Unemployment Frets Kennedy

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — President-elect John F. Kennedy and his Democratic-congressional leaders, concerned about unemployment and the "lack of vigor in the economy," today promised to press for early action for aid to economically-distressed areas and an increased minimum wage.

Kennedy and the leaders also forecast speedy action on measures providing for federal aid for school construction, public housing and medical care for the aged.

Kennedy wound up nearly two days of talks at his home here with Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson, House Speaker Sam Rayburn and Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, expected to be the new majority leader of the Senate.

The four men held a joint news conference in the patio of Kennedy's home and from this meeting came these other points: Johnson will take over chairmanship of the President's advisory council on space.

Kennedy also assigned Johnson responsibility for overseeing work of the government contract compliance committee, which seeks to eliminate discriminatory employ-

Gasoline Price War On In City

Pampa motorists today were enjoying a local gasoline price war that found regular gasoline selling from five to seven cents a gallon below what they had to pay for it last Friday.

A spot survey showed some independent gasoline dealers had dropped the price of regular gas as low as 25 cents a gallon.

While most dealers contacted would not pin-point a definite reason for the current price war they agreed that a number of factors entered into it. In most instances, particularly at the major stations, the price of ethyl gasoline had not changed.

46 Dead; Scaffolding Use Probe Under Way

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Navy began an investigation today into the use of wooden scaffolding that fed a 12-hour, $75 million fire in the aircraft carrier Constellation and caused 46 deaths.

The wooden scaffolding on the hangar and galley decks of the Constellation being outfitted at the Brooklyn Navy Yard was set ablaze Monday by spilled kerosene-type fuel ignited by a welder's arc.

Schools Close Tomorrow For Yule Vacation

Some 6,827 Pampa boys and girls of school age will put aside their books tomorrow afternoon to begin a 12-day Christmas holiday vacation.

School Superintendent Knox Kinard said today classes at the high school, junior high and elementary schools will close at the regular time tomorrow and resume on the morning of Tuesday, Jan. 3.

Judge Gives Bank Robber Yule Leave

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A federal judge read a hand-written letter Monday and immediately allowed bank robber Hassan Zehabe to leave jail on his promise he would return two days after Christmas.

The letter to Judge Thurmond Clarke began: "Is it okay if my daddy can come home for Christmas Eve and Christmas Day?"

It was written by 11-year-old Nadya Zehabe after her dad admitted robbing a bank of $400 and was ordered held for sentencing Jan. 9 in lieu of $20,000 bail. Zehabe, 35, had no previous arrest record.

"We haven't never been separated on Christmas," said Nadya's letter. "Daddy is not really a bad guy. . . . He just did it because everybody has been mean to him. Like the guys who hired him for a week and didn't even pay him at all."

"Yasmeen, our baby, misses him very much. She always goes around saying daddy, daddy, daddy all the time. I promise I will do anything you want if you'll just let him come home. That would be all I want for Christmas. Thank you very much."

"I never saw as much wood in a steel vessel in my life," added Fire Commissioner Edward Cavanaugh, who directed the massive fire fighting and rescue effort. The 1,045-foot long carrier was (See 46 DEAD, Page 6)

Air Tragedy

Transistor Radio Seen As Reason By Expert

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An air safety expert suggested today that a passenger listening to a transistor radio might have caused a United Airlines DC-8 to stray off course and collide with a TWA Constellation over New York City last week.

He raised the possibility after Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) Chief Elwood R. Quesada said a preliminary investigation showed the United jetliner failed to stay in a holding pattern and reported one of its two navigation receivers was "out of business."

Quesada said the precise collision point, above Staten Island, apparently was about 11 miles from the holding pattern which the jet was supposed to be occupying.

The air safety expert, who is a veteran airline pilot and accident investigator, said the suggestion that a transistor radio might have caused the plane's course indicator to go haywire was "strictly a theory."

"But the United pilot sure as hell didn't fly off course on purpose," he declared.

The death toll in the air disaster is now 134. The United jet crashed in a Brooklyn street. The Constellation came down on Staten Island.

The Flight Safety Foundation, a private aviation research organization, has warned that certain types of transistor equipment will cause the electronic course indicators on airliner instrument panels to malfunction.

There is no FAA regulation banning the use of transistor radios or tape recorders on airliners. But several airlines—including United — print warnings against them on passenger tickets or placards in the planes.

Cuba Pact Held Aid To Soviet

MOSCOW (UPI)—Western observers said today Cuba's new trade treaty with Russia will strengthen Soviet influence on the Caribbean island republic 90 miles south of Florida.

They said the agreement, obligating Russia to buy 2.7 million tons of Cuban sugar if the United States refuses to do so, would lessen the effect of U.S. economic sanctions on Premier Fidel Castro's regime.

Russia agreed to "do its utmost" to supply Cuba with vital products which it is no longer able to obtain from the United States.

Cuba also proposes to sell Russia nickel, fruit and hides in exchange for Soviet wheat, machinery, metals and technical assistance.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev, appearing in public at a reception here Monday night for the first time since Dec. 2, renewed his promise of support for the Castroites.

