Japan Shamed Over Anti-Ike Mob Action

Welcome Campaign Under Way

TOKYO (UPI) — Indignation at the mob attack on White House Press Secretary James Hagerty swept Japan today and Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi personally assumed command of security arrangements for President Eisenhower.

A spokesman for the opposition Socialist Party, which has sought to cancel the Eisenhower visit and topple the Kishi government, denounced Friday's demonstration although many Socialist members of Parliament were in the mob that attacked Hagerty's car.

"We regret such disgraceful action on the part of the demonstrators," said the spokesman, Seiichi Katsumata. The Socialists said they would not go so far as to join a public welcome for Eisenhower but they would try to prevent any "deplorable" incidents.

Japanese newspapers were incensed and called the demonstration a national shame.

A widely read column in the mass circulation Asahi newspaper, which bitterly opposed the Eisenhower visit, said the mob scene was "a barbarous act that makes it impossible for us to show our faces in public before other nations."

The newspaper Mainichi said the only way to "atone for the great wrong" done to Hagerty is to welcome the President with open arms.

Ike Leaves Alaska Today For Manila

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — President Eisenhower flies into the Orient today for the first visit of a United States Chief Executive to the ancient islands of the Far East and their multitude of 20th Century problems.

After spending the night at Elmendorf Air Force Base here in the nation's 49th state, the President's first Oriental port of call was Manila, metropolis of the Philippines republic, where a million or more Filipinos waited to give him a hearty welcome.

Undaunted by recent riots in Japan against the U.S.-Japan security treaty, the President still was determined to go on to Tokyo, via Formosa and Okinawa, after his three days as guest of Philippines President Carlos P. Garcia.

Reports that Moscow and Peking propaganda organs were encouraging anti-Eisenhower demonstrations caused no major changes in the President's plans and for this he received accolades from the European press.

"This man has guts," said the London Daily Mirror.

"We tip our hat because of his personal courage," said the West German newspaper "Neue Presse."

$28,401 For Parking Lot

Bus Purchases OK'd By Board

The school board spent a total of $45,221.01 in its monthly meeting, which was still in session at 11:30 a.m. today.

The biggest chunk — totalling $28,401.70 — will be spent for the construction of a parking lot and general repairs at Pampa High School.

The low bid of three construction firms was submitted by the Don Baker Corp. Its base bid was $26,299.80 with an additional $1,618.40 for hot mix asphalt topping for the parking lot which will meet state highway specifications, and $483.30 for painting stripes in the lot.

The board also voted to purchase two new school buses which will cost approximately $7,800; spent $586.93 for lighting at Pampa High School's new parking lot; and paid monthly bills totalling $8,462.35.

In other moves, the board agreed to work out an arrangement whereby the Retail Merchants' Association can use the vacant lot east of Pampa Junior High School as a public parking area during the summer.

Lucian Young, representing the retail merchants, said his group would guarantee to maintain the upkeep of the lot during the summer months and turn it back over to the school in September.

B. G. Gordon, representing the two Pampa Lions Clubs, asked the school board to make a mandatory ruling that all new students in the system have polo shots, or at least have started the series at the time they enroll.

Superintendent of School Knox Kinard said the board had sought legal advice on this matter, and attorneys felt the polo shots could be required since smallpox vaccinations are mandatory.

Kinard said attorneys were of the opinion that if a test case on requiring students to have polo shots were presented to the courts, the school board would win judgment.

The board will withhold any judgment until its next meeting. Before that it will consult with other school systems that have made the polo shot requirement mandatory.

The board also agreed to accept bids for a new pickup for the school system. It currently owns a 1949 model half-ton pickup which is in need of $330.50 of repairs.

The two school buses which will be replaced are 1944 models. One has been driven 159,846 miles and the other 153,663 miles. The cost of each new bus will be approximately $3,900.

Twisters Hit East Texas; Rain Brewing

Thunderstorms that produced numerous tornadoes during the night broke up over Texas early today. But forecasters said scattered thunderstorms will return again late today.

One twister hit Sulphur Springs and caused damage estimated at some $400,000. Another hit Pecan Gap, 25 miles southwest of Paris.

No injuries or deaths were reported in either of those twisters. R. D. Jenkins reported the Sulphur Spring tornado, and said it blew doors and windows out of his house.

Jenkins said it "sucked" his children out of the house, but they weren't hurt.

Two funnels—both unconfirmed—were reported in the north Dallas area late Sunday. Two others were reported near Amon Carter Field midway between Fort Worth and Dallas.

Two other funnel clouds were spotted in the Weatherford area. Wind gusts of more than 40 miles per hour capsized three sailboats on White Rock Lake in Dallas. Two occupants clung to one overturned boat for 20 minutes before they were rescued.

Three others swam or waded ashore. At Sulphur Springs, winds ripped roofs from houses, uprooted trees and disrupted power. Radio Station KSST operated on limited power from an emergency generator during the storm.

Golf ball size hail and hard rains lashed Sulphur Springs when the twister hit. The hard-hitting winds blew a used car building across State Highway 67, demolishing it, and ripped the Sulphur Springs Farm Store apart.

The twister blew itself out in about five minutes. But before it did, it damaged several homes on the south side. The twister flattened trees, damaged trucks and tore telephone and power lines apart.

Police officer Raymond Horner said power and telephone service had not yet been restored in some parts of the city this morning. Horner said the winds did not hit the city's north side. Skies were clear today and city crews and linemen were clearing streets and trying to restore power and telephone services.

Man Drowned Near McLean

A Comanche, Okla., man drowned last night at Sand Spur Lake, eight miles southeast of McLean. He was Cliff Harper, 40.

The McLean Fire Department rescue squad recovered the body about 12 o'clock last night, about two hours after the man was reported missing. It has not been determined if he was alone in the boat which capsized.

