WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Fitzgerald Kennedy in a suspense-laden photo - finish beat Richard M. Nixon today to become the first Roman Catholic, the youngest man, and the first son of the 20th century to be elected president of the United States.

The 43-year-old Democratic senator from Massachusetts clinched victory shortly after 9 a.m. EST by capturing the crucial 32 electoral votes in Nixon's home state of California. He took California by beating the vice president in his own home county of Los Angeles.

Kennedy had gone into the lead early Tuesday evening, but during the night and today's small hours uncertainty in California and a few other states had kept the final outcome in doubt.

With victory in California, Kennedy had won 21 states with 299 electoral votes, 30 more than the magic majority. He was leading in two states with 38 electoral votes which gave him an indicated total of 337.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon today conceded victory to Sen. John F. Kennedy on the basis of returns from his home state of California.

Nixon had won 24 states with 185 electoral votes and led in two with seven electoral votes for an indicated total of 192.

At the moment California's electoral total nailed down the big prize for Kennedy, the senator had polled 30,329,441 popular votes compared to 29,740,948 for Nixon. He had only 50.49 per cent of the two-party vote, the smallest percentage margin since 1888.

In the final hours before Kennedy's victory became assured, the contest had narrowed to two big states, Illinois and California. Ironically, it was Nixon's native state that put Kennedy over the top with its large bundle of electoral votes.

Triumph For Johnson

Texas Returns To Dem Column After 8 Years

By LLOYD LARRABEE
United Press International

A record tide of ballots gave Texas' 24 electoral votes today to Democratic nominee John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson and dramatically swept the Lone Star State back into the Democratic column it had forsaken in the previous two national elections.

The Kennedy-Johnson combination dealt a stunning 59,000-vote defeat to the Republican team of Richard M. Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge, and Johnson and Gov. Price Daniel won re-election to their present offices over Republican foes. The latest Texas Election Bureau count gave Kennedy 1,002,579 votes to Nixon's 943,783, with returns from 253 of the state's 254 counties, including 114 complete.

At latest count, the TEB had tabulated 1,964,283 votes and estimated that when all the votes are counted, the total will come to between 2,250,000 and 2,275,000, a new record high for the state.

Daniel rolled up 1,231,934 votes in winning re-election to a third term by smashing his Republican opponent, Tyler attorney William M. Steger. Johnson became the first man in Texas history to win two state-wide elections at the same time by defeating John G. Tower of Wichita Falls to gain his third six-year term as Texas' senior U.S. senator.

A special election will be called later to name a successor to Johnson when he resigns to take office as vice president.

Johnson's margin over Tower, a former college government professor, was 1,092,248 votes to 779,285.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn, who won election without opposition to his 25th consecutive term, had a ready answer for the success of the Kennedy-Johnson ticket.

"I think the Kennedy-Johnson ticket made the greatest appeal to youth and women and to all others. They have a great deal of legislative experience... and a great many people are also disappointed in the handling of our foreign affairs by this administration. Furthermore, they feel a recession... and fear that it is going to get worse," Rayburn said.

Severe Weather For Top O' Texas

By United Press International

A Canadian cold front which the U.S. Weather Bureau called the "most severe yet this season" whipped into Texas today, chilling temperatures, bringing light snow, sleet and high winds to the Panhandle.

The mercury dipped below freezing in much of the Panhandle as the front knifed southward with Dalhart recording 28 degrees. A hard freeze warning was issued for that area tonight.

The mass of frigid air was expected to drop temperatures into the 20s in the northwest sections tonight, between 30-42 in North Central Texas, from 30 to 40 in Northeast Texas and down to the 40s in Southeast Texas.

Cloudy skies were reported throughout the state and scattered

Light snow began falling in Pampa about 10 this morning after a night of below-freezing temperatures, the coldest this season. Intermittent snow was forecast for the remainder of the day and into tonight.

ed showers were expected by nightfall in South Central South-eastern and Southwestern areas. Scattered areas of Northwest Texas reported drizzle as the front moved in.

The cold front brought a sudden drop in the mercury shortly after midnight along the Texas-Oklahoma border and a couple of hours later, sleet fell at Dalhart, coating automobile windshields. Light snow also was reported at Childress, Amarillo, Gage, Okla., Tucumcari, N.M., and in an area between Amarillo and Tascosa, about 40 miles to the northwest of the Panhandle city.

The five-day Texas forecast said temperatures were expected to average from three to seven degrees below normal in North Central Texas, three to seven degrees below normal in Northwest Texas and three to six below normal. (See WEATHER, Page 2)

Impressive Bid Made By John Tower

The powerful showing of John Tower, defeated Republican candidate for United States senator in Gray County and the Texas Panhandle in general, created a stir in the Gray County Courthouse and Pampa this morning.

Tower was expected to carry Gray County, which backed the Nixon-Lodge ticket solidly. But he wasn't expected to do so in the manner in which he did.

The 35-year-old Wichita Falls attorney and college professor-tagged Senator Lyndon Johnson, the state-wide victor, 4,972 to 3,854. It was his "first start" in the political field and, as one veteran observer put it "I'm a Democrat, but this boy (Tower) is going to be the one to beat in Texas from here on in. He could run for just about any elective post in the state and win or be thereabouts."

But it was all in vain. Senator Johnson, swept into the vice presidency when Senator Kennedy gained the presidential race victory, will resign his senator's post, thus creating a special election. And it is here that many Democrats see Tower the formidable threat. Many feel it took the best drawing Texas politician to defeat the young vote getter and even now there is worry about who could defeat him if it came to a showdown.

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) — Sen. John F. Kennedy learned when he awoke from a five-hour sleep today that he definitely had been elected president of the United States, but he withheld any victory statement until his opponent concedes.

One of the chief advisers to the president-elect, Ted Sorenson, gave Kennedy the news at 9:30 a.m. when the newly chosen leader of the United States awoke in a second-floor bedroom of his home overlooking the Atlantic.

Kennedy was prepared to make a public statement of gratitude for his election, but he stuck to his determination to make no victory claim until Vice President Richard Nixon conceded from his headquarters in Los Angeles.

Pierre Salinger, press secretary to the president-elect, said his understanding was that a statement by Nixon was not expected before noon EST.

The president-elect got to bed about 4 a.m. and when he awoke, he chatted briefly with Sorenson, and later with Salinger. Then the 43-year-old winner of Tuesday's closely contested election showered and dressed, and joined his wife Jacqueline for breakfast.

The news that Sorenson gave him was that California was safely in the Kennedy column. When Kennedy went to bed, however, he was convinced he had won, but he wanted to make no claims until Nixon fulfilled the political amenities customary for a defeated presidential candidate.

Asked whether this was the first positive word that Kennedy had won, Sorenson said with a slight smile, "Yes to the extent that there was any doubt."

Mrs. Kennedy, who is expecting their second child next month, apparently tried to keep the house quiet this morning so her campaign-weary husband could get as much sleep as possible. Mrs. Kennedy sent their 3-year-old daughter Caroline out to play shortly after 9:15 a.m.

