

Snow Seen For Panhandle As Cold Again Rolls Into Texas

By United Press International
Another surge of frigid air moved toward Texas today, bringing promises of much colder weather for the northern sections of the state by Wednesday and some occasional snow in the Panhandle.

sault would lose its punch and a warming trend would return by the New Year's holiday weekend.
Dense fog which blanketed South Texas Monday, causing traffic accidents and a ship collision in the Gulf of Mexico off Galveston, enveloped the same area again this morning.
Mild weather, however, was in store for most of the state before the new cold air mass makes itself felt.

The extreme northwest portion of the Panhandle was due to feel the first effects of the cold air late this afternoon, but it was due to penetrate the entire northern half of the state during the day Wednesday.

At daybreak today, skies were clear over West Texas and the Panhandle where most of the state's sub-freezing weather was reported this morning. The freezing area extended west from a Wichita Falls-Mineral Wells-San Angelo line with 24-degree readings at Alpine and Dalhart being the lowest reported.

Other early morning lows included 25 at Amarillo, 26 at Lubbock and El Paso, 27 at Wichita Falls and San Angelo, 28 at Abilene, 29 at Midland, 33 at Presidio in the 40s across the remainder of North Central Texas and in the lower and upper 50s elsewhere.

A weak stationary front stretched from Houston to San Antonio, causing most of the fog and bringing some scattered light rain and drizzle along and south of the front.
Forecasts called for temperatures to drop as low as 22 degrees in the Panhandle and higher elevations of extreme Southwest Texas tonight and below freezing along the Red River Valley and the remainder of West Texas.

The only snow forecast was for the Panhandle section.
The only moisture reported in the state in the 24-hour period ended at 6 a.m. was a trace at Texarkana and .02 inch at Laredo.

Blood Bath

State Holiday Toll Climbing

By United Press International
Texas counted its dead today and knew more blood would be spilled before the holiday season is over.
Already the record was one of the worst in the nation.
A United Press International survey today showed that at least 78 persons have died violent deaths since the holiday period began, and traffic accidents claimed 34 lives. Only California led Texas in traffic deaths.
Two persons were killed in separate highway crashes early today.
Jimmy C. Yeater, 18, Brownfield, Tex., was dead on arrival at a hospital in Luling near San Antonio. He was the driver of a car that collided with a large truck on U.S. 90. Four persons with him were injured and one of them, David E. Hoff, 20, of Kenedy, is in critical condition.
In another accident, Reed Calvin Pemberton, 45, of Nocona was killed in a multiple car accident on U.S. 83 near Nocona. Four persons were hurt.
Police said Pemberton's car crashed into the rear of another, knocked the automobile into the path of a third coming in an opposite direction.
At San Antonio Monday night, two persons were killed in what police believe were teen-age gang fights.
Juan Lopez, 18, and three companions started to go into a dance hall when a car slowed down and someone shoved a shotgun out a rear window and fired one blast. It hit Lopez in the right side and mortally wounded him.

A short while earlier, Juan Orozco Jr., 17, and three members of the Loma gang were driving in a car and another car forced them to the curb. All four jumped out and ran. Orozco was shot as he fled, and died several hours later in a hospital.
The Department of Public Safety predicts that 176 persons will die from violence of one form or another in Texas during the 10-day holiday period that ends on Jan. 1.
Seven of those dead have died in fires, and one of the most tragic happened Monday seven miles north of Hubbard in Hill County where four Negro children were alone in their home. All died in the flames.
The victims were identified as Lois Bracken, 10, Billy, 9, and Bonnie, 7, children of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bracken, and Tiny Bracken, 4, their grandson.
Other deaths reported Monday included:
—Sharon Coleman, 11, who drowned near her home just north of Houston in a small pond.
—Mrs. Helen Mason, 39, Sweetwater, from an overdose of medicine.
—Sherry Lynn Schroeder, 5, Hallettsville, killed by a car as (See CLIMBING, Page 3)

Nation's Road Deaths Are Below Estimates

By United Press International
The nation today counted its highway dead from the long Christmas weekend and came up with a figure below a pre-holiday estimate by safety experts.
The National Safety Council had estimated 510 persons would die in the nation's highways during the 78-hour period which ended at midnight Monday night.
With late returns still coming in, a United Press International count at mid-morning showed the following fatalities since the start of the holiday at 5 p.m. Friday:

Fire 476
Fire 77
Miscellaneous 108
Total 659
California led the nation in traffic deaths with 37. Texas had 35, Georgia 28, Michigan and New York 27, North Carolina 20, Missouri 19, Florida and Illinois 18, South Carolina 17, Kansas 16 and Louisiana 15.
Only six states escaped a holiday traffic death — Alaska, Delaware, Hawaii, New Hampshire, North Dakota and Vermont.
Traffic accidents, which had been claiming more than six deaths an hour, slackened a bit late Monday and the Safety Council hoped its estimate would prove to be too high.
"The toll has taken a turn for the better," the council said late Monday night, adding that there was still a chance the death count would fall below last year's mark of 481.
Mercifully, there was no chance this year's figure would come close to the all-time Christmas holiday record of 809 traffic deaths set in 1935.
An ordinary three-day period this time of year would see 350 persons die in traffic accidents, the council said.

Constellation Fire Still Poser

NEW YORK (UPI) — Was personal culpability involved in the fire aboard the super-carrier Constellation — or was it "just one of those things?"
What precisely was the cause of the conflagration that consumed the lives of 49 men and set back the completion of the carrier for one year?
Today in a faded green room at one mile from the scene of tragedy a three-admiral board of inquiry renews its efforts to find answers to these and other questions about the blaze. Fire Commissioner Edward Cavanagh of New York City, who directed the fighting operations at the scene, is scheduled to testify.
Through the first three days last week the board heard only their suppositions: Not one in a grade of about 20 "fact witnesses" was able to tell the court "I saw what happened." Not one saw an accident that started oil flowing along the hangar deck. None actually saw the oil ignite, presumably two decks below.
The hearing recessed Friday at a point of highest drama. The commander of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, Rear Adm. Schuyler N. York, told his three fellow admirals that, in his opinion, there could not possibly be any personal culpability on the part of officers and supervisors under command.

Suggestions For Depressed Areas Being Readied For JFK

'Reform' Of Agencies JFK's Aim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President-elect John F. Kennedy's first effort to reform the federal regulatory agencies is likely to be aimed at raising their ethics and wiping out "back door" contacts, a Kennedy aide said today.
Action along this line was one of many far-reaching recommendations laid before the President-elect Monday in an 87-page report by James M. Landis.
A former dean of the Harvard Law School and a member at various times of three of the federal agencies, Landis wrote the report for Kennedy on a hurry-up basis after the November election.
He called for appointment of a regulatory agency "czar" in the White House who would oversee the activities of the agencies in a "firm but friendly" way and exercise "imaginative and creative" direction.
In vigorous, sometimes biting language, Landis criticized the agencies and called for major changes in their procedures and personnel. He advocated establishment of new White House offices to lay down clear-cut government policy in the communications, transportation and power industries.
The 29,000-word report sharply attacked the way the agencies execute their duties — or fail to — and what Landis called their susceptibility to improper influence from the industries they regulate, the White House and senators and congressmen.
After reading the report, Kennedy said, "this is a most important and impressive analysis of the regulatory agencies which deserves the attention of Congress as well as the agencies themselves."
Kennedy's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, said the report would form the basis of legislative recommendations. Landis proposed many steps requiring congressional action. Some of these were expected to touch off spirited battles in Capitol Hill.
Chairman John A. Carroll, D-Colo., of a Senate judiciary subcommittee set up last year to study the agencies, said today (See REFORM, Page 3)

ONE OF 'EM OUGHTA FIT — Woody Rozell Jr. of Sentinel, Okla., presently residing with his aunt, Mrs. R. A. Gault of Kingsmill, has a problem: from all the hats he has stacked on his head, he'll have to select the one that fits and turn the others back for different presents. Belgian Police Busied

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Strikers clashed briefly with armed police in the streets here today in a new flareup of the Socialist-led anti-government walkout that has crippled Belgium for a week.
Police dispersed a strike mob that was blocking traffic outside Socialist headquarters, after a brief scuffle that produced no reported casualties.
The strikers shouted "Down with Premier Gaston Eyskens" and other anti-government slogans as the police cleared the street.
Earlier, the strikers manhandled the conductor of a streetcar that tried to pass their roadblock and pulled its trolley off the overhead power wire.
The government has called out regular troops and reservists in an effort to maintain essential services during the strike, called to protest the "austerity" program devised by the government to offset the nation's loss of revenues from the Congo.
The strike has crippled rail transportation, public utilities, mail deliveries and other essential services.
There was the additional danger of clashes between the striking Socialist unions and several non-striking Christian Socialist unions. The Christian Socialists denounced the strike as "political" and urged union members to stay on the job. The Socialists countered with a call for non-striking workers to join the strike.
The government Monday called up some reservists for duty and orders were dispatched to the Belgian NATO forces in West Germany to ship home technicians and some specialists needed to help operate the basic utilities. Soldiers on leave from duty were ordered to remain at home, awaiting orders for possible strike duty.

