Approximately 100 guests sent gifts, but were unable to attend.

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Irma is my second wife. I was a widower for 14 years and should have left her enough alone. We've been wed for two years and all I hear out of her is, "Henry, put your hat on!" I was bald when she married me and after all, Abby, I am 73 years of age. Did she expect me to start growing hair at my age? She never complained about my bald head when I courted her. Now, we can be sitting at the home of friends and she will run and get my hat. Everyone laughs, and she does, too, but she sees to it that I keep my hat on. I am getting tired of this treatment. If I am not too old for advice, please send some my way.

BALD AND NOT ASHAMED OF IT
DEAR BALD: Take your hat off, Henry. And keep it off — unless you are out of doors. And tell Irma to cut out the foolishness.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live in a housing development, so you know how close neighbors are. One evening last fall my husband had to work late and I was sitting out in the yard enjoying the peace and quiet. One of the neighbors, whose wife was out of town, came to the edge of my yard and asked me if I cared to join him in a game of chess. We sat on my porch until dark playing chess, and then we just talked. We didn't put the porch light on as it would have attracted bugs. He stayed until my husband came home at 10 p.m. Months later I hear that the neighbors are still talking about it. Did I commit any sort of crime?

FRIENDLY NEIGHBOR
DEAR FRIENDLY: You committed no "crime" but you were indiscreet. Better to have attracted a few bugs than all that attention.

Miss Goodwin Is Feted On Birthday

Vicki Goodwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray A. Goodwin, 341 Anne was honored with a party on the occasion of her sixth birthday. Games were played during the afternoon.

Refreshments of cake and ice cream were served to Randy and Rhonda Taylor, Gale and Dale Stout, Terry Phillips, Donna and Melinda Ray, Mike Helms, Johnny and Kevin McCullough, Jeanie Goff, Paulie Helms, Mona Kelly, Dusty Williams, Leslie and Greg Evans, Jody and Tina Daniels, Patty, Pam, Ronnie and Becky Anderson.

A special guest was the honoree's grandmother, Mrs. Orva Walls.

Also attending were Meses Donnie Ray, Bobby Stout, Art McCullough, Raym Williams, Mitchell Phillips, Jerry Helms, Vester Walls, Claud Pullen, Jess Conner, Sally Pullen and Bill Helms.

It was announced that the new meetings the date and place to be announced later.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago my wife's sister agreed to pay us 75 for our dining room set. I ailed it over there and she gave me $10 on it. Time went on. Nothing was said and nothing more was paid. I wrote her a letter asking for the balance but it was ignored.

Her daughter was recently married. She gave her the dining room set as a wedding gift. Should we ask the daughter and her husband for what is owed on the furniture?

GYPPED

DEAR GYPPED: You should NOT ask the daughter and her husband for what is owed. Your wife's sister made the deal with you; SHE still owes you the money.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WORSHIP-PED HIM": Now that you are wiser, ask him to park his clay feet under somebody else's sofa every night.

"What's your problem?" Write to Abby in care of this paper. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's pamphlet, "What Teen-agers Want To Know," send 25 cents and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of this paper.

Auxiliary Notes
13th Anniversary

OCAW Ladies Auxiliary celebrated the 13th anniversary of its organization on Friday with a dinner in White Way Restaurant.

Odd Cases As Heroes Knocked

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — John Wayne, who can drink, gamble and brawl with the best of 'em, deplored today the psychotic weaklings depicted as heroes in modern down-beat movies.

"Ten or 15 years ago audiences went to pictures to see men behaving like men," he said. "Today there are too many neurotic roles."

"It's the Tennessee Williams effect both on Broadway and in movies."

Wayne is a towering man who might be dismissed by so-called intellectuals as a nice guy, but no ball of fire in I.Q. department. The big guy fools them, however. The wheels are clicking along all the time.