GOP Triumphs In Gray County

Senator John F. Kennedy and Senator Lyndon Johnson may have gained the two top political posts in the nation yesterday, but you couldn't tell it in Gray County.

Vice-President Richard Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge soundly thrashed the Democratic duo in county balloting with the unofficial totals being, Nixon-Lodge 6,197 against the Kennedy-Johnson count of 2,802.

This was near a three-to-one margin, and it "shook" many of the veteran politicians who supported the winning presidential team.

This was a bitterly contested affair throughout the county, and it was no exception in Gray County. Charlie Thut, the astute voting observer and Gray County clerk, said today that he expected the total figure to reach 10,000 or more mutilated ballots included.

In support of this he noted that the unofficial total this morning was 8,999 (figured off the presidential balloting) and since two boxes were still out at News deadline time Thut contended that the count may easily top the 10,000 figure.

This was a record turnout in Gray County. It topped anything that ever was placed before the

Kenedy County Goes For Kennedy

DALLAS (UPI) — Kenedy County was the first county in Texas to be counted complete by the Texas Election Bureau, and it went for Kennedy.

Kenedy county voters gave the Democratic presidential candidate a 78-74 edge over the GOP ticket of Nixon and Lodge, and gave Sen. Lyndon Johnson, Kennedy's running mate, a 91-64 bulge in Johnson's second race, his bid for re-election to the U.S. Senate.

voters, and soared well past the former overall ballot count of 1952 when 8,952 voted.

Thut pointed to the 1952 vote, and noted that the present unofficial total had exceeded this and would go well beyond before the final tabulation is completed Monday morning in a canvass of ballots in commissioner's court.

"I've seen nine presidential races in my 35 years in office beginning in 1928 with Herbert Hoover. No race has come close to this one, at least here. We have been swamped for the past few days and, to be frank, I'm glad this one is just about finished," said Thut.

Passenger Train Kills Young Driver

VEGA, Tex. (UPI) — A Rock Island passenger train smashed into a car without lights and tossed it 100 feet Tuesday night killing the high school student driving it. It took rescue workers more than 30 minutes to free the body of Kenneth Allen Petrey, 17, from the wreckage of his car.

The westbound train was going about 30 miles per hour when it hit the car inside the city limits.

GOP, Constitution Party Cannot Crack Legislative Ranks In Texas

By BILL CLAYTON
United Press International

Vote totals showed today that Texas Democratic legislators pushed back all Republican and Constitution Party efforts to crack the lawmaking body in Tuesday's general election, but one losing Dallas Republican ran so strongly that his Democratic opponent considered protesting the vote.

Three Republicans made strong bids to get into the Legislature. However, they failed, as did 30 other Republican and Constitution Party House candidates and four candidates opposing Democrats for senatorial posts.

The Democratic sweep of the 150 House seats and 18 Senate seats on the ballot left the state Legislature with its most strongly liberal makeup in modern history. Perhaps 80 of the representatives and 13 senators have liberal leanings. It takes 76 votes to control the House and 11 to block Senate legislation.

Dallas Democrat Joe Ratliff, winner for House Place 1 by 106-231 to 106,801 over Republican Tom Byrne, said he may protest the closeness of the total. Ratliff said the margin was not consistent with weaker Republican totals in other races.

Ratliff sought out election officials for protest procedures, but had not decided late this morning whether he would make a formal protest. He said his vote seemed light in some precincts compared with showings of other candidates.

In San Antonio, liberal Sen. Henry B. Gonzales held a lead over his Republican opponent, Ike Kampmann Jr., and V. E. (Red) Berry maintained a margin over (See GOP, Page 2)

Mississippi Only State To Reject Demos, GOP

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The state of Mississippi, alone among the 50, went its own way in Tuesday's election by rejecting both major party presidential candidates and writing new racial segregation amendments into its Constitution.

Following the lead of Gov. Ross Barnett, Mississippi named a slate of unpledged presidential electors. Barnett said repeatedly that "a vote for either party is a vote for integration."

Mississippi also overwhelmingly approved a constitutional amendment giving circuit court clerks the power to deny the right to vote to persons the clerks consider not "of good moral character." It wrote into its Constitution other amendments repealing requirements that the state provide free public schools and that jurors be registered voters.

Barnett, banking on predictions that the presidential race would be extremely close, urged the unpledged elector slate in hopes of keeping either major party from getting a majority of electoral votes and then bargaining with each for racial concessions.

Four of the states congressmen supported the unpledged revolt despite predictions that the national Democratic party would punish them.

"I don't think they will bother them," Barnett said. "I think they'll have more respect for them in Congress."

One of those who did not follow Barnett's plan was Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee who has served in the Senate for 16 years. Eastland overwhelmingly defeated a Republican opponent.

There was no indication for whom the states eight electoral votes would be cast. But Barnett said he was "very happy" with the result.

"Mississippians are people who vote their convictions," he said. The vote was close all the way, and the Republican percentage was bigger than that in 1956. State GOP Chairman Wirt Yerger Jr. said that "a lot of progress has been made."

Teachers Return To Class After One-Day Strike

NEW YORK (UPI) — Striking New York schoolteachers went back to classes today, ending a one-day walkout after the board of education promised it would not press any charges against them.

The delegate assembly of the United Federation of Teachers voted Tuesday night to accept proposals from organized labor leaders that they return and submit the strike issues to the board. Three top labor leaders were ready to help mediate, according to Mayor Robert F. Wagner.

None of the city's more than 800 schools was closed in the walkout Monday, but 273 were picketed and the school board said nearly 6,000 teachers were absent, about 4,600 of them apparently because of the strike.

The UFT, an AFL-CIO affiliate, is seeking equalization of salary step-ups, additional pay for specialized training, sick pay for full-time substitute teachers, duty-free lunch periods, a collective bargaining election and dues checkoff.

LYNDON LIFTS LID HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson got so excited Monday when a partisan crowd whooped it up that he jammed his own Western-style hat on his head then grabbed an aide's hat to wave.

Busmen Vote On Pay Hike

MIAMI (UPI) — Striking bus drivers were to vote secretly today on a company-offered pay hike of eight cents an hour—after 40 days of holding out for 20 cents.

They decided to consider taking the smaller amount after the Metro County Commission seized the Miami Beach Railway Co. and the Miami Beach Railway Co. to get buses rolling again.

Last week, the city tried to grab the transit company but a federal court overruled it. The metro seizure was to have gone into effect Tuesday but a stay order was issued by Circuit Judge J. Fritz Gordon.

"I want to find out whether you're making every effort to settle this thing," the judge told county, company and union lawyers. He set another hearing on the stay for 12:30 p.m. today, to follow the voting by drivers.

The eight cents would boost the average pay to $2.24 an hour.

'Rocky' Avoids Press Statement

NEW YORK (UPI)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller sneaked down a fire stairway in the Hotel Roosevelt today to avoid making a statement to the press on the election outcome.

