Reds Hint Acceptance Of Cease Fire In Laos

Foreign Envoys House Due Recess Meeting For Start On Tax Bill

BANKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The foreign ministers of the South-East Asia Treaty Organizations adjourned their opening session today following reports that the Soviet Union was accepting the Western ultimatum of a cease-fire in Laos. U.S. Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs, Roger Tubby, informed the meeting of the reported acceptance.

British sources, apparently not informed of the report, said there was "not enough information" to comment on but "we profoundly hope it's true."

With the support of the United States, Britain had delivered a note in Moscow last week calling for an immediate cease-fire in Laos, reactivation of a three-nation military control commission and convening of a 14-nation conference to decide future policy for the little kingdom.

The sudden turn of events came during a top-secret afternoon session of the eight foreign ministers. A morning session had been public.

All of the SEATO members except France were reported to have agreed to use force if necessary to prevent the Communists from taking over Laos.

Informed sources said the United States and other SEATO nations were trying to persuade France to go along with a proposal for joint SEATO action in the strife-torn kingdom if a cease-fire cannot be worked out with the Communists.

The sources said Secretary of State Dean Rusk was anxious for a unanimous agreement by the eight SEATO nations on this point before the conference ends Wednesday night.

France learned by experience in the Indochina war the difficulty of fighting guerrillas in this part of the world and is hesitant to commit its troops to another such action.

The SEATO conference opened this morning with Rusk and other foreign ministers firmly declaring the alliance must fulfill its responsibility for preserving Laos' independence.

Rusk made it clear the United States for its part was ready to fight if necessary to stop the Communists from engulfing Laos.

or any other Southeast Asia nation by force. He recalled the collective U.N. action in Korea in 1950.

He also warned of the threat in South Viet Nam but the bulk of his remarks dealt primarily with Laos.

"It is our sincere belief that all the states of mainland Southeast Asia can themselves resolve their purely internal problems," he said. "In these we have, of course, no desire to interfere."

"We will, however, continue to assist free nations of this area (See ENVOYS, Page 3)

House Due Recess Meeting For Start On Tax Bill

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas House went to work today with orders to raise $63 million immediately.

House members were handed a flexible tax bill by Rep. Charles Ballman of Borger with orders that they amend it freely to eliminate the general revenue fund deficit.

They had orders from Gov. Price Daniel, Speaker James A. Turman and themselves.

Two weeks ago, House members overwhelmingly passed a resolution that said they were ready to retire the deficit before they think about taxes to take care of proposed new spending.

The deficit—currently $102 million, but expected to drop to $63 million by the end of the fiscal year—is the hangover from too much spending and not enough taxation in previous sessions.

Daniel called the deficit a "flagrant waste" of state money because special funds must be used without interest to support the hot checks written on the general fund. He estimated the deficit costs the state $100,000 in interest.

Ballman, who is chairman of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee, wrote the tax bill so that it could be amended without parliamentary objection.

It was designed to close tax loopholes and be used as a vehicle to fetter the deficit.

Daniel reminded members that the Legislature has passed the halfway mark and that the Senate must have adequate time to consider tax proposals, which must originate in the House.

"The people do not want a recurrence of the events of 1959 when it took the Legislature a regular session and three special sessions to enact a tax bill," he said.

"The flexible tax bill was expected to be the target of tax amendments ranging from levies on bricks and bowling allies."

News Adds New Weather Service

The Pampa News weather information and forecasts now come directly from the Amarillo weather station.

Heretofore it has been necessary to receive the Pampa and Top O' Texas forecasts through the Fort Worth weather station.

The new arrangement will enable the News to have 24-hour contact with the weather bureau and have available the latest around-the-clock data on weather conditions in the Pampa and Panhandle areas.

Kennedy, Soviet Minister Meet In Private Talk

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union appeared today to have accepted in principle the West's three-point plan for ending the Laos crisis peacefully, but apparently still differ in their approach to the problem.

Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met President Kennedy in Washington at noon today, presumably to spell out details of the Russian reply to last week's note from Britain which was backed by the United States.

The official Communist newspaper Pravda anticipated the meeting with a lengthy editorial on the Soviet position.

It said the Soviet Union favors "peace talks," convening of a 14-nation conference to include Red China, and reactivation of the three-power Laos control commission.

The British plan calls for an immediate cease-fire in Laos, convening of the control commission and then a call for a meeting of a 14-nation conference. The control commission would be made up of the original members — India, Poland and Canada. The 14-nation conference would include the eight nations that hampered the original settlement in Indochina, including Laos, in Geneva in 1954.

Pravda commented on the British plan: "It is not difficult to see that there exist practical possibilities for the settlement of the Laotian problem, provided all interested parties strive toward it on a mutually acceptable basis and will do nothing that will complicate the situation in Laos."

Pravda restated the view that the multi-nation conference must come before renewal of the control commission. It said the conference could lay down the "necessary directives" to the commission.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy, backed by new Allied unity, today was expected to urge Russia to quit fueling the fires that threaten an independent neutral Laos.

The President met at the White House at noon with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko who asked for the appointment to deliver a message from Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev. There was strong speculation that before the stern-faced Gromyko enters Kennedy's oval office, Russia would have delivered to Great Britain a reply to the recent British call for a cease-fire in Laos.

Gromyko, the first high Soviet government official to meet with Kennedy, pulled up at the White House at 11:55 a.m.

The American President carried into the meeting an enthusiastic agreement from British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan that "the situation in Laos cannot be allowed to continue to deteriorate." Macmillan and the President met for the first time Sunday. (See REDS, Page 3)

While opposing action by the United States alone, Javits said: "if we mean business — and the President is making it clear that we do—then we must be prepared for some commitment of our own forces in the framework of the regional defense organization."

NATAL, Brazil (UPI) — A Brazilian military air transport carrying troops and dependents crashed while approaching the Natal Airport Sunday, killing 21 of those aboard.

Police Suspect Arson Attempt In Hotel Blaze

Pampa police today were questioning several persons in connection with a suspected arson attempt late last night in the Long Hotel, 609 W. Foster St.

Police Chief Jim Conner and Fire Chief J. C. Winborne said there was no question about an attempt being made to set the hotel afire.

Chief Winborne said the alertness of the night watchman, Claud Fivecoats, probably saved the hotel from heavy damage or destruction. Fivecoats saw a flame on the floor of the second floor hallway as he came through the hotel front entrance. He immediately called the fire department and firemen soon extinguished the blaze with chemicals.

Police Chief Conner said the fire apparently was discovered only a few minutes after it had been set shortly before last midnight.

An investigation by officers revealed that the contents of three cans of a denatured alcohol solvent had been poured on the hallway rug and on the floors of several second-floor rooms.

Police said there were only two or three persons asleep in the rooms at the time and they were alerted by the night watchman.

Luther Long, hotel owner, said today damage was confined to the hallway rug and throw rugs in several of the rooms. The floors were scorched, he said.

Long said he had no idea who would attempt to set the fire, but added that the motive possibly could have been on a grudge basis. Long said he was out of the city at the time of the arson attempt. He said he had just completed plans for remodeling the hotel.

Police were continuing their questioning of several possible suspects this afternoon.

Elephant Stomps Circus Worker

EAST MEADOW, N.Y. (UPI) — A 31-year-old animal trainer was in fair condition today with multiple injuries received when his circus elephant whipped and stomped on him before 3,000 spectators.

Eric Frodelius, the trainer, was treated for numerous broken bones and a head injury after the incident Saturday when he was attacked without warning.

Rotarians Will Stage Banquet, Ball Tonight

High point in the District Rotary Conference which opened here yesterday comes tonight with the Governor's Banquet at 7 p.m. in the High School Field House on Decatur St.

Dist. Gov. Bruce M. Pember of Slaton will be toastmaster and there will be a program of special music and entertainment.

The banquet will be followed by the Governor's Ball at 9:30 p.m. in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn.

Roy Sparkman, in-charge of registrations for the conference, said shortly before noon today nearly 500 persons had registered for the conference and the number was expected to top 700 by time for the Governor's Banquet tonight.

This morning's activities were taken up with a round of service breakfasts at the Coronado and the first plenary session of the conference in Robert E. Lee Junior High School auditorium. The forenoon session featured presentation of District Governor Pember and an address by George R. Means of Evanston, Ill. Means is general secretary of Rotary International and is representing International President J. Edd McLaughlin of Ralls, Texas, at the conference.

Secretary Means spoke this forenoon on "Rotary Around the World."

Rotarians held four separate luncheons this noon on vocational, community, international and club service programs.