Rapid Action Sought By Several On Panel

By JOSEPH D. HUTNYAN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The special task force named by President-elect John F. Kennedy to draft a blueprint for aiding economically depressed areas today starts writing its recommendations.
It was learned that some members of the group are advocating presidential action on this problem Jan. 20, the day Kennedy takes office, or at least within two or three days after he moves into the White House.
The committee, headed by Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., is drafting two programs for Kennedy — one that could be put into effect immediately through presidential order and the other that would require legislation.
The group, made up of government officials, educators, labor leaders and congressmen, expects to hand its report to the President-elect before Jan. 1. The panel meets behind closed doors today to begin studying subcommittee reports and drafting its recommendations.
Kennedy is firmly committed to swift action to help areas with chronic unemployment. He promised this during his campaign in states where it was a hot political issue.
Those favoring quick presidential action on or shortly after Inauguration Day argue that some emergency, short-range program (See AREAS, Page 3)

Russ Plan Factories In Cuba

HAVANA (UPI) — Maj. Ernesto (Che) Guevara, Argentine-born economic czar of Cuba, says his recent tour of the Communist world produced promises of at least 124 factories and $50 million in loans from Communist countries.
An account of Guevara's mission published Monday by the pro-government newspaper Revolution said Russia alone plans to build 100 industrial plants in Cuba under the terms of a trade agreement which is expected to make the Kremlin this country's "major economic partner."
Revolution said Guevara also expects Red China to install 24 factories. Czechoslovakia has promised a $40 million loan which will be used for still more factories. (See RUSS, Page 3)

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — President-elect John F. Kennedy today picked Rex Whitton, 62, chief engineer of the Missouri state highway department, to be federal highway administrator in the new administration.

Slayer Says He 'Just Had The Urge To Kill'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Most people kill for money or sex. That's their motive. What makes me different is I had no motive. Just that wild urge."
The murder trial of confessed triple slayer Henry Adolph Busch resumed today. Speculation was high that the trial judge would rule on a defense motion for permission on the 29-year-old optical worker be hypnotized on the stand to "regress his mind to a troubled childhood."
The gangling Korean War veteran has signed confessions detailing strangulation murders of three women.
Mrs. Elmyra M. Miller, 72, ("I said good night to her and she said, 'good night.' And then I strangled her.")
Mrs. Margaret Briggs, 60, his aunt. ("We watched TV. Then I got that urge to kill. I told her she said she wanted to pray. She got down on her knees, put up her hands and prayed. Then I killed her. Her prayers did not bother me.")
Mrs. Shirley Payne, 52. ("What reason does anyone have for strangling anyone? I get very strong urges to kill.")
Busch told homicide investigators he had outlined plans to kill two more women — one his landlady — when he was arrested in September on suspicion of purse snatching.
Hypnosis in the courtroom apparently is unprecedented.
"Our position," said a spokesman for the prosecution, which is opposed to the hypnosis, "is that there are rules under which attorneys are accustomed to proceed. I have not heard of the use of hypnosis at all."
"We want Busch to have whatever is the law. However, the law requires a defendant to be mentally — as well as physically — present at all times during his trial," he said. "I have no fear of hypnosis but fear only appeal if it is admitted."
Dr. William Jennings Bryan, hypnotist was prepared to "cast the spell" on Busch if the judge allows, contended otherwise.

One Blown Through Roof Four Texas Students Survive Blast

ANTLERS, Okla. (UPI) — Four Texas college students with the luck of the Irish survived an explosion Monday night that was so violent it blew one right through the roof of a cabin and sent two others flying head over heels.
It happened at a three-room frame cabin on the R. M. Fry Ranch, about 24 miles northwest of Antlers, where Al Newman, 22, and Buck Mahaney, 19, both of Dallas; Philip Fry, 21, and his cousin, Wyndol Fry, 19, both of Hugo, Okla., were camping.
Philip, Al and Buck are fraternity brothers at North Texas State College at Denton, and Wyndol attends East Texas State College at Commerce.
What happened could not be immediately determined, but the boys said they believed the blast must have been caused by an accumulation of butane gas underneath the house.
"It seemed to come up right through the floor," Mahaney said. "Wyndol was lying on a bed. He was blown through the roof of the cabin, turned a couple of cartwheels in the air, and crashed through the roof of the front porch. He was bruised and burned on his hands and wrists, but not seriously hurt."

Mahaney and Al were sitting at a table talking. The explosion tumbled them about the room.
"I felt like I was waking up out of something," Mahaney said. "It blew me up in the air head over heels... the next thing I knew I was under a pile of debris... it came down on top of me."
Phillip was cutting wood for the fireplace outside the cabin and wasn't hurt at all.
"I heard it, and I thought they were throwing fire crackers at me or something," Phillip said. "I looked back and saw the air filled with debris."

Battle Finished; British 'Bird' Robin Is 'King'

LONDON (UPI) — John Bull got the bird today.
The robin was picked as Britain's national bird in an election as fiercely fought and as important as the Kennedy-Nixon campaign.
The choice of erithacus rubecula "as a national symbol ornithologically" was announced by Lord Hurcomb, chairman of the British section of the International Council for Bird Preservation.
The 77-year-old peer was the logical man to supervise the election. When he was rewarded with a barony in 1959 for a long career in government, he set a peacock record for birds on his coat of arms—two herons and a kingfisher.

Test Of Kennedy's Power Due In House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic liberals hope President-elect John F. Kennedy can offset the increased strength of the conservative bloc in the House by vigorous use of his presidential powers — patronage, persuasion and public pressure.
A battle on the House floor next week will provide an immediate test of whether Kennedy has a chance to push much of his legislative program through Congress.
The struggle will come over efforts to wrest control of the powerful House Rules Committee from a conservative coalition which has dominated it for the past two decades.
Because of its power to decide which bills the House can take up, the 12-man rules committee poses the number one congressional threat to Kennedy's five-point program of liberal legislation.
Liberals hope to break the rules committee's stranglehold on legislation by purging one of the Southern Democrats or adding another member who would give the liberals the strength to outvote the conservatives.
Kennedy supporters have high hopes of keeping the prospects for the President-elect's proposals alive by winning the procedural battle.

NBC Reporter Held In Havana

HAVANA (UPI) — NBC Caribbean correspondent Wilson Hall, arrested without explanation Monday by the secret police, was held virtually uncommunicated here today.
U.S. Vice Consul Gerald Lamberty was allowed to talk briefly with Hall Monday afternoon, but was refused permission to visit him later.
Hall's wife, Lee, herself an experienced radio correspondent, was ready to take his place in preparing NBC's year-end roundup if he was not released in time.

We Can't Afford To Lose

U. S. Must Win Space Chase

By ALBERT PARRY
Author of "Russia's Rockets and Missiles"

NEW YORK — (NEA) — What is America to do if she is to catch up with the Soviet outer-space triumphs and, at last, be in front? The answer is that, first of all, we must recognize that we are in a race; that the race for outer space is in fact several races at once and that we must in a spirit of emergency do something swift and sound about all of them.

It is most obviously a contest for technological supremacy. We must catch up with the Soviet secret of more rocket thrust which keeps the Russians so far ahead of us in celestial weight-lifting. We should also match and excel their guidance systems which have given their Luniks that wonderful precision in target-hitting and orbiting.

In rocket thrust we must do our best to succeed in our three-main projects: Saturn, F-1, and Nova. A four-stage, 1,500,000-pound-thrust clustered booster, the Saturn, involves a probable total of eight or 10 vehicles to be built, before the project is fully and successfully tested. It is to be fired with two or three stages in 1963 and all four stages in 1964. The trouble with this timetable is that it drags its feet. And the timetable is this leisurely because the budget-minded Eisenhower administration from the very beginning refused to spend more money in quicker doses.

The F-1 Rocketdyne engine also has 1,500,000 pounds of thrust. It could be ready a few months after the Saturn, but as things stand now this would also not be before 1964. Greater speed should be the watchword here, too.

Nova is a proposal to cluster four of the F-1s into a superbooster, totaling six to eight million pounds of thrust. The job of such clustering would take some 18 months. But if done with all possible dispatch, Nova would represent the giant stride ahead so desperately needed by America.

The point is that time is of the essence. And time can be cut-time can be bought with money. The above projects, and a batch of others where we are clearly in competition with the Russians, can be begun or speeded up, if appropriations are allotted both sufficiently and efficiently.

Time and money can be saved if the organization of our space effort is more sensibly ordered than it has been so far. Our effort is still largely divided between the civilian and the military kinds of projects, and further marked by some 60 separate offices, liaison committees, and other such units.

From where this writer observes it appears that a mere re-shuffling rather than a true reorganization has so far taken place in Washington's approach to the problem. It is not really a question of aping the Soviet pattern and thus running into the perils of a giant bottleneck and the yet greater dangers of totalitarianism. Our experience with the atomic Manhattan Project of World War II shows that we can centralize on a huge scale, completely and secretly, yet keep both our efficiency and our democracy.