According to McLean assistant Fire Chief W. W. Boyd, the boat apparently capsized when a strong wind came up suddenly over the lake area about 7 or 8 p.m. Harper, a carpenter, had been employed in Kellerville on a house remodeling job.

LBJ Backers Hope To Enfold Liberals

By LLOYD LARRABEE
United Press International

AUSTIN (UPI) — Strategy leaders for the Lyndon Johnson for President movement, led by Gov. Price Daniel, pushed a five-point party loyalty statement today, in hopes of heading off a liberal bolt to "the banks of the river" in Tuesday's state Democratic convention.

A secret meeting in the governor's mansion Sunday night lasted about two hours, and produced the principles of what a top-seated Democratic source told United Press International is "a pretty good loyalty pledge."

The compromise move came as the State Democratic Executive Committee prepared to meet Monday to set the stage for "Tues" SDEC's one-day convention. The SDEC's credentials committee will hear protests from seven counties involving 814 of the convention's 2,315 votes.

Johnson the Senate majority leader and so far unannounced candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, will be honored at one of the state's biggest political rallies Monday night at a $50-a-plate fund-raising dinner.

The state's Democratic party leaders—including 18 members of the Texas congressional delegation and possibly former vice president John Nance Garner—will be on hand among some 3,000 party followers to pay tribute to Johnson, subject of widespread red-white-and-blue placards in downtown Austin calling him "A leader to lead the nation."

A leader of liberal forces opposing Johnson — Mrs. R. D. (Frankie) Randolph of Houston, Democratic national committee-woman and chairman of the Democrats of Texas clubs — promised a bolt from the convention Tuesday if demands for a strong party loyalty oath are not met.

"We'd just as soon meet on the banks of the river," she said. "Democrats will meet anywhere."

But a prominent Democrat told UPI these five principles were adopted as a conciliatory statement of loyalty which the governor's mansion meeting hopes will satisfy liberal demands.

Adoption of the national democratic Executive committee's statement on party loyalty.

Reiteration of the state party's delegate statement of the past three years, calling for support of the state nominees.

A reference to the state law requiring that delegates to the state convention must have been participants in the Democratic primary elections.

Binding of electors, national convention delegates and state officers of the Democratic party, including the state Democratic Executive Committee, to support nominees of the party.

And, that the convention "anticipate" that all those who receive honors from the party and those who actively participate in Democratic party affairs shall support local, state and national nominees of the party.

"I have a feeling," the source told UPI, "this will satisfy some — but not others. But it goes farther than the national party goes."

Earlier, Mrs. Randolph said it will take a strong loyalty resolution to suit her liberal followers.

"It's first a question of pledging themselves as delegates to this convention, not just from this convention. I think they're willing to take a watered-down oath — but not one that means anything — not one that will protect us in the September convention. They've got to pledge to support the nominees," she said.

Kremlin Power Back In Khrushchev Grip

LONDON (UPI) — An unusually frank statement in a major Soviet newspaper indicated today Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has recaptured a Kremlin majority for his policy of peaceful coexistence with the West.

Pravda, the Communist Party organ, launched a veiled attack Sunday on the radical views of Red China and its backers in Russia.

In effect it was a commentary on what is practically an open secret—there has been a major policy split between two groups in the highest councils of the Soviet Union.

The Pravda article reaffirmed as "correct" Khrushchev's policy that war is not inevitable, that the world should disarm and that countries with opposing political systems can live together peacefully.

It was a vindication of Khrushchev's policy and a firm rejection of the Peking get-tough line which torpedoed the summit conference in Paris.

The Pravda article — ostensibly an essay on Communist ideology — attacked extremist "leftwing" elements in international communism.

Foreign Aid Request Cut
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee, rejecting a last-minute plea from President Eisenhower, today cut an additional $701,500,000 out of his already-trimmed request for new foreign aid funds.

At a closed session, the committee affirmed the cut in the face of a warning from the President that free world defenses would be jeopardized by the action. Eisenhower expressed this view in a weekend message to congressmen just before his departure for the troubled Far East.

The curtailed aid funds are earmarked for continued American military and economic support for anti-Communist countries for the year starting July 1.

In an authorization bill passed earlier, Congress pared the President's $1,175,000,000 request by $87,000,000. Today's recommended reduction in the actual money further cut the requested funds to $1,088,000,000.

King Ranch Manager In Cuba Runs Afoul Of Government

CASTRO'S MARATHON — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro is shown during a three-hour and 13-minute speech, largely critical of the U.S.

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — The American manager of the U.S.-owned King Ranch faced Cuban court charges today for tearing down a poster identifying the ranch as Cuban property.

Lowell Tash, Iowa-born manager of the ranch, was tentatively charged with conspiring against the government. It was reliably reported.

Premier Fidel Castro's government took over most of the ranch, once the largest in Cuba, last fall.

According to the reports, Tash tore a poster from a fence of the ranch Saturday. The Castro government has distributed the posters throughout the nation. They show Cuban flags and say: "Warning: This Cuban property." They were put up after the U.S. embassy labeled American property with identification posters.

Tash allegedly wrote "This is Communist property" on the poster. He also is understood to have resisted arrest when soldiers came to take him into custody.

Ben Gurion On Trip To Settle Case Of Nazi

PARIS (UPI) — Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion arrived today for talks with President Charles de Gaulle and a possible later meeting with Argentine President Arturo Frondizi to discuss the Adolf Eichmann case.

Ben-Gurion's four-day visit was planned long before Israel's capture of the former Nazi colonel in Argentina strained its relations with that country but the Eichmann affair was expected to figure prominently in the de Gaulle-Ben-Gurion talks.

French political sources ruled out suggestions that de Gaulle might step in as mediator in the dispute.

