Flood Misery Increases

Surprise Snowstorm Hits Midwest; Snarls Traffic Throughout Ohio Valley

By United Press International

Major floods in the storm-ravaged South Saturday forced more than 8,000 persons from their homes, and a surprise snowstorm battered the Midwest and Ohio Valley, creating scores of emergencies in Indiana.

Hundreds of motorists were stranded on snow and drift-clogged Indiana highways. Travelers were advised to abandon their autos and seek shelter.

The storm dumped up to 6 inches of snow over most of Indiana. Several cities declared states of emergency as power and communications were disrupted.

Air fields were closed by the snow and drifts. Numerous sporting events, including sectional basketball tournament finals were cancelled or postponed.

Mayor Charles Boswell of Indianapolis was one of several mayors who declared snow emergencies. Boswell ordered car owners to get their vehicles off main highways and streets, and appealed to motorists to stay at home and give snow removal crews a free hand in clearing the heavy snowfall.

The Indiana storm hit as several other sections of the nation battled floods, rain, tornadoes, dust and winds.

Wind gusts of up to 60 miles per hour slammed across the Rockies into the plains, reducing visibilities over Colorado, western Nebraska and northwest Kansas. The winds forced the Colorado Highway Patrol to ban the moving of house trailers on highways.

At Portland, Maine, the U.S. Weather Bureau issued preliminary flash flood warnings when heavy rain and a warming trend brought sharp rises on all of Maine's rivers and streams.

No relief was in sight for Dixie, where maverick streams and rivers forced more than 8,000 persons from their homes and derailed a train in Alabama. New trouble spots popped up almost hourly throughout the Southland, which counted at least eight deaths since the floods began a week ago.

The hardest-hit area appeared to be Mississippi, where more than 7,000 persons were homeless.

Bill Would Set 14-Day Minimum Oil Production

Pampa News Austin Correspondent
By FLETCHER ROBERTSON

AUSTIN—Gen. Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, doesn't think much of the House bill which would prohibit the commission from restricting oil production below 14 days a month. As a matter of plain fact, he says it's impractical and would foul up the industry.

The bill, authored by Reps. George Cook of Odessa and Tom Andrews of Aransas Pass, is in the legislative hopper and should be in the first order of business when the legislators start work at 11 a.m. tomorrow.

General Thompson said Texas fields will produce 2,800,000 barrels in March under the 10-day allowable. "And that's all the U.S. market will absorb — everywhere," he added.

"We have the capacity to produce a million barrels more than the March allowable," the general went on, "but we couldn't sell it if we did and there's no point in producing more oil than we can get rid of."

"The tragic part of something like this would be that these people would get their tanks full of oil and wouldn't be able to move it. Then they'd have to go out of business."

General Thompson also said no

Two Billions Needed To Bolster Defenses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy conferred Saturday with Sen. Richard B. Russell on the administration's new defense policies which reportedly will call for a $2.1 billion increase in the present defense budget.

Like Foregoes His Favorite Pastime

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Former President Dwight Eisenhower exercised himself Saturday with light exercise and continued relaxation, foregoing his favorite pastime — golf — until completely free from lumbago.

The lumbago followed a cold about 10 days ago. The ex-President tried a game of golf about a week ago, but the ailment proved somewhat troublesome. However, he has been able to do some skeet shooting and hopes soon to return to the course.

The Eisenhowers continued a policy of politely declining hundreds of invitations to attend various events in Southern California, and stuck to their informal daily routine.

2 Bodies Taken From Wreckage Of Jet Bomber

HURLEY, Wis. (UPI) — Two unidentified bodies were recovered Saturday from the wreckage of a B47 Stratofortress bomber that crashed in wild northwoods country 10 miles southwest of here.

Two other crewmen were still missing.

The extremely rugged and inaccessible terrain in the area has hampered search operations," said Col. John G. Benner, commander of the 343rd Fighter Group at Duluth Air Base.

An Air Force spokesman said it was reported the bodies were being removed from the wilderness by caterpillar tractor. He said the wreckage was "pretty well pulverized... in small pieces, spread out over a half mile to a mile area."

The plane crashed on a routine practice bombing run.

Red Troops Take Over Capital

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Pro-Lumumba troops buoyed by the bloodless capture of the capital of Kasai Province fanned out through the bush country Saturday in an apparent attempt to cut off the rival army of Joseph Mobutu from its capital of Leopoldville.

The precision and speed with which the supporters of slain ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba moved out from their Stanleyville stronghold in Oriental Province indicated outside support. There was speculation Communist Czech or United Arab Republic officers were helping them.

The Lumumba troop commander technically is Gen. Victor Lundula who was a medical corps sergeant-major before Lumumba elevated him last summer.

Reliable sources said a column from Stanleyville seized Ikela in Equator Province, the home territory of Mobutu who has concentrated many of his 17,000 men at Bumba, 135 miles north of Ikela.

The advancing column split at Ikela, according to dispatches, and one fork headed for Boende on the road to the provincial capital of Coquilhatville. The other branched out for the north Kasai town of Lomela.

Strength of the columns was not known, but some 300 Lumumba men took the Kasai capital of Luluabourg Friday without firing a shot. The 50-man garrison surrendered to them.

New Congolese Premier Joseph Ileo gave the U.N. command until sunset Saturday to get the Lumumbists out of Luluabourg, or else he would send troops to do the job. But the U.N. command did not take the ultimatum seriously. The deadline passed unnoticed.

The Lumumbists under the regime of Soviet-backed Antoine Hammaraskjold in Stanleyville now control three of the six provincial Congo capitals—Stanleyville, Luluabourg and Bukavu, capital of Kivu.

Murder Charge Hurdled

'Krusch' Labels Hammaraskjold Chief Assassin

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI) — Nikita S. Khrushchev bombarded the world with letters Saturday denouncing Dag Hammaraskjold as the "chief assassin" of ex-Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba and raising again Soviet demands on the Congo which were defeated in the U.N. Security Council this week.

The apparently identical 12-page letters from the Soviet premier accused the West of trying to revive Theodore Roosevelt's "big stick" policy and insisted that U.N. forces in the Congo be pulled out.

