To Crack Down On Hazards

City Opposed To JFK's 'Urban Affairs' Bureau

Pampa's City Commission was on record today as opposed to the establishment of a federal Department of Urban Affairs with cabinet status as proposed by President John F. Kennedy.

It was disclosed at today's commission meeting that a letter, signed by Mayor E. C. Sidwell and concurred in by all four city commissioners, was sent to Texas Senator John Tower in Washington under date of February 14.

The letter, following salutation, reads as follows:

"The Department of Urban Affairs has no place in the lives of our Pampa citizenry. We, therefore, urge you to do everything possible to block any legislation toward its progress."

"We feel that we are qualified and capable of making our own decisions for developing, and this costly bureaucracy would only add to other socialistic encroachments that we are presently combatting. Our City Commissioners concur with me on these issues. (Signed, E. C. Sidwell, Mayor.)"

Copies of the letter were sent to Sen. Ralph Yarborough and Rep. Walter Rogers.

In another major action this morning, city commissioners on a motion by L. P. Fort, seconded by Leon Holmes, unanimously adopted (See OPPOSED, Page 4)

Sculptress To Speak Before Club Tonight

Madame Suzanne Silvercruys, the noted sculptress, who will speak at the dinner of the Knife & Fork Club which will be held at the High School cafeteria at 7:30 p.m. today, may well be called a gem of many facets. Sculptress and author, she shares with her audience her philosophy of life, her knowledge of international affairs, her skill in sculpture, her exciting adventures, her intimate anecdotes about famous people, and her belief that only through beauty can one find happiness. She covers all of these subjects in her various lectures, and she models a portrait or action figure on the platform as she talks.

Born a Belgian, the daughter of the late President of the Supreme Court of Belgium and Baroness Silvercruys, she has, however, been an American citizen for the past twenty years and in private life is Mrs. Edward Ford Stevenson.

Her lecture, "Self Expression" has received universal acclaim from coast to coast and promises to be a real treat for the Pampa Club members and their invited guests.

Russians Wish Glenn Safe Return

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet citizens joined Americans and people throughout the world today in wishing American astronaut John Glenn's safe return.

"He is a brave man. I sincerely hope he lands safely," said one Moscow office worker. The worker expressed what appeared to be the general feeling among his fellow citizens.

Astronaut Orbits Earth Three Times

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — John H. Glenn Jr. flew triumphantly three times around the world in space today and was plucked safely from the sea at the end of his historic trail-breaking mission for America.

The 40-year-old Marine astronaut jumped into the sky atop a flame-spouting Atlas rocket at 9:47 a.m. EST.

At 2:43 p.m., four hours and 56 minutes later, he splashed down in the Atlantic only about six miles from the destroyer Noa, one of the recovery ships waiting to rescue him.

Glenn remained in his spacecraft as it was picked up and placed on the deck of the destroyer.

Glenn reported "my condition is excellent." He was still sealed in the capsule, but maintained communications with those on board the ship pending his removal.

His landing was in the "prime recovery area" which had been pre-selected about 800 miles southeast of this spaceport for a three-orbit flight.

Glenn was hauled from the sea at 3:01 p.m. His capsule, Friendship 7, was set down on the deck of the Noa at 3:04 p.m.

The crew of the Noa, anticipating the possibility that it would beat helicopters to the rescue, had painted a welcome sign for Glenn and had voted to make the veteran Marine the ship's "sailor of the month."

A few moments after the spacecraft was placed on deck, Glenn climbed through the narrow upper neck of the space capsule.

At 3:14 p.m., Project Mercury officials here said Glenn had gotten out of the capsule and was on the deck of the Noa.

His third orbit, the full number scheduled even though his launching was delayed into the two-orbit period, was completed at 2:28 p.m. when he passed over the longitude of Cape Canaveral.

Ten minutes later his spacecraft's 63-foot main parachute opened at 21,000 feet and dropped the craft and its pilot into the sea.

Recovery forces sighted them at 2:40 p.m. while they were still in the air. Glenn splashed down at 2:43 p.m.

As he plunged down, Glenn was in radio communication with the recovery ships that stood by to pluck him from the water.

The capsule faced temperatures of about 3,000 degrees on its blunt face as it dived back through the atmosphere. Glenn's comment: "Boy, that was a real fireball."

The destroyer Noa, flanking the aircraft carrier Randolph in the main recovery area, estimated it was six miles from the capsule.

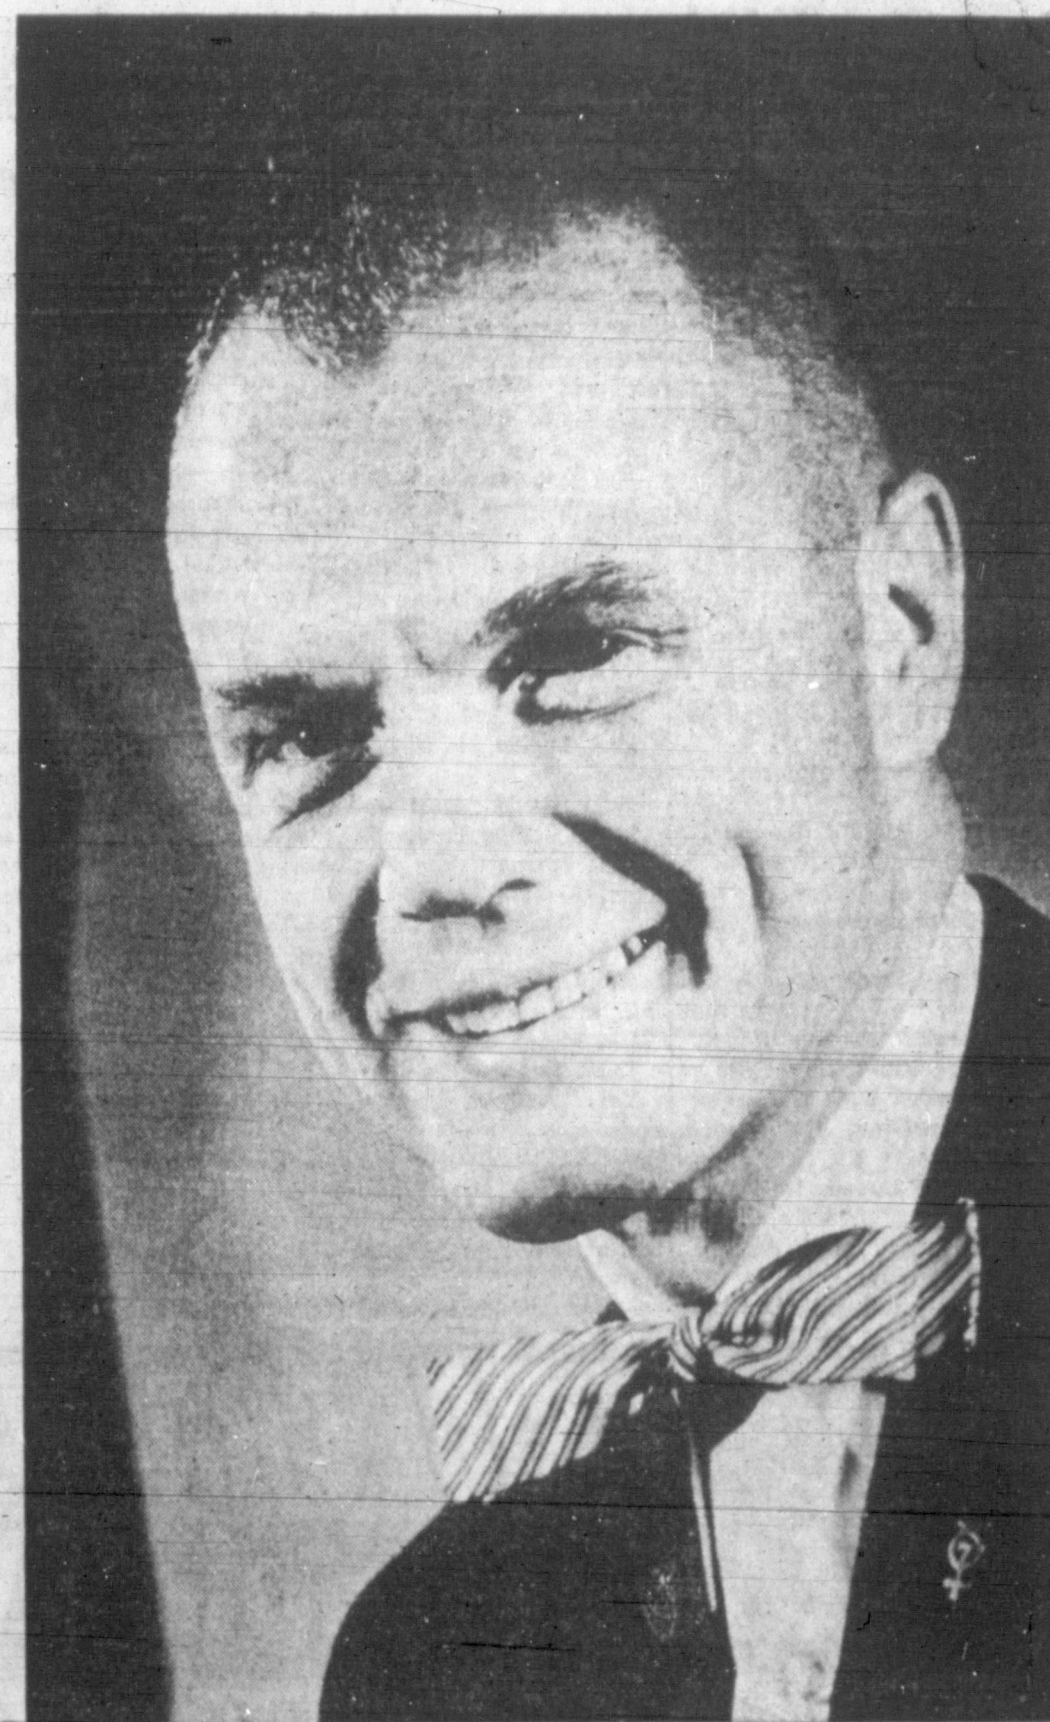

Glenn's total time in the sky from launch to splash-down was computed at four hours and 56 minutes. This was just six minutes more than space officials had estimated before the flight.