At the same time there was a chance Frondizi and Ben-Gurion would manage to meet at some time during their separate tours of Europe, with France a likely site.

Argentina has protested the way Eichmann was spirited from Buenos Aires to Israel to face charges of murdering millions of Jews during the Nazi regime.

Argentina 'Pocket Revolt' Nipped; No Shots Fired

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI)—President Arturo Frondizi crushed a bloodless "pocket revolt" by military forces in the city of San Luis in western Argentina today, just six hours before he was to leave for Europe. Not a shot was fired.

Most of the rebels fled, leaving in the hands of the government Gen. Mauricio Gomez, self-styled commander of the "army of the Andes" and one of the two highest-ranking officers in the uprising.

Gen. Fortunato Giovannoni, a 66-year-old retired officer, had been named "provisional president" by the rebels and the "capital" of Argentina proclaimed by them at San Luis.

But the revolt scarcely got off the ground, and Giovannoni disappeared with most of the rest of the rebels, including the "ministers" of his short-lived cabinet.

The rebels gained some successes in the first few hours by arresting Gov. Alberto Dominguez of San Luis province and some of his ministers. But they received no additional support and their most intense campaign was waged orally over the radio.

The government had estimated the rebel strength at about 400 men. Reports reaching here indicated at least some of them were captured.

The reports said Col. Miguel Angel Montes, a loyalist officer, restored the provincial government and returned the governor to his office.

The government had reported the uprising "practically liquidated" only a few hours after it started. Frondizi went to bed at four a.m. his plans to leave for Europe this afternoon unchanged.

Secretary of War Gen. Rodolfo Larcher indicated the revolt had been bloodless. He said the army would crush it, "fighting if necessary."

The rebels seized the radio station in San Luis, 500 miles west of Buenos Aires, and proclaimed retired Gen. Fortunato Giovannoni provisional president. They claimed support from other garrison towns and captured the governor of San Luis province.

The government said the revolt was limited to San Luis only.

Frondizi called his top military aides to his heavily-guarded office for early-morning talks and announced afterwards he would postpone his departure this afternoon.

"I have the satisfaction to announce that the armed forces in their entirety, answer to their natural commander," he said.

Larcher, a member of Frondizi's touring party, said the rebels had no more than 400 men and would be controlled by force of arms if they did not surrender.

The rebels seized the radio station shortly before midnight and broadcast the proclamation of the uprising. They established San Luis as the new "capital" of Argentina.

Alaskans Hopeful Ike Visit Will Bring Defense Benefits

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI)—President Eisenhower's brief Alaska visit has raised high hopes here on the first leg of this possible defense across the top of the world will be strengthened considerably.

In the wake of Eisenhower's overnight stay at nearby Elmendorf Air Force Base, the first presidential visit to the new state, Alaskan officials, businessmen and general public are hopeful they can get more missile launching sites and retain a fighter squadron now scheduled to be deactivated.

A top secret briefing on the Alaskan defense situation was one of the items on the Eisenhower schedule Sunday, after he arrived here on the first leg of this possible perilous 23,000-mile journey to the Far East.

Briefing officers for Eisenhower's host, Air Force Lt. Gen. Frank Armstrong, commander-in-chief of Alaskan defenses, gave the President a full picture of the air defense situation here, including the 22 Soviet missile-launching sites known to exist on Soviet territory just across from Alaska.

Armstrong himself did not undertake any "briefing" but the President knows how he feels about it, Armstrong recently said Alaska is "poorly defended."

The President spent a relatively relaxed day and night here before he moved on today to Miami.

Upon arriving at Elmendorf at 10:10 local time, the President praised the "tremendous achievement" of the Alaskans in "mastering human resources for human good." He said "you are no longer an arctic frontier, you constitute a bridge to the continent of Asia and all its people."

The President was welcomed by Alaska's Democratic Gov. William A. Egan and Anchorage Mayor George Rye in a brief but impressive airport ceremony. Eisenhower said that as a bridge to Asia, Alaskans "exemplify the stimulus of freedom and its rewards in spirit."

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Value Line Investment Survey cautioned its readers Saturday that most equities in the business machine group currently are overpriced in terms of the next twelve months and that future earnings are already well discounted.

Many problems still confront the industry, the survey said, and these are not only engineering ones.

The ultimate earnings potential from equipment leasing is greater than from outright sales but costs are not fully recouped for 3 to 4 years. The capital requirements are so enormous, the survey said, that all but the strongest companies are in danger of having to limit production to the length of their credit lines.

The big entrenched manufacturers are likely to grow and prosper, it said, but some of the smaller ones may well fall by the wayside or disappear by merger.

If the current market upswing is going to be of a sustained nature, then a stock-like International Paper should have no difficulty in rising above the 110-115 range, the current area of supply, according to Joseph E. Granville of E. F. Hutton & Co.

It seems to Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. that the former highs will be matched in the not too distant future although the list will experience some profit-taking on the way up.

Churchgoers Pray For Ike Safety

LOGANSPORT, Ind. (UPI)—Thousands of church-goers of all denominations prayed Sunday for President Eisenhower's safety on his Far Eastern trip.

The prayers were joined by former President Harry S. Truman who told a commencement audience at Michigan State University to remember the President in their prayers.

"I sincerely hope you will pray for his safe return," Truman said, drawing hearty applause from the crowd of 17,000 at East Lansing, Mich.

Plans for the special prayers in the Logansport area were started by the Rev. Tom Weigand, pastor of the Wheatland Ave. Methodist Church and president of the Cass County Ministerial Assn.

Churchmen of other faiths quickly agreed to offer up invocations at Sunday services.

The Rev. Dr. M. L. Robinson of the Baptist Temple prayed that the President "will have a receptive welcome particularly in Japan... and that out of his trip may come good will, brotherhood and peace."