Too much time has already been wasted in either our false sense of security or our spasmodic, panicky half-measures. A dedicated and clearly defined chain of command should at once be introduced, so as to do away with the excess of agencies in the realm, so as to disregard special interests of all sorts—to streamline all our talk and work while building that.

The inauguration of the new administration in January may prove to be the right logical point and the correct psychological lever for the sweeping change that is patently due in America's view and management of rockets and missiles. The new administration should not repeat either the complacency of the Truman time or the hesitancy of the Eisenhower era.

Both the American government and people should recognize the fact that stares us all in our well-fed faces:

This crucial race with the Soviet Union is not just for larger and better rockets. It is for our very survival.

To say that we are not in a race is to whistle in the dark helplessly. Too proud to race: We may as well say that we are too proud to fight even if we are attacked.

Midland Lawyer's Body Is Found Beneath Bridge

LAREDO (UPI)— A motorist discovered the body of a well-known Midland attorney Monday underneath a bridge on U.S. 81 about 22 miles north of Laredo.

The victim was identified as T. D. Kimbrough, 57, former Midland County attorney. Sheriff Porfirio L. Flores said Kimbrough's trousers were about three feet from the body, and his shoes and hat were scattered in the immediate area.

Flores said there was a bloody wound on the right side of Kimbrough's forehead, and his knees were skinned as if he had tumbled down a slope.

Authorities weren't able to determine whether he had been killed intentionally, or the victim of an accident. He had been dead about two days when Ysidro Rosales Reyes of San Antonio discovered the body.

Nation's Smokers Aren't Fazed By 'Health Scares'

NEW YORK (UPI) — More Americans smoked more tobacco this year than ever before despite "health scares," the head of the Tobacco Institute, Inc. reported today.

During the year Americans spent $7.6 billion for tobacco—$6.6 billion of it for 489 billion cigarettes, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates cited by Tobacco Institute President George V. Allen. In a year-end statement, Allen said the average annual consumption was 197 packs of 20 per person of smoking age in the nation.

These figures, Allen said, were among new records set despite "attacks" on tobacco "ranging from health scares to unfair taxation and labeling proposals."

"There is every indication," he said, "that comparable progress will continue in the next and succeeding years."

Commission Clears '60 Business

KIWANIS SPEAKER—Mrs. Mickey McDonald, well known authority on charm and beauty, will be principal speaker for the ladies' night meeting of the Top O' Texas Kiwanis Club in the Coronado Inn at 7 p.m. today. Her topic will be "Your Escort and You."

Pampa City Commission made its final meeting of 1960 short and snappy. It met in City Hall this morning, discussed a few pending matters, passed one ordinance to a third reading, adopted two others on third and final reading and then adjourned until Jan. 2, 1961. The two pieces of legislation passed on final reading were an ordinance extending the city limits on Hobart St. and one setting up the referendum election Jan. 31 on the proposed changes in Pampa's charter form of government. The ordinance for paving improvements in the 1100 block of S. Christy was given second reading. The commissioners also heard first reading of an ordinance providing for the designation of a certain portion of Reeves Air Field for city park purposes.

Bitter Cold Bores Into Midwest

By United Press International

Temperatures skidded to near record sub-zero marks in part of the nation's north central region today after an almost balmy Christmas weekend.

The bitter cold air sent the mercury dropping to 29 degrees below zero at Fargo, N.D., early today. The frigid weather threatened Fargo's record December low of 36 degrees below zero set in the 1880's.

Jamestown, N.D., and International Falls, Minn., had 23 below readings. It was 7 below at Grantsburg, Wis.

Strong northwesterly winds were expected to whip snow into Illinois and Indiana by nightfall in advance of the new cold seige.

The gate was opened for the new cold blast Monday by a low pressure center in Wyoming that spawned light snows and steadily dropping temperatures from the central Rockies through the Midwest and south into North Carolina.

From highs near 60 degrees Monday in parts of the Midwest, temperatures plummeted to near 10 degrees at nightfall. They were expected to edge near zero tonight.

TIME FOR VIOLENCE

By Noel M. Loomis

THE STORY: Stella Harding, daughter of Tom Harding, owner of the L ranch, seems to be avoiding Bart Wagner, the man who shot her father. Bart Wagner, who shot her father, is now in jail, but he'll help her message her father.

XIII

The next morning he scouted the entire pasture looking for unbranded calves, and found none. Strange horses were under the cottonwood when he reached the ranch house. He heard men's voices, opened the door, and went in. Catherine was at the stove, pouring coffee. Stella was standing at the front window, looking out, but turned as Bart ducked under the door frame.

A big man stood up. He wore a white shirt and dark vest, boots, big hat. He was heavy-shouldered, and his neck sat down between his shoulders. He had a full beard, beginning to turn gray, and his eyes were sharp and penetrating. She said timidly, "That's Bart Wagner, Mr. Goodnight?" Goodnight stuck out a huge hand. "Charlie Goodnight, JA Ranch."

"Pleased to make your acquaintance," said Bart.

"This here—" The cattle man motioned to a black-haired man, not as big as Goodnight but with observant eyes and a calmness of manner that set him apart. "Judge Willis, judge of the Thirty-fifth Judicial District, come to hold court in Clarendon next week."

They shook hands. "Been hearing about the court, but I never knew whether to believe it or not."

Catherine seemed to have recovered her poise. Bart felt sure she never had had that much company in her life, and

"The law doesn't say how much property a man has to own, does it, judge?"

"No. It must be real estate, however—not personal property."

"Then take a quarter of land near Clarendon and survey an addition," said Bart. "Deed one lot to every cowhand around the county. The lots won't be worth much but they will be property."

Goodnight slapped the table with his big hand. "Why didn't somebody think of that before?"

"A good solution," Willis agreed.

"There must be 500 hands in the county or the surrounding counties in the district," said Goodnight. His massive frame was rocking with energy. "I've got a quarter near Clarendon. I'll get the surveyor up there tomorrow."

The pounding of hooves came from near the creek, and Bart went to the window. A man on a gray horse slid off in front of the door. Goodnight was up to meet him. "What are you heatin' up a good horse over?" he demanded.

Bart recognized Hector Johnson and glanced at Stella. A tiny quirk of scornfulness showed at the corners of her well-shaped mouth.

"The outlaws have gotten together," said Hector between breaths. "They hired Piggie Benson to come down here from Tascosa and break up the court."

"How do you know?" asked Goodnight.

"Two of my hands got fired four days ago for fighting. They went up to Tascosa and saw this regular recruiting station where Benson is signing up men—him and Xenophon Jones."

Goodnight's chin stuck out. "How many are they bringing?"

"The talk in Tascosa is 50."

'Big Squeeze' Put On Urban Society

By GABE KAIMOWITZ
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEWARK, Del. — (NEA) — The squeeze is on.

Even if you don't like to think about it, you're probably being pushed around the country, into a metropolitan corner and further away from your job. So says Dr. Edward Higbee, a University of Delaware geographer, who has just published a book titled "The Squeeze."

"It's a simple matter of land subtraction that, for example, forces a man to travel four hours to work eight."

"He'll never make it if things get worse and he has to travel eight hours even if there is a four-hour workday."

Dr. Higbee offers at least one major solution to "the squeeze" that is forcing you into a metropolitan area from a rural one and right back out again into suburbia. It's called a "space bank," and it's similar to the farmers' "soil bank."

It works like this. One metropolitan government unit is set up to oversee an area, replacing the multiple city, town, township, county agencies that now claim jurisdiction over various portions of a metropolitan area.

The metropolitan government buys up land not in use in this urban-suburban-rural hodgepodge, plans its use and then directs it to the attention of private investment.

Dr. Higbee won't go for the "patch work" solutions now being offered to prevent this land squeeze—zoning, bigger and better plans more wondrous highway, isolated building marvels and urban renewal. Why?

Zoning usually is accomplished after buildings are already there. When it is effected first, there is too great a temptation to make exceptions by spot zoning.

Bigger and better plans, as good as they are too often remain on the drawing boards or in the desks of Chambers of Commerce.

Engineers build the best highways and buildings with almost no thought to what surrounds them. Urban renewal never catches up with slums.

If anyone, perhaps in the spacious plains of the Midwest, or the relatively underpopulated South, is now laughing at the plight of his city breathren, Dr. Higbee has this sobering thought:

"He may be more fortunate because he can avoid the mistakes made, for instance, by Boston, which is old before its time. But make no mistake. Every section of the country will be faced with such a squeeze."

"While people may be more familiar with the problems of the old 'megalopolises'—the highway linked metropolises that stretch along the Eastern and Western seaboard and the Great Lakes—they should not overlook the newer ones. Tulsa-Oklahoma City is one. Dallas-Fort Worth, eventually including Waco and Austin is another. Sooner or later, everyone will be

Ships Collide Off Galveston

GALVESTON (UPI)—Two foreign ships collided in thick fog in the Gulf of Mexico Monday, and one was damaged so badly it had to be towed to port.

