Winners Announced For 1st Go-Round At Rodeo

Bill Flowers, Junior Butler and Eldon Blackburn won first go-round titles outright, and a three-way tie between Harold Williams, Jimmy Moore and Rusty Welch developed in the saddle bronc division at the close of last night's performance at the Top O' Texas Rodeo.

Flowers, who hails from Post, won the calf roping division with the sparkling 13.1 timing he turned in during Wednesday night's show. Darrell Renfro was second in this bracket, followed by Blackburn and R. E. Josey.

WELL-GROOMED STALLION — Poco Merit, who was entered in yesterday's Quarter Horse contest, doesn't seem to mind a beauty treatment at all. Cleaning him up for the show is his owner, Ed Strickland of Shamrock.

Leo Bingo Named Champion Stallion

Leo Bingo, owned by J. B. McNaughton of Vega, was named grand champion stallion, and Leo's Lady San, owned by Howell Ranch, Seagoville, took top honors as grand champion mare at the Top O' Texas Quarter Horse Show.

Judging of halter class took place at 1 p.m. yesterday in the rodeo arena, and first and second place winners in the mare and stallion classes were shown last night for selecting of grand champion and reserve champion.

Khrushchev Sounds Out West For A New Summit Meeting

Proposal Is Made In Letter To Macmillan

By ROBERT KORENGOLD
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev today suggested a new summit meeting to be held to discuss East-West problems. Khrushchev did not set a date for the proposed heads of state conference when he made the suggestion in his reply made public today to a July 19 personal letter from British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

In a firm but polite reply to the British leader, Khrushchev vigorously defended the Soviet position on virtually all East-West issues.

Khrushchev accused the United States of aggressive actions against the Soviet Union in the U-2 and RB-47 plane incidents. He said Britain shared responsibility for the RB-47 incident since the plane was based in Britain.

The Soviet leader said the main problem in the cold war is Germany. He repeated the Soviet threat to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany if an East-West solution to the German problem was not reached eventually.

After citing the German issue, the liquidation of the Western occupation of Berlin, disarmament and a prohibition of nuclear weapons as the basis for peace, Khrushchev said:

"The Soviet Union would like to discuss all these questions at a heads of government meeting. We know the planned summit meeting (last May in Paris) was frustrated, but we will wait for some other, better time.

"Even if in the future conditions will not be favorable, I assure, Mr. Prime Minister, we will go ahead and conclude a separate German peace treaty."

Khrushchev said another American reconnaissance plane was discovered over the Soviet Union on April 9, several weeks before the U-2 plane piloted by Francis Gary Powers was downed over Siberia on May 1.

"The aircraft got back safely," he said. "It was not shot down by us. But we saw it. And they know in the United States that we saw it."

"Then, so as to stretch our nerves even more, to humiliate us and to take humiliation as far as insult, they decided to send another reconnaissance aircraft on May 1. Then we shot down this plane that was sent on an aggressive mission."

Water Group Calls Meeting In Plainview

A preliminary draft of the proposed contract between the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority and the government, providing for construction of the Canadian River Project is expected to be presented at the regular meeting of the authority's board of directors of 10 a.m. Monday in Plainview.

Officials also expect to bring to the meeting an outline of contract provisions between member cities and the authority, upon which the citizens of each city will vote.

Leon Hill and members of his staff, Fred Gray, field solicitor for the Department of Interior, and A. B. Huguena, Authority counsel, will attend the meeting.

At the beginning of the session, the board will ask for reports from the coordinating committee.

Officials urge all directors, mayors, city attorneys and other city officials to be present for examination and discussion of these documents.

Castro's Ailment May Be Disclosed

HAVANA (UPI)—Cuba's revolutionary cabinet assemblies today for a session which may shed some light on the nature of the ailment which has kept Premier Fidel Castro on the sidelines in recent weeks.

Despite official denials, observers here believed the cabinet might give Castro's brother Raul the job of acting premier while his brother is laid up.

The premier's whereabouts were unknown. The latest of a number of conflicting reports placed him Thursday in a hideaway in the Cienaga de Zapata swamps, where he was said to be resting in preparation for an appearance Saturday at the closing session of the current youth convention here.

UN Troops Due In Katanga Saturday

Situation Is Unchanged

By RAY MOLONEY
United Press International
ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga (UPI)—Trucks roared onto the airfield here today to block the landing of a United Nations plane minutes before U.N. Undersecretary Ralph Bunche left unexpectedly for Leopoldville. Leaders of this "independent" province ordered the trucks onto the field when the plane approached, thinking it might be carrying U.N. troops.

Bunche dashed to the control tower, grabbed a microphone and ascertained that the plane carried only civilian technicians. When he explained this to airport authorities, they allowed the plane to land.

But the civilians were not allowed to leave the plane. They stayed aboard and returned to Leopold with Bunche, who was reporting to U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold on the sticky Katanga negotiations.

Bunche said before he left that "no decision has yet been taken on future U.N. actions" and that he was returning to talk to Hammarskjold because he had not been able to contact him during the night.

Bunche came to Elisabethville to consult with Katanga Premier, Moise Tshombe preliminary to the scheduled arrival of U.N. troops in this secessionist province on Saturday.

After their talks Thursday, Tshombe said flatly the U. N. troops "will not arrive," implying that Bunche agreed to a decision to refer the whole Katanga issue back to the U.N. Security Council.

However, Bunche said that he could take no decisions in the matter and had to report to Hammarskjold.

Tshombe also announced that Katanga tribal chiefs had thrown their support to him in his "opposition of the Katanga to any interposition on the part of the U.N."

Hammarskjold now is in the position of having made a flat statement that the U.N. would fly troops in on Saturday. It was believed this decision was made under pressure from the central Congolese government in Leopoldville which feared to face the return of Premier Patrice Lumumba with the Katanga still firmly in Tshombe's hands.

Tennessee Voters Choose Kefauver's Liberal Approach Over Conservatism

By RUSS D. ALEY
United Press International
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Sen. Estes Kefauver, who campaigned as a liberal on national issues and as a moderate on touchy civil rights, swept to an easy Democratic primary victory in Tennessee Thursday over a conservative opponent. He said it forecasts a triumph for the Democratic presidential ticket in November.

everywhere speculated that a Kefauver defeat would mean the Democrats could not win the South.

Taylor argued repeatedly that Kefauver's vote for the new civil rights bill, his refusal to sign the so-called "southern Manifesto," and his support by organized labor indicated that Kefauver did not represent the thinking of the people of Tennessee or the South.

Kefauver made no bones of his support of the civil rights bill, and in his victory statement he thanked particularly the labor leaders of the state.

"In my years in Congress," he said, "I have fought for the rights of all our people. This victory today proves that the South agrees."

makes it clear that the detractors of the South who tried to say that we are backward people have been proved wrong," he said in a victory statement. "The South will continue to move forward in the mainstream of American civilization."

"Tennessee has shown that our Democratic ticket composed of Senators Kennedy and (Lyndon) Johnson looking toward new frontiers will win the allegiance of Americans everywhere," he added.

Johnson, the Texas senator who is the Democratic nominee for vice president, made his first campaign speech here last Saturday and said flatly that he would campaign as an American and not a Southerner and there would be no racial differences. Observers

With only 194 of 2,653 precincts uncounted, Kefauver had 449,847 votes to 238,377 for Circuit Judge Andrew T. (Tip) Taylor who campaigned as a states' rights.

A third candidate, Jake Armstrong of Knoxville, a pilot who did little campaigning, had 4,171 votes.

Taylor, 49, of Jackson in West Tennessee where segregation is a greater issue than elsewhere in Tennessee, said the race was a fight between a liberal and conservative. He declined to concede before retiring.

Kefauver swept East and Middle Tennessee where his strength was considered greatest, and carved out huge chunks of votes in West Tennessee where Taylor had hoped his promise to stand with the "southern bloc" in the Senate would carry him to victory.

Kefauver even carried Shelby County (Memphis) with 64,253 votes to Taylor's 33,143. The Shelby County vote, West Tennessee's biggest, had been conceded to Taylor by most Kefauver supporters.

It Can't Be Done-- But Navy Flier Did

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—Chance Vought Aircraft said a Navy pilot has made what many veteran fliers consider an impossible flight. The Navy confirmed it.

The company said the pilot committed an error which by all rights should have killed him. He took off in an F8U Crusader jet with its wings folded up.

He flew the plane for 24 minutes, then landed safely.

Vought reported Thursday that the flight took place Tuesday over the naval air facility at Naples, Italy. The company said the pilot climbed to 5,000 feet, discovered his error, dumped his

Trujillo Family Is 'Getting Out'

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, D.R. (UPI)—Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr., playboy son of the Dominican strongman, has joined his father in accepting an assignment out of the country, the government disclosed today.

The younger Trujillo was preparing to leave for Geneva, where he will act as "adviser" to the Dominican delegation at a multinational trade conference. His father, the generalissimo, was appointed Thursday as ambassador to the United Nations. The government said he would attend the September session of the General Assembly.

(In Buenos Aires, Dominican exile sources said the Trujillo family faced an imminent military coup d'etat. They said the new assignments were made to allow the Trujillos, who have ruled for 30 years, to leave the country without causing alarm.

(Source close to the Venezuelan government believed Trujillo was attempting to remove himself and his family from the public limelight so as to obscure responsibility for recent actions of his government. The Trujillo regime currently is being bombarded by protests from Venezuela, Mexico

Attention To UFO Sighting Urged By LBJ

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Preparedness Subcommittee is under standing orders from Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson to keep a "close watch" on any new developments related to unidentified flying objects, a group of flying saucer watchers said today.

Johnson, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, also has directed the subcommittee staff to report to him any "significant" sightings of saucers along with an analysis of the Air Force investigation of them, the group said.

