Hereford Sale To Close Stock Show Banquets Hold Spotlight Tonight; Junior Sale Is Tomorrow's First Event

Members of some 50 livestock judging teams from six Panhandle counties participating in the Top O' Texas Junior Livestock Show will be on edge between 5 and 6 p.m. today awaiting announcement of the results of the livestock judging contest at the stock show in Pampa's Recreation Park this forenoon.

The livestock judging banquet is scheduled at 5 p.m. in the Pampa High School cafeteria. Winners of the judging contest will be announced as a highlight of the dinner meeting.

Official judges at the morning contest were members of the Texas Tech championship team, directed by Stanley Anderson of the Lubbock college's department of animal husbandry. The competing team members were school boys from cities throughout the 6-county Top O' Texas area.

This afternoon's program was to be taken up with the judging of Hereford breeding cattle which got under way at 1 p.m. when the Grand Champion and Reserve Champion bulls were to be selected.

The afternoon event was under sponsorship of the Top O' Texas Hereford Breeders' Assn. The judge for all breeding classes was Dick Sellman of Watrous, N. M.

The climaxing event of the day's activities will be the Hereford Breeders' annual banquet at 7:30 p.m. today in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn. Bud Snidow, assistant manager of the American Hereford Breeders' Assn., will be the principal speaker.

In the Calves Division Fred Brown of McLean took the Grand Champion honors with his 915-lb. Angus steer, "Skeeter." A 909-lb. Hereford won the Reserve Grand Champion Award for Billy Fletcher of Perryton.

Tomorrow is the big sale day. The sale of junior livestock is scheduled to start at 9:30 a.m. and at 1 p.m. the Hereford Breeders' sale gets under way.

Members of the breeders' association expect tomorrow's sale to be one of the best in the history of the Pampa livestock show.

Fifty-two head of top quality registered Hereford cattle will go up for auction at the 1 p.m. show. All animals will be Bangs and T-B tested, according to Wayne Maddox, president of the Top O' Texas Assn. Terms of the sale will be cash.

Association officials said the public is urged to attend.

All winners in yesterday's judging of swine and calves divisions in the junior stock show will be found on Page 3 today. Photographs of the Grand Champion and Reserve Grand Champion are on Page 6.

tomorrow's sales, both morning and afternoon, and to participate in the buying.

Practically all the bulls to be offered for sale are ready for service, Maddox said.

Walter Britton, veteran auctioneer of College Station will cry the afternoon sale and will be assisted by representatives of several cattle publications and associations.

Last night the Top O' Texas Rodeo Assn. was host to junior livestock exhibitors and their parents at a barbecue in the Recreation Park sales arena. Upwards of 500 persons attended the barbecue and witnessed the awarding of trophies and ribbons to winners of the swine and calves divisions competition yesterday. Members of

Gas Producers Fighting FPC On Price-Fixing

MIDLAND, Tex. (UPI) — The Federal Power Commission went about the sticky business of developing ground rules today for natural gas pricing amid shouts from some major gas producers that the FPC actually does not by law have the authority to regulate the price of natural gas.

The charge was made by a group of producers as the pre-hearing conference got underway Monday.

The group said there was no law giving the FPC the right to regulate price control of natural gas.

Atty. Gen. Will Wilson appeared before representatives of the FPC Monday and asked that the state of Texas be allowed intervention in the commission's hearing regulating the price of oil and gas.

Wilson said Texas levies a 7-per cent occupation tax on gas, but since the tax is regulated to the market value at the wellhead, the rate of change allowed the producer by the FPC has a direct effect on the state's economy.

"I believe the price allowed the producer on this premium fuel is too low. Once it is produced it is forever gone," Wilson said. "If a high enough price is not allowed, exploration will be stifled and that will mean that there will be less new reserves available for the consumer."

If it comes from a hardware store we have it, Lewis Howe.

JUDGING TEAMS IN ACTION — This was a typical scene at the Top O' Texas Junior Livestock Show this forenoon when some 50 judging teams competed in the FFA judging contest. Results of the judging classes will be announced at 5 p.m. today at a banquet in the Pampa Senior High School Cafeteria. (Daily News Photo)

Castro Says His Gunners Knocked Out U.S. Plane

HAVANA (UPI) — Fidel Castro's government struck back today at mounting terrorist attacks throughout Cuba by executing two youths who had been sentenced to prison for counter-revolutionary activities.

HAVANA (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro said early today Cuban gunners shot down one plane sent by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency Saturday and damaged another which he said was dropping arms in western Cuba.

In a 3 1/2-hour speech telecast from the extreme-left "regional conference of plantations," Castro said the plane shot down crashed into the sea near Baracoa.

(There are two Cuban communities named Baracoa, a village near the island nation's western end and a town near its eastern tip. Although it was not certain which one Castro meant, he was believed referring to the eastern town.)

The bearded premier said a bullet-damaged DC4 which limped into Jamaica Sunday with a gas-tank leaking and one engine shot out had been hit by anti-aircraft gunners near Cabanas in western Cuba.

He said he would demand extradition of nine Cubans aboard the plane.

Castro said the DC4, which he charged was "constructed in Guatemala by the CIA," circled repeatedly over the Cabanas area early Saturday.

"Some militiamen who happened to be at anti-aircraft practice opened fire, scoring hits," he said. "Later, the plane apparently threw out its cargo of arms to lighten its load and landed in bad shape in Jamaica."

Draft Deferments Due Young Men In Peace Corps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Barred some new military crisis young men who join President Kennedy's Peace Corps will probably get draft deferments for the length of their duty, and even longer if they remain in some field which is "in the national interest."

Selective Service Director Gen. Lewis B. Hershey said Monday this was not a fast commitment, however, but only his estimate of what the Selective Service would probably decide to do.

He said a mortar, six boxes of grenades, three submachine guns and seven Garand rifles believed to have been jettisoned by the plane had been recovered.

"The CIA is stupid to send us two planes in one day and make us a gift of so many arms," he said. "It should embarrass any government, especially so presumptuous a government as the United States."

House Okays Measure To Curb Land Grabs

AUSTIN (UPI) — Compromise legislation to curb land-grabbing by Texas cities cleared the House Monday by an overwhelming vote and was sent today to the Senate.

The bill to grant cities extra-territorial jurisdiction over from a half-mile to five miles beyond their limits received 139-5 approval in the lower chamber.

Rep. Bill Dungan of McKinney sponsored the bill, he said it balanced needs of big cities for breathing room against demands by farmers for restriction on wholesale annexations.

The House bill to curb the annexation powers of cities was supported by the Texas Municipal League, representing the state's city government, and many farm groups.

Representatives added a floor amendment by Rep. James Barlow of San Antonio by a 76-49 vote that reduced from five to three years the time a rural area has to ask for de-annexation from a city.

Lawmakers rejected attempts to amend the bill to keep cities from expanding across county lines and to exempt new industry from taxes up to a period of 25 years.

The House bill would restrict annexation by cities of 5,000 to a half mile, cities of 25,000 to one mile; two miles for those with 50,000 persons; three and one-half miles for cities up to 100,000 and five miles for larger cities.

At the same time the municipalities would exercise some control over health and building standards in the area outside their limits, alleviating the main reasons cited for annexation by the municipal league. The city also would be protected from other municipalities taking land in that after refusing to leave a lunch counter in an F. W. Woolworth's store in Tallahassee. There was a dispute between the parties over whether the appeals should have come to the U.S. Supreme Court, or first should have gone farther in state courts.