"If there should be a need for Cuba to defend itself against aggression, it could count in such an emergency on the help of the socialist (Communist) countries," Khrushchev said.

Maj. Ernesto (Che) Guevara, the Castro aide who signed the pact for Cuba, said 100 factories built with Soviet help would soon go into production in the Caribbean nation.

(Guevara has signed trade treaties with a number of other Red regimes during his current tour of the Communist world.)

HE'S AN EAGLE SCOUT—Wayne Lemons, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lemons, 2217 Aspen, is shown as his mother proudly pins his Eagle Scout badge to his shirt as his father stands by. Wayne, a member of the Presbyterian Church sponsored Troop 14, officially gained his long-sought goal last night during Court of Honor ceremonies in the church. Pupils Take Christmas Spirit Into City Hall

Pampa city officials and city commissioners mixed the Christmas spirit and business at the regular meeting of the commission in City Hall today.

Half way through the meeting voices of youthful Christmas carolers floated into the commission room and brought business to a halt.

City commissioners were being serenaded by boys and girls of the fifth and sixth grades in Baker school. The singing group was under the direction of Mrs. Claudie Hallman.

As the wheels of city business came to a standstill Mayor Ed Lyatt and City Manager John Koutz went into the City Hall corridors and greeted the group.

With the singing of "Silent Night" the group left City Hall, paid a visit to The Pampa News and then went on to continue their carol singing at other places in downtown Pampa.

Today's session of the commission dealt mostly with routine business. Contract was awarded to the Amarillo Asphaltic Concrete Co. for the paving of the 1100 block of S. Christy. The low bid was $6,840.64.

The commission also discussed purchase of land at Reeves Airfield, south of Pampa, for park purposes. Commissioners were told the city still owes some $11,500 on the original purchase price of $32,000. Ways and means of making the $11,500 payment are being worked out.

Authorization was given to proceed with a contract with the Pampa Independent School district whereby the schools would utilize services of the city tax department in making appraisals for school tax purposes.

An ordinance was passed on second reading which would extend the city limits and annex the area from 18th St. to Decatur between Hobart and Banks.

Another ordinance was passed on second reading setting Jan. 31 as (See PUPILS, Page 6)

Jaycees Make Final Payment To Youth Center

Pampa Jaycees made their final $500 payment today on a $2,000 contribution to Pampa's Youth and Community Center.

At the regular Jaycee luncheon in the Palm Room of City Hall a check for $500 was presented to Dr. J. R. Donaldson, president of the PYCC.

The Jaycees have been contributing $500 a year on the contribution for the past three years.

Israel Hasn't Answered Arms Query Asked By U. S. State Department

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States asked Israel two weeks ago whether it was trying to make atomic weapons but still has received no answer, the State Department has disclosed.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter made the request to Israeli Ambassador Abraham Harman on Dec. 9, the same day the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee was briefed by Central Intelligence Agency officials on what was called "intelligence information" that Israel was seeking to build an atomic arsenal.

The Israeli Embassy here said today it had received no answer yet from its government to Herter's question.

The State Department disclosed the query to Israel Monday as President Eisenhower received an hour-long top-level briefing on world affairs, including reports that Israel was striving to join the United States, Britain, Russia and France in the atomic club.

Congo Problem Still Confounds United Nations; Recess Nearing

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The 15th General Assembly drove toward a three-month recess today more confounded by the strange problem of the Congo than when it convened last September.

Steady sniping at Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold by the Soviet Union and its colleagues has undermined the confidence once placed in the United Nations chief and plunged the assembly into bickering and doubt over how to pacify and restore the new African state.

The assembly debated the issue until 1:49 a.m. EST today, adjourning at the end of a 100-minute speech by Indian Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon. He attacked an Anglo-American proposal to strengthen Hammarskjold's hand in the Congo.

Sleepy delegates sat upright and gave prolonged applause to a Nicaraguan proposal for adjournment after Krishna Menon left the rostrum.

Despite Krishna Menon's oratory, it was doubtful the assembly would pass any resolution affecting Hammarskjold's mandate to pacify the Congo.

A two-thirds vote is required for assembly action. The U.S. British proposal, endorsing Hammarskjold's policy and calling for conditions which would enable pro-Western President Joseph Kasavubu to reestablish a civilian government, appeared to stand the best chances of getting it—but it was a slim chance.

There was less enthusiasm for a draft resolution sponsored by Yugoslavia, India and six other Afro-Asian countries calling for restoration of ousted leftist Premier Patrice Lumumba and disarming of the troops of Congolese strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu who imprisoned him two weeks ago.

The assembly was expected to vote on the two proposals this morning.

Man Injured When Horse Leaps On Car

A 50-year-old Oklahoma City man was in fair condition today in Highland Hospital after receiving internal injuries when a horse leaped on his car early this morning inside the Pampa city limits.

The man, Foy Lee Kiddle, collapsed soon after reaching the hospital and suffered shock. X-rays will be taken later to determine the extent of the injuries.

