Thousands Jam Pampa For Parade

Float, Other Winners Named

The streets of Pampa were lined with people yesterday afternoon for the big street parade which kicked off the 16th annual Top O' Texas Rodeo and Quarter Horse Show.

Leading the parade behind the traditional police escort, were parade marshal, Bill Tidwell, and Harley Gray and Doug Carver carrying the American and Texas flags. Close behind was the lead band, the Amarillo Air Force Base Band.

E. O. Wedgeworth, manager of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, was moderator for the parade and introduced each group as it marched down main street.

Other bands in the parade were the Pampa High School Swing Kings and the Miller Brothers' Dance Band of Wichita Falls.

Several area riding clubs rode in the parade. Winners in the riding club division were the Shamrock Sheriff's Posse, the Elk City Riding Club, Randall County Riding Club of Canyon, and the White Deer Riding Club.

Prize for the most attractive commercial entry went to the Santa Fe's miniature train. Second place was awarded to Borden's Dairy and third to Richardson's Body Shop.

Most typical ranch entry was the Canadian Wagon Train which (See THOUSANDS, Page 3)

Ike To Return To Capital

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI)—President Eisenhower decided today to wind up his vacation and return to Washington Sunday.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerly said it was a reasonable assumption that the President would remain in Washington for the duration of the reconvening session of Congress.

The Senate starts its session Monday. The House returns Aug. 15. Their deliberations are expected to continue for several weeks.

With six days out for a side trip to Chicago and Denver, the President has been combining golf and work here since July 7.

For their last few days at this swank summer resort the President and Mrs. Eisenhower will have as their guests Mrs. Barbara Eisenhower, wife of their son John, and the younger Eisenhowers' four children.

Would Be Taken As Act Of Aggression

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Katanga Prime Minister Moise Tshombe announced the general mobilization of the Katanga armed forces today, shortly after he announced that United Nations units would have to "fight their way" if they enter his Congo province this week.

Tshombe's defiant moves, followed an announcement that U.N. troops would be sent into mineral-rich Katanga by the end of the week. His own troop strength is unknown.

Katanga has announced its secession from the rest of the Congo and wants to be recognized as a separate nation. Belgian troops have been there at the invitation of Tshombe to preserve order. He has declared repeatedly that he does not want U.N. forces to intervene.

He repeated his ultimatum that "I don't want U.N. troops in my country" this morning after a dramatic cabinet meeting in the Katanga capital city of Elisabethville. He said any such entry would be an "act of aggression."

"I will oppose the arrival of U.N. forces on Katanga soil by force if necessary," Tshombe said. "We have decreed the general mobilization of the armed forces."

Immediately afterward, Interim Minister Antoine Munongo said the order for mobilization already had gone "to the armed forces."

"In expressing his determination to oppose U.N. entry with force, Tshombe said it would make no difference whether the troops were African or European.

"My troops will not shoot first but if the U.N. lands in the Katanga I will regard this as an act of aggression," he said.

Tshombe refused to elaborate on how the U.N. troops would have to fight their way into the mineral-rich province if Katanga forces did not fire the first shot.

He also refused to reveal what troops he would put against the U.N. forces.

Although the Premier has claimed to have reorganized the Congolese army, observers believed (See RESIST, Page 3)

Senate Rules Changes Sought For Next Year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic Sen. Joseph S. Clark (Pa.) intends to push next week for a major overhaul of Senate rules designed to clear the way for another dramatic "hundred days" of legislation at the start of the next administration.

One of the key rules changes Clark planned to propose would virtually choke off filibusters, which have been used in the past to talk civil rights legislation to death. Southerners were certain to fight this change.

"If we are to have another 'hundred days' comparable to the productive opening of Franklin Roosevelt's first administration, the archaic rules of the Senate should be streamlined," Clark said Tuesday night in a news letter to his constituents.

He said he would propose eliminating the filibuster by limiting any debate to 15 hours and allowing one senator to hold the floor for only two hours during any debate.

"A small group of men should not be permitted to prevent a majority from acting on issues which have been fully and reasonably debated," he said in referring to the present rule of unlimited debate.

He said his proposals also would end "time-wasting" by requiring that all speeches be germane to the bill under consideration.

Clark said he would ask the Senate to speed committee action by authorizing a majority of members to call a committee meeting and by specifying that a majority vote of members could require a committee chairman to bring a pending measure to a vote.

Committee chairmen now generally enjoy absolute control over the timing of their committee meetings, Clark said, and an objection by a single senator can prevent a committee from meeting when the Senate is in session.

Clark's rules shake up also would improve Senate representation in differences between House and Senate bills.

Clark will push for a requirement that a majority of the Senate conferences be chosen from among those who agree with the majority view of the Senate. Members now often are appointed on the basis of seniority,

Debates Center On 'If'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It will take an act of Congress to set the stage for those Nixon-Kennedy television debates.

The three broadcast networks have offered time for the historic series of debates. But their offers carried a big "if." The condition was that Congress suspend the so-called "equal time" law for the 1960 presidential campaign.

This law provides that if a broadcaster allows any candidate to use his station, he must grant equal air time to all other candidates for the same office.

Under this law, if the TV networks staged a debate between Republican presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon and Democratic nominee John F. Kennedy, they would have to give time to all the splinter party candidates, too.

This could run into problems. In 1952, there were 18 parties which ran presidential candidates in one or more states. The Senate tackled the equal time problem earlier this year.

One approach favored by more than a score of senators was to pass a law requiring the networks to grant a specified amount of free time to the Republican and Democratic candidates. This ran into objections, however, particularly because of the compulsory feature.

The plan finally adopted by the Senate called for suspension of the equal time law for the presidential and vice presidential candidates until Election Day. Meanwhile, the Federal Communications Commission would study the matter and send Congress a special report by next March 1.

The Senate approved this bill by voice vote June 27 and sent it to the House.

Burglars Hit Three Times Tuesday Night

Burglars continued to prey on Pampa business firms last night as police investigated three separate jobs.

Two all-night, coin-operated laundries were burglarized and a service station was robbed.

Thieves broke into coin changer machines at the Hiland Speed Queen Laundry, 2000 N. Hobart, the Hunter Automatic Laundry, 916 N. Wilks, and took a cash box from the Ira Bettis Service Station, 225 W. Brown.

About $12 in small change was taken from the coin changer at the Hiland Speed Queen Laundry, according to an estimate by owner H. L. Kenner. The burglary was discovered by Lt. D. L. Day and Patrolman Charles Matson.

Patrolman Bill Robinson discovered the burglary at the Hunter Automatic Laundry while on routine patrol. However, he was unable to determine how much money had been taken.

Ira Bettis, owner of the service station, said he was unable to estimate how much money had been in his cash box which was taken.

Salty Animals Test Ability Of Cowboys

If last night's rodeo performance was to set the pattern for the four succeeding performances, the 16th Annual Top O' Texas Rodeo will be plenty salty.

"Wild and woolly" broncs and bulls tested the mettle of the three-state area's top working cowhands last night, with several near accidents.

Last night was the start of a three-day go-round which will end Thursday night. The second go-round will be Friday and Saturday nights. Winners in the events will be named after each go-round.