Rockefeller had been asked for a statement around 10:30 p.m. when Democratic leaders in the state claimed it for Kennedy. Reporters waited until 3:45 a.m. when the governor sneaked out.

Caught at his car in the street, he said, "I'm going home to bed. My press secretary, Robert McManus, has a prepared statement." However, McManus told reporters, "I have no such statement."

Early poets recited their works publicly to persuade passers-by to buy copies, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is getting married. It will be a church wedding, but we are keeping the number of guests down because of the cost.

My problem is my husband's maiden sister. She is a troublemaker, a big mouth, a mercenary critic. I know if she is at the wedding it will spoil it for me. My husband is the easy-going type who has "yeasted" her all his life to avoid an argument. I would like to leave her out. Should I?

BRIDE'S MOM

DEAR MOM: This is a family wedding — not a bridge luncheon. Don't exclude your husband's sister.

DEAR ABBY: I have made quite a few mistakes in the past but am leading a respectable life now. A fellow with whom I was at one time involved threatens to reveal my past if I do not resume our old relationship. I cannot go to the authorities because of the bad publicity, and if my past is disclosed I would not be able to remain where I am now. I am at my wits' end. What should I do?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: Tell the blackmailer to go ahead and reveal your past if he so chooses. He probably won't — but if he does, you will have to seek a new life elsewhere. Living under threat of exposure is no life at all.

CONFIDENTIAL to "BITTERLY DISAPPOINTED" (in the office romance): After investing nine years in this man, I diagnose the case as "hopeless." The Cure—Major surgery. Cut him out of your life. You are only 28 and will live.

If you want a personal reply from Abby, write to her in care of this paper and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. She answers ALL letters.

In 1856, human bones and a strange skull with heavy, beetling brows were unearthed during quarrying in the valley ("thal") of Neander near Dusseldorf, Germany. To a local schoolteacher, Johann Fuhlrott, it looked like some kind of creature halfway between gorilla and man.

The leading anthropologists thought otherwise and decided it was a pathological (diseased) specimen with low intelligence. Rudolph Virchow, the outstanding pathologist of the century, agreed. The man was an idiot who had suffered from rickets and arthritis.

Someone remembered that a similar skull had been found at Gibraltar in 1848. No one had known what to do with it at the time. Could this be another "Neanderthal man"? A controversy continued for three decades, while the newly discovered remains of Cro-Magnon man held the scientific stage.

Eventually, as usual, new finds erased all doubts. Most conclusive was that made in 1886 in a cave near Namur, Belgium. Two Neanderthal skeletons were found, along with stone knives and other tools. They were dated back to before the last ice age—some 100,000 years—making them by far the oldest human remains that had been found up to that time.

Many excellent remains of Homo neanderthalensis and his culture have been found in Europe, also near Mount Carmel in Palestine. To most people, he is probably the best known of "cave men." He had a good brain, made fire and buried his dead with care.

As far as is known, he was not an ancestor but an older cousin of Homo sapiens, with whom he fought and sometimes bred. He was eventually displaced by early modern man, either by violence or absorption or inability to compete.

A possible ancestor to both Neanderthal and Cro-Magnon was found near Heidelberg, Germany, in 1907 after 20 years of patient digging in an ancient river bed. Only one large lower jaw of Heidelberg man was found, but it pointed to man's existence in Europe possibly 300,000 years ago. This unknown race may even have predated one of the earliest men of all—the Java ape man—whose story we now come to.

Firms Have Hard Time Keeping Tabs On Gas From Well To User

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—Keeping tabs on gas from well to user is a tricky job for the gas company, but it is important to the orderly handling of this precious commodity.

Natural gas is invisible, colorless and sometimes odorless. It varies greatly from field to field in chemical composition, heating content and pressure.

It sometimes comes out of the ground at high pressure, sometimes at low. Certain gas needs dehydration before it is ready for the consumer, other gas needs more elaborate treating.

There is, however, a constant in the changing world of gas: From the moment it leaves the well until its flame cooks a roast or helps produce electricity in a steam generating plant, natural gas is continually measured.

El Paso Natural Gas Co., one of the Southwest's giants, has what it believes to be an effective method of keeping tabs on the gas.

El Paso measures the gas at the well head, at the treating plant, before it enters the mainline, during its journey in the mainline and at the point where it is delivered to the customer.

Measuring gas in the field often is a tough proposition. The meters that measure the gas and the men who look after them must be tough, too. Meters have a hard time. Cows kick them, hunters shoot at them, lightning strikes them, sandstorms blast them, and tornadoes rip at them.

Even the mercury used in certain meters has proved loot for thieves, and animals have eaten the charts.

To keep El Paso's meters working precisely, each employee drives as much as 50,000 miles a year.

El Paso has more than 8,000 meters in oil and gas fields in Texas, New Mexico, Utah, Colorado and Wyoming. A lesser number, about 900, measure gas delivered to customers.

Most of the company's meters are called orifice meters. They measure gas by a simple device: A flat metal disc with a precisely machined hole in the middle is centered in the line. As gas passes through the hole, the downstream pressure decreases. The difference in pressure on either side of the hole can be measured.

Other meters—such as the ones used by residential customers—channel gas through two sets of bellows. As one set of bellows fills with gas and expands, the other set contracts, discharging a metered volume of gas.

Cartagena, Spain, was founded about 243 B.C. by Hasdrubal, a brother of Hannibal, and first was called New Carthage.

Man Perishes In New York Hotel Blaze

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fire broke out Monday on the unoccupied sixth floor of Manhattan's biggest hotel, the New Yorker. Smoke billowing into the upper floors affected at least 17 persons and one man died of a heart attack.

The dead man, Manuel Venezi, 61, a hotel painter, was found unconscious on the smoky 37th floor. Another painter who had been working with him also was found unconscious, but revived at a hospital.

About 300 guests and employees fled to the lobby of the 2,004-room 41-floor hotel, where a number received first aid treatment for smoke inhalation. Police said 17 persons were taken to hospitals but that three refused medical aid.

SILENCE IS GOLDEN
 BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (UPI)—The committee boosting candidate Ray Turner for the state Senate finished the campaign by giving voters the silent treatment.

The committee, deciding that people are fed up with political advertising, bought time for a series of 10-second TV commercials featuring absolute silence.

U.S. To Give Up Leased Lands

LONDON (UPI) — The United States plans to give up most of the territory in the West Indies leased by Britain to America in 1941 as military bases in exchange for 50 destroyers, it was announced today.

The United States holds the base sites under a 99-year lease granted by Britain 19 years ago. The West Indies is seeking to reclaim the territory.

A communique issued by the United States, Britain and the West Indies said that when the West Indies gains independence it will have the right to form its own alliances and to conclude any agreements it sees fit regarding military bases on its soil.

U.S. representatives are seeking to retain only those bases "which are essential to the discharge of their responsibilities in the field of world-wide and hemispheric defense," the communique said.