Riddle was heading east in his 1960 model automobile when the horse, obviously blinded by the oncoming lights, came onto the road in the 1800 block of Alcock St. and jumped on Riddle's car, according to Jim Conner, Pampa chief of police.

The horse, belonging to B. W. Kelly of Pampa, was killed instantaneously. Value of the animal was set at $1,200, while damage to Riddle's car was fixed at $1,350.

Texas' 24 Votes Go To Kennedy

AUSTIN (UPI)—In a quiet 44 minute session, Texas electors cast their 24 ballots in the electoral college Monday for John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson to return the state to the Democratic camp for the first time in three presidential elections, and buried a strong Republican bid for a recount of the general election voting.

It was a marked contrast to the torrid controversy that has surrounded the election in Texas, sparked at times by charges of "fraud" and "election irregularities" and even resulted in an investigation in various precincts by the FBI.

'Needed' Her Owner, Too Siamese Cat 'Trims' Yule Tree

GREENVILLE, Mich. (UPI) — Lawrence Roy has a most unusual Christmas tree because he has a most unusual Siamese cat.

The family cat—Pat, isn't the saucer-of-milk type of feline. Pat isn't even the horsemeat type. Pine needles are more in Pat's line.

Roy recently set up the Christmas tree, an evergreen, and the family trimmed it ever so carefully.

Pat proceeded to literally eat down the tree; needle by needle. Only the ornaments and tinsel icicles remained, and Pat munched the icicles.

Roy decided Christmas simply wouldn't be Christmas without a tree in the living room.

He chopped down a wild cherry tree, stripped of all its greenery by freezing temperatures, and set it up where once had stood a gaily decorated evergreen.

The ornaments and lights—Pat apparently doesn't have the stomach for them—were strung from the leafless branches and some plastic icicles were added. Pat isn't a plastic fancier, either.

Does Pat like the new tree? Roy said she climbs happily up the trunk and cuffs away at the tasteless ornaments and plastic icicles.

Could be, Roy thinks, that Pat isn't hungry any more.

Santa Starts In August In His Tour Of Alaska

By E. L. ATKINSON
ANCHORAGE, Alaska (NEA)—Santa Claus comes in many ways to this 49th state of ours.

He may bounce over crusty snow in an Eskimo-style dog-sled drawn by Siberian Huskies. He may harness up a team of "Blitzens," dainty reindeer pasturing on Nunivak Island in the Bering Sea, to bring Christmas cheer to remote outposts.

Or he may pick up bundles of candies, toys, clothing and surprises at Elmendorf Air Force Base, Anchorage, and fly them to villages on the Aleutian Chain via U.S. Air Force where they are dropped by parachute to children gathering for community Christmas parties.

Alaska Railroad employees give him a helping hand as early as August. They conduct a clothing drive for needy families in villages along the lower Yukon River and send the clothes on a long journey via railway and river boat to St. Mary's Mission so that they will get there in time for Christmas.

Then there's "Operation Helping Hand," an annual Christmas Airlift to Protestant missions in Alaska. Various local agencies contribute to these flights of "fancies" to Fort Yukon, Point Barrow, Nome and other distant places.

Pre-decorated trees are flown to remote government installations in those parts of Alaska which lack the abundance of spruce, fir and pine (Christmas trees) prevalent elsewhere in the state.

Another friend of Santa's, the Alaskan Air Command, delivers "Christmas mail" to personnel at silent outposts, perhaps on the North American continent's northern rim.

Santa makes sure to remember the Eskimos, too, whether they live at Mary's Igloo, Kwigillinghok or Shaktolik.

Festivities are planned by a mission preacher or native school teacher. Eskimo hunters bag wild game, perhaps a polar bear or a seal. Served with this cooked, or, if you prefer, raw meal will be tea, coffee, sugar, canned milk and perhaps fruit.

In comes Santa, usually a member of the village council, to give out stockings filled with goodies. Just when the jolly, red-cheeked man is about to give out from sheer exhaustion, he is prevailed upon to go to the Pribilof Islands where Christmas is celebrated by those of Russian Orthodox faith on Jan. 6.

Since other churches observe the holiday on Dec. 25, the merriment goes on for two weeks.

TWO BURNED FATALLY

HOUSTON (UPI)—Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Head and four of their children managed to escape from their flaming home in Houston Sunday, but two other children burned to death in the blaze. The two killed were Carleen Head, 5, and her 3-year-old sister Donna. Mrs. Head and two of the children who escaped were hospitalized with burns.

Texan Commits Suicide After Bludgeoning Family

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—A San Antonio insurance salesman bludgeoned three sleeping members of his family with a claw hammer yesterday before taking his life by cutting his throat with a butcher knife.

The sheriff's office said Raymond D. Fraley was found dead in the bathroom of his home. He was clad in pajamas and his throat was slit. His son, Raymond, 5, died shortly after being taken to a hospital. Mrs. Fraley, who managed to call police, and a daughter, Reda Denise, 7, were in critical condition in a hospital. A neighbor, Mrs. Leigh Smith said, "I can't understand it. They were very nice folks. They all were so considerate with each other."