Rotary Annex wives of Rotarians, held a special luncheon in Fellowship Hall. (See ROTARIANS, Page 3)

Gadget Tells Fast Drivers Radar Near

NORTH TONAWANDA, N.Y. (UPI) — A new gadget has been developed to warn unwitting motorists they are approaching police radar speed-measuring devices which often are used in "speed traps."

The device is especially designed to aid drivers who are going just a little over a speed limit—up to 10 miles an hour—but it will not do much good for dangerous speeders.

William L. Waytens, 33, general manager of Radatron, Inc., which developed the 11-ounce $39.95 gadget named "Radar Sentry," said he has checked with local and state police about the device and received no complaints.

"We have received hundreds of letters, especially from the South, complaining against the uncouth tactics of police in hiding their radar installations in trees or bushes or stopping motorists going only one or two miles over the speed limit," Waytens said.

"If police are really sincere about using radar as a safety or preventive check, they should have no objections to the sentry. Many times police actually point out their radar sites so motorists would be forewarned and slow down."

Nine Persons Injured As Storms Hit State

By United Press International

Several tornadoes and severe thunderstorms, accompanied by high winds, heavy rain and hail as large as golf balls ripped through North Central and North-eastern Texas Sunday, injuring at least nine persons and causing well over a million dollars worth of damage.

Hardest hit was Italy, 20 miles south of Waxahachie, where a tornado swept through the center.

Pampa received 15-inch precipitation in the sudden squall and thunderstorm that hit Pampa yesterday mid-afternoon.

It came up suddenly and passed almost as quickly, with the black clouds moving out to be replaced by clearing skies and sunshine. The rain squall was accompanied by high winds.

The forecaster says it will be partly cloudy tonight but scattered afternoon showers can be expected in the Pampa area again tomorrow.

An explosive thunderstorm smashed the downtown section of town and left every downtown business damaged.

Three persons were injured in Italy, five near Mt. Pleasant and one at Crockett.

At Italy, the tornado dipped down out of a bank of heavy storm clouds about 7:30 p.m. and skipped along the ground as it passed along the town's main street.

Mr. and Mrs. Elzie Price suffered cuts and bruises when their frame house on the edge of the Italy business district was thrown more than 50 feet from its foundation. Randall T. Corly, 49, was crushed when the roof of a building fell on his automobile.

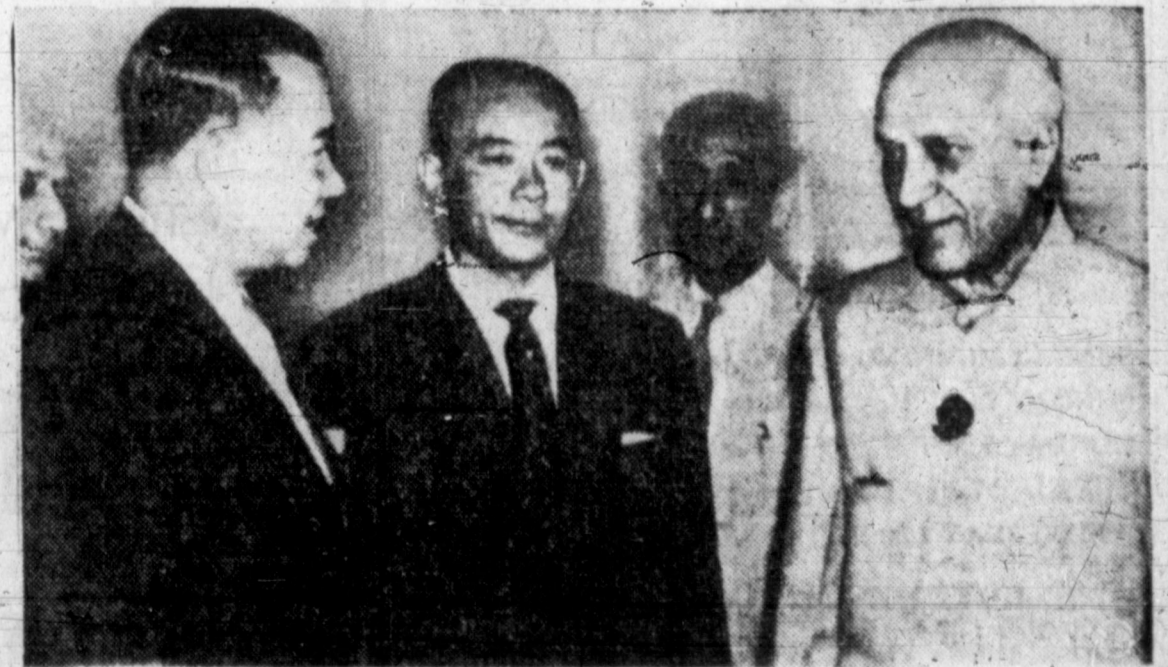

First estimates of damage at Italy ran in the neighborhood of a half-million dollars.

IS VENUS A PRIMITIVE JUNGLE OR A DARK, BARREN DESERT?

Little is known about Venus because of the dense clouds that hide its surface. Even the length of its day is uncertain. An old theory holds that Venus is a wet, jungle planet resembling earth millions of years ago. Water vapor was recently discovered in its atmosphere. The jungle idea may not be entirely impossible.

Modern theories say Venus is probably a wind-swept dust bowl. An abundance of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere, plus the planet's nearness to the sun mean that its temperature must be extremely high. Its clouds may be dust or volcanic ash. Perhaps the Russian probe will shed new light on the enigma of Venus.

MAN IN SPACE...

Why Send Astronauts Into Air? Space Scientists Assign Reason

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Space scientists have contrived an amazing variety of gifted instruments and machines — devices that can observe, remember, and report everything from the shape of cloud patterns over Australia to the number of electrons in a cubic centimeter of interplanetary space.

They even have devised tiny robots which will be able to sample the surface of Mars and determine whether it contains living organisms. The space engineers have been able to package these devices into fantastically small spaces. Complete radios smaller than a lump of sugar are commonplace.

In view of this, people often ask, why all the urgency to put men into space? Why not let the instruments do it all? If a tiny seismometer can glean information about the structure of the moon, why send a man there?

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) spend a lot of their time answering such questions. No machine, however brainy, can do more than it is told or set to do, they point out.

As NASA's chief of manned space flight programs, George M. Low, has said: "Only man can cope with the unexpected, and the unexpected, of course, is the most interesting."

Scientists in their laboratories can devise instruments to look only for what they think the instruments might encounter. But a man could handle surprises. And there would be no reason exploring space if the explorer did not believe it will contain some surprises.

"It is not easy to conceive," said Low, "that instruments could be devised that can effectively and reliably duplicate man's role as an explorer, a geologist, a surveyor, a photographer, a chemist, a biologist, or a host of other specialists. In all of these areas man's judgment, his ability to observe and to reason, and his decision-making capabilities are required."

Dr. Harold C. Urey, the Nobel laureate, hopes the first man on the moon will be a geologist. A single glance at his surroundings would tell such a man more in an instant than machines could discover in weeks.

Even in Project Mercury, which has been sarcastically described in some quarters as a $400 million program to give an astronaut a free ride around the earth, the role of man is a vital one, NASA says.

The astronaut can monitor all the automatic equipment. If it doesn't work, he can operate hand-controlled equipment. He also can see in color, smell odors and feel. When Ham, the chimpanzee, got back from his short rocket hop from Cape Canaveral, Fla., his doctors said he was in fine physical condition.

But what was Ham's psychological reaction to his ordeal? Was he, in short, happy? The chimpanzee's personal physician scoffed.

"How can I tell how a chimp feels?" he retorted.

In continuous two-way radio communication, the astronaut will be able to report whether his stomach hurts, whether he's scared or whether weightlessness is driving him crazy.

Denial Claimed Cuban Defector Was Kidnapped

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Cuban exiles here Sunday produced a tape recording of a voice said to be that of Cuban defector Jose Pardo Llada stating he was "not kidnapped, not hiding and not in flight."

Pardo Llada, former top radio and television "voice" for Fidel Castro, arrived here more than a week ago but disappeared shortly thereafter, reportedly because of telephone threats against his life.

Anti-Castro Cubans here later produced a statement they said was Pardo's, declaring his break with Fidel.

The male voice on the recording said "I reaffirm my written statement" of defection and added he did not want to "amplify" it in order to avoid "abusing the hospitality" of Mexican government authorities.

The voice said he had not asked for political asylum here, and does not fear for his life or his friends. He said he has received "all guarantees" of Mexican authorities.