South Goes With Party

ATLANTA (UPI) — Southern voters swallowed a bitter civil rights pill and handed the solid majority of their electoral votes to the Democrats Tuesday with the hope southern leadership in Congress can blunt the liberal Democratic platform.

Florida and Tennessee went Republican for the third straight presidential election and Virginia leaned toward Richard M. Nixon by a slim margin but other wise the South went overwhelmingly for Sen. John F. Kennedy, a Roman Catholic.

Border state Kentucky went early for Nixon as expected.

Mississippi stood a lonely sentinel, outside both camps, and approved a slate of unpledged electors, backed by fire-eating segregationist Gov. Ross Barnett.

Only two of Georgia's 12 electors were definitely committed to Kennedy but, although they are not legally bound to vote for Kennedy, every indication was that they would.

Of Alabama's 11 electors, six were uncommitted to vote for Kennedy.

South Carolina led the South back to the party by fooling the experts who had given her to Nixon in pre-election predictions.

Amendments Pass In Texas

By United Press International

Texas voters apparently approved four state constitutional amendments Tuesday night, with the margins of victory running as high as some 366,000 votes.

Closest margin recorded in figures late Tuesday night was a 67,374 bulge in favor of changing the constitution to allow members of the state legislature an annual salary not to exceed $4,800.

Widest margin was given the amendment upping legal interest rates to 10 per cent, a move directed at controlling loan sharks in the state. The margin in favor of the amendment was, near midnight, 365,814 votes out of 764,208 ballots cast.

The amendment to raise interest rates on veterans land bonds was given a 460,057 to 245,374 margin, and an amendment allowing the legislature to create a hospital district in certain counties was approved 421,348 to 260,031.

The Palmetto State, urged by the venerable James F. Byrnes to vote for Nixon, was the first Southern state to hand its electoral votes to Kennedy.

North Carolina, a source of worry to the Democrats because of Baptist opposition to a Roman Catholic in the White House, went overwhelmingly for the Boston Irishman.

Boland Calls UN Committee On Congo Setup

By BRUCE W. MUNN
 United Press International

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — General Assembly President Frederick M. Boland summoned the credentials committee into session this morning to decide a battle between rival delegations seeking to represent the Congo.

Delegations sent by Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu and the leftist-leaning premier he deposed, Patrice Lumumba, have been in New York since the assembly opened in September but the Congo seat has been kept vacant.

The fully assembly was called to meet this afternoon for the second round of the Congo debate which brought a charge from the Soviet Union Tuesday that the United States wanted to "liquidate" the Lumumba regime and replace it with a "puppet" government.

Kasavubu, addressing the assembly himself, declared that only he had power to appoint a U.N. delegation and that the one named by Lumumba was illegal.

He read a list of his delegates but the Katanga news services in New York reported later that one of them, Everist Kimba, foreign minister of the mineral-rich secessionist province of Katanga, refused to serve.

Ismael Toure of Guinea introduced an eight-power resolution calling for recognition of Lumumba's delegation. He insisted delegates appointed by Kasavubu had no legal power until their appointment was ratified by Parliament.

Thomas Jefferson's book collection of 6,760 volumes was the foundation of the present Library of Congress.

'Belief-In-God' Poser Faces High Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Can a state compel a candidate for public office to say, "I believe in the existence of God"?

Does such a requirement violate the constitutional safeguards of religious freedom?

The Supreme Court has taken on these questions to be decided before the end of its current term next June.

The justices began the term's decision making Monday with three minor opinions and acted on a batch of other appeals, denying hearings in most of them.

The belief-in-God case was appealed by Roy R. Torcaso of Wheaton, Md., a suburb of the nation's capital.

Torcaso, office manager of a Bethesda, Md. firm, had applied to be a notary public, but his commission was withheld when he refused to sign the required oath. He said he did not believe in God.

Torcaso told the Supreme Court that most states have stricken religious tests from their constitutions. But Arkansas, Pennsylvania and Tennessee still require acknowledgments of "the being of a God" in order to hold public office.

Five Airmen Die In Crash Of Bomber

LOCKBOURNE, Ohio (UPI)—An Air Force B47 jet bomber crashed on take-off at Lockbourne Air Force Base Monday, killing all five crew members aboard.

A spokesman for the base, located about 15 miles southeast of Columbus, said the plane was bound for a routine training mission and carried no nuclear weapons.

Witnesses said the plane seemed to explode "in a ball of fire" while taking off about 2:05 a.m. EST. Flames from the burning plane shot 100 feet into the air, but base firemen extinguished the blaze within an hour.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The plane was 50 feet off the ground when the right wing dipped and touched ground, the Air Force said. The plane exploded on impact but Air Force experts hoped to reassemble the pieces to try and find out what caused the accident.

Scout Officials Attend Meeting

Mrs. Marian Osborne, executive director of Quivira Girl Scout Council and Miss Martha Skelly, district director, are in Excelsior Springs, Mo., where they have been attending a two-week professional Girl Scout Course. The latter part of this week they will go to St. Louis, Mo. for a two-day session of the Association of Girl Scout Professional Workers National Conference.

On Sunday Mrs. Osborne and Miss Skelly will be joined by Mrs. John Holt Jr., of Pampa, president of the Quivira Girl Scout Council, and Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Batten of St. Innet. Together the group will attend a four-day meeting in St. Louis of the National Conference of the Girl Scouts of the USA. Mr. Batten is a camping committee chairman and Mrs. Batten is a member-at-large on the Girl Scout board of directors.

A Hobbs, N.M., man is in Gray County jail today in lieu of a $2,000 bond that was handed him on a driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverage charge that followed his arrest by two State Highway patrolmen from Perryton on the Perryton Highway this morning.

Jesse Freeman Cassidy, a former Pampa resident in the New Mexico city, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. W. Graham by State Highway Patrolman Vernon Cawthon.

New Youth For Freedom

We are always favorably impressed when a group of young people seem to sense the crisis of our times and propose to do something about it.

A number of worthy efforts have been launched thus far relating to young people, including the vigorous and useful "Intercollegiate Society of Individualists" (ISI) put together by the indefatigable Frank Chodorov and successfully handled for more than half a dozen years by young Vic Milione of Philadelphia.

A new youth movement is getting underway now which has sent out a call to young people across the nation to join together in recognition of the problems to be faced and the equally pressing realization that the future will rest upon the shoulders of the young, come what may.

The new effort is to be called, "Young Americans For Freedom." And unlike all its predecessors, so far as we know, this particular group seems to be organized, backed and run by the young men and women themselves. And this, of course, commends it highly if, for other reasons, it is commendable. And it seems to be.

The formation of YAFF apparently began last September when a national conference of youth leaders brought some 100 from various parts of the nation to Sharon, Connecticut. About 13 of them took the initiative to form a permanent organization based upon a combined statement prepared by the young people in attendance.

The leadership of the group is apparently being ramrodded by a young chap named Douglas Cady of the City College of New York.

Some of the brains are provided by Robert M. Schuchman of the Yale Law School who has been selected as chairman of the YAFF.