The Coast Guard reported that the Greek freighter Tharao and the Norwegian ship Fernmoor were both damaged, but the Tharao was able to proceed under its own power.

The Fernmoor was hit near the engine room, and one hold was flooded.

The Coast Guard said that there were no injuries reported on either ship.

The collision occurred near Head Bank, about 12 miles southeast of Galveston.

Changing Market
RUTLAND, Vt. (UPI)—Two car dealers appeared before the U.S. District Court to determine the value of an automobile. One said the 1954 car was worth $765 and the other said it was valued at $300. A junk dealer had bought it for $85.

New Version of 'The Christmas Story' Told At Christian Women's Fellowship

An original and heartwarming presentation of the "Christmas Story" as seen by Ann, Mother of Mary, was presented by the B&PW Group of the Christian Women's Fellowship of the First Christian Church on Wednesday morning.

The story was narrated by Mrs. W. R. Harden with the "Christmas Story" readings by Mrs. Wallyn Gibson and songs by Mrs. Don Patchin, which included "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem" and "Joy to the World" accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Gibson.

During the business session, conducted by Mrs. John Gill, members were reminded of the church Christmas party which was held Dec. 27 in the church.

Mrs. Gill reported that the Rev. Richard Crews is convalescing from his recent illness.

Following presentation of CWF 1949 yearbooks to members, Mrs. Gill expressed appreciation for the cooperation of officers and members during the past year.

A gift of appreciation was presented to Mrs. Gill by Mrs. K. L. Green, incoming president, on behalf of the membership.

Mrs. H. C. Groninger also expressed appreciation to members for help during the year with shut-ins and requested them to remember shut-ins' birthdays in January. Christmas cans of cookies and candies, made by the Mononga Group were distributed to members to be presented to shut-ins for Christmas.

Meeting closed with the CWF benediction.

Refreshments were served from a red, cloth-covered table centered with a green and red Christmas arrangement by Mmes. H. T. Gantz, B. R. Cantrell and Vernon Hall, members of the Cherryhomes Group.

Attending were Mmes. C. L. Mason, W. G. Kinzer, Frank Hoggsett, C. W. Moot Sr., Vernon Hall, John Gill, Roy Tinsley, Pearl Thurman, H. C. Groninger, K. L. Green, R. E. Converse, Wilan Gibson, Don Patchin, W. R. Harden, H. T. Gantz, B. R. Cantrell, Miss Dorothy Sorenson and Mr. Wallyn Gibson.

New Tuxes Fit Man And The Gala Occasion

By HELEN HENNESSY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Tripping the light fantastic in the grand manner during the holidays? Don't get so involved with your own attire that you forget to cast a critical glance at your husband's tux.

If he's had the same one since his college prom, you'll have to do more than repair the moth holes if he's not to be out of step.

Take a good look at the styling. At present, the single button, single-breasted cutaway style is fashion-right. The body of the jacket is shorter, has a slightly suppressed waistline, and shoulder padding is pared to a more natural, eased line.

Lapels really date a tux. Wide peaked lapels have been replaced by the narrow, or small, notched shawl collar.

Trousers are slimmer, and have a single pleat. One manufacturer has introduced an extension waistband with two adjustable side tabs for added comfort and smooth fit with or without suspenders.

Color has also become an important fashion note. Jet black takes over high fashion prominence in the "all-year" tuxedo. Light colors in dinner jackets are for summer.

Easy to see which tuxedo commands admiring glances. Trimness of today's lightweight tuxedo of acrylic fiber and worsted upstages its predecessor, it's more comfortable, too.

Now that you've checked, will his tux do? If you decide he needs a new one, note another welcome major change in formal wear for men. Fabrics used 10 years ago were in weights as heavy as regular business suits. The look was bulky, and the tux uncomfortable.

Today, fabrics are extremely lightweight, due to development of manmade fibers, which are blended in varying percentages with natural fibers.

A leading manufacturer of men's formal wear has recently introduced an "all-year weight" tuxedo in a fabric blend of Creslan acrylic fiber and worsted, which is even 20 per cent lighter in weight than other tropicals.

Your spouse, for the first time, could be as comfortable as you are at a formal party.

Who knows, under the new circumstances, maybe you'll get to go out "elegant" more often?

Dear Abby...

Maybe He's Looking For A Granny!!

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a married man of 34 who would leave a beautiful, young wife for an old, wrinkled grandmother of 47? Don't tell me that he is looking for "mother love" because his mother is still living. This man is in my family or I wouldn't care what he did, I know it is not unheard of for a man to leave his wife for a YOUNGER woman, but I have never heard of a man preferring an older worn-out one, have you?

FLABBERGASTED
DEAR FLAB: Don't assume that because a man's mother is living he has had his share of "mother love." I don't condone leaving a wife for ANY woman — younger or older — but his reasons are usually younger than springtime and as old as the hills.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widow for two years and have a 12-year-old son who is causing me problems. He won't do any work around the house, talks back to me and does as he pleases. I never spanked any of my children (I have 5) as their father always took care of that with a razor strap which still hangs in the bathroom. I don't use it because I wouldn't know how hard or even how long to hit him. Also, I doubt if it would do much good through his thick trousers and I can't take his pants off, (can I?). Is he too old to be spanked now?

NEEDING ADVICE
DEAR NEEDING: Once your child gets away with talking back and doing as he pleases, it is almost impossible to regain authority. I don't recommend striking a child, with or without trousers. The boy needs the friendship, understanding and discipline of an adult male. Perhaps a relative, teacher or clergyman could guide him.

Couples Class Has Yule Fete

LEFORS (Spl) — The Young Married Couples Class of Baptist Church entertained with a Christmas supper in the L. M. Berry home on Dec. 20.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Nolan, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Fort, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dickerson, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Teel, Mr. Joe Archer. A nursery was kept by Pat Berry in the annex of the Baptist church.

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of a square wedding cake? When we made the arrangements for my daughter's wedding, we didn't think it was necessary to draw the baker a picture of the wedding cake we wanted. We decided on a price and that was all. When the cake was delivered to the hall, we almost fainted to find it was square! None of the guests said anything, but it spoiled my daughter's wedding for me. I would like some opinions, please.

DISAPPOINTED
DEAR DISAPPOINTED: I have never heard of a square wedding cake, but apparently there are such things. I am sure no one noticed it. (Maybe the baker was a square?)

CONFIDENTIAL TO BETTE:

Tennison Circle Has Yule Party

The Christmas Story read from the Bible by Mrs. Carl Laffin followed by "The Gift of Maji" and "The Nicest Gift" by Mrs. Morris Belote was presented as the program for the Grayson Tennison Circle of Hi-Land Baptist Church at its party given in the home of Mrs. Carl Laffin.

A food basket was prepared for a needy family and gifts were brought for the Toddler Sunday School Class.

Following a gift exchange between members, children attending were presented with candy-filled socks.

Mrs. Schmidt Is Hostess To Class

Mrs. Carolyn Schmidt, 1211 E. Kingsmill, was hostess for the recent Christmas Party for the Youth Fellowship Group, Church of the Brethren. Mrs. Schmidt is class teacher with Mrs. Gladys Burger as assistant teacher. Mrs. Nadine Godfrey, group sponsor, is also vice president of the District Youth Fellowship.

A Christmas devotional was presented by Mrs. Burger. Christmas carol singing and games comprised the evening's entertainment.

Attending were Velda Rose, Bill Stull, Mary Hubbard, Patricia Dalton, Karen Hubbard, John Arthur, Corkey Godfrey, Johnny Smith, Ann Collins, Johnny Schmidt, Donna Achard, Sherry Shelly, Connie Burger, John Hubbard, Linda Franca, Robert Dalton, Linda Craig, Cheryl Wheller, Joe Burton, Cheryl Godfrey, and Sherry Walker.

It isn't easy to forgive and forget but it is the true sign of a great, generous and refined person. Teen-agers who learn the "forgive and forget" rule early in life will find that it pays big dividends. If an injustice has been done, don't carry hate, jealousy and envy in your mind. The one who commits the injustice will suffer enough. Forgiveness comes easy. Just put courtesy and grace in your heart.

Buckeyes Top UPI Cage Poll

Bradley '5' Keeps Grip On Second

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ohio State, voted tops in the nation for the fourth straight week by the United Press International, puts its No. 1 rating on the line tonight against a tough field in the Holiday Basketball Festival at Madison Square Garden.

The Buckeyes, with a 6-0 record, were the first choice of 33 of the 35 leading coaches who make up the UPI rating board. Their total of 348 points was just two short of a perfect score.

Bradley remained runnerup for the fourth week in a row; St. John's (N.Y.) advanced to the No. 3 ranking, and St. Louis University and Duke moved up in the top 10 group.

Bradley (6-0) and St. Bonaventure (7-0) received the first place votes that did not go to Ohio State this week.