Khrushchev called again for support for the pro-Lumumba government of Antoine Gizenga in Oriental Province. He bitterly attacked Hammaraskjold on grounds the U.N. secretary general "pursued a policy of base treachery" toward the Congolese people.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry reported the letter had been sent to leaders in Africa, Asia, Latin America and Europe.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain was reported to have received one, but there was no mention of any letter to President Kennedy.

Khrushchev again called for Hammaraskjold's diplomatic scalp, demanding his ouster as U.N. chief.

"To put it bluntly, it was in essence Hammaraskjold who murdered Lumumba," Khrushchev wrote. "Whoever held the knife or revolver is after all not the sole murderer. The chief assassin is the one who handed him the weapon."

"Such an individual has no right to hold a leading post in the United Nations. We cannot reconcile ourselves to the fact that the secretary general has sullied himself by a foul murder."

The entire U.N. operation in the Congo, he charged, "is an attempt to implement in our time a well known principle... by Theodore Roosevelt who coined the phrase about talking softly but with a big stick in his hand."

Khrushchev defined the modern-day big stick as "subjugation of weaker nations by force of arms." Cuba and Panama were victims of big stick colonial policies, the Soviet leader said in an indirect attack on the United States.

"Russia he said, 'also has a big stick,' but 'relies on its policy or reason' instead."

"... The interests of the Congo's independence as well as those of the United Nations require the immediate termination of the so-called Congo operation and the withdrawal of all foreign troops," he said.

Two More Candidates File For School Posts

Two more candidates have entered the race for trustee in the Pampa Independent School District.

R. D. Wilkerson, 910 E. Browning, and John Gikas, Pampa restaurant owner, filed yesterday for the April 1 school board election. The two board posts to be filled are the currently expiring three-year terms of E. L. Green Jr. and Demaris Holt.

Gikas has lived in Pampa 14 years and prior to coming to Pampa was a resident of Berger.

In a statement to the News, the 39-year-old Gikas said he is running independent of any individual or group and, if elected, will do his best to serve impartially the best interests of the school district.

Wilkerson, part owner of Builders Plumbing Supply Co., has been in business in Pampa for 15 years. He is married and has two children, one in elementary school and one in junior high school.

Wilkerson issued the following statement yesterday:

"I would like to take this opportunity to announce my candidacy for member of the school board of the Pampa Independent School District. It is only after the urging and consultation of many friends and much careful consideration on my part that this decision has been reached."

"Through the efforts of the present school board and the many boards preceding it Pampa has achieved a high standard of excellence in its school system that we can be proud of. We have the resources, administrative personnel and faculty to maintain this high standard and improve it."

"If elected to this board I will work diligently, honestly and to the best of my ability to maintain or exceed this standard."

Previously Ott Shewmaker, Pampa insurance broker, and Holt, the present board member, filed their candidacies. Holt is seeking reelection.

Today's Lenten Message

By THE REV. THOMAS B. MATHER
Pastor, Central Methodist Church, Kansas City, Mo.
(Written for UPI)

The spirit of God touches men like the moving current of a great stream. Responsiveness to the unseen is the great driving power for strong living. Many of the things we are most concerned about now are but the things of the hour and in five or 10 short years will be entirely forgotten, yet there are values behind them that will last as long as time itself. We are able to drink at the fountain of life and feel refreshed.

There are certain rules that we must follow if we would enjoy this power of God. Obviously there must be a willingness to tune in on this power. There must be a quietness. When you are all tied up in knots you cannot appreciate the inspiration of a picture, a poem or a symphony. There is far too much of the world with us, and we must be able to shut it out. If we would receive this power, it must be put to some use. It can be used to make us better people, to serve our fellows. We need to yield ourselves to the fellowship of God, to let His power use us.

God has given us the spirit of power to master, the spirit of love to win, and the spirit of sound mind to dare.

Godfrey L. Cabot 100 Years Old Today; World-Wide Tribute Paid

Dr. Godfrey Lowell Cabot, founder of the company that carries his name, is celebrating his 100th birthday today at the family home in Boston, Mass. Members of his immediate family who have joined him on the occasion are his daughter, Mrs. Ralph Bradley, and sons, Thomas D. and John Moore Cabot.

From one small carbon black plant, started in Buffalo Mills, Pa., in 1882, Dr. Cabot has led the organization to the top of the carbon black industry.

Cabot Corp., with a plant and offices in Pampa, is now the largest producer of carbon black in the world. It also produces natural gas, oil and gasoline, pine tar products, wollastonite and Cab-O-Sil, and is one of the largest manufacturers of oil field pumping and portable drilling and well servicing equipment.

The organization is international in scope with carbon black plants in the United States, Canada, England, Italy, France and Australia. A new plant is now under construction in Argentina.

Dr. Cabot has had many honors bestowed upon him from the government, educational institutions and various societies but the one which most of his friends in the Southwest remember was the medal presented to him as "The

... "Grand Oil Man"

Grand Old Man of the Natural Gas Industry" at the International Petroleum Exposition at Tulsa, Okla., in 1950. The selection was made by the IPE "Old Timers" Committee because of his outstanding work in the advancement of the industry and his many years of service.

Since Dr. Cabot is well known throughout the world, the celebration of his reaching the century mark today is international in scope.

Dr. Cabot received many congratulatory messages today, from all parts of the world, including one from President John F. Kennedy. Officials of the Pampa offices and plant of the Cabot Corp. also extended their felicitations to Dr. Cabot.

Dr. Cabot is the founder and past president of a major worldwide carbon black company, originally known as Godfrey L. Cabot, Inc. The company was merged with three subsidiaries, Cabot Carbon Co., Cabot Shops, Inc. and Cabot Gasoline Corp. to form Cabot Corp. of Boston, Mass.

To many Dr. Cabot is well known as a philanthropist and patron of science. He gained distinction for his notable service to the chemical industry in the United States and Europe, his scholarly attainments and for his participation and contributions in various forms which have directly and indirectly resulted in many benefits to mankind.