Fraley moved to San Antonio a year ago and built a house especially for Mrs. Fraley, who is crippled by multiple sclerosis. The halls were extra wide to accommodate a wheel chair and the kitchen counters were low so she could teach the sink.

Sgt. Jack Jurney said Mrs. Fraley called and said: "Get somebody out here... my husband just cut me up and left me for dead... he's in with the children now."

When the officers arrived they found Mrs. Fraley and her two children in bed. They followed a trail of blood and found Fraley.

EX-MAYOR'S WIFE DIE

DALLAS (UPI)—Funeral services were held yesterday for Mrs. W. M. Holland, whose husband was mayor of Dallas from 1911 to 1915. Mrs. Holland died at her home Saturday night.

Esso Education Unit's Grants Soar To 494

Grants to 494 colleges and universities totaling nearly nine and one-half million dollars have been made by the Esso Education Foundation since its establishment in 1955. M. J. Rathbone, chairman, said today in a report on the Foundation from its inception.

"This sum includes 374 grants amounting to 1,609,695 for the academic year 1960-61," Rathbone said. "The number of schools which have been assisted during the life of the Foundation includes nearly half of the regionally accredited four-year undergraduate institutions in this country."

The foundation, established by Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), of which Rathbone is president, is also supported by five domestic affiliates of Jersey Standard: Humble Oil & Refining Co., Esso Export Corp., Esso Research & Engineering Co., Interstate Oil Pipe Line Co. and Jersey Production Research Co.

Esso Education Foundation funds have gone directly to universities, technical schools, and colleges of many sizes. Others have been aided indirectly through Foundation support of the United Negro College Fund and the National Fund for Medical Education.

Among the institutions receiving grants are men's, women's, and coeducational schools representing a cross-section of denominational backgrounds. Many are steeped in tradition; some are relatively new on the scene.

"This broad coverage," Rathbone pointed out, "is made possible through the foundation's policy of not supporting all of the same institutions each year. The resulting flexibility also has the effect of permitting provision for some projects of a pioneering nature that, however, constructive, would not fit into a more rigid program."

Rathbone remarked that, like other companies and individuals, Jersey Standard and its affiliates, ever since they came into being, had provided and continue to provide funds for public education through the customary taxation channels. In addition, they had financed fellowships and research in science, engineering, medicine, business administration and other projects allied with their specific business activities.

Among an initially small group of executives who became convinced that an imperative need existed, which could only be met by corporate aid to education in larger amounts and broader scope, was Frank W. Abrams, then chairman of the Jersey Standard board of directors.

Abrams and his associates in Jersey management believed that, while all segments of education were facing tremendous financial problems, the privately controlled colleges and universities required particular consideration on the grounds that their continued existence could only be ensured by greatly expanded support from all

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Earnings of the steel companies may be expected to rise a bit next year but the results will still make poor reading, according to the Value Line Investment Survey.

With the March quarter seen as next year's low, the survey says, a number of dividend cuts may be announced as 1961 opens.

Cyclical issues are unlikely to participate in the hoped-for year-end rally, Shearson, Hammill says. Good action, however, can be expected from amusement issues, convenience foods, discount chain stores, electric utilities, finance companies, savings and loan, insurance, meat packers, domestic oil refiners, gas transmission companies, publishers and car lessors.

Eldon A. Grimm of Walston & Co. lists the following as having rather good yields plus gain potential: Hall Printing, May Department Stores, Seaboard Finance, Illinois Central and Bullock's.

B. K. Thurlow of Winslow, Cohn & Stetson believes the buying in gold stocks has fairly sophisticated sources and that these issues, following recent profit-taking, are now attractive for speculative purchase.

After some legal questions on corporate giving were clarified in 1953, Jersey Standard undertook, on an experimental basis, a program of unrestricted grants to a number of privately controlled colleges and universities. About the same time some of Jersey's domestic affiliates developed programs of their own. In 1955, the Esso Education Foundation was established to coordinate the major share of domestic companies' aid to education and to provide a means by which assistance would not be entirely dependent on year-to-year business conditions.

Texas GI Continues Orphanage Aid Hike

TOKYO (UPI)—A tough Texas GI trudged on alone yesterday after his captain dropped out of an 82-mile "Christmas Hike" to raise money for a Japanese orphanage.

Latest reports received here said Spl. 4. C. Jimmy C. Dexter, Dallas, Tex., was near Nagoya, in Central Honshu, about 600 miles away from his destination—Beppu, on the southernmost island of Kyusuu.

His hiking companion, Capt. John O. Arnn, Carmel, Calif., sprained an ankle shortly after the two soldiers left Mishima City at the foot of Mt. Fuji. He was forced to quit the hike with a second sprain after they covered about 124 miles.

They began the hike last week in hopes of raising $10,000 to help build an addition onto the "Garden of Light" orphanage in Beppu, an institution that Arnn has helped support for about six years.

The sprained ankle slowed the pace, but when Arnn dropped out, the Texas GI moved out smartly, covering 87 miles in his first night of walking alone.

The Texan has found it tough to keep walking. It's not that his feet are bothering him. It's the Japanese hospitality. He said almost every taxi driver that passes him stops to offer him a free ride.