Retired Marine Maj. Donald E. Keyhoe, head of the group, called the National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena. (See ATTENTION, Page 3)

MAPLE SEEDS FROM SPACE—A new idea for recovering space capsules is under study by the Air Force. Helicopter-like rotary wings, working much like a spinning maple seed, are proposed to slow and guide the descent of missiles and other space vehicles. Photo, left, shows a forerunner of the idea which has been tested in more than 1,500 air drops by Kaman Aircraft Corp. Called Rotochute, it consists of a pod capable of floating about 200 pounds of cargo to the ground. Two rotor blades are attached to the hub. A spring snaps the blades from the folded position and gravity and air pressure combine to make them spin. Drawing, right, shows how the Rotochute might work with a space capsule as it re-enters the atmosphere.

Missing Judge Crater Files Are Still Open

By DOC QUIGG
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—Have you seen this man?

Description — born in the United States — age, 41 years; height, 6 feet; weight, 185 pounds; mixed grey hair, originally dark brown, thin at top, parted in middle, 'slicked' down; complexion, medium dark, considerably tanned; brown eyes; close teeth, upper and lower jaw.

This is a New York police circular, offering $5,000 for information leading to his location. But don't get excited. The reward period expired long ago. If alive, Judge Crater, the missing man, would be 71. He disappeared 30 years ago Saturday.

To the police Missing Persons Bureau, the Crater disappearance is still an "open case." The bureau has checked about 3,000 leads over the three decades; they're still coming in at a rate of five or six a year.

The latest, only a few weeks old, is from an informant who said he had known a man, now dead, who had a farm in Canada and who kept in his house a picture of himself as a youth. The informant claims that six or seven years later, he saw in a detective magazine, what appeared to him to be an identical picture — of Crater as a youth.

"The stuff is still coming in saying Judge Crater is here or there, and we check out all leads," said Lt. John Cronin, Missing Persons Bureau head. "And so far, nobody can say whether it was homicide, suicide, or voluntary absence. We just don't know. There isn't any concrete evidence to support any of the theories. You can speculate from now to doomsday."

Joseph Force Crater, New York Supreme Court justice, stepped out of Billy Haas' restaurant on West 45th St. about 9:15 p.m. Aug. 8, 1930, after dining with friends. A hot, 12-mile breeze was curling over the brownstones; it had been a 94-degree day, with three deaths due to heat.

Judge Crater wore a brown suit with a light stripe. He had left the vest at home. He hailed a cab, stepped in, and vanished westbound into the night and into one of the classic mysteries of American history.

The theories and reports are many and complicated. Did he flee an investigation of Tammany corruption? One was under way,

Argentina, Israel Call Kidnaping 'Closed Incident'

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Argentina and Israel announced Wednesday night they have agreed to regard the kidnaping of Nazi SS Col. Adolf Eichmann from this country as a "closed incident."

The Argentine courts, however, were expected to continue the investigation they began Wednesday into the circumstances in which Eichmann was spirited out of this country in May to stand trial in Israel for the wartime mass murder of European Jews.

A brief communique published simultaneously in Buenos Aires and Tel Aviv did not even mention Eichmann by name.

It said merely that "the governments of Argentina and Israel, with the purpose of complying with the resolution of the Security Council of the United Nations of June 23, 1960, expressing hope for improvement of the friendly relations traditionally maintained by both countries, resolve to consider closed the incident which issued from the action of Israeli nationals in detriment of the fundamental rights of the Argentine State."

Judge Crater was declared legally dead in 1937. Mrs. Crater and her long-time attorney, Emil K. Ellis, remain firmly convinced he was murdered. Ellis in the 1930's decided one June Brice had proof of the murder. When he found her, she was in a mental institution, too confused to make a statement.

Stella Crater has a book, "The Empty Robe," scheduled for fall publication by Doubleday. In it she will disclose that Crater kept his business and home life completely separated — so much so that on the day he was sworn in as a Supreme Court justice she didn't know anything about it until she picked up the paper, and flowers arrived from Al Smith and Jimmy Walker.

The new judge came home and said — well, this was business; at no time would he involve her in his business life.

She couldn't tell the police much when he vanished.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A U.S. Air Force enlisted man went AWOL from his unit at Shaw Air Force Base, Sumter, S.C., July 18 and returned to his native Cuba where he felt Fidel Castro was making a "dream come true."
"In going home to Castro's Cuba, Airman IC Serafin Raimundo Sanchez was bucking heavy traffic on a one-way street."
Since June, 1959, at least a score of Cuban government officials have become fed up with the bearded revolutionary regime and walked out. In addition, hundreds of ordinary Cuban citizens have been streaming into the United States.

in the bulldogging event when he wrestled his bull to the arena floor in eight seconds flat, the best time of the show so far.
Jay Henricks of Pampa turned in a 10.2 clocking in this event, but after that the times was 23.4 and Roy Devers skyrocketed to a 41 seconds flat.
Hummer, who hails from Perryton, had a remarkable time, considering the length of time it took him to catch his bull.
The bull broke from the chute, faced to the north end of the arena and came back to the center of the stadium before Hummer finally caught him.
Saddle bronc riders enjoyed the most prosperity last night, as seven of the eight entrants went the distance on their mounts.
Barrington, Billy Turner, Rusty Huff, Jimmy Moore, Leo McCarty, Bud Coffee and Reggie Stenson turned in successful rides. Bob Ellis was the only contestant who failed to post a time.
Half of the eight bareback bronc contestants tamed their steeds.
Terry Max Mangum, D. L. Cruzan, Bobby Wedeking and Henry Storm, George Frazier of Asperment was the man to beat in the calf roping division after the show last night, trapping his calf in a mere 14.5 seconds, the best time of the rodeo so far. Other times in this bracket ranged upward to 31.6 seconds.
An Aline, Okla., cowgirl, Virginia Watson, provided the most excitement in the cowgirls sponsored contest, circling the three barrels in 17.9 seconds. Jonnie Reynolds of Borger trailed her with an 18 flat clocking.
A veteran cutting horse from Nolan County, Jessie Jack, was the most impressive performance in the cutting horse contest. Judges awarded Jessie Jack, owned by C. E. Boyd of Sweetwater, 147 points for his showing.
Joe's Last, owned by James Kenney of Carlsbad, N. M., was second with 144 points.
Eight youths won calves in the double calf scramble.
In the Hemphill County scramble, calves were won by Johnny Schaefer, Tom Shahan, Stanley Swires and Tom Waters.
Scotty Daugherty, Roy Earl Brown, Mark Arrington and John Bridwell were the winners of the Roberts County scramble.
The show will get underway tonight at 8 at the rodeo arena. Tickets will be on sale at the rodeo office in the lobby of the Pampa Hotel until 4:30 p.m. They also will be sold at the gate.
General admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children. Reserved seats are 50 cents extra.

Kennedy Flies To New York

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI)—Sen. John F. Kennedy flies to New York today for a series of unrelated appointments bearing on his position as Democratic presidential nominee.
Kennedy was scheduled to land at LaGuardia field in his privately-owned twin-engine Convair transport plane in his first trip out of this resort community in almost three weeks.
First on his schedule in Manhattan was a meeting at the Overseas Press Club with editors and publishers of ethnic newspapers with circulations among various nationality groups.
Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's press secretary, said the ethnic newspaper executives were from New York, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia.
From there, Kennedy goes to the Time-Life Building for a 12:30 p.m. lunch with the editors of those two magazines. Then, he was to go to his family's apartment at 27 Park Ave., for a 2:30 p.m. lunch with the editors of the Cuban revolution said Thursday night Premier Fidel Castro has bred a hate campaign that has the island's people afraid of one another.

Japanese Scouts To Leave Today

The three Japanese Boy Scouts and their leader who have been visiting in Pampa and who traveled with the local Adobe Walls Council delegation to the National Jamboree in Colorado Springs, will leave here tonight for Lubbock. In Lubbock they will join other Japanese scouts visiting the United States and go by bus to Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. They will then fly to Japan.
The Japanese group attended the Rotary club meeting Wednesday and presented the Adobe Walls Council one of their national flags in appreciation of the Council serving as their host.
Yesterday the group flew with Mr. and Mrs. George Cree and Clayton Husted to the Cree Ranch in Oklahoma for a visit.
The local scouts have been host to the group since July 16. H. V. Wilks, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was in charge of planning for the visit.
The guests were: Yutaka Sumitani, Leader, Osaka-fu, Japan; Hirokata Hokkyo, 15, Hyogo-ken, Japan; Hitoshi Oshima, 13, Hyogo-ken, Japan; and Kenji-Yasuno, 18, Tokyo, Japan.

U.S. Backs Freedom, Dick Vows

By WARREN DUFFEE
United Press International
HONOLULU (UPI)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon declared Thursday night that the United States will never "tolerate being pushed around" and that it will stand with forces of freedom in West Berlin, Cuba or "wherever it is."
He told 11,000 people in Honolulu's picturesque Kapiolani Bowl on Waikiki Beach that the United States must be "firm without being belligerent" in foreign affairs. If he is the next president, Nixon served notice that the Soviets could expect negotiations only from a position of U.S. strength and only if there is a reasonable prospect for success.
Nixon spoke from a concert shell only a few hundred yards from the lapping waves at the climax of a two-day campaign romp over the 300-mile length of Hawaii's island chain.
The vice president was scheduled to fly at 12:35 p.m. e.d.t. today to Seattle for more campaigning.
Earlier, Nixon had told television interviewers that if elected he would take more direct control of foreign policy than President Eisenhower did.
"It is essential that the president directly assume control and consolidation of non-military policy," he said in response to questions on a show that, oddly, was never broadcast because of technical difficulties.
But Nixon said these remarks were not a criticism of President Eisenhower. "The situation is changing and conditions will be different in the next few years."
In his Kapiolani Bowl speech, Nixon stressed again his idea of putting his running mate, Henry

Rodeo Notes

Arena announcer Nat Fleming told last night's crowd why all the Brahma bulls were identified by number instead of name.
"They don't need a name," Fleming said. "Any one of the cowboys can easily identify them, just by their number."
Police Chief Jim Conner says the job of parking the cars inside the arena grounds is becoming easier each year.
"It seems to get a little easier," Conner said. "Most drivers seem to be cooperating with police officers very well."
"I haven't heard any of the patrolmen say anything about having trouble with any motorists."
Highway Patrolman Standley Schneider said the same thing holds true with traffic entering and leaving the rodeo grounds.
"Every thing seems to be moving smoothly," Schneider said.
Texas Ranger Captain Raymond Waters of Lubbock, commander of Company C, was the guest of local Ranger Bill "Smile" at last night's performance.
But the two most thrilled spectators in the entire arena seem to be young Randy Hensle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hensle, and Ann MacMurty of Silverton, grand daughter of Gray County Sheriff and Mrs. Rufey Jordan.