Following third-ranked St. John's, these teams rounded out the top 10 in order: Indiana, St. Bonaventure, St. Louis, UCLA, Detroit, Louisville and Duke.

North Carolina was rated 11th this week, followed by Kansas State, Kansas and Auburn were tied for 13th place, California was 15th, with Providence and Vanderbilt tied for 16th, Utah, Memphis State and North Carolina State rounded out the second 10 group.

BOWLING
Fault Finder

By LOU CAMPI
Five BPA Doublets Champion
Have you ever noticed sometimes that even though your ball is diving into the 1-3 strike pocket consistently, you are still leaving pins — notably the 4, 7 or 10? Impossible splits such as the 1-10 or 7-9 are even worse. If you are experiencing this difficulty, as I do on occasion, first check your finger lift technique at the point of release. Your ball may be lacking good finishing drive when it enters the pin area because you are releasing it from the thumb and fingers simultaneously.

Check at point of release
The correct method in applying the proper rolling spin is to have the thumb leave the ball a split-second before the fingers.
Only the middle and ring fingers give the ball English that real-scatters all the pins on a pocket

Illinois Back Stars

Yankees Wallop South, 41 To 14

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI)—Illinois halfback Bill Brown wrote records for the Shrine College All-Star football game Monday night as he led the North team to a 41-14 victory over the South.

Brown muscled his way through the Dixie line 27 times for a total of 129 yards and three touchdowns. Both figures topped previous marks set in 12 years of college participation in the charity ball game.

Now the 211-pound halfback will open his ears to the professionals. Brown said he already has received two pro feelers and several pro scouts watched his closing college performance.

It was Brown's three scoring efforts in the second half on runs of 1, 15 and 2 yards which brought the Yanks from behind a 14-6 halftime deficit and put the North in front to stay.

But the 22-year-old halfback shared the glory with Army quarterback Tom Blanda and North-western's fullback Mike Stock.

Pampa Horse Wins Purse

SUNLAND PARK, N.M. (UPI)—MacMullen, a 7-year-old gelding, owned by John T. Sims Jr., of Pampa survived a foul claim to win the featured Rio Grande Handicap at Sunland Park Monday by sprinting from seventh place to the lead in the mile and one-sixteenth race.

Judillo finished second in the nine-horse field while favored Masud came in third. Jockey George Adkins aboard Masud lodged a foul claim against the winner, but it was disallowed by stewards.

Tall Childress Comes To PHS Gym At 8 P.M.

By ARTHUR MAYHEW
Daily News Sports Editor

With the "double-barralled" combination of Randy Matson and Pat Carter primed and ready for firing, Pampa's Harvesters (4-6) will go Bobcat hunting when Childress comes to the suddenly-unfriendly confines of Harvester Gym at 8 p.m. today.

The Harvesters, who may have found the winning combination after a series of shuffles, will be going for their fourth consecutive win after walloping Quannah, 69-39, last Friday.

Friday's win was the biggest point-spread of the season for Pampa, and no small part of the credit was due to Matson, 6-5 sophomore, and Carter, a 5-10 dead-eye senior.

Matson pulled down 23 rebounds, a Pampa high for the year, and stuffed in 28 points, a personal high and second only to Carter's 30 as a team superlative for the year.

Carter, averaging 17 points per game going into the Quannah contest, pumped in 16 and will be the team's leading scorer with 169 points when Pampa takes the court tonight.

Rounding out the top five for Coach Terry Culley's Green and Gold will be Allen Wise, 6-3 senior who yanked off 14 rebounds Friday; Bill Neslage, 5-11 senior, and Gordon Balch, a 6-0 sophomore, a pair of all-around steady hands.

Pampa has one win already over the Cats, holding a 73-50 decision. The win came in the second game of the season and was the last victory until the Harvesters broke out of their five-game losing slump Dec. 17.

Childress, despite being one of the tallest teams in the state, has been having its troubles but they are still the 5-AA district favorite. The Bobcats, whose first unit will average 6-3, are led by Center Jimmy Hamm, a 6-7 junior; Forwards John Myers, 6-5, and Homer McLaugh, 6-3, both seniors; and Guards Travis McCain, 6-3, and Jerry Harmon, probably known as "Shorty," at 5-10. McCain is a junior and Harmon a senior.

Sparkling Childress' second unit which averages 6-0, will be led by 6-7 giant, John Manuel.

In the preliminary game at 6:15 p.m., Pampa's Shockers, featuring on a four-game winning skein, will be looking to Childress 'B' as victim number five in the current streak.

Coach Dean Evans' Shockers stand 7-3 on the year and are keyed by Bob Neslage's rebounding and shooting and Ronnie Chase and Wayne Kries, who also spend half their time on the Harvesters.

Other Shockers expected to see action are C. E. Canrell, Darrell Doss, Larkin Miller, Dwight Thomson and Jerry Glover.

The Harvesters wind up their non-conference schedule for the year with a pair of games with

Sam Jones Leads Celts

By United Press International
Pro basketball fans have always insisted Sam Jones of the Boston Celtics would be a starter if he were playing for any other team, and now he's proving it— with the Celts.

The 6-foot-4 Boston sub started in place of ailing Bill Sharman against the Philadelphia Warriors Monday night and scored 25 points in leading the Celts to a 119-115 victory. Sam scored 11 points in the first quarter to help the Celts open a 36-28 lead.

The Warriors never caught up thereafter, although they closed to within seven points early in the fourth quarter. But Tommy Heinsch, who also totaled 25 points, canned four field goals in four minutes to pull Boston out of danger.

The New York Knickerbockers, who dropped a humiliating 162-100 verdict to Syracuse Sunday night, rebounded strongly to edge the Los Angeles Lakers, 119-112, in the face of a 44-point spurge by the Lakers' Elgin Baylor. Richie Guerin scored 33 for the Knicks.

The St. Louis Hawks ripped Syracuse, 133-112, for their 13th victory in 14 games on their home-court this season. The Hawks triumph also enabled them to increase their Western Division lead to 10 games over the Cincinnati Royals, who sustained a 137-132 setback at Detroit.

Cop Six Bouts

Optimists Punch Out Wins Over Plainview

Pampa's Optimist Club pugilists slammed out six victories last night although it was Plainview and Berger that chalked up the TKO decisions in a full boxing card at the Optimist Building.

The busy Pampa boxers will be idle until Friday when they will host a rugged team from Liberal, Kan., along with fighters from Berger and Lefors.

In all, there were four TKO verdicts last night, with Mike Neely of Berger downing Marvin Finney of Lefors in the third round of a 75-pound battle and Junior Garcia of Berger topping Jimmy Galbreath of Lefors in the first round of a 75-pound fight.

For Plainview, Landro Martinez TKOed Johnny Smith of Berger in the second round and Johnny Alonzo downed Mike Bright of Pampa in the second period. The fights were in the 115- and 126-pound brackets, respectively.

In one of the top matches of the night, Gary Wilhelm of Pampa, a student at the University of Wisconsin, won a decision over Gilbert Gonzalez of Plainview after flooring Gonzalez twice in the first round — only to be stopped by the bell — once in the second and had Gonzalez on his knees twice in the third round.

Gonzalez was the regional heavyweight champion last year in Amarillo and outweighed Wilhelm by 20 pounds.

Philadelphia Uses Passing, Punt Return To Capture NFL Grid Title

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Norm Van Brocklin's passing and Ted Dean's 58-yard return of a kickoff were credited today as the deciding factors in the Philadelphia Eagles' 17-13 victory over the Green Bay Packers in the National Football League championship game.

The authority was Vince Lombardi, coach of the crest-fallen Packers, who mourned that "we had the breaks at the beginning of the game and didn't cash in on them."

Lombardi was speaking of the Eagles halting the Packers' powerful ground attack on the 6 and on the 13 yard lines — minutes after the opening kickoff Monday.

Philadelphia Coach Buck Shaw, who announced his retirement during the dressing room victory celebration after 39 years of football coaching, didn't agree with Lombardi. Shaw said the turning point was the final gun which ended the Packers' desperation bid on the Eagles nine-yard line.

At the same time, Van Brocklin, a 13-year veteran who was named by the UPI as the league's most valuable player, made it official that he too was retiring.

The Eagles line, holding when it had to; Van Brocklin clicking with passes when it was a must; and Dean's critical kickoff return enabled the Eagles to capture their first NFL title since 1949.

A total of 87,325 fans paid a record breaking total of $747,876 to see the nationally-televised game at Franklin Field.

For the Eagles, a Cinderella team that finished last just three seasons ago, it was their eighth come-from-behind victory of the year. The Birds were trailing 13-10 when Dean, a remarkable rookie fullback subbing for injured Clarence Peaks, plunged over from the five at 5:21 of the fourth quarter.

Bobby Walston followed with an extra point to put the Eagles out in front 17-13 and end the scoring for the day.

Dean, a 210-pound pile driver, set up the deciding score when he returned the kickoff 58 yards after the Packers scored on a touchdown pass from Bart Starr to Max McGee.

