Like Off To Summit, Less Hopeful, Not Pessimistic

Drive Begins Monday

Chamber Out For Members

Monday marks the beginning of Chamber of Commerce Week in Pampa, and also the chamber's annual membership drive.

A total of 21 teams will be out recruiting new members and collecting from old ones who haven't paid their 1960 dues.

The team captains will be composed of chamber officers and directors.

They are H. V. Wilks, president; E. Roy Smith, vice president; Cameron Marsh, finance director; directors H. O. Darby, C. R. Hoover, Ray Duncan, Jake Osborne, Calvin Whalley, John Gikas, Crawford Atkinson, B. M. Behrman, Gordon Lyons, D. V. Burton, Johnny Watson, Gene Hottar, Joe Tooley, Floyd Watson, Lucian Young, Bob Clements, Melvin Jayroe and Warren Hasse.

One of the first questions a prospective member is likely to ask is: "What is the chamber and what does it do?"

E. O. Wedgeworth, chamber manager, says this can best be answered with the slogan of this year's drive: "Looking to Tomorrow Through United Action."

Annual dues of at least $10 are required for membership. Many firms contribute more than this.

The funds go to support the chamber office in city hall and to support its committees' activities.

Wedgeworth and his office assistants are the only paid employees. All of the officers and committee members are volunteer workers.

Sixteen committees make up the chamber, and it is through them that most of the work is done.

Each committee undertakes certain programs each year. Some programs may require only a short time for completion, while others may require a period of years.

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce is an independent organization, Wedgeworth said, and is not governed by either the West Texas chamber or the U.S. chamber. The policies are governed entirely by the local membership.

Here is a list of the committees and chairmen set up under the chamber's 1960 program:

Agriculture and Livestock (Clyde Carruth); Aviation (Woodrow Adcock); Conventions (Gene Imel); Fire Prevention, Sanitation and Safety (George Neef, Jr.); Highway and Transportation (Fred Thompson); Industrial (Gordon Lyons); Industrial Services (Frank Culbertson); Legislation and National Affairs (Don Beaman); Merchants Activities (Frank D. Smith); New Business Greeters (J. C. Roberts); Oil and Gas (Jack Miller); Publicity and General Information (Jim Lacy); Public Improvements (Floyd Watson); Public Relations (Gerald Sims); Sports and Recreation (Murray Sealy); and Tourist Development (Howard Buckingham).

U.S. Protests Cuba's Firing On Submarine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States formally protested to Cuba Saturday against a Cuban patrol boat firing "without provocation" on a U.S. submarine more than five miles off Cuba May 5.

The State Department called in Cuban Charge de Affaires Enrique Patterson to demand an explanation from the Cuban government.

The department acted after the Navy said the submarine Sea Poacher had been fired upon by a Cuban patrol boat well beyond the three-mile limit of Cuba's territorial waters.

The Navy denied charges by Cuban Premier Fidel Castro that the American vessel had violated Cuban waters.

The State Department also "vigorously rejected" Castro's charge that the United States was involved in plans for "aggression" against Cuba.

The statement "expressed regret" that Castro "should seek this course in view of the U.S. government's oft repeated desire to achieve a fair understanding between our two governments through normal diplomatic negotiation."

GI Housing Bill May Be Extended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A law that helped change the architectural face of America is due to expire in July but it might get a new five-year lease on life in the closing days of Congress.

It is the veterans home loan guaranty bill, better known as the GI housing law.

This week a Senate veterans affairs subcommittee approved an extension of life until Jan. 31, 1965.

One of its chief backers, Sen. Ralph Yarborough (D-Tex.), is convinced it will pass. He said in an interview that "this law is too important to too many facets of our economy not to pass."

The housing bill has been praised as one of the finest pieces of social legislation ever passed. And it has been damned as molding suburban America into architecturally stereotyped mediocrity.

Regardless of the view, the scope of the program has been tremendous.

The Veterans Administration cites these statistics: —One out of every four families in single-dwelling houses lives in one with a GI mortgage on it. —$470,000 — Veterans of World War II and the Korean conflict have bought homes under the law.

—Almost 20 per cent of all houses built in the United States since the war have been sold under the GI bill.

Announcement By Johnson Due

TEMPLE (UPI) — Democratic National Committeeman Byron Skelton said Saturday he believes Sen. Lyndon Johnson will announce his candidacy for the presidential nomination after Congress adjourns.

"Johnson cannot presently forsake his post in the capital and move over the country campaign," Skelton said, "because he is the one making the record for the Democratic party in this Congress."

"If he leaves his post, there would be no record and he would be hurting himself."

K's Spouting Off May Be Cover Up

United Press International High U. S. sources said Saturday night as Eisenhower headed for the French capital and the formal meetings to open Monday, that Khrushchev's bitter stand on the spy plane may be due to trouble at home and with Red China over any soft line. They said the Soviet Premier could be under pressure to get tough.

He arrived with a beaming smile, but in an airport statement attacked "certain influential circles" which he said were "preventing the improvement of the international climate." In the same breath he specifically praised France and President Charles de Gaulle. Diplomats took his remarks to be a rebuke to America.

Khrushchev served notice he still wants the Western allies out of Berlin. The Western Big Three foreign ministers, already in Paris, promptly declared their firm intention of staying in the city.

France refused a request from Communist East Germany for permission to send a delegation to observe the talks which will take place in the presidential Elysee Palace and the Quai D'Orsay foreign office.

On arrival Khrushchev asked to have a pre-summit meeting with British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan who, like Eisenhower, was arriving Sunday morning. Khrushchev already scheduled a Sunday session with De Gaulle, the host of the parley which was expected to last a week.

Wheel balancing saves you money. Bear equipment used. Pampa Safety Lane, 411 S. Cuyler. Adv.

There was no attempt to get up a private Khrushchev meeting with Eisenhower this weekend. Nevertheless, American officials said Khrushchev apparently intended to bring up the spy plane issue during disarmament discussions. And there was a possibility Khrushchev would make a major issue of it.

The alternates are Edwin Vickers, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Worley and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cree. They will attend state Republican conventions at McAllen, May 30; San Antonio, June

14; and Galveston, Sept. 20.

W. J. Monahan served as chairman at Saturday's convention in the absence of regular chairman Clayton Husted. No resolutions were adopted.

San Franciscans Riot At Hearing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Reinforced police preserved order at the final hearing of the House Committee on Un-American Activities Saturday, arresting five demonstrators and escorting two unfriendly witnesses out of City Hall.

More than 3,000 persons jammed the streets outside the domed City Hall during the day with more than 100 policemen on hand to prevent a repetition of Friday's riot, which the chairman of the committee said was Communist inspired.

In the three-day hearing the subcommittee heard 40 witnesses, 38 of whom were unfriendly and refused to give pertinent testimony.

Will Face Belligerent Khrushchev

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower left Saturday for the fateful Summit Conference in Paris where he will deal face to face with a belligerent Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The President took off at 7:20 p.m. e.d.t., 10 minutes ahead of schedule from near Andrews, Md., Air Force Base aboard an orange and silver jet, embarked on a mission which should test anew Khrushchev's cold war intentions.

The Soviet leader has been openly bellicose over the American spy plane controversy. The U.S. admission of aerial espionage over and around Russia already has clouded the Big Four session which on Monday brings together Eisenhower, Khrushchev, British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan and French President Charles de Gaulle.

The chief executive was understood to be "less hopeful but not too pessimistic" about the prospects of the long-awaited parley.

Issues at the conference table are the same thorny problems that have generated east-west tensions throughout the cold war. Berlin, divided Germany disarmament and uncontrolled nuclear testing.

A general agreement to relax tensions, which have gripped the world in the post-war era, was at least hoped for.

Eisenhower began his journey by helicopter from the White House lawn to Andrews air base — a trip that took about 10 minutes.

He was due to arrive in Paris Sunday morning after a re-fueling stop at Harmon Air Force Base, Newfoundland.

Khrushchev arrived in Paris Saturday, a day ahead of schedule and promptly began a fresh propaganda campaign over the U-2 incident which began May 1 when the Russians downed the American craft deep in Soviet territory.

To end such espionage activities which the United States has admitted, but said it would continue until Russia agrees to safeguard against surprise attack, Eisenhower took with him a challenging "Open Societies" plan.

It calls on both the United States and Russia to allow free air inspection and travel. This would obviously eliminate the need for such spying missions as that of the U-2.

Eisenhower was reported "flexible" in mood. Much will depend on the attitude taken by Khrushchev who has made bomb rattling threats since the plane incident.

The President and Khrushchev will be meeting for the first time since last fall when the Soviet leader visited the United States and a "Spirit of Camp David" was established.

Whether Eisenhower goes through with his return visit to Russia in June may be decided later this week that the President would be given a cold if not hostile welcome by the Russian people because of U.S. aerial espionage.

Eisenhower said he still was willing to go ahead with the visit unless Khrushchev face-to-face withdraws the invitation.

HAPPY AT LAST — Four-year-old cancer victim, Ronald Bowslier, got the three things he wanted most Friday, and he's enjoying them all — an electric train, a puppy and a pair of cowboy boots. (Daily News Photo)

A Puppy, Boots And Train

Cancer Victim Is Made Happy

By LEE GRIMSLEY Daily News Staff Writer

Four-year-old Ronald Bowslier got the things he wanted most Friday — a puppy, an electric train, flowers and a pair of cowboy boots.

Like most four-year-olds Ronald is enjoying them to the hilt. But unlike most children his age, Ronald is stricken with incurable cancer.

He went home at 410 Rose, from Highland General Hospital Friday where he had spent the last two weeks, and the toys, boots and puppy were all waiting for him — gifts of Pampa residents.

The electric train and puppy fascinate him, but the boots are still too stiff for him to wear for a very long stretch. He always pulls them off when he plays with the train.

Ronald's father, Roger Bowslier, works for a pipeline company at Perryton, but he's going to find a job in Pampa since Ronald's illness is becoming more serious.

"I've got to be close to him whenever something does happen," he explained.

The Bowsliers moved here shortly before Ronald went to the hospital, but they've already been won by the friendliness of Pampans.

"Everyone has been so wonderful," Mrs. Bowslier said. "I'll never be able to thank them."

"Some women at the Central Baptist Church have been helping with the laundry, and Red Cross Gray Ladies have been staying with the other children (Shavonne, 3; Roger, 2; and Cassandra, who will be 1 next month). That gives me more time to devote to Ronald."

Ronald hasn't gotten around to naming his new puppy yet. But that's one job he promises to do before he has to return to the hospital.

