Sport-Lines

BY TOM BEASLEY

Both Lubbock and Big Spring are all heated up over the battle at Fair Park field Friday night. The tickets, we understand, are tugging off fast at six-bits a throw. Just how many of the local fans will cheer the Steers on in the game is not known at the present time, but quite a number are expected to be in the stands when the whistle blows.

Father McLean made things very confusing for this department and some of the school officials by arranging a district executive committee meeting in San Angelo Saturday morning. Bristow, Gentry, "Tiny" Reed and maybe Supl. Blankenship will attend the party. The school heads feel it imperative that Big Spring be represented at the meeting to attend to an important "deal," and some arrangements will probably be made for a caretaker to keep the Bovines herded together at Lubbock.

Since this year marks the first time sports writers have been permitted to attend the district meetings, we were very anxious to listen in, but will probably be in the Lubbock stands unable to return to time. However, we are consoled by knowing that loud moaned Cross fellow will broadcast the results.

Coach Chapman seems to feel that Bristow's benchmen will attempt to pull some tricks on the Westerners Friday night. The odds seem to favor the Chapman lads at the present time but just the same we feel there may be a surprise in store.

The San Angelo high school football team catches its first real test Saturday afternoon on the Concho field with Brownwood serving as the opposition. The Cats have looked pretty ragged in their preliminary exercises, but of recent days have shown surprising improvement and are expected to find their opponents easy pickins.

Gene Taylor, the Brownwood monster, is said to be close lipped about his prospects, but has told Harry his contingent looks better than he had expected it to.

More and more it begins to appear Sweetwater again is the big favorite in the district 3 gonfalon chase. Ed Hennig has practically a veteran forward wall and a backfield of experience and power despite the loss of the phantom-footed Red Sheridan and the sturdy blocking back, Sam Baugh. Big Spring can hardly make the grade this year, San Angelo isn't likely to, and McCamey and Colorado aren't worth considering.

Coach Ed Hennig keeps prunning his Sweetwater machine for its first clash of the season with the powerful Abilene Eagles on Friday afternoon. Old Man Football really makes his appearance in the Southwest in a big way this coming week-end. True, the first games are little more than warm-ups, yet they're important in that fans get their opportunity to see just what they wonder will flash across sport pages this season.

With the exception, possibly, of one or two positions, the 1933 Mustang line is probably the strongest to ever represent the Maroon. The Pones however, will face a typical Elephant line when they journey to Abilene for the opening game. Abilene, always noted for its "big" teams, this year are Elephants more than ever. The forward wall is said to average 200 pounds, and faster than one would suspect. What the lighter Mustangs will be able to do against such a lot of heavyweights remains to be seen. Fans will do well to follow the game and get a good line on the Pones.

Leonard Hill and his despicable flock of Badgers stuck by their guns when several writers wished them out of Class A football and are now priming for the race.

Four lettermen are said to return, Bud Reed and Garth Poteit in the backfield and Lloyd Byrd and Olin Green in the line. The club is said to be a fiery bunch.

Ben Daniels, the old maestro, gives his five or six dozen Devils a few pointers on the game each afternoon to keep the Steer coaches from being caught flat in the future as they have this year. A full schedule of games will be arranged for the boys.

DEATH OF A PRE-WAR DIPLOMAT

Viscount Grey of Fallodon, dead at 71, won a place in history which will certainly be secure but which is not entirely enviable. It was Grey who, as foreign secretary in 1914, took England into the war; and as the English ever since 1918 have been nourishing a slow suspicion that the war caused practically all of their troubles, it is not surprising that this veteran diplomat suffered a kind of eclipse in his last years.

For Grey will stand for a long time as an epitome of the kind of diplomacy that was so common before the war—the kind that thrived on secret agreements, secret understandings and the jargon of what H. G. Wells has called the "great power game."

Prior to 1914 the average Englishman calmly assumed that England could not be embroiled in any European war unless the people of England as a whole wished to be embroiled. It was Viscount Grey, as much as anyone, who had to dispel this illusion.