From the opening grand march to the final bulldogging event, the capacity crowd thoroughly enjoyed the top spectator event of the Top O' Texas.

The second rodeo performance will start at 8 p.m. today and will feature, bareback bronc riding, calf roping, Cowgirl Sponsor Event, cutting horse contest, bull riding, double muggin and saddle bronc riding.

Two special events will be featured each night — the "Gold Rush", featuring a mean braham bull with $100 tied to its neck and the "Calf Scramble."

The rodeo clowns, as usual will intersperse their serious business with novelty acts.

In the Gold Rush last night, not one of a dozen cowpokes was able to snatch the $100 bill attached to the neck of a braham bull. In the Calf Scramble, the winners were: Monroe Page, James Henderson and Kenneth McCasland, all of Wheeler County.

Nixon Campaign To Newest State

By WARREN DUFFEE United Press International

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon flew toward Hawaii today to press his presidential campaign in the land of the lei and the luau, with the tireless fervor of a local candidate running for constable.

Nixon and his wife Pat appeared chipper and smiling after only a few hours sleep following Tuesday's 21-hour campaigning day when they boarded a chartered plane for the nation's newest state.

Only about 10 persons showed up in the early morning hours to see Nixon off on his rigorous two-day campaigning tour in four of the far-flung islands.

They were due to arrive in Honolulu at 5:30 p.m. e.d.t. and start off on a full day's program after a big airport welcome.

In his first long day of campaigning Tuesday, Nixon hung the charge of "low road" campaigning on his Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy, and went on to say that Kennedy had "paid the price" for support of big labor leaders through the Democratic platform enacted in Los Angeles only three weeks ago.

Nixon said he was determined to campaign on "issues, not personalities" and said several times he would have nothing "derogatory" to say about his Democratic opponents.

But he hurled back indirectly every charge they had leveled so far.

Nixon's busy day Tuesday began with an early morning airport interview in Washington and included an eight-hour non-stop flight to Reno, Nev., where his wife, an Ely, Nev., native, was honored as a "welcome home Pat" airport celebration; an airport and press conference in Los Angeles and a mammoth rally Tuesday night in the football stadium of Whittier College, his alma mater in his hometown of Whittier, Calif.

Cuba Official Flees Country, Asks Asylum

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI)—Raul Chivas, Cuba's railroad commissioner and ex-treasurer of the Fidel Castro revolution, landed at Key West late Tuesday and asked for political asylum.

Chivas, a middle-aged former military academy professor, arrived, with his wife in a 17-foot boat. He was taken into custody by U. S. immigration authorities.

No immediate reason was given for Chivas' split from the Castro regime, but associates in Miami said he had been growing discontented with the Cuban government.

Maj. Pedro Diaz Lanz, former Cuban air force chief, said when he talked to Chivas last summer "he knew Fidel was a Communist then, but he said he would stick around for awhile."

Chivas fled Cuba during the reign of Fulgencio Batista and joined Raul Castro in raising funds for the revolution here and in New York.

After Castro's forces began fighting in the Sierra Maestras, Diaz Lanz flew here and took Chivas back to join Castro. Associates said Castro offered Chivas the prime minister's job after the revolution but he turned it down for the railroad post.

Lake McClellan Fast Becoming 'Watering Place' Of TOT Area

Some 2,361 persons visited Lake McClellan Sunday, according to a survey made by the forest rangers of the Panhandle National Grassland. Of this total, 1,376 were from Pampa. This is about one out of every 18 people residing in Pampa.

Next largest number came from Amarillo, 600, with 213 traveling from Borger. Cars from as far away as Missouri, Illinois and California were among the 355 vehicles checking through the survey points.

Some 121 boats also came through.

The purpose of the survey was to find out how many people use the area and what proportion come for fishing, boating, waterskiing, picnicking, camping or just a general outing.

A shore survey was made in the morning, and roadblocks were set up and manned through 8 p.m.

Director of the project was Sam Henry, assistant forest supervisor of the unit's Amarillo office. Helping was Ranger Bill Blamey of the Cheyenne, Okla., district of the Panhandle National Grassland.

Since taking over the area two years ago under an interagency transfer, the forest service (of the U. S. Department of Agriculture) has expended some $45,000 in improving and rehabilitating the 350-acre tree-lined lake.

Picnic tables have been added, unsatisfactory facilities cleaned up, restrooms built and efforts made to control erosion.

BIGGEST BUCKER — This crazy automobile was about the biggest attention grabber of yesterday's Top O' Texas Rodeo parade in downtown Pampa. The barrel on the back bucked the rider at least as much as a bronco. (Daily News Photo)

Public Interested In Political Platforms

Political Platforms The Civil Rights Issue

In the past few weeks the American people have heard and read a great deal more about the platforms of the two major political parties of this nation than probably any other previous time in our history. The reasons being: (1) the splendid nationwide television coverage of both the Democratic and the Republican Conventions; (2) the increasing interest of the American people in political affairs; and (3) the highly controversial issue of "civil rights," which served to focus the attention of the entire nation on the political platforms. The civil rights issue has in recent years been an explosive issue at Democratic conventions, but has been more or less run-of-the-mill at Republican counterparts. However, this year it was by far the most controversial issue at both conventions, and will unquestionably be a hotly debated issue in the coming election campaigns. The tremendous growth of the issue in recent years caused me to wonder why both parties had waited so long in the history of this country to worry about individual rights. I had always been taught that this country was founded for the protection of the rights of the individual and that those rights were guaranteed and protected by the provisions of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. I suspected that all of the recent oratory and loudly proclaimed efforts concerning the protection of the "civil rights" of the citizens of this country must have found its source in a desire on the part of certain political groups to try to obtain some bloc voting, by so-called minority groups.

Hence, I made it a point to do a little research on previous platforms of the two major parties. The findings were most interesting. Prior to 1932, there was very little reference directly or indirectly on the subject, so we will begin with the 1932 platforms. That was the year that the Democrats nominated Franklin Delano Roosevelt president and John N. Garner for vice president. The Democratic platform that year contained one sentence that could probably be construed as having to do with the civil rights issue. It was the last sentence in the platform and read as follows:

"Equal rights to all; special privileges to none."

The Republicans that year nominated Herbert Hoover for president and Charles Curtis for vice president, and their platform contained the following section on the subject:

"Negro For seventy years the Republican Party has been the friend of the American Negro. Vindication of the right of the Negro citizen to enjoy the full benefits of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness is traditional in the Republican Party and our party stands pledged to maintain equal opportunity and rights for our Negro citizens. We do not propose to depart from that tradition nor to alter the spirit or letter of that pledge."

In 1936 the Democrats again

lition of the poll tax as a requisite of voting.

In 1952 the Democrats nominated Adlai Stevenson for President and John Sparkman for Vice President. The platform that year contained a sub-section on civil rights which consisted of six short paragraphs.

The Republicans in 1952 nominated Dwight D. Eisenhower and Richard Nixon. Their platform contained a section of civil rights which consisted of six short paragraphs.

"Civil Liberties We shall continue to guard the freedom of speech, press, radio, religion, and assembly which our Constitution guarantees; with equal rights to all and special privileges to none."