Georgia Solon Sees 'Writing On Wall'

By United Press International

Rep. Erwin Mitchell (D-Georgia) told fellow Georgians Saturday that "whether we like it or not" the Supreme Court's May 17, 1954, school segregation decision "is a reality" and enforceable in the state of Georgia.

Addressing an "open schools" conference in Atlanta, Mitchell said "the time for final decision is close at hand" for Georgia and that the question is whether the public educational system is of sufficient importance "that we will continue its operation through it be under terms and conditions that we do not like."

Mitchell urged action to "avoid the disaster of closed schools in Georgia" and said the threat of closing public schools to prevent integration presents a paradox.

"We are the one section in our nation who best understands, and is genuinely interested in helping solve, the problems of the Negro. Yet we stand today on the threshold of taking dramatic and drastic action that will result in great harm to all citizens of Georgia regardless of color and to the entire nation as well."

His address was based on the Georgia school crisis in which a federal judge has ordered desegregation of Atlanta public schools by May, 1961, regardless of whether the legislature acts to change rigid state laws closing schools which are integrated.

More than 20 flaming crosses of the Ku Klux Klan burned in Birmingham, Ala., Friday night, apparently in warning against rumors of demonstrations by Negroes on the sixth anniversary of the Supreme Court decision next week.

Reports of demonstrations planned to observe the anniversary were made in a number of Southern cities, Montgomery, Ala., police announced plans to prevent trouble in the event of demonstrations there.

Buckler To Head Historical Group

C. P. Buckler of Pampa was elected president of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society at the group's annual banquet in Canyon Friday.

Hugh Burdette, also of Pampa, was named to the board of directors of the organization.

James A. Noble, retired chief engineer for the western lines of the Santa Fe Railway, traced the history of his company in a talk at the banquet.

Gray County Republicans Choose Convention Delegates

Six delegates and five alternates to the state convention were selected at the Gray County Republican convention Saturday afternoon.

This leaves 11 delegates and 12 alternates to meet the county quota of 17.

Delegates selected were E. E. McDowell, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Payne, R. T. Coley and Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Barrett.

Alternates are Edwin Vickers, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Worley and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cree. They will attend state Republican conventions at McAl-

len, May 30; San Antonio, June

14; and Galveston, Sept. 20.

After Three Decades, Mystery Of Illegal Whiskey Source Is Solved

HOT TIME IN THE OLD TOWN — Plumber Bill Robertson found something Friday that Texas Rangers would like to have discovered 35 years ago. While digging a sewer ditch he unearthed two whiskey storage drums that were used during the prohibition era. (Daily News Photo)

Bill Robertson can recall standing in front of the old Santa Fe Hotel at the corner of S. Cuyler and Tyng during the prohibition era and watching Texas Rangers raid the place.

"Why don't you ever find any whiskey in there?" he would always ask a Ranger.

The Ranger would reply: "We know it's in there somewhere; but I'll be hanged if we know where."

If those Rangers had been around Friday afternoon, Robertson, who is now a plumber, could have told them where the whiskey was kept.

He was digging a sewer ditch for the Parker Motor Co., which will be at that location, and unearthed two solid-copper drums which were once used to store bootleg whiskey.

"I'd like to know the sucker who owned these," Robertson said. "I could help him spend all the money he made out of them."

The drums were embedded in solid concrete under the ground, and had two copper pipes leading out of them.

"They haven't held anything but alcohol either," Robertson said. "Look at the insides — not a bit of rust."

"This guy must have really been a bootlegger. It looks like he had them fixed where he could move back a little dirt when they were empty and re-fill them."

Robertson said he could remember seeing "a lot of drunks" outside the Santa Fe Hotel during prohibition days.

"I could pass by here and there'd be drunks all over the place," he said.

M. K. Brown, a pioneer who came here in 1903, remembers the prohibition era too.

"We had three major bootleggers here," he said. "Two of them sold good whiskey and the other sold nothing but rotgut."

"I can't remember that third one's name, but he operated out of that old Santa Fe Hotel."

Sheriff Graves was in office at the time and was taking payoffs from this guy at the Santa Fe. He never bothered him as long as he got his money, but he was always raiding the two good bootleggers.

"I was on the grand jury then," Brown said, "and we finally had to indict Graves. He resigned and took the money this bootlegger had paid him and retired on a section of land he bought down around Cleburne."

Robertson didn't think the two copper drums were located directly beneath the Santa Fe Hotel.

"They had a little building of some sort out in the back," he said, "and it was over the place we found the drums."

The drums were battered from their long stay under the ground. They weighed between 75 and 100 pounds each, and appeared to have a capacity of 100 gallons of whiskey.

"I don't know how much they'll hold," Robertson said, "but I'll tell you one thing. You could fill them up with whiskey and get everybody in this town drunk."

Robertson isn't sure what to do with the drums now that he has them.

"I guess I'll have to start up my own still," he said, "or take them down to the junk yard and tell them I have an awful lot of copper I want to sell."

Tips On Choosing Air Conditioner

By EDWARD COWAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the things American families have splurged on since World War I is air conditioning.

Sales have multiplied rapidly. While air conditioning is not as common to every home as say television, it is no longer the rarity it was only a few years ago.

There still are more families without air conditioning than have it. Many will put it in this year for the first time. Sooner or later they will discover that buying an air conditioner is no simple matter — or should not be.

Various factors must be considered and some of them are things about which the average person knows little. For example, the Better Business Bureau points out in a booklet, there are two main ways to ward off summer heat: installation of a large conditioner which will cool your entire home, or use of a room air conditioner, which type you install will depend on your needs and your pocket-book.

But in either case, the bureau points out, the important thing to determine in advance is "Will it do the job?" In simplest terms that means does the unit have enough cooling capacity to do what you expect of it.

You may have no idea how much capacity you need. One way to find out is to ask a dealer if you know him and think he is reliable. Or ask several. Anyone who estimates your capacity need should first know the size of the room or house, the construction, use, and position in relation to the sun. Anyone who does not ask you an estimate may not be making the best possible evaluation.

You might prefer to ask an independent engineer or contractor instead of a dealer. Sometimes the local electric company has an expert who can help you.

Most conditioners now are rated in British thermal units — BTU's. This is usually a more precise guide to a unit's cooling capacity than the old rating systems of horsepower or tons. One BTU equals about as much heat as a burning match. The BTU rating indicates how much heat a unit will remove in an hour.

Other pointers from the Better Business Bureau are:

— Find out if the firm selling the equipment also installs and services it. Check on the firm's reputation.

— Price cutters often cannot assure proper installation or service. Some sell old and little-known models for which replacement parts are not readily available.

— A good installer will make sure your house has wiring capable of carrying the unit's electrical load. You may need to have such wiring put in.

— Make sure you know what the guarantee includes and who backs it.

— Check in advance on the noise a unit makes. It may be too loud for you — or your neighbors.

— A note about the new federal tax: It is a 10 per cent levy imposed on the manufacturer of units made after Dec. 31, 1959, like most manufacturer's taxes it usually is passed on to the consumer in the price. The tax does not apply to sets made before

Aadland's Tippy Mom Lashes Judge

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The scene was of a slightly tippy mother tongue-lashing at a distance a dignified judge.

It could have been a funny Hollywood courtroom farce except it was for real and a teenage girl's future hung in the balance.

The girl, 17-year-old Beverly Aadland, was in tears sobbing loudly, while her bleached-blonde mother strutted around the hall after being thrown out of her daughter's hearing for interrupting testimony.

"I called the judge an..." Mrs. Aadland boasted to reporters and then added some choice comments about the jurist.

Bailiffs denied Mrs. Aadland used any profane words in the judge's hearing.

Beverly, the blonde playmate of the late Errol Flynn, returns to the courtroom today where Superior Judge Allen Miller will decide her future.

If he agrees with county probation authorities that Beverly is a sex delinquent, he can have her committed to a home for last Dec. 1 even if they are sold now, and should not be packed into their price.

Wayward Girl Until She Is 21

A ruling in her favor could give Beverly her freedom.

She has been confined to juvenile hall since April 9 when hit actor William Stanciu was accidentally fatally shot while struggling in the nude with her.

Her mother, Mrs. Florence Aadland, 53, grabbed all the attention Thursday with her antics vile language in and out of the courtroom where her daughter's hearing closed.

"You're a liar," Mrs. Aadland shouted when Stanciu's brother, Kenneth, also a bit actor, testified he had seen her intoxicated 10 to 15 times.

Judge Miller ordered Mrs. Aadland to be silent, but she shouted, "Why not say it was 20 times."

Miller, with a sweep of his arm pointed to the door and declared: "Out she goes."

Earlier Mrs. Aadland appeared in another court on five counts of leading Beverly astray. She was granted a continuance of her case until May 26.

"I'm going to live behind the Iron Curtain," she said afterward. "As for justice, it stinks!"

Johnson's Star Shines Bright In Home State

United Press International

Johnson's star shined brightly behind the Lyndon Johnson for President movement Saturday as he won strong county Democratic convention support for the state majority leader-including the endorsement of former President John F. Kennedy's endorsement of Johnson.

Johnson's headquarters in Austin showed the senator-in-compect, count of 101 of Texas' 254 counties holding 605 of the 2,312 state convention votes by mid-afternoon.

Johnson, 91, was unanimously elected chairman of the Lyndon Johnson for President movement Saturday, and put him into position as chairman of the Texas delegation to the national convention with the state's 81 nomination votes tucked away in his pocket.

Harris county liberals, suffering their first decisive defeat in years, booted after they lost by almost 300 votes on the loyalty oath question. They left to stage their rump convention to a chorus of cat calls and cadence clapping from conservatives.

Liberal stalwarts who lost their positions as delegates in last Saturday's primary, joined the rump movement. These included Democratic National Committeewoman Mrs. R. D. Randolph and State Rep. Bob Eckhardt.

Travis county liberals split when conservatives forces refused to allow the loyalty oath question to be put to a vote. Liberals also failed to get out of committee resolutions backing Mrs. Randolph for a second term and abolition of the poll tax as a voting requirement.

Led by attorney Creekmore, they rumped at the rear of the convention hall, naming Fath chairman and agreeing to go to the state convention as unaffiliated delegates.

A skirmish developed between two liberal women delegates and a police officer. Both of the women struck and pushed the officer after he refused one of them re-admittance to the convention.

Keith Gregory, Billy Cooper To Boys State

Keith Gregory, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Gregory of 2401 Mary Ellen, and Billy Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Cooper of 1153 Terrace, have been selected to attend Lone Star Boy's State at Austin, June 5-11.