Airlines Routing Findings Offered By CAB Official

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A official of the Civil Aeronautics board has recommended re-routing local airline service to communities in six Southwestern states to meet aviation advances of the jet age.

The official, William H. Dapper, filed an 85 page report plus several pages of charts and computations as the public representative in the case. The report went to hearing Examiner Herbert K. Bryan, who will consider the recommendations before reporting to the board.

Bryan also will gather evidence from the airlines and cities involved.

The case, filed Southwestern Area Local Service, embraces an area bounded by Little Rock, Port Arthur-Galveston on the east; Little Rock, Tulsa and Oklahoma City, Amarillo and Denver on the north; Denver, Albuquerque and El Paso on the west, and the United States-Mexican border on the south.

Local service airlines involved are Central, Frontier and Trans-Texas. Trunk carriers include Braniff, Continental, Delta, Eastern, TWA and Western.

Dapper, Bryan and the board itself under the law are charged with determining if all or any part of the air service proposed by the communities and the airlines is required by the public convenience and necessity. Other factors in the case include the fitness and willingness of the airlines to perform the service, and if some service should be deleted, suspended or replaced.

The Southwestern case, and several similar ones were brought before the CAB when jet service made stops at small and intermediate sized cities uneconomical for the large airlines.

Dapper recommended the public convenience and necessity required.

Trans-Texas be authorized to serve Austin and San Angelo on a route with terminals at Houston and Midland.

Trans-Texas be authorized to serve a route starting at Dallas and terminating at El Paso with stops at Fort Worth, Abilene, Big Spring and Midland. Beyond Midland, to Alamogordo, N.M., and then on to El Paso. Trans-Texas be authorized to provide service between Fort Worth and a terminal at San Antonio with intermediate stops at Dallas, Waco and Temple, with a segment flying beyond Temple to Houston with an intermediate stop at College Station. Rebels In Laos Sector Claimed Staging Retreat

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Laotian military sources today claimed that Pathet Lao rebels are on the retreat near Vang Vieng, some 65 miles north of this capital city. The sources said refreshed government troops had forced the rebels to retreat for about 11 miles north of Vang Vieng since launching a "counter-attack" last week. With the Pathet Lao rebel forces retreating and reportedly short of supplies and ammunition, the sources said, the royal Laotian army probably would recapture shortly Muong Kassy, a strategic mountain pass some 25 miles north of Vang Vieng. The sources said government forces had been briefed by new supplies and a helicopter after being pushed southward from the key Sala Phou Khoun road junction they held earlier this month. According to Laotian officials, the government forces were pushed out of the Sala Phou Khoun junction because of difficulties of supplying them over the extended supply routes from Vientiane to the south and the royal capital of Luang Prabang to the north. But now, the Laotian military sources claim, the "shoe is on the other foot" and the Communist rebel forces are being plagued by supply problems resulting from an over-extended supply route that runs for almost 200 road miles to the Soviet-supplied Plaine des Jarres area.

We will assist those defending themselves against such forces just as we shall assist those under attack by naked aggression. Rusk then went behind closed doors with foreign ministers of the other seven SEATO nations — Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Thailand and Pakistan — to try to hammer out a single, unified policy on Laos. Rusk did not refer directly to U.S. troop involvement in Laos but the implication was obvious. Informed sources said the United States was seeking agreement for combined SEATO military action in Laos if the Soviet Union refused to accept a cease-fire and a negotiated settlement.

This afternoon's second plenary session in the Robert E. Lee auditorium was to consist of Rotary talks by W. Howard Hoffman, past president of the Slaton, Texas, Rotary club, and Dr. Howard Killough, governor of District 567, Russell, Kans. Another highlight in this afternoon's session was to be an unheard student panel discussion moderated by International Secretary Means. Sunday's conference program consisted of greetings from the International President and a House of Friendship program and reception dinner, after which Rotarians and their wives attended special church services in the First Baptist Church. The message was given by Hubert Bratcher, Methodist district superintendent. The final plenary session is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. tomorrow after another round of breakfasts for Rotarians and their wives. This will include the introduction of L. E. (Pat) Patterson of Midland, the nominee and next district governor of District 573. There will be a report from the resolutions committee and a call for conference host for the 1962 conference. Tomorrow morning's session also will feature entertainment, highlighted by a Rotary information skit by Fred Neslage, Travis Lively, DeLea Vicars and Floyd Watson of the Pampa Club. The conference will adjourn after an all-conference luncheon scheduled tomorrow noon in the Coronado Inn Starlight Room. District Governor Pember will preside at the luncheon and the principal address will be given by International Secretary Means.

City Commission Meets Tomorrow

Routine business is scheduled at tomorrow's regular meeting of the Pampa City Commission in City Hall, City Manager John Koontz said today. Included among the business to be taken up will be the opening of paving bids and discussion of a sewer line easement. There also will be a report, Koontz said, on the successful fight waged in the state legislature by the Texas League of Municipalities against House Bill 14, the Eminent Domain Act. The Pampa commission joined with many other small and large cities in opposing the measure. It was defeated in the House 73 to 6 in a vote taken during the weekend.

(Continued From Page 1) at the sunspet U.S. naval base at Key West, Fla. After their three-hour conference, they issued a short communique on their strong, joint hope that Russia "will make a positive and constructive reply" to the British cease-fire proposal. Kennedy then flew to Palm Beach, had dinner and continued on to Washington. Macmillan flew back to Trinidad to resume his West Indies vacation before going with Kennedy again here on April 4. When the President landed aboard his jet transport from Florida Sunday night, French Ambassador Herve Alphand was waiting for him at Andrews Air Force base outside Washington. Alphand had a message from President Charles de Gaulle concerning the French view on the war in Laos. Continuing the pace of a day of rapid-fire diplomatic developments the President invited Alphand to ride to the White House with him. Although it was 11 p.m., the two men sat in an automobile in the White House driveway and conferred for about five minutes before Alphand left for his embassy. Kennedy hopped out of the car and strode to his office where he worked until nearly midnight with Foyd Kohler, assistant secretary of state for European affairs who participated in the meeting with Macmillan. Because of conditions in Southeast Asia and mounting pressure of business here, Kennedy decided to forego departure for Palm Beach Tuesday or Wednesday when he had hoped to begin a brief spring holiday. He was not likely to get away before Thursday at the earliest.

Other prospects of the Laotian crisis reflected from Key West and Washington: —In addition to discussing hopes for a political settlement of the fighting in Laos, Kennedy, Macmillan and their advisers also talked over a series of possible military moves should the situation continue to worsen. —Roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman said Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru agreed to ask Khrushchev to accept the Kennedy-supported terms for a Laotian cease-fire. The Allies particularly Great Britain and the United States, have not seen eye-to-eye on methods of achieving peace in Laos, but the Kennedy-Macmillan meeting apparently swept aside many of these procedural differences. Harriman was in New Delhi last Friday and delivered to Nehru a Kennedy letter asking the Indian leader to use his prestige to prevent the Laos crisis from flaring into conflict between larger powers. Arriving here from New York Sunday night, Harriman said Nehru supported the U.S. stand on Laos and would try to persuade Khrushchev to accept it. Macmillan's spokesman, Harold Evans, said the British proposal to Khrushchev provided essentially for an immediate cease-fire which would be sought jointly by the British and the Russians. Their representatives were co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference which established the independence of Laos, Cambodia and Viet Nam. The British plan also called for revival of the International Control Commission of 1954, this time to assure that a cease-fire is effective. Then the major powers would consider holding an international conference on Laos with about 14 nations participating.

Verdict Of Jury In Finch-Tregoff Case Is Awaited

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The jury and Mrs. Etta Atherton began their fourth day of deliberations today at the murder trial of Dr. R. Bernard Finch and Carole Tregoff. Mrs. Atherton isn't on the jury. She doesn't know anyone who is. She doesn't know the judge, the defendants, the lawyers or anyone connected with the case. But she knows more about them than anyone else in the whole wide world, she says. What she is, is the trial's No. 1 spectator and compiler of an immense "Finch scrapbook." Mrs. Atherton is 70 and a sweet little old great-grandmother who always wears a flowered hat and black overcoat over a simple dress into the courtroom. "I'm not a crackpot or a nut," she said. "I know you hear about these people who never work and just hang around trials. Well, I used to work for Western Union, and until 1954 I was a sales clerk in a department store." Mrs. Atherton is a hero to the spectators at the trial, where the lawyers are charged with murdering Finch's wife, Barbara Jean, in 1957. The tiny, grey-haired oldtimer has attended nearly every session of the three trials. "I started my first scrapbook with the kidnaping of the Charles Lindbergh baby three decades ago," she said, "and my eyes are always open. When I saw pictures in the papers of people lining up for the Finch trial, I got interested. "I wanted to know what was so interesting, so I came down and got interested myself. What's interesting? Well, as a taxpayer, I'm wondering how long it'll be before there's a verdict."