The spacecraft began its descent off the West Coast of America when breaking rockets fired at 2:20 p.m. EST. The ton-and-a-half cabin arched into dense layers of the atmosphere at an altitude of about 55 miles above the East Coast.

In the space of five minutes its speed was cut from about 17,500 to 270 miles an hour, and the astronaut again underwent gravity forces about 7½ times normal.

Glenn had successfully completed an epochal space mission which made him the first American in orbit, at top speeds of 17,545 miles per hour.

His giant Atlas rocket boosted him into a path so nearly perfect—ranging in altitude from 100 to 160 miles—that officials said he

THE MAN: Even before today's orbital flight, 40-year-old Marine Lt. Col. John Herschel Glenn was no stranger to danger. Born in Cambridge, Ohio, Glenn flew 59 fighter-bomber missions in the Marshall Islands campaign in World War II and 90 missions during the Korean War. In 1957, he became the first man to fly coast to coast at supersonic speed. Today he became the first American to orbit the earth.

Cooler Weather Is Due In Texas; Snow Storm Plagues Northeast

The Weather Bureau said today warm, wet weather is on tap for most of Texas.

Cloudy skies and mild temperatures covered all sections today. Colder air was moving south toward Texas and should enter the Panhandle Wednesday.

The forecast called for scattered showers to develop over the Panhandle tonight ahead of the new front, and move rapidly eastward spreading over most of Texas by Wednesday.

Temperatures early today stayed above freezing over the entire state. Lows ranged from generally in the 40s in the Panhandle to the 60s in South Texas.

Dalhart had a low of 35 degrees; Monday's high was 86 at Cotulla.

Winter's fifth great storm, worst of the season in the Midwest, dropped a foot of snow on New England today and waterlogged Southern California, had another round of mud slides.

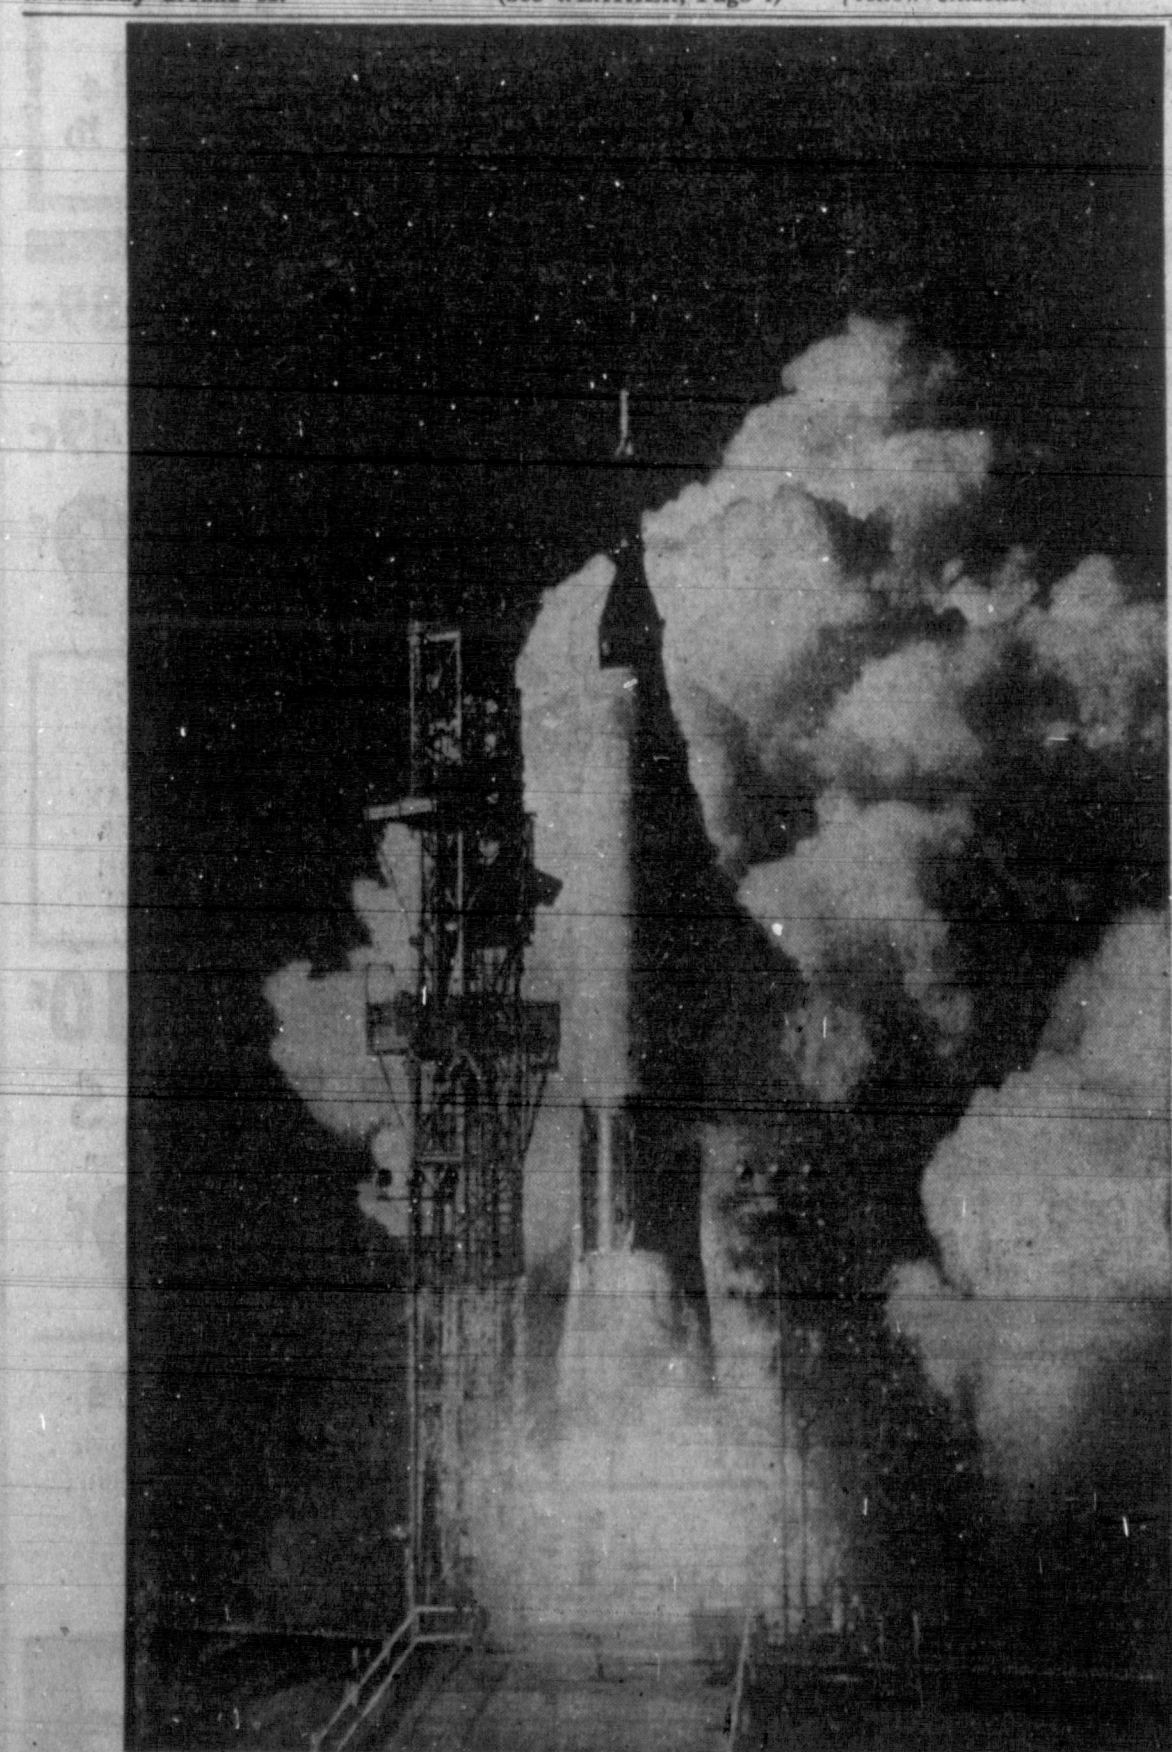

Polar cold pushed into the northern plains behind the dying storm, which dropped up to 32 inches of snow on South Dakota Sunday. By midnight the temper-

PAMPA AND VICINITY—Most cloudy through Wednesday. Scattered showers late this afternoon and continuing through Wednesday. No important changes in temperature. Low tonight around 46 and the high Wednesday around 52.

THE VEHICLE: America's space hope rode successfully today on the tip of this towering Atlas rocket. This country's first operational intercontinental ballistic missile lifted Mercury Astronaut John Glenn into orbital flight — marking another peaceful space mission for the versatile Atlas. Over 80 feet high, the liquid-fueled Atlas mounted a total thrust of more than 360,000 pounds to boost Glenn into orbit.

French Confident Of Pact To End Seven-Year-Old Algerian Conflict

PARIS (UPI)—French officials expressed confidence today that there would be no hitch in the signing of a pact to end the seven-year-old Algerian war.

Officials said it was conceivable that "minor changes" might have to be made but there will be no "basic changes."

The Algerian rebel provisional government was summoned to meet in Tunis today to hear the results of the negotiations with French officials that ended Sunday night.

Wednesday the rebels' parliament—the 60-member National Council of the Algerian Revolution (CNRA)—will meet in Tripoli, Libya, to study the agreement.

The four rebel negotiators who returned to Tunis Monday were extremely cautious in their statements about the negotiations.

Foreign Minister Saad Dahlab said the talks were "not yet ended" although they had made a lot of progress and "can resume with good results."

French officials viewed this as Dahlab's way of saying that the results of the negotiations still must be ratified by the rebel parliament.

Minister of State Lakhdar Ben Tobbal put it more bluntly: "Now we have to face the second hurdle—that of the CNRA."

French officials saw no problem in getting French cabinet and National Assembly approval since President Charles de Gaulle's influence in both is overwhelming.

French officials had set Feb. 23 as a target date for a ceasefire but present indications are that it will not come until later in the month or perhaps early in March.