RUTH MILLETT

The only boys who won't date a teen-age girl because her parents are "strict" are the kind she shouldn't be dating, anyhow.

That's my answer to a teen-age reader who thinks her parents don't trust her. They want to know where she is going, insist on meeting her dates, and want her back home no later than twelve o'clock. The girl is fifteen and a sophomore in high school.

She writes: "Most of my friends can do as they please because their parents trust them. Half of the time their parents aren't even home when they have dates and they certainly don't think they have to meet the boy."

"They can come in any time they please, too, because their concern for your welfare and to be grateful for the love that prompts them to do what they know is right instead of taking the easy way of letting you do as you please — as some of your friends' parents do."

No decent boy is going to think less of you for such parental concern and supervision. In fact, most of the boys you meet will have more respect for you because your parents obviously cherish you enough to try and protect you.

There's another thing you ought to know. Your parents aren't showing any lack of trust in you by wanting to meet your dates and wanting to know where you are going and by wanting you home at a reasonable hour.

That's their duty as parents — just as it is your duty as their daughter to not only respect their wishes but to try to appreciate their loving concern.

There's a trend toward the use of more leather on handbag frames.

Pride Big Price To Pay For Misery

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please tell UNDECIDED to remarry her first husband, whatever the cost in pride—especially if they have children.

Twelve years ago, when my husband was in medical school, we were married. I worked to help put him through school. The long hours of studying, plus trying to raise two babies, and doing without vacations, created tension and bickering between us. So we got a divorce. A few years later he remarried. So did I.

Last week he flew to our city and we went together to witness the high school graduation of our son. We both realized what a horrible mistake our divorce was. We know now that had we stuck together and worked out our problems, we could have had a successful marriage. We discussed it openly. I still love him, and he says he still loves me. We have lost so much! But it's too late now. We each have someone else to console.

"MATURED"

DEAR ABBY: I would like to tell UNDECIDED to forget about remarrying her first husband. I remarried the same man THREE times, and it didn't work.

I was miserable with him and miserable without him. The mental and physical torture I suffered from this man could fill a book, but I couldn't leave well enough alone.

I finally went to a psychiatrist who introduced me to myself. I discovered that this brute of a husband provided me with the punishment I felt I needed. When I realized the truth, and accepted it, I no longer needed him. If I never see that bum again, it will be too soon.

GOOD RIDDANCE

DEAR ABBY: I had the same problem as "UNDECIDED", only I waited too long to make up my mind. My husband and I were divorced after 15 years of marriage and four beautiful children. I never stopped loving him, but I wanted to "teach him a lesson" by making him wait so when he begged me to take him back, I kept putting it off.

Five weeks ago he was injured in an auto accident. He died in a hospital bed. My heart aches for all the things we left unsaid and for all the precious time we wasted apart. Please, please, listen to me. Take your husband back and may God unite and bless your home soon. You are the luckiest woman on earth to have the chance.

MATURE PARENT

Dr. T was the respected physician in a farming community that could not afford big medical fees. Because he loved his work, his modest earnings didn't matter to him.

Then, as his children grew, his wife, an alumna of a girls' exclusive prep school began to worry about their education. When her old school accepted their daughter, Dr. T made his decision.

Giving up his medical practice, he took an administrative position in a big city insurance corporation that guaranteed him an impressive income and other financial advantages.

His children are delightful young people. But when they come home on vacation from their expensive prep schools and colleges, you cannot help noticing a certain impatience in their attitude toward their father.

Though in his early 50s, he has developed the old man's habit of boastful reminiscence.

To his children and any friends they bring home he'll say:

"That reminds me of the time I removed an appendix by candlelight. There'd been a big blizzard and all the lines were down. Wonderful woman, Mrs. Regan."

"When her boy regained consciousness, she kissed my hand before I could stop her. She still writes to me. Jimmy's got his own garage now, she says. . ."

As the delightful children have heard the tale of Jimmy Regan's appendix a thousand times, they no longer even pretend to listen to it respectfully. And Dr. T, suddenly growing silent, will excuse himself and leave the room.

This is sad and inevitable. For when we deny ourselves what we need for children, we can't help becoming dependent on their appreciation of our sacrifices. Like Dr. T we can't help becoming bored.

As old people will try to fill the emptiness of their present lives by glorifying their past ones, so the self-sacrificing parent always lives in the past.

Having denied his own sense of worth, he must beg his children to restore it to him by continually reminding them of how good he was, how much he gave up for them and how everyone thought he was wonderful.

In these reminiscences of past virtue he appeals for the appreciation that he was unable to give to himself.

He never gets it, of course. The children's impatient feeling is: "If you were so wonderful, why do you have to talk about it all the time? Why can't we change the subject?"

Paris Milliners, Hairdressers Decree Towering Hats, Short Sleek Hairdos

By GAY PAULEY
United Press International
PARIS (UPI)—Get set, girls for towering hats and sleek, short hairdos for the months ahead.

Paris designers so decreed in a show which kicked off a week-long fashion extravaganza which the Chambre Syndicale de la Couture Parisienne stages twice a year.

Today, members of the Chambre got down to the business of silhouette, hemline, waistline, and fabric of clothes in general, with Jacques Griffe the lead-off designer.

By the end of the week, 38 members of the Chambre, organized to promote French styles, will have shown their fall and winter collections to reporters and buyers.

But Sunday night, hats and hairdos took precedence over all other facets of fashion. For the first time, 21 designers—some of them strictly milliners, some creators of the whole wardrobe—cooperated in a hat and hair style show at one of the Eiffel Tower's two restaurants.

The tower was a most appropriate setting, for the hats were tall peaked cones, stovepipes, puffy turbans right out of Arabian nights, domes and spirals some an easy 12 inches high.

"Why the Eiffel Tower for our show?" said the commentator. "Because it is the top hat of Paris . . . has been for 70 years . . . it is fitting place to mark the wedding between millinery and the hairdressers."

Before the hats went on, the models paraded the coiffures from Paris' leading hairdressers. Most cuts were short, just barely touching the nape of the neck. Several came with bangs. A few hinted at the upsweep of World War II years. But almost all were without curl, and only the suggestion of waves.

"Well, there goes a dent in my business," moaned Samuel Frishberg, a New York manufacturer of hair curling equipment.

Excessive glare through a picture window can be remedied by applying a new alkyl-based liquid plastic which reduces both annoying brightness and the fading effects of sunlight.

numerous collars on suits and for hair-covering hats. One coat was all golden amber fox with the skins set horizontally.

Buyers from the United States were confident that American women would go for the House of Dior's new loose-fitting style, no matter what it does to the figure.

"The women will wear it and the men will like it," said one woman executive as she left the Dior show for buyers Wednesday.

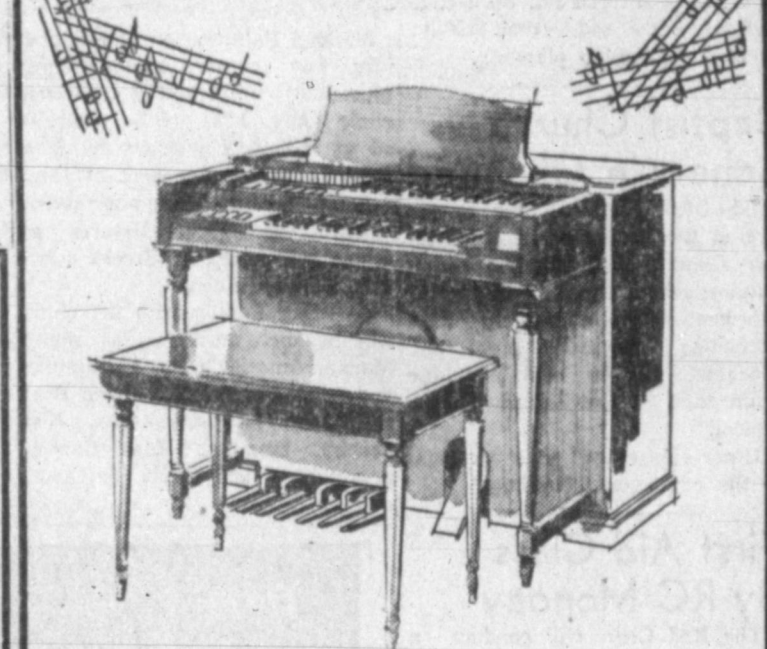

Dior's silhouette wiped out the normal waistline and placed it anywhere from upper hipbone to upper thigh, dwarfed the bosom and left the only curves to be flounced and gathered skirts.

There was no doubt that Yves Mathieu St. Laurent, Dior's chief designer, pleased the buyers.

"I loved the collection," said Kay Kerr, vice president and fashion director of Neiman-Marcus, Dallas, Tex. "I was glad to see that loosened silhouette. . . to have the short skirts reiterated."

"The chic girl will buy the looser silhouette," said Miss Kerr. "So will any other woman when she realizes how comfortable it is."

By United Press International
Today is Friday, Aug. 5, the 218th day of the year, with 148 more in 1960.

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Mercury.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:
In 1850, French writer Guy de Maupassant was born.
In 1858, the first cable across the Atlantic Ocean was completed.
In 1861, for the first time in history, the U.S. government levied a tax on income.
In 1912, the Progressive Party held its first political convention in Chicago and nominated Theodore Roosevelt as presidential candidate.
In 1917, the entire National Guard of the U.S. was drafted into the Army.
In 1949, a violent earthquake in Ecuador killed about 6,000 persons.