Among the directors are some fine second-generation fighters for freedom if names mean anything. For the list reveals Carl T. McIntire, Herbert Kohler (son of the embattled union fighter from Koh-

Here To Stay

Why are so many people angry about individualism? If only they could grasp its significance they would learn that nature has guaranteed the existence of individualism, for endless variety is the only pattern of nature with no two persons, no two grains of sand, no two blades of grass ever being precisely alike. Variation and individualism go hand in hand.

4 Stages Of Politicking

If there are seven stages to the life of man, as William Shakespeare had it there are probably at least four stages to political man as democracy is practiced in these United States.

The first stage appears to develop in the very young. It is an eagerness to thrust one's self into the hustle and bustle of each national election. The callow youth intent upon belonging, and doing what others do, strives for political information, joins the political party of his choice and busies himself with amateur electioneering. It's a new and exciting pastime and a brave new world of coercing or cajoling others to do as you want them to do.

Assuming that in stage one no office-seeking virus infects the mind of the busy, busy, busy amateur, then he moves into stage two.

Stage two is what could be called the "practical" stage. The individual no longer rushes about spinning his wheels in futility and lost motion. He becomes thoughtful and puts emphasis not only where he feels it will be effective, but where he feels it will reflect favorably upon his own livelihood.

Politics at this stage passed from the altruism of the neophyte to the self-seeking of the "sly old fox."

"People are voting and money is being spent. Why not influence votes and get the money spent where it will do me some good?"

A number of people never move out of this particular area. Essentially, it is the period of political adolescence.

The third stage actually represents a fork in the road. For the individual, after a few years or a ler, Wisconsin), Robert Croil, Richard Noble, Lee Edwards and a number of others.

Of particular interest to us is the appearance of David Franke on the Board of Directors of the new venture. Franke is presently enrolled in the New School for Social Research, after having done a stint with "Human Events."

So it appears there is and will be some fairly effective leadership among the ranks of the young men setting up this new organization. Emblematic of the aims and objectives is the "Sharon Statement" adopted at the September conference.

The better parts of this statement are as follows:

"In this time of moral and political crisis, it is the responsibility of the youth of America to affirm certain eternal truths . . .

"That foremost among the transcendent values is the individual's use of his God-given free will, whence derives his right to be free from the restrictions of arbitrary force;

"That liberty is indivisible, and that political freedom cannot long exist without economic freedom;

"That the purposes of government are to protect these freedoms through the preservation of internal order, the provision for national defense, and the administration of justice;

"That when government ventures beyond these rightful functions, it accumulates power which tends to diminish order and liberty. . . .

"That the market economy, allocating resources by the free play of supply and demand, is the single economic system compatible with the requirements of personal freedom and constitutional government, and that it is at the same time the most productive supplier of human needs. . . .

Space prevents the reproduction of the full statement. But we are certain the directors of "Young Americans For Freedom" will be happy to supply booklets and other information to anyone interested. Their address is 343 Lexington Avenue, New York 17, N.Y.

few elections in stage two, drifts irrevocably toward either one or another stage of development.

If he retains some moral fibre and has a reasonably sound memory, he begins to note that political promises are window dressing and that the man who gains from his politically-backed office window as often as not finds his candidate is purged before the advantages supposed could be balanced off against the real losses. Thus he grows disenchanted with the scene, becomes indifferent to the process and decides to be less active.

Or, passing from stage two he moves into the violent phase of party politicking, and becomes so ardent in favor of his own party that he views all opponents as crooks, thieves and rascals, whereas men in his own party are saints, angels and (when caught with the goods,) unfortunates forced into evil ways by the genius of the opposition.

The third stage politico is by far the most fearsome to deal with. Whether Republican or Democratic, those in the opposite party are un-American, bigoted, villainous and hypocritical.

But life will endure just so much tension. Then, with maturing years, stage four opens its welcome doors and the perspiring occupant of stage three, either form, moves into philosophic tranquility.

Instead of being simply disinterested, as some stage three personalities are, the stage four individual is keenly interested, but has attained a philosophic stance.

He begins to observe the political coming and going, not with the emotional outburst and certainty of the adolescent.

The third stage actually represents a fork in the road. For the individual, after a few years or a

The Nation's Press

(The Freeman)
FRANK CHODOROV

I was a shaver of ten or twelve when I learned about Grand Street. This was, and is, a thoroughfare in downtown New York, but at the turn of the century it was also an institution, made so by a number of establishments along the street called "coffee saloons." These, I presume, served other articles of food, but when I patronized them in the afternoons the principal viands they purveyed were a mug of coffee and a hunk of cake — for a dime. The customers, or habitués, seemed to be less interested in eating and drinking than in arguing the metaphysics of Karl Marx or Kropotkin. The arguments went on all afternoon and, I was later told, all evening well into the night.

Each of these establishments acquired a character of its own, deriving from the particular ideology of its clientele, or from an interpretation of that ideology enunciated by some self-appointed pundit who had got a following. There was a "saloon" which only the true-believers frequented, their principal pastime, aside from discussing moot questions in Marxist "science," being to castigate the revisionist who held forth in another "saloon." The latter, called the Social Democrats, had a rendezvous of their own where they delighted in concocting reform measures which, incidentally, were later taken over by the Democrats and the Republicans. But, on the whole, these socialists were evolutionary, rather than revolutionary; they dreamed of the day when capitalism will have decayed, from its internal deficiencies, and a mere push from the proletariat would topple it. They were willing to let the forces of history do the job, and contented themselves with talking; there was little inclination to help the forces of history along. That was before Lenin came along with his doctrine of dynamism.

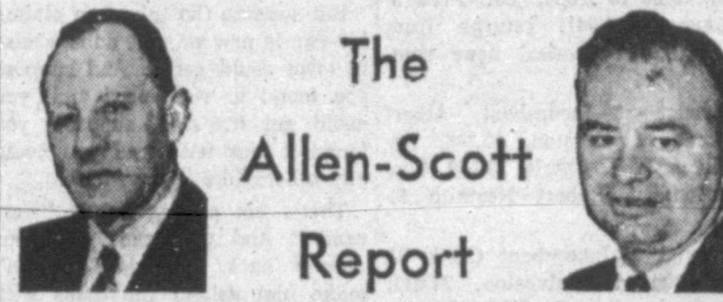

There are very few of the Grand Street type of socialists around these days, either in this country or in Europe, unless, perhaps, in the Kremlin. Gone are the doctrinaires, the "scientific" socialists, with whom I delighted to argue on the campus of Columbia College, or whom I heckled on the soapbox in Union Square, New York. All the theories of Karl Marx have been laid to rest by experience. There are few to say a good word for his laboriously concocted labor theory of value, or to give lip service to his many-worded theory of surplus value, which was the keystone of his theory of exploitation, which in turn was the basis of his indictment of capitalism. The Russian "experiment" has shown that the State, far from being a managing committee for the capitalist class, can be superimposed on the proletariat, and his "withering away of the state" theory has gone the way of all his other theories.