The Republicans in 1956 nominated Alf Landon of Kansas and Frank Knox of Illinois. Their civil rights plank that year contained two short paragraphs under the heading "Bill of Rights," and was in the most general terms, plus two other paragraphs specifically referring to colored citizens.

In 1940 the Democrats again nominated Franklin Roosevelt and chose Henry A. Wallace to run for vice president. The platform contained a separate section under the heading "Negroes." It consisted of two short paragraphs reciting what the Democratic Party had done for the Negroes and pledged to uphold due process and the equal protection of the laws for every citizen regardless of race, creed, or color.

In 1940 nominees of the Republican Party were Wendell Wilkie of Indiana and Charles McNary of Oregon. The Republican platform also contained a separate section entitled "Negro," in which the party pledged a "square deal" in the economic and political life of the nation, and abhorred mob violence. This was all contained in one paragraph.

In 1944 the Democrats again nominated Franklin Roosevelt and named Harry Truman to run with him. The only reference in that year's platform to civil rights was a short paragraph in Section 7 asserting the belief that all citizens share the rights guaranteed by our Constitution and admonishing Congress to exert its full constitutional powers. This was all contained in two short sentences.

The Republicans that year nominated Thomas E. Dewey for president and John W. Bricker of Ohio for vice president. Their platform included a separate section with relation to civil rights. This section consisted of three short sentences, the last of which was as follows:

"We pledge the establishment by Federal legislation of a permanent Fair Employment Practices Commission."

In 1948 the Democrats nominated Harry Truman for president and Alben Barkley for vice president. The platform that year contained a short reference to civil rights documented in four points, which I quote:

- (1) the right of full and equal political participation
  - (2) the right to equal opportunity to employment,
  - (3) the right of security of person,
  - (4) the right of equal treatment in the service and defense of our nation."
- The Republicans in 1948 nominated Thomas E. Dewey and Earl Warren. They summed up their civil rights views in approximately one-half page consisting of four short paragraphs. One of these was a simple statement favoring the abo-

Casual Viewers Are Worry To TV Brass

EDITOR'S NOTE: During the absence of Fred Danzig on vacation, this column this week is being written by Steve Snider, columnist for the UPI Sports Department.

TELEVISION IN REVIEW By STEVE SNIDER United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—It's people like you and I—the nation's amateur television critics—who must drive 'em looney along TV row.

Professional critics, though they may not always agree with one another, generally are consistent in their individual thinking. But diagnosing or forecasting the likes and dislikes of us amateurs has to be an impossible job. We've got 'em vastly outnumbered both in population and variety of taste.

At our house, for instance, we watch all the "wrong" things. Culture takes a beating. Music—whether it's Perry, Dinah, Bing or Sinatra—comes in by radio or it doesn't get in at all. Only the top live sports telecasts get any play. (But a symphony musician who lives across the street is tearing out his long hair because there aren't enough boxing matches on his set these days.)

On our own TV we prefer "shoot 'em ups." They can be Easterns, Westerns or "Warsterns" involving any war going back to Ft. Sumter but not beyond.

Logic and historical accuracy generally are a must but we'll go along with the "Untouchables" until the night Eliot Ness starts looking for John Wilkes Booth on the roads leading away from Ford's Theater. He'll have to do his looking without our help.

As for favorites "stars," that's easy: Frank McGrath, Louie Quinn, Edd Byrnes, Byron Foulger, Mildred Natwick, Sheldon Leonard, King Donovan, Milburn Stone, Dennis and Charlie Weaver.

Ward Bond and Robert Horton do a nice little job in "Wagon Train" but the guy who fractures us is Frank McGrath, who plays the bearded cook, Charlie Wooster. Louie Quinn is the horse-playing Roscoe in "77 Sunset Strip" and presumably everyone knows "Kookie" Byrnes.

Byron Foulger, balding, mousey and be-spectacled movie veteran who pops up in most anything filmed for TV in Hollywood, never fails to draw groans for being a nonentity type you have to like because you can't stand him. That's pure TV logic, isn't it? Mildred Natwick and King Donovan never miss in either dramatic or comedy roles.

Jim Arness is okay in "Gunsmoke" because he looks like my

"Buffalo Bill" Cody fought his famous "duel to the death" with a Cheyenne warrior named Yellow Hand or Yellow Hair.

Why "Good-Time Charlie" Suffers Uneasy Bladder

Unwise eating or drinking may be a source of mild, but annoying bladder irritations—making you feel restless, tense, and uncomfortable. And if restlessness, with nagging backache, headache or muscular aches and pains due to over-excitation, strain or emotional upset, are adding to your misery—don't wait—try Doan's Pills. Doan's Pills act 3 ways for speedy relief. 1—They have a soothing effect on bladder irritations. 2—A fast pain-relieving action on nagging backache, headache, muscular aches and pains. 3—A wonderfully mild diuretic action thru the kidneys, tending to increase the output of the 15 million of kidney tubes. So, get the same happy relief millions have enjoyed for over 60 years. New, larger economy size saves money. Get Doan's Pills today!

wife's Uncle Larry but he'd be from nowhere (would he?) without Milburn Stone (Doc) or Dennis Weaver (Chester).

We keep turning on Danny Thomas hoping Sheldon Leonard, producer and director of the "Danny Thomas Show," will put himself in the lineup more often as the tall, dark family friend and agent. He's the one who looks like a gangster and once made a Hollywood living playing same. Charlie Weaver is, of course, a star in his own right once again after getting a new life by invitation of Jack Paar.

Time slots mean a lot to us—"Wagon Train" being the only thing that'll get us before a TV set as early as 7:30 p.m. That means skipping "Maverick" and "Perry Mason," which we like but not well enough to start looking before sunset. But nothing can come on too late. We put the last channel to bed almost nightly.

Usually, we feel less frustration at watching two poor half hour shows than one poor full-hour show. But we went all the way with "Playhouse 90," counting on the percentages to produce more good than bad over the 90-minute route.

Monday night, CBS premiered three half-hour segments of summer froth starting with the Danny Thomas replacement "Celebrity Talent Scouts," running through a new, subdued "Spike Jones Show" and winding up with "New Comedy Showcase."

Audrey Meadows, Phil Silvers and Ann Sheridan were the opening night talent scouts while Sam Levenson played the part created—and handled for several successful seasons — by Arthur Godfrey.

Unfortunately for those who like suspense, the old Godfrey applause meter gimmick was dispensed with in this version. There was no talent winner. It was about as satisfactory as a scoreless tie in football.

Spike Jones, whose zany band has been the most destructive musical force since the old Frank and Milt Britton group, turned out a pleasant half-hour in low key (for Spike) comedy. His band didn't even show up. Spike Jones lovers may not have liked it but neutrals probably enjoyed the satire, especially the finale on the world's greatest menace, "kids." George Murphy and Martha Scott played retired grandparents in the opening show of the Comedy Showcase series. There were some bittersweet laughs for viewers in the 40-60 age group watching the old folks try to recapture lost youth.

Rejected Suitor Kills Girl Friend

EUNICE, La. (UPI)—A rejected suitor sprayed a bus station with bullets Tuesday, killing his attractive girl friend and wounding a teen-aged girl before turning his gun on himself.