Bar Association Criticizes JFK Appointments

CHICAGO (UPI)—The chairman of the American Bar Association's ABA Judicial Committee Monday criticized President Kennedy for not appointing Republicans to federal judgeships.

Bernard G. Segal, Philadelphia, said all but three of President Kennedy's 85 nominations for lifetime terms to the federal bench have been Democrats.

"Of the 88 so far confirmed by appointment, seven were not qualified by the committee," Segal said.

Segal told the ABA House of Delegates his committee was "disappointed over the imbalance in judicial appointments."

"When the President took office the party affiliation of federal judges was just about evenly divided between Republicans and Democrats for the first time in more than a generation," Segal said.

"Imbalance has again set in." In a surprise appearance, Deputy Atty. Gen. Byron White denied politics played a major role in selection of judges.

"There is nothing odious about the preference for Democrats," White said. "The central question in choosing them (the appointees) was ability, not politics."

Segal said the three non-Democrats recommended by the President were recent appointees designated by President Eisenhower—two Republicans and a Liberal party member from New York.

White said Kennedy soon would name some Republicans to the bench.

"Social units of the organization simply must do more. They must bring the force of their influence to bear on senators and political leaders to ensure sponsorship of best qualified judges and lawyers for appointments," Segal said.

"We should continue to strive and hope eventually for the ideal of non-partisanship," he said.

French Security Forces Are Expecting Trouble

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — An estimated 400,000 French security forces were reported alerted today to put down any right-wing uprising resulting from a reported agreement between Algerian rebel and French negotiators.

The European population of the major cities such as Algiers, Bone, Oran and Constantine had expected the news but it still was a shock when it came.

Many of the Europeans have lived here all their lives, have helped build Algeria's industry, schools and civil service and know no other home.

Now they look forward in fear and frustration to an Algeria whose ties to Mother France will be considerably weakened and whose government bodies will be dominated by Moslem Algerians.

Their resentment, reflected in the terrorist Secret Army Organization, has counted for a large part of the 2,500 persons killed or wounded since Jan. 1.

JFK Asks Boost In Government Salaries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy today asked Congress for a $1 billion pay increase for 1,640,000 white-collar government workers over the next three years to bring their salaries into line with private industry.

In a special message to the House and Senate, Kennedy proposed reform of the federal pay system to provide for wage hikes ranging from 3.7 per cent for clerical workers to 35 per cent for top-bracket employees.

The proposed 10 per cent boost in the federal payroll would be spread over three annual stages, starting Jan. 1, 1963, with the first year accounting for about four and one-half per cent of the raise.

Kennedy said that enactment of the reform plan was fundamental to the "maintenance of a standard of excellence in the federal service." He said it was "essential

Three Overcome By Gas Fumes

Three Pampanans were treated and released from the emergency room at Highland General Hospital Monday afternoon after being overcome by fumes from a gas stove in their home.

Mrs. Fay Evans, 515 E. Cravens, who was babysitting at home with her daughter, Judy, 9, and Rodney Herndon, one-year-old son of Mrs. Jeraldene Herndon, 504 N. Sumner, were taken to the hospital at approximately 4:30 p.m. yesterday. They had been sleeping in a bedroom of the home at 515 E. Cravens.

GRANT FOR CONGO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States announced Monday a $15 million grant to the United Nations for economic aid to the Congo. It was the first such contribution in 1962 to the Congo program, but the country has granted $27.9 million in previous years.

Praise For Small Acreage Decision

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Texas Supreme Court was praised yesterday at a meeting of oil industry executives for giving the State Railroad Commission authority to rule out the drilling of unnecessary wells on small acreage tracts.

L. F. McCollum of Houston, chairman of the board of the American Petroleum Institute, hailed the court's decision in the Normanna case "as the most courageous and far-reaching order ever promulgated in the interest of the petroleum consuming public."

McCollum told members of the society of petroleum engineers that since changing production rules for the Normanna field in Bee county last year after the court decision, the Texas Railroad Commission "has continued to give added weight to the acreage factor in allocating formulas on new fields."

Niki Would Like To Make Up With Mao

LONDON (UPI) — Communist diplomats said today Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev is seeking a personal meeting with Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-tung to avert an ideological break between the two Communist giants.

The Iron Curtain diplomats indicated Khrushchev already has put out quiet feelers for such a face-to-face meeting but that Mao had not yet responded.

The Communist sources, apparently in close touch with inner bloc developments, said the Sino-Russian ideological differences have been deepening with little prospect of a compromise. Both sides were trying to hold off from an outright break so there could be future peace moves.

The Communist sources did not anticipate a real settlement of the conflict even if Khrushchev and Mao did meet.

Mao and his Peiping regime clearing are out to take over leadership of the Communist world. They insist on a tougher line generally with emphasis on

Walker Charges Reds Given Free Hand Over Here

DALLAS (UPI) — Former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker yesterday sharply criticized the federal government for letting scientists from Communist countries tour a Texas military installation involved in the Mercury man in orbit program.

The scientists are part of the life sciences committee of the International Astronautical Federation, which opened its third annual meeting today on the UCLA campus in Los Angeles.

There are 16 scientists on the committee. Three are from Russia, one from Czechoslovakia and one from Poland.

On Wednesday, the group moves its meeting to the school of aerospace medicine at Brooks Air Force Base, San Antonio for a week of tours, briefings and discussions.

"This is another example of the liquidation of our internal security by the Potomac-presidium," Walker charged.

"Last week they released spy master Rudolf Abel from prison where the FBI had put him after great effort and sent him back to Russia for further use by Moscow in return for Moscow's release of the dubious Francis Powers."

"Now the Potomac presidium permits a committee which is one third Communist—one third from the Soviet bloc—to inspect our most advanced scientific installations and receive official briefings."

"The Rosenbergs were electrocuted for less."

"Exchange of information with Communists is always a one-way street. They have learned much from our nuclear and space programs. We have learned nothing from theirs."

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kenneth Ward of Hayden, Stone & Co. says there was some selective technical damage done during the 6 per cent January setback. Ward points out the drop actually was led by the decline of only seven stocks in the DJ industrial averages, and this will require further time consuming base building.

But oddly enough, he states, almost 300 stocks reached new highs during this period. "Quite an impressive record for a so-called bear trend."

According to Thomson & McKinnon, with strong underlying support technically, and a favorable economic climate the basic price trend remains upwards. Many bright areas are attracting attention such as the oil, natural gas, rubber and textile industries.

According to Standard & Poor's, pending investigations of the government's huge stockpiles of strategic and critical materials confuse the outlook for nonferrous metals. Obviously, if the government should decide to dispose of excess supplies, the prospects for metal prices would be dimmed considerably. "However, the economic consequences of any widespread selling from the stockpiles, along with diplomatic and domestic political considerations, seem to preclude any disruptive disposal of materials."

Consumers Due For Attractive Metal Products

By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A New York industrialist says that modern uses of metal which took its name from something associated with the unattainable soon will bring most attractive products in to the consumer's reach.

He was talking about tantalum, a metal which the United States must get mostly from Brazil, the Congo and Australia. Much of it goes here into the manufacture of capacitors, which he defined as "essentially a tiny storehouse of electricity" that performs many vital jobs in electronic circuits.

Tantalum, the Latins spelled it Tantalus, in Greek mythology was the son of the God Zeus. He was punished for a misdeed by being suspended in water up to his chin beneath a tree bearing fruit.

Every time he tried to reach up for something to eat or incline his head for a drink, the object of his hunger and thirst drew away.

Several score centuries after the Greeks wrote about this, scientists identified and isolated a hard metallic element on which they pinned the label, tantalum. It was hard to get at. For some years, it was not too easy to find uses for it.

In the growth of complex electronic circuitry, said Norman Burnell, president of Burnell and Co., Inc., Pelham, N. Y., tantalum found a home in the development of capacitors, some smaller than a lighter flint. These, no less than transistors, have helped the electrical systems to shrink in size, Burnell said.

Some day, he predicted in a statement to United Press International, their use might make it possible to put an entire home entertainment center, with projection color television, radio, stereo phonograph, tape recorder, into a cabinet the size of an ordinary table radio.

Not right away. Tantalum capacitors, because of their cost, are limited in use largely to missiles, rockets, satellites and computers. "But before long," he said, "they will enable low-cost production of such man-in-the-street products as wrist radios and more portable television sets."

Chairman Says Inequities Hit At Republicans

AUSTIN (UPI) — Republican state chairman Tad Smith of El Paso said today Texans are getting weary of "seeing the election changed strictly to cause inconvenience to Republicans," and predicted pressure will rise to have the legislature correct inequities.

Smith was optimistic, at an impromptu capital-news conference, about Republican strength in a number of political areas. He said:

"There is more interest in GOP political contests than ever before."

"The GOP has its 'best statewide organization situation' in Texas history."

"A substantial number of counties" will hold Republican primaries this year.

"I anticipate a lot of ticket splitting this year by Texans who vote in the Democratic party out of habit but will vote Republican in the general election."

Info New York seeking a brief respite from the chaos of Southeast Asia the other day came UPI correspondent Robert Udick.

Udick picked up a thorough background knowledge of Communist tactics in Asia while covering the war in Korea and has added to it since in a roving assignment which takes him from Rangoon to Jakarta, from Singapore to Saigon and such news fronts as Laos and Cambodia.

With intentional irony he calls it the "cold cash war" in Southeast Asia.

The validity of his description becomes apparent when it is recalled that U. S. aid to Laos is approaching the half billion dollar mark, that it is around $2 billion in South Viet Nam and is more than $500 million in President Sukarno's Indonesia.

This is an area of head-on collision between Western-style free democracy and Soviet and Red Chinese-style communism.

It also is an area where so-called neutrals have been able to profit handsomely by an on-the-fence policy which demands the maximum in benefits from both.

Udick's attitude was a philosophical one in which he took note of the suspicion among some American taxpayers that their dollars don't always do the desired job of winning friends.

But, he says, the Russians are having troubles, too, and he cites several examples.

In Rangoon, a hotel of considerable size and expense was undertaken with Russian aid and built through the joint efforts of the Russians and Burmese. But its design was such that no experienced hotel man wanted to run it and as a tourist attraction it proved a flop.