Johnnie Caldwell, 504 Maple St., pleaded guilty of aggravated assault and drew a fine of $100 and costs and 30 days in jail when arraigned before County Judge William J. Craig this forenoon. Police Chief Jim Conner said Caldwell attacked Robert Harris with an ice-pick at 3:45 a.m. Sunday following an argument in Harris' home. Police said Harris was taken to Highland hospital and released, then later re-admitted for further examination.

Vandals Stealing Cemetery Flowers

Police have been asked to put a halt to thefts of flowers and decorations from graves in Fairview Cemetery. Paul Carmichael of the Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home, said vandals have been at work for some time in the cemetery and just recently have renewed their depredations. The latest thefts consisted of bulbs and artificial flowers from several graves, Carmichael said. Police indicated today full prosecution will be made of the violators when they are apprehended. Extra precautions will be taken to put a stop to the cemetery thefts, they said.

Weather

(Continued From Page 1) a tornado, but reported the sighting of a funnel cloud near the city airport, about 20 miles north-east of the city in Arkansas. Display windows in several stores were smashed, and the Yellow Cab Co. garage had a concrete block wall destroyed and its roof blown up against a house on an adjacent lot. Many families huddled in the Post Office and railway station after the storm struck, and all power to the downtown section was cut off for several hours. There were no injuries at Texarkana and no estimate of damages was immediately available. The twister near Burleson in Johnson County, did several thousand dollars damage to farm buildings, and three houses were heavily damaged near Caddo Mills in Hunt County. A house and two outbuildings were damaged about five miles east of Hagansport, in Franklin County, while the twister at Crockett ruined a wing on a Negro hospital and damaged several homes and injured Mrs. Leona Bailey, 46, a visitor at the hospital. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Taylor and their three children were injured when a tornado smashed their farm home near Mt. Pleasant. The Department of Public Safety said the Taylor family attempted to flee the storm in a pickup truck, but the twister caught up with them, picked up the truck and slammed it back to the ground. The heavy storm at Dallas brought winds up to 75 miles per hour and numerous unconfirmed sightings of funnel clouds. At Arlington, between Dallas and Fort Worth, the winds tipped over a heavy railroad boxcar, and heavy hail did considerable damage to several light airplanes at Red Bird Airport on the southeast edge of Dallas. Numerous other twister sightings were reported as the storm front moved across the state, but most failed to touch ground or did so in open country where no damage occurred. Light showers were still falling early today in South Central and Southeastern Texas, but the Weather Bureau said skies would clear over the entire state during the day.

Air Force, Army Units May Merge

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defense Secretary Robert McNamara has directed the Joint Chiefs of Staff to prepare a tentative plan for merging Army units and Air Force tactical combat elements into a fast-moving new U.S. tactical command. The service units involved are the Army's Strategic Army Corps (STRAC) and the Air Force Tactical Air Command (TAC). They are the chief remaining U.S. military forces which up to now have not been assigned to any of the several unified military commands. Their merger under an Army or Air Force commander subject to direct orders from the joint chiefs would be to create a force for quick deployment to either limited or big war situations. The STRAC comprises the 82nd Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg, N.C., 101st Airborne Division, Ft. Campbell, Ky., and 4th Infantry Division, Ft. Lewis, Wash. The Air Force tactical force is commanded by Gen. Frank Everest at Langley Air Force Base, Va. It consists of jet fighters, light bomber and troop transport units throughout the country.

President's Wife To Spend Easter Days In Florida

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy was expected to depart today with her two children for an Easter vacation at Palm Beach, Fla. The first lady planned to give a lunch at the White House and to leave for the winter resort late in the day. Mrs. Kennedy returned to Washington Sunday night with her 3-year-old daughter Caroline following a weekend at Middleburg, Va., where she rode with the Orange County Hunt.

★ Polly's Quiz ★

By Polly Cramer

The pictures in your home assume a new importance when they are grouped together rather than being widely scattered.

Begin by measuring the space you want to cover with a grouping. Next, tape together sheets of brown wrapping paper to make a pattern the size of the planned arrangement.

With a pencil, draw an outline of each picture in position as it is finally placed on the paper. Lightly tape the pattern in place on the wall. Mark the correct spot for each hook, and in they go. Then, with pictures in place, pull the paper pattern away.

Dear Polly: I'd like color suggestions for a new couch and chairs. I'm sick of red and green. I do like my white walls. Carpet is black, white and sandalwood tweed. Drapes are patterned in white, gold, gray, black, beige and brown.

I have two cane tub chairs at either side of a black table. Accessories are white and deep turquoise. We want the room to be both comfortable and practical as children are small.

My husband favors Danish modern chairs and couch, but I'd like something more comfortable.

Mrs. T. C. P.

Dear Mrs. T. C. P.: Each of you could give a little. Have a comfortable Lawson-type sofa to please yourself. Satisfy him with two open-arm Danish chairs. A sturdy, brown textured fabric would be pretty and practical for the sofa.

Have the new moire pattern white plastic fabric for the chairs. Spots will wipe right off. Do paint those cane chairs a deep turquoise.

Dear Polly: I'd like to know what to do about my floors. They are pine and I am using scatter rugs. My new living room set is dusty rose and a chair is green-and-rose stripes. Walls are green and curtains are white.

I have a gray rug in front of the couch; a chartreuse rug in front of the fireplace and two other rugs that are white. Should I have all rugs the same color?

Mrs. R. M.

Dear Mrs. R. M.: Yes. Your room would be much prettier if the rugs were all one color. That chartreuse sounds like a trouble-maker. Have them all gray or all white. And do buy a room-size rug just as soon as the budget will permit.

"When is a woman old?" The author of a new book, "What About Women?" begins one of his chapters with that question.

But, being a gentleman, he hedges on the answer. Not being a gentleman I can safely say when a woman is old so here goes: A woman is old when she:

—No longer perks up when a man comes into the room.

—Stops inspecting herself in the mirror before she leaves the house.

—Starts admitting that she is too old to do this or that.

—Is no longer eager for a new experience.

—Quits believing the compliments that are paid her.

—Can't think of a single thing she would like to do to "fix up" her house.

—Is no longer interested in making new friends.

—Quits making plans.

—Thinks an ideal neighborhood is one without children.

—No longer laughs easily and often.

—Loses her sympathy for the young — because she has forgotten that youth also has its problems.

—Stops trying to be good company for others.

—No longer looks forward to anything with happy anticipation.

Study Course On Civil Defense Given At Hopkins

Hopkins PTA is sponsoring a study course on Civil Defense in Hopkins Community Hall on each Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m.

A recent program on "Chances For Survival" was presented by Miss Lou Ella Patterson, Foster Whaley and Jack Williams.

The program opened with a tape recording of an announcement of a nuclear attack followed by a discussion of "Distribution of Energy In a Typical Air Burst Fallout" and "Protection From Fallout."

"Preparedness" and "Decontamination" was then discussed. Instruments were demonstrated that can detect the amount of fallout.

The PTA unit urges all those who are interested to attend and participate in the study course.

Attending the recent session were Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Harrington; Mrs. and Mrs. Harry Garrison; Mrs. Geneva Finney; Mrs. Ralph Hix.

Dear Abby...

Just Count Him

..... Out, Lady!

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a man who has a very ugly temper. The first time he hit me we had been married only three weeks and I was four months pregnant at the time.

His father used to beat his mother up so bad she would land in the hospital. He has a brother who slaps his wife around, too. Is this a sickness that runs in their family? I never thought I could put up with the beating I have taken (and over absolutely nothing). I don't want to raise our three children in a fatherless home but what is a wife supposed to do when she is afraid to open her mouth for fear she'll get her teeth knocked out?

LIVING IN FEAR

DEAR LIVING: (This is living?) No man's worth more than one sock, and few are worth that. Let him send the support checks in the mail. If there is anything worse than a fatherless home, it's a home ruled by a coward who punches women.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend whom I dearly love, but she is the most selfish, egotistical person I have ever known. I try to overlook these faults because I have plenty of my own, but lately I find myself resenting her more than ever. She is a very unimaginative cook, whereas I delight in preparing fancy dishes. Whenever she has the women's club or bridge she asks me to make her refreshments. This entail shopping for

Ticking Clicking In Sportswear

DALLAS (UPI)— Ticking is clicking in sportswear from south western manufacturers.