Numerous Japanese have offered him assistance. And one Japanese youngster wrote him a letter.

"Dear American," the letter said. "How do you do? Do you like travelling? I like travelling very much. Please send me a letter when you reached your next place."

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

From the foreign news cables: New cardinals: Pope John's announcement of the appointment of four new cardinals raises the complement of the Roman Catholic Church's "senate" to 86, and church sources say he intends to raise the number to 100 or more. Of the four new cardinals, only one was Italian. There are now 32 Italians in the College of Cardinals where their numerical strength has been diminishing steadily for the last 10 years. The question now is: Will the next Pope be a non-Italian? The last non-Italian Pope was Pope Adrian VI of Utrecht, Holland, who reigned from 1522 until 1523.

Khrushchev strategy:
NATO sources meeting in Paris believe the first international test President-elect John F. Kennedy's administration may come over the Berlin issue, with Nikita Khrushchev attempting either to force a new East-West summit meeting before the Kennedy regime is properly on its feet or carrying out his threat to sign a separate treaty with Communist East Germany. The Russians might also use Berlin to divert attention from Laos where they may be on the point of deciding the future of Southeast Asia.

More Algerian troubles:

Safety Council Cautions Drivers

CHICAGO (UPI)—The National Safety Council has warned that unless motorists observe the speed laws and don't drink, deaths on the highway in the Christmas weekend may treble the number dead in Friday's air disaster in New York.

The council, in the belief that virtually all of the nation's 74 million automobiles will be on the highway at sometime during the weekend, said the 78-hour holiday period could bring at least 510 deaths in traffic—without the exercise of caution.

Between 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 23, and midnight Monday, Dec. 26, motorists should roll up a total of some six billion miles, 200 million more than during a non-holiday period of comparable length.

Traffic deaths would number 350 on a non-holiday weekend at this time of year. There were 493 traffic deaths over the Christmas weekend last year and 609 in 1955 a record number for a three-day Christmas.

Cane Group Defies Castro

HAVANA (UPI)—Cuban sugar growers have defied Premier Fidel Castro by voting to boycott his "sugar congress" despite an impassioned warning by his elder brother, Ramon, of the possible consequences.

Nearly 1,000 delegates, representing the 65,000-member strong Cuban Cane Planters Association, attended an urgent meeting Sunday night to decide whether to participate in the congress called by the premier to "determine all aspects of the coming harvest."

The vote against was unanimous. The meeting coincided with reports that more cane fields in eastern Camaguey Province have been put to the torch by saboteurs. Fires were reported in the Jarou, Vertientes, Estrella and Jatibonico sugar districts.

"Grasshopper Constitution"
Nebraska's present constitution sometimes is called the "Grasshopper Constitution," because it was drawn up during the grasshopper plague of 1874 to 1876.

who stitched together rebel flags and demonstrated for hours under the guns of the French army, surprised even the National Liberation Front (FLN) command in Tunis, which now will try to exploit it. In Paris, there is talk that President de Gaulle may have in mind some startling gesture to win back support of the mass of Moslems after the recent rioting. One such gesture might be to declare a one-sided truce in Algeria, regardless of rebel action.

Communist troubles:
The communists are worried by growing demands among East German workers for a five-day week. Brief strikes have been held at some Soviet zone factories to protest the long work week.

Rob Peter to pay Paul:
Latin Americans are eagle-eyeing the U.S.-West German talks looking toward a correction in the outflow of U. S. gold resources. The Latin Americans fear that increased exports of U.S. agricultural goods to West Germany will hurt their own export sales and they have expressed the fear that they will receive no benefit from stepped up German foreign aid.

TIME FOR VIOLENCE

By Noel M. Loomis

© Noel Loomis 1960. Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

THE STORY: Tom Harding of the UJ ranch had caught some of Xenophon Jones' rattlers. Two are to be tried, and the third, who refused to talk after rough treatment, is sent back to Jones to report the arrest of the others. Stella Harding, Tom's daughter, is introduced to Bart Wagner, the new man at the Lewis ranch.

VIII

Johnson lifted the wagon tongue while a man took out the doubletree. He was a strong man, Johnson, and he lifted the tongue from back of the middle.

"You see Gentry now," Harding said, "sizing up my daughter, knowing that he's doing it before my face but gambling that I don't do anything about it."

"If you won't," said Bart suddenly, "I'm willing."

Harding glanced at him. "He's your meat."

Bart strode across the hard-packed ground. He took the man by the collar of his bed-ragged shirt, and he felt mean about it because, in a way, Stella was as guilty as Gentry, but he also knew the feeling that Harding was going through. He spun Gentry around twice and flung him away. The coffee sprayed over the hard, packed ground, and the cup went clattering as Gentry struggled for his balance.

"Get going!" Bart said. Gentry faced him like a wolf in a trap. "If I had a gun, you wouldn't dare—"

Bart pulled the .44 from his left holster and held it out. "Want to try?"

Gentry glared at him, wild-eyed. He looked at the six-shooter, then back at Bart. He backed up a few steps, turned and started north toward the breaks.