This factor may have caused the Supreme Court to deny review. But the justices themselves gave no reason.

The 12 students were sentenced to 60 days in jail or fined $300. The issue in the sit-in cases was whether a city could use its police power to enforce racial segregation in a store or other privately operated establishment.

Candidates For Senate Shifting Into High Gear

By United Press International

Pick your man and pick your topic.

Chances are they came under the gun Monday as the major candidates among the 71 in the race for the special U.S. Senate race began shifting into high gear for the drive to the wire.

With only 24 days left before the April 4 election, the top contenders chose the Supreme Court, federal oil imports, the American Medical Association and each other as points of attack.

William Blakley, serving as interim appointee in the Senate, urged enactment of legislation to curb the power of the Supreme Court. He said the federal judiciary's decisions in recent years have given "aid and comfort to the enemies of freedom."

Congressman Jim Wright said in Lubbock that his campaign "obviously has the other candidates worried. As a certain candidate said on one occasion last year, when they start losing, they start abusing," he said.

Wright's quip was in reference to a statement attributed to Will Wilson in his race for attorney general.

"The Republican candidate has showered me with a flutter of petty abuse, the attorney general has three times found fault with my campaign organization, and the interim senator was interpreted in Sunday's Dallas News as poking fun at me," Wright said.

Opening his Dallas County campaign headquarters, Maury Maverick Jr. said the American Medical Association "favors a poverty test" for aged.

Maverick backed President John F. Kennedy's plan for medical care for the aged under the social security program as a "right, not a charity."

"Medical care for the aged without any pauper's oath is now accepted by the American people as a new American right," Maverick said.

State Sen. Henry B. Gonzalez told members of the San Antonio Electricians' Union Monday night that management and labor must be given just consideration.

"One cannot benefit at the expense of the other. We are all members of one house," Gonzalez said.

Wilson will take his campaign to Northeast Texas this week for visits to 32 communities.

Congo Government Bans Plane Movements Until Agreement Is Reached

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — The Congo government ordered army commanders today to keep U.N. troops out of the ports of Matadi and Banana until some agreement is reached with the United Nations.

Interior Minister Albert Delvaux, who sent the order to the officers commanding the garrisons in the ports from which U.N. troops had been driven, also said that in future the United Nations would have to clear its plane movements with a "responsible minister."

He said the government probably would meet later today to discuss the eventual return of Matadi and Banana to U.N. control.

The U.S. naval transport General Eltinge, which was to have docked at Matadi Monday to pick up Indonesian troops leaving the Congo, cruised offshore today because Congo authorities had refused to assign it a pilot.

It was not immediately certain what effect the Delvaux order would have on U.S. Air Force planes scheduled to start flying 600 Tunisian reinforcements into the Congo Wednesday.

The United Nations indicated it would reject the Congo's effort at arbitrary control of its activities.

"We are quite firm in insisting that a U.N. force must be exempt from any national control," a spokesman said.

Earlier, the U.N. had announced that a three-man U.S. Navy detachment at Matadi was not harmed during the Congo attack that drove U.N. forces out of the city.

Lt. Cmdr. Robert Burns, chief petty officer Oscar Christopherson and yeoman Arnold Proudman (hometowns not available) said they had been advised by the Congolese to stay in their hotel rooms, the U.N. said.

Congolese troops occupied the Matadi and Banana outposts after clashes with Sudanese and Canadian U.N. forces over the weekend. The 124-member Sudanese garrison suffered two killed, four seriously wounded and nine others lightly wounded. Three of nine Canadian soldiers were wounded slightly.

The shooting ended shortly after acting Congolese Premier Albert Delvaux arrived on the scene and arranged a cease-fire. The Congolese had threatened to throw the entire Thysville garrison into the battle.

The U.N. command ordered its angry soldiers to stand fast and not storm Matadi for fear it would result in an all-out war with Congolese troops.

But the Sudanese and Canadian contingents to the U.N. force were anxious for a fight since they were driven out of the Atlantic port city by Congolese troops who outnumbered them, 6-1.

Twisters Leave 4 Dead On Way Through Midwest

By United Press International

A tornado-breeding low pressure center over the Midwest glided harmlessly into Lake Erie today, giving way to light snow and scattered showers from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at Chicago said there were "no storm systems in sight" to duplicate Monday's twisters and hurricane-force winds that accounted for four deaths and widespread property damage in Indiana, Illinois and Tennessee.

Colder weather rolled into the Ohio Valley and lower Great Lakes behind the low pressure center. Warm air and scattered showers remained in the south, where warmth broke temperature records Monday in Virginia, Georgia and Florida.

Two weather patterns of north-central snows and midwestern winds belted the nation's interior Monday. Seven children were hospitalized and 16 others were bruised when a school bus carrying 48 students tipped over on its side on a rain-slick highway near Bay City, Mich.

Deadly winds killed three persons including an 8-month-old baby at Fredonia, in west Tennessee. A 68-year-old woman died in her caved-in Kokomo, Ind., home.

Southern authorities reported most flood emergencies from last month's river fury under control, although the cleanup job will take months. The Upper Santee in South Carolina crested at 7 1/2 feet over its banks during the weekend and a Lower Santee crest at a foot over bankful was imminent. Floodwaters "poured generally into swamps along the Lower Santee."

Eighth Graders Outscore College Students In Quiz

KENT, Ohio (UPI) — Who was presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon's running mate? Who was the Congo leader slain recently?

Questions on current events—12 to be exact—were answered by eighth grade students at Medina Junior High School and students at Kent State University, and the school children won.

The eighth-graders, aged 13 and 14 years, scored 49.2 per cent on the 12-question quiz, while the college students scored 47.3 per cent.

"It doesn't speak well for the future of democracy," commented one KSU professor.

Stewardess Turnover Problem For Airlines

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A good airline stewardess still is hard to find—and hard to keep.

A United Press International survey of leading airlines revealed that the stewardess turnover rate remains one of their chief employment problems. The majority reported that while the rate is no worse than in the past, it's no better, either.

The survey was prompted by a mildly startling announcement by Continental Airlines. Continental said 20 per cent of its hostesses (some airlines prefer this term to stewardesses) hired this year will be foreigners "because there just aren't enough qualified American girls to go around."

This was not the case with all airlines but most have indicated some concern over the turnover problem. Trans World Airlines, for example, is letting some of its hostesses who married pilots retain their jobs. TWA for some time also has had British girls flying its transcontinental jets.

Eastern Air Lines recently announced it would hire divorced girls and widows provided they had no children. And even some airlines who say there is no particular recruitment problem indicate they may follow Eastern's example.

Although there are no verified statistics, there has been some speculation that many stewardesses quit because they don't like the increased workload of the Several small local service carriers, for example, report they're getting numerous applications from stewardesses now employed by larger airlines.

"Apparently," one feeder line official commented, "these girls like the idea of a more informal airline, the smaller planes and shorter flights."

The UPI survey, which covered seven leading airlines, revealed this overall picture:

Delta: Has no trouble obtaining qualified American girls... not hiring married, divorced or widowed girls although it did recall, because of a temporary shortage last fall, 10 ex-stewardesses married to Delta pilots. Turnover is normal.

Eastern: Turnover is constant but no more acute than in past years... some girls are leaving because they don't like working on the new jets but the most frequent reason still is marriage. "We've licked the jet problem," said Eastern official, "but not cupid."