Mau Mau Again On Rise, Kenya Officials Report

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Government officials easing Kenya toward her first nationwide general election warn the Mau Mau secret society is active again. Internal Security Minister A. C. Swann said the movement, believed stamped out by government security forces in a bloody, four-year emergency, has sprung up again in the past 10 months. Mau Mau has a new name — the Kenya Land Freedom Army, he said. But it still apparently has the same aim — expulsion of white settlers from their farms and homesteads and complete control over African tribal life. So far, government officials have been reluctant to publicize their uphill fight to destroy the resurgent oath-taking organization in Nairobi and Central Province. But one indication came during a court hearing recently when a high-ranking police officer said: "Mau Mau is rife." Swann confirmed the officer's statement. But he said that while young people of the Kikuyu tribe — a major recruiting ground of Mau Mau — apparently were reluctant to join, former known Mau Mau fanatics were going back in. It is known here that oath-taking ceremonies have been taking place in the Rift Valley Province. The old Mau Mau, allegedly led by goateed Jomo (Burning Spear) Kenyatta, terrorized African, Asian and European communities between 1950-54. Many Europeans and hundreds of Africans died in fanatic Mau Mau jungle knife raids. Kenyatta, convicted of managing the society, served a seven-year jail term. He is in enforced exile in the arid northwest borderlands. But his name and influence still are powerful factors in present-day Kenya politics. Rival African groups jockeying for power repeatedly have demanded his unconditional release from exile. The most powerful, the Kenya African Nationalist Union (KANU) is led by Kenyatta's onetime top aide, James Gichuru, who was allowed back into politics only last year. Many European settlers are convinced there is a link between KANU and the new Mau Mau, at least at rank-and-file level. They point to a document allegedly found in one Mau Mau's possession which spoke of a "meeting which was arranged between army leaders and KANU together." — The document added, "With what I have observed and found out (they) were supposed to speak with one voice because people not in one head are conquered by one blow."

Federal Reserve Board Abandons Old Policy For 'Easy Money Plan'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This essay will award to President Kennedy, highest honors for prophecy in a hazardous field. Late in the presidential election campaign, candidates Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon were asked a tough question by the Scripps-Howard Newspapers. It was: "Would you attempt to influence the policies of the Federal Reserve Board in any effort to reduce interest rates? Or for any other purpose?" The candidates each required a great many words to answer that one, both avoiding either a simple yes or no. Nixon did, however, say the FRB should be free of political pressures. Kennedy said the FRB must bear in mind the economic objectives of the administration. He said he was confident the board would respond to administration leadership. So what? So the FRB revealed this week that it would do just that. The FRB has abandoned a long-time limitation on its involvement in the market for U.S. bonds. The new policy is to buy in the open market long term bonds of the U.S. government. This is an "easy money" policy. The immediate effect is to be an increase in prices of long term bonds and cheaper interest rates on long term borrowing. Immediately beneath the surface of these dull facts is a broad and bitter political issue, a so-called pocketbook issue. This issue is important to every American whether he lives shabbily on a too-small wage or whoops it up on inherited millions. The U.S. dollar of today compared with the 1939 buck is worth a few cents less than 30 cents, half of its purchasing power destroyed in 22 years. Any past or future cheapening of the dollar must be at the expense of each citizen who has one. An "easy money" policy is a dollar cheapener.

George Bancroft, then secretary of the navy, four led the U.S. Naval Academy in 1845.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A triple attack on Connecticut's 1879 birth control law by a married couple, a doctor and a wife comes up for argument Monday in the Supreme Court.

The law makes it a crime for anyone to use "any drug, medicinal article or instrument for the purpose of preventing conception."

The physician is Dr. C. Lee Buxton, a gynecologist and chairman of the department of obstetrics at Yale University school of medicine.

AROUND THE WORLD

WALKING HORSE—Just for once, horsing around was permitted in a classroom by teacher Eleanor Thornell, in Highland Park, Tex., a suburb of Dallas. The strange creature invading her classroom is a Trojan horse, built by five teen-age pupils. It was made to illustrate the class' study of the ancient Greek war against Troy.

BOW TO THE QUEEN—Getting ship-shape once more, the mammoth liner Queen Elizabeth rears her knife-edged bow under a dry dock in which the vessel is undergoing a periodic checkup in Southampton, England. Workmen in small boats are providing the necessary scrubbing.

PIER OF THE REALM—A modern treatment for seaside fanciers, the new amusement pier at Scheveningen, the Netherlands, will look like this when completed in June. Replacing a pier built in 1901 and destroyed by the Germans in 1941, the structure will be 40 feet wide and extend 1,220 feet into the North Sea. It will end in three fun "islands."

THE VERY LATEST—Toes get a square deal in these new shoes created for the house of Christian Dior in Paris by designer Roger Vivier. A startling change from the currently pointed toe vogue, the new footwear is done in brightly colored leathers and fabrics and is for "comfort."

ICE EFFORT—Tony Aribo, mate aboard the fishing boat "Faith of Good Voyage," is facing a mighty cold task as he tries to clear the rigging of ice after the boat arrived at the Fulton Fish Market in New York. The city had been inundated with the winter's worst snowstorm, and docking any vessel wasn't the easiest thing in the world.

THEY'LL BE THERE—Cynthia Brooks, a Texas-born lovely, will preside as Queen of the 1961 International Flower Show at New York's Coliseum early in March. Anne Purves, the 1960 Queen, is formally crowning her successor at a party in Manhattan.

SHE'S HAD IT—While finishing work on the filming of "El Cid" with Charlton Heston in Madrid, Spain, actress Sophia Loren fell and broke her arm. A doctor is shown trying to make her comfortable before flying back to Italy.

ALMOST DIDN'T MAKE IT—A two-month-old English bulldog, shipped from San Antonio, Tex., to Bedford, Mass., arrived in good shape, but there was a hitch. His delivery took a bit longer than usual because the mischievous fellow had chewed the address off his shipping tag.

HAPPY LANDING—Like a landing officer on an aircraft carrier, one St. James Park bird raises his wings in a "cut your motor" signal as his feathered friend comes in for a landing in London. Their "flattop" is a sign urging visitors not to litter the pretty park.

WINE AND DANDY—Playing peek-a-boo through a pattern of bottles, Nina Funari boosts the merits of a special wine at an exhibition in Rome. The celebrated vino comes from a village near Rome, and is in such demand that customers can buy only limited amounts and must place their orders a year in advance. Such popularity must be deserved.