Like practically every other chancellor in Europe, the English foreign office saw that war coming long before it actually arrived. It is possible that the ease with which all the diplomats saw it approach was one of the reasons why it finally came. But at any rate the British foreign office, having visioned certain agreements with the French foreign office concerning united action against Germany.

Thus when the storm clouds finally broke, the people of England did not have a free hand. Their diplomats had committed them in advance. When Grey laid the whole situation before Parliament, there was only one answer that could be made. To all intents and purposes, it was impossible for England to remain neutral. The invasion of Belgium rallied Englishmen to the standard, but the die had already been cast.

Now to recount all of this is not to condemn Viscount Grey. He was an able, sincere and patriotic man. There is no doubt that he actually wanted peace. He did his best according to his lights, and it was hardly his fault if his lights were wrong.

It is in the kind of diplomacy he represented that needs condemnation. The World War was a product of that diplomacy; and a world which is still suffering from the war can hardly be blamed for concluding that diplomacy was an expensive sort of luxury.

PREPARING FOR LIQUOR

It is encouraging to notice that a number of states are beginning to study the kind of liquor control laws that will be open for adoption if and when the federal prohibition law is finally repealed.

A number of commissions have been appointed to collect evidence. Some of them have sent delegations to the Canadian provinces to see how the different varieties of liquor control work out north of the border. At the same time, dispatches from Washington indicate that the federal government is to collect information on the matter.

It is not a bit too early to start this work. Unless all signs fall the prohibition law has only a short time to live. The whole problem will then be turned back to the states, and it is essential that the states have the information which will enable them to make an intelligent choice of their course thereafter.

Giants Cinch National League Pennant, But Lose To Cards

Phillies' Loss In Second Game Of Double-Header Wipes Out Last Chance For New York To Lose

ST. LOUIS—The New York Giants backed rather ingloriously into pennantland Tuesday, clinching first place in the National League for the season and at the same time taking a 12 to 3 beating from the Cardinals in the final game of their western tour.

The Phillies did the actual clinching for the new champions by beating Pittsburgh in the second game of a doubleheader and wiping out the Pirates' last chance of overtaking the Giants. This news was posted on the scoreboard when the Giants were at bat in the second inning after the Cards had pounded Hal Schumacher for a 4-0 lead in the first. From then on the Giants took it easy.

Manager Bill Terry immediately called in a new battery, Glenn Spencer and Paul Richards, and at the finish John "Blondy" Ryan, the shortstop, was the only regular on the field. There was no available substitute for him.

The Cards swung freely against Spencer and Watson Clark, who relieved him in the sixth, piling up a total of 17 hits off the three fingers.

PITTSBURGH—The Pirates ended their 1933 National League pennant chase Tuesday when they fell before the tantalizing slants of Phil Collins in the second game of a doubleheader with the seventh place Phillies, 3 to 2.

Their ace hurler, Larry French, had won his 18th victory in the opener, 2 to 1, leaving the Bucs a mathematical chance to win the flag if they took every remaining game while the Giants were losing all.

Singles by Bartell, Klein and Davis and a booming double by Schulerich off Hal Smith scored two Quaker runs in the eighth frame of the night cap and clinched the game—and the pennant for New York.

BEWARE!...

of the scheme on foot to impose an additional and needless Tax Burden upon the People of Texas during the Special Session of the Legislature!

Such an imposition as a sales or consumers' tax will spell disaster for the home owner, farmer, salaried employee and wage earner at this time of rapidly rising prices!

THE home owners of Texas, together with the farmers, salaried employes and wage earners, should awaken to a realization of the scheme that is on foot to impose an additional and unneeded tax burden upon them. Such an imposition as a sales, or consumers' tax, would be particularly unfortunate at this time of rising prices, since salaries and wages always trail far behind the cost of living in a rise to higher levels. The cost of living has already increased in many instances, from 20 to 30 per cent. The ease of wage increases are in much smaller proportion. This means that the most difficult and trying time for numerous families will be the next two years, in trying to expand small incomes to meet rapidly rising costs of living.

The Sales or Consumers' Tax could only intensify these difficulties by further increasing living costs. The fact that a man's working hours are shortened does not mean that it will take any less to support his family. To call such a tax a relief measure is a travesty on justice and about the cruellest joke that could be perpetrated on the common man.