"Mr. Wagner," said Stella

after a moment, "you have a lot of courage."

"You see how they act?" Harding said, coming up behind him. "They have overrun the Panhandle, and there has to be a showdown. That's why I sent him back to Xenophon Jones. If he won't testify against the others, we can at least serve notice on the outlaws that we are going to have a court."

"You might lose fewer men in a showdown, anyway."

"If it's a big enough, showdown we'll win, because enough insolence on the part of the outlaws, even if it succeeds in squelching the court, will eventually bring down the Texas Rangers. Look, Wagner, you want a couple of hands to ride with you into Clarendon?"

"It isn't far," said Bart. "These are bad hombres," said Harding. "Gentry is not the worst of the lot."

"Who is?" asked Bart. "Who has got a couple of hardcases around him. Him and Stud Murphy are two of the fastest-drawing and straightest-shooting hombres in the Panhandle."

"I run into their camp south of Tascosa," said Bart. "I had a nice black, and Murphy wanted to trade horses."

"When Murphy wants to trade horses," Harding said, "it's generally a deal—no matter what the trade is like."

"It wasn't this time," Bart said casually, "because I was holding a six-shooter on him."

He was not an hour past the archway when he saw a rider lopeing across the prairie to intercept him. He saw it was a woman riding sidesaddle, and knew it would be Stella.

She came alongside. "It gets lonely on the ranch."

"Must be 75 cowhands," "Mr. Wagner," she said, "I'm bored of the ranch and everything connected with it."

He kept his eyes on the team. "They sent me to school in Kansas City. I lived there most of my life, but when my mother died I came out here to look after papa."

She shook her head. "I'm sick of ranch life. I want to go back to Kansas City."

"Why don't you tell him so?" "It would break his heart."

He glanced at her and caught her eyes on him. She was a handsome woman, no fooling—and she smelled like fresh roses.

"I know your kind of man," she said. "I knew you the moment I saw you."

After a moment, he said, "What kind of man am I, then?"

"You are many kinds of men in one. You are gallant, and you would help a lady in distress—or a lady being ogled by an out."

He saw her eyes on him, and swallowed hard. "If you're going toward Kansas City," she said, "I'd go with you."

"You father would hunt me down with a shotgun."

"As long as he thinks I'm married, he wouldn't interfere," she insisted.

"If he doesn't think so, he'd put so many buckshot in me that I'd rattle like a dry gourd in August."

She asked, "Are you afraid?" "No, ma'am," he said. He looked full at her and breathed deep of the rose perfume.

"You're the most beautiful woman I ever sat beside," he said. "But I've got a lot of fence to put up at the Quarter Circle JB."

Driver Arrested On Two Charges

A local resident has been cited for leaving the scene of an accident, following a wreck at the intersection of Foster and Frost streets.

Investigating officers preferred the charges against Charles Ferguson, 613 N. Zimmer, after a car he was driving and a car owned by Thomas T. Cantrell, 621 White Deer, collided.

Most adults of the shrimp family apparently spawn only once and have a life span of one year.

White Yule Looms For Midwest

By United Press International

A rapidly developing snow storm thrust its leading edge through the Ohio Valley today, carrying with it the prospect of a white Christmas in the Midwest.

Youngsters from Colorado to Indiana awoke in Christmas-decked cities and towns to find up to four inches of new snow had fallen during the night.

The storm developed around a low pressure area in central Kansas and sent snow swirling around its core northward through the Dakotas, into eastern Colorado and Nebraska and across the Mississippi Valley into Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan.

The Weather Bureau said the center was expected to shift eastward today, pushing its snow into Ohio and Pennsylvania by nightfall. It was expected to average between two and four inches with locally heavier amounts.

On the storm's heels, the Weather Bureau said, were northerly winds of up to 40 miles per hour and icy Canadian air. The winds will create a hazard of drifting snow to add to already poor driving conditions.

In contrast, holiday shoppers in Los Angeles were expected to

Determining Prices

There are still great areas of confusion and ignorance relating to something with which we are all familiar... the price of goods.

It is in this area of pricing, wherein the customer comes face to face with the market place, that myths and legends abound.

There is no excuse for any of us in this day and age in misunderstanding or being in ignorance of the matter of pricing.

Prices are never set by costs of production, nor by manufacturers, merchants or bankers. Prices are set by customers.

Customers set prices in the market by demonstrating their choices in the purchase of goods or services, what they are willing to buy.

Many merchants believe that they set prices. They do not. They merely write out a figure on a TAG and indicate they would be willing to part with their goods or services for that figure. Whether they are able to do so or not depends entirely upon the customer who decides he will or will not pay the TAGGED price for the goods as offered.

It is frequently argued, when prices rise, that the way to keep prices from climbing too high is to have the government pass a law compelling merchants to price goods below a certain level.

The answer is that irrespective of the motive of the men in government, a price ceiling maintained by law works against the best interests of the customer.

Much confusion in the area of pricing can be avoided if Americans could be taught universally that all prices are set by the customer, in his search for the best bargain he can obtain.

Individual employees should be put on their own responsibility and should be taught that waste of the little things, adds up in the end to losses in profits and losses in jobs.