DIGGING OUT—Not too small to give daddy a hand, Beatrice Diehl, 5½, joined in the big snow shoveling job outside her home in Middletown, N. Y. It took a bit of doing to clear a path through all that uninvited white stuff.

IT'S A RECORD—Cast members of "The Threepenny Opera" had a good reason to toast that drawing of "Mack the Knife" backstage in New York. The off-Broadway musical had just played its 2,249th performance, making it the longest-run musical in American history.

Vatican Lays Plans For Visit Of British Queen

By ERNEST SAKLER

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Vatican officials said today Queen Elizabeth's planned visit to Pope John XXIII is certain to further improve relations between the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches.

A high Vatican source, noting that the climate for such a visit was unusually favorable, said the British monarch and her husband, Prince Philip, would be welcomed with all the pomp and pageantry of the Pope's court when they arrive May 5.

Buckingham Palace announced in London Thursday that the royal couple would pay a courtesy call on Pope John at the end of a trip to Italy. The queen is the head of the Protestant Church of England which broke away from the Roman Catholic Church in the 16th Century.

It had appointed a liaison officer to the Vatican, Canon Bernard Pawley. This was believed a direct result of the meeting last December between the Pope and Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, retiring primate of the Church of England.

Vatican circles expressed hope that the queen's visit would not cause undue criticism from British Protestants who have objected to similar meetings in the past.

"It is only a courtesy call but it is certain to strengthen good relations," a Vatican spokesman said.

He Can't Read Or Write, But He's $62,000 Richer

LONDON (UPI)—If the lines in front of British post offices are longer today, it's because William Pratt, who cannot read or write, has just won $62,000 in the weekly football pools. Today is the deadline for mailing entries for Saturday's games and a postal money order is the only acceptable method of payment.

Of all forms of gambling the football pools offer the richest reward for the smallest investment. On Jan. 17 three Britons won $144,962 with an investment of one farthing, (1-4th of a cent US). Tax free, too. But anybody tempted to throw up his job and come to Britain to play the football pools should consider that the odds against the three men were calculated at 49,632,600 to 1. Millions of persons have played the pools all their lives and never won a shilling.

Whenever somebody makes a killing, the number of players the following week immediately jumps above the average of 10 million. This is particularly true in the case of Pratt, a gardener who freely admits he is illiterate. He barely is able to make out the names of the football teams and says he has trouble distinguishing between "Chester and Hesterfield. What his triumph demonstrated was that luck, not intelligence or skill, is the magic ingredient. For instance:

—In 1957—Jock Lindsay won $84,000. He is permanently confined to the Ipswich Mental Hospital.

—A woman who won $210,000 (entrants can remain anonymous if they so (specify)—explained her system: She sat by a window looking out on the street. If a man walked by she marked a "one," victory for the home team on her sheet; if a woman, a "two," victory for the visiting team; if a child, an "X," a tie. She had never seen a football game.

—Last December Paul Cox, 18 months old, made some crayon marks on a sheet of paper his father had left on the floor. His father, Norman, a worker on an automobile assembly line, picked up the pool sheet and roughly transferred his son's choices to another entry blank. On a one farthing bet he collected $121,192.

Football betting is legal and winnings are exempt from income taxes. Three firms, Littlewood, Vernon and Sherman, do about 80 per cent of the total business.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Perilously, and with many a pitfall still to be avoided, prospects continue to brighten for a negotiated peace in Algeria.

If an end to the fighting which has gone on for more than six years and cost more than 100,000 lives is achieved, it will be a tribute to the patience and determination of President Charles de Gaulle, with a strong assist from another who has managed to remain on friendly terms both with France and the Algerian rebels.

That other is President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia.

Among Moslems, the voice of the 57-year-old Bourguiba has been the moderating influence, frequently bringing down on his own head the wrath of other Arab leaders whose fiery condemnations of France stirred passions but contributed nothing to the prospects of peace.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic once accused him of being one of the last agents of imperialism among Arab leaders. To this, Bourguiba replied that his interests were with the West and would remain so.

As De Gaulle moved toward his ultimate goal of an "Algerian Algeria," and Bourguiba urged Moslem cooperation in the referendum by which De Gaulle sought approval of his independence program, Nasser and other Arab and African leaders met in Casablanca to condemn it.

The referendum could in no way commit the Algerian people, they said.

But as the referendum passed successfully, and as Bourguiba persisted in his plea for moderation on both sides, the prospects for peace suddenly brightened appreciably.

Cautious conferences between French and Tunisian leaders appeared this week to be opening up the possibilities of an Algerian cease-fire with no loss of face either to De Gaulle or to the rebels.

Art Lover Wants To Change Scenery On Walls Of 1,400-Ft. Senate Subway

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The walls of the U.S. Senate subway tunnel are approximately the same color as one of the Senate restaurant's lemon meringue pies. (If the pastry cook has an off day, the similarity extends to consistency as well as color.)

As you ride along in the subway cars, the walls seem to rush by in a greenish-yellow blur, so that when you reach the end of the line you are feeling rather bilious.

This, I suspect, accounts for the jaundiced disposition of some of our senators, and I gather that Sen. Carl T. Curtis, a Nebraska Republican and art-lover, has reached the same conclusion.

At any rate, Curtis laid before the Senate this week a proposal to decorate the walls of the 1,400-foot tunnel with paintings depicting "the scenic beauties" or historical sites" of the 50 states. Turning the tunnel into an underground gallery, he said, would "enhance the utilitarian purpose of this corridor, and make it another delight for those who come to see our national Capitol."

He also suggested that senators who found themselves "frayed after a trying day" could, by gazing upon the paintings, "rekindle a zest for comradeship, and be helped in leaving behind our lesser natures."

These certainly are laudable objectives and Curtis should be commended for trying to achieve them. More important, he seems to have hit upon an entirely new concept in the way of art museum.

The Guggenheim Gallery in New York has managed to fracture museum tradition in a mild way by having people look at paintings while descending a circular ramp.

But for sheer originality and daring, the Guggenheim wouldn't be in the same class with the subway museum.

Just imagine for a moment what it would be like to look at paintings while breezing along at 17 miles an hour in a subway car. You couldn't get that kind of perspective at the Guggenheim even if you roller-skated down the ramp.