The pattern of the game was established in the opening seconds when a pass from Van Brocklin to Billy Barnes was batted in the air and Green Bay's Bill Quinlan intercepted it on the Philadelphia

Shaw, Van Brocklin Head For Retirement

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Coach Lawrence (Buck) Shaw and quarterback Norm Van Brocklin, two of the brightest feathers in the crown of the world champion Philadelphia Eagles, headed into retirement today with the fans still cheering.

For Shaw, it was goodbye to football after 39 seasons of coaching.

"I'm going back to my business," he said, referring to the Royal Container Co., a corrugated box manufacturing firm he operates in San Francisco. "I don't want any more head coaching."

"I've said all along I was going to retire. I wanted this championship though, and the boys gave it to me."

Van Brocklin, the wizard of the aerials, hung up his cleats without a notion of what the future holds for him.

"I'm just too happy to think about it," he said. "I only hope all of you have as much happiness some day as I have today. Winning the world championship of football is great."

"I'm living better — really living. Let tomorrow take care of itself."

Hogs Want Cotton Win

The following is the eighth of 16 dispatches on the teams appearing in the major bowl games — the Ross, Cotton, Sugar, Orange and Gator.

By DARRELL MACK

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—A "lonesome end" with sticky fingers and a fourth-string fullback with a "slow toe" may separate the winner from the loser in the silver anniversary Cotton Bowl game in Dallas Jan. 2.

The sticky fingers, belonging to Duke end Claude (Tee) Moorman, could steal victory from Arkansas, keeping the Razorbacks from winning their first Cotton Bowl game.

The toe belongs to Mickey (Slow Toe) Cissell, Arkansas' placekicker who picked up the nickname because of his deliberate kicking style and because his kicks float lazily through the air.

Cissell, an unheralded pre-season weapon who wound up as the team's scoring leader, won two games (Texas, 24-23, and Rice, 3-0) with field goals in the last 25 seconds or less. Both victories were mandatory as Arkansas won its second straight Southwest Conference title and qualified for the bowl game.

Moorman, a 6-3, 208-pounder, caught 46 passes for a single season record at Duke. He's the player Arkansas coach Frank Broyles concentrated on most Monday in his scouting report.

Defending the lonesome end, a new formation for the 'Porkers, will be one of the main jobs this week.

Wayne Harris, Arkansas' second-team All-America center, will play an important part in defending Moorman. Broyles said Harris, who calls defensive signals, will have to try and outguess the Duke quarterback.

"If Harris thinks Duke will run, he will only put one man wide to cover Moorman and we'll play them, 10 to 10," Broyles said. "But if Wayne thinks they will pass, he'll put two men out to cover the end. If we guess wrong and they run, they'll have us outnumbered, 10 to 9."

Harris, a 190-pound linebacker with lots of range, leads the defensive unit, which has averaged a stingy 196 yards a game. Harris personally made 62 tackles and assisted an 116 others this season.

He has help from guard Dean Garrett and tackle Paul Henderson, both second-team all-conference choices. Henderson, at 302 pounds, is the heaviest regular. The first team averages only 194.

While Cissell was the offensive surprise, halfback Lance Alworth and quarterback George McKinney provided a wide-open offense which should be as crowd-pleasing and spectacular as the lonesome end.

Alworth, a triple-threat junior who hasn't been called on to pass because of McKinney's ability, accounted for 1,253 yards. He led the nation in punt returns with a 17.1 yard average.

Ohio State Top Pick In Holiday Festival

By United Press International
Ohio State, the nation's No. 1 team, was picked to defeat Seton Hall by at least 10 points and Utah was a three-point favorite over Pennsylvania in an evening twinbill starting at 7:30 p.m., which will complete the festival's opening round.

"It's just like the good old days, the way the tickets are moving," one tournament official explained before third-ranked St. Joseph's in an afternoon double-header starting at 2:15 p.m. EST. St. John's was a narrow one-point favorite and the Bonnies were an 11-point choice.

The Buckeyes were the logical choice to go all the way in the Garden show because they have virtually the same players that walked off with the NCAA championship last spring.

Four other major tournaments also get underway tonight. Here are the pairings:

Perryton Cage League Starts

PERRYTON (SpI)—Basketball leagues for boys and girls are being organized by the YMCA. Some of the leagues are incomplete at this time, however, games were played Saturday morning.

The Midget League — for boys 9, 10 and 11 — had five teams and the Older Boys League — ages 12, 13 and 14 — has four teams.

Four teams will make up the Peeewe Girls League.

Twenty two girls have signed up for the Older Girls League — ages 12, 13 and 14. — However, since a minimum of 32 girls are needed to form a league, applications are still being accepted in this age group.

Games will be played each Saturday from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. in the new Perryton High School gym.

YOUR FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from the government. Freedom is not license. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, The Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to promoting and preserving YOUR freedom as well as our own. For only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

Your Influence

Too many think as an individual and TV programs he listens to; they can do nothing to promote a better society.

The fact of the matter, every person has his or her influence for better or for worse.

The best way, if not the only way, to help promote a society that respects creative energy and private property is for the individual first to decide his or her life to attempting to better understand the Decalogue and the Declaration of Independence.

Each person has influence by the company he keeps; by the political party he affiliates with or refuses to affiliate with; by the club he joins or does not join; by the church he belongs to or does not belong to; by the labor union he willingly joins or refuses to join or joins under protest; by the way he treats his associates, whether employe or employer; by the radio

Incompatible

There is no reason to suppose that goodness and politics can ever go together. Even a cursory look at the record reveals that with each increase in political activity and dependency, goodness comes harder.

White House Conference

We have been given to understand that shortly after the first of the new year, perhaps about January 12th, there will be a new White House Conference which is supposed to undertake a study of the problems of the aged.

We would like to enter a demurrer right now, before we get any closer to the occasion.

First of all, we would like to submit that conferences do not consist of studying. They cannot be conferences however it is titled, only consist of conferring. The leading, the pondering, the weighing of ideas and the contrasting of ideas do not take place at a conference. Such activities which require at least a modicum of celebration take place in the privacy of one's own study.

So to suggest a conference in such a problem will be studied, to suggest an absurdity. When such unlike things are put together, it can be only one single result: that is to fool someone. And this case the someone to be fooled will be the American people general and the aged people particular.

Actually, what will happen is that some "experts" practicing one of the newer arts called "group dynamics" will engineer the gathering in such a fashion that the outcome will be the "finding" that a great problem exists; the government must be called upon to "solve" the problem; the solution can be found only if sufficient "authority" is used in some governmental bureau, and that with the authority to go a comparable sum of money. For money will be the stick by means of which the less or lack of success of the conference will ultimately be judged.

can be said, although it will be accused as a cynicism, that the present moment, several years before the conference comes, the "experts" are already hatching up their final speeches which they review the findings of the various savants to be summed up, the expression of which is still to be made.

In 1922, Louis Pasteur, French biological chemist and bacteriologist was born.

In 1900, Carrie Nation staged her first wasp attack.

In 1932, New York City's Radio City Music Hall opened — the largest indoor theater in the world.

In 1941, Japanese airplanes bombed Manila in the Philippines.

The Doctor Says:

By Dr. HAROLD T. HYMAN

If you've ever seen a football player lower his head and back into the defensive line of hefty guards and tackles or watched a pair of pugilists stand toe-to-toe, each trying to "knock the block off" his opponent, you must have wondered what prevented serious injury to underlying softer tissues.

How in the world, you must have speculated, could this battering fail to affect the delicate tissue of the brain (cerebrum), the incoming and outgoing nerves that co-ordinate all vital activities, and the thin-walled cerebral blood vessels?

Well, in the first place, the skull is a mighty efficient helmet. And, secondly, between the cranial helmet and the easily crumbled structures of the cerebrum, nature has provided a water cushion of cerebrospinal fluid that converts a terrific jolt into relatively harmless ripples.

But if every cloud has a silver lining, so too must every silver lining have a covering cloud. And the cloud where cranium and cranial contents are concerned is the difficulty of knowing just what's going on beneath the protective helmet as the result of a head injury.

Following a bang on the noggin, you can see and feel the bump on the skull. But how do you know the extent of the damage, if any, to the soft tissues within the cranial cavity? And particularly how do you know in the case of a baby who can't describe his feelings or an alcoholic whose senses have been numbed by drink?

The answer to both questions is, of course, that you can't know. Indeed there are times when it's difficult for even the specialist to know before an exploratory operation is performed.

That's why I urge you to insist on medical consultation in the case of any significant head injury, especially if the injured person is an infant or an adult who is under the influence of liquor, sedative drugs or tranquilizers.

I warn you particularly to avoid the tragic error of misinterpreting the so-called "free interval" that is so characteristic of certain types of hemorrhage within the skull.

In this "free interval," for example, the injured person who has seemingly just "blacked out" may "come to."

If this apparent recovery is taken as evidence that insufficient damage has been done to warrant the trouble and expense of medical consultation, the error may prove costly.

The time that is lost during the "free interval" between the first and second "black-out" may make the difference between successful surgical intervention and permanent brain damage or even death.