"In 'The Alamo' there are men like Davy Crockett, Jim Bowie and William Travis who have problems, but there is strength within them with which they overcome the hardships."

"Even if there had been psychologists in those days—these men would not have gone for treatment."

"Men still handle their own problems today, but they are not being fairly represented. Instead they're depicted as weaklings who can't take the pressures of modern competition."

He wouldn't accept the trembling, torn T-shirt types if they were offered him.

Wayne's latest pictures, "Go North" for 20th Century-Fox and "The Alamo" for his own Batjac Productions, are the man-epics of Alaska and Texas, respectively.

"Action is the keynote of my pictures," he explained. "It's an added advantage in every respect. I try to combine an intimate story with people you can root for. The more audience identification with the characters the better off you are."

"Then after an intimate scene memberships."

Registration will begin at 9:30 Tuesday morning, May 31.

QUEEN OF MAY — Myrna Haiduk served the May Queen and crowned a statue of the Blessed Virgin with a long veil of satin and lace. She also presided at the special mass at White Deer.

Myrna Haiduk Presides at Special May Catholic Mass Ceremonies

The Catholic Youth Organization of Sacred Heart Church, White Deer, sponsored a May Queen coronation at the 10 a.m. mass. The choir sang "On This Day O Beautiful Mother" and the May procession began as the flower girls dressed in white spread flowers upon the white covered aisle. The flower girls were Julie and Jane Isch, Linda Britten, Linda and Janice Bruce, Betty Peters, Janice Goodwill, Deborah and Carolyn Peters, and Verena Hunter from Pampa. Mary Beth Peters, the crown bearer, preceded the queen's court and carried the crown on a white satin pillow. Then came the May Queen, Myrna Haiduk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haiduk, who was dressed in white except for the train which was made of blue satin edged with pearls and rhinestones. Delores Rattiff, the train bearer, carried the fourteen foot train up the aisle. After the procession, the choir sang "Bring the Flowers to the Fairest and the queen's court carried bouquets of flowers and placed them in the casket surrounding the Blessed Virgin. Miss Haiduk then crowned the Blessed Virgin with a long veil made of satin and net. She presided at the foot of the altar for the remaining part of mass. At the same Mass, seven members of the parish made their First Communion. They were Mike Williams, Nelson, Britten, Karen Haiduk, Becky Urbanczyk, Patty Bruce, Morena Bilgri and Betty Corral. The First Communion procession was led by Jenny Urbanczyk and Christy Haiduk. Following Mass, the First Communion mothers served breakfast to all the ones who had made their First Communion and the C.Y.O. sponsored a breakfast in honor of all the mothers of the parish.

UP Church Leader Opens Campaign To End Segregation

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—The Rev. Herman Lee Turner, newly-elected moderator of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., today began working toward desegregation. Rev. Turner, 69, of Atlanta, Ga., was elected presiding officer of the church in a close vote Wednesday. He defeated Rev. Eder V. Hawkins, Negro pastor of St. Augustine Church, New York, by two votes, 471-469. The new moderator said he believes desegregation will be achieved by "steady pressure." The majority of the urban residents are ready to accept desegregation, he said, "but the rural areas are too strongly opposed—resisting any change." He said he believes in obeying the law of the land. "I am not secure until my neighbor is secure, has the same rights as I have," he said. The Rev. Turner has been minister of the Atlanta congregation for 30 years. He is also head of the Atlanta Christian Council and a past president of the Georgia Council of Churches. The new moderator gained wide renown as author of the "Atlanta Manifesto," that condemned racial hatred and pleaded for the maintenance of a sound public school system in the South. The new presiding officer of the 3,290,000 member church hoped for a merger of his church with the Presbyterian Church of the U.S., the Southern branch of the denomination.