Catholic prayers after mass were said for the President and Msgr. John Schall, vicar general of the Logansport Diocese, said they would be continued after each mass this week.

Manila, Philippines Ready To Give Ike Greatest Welcome

MANILA (UPI) — The Philippines was prepared today to give President Eisenhower the greatest welcoming celebration ever seen in this young, pro-American Asian republic.

Authorities predicted that a million-or-more Filipinos would jam Manila, many from remote rural areas, to catch a look at the American leader when he arrives here Tuesday.

"Only the weather can spoil things now," a jubilant government official told United Press International. He referred to a tropical depression which was lingering off the Philippines, and threatening heavy rainfall.

To the 24 million people of the Philippine nation, Eisenhower's visit will be one, big homecoming celebration. Eisenhower served in the Philippines as an Army major and lieutenant colonel in the late 1930s as an aide to Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The National Labor Confederation, under intense pressure from almost all other groups, including other labor organizations, called off a "peaceful demonstration," scheduled for Eisenhower's arrival.

ENCHANTING MADRID — Sub Deb Club entertained with its second rush party of the current season on Saturday evening in City Club Room. Members used the theme "Madrid" in keeping with its Around the World Party series. Spanish music provided an atmosphere of Old Spain with rushes seated at tables within an improvised bullring, where refreshments were served by candlelight. Miss Mary Sturgeon provided entertainment during the evening by singing "Lady of Spain." The first rush party was held in the home of Miss Barbara Holt with decorations forming an Hawaiian theme. Refreshments of Howaian punch and cookies were served to guests by Sub Deb members dressed in Hawaiian costumes. Entertainment during the evening was provided by a boys' quartet, Pete Lewis, Tom McPeak, Jerry Baxter and Jerry Nichols. "Lovely Hula Hands" was danced by Sandy Whelchel, Donna Walsh, Diane Fenton, and Wilma Carlile. Among the guests and members at the Madrid party were, seated left to right above, Misses Diane Fenton and Carolyn Hudson, members; Misses Janie Thompson, Barbara Falkenstein, Tommie Bobcock, rushes and Sandra Whelchel, member. MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE.
I'd been waiting at the department store counter for the boy and his mother to complete their purchase of his new bathrobe.

As it was being packaged, he drifted off to inspect a display of pajamas. His mother, smiling triumphantly, took me and the clerk into her confidence. Lowering her voice, she said:

"See? It never fails. If I'd told him I wanted him to take the maroon bathrobe, he wouldn't have looked at it. But I was smart."

"I said 'You wouldn't like a ratty color like this, would you?' And he takes it."

"I tell you, you can never push him. He always has to make his own decisions."

He had not made his own decision on the bathrobe. It had been made for him, not with honesty but with guile.

This kind of manipulation is as bad for us as it is for children. What's the matter with us today? Are we American women all so scared of seeming "unfeminine" and dominating that we have to express our wishes to children with the deviousness of corkscrews?

We do not teach a child to make his own decisions by refraining from the open expression of our wishes. He learns to make them by listening to our wishes and taking them into account in his decisions.

He learns to make them by feeling free to say:

"No, I want the blue robe instead of the maroon one for these reasons."

To express our wishes to him does not make us a dominating mother. A dominating person is not one who refrains from the open expression of his opinions but one who tolerates no objection to them. He is the person for whom no wishes but his own exist.

All human beings wish certain behavior from other people. If, to avoid any appearance of seeming "unfeminine" and dominating we avoid open demands on children, what happens is what happened to the mother of this column.

We begin to demand secretly. We turn to guile and trickery, to get what we want from children and deny them the opportunity to declare their opinions and make their case for them.

We become the most dangerous kind of dominator—the secret kind. We join the breed, not of loving women but of the contemptuous ones who trick their way to power by the sweet pretense that they don't want it.

It's a nasty breed to belong to.

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been teaching Physics for 33 years and not only was your reply to "Dick" a pip, but it would have made Professor Einstein turn over in his grave.

"If a plane crashed in the desert and no living thing heard it, was a sound made?" Dick asked.

To this question, which has baffled philosophers and scientists for generations, you blithely reply, "Yes", without even batting an eyelash.

"Sound" according to the physiological definition—"requires a receiver." Without it there is no "sound". Truly yours, "DOC" (Cambridge, Mass.)

DEAR ABBY: I was surprised to read that "Dick" was having trouble with the question of sounds being reproduced by a plane crash in the desert. I asked this same question in my high school science class 20 years ago, and was soundly squelched by my teacher. This was before anybody would believe that matter and energy were convertible.

Good for Dick for raising the question and good for you for backing him up. I wouldn't have believed this old chestnut was still kicking around.

S. S. F. SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ABBY: The argument about whether or not there was a "sound" made if no one was around to hear it can easily be solved by using the proper word. What Dick wanted to know was NOT whether a SOUND was made ("sound" needs someone to hear it, in order to be termed "sound").

Dick meant was a "NOISE" made? Yes, you were right. A noise WAS made. So call it a "noise" instead of a "sound" and settle it!

PHYSICS TEACHER, Amarillo

DEAR ABBY: May I be the thousandth person to tell you that the question about "sound" has no answer?

If Dick couldn't find the answer in his physics book, written by experts who have spent their lives studying sound, vibrations and transmissions, I don't know why on earth the poor kid thought he could get the answer by writing to you. Why didn't you just say you didn't know?

A. L. Washington, D.C.

DEAR ABBY: You were wrong when you supported the student who said that whether anyone was around to hear a sound or not, it still was a sound. I will not attempt to explain this phenomenon as I barely understand it myself, but I know I am right.