The old-fashioned fabric with its sturdy weaves comes in several modern guises in spring and summer collections including the shorts, skirt-length culottes and sunback dresses.

Ticking is one of several country fabrics starring in active sportswear and patio clothes. The others are denim, sack cloth, calico and bandana prints, prints with country garden motifs of flowers and vegetables, and gingham. Old-fashioned tating appears in new machine-made edgings on dresses and active sports clothes.

Woven seersucker also reappears and it is a rare firm in these parts which does not feature synthetics which simulate voile and batiste.

Today marked the start of the annual style shows held for visiting reporters by the Dallas Fashion Manufacturers Center, representing 22 firms or the bulk of the sportswear industry here.

Mr. McCullough will narrate a colored film entitled "Under All Is the Land."

The dinner meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the Coronado Inn.

A special guest will be Mrs. Willie O'Neal who is owner of an abstract company in Panhandle. All members are invited to be present.

Dallas Fashions Took Ahead To Summertime

DALLAS (NEA) — Spring blossomed by the atmosphere of their own Southwest. This means that So Dallas designers must leap from winter to summer with just a brief mid-air pause for spring.

Their approach to spring-into-summer fashions is a many faceted one. First, they are well aware (because of the hot Southwestern summer) of the importance of air conditioning. Hence, the many little jackets, dyed-to-match sweaters and sleeves even in an era of sleeveless dresses.

Next, they are naturally influenced by the atmosphere of their own Southwest. This means that the patio dress appears in an updated form each season. This full-skirted and very pretty classic is an offshoot of the Indian square dress. The 1961 version is a far cry from the original but the two are kissing cousins.

Then, finally, Dallas designers are bound to feel the influence of the South itself. This accounts for the fact that Dallas designs are almost invariably both pretty and feminine. Rarely do they display a hard chic.

Camera Never Lies So Let Candid Shots Be Better Grooming Aids

ALICIA HART Newspaper-Enterprise Assn.

The old saying that a camera never lies is, of course, nonsense. While it's true that some people are more photogenic than others, rarely does anyone photograph the same way twice. So, when you look over the latest batch of candid shots of yourself, be objective.

Strike a happy medium in discovering what the camera has to tell you. For, somewhere between the most flattering pose and the worst picture lies the truth: Lighting, the way you felt at the time, the angle of the shot and many other factors are involved. So don't be unduly depressed or elated by what you see. Such pictures DO give you an opportunity to see your self somewhat as others see you.

Most of us see ourselves a day after day in a mirror, self-conscious and devoid of expression. Candid pictures will show you yourself from many angles and with varying expressions. Make them work for you to decide what you need to change about yourself.

BUDGET BEAUTY A good many women are inclined to feel that if only they had unlimited funds, they, too, could be great beauties. What they don't realize is that women who can afford to spend a great deal on good looks invariably WORK at it.

Many of them work out an hour each day at a gym. (Exercise which can be duplicated by walking, swimming and in sitting-up exercises at home.) All of them have first-rate hairdressers. (But there are fine hairdressers across the country. The basic of any smart hairdo is healthy hair plus an expert cut. Then do what many fashion models do: learn to set and handle your own hair.)

Women with money use fine face creams. (But these are the same creams available to women with just a little money. For the very finest face creams in this country are not expensive.) Women with money naturally buy beautiful clothes as one means of looking lovely. (But you, on a clothes budget, can buy copies of chic designs and be equally well-dressed.)

A great deal of money never turned any woman into a beauty. And a lack of it never kept a girl from being attractive if she really wanted to be.

How Ohio State Lost Title Told

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Strategy which misfired in the final two seconds of regulation play may have cost Ohio State's Buckeyes the 1961 NCAA basketball championship.

With the score tied, 61-61, and two seconds remaining on the clock, Ohio State called time-out with the ball under the Buckeye basket. Ohio State captain Larry Siegfried passed deep to John Havlicek, who again called time-out—this time with one second remaining.

Ohio State strategy called for a high arching pass in from Havlicek. The ball was supposed to hit the rim of the basket so All-American Jerry Lucas could tip it in.

The ball hit the rim, but Lucas wasn't there. He had been unable to get around 6-9 Cincinnati center Paul Hogue and the ball bounced away free as the buzzer sounded.

Cincinnati scored nine points in the overtime period, and Boudin contributed 11 points in the first eight minutes of the second half to fire up the Cincinnati attack.

The 43-year-old Cincinnati coach, who said his entire team played great ball, also heaped individual praise on burly Bob Wiesenhahn. The husky, stalking forward led Bearcat scorers with 17 points, was their leading rebounder with nine, and held Ohio State forward John Havlicek to one field goal.

Not only did Cincinnati dethrone Ohio State as national champion, but it snapped the Buckeyes' 32-game winning streak. In the process, Cincinnati extended its winning streak to 22 games.

The championship game was a fitting climax to an action-packed night, which saw St. Joseph's (Pa.) outlast Utah, 127-120, in four overtime periods for third place in the tournament.

John Egan scored 42 points and little James Lynam had 31 for St. Joseph's and Utah's Billy McGill scored 34 in the marathon which shattered four NCAA scoring records, tied another, and consumed an extra hour of play time.

NCAA tournament records set included: most points scored by two teams in a single game (27, and 120 by Utah); most points in a single game (127 by St. Joseph's and 120 by Utah); most points scored by a team in a single season of NCAA tournament playoffs (Utah 366 and St. Joseph's 364), and most field goals (Utah 50 and St. Joseph's 45).

In addition, the four-overtime game tied an NCAA tournament mark. Only other playoff game to last that long was the 1956 contest between Canisius and North Carolina State, won by Canisius.

Ohio State and Cincinnati dominated the all-tournament team, each with two selections.

Player Wins Golf Title In Florida

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Golf's touring professionals headed for the Masters tournament today with newly crowned Sunshine Open winner Gary Player carrying the hottest sticks in the crowd.

The small South African came out of a sandtrap to birdie the final hole Sunday and edge Arnold Palmer by one stroke in the $25,000 tourney, last on the circuit before the hallowed Masters.

Player shot 69-68-67-273 under to win first money of $3,500. Palmer, reigning Masters champion, cut six strokes off Bayshore Country Club's par 72 with a closing 66 that gave him 274 and $2,300. Mike Souchak finished with 67 for 275 and third place, worth $1,800.

The 25-year-old Player, British Open winner two years ago and currently the tour's top money winner with $25,061, began the final round tied for first with Julius Boros and Gay Brewer Jr., four shots in front of Palmer.

Palmer narrowly missed an eagle as he chipped his third shot three inches from the cup on the par-five, 485-yard 18th.

"I saw Palmer birdie the 18th said Player. "My goodness, I was going crazy there."

Player pushed his second shot into a trap to the right of the green. But out he came with a 40-yard wedge only five feet from the pin. "I just said to myself, 'Just don't choke on this putt.'"

He didn't. The putt found the cup for a birdie four.

Hunch bettors had a natural at Bowie Saturday, and Conestoga came through for them in fine style by capturing the $118,450 John B. Campbell Handicap by three-quarters of a length over April Skies.

Conestoga is owned by Bruce S. Campbell, and although he is no relation to the late racing secretary and handicapper in whose honor the race is held, the name is still the same.

It was the second straight stakes victory for Conestoga, who less than two weeks ago came within two-fifths of a second of the world's turf course record in winning the Green Valley Handicap at Gulfstream.

Conestoga's time for the mile and one-sixteenth Campbell was 1:45 2-5 under a good ride by Roy Gilbert, and he returned $30.60, $12.20 and $8.40. April Skies had a three-length advantage over All Hands for second place.

General Arthur was another outsider who made good in a big way Saturday, breezing to a three-length victory in the $41,895 Donn Handicap in record-breaking time at Gulfstream. The 7-year-old son of Count Fleet covered the mile and one-half turf course in 2:25 4-5, equaling the track mark set two years ago by One-Eyed King.

Ridden by Larry Gilligan, General Arthur paid $24.10, $14.00 and $8.90. Civic Guard was second and Merry Top 2nd was third.

Pied D'Or charged from last place to win the $27,800 Paumonok Handicap at Aqueduct by half-a-length over Winonly, with Yes You Will a noseback in third place. Pied D'Or, with Johnny Rotz aboard, was clocked in 1:10 4-5 for the six furlongs and returned $10.20, $4.50 and $3.00.

Angel Valenzuela booted home Sea Orbit in the $10,000 added San Francisco mile at Golden Gate Fields, with previously unbeaten Four-And-Twenty finishing fifth in the field of six. Sea Orbit paid $10.00 straight.