They will be sent to the Austin affair by Pampa American Legion Post 334, and stay at the University of Texas.

Lone Star Boys State is sponsored by the American Legion each year, and 800 boys from posts across the state are expected to attend.

The boys are selected with the cooperation of school authorities, and consideration is given to their leadership, character, ambitions, and all-round ability to get along with fellow students.

The Boys State program is non-political and isn't connected with any party.

The boys will be divided into two mythical parties to enable them to realize the responsibilities they will have as adults.

They will elect a governor, lieutenant governor and other state officials.

At the end of the program, the boys who have been elected to office will spend a day with their counterpart official in the state government, observing them in the performance of their duties.

Spring Choral Festival Has 650 Participants

Some 650 members of the combined choruses of the Pampa school system presented their annual choral festival Friday night before a capacity crowd at Harvester Field House.

Choirs from elementary, junior high and high schools competed.

Conductors for the singers were Miss Eloise Lane, Mrs. Flaudie Gallman, Mrs. John Branham, Miss Adelaide Williams, Mrs. Ted Williams, Miss Florida Young, Mrs. Roy Sullivan, F. M. Bridges, Mrs. Lonnie Richardson, Ben Golehon, Miss Margaret Schurch, Mrs. James Webb and Hugh Sanders. All school music instructors.

Mrs. Fay Dellis Adams, Miss Kay Harkins, Miss Elaine Hawkins, Miss Johnnie Mitchell, Miss Lynn Strohle, Miss Beryl Nash and Miss Nannette Flynt were accompanists.

The instrumental ensemble was prepared by William Tregoe, Pampa High School band director.

After a welcome by School Superintendent Knox Kinard, the combined choruses presented Preludes to Eternity.

The elementary school choruses sang Over the Meadows, Jubilate Deo, Giannina Mia, Scarlet Ribbons, I Hear the Hees a Hummer, Prayer of the Norwegian Child and Stars and Stripes Forever.

hama income tax returns is scheduled Monday in Montgomery. It was indicated that King's former plea of innocent to the charges may be filed later in the week.

Predominantly Negro Macon County, Ala., appeared Saturday to have its first functioning board of vote registrars since November, 1958. Charles Donald Scott, a Tuskegee truck stop supervisor, accepted appointment by Gov. John Patterson as the second member of the board, empowered by law to function with only two members.

Patterson has been trying unsuccessfully for months to appoint someone who will serve on the board of registrars in the county where Negroes, who outnumber whites six to one, complained that their voting rights have been denied.

City Lake Needs More Tree Limbs

Fishing at city lake is free, but Denny Roan, who runs the operation there, may have to start charging admission.

If he does, the admission will be a batch of tree limbs from each fisherman.

Roan is in the process of building a refuge for some new fish he has put in the lake, and needs tree limbs for the job.

"I can't use any trash with it," Roan said. "I just need tree limbs."

Anyone wishing to contribute tree limbs can call Roan at the police department for information concerning where to deposit them.

Last week Roan added 5,000 tiny bass to the lake's stock. Since last summer he also has stocked it with 3,500 crappie and 700 channel cats.

Primary Costs Cut Dem Coffers

Democratic precinct chairmen are going to have to cut down on their expenses for the June 4 runoff election.

Democratic secretary Robert M. Baker said Saturday he would ask all precinct chairmen not to hire more than three helpers for the runoff.

"In eight out of the 12 precincts there'll only be one runoff," Baker said. "And that's between Lloyd Davidson and W. T. McDonald for the judge of the court of criminal appeals."

Baker said the May 7 election cost approximately $2,600—a net there was only $3,850 in the election fund to begin with.

"Most of the cost went towards paying the helpers," he said. "We pay them $1 an hour which isn't much, but some boxes had as many as 15 helpers."

"We spent about $250 or $300 on supplies and the rest of the cost was for having ballots printed."

Patrol Hits Teen Rumble, Gives Tickets

Highway Patrol officers issued five tickets for parking on a public roadway Friday night when they interrupted a teen-age rumble near the Top O' Texas Drive-In.

Officer Vernon Cawthon said the fighting had stopped by the time they arrived at the scene, or all of the teen-agers would have been charged with aiding and abetting.

"This has happened before. In fact it's getting to be a weekly occurrence," Cawthon said. "But in the past we've been too far out when we received any word, and by the time we got there everybody would be gone."

"But Friday night there were about 50 of them there when we arrived."

Cawthon said the fight had stopped before any of the participants had become marked from the brawl, so all the officers could do was issue tickets for parking on a public roadway.

Graveside rites were held yesterday at 4 p.m. for Sally Jane McPhillips, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. McPhillips, 104 S. Sumner. The infant died 4:45 a.m. yesterday in Highland General Hospital.

The Rev. David Mills, pastor of Lamar Christian Church, officiated at graveside in Memory Gardens.

In addition to the parents, the baby is survived by two half-sisters, Clara Jean and Evelyn Ann; half-brother, John McPhillips Jr.; grandmother, Mrs. Edith McPhillips of Pampa; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Mathis, also of Pampa.

Let Yours Be A "Magic Carpet"

In today's decor, floors play a more significant role than ever before, and a carefully chosen carpet (or rug) can literally perform decorating magic in just about any room.

If you're beginning from scratch, it's advisable to determine right at the start just what the decorating function of your floor covering will be. Color, pattern and texture are all important factors for consideration.

Often a carpet is used as a unifier — to tie together the other background components: walls, ceiling, window treatment and trim. The color of your floor covering will be governed by your overall color scheme. It may be a neutral, or it may repeat, blend or contrast with the dominating color in the room. In a monochromatic (one color) room, the texture of the floor covering may be used to avoid monotony. If you use a patterned rug or carpet, be sure to limit any other pattern used in the room to achieve balance and moderation.

In the combination living-dining room sketched, the patterned carpet adds dramatic emphasis to the pet add dramatic emphasis to the neutral walls, draperies and plain upholstery surfaces.

Color scheme is composed of beige, brown and blue... all of which appear in the wall-to-wall carpet.

Our trained decorators will be glad to help you plan your color scheme around the floor covering of your choice; or, if you're selecting an existing furnishing, they will be pleased to assist you with your selection. Come in... anytime.

Lincoln Was Nominated 100 Years Ago

The Cannons Fired In Joy Were Soon Fired In Anger

By PHILLIP VAN DORN STERN
Written for Newspaper
Enterprise Assn.

When the Democratic National Convention met at Charleston, S.C., in the spring of 1860, the party was so strong that anyone it nominated for the Presidency was automatically elected.

Lincoln's lifelong rival, Stephen A. Douglas, was the obvious favorite. Most people, including Lincoln, thought Douglas would surely be the next President. But Douglas had lost the support of the South and the Buchanan administration opposed him. The whole political picture changed overnight when the Democratic Convention, after dragging on for nearly two weeks, adjourned without agreeing upon a nomination.

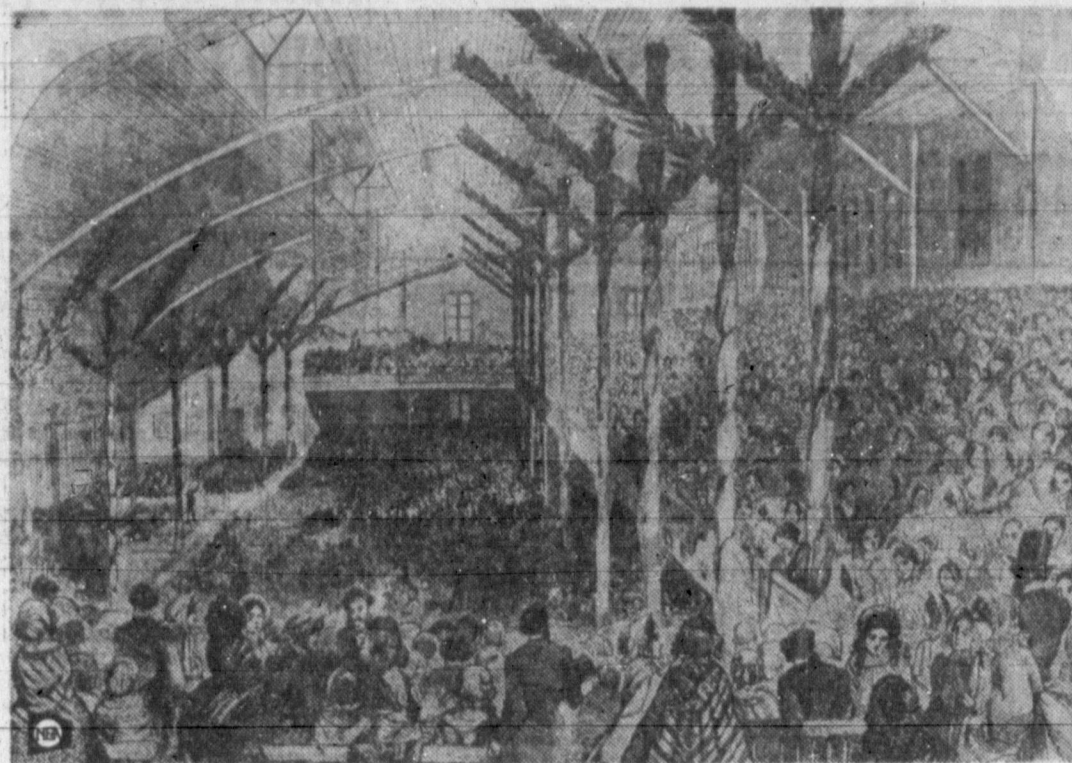

The historically impregnable party split into three dissident groups to hold three separate conventions to nominate three different candidates, making it difficult for any one of them to be elected. The new Republican Party, which had entered the national scene only four years before, now had a good chance to elect a President.

The obvious Republican candidate was William H. Seward, former Governor of New York, U.S.

Senator, and distinguished member of the bar. There were other possibilities — Chase of Ohio, Bates of Missouri, Cameron of Pennsylvania, and many more. Lincoln was among them, but despite the name he had made for himself with his Cooper Union speech and the tour of New England that followed, he was far down on the list although he did admit to a friend that "the taste (for the Presidency) is in my mouth a little." When he wrote those words, he knew the Democrats were in trouble.

Something happened then that caught the imagination of the public. Richard James Oglesby, who was to become a Civil War general and the Governor of Illinois, knew John Hanks, cousin of Lincoln's dead mother, Nancy Hanks. John Hanks had seen Lincoln grow up in Indiana and had helped him cut fence rails when the family moved to Illinois in 1830. Oglesby sought him out, and the two men made a trip to a clearing near Decatur to get a few rails from the 30-year-old fence.