O. F. (Yuma)

DEAR ABBY: I thought everybody knew that sound required three things: (1) An object to give off vibrations, or "noises". (2) A medium to transmit these vibrations. (3) A device capable of receiving or "hearing" these vibrations. By definition, then, a plane crashing in the desert with no living thing around to hear it, does NOT cause "sound".

RUTH MILLETT

"Who really pushes these teenage marriages, the boy or the girl?" I asked a group of young girls recently. Their frank answer came without hesitation.

"The girl, of course," they said. Then they went on to explain that most boys aren't in a hurry to get married but that often after a couple has gone steady for a year or two the girl begins to talk marriage.

Pretty soon the boy is buying an engagement ring and the girl is making marriage plans.

If the parents object the kids run off and get married, anyhow. So, if the girls really are the ones who are marriage-crazy, here is a letter I'd like to share—with as many teenage girls as possible.

One of yesterday's teen-agers writes:

"I want to commend you for your wonderful column on young marriages. My husband and I married when we were both 13. That seemed terribly old to us then. We didn't see how we could wait any longer."

"Now we listen to all the 'I told you so's.' We are 21 now and have a 10-month-old son who is really a darling, but my husband can't make enough to support us."

"I think if teen-agers would consider very seriously what it means to bring a baby into the world they would be in less of a hurry to get married."

"My husband and I still love each other but these trying times are driving us further and further apart."

"I'd like to tell all teen-agers I love that all the people who tell them to wait to get married really know what they are talking about. I know."

So what's the big rush, girls? For two persons in love marriage is worth waiting for. And the going is so much easier for the couple who wait to marry until they know they can stand on their own feet.

Borger Nips Roadrunners With 9th Inning Rally, 5-4

BORGER — The Pampa Roadrunners finally came up with an errorless ball game here Sunday but the pitchers failed to match the effort as Borger pushed over five runs in the last two innings to win 5-4.

Left hander Kippy Williams pitched shutout ball over the first seven innings before being relieved in the eighth with two down when a pair of successive walks got him in trouble.

Braves pitcher Bob Taylor drew a walk to open the eighth and moved to second when Benny Hill singled to left. Bob Forrest and Hill were erased on a neat double play fashioned by shortstop Bobby Nutt and second baseman Allen Self to ease the situation momentarily.

After Bill Rogers drew a base on balls, the Braves slugging first baseman, Herbie Hill, was intentionally passed to load the bases.

The strategy backfired however, when catcher Jerry Herring rapped a two-run double to left center. It was Herring's first ball out of the infield for the day and probably one of the few balls he has ever hit to left field.

Ivan Wooten was called in from the bullpen by manager Nevt Secrest and retired the side when Nutt made a dazzling play on Moyer's shot through the box which was deflected by Wooten.

The Braves took advantage of another pair of walks in the last frame to take the game. Wooten walked the first two batters to face him. Taylor moved them up a notch with a sacrifice and Hill tied the ball game with a double down the left field line.

Forrest ended the game when he laced a two-strike pitch from reliever Secrest for a single to plate Forrest.

The Roadrunners drew first blood when rightfielder Travis Taylor came through for the second successive game with a bases loaded hit. This time Taylor laced a double to right center.

Nutt's sacrifice fly scored another runner in the seventh. Gary Heiskell led off with a walk and moved to second on Self's base knock to center. Williams beat out a perfectly placed bunt down the third base line to load the sacks, setting the stage for Nutt's run scoring fly to deep center.

Williams was at the plate to sacrifice but he placed his bunt in the right spot with the third baseman laying back for a play at the hot corner.

Heiskell gave the Roadrunners a 4-2 lead in the top of the ninth when he bombed a Taylor fast ball over the fence in straightaway centerfield.

Catcher Mike Conway's rifle arm kept Williams out of trouble on several occasions in the early innings.

The Braves opened the first innings with a walk and a single but

Boston Recalls Higgins To Helm

BOSTON (UPI) — Michael Francis (Pinky) Higgins, a little less than a year's rest under his belt, takes up where he left off today — with the Boston Red Sox in the American League cellar.

Higgins, answering a "personal friendship" call from the Red Sox millionaire owner Tom Yawkey, Sunday agreed to come back and manage the woebegone Boston team, presently 12 games out of first place.

The Red Sox were in last place last July 3 when the 51-year-old Higgins was replaced as manager by Washington Senators coach Billy Jurges.

Jurges, a onetime star shortstop with the Chicago Cubs, managed the sagging Boston into fifth place in 1959. But, by last week, the club's dismal play forced his physicians to order him relieved from duty for reasons of health.

He was replaced as interim manager by veteran Boston coach Del Baker, who managed the 1940 Detroit Tigers into the American League pennant. Baker wasn't confident he'd stay on as manager however. "I think it's on a day-to-day basis," he said.

He was right.

Jurges was given his unconditional release by the Boston team last Friday. The Red Sox said Sunday Higgins had agreed to take over baseball's 1960 hot seat — at least for the rest of the season. "He said he was very happy to take over the club," a Boston spokesman reported.

Senators Summons Lamotta In Ring Rackets Inquiry

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former middleweight champion Jake Lamotta has been called as the first witness in the Senate investigation of boxing and its possible links with the underworld which gets underway Tuesday.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) chairman of the anti-trust subcommittee which is launching the long-scheduled inquiry, said Lamotta will be questioned about three fights in which he figured as a top-flight fighter in the late 1940s.

According to Kefauver, the preliminary rounds of the investigation will try to determine if bribe offers and undercover arrangements were made by underworld figures to control major middleweight and light heavyweight fight careers.

He said that in addition to Lamotta other witnesses on tap will include managers and even racket figures as well.

The first phase of the boxing probe will center on three Lamotta fights, Kefauver said.

Indians, Bucs Hold Half Game Leads Over Pursuers

They served punch Sunday and rates crushed the Cardinals, 15-3, put a real kick in it just by adding a dash of Lemon.