Burmese faith in Russian efficiency also received a shock when poorly packaged concrete spilled out over the docks and finally had to be chipped away. Electric light bulbs were accompanied by sockets that did not match.

In Thailand, the Russians lost a battle with the arrival into power of Field Marshal Sarit Thanarat. The Reds had sent considerable money into Thailand in a bid to win or buy influential friends. Those "influenced" now are in hiding or in jail.

The Russian practice is to build show pieces so as to gain the maximum propaganda benefits. In one case, it was a sugar mill in Indonesia which took into account neither climatic nor other special conditions and was markedly unsuccessful.

In another case, in the midst of a visit in which he announced Russian credits of $250 million in Indonesia, Nikita Khrushchev made uncomplimentary references to Indonesian handicrafts. The subsequent chill was noticeable.

ed a resolution to start immediate legal proceedings against property owners throughout the city who are permitting fire and health hazards to exist.

The city manager and city attorney were authorized to draw up a list of places in the city where such hazards exist and to start immediate proceedings.

City Attorney Bob Gordon said he expected to have the first case prepared and in the legal mill within the next two or three weeks.

It was pointed out that there are some 75 to 100 such places in Pampa.

The commission's action was brought on by a report from Mayor Sidwell that the city's fire rating credit had dropped some 20 per cent since 1953 and is now down to five per cent because of major fire losses in the period.

"We intend to go through with this," the mayor said, and property owners who are permitting these conditions to exist either as a fire or health hazard may as well realize it and start cleaning up."

In other action, Mayor Sidwell called attention to a chart which he asked be left on display, in the City Hall. It shows the rise in city costs during past years on a steady climb to again reach the peak of 1957.

The major asked that the city manager urge department heads to study the chart and then take steps now to try to reduce city expenditures. The mayor suggested that this move to reduce costs should not wait until budget-fixing time.

After discussing the canceled-out urban planning project which the city dropped several months ago, it was decided that a final payment of $2,015 to Koch, Fowler and Grafe, Inc., Dallas planning engineers, would be made when a final release from the contract is received by the city. The total cost of the uncompleted 20-year growth project was reduced from $19,780 to $16,350.

Mayor Sidwell suggested that the city enter into negotiations with Carson county officials for a contract by which Pampa's fire department would answer any major fire calls in Carson County. The action was brought up following the recent fire and explosion at the Cargary plant in Carson County. Because the city had no contract with the county, the Pampa fire department could not aid in fighting the fire.

Commissioner L. P. Fort said he would withhold further comment on Pampa's water rate situation when Mayor Sidwell said he was compiling some statistics on overall water picture and would have them ready to submit to the commission soon.

A three-man board of appraisal was given instructions by the commission this morning on proceeding with property appraisals in connection with the widening of S. Barnes St. Quentin Williams, Bud Hogan and William Duncan, the board members, will prepare an estimated cost for the commission on acquiring property for the improvement.

NEWS CONFERENCE
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will hold a news conference at 4 p.m. EST Wednesday. The White House said there were no requests from the network for "live" radio-TV coverage.

PCC Dinner Fetes 150

Baritone, Mantovani Plan Pampa Shows

Robert Merrill, Metropolitan Opera baritone, and Mantovani, English director of light music and his orchestra of 45, were announced as the "hold" numbers for the 1962 - 63 concert season at the Pampa Community Concert membership drive dinner held for workers last night in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn.

Mrs. Clifford Braly, concert president, announced that these artists would appear early in the season. "The Metropolitan Opera Company has permitted Mr. Merrill to accept a limited engagement tour and we feel most fortunate that we will be able to present him here. You will probably remember seeing him recently on the Jack Parr Show."

Headquarters chairmen were announced by Mrs. Braly as Mrs. Eben Warner Jr., chairman, and Mrs. Tom Braly, co-chairman, who will be in the Southwestern Public Service building this week to accept new memberships and renewals and give information.

Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, representative of the Columbia Artist Association, was a special guest.

Ted Gikas, membership drive chairman, expressed appreciation to the 150 drive workers for their cooperation and instructed them in the formalities of selling memberships. "We have had a 'sold-out' house for the past two years and we feel sure that, with your help, we will be able to repeat this year. Seats will be at a premium so urge your contacts to get their renewals and memberships in at the earliest possible date."

Invocation was given by Joe Whitten.

After dinner entertainment was provided by Mrs. Homer Kreuger, pianist, who played "Jeux d'eau" (Maurice Ravel).

Dinner arrangements were under the direction of Mrs. E. Roy Smith with Mrs. Bob Curry in charge of table decorations.

Glenn

into alternate night and day, each lasting about 45 minutes, the sandy-haired-Marine officer kept up a running patter about what he was seeing and what he and his ton-and-a-half spacecraft where doing.

"I am go. The capsule is in good shape. All systems are go... The view is tremendous... beautiful."

That is a sample of his happy remarks as he flashed through the stresses of acceleration, which multiplied his weight from 160 to 1,200 pounds, and then suddenly put him into a state of weightlessness.

The Atlas rocket hurled Glenn and his Friendship 7 spacecraft into the sky at 9:48 a.m. EST. It rose slowly in orange flame, then seemed to leap as it shot the astronaut into space at 17,545 miles an hour.

He was breaking the space barrier for the free world, and much of the free world was watching. President Kennedy was glued to his television set in the White House as the big Atlas roared into the sky.

The White House said the President was "very pleased" by the success of this pioneer flight by an American. In Arlington, Va., Glenn's wife and two children gave way to sheer joy. Glenn had talked to them from his cabin shortly before liftoff.

Millions of Americans gathered before TV and radio sets. Many cheered; many prayed. It was a big morale boost for many who had watched postponement after postponement as this country attempted to get its first man into orbit.

Afternoon newspapers rushed the news to the streets in early editions with huge black headlines.

The Atlas shot Glenn into an orbital path which ranged in altitude from 100 to 160 miles. It sent him hurtling always eastward over the Atlantic, Africa, Zanzibar, the Indian Ocean, Australia, the Pacific and southern U.S.A.

The weather which had threatened another agonizing postponement turned beautiful in the final hours of the countdown. It took the space agency's trackers and computers only a few minutes to determine that he was in orbit, soaring on a path that would carry him through three 45-minute nights and as many days to a sea landing in the Atlantic.

atures dipped to 8 below zero at Aberdeen, S.D., and Fargo, N.D.

Thunderstorms raked Dixie, toppling an oil derrick with 66-mile winds at Greenwood, La., stabbing lightning bolts into an oil storage tank at Shreveport, La., causing an explosion and fire, and dropping golf-ball-size hail at Bossier City, La.

The weather death toll climbed to at least 22. Wisconsin counted seven dead, Illinois five, Massachusetts and Michigan three each, North Dakota 2, and Iowa and Connecticut one each.

The heaviest snowfalls hit Maine — up to 12 inches. Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont and New Hampshire measured 5 to 9 inches Monday night. Boston had 7 inches of snow, New York only about a half inch, but Albany, N.Y., measured 4 inches. New Bedford, Mass., had 9 inches of snow, Portsmouth, N.H., 8 inches and Providence, R.I., 5 inches.

Sleet and freezing rain alternated with the snow, making highways treacherous. Dozens of schools closed in up-state New York.

The Midwest continued to dig out from under the snow blanket but secondary roads in Wisconsin and Minnesota remained blocked and some main highways in northern Iowa had only one-lane traffic.

Glenn's Family Said 'Overjoyed'

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI)—The wife and children of Lt. Col. John H. Glenn were described as "relieved and overjoyed" at the successful orbiting of the astronaut's space capsule.

The family minister, Rev. Frank A. Erwin, emerged from the Glenn home here to tell a crowd of newsmen that Mrs. Annie Glenn and David, 16, and Carolyn Glenn, 14, were very excited. He said a "feeling of joy prevailed" in the house.

He said that after it was confirmed officially that Glenn's space capsule had achieved orbit the group of family members and friends relaxed.

Glenn made a telephone call to his home about 45 minutes before blastoff at Cape Canaveral. He spoke directly from his capsule to his wife and the two children for about five minutes.

U.S. To Hurl Space Craft Toward Earth

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Officials have announced plans to hurl unmanned craft from space toward the earth at 24,500 miles an hour to get information they need to save astronauts of the future from fiery death on their return from the moon.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said the research program, called Project Fire, will provide data on what happens to spacecraft materials and equipment when they re-enter the atmosphere at high speed.

Air friction at the velocities with which returning lunar craft would plunge into the atmosphere would generate temperatures higher than the vaporizing point of most materials.

This heat also would create an ionization zone of charged gas particles around the craft and interfere with radio communication at a critical time.

During the next two years NASA plans to launch two instrument-carrying project fire spacecraft. In each case an Atlas rocket will hurl a 20-pound package into a high-arching trajectory down the Atlantic missile range from Cape Canaveral.

At peak altitude of several hundred miles an Antares solid fuel rocket engine (third stage of the Scout rocket) in the re-entry spacecraft will ignite. This will drive the package down through the atmosphere at speeds comparable to those of returning moon ships.

All information on what happens during the plunge will be obtained by means of radio transmissions from the craft and by NASA's radio and optical tracking systems. No attempt will be made to recover any parts of the craft which might survive the descent.

Claims Watching Hula Dancers Can Be Big Help To 'Old Folks'

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Oren E. Long of Hawaii is at age 72 trim and vigorous and a living testimonial to the health-giving benefits of watching hula dancers.

Perhaps you didn't know that hula dancers have a salubrious effect on their audiences. I doubt that Long did either until he became chairman of a Senate subcommittee on the problems of the aged.

In the course of his duties, Long conducted some hearings last fall in Honolulu. One of the witnesses was the Rev. Edwin Goodwin, who for 22 years has been a Baptist minister in the islands.

One of Long's aides has sent me a transcript of Goodwin's testimony along with a note explaining that it was somehow overlooked in the press coverage of the hearings.

The aide regarded this as regrettable because he felt that the minister had made a noteworthy contribution. After reading his testimony, I could only agree.

Goodwin pointed out that "our government guarantees life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

"So let's give some happiness to these aged people by providing entertainment programs that will boost them up and bolster them and make them feel better," he said.

He went on to comment that in his opinion "one of the greatest things that can do that is the hula dancing." He added that Sen. Long himself was a good example of what watching the hula can accomplish.