Edward Desadier, 30, of Alexandria, was dead on arrival at a New Orleans hospital after he chased Mrs. Loretta Barbo, 29, under a desk and shot her. He accidentally wounded the woman's cousin, 16-year-old Bonita Olivier, another clerk in the Trailways terminal here.

Miss Olivier, the only witness to the shooting, said Desadier came into the station and waited until he and the two women were the only ones there. The girl, whose leg wound was not serious, said Mrs. Barbo tried to break off a romance with Desadier two days before the shooting.

"We've said all we have to say," Mrs. Barbo told her former boy friend when he asked her to "go somewhere to talk." Bonita said Mrs. Barbo was estranged from her husband.

Bonita said the pair continued to talk as she went to answer a telephone. Then she heard Mrs. Barbo scream, "Eddie, don't!"

Desadier's first shot missed, and when he fired again Mrs. Barbo scrambled under a desk. The second shot hit Bonita in the leg, knocking her off a chair.

She said Desadier then ran to the desk covering Mrs. Barbo and told her to move. When she said she couldn't, Desadier lifted it and shot her in the head twice. Desadier then placed the barrel of his .22 caliber pistol to his temple and pulled the trigger.

Dr. Green To Deliver Talk To Graduates

CANYON (Spl) — Speaker for the more than 200 West Texas State College summer convocation degree candidates will be Dr. Ralph T. Green, director of the Texas Commission on Higher Education. The convocation will be Aug. 19 at 8 p.m. in the New Buffalo Stadium.

Four Pampa students are among candidates for degrees at the WT summer convocation: Ronald Dee Rice and James Dean Webb are seeking the Master of Education degree.

John Arthur King is a candidate for the Bachelor of Science degree while James Robert Schoofield is seeking the Bachelor of Business Administration degree.

Dr. Green became director of the new Texas commission in 1956 after a one-year stint as professor and chairman of the department of economics and finance at Baylor University. He has previously been financial economist for the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas from 1949 until 1955. He was a professor at Duke University, where he earned his Ph.D., and at Texas A&M, where he earned his B.A. and M.A. degrees.

lieved that only a few dozen police, Tshombe's personal bodyguard, made up the armed forces.

Tshombe's Finance Minister Jean-Baptist Kibwe said in Paris that Katanga soldiers would "open fire" on U.N. troops.

U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold immediately postponed his scheduled departure for South Africa in view of the Katanga officials' pronouncements.

U.N. officials in Leopoldville refused to comment on the developments except to announce that Hammarskjold had again postponed his departure for South Africa. He had intended to leave Tuesday, then today.

Hammarskjold announced Tuesday night that U.N. troops would be dispatched to Katanga, which has proclaimed independence from the Congo, by the end of the week.

His announcement said Belgium had agreed to the move but did not say whether he had gotten agreement of Katanga officials. Today's statements by Tshombe and Kibwe made it obvious he had not.

Hundreds of whites in Katanga hurriedly threw belongings into cars and trucks and started the trek toward neighboring Southern Rhodesia in the second exodus from Elizabethville in a month.

In Tunis, exerting pressure on Hammarskjold from the other side, Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba, en route home from the United States, declared he and his followers would "fight to the last drop of our blood" to preserve the territorial integrity of the Congo.

In Brussels, Belgian sources said Hammarskjold planned to send both African and white troops to Katanga.

Meg's Butler Won't Hint Of Family Rift

By ROBERT MUSEL, United Press International

LONDON (UPI) — Silver-haired Thomas Cronin, often described as the perfect butler, admitted today he has quit his new employment—Princess Margaret and Anthony Armstrong-Jones.

But that is all Cronin would admit about his intriguing departure from the Kensington Palace of the newlyweds.

He was chosen only three weeks ago from six highly accomplished butlers to organize the Armstrong-Jones household.

Discreetly Cronin came to the door of his furnished room and peered out.

Discreetly he said, "It is true I cannot say why I left," said the fortyish bachelor who previously served U.S. Ambassador John Hay Whitney.

"In fact, I don't really want to talk about it."

An indiscreet journalist wondered aloud whether Cronin had had differences with his famous employers—whether, in fact, the perfect butler had failed to find a perfect working relationship.

Cronin ran his fingers through his wavy hair.

"I cannot go into reasons," he said. "But I can say that I'm sorry I left."

As a perfect—butler should, Cronin tried to keep his departure from the honeymoon home of the princess quiet. He left Friday.

County FHA Picks Mackie

Appointment of John S. Mackie as a member of the Gray County Farmers Home Administration committee was announced this week by James Gouddy, the agency's county supervisor serving Armstrong, Donley and Gray counties.

Mackie farms in Gray County and lives in the Hopkins Community.

Two other members make up the 3-member committee which works with the county supervisor to see that the best possible use is made of the agency's farm credit service program consistent with local farmers' needs. The other two members are William C. Epperson of Pampa and Wilbur L. Wilson of McLean.

Each member is appointed for a 3-year term. Mackie succeeds Fred S. Vanderburg whose 3-year term expired this year.

The committee determines the eligibility of individual applicants for all types of loans. It also aids the county supervisor in adapting the agency's loan policies to conditions faced by farmers in this area. Members are selected and appointed so that, so far as possible, different areas or neighborhoods are represented.

The Farmers Home Administration makes annual or intermediate term loans to farmers who need adequate funds to buy equipment and livestock, and longer term loans to build or repair houses and other essential farm buildings, and to purchase or improve land suitable for family-type farm operations.

It also advances credit to farmers or their non-profit associations to establish and carry out approved soil and water conservation practices, and to install and improve facilities.

Petrofina Ups Crude By 19c

DALLAS (UPI)—American Petrofina Co. announced today it has raised the price of North Texas crude oil by 19 cents a barrel, restoring the reductions it made on April 9.

The new price for top-grade 40 degree gravity crude is $3.01 a barrel, up from $2.82. A two cent downward differential will be in effect for each succeeding lower grade.

About a month ago Derby Refining Co., subsidiary of Colorado Oil & Gas Co. made a similar 20 cent price restoration on Kansas crude.

Wheeler County Calls Party Meet

D. O. Beene, Republican chairman, for Wheeler County announced that a meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Community Building in Shamrock.

This meeting is being called for organizational purposes and all voters of that area interested in electing the Nixon-Lodge ticket this fall are urged to attend.

Miss Virginia Anderson, Shamrock, vice chairman of the Republican Party in Wheeler County, will direct the meeting.

Beene also announced another meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Aug. 12 in the District Court Room in the Court House, Wheeler. John G. Tower, Wichita Falls, candidate for United States senator, will speak at this meeting. He will be accompanied by his wife.

Police Report One Accident During Parade

From the police department's point of view, the Top O' Texas Rodeo parade yesterday was a safe one. But it was rough on churches and milk trucks.

Only one major accident was reported in Pampa during the parade yesterday afternoon. It happened at 3:10 p.m. when a Buick hit a Goldsmith Dairy Truck at the intersection of N. Ward and W. Browning and knocked it into the St. Matthew's Episcopal Church. Damage to the Buick, driven by Lydall Magill Hill of Canadian was estimated at $550, but no estimate

Youth Wins Primaries

Youth stole a march in state primaries in Michigan and Missouri Tuesday.