Looking Sideways By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK—Don't turn pale, now, and wonder how you can get out of the room without attracting attention. But I want to tell you about a man who rents women.

It happened this way, which proves that the English language has just as many cozy nuances as the French language.

So, naturally, I wanted to meet this fellow. I finally tracked down Tom Graham, who was about to enjoy a fabulous dinner.

"True you rent women?" I said. "Yes." "In large lots?" "Many as a hundred at a time."

But now let me get you off the hook: Graham is vice-president of an organization that has branches in 120 American cities.

What was this about a dinner? "We asked the girls individually to meet together a dinner and the two winners would be brought to New York."

Did Kelly Girls usually fill orders for 100 office kids at once? "No, not usually," he explained.

Individual employees should be put on their own responsibility and should be taught that waste of the little things, adds up in the end to losses in profits and losses in jobs.

Studies which have been undertaken in recent years reveal that many firms experience losses in such items as gasoline, tires, stamps, stationery, paper clips, and other paper supplies.

On the same percentage, a saving of $100 is worth $1,111 in sales. And it takes $5,555 in sales to offset $500 of waste that could be saved.

Here is a good place for business management to communicate with employees. For, thoughtlessly, employees sometimes waste many dollars' worth of goods or time daily, under the unwarranted assumption that so long as plenty of sales are occurring, the company can afford it.

No company, however large or affluent can afford waste. And it must follow that the larger the firm, the greater the chance for waste since waste is readily bequeathed to each employee as a temptation.

It is so easy for most employees to indulge themselves in those "little extras" and management, however skillful, can scarcely hire a policeman to check upon every employee to prevent such waste.

Et Tu, Brute? Candles, music and love more nearly typify the spirit of Christmas than gifts and feasting.

Allen - Scott Reports: Kennedy Plans Reorganization, Permanent Status And Expansion of Civil Rights Commission

WASHINGTON—President-elect Kennedy is having a detailed study made of the Civil Rights Commission in preparation for extensively reorganizing it.

Under these contemplated plans he will: Ask Congress to make this agency permanent, and to expand its powers. Under the existing law, the Civil Rights Commission expires Sept. 6, 1961.

Replace all of the six incumbent commissioners, and many of the 75-member staff. Theodore Sorensen, special counsel to the incoming Democratic President and one of his closest lieutenants, is in direct charge of the backstage survey of the commission.

Conferring with Democratic congressional leaders on legislation to give the agency permanent status and additional authority, as pledged in the party's platform; and sought advice from the Civil Service Commission on how best to reorganize the civil rights agency including the replacement of much of its personnel.

Both these plans present major difficulties. Legislation to strengthen this commission is certain to encounter vigorous Southern opposition. Originally established for a two-year period in 1957, that was extended for another two years only by attaching an amendment to the 1959 foreign aid bill.

In Sorensen's talks with congressional leaders, he is indicating Kennedy hopes to avoid a protracted or bitter fight over this issue. Equally in doubt is how soon he can install new Civil Rights commissioners.

The law is silent on that. It does specify that the six-member commission must be bipartisan; that is, three from each party. But nothing in the 1959 extension act expressly requires the incumbent commissioners to submit resignations to the new President.

And legal authorities are split on whether he can remove them. Some hold this power is "implied" in the law creating the commission. Others dispute that, contending definite congressional enactment is needed to give the President such authority.

This problem may have to be submitted to the courts if Kennedy goes through with his plans to set up his own civil rights agency. The commissioner are paid at the rate of $50 a day and expenses. They meet on an average of once a month. But the staff includes some 20 high-paying jobs ranging from $10,000 to $22,000 for executive director. That is now vacant since the resignation of Gordon Tiffany.

REVERSE ENGLISH—There is one problem that is definitely not worrying Representative Stewart Udall when he goes before the Senate Interior Committee for questioning on his appointment as Secretary of Interior.

It's Up To You

by HOWARD KERSHNER L. H. D.

Candles, music and love more nearly typify the spirit of Christmas than gifts and feasting. Gifts were intended to be a manifestation of love, and when it is so, they are certainly in harmony with the spirit of Christmas.

Christ was born into this world accompanied by celestial music—the singing of the angels. Music has always ministered to distressed souls, but especially so since the birth of Christ.

The Christian hymns express the deepest longing of the human heart and carry the hopes of mankind beyond this temporal world so frequently drenched in bitter tears and human suffering into the celestial realms of triumph.

Greater music is a gift from God conveying to men a vivid impression of something altogether delightful and joyous. Music can lift a heavy heart from hell to heaven. It can inspire men to finer living.

The Doctor Says:

DR. HAROLD T. HYMAN

A disappointed mother asks if menstruation has any effect on a student's ability to pass an examination. Her daughter, she explains, took college entrance tests during the week of her period and failed to obtain grades that did justice to her scholastic ratings throughout the term.

I'd been asked this question a few months ago, I'd have answered in the negative. From the testimony given me by female medical students, nurses, professional dancers, singers and women athletes (including one Olympic champion swimmer and one holder of national titles in tennis), I had been led to believe that menstruation was a pretty feeble excuse for a bad performance in any field.