First thing you know, there was an all-out slugging brawl in which Washington's Jim Lemon got in the best kicks with three homers.

Rocky Colavito of Detroit and Dick Stuart of Pittsburgh entered into the spirit of the occasion with two home runs apiece and Willie McConvey of San Francisco chimed in with a grand slam homer.

A total of 11 homers was hit in the Washington-Detroit double-dip. Lemon drove in four runs in the opener with a homer and a single. Jose Valdivielso and Eddie Yost also connected.

Lemon belted two more homers in the nightcap, bringing his season total to 16, and Bob Allison also homered for the Senators.

Colavito hit two and now has 10. Frank Wauke pitched for 18 hits, the biggest blow being McCovey's pinch hit one and so did pitcher Frank Lary, who drove in four runs while registering his sixth victory. Bud Daley of the A's scored his seventh straight victory and pitched a five-hitter and struck out 11 Oriole batters in the opener. Kansas City won the nightcap by getting to Hoyt Wilhelm for two Senators won the opener of a doubleheader from the Tigers, 5-3, but lost the nightcap 12-5. The Athletics knocked the Orioles out of first place in the American League by beating them in a doubleheader, 6-1 and 5-3 in 10 innings. The Red Sox downed the White Sox, 4-1, and the Indians took over the lead by a half game even though their twin-bill with the Yankees was postponed because of rain.

In the National League, the Pi-

Frank Sullivan hurled a seven-hitter and started the Red Sox' winning rally with a fifth-inning single against the White Sox.

The Yankees had taken a 1-0 lead in the first inning of the opener with the Indians when the rain came and wiped out the whole affair.

Stuart ripped into Cardinal pitching for five hits, including his two homers, in the Pirates' opening game victory. The Cards hopped on former-teammate Wilmer Mizell for three runs in the first two innings of the nightcap and went on to win behind Ernie Brogion.

The Giants pounded five Milwaukee pitchers for 18 hits, the big blow being McCovey's pinch homer with the bases full during a six-run rally in the seventh.

Stan Williams of the Dodgers checked the Reds on four hits and struck out eight as he won his fifth straight without a defeat.

Richie Ashburn's two-out single in the 10th scored Earl Averill with the run that gave the Cubs their victory over the Phils.

Hearing To Decide Who Gets Cannon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — All-America Billy Cannon was due in court today for a hearing to determine whether he'll be playing for Los Angeles of the National Football League or Houston of the next fall.

The opening day of the hearing on Los Angeles' Rams petition that he not be allowed to play for anybody but them probably will be taken up with arguments on whether it should be a jury trial.

Cannon, just about everybody's All-America choice as a halfback for Louisiana State University last year, was signed by both the Rams and the Houston Oilers of the new league.

The husky halfback signed three consecutive one-year contracts with the Rams on Nov. 30, 1959, before playing his final college game in the Sugar Bowl. He also signed a three-year contract with the Houston Oilers.

When the Houston contract was penned it was a point of contention. Cannon said he signed with the Oilers under the goalposts after the Sugar Bowl game, but Los Angeles charged he actually signed with Houston owner Bud Adams three days before the game.

His contract with Los Angeles called for $50,000 over the three years and a bonus. The Oiler pact was reported to guarantee him about $100,000 over three years plus assurance of other off-season work.

The Rams admitted that Cannon returned checks for $10,000 and $500 sent to him after he signed the secret agreement. The checks came with a letter insisting he was not bound by what he believed merely a tentative proposal to enter into such a contract.

Little Eyes U.S. Open After Win

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—Gene Littler, winner of the Oklahoma City Open, took off for Denver today with high hopes of winning the National Open championship that narrowly eluded him in 1964.

Littler, Art Wall Jr., of Pocono Manor, Pa., and Arnold Palmer of Ligonier, Pa., finished 1-2-3 in the $30,000 Oklahoma City Open and all pose a strong threat in

The 29-year-old Singing Hills Calif., pro, picked up a check for $4,300 here with a 72-hole score of 273 — 11 under par. But he needed a 15-foot putt on the 18th green to beat Wall.

Wall won second money of $2,000 with a 274 total and Palmer, the defending champion, came in third and earned $2,000.

Littler shot a three-under-par 68 to go with earlier rounds of 71-61-70. Wall and Palmer both fashioned final-round 67's.

Wall had a nine-week layoff due to a knee injury, but played spectacularly here and finished 10-under-par at 274. He has been 40 strokes under par in his last 35 rounds, including a remarkable 14-under-par in qualifying for the National Open here Tuesday.

You can breathe a tiny sigh of relief. According to the Tax Foundation your federal government has actually reduced the number of its civilian employees.

Believe it or not, the figures show that in October of 1958 your federal bureaucracy employed some 85,000 more civilian workers than it did in October of 1959.

While federal payrolls were shrinking (from $1,091,400,000 per month to $1,072,700,000) numbers of persons working at other levels of government rose sharply.

Thus, in spite of the reduction of civilian workers at federal level, enough new workers were added at state and local level to overcome that loss and to increase nationwide some 200,000 persons.

So the taxpayer, instead of being in line for a bit of relief as a result of shrinking wage budgets in his government, is going to have to scratch even harder in order to pay state and local salaries.

All around the nation new jobs are being created by state and local politicians. And the sum total result is a further burden upon all of us.

Here's the overall picture. From one end of the nation to the other, in all avenues of government, local, state and national, there are now more than 8 1/2 million civilian workers employed by the government in a civilian capacity.

From 1951 to 1959, employment by state and local governments (on a full-time equivalent basis) rose 40 per cent. Monthly payrolls (using the month of October as the base of the comparison) saw the doubling of those payrolls from $1 to $2 billion in only eight years.