Conferences of this sort are basically dishonest. Some persons, whom they don't represent, will speak with great authority in great areas of supposition. They will hand out opinions which rest on the flimsiest of evidence if not on actual distortions and misstatements.

We know we will be in the minority when we suggest how nice the world would be if the government would stop trying to solve our problems for us and leave us alone. After all, the government has to try to do something to justify your inordinate faith in it. And about the best thing it has been able to come up with thru the years is something that may cause the bureaucracy to grow larger, the tax load to grow heavier and the conferences to grow more cumbersome and more stupid.

What is wrong with a recognition that we are dealing with individuals and that each problem in the life of any individual is an individual problem and is best solved by the individual, old or young?

1.) That there be no display in public schools of religious symbols such as the Nativity scene, crucifixes, the Star of Bethlehem or angels;

2.) That Christmas songs like "Frosty the Snowman," "Here We Come A-Wassailing," or "We Wish You a Merry Christmas" be substituted for traditional carols with religious content like "Silent Night" or "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing;"

3.) That "nonsectarian" aspects of Christmas be allowed in public schools. These can include Santa Claus, the stockings on the fireplace, holly wreaths, and candies.

The ACLU cited several authorities to back its plea, including an opinion given by the Illinois attorney general in 1955, which held that "the presence of objects or symbols of a sectarian or denominational nature, such as pictures, posters, statuary, medals and similar articles of furniture and room decoration, in classrooms, halls, or elsewhere in the school is illegal . . . to the extent that the presence of such objects or symbols by intent induces, invites, or exhorts the pupils to embrace a particular religion or denomination."

Lester Schoerb, associate superintendent of Chicago public schools, said that the city has no specific rule about Christmas observances, but left it up to the discretion of individual principals. "Most of them," he added, "are guided by the wishes of their school population." (NCWU Wire).

Fat Man, White Beard, Red Suit?

Allen - Scott Reports:

WASHINGTON — Professor Walter Heller, director of the economics department of the University of Minnesota, is President-elect Kennedy's choice to head his Council of Economic Advisers.

Senator Hubert Humphrey, (D., Minn.) is strongly supporting Heller, who has not yet accepted this offer.

The 45-year-old economist met Kennedy during the presidential campaign and greatly impressed him. At Kennedy's request, Heller prepared several studies for him, particularly on national economic growth.

Heller has also testified before the Joint Congressional Economic Committee, headed by Senator Paul Douglas, (D., Ill.) one-time economics professor.

In these discussions, Heller disclosed he is an advocate of "low interest rates," and favors eliminating the 4 1/2 per cent interest rate on government bonds. He contends that it is advisable to "give the Treasury flexibility to bring down interest rates."

President Eisenhower repeatedly asked Congress to abolish this 4 1/2-year-old interest ceiling, but got nowhere.

Heller served in the Treasury Department as a fiscal economist from 1942 to 1946. Thereafter, for several years he was head of the Finance Division of the U.S. Occupation in Germany. Earlier this year, Heller went to Jordan, at the request of the State Department, to develop a budget system for that country.

At the University of Minnesota, Heller was also economic adviser to Governor Orville Freeman, who will be Agriculture Secretary in the Kennedy Administration.

Fair Enough

For years there were rumors in Washington that Alben W. Barkley, both as Senator from Kentucky and majority leader and later, as Vice President under Harry Truman, did not pay his income tax; indeed, that some years, he did not even make returns.

The Internal Revenue is very secretive although there have been cases in which footnots of returns leaked out to persons not authorized by law to get them. The rumors about Barkley came to me from field agents of the Internal Revenue who had retired and were no longer exposed to punishment. The Louisville Courier-Journal, which was friendly to Barkley in life and currently advocates a state memorial to him to cost about $50,000, has now published verified statements that his estate had to pay $343,444 in taxes on a total estate of $834,801, acquired mainly in his last few years.

This information did not come from the Internal Revenue, however. Robert L. Riggs, of the Courier-Journal's Washington Bureau, who dug up the story, explained that the Internal Revenue's attitude clearly indicated that the amount was the Treasury's own figure, not a compromise. However, much of it was estate tax and the interesting legend of Barkley's income tax still vague.

Mr. Riggs wrote that the federal government got 54 per cent of the total estate.

Ex-Governor Happy Chandler, who fought Barkley for years, recently wrote a friend that Barkley "many times told us how poor he was" and said, "I think he actually was poor until he became majority leader of the Senate."

About that time his fees for "lectures" to organizations having fish to fry in matters of foreign relations went up abruptly.

A very knowing and influential Louisville public official wrote, "I made an inquiry which somewhat confirms my belief, that Senator Barkley was being paid a maximum of $2,300 a night for his speeches" in one such overseas case. He then might vote in favor of his clients' interest. This is common practice and the members of the Foreign Relations Committee are usually in demand for pearls of wisdom at fund-raising dinners.

This Louisville official added, "I personally think the most justifiable criticism that could be directed against Senator Barkley would grow out of his purchase of some real estate in McCracken County and subsequent sale to the government as a site of the atomic power plant. I have never had occasion to check the dates but I am inclined to believe the date of purchase would perhaps bear a significant coincidence with the birth of the idea in Washington of the purchase of land near Paducah for the plant."

Parentetically, the cost of this job was boosted enormously by racket strikes of AFL unionists ordered by notorious crooks who went unwhipped, however, when the Kennedy brothers were running the inquiry as a political project for the 1960 election.

Reverting to Chandler's recent remarks, Happy further said: "The rumor here is that he did not pay any federal taxes during the last 10 years of his life. People here do not mention him much any more. They are generally disenchanted after finding out what sort of a character he really was. This is an interesting sidelight, Barry Bingham, of the Courier-Journal, is chairman of the committee to erect a monument to Barkley with state funds. They intend to place it in the rotunda of the state capitol at Frankfort."

Nevertheless the Courier-Journal did break the story.

The retired Treasury agent who provided the original tip on the Barkley matter said also that F. D. Roosevelt took revenge on Henry Wallace for describing him as "The wavering one" in some of his notorious bubblehead letters to his Russian Guru, Nicholas P. Berich. And the agent who actually handled the Wallace case said, "Yes, that was a hatchet job."

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK—Always eager to bring you the newest tidings in the home decor and construction field, let me hasten to you with the fact that if you are painting a room with wood that has been under sea water from 40 to 100 years, you aren't out front with the latest. And you can turn to Richard J. Power for the answer to your problem. Power was a forestry graduate from Syracuse University, a Burma Road fighter in World War II and a student of wood which, he discovered, was perfectly wonderful if it had stood in salt water for decades. He also discovered that on the New York waterfront, where pier pilings have an estimated age of 40 years, old pilings were burned to ashes instead of being recut and used. This irked him because he knew that only the part that had been in the open air was rotted and useless. The underwater parts were sound, strong and seasoned.

He put together a few dollars, created the Burma Road Lumber Co., as a sort of look back over the left shoulder gesture to his part in World War II, and began to log the New York and New Jersey waterfronts. He sent word out that it was not necessary any longer to pile and burn the old piles (the WORDS I Know!) and he would appreciate it if they would be loaded on scows and brought to him. He also got a few small boats and began combing New York waters for floating logs. Using his army background, he was able to buy a used mine detector and every log undergoes scrutiny from this surplus instrument to make sure old nails, spikes and iron plates aren't hidden inside it. Naturally, he doesn't like to ruin expensive "sea" by having them rip into metal.

His greatest find was at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, where a quantity of lumber that had been sunk deliberately before the Civil War was brought up from the water that had completely covered it for just more than 100 years. It was not water-logged and pulpy but sound and healthy, much better than any boards that could be found in today's market.

The planks he achieves by rip-sawing old pilings and derelict lumber have a feel that is special and an appearance that I causing decorators and design-connoisseurs of pleasure. Besides there is a certain snob value in paneling a room at home in lumber about which you can say: "They found this under water in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Been there since Lincoln went into the White House. Before, really. I think. Hard to come by but we like it."

Power has acquired other tools since he went into business, calling a large magnet that pulls spikes and nails from the old timber. When he requires a mound of these he stils the metal off by the pound. So far no new use has been found for the sawdust and much of it still finds its way onto saloon floors, although most modern saloons no in for vinyl, marbles and the like and have no truck with old-fashioned sawdust strewn over the premises. But any bartender might take pride in being able to say: "You are standing on sawdust that was under water on the New York waterfront for 40 years." His word risk a snarling customer who might reply: "So what? Give me another double Scotch."

Come to think about it, I have not seen sawdust on a floor in years, but there must be water-holes that use it because I see trucks go through the streets of New York loaded with large barrel boxes of the stuff. Since almost nobody in Manhattan keeps an icehouse these days, I can think of no other use for sawdust except the floors of saloons. This statement will earn me 19 letters from people giving me indignant runs for 40 years. His word risk a snarling customer who might reply: "So what? Give me another double Scotch."