Patients Teach What Profs Can't

Minister Turns To Mental Hospital For Further Study

By LOUIS CASSELS United Press International The Rev. Ernest E. Bruder studied the doctrines of the Christian faith at a leading seminary. But he had to go to a mental hospital to learn the real meaning of those doctrines — and their relevance to the deepest needs of troubled human beings. "The patients have taught me what the professors couldn't," said the Rev. Mr. Bruder, who is chief of Protestant chaplains at huge St. Elizabeths Hospital in Washington, D. C. "They have helped me to see the profound validity of what the Scriptures say about man's condition. And they have shown me what Jesus meant when he said: 'Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free.'"

Upshaw To Observe Third Year At Central Baptist

Rev. T. O. Upshaw will observe his third anniversary as pastor at the Central Baptist Church at Sunday's services. During the past three years he has watched the church in a period of tremendous growth — much of which may be attributed directly to his work. The Sunday school has advanced from 20 to 32 departments. Attendance has climbed in keeping with this advance. Average attendance for the month of April was 732 per Sunday for an all-time record. Total Sunday school enrollment now stands at 1,307. The Training Union, in seeking to provide training for all church members, has served effectively in building large attendance for the Sunday evening services. The Training Union, along with the Brotherhood and Woman's Missionary Union, has made significant progress during this time. Through the months of April and May two Sunday morning worship services have been conducted in order to care for those desiring to attend. During this three year period 615 people have joined the church. There were 232 who were received through baptism while 383 were received on transfer of letter and upon statement. Rev. and Mrs. Upshaw live at 511 E. Browning and are the parents of three children, Freddie, Kay and Karen.

T. O. UPSHAW ... third anniversary

Neighbor Day will be a special emphasis at the Central Baptist Church Sunday morning. Members of the church are being encouraged to bring their neighbors to church. Members will be given the opportunity to introduce their guests. Two morning worship services are planned. The first will be at 8:30 while the second will be at 11. Sunday School will begin at 9:45. Rev. Upshaw, will be speaking in the three worship services of the day. Training Union will begin at 9:45 and the evening worship service will follow at 8. The 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. worship services will be broadcast on radio station KHHH.

Understanding Of God Is Text

Man's age-old longing for a clearer understanding of God and of his own identity is a central theme of the lesson-sermon to be read at Christian Science services Sunday. The Golden Text is from Psalm 84:2: "My soul longeth, yes, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord; my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God." SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI)—Santa Cruz bank officials reported Thursday that a grocery clerk accepted a $20 check signed by "You Been Had."

Compact Cars Lose Regular Gas Appetite

DETROIT (UPI)—Owners of some "compact" cars may soon have to start using premium grade gasoline unless the oil companies upgrade their regular grades. Some of the compacts already brought out by the auto industry, although designed for regular, have come up with higher octane appetites, according to the Oil and Gas Journal. And this thirst for champagne instead of beer is being displayed by a group of compacts that so far includes only one car in the "luxury compact" classification. At least four more "luxury compacts," all with more discriminating thirsts, are scheduled to make their debuts this fall. Oil industry officials admit that Valiant, which is not considered a "luxury compact," already is pressing the limits of the octane ceiling of current regular grade gasolines. Some of the other compacts, in an effort to match the horsepower advantage of the Valiant, are offering "power packages" which will boost the octane appetite of their engines and put them right at the ceiling of current grades of regular. Buick, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Dodge all will add to the pressure on the oil industry for a higher grade regular this fall by introducing "luxury compacts" with higher horsepower engines than those featured by any of the current compacts. Pontiac will introduce the Tempest, Buick the Invader, Oldsmobile the Rocket and Dodge the Lancer, all with thirsts for something more than the regular grades of about 92.4 regular octane which are currently being offered. The need for higher octane regular will vary from one section of the country to another. There are two reasons for this. First, altitude lowers a car's octane requirements so that a low octane gasoline at a high altitude will do as good a job as a high octane fuel at sea level. Because of this cars driven in the Rocky Mountain areas do not need as much octane as cars driven in Eastern Seaboard and Gulf Coast areas. A second reason for the variation is that oil companies in certain sections of the country have beefed up the octane of their regular brands. Notable examples of this can be found in central Michigan and a couple of East Coast points where regular grade gasoline of up to 95 octane was being marketed. These companies apparently are pointing the way for all oil companies throughout the nation in the year ahead. If they don't follow the leaders, only owners of cars with the bare minimum in engine horsepower will be able to continue to use regular.