However, a carefully documented study, reported in the British Medical Journal, suggests that I might have been misled by my informants.

A highly indignant correspondent from North Carolina wants to know why so much fuss is made about a metabolism test. I assume that the inquiry refers to the Basal Metabolism test (B.M.).

Let me begin by explaining that the purpose of the test is to measure how much oxygen the subject uses up during a brief period of complete rest.

In a way, it's like measuring gas consumption in your automobile since we derive our energy from oxygen just as your car runs on a motor fuel.

Now you wouldn't expect a test of motor efficiency to give the same results under differing conditions. For example, there'd be much greater fuel consumption if the car were raced up a steep incline than there would be if the motor idled in neutral.

Dear Reader: Dr. Hyman appreciates your comments and questions but regrets that the heavy volume of his mail doesn't permit him to answer each individual letter or post card. However, he will comment in columns like the above upon matters of general or unusual interest.

Fair Enough Kennedy May Abolish The Press Conference

by WESTBROOK PEGLER

There are signs that President John Kennedy will abolish the press conference and adopt a practice of going on TeeVee in occasional intimate reports to the people. The press conference is an affection without the slightest compulsory legal status.

Woodrow Wilson was the first President who held massive press conferences but they were sporadic and toward the end, because of his illness, were abolished. David Lawrence, then a cub fresh from Princeton, got some exclusive stories on important matters and envious competitors called him the fair-haired boy, implying that his old professor from Princeton was throwing him favors.

However, in general, Newton's campaign is virtuous if not flagrantly successful to date. He flatters away at the people's right to know, a mocking diphthong invented by Kent Cooper of the Associated Press. But this right is doggedly denied by the very Pulitzer board itself in its bashful concealment of the details of the nominations and majority votes which have bestowed an overwhelming plurality of "honors" on editorial writers and cartoonists of the liberal line in a few large papers.

Christmas bells, Christmas carols and church music crowned by such magnificent oratorios as the "Messiah" are a very large part of the content of the Christmas spirit.

Candles signify light. There are still many areas of darkness in this world. Most of our evil, sin, suffering, poverty and war are caused by insufficient light and human understanding.

All men everywhere seek a better life. No one wants poverty, suffering and war, but men groping in darkness, fear and lack of understanding need more light and knowledge by which to find their way out of their difficulties.

Life is full of mystery. All men vaguely comprehend that it is not meaningless. Through the centuries the best and the wisest among us have been unable to state in precise terms the meaning of the passage of a human being through the experience that we call life.

As we think of the transcendent significance of the birth of the Saviour to this world the note of commercialism that has come to accompany our Christmas celebrations will be subdued feasting will be restrained; giving will be dedicated more and more to those who need our help and we shall rejoice increasingly as we follow the music of the Christmas bells and allow the pathways of our lives to be guided by the gleaming candles representing "the light of the world."

President Hoover sometimes invited written questions but answered few. He was accused of ignoring unpleasant inquiries and of planting those which he deemed to answer.

The Constitution says only that the President "shall from time to time give to Congress information on the state of the union." It says nothing about any duty to come clean to or even acknowledge the existence of the press or radio-TV.

But He's A Member

Ike Won't Get To Play Course in Budapest

BUDAPEST (UPI) — There is a highly exclusive golf club where President Eisenhower never will swing a stick although he is its most famous member.

It is the eight-acre, four-hole "Air Free Golf Club," which belongs to the United States legation in Budapest and is open to any Western diplomats and businessmen in town.

Players are urged to tee off carefully. In addition to the usual dangers of traps, woods (consisting of three trees) and slopes, "Air Free" has unique hazards of its own. They include Hungarian children posted along an adjoining road eager to exchange stray balls for chewing gum; dizzy golfers attempting to play 32 holes and losing track of how many times they have circled the four-hole course, and a French diplomat's goat which roams the greens in lieu of a lawn mower.

The club is miniature in every way. But it has a swimming pool (a 1944-vintage bomb crater which is four-feet deep) and a tennis court (covered with crushed red brick for lack of any other suitable material). U. S. Marine guards built the clubhouse from the first floor shell of a once sumptuous but bombed out villa. Anyone who may seem amazed at the makeshift character of the "Air Free" club has not reckoned with the dedication with which isolated Western community here takes its golf. No less than nine 32-hole tournaments are scheduled each year.

Ch. Ian M. Ravnal, former U. S. Minister to Hungary, founded the club in 1952 after he was abruptly thrown off what was left of the old 18-hole Hungarian golf course in the middle of a game. The government, he was notified, had appropriated the last remaining five holes as public property.

A fanatical golfer, Ravnal packed up his clubs, cornered the Hungarian pro, Joe Stammel, and headed for an unused piece of American property once intended as a minister's residence. Armed with a hatchet, scythe and elbow grease, Stammel cleared away the debris and created the new club with Ravnal, in memory of his interrupted game, christened "Air Free."

Santa Fe, N. M., founded in 1810, is the oldest state capital in the United States.