Eastern's new policy of hiring divorced girls and widows was prompted by "a more liberal attitude toward such girls rather than a serious shortage."

Pan American World Airways: Has always hired many foreign girls because it requires its stewardesses to speak at least one foreign language. Pan Am' turnover is about what it has been—the average stewardess flies from 1½ to 2½ years.

American: No increase in turnover although American, too, admits it now will hire certain widows and divorcees. No indication that jets are a factor in turnover. "The work is harder but many girls prefer them because they're more glamorous."

TWA: Insists there is no lack of qualified American girls but "we do not hire foreigners because this is an international airline and we like to maintain an international flavor." Turnover is about 38 monthly out of 1,400 hostesses. Prefers single girls, but would take childless widows and divorcees. Jet have not affected the turnover.

Branniff: Does not regard situation as critical. "Getting them is no worse a problem than it was several years ago." No trouble obtaining a vast number of applicants but it has to reject a majority because of high standards. No increase in turnover percentage. Not hiring married, divorced or widowed girls. Has had a small number of foreign stewardesses for its Latin America routes.

United: Turnover rate about the same as in past years but recruitment is tougher for two reasons—United needs more stewardesses plus the fact that the life is a "bit less glamorous than it used to be and qualified girls seem harder to find." United isn't hiring any married, widowed or divorced girls but officials are thinking about taking on a few in the latter category if they meet standards.

The standards certainly are high for all U.S. airlines. But if the carriers had the same prerequisites they did 25 years ago, they'd be lucky to hire one new stewardess a month.

In 1931 Eastern required a stewardess applicant to be a registered nurse, between 21 and 25, and armed with a letter of introduction from some prominent aeronautical or political personality just to get an interview for a job.

But the 1961 requirements still are stiff. The average airline accepts only one out of every 25 applicants for stewardess training.

Aid To Parochial Schools Still Opposed By President Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy today stood firm on his insistence that federal aid to parochial and private elementary and secondary schools would be unconstitutional.

The President's stand was reported by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, after Kennedy's weekly breakfast meeting with Democratic congressional leaders.

A newsman asked Mansfield if Kennedy had expressed any concern over the fate of his aid-to-education program in view of the controversy over whether parochial and private schools should be included along with public institutions.

"His position remains the same," Mansfield said. He added that the question had been discussed at the meeting.

House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack, Mass., has broken with Kennedy on the issue. He insisted that it would be constitutional for the federal government to provide long-term, lower-interest loans for construction and renovation of parochial and private school buildings.

Members of the hierarchy of the Catholic church in this country, leaders of Kennedy's own faith, have said they would oppose the school bill unless parochial and private schools are included.

On other matters, Mansfield said "The President is very satisfied with the progress Congress is making."

He spoke on a general basis after Speaker Sam Rayburn said he thought "the program is getting on its way pretty well as far as the House is concerned."

Rayburn said Kennedy would send his next special message to Congress on Thursday and it would deal with housing. Mansfield was asked why there was a delay in the farm message, which originally was to have gone to Congress today.

"Some new factors came up," Mansfield said, "and they are bringing the message up to date." He declined to specify.

'Liz' Survives Crisis; Still Seriously Ill

LONDON (UPI) — Elizabeth Taylor appeared to have passed the crisis in her battle with pneumonia today, and her doctor pronounced her "definitely improved but still in serious condition."

New drugs were being administered to the beautiful actress.

"Miss Taylor is too ill to manufacture the anti-toxin necessary to fight the poison in her system," Dr. Carl H. Goldman said. "We have to pump it into her ready-made."

Dr. Goldman is one of the six doctors who have been constantly at Miss Taylor's bedside in her struggle with the pneumonia that struck her down last Friday.

Her condition was reported still grave as she fought for life in a bare yellow room brightened by green and yellow curtains.

It was believed that a special new drug flown here by jet from New York this morning will be used in a few days' time. It will be given to the actress in an effort to have it absorb the pneumonia bacteria and prevent them from spreading.

Father's Night will be observed by Sam Houston PTA on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium. The program will be presented by the school band under the direction of Charles Meech. An executive board meeting will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday in the school cafeteria, according to Mrs. Joe Fischer, unit president. All members are urged to be present.

Bid Dates Set For Gray County Road

The Daily News Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The State Highway Department will accept bids on 5.946 miles of improvements on Ranch-to-Market Rd. 1321 in Gray County March 17 and 18.

Bid specifications call for grading, structures, and base and surface improvements from a point five miles east of Lefors and extending six miles farther eastward on R.M. 1321.

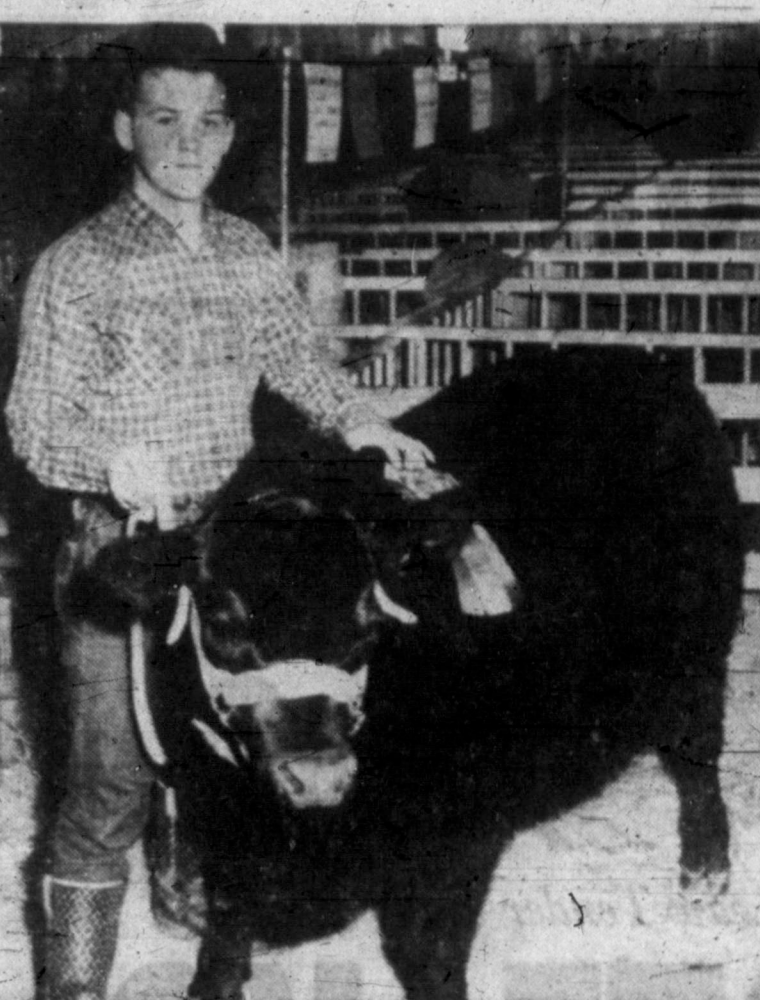

The Gray County job is part of a highway construction program under which 2,693 miles of Texas highways and farm-to-market roads will be improved.

The department estimated the low bids would total $26.8 million.

Major Discussion On Congo Planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will meet this week with President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana for what obviously will include a major discussion of the Congo, it was announced today.

The White House said that Nkrumah, one of Africa's leading anti-colonialist leaders, had requested the meeting with Kennedy for tomorrow afternoon.