But, that is the way of empirical knowledge: it makes a mess of theories advanced by long-winded economists and ivory-tower social scientists. Capitalism, operating effectively on the mundane profit motive, has disproven Karl Marx on every point. To be sure, the economists of the Austrian School had done in the labor theory of value — that the value of a thing is determined by the amount of labor time put into its production — by showing that value is purely subjective and has nothing to do with labor; but capitalism, disregarding all the textbooks, went about disproving the labor theory of value by simply heeding the dictates of the market place: if people did not want or buy a thing, it was not produced, and that was all there was to it. The surplus value theory held that capitalists paid labor subsistence wages and retained as profits all that labor produced above this subsistence level; but capitalism proved that wages come ing. Rather, he views the scene intellectually, totes up the annual losses thru political machinations, and concludes, as Will Rogers once concluded, that the country's in pretty good hands until Congress convenes or until an election is held.

He sees, as prior philosophers have seen, that politics is NOT the open sesame to good fortune, peace and security as he fancied in his salad days. Rather, he learns that politics is the open doorway to disaster and that moral political action is an effort to mind someone else's business for him, thru coercive means.

Thus, in final objectivity, he withdraws and centers his creative and productive energies in the market place, where honest and just reward, without connivance and skulduggery, can be reasonably won.

CRUCIAL MINUTEMAN TEST FIRING IN DECEMBER; MIGHT RESULT IN ICBM BEING OPERATIONAL IN 1961

WASHINGTON — Minuteman, the solid-fuel intercontinental ballistic missile the Air Force has been developing for several years, is finally undergoing its first test-firing.

This momentous experiment has been scheduled for the week of December 19 at the Cape Canaveral, Fla., missile center.

The 60-ft. three-stage mobile ICBM, whose operational range will be upwards of 6,300 miles, more than three times that of the Navy's solid-fuel Polaris, will be test-fired over a restricted distance of approximately 1,000 miles. It will be equipped with a recoverable cone carrying various instruments.

The forthcoming Minuteman experiment is particularly important because if successful this crucial weapon might become operational in 1961 instead of 1962, as originally planned.

Significantly, this highly eventful test will occur around the time the NATO foreign ministers hold their annual conference in Paris.

As recently reported in this column, Vice President Nixon, if elected next Tuesday, may attend this party. Secretary Christian Herter has discussed that with him. President Eisenhower went to this meeting last year in preparation for a Big Four summit session.

This initial test-firing of the Minuteman is only one of a number of major "shots" slated in the remaining eight weeks of this year, as follows:

Lunar Orbiter—Late this month at Cape Canaveral, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will make its eighth attempt to launch a satellite around the moon. As on the previous tries, this will be done with an Atlas-Able missile carrying a 365-lb. satellite equipped with TV scanning devices and other recording instruments.

Samos II — The Air Force, around the middle of this month, will again endeavor to put this reconnaissance satellite into orbit. The first effort failed in September at Vandenberg Airbase in California.

Tiros II — NASA's second weather satellite will be launched from Vandenberg Airbase between November 10-15. Equipped with high-speed cameras and infrared devices designed especially to record cloud covers, this satellite, traveling in an orbit 450 miles above the earth, will traverse large areas of Russia and Red China. The cameras are capable of taking 22,000 cloud cover photos, approximately the same number as those received from TIROS I, which is still in orbit but not recording.

Mercury MR-2 and MR-3 — These firings, from Cape Canaveral, are for the purpose of testing man-in-space equipment. The army's reliable REDSTONE ballistic missile will be used, with the MR-2 test taking place this month, and MR-3 in December.

The Air Force, in again undertaking to put a SAMOS "spy in the sky" satellite into orbit, is quietly reorganizing this trouble-beset program.

It has been put under one-man control, and also given top priority.

Brigadier General Robert Greer, young and forceful, has been made director of the SAMOS project in the Ballistic Missile Division of the Air Research & Development Command, with authority to report directly to Air Force Secretary Dudley Sharp. That means Greer does not have to go through channels to get what he wants in personnel and material.

His job is to put a Samos into space without further delay.

In turning to a high-powered one-man set-up, the Air Force is taking a leaf from the Navy which used this procedure to speed up development of its solid-fuel intermediate range ballistic missile Polaris for nuclear-powered submarines.

The first of these subs, the USS Washington, armed with 16 Polaris missiles, equipped with nuclear warheads, is now on "battle station" off Russia's northern coast.

SOCIAL WHIRL — Even Washington society has caught the widespread campaign fever. Republican and Democratic socialites are competing busily with electioneering parties, most of them to raise funds. Illustrations: Mrs. Arthur Gardner, wife of a former Ambassador to Cuba, gave a luncheon for which she charged guests $100, the money to pay for a telecast by President Eisenhower in support of the GOP ticket. Mrs. James Houghteling, cousin of the late President Franklin Roosevelt, held a cocktail party to drum up backing and contributions for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket. Two of Washington's grande dames — Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Borden Harriman — were on hand, despite a heavy rain. So were scores of other prominent and well-heeled democratic socialites. Mrs. John McCone, wife of the head of the Atomic Energy Commission, gave a $50-per-head tea for a telecast by Vice President Nixon . . . With three embassies throwing parties the same night, attending diplomats and free-loaders needed high-speed cars and police escorts to make the rounds. The evening started with a reception at the Malayan embassy in honor of visiting Prime Minister Tunjui Abdul Rahman Putra, then switched to an art exhibit under the auspices of Vietnam at the famed Smithsonian Institution, and concluded with a lavish buffet by the Iranian embassy in honor of the new-born Crown Prince. A hectic but pleasant time was had by all . . . According to the knowledgeable soothsayers around the tea tables, President and Mrs. Eisenhower are going to give a debut party in the White House before they depart in January. This unusual affair will be for their niece, Ellen Moore, whose mother is Mrs. Eisenhower's sister. The reputed presidential debut party will be during the pre-Christmas season, when many of them are held in Washington. Oldtimers claim the "first real debutante party" was in the Theodore Roosevelt Administration for his daughter Alice, now Mrs. Alice Longworth, widow of a Republican Speaker of the House, and still active, politically and socially.

Sign Language Will Suffice When In Rome

ROME, ITALY — My mind is weak but my muscles are strong. And for that I say, "Thank goodness."

On my return to Italy this time my mind had forgotten every single word of Italian I knew, with the exception of a halting "Si, si," and a miserably pronounced "Buon giorno."

Completely vanished were the words and phrases I had worked so hard to acquire. I didn't recognize carrots on the menu, or baby lamb, or even bread. And I couldn't ask the time, the probable weather, or how to buy an umbrella.

But my muscles — bless their little hearts — hadn't forgotten a thing. When they learned my sign language, they learned it, and my knees, hands, neck, head, elbows, knees and feet can speak sign language Italian as well as if I had never left the country.

The first day in Rome I wanted a sliced banana for dessert for dinner. My mind was a complete blank when it came to thinking up the word for banana, and if it hadn't been for my muscles I would have had to go to bed with out my banana.