Under Curtis' plan, each state would be permitted to hang in the tunnel one or more paintings of its own choosing. This could create some interesting situations.

Suppose, for example, that Georgia sent a picture of the siege of Atlanta during the Civil War; Montana provided a painting of Custer's Last Stand at Little Bighorn, and Arizona selected a landscape of its most famous tourist attraction.

When seen from a moving subway car, this would give you a kaleidoscopic view of Confederate soldiers chasing Sitting Bull over the rim of the Grand Canyon.

It is possible, I suppose, that Curtis was thinking in terms of looking at the paintings while walking through the tunnel. That, however, would make the exhibit less attractive.

There are few art works in the Capitol today that wouldn't look better if passed at 17 miles per hour.

Stage Set For Showdown Fight On Fund Deficit

AUSTIN (UPI) — The stage has been set for a showdown fight on the floor of the house over Gov. Price Daniel's program for erasing the state's estimated $63 million general fund deficit.

The time-table calls for his package of four bills to be taken up by the lower chamber when it goes back into action this week.

making a personal appearance. The committee postponed making its recommendation on the package. It still has to hear reports from sub-committee, and they are due when both House and Senate return to work Monday.

Rep. George T. Hinson of Minnola, chairman of a subcommittee, said his group plans to recommend that Daniel's "abandoned property" bill, one of the most controversial of last session, be enacted exactly as introduced.

Jessica Tandy Wants To Do Movie Version Of Stage Productions

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actress Jessica Tandy would some day like to do the movie version of the plays she helped develop in successful stage plays.

Many Hollywood pictures are based on front-running plays and Miss Tandy has been in some which went on to become box office hits.

In "Streetcar Named Desire," Miss Tandy played the role of Blanche that went to Vivien Leigh in the movie version. Miss Leigh won an Oscar for her performance.

"I'm just the original type, I guess," said Miss Tandy, as she slowly stirred a ginger ale in the Brown Derby star hangout.

Miss Tandy, wife of actor Hume Cronyn, has made many pictures, but it's been many years since she's been before movie cameras.

Judy Holliday did a role on stage in "Born Yesterday" and Jose Ferrer repeated his "Cyrano de Bergerac" part in the movie.

"Nobody gives me an answer that helps," she said. "But it's usually an actress who is better than I am who gets the part."

Miss Tandy, one of the legitimate theater's top performers, doesn't let the situation make her fret though.

"I don't let it bother me," she said with a shrug of her tiny shoulders. "I usually have other things to do."

Actors Told Legitimate Tax Breaks

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The thought of spring and its income taxes makes many people sad but not actor Stephen Chase, whose hobby is showing young players how to be sure that Uncle Sam gets no more than he should.

Chase, who has been playing character roles since 1922, said he became interested in income tax methods several years ago.

"Most actors I know are not much in the way of businessmen," he said. "Of course, once he gets into the money an actor has someone else to handle his affairs, including his taxes, but the actors on their way out are the ones I get a kick out of helping."

Chase, now appearing in the television series "Death Valley Days," said he had compiled a list of items peculiar to the acting profession which the government is glad to allow an actor to deduct from his income — if he does this in the right way.

"I've worked out a list of things worth keeping records of, and I've even got it down to the point at which I can deduct a pair of shoes," he said.

"I've had it all checked by experts and it's all above board," he said that cold cream was an item worth listing as tax deductible.

"Most studios provide makeup for pictures or TV," he said. "But many times an actor has to furnish his own cold cream."

Other things Chase kept accurate records of: telephone calls — even from booths — subscription to trade papers, wardrobe rental and entertainment expenses.

"This entertainment really has to be kept accurately. It's one field that's always up to question and many of the top names have gotten into trouble over it," he said.

"I also suggest that the young actor keep a couple of suits or dresses to be used exclusively for jobs and personal appearances. You can deduct the depreciation of the garments — and this also applies to special shoes and the shoelaces."

Law Ayres Plays Lone Wolf Role

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Law Ayres, a successful actor for more than 30 years, gets little personal satisfaction from his work.

Rather a lone wolf in this tinsel town of mixed-up personalities, he says he doesn't care whether he ever acts again. He says he gets far more satisfaction from painting, writing, composing music, and staging a personal campaign for world peace.

At 52, Ayres, though his dark hair is flecked with gray, retains much of the boyish charm which made him a heart-throb to moviegoers a generation past. He zoomed to stardom in "All Quiet on the Western Front," rap through a couple of Hollywood marriages while his career sagged, and then got a fresh start in the "Dr. Kildare" series.

He made headlines in World War II when he announced he was a conscientious objector and then served four years in the battle zones of the Pacific as a chaplain's assistant.

Now he does an occasional role on television and does a competent, and sometimes exceptional job, according to the critics.

U.S. EXPORTS MORE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Commerce Department has reported that the United States exported more goods to the Soviet bloc last year than at any time since just after World War II. Shipments in the first nine months of last year amounted to $120 million, indicating the full-year sum would be the highest since 1947, a department report says.

First electric refrigerator was introduced in 1913.

Home Blasted As He Watches T-V's 'Untouchables'

FORT WORTH (UPI)— Bob Lee, 49, had just settled back to watch "The Untouchables" on television Thursday night when a bomb exploded and tore off part of the front of his house. Glass fragments and debris were hurled through the living room where he sat with two women, Mrs. Maudie McCoy, 41, and Mrs. Bonnie Weiland, 28, work for him and live in the other side of the duplex-type frame house.

Lee said he had no idea why anyone would want to bomb his business or home. He said he recently had disagreements with competitors and two former employees, but nothing serious enough to cause a bombing. Almost 10 million people belong to trade unions in Great Britain.

The land given in exchange for the capitol was valued at not less than fifty cents and not more than $1.50 per acre. It is constructed of pink granite taken from Granite Mountain near Marble Falls in Burnet County and was formally opened on May 16, 1888. As we have told you before Senior Center is growing!!!! B. C. Rogers, a newcomer to the Center this week told an Altrusa Club member, "I had been reading in the paper about your activities down here and I was afraid I was missing something. So I decided to come down and see what it was all about." We have it on good authority that Mr. Rogers enjoyed himself very much and found 90 other Senior Citizens enjoying themselves, too! Other "first-timers" were H. C. Little, Mrs. Anna Mortimer, Mrs. L. G. Groves, Mrs. Nellie Burt, Mr. and Mrs. Ennis Jones.