Little Limey returned $8.60 in capturing the $5,000 featured allowance race at Lincoln Downs. Eight Again ($6.00) equaled the Oakland record for a mile and 70 yards in winning a $10,000 handicap event in 1:39 3-5 and First Banker ($15.70) won the $8,000 added Florida-Breeders Futurity at Sunshine Park.

Western Playoff Set For Tonight

By United Press International

Once again it was a group of old pros who came through for the Celtics in their time of need. Boston led by only five points, 88-83, entering the final period, but Bill Sharman and Frank Ramsey got hot from the floor and Bill Russell dominated the backboards to help the Celtics to a 14-3 burst and a decisive 16-point advantage.

The 34-year-old Sharman led all scorers with 27 points. Russell had 25 points and 33 rebounds and Ramsey tossed in 21 point.

Syracuse put up a gallant fight to remain alive in the playoffs, and twice led by seven points in the second quarter. The game was tied 16 times during the first three periods, but then Boston's power erupted, to send the Nationals' home. Dick Barnett led Syracuse in scoring with 25 points.

Italian Car Top Winner At Sebring

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI)—Italian Ferraris and German Porsches proved superior cars in the Sebring 12-hour sports car endurance race Saturday, although officials still had not compiled the complete standings today.

Out of the top 10 cars, the bigger Ferraris with their 3-liter engines took all places except fifth and ninth, which were grabbed off by the durable 1.5-liter Porsches.

The Porsches also took the first two positions in the index of performance category, a handicap formula based on engine size.

The race was the first of the year counting points toward the world car manufacturers' championship, won last year by Ferrari.

In this race, Ferrari won eight points. The Porsche factory, last year's runnerup, won two points. They were the only points awarded.

The race was won by Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif., and Olivier Gendebien of Belgium driving a factory-sponsored Ferrari. Next was Ritchie Ginther, also of Santa Monica, and Count Wolfgang von Trips of Germany, also in a factory Ferrari.

There was no indication when the complete standings in the 65-Ferraris were the only points awarded.

The only data concerning times and speeds made available concerned the winning Hill Gendebien Ferrari, which showed they set new course 12-hour records of 206 laps, 1,071.2 miles, at 91.306 miles an hour.

A Porsche driven by Bob Holbert of Warrington, Pa., and Roger Penske of Gladwyne, Pa., which placed seventh overall, won the index of performance.

The index runnerup was a larger engine Porsche, which placed fifth overall, driven by Bob Donnell of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Don Sessler of Lancaster, Pa.

Giants Whip Cubs In Sunday Battle

By JOE SARGIS

United Press International

There's an old baseball saw about how the pitchers are supposed to be ahead of the hitters in the spring, but don't try to sell it to the San Francisco Giants.

Sunday, for instance, they belted five Chicago Cubs' pitchers for 19 hits including five homers for a 15-10 victory. It was the Giants' fourth straight win and gave them a total of 60 hits and 45 runs for the stretch.

Rookie Tom Haller, who is battling holdovers Bob Schmidt and Hobie Landrith, both light hitters, for the No. 1 catching assignment, was the hero of the latest uprising. The former Big Ten quarterback from Illinois, who isn't even listed on the San Francisco spring roster, banged out two of the homers to boost his average to an even .500.

Haller has collected 10 hits in 20 at-bats and only two of his blows have been singles. His other eight hits include four homers, two doubles and two triples.

Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda and pitcher Jack Sanford were the other home run hitters for the Giants, who now have hit a total of 18 in 15 spring games.

And Willie McCovey, who has been told by manager Al Dark to forget all about last year, collected three hits in three times at bat to push his batting average to a gaudy .435.

Johnny Podres, the Los Angeles Dodgers' ace left-hander, became the club's first pitcher to go the route. The 28-year-old veteran spun a neat five-hitter as the Dodgers beat the Baltimore Orioles, 2-0.

Sore-armed Curt Raydon, attempting to make the grade again with the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, walked two batters following a single by Billy Goodman in the eighth inning and Earl Torgerson promptly singled in two of the runners for a 2-1 victory for the Chicago White Sox.

Frank Baumann hurled brilliantly to become the first White Sox pitcher to go seven innings. Turk Lown finished up and picked up the victory.

The Minnesota Twins exploded for 18 hits to smother the Kansas City A's 18-4. Ralph Terry and Danny McDevitt pitched the New York Yankees to a 6-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds—the Philadelphia Phillies rallied to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 5-3; West Covington knocked in three runs with a double and homer as the Milwaukee Braves beat the Detroit Tigers, 7-4; the Cleveland Indians whipped the Boston Red Sox, 9-3; behind the fine pitching of Jim (Mudcat) Grant; the Washington Senators defeated the Braves' "B" team, 5-1, and the Los Angeles Angels downed San Diego of the Pacific Coast League, 7-2, in other games.

Chicago And Detroit Lead Hockey Playoffs

By United Press International

The Chicago Black Hawks and the Detroit Red Wings hold the upper hand in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs today.

The Black Hawks, battling regular-season champion Montreal all the way, finally whipped the Canadiens, 2-1, Sunday night after 52 minutes and 12 seconds of overtime play, while the Red Wings downed the Toronto Maple Leafs, 2-0.

The victories gave the Black Hawks and the Red Wings 2-1 leads over the Canadiens and Maple Leafs, respectively, in their best-of-seven semifinal playoff series.

Murray Balfour, who had scored only one goal previously in Stanley Cup play, was the hero of the Chicago victory, scoring both goals before a crowd of 16,666, largest of the season in Chicago. Balfour scored his first goal at 18:33 of the second period, and the way goalie Glenn Hall was turning the Canadiens back, it appeared to be all the Hawks needed to win.

However, with only 40 seconds left to play, Montreal Coach Toe Blake yanked goalie Jacques Plante in favor of a sixth forward with a faceoff near the Chicago net. The strategy paid off when Phil Goyette got the puck and passed to Henri Richard, who in turn fired a short shot into the Chicago cage to tie it 1-1 with 36 seconds left to play.

Then the frustration began as the two teams battled into a third overtime period before Balfour ended it by flipping a 10-foot backhand between Plante's legs for the winning score. Stan Mikita set up the payoff with a pass right in front of the Montreal net.

Just before the winning tally was registered, referee Dalton

Miss Suggs Wins Golf Tourney

BRADENTON, Fla. (UPI)—Steady stroking Louise Suggs put her putter to good use for the second straight day and wound up winning the $7,500 Golden Golf Festival tournament by two strokes Sunday with a five under woman's par 70 and a total 293.

"The breaks," the Atlanta, Ga. shoemaker said, were responsible for her success in staving off a strong back nine bid by long-hitting Mickey Wright of Dallas, Texas.

Miss Wright shot a 99-295 and won second place money.

Second round leader Betty Rawls of Spartanburg, S. C. shot a 76-299, good enough for third place.

Other top winners included Kathy Whitworth, Jal, N. M.; 307 and Betty Jameson, San Antonio, Tex., 312.

Lane Will Confer With Yank Chief

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Frank Lane will be here today for another round of talks with New York Yankee General Manager Bud Daley and, before they get through, the Kansas City A's may wind up with pitcher Ryne Duren.

The Yankees reportedly have placed Duren on the block after firing him $350 for breaking curfew during spring training.

Lane and Hamey had talked before with little progress. The Yankees have been after pitchers Bud Daley and Ray Herbert, but if they deal for Duren then they reportedly are ready to settle for a reliever such as knuckleballer Ken Johnson, who won five games while losing 10 for the loyal A's in 1960.

Barons Win In Bowling

By United Press International

Cleveland may have flown from the wings of victory to the jaws of death in the American Hockey League over the weekend.

The Barons won two games to finish third in the standings and gain the "honor" of meeting regular-season champion Springfield Wednesday night in the opening game of the best-of-seven semifinals of the AHL playoffs. Buffalo is at Hershey that night in the other bracket.

Goals by Ed Mazur, Fred Glover and Cal Stearns led the Ohioans to a 3-1 victory over Hershey Sunday, thus giving them third over Buffalo on an extra victory as both teams finished with 73 points.

In Sunday's other action, Quebec knocked off Providence, 6-4, as Jean Cossette and Mike Labadie each bagged a goal and assist and Michel Harvey collected four assists. And Buffalo defeated Rochester, 8-4, as Dick Gamble hit the nets for two and Larry Wilson notched five assists.

Providence Proved Careful Team In Winning Basketball Tourney

NEW YORK (UPI)—Coach Joe Mullaney of Providence College is a better coach than a prophet.