But my muscles took right over when my brain broke down. With out any prompting from me, they formed in succession a tree, a cluster of bananas, and I moved my hands to pretend to be peeling a banana.

When that didn't work, my face muscles took over and I worked my face into the appearance of a

The Doctor Says:

DR. HAROLD T. HYMAN

In the Texas experiment I described in a previous column, Dr. Neville Murray, reporting in The Journal of the American Medical Assn., attributed the "tenfold increase" in road accidents, involving 68 drivers taking average doses of tranquilizer, to changes in driving habits "compounded by spinocerebellar disturbances."

Let me give you specific examples of what Dr. Murray means by these terms. The tranquilized person may act as if nothing matters and there was no one else on the road, ignoring traffic signs and regulations, cutting in a "out of traffic lines or lanes and - or blocking the path of other motorists."

He may become self-destructive and aggressive, ignoring his own safety and the condition of his car as he attacks fellow motorists by bumping into them, driving them off the road to prevent sideswiping and - or clipping their fenders by suddenly veering in one or the other direction.

Those who, committing these offenses, he makes for further trouble through his inability to exercise fine judgement (rate of speed, clearance between cars, passing distance) and his loss of the fine muscle control he needs to steer his course, apply his brakes and - or press the gas pedal.

Interest in the Indiana experiment centered on the effects of a combination of an average dose of tranquilizer and a single average dose of alcohol as reflected in the behavior patterns of 22 normal volunteers.

Sixteen showed more signs of intoxication with the mixture than they did with alcohol alone.

Four were quite obviously drunk. They showed marked muscular inco-ordination and little or no concern for the social proprieties. One subject could not controllably and afterward was largely amnesic (loss of memory) for the period. Two could not walk without assistance."

Yet in none of these 16 instances was the blood alcohol level sufficiently high "to impair automobile driving ability, according to a number of U.S. court decisions."

When questioned later, 18 volunteers judged that "they would have been most unsafe as drivers in the combined drug condition" as a result of a "don't care" attitude or sleepiness.

I doubt that there's any need for me to point out the importance of the Texas and Indiana work to those of us who drive cars for business or pleasure. Safety groups advise us to "drink or drive but not both."

To this we must add: "Keep the tranquilized out of traffic" and "Suspend or revoke the licenses of the tranquilized auto-drink and of drinkers who use tranquilizers."

Postscript: Perhaps I should mention it but the journal which these articles appeared carried a full page ad for on the above-mentioned tranquilizer "original development" hailed by the copywriter as "advance in safety."

Mrs. FDR, Kennedy Come To Terms On Election

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

A backward glance to the career of Alger Hiss in our State Department may help some Americans to make their decision in this election.

Whittaker Chambers, by his amazing courage under ordeal by smear, convicted Hiss of perjury with plain implications of treason. Afterward he wrote:

"In the person of Alger Hiss the Soviet military intelligence sat close to the heart of the United States government."

Mrs. Roosevelt bemoaned the jury's verdict. The Hiss defense and some of his ardent sympathizers impugned Chambers' sanity in court and in print in a desperate stroke to vindicate their friend. The smear was much more brutal than anything they have ever cited against Joe McCarthy.

Roosevelt's perjury was deep. But Senator Kennedy spoke of him with a pretense of affection in the last stages of the campaign, although he had never shown him much respect in the past. And, in his reckless reiteration of the theme of war, war, war, he seemed to share Roosevelt's belief that Americans are born to die in battle for shapeless "objectives" shrouded in his own emotions. I know Kennedy personally and the monkey, a not too hard a job, I'll admit.

In no time at all the waiter, and the head captain he had called in to aid in the translation, had caught on, and I was brought not only a banana, but a bunch of grapes, a pear, an apple, a slice of hard bread, and half a bag of peanuts.

My feet have been most cooperative. Not knowing how to say, "Is it close enough for me to walk there?" my feet take over when this question needs to be asked. They begin to shuffle like the late Bill Robinson, and soon some Italian understands and walks along with me, or leads me gently to a cab and helps me inside.

The only difference that I have noticed in the sign language that I spoke in earlier years and the one I speak now, is a slowing down in my "speech."

I don't "talk" so fast. This could well be the result of the aging process, and I suppose it is. Too, I have a touch of rheumatism in my left elbow at the moment, and that slows me down when it comes to pointing to what I want.

This being a bit older really is a blessing, though. Italians are now able to follow me better, and I guess my "accent" is less pronounced. Whatever it is, I now find that I am much more easily understood when I jump up and down, flail my arms, shuffle my feet, and point.

It's a shame that I couldn't have taken Italian sign language in school when I was much younger and my muscles more supple. Had I done that, I'll bet you I would now be taken for a native.

I am certainly going to teach sign language to my daughter, Megan. She's two now, just the right age to begin. By the time she goes to kindergarten she should be bilingual and ready to go anywhere, just as long as her muscles hold out.

cold nature which he has since since ambition took possession of him reveals to me a hard-core Castro. He has been talking of "aggregate powers" of the presidency, an invention which Roosevelt shystered up to justify a Hitlerian violation of the rights of the people as citizens and human beings.

Mrs. Roosevelt is audacious, arrogant and powerful. Kennedy never showed her even polite respect until she had named her price for supporting him. By implication in a public announcement she put it to him to repudiate his dead, loyal benefactor, Joe McCarthy. This he did with unseemly eagerness after her man, Adlai Stevenson, had been brushed aside. According to all the probabilities, she extended her fingertips to the groveling figure who spoke her husband's language.

There has never been a comparable act in our national politics. In my own experience of the Kennedy double-cross, I accepted his personal indications of a normal honest hostility to union racketeers only to find him sitting on their side of a congressional committee table where I was a witness and, later, a brazen partisan of the AFL-CIO and especially of Walter Reuther.

Kennedy's belated betrayal of McCarthy to win her endorsement must have given the Old Woman a supreme exultation.

Cardinal Spellman made a courteous diplomatic amend for an historic attack on Mrs. Roosevelt, but he could not expunge it and his words, if ill-advised, nevertheless define her attitude toward the church as observed by one of the highest Catholic authorities. Yet the most important Catholic in American political history went groveling to her to disown another Catholic who had given him process- less loyalty.

What is the common motive between such assorted individuals? It has united Kennedy with Mrs. Roosevelt, Lehman, Frankfurter, Stevenson, and Henry Wallace. They are together in a web impenetrable but as strong as steel cables.

And what political drug so paralyzed Dick Nixon, expert that he is in the deadly evil which is now the enemy, that he did not once discuss the tolerance of hundreds of important Democrats toward Roosevelt's "ally" in Moscow? It is their abhorrence, but Nixon ignored it.

In the midst of it all, Mrs. Roosevelt invited Khrushchev to "tea," a supercilious New York term unknown to Fort Wayne or Council Bluffs. She wanted to talk things out and try to understand him. But just who is she, anyway. A female Barney Baruch, to be sure, in her self-importance, but what are her credentials?