The following is a poem, submitted by Mrs. Lillian Brunelle, which she and other Senior Citizens have found inspirational and which we want to share with you: I have to live with myself and so, I want to be fit for myself to know. I want to be able as the days go by, Always to look myself in the eye. I don't want to stand at the setting sun And hate myself for the things I have done. I never can hide myself from me. I see what others may never see. I know what others may never know. I never can hide myself and so Whatever happens I want to be Self-respecting and conscience-free.

Maggie Speal, 617 N. Carr, was notified Friday morning of the death of a favorite uncle, G. M. Thomas, who died Thursday in Wichita Falls. Funeral services in the Hedley Cemetery. Mr. Thomas is survived by two sons, Fred and Ted Thomas and one daughter, who lives in Panhandle.

Mrs. Ward was sure that it was someone's beloved pet but it just wouldn't leave. The story has a happy ending, though, for the owners of the Collie finally came to claim it.

See you Senior Citizens next week. Love, Mrs. Norris.

How would you like to have a beauty treatment while you are downtown shopping or making up a foursome around a Bridge table? And all the while you are receiving the beauty treatment, you are confident that you are looking well-groomed. Sounds impossible? It isn't. Research scientists, who play as important a part in keeping milady looking beautiful as they do in launching a man into space, have put their minds to legs and have come up with a cosmetic stocking that will prevent chaffing during the winter months.

Most of us take great pains to use moistening creams and lotions on our face, neck and arms, but hesitate to use the more or less expensive creams on our legs and feet. As a result, our legs often suffer from flakiness and dryness as the natural oils disappear in over-heated rooms and in blustery weather.

The solution is being offered by Beautique Stockings, Inc. of Paducah, Ky. They have developed a stocking that will prevent a red, scaly appearance of the legs. The hose, which look like any other nylon hose, have been bathed in a secret formula of cosmetic oils that gives the feet and legs a beauty treatment, while the stockings are being worn.

Five precious cosmetic oils, mink oil, turtle oil, royal jelly, lanolin and sesame oil, in addition to several basic oils that work to soften the skin and prevent dryness caused by the weather or from shaving and depilatories have been blended by research scientists.

The formula also contains CXS, a secret solution, which hastens the effects of the oils and a special fixative that retains the lotions in the hosiery through washing after washing.

It was proven, during laboratory tests, that it takes only a matter of days for the hose to improve chafed skin.

It, also, has been proven, by the manufacturers, that the hose should wear about as long as any other nylons. While they look the same and feel the same as other hose, the wearers will notice that the cosmetic hosiery has a very sweet scent, which will probably lessen with washing.

Just as soon as we have a pair, we plan to make an application as a contestant on Garry Moore's television show, "I've Got A Secret."

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a husband who chews? I only see him on Sundays and I can never talk to him because his mouth is so full. When we go for a drive and I ask him a question, he has to stop the car. Let me hear from other wives who have tobacco chewing husbands. I am at the end of my rope.

DEAR ABBY: I have a daughter by a former marriage. The man I married also had a daughter by a former marriage. (His wife died.) When introducing the girls, is it proper for me to say, "Meet my daughter and my step-daughter?" I think it sounds terrible, but how will people know which one is mine and which one is his?

DEAR ABBY: I am having a terrible time trying to convince my mother that her old-fashioned ideas about dating are not right for this day and age. She says if a boy asks you to a school dance and you tell him you are going out of town or something, you can't show up with another fellow. This means a girl has to accept the first boy who asks her, whether he's a drip or not, or else stay home. Abby, please tell my mom in your column that times have changed.

DEAR ABBY: You are to be commended for the letters on mental illness you ran in your column. In those letters I saw so clearly the attitude of society, which makes it so difficult for the emotionally disturbed to recover. I had ten years of emotional trouble and was one of the lucky ones whose family stood by me. I wonder how many people know anything of the dark and horrible world a mentally ill person lives in. There are no words to describe the fear and terror. And then the hurt they receive when trying to recover and they become aware of the strange things they did during their illness.

"Russian Education", prefaced by a cabot film on "Communism" was presented by Mrs. T. D. Harvey at Parent Education Club held on Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. W. J. Derrington.

In discussing Russian education, Mrs. Harvey said, "In the 1960 summer edition 'School and Society', Nicholas DeWitt of Harvard's Russian Research Center made these statements: 'The Soviets are operating their educational plan under Khrushchev toward new goals for the 1960's. The goals being to educate for speciality and technology to a higher degree with a return of emphasis on the glorification of manual labor.'"

"It is alarming to note," Mrs. Harvey continued with quotations from Mr. DeWitt, "that in a society that 40 years ago could boast only 300,000 literate of a population of 36,000,000 that they are producing more professionally trained people than the present United States statistics show for our country and at a faster rate."

"At the present time, the Russians are graduating one fourth more doctors than we are and they will produce four times as many in the 1960's. They are producing twice as many math and science teachers and have in total 300,000 more teachers in secondary and elementary schools than we. The Soviet engineers number 974,000 and will be graduating at the rate of 125,000 every year; three times as many as the U.S. produces. Their industrial output is the first in Europe and second in the world; the U.S. still remains first."

"Our educators contend superiority in quality is due to freedom from Marxian indoctrination, and freedom from rote learning. However, DeWitt says, and statistics seem to say, we will have to do much more for education in this country before it is too late!"

Mrs. Harvey gave a historical background on Russian Education from pre-revolutionary days to the present. The talk was divided into four sections and attempted to illustrate the Soviet purpose, how it was accomplished and the success of the program.

"It is apparent to the whole world what the Soviet accomplished in the race for space," Mrs. Harvey continued. "It is interesting to note, however, that the real brainpower for the creation of Sputnik were the men educated in pre-revolutionary Russia. Hopeful educators in our country would like to believe that the complete isolation of Russian Science will be its downfall. That really imaginative and creative, scientific thought stems only from the exchange of information and criticism."