Thought for today: U. S. President Theodore Roosevelt said: "No man is justified in doing evil on the ground of expediency."

Sunday Services Set For First Methodist

"What About Your Ancestors?" will be the sermon topic-discussed by the pastor, Woodrow Adcock, at the two morning services of the First Methodist Church.

Sunday evening fellowship will begin at 8:00 p.m. with a light supper for the entire family in Fellowship Hall. At 8:30 p.m. children, youth, and adults will separate for one hour of planned activities, according to interest and needs. Rev. Adcock will continue the adult study of the Bible in the Friendship Classroom.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Oppenheimer & Co. doesn't expect a quick reversal in the gradual decline in general economic activity. One of the few in the nation to suggest an unfavorable outlook six months ago, the firm had this to say about the future: "While business will in time recover, there is little reason to assume that confidence (as reflected by increased orders, production, and in turn, profits) can be revitalized quickly."

The Sunday night service at 7:30 will be conducted by the pastor who will speak on the subject, "The Son Who Would Not Come In!" The special music for the evening will be a solo by Miss Bettie Tatum. Laymen's retreat at Ceta Canyon begins Friday, with the evening meal at 8 and closes with the noon meal Sunday. Over 600 Methodist laymen from the Northwest Texas Conference will participate in the study, worship, inspiration, and fellowship. Laymen interested in attending may contact Loyce Caldwell, Dr. Ed Williams, Fred Cary, or Jack Skelly.

Catechism Helps In Training Adults In Race Relations Area

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International
The Most Rev. Albert L. Fletcher, Catholic bishop of Little Rock, Ark., has come up with a novel solution to a problem that concerns church leaders of all denominations, in the North as well as the South.

The problem is how to get across, to thinking adults, the full import of Christian teachings about race relations. Bishop Fletcher's solution was to write a catechism. His newly-published "Elementary Catholic Catechism on the Morality of Segregation and Racial Discrimination" resembles superficially the catechisms which have been used for centuries in the religious training of children. It is cast in the customary format of questions and answers.

But it is written on the adult level, and is intended primarily for use in adult discussion groups. Catechisms are supposed to be forthright, and Bishop Fletcher has been true to that tradition. His little 17-page booklet mimes no words.

It states at the outset: "Segregation as we know it in Arkansas is immoral." Why is it immoral? "Because it discriminates unjustly and uncharitably against human beings on the basis of race alone." Here are some of the other questions and answers in the catechism: Q. What is the church's stand on racism? A. The church condemns racism as contrary to its teaching that all men are inherently and naturally equal, and have the same dignity as children of God; are derived from the same first human parents and are redeemed by the same Savior.

Q. Does not history show that certain races and nationalities are superior to others? A. Certain races as a whole may, at a particular time in history, excel other races and nationalities as a whole, in material, intellectual or social advancement. But in spite of these superior developments, or lack of them, the church has always taught that there is no fundamental difference between the races, which would make one race intrinsically superior or inferior to other races. Q. What is the habit of racial prejudice? A. A vice which inclines a person to prejudice a race or any of its members on the basis of race alone, without considering existing merits or demerits. Q. When is racial prejudice sinful? A. It is a sin when a person willfully gives consent to (a) feelings of racial prejudice or hatred, or (b) deliberate thoughts, desires, words, actions or omissions which the vice of prejudice inspires.

Financial Review

UPI Financial Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—The nation's retailers are counting on record personal income to help make 1955 a banner sales year. Total retail volume is expected to reach $225 billion, a gain of 4 to 5 per cent over 1954. Top retail executives remain fairly optimistic about prospects for second half sales despite some apprehension over the short-term state of the economy voiced in many circles.

To reach this record sales figure, better year-to-year comparisons will be needed during the important fall and year-end seasons since the first half gain was only 3.1 per cent, according to Standard and Poor. The statistical agency notes, however, that comparisons over the coming months will be against some slowing of the year's earlier pace when demand was affected by the steel strike and unseasonable weather.

There were some diverse movements in consumer demand in the first six months this year. Sales got off to a low start in the early months because of adverse weather in many areas. A sharp gain was chalked up in April, partly reflecting a late Easter, but gains in May and June were again rather limited.

Standard and Poor says demand in various sectors during the first half reflected effects of the steel strike, and of unemployment. In addition, consumers apparently were more anxious to reduce debt or increase savings, than to purchase goods. Another factor was price cutting in the appliance field which may have led to some deferral of demand in expectation of further price reductions.

Retailers see the combination of record personal income, deferred buying and improved consumer finances through debt reduction and savings all contributing to a sales gain of as much as 3 per cent in the last half over the like 1954 period. Apparel stores, which did considerably better than other segments of the trade during the first half, are expected to continue this showing in the latter half. These stores benefited from a good Easter season and from additional sales from new stores opened by leading chains.

REDS WARN BRITAIN
LONDON (UPI) — Radio Moscow said Monday it would be dangerous for Britain to permit Polaris-equipped American submarines the use of British ports. "We in the U.S.S.R. consider that this agreement is harmful and dangerous," the program said. It said the government of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan is giving America "an additional possibility to involve Britain in various provocations against peace."

RED WINS
MERRILL, Wis. (UPI) — To keep things straight, Jack Wendt and his wife, Joyce, will call their newborn daughter Jenny. The couples other seven children are Jerry, Joel, Jim, Jan, Jill, Jeanne and Julie.

Jacoby On Bridge

BY OSWALD FACOBY
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
With today's hand we take leave of "Spotlight on Card Play." South has a slightly shaded two-no-trump bid, but who doesn't shade them?
North's three-club bid is a Stayman response and after South shows his four card heart suit North takes him to game. West opens the jack of clubs and South had no trouble in deciding to play low from dummy. He is sure that West would not lead from a king after a two no-trump opening.

East plays the king and here is where we separate the men from the boys, South must let that king hold the trick.
East can lead anything back, but probably will try a spade. South wins; plays ace and another diamond for a ruff in dummy; and leads a heart. If West wins and plays a second club East can ruff or not as he chooses. If he does not ruff South loses up losing two clubs and the ace of trumps. If he does ruff South loses the ace of trumps, a ruff and just one club.

In other words if East ruffs he will be ruffing a trick that South had to lose anyway. Should South win the first club with the ace he would go down. West would take his ace of hearts and lead the 10 of clubs where up East would be able to ruff dummy's queen.

FLOATING BOWLING BALL
MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Authorities deluged with calls during Wednesday's heavy rainstorm, were startled when one woman complained "my husband's floating on a bowling ball."
When she calmed down, the woman explained that her husband placed a bowling ball over a sewer drain in the basement and sat on it hoping to keep water from seeping in. He failed, she said.

REYNOLDS & CO. reports that the textile industry apparently has entered a period of recovery from the depression that had prevailed since 1951. With the industry now on a sounder footing and faced with the prospects of a rising market, textile equities could experience not only rising per share earnings but also a greatly increased market appraisal of the higher profits, the advisory service points out. "Indeed, it is possible that textile stocks could be one of the outstanding industry groups in the 1950's."

Standard and Poor says demand in various sectors during the first half reflected effects of the steel strike, and of unemployment. In addition, consumers apparently were more anxious to reduce debt or increase savings, than to purchase goods. Another factor was price cutting in the appliance field which may have led to some deferral of demand in expectation of further price reductions.

REYNOLDS & CO. says Upjohn appears poised for a resumption of the upward move. During its recent reaction, the firm adds, the issue managed to hold its ground and has been receiving increased support during the past few sessions.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

JIM SCOTT
Chairman of Prayer Groups and Fellowships

The Youth of Pampa are working on another Mountaintop experience such as the Pampa Pilgrimage, this will be the PAMPA REVIVAL, AUGUST 8 THROUGH 14, beginning at 8:00 in the First Methodist Church. Mert Cooper called together the pastors and youth of many denominations, and the idea of the Pampa Revival was submitted and highly endorsed.

"Our most valuable possessions are those which can be shared without lessening; those which, when shared, multiply. Our least valuable possessions are those which, when divided, are diminished."