Before Saturday's final of the National Invitation basketball tournament against St. Louis University, Mullaney called his Friars a "careless" team and the Billikens a "careful" club. But it turned out just the opposite, with Providence capitalizing on St. Louis' last minute mistakes to win its first NIT championship, 62-59.

The usually erratic Friars from Rhode Island, who lost in the final last year against Bradley, became the careful team in the last few minutes as the Billikens made a number of violations and some costly personal fouls to the joy of most of the 15,673 fans at Madison Square Garden.

With Johnny Egan falling down on the job after scoring a total of 88 points in the Friars' tourney victories over De Paul, Niagara and Holy Cross and Jim Hadnot suffering from Garden jitters, scrappy Providence fell behind St. Louis by seven points at the midway mark of the second half.

But sophomore Vinnie Ernst, the smallest player on the court at 5-8, took charge and Hadnot shook his nervousness to sink six crucial points to pull out the game. Ernst finished with only four points and a four-game total of 40 points but his hustling play earned him the most valuable player award over the favored Egan, who scored only nine points in the final.

John Benington, coach of the runnerup team, said, "We have only ourselves to blame. We had it won, but kicked it away. I think our kids played well, though perhaps better than a lot of people figures."

Rice Net Title Won By Fisher

HOUSTON (UPI)—Ronnie Fisher of Rice today held the singles title of the 3rd annual Rice Collegiate Invitational Tennis Tournament.

Hard-serving Fisher beat Trinity freshman Frank Froehling for the championship Sunday.

Corpus Christi University's team of Antonio Palafox and Chris Crawford defeated Froehling and Bobby Joyner of Trinity to win the doubles crown and tie Rice for the tournament team championship.

Marcus Perez, 30, of San Antonio, was found dead on a street Sunday and police said it appeared he had been struck down by a hit-and-run driver.
Adolpho Padilla, 2, of Dallas, was fatally stabbed Friday night at Dallas.
Odus Hill, 39, Dallas, was stabbed fatally by a youth who attacked him as he was walking home from work Friday night.

UNEMPLOYED STEEL WORKERS, many over 40, receive union-distributed bags to tide them over until...

In Boom Or Recession

If You're Over 40--Sorry Sir

By JERRY BENNET
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Whatever success President Kennedy has in eliminating widespread unemployment probably will have few lasting benefits for more than a million jobless workers over 40.
They are the victims of age discrimination by employers, a problem that economy-priming measures alone can't solve.
So say experts of the Labor Department's Bureau of Employment Security who are growing increasingly alarmed about company hiring policies which draw the line at the relatively early age of 40.
Last year the number of 40-plus workers who couldn't get a job totaled about one million. Today, at the height of the business slump, it's believed to be much higher.
Says Robert C. Goodwin, director of the Federal Bureau of Employment Security:
"Age bias in hiring has serious consequences not only for the individual worker and employer but for the community and nation as well. The economic and psychological damage to thousands of workers over 40 denied an opportunity to work is obvious to most."
"Less obvious is the fact that such restrictions result in the creation of artificial manpower shortages and prevent full utilization of our nation's most valuable resource — its manpower."
Labor Department experts predict that by 1970, the American economy will be turning out $730 billion worth of goods and services. At least 13.5 million more workers than are now available will be needed to maintain this economy.
Manpower forecasts show that $4 million of these additional workers will be younger than 25. About 1.6 million will be in their late 20s and 30s. The remaining 3.5 million must come from the 40-plus age group. So far, however, there has been no sign that most businessmen are ready to eliminate hiring policy age restrictions.
Labor Department studies reveal that older workers are the victims of a strange paradox. As long as they are employed, they are regarded as important business assets. They are labeled "experienced, steady, clear thinking, loyal and dependable." People in many executive positions are regarded as "young" even when they reach their middle 40s.
But if a man loses a job after age 40, his image changes, labor experts say. Employers tag him as "difficult to train," inflexible, undependable, "an insurance risk and a costly drain on company retirement programs."
These ideas hold even though the job applicant is out of work through no fault of his own.
The Labor Department is currently engaged in a nationwide information campaign to acquaint employers with the benefits of hiring older workers. Similar campaigns are being conducted by state and civic organizations. The U.S. Employment Service, with its network of state bureaus, is making an all out effort to place older workers in available jobs.
Some government officials, however, believe that education programs alone won't solve the problem. One Labor Department official predicts the eventual enactment of a law forbidding age discrimination in companies with government contracts.
Nine states and one territory already have laws against age discrimination. They are Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, Alaska, Delaware and Puerto Rico.

Tax Nicks Bleed Nation

"Dollar-Rotting" Budget Deficits Declared Eating Purchasing Power

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Your guised but identifiable in the bank account, your insurance policy and the figures estimating Treasury revenue and pocket were nicked by the budget message sent to Congress last week by President Kennedy.
All three will be nicked again by this week's defense-budget message. These are the thousandth or ten-thousandth such nicks suffered by the U.S. dollar in the past 20 years. These nicks are painless, less than a pin prick.
It is a fact, however, that mere nicks can cause the U.S. dollar to bleed to death. The dollar has been bleeding a little ever since it was established as the basic unit of our money in the infancy of the republic. This bleeding process is called currency inflation. Currency inflation, in turn, is a process of shrinking the purchasing power of the dollar.
There was some currency inflation in Kennedy's Friday budget message. It was not identified as such but it was there. It was disguised but identifiable in the language and the figures estimating Treasury revenue and proposed spending for the current (1961) and next (1962) fiscal years.
The Treasury experts are estimating for deficits in both of those years. Deficits tend to rot the dollar. How large those deficits will be depends on the sum proposed by the President for national defense spending. Last Friday's budget covered only non-defense items.
Both of these budget messages are revisions of budgets previously proposed for those years by former President Eisenhower. Eisenhower and Kennedy jointly are responsible for the end product, including the inevitable further inflation of the currency and rotting of the dollar.
This process proceeded at a gallop in the Roosevelt and Truman administrations. It slowed to a crawl or a creep during the eight Eisenhower years. Even so, the impact on your bank account, your insurance policy and on the buck in your pants has been devastating. The Senate Finance Committee calculates that the dollar since 1939 has lost about 53 cents in purchasing power.
The committee took 1939 as a reasonable jumping off place for such calculations. It arbitrarily assigned to the 1939 dollar a purchasing power of 100 cents. Month by month the government issued cost-of-living figures on the basis of which, month by month, the committee recalculated the dollar in terms of what it actually would buy.
As prices rose, the dollar bought less and less. That beautiful buck in your pants pocket is worth right now about 47 cents in terms of 1939 bacon and beans.
This is pretty tough on those persons who have saved their money in banks and such institutions. Ditto for the man who is paying insurance premiums. It is toughest on all persons with fixed incomes, notably, the older Americans who are pensioned on steadily shrinking dollars.
This dollar devaluation is sometimes called the rotting of the dollar, a better phrase. It also is the grandest larceny. It robs everyone but it robs some more than it robs others. The hardest hit are those who can least afford it—the common men and their women.

Neglect Of Education Charged To Television

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The AFL-CIO has charged television broadcasters with neglecting educational programs while loading their channels with "gunslingers, private eyes and soap operas."
The criticism was voiced by AFL-CIO chief lobbyist Andrew J. Biemiller. He said the federation advocates federal grants to expand educational TV to counter the commercial output.
He said TV programs should inform viewers about history, economics, nuclear science and other complex issues if American voters are to make intelligent choices.
"The increasing complexity of government and of the problems facing our government urgently all Americans if our democracy require broader understanding by is to remain strong and viable," he added.
Biemiller said educational television must do at least part of this job.
"It seems apparent that the commercial television industry cannot or will not provide an adequate number of programs to meet this need," he said. "Commercial channels are loaded with gunslingers, private eyes and soap operas, none of which, to put it mildly, have much educational value."
The AFL-CIO position was spelled out in a letter from Biemiller to Rep. Morgan Moulder, D-Mo., chairman of House communications subcommittee which is studying the question of grants for educational TV stations.
Biemiller said that Congress also should guarantee that such stations have "maximum accessibility" to very high frequency (VHF) channels that can be received on most TV sets without special equipment.
The Senate passed a bill last week to provide grants for educational broadcasting. Two measures are pending in the House.