Total public payrolls for October of last year, including Alaska and Hawaii, came up to $3.1 billion. That's about $137 million over the preceding October.

Thus, on an average for 1959, the taxpayers of this nation put up something in the neighborhood of $3 billion per month for salaries of government civilian workers.

When one adds the military to this number, and then includes the figures of the office rentals and the equipment purchases necessary to keep this band of men and women busily engaged, the work is absolutely staggering.

But the big thing to realize is that not a one of these persons is engaged in production. Every one of these millions of employees is going to have to share the production that the rest of us, outside of government, provide. It is not the business of government to produce anything. Production occurs outside of government.

No matter how you figure it, these 8 1/2 million persons will have to eat food that others raise, will have to wear clothes others weave, will have to live in houses or apartments that others have built. However useful or valuable their services may seem to be to some, the fact remains that purely by definition, these 8 1/2 million people, who cost us $36 billion a year for salaries produce absolutely nothing.

We don't mean to say by this that these persons do nothing at all. Many of them put in long hours and read and write papers on various subjects almost without a break. We are talking in terms of production.

And in terms of production, the rest of us cannot eat, wear or sleep on the outpouring of rules, regulations and orders from the 8 1/2 million government workers; but these people can and do eat, wear and sleep on the production of the rest of the people.

The question can be asked in economic terms. How many non-producers actually busy themselves with making it difficult for the producers of products?

War Is Unthinkable, But Passive Consent To Enslavement Is More So

War is unthinkable but surrender or passive consent to the enslavement and murder of innocent people is more unthinkable.

If a substantial number of western peoples adopt the ideology that war is more unthinkable than anything else, communism will have the green light to pursue the conquest and enslavement of mankind through little wars, annexation of territory, threats, infiltration and subversion.

If the Communists are once firmly convinced that the West considers war unthinkable they will proceed without let or hindrance to the conquest of the world. All they need to know is that we will not resist under any circumstances and they will then proceed to crush out all opposition and to extend their cruel, heartless conquest over the surface of this globe.

All right thinking men recoil from the thought of killing another human being; but to stand by and see a crazed man, a desperado or a berserk robbing, raping and killing innocent people is much worse than to destroy the offender against the peace and happiness of a community.

What is the duty of one who sees bandits preparing to dynamite a bridge toward which an oncoming express train carrying hundreds of souls is rushing? Assuming that he cannot persuade them to stop or restrain them in any other manner than by using his gun, what is his duty? He hears the train approaching.

In a few moments, hundreds of people will be dashed to their death in the gorge below. He weighs the lives of the two or three dynamiters against the hundreds on the train. Rightly, he concludes that "thou shalt not kill" compels him to take the lives of the few in order to preserve the lives of the many.

If we are in some degree responsible for our brethren, as most Christians believe, it is incumbent upon us to protect others from injustice, oppression, enslavement and death in so far as it may be within our power to do so. Such progress as has been made in this world toward maintaining peace has been brought about by courageous men who value human life more than their own lives and the lives of thieves, rapists, enslavers and killers. It is difficult to see how civilization could ever have started or made any progress on the long, rough road without stake their all for the maintenance of law, order and peace.

We have peace in our cities and villages, not because all men love one another, but because we all know that every individual man is subject to police duty to maintain the peace. The maintenance of peace is a dichotomy. We must have the growth of good will, kindness and love but we must also recognize that prior to the coming of the perfect age of which all men dream that the maintenance of peace rests upon the organizing capacity of men to put down aggression and overcome those who will not adhere to decency and law.

Believing that war is unthinkable more often causes than prevents war. The emergency peace campaign in England in 1938 sent Chamberlain to Munich and at least hastened, if it did not cause, the outbreak of World War II. If Hitler had known that England, France and the United States would join Czechoslovakia and Poland for the protection of the latter countries, World War II would at least have been postponed if not averted.

Because the delegates to the League of Nations thought war was unthinkable, they set up the non-intervention agreement at the beginning of the Civil War in Spain. But this agreement did not interfere with strong Communist help to the so-called Republican side of that conflict nor the much greater help in the form of troops as well as supplies sent to Franco by Hitler and Mussolini.

The concept that war is unthinkable opens the floodgates to the enslaver, the aggressor and the tyrant. It is the equivalent of the police strike, which those old enough to remember what happened in Boston a generation ago, know rendered the community helpless to defend itself against unprincipled, immoral men.

To avoid war, the western powers permitted Japanese aggression in China in 1937. By concerted effort, this might easily have been stopped. It was not stopped and other aggression followed. Hitler marched into the Rhineland. We know now that his generals had orders to withdraw had they encountered even slight resistance; but men who thought war was unthinkable at that time offered no resistance and the aggressor came on.

Mussolini's seeing that "war is unthinkable" was the prevailing philosophy, proceeded in his conquest of Ethiopia. Emboldened we release our best energies in great effort to achieve. Work is the great elevator; the great disciplinarian; the great stimulus of love and of compassion. We should rejoice that Gardens of Eden do not come ready-made; that by work we can achieve; but that, even when achievement is certain, it takes more work to retain success than to win it at the beginning.

MANILA (UPI)—Seven helicopters from the U.S. aircraft carrier Yorktown Saturday rescued 54 sea men from the British freighter Shun Lee, which ran aground near Pratas about 600 miles northwest of Manila.

Distress signals from the Shun Lee were picked up by the Yorktown shortly after midnight Friday night. The Yorktown immediately sped to the scene.

One seaman was reported drowned.

The Allen-Scott Report

ROBERT S. ALLEN PAUL SCOTT

BACKING BY CANDIDATES JOHNSON AND KENNEDY WASHINGTON — Adlai Stevenson is getting a big rush from the two front runners in the Democratic Presidential race.