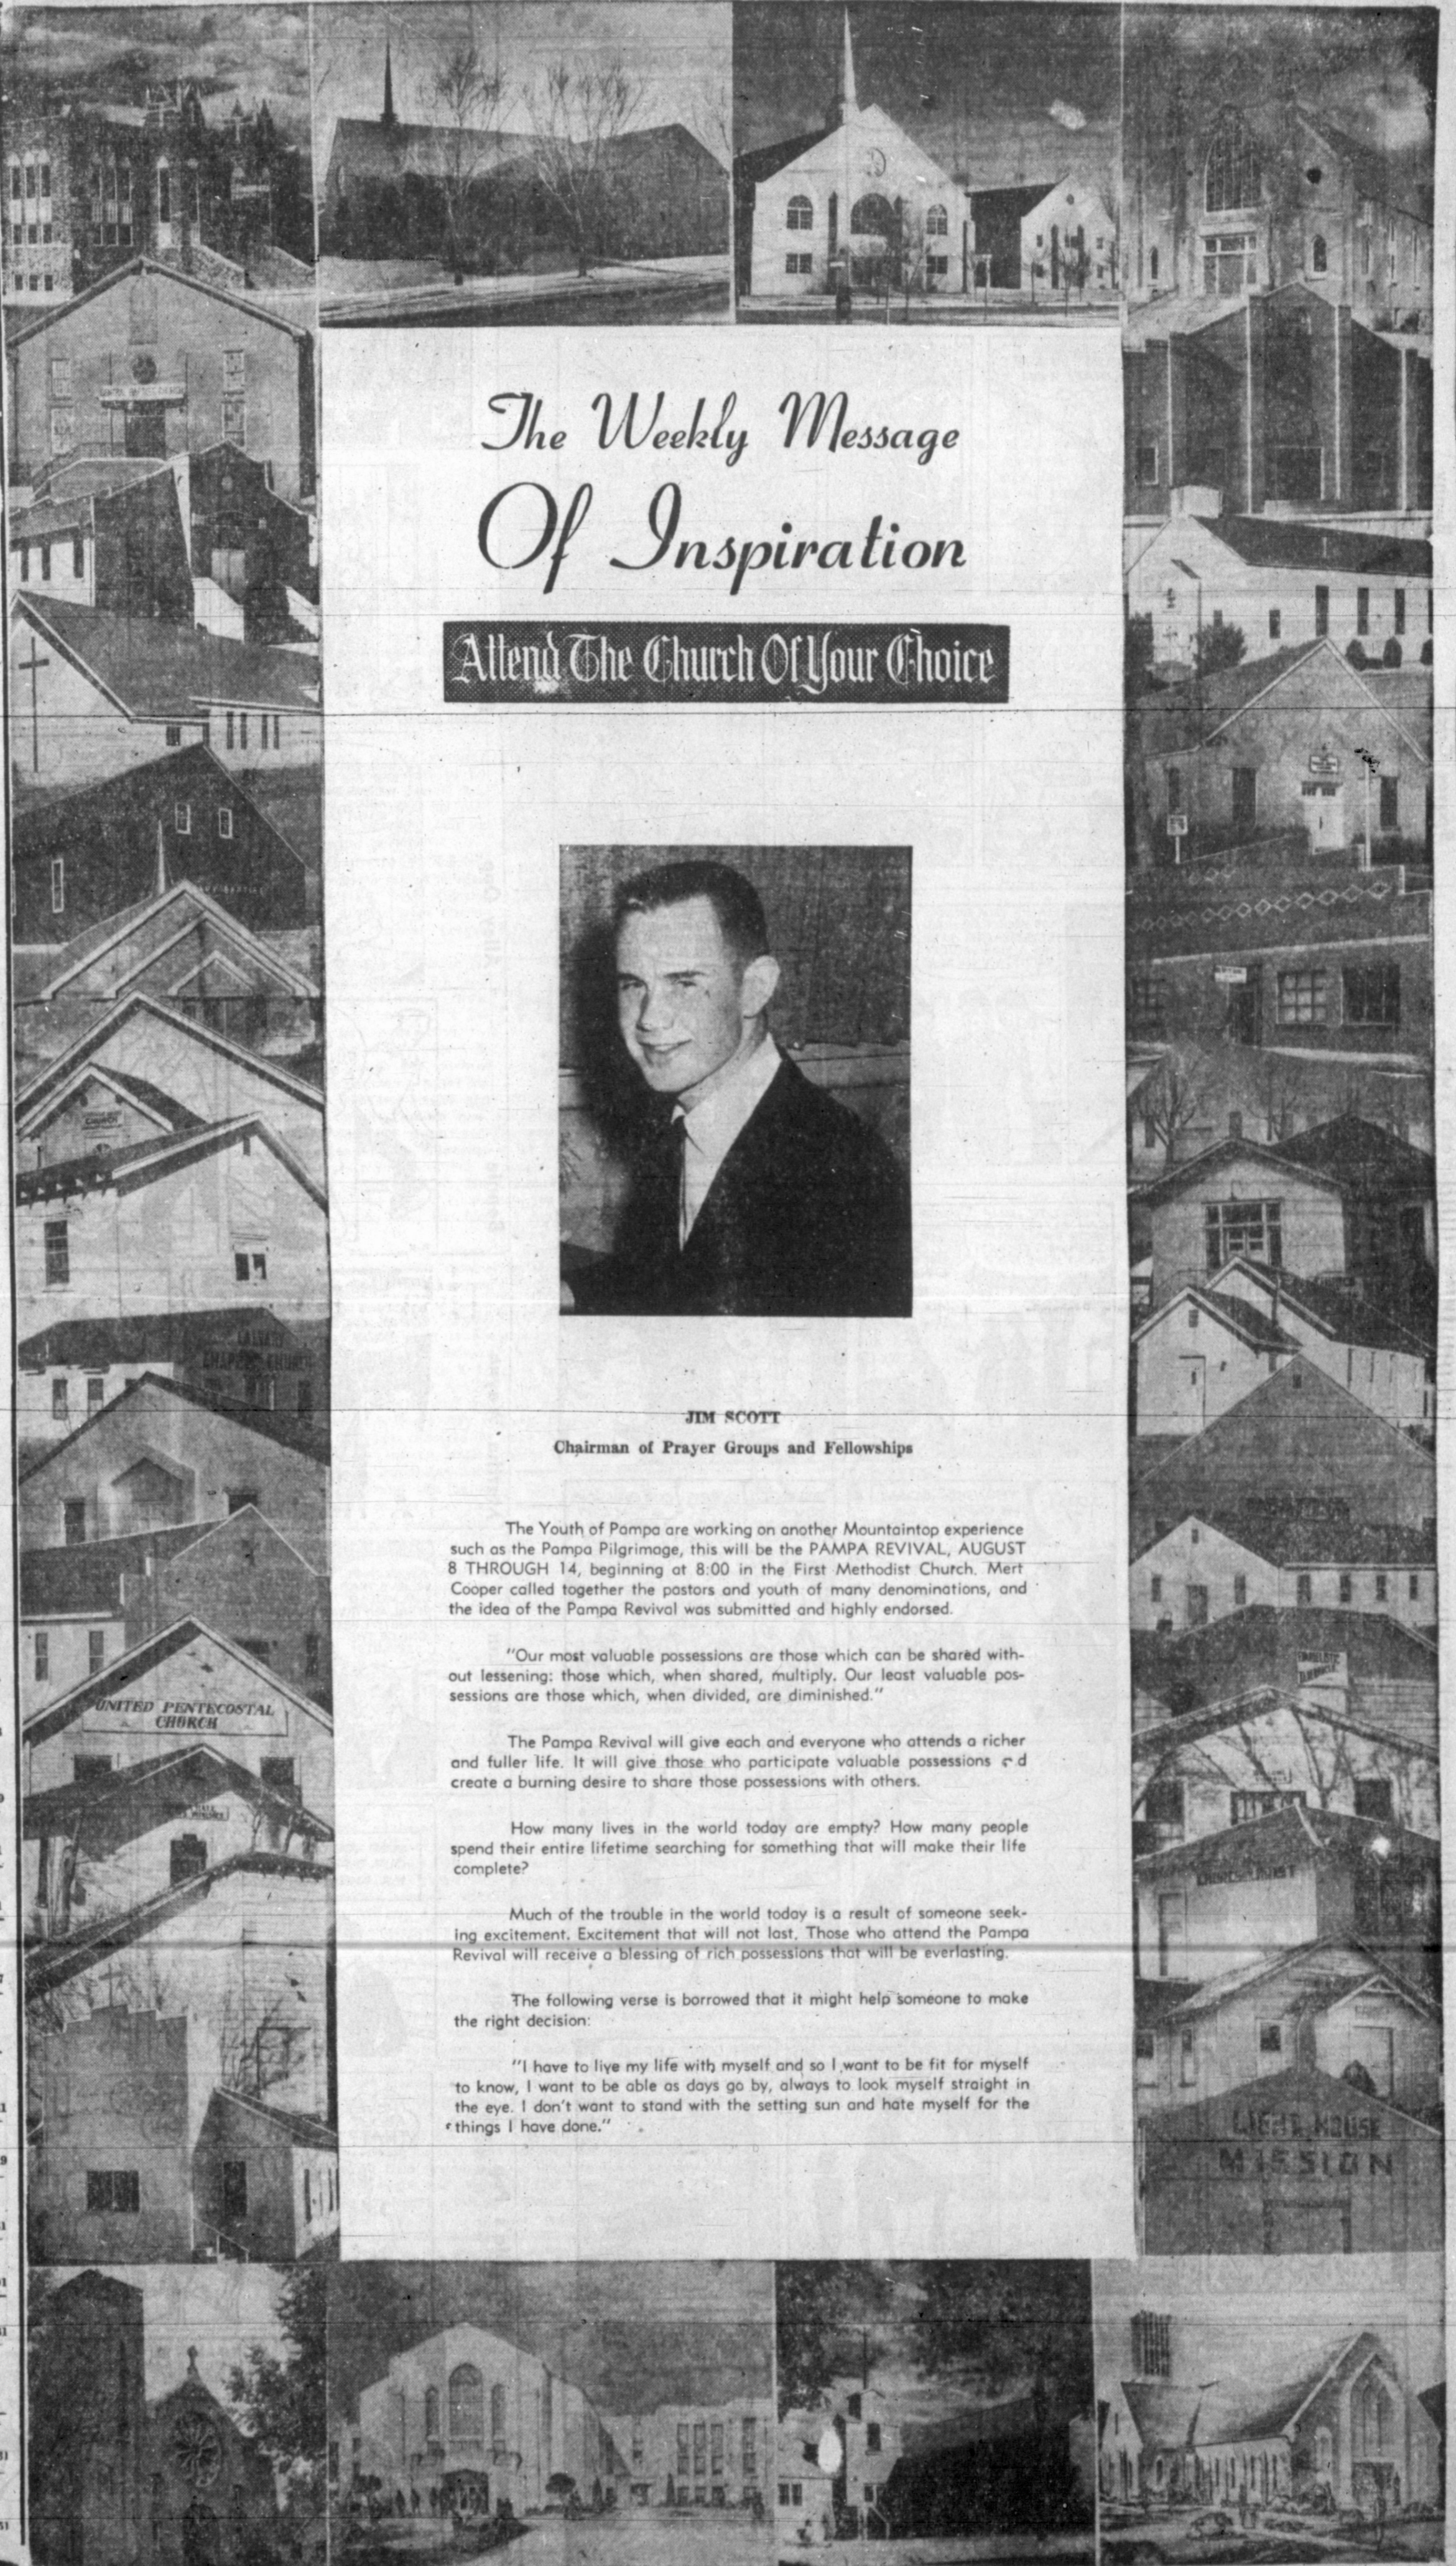

The Pampa Revival will give each and everyone who attends a richer and fuller life. It will give those who participate valuable possessions and create a burning desire to share those possessions with others.

