DOES HE MILK, TOO?—Mongrel dog in Freygefond, France, carries a red flag to warn motorists of the herd of cattle ahead on the road.

BIG TIME IN ARIZONA — Carefree, Ariz., a half-hour's drive north of Phoenix, possesses one of the world's largest sundials. The arm is 60 feet long and rises to 50 feet in height. Face of dial measures 90 feet in diameter with a 284-foot circumference.

BUSY, BUSY-Singer Pat Boone has expanded his career to include acting, writinterests (records, clothing, etc.). All his activities are incorporated under the unlikely name of Cooga Mooga Inc. First movie of seven he will star in is "All Hands on Deck" with Buddy Hackett as foil.

ON HIS WAY-Clu Gulager is authority for the statement: "I'm going to be one of the biggest stars in Hollywood." Recently he turned down a role in the film, "Where the Boys Are" to become a TV personality first as Billy the Kid in NBC's "The Tall Man."

HELP FOR EX-CONS—That's a $10,000 check actor Don Murray, right, is handing the Rev. Charles Dismas Clark of St. Louis who is dedicated to giving ex-convicts a new start in life. The money is for the right to film Father Clark's experiences with the underworld in "The Hoodlum Priest."

MUSSOLINI COMEBACK-Romano Mussolini, son of the late Italian dictator, is the country's highest paid jazz pianist. He's shown playing a Milan club. Il Duce's widow, children and grandchildren have apparently regained rank among Italy's elite.

CHURKEN—Pathetic big-footed fowl is a hybrid, the first successful cross on record between domestic chickens and turkeys. Department of Agriculture experiments in Washington produced the hybrid which, as is usual in such crosses, lacks vigor, is malformed and cannot reproduce.

AFTER THIS, PLEASE THINK—Detroit drivers get strange instructions at Cadillae Square and Randolph Street.

AMERICAN AUTUMN—There are pies and jack-o'-lanterns by the dezen in this wagen-load of pumpkins in Fultz, Ill. Mrs. George Shultheis will feed most of the load to the hogs since the southern Illinois erop is so big this year that the pumpkins have little commercial value. Rural housewives also use them for pumpkin butter, pies, sauces, stewed and fried pumpkin and even dried pumpkin for winter use. Some of the pumpkins on this load weigh 50 pounds and it isn't uncommon to see 125 pounders in the bottomlands along the Mississippi River.

Looking Sideways

not be true that the meek shall inherit the earth. Each decade it seems less likely-but it is true that the little people of the earth get the useful things done. A little man spilled a noisome mess of sticky goo on his wife's hot stove and the vulcanizing of rubber became a reality. A little man sat by his wife's stove and watched a kettle lid bobble as the steam pressed against it and to James Watt came the notion of steam engines. And Dominick St. Angelo, a man with a head of hair like brushed silver and so close to economic realities that he could feel for his neighbor, has just shot the rug out from under the nation's barbers. As a man with almost no hair, I vote for Mr. St. Angelo for whatever he chooses to run as or

Dominick is a barber. For 40 years he has stood by his chair and watched the price of haircuts soar. It got to 75 cents, then $1.00 and then $1.25 and, finally, it reached $1.75. Dominick's customers over in Teaneck, New Jersey, grumbled and complained, but there wasn't much they could do about it. A man had to have a haircut now and then or risk community scorn. There is an old saying that selling is like shaving: you have to do it every day or be a bum. A haircut isn't quite that drastic an issue, but it definitely belongs in the status symbol class,

It came to Dominick one night that there was something to be done about his price of haircuts thing. It wasn't fair. Some fellows, sure. They had a full head of thick hair and it took 20 minutes to shear it down nicely and attractively. That was worth $1.75. But what about men who had just a fringe around the edges? It took three minutes, at the most four, to give that shy little hedge a clipping. It was neither fair nor just to charge this fringe element the full price. He bought a small pad of paper on his way to his shop the next morning and called in a friend, a man who made signs, and asked him to prepare a nicelooking poster saying, in effect: "Get a written estimate on your.

haircut." By afternoon, his friend had the sign finished and dry and Dominick put it up. A customer came in with a sour and annoyed look. Dominick looked at the fringe the man had, and wrote on a sheet of paper "Estimate: $1. Good until conditions change." And signed it. He handed the document to his customer who read it and beamed.

"Unless you get more hair," said Dominick, "the price will never go up, no matter what. If you lose more hair we will readjust the contract."

And that's how it has been since Dominick, another little man with a big idea, set up the written estimate deal in his shop. Didn't some men, who had to pay $1.75, the full, going price, object? Didn't they feel a price discrimination? No. Such men feel pride. They are happy to pay $1.75. They have written testimony that they have a full, luxuriant, all-covering head of manly hair and psychologically this gives them a status in today's society.

What would happen if Yul Brynner came in?

Mr. Brynner would slide right off the bottom of the cost-index and go on a shave-price basis. Shaves are 75 cents. He either shaves his head himself or has it shaved. It is less difficult to lather a skull and run a razor over it in four quick swipes, from right to left, than to lather a face and neck and shave a man with care.