On May 9, at the Republican State Convention in Decatur, John Hanks — a lifelong Democrat — made a sensation by carrying two of the original Lincoln rails into the hall. Lincoln was there,

MANY WOMEN WERE AMONG the thousands crowded into the Wigwam for the 1860 Republican Convention. Although they didn't have the vote, this didn't stop them from taking an active part in politics.

and he immediately became the "rail-splitter" candidate. The name stuck and became popular. Being nominated by the Illinois State Republican Convention helped, but a long, hard struggle was to be expected at the Chicago National Convention on May 16 — Seward's 59th birthday. A huge wooden structure, holding 10,000 people and called the Wigwam, had been built for the Convention. To it streamed thousands of visitors, most of whom were unable to get inside the building. It was a colorful occasion, even more colorful than a Presidential Convention is today. And since everyone knew that the man chosen might very well become the first Republican President, there was a tense air of expectancy. The Convention was quickly organized; then a platform denying the right to extend slavery to the Territories was adopted. On the third day, May 18, the real business of picking a candidate began. That morning a thousand of Seward's followers marched to the Wigwam led by a swaggering military band. In the big hall Everts of New York presented Seward's name; Judd of Illinois named Lincoln; other states followed with their favorite sons.

Only Seward and Lincoln got loud applause. When their names were seconded, the applause and cheering rose to a tremendous crescendo. People threw hats and handkerchiefs into the air as the rival backers tried to outshout each other. Then, according to an eyewitness, a Lincoln supporter, "Henry Lane of Indiana leaped upon a table and, swinging hat and cane, performed like an acrobat." He shouted, too, but his voice could not be heard in that mighty uproar. After that wild outburst, the Convention settled down to voting. The first poll gave Seward 173 1/2 votes;

Lincoln 102; with the others trailing. Needed for the nomination: 233 out of 465 votes. A second ballot was taken. Lincoln gained New Hampshire and Vermont, then Pennsylvania. These gave him 181 votes against Seward's 184.

On the third and final ballot Lincoln ran up to 231 1/2 with only 1 1/2 needed to win. Carter of Ohio rose to cast four of his states' votes, and the crowd suddenly became quiet. Carter was known for his stammer, and he stuttered as he spoke: "I rise — Mr. Chairman — to announce the change of four votes of Ohio from Mr. Chase — to — Mr. Lincoln."

The silence held for a brief moment, then the crowd roared out.

Someone signaled to a man stationed on the roof with a signal cannon, yelling to him.

Kennedy Moves Campaign Back Into Big City Areas

By FREDERICK K. POOLE
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. John F. Kennedy, his major primary triumphs behind him, has moved his campaign back to the old-line city political organizations. Kennedy flies to Maryland today in an attempt to roll up a big total in that state's May 17 Democratic primary. Thursday night he concentrated on a more crucial problem: His need to win support from organization leaders over his presidential rivals who have by-passed the primaries. In New York he was cheered and applauded, but left without commitments from the top leaders. "No convention," the Massachusetts senator told a dinner gathering of the Bronx county organization, "has ever nominated a man who avoided the primaries and elected that man president." It was clear he was talking about Sen. Stuart Symington (Mo.), an announced candidate, and Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.), whose candidacy is generally acknowledged. Both are staying out of the primaries.

Tammany Hall leader Carmine G. DeSapio, who also is New York national committeeman, admitted Kennedy would probably receive a majority of the state's 114 convention votes on the first ballot at Los Angeles next July.

But DeSapio, believed to favor Symington, and state Democratic chairman Michael G. Pedergast refused to join the county leaders who have backed Kennedy, and said they will voice no preference until New York's delegates are selected next month.

Famous Cases From The Membership Files Of The PAMPA CHAMBER of COMMERCE

Compilation of Alibis Which Have Been Given For Not Investing in the Community's Future Through Chamber of Commerce Membership

CASE NO. 1:

"No time for it"

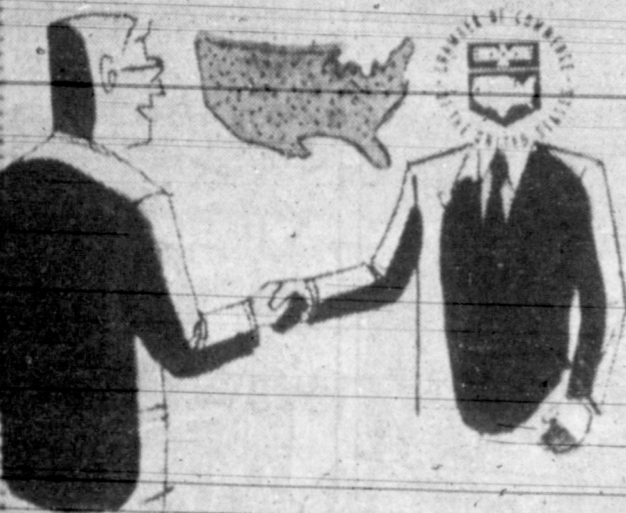

You don't have time to answer hundred's of requests for information or help bring an industry into town either, do you? But you know it is being done. If you are unable to support with both time and money, it is especially important for you to financially cooperate with the more than 800 of your fellow businessmen who make up various committees and who ARE taking time out from their business to help you.

CASE NO. 6:

"Maybe later"

No town — or business — ever stands still; you either proceed or recede. Other cities are active NOW competing for trade territory, industries, new businesses, better highways, more housing flood protection, and everything else that will make them better, more prosperous and more pleasant places in which to live. Your "later" may be too late.

CASE NO. 2:

"Too many organizations"

The Chamber of Commerce organization is unique. It is a partner to every business and every citizen. You belong in it as long as you are in business in this city for you are benefiting from its activities, and should shoulder a part of the operating expenses. What investment is more important to you as a business or professional man and citizen than such a comparatively small one in Pampa's progress and prosperity.

CASE NO. 7:

"It's run by a clique"

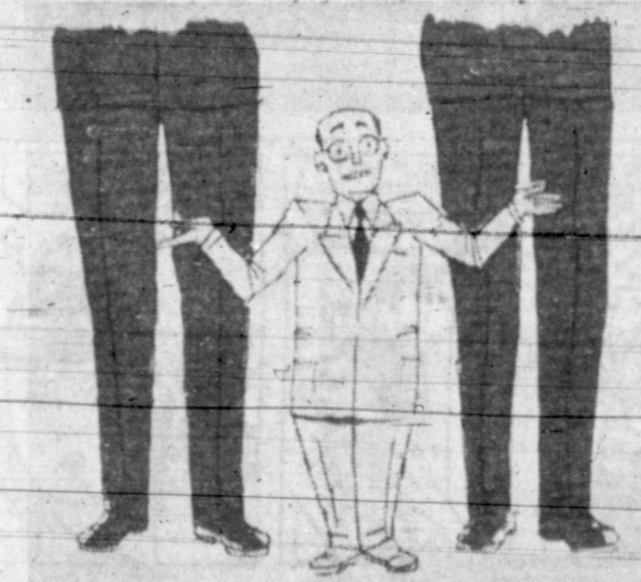

The members of the Chamber of Commerce govern their organization under a set of By-laws by which they hold a direct election each year. Nominations are made by districts so that all sections of the city, from Havelock to College View will be equally represented. These names are an answer to any argument of cliques or factions.

"Just a branch office"

Having opened a branch here is proof that your company considers this a good place to do business. This is your home, and you, as a branch, benefit from Chamber activity. Possibly you have replaced an independent business that did support the Chamber. Which is all the more reason you should contact your home office and secure its membership. Your first job should be to make yourself part of the community and the way to do this is by identifying yourself with the leading community organization.

CASE NO. 8:

"I'm just a little fellow"

The best way to get your business larger is to properly support the Chamber of Commerce . . . more industries, more residents, more tourists, more people shopping in Our Town will mean more business for you. The Chamber is working to promote all of these things (in addition it affords valuable contracts with your fellow citizens and business people).

CASE NO. 4

"We do business outside our town"

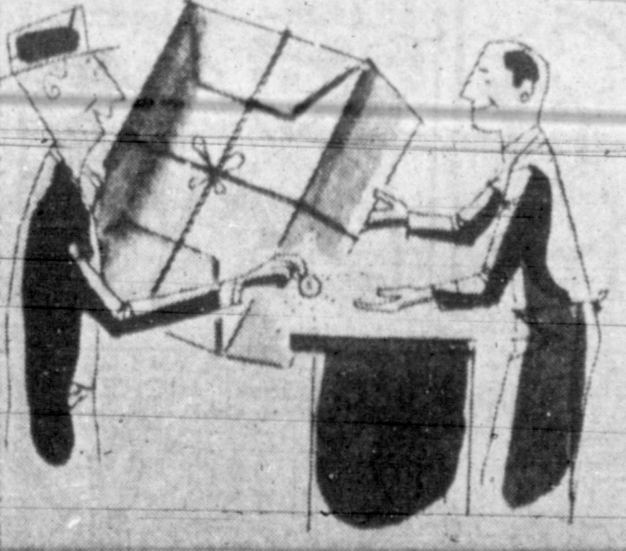

Yes, but don't you make full use of our facilities? You wouldn't call an out-of-town police, or fire department, or make use of out-of-town utilities and aren't your family, and friends, and interests here? You are a part of the community after all, and the Chamber of Commerce needs your support in its efforts to make it a still better community.

CASE NO. 9:

"Not interested"

This cannot be true because you ARE interested in Our Town, you ARE interested in the prosperity of business, and you ARE interested in commercial and industrial progress reacting favorably upon your business. Thus, you MUST be interested in the promotional program of the Chamber of Commerce.

CASE NO. 5

"Can't afford it"

We are not asking you to give away money, but to make an investment. Your return is the continued growth and prosperity of our community. The membership dues (which are tax deductible under business expense) amount to less than 10c a day . . . such a small amount that you can't afford not to belong! . . .

IN ANY CASE There is a place for every business and professional man on the Chamber of Commerce rolls. Whether your interest be in

Samos, Midas Units Have Priority In Crash Program For Better Spying

TIROS WEATHER SATELLITE. President Eisenhower says the pictures taken by Tiros are a rough example of what might be done with Samos.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the final report in a three-part series on why U.S. needs an active force of espionage agents. The first and second articles, by Pentagon reporter, Ray Crowley, appeared in the Thursday and Friday Daily News issues on Page 1.