The standard figure for Adlai Hitler's kill is now set at six million. But Moscow's kill is set at ten million, plus five or six more millions whom Roosevelt delivered to Khrushchev's dark empire Yalta.

When Charles A. Lindbergh tried to talk things out with Hitler, Mrs. Roosevelt think that was nice of him?

Alger Wins Reelection

DALLAS (UPI)—U.S. Rep. Bruce Alger of Dallas, Texas, Lone Republican congressman, led the victory parade Tuesday as nine incumbent congressmen who drew opposition were re-elected.

Alger rolled to victory over former State Rep. Joe Pool of Dallas by a vote of 110,876 to 82,681, with 168 precincts, all complete, reporting out of 187.

The Dallas Republican said in a victory statement he appreciated "the heavy vote and the large margin for me... I pledge again, for the fourth time, to do my very best to represent them (the voters) without bias or prejudice."

Other congressional results: District 2—Incumbent Democratic Jack Brooks of Beaumont, 7,297 votes to Republican Fred S. Neumann's 1,941, returns from five of nine counties, none complete.

low, low price on the Colorado brewed premium Sheridan Beer which Herb and Myron are selling, for $1 per six-pac. It's a fast selling item, too, since customers know H. & M. Cut Rate Liquor Store will not offer its customers an inferior brand, regardless of what one desires.

With the Christmas season "just around the corner" the store is well supplied with gift wrapped liquors, all most attractively packaged, party sets of ice bowl and glasses, hand painted "jigger" glasses, and the like, with all, of course, priced to suit the bargain-seeking people of the area.

A visit to H. & M. Cut Rate Liquor Store will convince you that the owners support their aim: to give the customers the best for the lowest price.

Try it. You'll assuredly be pleased.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

You see much of human nature shining through our laws. "Puffing" is a case in point.

Your salesman may get carried away and claim too much for his product. Sometimes you can force him to make good on his claims, or give your money back.

But not if he was merely "puffing." Puffing is not true warranty. Suppose a salesman claims that if you buy his car — whammy: The girls will come running for dates.

That is puffing. An opinion at best. Anyone should know better than to believe it. Anyhow, no court is likely to force the salesman to make good his claim.

But suppose the salesman claims his car is new or that nobody else in town could get it. And suppose you found it was used and you could get it. And suppose you found it was used and you could buy others like it anywhere.

That's not puffing but a "warranty." And you can get your money back. But you couldn't make him deliver the dates with the girls.

Warranties are either express (written or spoken) or implied in the way you act.

Suppose as a seller you claim that an article — say a television set or a car — is in good working order when it isn't. Then you must make good or take the item back and return your customer's money.

You do not put implied warranties into words; by the way you act, you make someone think and rely upon certain things as facts when they are not so.

For instance: If a man offers to sell you a diamond ring, you have a right to think that he owns and has a right to sell the ring. So you buy it, but the jewelry store comes and takes it away from you. The man didn't own the ring after all. Then, you can sue the man.

Since you may have a hard time deciding whether a salesman is puffing or warranting an article, just ask him to write down his claims. He'll most likely stall if he's puffing.

H. & M. Cut Rate Liquor Store Puts Low Prices, Fine Brands Foremost

When you enter a store to purchase an item of any sort, you seek one thing — value received and at a price you know is as good or better than anywhere in town. Add this you obtain when you visit the H. & M. Cut Rate Liquor Store, 866 W. Foster.

This is the prime reason for the success of the store operated by Herb Lotz and Myron Dorman. For with its opening the two men determined that the store would always feature top line materials that everyone could afford. And they have continued through with this idea since the opening last April.

The present items which will pass along the savings to H. & M. Cut Rate Liquor Store patrons are fine eight-year-old bourbons so priced you'll look twice at the cost to be certain you read it correctly; but you will have had the first time, since Herb and Myron have these bourbons sealed well below their usual prices.

And this isn't all. The two fellows who operate this fully modern store have bargains galore in other liquors, wines, gins, vodkas, rum, and the like, plus ingredients for mixing various cocktails.

Lotz put it this way: "We feel we have the best prices in Pampa. We try to give our customers the benefit of savings and, at the same time, to give them the finest beverages available."

One feature at the store is the

Walter Rogers Reports

1929 Plunge Brought On Securities Policing

America reached The Perpetual Pinnacle of Prosperity during the early decades of this century, and for the first time in history the complex activities of financial trade and investment fell into the hands of millions of people all across the country. College boys were selling short between classes, often times on the advice of Aunt Matilda who had just made a fortune in steel. The stock market reports were read with greater intensity than the comic strips or the sports pages, and the clacking ticker tapes pounded out the nation's pulse at an often feverish pace.

It did not require the Great Avalanche of 1929 to reveal certain unpleasant aspects of the securities business. The State of New York enacted legislation as early as 1909 to protect its people from abuses and shady practices, and other States followed suit. Some of the early laws simply required a license to sell securities while others aimed at punishing any fraud after it appeared. A Congressional Committee proposed regulation as early as 1913, but no action was taken at that time. Interest was heightened during World War I when the Liberty Bond drives ran into several snags resulting from the activities of speculators.

The Final Plunge of 1929 platform of the Democratic Party pledged protection of the investing public, and less than a month after Franklin D. Roosevelt swept into the White House he dispatched a message to Congress requesting Federal supervision. The quickly-passed Securities Act of 1933 gave the Federal Trade Commission responsibility to see that the public was provided with full and honest information about securities.

No government approval of a specific issue was involved. In the meantime, a major Congressional investigation was in progress which lasted two years. Elaborate hearings produced a number of proposals, including a Senate bill to create the Securities and Exchange Commission and assign to it the duties with which the FTC had been charged the previous year. The Senate bill won out, and in 1934 the SEC began to police stock exchanges. Margin requirements were to be regulated by the Federal Reserve Board.

Not one scrap of important opposition was voiced against the principle of another independent agency. There was considerable argument, however, which favored assigning the new duties to the already established FTC, particularly since the FTC had administered the 1933 Act. Nevertheless, opinion leaned toward a separate body for a host of reasons, including the fact that the new duties would require highly specialized attention. There were two other issues: (1) Should the SEC's powers be specific or general? This was resolved by a compromise which left the law quite specific but gave broad powers of discretion to the agency; (2) Should stock exchange representatives serve on the commission? This was not done because, as was then pointed out, a regulatory body should not be controlled by those to be regulated.

The major purpose of the Securities and Exchange Commission remains the same today as it was when established 26 years ago. The agency seeks to prevent false claims about stocks and other securities and thus protect the investor from fraudulent information and allow him to exercise an informed judgment on an issue he may wish to purchase. The SEC regulates the trading processes on the market, supervises the nation's investment companies, and advises the courts in certain bankruptcy reorganizations.

Visitors We appreciated seeing Rev. William E. West from Pampa, who was in Washington last week attending a conclave of the Episcopal Schools Association.