Goodwin said he was convinced that Long was still "frisky and young appearing" because he "has the opportunity to observe these dancers and singers from Hawaii."

Therefore, Goodwin proposed that the government sponsor nationwide tours by hula dancers so that old folks on the mainland would be able to share in the benefits.

Long thanked the minister for his testimony but did not necessarily endorse the plan.

"I'm glad, Mr. Goodwin, that you said I 'observed' rather than 'participated,'" the senator remarked.

It seems to me that Goodwin has pointed the way to a significant advancement in the science of geriatrics. Offhand, I can't think of a finer way to spend my declining years than by watching grass-skirted girls do the Polynesian twist.

Dear Abby....

Mother's Missing Best Part Of Life!

By ASIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A year ago I was married to a wonderful fellow. We have a month-old baby girl. We would be so happy, if only his mother would accept me! She refuses to come to see me and has never seen the baby. She is only 45, very attractive, has a good job and is a divorcee. My husband is her only child. He sees her all the time, but without me. His mother did not attend our wedding or any of the showers for me before our marriage. She made it plain she disapproved of the marriage, but gave no reason. I wanted to go to her and tell her how much I loved her son and that I wasn't "taking him away from her" but wanted to be a daughter to her, but she refused to see me. How can I win her over?

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a very nice, religious man for five months. He has shown a serious interest in me and has taken me to meet his family. On our third date he asked me how old I was and I told him I was 24. (Actually I am 31.) He is 26. The subject has never come up again but I am worried that he will find out I lied to him. Should I tell him the truth and risk losing him? Or should I keep it a secret? Does age make much difference?

DEAR LOOKS YOUNG: Age doesn't make as much difference as you think. Tell the young man you have a five-year lead on him. If he loves you enough, it won't matter.

DEAR ABBY: After ten years of marriage my husband and I still disagree on one minor question. Is the large hem of a bed sheet supposed to go at the foot of the bed? Or does it go on the top? I think it goes on the bottom. At least that's the way my mother taught me to make a bed in Texas. My husband insists I am wrong. Can you settle this?

How is the world treating you? Unload your problems on Abby, care of this paper.

Robert Bruner, Bill Duncan, Riccio Field, Frank Heare, Chester Huff, Ray Jordan, Ken Orlicek, Bob Parks, Ken Peeples, Lee Sams, Haldane Suttle, Bill Tarpley, James Trusty, Delmar Watkins, Mack White, Raymond Williams, Dick Wilson and John Langford.

These girly hair styles for spring are in keeping with feminine, ruffled clothes and swirly skirts. In this styling, the hair is swept back from the brow (left), and set with fullness at the crown and sides. Young and simple hairdo (center) has hair swirled at crown and very lightly curled at the ends. Airy, windswept hairdo (right) is cut with delicate fringe at the forehead. All styles are by Charles of the Ritz. And any of these will provide pure flattery.

Girls Are Girls This Spring In Hair Styles

ALICIA HART
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Girls will be girls again this spring. Back in fashion are small waistlines, frilly ruffles and swirly skirts. Make-up will be soft and on the pastel side, and hair will delicately frame the face. In place of bulky, bouffant hairdos, understated, shaped styles that mold the head will better complement the season's soft-lined silhouette. Among the hair styles being introduced by one leading beauty salon is one that begins with a center parting and ends in puffy, ruffled curls around the ears. Another is a softy-simple coiffure, with loose waves molded about the face on either side. A third trend for spring: calls for hair swept over to one side, ending in an edging of ringlet curls.

To wear the new, more feminine hair styles, the hair should be a bit longer than it was worn this winter — about mid-neck length.

If your hair is straight, a soft permanent will give it enough body to hold the new settings.

Of course, the appearance of your hair is not a result of expert styling alone. It must be healthy to do justice to any shaping and setting.

Cleanliness, scalp massage and vigorous brushing are as important to your crowning glory as any hairdresser.

Shampoo your hair whenever it needs it. Don't wait to do the job at set intervals. And before you wash it, massage your scalp with a rotating motion of your fingertips. If it's dry, give yourself a hot oil treatment before shampooing.

Don't sneer at the old "100 strokes a day" adage. Your brush is the most valuable tool in your hair beauty kit.

Brush properly — from scalp to hair ends — with forceful, stimulating strokes. And don't worry about your setting. It will fall into place more naturally after your hair has been brushed.

When you've succeeded in getting your hair and scalp into good, healthy condition, it's time to visit an expert who will shape it into one of spring's charming, feminine coiffures that will pretty "top" your new spring wardrobe.

Kennedy Wants Standby Money For Shot-In-Arm

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy asked Congress yesterday to arm him with standby authority to spend up to $2 billion to pump new vigor into the national economy when a recession threatens.

He spelled out details of the plan — first proposed in his State of the Union message last month — in letters to the House and Senate. Attached was the draft of his proposed bill.

The proposal would permit use of the standby spending authority whenever the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate rose at least one percentage point in three out of four consecutive months or four out of six consecutive months.

The President also would have to determine that use of the standby authority was necessary and that the situation had not been triggered by a major strike or some other special development.

Kennedy told Congress, which has been critical of the proposal, that his plan if invoked would: — Allow a $750 million increase in direct federal spending for already authorized public works projects, including resource development, conservation and other federal work.

— Provide $750 million in grants to be matched by state and local governments for capital improvement programs.

— Authorize $250 million in loans for state and local governments unable to provide matching funds.

— Set up a reserve of $250 million to be allotted to any of the other three programs as circumstances might warrant.

"As I pointed out in my State of the Union message last month," Kennedy said, "the time to repair the roof is when the sun is shining."

"I urge the Congress to give prompt attention to this vital legislation, as insurance against a rainy day that we hope will not recur, but which experience teaches us we must be prepared to meet."

Kennedy said recovery from the 1960-61 recession was "proceeding in a satisfactory manner" despite the large number of persons still unemployed. He said this would be an appropriate time to prepare for future economic fluctuations.

McNamara Back To Washington

HONOLULU (UPI) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara flew back to Washington today from a conference at Pearl Harbor with military and civilian officials on the Viet Nam situation.

In a statement prior to departing Monday night, McNamara said the situation in Viet Nam now seems "to be stabilized" as far as Communist advances are concerned.

But it may be a long time before the South Vietnamese can totally expel the Communist Viet Cong from their country, he said.

Ike, Nixon In Political Talks

PALM DESERT, Calif. (UPI) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and California gubernatorial aspirant Richard M. Nixon mixed in another round of golf Monday with their informal political talks.

The former President and vice president ended their talks Monday afternoon and Nixon returned to Los Angeles.

Nixon and his wife, Pat, were guests of the Eisenhowers for the past two days at the Eldorado Country Club cottage near the desert town of Palm Springs. Eisenhower and Nixon played a round of golf both days.

Eisenhower made it clear he does not intend to enter into the gubernatorial primary contest. He said he would respect Nixon's wishes as far as a campaigning was concerned.

Pool Denies He Is John Birch Society Member

EL PASO (UPI) — Two Democratic candidates for congressman at large exchanged verbal blasts yesterday.

Judge Woodrow Bean of El Paso said his opponent, Joe Pool of Dallas, was a member of the John Birch Society.

Pool said he was not and renewed a charge that Bean cannot win the support of Texas Democrats because of what he called "left-wing ideologies."

The exchange began Sunday when Pool said Bean could not survive a runoff primary election because he favors socialized medicine.

"I will defeat Bean because the people of Texas will not elect a man who favors socialized medicine and other left-wing ideologies favored by Bean and proved by his endorsement by PASO and the recent COPE meeting in Dallas," Pool said.

Bean said Pool is a "political has-been" and not much of a threat to him.

"Joe Pool, my old friend and schoolmate (both attended SMU) is no doubt a member of the John Birch Society," Bean said. "His lack of courage to appear before the PASO group representing some 20,000 Latin American votes in Texas, and his further lack of courage to appear before the AFL-CIO group in Dallas last week indicates to me that he already knows I'm going to win this race without a runoff."

NUCLEAR TEST BLASTS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States set off two more underground nuclear explosions Monday at the Nevada test area. The detonations, described as "low yield," were the 15th and 16th announced blasts since this country resumed tests last September.

Bradley, Cincy In Battle Royal

United Press International
Officials of the NCAA and NIT college basketball tournaments have sounded the opening salvos in their battle for the top independent teams — but they may have to wait two weeks before earning the Missouri Valley Conference representatives.

Cincinnati and Bradley were tied today for the MVC lead after the second-ranked Bearcats defeated the sixth-ranked Braves, 72-51, Monday night. The winner of the Missouri Valley automatically qualifies for the NCAA with the runnerup probably going to the National Invitational Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