The Sales Tax agitation in Texas is a part and parcel of a nation-wide scheme to make the common people bear the chief blunt of taxation. It is led by certain influential interests, such as a prominent newspaper man, with his powerful chain of newspapers, and who owns millions of acres of land and other properties. His avowed intention is to destroy the income tax and replace it with a consumers' tax upon the masses. This was brought out in hearings last year before the revenue division of the Ways and Means Committee in Congress.

Certain powerful and financial interests in New York are also behind the plan. This stupid mistake that wealth is making today is but a repetition of numerous and similar historic tragedies in the past. Those who think they are writing a new chapter in taxation, are in reality lifting one of the most sordid pages from history for example and precedent; one that is most rife with class struggle and class interest, with the inevitable repercussion in the end. The most plutocratic systems invariably resort to it. It violates the soundest tenets of democracy and for this reason every Democratic leader from Jefferson to Roosevelt opposed it.

State Finances Improving

These efforts to avoid an income tax in Texas are in fact misguided, as Texas is in need of no major revenue measures at this time. The State's fiscal system will show much improvement next year after the program of reduced expenditures begins September 1, as provided in the appropriations. The public school fund, for example, as shown by the comptroller's estimates of July 30th to the Board of Education, shows an actual income of over $18 per scholastic for next year. These estimates were based on the low incomes of the last 12 months, and do not take into consideration the likely increases from improved business conditions. Neither do they include the beer tax, nor the collections from the large delinquencies now outstanding.

In fact the present prospects indicate a possible income of $19 or $20 per scholastic for the schools next year. This is to be compared with the propaganda of $7 or $8 with which the State was flooded during the last Legislature and which many of us worked continuously to counteract.

Condition of General Fund

Although the General Fund does not show so good a condition, it has been similarly exaggerated. According to the same estimates of the Comptroller, its deficit, plus all unpaid accounts, will be $9,844,755.51 at the end of the present fiscal year, August 31. This is due to the fact that the deficits have been accumulating for several years, and also to the fact that the last Legislature voted large and long accumulated claims, aggregating over $3,000,000 which are now represented in unpaid accounts.

But the important fact about the report is that it shows the revenues for next year to be $1,175,244.42 more than enough to pay the State's operating expenses for that year. In other words, the only problem confronting us is to pay the accumulated deficit now outstanding. Nor does this report, it may be added, take into account any improvement in business conditions, nor the beer tax, nor the possibility of collecting several millions in delinquent taxes. It is perfectly possible that next year's revenues to this fund will not only sustain the State, but wipe out nearly one-half of the deficit in one year.

The Question of Destitute Relief

The only remaining question is that of State funds to supplement local and Federal funds for the relief of the destitute.

Concerning the bond issue, it should not be necessary to issue more than one-half of them at this time. Some two million dollars annually should be necessary to care for interest and maturities. A few minor tax levies, of which there are several possibilities, would be ample for this. A part of the beer tax might even be diverted for that purpose. There is certainly no need for a 20 or 30 million dollar levy. The people should not confuse the question of destitute relief with the grant for the public work program. The latter comes from the Federal government, is secured by the local projects and requires no State funds of any sort. Any attempt to hitch sales tax on to industrial recovery is gravely misleading and pure political trickery. In fact, as a burden on the purchasing power of the consumer, it is the opposite of recovery and should be avoided.

The State Ad Valorem Tax

The people should particularly be on guard against the proposals to substitute a consumers' tax for the present State property tax. The cruellest joke in every tax measure is always the promise that it will only take the place of some other tax. There are a few facts to keep clearly in mind about the whole matter of tax substitution. If it is substituted, the corporations, which are now paying about one-half of all State property taxes, and many of which will be exempt from the sales tax, will thereby shift several million dollars of their present taxes to the backs of the toiling masses. Some of these corporations are largely owned by out-of-state interests that would avoid a sales tax entirely.