By RAY CROMLEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If the U.S. is to survive we've got to ramp up through a crash program for better spying. That's the informal but definite decision reached by the men in the highest circles of the Defense Department.

That program is already starting piecemeal.

First Priority — Samos, the spy satellite, worth 4,000 high-speed airplanes a year flying over the Soviet Union.

Objective: Get the first experimental model up by fall; the first fully operational model on duty by late 1962; a whole spy satellite intelligence system into operation by late 1963.

The development of high-power cameras able to identify something as small as an intercontinental missile clearly from 300 miles up will be pushed. Electronic sensing devices that will uncover camouflage will be quickly refined.

The spy satellite Samos should be able to spot missile bases, new military airfields, munitions factories, troop and weapon concentrations, new military highways.

Concurrently, we will push quick development of Midas, a satellite armed with infra-red and electronic devices able to spot movement instantaneously as indicated by President Eisenhower.

Midas would "see" missiles when they're first launched by catching the heat or the ionization of the blast-off.

Once Samos detected ICBM sites, then Midas would be "instructed" to watch these sites for the first signs of a missile firing. Midas would alert the Pentagon, the Strategic Air Command — and batteries of powerful radar to track the missiles.

For several months there's been increased spending on a radical new type of radar that isn't defeated by the curvature of the earth nor by intercontinental distances.

Most radar can only "see" in a straight line. That means that it can see nothing close to earth several hundred miles away. The new radar, called "back scatter," bounces radar beams off a layer of the ionosphere, thence down to a distant point. A certain amount bounces back.

Once perfected, this radar would permit powerful stations in the U.S. to monitor Russia for atomic testing and even for the blast-off of intercontinental missiles.

Also probable — a step-up in work on spy weapons that could shoot down any Russian spy satellite that appears over the U.S. But don't expect results before 1970.

Second Priority — The refinement of a dramatic machine to do a prosaic, essential job. That is, translate Russian into English electronically 90 times as fast as the average human translator.

The objective: To double, possibly triple, the translation of key Russian documents.

This is more exciting than it sounds. Though it seems inconceivable, 90 per cent of the information that spies want is run-of-the-mill, non-secret information. Bigger U.S. spy weakness isn't that we don't know enough Russian secrets. It's that we don't have enough information that's merely hard to get.

It is obvious, for example, that if you know the ordinary economic industrial details of a country you can figure out pretty closely its military potential — including its missile capability.

Third Priority — An intense drive for a host of detailed sensing devices so sensitive they can hear a bird flying or a cat tiptoeing after a mouse. These would be used in a dozen different spying devices.

Theoretically, it should be possible to develop in a few years very tiny "solid state" electronic gadgets that would pick up sounds, heat, ionization, light, movement and transmit this information to American spy receivers.

In wartime, these "ovis" would be dropped into enemy territory by the tens of thousands. Some would never be found, and would keep sending information.

If new developments now in an advanced stage should come through, it should be possible to make these devices extremely small. It should even be possible to drop them in peacetime in select areas with little likelihood of discovery. The wartime uses have been announced. The peacetime uses are conjecture.

Fourth Priority — The overall mechanization of intelligence. That means devising better giant super electronic brains that would handle "mathematically" a great share of the digesting and analyzing of the tons of intelligence data that will begin to arrive via satellites, machine translations, spies, radar and a host of specialized secret electronic gadgets.

The machines will do in hours what it would take men years to do. That means a great deal of analysis not possible today would become practical.

And it means the spies won't be overwhelmed by a flood of material that no amount of men

Flower Lovers, Gardeners Are Target Of New Racket

"FRAUDULENT GARDENS" by SUSAN WAGNER United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gardeners and flower lovers have been warned by the Federal Trade Commission to keep a sharp look out for "rackets that bloom in the spring."

The FTC said it has received many complaints recently about advertisements offering "fabulous" plants and gardening materials which turn out to be bogus.

For example, the Commission said it has recently received letters from several persons who followed up an ad from a southern nursery for "beautiful, vigorous, super camellia plants." What they actually received was a shipment of "small, unrooted dried cuttings which would not grow when planted."

The commission made its warning in an announcement entitled "Beware of too flowery claims." Daniel J. Murphy, a top official in the commission's Bureau of Litigation, said many FTC cases involving deceptive practices in nursery products have developed from just such complaints by disillusioned customers.

He said "the same kind of exaggeration is often found in claims for the productivity of fruits and berries." The commission recently ordered a Mississippi mail order house to stop claiming that its blueberry plants could each produce up to six gallons of berries "when the fact was that most would be doing well to produce a gallon."

Another commission action involved a New Jersey nursery which was ordered not to use the term "chrysanthemum maximum" without disclosing the fact that the flowers it was offering was more commonly known as "daisies."

The FTC also issued a complaint against a firm which used illustrations of roses in its ads, along with information that its products belong to the roseaceae family. Investigators turned up the fact that the roseaceae includes fruit trees such as peaches, apples, cherries, and strawberry and raspberry plants. The government claimed that most of the customers who ordered the plants from the ads had expected roses.

Extra Dividend Voted By SIC

Southwestern Investment Company's board of directors voted a 2½ cent extra dividend in addition to the regular 12½ cent quarterly dividend on the company's outstanding common stock at its third quarter meeting in Amarillo May 10. The action marked the fifth consecutive quarter in which an extra dividend has been declared.

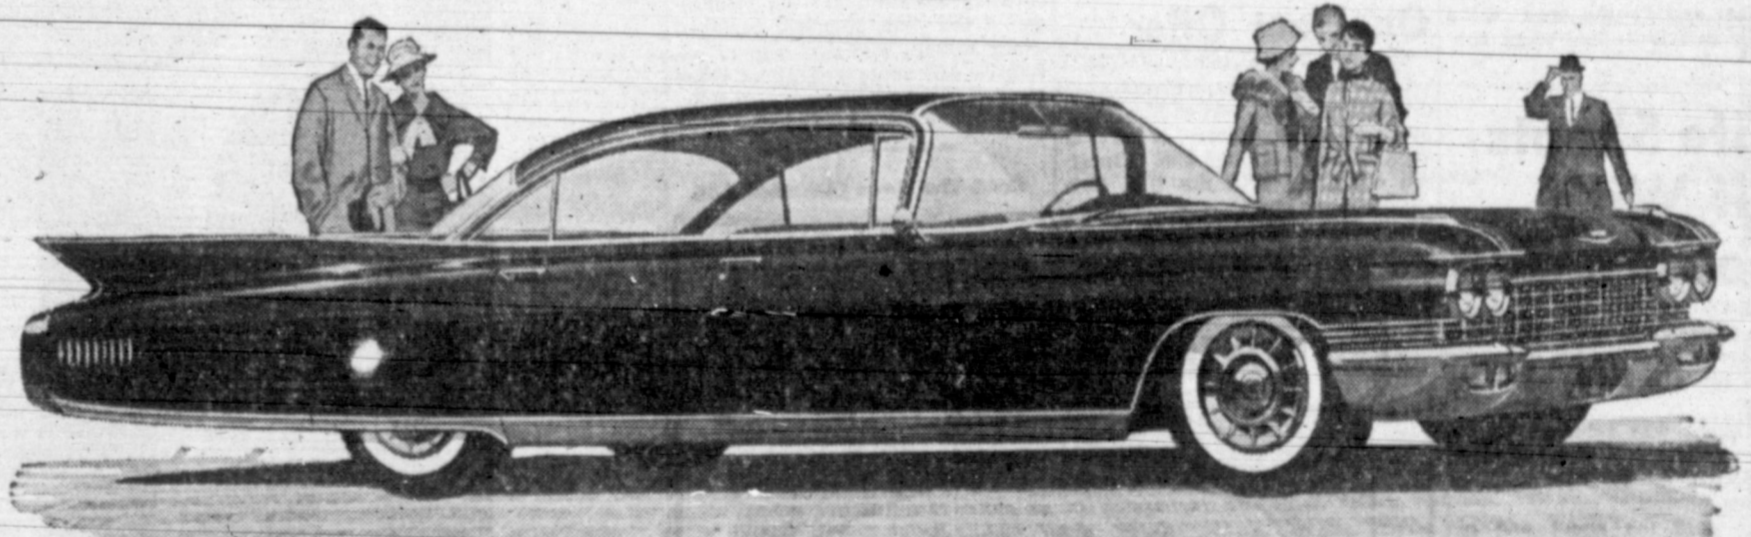

Dividends were also declared on all issues of S.I.C. preferred stock at their respective rates. All dividends are payable June 1 to stockholders of record May 19.

Under discussion at the May 10 meeting were S.I.C.'s current operations and future plans.

Shoplifting, On Increase, Costs Local Stores Thousands Of Dollars

By LEE GRIMSLEY
Daily News Staff Writer

One of the biggest headaches a store manager has today is the shoplifter.

And, to make matters worse, there's no absolute cure for it.

Lawmakers recently tried to find one when they adopted a more rigid law against shoplifting.

Under the new law, the first conviction carries a fine of $500 or six months in jail, or both; a second conviction can mean six months in jail or a fine of up to $1,000, or both.

A third conviction is considered a felony, and carries a penitentiary sentence of one to five years. This is a stiff price to pay for a small item like toothpaste but it doesn't seem to bother the shoplifter.

"I've been in this business for almost 20 years," said one Pampa department store manager, "and I've found that people will lift anything."

"There was a ring of shoplifters working around here not too long ago, but they were finally caught in Borger.

"This was an entire family," he said. "And they never sent anything to the laundry. If their shirts got dirty, they just went down to some store and lifted new ones."

Recently, this manager said someone tried on a mouton coat and walked out without paying for it.

The culprit probably won't feel at ease wearing it around Pampa streets, though.

"It was a special coat," the manager said. "And if I ever see it on the street I'll recognize it."

Managers are convinced that shoplifting is done by all types of people, and not confined to one group.

"You'll find kids who lift things," a manager said, "and then you'll find the lovely old grandmother type."

Perhaps the most dangerous type of shoplifter is the one who never takes anything out of a store.

"At one place where I worked a woman lifted a pair of hose and, in plain view, stuffed them in her coat," a manager said.

"But between the place where she picked them up and the door, she dropped the box."

"Earlier this same woman had purchased a pair of hose and had the sales ticket for them."

"When the police picked her up outside our store she was put in jail overnight," he said.

"Then the next morning she produced the sales slip for the hose she was carrying, and sued our department store for false arrest."