FORESEES NO CHANGE
LONDON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said in a television interview Monday night that prospects "are not very bright" for normal relations between the United States and Communist China. Rusk said "we have definite commitments" toward Nationalist China.

TRIES FOR RECORD
EDWARDS AFB, Calif. (UPI) — Air Force Maj. Robert White today was scheduled to attempt to set a new unofficial speed record of about 2,600 miles an hour in the X-15 rocketship. He already holds the unofficial world speed record of 2,275 m.p.h. as well as the altitude record of 136,000 feet.

British Reported Ready To Junk Coinage System

LONDON (UPI) — The advertisement read: "Custom tailored suit. Finest British cloth. Price — 40 guineas."

Fine, but where do you get 40 guineas? Or even one? There is no such thing as a guinea in British coinage or currency. This has been driving tourists half crazy for years and the good news now is that it's beginning to get on the nerves of the British themselves. There is a drive on to junk the archaic system of pounds, shillings and pence and convert into something sensible like dollars and cents.

The last guinea was coined in 1813 and all of them have long since gone out of circulation. Yes, most shops list prices in guineas and you pay your doctor bill in guineas. You do it by handing over on a pound (dollars 2.80) and shilling (14 cents). Before we get into the campaign for the decimal system we might as well mention that a sixpence is worth seven cents, not six, and that there is something called maundy silver coined especially for the queen.

She gives it away on maundy Thursday in Westminster Abbey, but you have to be an old age pensioner to get it.

Lord Dundee, minister without portfolio, started the drive for reform by saying the government wanted to know what the average man thought about changing to a decimal system. The Daily Mirror (circulation above 4,500,000) took it from there and conducted a poll. Fifty-four per cent of 17,000 persons interviewed favored a dollar and cents system. Younger people were heavily in favor of a change; older ones not so enthusiastic.

Like Topsy, the British currency system just grewed without rhyme or reason. The most popular monetary denominations are threepence (3½ cents), sixpence (2½ cents), half crown (35 cents), ten shilling note ($1.40) pound note ($2.80) five pound note ($14).

The half crown, a heavy cartwheel, appears to have been designed chiefly to weigh down pockets and keep British tailors on their toes so suits won't look lopsided. There is no logical reason for its existence but there are 387,000,000 of them in circulation.

How soon the reform will come no one can predict. The matter of decimal money came up in the latter part of the 19th century, but Lord Randolph Churchill (father of Sir Winston) was Chancellor of the Exchequer and killed it with this remark:

"I never could make out what those damned decimal points meant."

Kennedy Wants Russians To Know Us Better

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy plans this year to renew an old tug of war with Russia—trying to get more information about America to the Soviet man-in-the-street.

Officials said Saturday they had hope to propose new U.S.-Soviet exchange programs which will be under less government control than those in the past and there fore more effective.

These would include distribution of books, magazines and newspapers, opening of reading rooms, greater exchange of students, and more exhibits and more freedom to roam for tourists and exchange visitors.

The matter will come up when the two countries sit down to re negotiate their November, 1959, overall exchange agreement which expires Dec. 31.

Officials of the Soviet Embassy here have already have informally broached the subject of renegotiating the agreement, President Kennedy in his last news conference talked of expanding exchange programs with Russia.

The informal type of exchange which U.S. officials have in mind is precisely what Russia has tried to avoid in past programs.

U. S. officials believe Russia wants exchanges with the United States for two reasons:

Its technicians are interested in looking at American railroads, and factories, and science laboratories. In the cultural field it gains prestige by sending off ballets and orchestras and takes pride in demonstrating that it's culture is of interest to other countries.

"A cultural exchange agreement is completely foreign to our society," one U.S. official said. "It is really a Communist invention. We don't believe you should put 'culture' into a written agreement, but we go along with it."

The State Department looks on exchanges with Russia as another lever to break down the Soviet closed society; and this is the basic conflict.

Economic Upturn Not Likely Until After Mid-Year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers told Congress yesterday the prospect of an economic upturn does not appear likely "until after mid-year."

Chairman Walter W. Heller, appearing before the joint economic committee, warned that the nation faces "a stubborn problem of a chronic slack, and the road to full recovery is a long one."

He called for lower interest rates on housing mortgages.

Heller said that the government "should not shrink from launching needed projects because of misplaced fears of bad timing."

He said that if at the end of this year the unemployment ratio is still near 7 per cent, "our fiscal policies would have to be viewed with great concern."

Nixon Says He Has No Plans To Be Governor

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon surprised a star-studded Filmland audience Sunday night by announcing he has no plans to seek the California governorship.

Sharing the speaker's platform with California Gov. Edmund G. Brown and others at a dinner honoring movie pioneer Adolph Zukor, Nixon glanced at Brown while talking of his future and said:

"I have no plans to get his job. I plan to get others."

It was Nixon's first definite statement on whether he would run for governor since he lost the presidential election last November, and nobody could have been more surprised by it than Brown. "Dick said a moment ago that he was not a candidate for my job and I'm glad of it," said Brown several minutes later when he addressed the group made up of many of Hollywood's biggest stars.

Nixon, who returned to his hometown last week, has promised to announce sometime this week what kind of job he will take. It has been repeatedly speculated he will join a Los Angeles law firm.

WHAT'S IT DO? LONDON (UPI) — A London wineshop is selling a Polish vodka which, according to the label, is "flavored with an extract of Zucrowia, the fragrant herb beloved by European bison."

Pampa's Harvester baseball squad, contended by some as the District 3-4A darkhorse, open the non-conference portion of their 23-game schedule Saturday with a doubleheader here against Elk City, Okla.

Coach Deck Woldt can count on our lettermen off last year's nine that posted a 11-7 full season mark and 8-5 in 3-4A play, good for a third-place tie with Plainview. Heading the list of returnees is Larry Stroud, a two-year letterman. Stroud was all-district in 1960 and second team all-district in 1959 and was named to the 1960 Panhandle Sports Hall as the top baseball player in the area.

Stroud, a lefty-swinging first baseman, boomed his way to honors last year with a .404 mark, and again in 1961 he may be the key to the Harvesters' hitting attack. Other lettermen returning are Roy Don Stephens, who'll hold down the centerfield slot, and third baseman Keith Gregory.

Stephens posted a .262 mark last season while Gregory batted .333 in earning his letter.

Mike Clark, a junior, is the only returning experienced hand on Woldt's pitching staff. A 6-3 190-pounder, Clark lettered as a sophomore and probably will be the mainstay of the Harvesters' mound crew.

Besides Stroud and Gregory in the infield, Woldt has been working with the important short-second combination of Butch Crossland and Ab Cullender. Both juniors, Crossland and Cullender played on the Pampa American Legion team that reached the regional finals last year in Amarillo. In fact, all the members of the present starting nine played on the Legion team last year and the team's success could go a long way in aiding the Harvesters in early games this spring.

Mike Stewart, another junior, will take over the catching duties in place of the graduated Terry Joe Haralson. Stewart played Legion ball only last year but Woldt feels that Stewart could develop into one of the district's top receivers with game experience.

In the outfield teaming with Stephens will be two reserve lettermen off last year's club: Butch Frazier, a senior who will play left field and Gerrel Owens, a junior who will be batting cleanup in Woldt's early lineup plans.