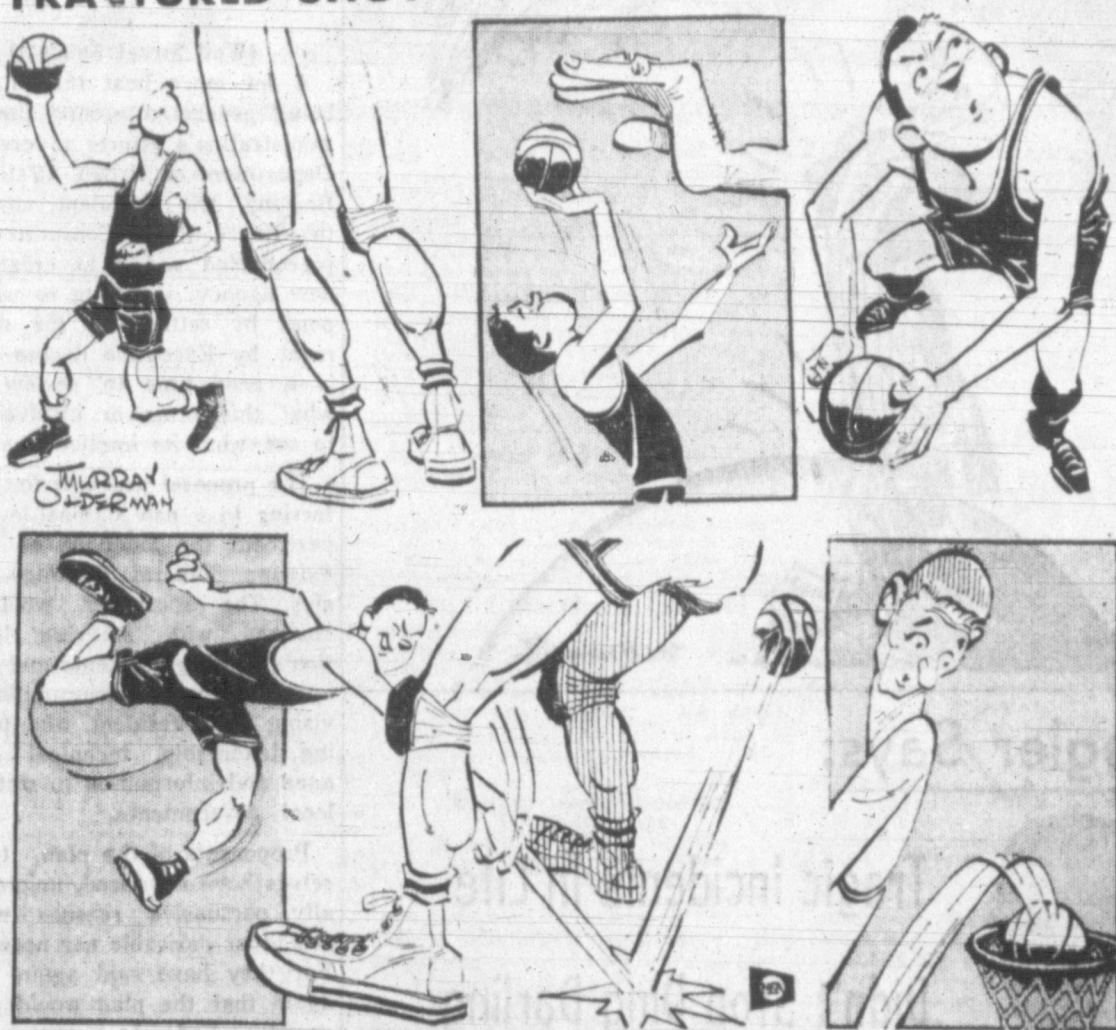

Joining the NCAA tourney, as "members at large," Monday were Villanova (16-6), Oregon State (17-3), Creighton (16-4) and Detroit (15-4). Western Kentucky's 77-51 victory over Morehead State earned the Hilltoppers the Ohio Valley Conference title and an NCAA berth.

The NIT filled four of its 12 berths with defending champion Providence (15-5), Loyola of Chicago (17-2), Duquesne (16-5) and Houston (18-5).

With Cincinnati and Bradley deadlocked with 9-2 records and one league game each to play, a playoff may be needed to determine the conference champion. Cincinnati, defending NCAA champion, hosts Wichita Saturday while Bradley meets St. Louis on the road March 3.

Stengel Says Hustle Will Reap Dividends

United Press International
Casey Stengel has been managing baseball teams since 1925 while Hank Bauer has less than a year of managerial experience — yet both men agree there's no substitute for hustle.

When Stengel greeted members of the New York Mets at their first official workout at St. Petersburg, Fla., Monday he reminded them that "a lot of jobs are open and if you hustle I personally will see to it that you get a raise because my owners have money."

Bauer didn't promise any raises to the Kansas City Athletics when they opened spring training at West Palm Beach, Fla., but he did insist on a "fighting, hustling ball club."

"These fellows are paid well and they're going to put out or else," said Bauer, a former Stengel protegee who relieved Joe Gordon as Kansas City's manager in mid-season last year.

"There'll be no loafing on this club," the former Yankee outfielder added. "I want a lot of hustle. That's the way I always played and that's the way my team will play."

Both Bauer and Stengel have their work cut out for them — and they know it. The A's finished in a last-place tie with Washington in the American League last season while the Mets have rounded up a collection of oldsters and youngsters (mostly oldsters) for their first season in the National League.

Stengel, pushing 72, showed lots of hustle himself in the Mets' first workout. He was all over the field, working with both pitchers and catchers, showing them how to throw and how to bunt. Ole Case then advised his players to be ready for two workouts daily.

"You could train on a railroad track if you've got guys who can throw bullets and hit the ball," he said. "But there's nice grass here, and I like grass, so we'll work twice a day."

The Yankees, Stengel's old club, staged their official camp opening at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., by engaging in a simulated intrasquad game. The only absentee among the 22 batters was reliever star Luis Arroyo, who was detained in his native Puerto Rico.

Harmon Killebrew signed with the Minnesota Twins for a salary that club President Calvin Griffith described as "the highest in the history of the team." Although Griffith declined to state the figure, it was estimated at $38,000. Killebrew batted .288, hit 48 homers and knocked in 122

Four From Spread Vie Against Rugged Glovers

Amarillo's seemingly invincible boxing team will try to take all the fistic marbles from the other boys tonight when they battle for the coveted state championship in the final round of the State Golden Gloves tournament at Will Rogers coliseum.

Advancing into the final round of action for the strong Amarillo team will be Ronnie Morgan, lightweight; Manny Perez, welterweight; and Carson Watt, middleweight. Eddie Gonzales, who advanced to the semifinal round with a victory Monday night, will battle for the title late tonight if he wins his early fight Tuesday evening.

The Amarillo team, which seems to have a firm grip on the team title, has 13 points with four fighters remaining while Fort Worth is second with 11 and 3; Houston 9 and 3; Odessa 8 and 1; Dallas 7 and 3; Corpus Christi 6 and 1 and Brownwood 6 and 1.

Gonzales decided a real toughie when he beat Charles Mata of San Antonio.

Gonzales' right hook floored Mata in the second round and a good solid array of rights gave the Amarillo boxer the decision.

Runyan Winner Of Senior PGA

DUNEDIN, Fla. (UPI) — Paul Runyan, who never could hit the long ball, will go against the British Seniors champion in June on the basis of his second straight victory in the PGA Seniors golf championship Monday.

The 140-pound Runyan shot a two-under-par 70, in the final round for a 72-hole 287, a score that tied his tournament record set last year.

It won him $2,000 — and an equal amount to make the trip to England to face the British Seniors champion. He made the same journey last year and came home the winner.

Runyan, 53, wound up three strokes ahead of the field Monday by his usual fine performance with the short irons on the greens.

Back at 281 were Dutch Harrison, San Francisco, who shot a 72 Monday; Joe Brown, West Des Moines, Iowa, who had a 74; and Ernie Ball, Tucson, Ariz., who had a final round 71.

After the ninth hole in the last round Runyan, a leading touring pro in the 1930s, was two strokes ahead, but he won going away by three strokes with his two-under-par round.

He had gone into the final round trailing Jimmy Demaret of Houston and Brown by one swing.

Demaret finished with a 282 for a two-way tie for third place with Charlie Sheppard of Pittsfield, Mass.

Tied for fourth were Bud Williamson, Lincoln, Neb., and Ellisworth Vines, Palm Springs, Calif., with 283.

Back at 284 was Harold Sanderson of Summit, N.J., followed by two 285s, Harry Cooper of White Plains, N.Y., and Todd Menefee of San Antonio, Tex.

Buckeyes Rule As Kings Again In Collegiate Roundball World

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ohio State topped the United Press International major college basketball ratings for the 12th straight week today, the unanimous choice of the 35-member coaching board.

Not since the fourth week of the season have the Buckeyes enjoyed this total prestige of a perfect 350-point score. During the interim Ohio State consistently received 34 first place votes, with the other 10-point ballot alternating between Kentucky and Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, the defending NCAA tourney champion, retained its customary second place rating with 301 points. Kentucky was a slim choice for third place, by a single over fourth-rated Kansas State, 218-217.

Mississippi State achieved the biggest gain among the top 10 by vaulting from eighth to fifth place on the strength of a victory over Kentucky last week.

Bradley slipped from fifth to sixth; Duke continued in its seventh place slot; Oregon State skidded from sixth to eighth, and St. John's advanced to ninth place in the elite echelon. Bowling Green, Loyola (Ill.) and Southern California tied for 10th place. Big Eight leader Colorado headed the second plateau this week; Utah and Duquesne tied for 14th; West Virginia was rated 16th; Utah State, 17th; UCLA, 18th; Wake Forest, 19th, and Arizona State U. and North Carolina tied for 20th.

Pipers Fate Will Lie In Hands Of Directors

CHICAGO (UPI) — American Basketball League directors were expected to vote today on whether to expel the Cleveland Pipers for alleged violation of league rules.

League Commissioner Abe Saperstein said he will ask for a yes or no ballot in separate telephone calls to the board members. He said a decision would be known in two or three days.

But in San Francisco, George McKeon, president of the Saints, disputed the commissioner. He said the board members voted unanimously Sunday to kick the Pipers out.

McKeon indicated that today's vote was merely to learn if the directors had changed their minds.

"I deem it extremely unlikely that the board will reverse themselves," he said.

The question of whether the Pipers were in or out was touched off Monday night by McKeon who said the former National Industrial Basketball League team was definitely out, McKeon said the directors had already decided how to distribute the Piper players among the other ABL clubs.

The San Francisco owner said he made the announcement with a wish "to clarify the situation."

Saperstein immediately branded McKeon's report as false and said

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities in harmony with the above moral principles.

Whose Obligation?

There is a ready-made lying in wait for the unwary feet of the lover of liberty who becomes so imbued with enthusiasm for freedom that he proposes to establish "obligations" or "duties" for others in order that those others shall also experience the joys of what he finds joyful.

Probably this idea was most completely expressed by Rousseau when he dreamed up the concept of the "general will" and went on to explain that freedom was so important that men could be "forced to be free."

Serious students of Rousseau have detected in this approach a basic internal contradiction. Freedom that is forced, is not freedom. Indeed, it is at this point of "obligation" where the doorway into slavery first cracks on its hinges.

Supposedly, a portion of the problem arises in a misunderstanding of two words, obligation and responsibility. These words are sometimes used interchangeably, but the ideas they represent are not interchangeable.

An obligation is a debt that one owes. And if there is any meaning to freedom, no one, and certainly no group of persons, can obligate another person without his consent. You cannot be obligated morally because of the actions of others.