Adcock Will Discuss God And The Earth

"God and the Earth" will be the sermon of Rev. Woodrow Adcock at the two Sunday morning services of the First Methodist Church. The 8:30 a.m. service will be broadcast over radio station KPDN. ## "HOW TO STUDY THE BIBLE"

II Timothy 2:15 — Tells us to study the Bible. Here are five simple ways in which we can study God's Word.

- I. Read for Content
In other words, what does it basically say or teach? (Someone has said that we're so heavenly minded that we're no earthly good.)
- II. Look for Jesus in the Bible
You can also look for Jesus during the day, for example, as you sit down to eat the bread that you eat typifies Jesus as the Bread of Life, etc.
- III. Look For Numbers in The Bible

1 - Unity	7 - God's Perfect number
2 - Separation	8 - New beginning
3 - Deity or God	10 - Number of testing
4 - Number of earth	12 - Israel's number
5 - Grace	13 - False religion
6 - Man's number	40 - Testing on Earth
- IV. Look for Proper Names, Cities and Towns
In the Scofield Bible you have a section called "Proper Names" where all these can be looked up to see what each one means.
- V. Look for Symbols

Oil - Holy Spirit	Scarlet - Sin
Brass - Judgment	Robe - Righteousness or Salvation
Wine - Blessings	Ring - Assurance
Silver - Redemption	Leprosy - Sin
Gold - Deity	Red - Man's Color
Snow or Wool - Purity	Blue - Heavenly Color or God's Color
Thief - Devil	Purple - Red and Blue Make Purple (God - Man)

- Examples for Study:
1. Luke 10:30 - Good Samaritan
  2. Luke 15:12 - Prodigal Son

- Types of Jesus as Our Sacrifice:
- As a Lamb,
  - As a Bullock,
  - As a Turtle Dove,
  - As an Oxen or Pigeon

Two books that every Christian should have in order to study:

CUMULATIVE NEED FOR PHYSICAL PLANT
HIGHER EDUCATION, 1960-1970

THE BLACK GAP represents the years between the intended spending and the projected needs for college facilities during the next 10 years. By 1970 educators plan to spend nearly 14 billion dollars for the physical plant but by then they will need 19 billions.

Billions' Not Enough To Pace With College Demands

By JERRY BENNETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — While students enjoy their summer vacation this year, college officials will be scrambling for one of the most critical assignments in the history of education. Their problem is how to provide enough new classrooms, dormitories and teachers to take care of the student boom.

The number of young men and women seeking college degrees is expected to rise from 2,148,284 in 1962 to more than three and a half million this year. By 1970, officials of the U.S. Office of Education estimate the number will increase by about two million more.

Since many colleges are already stretched for space, educators are wondering how they will teach and house the new arrivals.

Office of Education planners say it will take almost 19 billion dollars during the next 10 years to provide needed new classroom and dormitory buildings and campus improvements. By 1965, at least one million of this amount should have already been spent.

But a recent government poll of college construction plans throws considerable doubt on whether either of these goals will be achieved. The survey shows that colleges intend to spend only six billion during the next five years, about 14 billion by 1970.

Unless this spending is increased, U.S. Commissioner of Education Lawrence G. Derthick predicts one of two things will happen:

"Either the quality of higher education in this country will be seriously impaired, or many hundrreds of thousands of able, qualified young people will be denied a college education."

John B. Rork, Office of Education campus planning expert, views cramming for one of the most critical assignments in the history of education. Their problem is how to provide enough new classrooms, dormitories and teachers to take care of the student boom.