"Critics from inside Russia point out certain failures in the system; people are competitive in spirit, interested in material things, hungry for private gain, insensitive to the glory of hard manual labor, but these appear to be proof of the success of Stalin's education programs."

"Mrs. J. Bradner says," Mrs. Harvey concluded, "Critics on the outside, particularly those of us who think of education in terms of a democratic society, are prone to optimism in the ultimate results of Russian education. The Russians, as a result of their educational system, are superbly trained cogs in the Big Red Machine. But whether or not such education or training with emphasis on science and technology will produce eventually disaffection with a system, which does not allow the fullest development of the individual is moot. With collective leadership may come freer communication abroad and at home. With acceptance and respect as a leading force in the international society of nations acquired through this technical superiority may come dominance. I believe the Russian educational system might produce these results almost inadvertently. That is the future. The present summation is that this truly colossal machine will respond absolutely and successfully to any objective set forth by the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union.

Flowers Improve Neighborhood, Help Protect Real Estate Value

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — A seedy idea for your home and community comes from Andy Pinkerton. The head of the National Garden Bureau has beauty in mind when he recommends that the nation's families pretty their homes and towns with flowers.

Pinkerton said in an interview that planting programs in two upstate New York communities proved to the bureau that the sprouting of posies about even a tract home improves the neighborhood, protects real estate value and helps neighborliness to develop.

The two towns that prettied up are Tonawanda and North Tonawanda.

In the towns more than 60 social, business and academic groups merged their green thumbs.

Pinkerton said even the children got into the growing movement.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce built and painted more than a hundred window boxes for decorating the commercial areas.

"In the various residential districts," Pinkerton said, "homeowners associations met periodically for gardening discussions, lectures and demonstrations." When the program blossomed, the business district sprouted flower boxes up and down the main streets.

"A planted wheelbarrow decorated the front of the local hardware store and petunias were blooming in tire gardens in gas stations," Pinkerton said.

"A pot-bellied stove full of petunias prettied the front of the local diner. Rowboats full of flowers graced both entrances to the bridge over the canal connecting the two cities. Even the leading plumber put out a bathtub planted with annuals."

Pinkerton said that the experience in the New York towns moved the bureau to draw a blueprint for home and community beautification programs via flowers.

"The National Garden Bureau has set up regional committees around the country to function as liaisons in arranging for professional gardening help on a local level," the expert said.

Easternmost town in the United States is Lubec, Maine.

MATURE PARENT

MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:
My problem is my 13-year-old girl. She is very fresh to me. Last night she made me feel like two cents in front of a neighbor. We had stopped our conversation because she was talking on the telephone. When the call went on and on, I asked her to hang up. She turned around and told me to mind my own business. It sounded so fresh, I do not claim to be a perfect mother but God knows I have done my best.

ANSWER: She hurt you, didn't she? She made you angry. Why didn't you let her know it?

These days many parents find it hard to register the hurts they feel because of mistreatment by their children. Though hurt is our first, immediate response, it's so quickly overwhelmed by other considerations that we are barely conscious of it. We hear the rudeness, feel the flash of hurt—and the next moment we lose the feeling amidst secondary ones like embarrassment, a sense of obligation to "understand" the child's emotional state, hesitation over the kind of required discipline, depression, despair. So the child doesn't see us experience the hurt he has inflicted. He doesn't see it change to indignation. He doesn't see the consequence of his behavior.

I have known such a parent. She is so used to being bullied by everyone from her older sister to her husband that she has become apathetic to her daughter's insolence. When this girl once made a cutting remark, this mother turned to me to ask, "Mrs. Lawrence, what do you think of a child who talks like this to her mother?" She was so disconnected from her hurt indignation that she wanted to conduct a conversation on rude

HELEN TISDALE CIRCLE met in the home of Mrs. L. R. Tyson. Business was led by the chairman and prayer led by Mrs. Tyson. Mrs. Bob Hulsey was welcomed as a new member. Mrs. Charley Thomas completed the current mission study book.

For the remainder of the meeting, the members honored Mrs. Tony Maples with a pink and blue shower. Mrs. Charley Thomas dismissed the group with prayer.

CALLIE THOMAS CIRCLE met in the home of Mrs. Jim Conner, 1165 Neel Road, for mission study. Following the business meeting, Mrs. Don Rosenbach read the prayer calendar and Mrs. Bill Stafford offered prayer for the missionaries. Ms. Ralph Prock taught the mission study on Latin America.

LILLIE MAE HUNDLEY CIRCLE met with Mrs. Rex Spence, 512 Magnolia to complete their children in general. As a result, her child has developed a most irresponsible tongue. She has never been faced with the true effect of her cruel remarks on a real, responsive, vulnerable human being.

So I suggest that you try to recover your first, simple, immediate response of hurt to rudeness by your child. Then speak out. Say, "You have hurt me and I don't like it."

It is as important for a child to see the consequences of a too-sharp tongue as it is to see the connection between his carelessness and the vase he has broken. In another column I am going to speak more of the importance of expressing our indignant hurt to sharp-tongued children.

Capitol Hostesses Anxiously Wonder

Will That Invitation Draw A Kennedy 'Oui'?

By JERRY BENNETT

WASHINGTON (NE A) — The Washington hostesses who deny hopes that President John F. Kennedy will show up at one of her parties is taken about as seriously these days as the chain smoker who plans to quit tomorrow.

For the new President's tradition-breaking habit of accepting invitations to private parties has every gal who can afford a caterer secretly daydreaming of the evening when the Kennedys come to dinner.

Those who have the best chance of pulling off the deluxe model of social coups fall into four categories, say authorities on Capital society. They are:

President and Mrs. Kennedy's personal friends, who entertained them when he was a senator. Kennedy has already made it clear that he intends to see old friends socially.

Big contributors to the Democratic Party and people who worked on the Kennedy campaign.

Worthy cause sponsors who get Jackie Kennedy to take part in their fund raising drives. She is already helping to raise money for the Heart Fund, Cancer Society and others.

Women who have already made names for themselves as hostesses. White House officials say the President receives about 120 invitations a day to cocktail parties, dinners, diplomatic receptions, baptisms, weddings, conventions and conferences.

So far, though, the ones he has accepted have been extended verbally by the person tossing the affair or through an intermediary. Each affair has been given by close friends of the President and his wife.