"She won her case, too," he said. "Because she had never taken a pair of our hose out of the store."

Police Chief Jim Conner estimated there were only about six shoplifting convictions a year in Pampa.

Since chain department stores estimate that a minimum of one per cent of their total annual business goes down the drain to shoplifters, six convictions would seem to be a slight percentage of the actual violators in action.

But police are handicapped. They can't make any arrests unless a store manager files a complaint. And a manager has to be 100 per cent certain that a person is a shoplifter.

"I can sit up here in my office," said one manager, "and think I see someone lift something. But I've got to be 100 per cent sure, not 99 per cent sure. If I'm wrong the person can sue the store."

"I've got to see someone actually pick up something and walk out the door with it before I can do anything. Then I have to call the

Wife Shoots Self With Spouse's Gun

DALLAS (UPI)—Police arrested a 32-year-old state narcotics agent Saturday after his wife was treated for a bullet wound in the scalp.

The agent was released to his superior, W. E. Taylor, head of the Department of Public Safety narcotics bureau.

Police said the agent and his wife, who is 25, were heard arguing in front of an apartment house at 1:25 a. m. Saturday.

Witnesses told police he dragged her into an apartment while she fought and screamed for help.

One of the witnesses, a nurse at Baylor Hospital, said she called police but before the squad arrived two shots were heard within the apartment.

Police found the woman wounded, but the woman said she shot herself.

Police found three pistols. They also said they found two marijuana cigarettes in a black handbag in the apartment of the agent and his wife.

However, Naylor said he believes the cigarettes were not actually the drug marijuana but a "weed" called "turkey."

He said the weed is used as a "leaky-h-y" narcotics agent.

Naylor said the agent told him and his wife had a "family argument" following a party at which both had been drinking. Taylor said the case was still being investigated.

Ten Pin Tales

By Lee Grimsley

Chisum is a good example of the amazing growth of bowling's popularity. Ten years ago he had never bowled a ball. Now he has three teams in three leagues.

Chisum was a member of the Investment team which won the Harvester Men's championship.

Last season was a big one for him. He had the highest score in the Harvester Men's (278), and the highest score in the 278 game was the second rolled at the Harvester during the past season. Stan had the highest game — 212.

Chisum started league bowling during the 1958-59 season. He had only three games before he was in the league. It was odd how I got started. Some friends kept coming and wanting me to go bowling with them. So I started going out interested and wound up bowling myself.

He bowls in league competition on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights. He carries a 168 average on Mondays, but it dips to 165 on Wednesday and 165 on Friday.

Now that league play is over, Chisum said, "I'm going to put up ball and shoes and I won't be back until next fall. I plan on hitting the golf course summer."

Golf Club Championship Play Draws 72 In Quest For Title

Virgil Cummings shot a three-over-par 74 in the Pampa Country Club Junior tournament to take the championship in the 16-17 year age group while John Triplehorn and Leonard Hudson outlasted the rest of the field to win the laurels in the other two brackets.

Triplehorn, playing in the 12-13 year group, fired a 27-hole total of 142 to cop the trophy and Hudson came in with a 166 for the 36-hole medal play in the 14-15 year class.

Twenty-three boys competed for trophies in the week-long tournament which ended Friday.

Right on the heels of his Junior Club Championship win, Cummings came to the annual County Club Championship with 72 members shooting their qualifying rounds Saturday afternoon.

Warren Fatheree turned in his best 18-hole total on the local course when he fired a sparkling three-under-par 68 to take medalist honors in the qualifying play. After that performance he must be reckoned as a dark horse contender for the club title.

The sixteen top qualifiers are paired off in the championship flight. First round action starts today and will conclude Friday.

The second round will get underway Saturday with the club championship to be declared Sunday, May 29.

The 72 entries in the tournament mark the highest number in the club's history. Hart-Warren club pro, attributes the heavy turnout to the change in dates from the customary fall schedule to the spring.

Dr. Foster Elder will be defending his 1959 championship but will get tough competition from several other outstanding golfers.

Max Hickey, two-time former champion, is expected to provide strong opposition as well as C. F. McGinnis and Grover Heiskell.

Pairings in all flights below the championship flight will be made in groups of eight according to the qualifying scores. Warren said this will permit more even matching of the golfers in the consolation flights.

The pairings for the opening rounds today follow:

Sports Profile

by LEE GRIMSLEY

It's beginning to look like the Baltimore Orioles have pulled off one of the biggest steals of the baseball season.

Last winter they took problem child Jim Gentile out of the Los Angeles Dodger chain on an option basis. After the first 30 days of the American League season the Orioles can buy Gentile for $25,000 if they like him, or send him back to the Dodgers if they don't.

The odds are about 100-1 now that Gentile will never wear a Dodger uniform again. He's humming along at a merry 314 batting clip and is second only to Bill Skowron of the Yankees in RBIs.

From the time he started his first pro game with Santa Barbara of the California League in 1954, Jim has been baseball's original angry young man. He's been mad at the Dodgers, but most of all he's been mad at himself.

Gentile only hit three home runs as a rookie, but in spring training of 1955 he caused such a sensation at Dodgertown he was elevated to Mobile of the Southern Association.

He led the league in homers with 28 and RBIs with 117. He also struck out 132 times.

Gentile first gained recognition as a fiery young man at Mobile. When he was hitting homers he was happy, but when he was striking out even the manager, Clay Bryant, couldn't get close to him.

It was that same 1955 season Gentile had to start wearing a leather pad to protect his back. He still wears it today.

When he would swing at a pitch and miss, the bat would come around and hit him in the back with such force that the skin was constantly bruised. He cracked four ribs that season before he started wearing the protective pad.

In 1956 he had his best year. With Earl Worth in the Texas League he blasted 41 home runs, but that was the same year Steve Sport's Ken Guettler sent 62 baseballs into orbit, a new loop record.

"I don't know what I've got to do to make the Dodgers notice me," Jim told writers that season. "I've hit at least three homers in every park in the league and 53 of Guettler's have been at Shreveport over that short left field fence."

Gentile had a 300-foot right field fence to shoot at that season, but he never aimed at it. Most of his shots went over the wall between left-center and right-center where the La Grave Field fence ranges from 385-410-385 feet.

One night he sent one out at the 410-foot mark that landed on top of a leavy some 200 feet back of the fence.

The next two seasons — spent at Montreal and Spokane — were nearly disastrous. But last season

Stamford HS Loses State Football Title

AUSTIN (UPI)—The executive committee of the University Interscholastic League took the 1959 Class AA state football championship away from Stamford Friday because the school violated recruiting rules.

The West Texas school was placed on probation for two years and is disqualified from winning any district honors this fall, although it may play its regular schedule.

The league said Stamford violated the rules by providing lodging and meals for Wendell Robinson, an all-state center.

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Such of the stop-Kennedy movement as may have survived that West-Virginia tornado will adjourn now to a smoke-filled national convention room in Los Angeles.

A small room will suffice. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) did not get full credit for his victory last month in the Wisconsin presidential primary. A complicated voting procedure plus a substantial Catholic-Republican element in the electorate blurred the returns.

The basic fact in the Wisconsin returns was that Kennedy licked Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and licked him good. It became instantly apparent that if Kennedy were to be stopped, those interested in stopping had to move fast and together to get the job done.

It could have been—and was—predicted from Milwaukee that there would be a gang-up against Kennedy in this week's West Virginia primary. The strategy was elemental. If the supporters of all other actual and potential democratic aspirants threw their support to Humphrey in West Virginia, then Kennedy probably would lose that primary.

This was not flattering to Humphrey. It meant that other interested parties did not take seriously Humphrey's pitch for the presidential nomination. They were willing to build Humphrey up at the expense of Kennedy because of confidence that they could cut Humphrey's throat at the convention.

What they feared was that another Kennedy primary triumph would give the young man from Massachusetts a claim on the Democratic nomination which is singly an alliance they could not challenge. That is just about what has happened.

Kennedy's top-sided victory in Protestant West-Virginia is a solid argument that the Democrats dare in 1960 nominate for president a Roman Catholic. The old pros in the party will get the message. Some of them have no special favorite of their own but have been aloof from Kennedy because of his religion. These should begin shortly to jump aboard the band wagon.

Some other old pros are confronted by a more complicated problem. For example, there is Sam Rayburn, the speaker. Mr. Sam is campaign manager for his fellow Texan Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, who has not avowed his candidacy but who is a candidate all the same.

Shall Mr. Sam and Lyndon now sit down in the speaker's room and decide to throw in with Kennedy or, shall they sit down with third parties and decide to take a shot at stopping Kennedy in Los Angeles? A hard decision, that.

What of Harry S. Truman? HST has a candidate but HST is coy. It is fairly apparent, however, that Truman's boy is Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri. For Mr. T. and Symington the big question is, now, what?

And Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt? She thinks Kennedy won't do. But Mrs. E. is a rattling good politician. She knows she can't beat somebody with nobody. She also knows if you can't lick 'em, join 'em.

"American industry is playing an increasingly important role in the sound use and improvement of our natural resources," the speakers brought out in their discussion. "Industries are producing farm equipment and machinery; the chemical industries are furnishing better methods and better tools for soil conservation and of raising the quantity and quality of four food products."

"Forward looking timber companies, manage their forests on a sustained yield basis by replacing timber at about the same rate at which they harvest it. Through privately supported research, improved tree-harvesting methods and development of new products, they are making bigger and better use of forest fields. Industry is also active in furthering public understanding of the important of our natural resources to our present prosperity and future program." Refreshments were served by Mmes. Emmett Gee, Willis White, H. W. Waters, J. B. Townse, Louise Sewell, K. A. Sorenson, D. Hills, Carl Axelsson, and Stanley Brandt.

If you are embarking on long reducing regime, it is wiser not to buy any new clothes until you are within at least 5 or 10 pounds of your desired weight. Aside from being an expensive proposition, it's impractical since the clothes will be of no use until your weight loss is complete and you can see a new you in smart new outfit.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Dale Allston Are Honored With Post-Wedding Shower

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Dale Allston were honored at a wedding shower recently in the Dallas home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Binford.

A heart motif was used in shower decor and appointments to recall the couple's Valentine Day exchange of vows. The Rev. Charles M. Bretz officiated for the double wedding in the sanctuary of First Christian Church, Durant, Okla.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Allston, 910 Jordan. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John H. Binford of Corsicana and the late Mr. Binford. Both are students at North Texas State College, Denton, where they are making their home.