Senators Lyndon Johnson and John Kennedy are very eager to win the backing of the 1952-56 standard bearer, but so far they have had no luck. He has told both he is "endorsing no one before the convention."

The former-Illinois Governor turned Kennedy down despite the fact that William Blair, Stevenson's law partner, favors the New Englander and is boosting him.

The two candidates made their pleas to Stevenson personally. Johnson talked to him May 15 in Washington. Kennedy had breakfast with Stevenson at his Libertyville, Ill., farm on May 21.

Tennessee backers of Johnson also are vigorously seeking a declaration from Senator Estes Kefauver, running mate with Stevenson in 1956. But, like the latter, Kefauver is shying away from publicly announcing a preference before the Los Angeles convention.

The Tennessee is up for reelection this year, and faces tough opposition particularly on the segregation issue, on which he has taken a moderate stand. So he is carefully skirting the increasingly hot Presidential scramble.

Stevenson's wait-until-the-convention stand is quite satisfactory to Senator Johnson. If Stevenson sticks by that, the Texan has a lot to gain. So long as Stevenson is even remotely a nomination possibility, his ardent partisans won't switch to anyone else.

Illustrative of this is the disclosure of the Madison, Wis., Capital Times that four Humphrey delegates "are ready to vote for Stevenson."

In seeking Stevenson's endorsement, Senator Kennedy stressed that he had won the backing of Governor Mennen Williams and the bulk of Michigan's 52 delegates; also this would shortly be announced.

Kennedy made no bones he felt an endorsement by Stevenson would virtually ensure his nomination on the first ballot.

"It's the one big breakthrough I need, Governor," Kennedy urged. But, while friendly and cordial, Stevenson refused to budge.

Men With Fat Tummies Avoid The Public Beaches

by HENRY McLEMORE

There must be lots of men who, with the coming of summer, regret the way they spent their winters.

I know I do. If I had the past winter to live over, I'd spend it under a sun lamp, starving myself half to death.

But I didn't. I didn't go near a sun lamp and I ate like a wolf. Now I'm paying for it. The bathing beaches are open, my bathers suit is out of mothballs, and I am a sight to behold. Particularly in the bathing suit!

It would be all right if the bathing beaches were empty and I had them to myself. Then I wouldn't care what I looked like. The sea gulls, pelicans and minnows could laugh their heads off for all I would care.

But the beaches aren't empty. They are loaded from the tide mark to the boardwalk with bathers. What is worse, most of the bathers appear to be very young men, with stomachs as flat and hard as the back end of a shooting gallery, and of a color that makes me stand out like a laughing hyena at a funeral.

The young men are all tan, or brown, or mahogany, and I am as white as a new tennis ball. This combination of man-white and man-tan, was never meant for a bathing suit. How I wish a wave of modesty would sweep the country, and a darkened phone booth would become favorite beach attire for males. Or even a Navajo blanket or an oil drum with suspenders.

It takes a lot of courage for a man in the shape I am in at present to walk along a beach. More vases, his sculpture is superb, his dentistry is honest and sound. He comes out to put a new work a magnificently done little marble of a child's head — on the lawn and you stop to talk. "I think I've found my Medicine," he says. "And his wife in Great Neck, who heard of me at some party and came over. They have bought four things so far and told me that I should come to their house and grounds and, if I was inspired by either to do a little figure, they'd buy it. I'm proudest of the taxi driver, though. He saw a painting he liked and asked to buy it. I didn't want to throttle his art love in infancy and let him have it for $100, payable at $5 a week. Yesterday he paid the last $5. Now he wants a figure for his lawn."

Later, up in the town, you see the taxi driver putting some woman's groceries into his trunk compartment. "I hear you bought a picture," you say. "Do you like it?" "No," he said. "You don't buy what you like. You buy what you fall so violently in love with you can't sleep at night for wanting to own it. I fell for it during the winter. Great picture. Living with it is living with satisfaction. First picture I ever bought. But it's the first one I ever fell in love with, for that matter."

You run down another gentle hill. The last of the fruit blossoms are going, flowers are bursting on shrubbery, the air is clean and fresh with a faint tang of salt in it. Your neighbors are out early, in their gardens, driving cars, parking Cadillacs, washing station wagons, painting porches, sweeping walks, doing all the familiar easy things of country life.

You slip into your house and your wife says: "Kids like me. They cooked star-shaped eggs this morning." "You pretend you didn't hear her."

Why Work?

We suppose the idea got some of its impetus in the Bible. In Genesis as Adam and Eve are driven from the Garden of Eden, it is explained that "in the sweat of the face shalt thou eat bread."

The implication has been largely drawn that work is an evil thing and thanks to Adam, and especially to Eve, man has to work for a living.

We think the inference is somewhat illogical for earlier it is explained that Adam was put into the Garden of Eden "to dress it and keep it."

To dress and to keep a garden entails a considerable amount of labor. So it is likely that work was going to be the lot of man on this planet one way or another and it has been most ungentlemanly of us males to go blaming the ladies for the fact that labor seems to be our universal lot.

One way or another, whether we go along with the Biblical interpretation of our origins, or with any other interpretation we care to find, the fact of life seems to be that life on this planet is wholly dependent upon work.

During the Middle Ages when a class society was forming throughout Europe and elsewhere, there grew up a repugnance for work which could be traced in part to the expulsion of Adam and Eve as the story is related in Scripture. People who worked were supposed to be a lower form of life. People who did menial work with hands or backs were considered little better than beasts of burden and were treated accordingly.

As recently as fifty years ago in this country, women who went to find work were considered socially inferior to other women who, in theory at least, had nothing to do but "sit on a cushion."

Work is not evil. It is one of the greatest tangible goods in the world. We should be forever grateful for the fact of work, for the good that comes to us when