At present the pitching staff is Woldt's biggest worry. After Clark,

Members of the present 28-man squad are John Ahrich, Jerry Batten, Bobby Callaway, Larry Deila, Butch Frazier, Danny Mahandy, Gerrel Owens, Arnold Phillips, Roy Don Stephens, Larry Stroud, Kenneth Collins, Ab Cullender, Mike Schale, Butch Crossland and Charles Fant.

Also Claude Daily, Bryon Garner, Keith Gregory, Junior Appleton, Mike Stewart, Wayne Storr, Orville Bynum, Mike Clark, Jerry Glover, Marvel Rake, Jerry Stroud, Robert Woodard and Dee Wright. Managers will be J. P. Carlson and Jerry Hildenbrand.

Ohio State Unanimous Pick As Top Cage Team

Buckeyes (23-0) Grab Total UPI Poll Votes

NEW YORK (UPI)—Unbeaten Ohio State today became the first team in history to be unanimously voted the national college basketball champion by the United Press International Board of Coaches.

The Buckeyes, heading for their defense of the NCAA title next week, swept over 23 opponents this season and have a two-year 28-game winning streak going into their regular season finale against Illinois on Saturday.

Ohio State, the pre-season No. 1 choice of the 35 coaches who comprise the board, lived up to its billing, holding down the No. 1 spot each week of the season and piling up an unprecedented 35 votes and 350 points in the final week's balloting. The Buckeyes attained another feat never before achieved, being the unanimous choice five times during the weekly ratings.

San Francisco, the 1956 champion, previously had been the closest thing to a unanimous selection since the ratings were established in 1950-51, obtaining 32 first-place votes.

Cincinnati (23-3) rode an 18-game winning streak into second place, the same spot the Bearcats finished a year ago. The Bearcats' late surge unseated St. Bonaventure, second-ranked most of the season, and picked up 274 points.

St. Bonaventure (22-3) suffered a late season slump but picked up 268 points to wind up third. Kansas State (20-4) finished fourth and Southern California (19-5) was fifth. Next came North Carolina (19-4), Bradley (21-5), St. John's (N.Y.) (19-4), Duke (22-6) and Iowa (17-5) and Wake Forest (17-10), tied for the 10th spot.

Sports In Brief

Brown, Parks Fight In Houston Tonight

HOUSTON (UPI)—Joe Brown of Houston meets Joey Parks of Omaha, Neb., in a 10-round non-title match tonight to warm up for defense of his world lightweight crown against Dave Charnley of England.

It will be his 10th defense when Brown meets Charnley in London on April 18. And there was no doubt that Brown and his manager, Lou Viscousi, scheduled the bout with Parks looking forward to the title fight.

BILL MAZEROSKI
... what homer?

PHS Netters Open Season

Pampa's sophomore-tinged tennis team opens its 1961 net swinging at 4 p.m. tomorrow when Dumas invades the PHS courts.

For Pampa, Gary Storrs, the lone senior on the squad, will play number one singles while Jerry Thomas, a sophomore transfer from Michigan, and Don Collins, another sophomore, will team as the number one doubles tandem.

Donna Walsh, a junior will play number one singles for the girls while Linda Connors, a junior, and Jean Abbott, a sophomore, will combine as the number one doubles offering.

But Memory Lingers On

Buc Star Says Thrill Gone From Series HR

FORT MYERS, Fla. (UPI)—The thrill is gone and although the memory still lingers on, World Series hero Bill Mazeroski knows he "can't live on one home run forever."

Everyone in baseball, of course, knows about that homer. Maz belted it against the New York Yankees in the ninth inning of the seventh World Series game last fall to bring the Pittsburgh Pirates their first world championship since 1925.

"I've gotten over it by now,"

Mazeroski's homer, however, didn't bring him much in the way of added revenue during the winter. Previous World Series heroes, like Lew Burdette and Don Larsen, made as much as $20,000 extra after enjoying their day in the sun.

"I didn't make anywhere near $20,000," Mazeroski commented. "I went to a couple of banquets last winter, got tired of them in a hurry and didn't go to any more. I'm no speaker. Maybe if I was I wouldn't feel differently."

Nor does Maz go up to the plate these days and swing from the heels every time.

"No sense kiddiing myself," he says. "I'm no home run hitter."

Winonly Wins At Gulfstream

By United Press International Winonly, triumphant in his previous two allowance tests, stepped into top competition Monday with an upset victory over April Skies in the $16,900 Armed Handicap at Gulfstream Park.

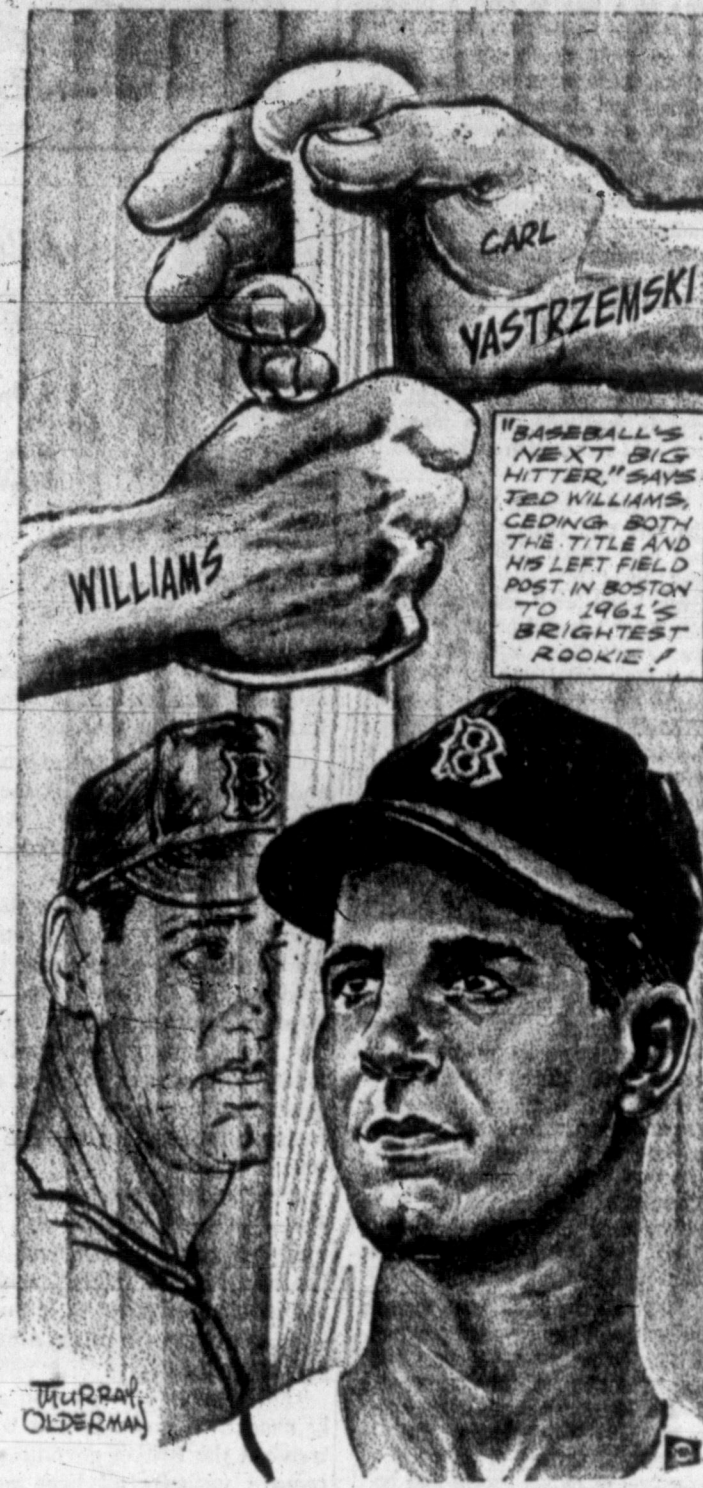

Carrying a weight of 119 to the high-130 foted by April Skies, Winonly was a length and one-half in front at the finish of the six-furlong sprint.