Under the present plan the average home owner is exempt from State taxes. It reduces itself to an issue of exempting corporations instead, and put the burden back on the home owners by taxing his family budget. The home owner should remember that the burden upon him is the local property tax, and the state cannot change this in any way. To offer a consumers' tax to relieve the home owner should be an insult to his intelligence and common sense.

Draw your own honest conclusions! But, Be Warned! A Sales or Consumers' Tax will fall with disastrous consequences upon the home owner, farmer, salaried employee and wage earner, while the "special interests" will escape it entirely!

For The Love of Eve by Lucy Walling

CHAPTER XII

It was Thursday two weeks before Christmas. As he sat down at the breakfast table, Dick asked, "Eve, do you think you could get away from the office Saturday morning? I'd like to make a little trip."

"Oh, I'd love it!" she said. "But how could I get away so near to Christmas? Think of all the evenings lately I've had to bring home from the store."

"All right, remind your chief of that? You aren't paid for overtime. What's fair one way is fair another. I've outlined a little trip—" He produced a road map and with a pencil indicated the route.

"We'll go down state through some towns you've never seen. The scenery especially attractive along the river. See, we'll cut off here into the hills—"

"Oh, Dick, it would be such fun!" Eve responded. "I'll see what I can do about getting off."

"I'd like to leave at 10 o'clock Saturday morning," Dick reminded her as he left the house.

But Saturday Eve had to attend to several tasks at the office. Dick drove her down town and left her while he went to his own job to make sure everything was satisfactory before leaving town. At 10 o'clock he drove up to the side entrance at Bixby's. At a quarter of 11 a flushed and nervous Eve emerged from the revolving doors and took her place at his side.

"Dick, I was so upset at keeping you waiting," she began, breathlessly. "Barnes was decent about letting me go. I had it all arranged, you know. Then—of all things!—Mr. Bixby called us all to his office. He bawled us out terribly for that mistake in Friday night's ad. Of course it was Mona Allen's fault but a lot of good it would do to tell Mr. Bixby that! It's results that count. And the store will have to take a big loss. You should see the mob of customers in that department this morning. Barnes and I both feel sick over it. I'm trembling so inside I can scarcely breathe."

"And yet you're determined to go?" Dick said. "I won't tell you when to quit. It's up to you. But I want to remind you that no job is worth as much as your health. I don't care about how sick Barnes is! I'm not going to stand by without protesting while my wife becomes a nervous wreck!"

"Well, anyway I shouldn't have left when I did this morning," Eve went on. "Suppose Mr. Bixby sends for me again during the day and Barnes has to tell him I've gone to spend the week-end in the country?"

"He'll probably ask for your resignation," Dick replied cheerfully.

"They rode in silence out Broadway and then turned south. Eve shuddered as they passed the gray stone walls of the state hospital. Many an inmate there, she knew, might have been saved if he had stopped the nervous strain in time. Chan often told her she did not help her create a more universal interest in Bixby's advertising.

"Dick, I'm getting a lot out of this trip," she said enthusiastically. "Sure, does you good to get away from the smoke of your own chimney," he commented.

The ground rolled gently in an easterly direction until they neared the river where they found the hills steep and a trace of snow left from a recent storm. They passed miners' huts and tenements. Eve was shocked by the stark poverty of those ugly dwellings. The slight brought from Dick a lengthy discourse on the subject of injustice.

"They turned inland at sunset and just as twilight fell Dick drove over the brow of a hill. A heterogeneous array of roofs lay before them. It seemed to Eve as though the roofs lifted and suddenly with jacking-box quickness, Tamkinville peeped out at them—dingy, desolate looking. Eve noted with contempt the many old buildings with false fronts to make them look a story higher. Heavens, had they come all this way just to visit an uninteresting place like this? What possible interest did Dick think she might have here? Eve was furious.

Laska, Defense Attorney In Urschel Case, Says He Is Kidnap Specialist

OKLAHOMA CITY, (UP)—Ben B. Laska, he of the fluttering hands, the pine-need and the violent green shirt, isn't overlooking any beats in the trial of the accused kidnapers of Charles F. Urschel.

The diminutive Denver attorney prides himself that the rising kidnap racket has not found him blind to its opportunities for the defense lawyer.