On the remote chance that another turkey day will still find me in Italy, or in some other country where the cranberry has yet to take its rightful place in the grocery bins or on the shelves, I am planning to plant and grow them.

I know quite a bit about growing cranberries, having passed by where they were growing in New Jersey and New England. They need a lot of water, I believe. Plant them in bogs, don't you? Well, we have a small garden here in Rome, and fortunately it is surrounded by a thick, stone wall. What's to keep me from flooding it until it becomes a bog, and then sowing it with cranberries? Either, the real berries, or cans of the stuff which I will order from home.

In a few months, or certainly before next Thanksgiving, I should have a mighty bog of cranberries, ready for sauce, jelly, or any other way we want to fix them.

Any we have left over, I'll sell. No reason the Italians shouldn't take to cranberries. We eat pizza.

News Briefs

TOKYO (UPI) — Tokyo's population rose to 9,681,047 as of Nov. 1, 1950 the statistics bureau of the metropolitan government has announced.

This was an increase of 15,444 over the October total. The latest release showed males outnumbered females, 5,091,116 to 4,589,931.

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Premier Sharif Emami has ordered a special commission to investigate the Shemshak mine disaster in which 19 miners and two rescue workers died Saturday.

Six of the miners were crushed to death by rocks after an explosion and the rest died of suffocation when ventilating equipment failed. All 21 bodies were recovered.

ROME, Italy — Two turkeys in a row without cranberry sauce are all that a man should be asked to endure. A third might well break him down and cause lasting inquiries.

And that's what we have had. A cranberry-less turkey on Thanksgiving and another on Christmas. The cranberry has yet to be introduced to Italy, even in its canned form. I couldn't even find a word for it in my Italian dictionary.

There is a word for berry — bacca. But not for "cran."

There are, however, Italian words very close to cran. Crank and crane, for example, and in my search for the cranberry I decided to tack them on to the word for berry and see if that wouldn't work. There was the outside chance that if I asked for a cranberry or a cranberry I'd come up with a cranberry.

The Italian word for "cran" is Individuo Eccentrico, so I put that with bacca and set out on my round of greengrocers.

"Have you any individuo eccentrico baccas?" I asked at a dozen places. Not one of them had so much as one individual eccentric berry.

So I switched to cranberries — lessura baccas — or birds-that-stand-on-one-leg berries. No one had ever heard of them. I might just as well have asked for Cranio baccas, or skull berries, which I did.

So I gave up, and we ate our turkeys without any cranberry sauce, which is much like sailing a ship without a rudder, or kissing a girl who is wearing a diving bell. No good. This is especially true of leftover, cold turkey. A turkey sandwich needs cranberry sauce the way a baby needs a mother. They not only compliment one another — they bow clear to the ground.

Signs Of Old Age Need Not Be Inevitable

By JERRY BENNETT

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Americans are more befuddled, about befuddled among their elders than they have reason to be. Many "signs of old age" — forgetfulness, disorientation — which seem inevitable because of the changes in our body, aren't inevitable at all.

Doctors at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., and at the Chestnut Lodge Sanitarium in nearby Rockville say that, more often than not, the "signs of old age" are emotionally produced rather than the results of organic brain damage.

One answer for preserving the mental alertness of our elders — some 60 million over 65 years old — is to keep them active, eliminating boredom.

This will be among the topics discussed at the White House Conference on Aging, Jan. 9-12, by 3,000 doctors, economists, welfare experts, businessmen and labor leaders.

The "signs of old age" generally are attributed to the natural process of aging or the results of cerebral arteriosclerosis (hardening of the brain's arteries).

Dr. Robert N. Butler, a NIH research psychiatrist, says:

"With the exception of severe arteriosclerosis which can cause signs of mental disorder, there's nothing to prove that the disease in its milder forms hampers mental alertness.

"Also, the degree to which chronological age per se is the overriding factor in disorders of the aged now is subject to serious question."

Dr. Butler and others have found that many personality traits often attributed to organic disorders stem from mental depression.

He says: "Many people forget that old people worry about their problems like everyone else." When the problems seem overwhelming to young and old alike, they can "seem preoccupied, acting as if they were living in a world of their own."

It is true that the old people may have unique problems — enforced retirements, the deaths of spouses, relatives or friends and overriding fears of death.

Old people also have come to regard themselves as a special class because they have been stereotyped and singled out as "golden agers" or "senior citizens," the doctor adds. So they come to believe that "young people just don't understand them — and that they need special attention."

Psychotherapy often corrects mental depression among elders. Keeping them busy helps prevent it, Dr. Butler observes.

Each year, thousands of elderly people still alert and healthy are retired. Because they have had neither time nor inclination to develop a hobby, they fall into a day-by-day existence of inactivity.

To prevent resulting physical or mental decline, many things have been tried to keep the aged busy. Business firms, labor unions, churches, welfare agencies, cities and towns sponsor recreational programs, clubs and centers.

The elders are taught painting, dressmaking, leathercraft, photography, gardening, carpentry, foreign languages and other academic subjects.

Hi-fi, television, motion pictures, stage plays, lectures, luncheons, dances, parties and trips are offered.

Nursing homes are asked to do the same: California requires such institutions to provide recreational facilities.

Sometimes hobbies pay off economically as well as medically. Robert G. Goodwin, director of the Dept. of Labor's bureau of employment security, says:

"Our local office counselors frequently suggest that retired people consider making hobbies into part or full-time employment. Because hobbies represent individual likes, men can use their best talents and be assured of finding job satisfactions essential to their well-being as if they were living in a world of their own."

Rodeo Champ Fractures Ankle

By DENNIE FREEMAN
United Press International

DALLAS (UPI)—Casey Tibbs, a cowboy's cowboy and one of the favorites in the National Finals Rodeo which moves into the second round tonight, broke his ankle underneath a spiffire saddle bronc ironically named "My Buddy" Monday night.

Tibbs, 31, from Brackettville, Tex., defending champion in this rodeo world series and six times world's champion in saddle bronc riding, is apparently finished in the finals, although NFR officials held a slim hope that he may return in several days and ride with his leg in a cast.

He was one of two riders injured as the 67 greatest cowboys in the world matched skill with the roughest stock in North America and seemed to come out second best.

Delbert Hataway, of Snyder, Tex., broke a bone in his cheek when a bull named "Speck," a snorting hunk of fury that has been ridden only once in four years, flipped him off onto his face on the arena floor.

Three other leaders in the rodeo's five main events finished out of the money in opening action. Harry Tompkins of Dublin, Tex., the leading contender for the world champion cowboy honors, Bob A. Robinson of Rockland, Idaho, and Enoch Walker of Cody, Wyo., current leaders in bull riding, steer wrestling and saddle bronc riding, respectively, all failed to place.

Tompkins, however, managed to pick up third place money in the bareback bronc riding and increased his all-round cowboy lead over Robinson.

The only current leader to win a first place was Jack Buschbom of Cassville, Wis., who stuck with a horse called "Funny Face," in bareback bronc riding.

My Buddy, a big bay gelding, broke out of the chute and started into a horizontal spin. As he came down, his knees buckled and he toppled to the side. Tibbs didn't have a chance to get out of the saddle and the crowd of 5,354 gasped, then broke into loud cheers and applause as Tibbs struggled to his feet.

"I heard it snap," Tibbs said after he was helped out of the arena.

Dale Smith of Chandler, Ariz., roped and tied his calf in 14.9 seconds to win that event. Dean Oliver of Boise, Idaho, placed second, posting a 15.7 second timing.

Other first place winners in the first of 10 go-rounds were Winston Bruce of Calgary, Alta, in saddle bronc riding; Bob Wegner of Ponca City, Okla., in bull riding, and Harley May of Oakdale, Calif., in steer wrestling.

Tompkins added $174 to his lead for the all-round cowboy title. His total now stands at $31,392 with Robinson, his nearest competitor, far behind at $27,345.

Buschbom, current bareback bronc riding world champion, widened his lead over Tompkins in that division by $173. He now has won $15,865 to $14,510 for Tompkins.

BEST OF 4-H

Irene Meyer Cecelia Drabek

A pair of 13-year-old Texas girls are home again after attending the 29th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

The 1960 state 4-H award winners are Irene Meyer of Cuero, who won the food preparation crown this year, and Cecelia Drabek of Crowell, the best of the home economics enthusiasts.

Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Meyer, has spent 10 years in 4-H work—all with the Lindens 4-H Club. A 1960 graduate of Cuero Senior High School, she has held various 4-H Club offices.

Her Chicago trip was arranged by Betty Crocker of General Mills.

Cecelia, in 4-H Club work for eight years, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Drabek, a senior at Crowell High School, she is a member of the Foard county Junior Leaders 4-H Club.

Says Virginia Jackson, home demonstration agent, of Miss Drabek: "Cecelia meets all the qualifications that makes a good leader. She has done much in encouraging younger 4-H'ers."

In Chicago Cecelia was a guest of Montgomery Ward, program awards sponsor.

Both girls were selected for these awards by the Cooperative Extension Service which directs 4-H work.