The dining-room table was centered with a double heart-shaped cake wreathed in white roses and silver leaves, satin frosted and inscribed with the names of the bridal pair. Bride's roses were combined with white lilacs in a nooked container of milk glass with bridal tapers burning in crystal holders.

A satin-laced basket held favors of tiny pearl calla lilies tied with illusion and narrow satin.

The invited list included guests from Pampa, Arlington, Grand Prairie, Fort Worth, Dallas and Corsicana. Among them were the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Hugh Binford of Grand Prairie; her mother; the bridegroom's parents and his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Newell Faulkner of Arlington. Guests were registered in

Altrusans Are Told Of Consultants' Program Of Study Of City's Growth

Monroe Moore, engineer for the city of Pampa, was guest speaker at the Altrusa Club's noon luncheon Monday in Pampa Hotel. Mr. Moore, introduced by Mrs. Lorene Locke, Public Affairs chairman, discussed for the group "City Planning" and brought out the program scope and objectives of a comprehensive plan for Pampa to cover the next 20 year's growth of the city.

"The engineering firm of Koch, Gwiler and Grate, Inc. of Dallas have been engaged to formulate a program which will include the present urbanized area and those adjacent lands expected to be occupied by the growth of the city over the next twenty years," Mr. Moore said. "The firm will study and report on the environmental characteristics of Pampa and evaluate their effect upon the development of the city. Their studies will include, but will not be limited to, topography, transportation, climate, drainage, water supply and natural resources."

"Their study will take approximately three years to complete," the speaker informed the Altrusans. "We urge Pampa citizens to participate in any of the open City Commission meetings that will be held from time to time to discuss the planning system. The success of the planning program depends entirely upon the interest of Pampa citizens. It would be no good for the City Commission and the consultants to think that it is a good plan; if you, the citizens of Pampa, did not like it."

During the business meeting conducted by Mrs. Mark Heath, president, secretary's report was given by Mrs. F. W. Shotwell and the secretary's report by Mrs. Joe Tooley.

Jay Flanagan, in giving the Council of Clubs report, announced that the President Reception will be held Thursday 8 p.m. in the City Club Room. Mrs. Wiley Davis is the incoming Council president," Miss Flanagan said.

Special guests at the luncheon were the club's Altrusa Girls of the month, Miss Shirley McCoy for April, Miss Ginger Hopkins for May, and Miss Marianna Perkins for June.

Miss Ila Pool announced that a new Altrusa Club had been chartered in Lynchburg, Va. It was also announced that at the May 23 meeting Altrusa Girls of the Month for the past year will be honored at a reception.

Current Series Of Fashion-Luncheons Ended In Whirl Of Pretty Costumes

Twentieth-Century Cotillion Club concluded its current series of Fashion-Luncheons with a show staged Monday in Coronado Inn. Mrs. Tom Rose was commentator for the fashions provided through the courtesy of Gilberts Dress Shop.

Models showing the latest Spring and Summer fashions, keyed to a casual mode of living were Misses Sam Anderson, Charles Hickman Jr., Gene Hall, Warren Fathere, Gene Barbey, G. M. Martin, Charley Roberts, Bill Clements, and John Spearman.

Hairstyles worn by the models were designed by Coronado Inn Beauty Salon stylists, Jan Vance, Lil Hawkins, Joy Mills, Jimmie Jones and Gladys Scott.

Jewelry to complement costumes was provided by Roberts Jewelry; shoes—through the courtesy of Smith's Shoe Store.

Featured in the show was the modeling by Mrs. Anderson of an old-fashioned swim-suit of the 1910 vintage. Mrs. Rose commented that "Mrs. Anderson would have been in style exactly 50 years ago. The 1910 model swim suit she is wearing was the latest thing in beach fashions with the long pantaloons trimmed with rib-rack and the long tunic was ample protection for modesty. She certainly wouldn't have to worry about getting sunburned. By the way," Mrs. Rose added, "this swim-suit is Mr. Gilbert's original contribution to the show. He ordered it from the swim-suit company especially to be modeled today."

Another highlight of the afternoon's show was the modeling of nightwear by Mrs. Clements. The blue fluffweight gown was fashioned with a wide scoop neckline with a sheer overlay accent at the bodice. The fitted waistline was decorated with satin ribbon trim; the whirling skirt flowed to a waltz-length. The matching negligee was designed with a merry, go-round collar accented with a Sweetheart Rose at the neckline. Mrs. Clements was accompanied by Andre, a French Poodle on a leash, whose hair color Blue Mood, was also through the courtesy of Coronado Inn Beauty Salon. Andre's part in the show was completed when he selected a Cotillion guest, Mrs. Gene Sidwell, as the recipient for a gift certificate from Gilberts.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, Mrs. Thelma Bray, Cotillion president, expressed appreciation to the guests for their support and interest in the fashion shows and announced that the money obtained from luncheon tickets had been given to Lovett Memorial Library for a shelf of books.

Mrs. Bray introduced Mrs. N. J. Ellis, who has been general chairman of the Fashion Show arrangements, and expressed the club's appreciation for the work she has done.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in ballerina-length Chantilly lace designed with pleated taffeta bias bands. The bouffant skirt was tiered in scalloped lace with a large taffeta bow accent on the center back waistline. She carried a white orchid surrounded with Frenched chrysanthemums showered with long, white satin streamers.

Attendants were Miss Elyse Van Gröningen of Manitou, Okla., and Mrs. Jerry Eagleton of Canute, Okla. They wore ballerina-length dresses of white Rachel lace over pastel pink with taffeta bands accenting the bodices and skirts.

Valeria Hanes of Manitou and Kay Stout of Frederick were candlelighters. They wore ensembles identical to those of the bridesmaids.

Flower girl was Terri Thorne of Victoria and ring-bearer was Pat Greene of Frederick.

Jim Freen of Frederick attended as best man. Ushers were Donnie Hanes of Manitou, Jerry Thorne of Victoria, Dale Harlow and Jerry P. Lewis, both of Frederick.

Chock Full Of Vitamins In Ceremony, TC Leaders Undertake New Offices

Mrs. Kirk Duncan and Mrs. Lloyd Hicks were hostesses to members of Twentieth Century Clubs' one o'clock Spring Luncheon and officer installation on Tuesday in Mrs. Duncan's home, 2322 Duncan.

During the business meeting conducted by Mrs. Robert Sanford, Mrs. Raymond Harrah reported on the recent state convention held in Austin. Mrs. F. M. Culbertson announced the winners of Twentieth Century scholarships as Kenneth Miller and Chester Gist.

Mrs. Walter Pung, as installing officer, used the theme, "Vitamin Tablets." In installing Mrs. Ronald Hubbard as president, she gave a Vitamin L tablet for leadership and red to denote courage in under-taking leadership. Mrs. Richard Stowers was presented with a brown vitamin, "because brown rhymes with around and that is what you must always be when the president needs you." White RS vitamins were given Mrs. Roy McKernan, as incoming secretary, because again "white" rhymes with "write" and that is what she must do as secretary.

Gold vitamins to match money were presented to Mrs. Duncan as next year's treasurer. "Since the parliamentarian is to be seen, Mrs. Raymond Harrah's pills were green," Mrs. Pung said.

Mrs. Fred Neslage and Mrs. H. E. Stanfield as critic and reporter were given pink vitamins as a binding link. Mrs. Robert Sanford and Mrs. Tom Rose as council of clubs representative and federation counselor were given pills of yellow, since they are to be "out-in-front-of" fellows.

In closing the ceremony, Mrs. Pung said that if each officer took her specified pills "There would be no club ills."

Following a standing vote of thanks to Mrs. Sanford, outgoing president, the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. Hubbard, as incoming president acknowledged acceptance her office and announced the appointment of the committee chairmen.

Mrs. Stowers, program chairman, discussed events of the coming year.

Members present were Mrs. Bob Andis, G. F. Branson, W. R. Campbell, F. M. Culbertson, J. Kirk Duncan, Jack P. Foster, J. W. Gordon, Raymond Harrah, Lloyd M. Hicks, Ronald E. Hubbard, Lorene Locke, Roy E. McKernan, Fred J. Neslage, Walter

Peg O' Pampa

IT'S QUITE A TEST OF ENDURANCE... these late Spring evenings... if you take a drive before you've had your dinner... the late afternoon air is filled with delicious aromas of backyard barbecuing... makes you want to walk right in and ask what their recipe is... on a balmy evening this week one neighborhood had so much smoke curling up from backyard grills the whole block resembled an Indian reservation... speaking of balmy weather, one afternoon we accepted a friend's invitation to come over for a glass of Iced Tea and decided to walk the three blocks to her home... during our leisurely walk, we were stopped by three solicitous friends with these queries: 1) did you lose something? 2) did you run out of gas? 3) what ARE you doing?... walking is certainly becoming an oddity these days... something you do only in a case of dire emergency, it seems... that is why we often silently offer three cheers for Hugh Burdette whom we often see striding from his home on Mary Ellen to his offices in the Hughes Building... Aubrey Steele used to walk, too, to his office from his home on Charles... not so sure that he does now that he and Margaret have moved into their lovely new home on 18th and Grape... speaking of the Burdettes, friends are still talking about the pretty, private party, Hugh and Wanda, Virginia and Gene Green gave for Bill and Maxine Loving in the Pampa Country Club... quite a lovely affair, we have heard.

PEG'S COLUMN GETS AROUND... a letter from John Paul Jones of New Salem, Mass., was referred to us last week, wherein he wrote, "in the perusal of your column in May 1st edition of Pampa Daily News, you mentioned a book by Wanda Campbell called 'The Mystery of Old Mobeetie.' You did not mention the publisher or the price or where it might be obtained. Pursuing the News further, I did not find an advertisement of the book, or of any store that I thought might sell books. Knowing that you are the 'so-called' NOSEY PARKER (we're what???) of that fair city via your weekly column, I thought you might know the price of said book and where it might be obtained." John Paul Jones (wonder if his name is for real??) went on to say that his interest in the book "lies in the fact that I was raised there and have collected not a little data on that part of the country"... he even so kindly enclosed a self-addressed envelope for the information he requested, but just to test if he is a "constant reader" we'll answer here: "Dear John Paul Jones... Wanda's book was published by E. P. Dutton. It may be purchased locally from Pampa News Service for $2.75... signed Nosey Parker."