He says he is a kidnap specialist. Witness his activities as attorney for the defense in the Beecher kidnap case at Denver, the Bohm kidnap case at Minneapolis, and the Hamm kidnaping. Now he rapidly is assuming leadership in the defense of the Urschel kidnap suspects.

Laska seem to explode when he learned that Joseph B. Keenan, assistant attorney general, had threatened to prosecute any defense lawyers who takes ransom money as a fee.

"Can you imagine anyone making a statement like that?" he asked.

with you, want he?" Eve asked Dick so rarely talked about himself that she was interested.

"Well, Dad was a smart man," laughed Dick, "and he never took orders from anyone under the age of 10."

Eve settled down and pulled the laprobe more firmly about her. "Warm enough, sweetheart?" Dick asked.

She assured him that she was. They had left the city far behind now and were riding over flat farm country—hard, brown and barren looking in the December cold. There was little life to be seen around the houses.

"I pity the people who have to live in this neighborhood," Eve said. "They miss so much."

"Well, don't pity them," Dick told her. "Pity the children who grow up without knowing the woods or a country swimming hole or owning a flock of pets ranging from a baby cat down to a litter of live Ewe's lambs. There are actually kids who never have seen an oriole nest except in a picture in a book. There are lots of them who never have the chance to roam over hills and along creeks exploring. They are the ones to be sorry for!"

They stopped for luncheon in one of the pottery manufacturing towns Eve enjoyed watching the ceramic workers file in for their noon day meal. She had always felt a certain compassion for girls who worked in factories. She saw now that, instead of appearing unhappy, these girls and young men represented a group busy with their own interests. They were having a good time and Eve was amazed to see also that many of the girls' costumes bore the earmarks of the latest fashions. She made a mental note to keep them in mind in the future when she was writing advertising copy. It would help her create a more universal interest in Bixby's advertising.

"Dick, I'm getting a lot out of this trip," she said enthusiastically. "Sure, does you good to get away from the smoke of your own chimney," he commented.

McCamey Squad In Training For District Three Campaign

Four Letter Men Return; Hill In Charge This Year; Boys Are Husky But Inexperienced

MCCAMEY — Forty very enthusiastic candidates for the 1933 edition of the McCamey high school football team have been working out each afternoon for the past week under the direction of Coaches Hill, Hayhurst and Bardin, and the prospects for the season look a little brighter than they did at the close of the last season, although the squad has displayed none of the characteristics of a winning football team as yet.

Only four last year letter men, Bud Reed, Lloyd Byrd, Garth Poteet and Olin Green, return this year and the squad is made up of green material, many of whom have never tried the pickin game before. Many of the candidates have added considerable weight during the summer months, and it appears as though the squad will be husky again this season.

Gone are the veterans and stars of last year's aggregation such as the famous Barnett brothers, Homer and Lee, Frog Word, Lawrence Smalley, L. B. Davis, Jasper

Ray, Dick Johns and Frank Perry, and the candidates for this year's team are starting out on an equal basis, since none of the positions are cinched. The hardest fighters will make the club, and from the amount of hustle displayed in this week's practice, each of the boys is desirous of making the grade.

Some of the more promising back field men of the group are L. K. Trodgen, J. L. Middleton, Leon Belcher, Walter Knight, Mabry Hanning, Bobbie Plato, George Thaxton, Gaylon Harding, Douglas Solberry, J. D. Bearden and C. C. Baird, and the most likely candidates for the line positions are Bill Kendall, Lee Burnham, Jack Zeaffor, Dick Garrison, Eugene Nichols, Ivey Wilkenson, Johnnie Maxwell, Milton Johnson, Bull Ray, W. H. Seale and Roy Gunella.

Of the letter men Bud Reed and Garth Poteet are backfield men and Lloyd Byrd and Olin Green are linemen.

Leonard Hill, last year's assistant coach, is at the helm as head coach this season, replacing Clyde Park, who is coaching at Fort Stockton this year. Marlin Hayhurst, assistant coach, comes here for his first season after turning out a district class B championship team at Brownfield last year. He is a former Texas Tech backfield star. Jim Bardin, the second assistant coach, is a former Sul Ross stellar lineman and this is his first year at McCamey high school.