Students may not be able to enroll in the college that they want to attend. But if they look around and are not too choosy, they will find some place in the U.S. where they can go to school. But the quality of their education may be poor because many of them will be taught and housed in dilapidated facilities.

One thing is certain. Crowded classrooms are going to require students to study harder than ever before, Rork expects more and more colleges will start flunking out poor students at the end of their freshman year rather than giving them a second chance. And failures will find it extremely difficult to enroll in another school.

Rork says that the 19-million-dollar figure in the construction survey includes the cost of replacing so-called temporary structures built during and soon after the war.

To survive the student boom, a college that doesn't meet all its new construction requirements must continue to use its old, run-down buildings.

In addition to being unsuitable for teaching, Rork says many of the old buildings are health and safety hazards. He fears their continued use may result in fatal fires.

That doesn't imply, though, that college officials who don't demolish such classrooms are callous or reckless men. Many schools simply don't have the money to carry out needed improvements. Since our society demands mass rather than selective education, colleges are forced to make use of whatever facilities they have.

Some experts believe the solution to the money shortage lies in Federal aid. Eight bills to authorize government money for college construction are now under study by Congress. But their fate is uncertain due to the controversy over Federal school aid and the election year rush for an early Congressional recess.

Rork expects the student boom also to cause a shortage of teachers. Just how great this need will be won't be known until Office of Education experts complete a new teacher survey.

Alleviating the expected shortage may require recruitment of retired military men and persuading ex-teachers to re-enter the profession. But Rork believes teachers' salaries must be raised before any personnel shortage can be relieved.

Executioner For Castro Is Missing

HAVANA (UPI)—Capt. Herman Marks, of Milwaukee, who commanded firing squads for Premier Fidel Castro, has been missing since Saturday on a "fishing trip" with four other Americans, it was reported today.

Unconfirmed reports said the five, who left the Isle of Pines off Cuba's south coast in a sports-fishing boat, were fleeing to Mexico.

Marks' companions included an American woman, tentatively identified as free-lance newswoman Jean Secon, the brothers John and Julius Perle and Julius' son William.

Friends of Miss Secon said they doubted that she was in the Marks party. They said she left Havana Wednesday, presumably on the way to the United States for a vacation.

Marks joined Castro's rebel forces in the hills of eastern Cuba and stayed on in this country after he triumphed over President Fulgencio Batista. He commanded firing squads for Castro during the purge that brought death to more than 600 Cubans.

Radiation Problem Not Yet Conquered By Scientists

By ELMER C. WALZER
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — With the expanding use of atoms in medicine, science and industry, man is becoming more and more exposed to radiation.

There is no way as yet to immunize him from the dangerous effects of this powerful emission of energy. But science has worked out ways to measure it and thus protect those who are exposed in the course of their occupations.

And this measuring process has already risen to a rate of $100 million a year—and still is growing.

"Man can live with radiation," says David H. Cogan, chairman and president of Victoreen Instrument Co., of Cleveland, a pioneer in instruments for measuring radiation.

"He can go ahead with the peaceful use of the atom as long as he takes measures to protect himself."

Cogan's company develops and manufactures a large variety of supersensitive monitoring devices for use wherever atoms are at work.

These devices measure radiation in air and water and sound alarms when there are excesses so that corrective measures can be taken.

Water radiation is one of the big problems. Recently, the Milwaukee company, investment company underwriters, in a treatise on water problems, noted that one teaspoon of strontium 90 radioactive waste requires about 2,500,000 gallons of water to provide safe dilution.

Radioactive substances in water can be removed through the use of certain water softening processes. The job is to detect the radiation—a function of the Victoreen instruments.

This company also makes a device called a personal dosimeter which measures and records personal exposure to radiation.

Specialty Electronics Development Corp. of Syosset, N. Y., has developed a dosimeter the size of a button. This instrument provides a permanent record of accumulated exposure.