No $100,000 Bills

Uncle Sam To Stop Making 'Big' Money

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There of big denominations mouldering in the vaults. The bureau hasn't printed anything larger than a $100 bill since 1947.
But if the need arose, he assured me, the bureau could print a new batch of long playing lettuce in short order.
I asked Holtzclaw if this meant that big bills were going out of style. He replied that he just printed the stuff and didn't concern himself with fads or fashions.
However, someone at the Treasury Department told me that big bills got sort of a bad name during the war. Anyone who walked into a bank with a $1,000 bill ran the risk of being suspected of black market dealings.
Black marketeers, tax dodgers and other shady operators like to deal in big currency because it fits so cozily into safety deposit boxes.
However, someone at the Treasury printing game for about 40 years, can discuss the subject in a detached manner, as though $10,000 bills were so many pistachio nuts.
I reported that the U.S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing had discontinued the printing of $5,000, $10,000 and $100,000 bills.
I was, of course, outraged when I read this. If there's anything I loathe, it's to have my wallet cluttered up with a lot of small currency.
I carry my wallet in my inside coat pocket and any extra ballast tends to make me walk with a stooped list.
Consequently, I hopped a cab to the government's money-making factory on 14th street, intending to lodge a protest with Henry J. Holtzclaw, the bureau director.
As it turned out, the cab driver didn't have change for a $10,000 bill, and that added to my temper. You know how little inconveniences can get under your skin.
Needless to say, by the time I was ushered into Holtzclaw's office, I was dang near on the brink of apoplexy. Had there not been so many armed guards around, I might have done something rash.
"Now calm, down," Holtzclaw said, or words to that effect. "The picture is not as black as the magazine paints it."
Technically, he explained the bureau has not "discontinued" the production of four-five-and-six figure currency. It just hasn't made any recently because the supply exceeds the demand.
He said banks have a backlog

House Group Votes More Funds For Treasury And Post Office

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee has approved fatter budgets for the Treasury and Post Office but told the T-men to tighten their belts and the mailman to stop dreaming about bouncing letters some day off the moon.
In a report to the House pointing up the need for economies, the committee said interest on the national debt now runs more than the cost of the whole federal government in 1936.
"This one item of interest now costs approximately $17,000 every minute of the day and night, every day of the year," the committee noted.
The committee recommended an appropriation of $5281,865,000 for the Treasury and Post Office departments and the U.S. tax court in the 12 months starting July 1. This was $89,936,000 less than was requested but $438,731,000 more than the agencies got for the current fiscal year.
The Treasury allowance of $911,815,000 included funds for some extra customs, tax, and Secret Service agents, though not as many as asked.
As for the Post Office, the committee was not impressed by efforts of former Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield to automate the mail service. It scoffed especially at his dream of some day using the moon as a relay point for radioed mail.
"As a matter of fact," the committee said in an advisory to Summerfield's successor, J. Edward Day, "the committee is much more interested in seeing the surface of the earth than the United States mail is efficiently and economically delivered than it is in having it bounced off the moon. The committee expects the new administration to concern itself with more practical matters."
Day apparently didn't need any such directive. He already has canceled one of Summerfield's electronic projects, for sending mail from coast to coast instantaneously by facsimile.
The Post Office got $4,368,500,000 and a reminder that its job is to deliver the mail.

TO THE PEOPLE of The Pampa Independent School District

Due to my feelings that many of you are unfamiliar with me as a candidate for a place on your school board, I feel it necessary to present this article on my behalf.
Absentee balloting is over tomorrow (the 28th) and due to the Easter weekend falling on Election Day, many of you will vote absentee.
I am not running for any pressure group. I am running due to my own convictions and I am asking for your support.
This is not a political campaign and I'm not running for a political office, but I'm offering myself for whatever I might contribute, as a servant, to our community and our School System.
It is up to you to select the men that you want to decide the policies that will affect our children.
Study the candidates carefully yourself, then let your conscience be your guide. Then Go Vote-The Important Thing is For You To Express Your Right And Vote.
Sincerely
John Gikas

Dinah Shore Makes Dramatic TV Debut

NEW YORK (UPI)—Shore's smile and musical style, Dinah Shore made her big dramatic debut on TV Sunday night in an adaptation of Noel Coward's dangerously simple drama, "Brief Encounter."

Ralph Bellamy was teamed with Dinah in this stiff encounter. The setting was moved to Boston by writer Joseph Schrank, presumably to spare Miss Shore the additional burden of acting with an English accent. It would have been a bigger favor if Schrank had turned the story into a musical and spared Dinah the burden of acting.

But while we willingly make allowances for Dinah's inexperience as an actor, what excuse can we offer for Bellamy's work?

Yet, in one way, "Brief Encounter" displayed more courage than an earlier dramatic production on NBC-TV "Give Us Barabab."

Henry Denker's "Hallmark Hall of Fame" play was noisy, unsatisfying and absorbing, all rolled together. In charting the course taken by a rogue as he discovered his conscience and the meaning of God, the 90-minute production focused on Barabab, a thief and murderer, who was set free by the same mob that screamed for the death of Jesus.

As Barabab, James Daily opened as a snorting, cocky, sly combination of Gabby Hayes and James Cagney. His bluster gradually evaporated, however, as he learned that God had spared him in order to let him start life anew. Barabab, in the final scene, was subdued, reflective and deeply affected by his realization.

Denker's script took us along the path of revelation by means of action, adventure and romance. These theatrical elements, thoroughly legitimate as they are in drama, nevertheless tended to drown out the intimacy of the story. The eye-popping, high-pitched acting made it difficult to absorb the varied emotions that Barabab went through on his way to finding his conscience.

Daily's animal-like moves, perspiration and tight neck cords all served the needs of his lines. As Pontius Pilate, Dennis King tossed in some superficially ornate anguish. Kim Hunter, as the love interest, worked hard in a role that didn't really belong in the story. Producer-director George Schaefer succeeded in animating every line of dialogue. My feeling is that he should have hit the brakes hard and more often.

In this last respect, I thought, Dinah Shore's "Brief Encounter" showed more daring. Bad as the acting and staging was, at least Dinah's directors, Bob Finkel and Dean Whitmore, trusted natural instincts and did the play in a low key.

"Dialing and Filing: 'Omnibus'" spun through a delightful, confetti-spangled cotillion of song and dance on NBC-TV Sunday. The hour starred Edie Adams, Myron McCormick, Robert Goulet and the excellent Bill Foster Dancers in dozens of familiar tunes. Nearly every number was presented with fresh spirit of humor, spirit and imagination.

The NBC Opera company concluded its 12th season Sunday with a two-hour production, in English, of Moussorgsky's "Boris Godunov," another opera that registers superbly on TV. Giorgio Tozzi handled the title role with intensity. The production, despite an imbalance between singers and orchestra, conveyed a forceful, brooding image.

Candidates Busy As Senate Vote Drive Nears End

By United Press International

Texas' 69 Senatorial candidates prepared today for a final week of campaigning before the April 4 special election to fill the seat vacated by Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Interim Sen. William Blakley of Dallas plans to visit wide areas of Texas this week. Today, he was scheduled to open his campaign in Corpus Christi then visit Victoria and Houston later in the day.

Later in the week, Blakley will stump El Paso, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Texarkana, Paris and several other North Texas cities.

Blakley campaigned in the Lower Rio Grande Valley during the weekend. He said, "I believe I am in the number one position in this race."

Atty. Gen. Will Wilson was scheduled to begin the windup of his campaign today with a Valley tour and visits to Dallas and Houston.

Wilson said Sunday he thinks Texas voters will choose an "Independent - thinking man without strings attached" in the election.

Candidate Maury Maverick Jr. of San Antonio, plans to hit a number of cities today, including La Crosse, Placedo, Port Lavaca Point Comfort, Lolita, Vanderbilt, Edna, Ganado, El Campo, Wharton Rosenberg, Richmond, Sugarland, Stafford, Missouri City, and Houston. He plans to stump Gageston and Brazoria counties Tuesday.

matter of FACT

The Indians of the Pacific Northwest lived by the sea and were brave boatmen and great fishermen. All of them, that is, except any who were born twins. The Indians believed that twins were related to the salmon and so twins were forbidden to go near the water for fear they would turn back into fish. In some tribes, twins were not even allowed to touch or eat fish for same reason.

UN Members Seeking Program For Africa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The United States delegation have scheduled private talks with African U.N. members to determine the best way to start an American proposed development program for Africa.

U.S. diplomats hoped to get favorable reaction from the various African states on Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson's suggestion that they begin a vast economic improvement plan with help from other members of the United Nations.

The African bloc met in closed session Thursday night to discuss the proposal. Stevenson made it in the General Assembly's Political Committee Thursday. The committee set up another meeting this morning to continue debate on the recommendations.

Further discussion of the Congo crisis was scheduled in the General Assembly this afternoon. The Congo debate was recessed to enable the delegations to study the Congo Conciliation Commission's report.