Hill will divide his time between the line and backfield. Hayhurst will have charge of the backs and Bardin is to coach the line.

The coaches are working hard, and the players, who constitute the largest squad ever to turn out for a football team here, are showing plenty of hustle, and it may be that a team capable of mixing it with the other schools of the district will be developed during this month, but the chances of a winning team are again not very promising.

Many Good Men Stay On

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Big shots in public life come and go fairly rapidly. Six months ago not one out of a thousand persons could have told you who General Johnson was. And right now who can recall the name of the cabinet member who managed Herbert Hoover's pre-convention campaign a year ago last spring?

But less conspicuous public servants, not sharing the brief spotlight, work on for years regardless of political turnovers. Last week two men who had served more than forty years in the government died within 36 hours of each other. George R. Wales, a member of the Civil Service Com-

Alfalfa Bill

The Administration had to step into a state political situation the other day. Word came up from Oklahoma that Governor "Alfalfa Bill" Murray in person was distributing every cent of money the State got from the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. Senator Gore brought the word and was pretty not about it. The rub came because Murray was distributing this life-saving money by checks bearing the inscription "William Murray Relief Fund."

Alfalfa Bill hasn't said so yet but Gore has a hunch the Governor is going to try to cop off his seat in the U. S. Senate.

Making people think a candidate for office is disbursing hundreds of thousands of dollars in relief from his own funds ought to help a lot.

Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins quietly advised Governor Bill to lay off that "William Murray Relief Fund" business.

An American in London was recently offered a hundred cases at half the wholesale price, delivered by motor truck in London.

It's an odds on bet the bootleggers will do long penal servitude.

Geological History Of Texas Compiled

AUSTIN (UP)—Studies of geological Texas, which date back at least 400 years to a crude map purporting to show some of the physical features of what is now Texas, have culminated in a 1,007-page volume prepared by Dr. E. H. Sellards and two assistants.

Studies of Texas geography and geology began as early as 1520 when Pineda coasted from Florida to Vera Cruz and back again, and mapped the Gulf Coast. More than a decade later, Cabeza De Vaca, who was shipwrecked near Galveston, journeyed across South Texas and into Mexico, making notations of the terrain as he traveled.

Ability Of Few Players TCU Problems

Horned Frogs' Success Depends Upon Line And Fresh Material

By W. Winston Copeland United Press Staff Correspondent FORT WORTH (UP)—The success of Texas Christian University's football team this year appears to depend on its line and how well young players hold up under severe fire.

The performance of several newcomers in the victory last Friday over Austin college heightened the Frogs' outlook for retaining the Southwest conference crown and brought smiles to Coach Francis Schmidt.

Schmidt, however, is not holding out any false hopes. He realizes this year's squad so far does not measure up to last year's champions. Particularly pleasing to Schmidt is the accurate passing of left-handed Dan Harston of Dallas. Harston is considered the "find" of the year and may push the veteran Johnny Kitchen out of the full-back job unless Coach Schmidt finds a place for both of them.

The aerial attack used in the first game, is taken as an indication Schmidt will resort to an open game this year. Most of his backs are light and fast, offering promise of a powerful broken field game.

Jack Wallace, Texarkana, Charles Casper, San Antonio, and J. Coleman, Waco, all veterans, are light and speedy backs. Once in the open either of the three are dangerous ball carriers. An efficient short passer designed to enable his speed merchants to get through the first line defense is one of the angles on which Schmidt is expected to concentrate.

Kitchen, a good passer and a capable plunger, with several inexperienced but capable men make up the rest of the backfield material.

With two star ends, Captain Jack Graves of Beaumont, and Jack Langdon of Cleburne, as regulars, and W. Myers of Jacksboro, with two varsity letters to his credit, and J. Jacks, Fort Worth, an experienced man, as substitutes, that department seems qualified to give a good account.

Subsequently Schmidt is expected to give much attention to the line.

In the one-sided game with Austin college the line play was ragged with the opponents breaking through repeatedly to smear ball carriers.