Yet this idea persists. Right now, our government engages in practices which create a living and an expanding debt. Children not yet born are going to be told that they must pay this debt. Yet, this is a debt they have not contracted. Indeed, it may be a debt they are wholly unwilling and unable to pay. But the theory exists that it is proper (if only a majority approves) to obligate future generations for the payment of sums which this generation wishes to expend. How can this be moral?

Similar expressions of this fallacy persist at all levels of our society. We are told that a man has an "obligation" to lend a hand to charity. We are told that a man has an "obligation" to support political office holders. We are told that a man has an "obligation" to express himself publicly on matters of public interest. The list is almost endless.

It arises out of enthusiasm on the part of some for a particular charity, a particular system, a particular point of view. Some are even saying that a man has an "obligation" to be free.

But an obligation is a debt. And no one can saddle another with a debt against his will. All debts, to be both moral and valid, must be self-imposed. We have no obligation to give to charity, until we accept such an opportunity as an obligation. We have no obligation to support any particular system or to express any particular point of view, until such time as we ACCEPT such an obligation.

Many men, notably public figures, like to expound upon the "obligations" others have to do as they say. Unfortunately, many believe this sort of thing and hence impair their own freedom because they accept this kind of leadership.

To make clear the difference between obligation and responsibility, let us point out that an obligation arises as a result of a man's voluntary action and stands in the future. It is something he is morally obliged to do.

Responsibility, in contrast, is automatic. Each man IS responsible for what he does. And responsibility is retroactive. It relates to the personal accountability of someone for what he HAS done. Each man is fully responsible for every action he takes because he is the only man who can control his own energy, make his own choices, and act out his own decisions.

When a man assumes an obligation, he is responsible for this assumption. If he meets his obligation, he is responsible for meeting it. If he fails to meet it, he is responsible for failing to meet it.

We believe it would be a good thing for people to recognize just how responsible they really are for all of their thoughts, choices and actions. But as for obligations, while it is a temptation to say that every man is "obligated" to be free, we must refrain. A man who chooses to be a slave is not obliged to be free. But he is responsible for his choices whether they are agreeable choices or not.

Private Police

The London Daily Telegraph of last Dec. 28, brings us up to date on criminality in the British Isles. The matter is of strong interest. With so much emphasis upon American crime, many have been wondering just how our British cousins were faring.

As our readers perhaps recall, the British "bobby" is never armed and carries only a stout hickory "truncheon" as a persuasive tool. And, of course, the population growth noteworthy in so many parts of the world is also noted in Britain. The result is that there is a clamor from official sources for more policemen; meanwhile there is an upsurge in criminality; yet at the same time the conservative element is doing what it can to beat down any rise in taxes, which, as in America, are already far too high.

There is one development in Britain which is beginning to catch a great deal of attention. With official police forces smaller percentage-wise to populations than they have been, there is now the rise of the private police organizations.

America, of course, has had these security agencies for many years and has done rather well with them, too. But in Britain, the turning to private protection, instead of waiting for the long arm of the law which may not come, is really reaching astonishing proportions.

For example, there's a new organization, serving not only London but some of the other urban centers in Britain which already owns 300 armored vans. It is known as the "armored division" and each of the vans is manned by tough judo trained security guards who wear special uniforms and carry the same "truncheon" as the regular police. These guards are not otherwise armed, either.

The British policy for more than a hundred years has been to avoid armaments for officers. Robert Peel, the M. P. who set this policy in motion and after whom the "bobby" is named, insisted that there would be greater protection, not less, if the policemen were unarmed.

And it seems that even the private police are finding the same thing true. But the big news is the way these new private security agencies are finding customers. The "armored division" at present already employs 3,000 men and operates in 40 locations. Within a few years, the firm expects to be in a position to hire a minimum of 15,000 guards with appropriate vehicles at their disposal.

But this particular firm is far from being alone in the field. Helping to crowd the bobbies over to the side are others getting into business with great vigor. According to Reginald Colby, writing in the Telegraph, security organizations are now being privately formed in Britain at the rate of about one a week. Most of them are equipped with the latest devices for transmitting information and for detecting prowlers.

Though unarmed, they are usually well organized, and manufacturers or other businesses hiring their services find they can relax and sleep nights knowing

Hankering

By HENRY McEldore

Good news last week. Mighty good news.

The common cold is on the way out, and fish flour is coming in. Of the two, I can't be sure which is the more important.

Fish flour, I suppose.

Man has been eating wheat flour, with the same old taste, the same old consistency, and the same old bouquet, for centuries and centuries.

Fish flour will provide a pleasant change. No longer will one have to pass the bakery and inhale the same odor of buns, rolls and loaves of bread.

Nor will the kitchen in the home give off the same old tiresome odor of rising bread and rolls.

With fish flour, a stroll by the bakery will delight the nose with the wonderful, savory odors of cod, halibut, mackerel, trout, eel, mullet, and bass.

Who will be able to resist the temptation to stop in at a bakery shop and order a few codfish rolls with poppyseed? Or a dozen cinnamon buns alive with the refreshing smell of whale or porpoise?

Children have always thronged around the kitchen window for a hand-out of cookies. Now they'll gather by the thousands as a beaming mother distributes cookies reeking of wall-eyed pike, salmon, and catfish.

I never have eaten fish flour bread, but as soon as I read that it was soon to be with us, I had my wife make as near a substitute as she could. She took some frozen cod filets, thawed them, and then mixed them with her biscuit dough. Boy, what a delight! Pure yum-yum even though to bite into a bone in a biscuit was a bit of a surprise. Tomorrow she is going to try some beaten, bony biscuits, using canned salmon instead of cod. I'll be home early for dinner, you can bet on that.

As much as I despise the common cold, its departure from our midst will sadden me a bit. The cold has always been a perfect excuse for staying home now and then when you didn't want to go out, and goodness knows it has been one of the most endurable conversation pieces in history.

Everybody likes to talk about his colds, and their cures. Especially the latter. There isn't a man or woman living who doesn't feel that he or she knows the best of all ways to cure a cold. Hot lemon juice. Hot toddy. Fresh air. No air. Open windows, closed windows. Rest, exercise. Dry feet, wet feet. Stay out of drafts. Never mind drafts. Nose drops, no nose drops. Aspirin, no aspirin.

It will be a strange world with no sniffles, no tickles, no sneezing, no stuffy ears, no achy feelings.

that their properties are being thoroughly protected.

There appear to be only two major bones of contention as the shift in protection goes toward private and out of public hands. The first gripe of some of the citizens is that the private guards often wear uniforms which are virtually identical to the uniform of the bobbies, and some confusion results. This, of course, is not a major problem.

But Britain, too, has its economic illiterates and there is a growing clamor, albeit of small proportions now, that private agencies have services which "overlap" and, therefore, are not efficient. The argument is used by those who want to run the private protectors out of business by expanding the official forces through the taxing device.

But those who have a fuller understanding of economic laws recognize that such apparent overlapping of services is the very thing that makes for efficiency. The firm paying for protection gets it. And that is efficient.

Those not paying for it may not get it. Why should they? And, were one to revert again to the public protection concept, it would follow again that however large the forces, they could never be large enough to provide full protection for anyone. The guard service would be broad and general and, consequently, loose.

Meanwhile, the private guards are efficiently providing protection where it is really wanted.

Pegler Says:

Tragic Incidents In Life Didn't Stop Ding Darling

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Jay N. Darling, who died a few days ago in Des Moines, was one of the last of a tribe of editorial giants in American journalism, the pen-and-ink satirists who dominated Page One of many of our most important papers for a long time. Darling was the best draftsman of this elite and it was a quaint trade secret that he had lost his grip and switched from the Gillott pen, the standard weapon of the black-and-white warrior, to the camel hair brush normally used for water-colors and retouching photographs.

The day of his hurt he wrote it to me was this:

Back in 1910 after an early morning hour or two in a duck-blind in Iowa, he was stumbling back for camp and breakfast across a frozen cornfield, laden with his gun and a bunch of ducks against a wind with a spit of snow, when he snared one foot in the loop of a conestalk frozen into the ground at both ends. He got up and stumbled on, but his right elbow was "singing like a kettle." About six months later, his right arm and hand withered. He could no longer control a pen and switched to the brush. He also enlarged his drawings to fit the full sheet of cardboard so the reduced reproduction would eliminate the wiggles which his hand could not control.

Ding even quit his job in Des Moines for one on the New York Globe so that he could consult a new covey of neurologists. This quest took him to Dr. Frederick Peterson in a brownstone residence on West 57th Street where a patient emerged as he went in who wore the unmistakable nose of J. P. Morgan, which Ding had caricatured many a time. Ding was about to take off for lower economic levels, but Doctor Peterson hog-tied him and, as true punkin-seeds will, they discovered that the doctor had earned his first money writing editorials for the Sioux City Journal where Ding had drawn his first cartoons.

He called in his neurological surgeon," Ding wrote, "who made an incision, exposed the ulnar nerve and discovered that a thick ring of scar tissue had grown around the nerve cord, and squeezed it down from the normal size of a pencil to the size of a thread. He removed the scar tissue and at the end of six months the right hand began to function again. But I never went back to the pen and I have used fine-pointed brushes ever since."

Presently, he returned to the Des Moines Register and Leader. Ding's greatest cartoon was the phantom picture of Theodore

Matter of Fact

The South Pole itself is on a plateau about 10,000 feet in height. It is known that the greater part of the continent is a continuous plateau, the average height of which is about 8,000 feet. This makes the Antarctic continent twice as high as the continent of Asia.

Why An Urban Affairs Department?

(Wall Street Journal)

A lot more heat than light is being generated around the Administration's efforts to create a Department of Urban Affairs and Housing. The President, now that the House Rules Committee has pigeonholed a bill to create the new agency, is trying to win his point by setting up the department by Executive decree. So it is a good time to review just what this program involves and to see what its implications are.

The proposal provides for transferring to a new Cabinet-level department the functions of many existing Federal Housing agencies. The secretary would be charged with studying the nation's housing problems and development of urban communities, advising the President, and providing leadership, technical assistance and information to state and local governments.

Proponents of the plan, themselves have advanced, unintentionally, persuasive reasons why it is neither desirable nor necessary. For they have said again and again that the plan would create no new Federal programs nor would it alter substantially existing laws on Federal housing and urban development. If that is so, as the National Association of Manufacturers and others have observed, there surely is no crying need for a whole new Department of Urban Affairs and Housing.