How many lives in the world today are empty? How many people spend their entire lifetime searching for something that will make their life complete?

Much of the trouble in the world today is a result of someone seeking excitement. Excitement that will not last. Those who attend the Pampa Revival will receive a blessing of rich possessions that will be everlasting.

The following verse is borrowed that it might help someone to make the right decision:

"I have to live my life with myself and so I want to be fit for myself to know, I want to be able as days go by, always to look myself straight in the eye. I don't want to stand with the setting sun and hate myself for the things I have done."

Lost: Two All-America Players

Can a team lose two all-America football players and still win a conference championship?

Abe Martin, football magician at Texas Christian University, will have the answer to that question not too many weeks hence.

The Horned Frogs, who were involved in a tie with Texas and Arkansas for the Southwest Conference championship last fall have lost two all-Americas to graduation.

Gone are Jack Spikes, one of the finest fullbacks to ever romp over a SWC turf, and Donald Floyd, the legendary tackle who gained all-America honors for two straight campaigns.

The replacements who are scheduled to step into their shoes are of doubtful gridiron reputation for the most part.

Max Pierce, a senior from Gorman, is due to be the starting fullback. As a reserve last year, Pierce carried the ball 11 times and gained 39 yards.

He will be an entirely different type fullback than Spikes was. Spikes weighed 220 pounds and was used as a battering ram. Pierce, at 195, is a speedster and treacherous in a broken field.

Ted Crenwelge, a 205-pound senior from Houston, will move up to the starting left tackle slot Floyd vacated when he was graduated and signed by the Houston Oilers. He played 156 minutes last fall and earned his first varsity letter.

Wonder Where The Little Car Went?

The Frogs should have another all-America tackle this fall—Robert Lilly, a 6-5, 250-pound senior from Throckmorton.

LSU Coach Paul Dietzel praised Lilly even more highly than he did Floyd following TCU's 9-0 loss to the Tigers last year.

Although Lilly closely resembles a giant, he has a sense of humor. One of his favorite past times always brings a chuckle or two around the TCU campus.

He'll invariably be returning to his dormitory from a class and spy a small, foreign car parked at the curb.

His usual procedure is to drop his books and move the car out of the parking place and up on the sidewalk—picking up the front end and hoisting it up over the curb, and then lifting the back end and carrying it around to the sidewalk.

Lilly moves the opposition with the same ease.

Two of the Frogs noted opponents last fall had nothing but praise for the Throckmorton mountaineer.

Said Jack Collins, Texas halfback: "When he tackles, he sort of wraps around you and smother you."

"He stands there and takes blocks like a pin cushion," chimed in Texas center, Bill Laughlin. "You can't move him."

And what does Abe Martin think? "He's simply the best lineman I've ever coached," Martin praised. "What tremendous physical and football ability in one neat package. He has made some outstanding plays at TCU, and he'll make some more."

Pampa Enjoys Unique Position

Pampa enjoyed a rather unique position last night.

Those who listened to the broadcast of the coaching school all-star basketball game over KHHH were a select few—no other station in the state aired the contest.

When program director Rocky Randall arranged the broadcasting of tonight's all-star grid classic, he also agreed to a package deal which included the basketball contest.

Station WRR in Dallas provided the network facilities for the all-star games, but station manager Roy Parks said the Pampa station was the only one in the state to air the basketball game.

Lila Austin of Pampa, was consolation winner. Awards in the second flight went to winner Nell Carson and consolation winner Carol Klar.

Marian Bradley took top honors in the third flight, and Eva Kitchens was awarded consolation prize. Fourth flight winner was Junita Jones.

Trophies were presented at a party yesterday afternoon at the Country Club.

Activity was limited to six flights—one nine hole bracket, and five flights in the 18-hole division.

First flight winner was Mae Mount Vernon, George Washington with Ruth Baxley as consolation winner. Awards in the consolation flight went to winner Nell Carson and consolation winner Carol Klar.

Winner in the nine-hole flight was Mary Whittington, and consolation winner was Mrs. Albert Lard.

More than a million people visit Mount Vernon, George Washington's estate, every year.

United Press International
DALLAS (UPI)—The South, heartened by its first basketball victory in six years, tries to snap a similar drought on the football front tonight in the 26th annual Texas North-South All-Star grid classic in the Cotton Bowl.

The basketball contest, played before 5,642 fans in Memorial Coliseum, followed the pre-game script, which had favored the South, but, if form holds true, tonight the South's dream of a sweep will be broken. The North is a slight favorite to win its fifth straight and 14th in the 26-game series.

A bundle of energy in the form of Rick Kaminsky of Houston Bellaire and wide superiority at the free throw line was responsible for the South's 68-58 basketball triumph—its first since 1954, also in Dallas.

The 6-1 Bayou City product, who has picked Ivy League Yale as his college playing ground, scored 19 points with eight field goals and three gratis shots and won overwhelming endorsement of sports writers as the game's outstanding player with 19 of the 22 ballots cast.

Kaminsky was all over the floor on defense, served as the South's playmaker and teamed with his hometown buddy, Larry Phillips of Houston Jones, to put the game out of reach in the final five minutes after Kaminsky had pulled his team into a tie at 52-52—the 11th knotted score of the well-played contest.

The South actually won the game at the free throw line by sinking 28 of 38 free shots as compared with 16 of 26 for the North. But, it also was more proficient from the floor, dropping 20 of 49 shots for a 40.8 accuracy percentage as compared with 21 of 58 at 36.2 per cent for the North.

At that, the victors had to wipe out a 39-33 deficit piled up by the North late in the third quarter on the strength of some sterling outside shooting by Dave Somerville of Dallas Jefferson, the loser's high point man with 11 points.

The South had led 17-4 at the end of the first quarter but trailed 27-24 at halftime as second stringers took over in the second quarter.

The North suffered in rebounding strength when its 6-8 Mike Marsh of Midland drew his fourth foul early in the third period, sat out most of the quarter and then drew his banishment penalty with five minutes to go in the game. That's when Kaminsky, et al. took over.

New York Best Choice

Hopes Of Expansion

By TIM MORIARTY
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—New York and Minneapolis-St. Paul are the strongest contenders but Buffalo is the city best prepared for admission to the major leagues, a United Press International survey revealed today.

A city-by-city check of the eight bidders for the four open berths in baseball's expansion program also showed that Toronto and Atlanta presently lack adequate major league stadiums while Denver's chief drawback is its comparatively sparse population.

Here is a rundown of the franchise seekers:
New York—Presumably can't miss as a new National League entry. If team is granted a franchise for 1961, it will play its games in Yankee Stadium. Hopes to play in new city-built stadium on Long Island in '62.

Minneapolis-St. Paul—A solid bet to win an American League franchise. The Twin Cities have a combined population of 1,477,080. The recently-constructed Minneapolis Metropolitan Stadium has 22,000 seats but can be expanded to 40,000. Both cities drew well in American Association last season.

Buffalo—Branch Rickey claims this community-owned team is "the most ready" for major league baseball. Owns 14 players outright. Played before 425,000 fans in winning the International League pennant in 1959. Boasts a new stadium seating 35,000 and its metropolitan area is the 14th largest in the nation.

Toronto—Jack Kent Cooke, owner of the Toronto club in the International League, ready to make a strong pitch for NL franchise. Current club has a strong major league nucleus, is running away with the IL pennant. Metropolitan population is 1,490,200. Team uses Maple Leaf Stadium, built in 1926 and seats only 18,000. Most city fathers against financing new stadium.

Atlanta—Present team in Southern Association using a stadium with only 13,500 seats. A stadium authority was set up by the legislature with the right to issue bonds for construction of a new field but no solid action taken. Metropolitan area population is 1,015,000.

Houston—Two groups bidding for franchise. Present stadium

Stout Slated As Yankee Starter

By LEE GRIMSLEY
Daily News Sports Editor

DALLAS — The Yankees will pick cotton in the backyard of the Rebels tonight.

At least that's the opinion of sports writers who are on hand for tonight's North-South all-star football game which will be staged at the mammoth Cotton Bowl.

The occasion is the 26th annual renewal of the contest, held in conjunction with the Texas High School Coaches Association week-long clinic.

The North, which boasts some of the best high school gridmen in the state, including all-state Pampa tackle Benny Stout, is listed as a solid seven-point favorite.

Coach Emory Ballard, the former Breckenridge mentor who will be guiding the Yankees, has a star-studded crew at his disposal. Aside from Stout, he has such standout linemen as Benny Shields, 225-pound tackle from Wichita Falls; Fred Polser, 215-pound tackle from Fort Worth Carter-Riverside; and David Parks, Abilene's splendid 180-pound wingman.

But the North will excel even more in the secondary. As signal callers, Ballard can choose from Jerry Rhome, the Dallas Sunset schoolboy who was picked as an all-America this year, or Jerry Gibson, a tricky quarterback from Breckenridge, who was an all-star too.

The Yankees' ground game will be explosive. Billy Gannon of Highland Park, Dick Hayes of Snyder and Geary Taylor of Tascosa, will take a back seat to no one.

The South can count on the service of a rugged line, but Port Arthur coach Clarence Underwood has only one great runner in his stable.

This would be the fabulous Hix Green of San Antonio Jefferson. The fleet 170-pounder has been so impressive during his schoolboy career that Alamo City grid fans say he is a working combination of Donk Walker and Kyle Rote.

The North has had tremendous success in this series, which dates back to 1935. The Yankees have been victorious in 13 contests while the South has only won nine. There have been three ties.

A crowd of 25,000 is expected to be in the Cotton Bowl to witness the 8 p.m. kickoff.

A play-by-play account of the game can be heard in Pampa over radio station KHHH.

Eddie Hill, well known football announcer on the Southwest Conference network, will describe the game.

There also will be a pre-game interview with Pampa coach Babe Curfman, who has been attending the clinic this week.