Cy Perkins of Olney, is a veteran and strengthens one side of the line at tackle. At the other tackle there are several promising candidates—but none with very much experience. Of these R. Allison, Dallas, is the most experienced. He has yet to make a letter. His chief competition is from three new men, Willis Cannon, Fort Worth, Judy Truelson, Dallas, and M. Godwin, Hot Springs, Ark., each weighing around 220 pounds.

Two letterman guards, L. Bassinger of Fort Worth, and Bud Taylor, of Austin, got first call against Austin college. Each weighs around 180. P. Hill, 220-pounder from Pampa, is a promising heavyweight for a guard post.

If the tackle problem is quickly solved, Schmidt may be able to shift one of the heavier tackle candidates to a guard post.

Darrel Lester, a 200-pound Sophomore from Jacksboro, looks like the best bet for center, although Heard Floore, a Fort Worth player with the squad last year, is a strong contender. Both lack polish and need experience.

With his first conference game set for October 7 against Arkansas university, Schmidt will have much time to experiment with his men.

His first two games of the conference schedule are against Arkansas and Texas A. & M., rated as the best teams in the conference. These games will be the real tests of his 1933 team, Schmidt believes.

Potter County Wet But Part Of City In It Still Dry

AMARILLO, (UP)—Although every precinct in Potter county voted to legalize sale of 3.3 beer in the recent plebiscite the paradoxical fact remains that a portion of Amarillo, county seat, will continue dry. The explanation for this seeming inconsistency lies in the fact that the portion of the city extending south of 29th avenue is in Randall county, which voted dry. All the other Amarillo precincts voted 2 to 1 for beer with the exception of one, in which no local option election was held, it having never voted dry. Incongruously enough El Taos, Amarillo's most celebrated night club, and other amusement centers are situated in the part of the city which lies in dry Randall county. Amarillo by its vote for beer became the only college town in the Panhandle in which sale of 3.3 beer will be permitted. Canyon, home of West Texas State Teachers College, and Plainview site of Wayland Baptist college, voted strongly against beer. The vote was closer at Lubbock, where Texas Technological college is situated and at Clarendon, home of Clarendon junior college.

Since that time he has worked indefatigably on the range history, social history, and folk-lore of Texas and the Southwest. Three times he has been on leaves of absence from the University to do research work—once under the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Foundation for Research in the Social Sciences; again independently while his wife Bertha McKee Dobie taught in the University; and lately as a John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation fellow in Mexico.

When he gives his well-known course in "Life and Literature of the Southwest," admittance to the class is at a premium. His teaching there reflects the background of his subject and of his nature. He teaches matter about which he has learned through actual contact as well as through books.

His home is a fitting background for his personality. It is set in a suburb where his house is framed in a grove of trees and where there is actually a creek in his back yard. His wife is herself not unknown as a writer of garden lore, and has a garden which substantiates the authenticity of her written advice.

Mr. Dobie's treasures overflow the house and spill out the back steps to the yard, where, under the enormous elm trees, are found stone relics of his finds—an old stone well-curb, and numerous metates, primitive Indian mortars and pestles. On the wall of his front hall hangs a hatrack made in the shape of the Lone Star, with its seven hooks made of seven pointed deer hooves.

To either side of a rear door, he has placed a mounted deer head, the large one because it is so large, the other one, he says, "because it is so small." There is a rug in the living room made of a javelina or wild boar's hide. The mantle of the fireplace in the sitting room, which opens out of the hall, is crowded with souvenirs of his trips. About the walls are paintings and drawings of the places he has visited. Some of which are the original drawings sent him by artists who have illustrated his books and the many stories he has written of the West. Beneath them are bookcases, which together with tall shelves in the upstairs hall and those in his study, hold his collection of Southwest literature.

James Frank Dobie was born on a ranch in Live Oak County, Texas, the eldest of a family of six. There, as a boy, he rode the range, and says he doesn't remember when he first learned to ride. At 15 years of age he helped fight a stampede of cattle. His mother was a teacher and gave him his first lessons; later the children had a governess, and after that, he went to the neighboring school. The family library was the largest in the community, a factor which doubtless contributed to his early love of literature.