John B. Swinson, who turned 36 Sunday, became the new boy wonder of Michigan politics by winning an upset victory in a three-man race for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Richard Ichord, 34-year-old attorney from Houston, Mo., pulled perhaps an even bigger upset by defeating Rep. A. S. J. Carnahan for the Democratic nomination in a Missouri primary.

Ichord, who became the youngest speaker of Missouri's House of Representatives when he was 32, will face Carnahan's brother-in-law, Karl Schupp, in the November election.

Swinson, now serving as lieutenant governor, whipped favored Michigan Secretary of State James M. Hare, 50, and Detroit Councilman Edward Connor, 51, for the gubernatorial nomination.

He will face former Michigan State University Prof. Paul D. Bagwell in November. Bagwell, unopposed on the Republican ticket, was defeated in a 1958 try for the executive mansion by retiring Gov. G. Mennen Williams.

Atty. Gen. John Anderson Jr. won the Republican nomination for governor of Kansas by defeating Phillipsburg Publisher McDill

TRRC To Hold Down Inventories

AUSTIN (UPI)—Texas oilmen were told by the chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission Tuesday that the commission will continue to try to hold down crude inventories.

Ernest O. Thompson, said the commission has set an August allowable at 2,630,069 barrels, the same as for July, on a daily pattern for eight days of production.

"The Texas Railroad Commission intends to prevent the waste caused by needlessly building up unsalable inventories of crude," Thompson said.

Thompson said crude oil and products stocks as of July 8 were 39,100,000 barrels above desired levels. Gasoline levels alone were 26,800,000 barrels higher than desired.

Huck Boyd, Anderson, 43, promised an aggressive campaign against Democratic Gov. George Docking in November and declared "this could be a new era for the Republican Party in Kansas."

MELTING

Evidence indicates that the Greenland ice cap is melting, but the process is so slow that it will require at least 50,000 years.

Dear Abby...

Separate Boy From Curls Early In Life

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What is the matter with my wife? She says she can't bear to cut off our boy's curls.
This kid is three years old and looks like a girl. He's our only child. When he was born, my wife cried for a week because he wasn't a girl.

She has had our boy in the barber's chair twice and each time the barber would reach for the scissors, she'd snatch the boy out of the chair saying she couldn't go through with it.

The boy is unhappy because the older kids tease him. Can you offer a solution?

FATHER OF THE BOY

DEAR FATHER: Get your son into a barber's chair before he winds up on a psychiatrist's couch!
Your wife's refusal to accept the fact that she has a son—not the hoped-for daughter—indicates that she could be disturbed mentally.
Separate the boy from the curls and then do what is necessary to separate your wife from some of her ideas.

DEAR ABBY: I wish you could help me get a 12-year-old neighbor girl to stay at home during our supper hour. Her people are well-to-do, so she can't be hungry.
She makes it a point to walk in just as we start a meal. I have invited her to eat with us many times, but I don't want her everyday. She stands around leaning on the children's chairs, whispering and giggling. How can I handle this without causing embarrassment or hurt feelings?

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a most wonderful man for 23 years. He is very considerate and thoughtful. He doesn't drink, curse or raise his voice. He has never once opened his own pay envelope. He brings it to me and I take what I need. My only complaint is that he always leaves his shoes in the living room.

I have asked him many times to please put them away, but every-morning I find them in the living room. It drives me crazy. I've tried everything, but all I get is shoes, shoes and more shoes. What should I do?

SICK OF SHOES

DEAR SICK: If this is your biggest problem, give thanks. Pick up his shoes—and cheerfully. A nagging wife is the reason why so many men have come to drop their shoes in somebody else's living room.

CONFIDENTIAL? TO? H. H.

There is an old Chinese proverb you should paste in your hat: "The mouth is wind but the pen leaves tracks." Be careful of what you say—but be doubly careful of what you put in writing.

"What's your problem?" Write to Abby in care of this paper. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's pamphlet, "What Teen-agers Want To Know," send 25 cents and a large, self-adressed, stamped envelope in care of this paper.

Mrs. Knorrp Is Feted At Party

DEAR TENDER-HEARTED
TENDER-HEARTED
Catch this girl when she is alone and tell her in a nice way that she should not visit during the supper hour because that's "family time" and it disturbs the children.
If she doesn't respect your wishes,
ask for her mother's cooperation.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a most wonderful man for 23 years. He is very considerate
and thoughtful. He doesn't drink, curse or raise his voice. He has never once opened his own pay en-

GROOM (Spl) — Mrs. Lawrence Knorrp of Amarillo was honored for a Lullaby Shower given recently in the home of Mrs. Bob Newton.

The serving table was laid with green net over a cut-work cloth centered with an arrangement of yellow daisies and a miniature doctor and nurse figurines forming the focal point. The arrangement was flanked with tall yellow tapers.

Refreshments of individual cakes decorated with green icing were served with yellow punch.

al shower Friday morning in the ered with a lace cloth over pink, draped with pink ribbons and roses. A dainty doll with skirt of many layers of varicolored net formed the centerpiece. Pink sandtarts and cookies, rosebud mints, nuts, and pineapple frost punch were served.

Mrs. E. J. Keith served the punch; Mrs. Glenn Robertson was at the guest register; and the women of the church were hostesses.

RUTH MILLETT

Memo to Men:
When a wife gets to the point where she thinks, "What's the use of trying?" a marriage is in bad shape.

And what brings a wife to that new low in her attitude toward her own marriage? It is almost always the feeling that she is no longer loved and cherished.

Maybe her husband no longer bothers to talk to her, and she gets the feeling that he finds her too dull to bother with.

Maybe her husband has stopped paying her personal compliments and has fallen into the habit of looking at her without really seeing her.

Maybe her husband no longer shows her any affection, treating her more like a housekeeper than a wife.

Maybe she suspects that her husband is interested in someone else and doesn't know how to cope with his indifference to her.

Maybe her husband has taken to blaming her for everything that goes wrong.

Maybe her husband seems reluctant to spend any more time than he has to with his family, stopping off at a bar every evening after work.

Maybe her husband is always grouchy and hard to please so that she and the children are always apprehensive and afraid of arousing his anger.

Maybe he is critical of everything she does, with never a word of appreciation or encouragement.

Maybe her husband is so tightfisted that she never has a dime to call her own and dreads asking for enough money for bare necessities.

Those are some of the reasons why wives get to feeling unloved and unappreciated. They're reasons why they begin to wonder,
"What's the use of trying?"

And when a wife gives up hope, it's almost a cinch that the marriage will go from bad to worse.

Bridge Clubs Tell Winners

CANADIAN (Spl.) — Mrs. Glen Bill Walker was hostess to the McIntire of Pampa.

In the bridge games Mrs. Barton tallied high score for the afternoon.
Mrs. Flowers, second high, and Mrs. Hennard low.

As You Like It Club met in the home of Mrs. Tom Hext recently.
Attending were Meses E. H.

gress during the afternoon.