April Skies was in contention for the first half mile, but couldn't cope with the speedy Winonly, who increased his lead from a head to a half-length at the top of the stretch. Winonly covered the distance in 1:09 3-5 and paid $10.20.

Other members of the internationally flavored team and their scores were Czech Ed Svodoba, 607; Pole Vince Chapki, 592; Slav Ludwig Herziga, 556; and Scotsman John Work, 495.

Johnson had coached in the Dallas school system for 12 years, and his 1957 team at Crozier Tech won the city championship.

PASSING OF THE SCEPTER

Mounts, Hudgens, Broussard Unanimous

Raiders Pace All-SWC

DALLAS (UPI)—The long and short of Texas Tech's championship team, 6-9 Harold Hudgens and 5-10 DeDri Ray Mounts, and Texas A&M's great Carroll Broussard were unanimous choices for the 1961 United Press International all-Southwest Conference basketball team.

These three, plus Southern Methodist's Jan Loudermilk and the University of Texas' Donnie Lasiter, made up the first team and had only one other player who seriously threatened to break into the top five.

That was SMU's Steve Strange, who headed up a six-man second unit that included three Arkansas players—Clyde Rhoden, Pat Foster and Jerry Carlton, Texas A&M's Don Stanley and Texas Al Almanza.

Broussard, who led the league in scoring with a 22.4-point season average, Hudgens and Mounts, who averaged 22.2 and 21.0, respectively, earned first-place ballots from the sports writers and university sports publicity men who participated in the UPI poll.

That earned them 80 points, while Loudermilk and Lasiter earned 61 points each, Strange 56, Foster 48, Rhoden 44, Almanza 42.

Hudgens, Loudermilk at 6-6 and Broussard at 6-5 gave the mythical team ample height, while Lasiter checked in at 5-11, an inch taller than the peppery Mounts.

Broussard was the only repeater from the 1960 UPI five, while Mounts graduated from last year's second all-star group. Rhoden, who was a first team honoree last season, was injured early in the season and it probably cost him his chance to match Broussard, Strange and Almanza were on the second unit last year.

Loudermilk and Lasiter, offered 16.1 and 14.8-point averages to the team, giving it a potential of 96.3 points per game.

Suit Over Domed Park Falls Flat

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—

The Houston Sports Association was all smiles again today after the green light was given to start construction of the dome-shaped sports stadium which will house Houston's baseball entry in the National League.

Judge Max Rogers of Houston, Tex., Monday denied printing executive Ned Gill's lawsuit which challenged the legality of the sale of 122 million in bonds to construct the all-weather stadium.

If the lawsuit was upheld and a long drawn-out trial had gotten underway it might have seriously jeopardized Houston's status as a major league baseball city.

Harris County officials and Houston Sports Association leaders, who own the National League franchise, were jubilant over the decision.

"Now maybe we can get on with the very important construction," one of them said.

Judge Rogers denied both points in Gill's suit. Gill had contended that the election was called illegally and that a two-thirds majority was needed to make the vote legal.

The suit had held up start of construction on the stadium for a month.

Improper Testing

We have learned, on competent authority that grade school children and high school students in some places are, on occasion, asked a number of questions which are somewhat dubious as a part of their regular education curriculum.

There seems to be no concerted plan to ask these questions of ALL students of any given grade. But they are used in various spot checks. We are not informed as to whether the tests to which we will refer have been given here.

On the matter of these tests a great deal should be said. But before saying so of it, we wish to stress that questioning students on subjects they are studying is a basic method in education and a mighty useful and important one. Questions which bring out a student's ability to comprehend; questions relating to the assigned study material; test questions; even trick questions which have a bearing on the subject matter, are all valid and a legitimate tool of the educational profession.

The kinds of questions to which we have reference introduce an entirely different line of approach. These questions appear to have juvenile motivation under study and propose to uncover all manner of strange and peculiar things about the individual child.

These "tests" are usually given to selected students in an air of secrecy. Neither students nor their parents are permitted to learn how the individuals taking the "examination" fared with scoring. Indeed, on occasion children are admonished not to tell their parents what the questions are that have been asked.

But perhaps a listing of a few of the questions which have been used in some government schools

A Price Is Always Paid

Most of us want to get far more than we every will. But this is because we like to dream of getting something for nothing. The person who recognizes that all of life is the process of exchanging, will realize that he can have anything he truly wants if he is willing to pay the price to get it.

Psychiatric Couches?

The other day in a certain school in this region students were asked to make a sketch of their homes to scale and to turn in these sketches as an "arithmetic" assignment. If this type of assignment occurred without a visible tie-in with a whole batch of impertinent and injudicious queries, we might be able to applaud the lesson. It might serve to indicate the students' skill in judging distances, in being accurate, in doing some original work in figuring floor space, and so on.

But since no follow-up is intended and clearly the schools using this assignment will make no effort to try to find out whether the student correctly made his estimates, we are moved to marvel at the temerity of the thinking in certain of our government educational channels.

Could it be that this is a way for the school professionals to try to find out if Johnny comes from a desirable home? And here "desirable" is employed in the same frame of reference we have noted when bond issues arise. That which is large and costly is "desirable." That which is neither is evidence of, something improper.

This is especially open to query when we learn that permanent files are made nowadays on all students. These files accompany the student and are passed forward as he passes forward, either to praise him or to damn him in future life. These are called "cumulative records" and make their way ultimately into the office of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Assignments of this kind appear to us to be culpable when we note such questions as these taken at random from more of the queries put out by the Science Research Associates:

44. I have thought of suicide.
80. People dislike my race or nationality.
93. I have a crush on an older person.

155. I am not attractive to the other sex.
173. I don't feel I belong in the family.

187. I wish my father had a higher-level job.

188. I'm sometimes ashamed of my family.

202. I wonder if I am normal in my sex development.

212. Should I be bothered by dirty stories and vulgar talk.

213. My family avoids discussing sex with me.

230. I have conflicting information about sexual matters.

277. How far should high school students go in love relations.

231. I want to know about venereal disease.

236. What can I do about body odor.

238. I smoke too much.

240. I have trouble with my menstrual period.

258. I want to get rid of pimples.

265. I am losing faith in religion.

281. Does it really pay to be honest.

283. Is it wrong to deny the existence of God?

We have a bit of advice for students who are confronted with questions which pry into their personal lives and behavior. That is: for them to refuse to answer such questions and to promptly acquaint their parents with the fact that they have been asked such things.

If a child is suffering from some kind of mental stress or strain, the parents are the proper authority to decide if and when treatment is indicated. Also, it is the responsibility of parents to select the professional men who can be held accountable for what they do and say.

This business of turning our schools into psychiatric couches at the cost of the taxpayers and to the universal suggestion of negativity, distress and immaturity is surely highly improper.