DID YOU KNOW THAT Texas' state emblem... the mocking bird... is getting the royal treatment, crown-jeweler style... the bird symbol will be shown in sparkling glory at the British Exhibition in the New York Coliseum June 10-26... artists, craftsmen and jewelers spent seven months to achieve the exact and intricate detailing... and for $835 "nature lovers" may buy the diamond and ruby studded bird... that is just exactly what we want AFTER we get a few other things, like for instance, a new electric food mixer... we read somewhere, too, that "Dear Abby" was chosen Mother of the Year by The Helping Hand of Los Angeles, Inc., a philanthropic group of approximately 1,700 women devoted to community service... Dear Abby was chosen for this honor because she has achieved outstanding success in her chosen career, but has not lost sight of the importance of motherhood and the home... she's the mother of Eddie, 15, and Jeanne, 18.

PEG GOES SWINGING ON THE GRAPE VINE and hears the most interesting tidbits about interesting people... like far instance, Todd and Jo Ann Overton, who became Mr. and Mrs. on April 30 in Austin, should be returning soon from their honeymoon cruise to Nassau... we heard that while there they had the opportunity of viewing the historic sights of the quaint "old world" city while riding the winding streets in a surrey... of browsing leisurely through the many British shops... of bargaining with natives in the straw market... and of visiting popular Paradise Beach... sounds like a heavenly place for honeymoon trip... or any other kind of trip for that matter... upon their return they will make their home in Austin... and the Beautiful Homes Tour, we have heard was most successful from the viewers points of view as well as from the Parent Education Club's sponsorship... an interesting item we heard while on the tour concerns the Kirk and Jean Duncan home on Duncan Street... those lovely, wharf-textured bricks in their entryway are the very same hand-cut bricks that Kirk's dad, Ivy, as a young man, carried to the erection site of the old red-school house (that no longer is but which was formerly located on the corner of Cuyler and Francis)... think that is a very sweet sentimental touch to their brand-new lovely home... Margaret Wells, Elnora Haynes and Eleanore Waggoner really fixed things up pretty for the City Bowling Awards Banquet held Thursday evening in Coronado Inn... they used red and white striped coronations surrounding red and white striped bowling pins for appointments on the speakers' table with red and white striped bowling pins alternately placed on red streamers on the dining tables... Mayor Ed Myatt did the emcee chore, which made the whole affair quite official... Vi Stanfield has been having a gay time with houseguests visiting her from Tulsa... spied them at several social functions around town... Virginia Colhoun was one of the attractive visitors and no sooner did she leave than Mrs. E. L. Talley came in for a visit and will be here this week... then Vi's mother is coming for a visit and for a ringside seat at her grandson's graduation from high school.

IF WE WERE STUMPED (and we are) for a label to call last week we could call it GAVEL EXCHANGE WEEK... for that is mostly what went on around our fair city as last year's presidents of study clubs relinquished reluctantly or hurriedly push gavels into the hands of this year's presidents... and to make the adjustment from old to new just a bit more fun and palatable, the groups entertained with pretty luncheons... luncheon decorations at Forum's luncheon given in Margaret Steele's new home were "something to crow" about... char-treuse and tangerine were the colors predominating with accent colors of white... cocky, little roosters on slender poles centered each individual table and served as a centerpiece... the buffet table was centered with a chartreuse and tangerine colored rooster crowing atop a pedestal arrangement of iris encircled at the base with bright-colored tangerines and limes with two milk-glass roosters flanking the base... here, Peg Daniel, who has made a charming Forum president for the past year, handed over the gavel to Alice Federer, who will rap Forum meetings to order next year... Angela Sanford is the retiring president of Twentieth Century Club and on Tuesday at a luncheon in Jean Duncan's home she tossed the gavel to "Mac" Hubbard... heard that Eleanor Pung gave a very clever installation service using a Vitamin theme which should make a very healthy club for next year... and we were so happy to hear that a beneficial, as well as beautiful, use at last is being made of those small plastic, lattice-tomato baskets we get at the market... At El-Progresso's installation luncheon, in Mrs. Grundy Morrison's home, she had made gay May Baskets for each guest's place... and the baskets were quilted, lined with gold foil with a bit of Oasis clay in the bottom and arranged with tinted daisies... we always hated to discard those cute little baskets and we know exactly what we will do with them from now on... very oriental and quite elaborate table decorations were used by Pampa Piano Teachers at a luncheon in Coronado Inn, when Tracy Cary handed the Prexy gavel to Thelma Cooper at their luncheon... all in all it was a very busy, busy week... and now everyone can sit back and relax until next fall.

UNTIL next week then just call us "no-gavel" Peg Signed "Nosey Parker"

Musical Beat Of Rhythmic Feet Tells Of Coming Dance Recital Attraction

Almost any hour of the morning, afternoon and early evening these days, as you pass by 315 N. Nelson, you will hear the steady rhythmic tap of dancing feet and hear the musical beat of piano keys. And if you pause to peer in, you will see the graceful movement of embryo-ballerinas costumed now in plain leotards, but two weeks hence, as if a magic wand had been waved about them, they will be costumed in frilly tulle, satin and sequins.

Miss Jeanne Willingham... dance instructor

The busy-ness at 315 N. Nelson these days is in preparation for Jeanne Willingham's Dance recital to be presented May 31 in Pampa High School auditorium, under the sponsorship of Epilion Sigma Alpha Sorority. And preparing the approximately 200 "stars of tomorrow" for the recital is Miss Jeanne Willingham who has been teaching dance students in this city for 12 years. Her studio has almost become an institution for young students of the dance. Miss Willingham began dancing at the age of five in Houston. She spends each summer taking teachers' courses in New York City, but mostly in California. During the summer of 1957, she studied with the Royal Ballet School (formerly Sadler-Weils) in London England and sat in on classes attended by such well-known ballerinas as Moria Shearer, Berisova Nerina, Michael Sommes as they were being instructed by Dame Ninette de Valois. Through Miss Willingham's efforts such artists as Harijs Plucis

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

A. BRUNS, Pastor
ZION LUTHERAN CHURCH

MATTHEW 5, 14-16

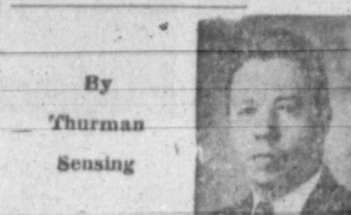

Most people like to hear words from the Law when they can feel that so and so is herewith being told and getting a needed lesson. But when it becomes clear that they are meant instead, their attitude changes. When hard pressed that the Law also means them, they would muffle its sting and modify its meaning. That is why Jesus once more in detail explained the Commandments in the Sermon on the Mount. He would convince the people of His day that they have perverted the Will of God, and putting the sting and curse back into the Law He would show that by the deeds of the Law no man can be justified. Justification is by faith in Christ Jesus. And having been justified and sanctified through the precious blood of the Lord, they become a salt of the earth. When they have lost their savor, there is nothing that can be done with it but thrown out to let men trample on it. He says: "Ye are the light of the world." Those who have Christ as their Savior are to serve as a light of the world. Scientists tell us there is only one real light in the sky, the sun; and all other shining bodies there receive their light from the sun. The rays of the sun fall upon them and they radiate them back to the earth. So we who have accepted Christ as our Savior, by nature are not lights. We are by nature darkness. Everything evil, sinful, and unclean is spoken of as darkness, but everything good, virtuous, and holy is spoken of as light. David says: "I was shapen in iniquity and in sin did my mother conceive me." As David, so we. That we are lights is by virtue of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, which is the real Light. The Light of Christ has fallen upon us and we have become lights in the Lord. Now that we have become lights, the Lord says: "Let your lights so shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven." It is natural for a light to shine. A light which shines not, is of no value. Men will not light a candle and cover it with a basket lest they thwart the purpose of lighting it; but they set it high so that it may give light to all which are in the house. So men when they will not let their lights shine, they defeat the purpose of the Lord redeeming them and calling them into this marvelous light. It cannot be otherwise but that they who have received this light must let it shine forth before. In the early days of the Christian Church, even the enemies of the Lord noticed that the religion of our Lord was a powerful thing. When they saw people as they became Christians change their lives from the ways of darkness to the paths of light, they took note "that they have been with Jesus." The light of Jesus radiated forth from their words and deeds, their entire behavior. Therefore, let us also let our light so shine before men that they may see our good works and glorify our Father which is in heaven. Then our conscience will remain clean and clear and the world will know that you have risen, by the grace of God, above the sordid treasures of the world. And they, too, will seek the comfort and joy and hope which you enjoy. Let God be glorified in and through us both now and forever.

Looking Sideways

by WHITNEY BOLTON NEW YORK - Moods of Manhattan on a Miniature Tape Recorder (first of a series). (You receive, at last, the tiny little machine that nestles flat in a pocket and is so sensitive that it picks up and keeps everything within a remarkable distance. You put the tiny microphone, dressed as a cordflower, in your lapel and set out. You walk through 44th Street, and as you come stumbert Shubert Alley, you find five young Method actors, suitably dressed in the lank dungarees and stained tennis shoes of their milieu, lounging against the stage entrance wall. You reach for a cigarette and click on the instrument.)

Unexpected Findings

Census Bureau authorities already have come up with one surprising statistic: There are a great many people who are "gamblers" and "numbers operators" than were expected. Census officials still don't know whether this is due to remarkable frankness or the big population increase since 1950. Under the law, such information is strictly confidential, so these individuals may have felt free to make no bones about their occupation. On Census records gamblers are listed as "miscellaneous professionals" and numbers operators as "clerical workers."

NEW YORK (UPI)—The factors causing the downward momentum will soon diminish and tempting values in a variety of old-line favorites, such as chemicals which are already attracting institutional buying, will reassert themselves, according to Schroeder Bouton & Co.
Investors should remember, he says, that the economy is not exactly one of self-liquidating index figures. There are broad controls that can be exerted by the administration and by the banking system.
As we enter the second half of 1960, Bouton says, the control levers seem likely to be exerted more and more in an upward direction.

Shearson, Hammill & Co. reports that over the past eight years, Allied Radio Corp.'s per share earnings growth has exceeded sales gains and this trend is expected to continue. Allied, the world's largest electronics supply distributor, offers an interesting and generally unfamiliar vehicle for participating in the rapidly growing electronics industry, Shearson says.
Raytheon Co. has made considerable progress in effectively controlling its explosive growth and improving profit margins, according to Reynolds & Co. Although profits in the 1960 first half are expected to fall somewhat below the 1959 period—Reynolds estimates that full year profits should equal or exceed $3.00 per share. The stock, it says, is well deflated and should recover for the long term.

Glasses Found

The police department has a pair of women's bifocal glasses with decorated frames which were found last week in the downtown area.
The owner can claim them at the police department.