Shown here are two distinguishing marks of the new coat look for fall: pastel color and fur trim. Coat with flat front and controlled fullness (left) is by Originala in lilac-colored lamb's wool. It's cut with raglan sleeves and banded neckline. This nutria-lined coat contains many important fashion points (right). It's a dolman cape coat in putty-colored velour wool. This Monte-Sano and Pruzan design is worn with matching slim skirt and wool jersey overblouse.

Pasteur-Hued, Fur Trim Fashion's Coat Decree

By GAILE DUGAS
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — The one thing that will immediately stamp your new coat as fall, 1960, is fur trim. This is the biggest year for fur trim both inside and outside since the 1930s.

Next in importance is a new silhouette, the straight front paired with the wide back. This wide back may be a turtle back, a cap back or just gentle fullness.

Then there's length. High fashion stresses the nine-tenths length which just shows a border of the skirt beneath. And even on this newer, shorter length, the fur trim is lavish.

Shoulders are widened, not by padding but by seaming. Sleeves have been shortened often to mid-arm length and given the wider domain or kimono cut. Frequently this shorter sleeve is banded widely in fur.

The wrap-and-tie coat appears in many collections, with fur trim and without. There are some fur-lined versions.

The narrow coat has not been abandoned. It always has its fans in any season. This year, it takes the form of the very slim princess line with subtle seaming. It's intended to be worn with a companion dress following the same narrow lines.

Fur linings are almost as prevalent as outer fur trim. The fur used for linings run from relatively inexpensive types to really luxurious furs used in combination with subtle and elegant woolsens.

This is a big year for textures in fabrics and for plaids and checks both bold and muted.

Colors are either light or vibrant and include, surprisingly, turquoise, gold and deep pink. Brown and brown-mixtures are important.
Once again, the amethyst shades and plum tones are top fashion.
These are intense, beautiful variations of violet.

Sunday Afternoon Tea Honors Two Wives Of Scottish Rite Masons

The wives of El Paso Scottish Rite Masons held a tea Sunday

Safe Brush-On Insecticide Sure Death To Roaches

Cockroaches, like all the rest of us, are very active in the summertime. And as if that weren't bad enough, there is a new type of roach — a roach that is immune to traditional roach poisons — which has arrived on the American continent.

We have grown accustomed to fighting the common American, German, Oriental, and brown-banded varieties. We know they are all ugly and germ-ridden. And now this "resistant" roach has appeared.

And prevent reinfestation. To be quite sure, make a note to re-apply No-Roach after 4 to 6 weeks. That's what you should do about your roach problem. In the case of waterbugs, brush No-Roach around drains in the basement. To kill ants, brush it on all window and door sills. You'll find No-Roach is effective against all crawling insects. Get No-Roach in the pint size for an all-season supply, 8 oz. bottle only 89 cents; pint $1.89. Available at Furr Foods, Buddies, Ideal's, Fite's, Cretney's, Perkin's, and your local food or drug store.

Orphanage Boiler Explodes, Burns

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—A three-alarm fire, believed started by an exploding boiler, destroyed a large laundry today on the grounds of the Home of the Good Shepherd, a Catholic orphanage and convent.

However, after months of experiment, scientists produced an insecticide that provides 100 per cent control of all roaches — even Old Man Resistant Roach. It is called No-Roach, a product of Gaston Johnston Corporation. Many of you may already be familiar with No-Roach, but for those who are not, this is how you use it. (And you will save yourself a lot of trouble later in the summer if you get it and use it now, when roaches first start appearing.) The preparation is a colorless, stainless liquid. It leaves no odor. Just brush it near your kitchen sink, on baseboards, sills, around cabinets, drains, appliances. Roaches walk across the coating, and within a short time become paralyzed and die.

Flames leaped 40 to 50 feet in the air, and showered nearby Negro homes with sparks. It was nearly two hours before the fire was brought under control. Dormitory buildings and other facilities at the home escaped damage.

One of the nuns told firemen that she thought she heard an explosion shortly before the fire broke out about 1 a.m. She said it may have been one of the old boilers in the laundry. The laundry is one of the chief means of support for the home.

THE PAMPA DAILY NEWS WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1960 33rd YEAR

Classic Example

The first of thousands of bales of cotton has been harvested for this year. The blunt truth of the matter is that there is no market for the stuff. In fact, there is no market for last year's cotton crop, either.

This is not to single out the cotton farmer as a unique and hardened villain of the American economy. He's in the same boat as the rest of us, in a way. He himself is the victim of other parties, subsidies, tariffs and immigration restrictions, and the monopolistic union practices which put him afloat in an artificial market place.

But cotton is a classic example of what happens to a manipulated economy. It's the same story for the wheat farmer or the corn farmer whose produce is bulging the government granaries and storage bins, with more piling on top every year.

Cotton happens to take on an international aspect as our neighbor, Mexico, protests strongly that the domestic farm policy of the United States is reacting unfavorably on the Mexican economy.

When there is an insufficient market for a product—as the case of cotton—then one of two things must happen. Either less is produced or the government subsidizes, in one form or another, the unpurchased cotton. The latter course is the one we have indulged.

As the cotton continues to pile up in government "loan," the cotton, at whatever price, and recover some of the investment the federal treasury has made. But if the cotton is "dumped" on the market, then the price is depressed. And it is this situation that has Mexico worried.

A U.S. senate Foreign Relations committee report states: "A good case can be made to the effect that our cotton price support program has intensified a problem of chronic over-supply in the world, and that our efforts to dispose of our own surplus have to some extent exported a domestic problem to others."

The loan program encourages the production of cotton. The surplus mounts. If it is "dumped," the price goes down and reacts to put even more cotton into government loan and the other cotton nations object to the effect of the "dumping."

The U.S. government, under the prodding of the unions, does its best to keep cotton production costs high by immigration restrictions and the bracero policy. Every conceivable barrier is put in the path of the U.S. cotton farmer who must hire foreign nationals because there is no domestic stoop labor available.

It is a dizzy spiral. No one group can be assigned the role of hero or goat. It is not our intention to single out the cotton farmer as being any worse than the rest of us who are subsidized and "protected" by some sort of government restriction, privilege or subsidy. But cotton is something close to home. Something we can see and understand. It is a major domestic and international problem, with us smack in the middle.

If you would find a perfect example of the endless injustice and the impossibility of manipulating and ample of the endless injustice and the impossibility of manipulating a market outside the bounds of free exchange of goods and services, look no farther away than cotton. And the end is not in sight.

Moral Power Alone

The Magazine of Wall Street came forward as of July 16 with an article beginning: "Turning the Other Cheek or An Eye for an Eye — which is the best way? . . . I have never believed that turning the other cheek will get you anywhere because it is a sign of weakness of which the other fellow always takes advantage. To the aggressor it signifies fear, and only makes him bolder."

Certainly, there would be many at this juncture, in which patience with the Soviet Union is wearing thin, who would subscribe to this wisdom. Yet, in the interests of hindsight, ought we not consider the possibility that neither of these extremes is the best we can do? We do not suggest compromise. We abhor the thought.

What we are suggesting is a more diligent search for truth. It might be that neither of these ultimates is wholly desirable.