From what we have observed we are under the impression that

Looking Sideways

NEW YORK — Miss Nita Naldi, a major-dragon lady of the silent films, was found dead in her New York hotel room the other day of apparent heart disease, and the pole in the prints brought back a flood of fond memories of this Irish girl from the sidewalks of New York who, beneath her smouldering facades and temptress structure, always thought it was terribly comic that she had the face of a Circe.

Nita Naldi was Nonna Dooley, born and bred on the West Side of our fair city, and she grew up into a darkly handsome and imposing girl who, within 28 minutes after emerging from the convent, had a job as a model for fashions. Finding this a grating bore of a way to earn a living, in addition to its hazards of having to avoid the brash pinchings of the dress salesmen, almost as quickly got herself a job as a chorus girl on Broadway. She always said that as such she at least had the footlights between herself and amorous gents in the audience. It was inevitable that Miss Dooley would meet John Barrymore, as so many other feigning women found it inevitable. But she was smarter than some. She merely allowed Mr. Barrymore to get a job for her in the movies and never (no, never) repaid except in gratitude and a pleasant nod of recognition when their paths crossed.

He always said it was amusing the way that Dooley girl avoided her just social debts. The job was in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," and for it she had to cast about for a useful name. Her idol was Theda Bara, who had scarified the word Death for her first name and Arab for her second. Theda's real name was Theodosia Goodman. Nonna remembered a convent friend, a Miss Rinaldi, and another chorus friend, a kid named Anita. She did a surgical job on both names and became Nita Naldi. She also mushroomed as an authentic vampire of the silent films and revelled in her impact on men and women alike.

This was a more naive age in American life and the sultry doings of the silent vampires were too often taken as actual photography of their private lives. Which was nonsense, since no more domestic and kitchen-loving woman ever lived than dear Vampira, and no more ribald a Theodosia Goodman, the First self-mockery and Irish wit ever lived than the Second Vampire, Miss Naldi.

"My stars, boy, how women loathed me," she confided one day in the latter years of her life here. We had met in 1924 when, unable temporarily to latch onto a New York newspaper job, I advantaged myself of knowing a squadron of movie people and became for awhile an actor in films. An actor? An adjunct, say, is more accurate. I earned $25 a day at this dodge, which was more than I ever would have earned on a paper but, when a job at $55 a week came along on The Herald Tribune copy desk, I snagged it fast and gave up everything about movies except my friendship with the people, one of whom was Nita, who had put me in one of her starring vehicles. I was a young butler or footman, something like that, and can't even remember the title of the darned thing. The first time I ever met Nita was on the set of another movie and she came serpentine at me from around a set and said in a hoarsely seductive voice: "Where the heck is the water cooler around here?"

Later, in full view of perhaps 80 people, we sat side by side on the edge of a prop bed on the set and discussed that highly charged and suggestive topic. Alfred E. Smith, governor of New York, she turned once during this less than lurid conversation and said in a whisper: "I know eight million guys who would have your blood for being in this spot with me." And burst into an explosion of good raucous Irish laughter.

I liked Nita Naldi all the years I knew her. She grew to an imposing maturity, she even grew into near purity, but she never lost her ability to see the ridiculous in life, your life, her life, anybody's life. She acted in Broadway plays up to about eight years ago and then it was her voice loud and authoritative but not coarse. She was to the end the kind of woman who could sit at a lunch table in Sardi's and boom: "OF COURSE it's going to rain. Are you insane?"

Usually, it rained. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

most of our young people could benefit by a little more concentration on the subjects they are supposed to be learning. We are equally under the impression that our government school system has gone far, far afield of its presumed proper function when it sponsors tests and questions of this sort.

When government gets out of hand and begins to imagine itself to be the actual proprietor of human lives and human mentalities, something of this nature is bound to occur. Nor will it end until we insist that politics and education go their separate ways.

U.S. Opposing Long-Term Credits, War-Potential Trade With Soviet by NATO Allies; Harriman Trip

ROBERT S. ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON—Britain, France and Belgium are seriously considering granting five to ten year trade credits to Russia and its satellites, and the U.S. is emphatically opposed to that.

Conveying this stand to these and other NATO allies is the real purpose of Ambassador Averell Harriman's mystery-cloaked trip to Europe.

The roving envoy is explaining that the Kennedy Administration is not against one- or two-year trade credits such as France and other Western countries have granted the Soviet bloc to buy food and fodder to meet critical crop shortages. But long-term credits are strongly objected to for two reasons:

They would appreciably help the Reds by enabling them to spend more on costly missile and space projects, and for military and economic aid to further their subversion operations in South America, Africa and Asia.

The Administration is also greatly concerned about a growing trend in the British government to remove virtually all bars against Iron Curtain trade.

Lately, Belgium has joined in this backstage clamor since the Congo crisis.

Through diplomatic and other channels, Prime Minister Macmillan has been seeking to persuade the Kennedy Administration to agree to lift the NATO embargo against selling war potential armaments to the Reds, including entire steel and plastic plants.

In these discussions the British have indicated they favor removing all trade restrictions except on actual weapons.

Ambassador Harriman is making it clear the U.S. is flatly against that.

A NATO conference is slated for later this year to deliberate this thorny issue. The Kennedy Administration is not opposing that. But no doubt is being left that it will vigorously resist British and other proposals to let down the trade barriers to Russia and its satellites.

There are two exceptions to the policy against long-term trade credits to the Soviet bloc — Poland and Yugoslavia, which have such credits from the U.S. to buy food and machinery.

THE MISSING MEN — The U.S. is confronted with the same & x problem in dealing with the tortuous and explosive crises in the Congo and in Cuba.

That is finding the right native leader to support.

Secretary Dean Rusk summed it up that way at a private meeting with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"The heart of our problem in Cuba and the Congo is the same," said the State Department chief. "We've not been able to find a national leader who commands the respect and support of the masses whom we can get behind to oppose the Communist elements."

Soviet policy in the Congo, he explained, "is based primarily on fear that the United Nations will provide a peaceful solution that can be used elsewhere in Africa and Asia."

"The Kremlin doesn't want that to happen," said Rusk. "This would greatly impair the Communists' capacity for subversion and trouble-making."

UNUSUAL ADVICE FOR JFK — President Kennedy put an exceptional problem up to Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert Humphrey, Minn., and got a prompt answer in the same vein.

"What can I do to stir up some real red-blooded support in Congress for my legislative programs?" asked the President. "All the polls show that a majority of the people favor these programs, but you would never know it from the attitude being displayed on Capitol Hill."

"I would say the answer is very simple," replied Humphrey. "What this Congress needs is a good knockdown and drag-out fight to stir up both it and the country. For example: If we can get a real battle going over your bill for medical care for the aged, with thunder and lightning crackling on both sides, that would stir up the public and, in turn, Congress. Once the public is aroused, Congress will bestir itself."

"You've got an idea there, Hubert," said the President. "Maybe something can be done with it. I'll take it up with the Cabinet at our next meeting."

WHAT KENNEDY TOLD THEM — Adolf Berle is still the President's first choice for Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Latin American Affairs. That's what he told the Democratic congressional leaders at his weekly conference. He said he is still hopeful of being able to convince the one-time New Deal brain-truster to take this job. Berle now heads a special group studying Latin American problems.

Kennedy also defended his proposal for additional gas and truck taxes to finance the nationwide superhighway program. "We will need approximately $900 million in increased funds to keep the highway program on a pay-as-you-go basis," he explained. "And the only way I know of to raise that money is by these taxes. We can't take it from general Treasury funds because we will need every penny to meet our anti-recession and expanded military-and-space programs."