Pro-Con Of 'Rugged'

It is rather certain that Francis L. K. Hsu, anthropologist from Northwestern University, and Henry M. Wriston, president of the American Assembly at Columbia, have widely divergent views.

In a recent story in a Denver newspaper, Professor Hsu charged that the problems we face today, from excessive emphasis upon sex to tax evasion, probably stem from America's pioneer reliance upon "rugged individualism."

Henry M. Wriston, writing first for the Wall Street Journal and having his writings condensed and presented as the lead article in the August Reader's Digest, commented that our problems today can be traced to the 30's which was the period in which we lost our "rugged individualism."

The one would have us abandon individualism, the other reclaim it. Let's see how Hsu bolsters his position. He says that the quality of individualism, particularly in its "rugged" extreme, creates "militant self-reliance, fierce competitiveness and aggressive creativity."

He goes on to add that these characteristics "lift all taboos, or at least shake the foundations of all of them, in American life and thought."

He lists six results of rugged individualism as: 1. Laxness in sexual morality. 2. Corruption. 3. Conformity, especially in sexual matters.

4. Racial and religious prejudice. 5. The reliance upon organizations. 6. Unrealism, since the rugged individual can't admit the equality of any other person.

Without having to turn to Wriston for support we can pretty well shoot Hsu's arguments full of holes. If there is any truth to points one and two above, we would submit that there may have been some confusion in the minds of persons respecting what it takes to be a true individualist.

Doubtless there are those who class themselves as individualists who fancy they can prove the point by ignoring moral rules and by riding roughshod over everyone. This, however, were Hsu to take a moment to analyze it, would est-

Captive Natives

The week beginning July 17th has already passed. Belatedly, we learned that it was officially proclaimed: "Captive Nations Week."

Thru the long years since the ending of World War II, Soviet imperialism has advanced thru Asia and Europe. Nation after Nation has shifted its position toward the Kremlin. Now, in 1960, a week was proclaimed on behalf of these "Captive Nations."

Certainly, there are few of us as Americans who are unmoved by the tragedy of the advancing Red juggernaut. The peoples who live in these various countries around the world have fallen upon evil times. We grieve for them and hope that they can find the courage to throw off the badge of ignominy which is now pinned to their collars.

But there is far more to this "Captive Nations Week" proclamation than meets the eye. And those who are truly interested in freedom will experience something in the nature of a sinking feeling when they become aware that one of the great purposes of the presidential proclamation respecting the Captive Nations is to strengthen the United Nations.

Those who are familiar with the sapping of the sovereignty of our separate states by the power of the federal government here, can only view the strengthening of the United Nations with misgivings. Too well they recognize that any strengthening of the U.N. will reflect in a weakening of the principles of freedom and independence upon which this nation was founded. There is far too much trust and confidence in the force and effectiveness of political agencies. While they may be strong (the principal merit of the U.N. at the moment is that it is not strong), they are rarely if ever correct in a moral sense.

There is yet another matter which should be mentioned here. It is the fact that aside from a small minority in most of the so-called captive nations, the powers that be in each of them have welcomed the overlordship of the Soviet. While we may take to our bosoms those minorities to comfort them and to make loud noises in their behalf, we must also candidly admit that they are minorities. The majority powers in each of the captive nations have gone along and are going along with Soviet objectives.

And this brings us to a point far more important and much closer to home. For as we bewail the fate of the captive nations abroad, most of whom have brought disaster upon themselves, we should take a much closer look at the condition of our captive natives right here in America.

For the American taxpayers have become the serfs of the governmental ruling body, and on our blood, sweat and tears, the political tyranny of most of the world makes feast. We are the down-trodden. We are being drained by the octopus - like tentacles of the Internal Revenue Service, et al, for the purpose of promoting political dependence. Our money is going to bolster, not the minorities in these various captive places, but to bolster the majority in power.

So while we shed a tear for the plight of our European and Asiatic brothers ground down by the heel of their oppressor, a brief moment of insight will cause us to inquire, who will shed a tear for us?

Never before in the history of the world has a successful nation been so thoroughly oppressed, not by outside invaders, but by its own political leadership. We are the exploited. The politicians in Washington, D.C., and elsewhere have attained financial madness. We are treated like peons, only good enough to work and labor from sun to sun so that taxes can be collected and so that our surpluses be sent around the world to other nations in support of the concept that Aristotle first uttered: "Some men are born to rule; others, to be ruled."

It appears that in addition to the "Captive Nations Week" we should have a "Captive Natives Week" here in the United States. We are the captives of a system which is destroying freedom, destroying our economy and in the end may destroy our lives. We wonder if any in the whole world will ever grieve for our folkly when we are gone.

Hankering

By HENRY McLEMORE

Sporting Presidents Should Take Care

Throughout Senator Kennedy's acceptance speech I kept listening for him to say that he didn't care much for sports, and that he would be as non-athletic as a setting hen once he reached the White House.

Such a declaration would have earned him a great many votes. I am sure, for as sports-minded a country as it is, America likes its Presidents to leave the playing of games to others.

Most Presidents have sensed this and have wisely left the playing of games to others. Proof of this is readily to be found in even a casual reading of the lives of our Presidents.

Very few of our Presidents are associated with sports. There are barely enough of them to hold a caucus—OHhand, I can think only of Teddy Roosevelt (boxing and big game hunting), Ike (golf), Hoover (medicine ball), Jackson (horse racing), and Cleveland (croquet).

Washington had the physique to play all games, but save for pitching a few dollars across the Potomac, and riding a horse, he left sports alone.

Lincoln was a better than average wrestler, but once he became President he gave up half-nelsons, headlocks, and hammerlocks.

There is no record of Adams ever being seen on a tennis court, Jefferson pitching horseshoes, or Fillmore figure skating.

If Monroe ever played volleyball, he must have done it in a basement in the dark of night, and I have never read of Madison playing lacrosse, or Cleveland pole vaulting, or Buchanan taking part in a rugby scrum.

Truman was a great hand at sensing public opinion, and sagely limited his participation in athletics to walking.

Kennedy's favorite sport, I believe, is sailing. He is a handy man at the tiller and a great one at breaking out a balloon spinner. He is also a powerful swimmer, having earned a varsity letter at the sport at Harvard.

He would be wise to put his swimming trunks and yachting cap in mothballs, not only during the campaign but after it.

One has only to think of Eisenhower and his golf clubs to see the wisdom in this. Not even the U.S. incident has brought as much criticism on Ike's head as have his golf clubs.

Richard Nixon is a golfer of sorts, but I don't think you will see many pictures of him on the course. The Californian has a good ear for the public pulse, and probably has already put his bag and clubs away on the top rafter in the attic, and given his golf balls to "Checkers" to chew on.

If a President or a presidential nominee must have some exercise, I would advise him to do it on the sly, or adopt some form of exercise which is not noticeable.

Place a mechanical bicycle in the deepest, darkest, most sheltered spot in the White House garden, and let it rust.

We are being drained by the octopus - like tentacles of the Internal Revenue Service, et al, for the purpose of promoting political dependence. Our money is going to bolster, not the minorities in these various captive places, but to bolster the majority in power.

See Anyone Like You, Nikky?

Fair Enough

Goldwater Of Arizona Now 'The Man To See'

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK — This astonishing fact towers and glows above the debris of both political conventions of 1960:

A conservative Republican, a western man from a rawhide state where the cavalry fought Apaches until the dawn of this century, is the individual political hero or idol of the country. Barry Goldwater is still on the rise and he has few, if any, known enemies, as distinguished from opponents, even in his own state.

The weathered, leathery Ernest McFarland, of Florence, the state prison town, between Goldwater's Phoenix and the mixed-up new metropolis of Tucson, may be an exception. Goldwater went into politics impromptu as a candidate for the city council in Phoenix and might have shrugged off disappointment. But he won and the taste of success gave him the appetite.

McFarland was for a long time the Man to See in a state which was temperamentally, habitually Democratic. It was so Democratic until ten years ago, that presumptive or suspected Republicans registered as Democrats to escape harassment by Democratic municipal officials and to vote in the Democratic primaries for the less arrogant henchmen of the Roosevelt regime.

Barry Goldwater decided to challenge McFarland in circumstances which seemed to promise only great exertion and a smashing victory. Instead, he made a dramatic, patriotic issue of the Right to Work, which thanks to him is guaranteed in Arizona by a constitutional amendment. Barry knocked McFarland off his horse.

Since then, he has elected two Republican governors. It is not excessive to say that Barry ran Paul Fannin last time because by now Barry had become the Man to See. He could write the Republican ticket. McFarland ran for governor and Goldwater's strength behind Fannin beat the old bull of the woods.

And William R. Mathews, the editor of The Arizona Star in Tucson, a New Dealer, is so thoroughly whipped that Barry recently said: "Poor old Bill, I really feel sorry for him. Hell, his word used to be law. They courted his favor and consulted his wisdom. But he can't win a city councilman any more. He can't even win a bond issue for a high school annex."

Or go to a greyhound track in the middle of the night and chase the mechanical rabbit for a mile or two.

Do push-ups and knee bends in the Pentagon bomb shelter. Whatever it is, don't let the public see it. It's debatable whether it would be wise even to roll a few eggs at the annual White House Easter egg event.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Except for strike periods and the great depression, the mighty $15 billion steel industry has rarely been so depressed, says Investor's Reader.

The publication of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith notes that if the bottom in steel has been reached, nobody in authority is sure what will happen for the balance of the year.

"Barring a worldwide eruption" the magazine states, "everyone agrees the year-end estimates of 120-135 million tons are out the window along with that phrase 'soaring sixties.'"

The recent chart action of Western Union has shown a much improved tone, reports Bache & Co., but further consolidation of the issue may take place. The firm suggests holding current positions.

Abraham & Co. describes Beatrice Foods as "eminently suitable" for conservative accounts seeking "stability and moderate appreciation."