In his "History of Sacred Celibacy in the Christian Church," that magnificent scholar, Henry C. Lea, comments on the amazing achievements of the church during the middle ages. He says:

"Through its perfected organization the church wielded its wide and absolute authority, deriving its force from moral power alone, marshaling no legions of its own in battle array, but permeating everything with its influence, walking unarmed through deadly strife, rising with renewed strength from every prostration, triumphing alike over the savage nature of the barbarian and the enervated apathy of the Roman tributary, blending discordant races and jarring nations into one great brotherhood of subjection — such was the moral power of the church during the middle ages."

To us, the significance of the above sentence is in the phrase . . . "from moral power alone. . ." For, certainly, if the church did triumph over all comers during its years of increasing influence, its victory was brought on by something more than an eye for an eye concept. Also, we submit it was brought on by something more than a turning of the cheek. For the significance of the entire Reformation period lies neither in the brutality with which it abounded nor in a negative or submissive attitude, which is scarcely apparent saving in an occasional monastic order, but in a moral goal adopted by cleric and lay alike during those surging years.

There remains in the minds of moderns the concept that moral force is somehow ineffective. We suspect this suspicion is harbored only because so few are conversant with it.

Actually, we are inclined to believe that reliance upon physical force is a poor reliance in the final analysis. Nor does this indicate in the least that we are thinking in terms of submission or pacifism. There is something electrifying and invigorating about the grasp of moral certainty, which makes moral vigor a far better weapon than merely brute force. The man who is right and who knows he is right is a stronger champion than the man who is merely well armed, even though the former carries no physical means of inflicting injury upon another.

If a showdown ever does come between this nation and the Soviet union, we will be compelled to test our valor on the field of battle. But such a test will be meaningless, now, more so than at any prior time in history. For there is little or no valor connected with covering in some bomb shelter. And nuclear weapons make cowards of us all, with survival a chance related, perhaps, to the wind and the drift of radiation.

But the moral showdown could come at any time the people of this nation decided to stand on moral certainty rather than on the uncertainty of military might.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK—She was very old and a parcel string led from her hand to a piece of laundry rope knotted in a circle around the neck of the abject little dog that lay panting at her feet. It was a very hot night, and we shared a wooden bench under a tree and we both studied the ripples, eddies and shimmer on the surface of the Hudson River.

Every now and then she'd lean over laboriously and pat the little dog on its head and say, "Duermehijo."

It didn't take Mike Hammer or Nick Charles or any other detective or private eye to know she was of Latin-American origin. She was telling the dog to sleep, son. You don't just rush into a spate of Spanish with a woman like that this late at night in the City of New York. Maybe not even in the Alameda Park in Mexico City or any park in Balboa in the Canal Zone. Or on the beach at Rio, either. It isn't done. But, after awhile, silence seems idiotic.

"Hace calor, Senora," you say quietly.

"Como no," she shrugs. "Es el tiempo para calor."

She was right, of course. Why not? It is the time for heat. She had it right. It was mid-July, with the humidity pressing down on the island of Manhattan like some one dropping a wrung-out wet blanket on a sleeping baby.

"Americano," she ventured. The small gambit, the tiny feint. I said, "Americano. She thought about this a long time. She turned at last and we faced. She seemed to be in her face like the inside of a blasted and riven cave. Her gums were almost black. Her eyes were like polished coal swimming in fresh milk. They lived. They had light and they pierced.

"Soy Mexicana," she said. "De sangre puro, India."

So she was Indian Mexican of pure blood and the pride was there like a flag planted on a newly discovered island.

"De que sangre?" I asked.

"Chichimeca," she said and the ancient, withered chin came up and firms.

I tried hard and long to think of one word in her dialect. Just one. Nothing came. I could think of a Teotoc word and an Aztec word, several unrelated words in several Mexican Indian dialects—but nothing in Chichimec. She smiled for the first time.

"You are trying hard to put me at ease," she said in Spanish. "That is considerate. Don't work so hard. We have a terrible and dreadful tongue. It bewilders everyone but us. Listen to this: pohchizli. A chair. What kind of people would say all that to indicate a chair for a guest? Best just to nod at it."

She cackled in hearty laughter. She liked her little joke.

"This island between these rivers, this strange to me place," she said, "It once was Indian!"

I said, yes, Indians once owned it and called it variations of Manahat-an or Monny-had-den. I said I didn't know much about fish but there was a fish called manhadan and maybe there was a link but I probably was very ignorant.

"After all this time, would it matter?" she asked. "A name is a thing, is all. Nothing more. Why bruise yourself making links? I come down here at night. They say that is dangerous. Evil men move in the shadows and the night and are bad for women. They say that. They say 'Tia Gracia, don't go there. They will cut your throat.' For what? My poor, thin little dog with a rope for a guide? I see men with big, sleek dogs and what look like shining silver chains leading to the dogs. At 80, a woman has little to fear. She is a mother image or an aunt image, even to the evil. So I come and watch this endless, sleepless, restless river go and go and go. It soothes me. I think of the long years that I have done nothing else but that and I see myself for the small, temporary thing I am on this earth. One needs that."

It was long past midnight. I said perhaps I could walk back up to the Drive with her.

"I shall walk you," she said. "A woman of 80 is a better guard against evil. You — they might kill."

When the people of this nation of ours decide to abide by the great commandments which counsel against theft, false witness and murder, it would ensue, in likelihood, that such a stand would telegraph itself to the people in the Soviet Union as well.

Russian people are human, too. They want much the same sort of things out of life that we want. Their problem and ours is their government. Had we the moral strength and vigor we should have, that fact would transmit itself to the Russian people who might thereby gain the courage and strength to topple their own despots.

Meanwhile, our problem is to find enough of the same vigor at home so that we can deal with our own home-grown brand of oppression. We are in no position to condemn the outrageous actions of the Kremlin when there are so many parallels to be drawn between both governments.

The Allen-Scott Report

ROBERT S. ALLEN      PAUL SCOTT

ROGERS WEIGHING PROSECUTION ON ANTI-KEFAUVER PHOTO; TIMING OF DECISION COULD SWING THURSDAY'S TENNESSEE PRIMARY

WASHINGTON — Attorney General William Rogers is weighing an important decision that could have a decisive effect on whether the racket-crushing and monopoly-busting Senator Estes Kefauver stays in the Senate.

The government's chief prosecutor must decide this week on whether to summon a federal grand jury in Tennessee to consider an explosive report involving the hotly contested Senatorial primary between Kefauver and Andrew "Tip" Taylor, a western Tennessee judge.

The report, prepared by the Department's Criminal Division, recommends prosecution of all persons involved in the preparation and distribution of a "doctored" photograph against Senator Kefauver. It reveals that a thorough investigation by Department agents uncovered the unauthorized distribution of a 1956 Kefauver campaign photograph that was drastically altered, mislabeled and did not contain the name or identification of the circulating group.

Specifically, the report states that a group of anti-Kefauver backers took an old photograph of Kefauver with his '56 campaign signs and a group of Negroes and "doctored" it so that it showed the Tennessee Senator conferring alone with the Negroes. The "doctored" photograph was then mislabeled and circulated in strongly segregated areas of Tennessee's western flatlands.

Attorney General Rogers has been quietly examining this report and its recommendations for prosecution for more than two weeks. He even took the document with him to the GOP National Convention in Chicago last week for a final look. Aides are predicting a decision by Rogers at any time.