The congressional leaders warned the President there was considerable grumbling in their ranks over patronage handling. Co-regional Speaker Sam Rayburn, "There are few days when a good Democrat doesn't come to me to protest that he was not consulted on an appointment from his state. We have to depend on these members for votes, and they are not being treated considerably."

Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert Humphrey, Minn., reported similar charges, saying, "Obviously there is something amiss with your liaison staff. Senators see no reason why they should not be apprised in advance of appointments in their states. That's a simple courtesy and they are entitled to it."

The President readily agreed and promised to personally "improve this situation." He assured the leaders, "I give you my word we are going to establish the closest possible cooperation between my staff and members of Congress. We are working on that and I'm certain it's going to be done."

Waits Two Hours In Cold For An Eclipse

By HENRY McLEMORE

ROME, Italy. — We saw the eclipse from atop Janiculum Hill, and were there so early we nearly saw the last one.

It was cold and dark when we arrived. Garibaldi on his horse was the only one to beat us there, and I could have sworn that the Italian patriot had his hands in his bronze pockets against the pre-dawn wind.

We had two hours to wait and as it turned out it was a good thing we did. It took every bit of the time to explain what an eclipse was to Megan, and why we had gotten her up so early, and why she had to have her breakfast in the car.

Explaining an eclipse of the sun to a two-and-a-half-year-old girl at five in the morning would test a licensed astronomer. For one who doesn't know how the heavens work at all, it is impossible.

Megan greeted every scrap of my pseudo scientific explanation with a resounding "Why?"

The big moon passes in front of the sun.

"Why?"

It gets dark like night — night time.

"Why?"

It happens every thirty years (a pure guess).

"Why?"

When the moon goes by the world will be bright again.

"Why?"

When others began to gather in Piazza Garibaldi to watch the eclipse she wanted to know why. And why did they all have those black pieces of glass in their hands, and why were they all looking up, and why didn't Mama and Daddy have some black glass?

That last was a good question. We had counted on our dark glasses being sufficient, but they were no good at all, and Mary tried to get me to borrow a piece of glass from a man who had what seemed half a window pane.

Two things stopped me — I am a bit on the shy side, and I didn't have any earthly idea how to say "Could I have a slice of your smoked glass, Mister?" in Italian. Then, just when it seemed as if we were not to see the eclipse after all the trouble we had taken, and the hours of explaining, inspiration struck Mary with a bang.

Why not take some matches and smoke up the windshield of the car? From the inside, so that we could sit in comfort and watch Nature put on her show.

So I went to work, racing against time. I used the package of matches I had with me, and bought a

Check Loss Mounts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Businesses and individuals were stuck with a total of $800 million worth of known bad checks in 1959, according to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

It is estimated that in December the bad check loss rate moved up from $1,000 every minute to as much as $1,500.

The oldest soldier in the Civil War seems to have been Curtis King, 80, who served four and a half months in 1862-3 in the 37th Iowa, a guard duty regiment.

box from a stranger. I must have looked like an arsonist at work, or an eager Boy Scout trying to be the first to get his blaze going.

The next time, I thought, I am going to come prepared — with something real thick and smoked, like a slice of Smithfield ham.

But the smoked windshield did the trick. We could relax in comfort and look straight ahead and see it all. We were the envy of the Italians, and several stopped to smile at us and cry, "Buono! Brava!" It set us up no end.

When we drove down the hill toward home Megan wanted to know if we were coming again tomorrow to see a "kipse."

I told her no.

"Why not?"

Because there wouldn't be any "Why?"

I left that unanswered, for I wasn't real sure.

The Doctor Says:

By Dr. HAROLD T. HYMAN

I hate to admit it but faith healers got a big shot in the arm and we doctors took a licking in a recent pair of encounters.

To the surprise of few experienced practitioners, who have been viewing with alarm the current tendency to overmedicate hypertensives with powerful drugs, Dr. Raymond Grenfell and his associates have reported studies that demonstrated a sustained lowering of blood pressure following injections of sterile water. That's right, sterile water!

Here are some of the details as reported to the 14th Clinical Meeting of the American Medical Association.

Over three years, one group of hypertensive patients was given injections of a recognized pressure-reducing drug while another group received injections of sterile water. As nearly as possible, the groups were matched. Neither knew what was being injected.

Over periods varying between 39 and 143 weeks, significant reductions in blood pressure were noted in both groups. Those in the sterile water group were just as satisfactory as those in the group that received depressants (the blues), restlessness, confusion and ideas of persecution (paranoia).

A second blow to overenthusiastic "drug-healers" was delivered by the psychiatrists of the University of North Carolina. Using three different tranquilizers, a pep-up pill and a placebo (sugar pill), they treated a group of 80 oldsters suffering from various mental disturbances such as depression (the blues), restlessness, confusion and ideas of persecution (paranoia).

The winter? The sugar pills whose subjects proved less anxious and more alert than the tranquilized and pepped-uppers. Maybe some of us "pill-pushers" ought to take to the hills instead of to the pills.

'Brand X' Legislation Joins 'Also-Ran' Class

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some time ago, a group of New York advertising men conceived the idea of putting onto the market a string of products labelled as "Brand X."

Their aim was to take advantage of the free plugs that "Brand X" receives in television commercials. As you know, TV announcers are forever asserting that "Brand X" is inferior to some other product.

The admen reasoned that any product using "Brand X" as an actual trade name would strongly appeal to the thousands of consumers who are content with the second best.

I was reminded of the "Brand X" campaign just now as I was looking over some of the bills introduced during the first two months of the current congressional session.

Among these measures are scores of proposals that might be labelled as "Brand X" legislation. By that, I mean—that they are definitely in the "also-ran" class.

It occurred to me that the makers of "Brand X" products, as a promotion stunt, should get together about this time each year and nominate the bills that are least likely to be enacted.

Then, at the end of the session, the bill that was the most widely ignored would become the winner of the annual "Brand X" award.

To show you how it would work, I have picked out a few of this year's bills that I believe would be eligible for consideration in the "Brand X" contest.

My list is headed by a proposal by Rep. Thomas B. Curtis (R-Mo.) that Congress approve a constitutional amendment forcing its members to retire after 12 years of service.

I have never seen a measure that had less chance of passage unless it was the one introduced last year by Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) to cut the pay of congressmen.

Another likely contender for the 1961 "Brand X" award would be a suggestion by Rep. Abraham J. Multer (D-N.Y.) that all the winners in every congressional election take a trip overseas at the government's expense.

This travel would be in addition to the trips abroad that many lawmakers make each year on congressional committee assignments. It would cost the taxpayers about $2,350,000 every two years.

I think it is safe to assume that the majority of Multer's colleagues would like very much to support the plan. But I can't believe that they will have the nerve to do it.

A third measure that I fear is foredoomed was introduced by Rep. Frank J. Becker (R-N.Y.). It would pay members of the armed forces $2.50 for each day spent in hiding during World War II.

I estimate I would receive about $1,500 under Becker's bill. That would represent the time I spent hiding from the first sergeant.

SEND TWO SWIMMERS
 KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The Knoxville News-Sentinel, which campaigned to raise $1,500 to send a swimmer to the International Games for the Deaf in Helsinki, appealed to its readers Monday to stop sending in donations.

The total is now $4,775, and money keeps pouring in.