H. Russell Cammer, president of Specialty Electronics, reports thousands of persons now wearing these dosimeter badges.

"They will soon be a requirement for thousands more as peaceful use of radioactivity increases in medical and scientific fields and in industry," he says.

Cammer points out that the dosimeter provides a lifetime log of radiation to which the wearer has been exposed. His company has taken.

Following Victoreen's pioneering in measuring devices, about 100 other companies have entered the field of measuring radiation.

Among Victoreen's installations are two monitors to safeguard Philadelphia's water supply, several in atomic submarines, and electric generating plants. Portable models are used in laboratories, hospitals, and industrial plants.

Big Welcome Awaits Ike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Plans were shaping up slowly today for a big bipartisan welcome for President Eisenhower Friday when he returns home from the scuttled summit conference.

Democratic leaders, already on the record with declarations of support for the President to counter Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's attacks on him, were waiting to hear more about the reception arrangements.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Texas) and some others whose names might add bipartisan luster to the occasion did not expect to be in Washington Friday.

But there was every likelihood that the Democrats in Congress would be represented to some extent in the Eisenhower-welcome at nearby Andrews Air Force Base.

ARE YOU GETTING THE MOST OUT OF YOUR TELEPHONE?

Mrs. Dorothy Barnes, teacher and homemaker, tells how her phones save precious time, brighten each day

Mrs. Barnes leads two busy lives. She combines a teaching career with keeping house for her husband and 8-year-old son, Barry. Yet she manages to find ample time for both career and family with the aid of the telephone.

"We've never been without a phone," she says. "I can't imagine getting along without it, but I never realized just how much time I saved until I kept a record of my telephone calls. For instance, the telephone is a real timesaver at mealtimes; while I'm preparing dinner I can reach Barry anywhere in the neighborhood without leaving my kitchen."

The Barnes family believes in getting the most from the telephone. For example, here are a few typical calls:

"Called the department store to order garden hose."

"Talked with a friend. Just a social chitchat about our last sorority meeting."

"Several calls to friends, inviting their children to a birthday party for Barry."

"Barry's grandmother called to wish him a happy birthday."

"My husband called Topeka to make arrangements for a weekend fishing trip with a friend."

"Phoned a friend to ask whether she and her husband would like to go to a concert with us."

Vending Machines Threaten To Make Salesmen Obsolete

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I tell you they are making vending machines these days that are positively uncanny. It's a pity there isn't some way to make them rummy.

I was brought up to date on some of the latest developments in the automation field at a hearing conducted by a House Judiciary subcommittee. It was enough to make a fellow plumb roogie-eyed.

I wouldn't want to worry any one by raising the specter of unemployment, but if I were a salesman I believe I would start learning another trade.

These new automatic vendors are bound to make a goodly number of salesmen expendable if they don't make the entire lot obsolete.

The subcommittee had before it two witnesses from National Vendors, Inc. — one human and the other mechanical. I don't have to say which one was the more interesting.

The human one, Walter R. Mayne, counsel for the company, wants Congress to broaden the law which makes it a federal crime to manufacture slugs for coin machines.

Mayne, whose firm makes automatic vendors, explained that legal protection now is needed against the use of phony paper money as well.

He said the machines have advanced to the point where they can accept one, five or ten dollar bills, dispense a variety of merchandise, add up the price tags and then give out the correct change.

In fact, he said, a New York department store will soon install a machine which will sell 36 different items — socks, underwear and the like — automatically.

I don't know what will happen if a customer gets the wrong size but I suppose the machine will refer him to the complaint department.

Mayne demonstrated for the subcommittee a new-fangled machine which can change anything from a quarter to a $5 bill in less time than it takes a human salesman to open a cash register.

Moreover, the machine can recognize counterfeit money, which is more than you can say for most clerks.