Hostesses who know how to throw small dinners with liberal quantities of good conversation have a better chance of having the President show up than those who specialize in massive stand-up affairs. Friends say he prefers dinners with no more than 10-12 guests.

Kennedy's enthusiasm for parties since taking office is expected to catch on throughout both of the Capital's party tossing Washington. Carolyn Hagner Shaw, publisher of Washington's social register and perhaps the number one authority on Capital parties says:

"The goings-on at the White House usually set the pace for social life throughout Washington. The way things have started with this administration, I think that there will be more entertaining in town than usual."

Social arbiter Mary Stuart Montague Price foresees New Frontier parties as characterized by youth.

Plans Laid For Passage Of JFK Jobless Program

By NORMAN G. CORNISH
WASHINGTON (UPI) — House leaders have laid plans for passage this week of President Kennedy's anti-recession program to pay extra unemployment compensation benefits to the nation's jobless.

The House Ways & Means Committee approved the billion-dollar measure by a strong bipartisan vote last Thursday.

It also tentatively okayed a second bill to provide millions of dollars in public assistance for needy children of unemployed parents.

House action on the first of Kennedy's emergency proposals was predicted by the middle of next week if all goes well. The Senate also was geared to act fast once the measure comes over.

The administration hopes to rush the additional benefits to jobless workers within two weeks after the bill becomes law.

Meanwhile, a House labor subcommittee scheduled a day-long session behind closed doors on Kennedy's bill to raise the minimum wage from $1 to $1.25 an hour and add coverage for 4.3 million more workers. The subcommittee held a brief session Thursday to lay the groundwork for drafting a wage bill.

House GOP Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana said Republicans would support the legislation. "We believe that steps must be taken promptly to provide additional relief," Halleck said.

The unemployment benefits bill would funnel nearly a billion dollars in extra compensation to about 3,125,000 workers whose unemployment benefits have been exhausted or will expire in the next year or so.

Kennedy had asked $350 million for the children's aid program. The committee cut it down, however, by setting more rigid standards for those seeking to qualify.

The revised bill stipulates that an unemployed worker whose children were receiving special benefits must accept any job offered by the U.S. Employment Service. If he refused it, aid to the children would be cut off.

Under the regular unemployment compensation program, a worker can reject a certain number of "unsuitable" jobs and still collect benefits. The new provision in the children's bill would not affect the basic jobless pay program.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., said the House would act promptly on the jobless pay bill.

The measure would provide up to 13 weeks of additional payments to jobless workers, depending on the length of time various states pay benefits under the joint federal-state program. A worker could not receive more than a total of 39 weeks pay.

U.S. Civil Pilots Fly Jungle 'Milk Run' To Supply The Laotian Army

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Perhaps the key men in the Laotian civil war are a group of American civilian pilots flying chartered planes and helicopters to supply the Royal Laotian Army.

They are costing the United States government an estimated $30,000 a day, according to informed U.S. officials here. The Programs Evaluation Office (PEO), America's military advisory group in Laos, refused to disclose the exact cost.

The PEO people said this affected the security of the Laotian government.

The pilots and planes actually have been flying in Southeast Asia for several years. The pilots describe the flights as their "milk runs."

The tag came after they began flying a considerable amount of food, liquor and other supplies from Bangkok to American installations in Vientiane and more remote places of Laos. The pilots also make "milk runs" to other parts of Indo-China.

But they have a dangerous job today, flying World War II vintage planes, mostly C-46's and C-47's, to hot spots in this jungle kingdom.

War is old hat to these pilots who usually bivouac in Bangkok's plush air conditioned hotels every night and take off each day for Laos about the time the banks are opening.

Some of the pilots can relate first-hand tales of the Flying Tigers of pre-World War II fame. And most could boast, if they were boastful types, of flying in World War II and in Korea—or perhaps of the more dangerous days at Dien Bien Phu and in the Indo-China War when they flew unarmed on daring missions just as they are doing today.

The pilots shun publicity and the last thing they like to see is their name in a newspaper. They just like to fly their planes and collect their money — not a large sum considering the risks they are taking.

It is just another flying day for most of them whether they are maneuvering through some of Laos' rugged mountain peaks to drop ammunition to a beleaguered royal army unit while shells from rebel guns whistle too close for comfort or whether they are bringing in coffee for the American embassy commissary in Vientiane.

They like this life. And despite the dangers, some of them often find it dull.

One of those who found the so-called "milk runs" dull was Allen Lawrence Pope, who is now sitting in an Indonesian jail facing the prospect of a firing squad for participating in a 1958 rebel uprising against the Jakarta government.

Pope, a B-26 bomber pilot during the Korean War, gave up the "quiet life" flying the Southeast Asian "milk run" three years ago to temporarily join up with the Indonesian rebels. He was shot down and sentenced to death for his alleged participation in the uprising.

The pilots do not participate in any combat operations here, although occasionally one of them flies a Laotian army officer over rebel positions so he can direct the artillery fire when forward ground observers are unable to do so.

They don't talk about it much, but most of these fliers have had more than their share of narrow scrapes. Some have just gotten their planes off the ground in remote villages as the rebel forces attacked. Some have had their engines shot out while swooping in low to air-drop gasoline or ammunition to Laotian army troops.

When the rebels attacked and captured Ban Nam Boc, some 40 miles northeast of Luang Prabang, one pilot was getting his plane loaded as enemy mortar and artillery shells began raining down on the airfield. Hundreds of Laotians swarmed onto the runway, trying to get on the plane and flee with the pilot. The flier barely got his ship off the ground in time.

There are few roads in this country and for most of the Laotian army units fighting rebel forces these planes are about the only dependable way of getting supplies and equipment.

There are few doctors in the Laotian army and practically no facilities for giving aid to the wounded at the front. About the only hope a wounded soldier has is for one of the American-piloted helicopters to drop into some jungle clearing — as they often do while enemy guns blast away — to pick up the injured and carry them to Vientiane, where medical care is available.

matter of FACT

It is possible to predict weather by looking at the sun. There's an old saying, "When the sun is in its house, it will soon rain." The sun's "house" is its halo. This halo is caused by ice crystal clouds at high levels. True to the old saying, such clouds often spell rain.