United Business Service suggests a defense package of Dynamics, Lear and North American Aerojet-General, Avco, General Dynamics, Lear and North American Aviation, now that the defense stocks are back in the limelight.

Standard & Poor's lists 10 high-yielding defensive stocks: American Tobacco, Boston Edison, Consolidated Cigar, General Mills, Equitable Gas, Pacific Lighting, Penick & Ford, Philadelphia National Bank, Seaboard Finance and Union Electric.

Spiegel Inc., down around 32 per cent from its 1959 high of 47 1/2, allows fair latitude for possible price improvement, according to the Fitch survey. This speculative issue provides an income yield of 4.7 per cent, Fitch notes.

Investors Advisory Institute recommends Beckman in Portfolios stressing longer-term growth and appreciation. The company's order backlog is at a record high and its corporate structure has been greatly improved, the institute points out.

NEW YORK (UPI) — August has been a stand off month for the stock market in the past, according to Kenneth Ward of Hayden, Stone & Co.

Since 1900, he says the Dow Jones Industrials have reached their annual high or low only once during the month.

Ward offers these reasons: Summer vacations are in full swing; many investors prefer to wait until after Labor Day to get a better view of the fall business picture before committing themselves either way in the market; the setbacks of 1929, 1937 and 1946, were initiated forcefully in September, and finally a presidential campaign always increases the uncertainty.

Reynolds & Co. recommends Corning Glass Works for a long term growth, although the issue's current market appraisal is high. The stock has a number of important features that distinguish it from many issues selling at similar high price-earnings ratios today, the firm adds.

Standard & Poor's says Seaboard Finance is attractive for its "good current income" and for future appreciation possibilities.

The general market is at a delicate balance and conceivably stocks of weaker and more speculative character may sell lower, says the Alexander Hamilton Institute's latest investment bulletin.

However, the institute feels that the major oils are attractive long-pull investments; that the utilities, leading foods, chemicals and well-financed electronic issues should constitute substantial parts of investment portfolios, under present conditions.

Leon P. Puchalski of J. W. Sparks & Co. recommends Revlon for accounts seeking well-defined appreciation prospects.

"Aggressively managed and with an excellent product line," Puchalski points out, "the company has demonstrated an exceptional growth record."

THE NATION'S PRESS

DEPRESSED AREAS (Economic Intelligence Bulletin U.S. Chamber of Commerce)

Should more progress toward peace be made in the months ahead and the country remain prosperous, political issues for the November election may be a little thin, although we have many unsolved problems including tax reform and paralyzing strikes — to name only two.

The President has vetoed the so-called depressed areas legislation; numerous politicians are elated over the veto because this provides a real campaign issue. For this reason it may be worth while to re-examine the "political economy" of central government intervention in this sector.

Long term structural unemployment, the heart of the depressed areas problem, is a consequence of growth and change, and cannot, therefore, be completely eliminated in a dynamic economy.

It is not the result of insufficient total demand. The displaced coal miner is permanently unemployed as a coal miner. His job no longer exists. He may have to be persuaded to move out of a coal mining region to other areas offering employment opportunities, and he may have to give up his occupation.

Retraining can be helpful, but the skilled and well-paid coal miner who loses his job at the age of 50 may never attain an equivalent level of skill in any kind of a new occupation. Neither did the glass blower or the stage coach maker. What is true of obsolete skills may be equally true of whole industries. It is part of the price of progress.

Moving workers out is one of two basic approaches to the depressed area problem. The second is moving jobs in. The choice between them depends on the resources and opportunities the area has to offer to industrial development including the intangibles of the job climate, a point well developed in our report, Getting and Holding Good Employers.

If a community is well located in terms of transportation, if it has important natural resources if it has a skilled and diversified labor pool, then it may be an attractive place for new industries and for expansion of existing industries. Its depressed state as a result of shifts in demand or depletion of some resource may be a temporary one and no more than stop-gap adjustment measures are required.

If the depressed nature of the area is the result of a bad job climate, industry cannot be bribed to locate in such an area, and industry already there often cannot be induced to expand or even to remain. The only alternatives are emigration of labor elsewhere or some positive action to improve substantially the job climate. Nothing can be said in favor of a policy of subsidizing areas of bad job climate at the expense of areas of good business climate, of attracting industries to bad locations by enticing them from good locations.

If the job climate is really bad, the government with all its funds, cannot offset the roadblocks to private investment.

A good job climate involves many things such as local tax laws, the quality of local government and its attitude towards industry, law enforcement, the culture of peaceful labor management relations and the provision of civic opportunities that make community life attractive. Without this favorable climate, industry will fail, or not locate in area, regardless of the availability of financial resources.

Where the financial aid is developed locally (as against handout from Washington), the is not only an understanding of this problem but a willingness follow financial aid with a community betterment program that makes industrial success more likely.

Business and community leaders throughout the nation are actively engaged in industry development work are skeptical of any legislation that would establish the principle of national responsibility for the economic development of selected communities and areas. They are opposed to national intervention for a number of reasons:

1. Merely building industrial plants in an area or offering U.S. Treasury loans do not guarantee economic revival.

2. Gross inequities and discriminations would be inevitable under any central government program.

3. There is no way to write into the law any real prohibition against jobs simply being transferred from one area to another.

4. It will prove difficult to restrain a national program in the field from becoming a glorified WPA for businessmen, which would outdo our dollar outpourings for agriculture.

5. A national assistance program could easily lead to subsidizing inefficient make-work devices.

6. There is urgent need to avoid unnecessary government spending.

It is for these reasons that many believe it was in the national interest that the President vetoed the law passed by Congress in May.

BRACK LEE SAYS (American Statesman) The idea that we should teach our children to "adapt" themselves to their environment is repulsive to me.

Rather, I would like to see our children taught to "master" their environment.

I am also more interested in the expansion of the student's mind than in the expansion of the "whole personality."

FARTHING'S REACTION LONDON (UPI) — Early reaction to the death of the English farthing came today in a letter to the Daily Telegraph.

"It's withdrawal from our coinage is long overdue, as for many years it has outlived its usefulness."

"I trust that MY passing will be long delayed. Yours faithfully C. Farthing."

RECORD CUSTARD THROW LONDON (UPI) — Comedian Buster Keaton said Monday nobody can tell him anything about tossing custard pies.

"I once threw a pie 27 feet and hit the guy smack in the puss," he said. "That's the world longest custard pie throw, as far as I know."

DEPOT GETS ONE BID HOUSTON (UPI)—The Houston Port Commission was the only bidder for the entire 4,316-acre San Jacinto Ordnance Depot, offered for sale by the General Services Administration. The Port Commission offered $8 million for the property. Other bidders wanted only part of the depot. The government will decide within 10 days whether to sell the property in part, as a whole or not at all.

Wisconsin Still Beer Champions

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Wisconsin retained its beer drinking championship in 1959, state officials said today.

The tax division said Wisconsin beer drinkers set a new national record with a consumption of 100,491,274 gallons of suds — an average of 25 gallons of brew for every man, woman and child in the state.

What's more, the tax men said, Wisconsin also leads the nation in brandy drinking.

DEATH TOLL INCREASES

TAIPEI (UPI) — The death toll from floods in central and southern Formosa stood at 104 today, with another 95 persons missing and 400 injured.

McLEAN PERSONALS

Gary Clawson, Bill Golston, Gene Bench and Jim Kingston, all members of the Future Farmers of America chapter, will participate in the calf scramble Saturday (Gray County Day) to be held in connection with the Top O' Texas Rodeo in Pampa.

Employees of the City of McLean recently completed the job of erecting street signs at all intersections, and are now making preparations to install house numbers of all residents of the city. Numbers will be provided and installed without cost to the property owners.

Monday was designated as the day for advance sale of season tickets for the 1960 football season. There will be five home games this season and season tickets will be with Wheeler, White Deer, Wellington, Canadian and Clarendon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Glass announce the marriage of their daughter, Judith Ann, to Charles Ronay Howard Saturday, July 23. The wedding was held in the home of the bride's parents, with only members of the immediate families present. Rev. Kenneth McCall, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiated.

Mrs. Claude Powell made a business trip to Amarillo Tuesday.

Mesdames Jake Hess, Bob Sherrod, and Paul Mertel attended the Methodist School of Missions held in Lubbock last week.

You Too Can Be A Racing Driver

Simplex has the all family racer for the fastest grown sport in America sharper than any full size racer, has amazing stability. Beautifully engineered, binding acceleration, corners can be raced on any level surface as small as 50' x 100'. Simplex cars come completely welded, pointed and assembled. For all the racing thrills you've ever dreamed of Drive a Simplex and race in safety.

to learn and it will be quite a spell before he can be revived as a TV attraction.

Announcer Jack Drees did a commendable job explaining Hank's tactics as the brief bout progressed — "combinations to the body to bring Rudy's guard down" — and then bang! It was over almost as if Drees had been reading from a script (heaven forbid).

The feature ended so quickly a six-rounder between two comparative unknowns was brought on to fill the void. That was a dreary bit of business and presumably only the hottest boxing bugs stayed on the ABC channel.

The Wednesday night show is scheduled to bow out shortly, at least for the rest of the summer. The old Friday night fights will be back Oct. 8 but on Saturday nights this time around.

The Friday night feature, a fixture for years, went off for the summer because of low ratings—not an unusual situation in the rest of TV but unheard of heretofore in boxing.

Madison Square Garden, long the key point in the Friday series, has been running without TV lately. The gates have been less than spectacular. So have the fights. Matchmakers have slim pickings.

"Twenty years ago we had 10,000 fighters working regularly in the United States," says boxing historian Nat Fleischer. "As late as five years ago there were 7,500. But today, under the full impact of television, there are fewer than 5,000 — and not all of them are working."

There aren't many places to work. In 1952, 22 fight clubs were operating on a steady basis in New York state. Today there are only two. Two others, including the garden, stage boxing shows only when dates and good fighters are available.

There is plenty of TV gravy to be had but only at the top. Discriminating viewers now want only the best and they're even willing to pay for it.
