's Economy Turbo-Fire V8 gets up to 10% more miles on a gallon.
7. Top performance on regular gas—you get Chevy's famous "git" on regular-grade fuel.
8. Short stroke for less wear—life of moving parts is lengthened by shortest V8 piston stroke in the industry.
9. Advanced lightweight design—compact 283-cubic-inch design for lean-muscled efficiency.
10. 4,000-mile oil change—long engine life with less maintenance.
11. 4-quart oil refill—another way Chevy cuts your cost per mile.
12. Easy adjustment for engine tuning—distributor points can be set while engine is running for more precise tuning.
13. Waterproof electrical system—spark plugs, distributor and coil are sealed against moisture for surer starts.
14. Precision balanced for smooth performance—basic engine components are balanced both individually and as a unit for hushed, silk-smooth operation.