The Attorney General is feeling the pressure from both sides on what he should do.

Backers of Taylor, who is waging a hard-slugging contest against Kefauver, are urging the Attorney General not to make his decision before Thursday's primary on the grounds that any action by him would in effect be outside intervention in a crucial election.

Supporters of Senator Kefauver are just as demanding that Rogers act affirmatively on the recommendations of his aides.

Both sides in the Senatorial race agree that any move by Rogers before next Thursday could have a decisive impact on the final outcome of the bitterly contested election.

Note: Regardless of the outcome of the all-decisive primary, Senator Kefauver, who is Chairman of the Senate Anti-Trust Subcommittee, is planning to reopen his sensational probe of the underworld's influence in boxing when he returns to Washington later this month. He will make new headlines when his subcommittee reports on a number of major fights that were "fixed."

MICHIGAN STORY — Leaders of the two major parties are closely watching developments in the hotly contested Senate race in Michigan, where Senator Patrick McNamara (D.Mich.) is seeking re-election.

Representative Alvin M. Bentley the GOP Senate nominee, is now convinced that Senator McNamara, who is recovering from an operation, will withdraw from the race soon and that the Democrats will then pick retiring Governor G. Mennen Williams as his opponent.

This is the sensational political report that Vic Johnson, trouble-shooter for the GOP Senate Campaign Committee, gave to Vice President Nixon, the new GOP Presidential nominee during the GOP National Convention.

Johnson, who sees little chance of the Republicans capturing the McNamara seat, told Nixon that he had received the information from the most reliable sources in both Michigan and Washington, D.C.

Democratic leaders here believe that either McNamara or Williams will be a sure winner in that election.

The Nation's Press

INSURING IRRESPONSIBILITY (The Freeman) W. M. Curtiss

A tiny news item in your morning paper may have escaped notice; certainly many readers would miss its significance.

A messenger boy in a New York office, while awaiting an assignment, was amusing himself by shooting paper slips out of a window with a rubber band. He was injured when a clip barbed and hit him in the eye.

The Workmen's Compensation Board awarded the boy damages. The boy's employer protested, but the Appellate Division of the courts upheld the Compensation Board by a three to two vote. The case was taken to the higher Court of Appeals and the decision of the Appellate Division was affirmed five to one.

The Workmen's Compensation Board decided the boy's activity was sufficiently close to the regular course of his employment to make his injury compensable. The Appellate Division observed: "The act and the instrument when conjuncted to cause the injury have a somewhat closer relationship to the employment than those in the ordinary case involving horseplay." Presumably, if the cook in the firm's cafeteria had been the victim, the injury might not have been compensable. The article reporting this incident was headlined: PAPERCLIP FLIPPING IS UPHHELD BY COURT — COURT RECOGNIZES THAT BOYS WILL BE.

Though this item appears of infinitesimal significance in a day of moon-shots, summit meetings, and general world tensions, nevertheless, it illustrates a weakness in our system; turning over to government a responsibility that rightly belongs to individuals. Similar illustrations could be taken from the government-controlled compulsory auto insurance, social security, and a host of other welfare schemes.

Workmen's Compensation

Before we had compulsory Workmen's Compensation laws, workers were protected under common law against negligence and carelessness of their employers. It was understood that an employee assumed the obvious and customary risks of his job. True, an employee might have had to go to court to recover damages; and undoubtedly there were cases where justice did not prevail.

It was under Bismarck in Germany that "social consciousness" first became popular, leading to the adoption of many welfare schemes. In this country, President Theodore Roosevelt advocated Workmen's Compensation as a

The Doctor Says:

By Dr. HAROLD T. HYMAN

The other day we were talking about histamine-type allergies. They make your nose run, your eyes water, your skin itch and your face break out.

There is another allergy, sneaker and much more harmful to hypersensitive persons, many of whom have requested information about mysterious diseases that seem to come from nowhere, respond poorly or irregularly to treatment and on occasion cause invalidism or even death.

This reaction is called "tuber-culin-type." By rarely has it anything to do with a TB infection.

In fact, it rarely has anything to do with any sort of infection. And it does not require the sufferer to be isolated to prevent transmission of the disease.

Let me give you an example. Perhaps then you'll have a better understanding of how these tuber-culin-type allergies develop and what you can do to prevent them or to help your doctor relieve the conditions you've inquired about. Like the butterfly disease (lupus erythematosus), Guillain-Barre Disease, certain blood diseases (aplastic or hemolytic anemias, agranulocytosis, thrombocytopenic purpura), rheumatoid or deforming arthritis, certain eye diseases (uveitis, iritis), peeling of the entire skin (exfoliative dermatitis) and others too numerous to mention.

And now, the example:

The patient was a middle-aged woman who had her appendix removed many years before when it was the custom to apply salicy powder to the stump of the infected organ.

After not feeling well for a week or so, she took her temperature and was surprised to find it almost 102 degrees.

Her doctor thought she might have gripe and gave her a prescription for a "bug-killer."

After a few doses, she felt worse and began a series of chills with temperatures as high as 106 degrees. She was admitted to the hospital.

Every sort of test was made. Nothing significant was discovered except for an increase in the bright-staining cells (eosinophiles) of her blood.

This led to the suspicion that she might have picked up a worm disease (trichinosis) from eating imperfectly cooked ham or pork.

She was injected with every known "miracle drug."

After each injection, she seemed to have longer chills and higher fever.

When the possibility of a tuber-culin-type allergy (periarteritis nodosum) was suggested, a hunt was begun to find some substance to which she might have developed hypersensitivity.

After following more blind clues than a private eye in the most baffling whodunit, the medical detectives had their problem solved by an alert night nurse who noticed that her patient applied a facial ointment that she took from a jar on her bedside table each night.

message to Congress in 1908. By 1911, ten states had passed laws, and now, all states have Workmen's Compensation laws.

Workmen's Compensation is essentially an insurance plan, required of employers. In New York State, an employer may insure with a private carrier, with the State Insurance Fund, or—in some cases under strict regulation—can self-insure. Under the law, compensation is not contingent on proof of the employer's negligence; it is required that the injury be job-connected. Over the years, the decisions of the New York State Board have become more and more "liberal," resulting in the "paper clip" decision cited above.

Many employers have welcomed Workmen's Compensation laws. They have been willing to pass their responsibilities along to the State Board and to the insurance carriers, often unaware of the cost involved.

In consequence, New York employers now pay rates for Workmen's Compensation that are among the highest in the land.

American producers, in many lines, are finding it more and more difficult to compete in world markets because of their high cost of production. New York producers are at a disadvantage in competing with producers in other states where insurance rates are not so high.

Aside from its economic consequences, the "paper clip" decision has deep-seated moral implications. Is it proper to relieve a youth, or his family, of all sense of responsibility for his actions? Various forms of individual and family insurance are available to cover cases like this, leaving the responsibility where it belongs, and at the same time reducing the incidence of such cases. A government-sponsored, compulsory plan is certain to result in inefficiency, waste, graft, and abuse. And in the long run, a higher cost will be the general breakdown of the moral fiber of a people.