However, Mayne said that sharpies already have found a way to cheat the machines by using slugs which produce the same electrical impulses as real coins.

Not Twain, But Twain He Looked Like

United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — Mark Twain's TV monopoly ended Thursday night.

Seems that all year long we've been seeing Twain lying in bed on some TV stage and uttering his words of wisdom and good humor into the TV cameras.

But Thursday night, CBS-TV's "Electra Playhouse" put Ernest Hemingway into the act. Or a reasonable facsimile of Hemingway. The occasion was a 90-minute adaptation of Hemingway's short story, "The Gambler, The Nun, and the Radio."

In the story, a writer obviously modeled in a hospital bed and spouts eloquent opinions about everything from women's clubs to bullfighting.

Portraying this author was Charles Rickford, who happens to look more like Twain.

Hemingway's official TV stretcher-outer, A. E. Hotchner, had the job of trying to sustain a plot buildup over a 90-minute course. It wouldn't have been so hard a job if the time slot was 90 minutes long. And it would have come out more effectively, too.

In meeting his challenge, Hotchner displayed admirable ingenuity. He tossed in inconsequential but amusing bits of business, a medley of songs, some jazz, conversations about baseball, football and bullfighting. He also phoned up some situations designed to build suspense.

The light story dealt with the shooting of a Mexican gambler in a Western saloon one night in the 1930's. The gambler pulled through after some close calls and, thanks to the spiritual and moral support of Sister Cecilia, found new reasons for living.

The story is one that Hemingway encountered while he himself was in a hospital in 1922. "Papa" seemed to be a mighty grouchy old onlooker in this TV play. But I guess his orneriness was supposed to serve as a contrast to the subsmissiveness of the gambling man.

The so-called suspense in the story involved the next move by the gunman. Would he come to the hospital to finish off the gambler? He came to the hospital, all right, but in one of those dust-covered windups, only to make sure his foe would live and keep quiet about the shooting.

As the gambler, Richard Conte fashioned a quiet, winning performance and Eleanor Parker, as the nun, also was excellent in a role that broke no new ground. When Miss Parker and Conte, unpermitted by clumsy, contrived plot detours, played out their scenes together, the production took on warmth and naturalness and developed appeal. But after pouring it on for a half-hour, it all began wearing thin. Directors Albert Marr and James Clark managed things in slick style.

man against machine will be a standoff. I mean, machines may be able to replace us honest workers but as soon not think about it, I don't think they'll ever be the equal of a good crook.

Washington ★ Window ★

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—There is a threat of war in the fall-out from the summit explosion in Paris. There also is a factor of comfort for the American people and their allies.

The factor of comfort is this: If the U.S. airplane U2 could and frequently did fly far into the interior of the Soviet Union, then the B52 bombers of the U.S. Strategic Air Command surely can do so. The United States has about as developed so many conflicting planes?

claims that the taxpayers who pay the bills do not know what or whom to believe.
The Soviet citizens must be wondering. Their own premier has proved to them and to the world that a U.S. airplane has overflown Soviet territory from time to time and, on the last flight, was some 1,200 miles inside the U.S.S.R. before it was brought down.

How it was brought down is a matter of dispute. But there is no dispute about the fact of deep and repeated high flying penetration of Soviet defenses.

So, this question arises: Will Khrushchev force the issue of peace or war before he has established satisfactory Soviet national defense against an invasion and nuclear attack by SAC airplanes? In mid-week it seemed likely that Khrushchev would hurry from Paris to Berlin and there sign with East Germany a peace treaty. Immediate signature thereafter seemed less likely by the hour.

When and if he signs, the question of peace or war should not be long unanswered. The United States and the West must decide then and quickly whether to appease communism or to confront it.

An airlift sufficed in 1948. The other way would be the hard way, overland with tanks and trucks. The West cannot choose that way unless what the U2 seemed to prove is a fact—that SAC can penetrate the Soviet defenses with knockout blow.