When he reached high school age, he went to Alice, Texas, to school, and at last to Southwestern University at Georgetown for his college training. Here he indulged his literary talents through the medium of university publications. In 1910, he received his bachelor of arts degree. The following summer was spent reporting criminal and morgue cases, and fire and other news events for the San Antonio Express.

Before going to Columbia University where he received his master of arts degree, Dobie spent two years teaching in secondary schools in Alpine, Texas. He taught English and was secretary to the president of Southwestern University. His master of arts degree was conferred upon him in 1914. The next fall he came to Austin as an instructor in English in The University of Texas.

His teaching career was interrupted when he joined the United States forces for the World War, and was made a first lieutenant of the Field Artillery, reaching France shortly before the Armistice was signed. Returning to Texas, Dobie taught another year in The University of Texas and then became manager of an uncle's ranch, Los Olmos, on the Elms, situated south of the Nueces River. It lay in three counties and had 10,000 head of cattle on its range. Under his charge were from eight to thirty Mexican hands, he being the only white man on the place.

While here he made the discovery that in the legends of the Southwest lay a fertile mine of material for exploration. Upon returning to The University of Texas once more, he became secretary and editor of the Texas Folk-Lore Society—a position he has held continuously for twelve years. In 1923 he became head of the English department of Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College, and built up the folk-lore society of that state. Two years later he returned to the University as adjunct professor of English, and, the following year was made associate

Ed Hussion, Houston printing establishment proprietor, is the "big man" of the present state administration. He represented Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson in Washington conferences with administration leaders. He is secretary of the state democratic executive committee and is a member of the Texas rehabilitation and relief commission. With associations, he has the Houston territory permit for a licensed race track. He and associates also have one of the three boxing and wrestling promotions for Houston. His printing firm has the contract for the state cigar stamp. All of which shows Hussion is a hustler.

Prominence is not gone to Hussion's head. He is an affable, cheerful, smiling little man, who will offer you a lift in his 16-cylinder automobile and genuinely want you to ride with him.

Hussion's appointment on the rehabilitation and relief commission did not come from Governor Ferguson. Her appointees are Harry Tom King of Abilene, W. E. Pope of Corpus Christi and T. A. Low of Brenham.

Why some one has not shortened the Texas rehabilitation and relief commission to RRC is surprising. Generally it is referred to as the relief commission. Frequently it is incorrectly called Texas relief and rehabilitation commission. Though relief comes first in its work and rehabilitation second, the order is reversed in the official name.

The famous law firm of Hogg & Robertson, of which former governor James Stephen Hogg was a member, is not forgotten here. The law library of Moody & Robertson, Austin law firm, contains many of the books once in the possession of Hogg & Robertson.

Former governor Dan Moody is a member of the firm. J. B. Robertson, who recently came to Austin from San Antonio, is associated with Moody. Robertson is a descendant of Hogg's partner. When Moody left the governor's office to resume law practice he bought the Hogg & Robertson library. He and his partner are cousins.

Speaker Coke Stevenson still enjoys his "wise cracks." He established a reputation at the regular session of the 43rd legislature for witlessness. At the opening of the special session he was overrun with applicants for jobs on the house staff of employees. "After great difficulty, I have succeeded in finding enough people to take the house jobs," the speaker gravely announced to the house as the opening session ended.

The speaker's political intentions still remain in doubt. He may run for governor, congress or attorney general. He has been urged for all these places.

Recently it has been announced the administration would support C. C. McDonald of Wichita Falls for governor. McDonald smiles broadly when queried about it but remains silent.

McDonald and Stevenson had a chat at the opening of the session. It was not about the governor's race. McDonald was recommending an applicant for a house position.

The house of representatives' request that bills affecting the state anti-trust act be referred to its judiciary committee was really a test of strength between those advocating greater freedom for corporations and those who are reluctant to throw off restrictions.

Rep. T. H. McGreggor, one of the Governor's recent ambassadors to Washington, fought to have the bills sent to the state affairs committee. The liberals backed him. Rep. Weaver Moore was joined in his fight to have the judiciary committee get the bills by those who are unwilling to let any suspension affect litigation already pending.