But a much more likely prospect is that the proposed department would actually be a device by which the Federal Government could extend and consolidate control over its far-flung housing and urban redevelopment projects, at the expense of urban areas. Since the plan defines as "urban area" as a city or township of 50,000 or more population, whether incorporated or not, it would cover a pretty broad territory.

The President himself hinted at the possible extent of this department's invasion of localities when, commenting on the Rules Committee action, he referred to the Administration's "concern for some effective management and responsibility of the problems of two-thirds of our population who live in cities."

The Government might well be concerned. For just such massive intrusions into municipal affairs as a Department of Urban Affairs and Housing would be empowered to make have helped to contribute to the urban mismanagement and irresponsibility with which many cities are well acquainted. Too often political machines have become involved with millions of dollars of construction contracts with scandalous results. Nor is the profligate example of the Government itself one that suggests prudent management to municipal governments.

What the cities need far more urgently than Federal "concern" for their failings is a hard look by their own administrators and citizens at what Federal housing programs already are doing to them. What is happening as the result of paper plans imposed upon them from Washington whether relevant to local problems and conditions or not? What has been the effect of municipal rubber-stamping of Federal standards and specifications, imposed under the threat of withdrawal of Federal funds? What has been the effect on cities of swallowing projects which in the absence of local control had been better not begun at all?

That sort of realistic appraisal is the last thing the localities can expect from the Federal Government. And it surely would not come from a Department of Urban Affairs and Housing. What would inevitably come are still more and more elaborate paper plans, more Federal standards and specifications, more Federal say-so about where, how and for what the taxpayers' dollars are used. The only logical end to all this is complete abdication of municipal control over urban development.

It may be vain to expect the Federal housing and urban "improvement" juggernaut as now exists can be rolled back. Its further invasion, under the banner of a new Cabinet-rank department, can be checked. Not that the President has notified Congress he is setting up the department, the House or Senate has 60 days in which to reject. On its merits alone, rejection what it deserves.

Move Afoot To Feed Hungry In Red China

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Active support for giving United States surplus foods to the famine-stricken people of Communist China, on strictly humanitarian grounds, has just been made a high-priority objective of the Friends Committee on National Legislation.

This is a Quaker organization whose purpose is described as "translating the beliefs of the Society of Friends into political education and action." They support admission of Red China to the U.N. to bring peace to the Far East.

The committee is registered as a lobby with Congress. Its executive secretary is E. Raymond Wilson, long active in Quaker relief and other projects all over the world.

If any organization other than one connected with the Society of Friends advocated feeding the mainland Chinese there would probably be instant and loud criticism. Wilson says they are prepared to take it, but they aren't alone on this.

When the Papal secretary of state, Amleto Cardinal Cicognani, was in Washington last December, he was asked if the Vatican would support famine relief for the Communist Chinese. His reply was the simple Biblical admonition, "Feed the hungry."

In a Gallup poll last March, 52 per cent of the people queried said that the United States should offer some of its surplus foods to mainland China. Only 37 per cent were against it, with 11 per cent expressing no opinion.

The issue is nevertheless very much up in the air for the simple reason that this is where the Peiping government seems to want it. Red China has never asked for food.

The few offers of aid that have been made through organizations like the International Red Cross have been spurned.

Nationalist China's offer of 100,000 tons of rice a year ago was not even answered. The general conclusion is that any expression of need would be an admission of failure for the Chinese Communist system of agricultural communes.

And they must save face, even though their bellies are empty.

Red China has not even officially admitted there is a food shortage from crop failures and floods, though Peiping has bought over $400 million worth of foodstuffs from Australia, Canada, France, Burma and the Argentine. About three-fourths of this was contracted for last year, but some deliveries are called for during the next three years.

No official Chinese mainland crop figures have been released for the last two years, but 1961, believed to have been the third year of crop failures in a row, has been a year of political propaganda purposes.

There has been no official statement of U.S. policy on furnishing surplus American foods to the mainland Chinese since President Kennedy's reply to a press conference question a year ago. He said the United States would consider any expression of need for food, regardless of source, but that there was no indication Red China would respond favorably to any approach by the U.S.

Even the Quakers admit the U.S. law would have to be changed before there could be any famine relief to the Communists. All shipments to mainland China have been barred by the Export Control Act since December 1959.

Public Law 480 prohibits sale of U.S. surpluses for Communist country currencies. Long term credit is limited to "friendly nations" and Red China is not one of them.

One of the Friends' Committee objectives is to get present law changed. One opportunity for this will come through President Kennedy's new farm message request to Congress for a new Title V Public Law 480, the Agricultural Trade Development Act. It would authorize U.S. grants of agricultural surpluses to an international food bank agency which would make distributions to needy nations. A $100-million pilot project is proposed, to be run by the U.M. Food and Agriculture Organization, FAO. An amendment to this new legislation might authorize grants of such surpluses to any nation.

There are no delusions that any donations of food to mainland China through such an agency would make the Peiping government more friendly to the U.S.

Three times the U.S. has given food relief to Soviet Russia—during the 1920 famine, through Lend Lease in World War II and United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Agency after the war. None of this softened Moscow one bit.

The mainland Chinese puzzle now is how to help the Chinese people without helping their Communist masters.

Technological Progress Necessary To Stimulate Economic Growth

By John T. Kane

Technological progress and economic growth have a kind of special "togetherness" in this second half of the 20th Century which amounts to this: Disperse with one and we lose the other.

Why is this so? Because, reduced to the most simple terms, a dynamic technology triggers the economic expansion which results in a larger gross national product, more jobs, and more higher paying jobs. Without a growing economy the nation cannot finance the basic and product research and development necessary to technological progress.

To see how engineering developments lead directly to economic growth, we can look at four of the "new" technical areas—computers, electronics, nuclear energy, and the exploration of space. Each of these fields have added jobs and products, goods and services.

The field of electronic computers is only about 15 years old. Most of the firms now designing and making computers have been in the field for less than half that time. Still, the total computer business is well over $500 million yearly and is rapidly climbing toward the billion-dollar mark. A billion dollars makes a tidy payroll for an industry that is still in its early infancy.

Nuclear Problems

Computers are already indispensable to the practical solution of nuclear reactor problems. The Weather Bureau is using computers for forecasting, the Internal Revenue Service plans to audit every tax return with the help of computers, and industrial executives are using computers to aid in making marketing and inventory decisions. Computers are needed for the mathematics involved in rocket trajectories and satellite orbits, as well as for the mathematics in a broad range of defense work.

Engineering has greatly reduced the size of the computer, and has generated a whole family of computer accessories such as solid state memory cores, high-speed printers, transistors, and the like. The same engineering effort has produced computers with the capability of several hundred thousand calculations per second. A new computer generation is now being designed with a capability of some two million operations per second.

Closely related to computer technology is the general area of electronics. This field has given us rocket and satellite guidance systems, high fidelity sound reproduction, industrial automation, radio and TV broadcasting, and massive radiotelescopes which tune in on stars and galaxies millions of light years from the earth. For the near future, engineers are now working on such exotic schemes as molecular microcircuits—a concept which will give us wrist watches with no moving parts inside the case.

The computations of these engineers regarding the electrical characteristics of a new distribution transformer will ultimately be reflected in the nation's economic growth.

Again, each of these developments means jobs for engineers, for physicists and chemists, for highly skilled maintenance and operating workers, for sales and production people, and jobs for the many other occupations which are needed to service a large industry. One West Coast electronics firm is currently planning extensive development work during 1962 on thermoelectric devices that will alternately heat or cool by means of electrical energy without the use of coils or refrigerants, and without moving parts. Such combined heating and air conditioning systems will, when marketed, add to the productive wealth of our economy. Capital will be invested in manufacturing new jobs in producing and servicing will be created. The electronics industry rang up sales totaling ten billion dollars in 1961.

Atomic Energy

In the atom, man has tapped an all but bottomless pool of potential energy. The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission expects nuclear power plants of 300,000 kilowatts to be competitive by 1968 in high cost fuel areas. The total investment in AEC facilities is about seven and a half billion dollars. The AEC has an annual operating budget of approximately two and a half billion dollars. This mammoth investment in a brand new industry is the direct result of engineering applications of the theories of Einstein and other physicists.

At present, there are some 160 nuclear reactors in operation in the U.S. There are 125 more in the late planning or construction stages. Thus we will soon have 285 operating reactors, surely enough to support the claim that the atomic age is here. These reactors are being used for electric power generation, ship propulsion, production of fissionable materials, research, testing, and teaching. In each of those programs, reactors have added, and are adding, to the sum total of our national wealth.

Space Industry

At places like Cape Canaveral, Vandenberg Air Force Base, the Goddard Space Flight Center, and the Saturn assembly and testing sites one can see the spectacular impact of technological progress in the exploration of space. A child entering the first grade this year is older than much of the "space" industry in the U.S. This industry, directly or indirectly, employs more than a hundred thousand workers, and will soon represent a several-billion-dollar chunk of the nation's gross national product.

Although it is already huge and growing rapidly, the space sector of our economy is, literally, hardly off the ground. We don't have manned vehicles landing on the planets, we don't have satellite communication networks, and we are not yet really exploring anything but the fringes of our own solar system. We will undoubtedly advance far beyond these things, however, and in doing so we will be expanding our over-all economy.

Films Available As Public Service

Plans to expand Humble Oil & Refining Company's public service film program throughout the country have been announced by the company.

The distribution of Humble motion pictures will be handled through 21 free-loan Humble film libraries operated by Modern Talking Picture Service in key cities in the United States.

The films include travelogues, movies about oil, and documentaries about people and places. All in color, the 16-mm sound pictures range in running time from eight to thirty minutes.

Humble makes the films available on free loan as a public service. They may be borrowed by schools, clubs, business and industry, civic groups and other organized adult audiences. Requests for the films may be made to any local Humble office.

Back - Tracked

In conservative families of Korea, a woman rarely has a name. Men refer to her merely as the wife, daughter or mother of some other male and she eats after the men and in a different place.

ALIEN LAND—Roxy, a Maltese terrier, seems to be looking for someone to read that sign and do something about it. The dog had just arrived at Bayshore Gardens, Fla., on a trip from London.
